Carter energy plan through incubating

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy program, incubating quietly in Congress since April, is emerging swiftly this week much as the President conceived it.

The spur is Congress' summer recess, due to begin Saturday. Congressional leaders set aside the full week for action on the President's program. Among developments:

—In a Rose Garden ceremony this morning, Carter signed the bill passed Wedneday creating the new Energy Department, the first new Cabinet office in 11 years. With his signature, a bureaucracy of 20,000 employes — now in other energy-related agencies — came into being.

—The Senate Energy Committee planned a vote today on Carter's nomination of James R. Schlesinger Jr. as secretary of energy. Committee approval was expected to be routine, and the nomination could go to the full Senate on Friday.

—The House faced a vote today on a proposed five-cent per gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax. But the congressman handling the bill on the floor said it could fall as many as 100 votes short of passage because of public opposition. The current federal tax is four cents a gallon.

—The House voted against deregulating the price of natural gas on Wednesday, a key victory for the President, adopting instead a formula allowing slightly higher prices for newly discovered natural gas.

The energy package has survived relatively intact since Carter first submitted it in April. His biggest defeat has come in the area of gasoline taxes.

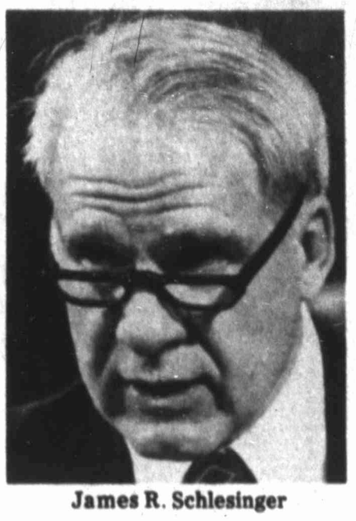

The five-cent tax before the House was only a remnant of the 50-cent standby tax authority for which Carter originally asked. The 50-cent tax was killed by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Carter has pushed for some tax authority, however, arguing higher prices are needed to discourage consumption.

But in other areas, Carter has succeeded.

His Energy Department proposal involves one of the biggest government reorganizations in years. The new department swallows three agencies — the Federal Power Commission, the Energy Research and Development Administration and the Federal Energy Administration. It also takes most energy matters from the Interior Department.

The new department will have jurisdiction over energy conservation, research, transportation, pricing, development, delivery, rationing and, for nuclear fuels, safety and waste disposal.

Oilmen express disappointment

By JOE SALMAN

"We don't want to say this defeat will put the industry out of business, but I thought yesterday was very disappointing," Charles Fraser of Midland said today.

Fraser, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, and several other West Texans went to Washington Sunday in a final effort to get the amendment sponsored by Bob Krueger, D-Texas; Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, and Tim Wirth, D-Colo., passed.

The amendment, which would have allowed decontrol of new gas and leave intrastate sales of natural gas free of federal jurisdiction, failed 227-199.

"Krueger agrees with me that the defeat of the amendment is certainly no mandate that the President has the right energy plan," Fraser said.

"That is shown by the fact that we mustered 199 votes for the amendment against all the muscle the administration could send against the amendment," Fraser explained.

Fraser said it is particularly disappointing that Majority Leader Jim Wright, Charles Wilson, Henry Gonzales and Barbara Jordan, along with our "arch enemy" Bob Eckhardt, all Texans, voted to kill the amendment.

"I can not comprehend that they would be in favor of legislation that introduces federal control of the intrastate gas market," Fraser said.

"We are now hopeful there will be some form of decontrol in the Senate. As to what will happen in conference committee we don't know, but it is going to be an extremely tough fight," the PBPA president said.

Fraser said he and five other persons talked to 50 or more congressmen the two and a half days before the vote, and "I spent some time with Dr. James Schlesinger's staff Monday."

"Right now, our next step is to do anything we can to support the Pat Schroeder of Colorado and Jimmy Jones of Oklahoma amendment which will provide for a very modest recovery of the crude oil equalization tax. The President also opposes this amendment, but I think we have a chance to win it.

With Fraser in Washington are Joseph I. O'Neill III, Ed Thompson, John Wilson, all of Midland, and Joe McShane of Monahans and Dick Heuer of Monahans.

Fraser said said the House AdHoc Energy Committee amendement which passed Wednesday was a small plus for the gas industry.

