BRAHMA BULL RIDING. Come on, J.T., you can do it! Encouraging words from the rodeo clown — who is not so safe, even on the ground. J.T. Henry got up on this mean Brahma bull and tried to make the eight-second time limit — but the bull had other ideas, and Henry scored a no time.

Shamrock Chamber float takes first, followed by Saturday bath

The Top O' Texas Rodeo Parade formed early Saturday morning under a bright, sunny sky with a hot brisk breeze nudging western costumes, decorated floats and flags.

At 10:30 a.m., the parade began down Hobart Street with Lt. Preston Baily — no longer concealing the Golden Horseshoe — leading the procession in his police unit.

Officers of the Pampa Police Department Color Guard, carrying the Texas state flag and the United States Flag, followed, while music of the "Country Critters" carried through the wind and startled unaware residents on the surrounding streets.

There were engraved trophies for winners for entrants in the six divisions.

Winner for the Commercial Division was the energetic Gymnastics of Pampa - Dustdevils Gymnastics Team, who bounced their way on trampoline and through acrobatics to an engraved trophy. Taking second place was the Odyssey Honda of Borger.

In the Antique Cars Division, the first place winner was Bill Waters, with Second Place going to Don Cole.

In the Riding Clubs Division, the Hutchinson County Sheriff's posse grabbed the first place trophy from the Gray County 4-H Project, who took second.

The impressive riding club trophy is a revolving trophy that may be kept by the winners of three consecutive Top O' Texas parades. The Gray County club had won two consecutive first places in the parade but lost their bid for the third-year win.

Civic club winner was the Shamrock Chamber of Commerce float, which depicted the Irish city of Shamrock. Two young leprechauns waved at the crowds from the green float with its large green shamrock.

The Pampa Jaycees took the second place trophy for their unique float, depicting Saturday Night Bath. The unusual float featured a real old-time western bath with a real bather.

Ranch entry first place trophy went to the Reynolds Ranch, and second place was won by Wiley Reynolds on an old-fashioned hay rake.

Others entered in the commercial division were Frito-Lay Truck, Covalt's Home Supply, Bowden TV and Appliance, Abraham Memorial Home, Canadian.

The antique car division included Luther Reed, June Thomas, the Amarillo Antique Auto Club and the Pampa Shrine Club.

Riding club division entries included Boys Ranch Honor Patrol.

Civic club and organization entries included Girl Scout Troup 411, Key Club, Miss Top O' Texas Pageant contestants, Arabian Horse Association, Canadian, Dumas Chamber of Commerce.

Ranch entries included George Bateman, and the Taylor Family.

The Miss Top O' Texas contestants made the parade a pretty sight as they rode in swimsuits from convertibles of various vintages.

There were Khiva Shrine clowns, and rodeo clowns running in and out of the parade. The clowns deviled the crowds as they rode in tiny cars and three wheel scooters.

Top Winners in the Top O' Texas Rodeo following Saturday's events are:

Bareback Bronc Riding - Randy Davis from Lubbock with 133 points. The win paid $167.

Calf Roping - Marty Devers from Booker with top time of 11 seconds. The win paid $784.

Saddle Bronc Riding - John Gass of Petrolia with 140 points. The win paid $151.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state district judge Saturday declared unconstitutional the House redistricting plan passed by the 1981 Legislature and approved by Gov. Bill Clements.

The plan was challenged by three Mexican-American legislators who claimed it unnecessarily cut across county lines in setting up districts for the election of the 150 House members.

State District Judge Harley Clark ruled that the plan did unnecessarily cut across 12 county lines, including the boundaries of El Paso, Tarrant, Bexar, Dallas, Harris and other counties.

"I'm going to strike the whole thing down and give a chance for somebody to redo the whole thing," said Clark.

Assistant state attorney general Richard Gray told Clark the ruling would be appealed.

Unless Clark's decision is overturned on appeal, the House redistricting plan would have to be drawn by a board made up of top state officials. Redistricting of the Texas Senate is already on the board's agenda because Clements vetoed the Senate plan approved by the Legislature.

Clark said the "excess" population statistically taken into other counties to make full districts should be "rippled" back into its home county, unless it would cause a violation of the federal Voting Rights Act.

Clark, who listened to five days of testimony and arguments, tried to find a way to strike down only parts of the plan, without throwing it all out.

"The House committee (on redistricting) made a genuine good effort... and I'm willing to go with leaving some of it knocked down and some of it standing up," he told lawyers.

Anti-Castro commandos said captured in Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — Five commandos trained in the United States and intent on assassinating Cuban President Fidel Castro and sabotaging industrial plants were captured after landing east of Havana, Havana radio reported Saturday.

A Miami-based group of anti-Castro Cuban exiles claimed the five as members and said their capture would not deter the group from its goal of overthrowing the communist dictator.

"We know the men are ours," said Humberto Perez, who identified himself as chief of military operations for Alpha 66. "But this isn't going to stop us."

Perez said he could not identify the five men. Havana radio said they were captured on July 5 because Alpha 66 has sent more than 40 commandos to Cuba in recent months. He said Alpha 66 sent six men to Cuba on July 4.

He said he discussed the reported capture Saturday with Alpha 66 members who are training for clandestine missions in Cuba.

"Everyone said they want to continue, they want to go to Cuba," he said in a telephone interview.

Alpha 66 claims thousands of members throughout the United States. It has long been one of the most influential of the dozens of splinter exile groups that have tried to keep alive the 22-year dream of ousting Castro.

The radio report, monitored in Miami, said the five "counterrevolutionary elements" carried North American-made weapons and explosives and had left the United States "in a speedy craft with the purpose of infiltrating Cuba."

The broadcast said the five were captured by combined forces of the Cuban Interior Ministry and the Cuban Armed Forces Ministry on the northern coast of Matanzas province.

The commandos, carrying provisions and propaganda, planned an assassination attempt against Castro on July 26, the radio report said. The date is the 28th anniversary of a victory by Castro's forces that marked the start of the revolution, and will be celebrated in the eastern Cuban city of Las Tunas.

In Washington, FBI spokesman Roger Young said the bureau was launching an investigation of possible violation of the Neutrality Act.

Rodeomembers with 80 years given awards

In a special ceremony during Saturday night's Top O' Texas Rodeo, three prominent rodeo association members were honored for their combined total of 80 years of service with the association.

A platform was rolled into the arena after the bareback bronc riding event, and Archie Maness climbed to the top and announced the special award.

Called to the stage were Lois Steward, with 25 years of service, Rufe Jordan with 25 years and Bill Tidwell with 30 years of service. Each received silver watches inscribed with the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association emblem on the face.

Lois Steward has been instrumental in the production of 23 Top O' Texas Rodeos. She has said she has attended all of the performances except in 1970, due to a tornado, in 1971, due to an outbreak of sleeping sickness and in 1980, due to personal illness. She has been the Rodeo Association Office Manager for almost 25 years.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan has been a spectator at all the rodeos. He could be seen this year viewing the action in the arena and any action outside the arena that might fall under his jurisdiction.

Bill Tidwell has been a Rodeo Association President for two terms. He has been in the Rodeo Association since 1951 and has served in every office — at least once. He is the manager of the 4-R Industrial Supply.

Rodeo top winners

Steer Wrestling - Marty Devers of Booker with a top time of 15.5 seconds. The win paid $388.

Cowgirls Barrel Racing - Lynda Gordon of Guthrie, Okla., with a top time of 17.5 seconds. The win paid $288.

Brahma Bull Riding - Kyle Whiting of Greenwell Springs with 80 points. The win paid $689.

Judge scraps redistricting plan

However, David Richards, representing the plaintiffs, said the whole plan had to be thrown out because it was "tainted or afflicted" by the problems in the dozen counties.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, told Clark there would be "no way" to redraw boundaries only for the counties mentioned in the judge's ruling. Davis represented 71 House members who intervened to support the plan.

The 12 counties in which Clark found violations include about 60 of the 150 House districts.

The plaintiffs persuaded Clark that the plan violated a provision of the Texas Constitution which says county lines should be crossed by legislative districts only if necessary.

The judge said Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad and chairman of the House Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts, testified the committee did not try to avoid crossing county lines.

Don Gladden, a former legislator who represented an Azle city official during the trial, said county lines should not be crossed because "people look to their state through their county government."

"The people in Azle have always been in Tarrant County. Under the House plan, they would find that their representatives in Tarrant County would not be responsive to them because they don't get to vote for them," he said after the trial.

Rep. Robert Valles, D-El Paso and one of the plaintiffs, said the decision gives Hispanics a "fresh shot" at the representation they deserve.

The state's appeal of the ruling goes directly to the Texas Supreme Court because the case involves a constitutional question, Gray said. Clark's ruling could lead to major changes in the way the state draws legislative districts.

These are the counties that Clark ruled were unnecessarily divided among more than one House district:

El Paso, Tarrant, Potter, Webb, Gregg, Bexar, Dallas, Harris, Nueces, Cooke, Coryell and Erath.

Carson named Cooper's 51st citizen

COOPER, Iowa (AP) — Network television exposure outweighed the "royalty factor" Saturday as "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson was named the 51st citizen of Cooper.

As Cooper's newest citizen, Carson will receive a list of prizes that includes having the two-block-long main street named after him.

He'll also get a free burial plot in one of Cooper's four cemeteries, a free oil and lube job from a local garage and free fishing rights to Cooper's secret fishing hole.

"You've made Johnny very happy today," said Jim McCawley, "Tonight Show" talent coordinator, who traveled to Cooper to accept the award. Carson is vacationing in Europe.

The search for a 51st citizen was set up to publicize the town's centennial celebration, and the hunt got national exposure when Carson, a Nebraska native, heard of the event and invited three Cooper residents to appear on his program.

Other nominees had included Gov. Robert Ray, Princess Grace of Monaco, actor Henry Winkler, U.S. Rep. Tom Harkin and a long list of celebrities.

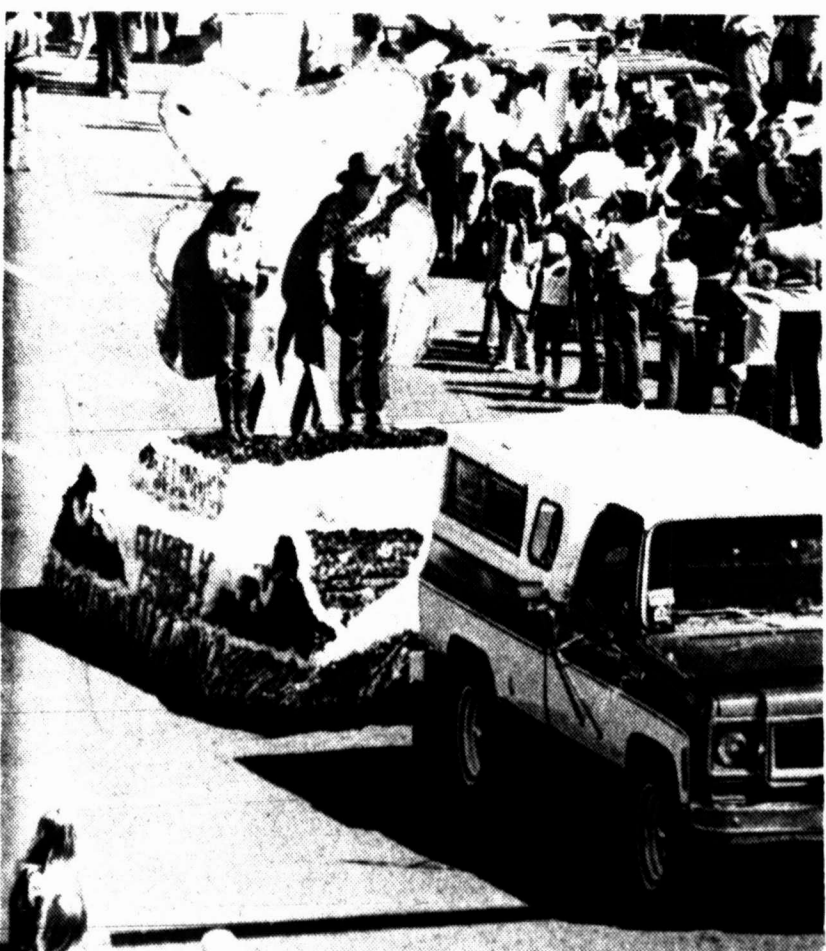

Some in Cooper had cited the "royalty factor" as weighing in favor of Princess Grace, a late entrant.

Celebrities who applied supposedly were asked such questions as "Have you ever chewed tobacco?" and "Do you own a pair of bib overalls?"

Residents cast their ballots last week — five did not vote — and the results were sealed in an 1886 fruit jar and locked in a safe to keep them secret until Saturday afternoon.

"The choice was popular with the crowd of more than 4,000, and when organizer Gerald Lawton read off Carson's name there was a lusty cheer."

Before the unincorporated town's celebration, including a two-hour parade, some organizers had estimated the crowd would run to 10,000. But the estimated 4,000 who braved the 95-degree heat were enough "to give Cooper its first traffic jam," Rich said. "I suppose they might have had a horse-jam at one time or another."

THE SHAMROCK CHAMBER of Commerce float took first place in the Top O' Texas Rodeo Parade civic club and organization division. The bright green and white float displayed an Irish theme that was carried out by a large green shamrock and two friendly leprechauns.

'Innocent' plant mistaken for marijuana

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — U.S. probation officer Mike Williams says he is "really embarrassed" after informing on an "innocent" plant that he thought was marijuana.

The weed lost its life after Williams called the Baytown police and told them marijuana was growing outside his office in the federal building. Williams' picture appeared on the front page of a Baytown newspaper, along with the remnants of the supposedly illicit weed.

Williams said for more than a year he has casually observed the plant growing along a sidewalk. But on Thursday, he said, he noticed its leaves had been meticulously trimmed back, leaving only a five-foot stalk.

"At first, I thought maybe a caterpillar had gone wild. But it was too perfectly manicured to preserve the stalk, not like something had been chewing it," Williams said.

He said the few remaining leaves on the stalk resembled pictures he had seen of marijuana, so he called the Baytown police.

Williams says he has one consolation after his publicized "killing" of the innocent plant — whoever harvested its leaves must feel pretty foolish, too.

Friday night rodeo action was filled with thrills for spectators

Word is out - the Top O' Texas Rodeo has some of the best arena action going and the capacity crowds in the bleachers have loved every minute of it.

In the Friday night rodeo, entrants from Texas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas showed their western talents.

One event, the Amateur Double Muggin provided the backdrop for three Pampa men who streaked into the dusty arena and broke a new record in that event.

The team of Alan Tidwell, on horseback, Lonnie Brown and Crickett Lowery on the ground, roped, downed and tied their steer in 27.7 seconds flat.

The 27.7 time was recorded right on the heels of a 34.4 - second Double Muggin record time by the team of Sammy Giddeon, Gary McFall and Gene Ferguson, who held the lead for minutes.

Three other teams in the Double Muggin event gave the rodeo fans a great show but scored no time. The teams of Bill Horne, Boyd Smith and Fred Lehman scored 94 seconds, and the team of Billy Scribner, Rick Whaley and Rusty Kilcrease scored 47.5.

The previous Double Muggin record was a time of 34.7.

Rodeo announcer Clem McSpadden kept the crowd informed of riders' scores, times and backgrounds. His come relationship with the two rodeo clowns Ted Kimzey and Rick Young were among the highlights of the rodeo.

The bareback bronc riding was the first event to test the skills of the riders: Marty Cummins on a bronc named "High Society" scored high with 73 points. Tommy Hanna on "Gunpowder" took second with 67 points.

Bronc riding times were also earned by Stoney Zolman with 52 points, Frank Winters with 63 points and Scott Hopping with 65 points.

The calf roping event was next, and Tom Epperson took first place when he tied his calf in 11.8 seconds. Jack Dickens of Fountain, Colo. took second place with a tie in 12.3 seconds.

Others scoring in the calf roping included Mike Stouffer with 16 seconds, James Zant with 16.6 seconds, Larry Bishop with 18.9 seconds, J.D. Tadlock with 16.2 and Trey Greenwood with 16.2 seconds.

Saddle bronc riding had a full slot of eight entrants. Monte Shifflett on "Buckskin Joe" had the high point ride with 65 points. Ben Rogers on "Scotty" scored 64 points, and Scott Hopping on "Bum Goose" scored 62 points. Steer wrestling contest ended with a good time for Marty Devers who takes the two - night lead with a total of 15.5 seconds.

Other times in the steer wrestling include: Gaines Bonsall - 17.2; Darrell Neu - 11.5; Charlie Battles - 8.6; and Keith VanDoren - 16.51.

The cowgirls took to the arena for the Barrel Race event.

Lynda Gordon from Guthrie, Okla. ran the barrels in 17.5 seconds and took the lead.

Kelly Freeman came in second with a time of 18.1 seconds. Peggy Bleiker earned an 18.4 - second time. Judy Miller scored 18.7 seconds. Jo Nell Epperson took 18.8 seconds. Denise Thompson scored 19.4 and Paula McFall scored a time of 24.8.

The exciting brahma bull riding event was saved for last. Fans lined the rails to see who could stay on the raging bulls for the eight - second time.

Only two in a entry line up of 10 men scored times.

The highest score was won by a surprised Kyle Whiting who tallied 78 points in his ride. Second scorer was Lonnie West from Nebraska who looked like he took it pretty easy and garnered 72 points.

