Thousands of Natives Pour into Foreign Districts of Cities in Effort to Flee from Pillaging Horde

SHANGHAI, Aug. 1.—Spread by the terror applied recently in Changsha, communism reached its reddest today in Hankow, Kiangsi, Kuling and Shanghai, especially against foreigners.

Precautions were taken to prevent repetition of the outrage which destroyed much property of foreigners and forced them to flee to their warships at Changsha when the Hunan province capital was looted and burned, with assassination of hundreds of natives.

Protection Sought
Leaving Changsha smoldering today, thousands of natives advanced toward the tri-city, Hankow, Wu-chang and Yangyang, and for further spoils. Thousands of terrified natives, bearing their goods, poured into foreign districts of those cities, seeking protection.

Hurriedly erecting defenses against nearby marauding armies, government officials declared martial law to prevent further looting of the cities. The populace, under threat of death, was warned to leave the streets by midnight.

Unsettled by several days looting, other reds were reported holding ruined Changsha despite government assertions a nationalist gunboat had driven them out with shells. Sixty provincial officers, hunted from a meeting here, were executed and 300 wealthy natives seized for ransoming.

Poultry Co-Op To Be Formed

Fifty of Poultry and Dairy Leaders of Lubbock County Will Convene Here Today to Discuss New Cooperative

Organization of a poultry cooperative association in Lubbock county will be the principal subject of discussion at a meeting here today of a central committee composed of 50 poultry and dairy leaders of the county.

The meeting is scheduled to convene at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the courthouse. George C. Cooper, committee chairman, will preside today. The central committee was named about two weeks ago.

Improvement of marketing conditions for poultry and dairy products in Lubbock county would be the object of the proposed cooperative organization. Definite action will be taken today on the proposed poultry unit so that this year's turkeys can be sold through a co-operative system, it was announced Friday.

Plans also are being made to meet with T. H. Christy, Texas representative of Land O' Lakes Creameries, Inc., who will be in this city next Wednesday for a mass meeting of dairy and poultry men of this section. Mr. Christy has announced that his company is ready to handle all poultry and dairy products from this county.

Three committees were named at the first meeting of interested persons. These included an executive committee and a committee for dairy and poultry products.

Cooper is chairman of the executive committee, with Mrs. C. Z. Fine as secretary. Other members are...

Artificial "Lungs" Save Four Lives When Men Trapped In Sub Chamber

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 1.—The navy's recently perfected artificial "lung" today was credited with having saved the life of its inventor, Lieut. Charles B. Momsen, U. S. N., and three motion picture men who were trapped this afternoon in a gas filled compartment of the submerged submarine SA-4.

It was the first time the "lung" which has been the subject of numerous tests lately, had been called on for emergency duty.

Test Pictured
The three newsmen, Claude R. Collings, director, John Bockhorst, cameraman, and Arthur Fernandez in charge of sound apparatus, went out in the SA-4 off the submarine base here this afternoon with Lieut. Momsen to take moving pictures of a test escape of ten men through an emergency hatch with the aid of the "lung."

The craft was submerged to a depth of 45 feet in the Thames river harbor. Lieut. Momsen, the three movie men and the ten men who took part in the experiment occupied a small compartment of the submarine. The test escapes were successful but each time a man left the submarine a certain amount of water rushed into the compartment. When all ten had "escaped" the water in the compartment had risen to the waist level of the remaining four. Specially designed apparatus to expel the water temporarily failed and a sudden lurch of the SA-4 tilted the craft that the water reached batteries used for the movie sound apparatus. Chlorine

British Ship Moored After Near Tragedy

Dirigible R-100 Completes 3,500 Mile Voyage Across Atlantic After Struggling Through Cyclonic Storm

ST. HUBERT, AIRPORT MONTREAL, Aug. 1. (AP)—The British dirigible R-100, a sailor home safe from sea, swung gently at her mooring mast tonight, behind her 3,500 miles of epic voyage that almost ended in disaster.

Speeding down the St. Lawrence river valley last night, just 150 miles from St. Hubert's mast and safety, the mighty air voyager was struck by a "cyclonic current" that hurled it 2,000 feet straight upward and tore a great hole in her fragile armor.

Damage Repaired
The damage was repaired and the big ship proceeded slowly in to Montreal, anchoring at her mast at 4:38 a. m., just 78 hours and 51 minutes after taking off from Cardington, England, on her flight to the new world.

Officers, told that they were talking for publication, made light of the danger encountered. The men, not so constrained, spoke more freely.

Their story was one to make the heart quicken with thanksgiving for the peril that was past, a peril that struck with the speed and ferocity of a serpent.

Stands On Nose
Just the other side of Quebec, they said, a storm unrelenting of force caught the R-100 and hurled it practically standing on its nose, for almost 2,000 feet in less than half a minute.

It was during that terrific moment, when all aboard "just crossed their fingers and waited," that a strip of fabric about 15 by 6 feet was ripped from the port fin, opening a hole as big as a barn door into the great envelope, exposing the intricate interior of the largest airship ever built to the fury of the storm.

Naval Treaty Is Named Act Of Parliament

Final Flash of Color with Century Old Formality Is Given as Last Authority to London Agreement

Ceremony Enacted

Few American Tourists Are Present at Session; King George Does Not Attend as Pact Put Into Statutes

By FRANK H. KING
LONDON, Aug. 1. (AP)—With a final flash of color and century old formality, the London naval treaty bill today became an official act of parliament and an integral part of the statutes of the British realm.

Late this afternoon before parliament was prorogued until October 28, royal assent to the treaty clothed it with the final touch of authority, so far as Great Britain is concerned.

Ceremony Enacted
The ceremony was enacted in the austere atmosphere of the house of lords adjoining the royal gallery, where American, French, Italian, Japanese and British delegations to the famous five power conference were called into session by King George one foggy morning last January.

The king was not present today, in fact only six of the lords besides the five royal commissioners were there. These half dozen nobles were mere dots on the expanse of the red leather benches but the peers, it seems, are not much needed in parliamentary proceedings these days.

Commoners Attend
The commoners trooped like a pack of school boys on the last day of school to the bar of the house of lords when summoned by the "black rod" and the strangers' gallery included a few American tourists who had succeeded in weaving through the formality that bars access, even lords these and a few newspaper spectators, to Britain's house of men witnessed the ancient ritual unfold.

This has been effective since busy Henry VIII, decided it was not proper for the monarch in person to give his royal assent to acts of parliament.

Precisely at 4:30 p. m. the reading clerk announced "the London naval treaty act," and bowed again before the graven commissioners. "Le Roy Le Veut," proclaimed the other clerk as he faced the commoners at the bar.

Lubbock Demos To Meet Today

Sixty Delegates from County Precincts Are Expected to Attend Annual Convention at Courthouse Here

Annual county Democratic convention will be attended here today by 60 delegates from the four precincts of the county. The meeting will convene at 3 o'clock in the courthouse and delegates to the state and district conventions will be chosen.

Delegates to the county convention were chosen at their respective precincts during the primary election last Saturday.

A canvass of votes in the primary will be made today by the democratic executive committee, which is scheduled to meet at 1 o'clock.

Delegates named and expected at the county convention include: Precinct 1—F. E. Wheelock, J. H. Eubanks, J. P. Harris, M. C. Witt, George Bean, Ed. F. Mann, Charles Quimby, E. W. Addison, Marvin Warlick, H. D. Woods, Dr. W. E. Graves, J. C. Clements, J. B. Maxey, John Jarrott, George Wolfarth, Sam. Arnett, W. O. Stevens, A. V.

Ross Sterling Avers Honesty Is Main Issue

Gubernatorial Candidate Puts Good Government Ahead of Highway Issue in Campaign Against Fergusons

AUSTIN, Aug. 1.—Putting "honesty in government" above his highway bond issue as an issue in the coming campaign, R. S. Sterling, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, opened his campaign today with a statement directed almost entirely at James E. Ferguson, husband of his opponent in the run off.