"It materially improves the definition of new gas and provides for the certainty of the base price of new gas at $1.75," Fraser said.

Fraser said this amendment, refered to as a compromise worked out by Congressmen Wilson, Eckhardt and Wright, had a lot to do with the defeat of the Krueger-Brown-Wirth amendment.

Krueger said in Washington late Wednesday that the failure of the amendment is "a real defeat for the

Carbon added to help city water

By JIM STEINBERG

Activated carbon was added to Midland's water supply Wednesday afternoon in an attempt to combat the water's poor taste and strong odor.

The aesthetically displeasing "wood-like" taste and accompanying unpleasant odor began to emerge in the tap water last weekend, city officials said, when green-blue algae on the bottom of Lake Spence suddenly began dying and floating to the surface.

City Assistant Utility Director John Lowe said that this "turning of the lake" poses no health danger and is a common occurrence every summer, although this year's problem is noticeably worse than last year's.

Cool weather or a heavy rainfall would end the water problem, Lowe said, adding that with this unlikely solution, the addition of the activated carbon treatment at the city's water purification plant is the only answer.

The additional stage in the water treatment costs an additional $337 a day.

Water from Lake Spence located near Robert Lee comprises about 80 per cent of Midland's drinking water. The remainder comes from the Paul Davis well field about 30 miles north of Midland.

Lowe said it would be several days before the activated carbon treated water moved down the water lines and into users' faucets.

Ironically the city's potential supply for the most pleasant tasting water is suffering heavily from drought conditions and is not presently used.

Lake Thomas, located northeast of Big Spring, has a capacity of 220,000 acre feet of water but now holds only about 36,000 acre feet. By contrast, Lake Spence has 160,000 acre feet of water with a 400,440 acre feet capacity.

The city draws about 15 million gallons of water a day from Lake Spence and another 9 million or so from the Paul Davis fields. Water from both sources is mixed and treated at the purification plant located in the 5600 block of North Midland Drive. The exact ratio of well water to lake water varies each day, Lowe said.

The addition of chlorine at the purification plant intensifies the odors and poor taste produced by the decaying algae, Lowe said.

So far this year Midland's demand for water has topped last year's twice. On July 11 Midlanders used 26.2 million gallons of water and on July 28 some 26 million gallons were used. The record day last year was in August when 24.6 million gallons were used. During the winter the average use is roughly seven milion gallons per day.

Lowe calculated that during the summer four to six million gallons of water a day are consumed by evaporative air coolers.

Although some parts of the country are facing strict water rationing, because of some far-sighted thinking, Midland would probably not face these hardships even is no significant rain were recorded, for seven years.

At that time Lake Spence would be dry, Lowe said, but water rights on the T-Bar Ranch, 65 miles northwest of Midland, provide access to 926,000 acre feet of water, enough to last almost 100 years.

One good rain near Gail, Lowe pointed out, could put Lake Thomas back in business as a possible supplier of city water.

He would rather be cowboy than president

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

Austin Doolittle looked lean and hungry — like an old cowhand who had been riding the West Texas range on a tired and scraggy horse for days on end.

Instead of swinging off the left stirrup, Doolittle stepped down from the left side of the dingy-white pickup truck.

It was loaded down with an old upright piano, drums and other such things for making hot-shot country music — more hillbilly than swing.

It wasn't like Doolittle to drive up, either. Usually, he hitches a ride in from Seminole each Tuesday to help herd the cattle for auction at the Southwestern Livestock Auction Co.

Or, it wouldn't surprise anybody who knows this old cowhand if he were to mosey in on a trusted mount.

He had come to Midland to entertain and to work. He was outfitted for the latter.

But he gave you the distinct impressed that his dress for most any occasion was always the same: working cowboy garb.

After all, that's what he is: a hired hand.

"I've worked ranches in six different states," said this 6-feet-2, lanky character who claims kinship with aviator Jimmy Doolittle.

"His granddaddy and my granddaddy are (were) brothers," he said.

But this land-loving Texas Doolittle can do without the name-dropping bit. He stands out fine all by himself.

And he's proud of his upbringings, his heritage and what he is.

"Lord have mercy," Doolittle declared, "my granddaddy was a cowboy."

He was wearing an old Army-type olive-drab trench coat, faded jeans, well-worn boots, a blue shirt and, quite proudly, a Western hat approaching the 10-gallon size.

