Entrepreneur scheduled to be sentenced

■ Former Midlander I. David Porras could face prison time for bank fraud, bankruptcy fraud and money laundering.

By Rick McLaughlin
Staff Writer

"I'm just the poor new kid on the block. I'm just doing the best I can to try to make a living."
— I. David Porras, 1982

In a state famous for colorful characters, entrepreneur I. David Porras was a colorful fixture in Midland for a very long time. On Tuesday he could be sentenced to a long prison sentence.

The man who started here with inexpensive rental houses and a decorating business in the boom years of the late 1970s, moved into real estate and literally changed the landscape of north Midland. He sold eight black-and-white office buildings at the corner of Wadley Avenue and A Street, One Petroleum Center, in the early 1980s for $62 million.

Other dream projects were to follow, including plans for a 37-story office tower and a 12-story parking lot on three blocks downtown, starting at the corner of Big Spring Street and Missouri Avenue and extending south to Front Street. It never came to pass.

Porras also dreamed of a ranch empire with a premier Brangus herd and state-of-the-art embryo transplant center.

He was noted for lavish living and surrounded himself with European paintings, sculpture, bronzes and Chinese Ming Dynasty paintings from the 14th century.

But by 1997, the IRS was auctioning off much of his empire, seized in 1995, to pay off a $40 million tax bill. The famous auction house, Christie's of New York, sold paintings, jewelry, furniture, art objects and 4,000 pieces of silver flatware.

Other auctioneers sold other lots of luxury items.

Worse was to follow. Much worse.

On a Tuesday night in November 1999 a Midland federal District Court jury found David Porras and his mother, Lucille Christy Blakely, guilty of bank fraud, bankruptcy fraud and money laundering.

Now, at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, Porras is scheduled to be sentenced. He was found guilty on 10 of the 12 counts against him. Ms. Blakely was found guilty on nine of the 11 charges against her.

A third defendant, William Edmiston, is believed to be living in Mexico. Porras and Edmiston had declared bankruptcy in 1995.

The three were accused of conspiring to hide the assets of four different corporations owned jointly by Porras and Edmiston. They were also accused of hiding personal assets from trustees after they declared bankruptcy.

Among the charges was that

Midland Police Officers Greg McCright, foreground, and John Kerrigan ride their bikes along Texas Avenue Friday.

Bike patrol is another tool for MPD, officer says

It's not the best known unit of the Midland Police Department even though it's been around about 10 years, and sometimes the members aren't even recognized until they dismount. Sometimes, they have to endure bad jokes about their shorts and bare legs.

Some cities and counties have horse-mounted patrols, but like many other towns, Midland has a bicycle unit. And for the riders of the MPD Bicycle Patrol, it's a great assignment.

For Patrol Officer John Kerrigan, six years in the Midland Police Department has included five years on bicycle patrol. "Not many seem to know about us, but we get called out for problem areas and for special events such as parades and carnivals," Kerrigan said. "We also do a lot of bike rodeos and safety classes."

Kerrigan, who has 26 years in law enforcement, spent 20 of them in the U.S. Air Force before he retired. He said he was into bicycles when he was stationed at Dyess Air Force Base at Abilene. "With my love of bike riding and my job, it works perfectly. I can go to work and ride a bike."

His partner this past Friday was Officer Greg McCright, who has been with the department only a year and half and came here from the Amarillo Police Department. "I loved riding bikes as a kid growing up in Amarillo, and when a spot with the (bicycle patrol) school opened up, well ... ."

But Kerrigan emphasized that the bike patrol is a lot more than a bike ride for two on a nice day. It's even more than crowd control at a parade or public event.

Painter to be challenged by two lawmen in GOP primary

Editor's Note: This is the first of a five-part series that examines local races in the March 14 Republican and Democratic primaries.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, who has weathered 15 years of controversy and repeatedly won voter approval, is being challenged by two veteran law-enforcement officers for the Republican Party nomination for sheriff in the March 14 primary elections.

"I have been challenged many times," Painter, 52, said. "And I have had to prove my abilities. I have had to prove my integrity, my honesty, every day."

His two opponents, Patrick "Pat" Bostick, 42, and Mike Hall, 53, want to oust the 6-foot-5 Painter from office and effect "a change" in the next four-year term.

"Anytime you have political candidates in opposition to each other and they are challenging the incumbent, there are always a lot of promises and comments," Painter observed.

From Bostick's perspective, "We've got to have new blood.

"With new ideas and with a new administration, you have ideas that will try to stay ahead of the bad guys and help the community," said Bostick, a $41,000-salaried investigator for District Attorney Al Schorre and a former deputy sheriff commissioned by Painter.

Bostick said the sheriff and his force "need to stay home and clean up our own back yard and get everything here in Midland taken care of.

"We need to restructure. We have a lot of chiefs and not enough Indians" in the 167-person Sheriff's Office that, with a $6.7 million budget for jail and public-safety duties, consumes almost one-third of the county's $22 million general-fund budget. "The department has to be restructured from the top to the bottom."

The sheriff's job is salaried at $52,000.

Like Bostick, Hall as sheriff would pull Midland County out of the controversial Sheriffs of Texas Agreed Response (STAR) team, a mutual-aid, tactical-response team joined by about 60 sheriffs on either side of the Pecos River and commanded by Painter's chief deputy, Clayton McKinney, 59.

"The sheriff has let his chief deputy dictate policy and stuff to the point that I don't think he is running his own railroad," Hall charged. "It's gotten to the point if it's not blessed by McKinney, it doesn't happen."

Hall, a sheriff's deputy since 1986 (a year after McKinney) and a former Texas Ranger, said that he would not support STAR.

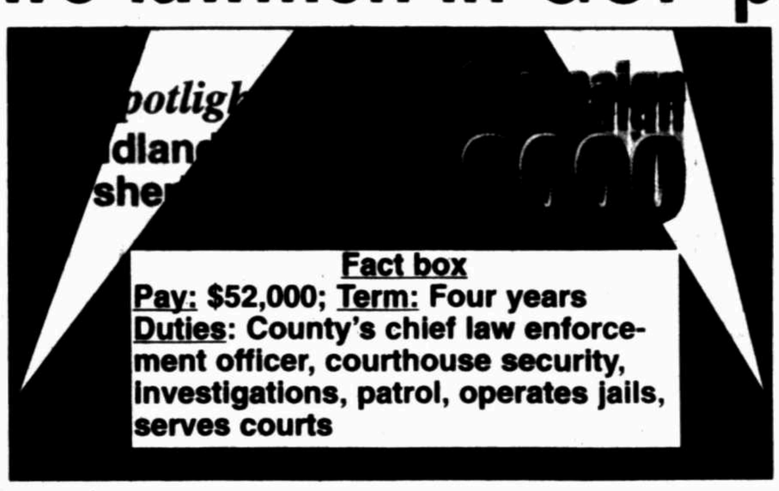

"When I go into office, we will not be a part of STAR," said Hall, a sheriff's patrol sergeant now on leave from his $37,400-salaried job to campaign. "McKinney won't be there."

The STAR program utilizes an "an age-old concept" adopted by the National Guard, the Marine Corps Reserve, the Texas Department of Public Safety, the U.S. Army Reserve, and the federal-state Emergency Management System, Hall said.

"And that is to train people and have them stationed in different locales to handle natural disasters or traumatic disasters, like an air-transport crash or something like that where they can readily be utilized.

"We don't need duplication of services," Hall said. "People need to spend

Bush sends apology to Catholic cardinal

■ In a letter to Cardinal John O'Connor of New York, governor says his appearance at Bob Jones University caused 'needless offense.'

Associated Press

AUSTIN — In a letter to the leader of New York's Catholics, Gov. George W. Bush says his campaign appearance at a South Carolina school with anti-Catholic views was a "missed opportunity causing needless offense, which I deeply regret."

Bush has come under steady criticism for his Feb. 2 visit to Bob Jones University, a Christian school whose leaders have criticized the pope and labeled the Catholic church a "Satanic cult."

Opponents have assailed Bush for not using the appearance to denounce those views and the school's ban on interracial dating. Bush spoke about his conservatism.

In a Feb. 25 letter to Cardinal John O'Connor of New York, leader of the archdiocese's 2.4 million Roman Catholics, Bush stated his "profound respect" for the Catholic Church and said the criticism of him is unfair and unfounded.

LETTER: Anti-Catholic criticism unfair, Bush says

(From 1A)

"On reflection, I should have been more clear in disassociating myself from anti-Catholic sentiments and racial prejudice," Bush said in the letter, which his campaign released Sunday. "It was a missed opportunity causing needless offense, which I deeply regret."

The letter marked an abrupt reversal for Bush, who only last week said: "I don't make any apologies for what I do in the campaign."

At a news conference before departing for Seattle, Bush said he had a change of heart after thinking about impressions of himself as an anti-Catholic "that just are not true."

"I regret not using the opportunity to speak out against the policies," he said. "My job is to lead the nation. My job is to convince people to follow me. This was a missed opportunity and I regret it."

Bush faced questions about the speech almost as soon as he finished it. In response, he has repeatedly stated his opposition to the ban on interracial dating and the comments of the school's leaders. Bush also has noted that a brother and sister-in-law are Catholic.

Bush's appearance also was the subject of telephone calls that GOP presidential rival Sen. John McCain now acknowledges his campaign placed to Michigan voters before the primary there last Tuesday. But McCain stood by past assertions that the calls did not say Bush was a bigot.

That didn't satisfy Bush, however, who contended that McCain did not speak the truth when he initially denied knowledge of the calls that informing voters about the university visit.

"The campaign of pitting one religion against another has got to end. Senator McCain, when given the chance to set the record straight on who did it, couldn't come to the truth," he said.

In a television interview Sunday, McCain acknowledged approving the calls. He said he and members of his staff originally denied they were being made because the questions they were asked about them mischaracterized the calls as labeling Bush a bigot.

The calls "said exactly what is fact, and that is he went to this university," McCain said.

His campaign acknowledged the calls just before the polls closed.

"There was no charge in that transcript of those phone calls that said he was anti-Catholic or anything else," he said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Bush disagreed. "It's clearly implied that I'm an anti-Catholic bigot. They can't hide what those calls meant," Bush said.

Karl Rove, Bush's chief strategist, said the back-and-forth over the visit to Bob Jones University had become "an ugly episode" in American politics.

"President Ronald Reagan went there, the governor of the state of South Carolina, a Democrat, went there, Jack Kemp went there, Dan Quayle went there, and none of them were criticized for supposedly harboring anti-Catholic views simply because they went there," Rove said on Fox News Sunday.

SHERIFF: Challengers oppose STAR

their tax dollars and resources, personnel, on programs and equipment and training that will be utilized everyday for the citizens of Midland County."

Winners of the sheriff's race will be pitted against independent candidate Joe Lozano, a 40-year-old Midland businessman and former 10-year informer for Painter in making drug-narcotics busts.

Gary Painter

Painter, a Marine Corps veteran and a former DPS trooper, was patrol lieutenant under Sheriff Dallas Smith in 1984 when he resigned to run for sheriff.

"Over the past 15 years, I've never minded putting that (honesty and integrity) up front," Painter said. "When I signed on to be a candidate for sheriff in 1984, I was investigated. I've had different agencies come at us, trying to destroy the Sheriff's Office through me."

Painter cited his 1992 re-election campaign when "a friend of the District Attorney's Office" campaigned for sheriff in a four-way race that included a criminal investigator, a former police chief, an oilman, and Painter, who garnered 63 percent of the voted in his landslide re-election.

That election was steeped in the sheriff's out-of-county reverse-sting drug operations. A district court ruled that the sheriff must confine his work within the boundaries of his jurisdiction — Midland County. The state court also ordered the Midland County Commissioners' Court not to interfere in the sheriff's "day-to-day operations."

Those who would harp on the sheriff's former out-of-county reverse-sting operations would be "still hanging their hat on an old stick," Painter said.

In his 1996 re-election bid, Painter won 57 percent of the vote to defeat Mike Kaufman, a retired U.S. Air Force fighter pilot.

Painter noted that his office has withstood investigations and grand jury probes.

"They (his opponents) have attacked our professionalism," Painter said. "They have attacked our integrity and honesty and have found no break in honor. We have very professional people, good people, working in the Sheriff's Office. They are trained. They are organized.

"We work very closely with every (law-enforcement) agency and with the Commissioners' Court," Painter said. "We do everything we can to protect our citizens and provide them the professional organization that they demand. We have not shirked that duty. We stand tall."

Painter said that his department has "everything that they (Bostick and Hall) are promising, such as "state-of-the-art radio system ... laptops (computers) for officers to do their reports in the field. We are cooperating with the Midland Police Department on dispatching and the jail."

Painter said , "Midland County has an excellent reputation all across the state of Texas, especially in West Texas." The citizens "are going to get the help that they need or the answers that they need. We don't back down from trouble. We stand up, and we attack it head on.

Painter

"The biggest thing is our honesty, our integrity, and our ability to maintain our reputation through all the bull that's been thrown at us. The citizens know the truth. The citizens know that we work and we work hard.

"This county has never been left without protection," Painter said. As examples, he cited the late 1980s and early 1990s when Painter's reverse-sting operations fought drug-traffickers inside and outside Midland County and the recent STAR program.

The million dollars his officers reaped in forfeited drug money was used "to enhance our ability by buying equipment.