Some residents to flee spraying

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Some officials in an area stricken by Mediterranean fruit flies urged residents to leave as officials prepared to battle the bugs from the air with a controversial pesticide.

Barring a court injunction, helicopters loaded with the insecticide malathion will take off early Tuesday for an aerial spraying program ordered by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. after the U.S. Department of Agriculture threatened a quarantine on California produce.

The 97-square-mile heart of the infestation will be hit with malathion at least six times, with applications seven to 10 days apart, officials said.

The first application is expected to take a week and the rest two to three days each, officials said. The first "target area" is a 15-square mile section near Stanford University.

However, U.S. Agriculture Secretary

John Block warned spraying might not be enough to halt the pests and said he still might have to impose a quarantine on 200 fruits and vegetables grown in California.

That could mean short supplies and high prices nationwide. The crops were valued at $4.1 billion last year.

State agriculture officials, while insisting the chemical posed no health threat, urged residents to stay inside, cover their cars and bring children's toys inside during the 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. sprayings.

Some local officials went so far as to urge residents to flee rather than face the possible danger of malathion.

"I don't know where I'll go but I intend to leave," said Santa Clara County Supervisor Zoe Lofgren.

Sunnyvale City Councilman Larry Stone predicted that "an exodus will create incredible security problem."

The Red Cross said it will open shelters for people leaving their homes during the spraying. But Pete Ashen, director of Red Cross disaster services for Northern California, stressed that "this is not an emergency evacuation. Leaving the area is a personal choice."

Meanwhile, tens of thousands of residents in a 620-square mile area already under quarantine worked to strip the produce from their gardens as pesticides were sprayed from the ground.

Those who have not stripped their trees by Monday will be subject to citations carrying possible six-month jail terms and $500 fines.

The flies lay eggs beneath the skins of ripening crops, and the resulting maggots eat the fruit. If the fruit is not harvested, the larvae burrow into the ground and emerge as adults.

Brown, who on Wednesday vetoed aerial spraying, charged President Reagan with sabotaging his limited ground-spray plan.

Members of the Gray County Grand Jury met in regular session Friday and handed down eight indictments and no-billed one case.

Those indicted during the all - day Friday session include the following:

Youngest Congressman blasts O'Neill

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The nation's youngest congressman told young Republicans on Saturday that House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. was "big, fat and out of control — just like the federal government."

In a virulent attack on the veteran Democrat, Rep. John LeBoutillier, a Republican, said the speaker "personifies everything about politics that the public hates today."

The 27-year-old freshman congressman lambasted O'Neill as "obstructionist" and "out of sync with the public mood" before about 250 enthusiastic delegates at the Young Republican National Federation's biennial convention.

"People ask me what I do when I walk by Tip O'Neill in the halls of Congress," LeBoutillier said. "You don't walk by him, you walk around him. And it's a long trip."

LeBoutillier, who began his talk by pasting a "Repeal O'Neill" bumper sticker on the podium, ran on the Republican, Conservative and Right to Life tickets in 1980, defeating the incumbent Democrat by 10,000 votes in the Long Island district.

He criticized O'Neill late last month for opposing President Reagan's budget proposals. The speaker responded in characteristic fashion, telling reporters: "I wouldn't know him from a cord of wood."

LeBoutillier wrote O'Neill, inviting him to visit his district, and O'Neill ignored the letter. LeBoutillier then issued a press release saying that since O'Neill first was elected to the House in 1952, the price of a cord of wood had risen from $25 to $125.

LeBoutillier told the young Republicans on Saturday that he believes Reagan "wants to take the gloves off and blast O'Neill." He said Reagan told him, "We've got to fight 'em."

As to other liberal Democrats, LeBoutillier called former Sen. George McGovern "scum," and in an interview accused the Kennedy family of "snobby, elitist, condescending politics."

"The liberals have had 40 years of unchecked power," LeBoutillier told the young delegates. "President Reagan has had less than five months and already they're saying he's a failure. The media doesn't want us to succeed."

He added: "The people don't want more federal spending of taxes. Guys like O'Neill don't buy that — they border on socialism."

"We're at the edge of a revolution," he said. "It's up to the young folks — we're the ones who can save this country."

"If Young Republicans ran America, America would be a hell of a lot better off than it is today. The young Democrats don't believe like we do. If they believe in anything, it is selfish interest in their degenerate lifestyles."

LeBoutillier predicted Republicans would "break the mold of history" by gaining seats in the House in 1982.

More than 1,000 people attended the four-day convention, which ended Saturday.

Mother rejoices at son's rescue

MILO CENTER, Texas (AP) — Virginia Artho rejoiced Saturday and gave thanks that her 4-year-old son had both the courage and the strength to hang on to a rope while rescue workers hauled him from the depths of an abandoned irrigation well.

"This is just the best day of my life," Mrs. Artho said Saturday after she was reunited with her son Jared, who was not seriously injured when he toppled 260 feet to the sandy bottom of the well Friday morning. "We are planning a thanksgiving mass, but I don't know when it will be."

Mrs. Artho, who gave birth to a daughter on Thursday, said she was in her hospital room watching television with her husband when she saw a news report about the rescue attempt on her father-in-law's farm.

"Soon as we heard, we called my father-in-law's house. My father-in-law said the boy was OK and was coming to the hospital in an ambulance," said Mrs. Artho. "I insisted on being taken to the emergency room."

Jared was examined and released from the Hereford hospital Friday, but Mrs. Artho had to remain in the hospital overnight.

The boy and his two brothers were watching their uncle fill the well with sand when he fell, said Mrs. Artho.

"He wanted to see the hole. He slipped on the sand (around the mouth of the well) and fell in," said Mrs. Artho.

Carey Black, one of 15 volunteer firemen who responded to the rescue call, said he could see the boy lodged against the side of the well about 75 feet down when he first arrived.

"But about two minutes later when I looked again I could not see him. He had fallen to the bottom of the well," said Black.

"After the dust cleared I could tell he was way down in the hole," said Black.

"I said at that depth we better get some oxygen down there and (fire marshal) Jay Stain said we better get a light in there too," said Black.

He said they attached a flashlight to the oxygen line and lowered it 260 feet into the well. Black said the boy, responding shouts from rescue workers, shined the light at them to indicate he could hear their instructions.

Black said Saturday some of the rescue workers were giving the boy a 50-50 chance at that depth and "not many were giving 50-50."

"We had several options. Rigs were on standby to drill down and tunnel across. We thought about lowering somebody ... but feared that by lowering someone we would hit the sides and could cause the side of the well to collapse," said Black.

Instead, rescue workers lowered a rope with a loop tied in the end and told the boy to put the loop around him and tug when he was ready to be hoisted up.

The child never responded, but Black said after a few minutes they began to haul the rope up and they could feel the weight of the 40-pound boy on the end. After they had hoisted the boy about 20 feet he fell from the rope. Black said they lowered the rope again and began the process again, this time the boy held on.

Black said he could see the boy when he was about 150 feet down.

"He just freehanded it (the rope)," said Black. "His hands were over his head and he was just holding on. I told him to squeeze his legs around the rope too and he said 'OK.'"

Mrs. Artho said the boy has talked alot about his ordeal.

"He said he was not frightened," said Mrs. Artho. "He just didn't realize the danger. To him it was more exciting to ride the ambulance."

Dead man was informant

HOUSTON (AP) — Government officials have confirmed that a man who was shot to death, then dumped in front of a hospital here last week was a former government informant who had been dropped from a witness protection program.

David Capuano was fatally shot in the neck before being dumped out of a Cadillac in front of Memorial City Hospital, officials said. Investigators said Capuano is a Massachusetts native with a lengthy criminal record who had testified against organized crime figures.

Iran executes five, arrests Bani-Sadr's brother

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's Islamic revolutionary regime announced Saturday it had executed five more opponents and arrested the brother of Iran's missing ex-president. Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

Tehran Radio said the five men put to death late Friday and early Saturday were members of Peykar and the Mujahadeen Khalq, leftist guerrilla groups fighting the fundamentalist Moslem clergy who dominate Iran's government.

Fifteen other leftists were arrested in a series of pre-dawn police raids on guerrilla hide-outs in Tehran, the state-run radio said.

The latest deaths brought to 153 the number of people executed for politics-related activities since members of the ruling Islamic Republican Party engineered Bani-Sadr's removal from office June 22.

Bani-Sadr disappeared before his impeachment, and is reportedly hiding among Kurdish rebels in northwest Iran.

The government-controlled newspaper Etelaat said

Bani-Sadr's brother, Fathollah, was arrested and imprisoned Thursday along with Mustafa Entezarian, former presidential assistant for public relations.

Fathollah Bani-Sadr served as Iran's prosecutor general in Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's government, the first after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution toppled the monarchy in February 1979. Bazargan resigned from the government in November 1979.

In further evidence of the nation's division, the official news agency Pars reported Kurdish separatists shot and killed a Sunni Moslem religious leader and one of his sons. Pars said Ali Jalali-Zadah, a mullah of the minority Moslem sect in Iran, and his son Salim were killed Friday night by rebels attacking their home in Sarandaj, provincial capital of Kurdistan. It said another son and a visitor were wounded in the attack.

Shiite Moslems are the dominant population in Iran. Meanwhile, a spokesman for fundamentalist Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai hailed as a victory for Iran a U.S. promise to return frozen Iranian assets to Iran no later than July 19.

A spokesman for Rajai's office said the promise was a "proof that the will of Iran's revolutionary people has been imposed upon the American superpower."

His statement broadcast by Tehran radio and monitored in Beirut obliquely criticized Bani-Sadr.

Abandoned child dies

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — An investigation concludes there is insufficient evidence to prosecute the parents of a 2-year-old girl who died after being abandoned at a hospital here by her Texas parents, District Attorney Leonard Knapp said Friday.

The child, Luisa Pendleton, died April 6 of acute glomerulonephritis at Moss Regional Hospital, said the Calcasieu Parish prosecutor. She was suffering from acute lymphoblastic leukemia, Knapp said.

Luisa's parents, Louis and Judith Pendleton, were ordered by Dallas District Judge Craig Penfold in Dallas to produce the child for chemotherapy at Children's Medical Center in that Texas city but the parents refused, said Knapp.

Contempt proceedings were begun and the father was jailed for several days until ordered released by an appellate court, he said. Mrs.

Pendleton fled the Dallas area with the child and has not been since she took Luisa on April 6 to Moss Regional Hospital, where she died within a few hours, Knapp said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Who's paying the bill for the high-powered lobbying operations conducted by major defense contractors to pressure Congress into approving weapons systems those corporations want to sell to the federal government?

Most of those costs are being borne by the same people who finance a host of other outrageous activities in this capital — the nation's taxpayers.

The scheme under which the country's largest and wealthiest defense contractors recoup much of their lobbying expenses is considerably more scandalous, however, than most other forms of legalized fraud conducted here.

The practice was never even seriously questioned until the mid-1970s, when the Defense Contract Audit Agency, the Pentagon's principal financial watchdog, undertook a probe of the Washington offices of ten defense contractors.

Those DCAA audits were, in substantial measure, a public relations gesture initiated by the Defense Department in the wake of a scandal involving unethical favors proffered to Pentagon officials by military contractors.

Although denied access to many of the contractors' records, the DCAA auditors found evidence of entertainment expenses, country club dues, tickets to professional football games and other lobbying expenditures for which reimbursement was claimed under government contracts.

DCAA argued persuasively that "costs relating to lobbying should not be 'allowed' to qualify for federal reimbursement" — with money collected from the taxpayers — because there was no justification for "attempts by contractors to influence legislation favoring procurement of their products."

In addition, DCAA cited a federal criminal statute that specifically prohibited the use of federal funds to finance any effort "to influence in any manner a member of Congress to favor or oppose . . . any legislation or appropriation."

Although DCAA audits were confined to a two-year period, the agency identified hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of lobbying expenses improperly reimbursed by the government to the contractors in 1974 and 1975.

Efforts to require refunds of that money were undercut, however, in late 1976 when a policy paper, "was distributed throughout the Pentagon establishing new guidelines for the classification of contractors' lobbying costs."

The memo was written by Dale R. Babione, a high-ranking Defense Department official. In August 1979, he resigned to become director of government business relations for the Boeing Co., one of the firms under investigation.

Under the policy enunciated by Babione, a contractor could claim full reimbursement for the time registered lobbyists spent on Capitol Hill attending hearings, gathering information and meeting with legislators — as long as they were not directly attempting to influence legislation.

In the late 1970s, the contractors launched a campaign to further undermine DCAA's attempts to demand refunds, claiming that the policy represented an abridgment of their First Amendment right to petition their government.

In fact, neither DCAA nor any other agency ever sought to abrogate that freedom, only to prevent the corporations from charging the taxpayer for the expenses they incurred while lobbying for more and bigger contracts.

Frustrated and exasperated, the government officials attempting to implement the new policy now have abandoned their efforts. The more than $41,000 DCAA initially sought to recover from the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. was reduced to a nominal claim for less than $6,500.

Although 20.2 percent of Boeing's Washington office costs originally were challenged by DCAA, the claim subsequently was cut to 8.2 percent. In the case of the Rockwell International Corp., the claim was slashed from 31.5 percent to 13.7 percent.

Today the contractors' full-time registered lobbyists continue to ply their trade on Capitol Hill — with most of their costs claimed as reimbursable expenses under their government contracts funded with tax revenues. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Curb the Senate instead

Now that Republicans control the U.S. Senate, some of them seem determined to prove that they can dream up as many silly ways to waste taxpayers' money as the Democrats used to.

The most obvious recent case in point was the passage by the Labor and Human Resources Committee of a $30 million bill that would encourage teen-agers to practice "self-discipline and responsibility in matters of human sexuality" and also promote adoption as an alternative to adolescent parenthood.

This one is the special pet of Sen. Jeremiah Denton of Alabama, who emerged from captivity as a POW in Vietnam as something of a hero and parlayed it into a seat in the Senate. Denton is not really a villain, and his feelings on the importance of strong family ties as a key to adolescent responsibility are obviously sincere. His problem is that he shares the common misperception that the way to approach a problem is to throw federal money at it.

It's significant that at the same session the committee also approved bills to reauthorize the Legal Services program, Head Start, the Older Americans Act and the Domestic Volunteer Services act. These are all programs that embody worthy ideas, but end up employing bureaucrats and consultants and institutionalizing problems instead of solving them.

The whole committee decided to help Denton get his little pet passed, including Sens. Edward Kennedy, Thomas Eagleton and Orrin Hatch.

Committee chairman Hatch of Utah, who is being touted as future presidential timber by certain conservatives, noted that Denton has received a certain measure of lampooning and criticism for his sponsorship of this bill.

"It should send some message to the media and others that this bill was reported out of this committee without objection even though there are wide ideological differences on the panel," quoth Senator Hatch.

It certainly does send us a message, though it's doubtless not the one Hatch had in mind.

Nobody is minding the store, and the taxpayers are getting the shaft as usual.

Incentives to save

There is no mystery about the failure of Americans to save. The government, through its tax and regulation policies, has given Americans every incentive to go into debt and little or no incentive to save and invest.

In the last quarter of 1979, the American savings rate as measured against individuals after tax income, dropped to its lowest level in 30 years — 3.3 percent. It was the first time it had been under 4 percent in any quarter since 1951.

In West Germany, the rate was 14 percent. There the government adds a bonus to special savings accounts that are frozen for six or seven years. In Japan the rate was 20 percent. The Japanese government exempts from taxes virtually all interest income earned by the average Japanese citizen.

Part of the Reagan tax reduction package should be a generous exemption of interest income for American taxpayers.

Wonderful world of judicial circus

The relentless hunt for legal error took an unusual turn in the Queens district of New York City last month, according to the New York Times.

Justice Kenneth N. Browne, a member to the State Supreme Court in Queens, determined that a murder confession offered freely by a 16-year-old Brooklyn youth could not be used in court because the young man's rights had been violated — not by the police or district attorney but by the suspect's own lawyer.

Justice Browne, throwing out the confession of Angel Claudio, claimed Claudio's attorney was "incompetent" when he permitted his one-time client to confess. Browne cited an Indiana justice's opinion that a defense attorney's "sole duty" is to "protect his client — guilty or innocent — and that in such capacity he owes no duty whatever to help society solve its crime problem."

"Under this concept of criminal procedure," wrote the Indiana judge, "any lawyer worth his salt will tell the suspect in no uncertain terms to make no statement to police under any circumstances."

Meanwhile, former Dallas Cowboy football star Bob Hayes had his 1980 cocaine conviction overturned by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin a few days ago.

The court said Hayes' indictment was defective because it used the word "cocaine" rather than the approved wording, "derivative of the coca leaf."

And in San Francisco — same day — the former attorney for a California man who confessed four times (once on national television) to multiple murder wrote a letter to the U.S. Supreme Court protesting the court's reversal of the conviction because, according to the court, two of the confessions violated the Miranda rule requiring that suspects be told they have the right to remain silent and obtain legal counsel.

The attorney, James Leonard Crew Hayward, wrote the court:

"Your recent decision in the case of People vs. Barry Braeseke was predictable. On the other hand, it is difficult to understand how a system of laws conceived to protect innocent people can become twisted to give freedom to a person who deliberately kills three innocent human beings, thereafter confesses four times to these killings, the last confession being on national television, and with all this somehow finds that freedom awaits him . . .