Before the day was out, Doolittle would partake of some of the vittles being prepared at the old chuckwagon and in a pit.

He would be playing the drums and occasionally singing with the Jean Ennis "Hot Shots" Western band out of Lamesa.

The eight-piece country band was brought in to entertain the hundreds of folks who came to help Doug Brazil celebrate his first year of owning and running the Southwestern Livestock Auction just east of Midland.

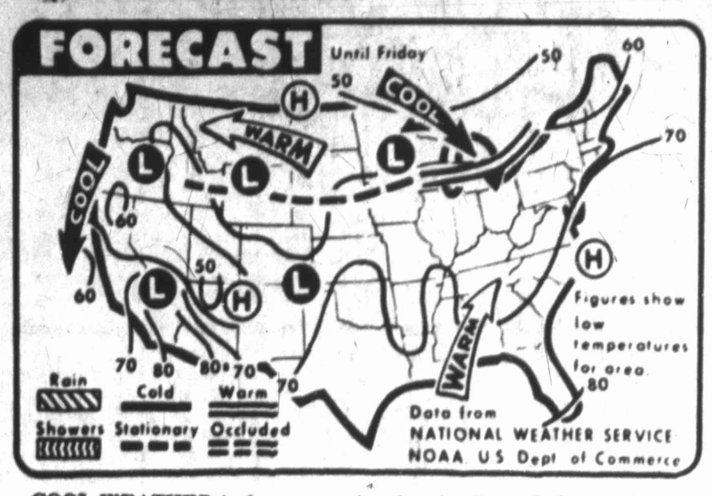

Fittingly enough, the group's lead singer was a Hank Williams type.

Protester tells why he, others seek repeal of income tax law

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

"The 16th Amendment is part of an atheist-inspired plan to overthrow a nation divinely inspired by God," according to Thomas Flournoy.

Flournoy said Wednesday, "Almost everyone in America, unless they are an atheist, believes the Constitution is a divinely inspired document."

Flournoy compared the 16th amendment with Article II of Karl Marx's Communist Manifesto which, Flournoy said, advocates a heavy and graduated income tax as a way to overthrow a government.

Although Flournoy's statements are hard for some people to believe, he and a group of Midland and Odessa residents backed up their beliefs by filing a suit Friday in Midland's Federal District Court against the Internal Revenue Service in an effort to have the Federal Income Tax Law declared unconstitutional and void.

One reason the law is illegal, Flournoy claimed, is because Federal Reserve Notes are not legal money, and thus cannot be taxed as income.

"The real purpose of the suit is to get backing of our money with gold or silver, and not be at the mercy of the Federal Reserve System" he said.

Congress has defined a dollar to be equivalent to 428 grams of silver, he said. "A silver dollar is wealth, but a Federal Reserve Note is debt," he added.

A secret to a good government and economic system is to have gold and silver behind the money, Flournoy said.

Flournoy blames the current inflationary spiral on Federal Reserve Notes because they are not backed by gold or silver. "The Federal Reserve System can cause a depression by controlling the amount of money in the country by controlling the interest rates," he said.

Gold or silver backing would control the amount of money put into circulation, he added.

Flournoy cited a Supreme Court case in which the Court ruled promissory notes cannot be taxed, "and Federal Reserve Notes are promissory notes," he said.

Although he claims Federal Reserve Notes are illegal, he admitted that they are accepted for payment in daily transactions.

However, he said a silver dollar and silver certificate are worth five times more than a Federal Reserve Note or silver coins currently used.

A silver dollar is worth $5 at a coin shop, he maintained.

Another reason cited by Flournoy for the illegality of the income tax law is that only Congress is allowed to collect taxes, not the IRS. He also said the tax was intended to be a volunteer tax, but the IRS uses coercive methods to collect taxes.

"A person...can tell if a law is good or bad by asking himself if the law abides by individual rights," he said.

"Do I, as an individual, have the right to force my neighbor to do something to accomplish my goals?"

Flournoy said if the tax law was left on a voluntary basis for someone to give his money, it would be proper, but the law is not.

"An illegal organization like the IRS, under a code of law, forces people to do things they don't have to do. As a result, people have started taking the Fifth Amendment on their income tax returns," he said.

Although Flournoy contends that the Constitution gives Congress the authority to collect taxes, Congress does not have the authority to spend tax money for things he said were unconstitutional, including foreign aid, food stamps and welfare.