The paramount issue, he declared, has become "honest and efficient government."

"Jim Would Rule"
He declared that should Mrs. Ferguson be elected, her husband would direct the office.

The record of Fergusonism, he said, is spread on the records of the state. He reviewed Ferguson's election as governor and his impeachment.

Beauties Gather To Compete For "Miss Universe"

GALVESTON, Aug. 1. (AP)—A band of welcome two groups of American and European girls who will compete in the annual International Pageant of Beauties, today arrived here today. Tonight they had been quartered joining others who already were on hand.

Four girls, pick of the eastern seaboard, were first to come ashore on the island. They were debarked from a liner while a brass band blared. The big reception committee which included Mayor Jack Pearce shook hands all around. There was a parade, too.

Hardly had the docks been cleared of the first group of newcomers when they formed again at the union railway station where trains brought in other American beauties along with a group of foreign girls.

The eastern-seaboard arrivals were Elsie Ross, Miss Brooklyn; Vera Waters, Miss Philadelphia; Patricia Lee, Miss Albany; Lorna Rodinoff, Miss...

Officers Seek Condemnation Of Boze Cars

Petitions Filed by County for Three Automobiles in Which Officers Say Whiskey Was Confiscated

Seeking condemnation as public nuisances of three automobiles in which county officers said they had found whiskey, petitions were filed Friday in 99th district court by County Attorney Vaughn Wilson.

Those named as defendants in the suits, arrested as drivers of the cars, and respective dates of the arrests follow: Buddie Porter, July 7; W. D. King, June 17, and P. M. Roberts, January 29. Appraised values of the cars, as stated in the petitions is $350, $350 and $600, respectively. If the state wins the suits the machines will be sold by the county.

Porter was indicted by the May grand jury for illegal transportation and sale of liquor and asked for a continuance to the next term of court when he appeared in the 72nd district court, June 18.

P. M. Roberts and C. S. Roberts were charged jointly with transportation in an indictment returned by a grand jury in February.

A. M. Caraway Injured When Car Overturns

Victim Brought to Sanitarium Here; Lubbock Physicians Give Slight Hopes for His Recovery; Arms Lacerated

Companion Unhurt

Wife and Infant Son Reach Bedside of Injured Man on Friday Night; Consciousness Not Regained

UNCONSCIOUS and suffering from a fractured skull, A. M. Caraway, 42, of Amarillo, was taken to Lubbock sanitarium late Friday afternoon, after an automobile he was driving had turned over twice about a mile and half south of Abernathy. His condition was considered critical and shortly before midnight Friday he had not regained consciousness, hospital attendants reported.

An unidentified companion escaped serious injury, receiving minor cuts and bruises. Caraway sustained a fracture at the base of the skull on the left side and blood and cranial fluid flowed from the left ear. His arms were lacerated.

Wife At Bedside
The wife of the injured man and an infant son arrived here from Amarillo at 8:30 o'clock and went to the hospital. The accident occurred about 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Caraway said her husband and Pete Garrett of Amarillo went to Hobbs, N. M., about three weeks ago to build a rooming house there. The car which Caraway was driving when the upset occurred was owned by Garrett.

Authorities at Abernathy, to which Caraway first was taken, notified his wife of the accident after he had been identified by a bank deposit slip. The victim's companion, who accompanied him to the hospital here in Rix-Saunders ambulance, said he had met Caraway in Hobbs and had accepted an offer to ride with him to Amarillo. The two were en route to Amarillo when the machine turned over.

Car Overturns Twice
Abernathy officers said the right rear casing had blown out and the car had skidded 40 or 50 yards, overturning twice and stopping upside down, pointed in the direction from which it had come.

Caraway's companion said he was done when he heard an exclamation from the driver, felt the machine swerve and crouched beneath the dash board before it rolled over. The car was traveling 40 or 50 miles an hour when the accident occurred, he said.

The Caraways have lived in Amarillo about nine years. They have two small daughters in addition to the baby son, who is six and a half months old.

Four Religious Gatherings Hold Interest For Local People This Week

Representatives of Asbury Methodist, First Methodist Churches Present at Rally

Plans Are in Progress for Layman's Assembly to Be Held at Ceta Canyon Beginning August Third

Interest of local church folk is centered on four gatherings this week. A district Epworth League rally is being held at Meadow, the Post Baptist encampment is nearing its close at Two Draw lake, those attending the Presbyterian encampment at Kerville are beginning to return, and plans are being made for the Layman's assembly of the Northwest Texas conference (Methodist), which will be held at Ceta Canyon beginning on Sunday.

Delegates from the First Methodist and Asbury Methodist churches attended the rally at Meadow, last evening and others are planning to attend today. This is an annual occasion and churches from over the district are represented.

The program includes lectures, sermons, discussion groups and directed social hours.

Among those attending the rally last night from Lubbock were Misses Cleo Garrison, Lucille Halley, Eva May, Dollie Clements, Ruth Love, Lizzie Belle Clements, Messrs. Bennett Cole, Garland Newsome and Clarence Whitfield.

In Ceta Canyon Third annual Layman's assembly of the Northwest Texas conference of the Methodist church will be held August 3 to 8 at the Methodist camp grounds in Ceta Canyon near Happy.

Reservations may be made for tents, cots and meals or else delegates may take their own camping equipment.

There is to be a program of work of the entire church said to be of interest to everyone.

Public addresses will be given by Dr. J. P. Rawls and Dr. F. S. Parker, both of Nashville, Tenn., and Fred T. Barnett of Atlanta, Ga.

Courses Offered Sunday school and Epworth League courses will be offered as follows: Epworth League, Dr. F. S. Parker; Lay activities, F. T. Barnett; Administration of Sunday School, Dr. W. M. Alexander, Fayette, Mo. B. M. McKown, dean of McMurry college, Abilene, is to teach stewardship. Rev. W. M. Pearce, Amarillo, will teach evangelism and primary organization is to be in charge of Mrs. J. E. Eldridge.

Those who have been attending the Presbyterian Encampment at Kerville are returning. Dr. and Mrs. Jack M. Lewis and daughters, Ruth and Jacques, returned yesterday and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Ellis and son are expected the early part of next week. They have been in attendance at the Teacher's Training council.

Fashions For Early Fall Cast Their Shadows Before

By LUCY CLAIRE

Fashion Writer for Central Press

Early fall fashion cables from Paris inform us that the white accessories of summer will give way to black and brown for fall and winter. Black will be most important. Next comes the browns, of which there are many, then the reds, especially in the ruby and the deep wine tones, the greens and the blues. Dark tones, with black leading, will prevail for coats, and dark bright colors for frocks for daytime wear. Black and brown leathers for shoes, especially kid, which will again lead all shoe materials, have been carefully keyed-to these new fall colors, with winstone, green and dark blue kid as high style notes.

Black shoes will be worn with all the ruby tones, and either black or winstone shoe, with the winstone. The winstone shoe, with a black coat, posed over a winstone frock, will be fashionable as a high style. Brown shoes will naturally be worn with the browns, with some of the rusts, and some of the greens that have a slightly yellow cast. Blue shoes will continue to be worn with admirably blue, dark green shoes with dark green, and so on, but in nearly every instance the black or the brown shoe will answer as well.

Early Fall Models

The sketch shows three of the early fall models which are already making their appearance in Paris on days that are not so warm. The first is an unusually lightweight tweed in black and white. The revers and cuffs are of white broadcloth stitched in red. Note the three-quarter length sleeve, with its interesting treatment with button trim. With this are worn black kid shoes and a black felt hat of the flare brim type.

The center model is a hat crepe in a rich dark brown. Soft feminine touches are added in the wide revers and collar of pleated chiffon edged with appliques of embroidered net. The scallops of the half yoke effect at the front of the skirt are repeated in the cuffs. Burnt copper kid oxfords, and a burnt copper hat completed the costume.