"The Midland County Sheriff's Office has ... walked straight into everything that's come after us, and we've defeated it because we were right every single time. We haven't violated the law. Yet, we are continuously attacked, and it is nothing but political hype and jealousy."

Pat Bostick

Bostick, who has spent half of his 42 years in law enforcement, said that he would "restructure" the Sheriff's Office, return patrol work to the basics, get rid of duplications in the office, "cut the fat, reorganize," and align the department with the DPS-commanded, Odessa-based West Texas Narcotics Enforcement Task Force instead of the Pecos-based Trans Pecos Drug Task Force.

"Both of them are working well," Bostick said. "We need to worry about our surrounding counties and ourselves before we worry about Reeves County" and outlying counties far to the west.

As sheriff, Bostick said that "taxpayer money is going to be better utilized at the Sheriff's Office," wherein he would "put manpower at positions where they are needed instead of duplication of services.

"The STAR program would be dissolved in Midland County," Bostick said. "The concept is good, but we don't need to be in charge of it. A West Texas county like us, we don't have the manpower or the time or the resources to help West Texas. And I don't think Odessa has the manpower to help ... West Texas or any of these other small counties."

Of STAR's surplus military equipment, such as the armored personnel carriers and trucks, "we need to give them back to the military" unless the DPS could use the equipment "to help these West Texas counties. You can't auction them off."

However, Bostick said that he would keep the revamped "motor home" which, in cooperation with Midland College, has been converted to a communications center.

Bostick said that he would implement "rules and regulations," which are "very, very vital to a professional organization" and which afford "everybody equal opportunities."

Bostick

Under his administration, there would be "no buddy systems," Bostick said. "You are going to keep everybody equal and on the same page" to ensure fairness in such areas as promotions and transfers.

"In my 21 years (in law enforcement), I've been basically training for this (sheriff's job) since day one," Bostick said.

"Law enforcement protects and serves the citizens," Bostick said. "I believe in law enforcement. I've worked every step of law enforcement from patrol to investigations and now to the prosecution's side" in the District Attorney's Office.

In restructuring the Sheriff's Office, "we are going to save the taxpayers money," Bostick said. "It's going to be a better-run Sheriff's Office. I have an excellent rapport" with the various law-enforcement agencies. I have an excellent reputation, and I work well with others. The Midland Fraternal Order of Police has endorsed me" for sheriff.

Bostick said that he agrees with the STAR concept, "but you can't afford to send a lot of people out-of-county." The DPS resources, including its SWAT team, "have the ability to send people, helicopters, and airplanes" to troubled areas in times of emergencies. They have the manpower. They will assist any county that calls them."

"Each county needs to worry about themselves," Bostick said. "I agree in helping other counties. I don't have a problem with that." However, "We just need to worry about Midland County right now."

Mike Hall

"It's time for a change" in the Sheriff's Office leadership, Hall said. "It's time we kept our business in Midland County. We are going to keep a clean house when I am elected sheriff."

As sheriff, Hall said that he would "bring leadership, fresh ideas and new management skills that are going to enhance the everyday workings of the Sheriff's Office between the people that work in the department and the people who live in Midland County.

"There are a lot of people in the wrong positions in the Sheriff's Office," Hall said, and "good people that are not being utilized" to the fullest extent.

"There is a core of people at the Sheriff's Office right now that will be able to step in" to leadership roles, Hall said, "and the Sheriff's Office is going to be enhanced 100 percent the minute they get put in the right positions."

Hall cited the need for a heightened "level of cooperation" among law-enforcement agencies at the community, regional, state, and federal levels.

"We need to be looking out for the citizens of Midland County all the time," Hall said.

As did Bostick, Hall said that Midland County needs to sign up with the "West Texas Narcotics

Hall

Enforcement Task Force that's in our back yard."

Under his administration, the Sheriff's Office will "work with the Commissioners' Court" and will "work within the budget that's approved for us. We will not purchase things we don't need. We will do our dead-level best to save the tax dollars for the Midland County citizens." The sheriff and the commissioners "need to work on a problem together."

Of forfeited drug money, Hall said "when I'm elected sheriff, all the seized money will be spent on law enforcement right here in Midland County.

Of the STAR program, "It's empire-building," Hall said. "I don't see any need in it."

Should he be elected sheriff, "we are not going to have a STAR program," Hall said. "We will assist any neighboring county. But I see no need to send our people 200 miles away without some mutual-aid legal agreement between the commissioners' courts" of the various counties affected by STAR.

"We are not going to spend our time and effort on military vehicles of any kind," he added. "It's a duplication of service. In times of emergencies, if we need military-type vehicles and manpower, the county judge can call the governor directly. And the governor can order out the (Texas) National Guard."

In running the Sheriff's Office, Painter has "been through four county judges (William B. "Bill" Ahders, Charles "Bro" Seltzer, Jeff Norwood, Bill Morrow)," Hall said. "And I promise you, those judges are not passing a parchment of curse from one court to the other to keep us from getting (pay) raises. The reason is the present administration — the sheriff. It is not the county commissioners who are keeping us from getting a raise."

Hall said that the sheriff's rules and regulations and policies "have never been upgraded" under Painter.

"That is not a pro-active sheriff that does things like that. It is time for a change, and I am the change that needs to be there,"

SENTENCE: Porras' mother was tried on same charges

(From 1A)

Edmiston took money, more than $400,000 from the trust account of Audrey Hayes, Ms. Blakely's sister. Edmiston was appointed guardian for Ms. Hayes, who was in her 90s and living in a nursing home.

The first witness in the trial was Lellie England, an advocate for Ms. Hayes. During her testimony, Ms. England testified that Ms. Hayes was behind on her bills and had to rely on clothing donations.

She told the court that she received no response when she contacted members of Ms. Hayes' family. Her guardian at the time was William Edmiston, who was referred to as a member of the family.

Edmiston's guardianship of Ms. Hayes was eventually terminated by the court in April 1996. The new court-appointed attorney, Chris McCormack, testified that from 1990 to April 1996, $300,000 was disbursed by the trust for Ms. Hayes.

McCormack told the jury that there was only $750 left in Ms. Hayes' trust at the time Edmiston was replaced by the court. Among the disbursements made from Ms. Hayes' fund was a sum to Edmiston for more than $60,000. The prosecution maintained that this money was used to pay for a portion of a condominium in Cloudcroft, N.M.

A copy of a promissory note allegedly signed by Ms. Hayes was presented into evidence. The note was made out to Edmiston for $278,000 payable at the time of Ms. Hayes' death.

William Perry, a petroleum landman who purchased several tracts of land for Porras, during testimony described Porras' and Edmiston's lifestyle as lavish, referring to a black Lear Jet, two black helicopters and several expensive sports cars owned by Porras.

Correction

In a headline in Sunday's edition, it was incorrectly reported that early voting in the Republican and Democratic primaries would begin on March 14. Early voting begins today at the Midland County Elections Administration Office, 709 W. Washington.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

PEDAL: Bike patrol is part-time unit

(From 1A)

Riding along quietly and riding right up on wrongdoers, day or night, is just one of the reasons to send out the bike patrol in special situations, such as areas of unusual activity in burglary, criminal mischief or drug dealing.

"It's a tool — a law enforcement tool. You can hear, see and smell a lot more from a bicycle seat than you can in a police car," Kerrigan said.

He was patrolling past the front of a bar one night. "I saw a guy walking up to cars, looking at every one. Then, I heard a hissing sound and realized he was stabbing and cutting tires."

Kerrigan took him to jail and charged him with criminal mischief.

"After I took him in, he said that riding the bicycle wasn't fair," said Kerrigan.

Narcotics areas are good for bike patrolling, Kerrigan said. "They (drug dealers) can see the patrol cars coming a long way away, but on bicycle, instead of watching them run away, you can ride right up on them in the transaction."

Kerrigan said in some cases, they have no idea who it is until the officers dismount to apprehend them.

Midland's bike patrol is a part-time unit, meaning they don't put officers on the bicycles every day, and only then for special problems and special events.

Even so, for this duty, officers must attend a police bicycle patrol school. "It's not just learning to ride, noted Kerrigan, "but learning to ride tactically to approach situations and suspects."

'You can hear, see and smell a lot more from a bicycle seat than you can in a police car.'
—Officer John Kerrigan

For example, just one tactical technique might mean pinning a suspect against a wall using the bicycles as temporary holding pen.

He also recalled an officer who was approaching a subject at 2 a.m. in the side dismount position — that is, one leg on the pedal and one foot ready to step on the ground. His partner was circling the suspect, when the first officer accidentally grabbed the front brake handle.

"He locked up the brake and flipped the bicycle." said Kerrigan.

There are 25 members of the MPD who have been through the school and are certified bike patrol officers.

The bikes are Police Department issue and are painted, appropriately enough, in black with white trim. The only special equipment is a set of saddlebags, which can contain police paperwork, citation ticket books, and a little air pump for inflating flat tires.

The officers are fully uniformed, even in shorts, and carry all the usual police equipment, including radio equipment for communication with headquarters.

The bicycle patrol is out in mostly warm weather, "but around here that can be most of the time," said Kerrigan. "We have ridden in some cold weather, too."

For inquiring minds who want to know, they wear trousers in cold weather.

"Basically, we're teaching traffic laws," noted Kerrigan, because bicyclists are required to follow almost all the laws that motorists are required to obey. "Only the license is different, but mostly we're trying to get them to wear helmets."

"It's just not a case of officers getting on a bike and going for ride," said MPD Chief John Urby. "They have to be qualified and take training courses. They're used for certain activities, like the softball tournament at Hogan Park. They're so maneuverable and they are really good for public relations."

"Bike officers help to work property crimes or prowlers in the neighborhood. They can see better, don't make any noise and can jump off the bike and take off walking or running," noted Urby. "We can't put everyone on bicycles, but if an area is being targeted, it's a great tool."

Tijuana police chief gunned down by unknown assailants, officials say

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Assailants shot and killed Tijuana's police chief Sunday, pumping more than 100 shots into his car as he drove along a busy highway.

Alfredo de la Torre, in charge of the police force in this violent border town since 1998, was pronounced dead at the scene, said Enrique Tellaeche, a spokesman for the Baja California state attorney general's office in Tijuana.

Dozens of investigators combed the city and interviewed witnesses, but no one had been arrested.

"He was well-known and well-liked. We didn't know he was having any problems with anyone," Tellaeche said.

Tijuana Mayor Francisco Vega de la Madrid issued a statement expressing his indignation and urging investigators to get to the bottom of the case. He also appointed an interim chief, Tijuana police Commander Carlos Besneyrigoyen.

'He was well-known and well-liked. We didn't know he was having any problems with anyone.'

— Enrique Tellaeche, spokesman for the Baja California state attorney general's office in Tijuana

Torre was attacked as he drove home from Mass, unaccompanied by his bodyguards, on a three-lane highway that runs along the northern edge of Tijuana, Tellaeche said.

Riddled with bullet holes, his black Chevy Suburban with tinted windows crashed into a palm tree on the side of the road, Tellaeche said.

The windshield bore more than a dozen bullet holes and the three windows on the driver's side had been shot out, as was the front window on the paassenger side.

Government news agency Notimex reported that there were four assailants, but investigators said they were unsure of the number of attackers.

Tijuana, a gritty metropolis of 1.2 million people in northwestern Mexico across the border from San Diego has been plagued by waves of violence stemming from drug and arms smuggling, and involving undocumented workers.

The city, home to the busiest border crossing on Earth, is one of the main ports of entry for drugs heading into the United States.

De la Torre, who had a long career in law enforcement, was the former director of the state penitentiary in Tijuana.

Get treatment for jaw, face, neck pain

Do you experience jaw pain when chewing? Does your jaw pop or even lock up when you're eating or yawning? Maybe you awaken in the morning with sore teeth and a tired jaw. Possibly your jaw hurts when you try to open it wide—or maybe you can't open it wide at all due to pain or stiffness. You could have pain in your ears or a buzzing in your ears. Perhaps you suffer from constant headaches or pain in the face or neck. All of these problems could be caused by temporo-mandibular joint disorders, or TMD, says Dr. Grant E. Giles of Cranio-Mandibular Affiliates.

Dr. Grant E. Giles' TMJ Scale can help determine the likelihood that your face or jaw pain is caused by TMD. Armed with a proper diagnosis, many patients are helped by treatment.

TMD really refers to a variety of disorders involving the jaw and its surrounding muscles and tissues, mostly in the face. These problems can develop as a result of an injury or improper development, or they can come simply from the wear and tear of life.

Because the jaw is attached to a large number of muscles, any misalignment of the joint can put stress on some of those muscles as they try to adjust to the problem. That muscle strain, in turn, can lead to other problems. That is why much TMD pain goes undiagnosed and therefore untreated, says Dr. Giles.

To make diagnosis easier, Dr. Giles utilizes a questionnaire called the TMJ Scale. It is very easy to fill out and takes only 10-15 minutes. Some of the questions may seem unrelated, but remember, TMD can have surprisingly wide-ranging consequences.

The scoring results of the TMJ Scale help Dr. Giles or your physician evaluate your condition. It predicts the likelihood of a TMJ disorder and assesses the symptom areas. It also screens you for the presence of other disorders that might complicate diagnosis and therapy.

The TMJ Scale does not replace a doctor's clinical exam. It simply helps determine the next step in the evaluation.

If it is determined that TMD treatment would be advisable, Dr. Giles begins by using a removable orthotic appliance, which helps reposition the jaw to relieve stress on affected muscles and other tissues. He uses a number of diagnostic modalities to help determine the diagnosis for your condition.