"The people have not delegated authority to the elected officials to give foreign aid, food stamps, welfare, or to control anything," he said.

"They (Congress) are in the business of controlling free enterprise."

The suit also contends the income tax law requires information on tax returns that "might tend to incriminate defendants," thus violating the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Flournoy said the IRS admits there is never a tax return submitted in which they cannot find something wrong.

"Anything put on a tax return can be used against you in court," he said.

If the IRS wants to charge you with fraud, they can, he added.

Flournoy said it is not a criminal offense to claim the Fifth Amendment.

He also claimed the Fourth Amendment protects a person from unreasonable search and seizure of his property and papers, yet the IRS has full access to property and papers.

Several court rulings in the past have ruled against the contentions claimed in the suit, including the contentions using the Fifth Amendment, illegal money and objection to government spending.

In Autenrieth, et al., v. Cullen et al., the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in 1969 ruled, "The fact that some person may object, on religious grounds, to some of the things that the government does is not a basis upon which they can claim a constitutional right not to pay a part of the tax."

In Porth v. Brodrick, the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1954 dismissed an attack on the Sixteenth Amendment as being "clearly insubstantial, without merit, farfetched and frivolous."

And in U.S. v. Daly, the Eighth Circuit Appeals Court ruled in 1973 that the contention that only gold and silver currency may be constitutionally taxed is "clearly frivolous."

Despite these rulings, Flournoy still believes he will be successful with his suit.

Although he could not cite any specific incidents, "unless he looked them up," he claimed the IRS takes these court rulings out of context. "They leave part of it out," he said.

Finally, the suit contends the tax law is unconstitutional because Ohio had not been legally admitted by Congress into the union at the time of the 16th Amendment's ratification, while the state played a significant part in composing and ratifying the amendment.

However, Flournoy could not specifically state why Ohio was not a legal state other than "it had something to do with the governor not being a legal governor." He also could not cite the role Ohio had in composing and ratifying the amendment.

If the group is successful in their suit, Flournoy said the country would be better off.

"We became the greatest nation on earth without an income tax, and we have been going down ever since the 16th Amendment was ratified in 1913," he said.

Instead of an income tax, the suit advocates the issuance of "U.S. Notes" to replace the Federal Reserve Notes to pay off the national debt. The suit contends this action would release $200 to $300 billion to pay for products and plants, and to give the economy a boost.

The group has requested a jury trial instead of a single judge's ruling for the suit because, Flournoy said, that is the way the judicial system is set up.

"I don't like having one man —a king you might say— giving a ruling on something," he said.

WTPA annual meeting to open here Friday

The West Texas Press Association's 47th annual summer convention will convene here Friday, with headquarters to be established in the Midland Hilton.

The conference, which will continue through Saturday night, is expected to attract more than 150 newspaper editors and publishers, both men and women, from throughout West Texas. The Reporter-Telegram is the host newspaper.

Roy McQueen, publisher of the Snyder Daily News, Snyder, is president of the association, and Bill Comedy of the Haskell Free Press, Haskell, is the first vice president and convention chairman.

Other officers are Terry Neill, Stanton Reporter, Stanton, second vice president; Virgil Moore, Breckenridge American, Breckenridge, chairman of the board, and Bob Craig, Hamlin Herald, Hamlin, secretary-treasurer.

Directors are Gene Snyder of Denver City, Dr. Billy I. Ross, Texas Tech, Lubbock; Charles Richards, Levelland; Larry Crabtree, Vernon; Jim Reynolds, Crosbyton, and Don Richards, Azle.

Bob Hamilton, publisher of the Iowa Park Leader at Iowa Park, who was named president of the Texas Press Association at its annual meeting in June, will attend the convention as a special guest. He is a past president of the West Texas association.

A golf tournament scheduled at Ranchland Hill Country Club and a tennis tournament to be held on the courts at Midland College are the convention openers. Participants will assemble in the hotel lobby at 8 a.m. Tom Blakemore of Lubbock and Jim Allison Jr. of Midland are co-chairmen of the golf tourney. Don Richards of Azle and H.A. Tuck of Midland are in charge of the tennis meet.

The convention registration desk will open at 10 a.m. in the hotel lobby, with Mrs. Bob Craig of Hamlin in charge.