In the third model is shown a two-piece frock of navy blue flat crepe, with pleated skirt and belted jumper fastening at the side. The soft feminine note is introduced in the petals of self-material at the neckline. Navy blue shoes and a navy blue beret carry out the monotone accessories. Navy blue, by the way, is one of the few colors that calls for

Girl Arrested In Murder of G. E. Buckley

Radio Entertainer Held for Questioning in Connection with Shooting of Detroit
Announcer July 23

DETROIT, Aug. 1. (P)—Police today arrested Marjorie Mansell, 21, radio entertainer for station WMBB and held her at the women's detention home for questioning in connection with the slaying of Gerald E. "Gee" Buckley, political commentator for the same station.

Miss Mansell was arrested near an alleged hangout for hoodlums in which four men were taken in a police raid last night. Police said she is a sweetheart of Pete Lica-voli, notorious gangster sought as the "key man" in the Buckley slaying. Police said they had known Miss Mansell was driving Lica-voli's automobile, which later was found in front of the house in which the radio entertainer lived.

Woman in Case
Buckley was shot July 23 a few hours after he had announced that the voters of Detroit had recalled Mayor Charles Bowles. Bowles campaigned for the recall since he was found dead in the LaSalle hotel with 11 bullets in his body. Police have declared there was a woman whom they were seeking to identify, who might give them valuable information.

Raids on gangsters' hangouts last night resulted in arrests of six alleged gangsters who are to be questioned about the Buckley slaying and the dozen gang slayings of the past few weeks. Four of those arrested last night are Tony Abate, Nick Ditta, Sam Landi and Phil-Mazello. Said by police to be members of a powerful east side mob which has been blamed for many recent killings. Several guns and a supply of ammunition were found in their hangout. Police also arrested Angelo and Salvatore Gi-annese, brothers, in Angelo's home. Guns and ammunition were found in the place.

Hijacker Shot
A convicted hijacker was shot and probably fatally wounded in downtown Detroit last night. The latest victim of gang warfare is Phil Robertson, released only recently from the Michigan state reformatory at Ionia where he served two and one-half years for holding up a saloon. Police said Robertson's neighbors declared he had been engaged in transporting liquor. He was shot in the back by an unidentified man while standing on a street corner. The gunman escaped.

The foreign contestants were: Maria Becker, "Miss Germany"; Madeline Mourges, "Miss France"; Liliana Andreone, "Miss Roumania"; Gero Gorgyke, "Miss Hungary"; Micie Mari-ette, "Miss Austria"; Ferina Scholik, "Miss Turkey"; Nadia De Kosarine, "Miss Russia."

Altogether, 38 young women are to contest, blondes, brunettes, red heads—all types—will go after the title beauty queen of the universe.

The city tonight rapidly was filling up with newspapermen, cameramen, sound movie men and just spectators out for a holiday. Hotel reservations were difficult to obtain.

Lungs

gas fumes were released which quickly filled the compartment. "Lungs" Donned Lieut. Momen had some extra "lungs" with him. These were quickly donned by the four and through the use of them they were able to remain for 15 minutes in the atmosphere of deadly gas.

By that time, Lieut. Norman F. Ives, in command of the S-4 was able to right the craft and bring it to the surface. Hatches were opened and the four trapped men stepped out. Only Fernandez suffered any ill effects. He had been a little slower than the others in adjusting his "lung." A few moments in the fresh air, however, completely revived him.

WATER PUMPED
REFUGIO, Aug. 1. (P)—Water was being pumped into the wild gasser of the Houston Oil company through a six-inch pipe today in an attempt to cool off the well. It was believed this was a forerunner of an actual attempt by "Tex" Thornton, expert, to shoot the well.

England now has 10,000 blind persons.

TORNADO HITS AIRPORT

Damage of $50,000 Caused at Houston Friday Night

HOUSTON, Aug. 1. (P)—Roaring from a blacked sky shortly after six p. m. tonight a miniature cyclone struck the Houston airport causing damage estimated at $50,000 to a hangar and five planes.

Caving in the wall of No. 2 hangar which had been completed recently by the twister, demolished five planes stored in the building and left the new structure a tangled mass of debris.

A. P. Neuhaus, manager of the field said that the tornado was accompanied by a severe hail storm and high winds which reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour shortly before the storm broke.

WARNING ISSUED
SNYDER, Aug. 1. (P)—Warnings today were sent to all parts of West Texas to beware of smut infection of cane and kaffir, agricultural experts having advised that should it be fed to animals it would prove deadly. Farmers said the continued drought was the primary cause of the infection, which might spread to other sections.

peachment, and Mrs. Ferguson's subsequent election, which Sterling said, Mrs. Ferguson asked in order that the name might not go down to posterity dismissed.

"If Jim Ferguson is elected governor," the statement said, "we will see a return of petty politics, of factionalism, bitterness and none of the problems of the state can be settled by the legislature in peace and quiet."

Prepared to Fight
Sterling declared he was prepared to go to the people and fight for "honest government."

He also restated some of the issues emphasized in the primary campaign and said his proposed plan for issuing bonds for highway construction had been misinterpreted. He pointed out that before the bonds could be issued, legislative approval and approval of the people was necessary.

PIONEER IS KILLED

Cooke County Resident Takes Target from Youth

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 1. (P)—J. P. Barnett, 70, pioneer Cooke county resident, was killed instantly today by a bullet from a small rifle. A 10-year-old boy who was passing the Barnett home witnessed the shooting.

The boy told officers he was interrupted by Barnett who took a target rifle from him. He said he had succeeded in unloading the rifle after a tussle with Barnett, but that the ammunition was then taken forcibly by Barnett and the gun reloaded. The bullet pierced Barnett's left eye and penetrated his brain.

TILTONVILLE, O., Aug. 1. (P)—Ten miners were injured, one critically, by the explosion of a keg of powder in the Red Bird mine of the Warner Collieries company of Cleveland, near here today. All the injured were taken to a Martins Ferry hospital.

Woman Dies of Injuries

GALVESTON, Aug. 1. (P)—Mrs. W. Pryor, 2, Galveston died shortly after 9 o'clock tonight, a few hours after being struck by a car on the beach here. She was brought to a hospital where it was found she had a broken back.

A Houston man who drove the car which hit her said Mrs. Pryor had run in front of him in pursuit of a dog. Placinda was being held by police.

SEVEN REDS ARRESTED

Communists Attempt to Hold Meeting Without Permit

YONKERS, N. Y., Aug. 1. (P)—Seven communists were arrested tonight when they attempted to hold a meeting in the city plaza without a permit. Police had given the communists leaders permission to speak on the Yonkers pier but they defied orders and met in front of a local factory. A woman speaker was seized and the six others arrested when they attempted to free her. All were held on charges of disorderly conduct.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (P)—Two persons were injured tonight when sporadic fighting broke out between police and communists following a "Red Day" demonstration in Union Square.

Death Claims William Sides

Funeral Services Conducted
Friday Night for Lubbock Man; Was Former Manager of Grocery Store Here

William Roy Sides, 31, formerly manager of a grocery store and owner of a bakery here, died early Friday afternoon in his hotel apartment here. He had resided in Lubbock the last five years.

Funeral services were conducted at 6:30 o'clock Friday night in the Church of Christ, of which Mr. Sides was a member. Elder Hugh Clark officiated. The body was sent to Canton Friday night by Rix-Saunders funeral home. Rites will be conducted at Canton at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and burial will be there.

Here From Canton
Mr. and Mrs. Sides came to Lubbock from Canton and Mr. Sides became manager of Piggly-Wiggly Store No. 2. After serving in that capacity several years, he resigned about a year ago and purchased the Dandy Bakery. In health forced him to sell the bakery in November, and accompanied by his wife, Mr. Sides went to Dallas where he entered a hospital. About two months ago they returned here.

Survivors included: The widow, Mrs. Leola Sides; the mother, Mrs. Lula Sides of Canton; a brother, Lamar Sides, and a half-brother, Jack Sides, both of Canton; and a sister, Mrs. D. B. Jones of El Paso.