"I am a responsible citizen in my community and shudder that my family has now been given less protection by our courts. No wonder the citizens in this country refer to attorneys in a disrespectful fashion and to many of our courts with comparable lack of respect."

Braeseke, 25, accused of slaying three members of a family as they watched television in their home, will now be retried. Prosecutors are hoping to include as evidence Braeseke's confession during an interview with Mike Wallace on the CBS program "60 Minutes." That confession is important because a prior California Supreme court ruling had not only knocked out two of the first confessions but eliminated the murder weapon because, said the court, the rifle was found during an "illegal search."

Is it any wonder crime flourishes as the endless court hunt for legal nits intensifies?

Living with millionaire singlehood

By D.R. SEGAL

Never having amounted to much, I was, as you might imagine, thrilled to death when I got my invitation to apply for membership in the Millionaires Club for Singles (Newport Beach, Calif.). There is some little technical difficulty, as I see it, in palming myself off as a "single," but maybe they wouldn't be too fussy when they saw how enthusiastically I was. "The Millionaires Club for Singles puts the romance back in life," says the printed letter I got. (Incidentally, it was addressed to "Future Millionaire." How could they know? What the letter says, as I get it, is that I likely am tired of cruising bars and getting stuck with all kinds of schlock merchandise, and what they want me to do is fill out a 47-item questionnaire so they can match me up with a lady who wants to enter Future Millionaireland with me. They are very choosy, the letter says, although they confess they aren't sure where they picked up my name. "If you did not request this information," the letter says, "your name may have been referred to us by a friend, club member or, possibly, other means," such as, for example, the phone book. The way they are going to select my madonna is by "advanced techniques of testing personality dimensions."

The questionnaire consists of statements that require an answer of "strongly agree," "agree," "are uncertain," "disagree" or "strongly disagree." They start off with some pretty tame stuff — e.g., "I am easily irritated when required to stand in line" (strongly agree) and get into some rather kinky areas — "Children should not be taught the theory of evolution in school."

I suspect we start to get down to the real grit in the nitty with Q-6 which asks how I feel about nude beaches. Q-14 wants to know how I feel about love before sex, and Q-26 wants my reaction to "I don't feel free to be sexually intimate with whomever I want," a statement which is beyond understanding unless it refers to forcible rape. Q-30 solicits my views on "sexually permissive and suggestive" TV programs, and Q-38 wants to know how I feel about spending time with members of my own sex.

There is some stuff about how much money I make and whether I think we have to "pay for our sins after life on earth." There is a little box marked "For office use only," and it says "Self," "Rel," "Sex," and "Con." I wonder what "con" means, don't you?

P.S. I'll let you know if I get in. (D.R. Segal is president of Freedom Newspapers, Inc.)

You look great

Something happens to people when they visit friends or relatives in the hospital. I was forced to spend a few days in one not long ago for minor surgery, and had a chance to observe the weird behavior of people who came to comfort me.

As a patient, I discovered you are at a complete disadvantage. Dressed in hospital garb, and stuck in a bed, you're no longer on equal terms with your pals. Without their realizing it, the entire relationship has changed.

From being a friend on equal footing with the Parkers, I suddenly found myself being treated like the senile uncle when they appeared at the hospital room door.

"You look great," Yvonne Parker said. "Doesn't he look great, Bill?" "You certainly do," Bill agreed. "I've never seen you looking better."

"I feel great. I'm sore, but I feel just great."

"You have good color in your face," Yvonne said.

"Thanks," I replied. "Won't you sit down?"

"We can't stay too long," Bill said nervously, as he sat down. Then he got up. "Would you like a drink of water?"

"I don't think so, right now. But if I do I can pour one from this pitcher next to my bed."

"Isn't that great, Yvonne? He can pour his own water."

"I think it's just wonderful. Can I help you with your pillow?"

"No thank you. I'm very comfortable."

"You look comfortable. I wouldn't even know you had been sick," Yvonne said.

"What does your doctor say?"

"He says I'm doing just fine. He doesn't think I'll have to stay the week."

"If he says so, he should know," Bill said.

"He wouldn't let you go home unless you were better," Yvonne said.

"That's what I thought," I said. "The reason he wants me to stay here is, if I go home, I'll overdo it. At the same time, he doesn't want me to stay in bed all day because I'll get stiff. He wants me to walk around."

Yvonne said, "We'll leave if you want to walk around."

"No, I don't want to walk around now. I'll walk around later."

"I can't believe how good you look," Bill commented. "Doesn't he look good, Yvonne?"

"I've never seen him look better."

"Well, what's going on in the outside world?" I asked.

"Don't think about the outside world. Your job is to get well," Bill said. "Isn't that right, Yvonne?"

"That's right. There's no sense thinking about other things until you're on the mend."

"Well," said Bill, "we don't want to tire you out."

"You're not tiring me out. I feel great."

"You don't think you're tired," Yvonne said, "because you feel so good. But you have to rest. Do you want me to put your bed down?"

"No, if I want to put my bed down, I can do it with this button right here."

"We don't want to interfere with your dinner," Bill said.

"It's only three o'clock. They don't serve dinner around here until five."

Yvonne said, "Then you probably want to wash up for it. Bill, we'd better be moving along."

Bill got up. "You look just great."

Yvonne agreed. "I wouldn't believe it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes."

Bill said, "You're going to be okay, guy. Isn't he going to be all right, Yvonne?"

"Of course he's going to be all right. He'll be his own self in no time."

"You hear that, fellow? Yvonne says you're going to be your old self in no time. And when she says something like that, you'd better listen to her. She knows what she's talking about."

Quick-thinking judge daringly rescues wife from kidnapper

VIDOR, Texas (AP) — A quick-thinking municipal judge rammed his big luxury car into the rear of his wife's compact car and enabled her to escape from a man who had held her hostage for six hours, police said.

Sandra Price and family friend Bob Merrill were abducted at knifepoint from her home about 10 a.m. Friday by a man demanding that authorities release an Orange County jail inmate, said Vidor Police Chief J.L. "Butch" Reynolds.

Merrill was released unharmed about two hours later, but Mrs. Price remained a captive while her abductor, driving her car, drove through two Southeast Texas counties, stopping to negotiate with her husband by phone for the release of jail inmate Andy Carroll Simmons, said Reynolds.

Mrs. Price escaped when her husband, Vidor Municipal Judge Rodney Price, used his Lincoln Continental to ram his wife's Toyota on a rural road where the judge had agreed to exchange the prisoner for his wife, said Reynolds.

"It worked better than in the movies," said Orange County chief deputy Jim Adams.

Frank Mikeska, 21, of Houston, was arrested and arraigned before State District Judge Pat Clark on two counts of aggravated kidnapping, and single counts of aggravated robbery and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Clark set bond for Mikeska, who remained in Orange County jail Saturday, at $275,000.

Two deputies hid in the back seat of Price's car, unmarked police cars preceded and followed the judge's vehicle and a police aircraft watched from above as the judge drove to the exchange site near Silsbee, about 20 miles north of Beaumont, said Reynolds.

The police chief said when the judge, with the shackled prisoner in the front seat, arrived at the scene, the suspect began backing up toward the judge's car in an apparent attempt to look inside.

"The judge was using his head and started backing up too," said Reynolds, who was in the unmarked car that preceded the judge.

He said Mrs. Price then tried to escape through the passenger door, but the suspect grabbed her and was reaching in the back seat for a gun when the judge decided to ram the car.

The impact knocked the suspect forward and allowed Mrs. Price to escape unharmed, said Reynolds.

The police chief praised Price for thinking clearly under pressure and credited the judge with saving his wife.

Price declined to comment on the abduction or rescue saying his wife endured a bad ordeal and that it involved pending legal procedures.

Reynolds said they had no idea why the kidnapper demanded the release of Simmons.

Reynolds said Mikeska was recently released from the jail after serving a 30-day sentence on a misdemeanor theft conviction.

Sheriff's efforts to have 'happy girlfriend' land him in hot water

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Smith County Sheriff J.B. Smith was indicted early Saturday morning on one count of attempted arson and 18 counts of official misconduct, allegedly committed to get a "happy girlfriend."

Smith used a county car and gasoline "with the intent to get benefits for himself, namely a happy girlfriend, to wit, Treva Loyne Sandell, also known as 'Toy,'" the indictment said.

Miss Sandell, Smith's former secretary, is now his fiancée, Smith has said.

She, Smith, several current and former law enforcement officials and three journalists testified before the grand jury that handed down the indictments after 3 a.m. Smith, sheriff since 1977, would not comment.

In the 18-count indictment alleging official misconduct, grand jurors said Smith used a county patrol car and county-owned gasoline to pick up his girlfriend on several occasions, used a county telephone to make 49 personal long-distance telephone calls to Louisiana where Miss Sandell lived at one time and drove a county car on 14 personal trips to Louisiana from August 1979 to November 1980.

He is also accused of getting a free apartment in the Casa de Oro complex in Tyler in exchange for patrolling the complex in a county car.

The first indictment, alleging attempted arson, said Smith intended to set fire to a vehicle owned by Charles Everett Winters. Winters had been accused earlier of burning a sheriff deputy's patrol car.

The indictment also alleges that Smith used $138 of county money to repay a former deputy for "services rendered," and used a county patrol car for personal trips and unofficial business.

Smith is also charged with using a county vehicle for transportation on personal business to Dallas-Fort Worth airport on June 15, 1979.

Officials say Smith will be served with a warrant for his arrest at 9 a.m. Monday by Texas Ranger Stuart Dowell.

Sun-frost fight seen in water act change

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle will be fought in Congress between Sunbelt states and Frostbelt states over a proposal to change the formula for distributing funds under the Clean Water Act.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Saturday.

He said a new formula proposed in a bill requested by President Reagan would take about $72 million out of Texas next year and distribute it primarily among states in the Northeast and Midwest.

States like Oklahoma and Georgia also would be hurt by the change, while states like New York, Connecticut and Minnesota would get increases "and I just don't think that's fair," Bentsen said in remarks taped for weekend television use in Texas.

Recent population figures have shown Texas and other states in the Sunbelt to be gaining people from other urban states, many of them in the Frost Belt. A lot of the construction in water facilities in these Sunbelt states has been aimed at anticipated future growth.

S. 975, a bill introduced by Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., at the request of the administration, would prohibit future growth from being considered in giving priority to construction projects.

State taxes stealing gas price savings

By FLOYD NORRIS
AP Business Writer

Wholesale gasoline prices are declining, but a lot of Americans aren't noticing. Prices at the pump are rising because many states are raising gasoline taxes.

And the increase in taxes could reduce or eliminate the surge in summer driving that oil companies have been wishing for.

Seventeen states have boosted taxes this year, all but one of them in the last six weeks. Legislatures in an additional eight states are thinking about taking such steps this year, an Associated Press survey shows.

For the states, the increases are usually justified by the need to maintain roads and bridges. But such proposals have aroused strong opposition and have been defeated this year in 13 states.

Gasoline prices charged by the oil companies have been dropping since March, thanks to the world oil glut and cutbacks by drivers stunned by higher prices. Prices had risen to an average at retail of over $1.38 a gallon after members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries raised prices and President Reagan ended price controls on domestic crude oil.

The oil companies hope the price cuts will reassure drivers and get them back on the road, and there is some evidence that driving is increasing. Gasoline inventories registered their largest drop of the year in the last week of June, and gasoline demand in that month was slightly ahead of the 1980 pace.

But the tax increases mean a lot of drivers are paying more, not less. "There are more tax increases than wholesale price cuts," says Dan Lundberg, an analyst whose newsletter monitors gasoline prices.

A major reason for the growing pressure to raise gasoline taxes is that those taxes were set years ago at a certain number of cents per gallon. As oil prices rose, tax receipts stayed level or fell as gasoline consumption dropped. But costs of fixing roads soared, and gasoline taxes typically were supposed to cover such costs.

Michigan's transportation department says its revenues were down 23 percent in the first three months of 1981 compared to last year. "We just don't think we can go much longer," said state Rep. Mary Brown, who is pushing for a tax boost this fall.

A number of states, including Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio have adopted systems that will allow gasoline taxes to rise with inflation. Most popular is one that sets the tax as a percentage of the price, rather than on a cents-per-gallon basis. Some simply tax the gross receipts of oil companies, which rise along with prices — the companies pass those taxes along to customers.

But proposals like that can run into opposition. Iowa Gov. Robert Ray suggested a percentage tax, but it lost when opponents labeled it the "ayatollah tax," a reference to the way gasoline prices rose after the Iranian revolution led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. They asked why the "whim of OPEC" should force Iowans to pay more taxes.

States where taxes have increased since June 1 are Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont and Washington. South Dakota raised taxes April 1 and New York's legislature imposed a gross receipts tax this past week that is expected to raise gasoline prices by 2 or 3 cents a gallon.

The largest of the increases was in Nevada, where the tax was raised 4.5 cents a gallon, to 10.5 cents on July 1. An additional 1.5 cents is to be added in a year.

While drivers in those states are paying more, officials in others are warning of disaster.

Other states where efforts to raise gasoline-related taxes failed were Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Kansas, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Montana, Texas and Wyoming.

Action to boost such taxes is still pending in Arizona, California, Delaware, Iowa, Michigan, Oregon, South Carolina and Wisconsin.

Increases, so far in 1981, include:

—Colorado: Tax rose from 7 cents to 9 cents per gallon on July 2.

—Idaho: Raised tax from 9.5 cents a gallon to 11.5 cents on July 1.

—Indiana: Raised tax by 2 cents a gallon to 10.5 cents on June 1 and adopted a new floating system, to take effect Jan. 1, that could allow the tax to rise as high as 14 cents a gallon.

—Minnesota: Raised tax from 11 cents to 13 cents a gallon on June 1.

—Nevada: Raised gas tax from 6 cents to 10.5 cents a gallon on July 1 and voted to raise tax to 12 cents a gallon next July 1.

—New Hampshire: Tax rose 3 cents to 14 cents a gallon on July 1.

—New Mexico: Tax rose one cent a gallon to 9 cents, under a 1979 law calling for annual increases of one cent until it reaches 11 cents.

—New York: Imposed several taxes as part of tax plan to support mass transit package, including an 0.75 percent gross receipts tax on oil companies and a tax on transportation of oil. The tax, approved late last week, has not yet taken effect.

—North Carolina: Tax rose 3 cents to 12.25 cents per gallon July 1.

—Ohio: Raised gas tax from 7 cents a gallon to 10.3 cents on July 1 and adopted a system to tie tax to increases in highway and bridge maintenance costs, with a cap of 12 cents a gallon.

—Pennsylvania: Adopted on June 23 a 3.5 percent franchise tax on gasoline, diesel and kerosene, raising gasoline prices by 3.8 cents to 4 cents a gallon.

Communist delegates to elect party chief at Polish congress

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Party leaders announced Saturday that the party's special congress convening Tuesday will start with a secret ballot vote on the top party post, an unprecedented procedure in the Soviet bloc.

The decision appeared aimed at settling any challenge to the leadership of party chief Stanislaw Kania at the outset of the open-ended and controversial gathering Tuesday. It was announced by a working group headed by Kania that is setting the agenda for the congress.

The Polish congress is an emergency meeting, called four years early in an effort to resolve the country's economic and political crises. Under the protocol followed at most congresses, held every five years in the Soviet bloc, selection of party leaders is the last order of business.

The announcement from the working group did not make clear whether the party chief, officially called the first secretary, would be elected directly by the 1,964 delegates or by the party's 140-member, policy-making Central Committee. The Central Committee usually chooses the leaders.

Kania's leadership has been attacked by more hardline Communists in Poland and elsewhere in the Soviet bloc as too lenient and inactive in controlling alleged enemies of the state.

One group of critics was officially reported Saturday to have announced it would demand an explanation at the congress for the "press and political witch-hunt" against the so-called Katowice Forum. The forum, a recently emerged and strongly pro-Kremlin group, hosted a meeting of critics where the demand was approved.

The official Polish news agency PAP said delegates from Katowice, Warsaw and 11 other cities also approved an open letter to be sent to the party congress.

Critics in the Soviet bloc have charged that Poland's independent labor movement, Solidarity, and other groups will try to misuse the Warsaw congress to cripple or destroy the party.

Not since 1968 has such criticism been heaped on a Soviet bloc party congress by allies. Then, the attacks were directed at the scheduled Czechoslovakian party congress, which was expected to ratify liberalizations. In August 1968, the Soviets led a Warsaw Pact military intervention.

Solidarity members with party memberships make up 21 percent of the delegates to the congress, which critics contend will be attended by too few real workers and without many veteran Polish

The Polish party's own Central Committee reflected such concerns in a report issued Saturday which said delegate elections had eliminated "many honest and experienced comrades." It added that "the participation of workers in the party authorities and among the delegates is relatively low."

Seventy percent of the Central Committee's members failed to win election to the congress in unprecedented secret local elections.

Forty years later, commission probes injustices to Japanese

WASHINGTON (AP) — After four decades, the order has lost none of its ugliness:

"Instructions to All Japanese: 'All Japanese persons, both alien and non-alien, will be evacuated. Each family and individual living alone will be furnished transportation to the reception center.'"

The notice, in bold black type, was tacked on street corners and buildings on the West Coast in early 1942 while the nation still reeled from the shock of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. It was addressed "to all persons of Japanese ancestry."

It didn't matter whether the person was infant or elder, citizen of Japan or of the United States, loyal to the Rising Sun or the Stars and Stripes. All Japanese were carted away.