The opening session of the conference will begin at 2 p.m. Harrell Feldt, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, will voice the address of welcome.

A panel on "Newspaper Persons and Their Community" will open the session. Terry Neill of Stanton is the moderator.

"Advertising and New Ideas" is the subject of another panel discussion to be heard during the afternoon, with Frank Baker of Fort Stockton in charge.

A dinner is scheduled at 6 p.m., following which the convention delegates will attend the Summer Mummers' production in the American Legion Hall.

The annual West Texas Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Awards Breakfast at 8 a.m. Saturday will start the second day's activities. WTCC President E. Bruce Street of Graham, J. Fike Godfrey of Abilene, executive vice president, and other WTCC staff members are expected to be in attendance. Don Richards is the newspaper contest chairman.

The breakfast will be followed at 9:30 a.m. by another general session at which David Werst of Big Lake will head a panel discussion on "The First Look at Newspapers by Newcomers."

This will be followed by another panel including three veteran newspaper publishers — Roy Craig of Stamford, Walter Buckel of Lamesa and Bill Comedy of Haskell — — on "Central Plants and Other Matters Which Need Attention."

A luncheon at the Hilton is scheduled for noon, with J.C. "Jim" Bowden Jr. of Midland, Mid-Continent Division reservoir engineer, Exxon Co.,U.S.A., as the guest speaker.

New officers and directors of the association for 1977-78, to be elected at the Saturday morning business session, will be presented during the luncheon.

Conducted tours of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame and of The Reporter-Telegram are scheduled during the afternoon.

The president's reception is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. at Hilton poolside. A dinner and dance, scheduled to follow, will be the concluding events.

Tanzania head, President meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today intensified his efforts to achieve black-white detente in southern Africa as he received Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, a long-time foe of white supremacy in that region.

Nyerere is the first African leader to be invited by Carter here on a state visit.

At a welcoming ceremony on the White House south grounds, Nyerere set the tone for his two days of meetings with Carter when he said, "We in Tanzania have greatly welcomed your adminstration's new approach relating to the liberation of my continent from colonialism and racism."

Carter greeted the 55-year-old African leader, making his first visit here in 14 years, with effusive praise, calling him wise, experienced, and a superb politician who is "admired in every council of world leaders."

Carter added that Nyerere is a well-educated scholar, a philosopher, a great writer and a man of integrity.

Nyerere's visit here symbolizes the warming relations between the United States and black African nations since the Carter administration took office.

consumers and producers of our state and nation."

"This is going to mean that jobs now in Texas will leave because the government will have the power to allocate gas supplies," he said.

Krueger had a ready explanation for the defeat of the amendment which he ramrodded. "I think we lost deregulation for two reasons — first, the Administration offered us a bad and unrealistic gas proposal, and second, the issue became clouded by partisanship."

"My deregulation bill got out of subcommitee 12-10, but in going to full committee I knew our best chance for deregulation was to go with phased out price ceilings, leading in several years to complete deregulation.

"But the Republican leadership insisted on the official Republican policy of straight deregulation plus a windfall profits tax.

"Now, because they insisted on deregulation with windfall profits tax instead of phased out ceilings, we lost our best chance for victory," the Texas representative said.

Mercury hits 100 mark again

Temperature readings around the nation Wednesday resembled a basketball scoreboard, as temperatures in many cities hit the 100 degree mark once again.

Midland was no exception with the high here reaching exactly 100, according to the National Weather Services office at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The moisture received in a surprise early morning shower Wednesday did not last long under the heat.

The high today was supposed to reach 100 degrees again, according to the weatherman. The high Friday is predicted to be in the upper 90s. No chance of rain is listed in the forecast. Winds tonight should be 5 to 10 mph.

Thundershowers and thunderstorms appeared in the El Paso area during the night, but by early today most of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies and quite warm temperatures.

The only cloudiness reported was in the form of patchy, high clouds over extreme Southwest Texas and along the lower portion of the coast.

Forecasts called for continued hot temperatures today with most readings in the 90s and some readings near 100 in Central and South Texas. There will likely be some afternoon and evening thundershowers and thunderstorms in the Panhandle, the mountains of Southwest Texas and along the coast, forecasters said.

Bobby Richter of Lamesa.

"I guess I play with feeling," Richter said modestly, as he was mending his guitar. A string had busted.