Endurance Fliers At Half-Way Mark

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 1. (P)—Bob Black and Lou Ralchers continued their attack on the refueling endurance flight record tonight, passing their 288th hour aloft at 7:34 (E. S. T.) o'clock. At 8:30 a. m. today they were half way toward the 554-hour record held by the Hunter Brothers of Chicago.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1. (P)—Passing the half way mark in their flight to regain the world's refueling endurance record, Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien kept the monoplane Greater St. Louis circling slowly over Lambert-St. Louis field tonight, their twelfth night aloft. At 8:11 p. m. they had been up 277 hours.

The fliers indicated to Field Manager Parks today they had no intention of landing because of lack of funds to finance the flight, sought by public subscription.

UP 475 HOURS

HUTCHINSON, Kas., Aug. 1. (P)—Nearing the end of his third week aloft, David Dawson, 15-year-old aspirant for the world's refueling title, today remained unshaken in his determination to descend only with the pealing of the first school bell in the autumn. He has 475 hours to his credit.

SLAYER HANGED

The Avalanche is an independent Democratic newspaper, supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those questions which it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics; publishing the news fairly and impartially at all times.

As it happened, the jury either decided to believe the alienists for the state and to disbelieve the alienists for the defense, or it put the whole expert-testimony racket out of its mind and went ahead to use its common sense; at all events, the prisoner has been convicted of first degree murder and has been sentenced to the electric chair.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ; that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel.—Philippians, 1:27.

WHEN EXPERTS DISAGREE

MENTION has already been made of that murder trial in Ohio where six very eminent psychiatrists blew themselves to opposing opinions concerning the sanity, or otherwise, of a young wife-murderer who was on trial.

As it happened, the jury either decided to believe the alienists for the state and to disbelieve the alienists for the defense, or it put the whole expert-testimony racket out of its mind and went ahead to use its common sense; at all events, the prisoner has been convicted of first degree murder and has been sentenced to the electric chair.

Why, in the name of ordinary logic, wouldn't it be better to have the sanity hearing in advance of the trial, with qualified alienists hired, not to testify for one side or the other, but simply to render the truth as they saw it? If they reported the prisoner insane, he could be put on trial and the case could be decided on its merits.

The present system leads only to confusion. It offers the hardest, intelligent killer a chance to escape the punishment he deserves, and it also makes it possible for the state to electrocute some poor nit-wit who ought to be in a hospital. The one thing it does not do is offer a chance for dealing out exact justice.

There is a good deal of talk nowadays about respecting the courts. How is it possible to respect a system that undecisively gets at the truth in a round-about, inefficient manner like this?

UNDERDISTRIBUTION?

An ambassador, looking about his duties at the capital of a friendly government must be polite, even though the effort kill him. Otherwise Ambassador Edge might have regretted his visit to St. Paul.

Reynaud, French finance minister, when that official gravenly suggested before a dinner gathering at the American Club in Paris that France and the United States unite in an agreement to limit industrial production in order to stabilize world trade.

Mr. Edge might have reminded M. Reynaud that the great industrial countries never really suffer from overproduction. They do suffer and they are suffering now from underdistribution. Industrial management in the United States seeks, first of all, to make distribution and consumption easier. It aims in other words, to put more and more of the benefits and pleasures of modern life within the reach of the multitude and to make for ways scales that will steadily enlarge public buying power.

The purchasing power of almost all European peoples is sharply restricted by low wages, by diversions of national cash and credit to the business of war and to the checks which national political rivalries and the demands of European imperialism put upon consuming power. On the so-called lesser peoples, the wars in China and the upheavals in India and, more lately, the war talk rising between France and Italy, have been having a depressing effect on European export trade and on many European industries.

Talk of further checks on the production of essentials of modern life seems odd at a time when in all quarters of the earth people are in need of things which other people are eager to produce for them.

HANDS ACROSS THE ETHER

The radio has been heralded as a potent influence for overstepping national boundaries; bringing about a new spirit of internationalism, and creating world-wide friendship.

For instance: A radio station in Moscow broadcasts inflammatory talks in German, Germany protested. The Moscow government pointed out that there are many German colonists in Russia, and that the talks were designed solely for them, to give them the pleasure of hearing their native tongue.

Germany finds this hard to believe. In view of the fact that the talks begin: "Policemen and soldiers of Germany, remember you are proletarians in uniform. Long live the German soviet republic."

The Germans are going to retaliate. When the talks start their chief station is going to take the air with a hot broadcast of static, completely ruining reception.

The Axis belonging to Romania, which has been keeping radio propaganda out of its borders that way for a long time.

Perhaps we need a new maxim of science, to run like this: "Science means communication; communication means propaganda; propaganda means trouble."

What is true for Europe at any rate. The spectacle would be as enjoyable as a comic opera—if we didn't have an eternal recollection of the European comic opera which started in August, 1914.

Televisation is merely an admission that the other fellow has the inalienable right to be as mean as you are.

His mind is fit to marry a perfect woman, but fortunately we have to do it.

Little experiments make matrimony more interesting. For instance, try being polite.

Consensus is an excellent thing. It says you shouldn't and thus provides the kick.

OUTCOME OF MONTANA'S SENATE FIGHT LIKELY TO HAVE REAL SIGNIFICANCE AS FAR AS PROHIBITION ISSUES GOES

By Charles P. Stewart
(Central Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Montana's senate fight, between Senator Thos. J. Walsh, seeking re-election on the Democratic ticket, and Justice Albert J. Galem, of the state supreme court, the Republican nominee, furnishes a clean-cut illustration of the political situation this year in states where prohibition is a hotly-controverted issue.

This means a good many states. It does not mean states like Kansas, of course. Kansas is too dry for any argument. It does not mean states like New Jersey, which is so wet a state that both major senatorial candidates are wet.

It does mean states like Illinois, where wet sentiment is strong enough to encourage ex-Senator James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic senate candidate, to believe he may be able to overcome a normal G. O. P. majority exceeding half a million, and defeat Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, the Republicans' dry nominee.

It goes almost without saying that Illinois' fight is more important than Montana's, both geographically and because Illinois has ten or a dozen times Montana's population.

Nevertheless, perhaps the Montana contest's outcome will be the more significant of the two, wet-and-dry speaking.

That is, Montana's party balance is not so uneven, independently of the prohibition question. Even though Mr. McCormick wins, maybe, in Illinois, it will not follow that she did so as a dry; she ought to win, as a Republican. Ex-Senator Lewis will have to cut in very heavily upon the G. O. P.'s regulation margin before drys will be under obligations to admit that he accomplished it on account of his wetness; they can attribute any comparative small Democratic gains (should there be any) to other issues.

Indications are that the wet-and-dry line will be much more sharply drawn in Montana.

And yet, perhaps the real issue (the issue nearest to the hearts of the big bosses, as distinguished from the voters) will be less the prohibition issue in Montana than in Illinois.

This is the queer thing about prohibition in plenty of places.

It looks like the main issue, and no doubt it is the main issue to the rank and file of the electorate. In these wet-and-dry evenly divided localities. But is it the issue that the rank and file is being maneuvered by the bosses, to settle?

Montana, seemingly, is a wet state.

At any rate, it has dispensed with a state prohibition enforcement law, which is a pretty convincing manifestation of wetness—whether or not one recognizes any significance in the dampness of the majority's vote in the last straw vote on the subject.

However, it has been represented in Washington in recent years by two dry senators—Senators Walsh and Burton K. Wheeler.

Is this paradoxical? Or has the state been getting wetter?

From what he himself has told me, I believe I am justified in the conclusion that Senator Wheeler is not a dry on moral grounds.

He is very distinctly a working-man's senator. Like quite a few political radicals (which I do not mean in an uncompromising sense), I know, from his own lips, that he felt the worker could fight better for his rights minus alcohol, and voted to prohibit it on that ground—otherwise he wouldn't have done it.