Many patients report great improvement within days of using an orthotic appliance. Typically, after 60-90 days of treatment, Dr. Giles is able to determine if a second phase is needed. This may involve adjustments to your teeth, orthodontics, crowns or, in rare cases, surgery.

While proper diagnosis is vital to correct treatment, TMD problems have been difficult to track down. They have often been misdiagnosed as tension or migraine headaches, sinus trouble, ear infection, toothache or many others. The difficulty is twofold—one, TMD can appear in so many forms, it can hide even from professionals. Second, the jaw falls partly into the dental field and partly into the medical area; thus, neither field has historically focused on it enough to gain extended experience needed for proper diagnosis.

Dr. Giles has concentrated on this area for several years, gaining great experience as a result. He has lectured internationally on TMD treatments and diagnoses.

Have you previously had treatment for jaw or face pain, with no success? Here is a good reason to try it again. Call Cranio-Mandibular Affiliates for a consultation—take the TMJ Scale test—and see if your pain can be helped.

Dr. Grant E. Giles, DDS, FAES, FAGD, FICCMO, DAAPM is director of Cranio-Mandibular Affiliates of Midland and San Antonio. He has lectured internationally on TMD diagnoses and treatments. His office is located in the Westwood Medical Building at 4214 Andrews Highway, Suite 201. For an appointment, call 1-888-263-2631 toll free.

TMD is not a recognized specialty of the American Dental Association.

STDs have high physical, economic price

According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, GA, there are more than 12 million cases of sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) reported in the United States. STDs accounted for five of the top 10 diseases in the US in 1995, including 87 percent of all cases reported involving top-10 diseases.

As with any widespread disease, STDs are costly in terms of treatment. But these diseases extract a particularly high price in anguish, along with associated pain and complications. Because the infections often have no symptoms and therefore may go untreated, women are particularly at risk for complications. These can include tubal pregnancy, infertility, chronic pelvic pain, pelvic abscess and poor pregnancy outcomes. Below are listed some of the most common STDs.

Chlamydia: Chlamydia is the most common bacterial STD in the United States. It causes an estimated four million infections annually, primarily among adolescents and young adults. In women, untreated infections can progress to involve the upper reproductive tract and may result in serious complications. About 75 percent of women infected with chlamydia have few or no symptoms, and without testing and treatment the infection may persist for as long as 15 months. Approximately one-in-ten adolescent girls and one-in-twenty women of reproductive age are infected.

Guillermo A. Callo, M.D.

Pelvic Inflammatory Disease: PID refers to upper reproductive tract infection in women, which often develop when STDs go untreated. Each year, PID and its complications afflict more than 750,000 women in the U. S. Permanent damage to the fallopian tubes may result from a single episode of PID.

Ectopic, or tubal pregnancy is one potentially fatal PID complication. This occurs when a fertilized egg implants somewhere other than in the uterus—often in the fallopian tube.

Gonorrhea: This is a common bacterial STD that can be treated with antibiotics. While adult gonorrhea rates have declined, rates among adolescents have risen or remained steady in recent years. An estimated 50 percent of women with this disease have no symptoms.

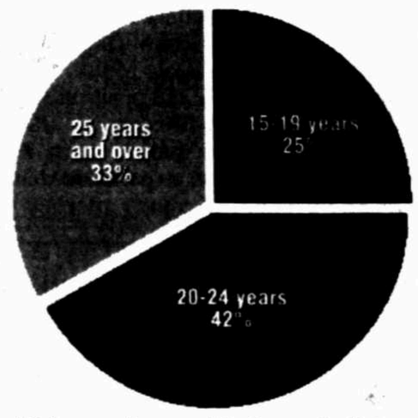

Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV): The virus that causes AIDS may be transmitted either sexually or by transfer of blood products. The annual number of reported cases of HIV in the United States has been stable for several years, totaling about 40,000 per year. Approximately half of those infections come through sexual contact.

While many individuals consider AIDS a "big city" disease, the Texas Department of Health reported 34 cases in the region that includes Midland-Odessa in 1997.

Human Papillomavirus (HPV): Cervical HPV infection has been linked with cervical cancer. It may cause genital warts and abnormal PAP smears.

Other common STDs include: Trichomoniasis, which is the most common curable STD among young women; syphilis, which is at its lowest levels in 20 years; and bacteriosis, which causes vaginitis, or an inflammation of the vagina.

Viral STDs such as AIDS, HPV and herpes have no cure, although there are some treatments available to mitigate the symptoms. Bacterial varieties such as gonorrhea often respond to antibiotics.

This graph, providedreveals the distribution of new cases of STDs by patient age.

Source: ENG, TR, and Butler, WT, eds, The Hidden Epidemic: confronting Sexually Transmitted Diseases, Washington, D. C.: National Academy Press, 1997.

If you have any questions or concerns about STDs, it is very important to consult with your physician. As stated, many STDs have few or no symptoms, but can still cause serious harm.

We're making progress in the fight against
Cystic Fibrosis

Over the last 10 years, researchers have made tremendous strides in treating the effects of Cystic Fibrosis. And, through gene therapy research, they're tackling the cause itself.

Overall, they've extended the life expectancy for CF sufferers to approximately 30 years. Here is a sample:

- New treatments deliver antibiotics directly to the CF sufferer's lungs, where they're most needed.
- Clinical trials are underway on a drug which appears to correct salt and water movement in CF airway cells. High concentrations of salt outside the cells of CF patients keeps the body from warding off infections.
- Other trials are testing ways to deliver the correct gene to cells with the defective CF gene.

These are exciting times in CF research. To learn how you can help, call the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation at 1-800-FIGHT CF.

Voters should cast ballots for Sanders

Two men are seeking the office of Midland County attorney in the March 14 Republican primary election — Russell Wayne Malm, the incumbent who has held the position for three years, and Bobby Sanders, an attorney in Midland for more than 31 years who has wide-ranging legal experience.

The position of county attorney has evolved over the years and, after changes passed by the Texas Legislature, particularly in 1999, an increased salary and responsibilities placed into that office have truly changed the complexion of the position.

The position of county attorney has evolved over the years and, after changes passed by the Texas Legislature, particularly in 1999, an increased salary and responsibilities placed into that office have truly changed the complexion of the position.

Because of those changes and the crucial experience he possesses, we encourage voters in the Republican primary to cast their ballots for Sanders.

A former briefing attorney for the Texas Supreme Court who had long tenure with two large firms here as managing partner, Sanders argues convincingly that "the position that was once a good training ground for young attorneys has become one of major impact to the county. Opinions and actions by the county attorney can now cost the taxpayers of Midland significant dollars, or even the loss of county services."

It also is imperative to have an experienced lawyer such as Sanders in office to represent Midland County in legal proceedings, to answer questions from the Midland County Commissioners' Court in timely fashion and to provide other county officers with well-reasoned advice and counsel on the complex issues that can confront a governmental entity today.

Sanders' experience and years of serving as counsel to some of the largest institutions in West Texas argues that he will be able to perform just such a job for Midland County. We encourage Republican voters to cast their ballots for Bobby Sanders.

Today in History

Today is Monday, Feb. 28th, the 59th day of 2000. There are 307 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Feb. 28, 1854, some 50 slavery opponents met in Ripon, Wis., to call for creation of a new political group, which became the Republican Party.

On this date:

In 1827, the first U.S. railroad chartered to carry passengers and freight, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co., was incorporated.

In 1844, a 12-inch gun aboard the USS Princeton exploded, killing Secretary of State Abel P. Upshur, Navy Secretary Thomas W. Gilmer and several others.

In 1849, the ship California arrived at San Francisco, carrying the first of the gold-seekers.

In 1861, the Territory of Colorado was organized.

In 1940, the first televised college basketball games were broadcast, by New York City station W2XBS, as Pittsburgh defeated Fordham, 57-37, and New York University beat Georgetown, 50-27, at Madison Square Garden.

In 1974, the United States and Egypt re-established diplomatic relations after a seven-year break.

In 1975, more than 40 people were killed in London's Underground when a subway train smashed into the end of a tunnel.

In 1986, Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme was shot to death in central Stockholm.

In 1993, a gun battle erupted at a compound near Waco, Texas when Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents tried to serve warrants on the Branch Davidians; four agents and six Davidians were killed as a 51-day standoff began.

Ten years ago: Space shuttle Atlantis blasted off from Cape Canaveral, Fla. on a secret mission to place a spy satellite in orbit.

Five years ago: U.S. Marines swept ashore in Somalia to protect retreating U.N. peacekeepers. Denver International Airport opened after 16 months of delays and $3.2 billion in budget overruns.

One year ago: Guerrillas detonated two bombs beside a military convoy in southern Lebanon, killing a brigadier general and three other Israelis; Israel retaliated with air raids on suspected guerrilla hideouts.

McCain straight talk intrigues voters of all stripes

WASHINGTON — Sen. John McCain's concession speech in South Carolina was widely criticized as over the line. A clearly angry McCain vowed to fight on, deriding his opponent, Texas Gov. George W. Bush, as a man of "pretense" who relies on "empty slogans." In the Bush camp, aides watching the intemperate display concluded that the feisty McCain had shown his true colors. They were right, but not with the result they expected.

Anderson

Politics is not a gentleman's sport. Voters like a candidate who is passionate and doesn't recite talking points prepared by handlers. This election season, the buzz word is authenticity. These glimpses into the real McCain, even when they're not pretty, have gained him a following that is rare in modern politics. The lessons of the early primaries:

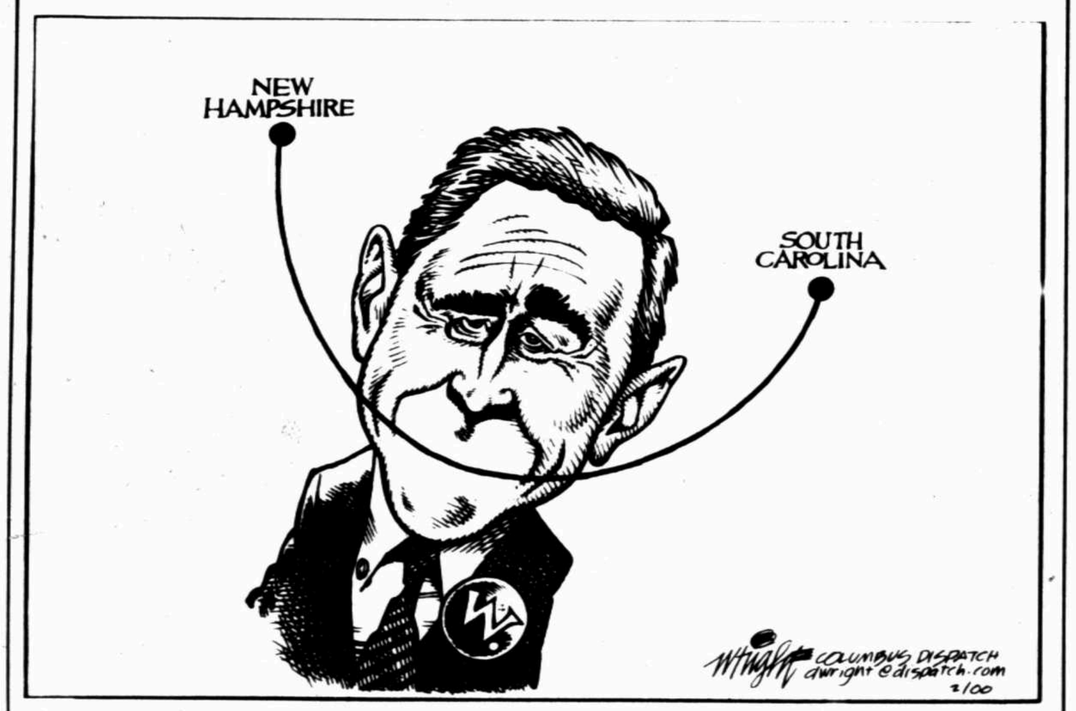

■ The voters want a fighter. McCain comes across as a man on a mission. His surprise win in Michigan guarantees an epic struggle within the Republican Party. A modern-day Teddy Roosevelt battling the special interests takes on the anointed son of the Establishment. Who could ask for a better story line? A Republican watching Bush's concession speech after New Hampshire found "Dubya" so gracious, "You'd think he just lost a lacrosse match at Andover." Bush "retooled" his campaign, adopting McCain's reformer label, and summoned up everything he could to battle back in South Carolina. Lee Bandy, the veteran South Carolina political reporter, said it was the most all-out assault he'd seen in 38 years of covering political races. It worked so well that Bush cruised into Michigan, all smiles, radiating a sense of entitlement. Michigan voters rebelled and went with the fighter.

■ Electability matters. Polls show McCain 24 points ahead of Vice President Al Gore, while Bush leads Gore by only five points in national match-ups. Republicans badly want to win the White House, so these numbers are the best evidence McCain has to woo Republicans away from Bush in the upcoming primaries. "We are Al Gore's worst nightmare," should be music to the ears of registered Republicans. In Michigan, McCain won only a quarter of the GOP vote. He is to the right of Bush on most domestic issues, and favors a far more muscular foreign policy than Bush. To win Republican votes, McCain should pick a few issues to talk about that will signal to Republicans that he is a soulmate. Everybody loves a sinner, so building a bandwagon shouldn't be too hard with rank-and-file Republicans eager to end the Clinton-Gore era.