Now, nearly 40 years after Pearl Harbor, America is going to decide what injustice was committed and whether to compensate its victims.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, presiding over a nation at war, had few doubts and his own justification at the time.

"The successful prosecution of the war requires every possible protection against espionage and against sabotage," he said as he set the Japanese evacuation in motion.

Without any action by any court, the Army uprooted and imprisoned 120,000 people. They had committed no crime. Their only offense was that their ancestors were Japanese.

They were allowed to bring bedding and linens, toilet articles, some extra clothing, eating utensils and "essential personal effects." They were told: "the size and number of packages is limited to that which can be carried."

They had little time to dispose of other property. Much of it went at distress prices; some was simply stolen outright.

Another president, Jimmy Carter, called that wholesale violation of civil rights "one of the disappointing and sometimes embarrassing occurrences in the history of the nation" and created the commission that begins its inquiry on Tuesday. Carter charged the group to "reconfirm our nation's commitment to basic human rights."

After two days of hearings in Washington, the panel moves later to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Anchorage, the Aleutian Islands, the Pribilof Islands and Chicago.

She is a Washington lawyer. Other on the commission are: Former Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass.; former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg; Father Robert F. Drinan, a former Massachusetts congressman who heads Americans for Democratic Action; Rep. Daniel E. Lungren, R-Calif.; Father I. V. Gromoff, a Russian Orthodox priest from Unalaska, Aleutian Islands; former Sen. Hugh B. Mitchell of Washington; Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, chairman of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission; Common Pleas Judge William M. Marutani of Philadelphia.

HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON HIGHLIGHTS

from Congressman Jack Hightower

In 1776, Thomas Paine, a great patriot, wrote: "These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country."

There have been many such times in this country in the last 205 years. We are in such a time at this moment.

On Thursday, June 25th, the House of Representatives came face to face with the issue of federal spending. Our government has grown so big, it has found so many ways to spend tax dollars, the economy has become so complex, inflation has become such a monster, that many were seriously questioning the willingness and the ability of Congress to make the hard decisions necessary.

The question we faced was whether to make a series of judgements on programs that are individually popular and have their own entrenched constituencies working to protect their programs, or, to group them together, face the issue, bite the bullet, and embark on a program of governmental reform that could possibly be a solution to many of the economic problems we must deal with. All can agree that "something must be done;" the question was "what, specifically, to do" and, in reducing spending, "where the cuts were to be made."

In all my years in Austin and Washington, these votes included some of the hardest decisions I have ever had to make because they will inevitably involve people on a very personal basis, as well as taxpayers in general.

Last year in my campaign, I pledged to the people of this district that I would work with all my might to bring inflation under control. I am a Democrat, but the Democratic candidate for President was not elected. Mr. Reagan is now my President and your President. As President, he is head of the Executive branch of government. As an elected Representative, it is my responsibility to: 1) represent the 13th District of Texas in the Congress and 2) work with other elected officials to achieve the goals we all share for the strength and prosperity of America.

If we are to stop inflation, lower interest rates, make our economy strong again and compete more effectively with growing foreign competition, all of us, Democrats and Republicans, the Congress and the President, must work side by side.

I will continue to support the President when I think he is right, such as on government spending; however, as any responsible representative of a congressional district should do, I will oppose a presidential proposal when I think it is wrong such as Mr. Reagan's social security cuts to present recipients and his weak farm bill. That is how our system is supposed to work. That is how this system of checks and balances was designed. And it has served us very well for 205 years.

I do not want it said of me that as your elected representative, I was a "summer soldier" or a "sunshine patriot." I will continue to speak up for this district and its people both in Congress and in meetings with the President. The hard issues have to be faced and I will continue to make those hard national choices that require sensitivity to people as well as common sense about taxes and spending.

I have great confidence in the American people's ability to accept change when necessary and, if sacrifice is called for, to make it. One of Congress' challenges is to make sure that if sacrifice is called for, it is fair and as equitable as possible. That is also a challenge President Reagan must face, and meet, successfully.

At this Independence Day marking the 205th anniversary of our bold Declaration of Independence as a new country in the New World, let us all pledge anew to place our country and the cause of freedom second only to God in our devotion.

Don Quixote of art and music to lay his magic wand to rest

SPOLETO, Italy — Gino Carlo Menotti is retiring from the Spoleto Festival, 24 years after launching the annual event to save a decaying Italian town and turn art into something more than "an after-dinner mint for the rich."

Discovering talent such as Andy Warhol, Jerome Robbins, Thomas Schippers and Jacqueline Du Pre has made Menotti "feel like a sorcerer's apprentice who started wielding a worldly magic wand."

But the just-turned-70 maestro said in an interview that the magic wand is being laid to rest because "I must stop and devote my time to composing."

"I know it would be disastrous for the festival if I leave suddenly, so I am asking the board to start looking for my successor," Menotti said.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning composer, opera director and impresario founded the Festival of Two Worlds in this Umbrian hill town 24 years ago. For three weeks each summer, the population of Spoleto swells from 35,000 to nearly half a million for a celebration of music, dance, theater and film.

Menotti has nursed and guided the Italian festival since it began and opened an American version, "Spoleto U.S.A." in Charleston, S.C. in 1977. This year's U.S. festival ran 17 days and started May 22.

His insistence that the arts should be for the people is largely credited with having made the Spoleto Festival enormously popular among the masses.

Menotti hasn't said when he plans to retire, but he says he hopes to find a successor soon so he can start training him.

He concedes that the intensely personal way he has run the festival is bound to make difficult the task of his successor.

"You need somebody who knows Europe and America equally well," he said. "Someone who has the time to travel in America to raise money for the orchestra, chorus and chamber music we bring to Spoleto. Someone who knows about painting, dance and theater."

"Above all, somebody who is as much of a fool as I am. We need an international Don Quixote."

Unlike Salzburg or Edinburgh festivals, Spoleto is, as Menotti puts it, "for the courageous, active audience who loves improvisation and likes surprises and excitement."

Menotti's insistence on improvisation — the program is rarely set more than a year in advance and often changes at last minute — has given the festival a sense of freshness and flexibility.

A boy wonder who began to compose songs at the age of 7 and wrote his first opera at age 11, Menotti is the most decorated and most sought-after opera composer in his generation.

Stretching his legs in a richly-appointed drawing room of the 18th century Palazzo Campello which he uses as official residence.

Menotti said Spoleto "doesn't need me anymore but it did satisfy my need of being needed."

Oil companies prepare for coal boom

By ALLEN K. SHORT
Associated Press Writer
FAIRFIELD, Texas (AP) — Several of the nation's largest oil and energy companies have quietly — almost secretly — acquired leases on millions of acres of farm and ranchlands in six Gulf Coast states in anticipation of a coal boom that could forever change the energy consumption patterns of this oil-rich region.

The heavy investments by companies such as Phillips Coal Co., a subsidiary of Phillips Petroleum, Exxon, and ten other energy concerns have come in an area better known for crude oil production than strip mining.

Lignite — soft brown coal — underlies a vast section of the area. With the long-term availability of natural gas in question and prices for domestic and imported gas on the rise, the region's estimated 35-billion tons of lignite reserves have become a key element in several proposals for the development of synthetic fuels, state and industry officials say.

In East Texas, where the historically famous oil fields are slowly being invaded by salt water, the state's 23.4 million-ton lignite reserves are already being exploited at three strip mines operated by a consortium of Texas electric utilities. Eight mine-mouth generating plants operated by the consortium last year produced enough electricity to meet the needs of a city of 2 million people.

Phillips Coal, founded just six years ago, now holds leases on more than a million acres, while a dozen other major oil and coal companies own lignite rights on an additional 3.4 million acres in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.

A recent study by the Texas Bureau of Economic Geology estimated that the region's shallow lignite reserves are equivalent in energy content to more than double the region's proven oil and natural gas reserves combined.

As a result, lignite production along the burgeoning Gulf Coast is expected to soar from 30 million tons last year to as much as 138 million tons by 1990. Barely a decade ago, only two million tons a year were being mined in the six-state region, the bureau said.

James Van Reenan, vice president for marketing of the Dallas-based Phillips Coal Co., said lignite is fast becoming the fuel of choice for the region's utility companies and heavy industries.

Gulf Coast lignite is only slightly less efficient as a thermal fuel than Western coals. Transportation costs for mine-mouth power plants are minimal, and land reclamation along the flat, verdant Gulf Coast is less difficult than in the arid coal fields of Wyoming and North Dakota, he said.

The soft, chunky lignite resembles topsoil in appearance and texture and owes its existence to the same geological process that produced the East Texas oilfield. The process began 70 million years ago when a thick layer of plant matter along the Gulf Coast was covered with silt.

The fossilized remains of the vegetable matter is now lignite, a giant black blanket of which lies 15 to 200 feet below the surface. Older deposits of organic materials became pockets of oil and natural gas.

The brown coal deposit extends from the Texas-Mexico border to Alabama and Kentucky and "means there's still hope for us folks in the oil business," said Exxon spokesman Carey Ziter.

Exxon is in the design stages of a proposed $4 billion synthetic fuels plant where Texas lignite would be processed to produce a chemical feedstock, a synthetic crude petroleum. The feedstock, in turn, could be used to produce synthetic gas.

If the company decides the plant is economically feasible, mining of lignite reserves near Troup, Texas, would begin in 1986. About 600 million tons of lignite would be mined during the life of the plant.

Phillips, which also is considering construction of a synfuels plant along the Gulf Coast, has already signed contracts to supply several mine-mouth power plants in Louisiana with lignite fuel. The company "is very close" to signing a similar agreement in East Texas, said Van Reenan.

Under its contract with Cajun Electric Power Cooperative, Phillips will charge the utility about $18 a ton for lignite delivered to Cajun's proposed power plants about 40 miles south of Shreveport beginning in 1984.

In contrast, lignite from the massive reserves in North Dakota costs about $33 a ton delivered to Houston. The price includes rail transportation costs of more than $20 a ton, said Van Reenan.

Although the Gulf Coast deposit is the second largest in the United States — North Dakota's is the largest at 550 billion tons — only one of the region's six states — Texas — is currently burning lignite to light its homes and factories.

Texas Utilities Generating Co. operates eight electrical generating units at three lignite mines in Texas. Together, the plants produce about 5,300 megawatts of power — enough to serve a community larger than Houston or Dallas. Six other utilities say they plan to begin operating lignite-fired plants in Texas by 1989.

Lignite development isn't new to Texas, says state geologist William R. Kaiser. In 1929, 60 percent of all the electricity produced in the state came from coal-fired plants.

But as oil and natural gas deposits were discovered and exploited, lignite fell into disfavor because of mining costs and lower energy efficiency.

On the light side

WASHINGTONVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — The bridge got old and had to be scrapped, but the price tag was as good as new — 106 years later.

State Department of Transportation officials said Thursday that workmen for the DeFonce Construction Corp. of Bridgeport, Conn., were digging on a bridge replacement project in Orange County recently when they unearthed a time capsule from 1875.

State archaeologists determined that the small copper canister was placed at the bridge site at Moodna Creek on Route 208 in the village of Washingtonville when a 20-year-old wooden structure was replaced by an iron span.

Inside were magazines and newspapers of the era and information on the cost of the two bridges.

The 1855 wooden bridge cost $1,900. Two decades later, the iron replacement span went in at a cost of $5,400.

State officials said the new Moodna Creek steel bridge will cost $1 million.

— On To Mile No. 1,735
CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — After Exel Howard had swum 1,734 miles around and across Lake Bennett, the Woolly Hollow State Park manager told him he needed special permission.

Howard, now 68, has been swimming a two-mile, zig-zag course in the 40-acre lake a few times each week since 1948, except one year when a construction project at the lake stopped him.

Why the need for special permission now?

Park officials said they were concerned that Howard would be setting a bad example going beyond the supervised swimming area and doing so before lifeguards came on duty.

But on Wednesday, Howard said the Parks and Tourism Department would be willing to let him swim if he released the department from responsibility for his safety and agreed to let someone accompany him in a paddleboat.

Senator Bill Sarpalis Reports

AUSTIN — We were able to pass so many agricultural bills during the last session of the Legislature that we could not tell you about all of them in one column.

One important bill we passed is known as the "Right-to-Farm Act." It addresses a problem that has plagued agricultural operations for years — nuisance suits.

The problem usually occurs when a city or town grows into the country. A farmer, rancher, or feedlot operator may find himself next-door neighbors with a subdivision. Before too long, the suburbanites start to complain about the noise or the smell. So they sue and many times the farmer or rancher has to shut down.

We believe this result is unjust for at least two reasons. One is that agriculture is too important to be subject to the whims of city people who do not understand it. Another is that the farmer was there first.

Under the new law, if the agricultural operation was there at least one year before the city, the agricultural operation may stay in operation. But more than that, the farmer or rancher may make the person who sues him pay all costs of court, attorney's fees and any other expenses he incurs defending his agricultural operation.

In plain English, it no longer will cost people money to defend their right to make a living feeding their neighbors.

We all recognize that people are moving to Texas in record numbers. These people, along with those born and raised here, need a place to live, but people also need to eat, and agriculture has taken a beating from other interests in recent years. We do not want to give agriculture an unfair advantage, we simply want to restore balance.

It is time for all of us to realize that land is a limited resource. Both farmland and farmers are disappearing at record rates. Once arable land is converted to another use, it is never recovered. Similarly, once a farmer quits farming, he rarely returns.

We have a balance of people on both sides of this issue in our district. We hope to hear what those of you on both sides have to say. Please write to Senator Bill Sarpalis, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Nothing beats the smoked flavored taste of something from the grill... and no grill can beat the fun, convenience and economy of a versatile gas grill.

Gas Grilling is versatile

You can sizzle a steak, grill a burger, smoke a ham, barbecue a bird, roast an ear of corn, even bake a potato. You can cook many different foods a variety of ways, many at the same time on a versatile gas grill.

Gas Grilling is delicious

You get that great outdoor smoked flavor without the charcoal mess. No lighter fluid is needed and a gas grill requires very little clean-up. There's no wait either, because gas grills reach cooking temperature... fast.

Gas Grilling is economical

You can cook a full family meal for just pennies. Gas grilling costs less than a third of what it would cost on an electric grill and less than a tenth of the cost for charcoaling. A national survey proved it.

Gas Grilling is cooler

It keeps the heat out of the kitchen so your air conditioning won't have to work so hard. That's important during the summer... plus a gas grill is the perfect meal-maker for any season of the year.

And Gas Grilling is now 20% off

Buy now and you'll save 20%. The purchase price has been reduced 20% but only until August 1, 1981... and you have right styles and sizes to choose from, with all the features to make grilling fun, convenient and economical.

'Six years of oil remain,' 55 years ago

By L. FRANK PITTS

"Six years of U.S. petroleum reserves remain," read a U.S. government report.

If this is true, you might as well put off buying a new car, since gasoline comes from oil.

Also, if you do not live close enough to walk to work, you better get a job closer to home.

But, be sure the place you work doesn't depend on fuel oil or electricity generated by oil and gas or the business may have to, at least partially, shut down.

And, get out the candles (not kerosene lamps) and blankets. If your electricity in your area is generated by oil or gas fuel or your home is heated by oil or gas.

You've got six years to adjust, according to that government report.

But, that report was published in 1926... 55 years ago.

We've had similar predictions from time to time since 1926 such as another U.S. government report in 1939 that "we would run out of oil by 1952."

Such "running out of oil" predictions are even prevalent today.

We have a temporary energy crisis in America, as well as in the rest of the industrialized world. There are two main reasons.

First, our oil companies got to buying oil abroad, particularly in the 50's, because it was offered cheaper (most foreign wells flowing whereas we have to pump most of ours).

Second, we curtailed drilling at home because of this low price and sold our oil and gas reserves at "liquidating prices," not replacement prices.

The consumer "benefited" by prices that increased up to the 1973 crisis — not only two or two and a half times (less government tax) based on prices of 1930's while prices of homes and automobiles increased five to six times in the same period.

And, if you think you pay high prices for gasoline, check what you are paying per gallon for bottled or canned soft drinks, milk, vinegar, maple syrup and cosmetic liquids.

We're not running out of oil in the United States. 98 percent of prospective sediments in this country are still untouched by drilling.

American oil men are running over 3,800 drilling rigs each day.

Oil price controls are now off and 37 percent increase in drilling activity has resulted. Natural gas price decontrol is needed now. And, "windfall profits" tax money is needed to invest in the more costly drilling for new fields and more costly enhanced recovery.

New technology will also play a big part in the push for new oil reserves. With the higher prices of oil creating a boom, industry manufacturers are jumping into the market with new equipment and services.

As an example, over half of the exhibitors in an oil industry exposition — World Oil & Gas Show and Conference to be held in Dallas, Texas December 14 - 17, 1981 — are new to the oil business. Some are old line companies selling to industries; others are new entrepreneurs.

Most of these say they have new technology and new and improved equipment to aid in finding, producing, transport and refining oil.

Approximately 30,000 oil men from some 8,000 companies who drill for oil each year are expected to attend the World Oil & Gas Show and get acquainted with the latest ideas faster than they could by any other method.

(L. Frank Pitts is owner of Pitts Oil Company, Dallas, Texas and president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association. He is chairman of the Independent Oil Men's Committee of the World Oil and Gas Show and Conference in Dallas to be held in the Civic Center December 14 - 17, 1981.)