While still upholding this theory, I also know from himself that he has grown increasingly perturbed of late at the prohibition issue's constant distraction of the voters' attention from economic movements which he deems vital; that enforcement has disappointed him; finally that he is convinced public opinion's trend is away at least from Volsteadism.

Briefly, Senator Wheeler seems to me a dry, all else being equal, but not adaptable to political desirability on the subject—to say nothing of a brute, necessarily.

Like Senator Wheeler, Senator Walsh is a vehement upholder of the principle of humanity's rights, as against the rights of liquor.

Now, in Montana, (a state of vast resources, which require huge accumulations of property to develop, but many humans to actually do the work) the dispute between proponents of these two rival groups of rights is especially hot.

Human rights have an advantage, as votes count, in 1932 they won, with Senator Wheeler's re-election.

This year is Senator Walsh's turn.

STOMACH GETS OUT OF PLACE AT TIMES—WITH SERIOUS RESULTS

By Dr. Morris Fishbein, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygieia, the Health Magazine

Each of the organs in the human being's interior has a place varying within reasonable limits which may be called its normal position. If the organ gets loose because the ligaments that hold it in position are too long or too loose, unusual symptoms may result.

Thus one hears of floating kidneys, twisted livers, dropped stomachs and intestines, and similar abnormalities of position of various internal organs.

A stomach that has dropped down out of position may get six or seven inches lower in the abdomen than it ought to and still not cause any considerable difficulty. If, however, it gets into a position in which there is difficulty in emptying the contents of the stomach into the intestines after food is taken, the difficulties accumulate.

Moreover, the changed position brings about changed positions in other organs and causes pressure in unusual places and these secondary features of the disturbance also bring about unusual symptoms. Incidentally, women suffer far more than do men with dropping of various organs. Dropping of the stomach is seen in from 20 to 30 per cent of women as compared with about five per cent of men.

The symptoms usually associated with dropping of the stomach are those associated with lack of proper activity of the stomach. There is the sense of fullness, cructations, early satiation on eating, and many of the other symptoms associated with dyspepsia. Of course, the certain method of finding out whether or not the stomach is in proper position is to put into it some substance which appears opaque to the X-ray and then take an X-ray picture or to look at the abdomen with the fluoroscope, with the patient in a standing position. Thus the exact location of the stomach may be determined.

If the falling of the stomach has been established for a long time all of the treatment must be palliative and related to giving the stomach the amount, and kind of work that it can do. The diet must be regulated as well as the amount of food, the times food is taken, and the patient's conduct before and after eating.