Doolittle, too, played with feeling. But it was not with the spark of a wound-up tenderfoot half his age and with considerably less mileage. He's 74.

Doolittle made a fair showing on the drums and at the mike.

He kept that hat on all the while. He has a flair, a fondness, for good hats.

"Oh, Lord," he said before the Hot Shots got set up, "I'll tell you: I've never in my life worn a sorry hat. I can't stand a man with an old sorry hat with a hole in it. I never wore a sorry hat in my life."

He's particular about other things, too. Like work. He cottons to it, especially if it's "cowboying." He can't see doing anything else, let alone retiring.

To Doolittle, retiring just ain't living.

Doolittle said it "gives me a sour stomach to be around" those men who, say at age 60, sit back and brag: "I'm retired."

"Their bellies stick out."

Doolittle's doesn't. And there's a reason or two why he's fit 'n' trim and as lanky as ever.

"You just stay active and horseback," Doolittle said. "Them horses will keep you in shape."

Later on in the day, after the music had died down and the steaks and red beans had been put away, this old cowhand demonstrated what he meant by being active. He rode his horse around herding cattle for the auction.

And he had rather do that than anything else, including retiring and lazing around. Simply, that's not his way.

Doolittle said some people ask him what his hobby would be were he to pick one out.

He'd keep on working.

"My hobby would be what I'm doing right now," he said.

"So, I couldn't retire. I'd rather be a cowboy than the President of the United States," Doolittle said.

Air service suspension OK'd

AUSTIN — The Texas Aeronautics Commission Wednesday granted a request from Trans Regional Airlines to suspend its passenger service to Big Spring for one year, in spite of efforts by Howard County officials to have the permit canceled.

Four Big Spring county officials went to Austin Wednesday to request cancellation of the permit in order to aid in negotiations with another airline for service.

Trans Regional said county officials don't cooperate — charges which the county officials denied — and asked license suspension for one year. The airline hopes to be able to move to Webb Air Force base by then.

Orlando exhausted, in hospital

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Tony Orlando, confused and emotionally shattered, is being treated at a private hospital for stress brought on by the deaths of his sister and his pal Freddie Prinze, says a friend of Orlando.

"I was fortunate enough to get him where he is now without anyone knowing," said Orlando's press agent, Frank Lieberman, on Wednesday. "He is physically and emotionally exhausted. He's under a doctor's care in a hospital outside Los Angeles. His wife is with him."

Orlando surprised the entertainment world last month by announcing he was quitting. Lieberman said many pressures led to the decision.

"It's like a balloon," he said. "You can fill it up and fill it up and finally it pops."

When the balloon popped for Orlando, he was working the summer theater circuit. On July 23, he was a little late coming onstage at Cohasset, Mass.

When he did appear, he told a stunned audience that he was "quitting show business in the name of Jesus Christ."

"All the shows I do from now on will be with a guitar beside a hospital bed," he said.

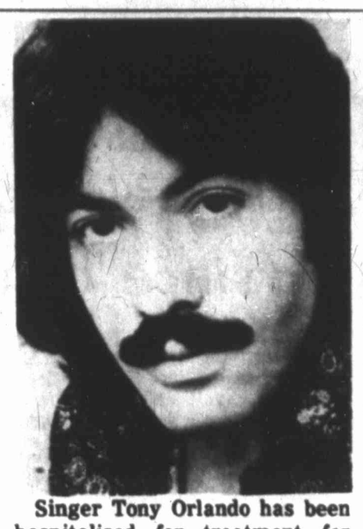

Orlando also canceled a booking at the Warwick, R.I., Music Theater.

Buster Bonoff, owner of the Warwick, said he planned to sue the singer for the $200,000 in advance tickets he had to refund.

"We're probably not going to end up with anything," Bonoff said "because the reason for his quitting is going to be that he was temporarily insane, or a nervous breakdown, or something. I can see it coming."

Orlando began singing professionally in New York at the age of 16. He had a hit record in 1961, "Half Way to Paradise," but his singing career sputtered. He then worked several years as a promotor for a division of Columbia Records.

He returned to the performing side of the business in 1970, recording two big sellers — "Candida" and "Knock Three Times" as part of a group called "Dawn." It was composed of Orlando and two female singers named Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson.

Proposals due on alien problem

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, after months of soul-searching, is seeking to stop the flow of illegal aliens into the United States while granting amnesty to those who have been in the country for several years.