Bentsen says 'snowbelt' wants more

By LLOYD BENTSEN

United States Senator

This year, the federal government will collect about $13 billion from Texas under the so-called windfall profit tax and transfer the vast bulk of it to other states. But legislators from industrial states in the Northeast and Midwest are pushing for even more.

Their efforts could balkanize this country.

They have formed a Northeast - Midwest coalition in Congress, using a paid staff to gather statistics and plant stories.

These "snowbelt" lawmakers claim that producing states, like Texas, are reaping a windfall profit from decontrol and will use this revenue to pillage their industrial base. They propose that laws be rewritten to give their states a bigger portion of money distributed by the federal government. Many of the laws already are biased in their favor.

The fact is, the so-called windfall profit tax, which I voted against, may well result in the most massive transfer of wealth in the history of our nation.

Overall, this tax will place $227 billion in the coffers of the U.S. Treasury over the next 10 years. Of that amount, $141.33 billion will be paid out by Texas.

Texas will prosper in the future, make no mistake about that. But our wealth will be fairly earned and long in coming. And we'll stand ready to defend it against raids from "snowbelt" legislators armed with twisted logic.

Coe breaks own record in 1,000 meters at Oslo Games

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Sebastian Coe, Britain's great middle distance runner, smashed more than a second off his world record in the 1,000 meters, with a time of 2 minutes, 12.18 seconds Saturday night in the Oslo Games international track and field meet at lightning-fast Bislett Stadium.

Coe's mark was one of two world records broken during the early events. The other mark came in the women's 5,000 as Ingrid Christensen of Norway was clocked in 15:28.43.

Coe, the Olympic 1,500-meter champion, bettered the world 1,000 mark of 2:13.40 he had set July 1, 1980 at Bislett.

It was the sixth outdoor world record he has established during his brilliant career. Last month, at Milan, Italy, he lowered his 800-meter world record from 1:42.80 at Bislett in 1979 to 1:41.72.

Hurdler James King of the United States set the early pace in the 1,000, running the opening 400 meters in 51.14. Then, Rob Harrison of Britain took the lead up to 600 meters.

At that point, Coe surged to the front. He passed 800 meters in 1:44.56, which was faster than the winning time of American James Robinson in the 800 only a short time earlier, and raced on to the record.

Coe said he was very tired after setting the record. He sat down, held his hands around his head and mumbled: "I need a doctor for this blister." He said a blister on his left foot had prevented him from running even faster.

Coe now has set 1,000-meter records twice at Bislett and 800, 1,500 and mile records once each.

"My goal for this season was to establish world records in all the four middle distances. Now I have the 800- and 1,000-meter records. There will be new opportunities later in the 1,500-meter and the mile," Coe said.

In the women's 5,000, Christensen, a former cross country skier for Norway's national team, broke the world mark of 15:30.6, set by Jan Merrill of the United States at Palo Alto, Calif. March 22, 1980.

The 5,000 favorite, Grete Waitz of Norway, was leading when she was forced to drop out at the 4,000-meter mark. At that stage, Christensen, who has concentrated on cross country running and the marathon since giving up skiing, was in second place.

Ellen Wessinghage of West Germany and Cathy Toomey of the United States finished second and third, respectively. Merrill wound up a distant 13th.

Earlier, world record holder Edwin Moses of the United States extended his winning streak to 71, including 65 in finals, leading a 1-2-3 American sweep in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

Moses was timed in 47.99 seconds, somewhat slower than his world mark of 47.13, set last year at Milan, Italy. His compatriots, Bart Williams and King, were far behind in 49.93 and 50.37 seconds, respectively.

Carl Lewis, the sensational 20-year-old sophomore from the University of Houston, won the 100-meter dash in 10.19 seconds, but limped off the track after suffering a strained muscle at the finish line.

Lewis, the NCAA and national champion in both the 100 and the long jump, and James Sanford of the University of Southern California both beat Olympic champion Allan Wells of Scotland in the dash.

Lewis' time was a Bislett Stadium record, since all previous top 100 meters at the stadium had been posted with manual timing.

Three British women dominated the women's 400-meter hurdles event. Yvette Wray won, lowering the Bislett Stadium record to 56.56 seconds. Chris Warden and Debbie Skerrett placed second and third. Mary Appleby of Ireland had set the stadium record of 58.10 in 1979.

Sanford's time was 40.21. Wells was clocked in 10.39, with Ernest Obeng of Ghana fourth in 10.44 and Herschel Walker of the United States fifth in 10.68.

Robinson won the 800 in 1:44.95. West German hurdler Harald Schmid, who shunned a duel with Moses, was second. The first big disappointment for the 15,000 fans came when 1980 Olympic champion Wladyslaw Kozakiewicz of Poland failed to clear his opening height of 17 feet, 8½ inches (5.40 meters) in the pole vault. He won the Olympic gold medal in Moscow last year by clearing 18-11½ (5.78 meters).

"I guess it was as fast as I could have run tonight. But it was very hard for the last 50 meters," he added.

"There is something special with this stadium. The crowd is wonderful and lifts you beyond belief," Coe said.

He now has set 1,000-meter records twice at Bislett and 800, 1,500 and mile records once each.

"My goal for this season was to establish world records in all the four middle distances. Now I have the 800- and 1,000-meter records. There will be new opportunities later in the 1,500-meter and the mile," Coe said.

Preston Pearson retires

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran running back Preston Pearson, a Dallas Cowboy for six years and a National Football League player for 14, said he is through with professional football.

The Cowboys have officially notified Pearson he will not be invited to training camp this summer and Pearson said flatly he would not consider returning to the team on any other basis, such as a temporary replacement in case of injury.

"Absolutely, positively not," said Pearson. "I would like to be treated just like any other individual who is competing for a job. Otherwise, I will go about my life as I normally do."

Pearson, 36, used mainly as a pass receiver the last two years, has joined several other Cowboys in outside business ventures, which he said would now occupy his time.

"I have done for myself what any smart businessman would do," he said. "I am prepared for the ups and downs of everyday life. Once I get into that, I should stay there."

Moultrie named to all-american team

Texas Tech senior Sharon Moultrie of Pampa has been named to the All-American track and field team after finishing among the top six in the long jump at the AIAW National Championship.

When asked what it meant to her to be an All-American, Sharon replied, "I feel that I am recognized as being able to compete with high caliber athletes all over America."

Miss Moultrie began her running career at age 16, and started long jumping the following year. In high school she competed at the regional level in both long jump and running events. Her senior year she was named "Most Valuable Track Athlete."

Miss Moultrie was a walk-on when she first entered Texas Tech as a freshman.

When reflecting on her expectations for that first year, she said, "I always want to be good at whatever I do to be successful. As a freshman, my goal was to make it to the Nationals."

Sharon took first in the state long jump and went onto the Nationals her freshman year. She continued to succeed over the next two years, placing in the top 10 in the 440 relay and long jump at Nationals.

Her record jump this year was 20-7. Her 19-3 effort this year at Nationals (in a driving rain) led to her sixth-place finish.

"Sharon's high level of concentration has always enabled her to block out distractions and other unusual circumstances and give her total effort to the sport," Tech track coach Jarvis Scott said. "Sharon is extremely hard working and dedicated. She's always at practice and giving her best."

Miss Moultrie attributes a large part of her success to her family for always being behind her and to coach Scott.

"I think coach Scott is one of the best coaches in Texas and in the United States," Miss Moultrie said. "She stresses that dedication and success go hand in hand."

While attending the Lubbock school, Miss Moultrie was an active member of the Texas Tech High Riders and Swing Choir. She majored in physical education and would like to coach track and field.

She is the daughter of Artie Moultrie

Reynolds closes gap in LPGA tourney

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Cathy Reynolds married Dana Derouaux last December, and she gained an experienced caddy in the process.

Reynolds, who began learning golf at the age of 6 from her father, says the marriage has "turned her life around." She is now one of the leading money-winners on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Derouaux has "taught me to think better out there," Reynolds said, "and to just be a lot more positive, even when the going gets tough. He's really helped me a lot that way."

Reynolds, who struggled to earn only $9,440 in her third year on the tour last year, shot a career-best 6-under-par 66 in Friday's second round of the $150,000 Mayflower Classic. That left her within one stroke of the lead held by Debbie Austin, who was 7-under-par at 137 after 36 holes.

Austin followed the 4-under 68 that gave her the opening-round lead with a 59, scoring five birdies.

"I didn't hit the ball anywhere as well as I hit it yesterday and had to get it up and down quite a few times. But, I didn't miss a putt," Austin said. "I putted terrific."

The gap between the leaders and the rest of the field at the 6,101-yard, par-72 Country Club of Indianapolis course was a big one. Beth Daniel, last year's leading money-winner, was four strokes behind Austin at 141. There was a three-way tie between Louise Parkes, Myra Van Hoose and Jan Stephenson at 142 going into today's third round.

Reynolds had seven birdies and one bogey after starting the round at even par.

"I really hit the ball extremely well on the front side," she said. "I drove it really good and hit the ball really close to the hole."

Reynolds' only bogey came on the 393-yard, par-4 No. 8 hole when she misjudged a gust of wind. But she said the key to her round, which included birdies on each of her first three holes, came after she made the turn.

"I started to get a little excited. I got a little tense," Reynolds said, adding that was when her husband became very helpful.

"He realizes I get a little excited," said the 23-year-old former Tulsa University golfer. "Dana just emphasized that I should keep it down the middle and get it on the green."

In May, Reynolds recorded her first pro victory and she came here as the No. 15 golfer in earnings with $52,907. However, she says having a husband as a part of her team on the course has not been just sweetness and fun.

"It's not easy," she said about her relationship with the 25-year-old Derouaux, who has caddied on the women's tour for seven years. "We've had our ups and downs, but we do enjoy it."

Last year, Derouaux caddied for Donna Caponi. He and Reynolds met when Caponi took a week off the tour and he carried his future wife's bags in a tournament.

Dan Pohl was the 1980 PGA driving champion, averaging 274.3 yards off the tee.

District 14-15 tourney opens here Monday

Pampa will meet Canyon at 8 p.m. Monday night in the first-round of the 14-15 District Babe Ruth Tournament at Optimist Park.

Pampa coach Gerrel Owens said he would start Coyle Winborn on the mound.

"I just flipped a coin between him and Devin Cross," Owens said. "They both have equal ability and they're both tough players."

Other team members include Randy Harris, Jeff Steward, Steve Seely, Clayton Johnson, Cleve Deason, Garland Allan, Danny Sebastian, David McQueen, Eric Quarles, Marty Cross, Tracy Stroud, Dennis Kuempel, Troy Beggs, and Charlie Wuest.

"I feel like we're physically ready to play," Owens added.

"We should do okay if we can keep from making mental mistakes."

Defending champion Hereford meets High Plains at 6 p.m. in the first game of the double-elimination tournament.

Palmer brings back memories in U.S. Seniors Open tourney

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Arnold Palmer turned back the hands of time with one of his patented charges Saturday, firing a splendid 2-under 68 to grab a share of the third-round lead in the U.S. Senior Open.

Palmer's charge, the only sub-par round this week over the 6,798-yard Oakland Hills course, vaulted him from six strokes off the pace into a three-way tie for the lead with Billy Casper and Art Wall at 216.

When it was over, the 51-year-old Palmer, one of the youngest players in the tournament, called it his best competitive round in some time.

"I said after the first round that I was hitting the ball solid and I was encouraged by that," Palmer said. "Then, after a practice session (following the second round), I had that same good feeling. I felt I would play well, even if I didn't score that well."

"I was so unhappy with my game (before coming here) that I was considering pulling out of the British Open (scheduled for next week). But, I definitely go to England now!"

As always, Palmer was followed by a tremendous army of fans who cheered every swing, putt and hitch of the pants.

The gallery was tremendous," Palmer noted. "The folks were very enthusiastic. I could almost feel what they were thinking. They were nervous, as I was, hoping I could make a couple more."

Palmer's round included five birdies and three bogeys despite playing with what he described as a "dull pain" in his left knee which nagged him through the first four holes before going away as suddenly and mysteriously as it came.

Casper, 50, who has a pair of U.S. Opens and a Masters title to his credit, called himself "totally under control" following a 1-over 71 Saturday.

"It feels neat," said Casper, the youngest player in the $150,000 tournament for players 50 and over. "I don't know when I've enjoyed a round more."

Wall, the 1959 Masters champion, said he was pleased with his solid 216, but felt he was going to have to put on a charge of his own in order to stay up with Palmer and Casper in Sunday's final round.

"I'm going to have to make a couple of birdies," Wall said. "I've been out here a lot of years and I realize Billy and Arnold are better players than I am. I don't sell myself short. I just respect them."

Saturday's biggest disappointment had to be Bob Goalby. After taking the 36-hole lead with a 2-over 142, Goalby soared to a 6-over 76 in the third round to drop back to 218 for the tournament.

"I'm still not out of this thing," said Goalby, whose biggest mistake was a triple-bogey on the par-4 14th where he four-putted. "I played a lot better out there than the score indicates."

One stroke back of the leaders at 217 was Bob Stone, a club pro from Independence, Mo. "I've played in over 100 events on the tour," Stone said, explaining his relative anonymity. "I think I have a chance Sunday. Of course I always think I have a chance to win when I go out there."

LIETZKE'S GOALS

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Lietzke, one of the stars of the PGA tour, is not sure that he wants to go down in history as one of the greats of golf.

"I don't know if I want to be in the same class as Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson," Lietzke said. "There is a level I'm trying to reach but I'm not sure I'll know it when I get there. But I know I will never stop trying to improve."

District 8 softball results

Pampa softball teams had a run of hard luck Saturday in the opening round of the ASA District 8 Men's Slow Pitch Tournament at Hobart Park.

Harold Barrett Ford pounded four homers over the fence, including two by Pampa High assistant football coach Ricky Palmer, but D & S Pharmacy of Amarillo came from behind for a 16-8 win.

Harold Barrett held an 8-5 lead after three innings, but went scoreless the next two frames to allow Amarillo to jump ahead for the victory.

Joining Palmer in Barrett's home run derby were Darrell Danner and Artis Betts.

Other teams advancing after first-round play were Tascosa National, Dumas Merchants, Apache Drywall of Amarillo, Agronaut Energy of Amarillo, and J-Bob's of Pampa.

Sunday's finals are slated to start at 5 p.m.

The tournament champion advances to the State Open Tournament Aug. 7-9 in Waco.

The second, third, and fourth-place qualifiers advance to the State Class A Tournament Aug. 7-9 in Midland.

Former priest now a bus driver

EDITOR'S NOTE — The former Father Groppi, activist, is now father Groppi, bus driver. Here's a look at the man at age 50, as he assesses the past and wonders about his future.

By DAN DAY

Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Catholic priest who gained national attention as he crusaded for social justice in Milwaukee's inner city is today a bus driver in that city, the best job he says he could get.

James Groppi was told by the Catholic church that he could no longer serve as a priest after his 1976 marriage to Margaret Rozga, an activist who had marched alongside him.

Groppi, now 50, is the father of two small daughters and says he applied for more than 25 jobs, jobs where he could have used his training and background. They all turned him down. "The bus company is the only place I could find. They hired me, and so I stayed with it. I do it out of necessity. I'm 50 years old. I just don't feel like starting in another profession."

"I go to work and I come home and I spend my time with my family. I can't do more than that," Groppi says in the living room of his two-story brick home in the integrated neighborhood on the city's northwest side.

"You're so tired by the time you're done driving that you don't have any energy left for much more than commuting home and spending some time with the kids," Groppi used to "live in the streets." He set up Freedom House where he said Mass, shared meals and worked with the area youngsters, mostly black street kids.

He formed the Commandos, a youth group that joined him in 200 consecutive nights of marches around the city to push for fair housing. He marched alongside Martin Luther King Jr. for voting rights for blacks in Selma, Ala.

Groppi — whose followers called him "Groppi: The Name That Made Milwaukee Famous" — led 1,000 welfare recipients in a brief takeover of the Wisconsin State Assembly in anti-draft demonstrations in Washington.

He was named adviser to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Youth Council, the post that catapulted him to fame in the late '60s and early '70s.

Groppi remains a deeply religious man, still celebrating Mass on weekends with his family, his 90-year-old mother and other married priests at private gatherings.

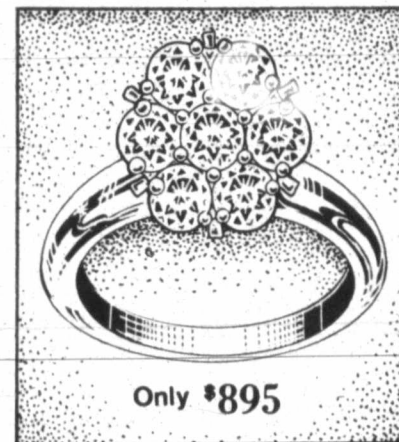

Groppi drove a taxi for a time as he adjusted to life without the Roman collar.

"You go through a period of great pain and anger over how you're treated because you're married. After a number of years you sort of learn to live with that. You're not so touchy about loss of titles and loss of status anymore."

Texas legislators return to their unfinished business

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators end a six-week vacation Monday and start work on unfinished business they left behind when the regular session ended June 1.

Gov. Bill Clements has limited the special session to five subjects. But he is under pressure to open the gate to dozens of other topics and might have to yield to get needed votes on matters that are important to him.

The initial five topics are controversial and complicated enough to keep lawmakers busy for the 30 days allowed by the Texas Constitution for special sessions.