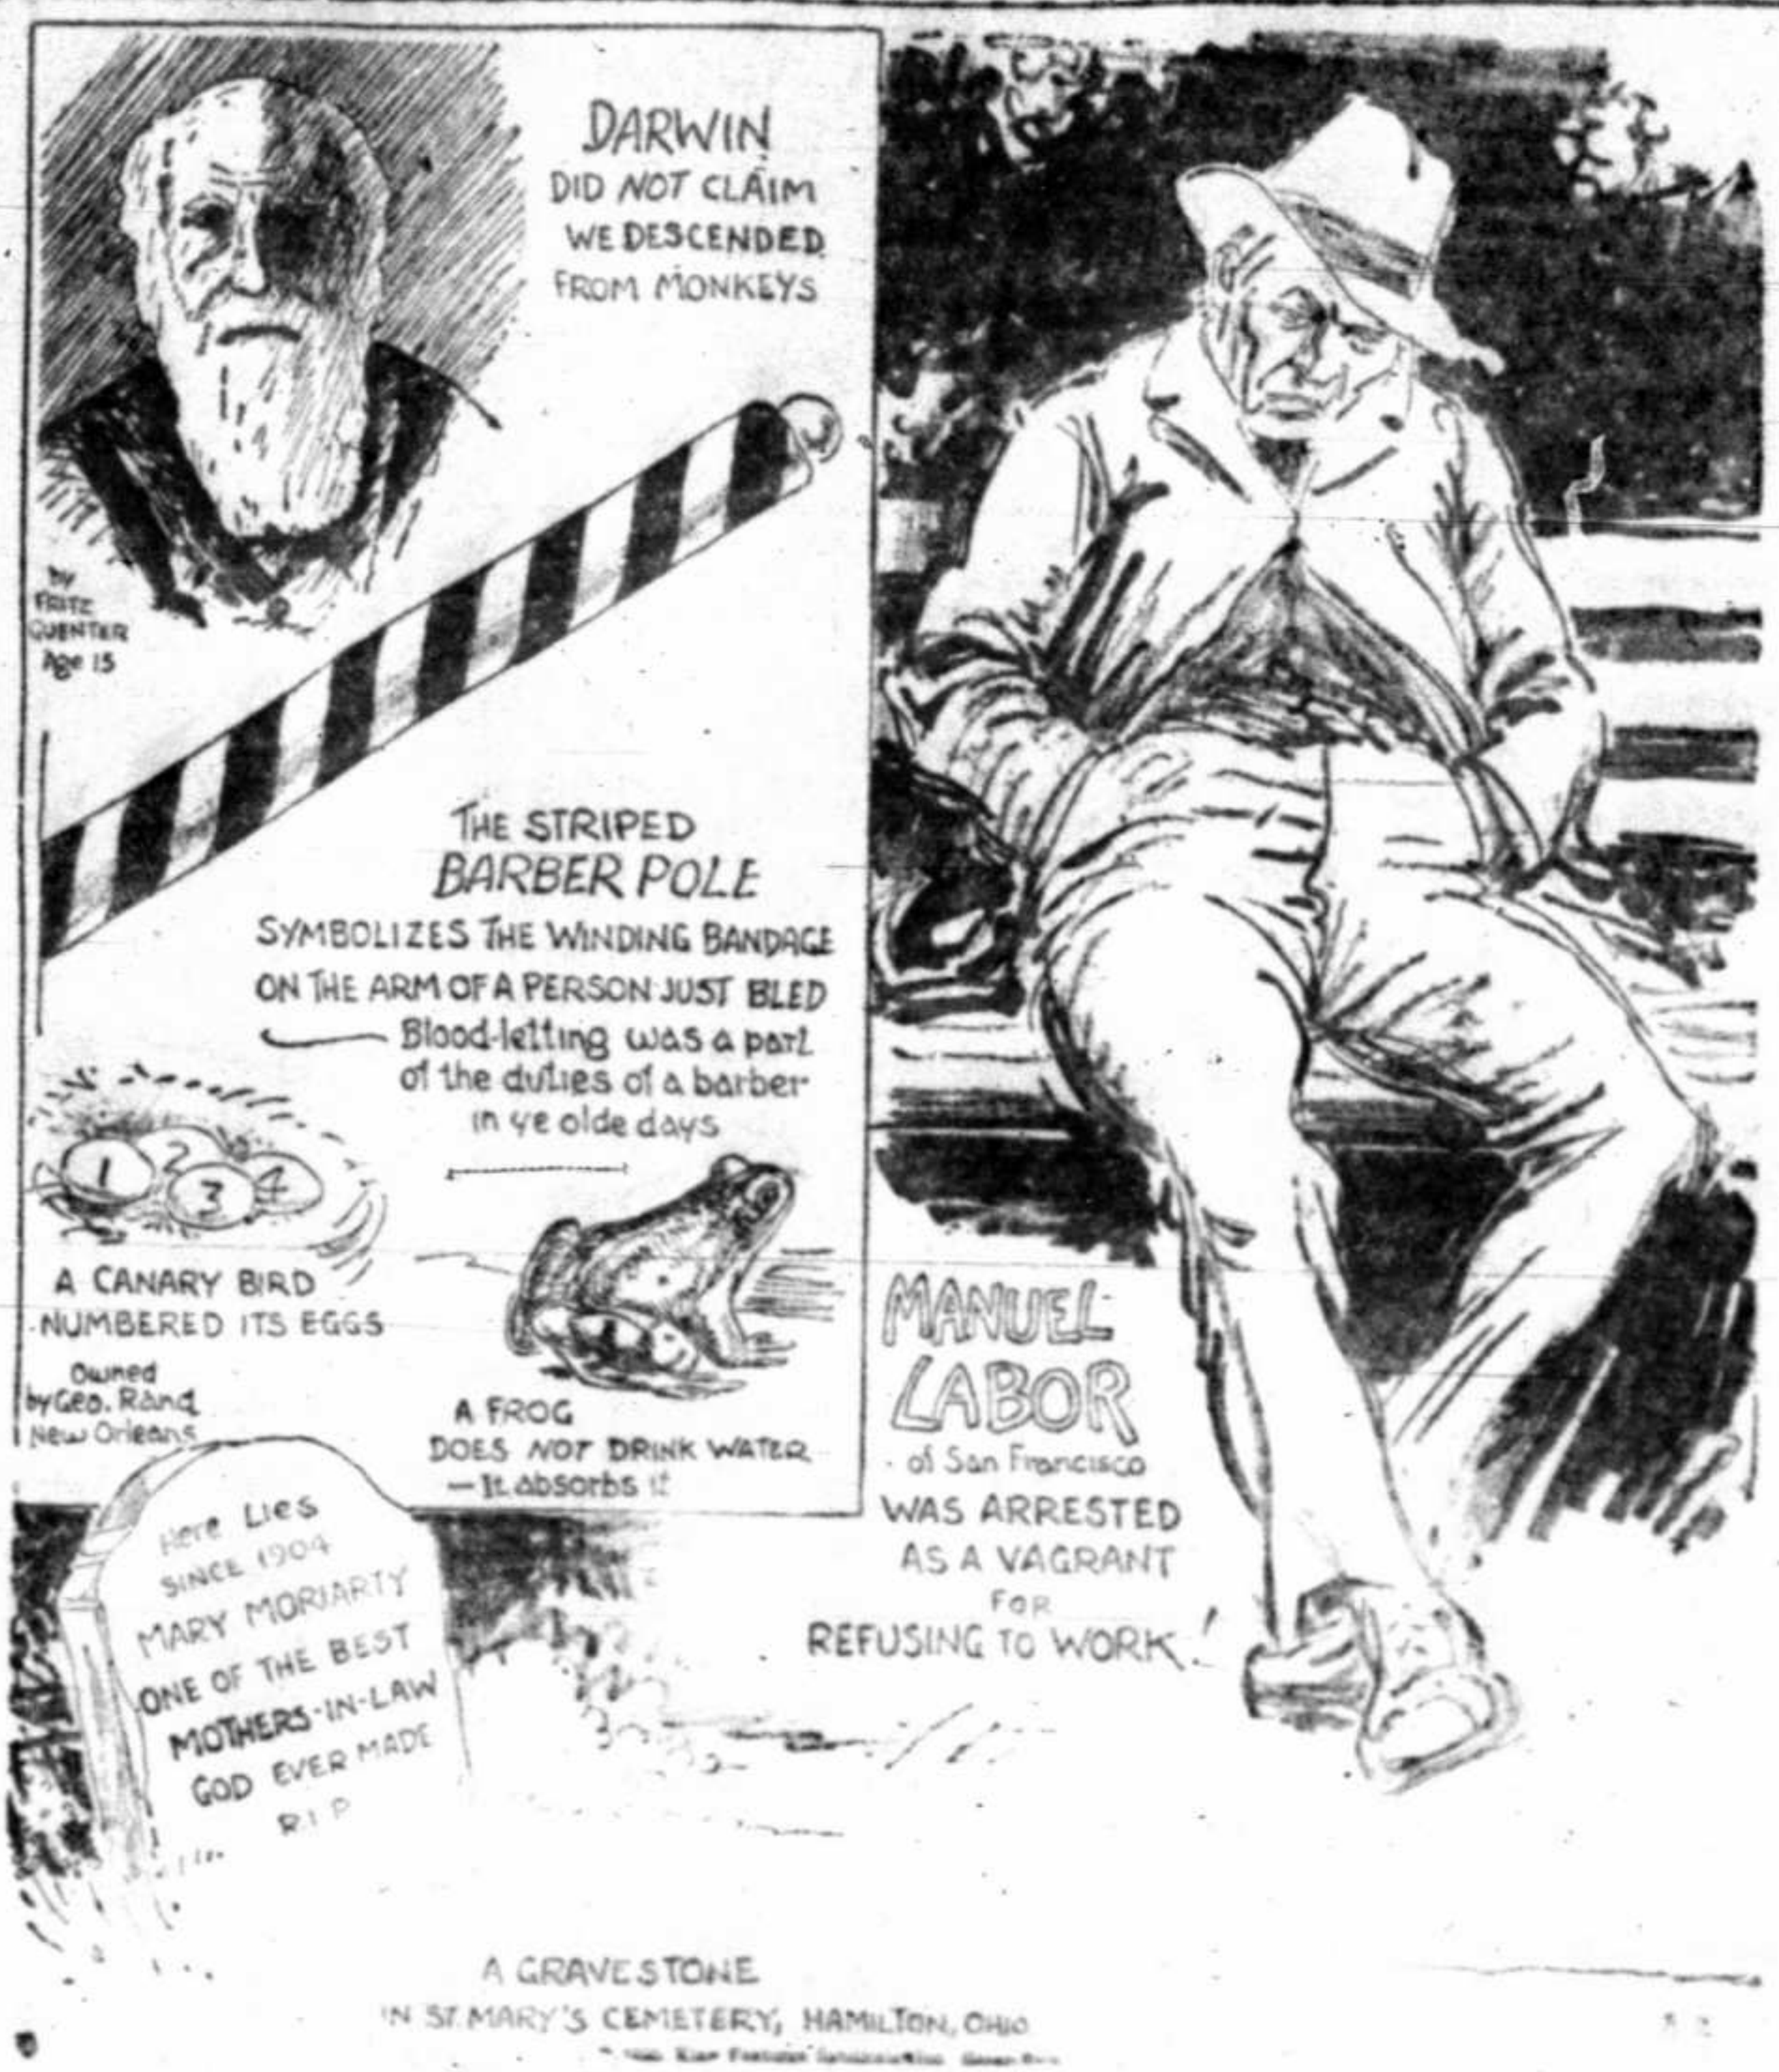

If the condition is seen early it is possible by the use of various supportive appliances, by suitable exercises of the abdominal muscles, by massage and hygiene, by increasing abdominal fat and lessening the amount of fluids and food generally to give the tissues a chance to build up more adequate support for the falling organs.

It must be nice to be so rich that you're not ashamed to ask the clerk for something cheaper.

DANCING JUDITH

by CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JUDITH GRANT, artist's model, loves ALAN STEVENS, painter, who is also loved by CHUMMY MORLEY, Judith's roommate, and best friend. Chummy had loved Stevie years ago, and lost her memory when he went away, so although he loves Judith, Judith insists it is his duty to marry Chummy, whose memory comes back when she sees him again. Judith studies dancing under the great GUARVENUS, and rich BRUCE GIDEON, whom Stevie distrusts, offers to star her in a musical show. Then Guarvenus is killed in a traffic accident, and Chummy breaks her engagement when she learns that Alan loves Judith. A friend of Guarvenus, RICHARD WYON, puts Judith in a show and she makes a sensational hit.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX
Judy cried for two days, on and off, because Guarvenus had not been there to see her triumph of his triumph, as she called it. Had he not taught her everything she knew, and had he not been like a father to her?

Of course, she found herself in a maze of business engagements, which at first confused her very much. For instance, Matthew Tannary, who controlled vast theatrical interests all over America, offered her a three-year contract at what seemed to her an enormous salary. She refused, of course, considering herself tied to Mr. Wyon; but when she told him about it, he urged her to accept the offer.

Even to Judy's ignorance of business methods this seemed a marvelously generous action. She tried to thank him.