■ Negative ads work if they're seen as fair and truthful. Voters are not dumb. They can tell the difference between attacks that point out legitimate differences, and attacks that are pure character assassinations. McCain's big blunder in South Carolina was an ad in which he said Bush "twists the truth like Clinton." Equating Bush's assertions about McCain's tax plan with President Clinton's lies about sex are in no way comparable, and the ad backfired. But Bush may have made the bigger blunder by aligning himself too closely with fundamentalist leader Pat Robertson, who has mounted a holy war against the McCain candidacy. It's not that McCain isn't a true enough Christian for Robertson's tastes; it's McCain's campaign finance reform that he finds objectionable.

The number of Democrats voting for McCain to create mischief and to weaken Bush is probably very small. Democrats are intrigued by the McCain persona. He's a cultural force. After eight years of Clinton "spin," voters of all ideological stripes appreciate McCain's straight talk. Nobody doubts he'll do what he says and that he says what he means. That's both the promise and the risk of the Lone Ranger from Arizona.

McCain actions in POW days call for some clarification

In a recent column on the New Hampshire primary, I inadvertently misled readers when I referred to Sen. John McCain's collaboration with the enemy. I knew what I meant because I was an adult in 1973 when the prisoner-of-war situation was common knowledge . Others not born or very young then, of course, do not. Besides, collaboration was a poor choice of words because it implies an act of disloyalty. McCain's time as a POW was served honorably.

Reese

So let me publicly take my foot out of my mouth and give you the context missing in the original column.

After the Korean War, the U.S. government devised a code of conduct for all military personnel. In effect, it demanded that no prisoner give any information other than his name, rank and serial number. The problem was that the code was based on the assumption that Americans would always be lucky enough to be captured by a civilized government that would observe the Geneva Convention on the treatment of prisoners of war.

In Vietnam, Americans found themselves prisoners of a criminal government that did not observe even common decency, much less the Geneva Convention. It summarily executed some prisoners. It employed inhuman physical torture to the point of death or insanity.

Senior commanders among the POWs decided — and rightly so — that honor and duty did not require committing suicide. Therefore, it was understood that when the torture became too much, any prisoner could cooperate or, more properly, feign cooperation in order to survive. They trusted the American people to understand that any statements by them used for propaganda purposes were given under duress. Any so-called military information they provided would be militarily useless information. And that, according to ex-POWs I greatly admire and respect, is all that McCain ever did.

There is a Web site owned by a man who claims to be an ex-Green Beret. He is an MIA activist and has several anti-McCain stories posted on his Web site. They are very cleverly done, always citing sources including McCain's own writings, but they are statements out of context. In one story, citing the code of conduct, the man lists each bit of information McCain gave as a violation. Unsaid, of course, is that the POWs had, as I pointed out earlier, effectively scrapped that part of the code of conduct. Incidentally, the U.S. government agreed with their decision and altered the code of conduct as a result of that experience.

Furthermore, the information McCain admitted he gave was useless. The North Vietnamese already knew the names of the carriers on station. They didn't need McCain to tell them that his target had been the power station because McCain's wasn't the only plane that attacked it. In short, McCain conned his captors by giving information that was militarily useless to them.

My original argument goes to the word hero. Being a World War II brat, I have always defined a hero as one who does more than his duty and performs some extraordinary feat. If, however, you wish to define as a hero any man who survives a brutal imprisonment with his honor intact, then McCain deserves that title the same as all the other POWs.

I still disagree with McCain on several political issues.

Painter is doing job so let him do it

I am writing in support of Gary Painter, our very able sheriff. I feel that the people who are so determined to get Gary out as sheriff must have something to hide and are afraid the sheriff will find it out. I felt that way when Bro Seltzer was trying so hard to shut him down on the stings he was doing. I feel that way when Louisa Valencia is so vehemently against him. I feel that if you have a sheriff that is doing his job, you leave him to do his job.

I have lived in Midland for 4 years and I have seen two sheriffs go before Gary — Ed Darnell and Dallas Smith, and Gary is the best. I know that when you have a group of people working together, such as a sheriff and a group of deputies, there is always somebody who thinks he can do a better job. But when they are left to do the job, they can't.

Now we have two fellows running against Gary, and one of them wants to tear down everything Gary has done to get material (at no cost to the taxpayers) to do the job of protecting the people of Midland County. Don't the people of Midland County, especially the county commissioners, remember Pearl Harbor? The reason we were attacked was because we were unprepared. Being prepared is what you are taught in the Boy Scouts, for goodness sake.

One other thing I will say, most of the people I know who are against Gary are people who have relatives in jail who have been arrested by the Sheriff's Office and found guilty by the courts, not by Painter.

I will vote for Gary Painter and pray that he will win.

Paper should stop imitating Inquirer

I do not condone the alleged actions of the Midland High School principal but feel the Reporter-Telegram has over-exposed the situation, always covering the story on the front page. It would be fairer to wait and let the school board decide what action is appropriate. The Reporter-Telegram should stop imitating the Globe and the Inquirer.

Ann Pfister

More important issue is safe schools

I would like to express my opinion on the latest problems involving MISD and the discrepancy in the salaries between coaches and teachers. Yes, I know coaches are teachers, too, but are they? How shameful that they are paid two and three times what a math or English or science teacher is paid. What does this tell our kids? Brawn is more important than brains?

I also resent highly the new sports complex and its jacked-up price. Between that and the MISD salary flap, we will probably not get our school bond issue passed. It is far more important to renovate and make safe our schools for our children who must spend so much of their time there than it is to have a sports temple. Maybe the kids could go to school in it. It will be much safer.

Sue Johnson

Some believe in religion and evolution

Recently, the Reporter-Telegram published letters that question the facts of evolution on religious grounds. The writers have a specific interpretation of Scriptures, which, in their view, invalidates the facts and theories of science regarding the evolution of life on Earth.

Evolution is a firmly established paradigm of science grounded by abundant facts and evidence in paleontology, geology, chemistry and biology. Understanding of evolution continues to advance and deepen with discoveries in the rapidly developing fields of molecular biology and genetic chemistry, as well as the steady progress of fossil discoveries.

Your readers can rest assured that the discoveries of science continue to enrich our understanding of the evolution of life on an ancient Earth.

There is no need for your readers to conclude that the limited interpretation of Scriptures advocated by some correspondents apply to all religious people. Many religious people accept the possibility of a Creator whose paths are beyond the ability of men to predict. Many religious people in the churches, temples and synagogues of our world conclude that the wonders of creation are fully consistent with the discoveries of evolutionary science — unbounded by the limited conceptions of man.

What was point of cell phone article?

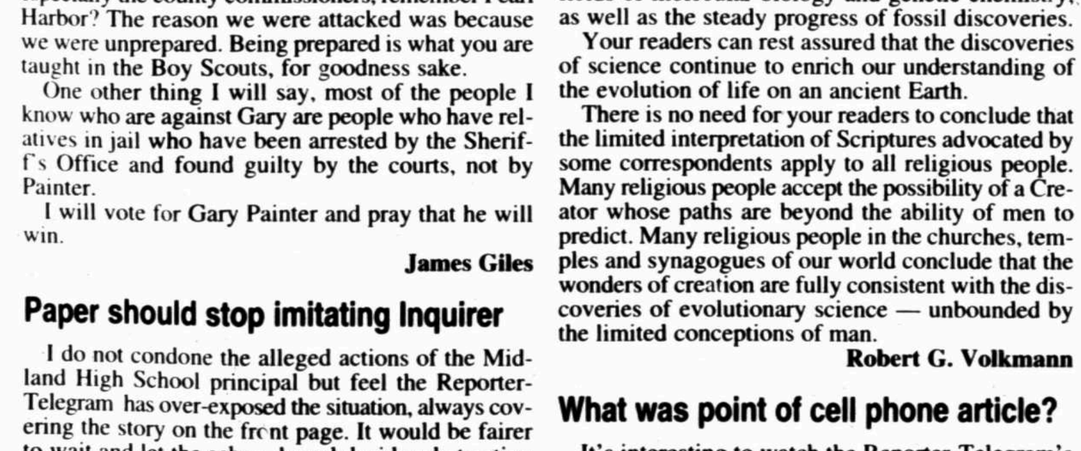

It's interesting to watch the Reporter-Telegram's journalism encompassing a new format — yellow page tabloid! I'm writing in reference to Jeff Stevens' front-page article on Feb. 19. To recap: MISD employee uses MISD cell phone to call MISD employee — oooooooooo, now that's something I wanted to see in 60-point type on the front quarter page of the newspaper!

I'm assuming that this is a mini-series and we'll see more articles printed listing other public servants and the calls they placed on taxpayer-supported cell phones! If not, then I assume Stevens is simply on an ax-grinding vendetta. Which is it?

U.S. military recalls defective gas-warfare suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has alerted U.S. facilities around the world that hundreds of thousands of protective suits meant to shield GIs from gas and germ attack may have holes and other critical defects, according to military officials and documents.

The Pentagon learned about the flaws five years ago but did not consider the problems crucial and needed the gear for U.S. peacekeeping troops in Bosnia, criminal investigators say. Not until late last year did a second study on the same suits judge identical flaws grave enough to warrant a global warning, the investigators said in an interview.

On Feb. 9, the Pentagon cautioned commanders not to use any of the 778,000 suits except in training. The suits, not all of which are defective, cost the government almost $49 million.

The defects included "cuts, holes, embedded foreign matter and stitching irregularities," the Pentagon inspector general said in a report being released this week. The defects potentially could kill people wearing the trousers and jackets in a "chemical-biological contaminated environment," the report said.

A bankrupt New York City-based company, which the inspector general identified as Istratex, produced the charcoal-lined camouflage suits under two contracts dating from 1989. Soldiers wear the suits over their regular camouflage gear where chemical or biological weapons might be used. It was unclear whether any of the suits were worn by troops in the 1990-91 Desert Shield-Desert Storm operation, when Iraqi chemical attack was considered likely.

Last May, the Justice Department indicted various company officials on charges including conspiracy to defraud the Pentagon, major fraud and making false claims. They all later pleaded guilty to lessor charges.

In September 1999, Istratex's president and production manager each pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in New York to one count of making false statements. Two other company officials pleaded guilty to making false certificate or writing and a fifth official pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice. Sentencings are expected in the spring.

Pentagon criminal investigators said they pointed out to the Defense Logistics Agency, which manages inventories, problems with some of the "battle-dress overgarments" in 1995.

In 1996, the agency's testers, at the investigators' request, studied 500 of the suits and found defects in 174, officials said.

The Defense Logistics Agency identified the problems as major but not "safety-of-life critical defects," said Mitchell Schlitt, the case agent for the inspector general's Defense Criminal Investigative Service in New York.

"So because of a need for these suits for the Bosnia action, they stated a need to retain these in stock," Schlitt said.

Three years later, last September, the criminal investigators asked for new tests, this time by Army designers of the suit, Schlitt said. Examining the same suits, the new team found the defects were in fact critical.

By regulation, Schlitt said, a critical defect, unlike a major one, is so severe that finding one such problem in a single suit warrants stopping use of the whole lot.

The Istratex executives' guilty pleas were to prosecution allegations that the company intentionally manufactured faulty gear, then duped government inspectors by clandestinely switching small quantities of well-made garments for flawed ones during inspections. Sentencing is set for April.

Federal Consumer Protection has determined that the fuel saving theories of this advertisement are 100% accurate.

Gov't. Confirms: Engine Platinum May Increase Gas Mileage

BOSTON - Federal Consumer Protection describes the Plsatinum Gas Saver as "an effective fuel saving device which brings about more complete combustion and better gas mileage in automobile engines by means of platinum catalysis."

Their five year study concluded: "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the Gas Saver than that claimed by the developer, National Fuelsaver Corp. of Boston".

With a simple connection to a vacuum line, the Gas Saver adds microscopic quantities of platinum to the combustion process inside your engine.

Since platinum has the unique ability to make non-burning fuel burn, the Gas Saver's platinum increases the percentage of fuel burning inside the engine from 68% of each gallon to 90% of each gallon, a 22% increase.

Since unburnt fuel leaving an engine is pollution, that 22% of each gallon would normally burn when it reaches the platinum surfaces of the catalytic converter.

Unfortunately, the converter's platinum burns this fuel in the tail pipe, where the heat and energy produced from burning this fuel cannot be harnessed to drive your vehicle.

But when the Gas Saver adds platinum to engine combustion 22% more of each gallon burns inside the engine so that, in theory, 22% fewer gallons are required to drive the same distance.

In addition to this study, the Gas Saver has received patents for cleaning out the carbon and raising octane, making premium fuel unnecessary for most vehicles.

Joel Robinson, the developer, commented: "We have sold over 400,000 Gas Savers. To our surprise, as many people buy the Gas Saver because it extends engine life (by cleaning out the abrasive carbon deposits) as buy it to increase gas mileage or to raise octane."

Report: Juvenile incarcerations more than doubled from '85

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of criminals under 18 serving time in adult prisons more than doubled between 1985 and 1997 as states prosecuted steadily more young people as adults.

By 1997, 7,400 youths 17 or younger were committed to adult prisons on conviction in either juvenile or adult courts. That's more than twice the 3,400 young people sent to the nation's state prisons in 1985, a new Justice Department report shows.