Clements submitted these issues:

— Congressional redistricting to draw election boundaries for the three new congressmen Texas receives because of population gains and rearrange all districts to conform to the 1980 census.

— Re-enactment of the Medical Practices Act, which automatically expires this year under the Sunset process unless extended by the Legislature. If the act dies, there will be no regulation of doctors and the practice of medicine.

— A constitutional amendment repealing the 10-cent state property tax dedicated to building construction at certain state universities. The Legislature effectively repealed the tax in 1979 by imposing it on 0.0001 percent of the value of property, but a pending lawsuit contends the action was unconstitutional.

— "Fine tuning" the 1979 Peveto Bill, which mandated countywide appraisal of property for tax purposes, with all taxes imposed on full market value.

— Saving half the state's treasury surplus each biennium in a fund to guarantee bonds to build dams and other water projects. The guarantee supposedly would lower interest rates and make the bonds more attractive to investors.

Most legislators would agree that the first four items are urgent. All passed the House and Senate, and conference committees were trying to settle differences over details when the clock ran out on the regular session.

There is disagreement, however, whether lawmakers should submit the constitutional amendment creating the water fund, which is Speaker Bill Clayton's top legislative goal.

Clements shares Clayton's enthusiasm and set up a water task force whose chief aim seems to be generating support for the water fund amendment.

In agriculture

By Joe VanZandt
County Extension Agent

Gardens and orchards are coming into production now. I believe this is the best year I can ever recall for wild plums. There are wild plums galore below the caprock in the sandy rolling plains country. Now to me, wild plum jelly is the best! If anyone wants to go wild plum picking and don't know where to go, you might give me a call. Or you could just head off towards McLean or Wheeler as there are a lot of plums thickets out in the country around those towns. Just be careful about getting stuck in the sand; there will be grasshoppers and a few other minor annoyances to help you remember picking plums, but oh, that good jelly.

There are also some good fruit orchards in the area and anyone wanting some good fresh peaches can find all you want. I know of several if you need some names or directions.

SICK PLANT CLINIC

A clinic to diagnose sick plants, soil, or insect problems will be held Thursday, July 16 in the Pampa Mall. The hours for the free clinic are from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 2 to 6 p.m.

This is a come-and-go affair for anyone with problems or questions about sick plants or insects. Homeowners, farmers, or anyone with problems relating to diseases, insects, soil fertility, gardening, and general landscape plants are invited to bring sick or troublesome specimens to the informal clinic. There will be four Texas Agricultural Extension Service Specialists on hand to assist and counsel with you. These specialists include: Dr. Bob Berry, Plant Pathologist; Dr. Carl Patrick, Entomologist; Dr. Dale Pennington, Soil Chemist; and Dr. Roland Roberts, Vegetable Specialist.

This informal clinic is sponsored by the Gray County Horticulture and Crops Extension Committees in cooperation with the Gray County Extension Service. Tell your friends and neighbors about the clinic as this will be the best opportunity to get some answers on sick plants during the entire summer growing season.

Bring your sick plant specimens or insects to this clinic and one or more of the specialists will assist in advising you on your plant problems.

BINDWEED CONTROL

We had a good response last week to our notice about signing up for the State Highway Department to spray for bindweed along their right-of-way where the adjoining farmland is trying to be cleaned-up from bindweed. If this is your situation and you want the Highway Department to work at controlling bindweed in your right-of-way, come by the Extension office and sign up for this program.

STILL TIME FOR MESQUITE CONTROL
Due to rainfall in recent weeks, mesquite trees in many areas still have immature leaves and soil temperatures may still be below the optimum for good control of mesquite with liquid herbicide.

This means that the spray season for mesquite may extend well into July.

Ranchers planning to use liquid herbicide to control mesquite should check foliage development of mesquite. Some immature leaves (light green in color) can be tolerated if most of the leaves are mature, but have not developed a thick layer of wax. If herbicide is applied when many leaves are immature, expect a lower kill of mesquite. Also, if most of the leaves are over mature (heavy wax build-up on leaves) expect less control.

Plants with fully developed, dark green foliage without heavy wax build-up that are past full bloom and have small pods developing are in the best condition for spraying.

Another sign to check for is soil temperatures. Best mesquite kill is usually obtained when the soil temperature 18 inches deep at spraying is 75 degrees F. or higher.

Three registered and effective herbicides for mesquite control on Texas rangeland using aerial broadcast spray are 2,4,5-T; and one-to-one mixture of picloram spray and 2,4,5-T (Tordon 225E); and a one-to-one mixture of dicamba and 2,4,5-T. Dicamba and 2,4,5-T must be tank-mixed because a commercial formulation is no longer available.

Agriculture information computer system set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture know what's going on in the world's Department says the first link in what is agriculture," Smith said. "What happens hoped to be a global computer network this morning in the United Kingdom or Brazil carrying information about crops and other in Manhattan, Kan., or Decatur, Ill."

The system, called the Global Economic Data Exchange System, eventually will link all overseas agricultural counselors and attaches to department analysts here. Other foreign hookups are expected to be made in the coming months and all the department's 67 foreign stations are expected to be in the system by 1985, Smith said.

Richard A. Smith, administrator of FAS, as the agency calls itself, said Wednesday that the formal opening of the computer link with London included a message from there about the likelihood of this year's grain harvest in the United Kingdom being larger than in 1980, or consumers can be reported and analyzed "Today's farmers have an urgent need to

STATE 4-H HORSE SHOW AT WACO
The Texas 4-H Horse Show, one of the world's largest and most competitive youth horse shows will be held at the Heart of Texas Coliseum in Waco on July 13-18.

The annual show is the premier event for about 12,000 4-H members across the state who raise and show horses as their 4-H project.

Gray County 4-H members Laura Horne and Robin Coleman will be among the more than 300 young men and women who have qualified for this grandest of 4-H horse shows and the opportunity to vie for a coveted state championship. In addition some 400 youth will participate in open show competition.

4-Hers from across Texas will compete in 28 different classes and divisions during the six-day event.

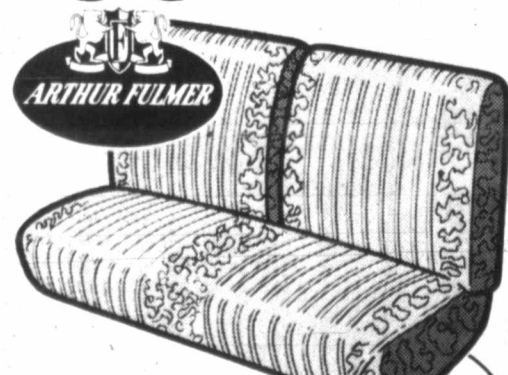

Actual competition will begin on Tuesday, July 14, with all roping events, hunter under saddle, cutting and the first go-round of all futurities. Roping events include calf roping, a judged event, breakaway roping, a timed event, and team roping, a new event in the 1981 show. Fast-paced action continues throughout the day and into the night as 4-Hers compete to make the finals in the futurity classes.

Friday night is the payoff time for many 4-H members; that is when the annual 4-H futurity sale is held. Some of the best yearling and two-year-old western pleasure horses available in Texas will be auctioned to the highest bidders.

These horses, selected, purchased and trained by 4-H members, are excellent buys for ranchers, horse producers and pleasure riders.

The sale is open to any qualified buyer, and the entire show, from Tuesday's opening to Saturday's finals, is open to the public.

THE BOYS SADDLE RACE can turn out to be the most enjoyable event of the Kid Pony Show — for the spectators. James Smith from Pampa entered with his horse "Sam." The contestants place all saddles on a line at the north end of the arena, and at a given signal, ride bareback from the south end of the arena to the north end. The first one to saddle his horse and make it back to the starting line is the winner. Smith looked like a winner until his saddle took an unusual tilt, and he rode to the starting line side - saddle.

Poor man's caviar features mushrooms

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

From time to time you may have noticed recipes for "mock caviar" and wondered, as we have, how and why these appeared on the culinary scene. Recently we came on a couple of interesting opinions on the subject.

In her 1971 book "The Magic of Mushroom Cooking," Kay Shaw Nelson writes: "In Russia there are two appetizers, one made with eggplant and the other with mushrooms, which have been dubbed poor man's or peasant's caviar. Presumably they're eaten as substitutes for the expensive black pearls of sturgeon caviar. The mushroom caviar, however, is excellent fare and especially good with black bread or pumpernickel." Mrs. Nelson bases her mushroom caviar recipe on mushrooms, onions, sour cream, butter and seasonings.

Jane Grigson, British author of the 1975 "The Mushroom Feast" also covers Russian mushroom caviar. She writes, "The Russians are great mushroom gatherers — think of the mushroom parties in 'Anna Karenina' — and have many delicious ways of cooking them."

MUSHROOM CAVIAR
1 pound fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter
1 medium onion, finely chopped (about 1/2 cup)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme leaves, crushed
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 tablespoon brandy
2 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Rinse, pat dry and finely chop mushrooms; or coarsely grate in a food processor.

In a large skillet melt the butter. Add the mushrooms, onion, salt, thyme and black pepper, cook over moderate heat, stirring often, until all liquid has evaporated — about 10 minutes. Add brandy, cook, stirring constantly, until brandy evaporates — about 1 minute; cool.

Reserve 1 egg yolk. Finely chop the remaining 1 whole egg and the 1 egg white; add to mushroom mixture with mayonnaise and parsley; mix well. Turn into a 1 1/4-cup container, cover and chill.

At serving time, pack into a small serving dish (an attractive Chinese bowl, for example) or unmold onto lettuce on a serving plate. Using a small fine-mesh sieve held directly over the serving bowl or plate, press the reserved egg yolk over the top of the mushroom caviar. Serve with crackers.

Mother of 11 also finds time for nursing career

EDITOR'S NOTE — Homemaking and motherhood have been the targets of much criticism of late as sexual equality has taken over the loudspeakers. But here's one woman who has been able to combine the best of both possible worlds, with 11 children and a fulltime career.

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — Bernice Bonderer's days are an ever-changing jigsaw puzzle — there are always new pieces to fit into a picture that focuses on her 11 children, her husband, and her fulltime career.

The demure, unassuming woman who's lived most of her 49 years on a farm can butcher a hog, pluck a chicken and bake a mean apple pie. But she's also a crack - a - jack nurse who oversees 400 births a year at this small town's hospital. One recent arrival who gave a first cry in her arms was her own granddaughter.

For nearly a quarter of a century, Mrs. Bonderer has kept her balance with one foot planted squarely in the homemaker's camp and the other in the career woman's workplace. She firmly believes that despite the outpouring of public agonizing in trendy fashion magazines, today's women can have it all — a husband, a home, children, and a full-time job — if they want it.

"I don't think I'm anything special. But then, I've had a lot of help," says the lady with short brown hair showing only a trace of gray. "It all comes together and works if everybody pitches in."

Her boss, Hedrick Medical Center Administrator Paul Shelton, says she's remarkable. He says she's a first-rate obstetrics nurse with a far-flung reputation in Livingston County, an agricultural center in north central Missouri.

"When women come in here to have their babies and they see Bernice beside them, they know she knows what she's doing," says Shelton. "She's been on both sides of the fence often enough to be a genuine expert."

Rose Walker echoes that assessment. On May 5, she delivered her first child. The nurse who held her hand during labor was Mrs. Bonderer — who also happens to be Mrs. Walker's mother.

"She was wonderful, a loving mother and yet a professional nurse all at the same time," recalls Mrs. child. "She helped me breathe, made me comfortable, let me squeeze her hand as hard as I could. When my perfect little girl was born, she cleaned her up and laid her on my arm. It was a moment I'll never forget."

Mrs. Bonderer decided to be a nurse when she was 8 years old. She contracted scarlet fever and complications brought on meningitis. She was a patient at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., three times in the next six years, and underwent four major operations.

"I remember being so sick, and how people at the hospital were so kind and gentle to me," says the slender RN. "The nurses were especially good to me, they seemed so dedicated, and they always smiled. From then on I grew up not wanting to do anything else except graduate from nursing school as fast as I could."

She got her cap at the University of Kansas Medical Center in 1953, the same year she married farmer Al Bonderer.

But her nursing career soon got sidetracked. Her first child, Mike, arrived in 1954. Pam came along a year later, and Teresa the year after that. She was followed by David, now 23; Rose, Mark, 19; Susan, 18; Anne, 16; Joe, 14; Barbara, 11, and "baby" Tim, now 9. All were born in the hospital where their mother is now head nurse.

After a seven-year hiatus, Mrs. Bonderer eased back into her profession as a private nurse. But soon she was eager to go back on the job full time.

"At first it was hard for my husband to understand," says Mrs. Bonderer. "But eventually he came to understand my needs, to know that being a nurse was something I simply had to do to be happy. If he hadn't understood, I couldn't have gone ahead with it. He had to back me all the way, and he truly has."

She worked as a nurse at Hedrick for nearly a decade, then was a county health nurse for nearly two years before returning to the hospital as the maternity and delivery room head nurse last November.

"Early on I realized that the key to keeping the house running smoothly — or at least without too many major crises — was logistics," says Mrs. Bonderer. "I convinced everybody that you can never get all the housework done, so we shouldn't worry about it. The most important thing was to make sure all the children got plenty of time with Al and me, and each other."

"Nearly all the kids had something after school — sports or music — so we set up a schedule. The girls took turns cooking dinner, one week at a time. They also had cleaning chores. The boys did a lot of the farm work, but also were responsible for the trash and their rooms."

Susan says, "Everybody knew they had to pitch in and help. We all knew Mom was busy and we just did what we saw had to be done. It was no big deal."

But the high school senior said her active mother "still found time to bake cakes from scratch, or make bread, or all those things other mothers do."

Bernice and her husband get up at 5:30 a.m., every morning "to have our quiet time together, to talk and plan the day's routine."

Then the rush is on as the children still at home line up to use the one bathroom in the big farmhouse "that seemed to grow with us."

There are seven bedrooms, a back porch and living and dining rooms but the heart of the house is the 28-by-14-foot kitchen.

"I love having everybody in there while I'm cooking," says Mrs. Bonderer. "Sunday dinner usually finds us all together, making noise and having fun. It starts me out right for the week."

Her idea of relaxing is to work in the garden pulling weeds, or put up a mess of fresh peas for one of the family's three freezers.

"If I'm really feeling lazy, I may sit down and read a book for a half hour," says Mrs. Bonderer. "But I don't watch television. That's the only thing I don't have time to do, and I don't miss it. My life's too busy to sit passively and watch somebody's made-up life on TV. I'd rather be butchering a hog."

TRIM TREES

Even a young tree just brought home from a nursery should be trimmed when it is put in the ground.

Some roots are lost when a tree is transplanted. If the nursery has not already done so, remove some of the top growth to compensate for root loss and to build a stronger frame for future growth.

Trimming does not mean shortening the branches, but, rather, it entails thinning out weak or crossing branches to reduce the young tree's total leaf area.

Peeking at Pampa

Since we "peeked" at Jim Duggan a couple of weeks ago, we've heard a lot of people, both PHS band members and townspeople, speak highly of Charles Johnson, assistant band director. So think it's fitting to tell you a bit about him.

He joins Jim in being popular, in fact much loved. By the band, he's so much fun that being with him is a joy, the kids say. And he keeps things lively. One instance was his performance of the hula in Hawaii. Got a lot of applause for that number. I hear.

His home town is Sweetwater, Texas, where his parents still live. His first teaching position was here in Pampa, following his graduation from WTSU in 1979 with a major in music. His senior year in college he was Man of the Year, listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, made the honor roll and was on the dean's list. Impressive background, yes?

Last year he was private instructor in woodwinds at PHS. This school year he became Jim Duggan's assistant with the Pride of Pampa Band. And aren't we glad he came to Pampa?

Been hearing a lot about Marilyn (Mrs. Jim) McClure. She's the daughter of Malcolm McDaniel and a close friend of his wife, Mary. Seems Marilyn is an achiever of considerable importance — a computer programmer and a math whiz. One friend said she is so smart that she is a member of MENSA, a special group of high I.Q. people who have to pass a test before they are invited to join. She's also a camera bug and takes excellent pictures. She went to Hawaii with the band and brought back marvelous snapshots of the trip, including one of Charles Johnson doing the hula! In her "spare" time, she's an avid gardener. Altrusa Club, of which she has just been elected vice-president, is proud of her, as we all are.

Friends of Linda and George family holds reunion

Members of the Frank J. George family attended a three-day reunion recently at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles George, at Greenbelt Lake near Clarendon.

Activities included music and dancing. The youngest family member present was two-year-old Ryan Chas. The oldest present was his great-grandfather, Frank George, age 77.

Family members attended from Crossett, Ark., Houston, Allison, Wheeler, Virden, Okla., Miami, Boy's Ranch, Pampa and Amarillo.

Waisting away

To trim and tone your waist, try this simple exercise. Lie on your back, with arms straight out to the sides. Bend your legs at the knee but keep feet firmly planted on the floor. Roll onto your right hip while turning your face toward the left. Make sure your shoulders stay on the floor. Then roll onto the left hip and face right. You'll feel the pull all along your waistline. Repeat the entire exercise several times.

Howard Reed are delighted that they are now back in Pampa to live. Linda is the daughter of Marguerite (Mrs. Henry) McClelland and a sister of David Holt. Howard and Linda both grew up here. It's lovely to welcome them and their son and daughter back home.