"But, my dear young lady, I am only too glad to have been of service to you," Wyon repeated. "My advice to you is to accept Matthew Tannary's contract, beginning after Christmas. I wish you every possible success."

He beamed on her with his rather womanish smile. He seemed actually to want her to accept this contract. She was more than touched by his kindness.

Each night her success was repeated. In fact, the enthusiasm of the audience grew greater and greater. The house was packed to overflowing.

To Judy, it was still very unreal. The roar of applause always seemed to come from a very long way off. She hardly realized that the audience was shouting at her; but her friends' praise made her very happy. Bastien devoured her performance with his ardent eyes every single night. Tony Leigh and Michael Stone and all of the other boys thought her wonderful.

Everybody told her so. They drank her health when she went to the cafe one noonday. They made speeches in her honor. Michael Stone recited a poem he had written. They were almost crazy with delight in her triumph. It was the most wonderful thing that had ever happened in the lives of any of them.

Strangely enough, little Judy Grant was an artist in the classic sense. All that Guarvenus had taught her of innocent practice and study and rigid self-discipline and early hours she had grasped and made her own, so that it was now second nature.

Of her emotions Judy was ever a spendthrift, but of the energy necessary for her work, at this time of her life, she was a veritable miser. She showed no inclination to enlarge or improve her style of living. She stayed in her two modest, familiar rooms. She did not launch forth into clothes and hats; she never took a cab unless it was to go to the theater. She ate and drank so sparingly as ever. But for her work, she seemed to be in a state of suspended animation.

Thus passed a whole month, and Judy had refused all Gideon's invitations, as well as those of various people quite unknown to her who had suddenly desired her acquaintance. It rather amused her. They were very smart people, some of them. Ladies debated her with requests to dance for charity. Men of high rank begged her company at supper; but all to no purpose. Judy had placed herself entirely in Mr. Wyon's hands, and his advice was to keep herself entirely to herself.

On one occasion Mr. Wyon rather astonished her by asking her a personal question. They were in his rooms at the theater, and she had just shown him a copy of her contract with Matthew Tannary. He pronounced it to be most satisfactory.

Then he turned to her with the smile that always made her think of an old lady.

"Miss Grant, is Mr. Bruce Gideon, the well-known financier, a friend of yours? Somebody told me he was."

"Do you know him?" she asked sharply.

"I have met him—yes."

"I shouldn't really call him a friend of mine," Judy said, weighing her words; "but he has been very kind to me. He introduced me to dear Mr. Guarvenus, you know."

"Oh, did he?"

"I'm sure I've told you that before, Mr. Wyon."

"Oh, yes, Miss Grant. I believe you did mention it. I understand Mr. Gideon is a very remarkable man."

"As a matter of fact," she said impulsively, "Mr. Gideon wanted to do just what you've done for me, Mr. Wyon."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, but Mr. Guarvenus offered to bring me out himself."

"When he died, didn't Mr. Gideon renew his offer?"

"He might have done. I don't know. I didn't give him the chance."

Better Train Service Made By Santa Fe

Improvements Are Announced by J. A. Gillies, Superintendent of Slaton Division of Railway, Starts Soon

(Special To The Avalanche)

SLATON, Aug. 1.—Improving passenger service on the Sweetwater-Slaton-Clovis and Sweetwater-Slaton-Amarillo lines of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, changes in passenger train schedules on the two lines were announced here by J. A. Gillies, superintendent of the Slaton division.

Better train service also will be available between points on the old Orient line now owned and operated by the Santa Fe, as a result of the schedule changes, which will become effective August 10, Gillies pointed out. The new schedules were completed Wednesday.

Improvements Made
Although there will be no change in the number of trains operated, the new tables provide improvement in schedules and connections, Gillies said.

To Arrive Earlier
Train No. 93 from Amarillo will reach Slaton at 12:10 p. m. instead of at 12:30 p. m., and will depart at 1:40 p. m. for Sweetwater. Train No. 94 will arrive here from Amarillo at 10:25 p. m., departing for Sweetwater at 10:30 p. m., as at present.

Train No. 94 from Sweetwater will arrive at Slaton at 6:25 a. m. instead of 6:45 a. m., and will depart at 6:50 a. m. instead of at 7:00 a. m., as at present. Train No. 95 will reach Slaton from Sweetwater at 3:30 p. m. instead of 3:55 p. m., departing for Amarillo at 3:55 p. m.

Train No. 92 from Slaton to Clovis will leave Slaton at 6:45 a. m., and reach Clovis at 9:40 a. m. Train No. 91 from Clovis to Slaton will leave Clovis at 10:15 a. m., arriving in Slaton at 1:20 p. m., connecting with No. 93 from Amarillo, which leaves Slaton at 1:40 p. m. for Sweetwater.

Connections at Sweetwater, Slaton, Lubbock, and other points along the route will be improved.

On the Lamesa branch, Train No. 83 will leave Slaton at 7:15 a. m., returning to Slaton as Train No. 84 at 3 p. m. daily, except Sundays.

chance."

"Why was that, Miss Grant?"

"Well, you see, it was somehow different with him. It wouldn't have been entirely business, like it is with you, Mr. Wyon. I can't explain, but you can do things with people people and not with others. Do you know what I mean?"

"I think I do, Miss Grant. At any rate, as I have often said, I am only too pleased to have been of service to you. Have you seen Mr. Gideon lately?" he added casually.

"No, not for ages—not really since the first night when he came behind for a few minutes. I've so much to do, and you know me not to bother about society."

"Quite so, quite so, Miss Grant," he replied. "But of course one must discriminate. Some people may be very useful to your career."

"Well, the next time Mr. Gideon asks me to dinner I'll accept," she said. "You must come, too. Mr. Wyon, and meet him again. By the way, I think I might give a little dinner party myself one of these days."

When the had gone, and he knew that she was safely in her dressing room, Mr. Wyon rang up Bruce Gideon.

"I have done what you asked me to," he said, when Gideon's soft voice answered. "I brought up your name in conversation with the young lady just now."

"Yes?" asked Gideon eagerly.

"Well?"

"She has not the slightest suspicion," he said, when Gideon's soft voice answered. "If she is avoiding you, it is not because of this. She thoroughly believes in my business dealings with her. She told me about your offer to her, and gave me to understand that she looked on it differently—more personally, I suppose."

"And here's a little hint—she said that the next time you asked her to dine she would accept, and I must come too," Mr. Wyon laughed discreetly. "But I will be conveniently engaged, or indisposed."

He hung up the receiver, with his characteristic smile on his face.

Judy full of her idea of giving a dinner party to all her friends, thought out Chummy the next day. She was hard at work on a big canvas for an important exhibition. She still looked well, but very tired, and Judy was alarmed by the way she turned to her and said:

"Judy, do you know that Alan has returned. Have you seen him? Do you know if it's true that he's been ill?"

Judy's heart gave a wild leap, and then seemed to stop still. She did not know what her face expressed. She did not give it a thought. She was too much taken up with the idea that Alan was back, and ill—perhaps alone—with nobody to look after him.

She did not feel her friend's quiet gaze riveted on her face. She did not know that her secret was written on it plainly for all to see. Perhaps the fact that she had already seen for herself that Chummy knew made her less on her guard.

"Who told you?" she asked, finding her voice.

"Easiest last night. He had seen her. Hyman—yes, remember him. Judy, at the dance last night, Mr. Hyman told Easiest that Alan had been ill. I thought perhaps you would have heard."

"No—why should I?" asked Judy, in a more tranquil tone than she had ever used to Chummy before.

"Why didn't you go and time out?" Mr. Hyman told Easiest that Alan was already better, and had gone away.

"Where to?"

"He didn't seem to know." "I don't know Mr. Easiest was in America," Judy said with elaborate carelessness.

"He came back for your first night."

"How do you know?"

"Michael saw him at the stage door."

"I'm sure he didn't," cried Judy indignantly. "If he was there, I never saw him. Chummy, I think you're rather extraordinary! Once before you seemed to think I might have heard from Mr. Easiest. Why would I any more than you?"