Seven in 10 young offenders who received adult punishment in 1997, the latest year state prison records were available, were convicted for violent offenses. Of that total, 37 percent were jailed for robbery, 13 percent for murder and 13 percent for aggravated assault, according to the report released Sunday.

Researchers say the young inmates by no means are overrunning the prisons' adult population of 2 million, and just 5 percent of all young offenders punished in this country serve sentences in adult facilities. But data suggest that today's violent young offenders are more likely to do prison time than in years past.

That's partly because of an increasing number of state laws that take away their legal status as minors and make them more accountable, researchers say. The crackdown, fueled in part by high-profile school violence, has placed children as young as 11 on trial in criminal courts.

"Many states have increased the number of provisions that allow juveniles to be handled in the adult system," said report author Kevin J. Strom, a researcher with the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics.

Based on state prison records reported annually to the Justice Department, the report notes that while 37 states and the District of Columbia consider people 18 adults for criminal purposes, most also allow "certain categories of offenders under 18 to be incarcerated in adult prisons and housed with older inmates."

The inmate data do not specify whether young offenders are convicted in juvenile or adult courts, but Strom said it is known that a small percentage go from the juvenile courts to adult incarceration.

The Justice Department study comes amid debate over the merits of meting out adult time for crimes committed by youth. Californians will vote March 7 on a ballot proposal that would make it easier to charge juveniles as young as 14 as adults for serious crimes.

"By virtue of their rarity, school shootings have helped create a distorted picture about who young people are and the dangers that they pose to the rest of us," said Eric Sterling, president of the Washington-based Criminal Justice Policy Foundation.

Clarke soars to stunning victory over Woods

By Doug Ferguson
AP Golf Writer

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Not even Tiger Woods had an answer for Darren Clarke.

Clarke won the biggest prize of his career by taking down the No. 1 player in the world, a stunning 4 and 3 victory over Woods in the final of Match Play Championship on Sunday.

It capped an incredible weekend for Clarke, the 31-year-old from Northern Ireland who knocked off Ryder Cup star Hal Sutton, beat second-ranked David Duval and then handed Woods perhaps his worst loss ever in match play.

"Darren just flat outplayed me," Woods said.

Clarke earned $1 million, nearly four times his largest paycheck, and became the first international player to win a World Golf Championship event.

After a brilliant morning round that featured six birdies by each player and no lead changes over the final 11 holes, Clarke pulled away with a birdie blitz that no one has been able to throw at Woods during his domination of worldwide golf the past 10 months.

Clarke, who never trailed since the fourth hole of the 36-hole final, birdied four out of five holes early in the afternoon round to go 4-up with 10 holes to play, a deficit even Woods could not overcome.

"To play as solid as I did today against Tiger, it's fantastic," Clarke said.

Woods missed a 10-foot birdie putt on No. 7. He three-putted from 30 feet on No. 10. Suddenly, the player who has made a career out of thrilling comebacks had no answer — not for Clarke, and not for his own swing problems that haunted him in the afternoon.

It all fell apart on the par-5 12th. Woods was 3-down, in a greenside bunker in two and in great position to win another hole and perhaps start another great comeback.

But he hit his shot heavy and left it in the bunker, blasted out to 4 feet and missed the short par putt to give Clarke another 4-up lead with only six holes left.

"He had to get is close, and there's always a risk to leave it in there," Clarke said.

Clarke closed him out on the 15th with a two-putt par and accepted the Walter Hagen Cup moments later.

The victory was the sixth of his career and first in America for Clarke.

"He was fantastic today," said Butch Harmon, the swing coach for both players. "He looked Tiger right in the eye and said, 'I'm going to kick your butt.' And he kicked it."

Woods won $500,000 but was denied a chance to make it a clean sweep of the WGC events, having already won the NEC Invitational at Firestone and American Express at Valderrama.

David Duval waited one round too many to play solid golf, having missed out on his anticipated showdown with Woods by losing to Clarke in the semifinals. In the consolation match, he birdied six of his last seven holes for a 5 and 4 victory over Davis Love III.

Duval won $400,000, while Love earned $300,000.

Woods and Clarke made for quite the contrast on the range as the sun climbed over La Costa Resort. On one end was Woods, the sleek prototype of the modern golfer. On the other was Clarke, puffing on a stogie and cracking jokes with his manager.

"Hey Butchy," Clarke yelled down the

Gardner: MHS' multi-sport star

Bulldog senior makes easy move from one sport to another

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

One could easily say that Midland High's 6-foot-5 Randy Gardner is a football player playing basketball.

But that wouldn't be quite right, either. Gardner is more like an athlete playing basketball.

Last year, Gardner played four sports (football, basketball, baseball and track). He was most widely known for his football skills as a tight end for the football team, where again he showed his athleticism by being used on both offense and defense.

It was also in football where the college scouts came calling, earning a scholarship for next fall at the University of North Texas in Denton.

But Gardner, in his senior season, has also become a key cog in the state basketball playoff machine under coach Jack Stephenson.

Gardner is playing basketball for the third year on the varsity, but this is the first season that he has earned a starting position.

"Randy is one of those players who has gotten his chance to play as a senior," said Stephenson. "He's a lot like Chris Oldham and Ronnie Brewster on our team this year. All three have given us a great season in their senior years and all have done a good job."

Gardner waited for his chance to start and he has made the most of it. He is a threat to give the Bulldogs a double-double (double figures in scoring and rebounds) every time his steps on the floor. He is averaging 10 points per game and almost as many rebounds.

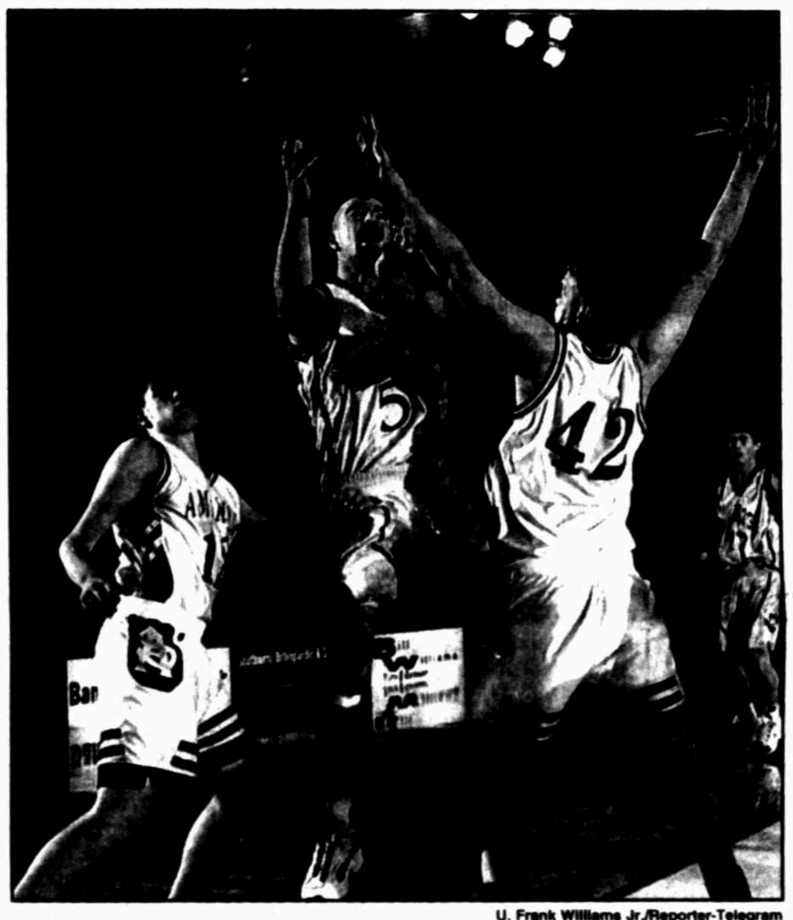

"It was great being on this team as a sophomore and junior because we had such great teams," Gardner said. "But I really didn't contribute much to the team in those years. So, that has really made this year fun."

Of course, Gardner was probably good enough to play for most 4-5A basketball teams as either a sophomore or junior. But at MHS he was playing behind the likes of Kirby Lemons and Jay Christian, two of the best players in MHS cage history.

"Tradition plays a large role in what we do at Midland High," Gardner said. "I think a lot of teams fear Midland High in basketball just from past history. There is a little intimidation factor there. We expect to win, but we don't dwell on the past when we do lose a game."

Of course, many said that Midland

Labonte holds off Earnhardt for win

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

■ Dura Lube 400

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — During the brief winter lull between Winston Cup seasons, Bobby Labonte was nervous about maintaining his team's momentum.

He didn't have to worry.

Labonte, the series runner-up, finished 1999 with 10 straight finishes of eighth or better, including a victory in the final race in Atlanta. That all added up to big championship hopes in 2000.

"I kept asking (crew chief) Jimmy (Makar), 'Can we get back on track? Can we get back on track?' You never know what competition is going to have for you," Labonte said Sunday after outrunning Dale Earnhardt to win the Dura-Lube/Kmart 400 at North Carolina Speedway.

Now, after the first two races of the season, Labonte finds himself in a familiar position, running second to 1999 champion Dale Jarrett in the standings, although he trails by just five points.

"To win this early is exciting," said Labonte, who started the season with a sixth-place finish in the Daytona 500, despite some problems in the pits. "I'm not going to sleep tonight, to be honest with you."

Labonte said he knows people will start asking him about a possible championship now, but he said, "I'm not even thinking about that. All I'm worried about is today. Tomorrow, we'll worry about tomorrow."

On Sunday, his No. 18 Joe Gibbs Racing Pontiac was overpowering, helping General Motors turn the table on Ford.

Labonte hung with the leaders throughout the 393-lap race and finally began to show his power when he took the lead on lap 242.

Pontiacs and Chevrolets swept the top four positions just a week after the top Ford Tauruses caused an uproar about a supposed aerodynamic advantage by taking the first five spots in Daytona.

As dull as the race was in Daytona, Sunday's show was exciting throughout, with 22 lead changes among 10 drivers and plenty of position changes all the way to the back of the pack.

With the final 196 laps on the 1.017-mile oval run without a caution flag, Labonte took control. He came out of the final round of pit stops by the leaders ahead just ahead of Earnhardt's Chevrolet and steadily pulled away.

By lap 364, Labonte's lead was more than six seconds. At that point, crowd favorite Earnhardt began to close in, chopping tenths of a second off on every lap.

It appeared for a while he would catch the leader, but Labonte was able to weave his way through heavy traffic, keeping Earnhardt's black No. 3 at bay.

The two leaders broke free of traffic four laps from the end, but it was too late. Earnhardt came across the finish line 1.068 seconds — about 10 car-lengths — behind Labonte.

"He was coming on pretty strong at the end, but we had built enough cushion that we were able to hold him off," Labonte said. "I wouldn't have wanted that race to be much longer."

Earnhardt, who finished in the top five at Rockingham for the first time since he won this event in 1996, said the race came down to tire wear on the worn and abrasive asphalt track.

"A lot of other guys were taking off and burning up their tires early. I sort of saved my tires early in the runs," said the seven-time Winston Cup champion. "It was all tire management. I just needed a few more laps.

"But he got too far out front and we just couldn't get back to him."

Labonte credited his crew for getting the car up front with a lot of hard work.

"Jimmy can vouch that we worked really hard on the setup today," Labonte said. "This track is really temperamental. We were too loose, then too tight, and then we really got it freed up. But I don't know what perfect is here."

Simms gets shot as UT's top QB

By Jim Vertuno
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN — Step up, Chris Simms. This is your chance to send the best quarterback in the Big 12 to the bench.

Texas' heralded sophomore-to-be will be the No. 1 quarterback for the Longhorns when they start 15 days of spring practice on Monday. Major Applewhite, the 1999 offensive player of the year in the Big 12, will miss spring drills after tearing a knee ligament in Texas' Cotton Bowl loss to Arkansas.

It would seem unlikely a quarterback with more than 5,600 yards passing and 39 touchdowns in two years would be in danger of losing his job.

But Texas coach Mack Brown has made it clear this is Simms' chance to shine and the best quarterback, not necessarily the older, will start next season.

Simms would appear supremely confident. Starting Monday he will wear No. 1 on his jersey instead of the No. 8 he wore last season.

"The whole thing comes down to which one gets the ball into the endzone the most, which one has the best team chemistry," Brown said. "Major has shown he's done all that. We told Chris when we signed him he would play some (in 1999) ... and he would have his chance to show what he can do in the spring.

"It's a great situation for us and a delicate situation for us because both of them are so high profile," Brown said. "We'll play the one that we feel can win the most ball games."

As soon as Applewhite went down, Texas fans wondered if it was the beginning of the end of his days as the starter.

"People have a lot of free time and they sit around and talk," Brown said. "The controversial situation at quatterback is the one they like the best."

Simms, the son of former NFL quarterback Phil Simms, played sparingly in 1999. He completed 19 of 36 passes for 223 yards and two touchdowns.

He started against Texas A&M when Applewhite was stricken with a stomach virus and led the Longhorns to two touchdowns before leaving in the fourth quarter with Texas up 16-13 and momentum fading. Texas lost 20-16.

For Simms, the challenge this spring will be to lead an offense severely depleted at wide receiver. The Longhorns' top two receivers in 1999, Kwame Cavil and Ryan Nunez, are gone and a trio of heralded recruits won't report to UT until fall.

Simms must prove he can still throw for touchdowns and lead an offense that hasn't scored a touchdown in 10 quarters.