Saw Dr. and Mrs. Ray Hampton the other day, looking proud and happy to be entertaining their son, Dr. Raymond Moss Hampton of Lubbock, and his fiancée, Miss Denise Nix of Ropesville. Understand she's a teacher there. She is a most attractive young lady and will be joining a family of beautiful women, if our Mrs. Hampton is typical — which we bet she is.

Episcopalians and other church people, along with many social and business friends, were pleased to visit with Father Smart, former vicar here. He has such a jolly disposition and ready smile that he is always welcome wherever he goes. He was in Pampa to perform a wedding.

Hear some PHS music students of the 1930s talking about Helen Martin, who died recently. One Pampan said that this lady was a music teacher here in those days and began the program of a cappella singing in our town. Just think how far our school has come since then!

Seems that tornado watching is becoming a fascinating pastime hereabouts. Bethel Robinson of rural Panhandle told friends, "I saw a perfect tornado the other day." She went on to say that she watched the potential storm as she drove between White Deer and Panhandle, knowing it was not headed her way. She found many people outside homes and businesses, keeping track of the funnel cloud.

Somebody asked, "What is a perfect tornado?" Several people joined Bethel in answering, saying that such a gathering storm is perfect if it does all the things that tornadoes are supposed to do — head in the usual direction, swirl exactly right — and, most of all, don't touch down!

Time again for golfers to be lugging their plastic gallon jugs of frozen water to thaw as they walk their five miles, thus satisfying their thirst with ice-cold drinks.

Seen in passing: Kids splashing in puddles after the rain one hot day, wearing jackets against the sudden cool the next day, accepting changing Panhandle weather without comments, as we all do. One adorable little girl saying to a neighbor, "I've got two grandpas but I could use another one. Want to be my new grandpa?" He did. See you later PAM.

Beauty digest

Finger combing

To give volume and shape to short-layered wavy or curly hair, try finger combing it after your shampoo. First towel dry your head thoroughly. Then use your fingers like a hairbrush, lifting sections of hair by running your fingers from base to tips in strong, quick motions. Repeat the brushing motions until your hair is almost dry. Then switch to a plastic brush or comb to give final shape to this style.

Mini snacks

Here are some nibbles containing 100 calories each: eight large cashews, one medium orange, one can light beer, six clams on the half-shell, one cup skim milk, two cups fresh strawberries, two slices drained crisp bacon, 17 medium Spanish olives, one-and-a-quarter pounds cucumber with skin, one-half an eight-ounce container coffee yogurt, 37 Thompson seedless raisins, one three-inch homemade bran muffin, 14 pecan halves.

Break off

If one of your nails completely tears off, you can mend it easily. Don't file down the jagged edge — leave it so you can match the broken nail with its base. Clean off any polish or oils. Then use nail mending glue on both surfaces to put the nail together again. Let the glue dry, apply a base coat and then place a piece of mending tissue that's been coated with glue over the break. Smooth it quickly over your nail and tuck it under the tip. Now you're ready for another base coat and polish.

Amount of sleep is habit

The need for sleep, once considered a basic biological requirement, is being re-examined, and medical researchers now contend that sleep — part habit, part instinct — can be unlearned to a significant degree, allowing us to gain valuable waking time for work and pleasure.

"There is no absolute amount or quota of sleep which is necessary for every individual; the range of 'normal' is quite wide," Dr. Sheldon Kapen of the University of Massachusetts is quoted as saying in a recent issue of Harper's Bazaar.

Kapen believes that sleep patterns are partly learned through parental example and can therefore be unlearned, allowing many people to trim up to two hours from their normal sleep period.

Another researcher, Dr. Ernest Hartman of Tufts University, reports that short sleepers — those that require six hours or less — are actually more energetic, confident and successful than long sleepers. They tend to sleep deeply and get the rest they need in a short time, he says, implying that quality of sleep, rather than quantity, is most important.

Dear Abby

'No gifts' can be said politely

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will celebrate our 40th wedding anniversary soon. Our children plan a party for us in the social hall of our church.

A few years ago you ran a sample invitation in your column that I liked very much. It was a nice way of saying "No gifts, please."

Will you please run it again? I'm sure others will find it helpful, too. Thank you.

ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: Here it is:

DEAR READERS: I have stated many times that any mention whatsoever of gifts was improper on an invitation. This includes the forthright "No gifts, please," as well as the tasteless (in my view) suggestion that cash is preferred to any other type of gift.

Many sent sample invitations in which gifts were mentioned. Below are two that changed my mind: "Jane and Bob Smith invite you to dine with us on the evening of June 1 at our home at 7 p.m."

"It is in celebration of our 20th wedding anniversary. Your friendship is a cherished gift. We respectfully request no other."

"The children of Iver and Helen Dahl invite you to celebrate with them the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. A reception will be held May 7, at 2 p.m., at the Elmhurst Country Club."

"We request your help in compiling a book which recalls memories from our parents' first 50 years of marriage. On the enclosed sheet, we ask that you write one memory or experience that you have shared with them and return it to us by April 26. We believe that the loving memories they have shared with you, their friends, would be the most treasured gift they could receive; therefore, we request that no other gift be sent."

DEAR ABBY: I would like to pass on some very valuable experience to women who might find themselves in the same situation I was in 10 years ago.

As an attractive 55-year-old widow, I was widowed and courted by a very desirable widower in his early 60s. He proposed marriage to me on the condition that his children approved of me.

Well, I passed their inspection with flying colors, but now I wish I hadn't. When he was well, his children came first. Now that he's sick, he's all mine.

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Nobody gets a lifetime guarantee of good health. You could have become sick and been all his.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if I am living with a

Quick bread has flavor appeal

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A few weeks ago we tried a quick bread made with oats that differed from standard loaves of its kind. We were attracted to the recipe, when it came across our desk, because it called for fresh tomatoes and basil and Parmesan cheese — a good-tasting flavor combination. With tomatoes and basil growing in gardens this summer, this might appeal to some cooks.

Results of our trial? This bread is a rib-sticking loaf that should be sliced thick, slathered with butter and serve hot — as you would spoonbread. Its texture is on the coarse side. It wouldn't be amiss to serve it on a plate with fish or eggs (instead of potatoes) for lunch, a light supper or brunch.

TOMATO OAT BREAD
2½ cups all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 cup quick-cooking or regular oats
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon dried crushed basil leaves or minced fresh basil leaves to taste

1 teaspoon dried crushed thyme leaves or minced fresh thyme leaves to taste

2 large eggs
1 cup milk
1-3rd cup oil

2 medium tomatoes (about ½ pound), skinned and seeded and diced (¼ inch) to make 1 cup, not packed down

Oil the bottom of a 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan; line the bottom with wax paper; oil the paper. In a large bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar; stir in the oats, ¼ cup of the Parmesan, the basil and thyme. In a small bowl beat the eggs slightly; add the milk and oil and beat to blend; add to flour mixture with the tomato; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Turn into prepared pan. Sprinkle with the remaining 2 tablespoons Parmesan. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 55 to 60 minutes. Let stand on wire rack for about 10 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out. Remove paper. With another rack, turn right side up. Loaf will have a crack. Serve while still warm or reheat, cut rather thick, with lots of butter.

LIFESTYLES

MRS. MARSHALL HOPKINS

Sims, Hopkins wed in evening ceremony

Kimberly Susan Sims became the bride of Marshall Hopkins in an evening ceremony Saturday in First Baptist Church of Pampa, with the Rev. John Glover, minister of music and youth at the church, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Joan Sims of 1819 Williston and Gerald D. Sims of Star Route 2, Pampa. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim C. Hopkins, south of Pampa.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white organza and silk Venice lace. The slash neckline was outlined with pearl-encrusted lace which cascaded down the fitted bodice.

Attending the bride were her sister, Lisa Sims, the bridegroom's sister, Melinda Hopkins, and Karlette Whaley and Lynn Esson, all of Pampa; Deanna Davis of Moore, Okla.; and Whitney Sikes of Borger.

The bridegroom's attendants were his brother, Monte Hopkins, and Clyde Coffee and Ed Farrell, all of Pampa; and the bride's brothers, Jerry Sims and Barry Sims, both of Lubbock.

Music was provided by Traci Balcom, Wanetta Bayless and Mrs. Doris Goad, all of Pampa.

Candlelighters were Matt Hopkins of Pampa and Brent Sikes of Borger.

A reception was held in the church parlor following the ceremony. Kathy Cudney of Pampa registered guests. Servers were Tracy Rice, Mrs. Melody Baker, Ann Carmichael, Olivia Jones and Stephanie Bayer, all of Pampa.

The couple will make their home south of Pampa after a honeymoon in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

By DEANA FINCK

Gray County Extension Agent

Three Gray County 4-H members will model apparel they have created in this year's Panhandle District Fashion Revue, Thursday, July 16, at the Sunset Center Shopping Mall, Plains Boulevard, east of Western Avenue in Amarillo.

Members from 4-H clubs in 20 counties will compete for honors and the right to represent the Panhandle in state competition.

The theme for this year's event is "Fashion Extra."

Representing Gray County will be Stacie McDonald, Junior 1 division (ages 9-11); Michele Houston, Junior 2 division (ages 12-13); and Penny Miller, Senior division (ages 14-19).

These entrants have won county competition. Contestants are judged on their sewing and construction skills, overall appearance, modeling abilities and their 4-H record books.

District competitors will register at 9 a.m. at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Boulevard West in Amarillo. Judging will begin at 9:30 a.m.

During judging, parents, leaders and guests may attend a special program from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Energas Company Flame Room, 301 S. Taylor in Amarillo. The program will be "Summer Entertaining with the Gas Grill," conducted by Joy Gibson, consumer information specialist with Energas.

At 1 p.m., fashion revue contestants will report to the J.C. Penney Company dressing rooms at the Sunset Center to prepare for the public revue at 2 p.m. The revue will be narrated by Bill Sexton, KGNC radio station personality.

Two junior level contest will be staged in addition to the senior competition. These younger 4-H members will not compete beyond the district level.

Top seniors who will advance to the State 4-H Fashion Revue, Sept. 16-18 in San Angelo, will be announced at the revue, and awards will go to junior division winners and to contestants having the best record books chronicling their work on the project.

Woman angry about husband's clutter

By LOUISE PIERCE

"DEAR LOUISE: I read your article about one mate being quick and the other pokey. Well, we're like that. Only my husband, call him Bob, goes a lot farther. He never finishes anything he starts.

"We have half-done trellises and work benches and carts and other gadgets all over the back yard and some in front. Even half the lawn is mowed unless I finish the job.

"He's a pack rat and brings home anything anybody offers him. He's going to 'make something of it,' but he never does. I don't dare go out to empty the trash after dark for fear I'll break a leg on a pile of old tires or half a bicycle. The only thing he doesn't clutter is the fence. He leans on it to enjoy the mess.

"I've hollered at him till I'm hoarse, but he won't listen. Any ideas? C.N."

DEAR C.N.: You don't say how old you and your husband are. If he's been collecting junk for 40 years, he's in a rut that may take a miracle to change.

Can you put some of the useless items in a place that will annoy him? For instance, you might move some of the useless stuff against the fence, in the spot where he likes to lean. He might realize that a nuisance the collection is.

A method used by some wives of clutterers is the "shame on you" technique by friends and relatives. In answer to the wife's plea, these people nag the husband by asking whether he plans to clean up the yard before he dies. They laugh about the old tires and hoes without handles and buckets with holes in them. It sometimes spurs the offender to part with his treasures.

Many articles have been written about the postponement of tasks that all of us intend to get to but never do. I would say that your husband falls into this category, bringing home discarded items that he really means to make useful but dreads to start the job.

A writer named Lesly Berger wrote an article called "How to Stop Procrastinating Tomorrow" in Family Weekly last year. He tells us why we put off tasks we need to do and how we can reform our indecisive selves.

He says that failure to start

BREAD FAIR

A "Bread Fair" will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, July 14 in the courthouse annex meeting room. Samples, recipes and breads from many lands will be included. The public is invited to learn all about the basics of bread-making.

The bread fair will also feature the nutritional value of bread and why it is important to include bread in a daily diet. Those attending will learn the history of breadmaking, see a variety of prepared bread and be able to sample recipes shown. There will be door prizes and recipes available at this special program sponsored by the Gray County Extension Homemakers Council cultural arts committee.

STRETCHING YOUR MEAT DOLLAR

Stretch your meat dollar and make a major impact on your food budget. During 1981, food-price hikes will be due mainly to upward trends in prices of meat and meat products, forecasters predict. Since meat costs are usually the largest part of the food budget — 25 to 30 percent — follow several meat-stretching basics and save. Meat stretching depends on two major steps: buying and preparing.

Generally the most economical meats are those that take longer to prepare — including chuck or rump roasts. These are as nutritious as other meats, providing high-quality protein, iron, B vitamins and some fat. Let "cost-per-serving" be a buying guide. Don't go by "cost-per-pound" only.

To figure according to "cost-per-serving," determine how many servings a pound of various cuts of meat will yield, then look at the price per pound and divide it by the number of servings. The answer is the cost-per-serving. Here's an example of how it works: Let's say a pound of ground meat costs $1. It yields four servings. Divide $1 by four. The answer is 25 cents, so ground meat — in this case — costs 25 cents per serving.

Now let's compare that with ribs. Say a pound of ribs costs 60 cents. Ribs only yield about two servings per pound. Divide 60 by two. The answer is 30 cents, so ribs, in this case, cost 30 cents per serving. To some consumers' surprise, ribs are more expensive than ground meat in this example.

To find the number of servings different cuts of meat will yield, use this guideline: meat that is mostly lean with no bone, gristle or fat makes about four or five servings per pound. Round steak and ground beef are examples. Meat with much fat, bone and gristle, such as short ribs or spare ribs, usually provides only one or two servings per pound. Finally, in buying meats, consider a variety of meats in order to take advantage of specials. Compare prices of beef, pork, lamb, poultry and fish. Also, the "variety" meats, such as liver, kidney and other organ meats, are usually bargains.

"Prepare" to save — that is, prepare menus and food items with savings in mind. Use more ground meats, since they are economical, versatile and convenient. Use them in elegant casseroles, pastas, meat loaves, meatball dishes or simply as meat patties.

Stretch the number of servings per pound by adding nonfat dry milk, soy mixtures, rolled oats, cracked wheat, egg or bread crumbs. Or use vegetables as meat extenders — mushrooms, celery or onions are examples. Add a bit of crumbled bacon, garlic, herbs and spices and you have interesting tastes with budget-impact economy.

To vary the meat selection, grind your own meat and mix less — expensive cuts with more — expensive cuts — half chuck with half sirloin, for example, or half lamb shoulder and half beef round. An interesting combination is white-meat chicken with veal.

Another argument in favor of grinding your own meat focuses on specials — savings can be significant when a larger cut of less-tender meat is on "special" and you grind it yourself.

Usually pre-packaged ground meat at the grocery market is made from less-tender cuts anyway, along with trimmings from the chuck, round and sirloin. Pork and lamb ground meat is from the shoulder or shank cuts. Grinding tenderizes meat and the addition of fat alleviates dryness. If you grind your own, be sure utensils, equipment and work areas are clean. Grinding exposes more of the meat surface to bacteria.

FISH BARBECUE

Barbecued fish fits right in with warm weather, cool slaw, French bread and a favorite beverage. Any fish will barbecue well, whether it is pond-raised catfish or the more exotic shark or swordfish steak. Fish cook quickly and are a sure bet to satisfy impatient appetites.

For some delicious seafood ideas, write "Seafood Recipes," Room 442 Kleberg Center, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Try this recipe for barbecued fish:

BARBECUE FISH
2 pounds fish fillets or steaks, fresh or frozen
¼ cup melted margarine or oil
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon finely chopped garlic
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon white pepper
Paprika
Lemon wedges
Thaw fish if frozen. Place fish on well-oiled grill.

Combine oil, lemon juice, onion, parsley, garlic, salt, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Baste fish with this sauce.

Cook over moderately hot coals for three to five minutes.

Turn fish and baste again. Cook for three to five minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Garnish with lemon wedges. Serves 6.

Caffeine, pregnancy clash

COLLEGE STATION — Should a woman avoid coffee during pregnancy?

Researchers are investigating the question, and they're paying special attention to caffeine, says Cass Ryan-Crowe, a foods and nutrition specialist.

Dr. Ryan-Crowe is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Most researchers agree that coffee containing caffeine should be consumed in moderation," the specialist notes.

Part of their concern stems from reports that some women who consume eight or more cups of coffee a day "have experienced repeated spontaneous miscarriages," she adds.

Whether caffeine was the cause of the miscarriages is not known for sure, yet, but researchers do know that caffeine in the coffee goes through the human placenta and enters the fetus.

So, for now, researchers are advising pregnant women to limit their intake of coffee and to be careful about their intake of caffeine overall.

Caffeine also is present in other foods and beverages, including tea, many soft drinks and chocolate. In addition, caffeine is present in headache medications, stay-awake aids and over-the-counter cold medicines, the specialist says.

Lawns require proper fertilizer

By JOE VANZANDT

SICK PLANT CLINIC

A clinic to diagnose sick plants, soil or insect problems will be from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 2 to 6 p.m. Thursday, July 16 in the Pampa Mall.

This is a come-and-go clinic for anyone with problems or questions about sick plants or insects. Homeowners, farmers or anyone with problems relating to diseases, insects, soil fertility, gardening and general landscape plants are invited to bring sick or troublesome plants and insects to the informal clinic.