"I thought you had been good friends."

"But you said you're still friends."

with him, Chummy."

"I know—only it's a little awkward, you see."

"I don't see!" Judy spoke almost angrily in her misery. "And I think you're awfully silly not to make it up with him," she added, her loyalty coming to her aid and making her voice quite steady and even-tempered. "You must be out of your mind, Chummy dear, to think that your old painting comes before Mr. Easiest, whom you've loved all these years. In time you'll see I'm right!"

When Judy's dinner party took place, it was the merriest function that was ever held in Gideon's upstairs room. All Judy's old friends were there, and Vincent Stornaway and Bruce Gideon—and Mr. Wyon.

Dan, who was invited as a guest, insisted on helping the waiters; but he sang his Italian songs later on, and they danced and talked and drank champagne until the night had merged into the next day.

Chummy talked a good deal with Bruce Gideon, and naturally all about Judy. She went home and battled with her thoughts. She understood now much that had puzzled her. She understood it since she had found Judy and Alan together, and had discovered that they loved each other.

She remembered how strangely Alan had behaved about Judy and Mr. Gideon—how violent he had been, how he had even asked her to warn her friend against the man. At the time she had thought him a little unreasonable. Now she understood that he had been wildly jealous of Gideon.

But now, of course, everything would come right in time. Alan would come back, and he and Judy would meet. Neither of them dreamed that Chummy had discovered their secret. Time would do the rest. She had only to play her part.

At this point poor Chummy got into bed and cried herself to sleep.

Prisoner Removes Clothes And Soaps
Body to Escape Between Bars of Jail
At Brownfield To Be Caught Same Day

Pressing through a small hole sawed in his cell door, Jim Harris early Friday morning escaped from the Brownfield jail and less than six hours later was in custody of Sheriff Mun Telford of Brownfield.

Committed to jail on an automobile theft charge, Harris succeeded in sawing a hole in his cell door, hardly large enough for a dog to squeeze through. His "Houdini act" was performed at the expense of a badly lacerated back and body.

The prisoner had removed his clothes and soaped his body so that he could slide against the iron bars.
Past the bars, he gained entrance to the hallway, hammered through a ceiling and entered an outside room where wooden doors were the only bar to freedom.

Harris escaped about 2 o'clock Friday morning, was apprehended in a rilling station at Wellman, and was in Sheriff Telford's custody at 8:30 o'clock.

"This time for keeps," was the officer's comment on the capture.

TO START CRUISE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 1. (AP)— Officials of the Dollar Line said today the liner President Harrison would start a cruise around the world at midnight tonight, after a delay of more than a day because of a fire in the ship's hold. Howarth Lewis, assistant passenger agent for the line, estimated the damage would not exceed $100,000.

14 Divisions
Of Fair NamedOfficials of South Plains Fair Association Announce Superintendents; Discuss Plans for Exposition

Selection of superintendents of 14 divisions in the 1936 Panhandle-South Plains fair, which will begin here in late September, were announced Friday following a meeting of fair officials in the chamber of commerce offices.

Plans for an exhibition program, which officials said would be superior to those of past years, were discussed. Virtually all departments will be enlarged and a building program being executed will make possible handling of an increased number of entries.

Included in the list of superintendents are:

Agriculture, D. F. Eaton; Agricultural individual exhibits, H. J.
Bower; women's department, Mrs.
Hub Jones; Red Cross, Miss Vera Murfee; beef cattle, W. L. Stange; swine, Douglas Pounds; Boys' club work, D. F. Eaton; Girls' club work, Miss Louise Baird; poultry, Aubrey Ashley; Lorenzo; textiles, Mrs.
Thomas West; culinary, Mrs. J. S.
Johnson; plants and cut flowers,
Mrs. W. O. Stevens; art, Miss Della Wilkinson; relics, antiques and curios, Mrs. W. F. Schenck.

Superintendents for the boy scout, dairy cattle, horse, mule, general livestock, and sheep have not as yet been named.

No Agreement In Bridge Argument

AUSTIN, Aug. 1. (AP)—No agreement had been reached today between the Texas and Oklahoma highway commissions toward adjustment of differences on construction of a free bridge across the Red river between Gainesville, Texas, and Marietta, Okla.

W. R. Ely, Texas commissioner, stated that work orders on the structure would not be issued by Texas until the points in controversy are settled.

The main point being contended is whether the Oklahoma commission shall have the right to set the date for the opening of the bridge according to Texas officials. An agreement entered into between the two commissions and the Red river bridge company, operators of the toll bridge, gave the Oklahoma commission the right to set this date.

Contracts for the bridge, which already had been signed, were recalled by Governor Dan Moody when this clause in the agreement was brought to his attention.

Man Shoots Wife,
Commits Suicide

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 1. (AP)— Mrs. Louise Wood, pretty 20-year old matron, was shot to death late last night by her estranged husband who later took his own life.

The shooting took place in front of the home of Mrs. Wood's mother, Mrs. Marjorie Hall, in a fashionable residential section here.

Mrs. Hall said her daughter and Wood had been separated for about a week and that the daughter had filed suit for divorce yesterday.

Wood was the manager of a tire store here.

Annual Encampment; Capt.
H. H. Griffith in Charge

Sixty-one National Guardsmen of Battery C, 131st Field Artillery, commanded by H. H. Griffith, left Lubbock at noon Friday to attend the annual encampment at Palacios.
The artillerymen who boarded a special car on the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad here, were preceded two days ago by the service battery of the unit, under command of Capt. Ben F. Condray, composed of 37 men.

Lieut. J. V. Spikes is second in command of Battery C, and Lieut.
Ross Owens of the service battery.
Capt. O. W. English of the 131st Medical regiment has been assigned to special duty with the unit, which he is accompanying to the camp.

The guardsmen are expected to return here August 17, officers said.

Believe It Or Not, Letter With Only Pictures For Address Delivered Here

Bearing a picture of "Believe it or Not," the title of Robert Ripley's famous daily cartoon, an envelope mailed in Lubbock late Friday morning was received several hours later at the offices of the Avalanche-Journal.

Usually the question, "Shall I draw a picture of it?" is the outgrowth of a miniature charade on anything from politics to an advertising gadget. The picture-language address, however, was accompanied by no further directions, and its prompt delivery was a tribute to Ripley, who has established "believe it or not" as an inseparable part of the "American language."

Sketches of a bee with wings outstretched, a leaf, the letters "IT R." and a knot on a tree trunk composed the easily translated address. The envelope will be forwarded to Ripley, who often reproduces such addresses in his car-

Husband Gets Divorce from Indian Wife

Property Settlement Made to Tulsa Automobile Salesman of $30,000; Desertion on Honeymoon Charged

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 1. (AP)—A divorce from Maude Lee Mudd Gordon Wilson, wealthy Seneca-Osage Indian, together with a property settlement of $30,000 was awarded E. E. Gordon, Tulsa automobile salesman, in district court here yesterday by Judge Owen.

Gordon charged his wealthy wife deserted him soon after their marriage in June, 1925, while the two were in California on their honeymoon. The marriage was performed in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Gordon appeared in court with his attorney. The Indian girl was not present but was represented by counsel.

The court order directed the commissioner of Indian affairs to pay the $30,000 settlement to Gordon.

The divorce simplified the marital status of the Indian girl, who at one time was reputed to be heiress to $3,000,000. After leaving Gordon she established legal residence in Arizona and obtained an annument of the marriage. Subsequently she was married to Joseph Wilson, formerly of Fairland, Okla.
Gordon succeeded in having the annulment decree set aside. That action left the Indian girl with two husbands.

Gordon made several attempts to have Wilson prosecuted on kidnaping charges, but Wilson never was brought to trial.

The Indian girl, a sort of will-o'-the-wisp since her financial and marital affairs began to place her much in the limelight, is reported to be now in Denver, Colo.