If all the focus on Simms bothers Applewhite, he should adjust well, Brown said.

"Major has to reflect on the fact that he got the job when Richard Walton waited around five years and then broke a finger," Brown said.

"Both of them want to start. Their parents want to them to start and the one who doesn't start is going to be upset with me."

Of the four Big 12 schools in Texas, the Longhorns have the earliest start to spring practice but not necessarily the biggest adjustments to make.

University of Texas reserve quarterback Chris Simms is shown during a pregame drill in this file photo from Saturday, Aug. 28, 1999, in Austin.

Texas A&M starts practice March 6 looking for a new quarterback, a new defensive backfield and a journey away from the emotional rubble left by the collapse of the bonfire stack that killed 12 people and injured dozens more last November.

The Aggies must replace departed quarterback Randy McCown, who left the position wide open for sophomores Mark Farris and Vance Smith and red-shirt freshman Colby Freeman. Farris knocked around baseball's minor leagues for five years with the Pittsburgh Pirates before going to A&M.

Farris and Smith both played some last season but combined for just 11 completions and one touchdown in limited action.

SMU hoping for NCAA berth

By Johnny Paul
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

DALLAS — Opinions vary regarding a potential NCAA Tournament berth for SMU's men's basketball program.

This one comes from TCU coach Billy Tubbs.

"I don't think there's any question about it," said Tubbs, whose Horned Frogs dealt the Mustangs one of their five losses this season. "I would almost think they're a lock regardless of what they do from here on out. I really believe SMU should be in."

Yet, SMU's fate likely depends on what it accomplishes this week at Moody Coliseum and during the Western Athletic Conference Tournament, scheduled for March 9-11 in Fresno, Calif.

"Well, deserving and reality, as he knows, too, are two different things," Mustangs coach Mike Dement said. "I think we've got to find 2-4 more wins. I think we're going to have to do that. I'd like to think were deserving, but we've got more work to do."

It will not be an easy chore for the Mustangs (21-5), who will put their five-game winning streak on the line against the Horned Frogs (15-13, 6-6) tonight at Moody Coliseum.

SMU can share the WAC regular-season title if it beats TCU and Tulsa (26-3, 11-2) in its regular-season finale.

"We're playing our two toughest opponents," Dement said. "I think these two teams have given us the most problems matchup-wise."

TCU beat SMU, 92-75, on Jan. 29 in Fort Worth, and the Mustangs lost at Tulsa five days later, 70-59.

"We're going to have to play so much differently than we did before," Dement said. "I'm hoping and wondering if we can do that."

SMU also will be forced to overcome a nine-day layoff since its 83-81 victory at UT-El Paso, and Dement admits being "worried about being rusty."

The NCAA selection committee will not concern itself with SMU's layoff, not with so many programs on the bubble to reach the tournament's 64-team field.

"There are only about 6-8 spots, and there are about 25 schools," Dement said. "Many of them are in the power conferences. I think the committee will be looking for reasons to start knocking people out to get it down to one or two because there are so many."

The WAC lost its automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament after eight of its members departed and formed the Mountain West Conference.

SMU is ranked 38th in one version of the power ratings, and Fresno State (19-9, 9-3), ranked 39th, could be the Mustangs' chief obstacle should the WAC receive only two NCAA berths.

Aggies whip KSU; Tech falls to Mizzou; Texas has shutout

Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Jason Gremminger went 3-for-4 with three RBIs to lead Texas A&M past Kansas State 9-4 Sunday.

Kansas State jumped to an early lead in the first with two runs, but the Aggies responded in the bottom of the second with a RBI single by shortstop Ryan Wardinsky (2-4, RBI) and in the third with an RBI single by Gremminger (3-4, 3 RBI) to tie the score 2-2.

Trailing 4-3 in the sixth, the Aggies took the lead for good with three runs. In the seventh, the Aggies added three runs, two of them came on a two-out double by Gremminger.

Khalid Ballouli (2-2) got the win after giving up four runs on 10 hits with six strikeouts in six innings, while Chris Russ got his second save of the season after allowing two hits in three innings of relief.

Wildcat starter Luke Robertson (1-2) took the loss after giving up six runs on 11 hits with five strikeouts in 5 1-3 innings.

Rice 8, Fresno St. 0

HOUSTON — Rice pitcher Kenny Baugh shut out Fresno State and Eric Arnold hit two home runs in the Owls' 9-0 victory over the Bulldogs Sunday.

Baugh (3-0) allowed six hits, had three strikeouts and only one Bulldog reached third base.

Phillip Ghutzman (3-5, 2 RBIs) got the Owls on the board in the first with an RBI single to right field and Bobby Bryan drove him in with a sacrifice fly to center.

Ghutzman returned in the second inning for another RBI single, before Arnold (4-5, 2 HR, 4 RBIs) led off the third inning with his first home run of the game. Matt Fox hit had an RBI single to give Rice a 5-0 lead at the end of the third.

Arnold also had a two-RBI double to left-center in the sixth and another solo home run in the eighth to complete the Owls scoring at 8-0.

College Baseball

Fresno State used five pitchers. Starter Beau Hintz (2-1) took the loss after allowing five hits for four runs, three earned, in the first two innings.

Missouri 6, Texas Tech 5

LUBBOCK — After Texas Tech tied the game in the late innings, Missouri took advantage of an untimely error by the Red Raiders to win 6-5 Sunday.

Texas Tech jumped out to a lead in the first inning with a two-run homer by Chaz Eiguren (3-5, 1HR, 3 RBIs), his seventh home run of the season.

Missouri responded with two runs in the fourth and three in the fifth to take the lead 5-4.

The Red Raiders tied the game in the bottom of the seventh when Eiguren hit an RBI single to center field to drive in Marco Cunningham, who led off the inning with a single to center field.

In the top of the eighth, Missouri scored the winning run on a weak grounder by J.R. Warner to first base. Texas Tech pitcher Kevin Tracey couldn't find first base while covering the bag, allowing Mike Rallo to score the go-ahead run.

Despite pitching a complete game, Tracey (1-3) got the loss after allowing six runs — four earned — on nine hits with eight strikeouts.

Matt Hobbs (1-0) recorded the win in relief after allowing two hits in 1 1-3 innings, while Ryan Stegall got the save, his third, after allowing no hits in the ninth.

Baylor 7, Oklahoma St. 5

WACO — Kelly Shoppach went 4-for-4 with two doubles to lead Baylor from a 3-0 deficit to a 7-5 victory over Oklahoma State Sunday.

The Cowboys got on the board first with an RBI double by Carlos Gautreaux (3-4, 2 RBI) and a two-run homer by Curt Anthony (1-4, RBI), his third of the season, in the third inning.

Trailing 4-2 in the fifth inning, the Bears batted around with the help of five walks and took the lead 6-4 with an RBI double by Jace Brewer (2-4, RBI) and RBI singles by Shoppach (4-4, 2 2B, 2 RBI), Preston Underdown (1-3, RBI), and Anthony Hensley (1-2, RBI).

The Cowboys cut the Baylor lead to 6-5 in the sixth with a sacrifice fly by Roy York, but Baylor responded with an RBI single by Matt Williams to give the Bears the 7-5 victory.

Bears reliever Justin Taylor (1-0) ive hits in two-thirds of an inning.

Texas 4, Iowa St. 0

AUSTIN — Pitchers Phil Seibel and Charlie Thames combined for Texas' fourth shutout of the season in a 4-0 victory over Iowa State Sunday.

Texas won the game despite Cyclones pitcher Brian Curtin (0-2, 7.22 ERA) allowing only three hits. The Cyclones, meanwhile, had nine hits.

In the second inning, Tommy Nicholson reached second on Cyclones shortstop Steve Goldberg's overthrow to first base. Nicholson reached third on a ground out and came home on a sacrifice squeeze by Chris Houser to put the Longhorns up 1-0. Matt Rosenberg singled to right field to drive in another unearned run for a 2-0 Longhorn lead.

The Longhorns had a double play in the eighth to fend off a potential Cyclones rally, and scored two insurance runs in the bottom of the inning after Todd West stole home and an RBI single to right field by Houser.

Seibel (4-0, 1.57 ERA) recorded the win after allowing seven hits with five strikeouts in 6 2-3 innings, while Thames got his fourth save of the season, allowing two hits in 2 1-3 innings.

Curtin got the loss for the Cyclones after allowing three hits for two earned runs in eight innings.

The Longhorns swept the series 3-0.

Dallas Stars tie Avalanche, 1-1

DALLAS — Mike Modano's power-play goal late in the second period gave the Dallas Stars a 1-1 tie with the Colorado Avalanche on Sunday night.

The Stars denied Colorado goalie Patrick Roy's bid to match Jacques Plante's 434 career victories, second on the career list behind Terry Sawchuk's 447. Roy has a career record of 433-261-102.

Greg De Vries had Colorado's only goal and Roy made 18 saves for the Avalanche.

Dallas' best chance in the overtime came on Brett Hull's breakaway that was turned aside by Roy with 14 seconds left.

Colorado went the other way with Milan Hejduk speeding down the right side, but Modano tied him up and prevented a good shot with four seconds remaining.

Ed Belfour stopped 24 shots for the Stars.

Colorado took early control and scored its only goal at 9:47 of the first period. De Vries' shot from the right circle hit off Belfour's pad and into the net for the defenseman's second goal of the season. At that point, the Avalanche held a 10-1 shots advantage and finished the period with a 13-2 edge in shots.

Dallas recovered in the second period, tying the game at 1 with 29.8 seconds left on Modano's 29th goal. With Dallas on its fifth power play, Hull's blast was stopped by Roy, but the puck bounced to Modano, who fired a one-timer past Roy from the right circle.

GARDNER: MHS plays Montwood

(From 1B)

High's glory ride in basketball was over after the three losses of Lemons, Christian and Charles Tatum in the last two years. Gardner says you can't compare those teams against this one.

"This is a totally different team than when we had Charles, Jay and Kirby," Gardner said. "This team is better in some aspects and worse in others, but you can't compare because the teams are so different."

Different or not, MHS is in much the same position as the great teams of the past three years. MHS won the District 4-5A title with an 11-1 record to become the first 4-5A cage team to win four loop crowns in a row. And the Bulldogs play El Paso Montwood in the region quarterfinals at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Pecos again seeking a 30-win season.

Midland High is in the state playoffs for the eighth consecutive year and seeking their fourth consecutive entry into the Region I tournament, which can be accomplished Tuesday with a win over Montwood.

Gardner's senior season has been full of pot holes as he juggled football, basketball and the recruiting process.

"The recruiting thing is difficult because I did have to miss a few practices," he said. "But in some ways, the recruiting made me focus more on basketball because it was a diversion from the recruiting.

"You have to be in a totally different kind of shape playing basketball than the shape you need to be in playing football. That is extremely difficult. But I think I've done pretty good this year in basketball because I knew the basics when I came in. It wasn't that way my sophomore year."

Football looms in his future, however, at UNT.

"It's hard not to get excited about playing college football," Gardner said, but quickly adds, "but there is some anxiety and nervousness involved because you don't know what to expect. I'll just try and not worry about that until the end of March."

Gardner has not decided if he will participate in track or baseball this spring when basketball has run its course.

"Last year I played junior varsity baseball as a pitcher and competed in track. I played in four sports last year but I don't know what I will do this spring."

Now, however, Gardner's major concern is with the state basketball playoffs.

"I'm really excited about the playoffs," he said. "This is the fun part of the season."

And Randy Gardner has given us a lot of fun this season.

MATCH: Woods cracks at No. 12

range, where Harmon was watching Woods. "I don't need you. I'm hitting it perfect."

That much was clear over the morning round, a wonderful display of golf that ended all square but served noticed Clarke would be at his best.

"I was playing every bit as good as Tiger," Clarke said.

Woods took a 1-up lead with an approach into 6 inches on the par-3 third. Clarke answered with a birdie on the next hole. Clarke went 1-up by chipping in for birdie on No. 6, and Woods answered with a birdie on the par-3 seventh.

Neither player led the rest of the morning, although Woods had to made birdie putts of 20 and 30 feet to halve the final two holes of the front nine, and he hit a tough chip from thick rough to 2 feet on No. 12 to again match Clarke's birdie.

With only 40 minutes between rounds, Woods grabbed a quick bite and headed for the range to work on his swing. Harmon stood behind him, holding his back to catch Woods' elbow if got too far inside.

Clarke settled for a nice lunch and went to the putting green.

"He was too tired," Harmon said. "He didn't want to go to the range because he would have had to walk back up that hill again."

Instead, Clarke saved his strength to walk all over Woods.

Woods had lost only 13 out of his first 100 holes in the Match Play, sponsored by Andersen Consulting. That changed with shocking swiftness, and the result was a deficit that left the gallery murmuring.

Starting on No. 4, Clarke won four of the next five holes with birdie putts of 15 feet or less to go 4-up with just 10 holes to play, and he never made the kind of mistakes that allowed Woods to get back into the match.

Clarke had 12 birdies and one bogey over his 33 holes.

Rebels third in tournament

LEWISVILLE — The Midland Lee Rebels took third place in the Lewisville baseball tournament over the weekend, posting a 4-1 record in the 2000 season debut for Lee.

Lee defeated Arlington Lamar, 9-4, in the third place game as Tyler Webb pitched a complete game. The four runs he gave up came on a grand slam homer in the fourth inning.

Jon Rogers went 3-for-4 at the plate, including a double, a triple and five RBIs, continuing his blazing start both at the plate and on the mound.