Four Texas Agricultural Extension Service Specialists will be on hand to give assistance and counseling. They are Dr. Bob Berry, plant pathologist; Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist; Dr. Dale Pennington, soil chemist; and Dr. Roland Roberts, vegetable specialist.

This informal clinic is sponsored by the Gray County Horticulture and Crops Extension Committees, in cooperation with the Gray County Extension Service.

LAWN FERTILIZATION
Adequate attention, maintenance and a proper fertilizer program are necessary for attractive lawns throughout the summer. Homeowners frequently fail to utilize the proper kind and amount of fertilizer on their lawns.

Soil testing will help gardeners understand the fertility status of a lawn. A soil test reveals the plant nutrient levels, salt content, and reaction (pH) of the soil.

The Extension Soil Testing Laboratory in Lubbock will perform a soil test for $4 per sample. For suggestions on soil sampling and mailing, contact the County Extension agent and request Form D-495. "Soil Sample Information Sheet for Lawns, Gardens and Flower Beds".

The following suggestions should be helpful to homeowners in the High Plains area who have not been able to obtain a soil test.

For established lawns, if a "complete" fertilizer containing nitrogen and phosphorus has been used for several years, broadcast 6 pounds (6 pints) of ammonium nitrate per 1,000 square feet of area when the grass is dry, prior to spring growth. After the fertilizer is applied, irrigate with 1 inch of water (630 gallons per 1,000 square feet) to move the nitrogen down into the root zone.

To maintain desired color and vigor, apply an additional 4 to 5 pounds per 1,000 square feet of ammonium nitrate at 30 to 40 - day intervals, if needed. After three to four years, begin the season by applying 12 pounds of 16 - 20 - 0 instead of the ammonium nitrate; during the growing season, apply the maintenance rate of ammonium nitrate (4 to 5 pounds per 1,000 square feet at 30 to 40 - day intervals) if needed.

For establishment of new lawns, apply 12 pounds of 16 - 20 - 0 per 1,000 square feet and work 3 to 4 inches deep into the soil prior to seeding or sprigging. After several months, when the grass is growing vigorously, fertilize as for an established lawn.

Uniform distribution of fertilizer will prevent unsightly streaking and can be accomplished by using an applicator which can be bought or rented. If an applicator is used, close the outlet to a narrow setting.

Make several trips in different directions over the lawn to obtain uniform coverage.

The applicator can be stored between uses and will last for years if it is washed out, dried and oiled after each use. It should not be used to distribute insecticides or herbicides.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

The filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for interexchange private line and foreign exchange (FX) service. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide interexchange private line and foreign exchange service in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell's tariffs.

Aviso Público

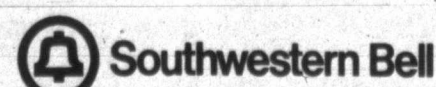

Southwestern Bell, en conformidad a las reglas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) de Texas, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel para servicio de teléfono en Texas con vigencia a partir del 21 de Julio de 1981, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Se espera que el nuevo arancel que se ha solicitado rendirá un aumento de 15.8 por ciento en los ingresos intraestatales de la compañía.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission, en Austin, Texas, al igual que en cada municipalidad afectada y servida por Southwestern Bell, y cada una de las oficinas de la compañía para negocios con el público en Texas tiene una copia para lectura pública.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

El registro incluye, pero no se limita a, propuestas para aumentar las tarifas para servicio de línea privada entre centrales telefónicas (interexchange private line) y servicio de central telefónica extranjera (foreign exchange FX). Cambios en dichas tarifas de servicio también afectarían a clientes de otras compañías de teléfono porque dichas compañías proveen los servicios ya mencionados en conformidad a tarifas especificadas por Southwestern Bell.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

July 13, 1981

This coming year may not be without its problems and difficulties to overcome, but if you keep your nose to the grindstone and don't lose heart everything will work out to your benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let any problem that occurs today get out of hand by dwelling on it. Busy yourself with a labor of love until the storm moves on. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) One who lacks your compassion and kindness may try to convince you that what you believe is wrong. Don't let anyone deter you from doing what you want to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're right to give most people the benefit of the doubt, but today, before accepting a deal from one you know little about, ask to see both sides of the ledger.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There is very little that cannot be accomplished by diplomatic handling of persons who are upsetting your apperance. You're the master of this art. Use it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although your aims will be honorable today, there's a chance someone may try to twist what you are doing in order to use it against you. Take care!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If someone is attempting to stir up trouble for you today, nip things in the bud. Go to those who matter and tell your side of the story. You have the facts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't get involved if you see a rift developing between two associates today. You could end up being the fall guy after they patch up their differences.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone on whom you were depending for an important job might let you down today. However, a forgiving heart could turn this person into a valuable future ally.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be the nice sweet person you truly are to everyone today, even to those who don't deserve your kindness. Then no one will be able to hurt you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even if your mate behaves unreasonably today, you'd be wise to respond with kindness and love. No fire can kindle when smothered with this kind of treatment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Those close to your heart will know how to soothe any pains you suffer today from the acts of co-workers. Embrace your loved one and you'll forget the wrongdoers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Because you wouldn't take advantage of anyone, it may be difficult for you to believe someone else could. Beware of being too vulnerable today.

Saturday night is a lonely evening for Sammy Cohn

NEW YORK (AP) — A Saturday night, Sammy Cohn is in his hotel room here, loafing in his pajamas. His sister drops by. "Don't you feel well?" she asks. "Why aren't you going out tonight?"

"I feel great," he tells her. "But only civilians go out on Saturday night. As a matter of fact, if you're in show business, Saturday night is the loneliest night of the week."

Which is how the short, peppery, famous and rich lyricist comes up with both the hook and title of an enduring Frank Sinatra hit — "Saturday Night Is the Loneliest Night of the Week." "My whole life's an anecdote," Cohn observes in telling this one and a few others when phoned at his manse in Beverly Hills, Calif. He's been busy of late on lyrics for a new Broadway musical.

The show is "Bojangles," about Bill Robinson, the famous black singer-dancer. The music's by Charles Strouse, the Tony-winning tunesmith for the Broadway hit, "Annie."

Cohn, 68, has collaborated with some pretty fair tunesmiths in his time — mainly Jule Styne and James Van Heusen.

A four-time Oscar-winner, Cohn says he learned the lyricist's craft back in the 1920s while playing violin with a band. He used to ad-lib dirty lyrics to a song, "One More Time," to break up the musicians.

"This dubious method created the rhyming instinct," he says. "So here I am 50 years later, still making dirty lyrics." Not exactly. But they are simple, honest, direct. And usually romantic.

You've heard them in a few songs. Like "Bei Mir Bist Du Schon," "I Fall in Love Too Easily," "Day By Day," "The Second Time Around," "I'll Walk Alone," "Three Coins in the Fountain," "It's Magic," "All the Way" and "Call Me Irresponsible."

Of course, it helps that Sinatra popularized most of them, ditto Cohn's jauntier pieces — "High Hopes," "My Kind of Town," "Come Fly With Me," "Hey, Jealous Lover" and "It's Nice to Go Travelling."

The Styne-Cohn team finally got a Broadway hit in 1947, with "High Button Shoes." But the team broke up soon afterwards.

Cohn returned to Hollywood to write songs for films. But he'd occasionally try his luck back on Broadway — to no avail — with four musicals and a marionette show.

Last year, he was persuaded to try again with lyrics for "Bojangles." No premiere date has been set for the show, which is in preparation, despite the completion of the Strouse-Cohn score.

When asked which young writers he likes, he doesn't hesitate.

Gold miner becomes monk in new series

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the few shows seen to be a hit next season is about a gold miner who dons monk's robes to save an orphanage.

The new NBC series, "Father Murphy," stars Merlin Olsen, the 6-foot-5, 255-pound former defensive lineman for the Los Angeles Rams, as a sort of Robin Hood — or, Little John — of the West.

"He cons to do good, to help the kids," says Michael Landon, who created the series to showcase Olsen's talents. If it clicks, it will be the second big success for Landon — the producer-director-writer who also stars in NBC's "Little House on the Prairie."

Olsen appeared for three years as farmer Jonathan Garvey in "Little House." Landon says, "NBC wanted a period piece. The character of Jonathan is a terrific second banana, but the character's too limited to carry a series. We just couldn't have as much leeway or as much fun with him as we can with Father Murphy."

"He pretends to be a father to run his orphanage," says Landon. "He's not dressed as a priest all the time. He's in the monk robe. We tried him in a regular priest's outfit — he looked like a giant undertaker. He's so monstrous. He looks great in this outfit. It's got a lot of style to it. It's very Robin Hood."

Landon is in his office at the MGM Studios, where he oversees production of his two series. It is filled with mementoes of "Little House" and his earlier hit series, "Bonanza," in which he played Little Joe.

He got the idea for the show because of "Merlin's" size and his gentleness," he says. "He's always reminded me a great deal of Dan Blocker," who played Hoss in "Bonanza" until his death in 1972.

"It gives us the combination of a big man like that with kids, and yet not tying him down to a marriage situation. I wanted to stay away as much as I could from 'Little House,' the 'Little House' idea, the 'Little House' feel. I know we have a much different kind of feel about this show. It's a little more of the tougher West. It gives us a chance to do a lot of different stories."

"Little House" is going into its eighth year — and "its last year, as far as I'm concerned. If NBC wants to do something with the kids, we'll figure out something. But I don't want to be involved in it. Eight years is long enough. I want to do other things."

Besides Olsen, the series stars Moses Gunn as Murphy's friend and partner, and Katherine Cannon as a teacher at the orphanage.

Landon began writing when "Bonanza" didn't have a script to film one week. He wrote the script over the weekend. "I brought it in, had it typed and fought to get paid minimum," he says. "It wasn't very good, but it was better than some of the scripts we had."

It was a few years after that before he got to direct. Landon says, "Being the youngest son in the show was tough enough. Back then few people wanted to let actors do anything. It was almost as if they let you direct just to keep you happy."

Landon says his future projects include movies and a miniseries. He's also started a book, but says he finds it difficult to switch back and forth. "Once I start something I just want to go all the way through with it."

Movie: The Four Seasons

"THE FOUR SEASONS" is a welcome return to earth people amid a movie summer suffused with monsters, macho and Muppets. Like Robert Redford with Dennis, the latter supplanted by Bess Armstrong. Each is allowed strong or funny moments. Each is effective, but Weston, who sometimes over-extends himself, is especially endearing. Rated PG, with mature themes and a little swearing.

DALLAS

Events at Lucy (Charlene Tilton) and Mitch's (Leigh McCloskey) wedding at Southfork have far more impact on the Ewing family than is apparent to the assembled guests, on the concluding segment of a two-part episode of a rebroadcast of "Dallas," FRIDAY, JULY 17 on CBS-TV.

Included in the action which goes on behind the scenes as Lucy Ewing becomes Mrs. Mitchell Cooper, Sue Ellen discovers that J.R. is much too friendly to Mitch's sister and consequently makes her own play for an old boyfriend, J.R. is not as delighted as he expected to be when Bobby resigns as president of Ewing Oil, and Miss Ellie shocks Jock by accusing him of behavior for which she can never forgive him.

Alan Feinstein stars as her husband, Michael.

With the hope that a new setting will give their troubled marriage a fresh resolve, Jennie and Michael Logan purchase a lovely Victorian house within commuting distance of New York, but away from the hassles of the city and the painful memory of Michael's recent infidelity. As Jennie throws herself into restoring the old house to its original style, she finds she's drawn to the world of its earlier inhabitants.

Sarah 'uninvited' to Tower reception

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sarah McClendon, a longtime Washington correspondent for Texas newspapers, was invited and then later "disinvited" to a Marine reception Friday evening honoring Sen. John Tower's 20 years in Congress, according to a Washington gossip columnist.

Tower sent her an invitation, but it was withdrawn after his wife, Lilla Cummings Tower, said she'd rather Ms. McClendon not come, said "The Ear," in Friday's Washington Star.

"No comment," an aide to Tower said Friday. Attempts to reach Ms. McClendon by telephone failed.

Ms. McClendon has been a reporter in Washington during the administrations of seven presidents.

Speculating on why Mrs. Tower didn't want Ms. McClendon to attend, the column went on: "Could it have been that piece 'she wrote'? The one about Lilla sitting home running Tower's office? Saying who should be hired and fired? Adding $65,000 to the office's operating costs?"

The column said Ms. McClendon — after being politely asked by one of Tower's aides, "Would you please not attend?" — hurried over to the office of Texas' Republican senator to hear the request from Tower himself.

"I'd rather have my arm cut off than tell you this, Sarah, but it's true," Tower was quoted as telling her. "I made out the guest list myself, and Lilla just looked it over. She said, well, there's one person I'd prefer not to be there."

The column continued: "Then, Sarah and John got all weepy and hugged each other. 'I'll tell you,' sniffed Sarah, 'This is one of the most peculiar things that's happened to me in my 71 years.' John blew his nose. He looked dubious. 'Well,' she 'fessed, mopping her eyes. 'I was once disinherited to a Mamie Eisenhower luncheon. It was after one of those news conferences where I'd asked questions. She brightened at the memory. 'Heh-heh-heh.'"

Jerry Lee Lewis fights for his life

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Flamboyant rock'n'roll star Jerry Lee Lewis lay in a hospital intensive care unit Saturday, fighting for his life after a second emergency stomach operation in 10 days.

"He hasn't given up," his ex-wife, Myra Lewis, said after visiting the entertainer at Methodist Hospital South. "He's fighting. I think he's going to make it."

Hospital spokeswoman Dot Work said Lewis was in critical condition. Mrs. Work said Lewis's physicians would not be available to talk to reporters, but family members quoted doctors earlier as saying his chances of survival were 50-50.

Lewis, 45, a dynamic pianist known for such 1950s hits as "Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On" and "Great Balls of Fire," underwent more than five hours of surgery Friday night after X-rays revealed that an infection had spread in his abdomen.

Lewis, nicknamed "The Killer," had been in the hospital's intensive care unit since June 30, when he underwent four hours of emergency surgery to repair a perforated stomach.

The singer had appeared to be recovering. But he began running a high fever and his physicians ordered X-rays and other tests to determine the cause.

A cousin, Carl McVoy, quoted surgeons as saying they found several abscesses on the outer wall of the stomach. Stitches used to repair the original perforation had begun to leak, McVoy said.

Medical officials said that given the nature of Lewis' original stomach problem, complications would not be unexpected. They said it is common for infection to result when the contents of the stomach empty into the abdominal cavity itself.

As word of Lewis's condition spread, friends and fans streamed into the hospital's first-floor waiting room to talk with family members and offer their prayers.

One of those who called the hospital asking about Lewis's condition was Sam Phillips, who once owned Sun Records, where Lewis and the late Elvis Presley made their first recordings.

McVoy told Phillips: "Ol' Jerry is in pretty bad shape. It's pretty critical. It's in the hands of the good Lord."

Mrs. Lewis, 36, whom Lewis married when she was 14, said she visited her ex-husband at noon Saturday and he was conscious enough to recognize her.

"He looks so robust lying up there with his muscles and all," she said after that visit. "He doesn't look like he's all that sick."

She then began sobbing. "He touched his hand to mine. He's awfully sick but he's fighting."

Saying good-bye will be tough order for first woman skipper

HONOLULU (AP) — For Beverly Kelley, the first woman to command a U.S. Coast Guard vessel at sea, saying good-bye to her crew may be more difficult than facing a stiff northwest squall.

Through 27 months as skipper of the USCGC Cape Newagen, she's kept a private promise never to cry in front of the crew. But when she talks about stepping ashore for land duty on Sunday, she admits there may be tears.

"It sounds funny to say, because a ship is just an inanimate object, but I've grown really attached to her," she said as the Newagen was in drydock recently. "We've been through so much together — me and the crew and the ship."

The 16-man crew of her 95-foot patrol boat rescues ships in distress, enforces marine and oil pollution laws and repairs navigation aids over 140,000 square miles of the Pacific Ocean around Maui, Molokai and Lanai Islands in Hawaii.

In a January 1980 storm described as the worst to hit Hawaii since World War II, the Cape Newagen rescued 12 people. And he skipper and crew were awarded a "meritorious unit commendation" — Coast Guard jargon for service above and beyond the call of duty.

"We were at sea for four days," Ms. Kelley says of the storm that sent 20-foot waves crashing through the normally placid anchorage off Lahaina on Maui.

"I took her (the ship) out looking for a lee, and then we started getting distress calls."

One was from a fishing vessel with two people aboard that was taking on water.

Buffeted by 70-knot winds and 18- to 20-foot waves, the Cape Newagen reached the boat over a treacherous reefline, saving the vessel and the two people aboard. For the next 96 hours, the patrol boat remained at sea, rescuing 11 vessels and 12 people.

The citation from Rear Adm. Bernie Thompson described the Cape Newagen's performance as "professionalism, perseverance, dedication, outstanding teamwork, resourcefulness and devotion to duty in the face of extreme adversity."

"It was my proudest achievement in these three years," said the 29-year-old native of Bonita Springs, Fla.

A graduate of the University of Miami and officers' candidate school, Ms. Kelley is a slender 5-foot-6-inch brunette who grew up near the sea and calls her dad "Captain" in honor of the navigator's knack he handed on to her.

"Before I went to college, it was, 'Don't you think you ought to get married and make babies?'" she says of her father's reaction to her profession. "Now when I talk about getting married, it's 'But how will this influence your career?'"