Josh Haney was 3-for-4 with two doubles and Drew Miller was 2-for-3. Jordan Cooper also doubled.

Lee just missed playing for the championship, losing to Arlington Martin, 5-4, in the semifinals. Haney had a two-run home run in the bottom of the fifth and Jeff Cramer had a solo shot to go with two hits. Kyle Borello took the loss, giving up four runs in 3 2/3 innings of work.

Tonya Thompson threw the shutout against South Mountain, who defeated MC, 5-4, the day before. Thompson gave up only four hits. Chavira was again dominant at the plate, with a pair of doubles and a homer to drive in two runs, whil Melissa Martinez also drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a two-run double.

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Kevin Garnett scored 29 points and the Minnesota Timberwolves took advantage of Tim Duncan's absence to edge the San Antonio Spurs 102-98 Sunday.

Malik Rose's 3-pointer with 2.8 seconds pulled San Antonio to 100-98, but Terrell Brandon answered with two free throws with 2.1 seconds left.

David Robinson led the Spurs with 29 points as Duncan missed his second straight game because of a lower abdominal strain.

For a while it looked as though the Wolves would rout the Midwest Division leaders. Garnett had 19 points and Brandon 16 of his 20 in the first half as the Wolves shot 62 percent, limited the Spurs to 11 rebounds and built a 61-51 halftime lead after leading by as many as 16.

But the Spurs got back into it at the free-throw line, making 20-of-29 after halftime compared to Minnesota's 7 of 8. Six of those foul shots came in the final 24 seconds when the Spurs were forced to foul.

The Wolves still led by 11 when the third quarter buzzer sounded. But the officials conferred, put four-tenths of a second back on the clock and sent Terry Porter to the line.

He sank both free throws, cutting the Spurs' deficit to 83-74. By the time Garnett ended the Spurs' 9-0 run, San Antonio had made a game of it, at 83-78.

Duncan, who missed a game for the first time in his career Friday night at Chicago, shot baskets and sat in a whirlpool in hopes of returning to the lineup. But he told coach Gregg Popovich an hour before the game that he'd better not risk it, disappointing the crowd of 19,654, the second-biggest at Target Center this season.

Duncan, who is averaging 23.9 points and 12.6 rebounds, is day-to-day.

Lakers 101, Rockets 85

LOS ANGELES — And now, the showdown.

Kobe Bryant scored 18 of his 31 points in the first 10 minutes Sunday as the Los Angeles Lakers took command early in rolling to a 101-85 victory over the slumping Houston Rockets.

The win was the 11th straight for the Lakers, who travel to Portland for their final regular-season game against the Trail Blazers on Tuesday night.

Both teams have 45-11 records — best in the NBA by far. Portland's 101-92 win over Utah on Sunday was its 11th straight and 16th in a row at home.

The 31 points equaled a season-high for Bryant, who made 13 of 18 shots and also had four rebounds and six assists.

Shaquille O'Neal had 24 points, 13 rebounds, eight assists and five blocked shots, and Glen Rice added 17 points for the Lakers.

Cuttino Mobley scored 16 of his 29 points in the fourth quarter for the Rockets, who have lost five straight and eight of 10.

Rookie Kenny Thomas added 14 points for Houston, and fellow rookie Steve Francis was held to six points — all in the second half. He missed his first nine shots, wound up 2-of-11 and committed seven turnovers.

The Lakers led by as many as 23 before settling for a 48-29 halftime lead.

SIMMS: UT spring drills begin today

(From 1B)

"We have three quarterbacks with potential," Slocum said. "You can't be really good without a big time quarterback. That position is wide open. There are no frontrunners."

The offense struggled mightily at times last season and was shut out twice in the last four games. The Aggies also must replace three members of the defensive secondary.

"It should be an entertaining spring," said coach R.C. Slocum. "We have several battles. We need to get a lot of work done this spring, especially on the offensive side."

At Texas Tech, the Red Raiders will still be getting used to new coach Mike Leach when spring drills start March 20 in Lubbock. Leach replaced Spike Dykes, who retired after 13 years.

The former Oklahoma offensive coordinator helped design Kentucky's run-and-gun offense before revamping the Sooners' attack last season. The Sooners averaged 321.7 yards passing in Leach's system.

"There's going to be some balls in the air I imagine," Leach said. "The number one thing I have to do is identify who the players are and who can work in this system best. Everybody's got to understand there will be some change, they just have to understand we're all working for the same thing."

At Baylor, the Bears must improve in every area after finishing 1-10 in coach Kevin Steele's first season. Baylor averaged less than 13 points per game and was the first time to go winless in Big 12 play.

The Bears will be able to practice with junior college transfer quarterback Greg Cicero who is already enrolled at school.

Cicero threw for 2,800 yards and 33 touchdowns while leading Palomar (Calif.) Junior College to an 8-3 record. A California native, he was redshirted by Texas in 1997 and was injured for most of 1998 before transferring to Palomar.

"His exposure to the Big 12 and his success in junior college will enable him to compete for the job this spring and in August," Steele said when Cicero signed with the Bears.

Baylor starts spring practice March 13.

Some appliances are too smart for most consumers

Recently, The Washington Post printed an article explaining how appliance manufacturers plan to drive consumers insane.

They SAY they want to do is have us live in homes where "all appliances are on the Internet, sharing information" and appliances will be "smarter than most of their owners." For example, the article states, you would have a home where the dishwasher "can be turned on from the office" and the refrigerator "knows when it's out of milk" and the bathroom scale "transmits your weight to the gym."

Barry

Did the appliance manufacturers ever stop to ask themselves why a consumer, after loading a dishwasher, would go to the office to start it? Would there be some kind of career benefit?

YOUR BOSS: What are you doing?

YOU (tapping computer keyboard): I'm starting my dishwasher!

YOUR BOSS: That's the kind of productivity we need around here!

YOU: Now I'm flushing the upstairs toilet!

Listen, appliance manufacturers: We don't need a dishwasher that we can communicate with from afar. If you want to improve our dishwashers, give us one that senses when people leave dirty dishes on the kitchen counter, and shouts at them: "PUT THOSE DISHES IN THE DISHWASHER RIGHT NOW OR I'LL LEAK ALL OVER YOUR SHOES!"

Likewise, we don't need a refrigerator that knows when it's out of milk. We already have a foolproof system for determining if we're out of milk: We ask our wife. What we could use is a refrigerator that refuses to let us open its door when it senses that we are about to consume our fourth Jell-O Pudding Snack in two hours.

As for a scale that transmits our weight to the gym: Are they nuts? What if the gym decided to transmit our weight to all these other appliances on the Internet? What if our refrigerator found out what our weight was? We'd never get the door open again!

But here is what really concerns me about these new "smart" appliances: Even if we like the features, we won't be able to use them. We can't use the appliance features we have now. I have a feature-packed telephone with 43 buttons, at least 20 of which I am afraid to touch. This phone probably can communicate with the dead, but I don't know how to operate it, just as I don't know how to operate my TV, which has features out the wazooty and requires three remote controls. One control (44 buttons) came with the TV; a second (39 buttons) came with the VCR; the third (37 buttons) was brought here by the cable-TV man, who apparently felt that I did not have enough buttons.

So when I want to watch TV, I'm confronted with a total of 120 buttons. There are three buttons labeled POWER, but there are times — especially if my son and his friends, who are not afraid of features, have changed the settings — when I honestly cannot figure out how to turn the TV on. I stand there, holding three remote controls, pressing buttons at random, until eventually I give up and go turn on the dishwasher.

And now the appliance manufacturers want to give us even more features. Do you know what this means? It means that some night you'll open the door of your "smart" refrigerator, looking for a beer, and you'll hear a pleasant, cheerful voice — recorded by the same woman who informs you that "your call is important" when you call a business that does not wish to speak with you personally — telling you: "Your celery is limp." You will not know how your refrigerator knows this, and, what is worse, you will not know who else your refrigerator is telling about it ("Hey, Bob! I hear your celery is limp!").

And if you want to try to make the refrigerator stop, you'll have to decipher owner's manual instructions written by and for nuclear physicists ("To disable the Produce Crispness Monitoring feature, enter the Command Mode, then select the Edit function, then select Change Vegetable Defaults, then assume that Train A leaves Chicago traveling westbound at 47 miles per hour, while Train B...").

Is this the kind of future you want, consumers? Do you want appliances that are smarter than you? Of course not. Your appliances should be dumber than you, just like your furniture, your pets and your representatives in Congress.

So I am urging you to let the appliance industry know, by phone, letter, fax and e-mail, that when it comes to "smart" appliances, you vote NO. You need to act quickly. Because while you're reading this, your microwave oven is voting YES.

U. Frank Williams Jr./Reporter-Telegram
Jim Bradshaw, archivist at Haley Memorial Library, bemoans the fact that authors use computers and no longer leave paper trails.

Haley Library archivist Jim Bradshaw

A self-described curmudgeon and contrarian, Jim Bradshaw worries that a certain romance is slipping away. He says there's a danger of losing the paper trails of authors who have shown by their files just where they started and what steps they took to get to the published book.

"I agree with Clifford Stoll (author of "The Cuckoo's Egg" about computer espionage) that we are in danger of losing something very precious in the rush to computers," he said.

"Holding a floppy disc somehow doesn't generate the same kind of magic as holding a 100-year-old letter written in beautiful Spencerian penmanship. How could a floppy disc ever compare with a paper diary?

"Even my own family history was eventually done on the computer, but my descendants will never see the beautifully written letters my great-uncle penned in 1863, and the wiggly X that he signed on his pension application in 1926. They will miss the emotional tug that my heart felt when I saw them compared.

"A lot of authors still use yellow pad and pencil, and others still use the typewriter, but more and more are doing their work on the computer, with no paper trail.

"Without it, we will not see the first, second, third and fourth drafts of an author's works and follow the thought processes. These will have all been lost with spell-check and automatically corrected punctuation and grammar," he said.

He said archivists worry about how much of the author's original work will be lost when it is revised or cut down by a book editor? Or, will the research notes be lost?

As archivist of the Haley Memorial Library, Jim sees firsthand how valuable the handwritten research cards of authors can be, or the first drafts, full of penciled corrections and notes in the margin. He can place a letter written by a long-dead soldier into the hands of a researcher and feel the atmosphere almost hum with yearning. The connection may have a physical conduit, but Jim sees the end result as spiritual.

He said researchers are receiving the benefit of the thoughtfulness of those people long ago who had the vision to save these papers, and to move them and protect them through the years, when a lot of people would have thought they were trash and thrown them away.

"Just this morning, I ran across a milking contract that had been drawn up in about 1917 by the three Midkiff children," he said. " They had agreed to pay penalties for leaving the gate open, leaving the calves with the mother cows, and other things they might do, and the penalty was that they'd have to take another turn at milking.

"Somebody cared enough to save that paper for 80 years, and when the Haley Library received the Midkiff collection of papers, it came to us.

"This kind of material tells us what kind of people we came from."

Jim was the son of a refinery man and the grandson of an early-day tool-dresser and oil scout, but he learned that his siren call was the product of minds, not wells; he was wise enough to listen.

He checked out his first library book at age 5. It was the start of a love affair that has stayed with him throughout his life.

"My introduction to libraries was at the old Carnegie Library in Okmulgee, Oklahoma, where, at a very young age, I enjoyed the table of stereoscope view cards," he said. "I've been in love with libraries ever since."

He thinks that all the interests and training in his life have prepared him for his archival job at the Haley Library. He went to the library looking for a part-time job, but when he was told that there were no funds for an archival assistant, he volunteered. He then was available and already familiar with the library's materials when the paying job opened up.

His journey toward the Haley started when he obtained an associate degree in arts from Odessa Junior College in 1951, then trained for a year in graphic arts at Oklahoma A&M before going into the printing industry, where he worked for 28 years.

That was just the beginning of his preparation. A Baptist since childhood, he was ordained a Baptist deacon in 1956. He received his diploma in religion education from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1979 and was ordained to full-time ministry. He served three churches in the field of Christian education and also served in three church libraries, for a total of 15 years.

"I seem to have always been in the business of assembling disparate pieces of information, organizing and presenting it either to the printing customer, the church member or the library patron," he said. "The career in lithography gave me both an understanding and a great appreciation for the printed book and some understanding of the various printing processes.

"My seminary studies and my work in Christian education gave me training in researching and assembling material for the teaching process."

Through his genealogical work and his compilation of his own family history, Jim was learning about how researchers work and what they need. He said he learned as he worked.

"I didn't want it to become another 'My grandfather came west in a covered wagon' type of history."

He set out to connect the family history with the social, economic and political history of the regions they lived in.

"I constructed a time line from 1600 to 2000 with all the important national historical events in order to give my family some connection with the broader history of our country," he said. "The military history includes every war from the Revolution to World War II. This project took me into over a dozen libraries around the country, lots of courthouses and the National Archives."

But the heart of the history Jim has compiled is, well, the history.

"The history includes some 342 family letters from 1853 to 1972, and I taped (recorded) several oral histories of family members and had access to a number of personal diaries," he said.

"I'm convinced that the real history of America is contained in the ordinary letters written in ordinary times by ordinary people."

He said his archival duties are fascinating.

"I get to sort through some fascinating papers, organize them and then assist researchers in their search for historical information about West Texas and the Southwest."

Jim said he is part file clerk and part bird dog for the researchers, who come from all over the nation.

"Many of them are history professors or full-time historians. They are consistently appreciative of the help given them and they are one group of people who still know how to write thank-you notes.

"Most people don't know that it takes from five to 10 years to write a good history book, and that the research can fill a file cabinet or more, but these people do. Another thing I like is that you get to be a part of that creative process."

Ha Ha Ha Ha

Humor to start your week ...

As a young man, Norton was an exceptional golfer. At the age of 26, however, he decided to become a priest, and joined a rather peculiar order. He took the usual vows of poverty, chastity, but his order also required that he quit golf and never play again. This was particularly difficult for Norton, but he agreed and was finally ordained a priest.

One Sunday morning, Father Norton woke up and realizing it was an exceptionally beautiful and sunny early spring day, decided he just had to play golf.

So he told the associate pastor that he was feeling sick and convinced him to say Mass for him that day. As soon as the associate pastor left the room, Father Norton headed out of town to a golf course about 40 miles away so he wouldn't accidentally meet anyone he knew from his parish.

Setting up on the first tee, he was alone. After all, it was Sunday morning and everyone else was in church. At about this time, Saint Peter leaned over to the Lord while looking down from the heavens and exclaimed, "You're not going to let him get away with this, are you?"

The Lord sighed, and said, "No, I guess not."

Just then, Father Norton hit the ball and it shot straight toward the pin, dropping just short of it, rolled up and fell into the hole. It was a 420-yard hole in one. St. Peter was astonished. He looked at the Lord and asked, "Why did you let him do that?"

The Lord smiled and replied, "Who's he going to tell?"

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Feb. 28, 2000:
This year, you can accomplish more than others can. Bosses respect your enthusiasm and dedication. You might need to examine how your efforts impact your personal life and health in the long run, however. Curb a tendency to be extravagant or extreme with money. Sometimes when your feelings are hurt, you might act out by spending a lot. If you are single, romance knocks on your door in the next few months, but make sure you don't choose someone who is too elusive or remote. If attached, share more of your vulnerabilities and caring. CAPRICORN is a real pal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Keep making the necessary efforts to understand others. An early meeting brings good will and gets the week off to the kind of start you want. Don't compromise when it comes to heartfelt values. You know what works for you. Tonight: Burning the midnight oil.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Dealing with others on a one-on-one level proves to be unusually successful and brings the kind of results you want. A boss is impressed with your thinking and intuitive responses. Don't hold back; show your stuff. Confusion surrounds a meeting. Tonight: Take an overview.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Take time with others, even if you feel like you are losing some precious work time. Establishing stronger ties is instrumental to your well-being. Do not sell yourself short. You know what works. Go for your bottom line. Tonight: Worry less about the boss.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Get into work while an associate is there for you. You'll accomplish a lot. Another clearly responds. Be more conscious of how your energy can make or break a situation. Use your high vitality. Information that comes to you "on the QT" could be unreliable. Tonight: Join a friend for dinner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Allow your imagination to lead you down new paths. Listen to your sixth sense with a partner. Charm goes a long way in getting what you want. Make calls, seek information and find answers to your questions. There is nothing like doing your own research. Tonight: Off to the gym.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Take a deep breath, then aim for what you want. Use your creativity and dynamic thinking. Bringing more work home could help you increase efficiency; you're more clearheaded there. One-on-one relating opens doors. Read past an immediate reaction. Tonight: Make nice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Reach out for others. You'll find pleasure in the simplest interactions. Touch base with partners. Listen to another's grievances while you can easily get past them. Sometimes allowing another to air out his feelings proves to be most successful. Tonight: Home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Take care of finances. Check your balance before making a domestic expenditure. A family member encourages you. Consider a home office, as it appears you will be taking on more work. You will need every ounce of energy. Tonight: Make calls; clear your desk.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Use that high vitality to get chores done as quickly as possible. Confusion or a misunderstanding could mar the later day. Use your creativity to investigate problems. Be strong about a money decision. Tonight: Treat yourself well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★ Sit back and do some thinking. Review recent monetary indulgences, and think about cuts you can make. A family member might strongly disagree, and he lets you know in no uncertain terms. Take action later in the day. Follow your instincts. Tonight: Confirm any plans you might have.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Listen to your intuition. Follow through on a commitment to a friend. You feel good about yourself as well as another. Be careful as you move quickly and think fast — others might not be able to keep up with you. Examine your long-term goals. Tonight: Take some time for yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Take charge. Use your high sensitivity to gain more of what you want. Listen to another's feedback. A friend contributes many sound ideas, especially about where you need to focus your energy. Don't miss a key meeting. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

Bidding Quiz

Q 1 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ A K J 10 9 8 ♡ 10 9 4 ◇ 7 ♣ K 8 3
The bidding has proceeded:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1♡	2◇	2♠	3◇
4♣	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A — A good responding hand has gotten even better, but do not even think about rebidding four spades. That risks playing in what could be a doubtful game when slam in hearts is laydown. Four hearts is considerably better, but our choice would be a cue-bid of four diamonds.

Q 2 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ K 2 ♡ Q 6 5 4 ◇ K 9 8 5 ♣ Q 10 4
The bidding has proceeded:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1◇	Pass	1♡	Pass
1♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A — If you play that a jump to three diamonds is invitational, not forcing, that would be our choice. If it is forcing, we slightly prefer the underbid of two diamonds to an invitational jump in no-trump. You have too much in partner's suits and not enough in hearts and clubs to suggest no-trump as a viable game.

Q 3 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ A K 10 6 ♡ 5 ◇ A K 10 8 ♣ A 10 6 5
The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1◇	Pass	1♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A — Your hand is worth more than 20 points in support of spades. If you have Splinter Bids in your arsenal, by all means jump to four hearts to show a singleton heart and excellent spade support. If not, jump shift to three clubs, intending to support spades vigorously next. With all those prime cards, you should make every effort to get to slam.

Q 4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ 7 ♡ K Q 10 7 2 ◇ 10 9 5 3 ♣ 7 6 5
The bidding has proceeded:

WEST	NORTH	EAST	SOUTH
1◇	Dbl	1NT	?

What action do you take?

A — To pass because you have only 5 points in high cards is begging the opponents to steal you blind. You have good five-card support for one of the suits partner has shown with the takeout double, so bid two hearts now. It is safer to introduce the suit at the two-level than later in the auction.

Q 5 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ Q 9 7 3 ♡ J 10 6 ◇ 8 3 ♣ A 7 6 2
The bidding has proceeded:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1♠	1◇	?

What do you bid now?

A — If you play negative doubles, by all means take that action. If not, you have a difficult choice. Since introducing a four-card headed by the queen is distasteful, bid two clubs. Partner can still bid spades with a good hand and a decent suit.

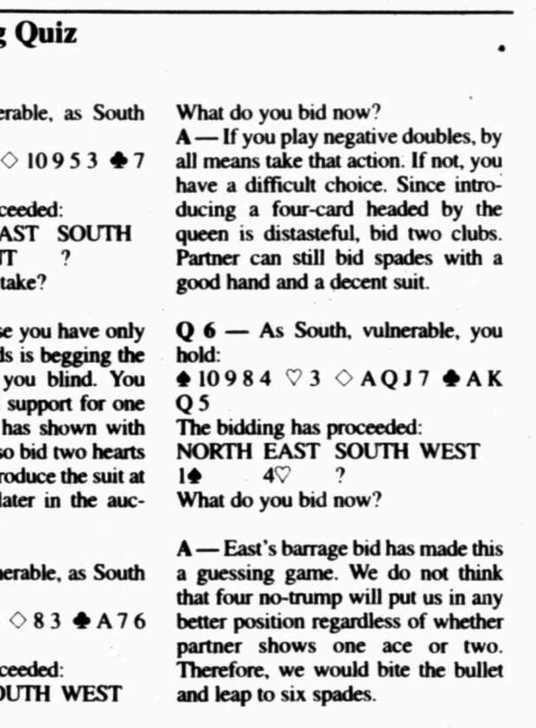

Q 6 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ 10 9 8 4 ♡ 3 ◇ A Q J 7 ♣ A K Q 5
The bidding has proceeded:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1♠	4♡	?

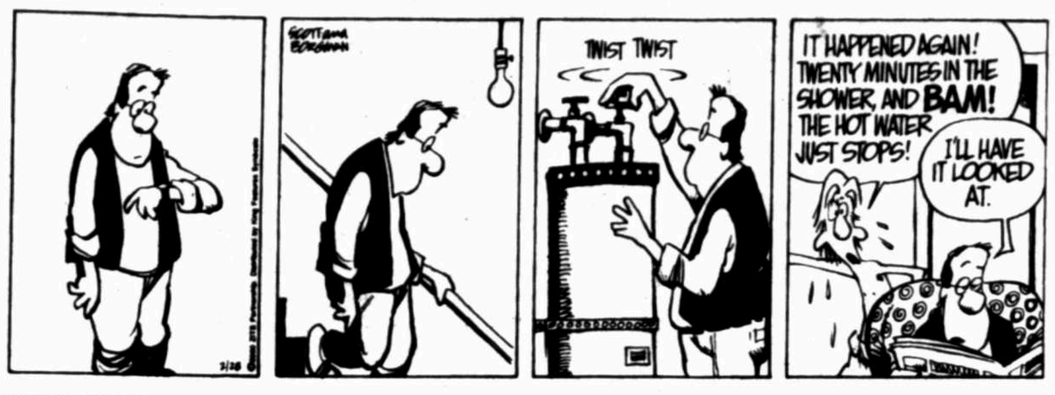

What do you bid now?

A — East's barrage bid has made this a guessing game. We do not think that four no-trump will put us in any better position regardless of whether partner shows one ace or two. Therefore, we would bite the bullet and leap to six spades.

O.J.'s lawsuit is a stunt, Brown claims

LOS ANGELES — Nicole Brown Simpson's sister says O.J. Simpson's lawsuit against a phone company for records to prove his innocence is just a publicity stunt.

"He just wants to be out there on the news because his ego can't handle the fact that everything's quiet, nobody's talking about him," Denise Brown said Saturday on KABC-AM.

Simpson was acquitted of the 1994 murders of his ex-wife and her friend, Ronald Goldman. But a jury in a civil lawsuit ordered him to pay a $33.5 million judgment.

Simpson filed the lawsuit Thursday alleging GTE Corp. violated his civil rights by failing to release phone records he subpoenaed last year. Simpson claims the records would prove he didn't kill his ex-wife. GTE officials had no comment.

Simpson's attorney, Douglas E. McCann, challenged Brown's family to release the records.

"If Denise Brown is so upset about it, why doesn't she just ask her parents to consent to release them? Her parents have the power here," McCann said.

NEW YORK — Madonna wasn't sure if she could do justice to Don McLean's 1971 classic "American Pie."

She told the New York Daily News for Sunday's editions she recorded her own version of McLean's homage to Buddy Holly, Ritchie Valens and the Big Bopper for her new movie "The Next Best Thing" at the urging of co-star Rupert Everett.

"I thought, 'Who am I to do a cover of a pop classic?' But I was working in the studio on other music, and it was like, 'OK, let's just try it.' And it kind of worked, to my surprise."

Everett also lends his voice to the song in distant background vocals.

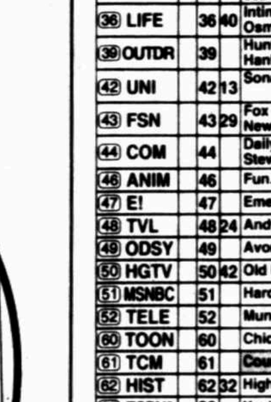

"To me, it's a real millennium song," Madonna said. "We're going through a big change in terms of the way we view pop culture, because of the Internet. In a way, it's like saying goodbye to music as we know it — and to pop culture as we know it."

NEW YORK — Members of Oasis say they've abandoned their bad behavior to concentrate on making music.

The group's fourth album "Standing on the Shoulder of Giants" is scheduled to hit record stores Tuesday, and its world tour kicks off this week in Japan.

Singer-songwriter Noel Gallagher says the band has outgrown the excesses that fueled its wild ways in recent years. The group was banned from Cathay Pacific Airways in 1998 after getting rowdy on a flight from Hong Kong to Australia.

Noel Gallagher, lead singer for Oasis, says the band has toned down its rowdy ways.

"I think it's a phase that every band goes through, where the hedonism just becomes all-consuming, and all of a sudden you realize that what you are in the band for — which is the actual music — has become a secondary issue," he told the New York Post for Sunday's editions.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The Kentucky governor's office pulled out all the stops to honor former heavyweight boxing champ Muhammad Ali in his hometown.

A crowd of about 5,800 turned out Friday for "Muhammad Ali Day," including about 4,200 public school students.

Lonnie Ali spoke for her husband, who has Parkinson's disease. She told the crowd there's nothing that raises Ali's spirit more than "lots and lots" of children.

The celebration was being held as design plans are being completed for the construction of a riverfront Muhammad Ali Center.

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies are investigating a hit-and-run car accident that involved actress Halle Berry, a sheriff's spokeswoman said.

Ms. Berry was in a rented Chevrolet Blazer involved in a crash with another car early Wednesday, Deputy Elisabeth Sachs said Saturday.

A woman in the other car had a broken arm and was treated at a hospital. The 31-year-old Berry sought medical treatment for undisclosed injuries.

Ms. Sachs said it was not clear if Ms. Berry was driving or was a passenger. She said no arrests had been made.