The White House is scheduled to send a package of proposals to Congress today, outlining its ideas for dealing with a flood of illegal aliens across U.S. borders in recent years.

The government estimates that traffickers in illegal aliens, primary targets of the proposed crackdown, have escorted from 4 million to 12 million illegal workers into the country.

Congressional sources, who were briefed on the proposals this week, said they would include:

—An amnesty for aliens who arrived before 1970 and have clean records since then. This would allow them to claim legal resident alien status and eventually become naturalized citizens.

—A new "non-deportable" status for aliens who arrived before this year but have not been in the country long enough to qualify for the amnesty. The new status would allow them to stay and work in the United States. It would not allow them to partake of social services like welfare or to bring their families into this country.

The administration hopes the non-deportable status will prompt aliens who now live underground to report themselves and be counted. Now, the only way to estimate the number of illegals in the country is to interpolate from the number caught, which was 876,000 last year.

—A civil penalty of up to $1,000 per alien for employers who "knowingly" hire illegal aliens. The sources said the White House has not made clear how its plan would expect employers to distinguish between legal aliens and illegal aliens, who often have forged identification.

The administration some time ago rejected suggestions that a national identification system be established under which every citizen and legal alien would have to carry a counterfeit-proof identification card.

—Criminal penalties for those who help smuggle aliens across the border or act as brokers for employers.

—An addition of 2,000 men for the Border Patrol, which now has about 5,000 men trying to catch the illegal aliens.

The sources said the White House has not yet decided what to do about expanding programs that allow employers to temporarily import foreign laborers. Currently, those programs are strictly limited.

But large farmers who have become dependent on foreign labor are pressing for some provision to allow it. One advocate of an expanded program is Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, will have have jurisdiction over the administration proposals in the Senate. Eastland is a plantation owner in Mississippi.

CIA director says further drug testing by his agency improbable

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director Adm. Stansfield Turner says it's extremely unlikely the spy agency will resume testing mind-altering drugs on unsuspecting humans, partly because there's a chance of someone "blowing the whistle."

Turner told two congressional committees on Wednesday the CIA is watched more closely than it was in the past. "I can envision even a CIA employe writing to the Intelligence Oversight Board and blowing the whistle" if secret drug test were resumed, he said.

Also, Turner said, there is a greater awareness of "human rights" issues today than there was in the 1950s, when the agency was conducting secret drug experiments.

"This kind of activity could not happen today without it coming to the attention of authorities to stop it," he said.

Appearing before Senate panels on intelligence and health, Turner declared, "I assure you that the CIA is in no way engaged in either witting or unwitting testing of drugs today."

Discussing a past experiment, the CIA director said Project MK-ULTRA was launched 25 years ago out of "concern for our being taken advantage of by other powers using drugs against our personnel."

Before it was phased out in 1964, Turner said the experiment changed from a defensive to an offensive project and ultimately involved at least 185 nongovernment researchers and 80 institutions, including 44 colleges, 15 research foundations or chemical companies, 12 hospitals and three prisons.

Turner appeared before the two committees voluntarily, several days after informing Congress by letter that documents relating to the drug tests had been found in CIA files.

He testified that the documents, believed to have been destroyed in 1973, show some drug testing was carried on in "safehouses" in San Francisco and New York City without the knowledge of the subjects. The safehouses were dwellings under CIA control where agents could store drugs or administer them to test subjects with little fear of discovery.

Turner's role likely to expand in plan

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter is expected to announce Thursday a reorganization of the nation's intelligence community, including an expanded role for Central Intelligence Agency Director Adm. Stansfield Turner.

Administration sources did not describe Turner's expanded role to be that of the nation's "intelligence czar." But they said he was expected to be granted additional powers as a result of the reorganization, especially involving the budgets of the intelligence agencies.

Turner has advocated turning over control of the National Security Agency and the National Reconnaissance Organization, both now under the Defense Department, to a new director of national intelligence. Defense Secretary Harold Brown opposed this plan.

Sources said Carter is expected to propose creation of a new Cabinet-level post of director of national intelligence — likely to be Turner — with overall control of the CIA, the Pentagon intelligence agencies and others in the intelligence field. But day-to-day operations of the NSA and NRO would remain in the Defense Department under the plan.

Lions hear talk on police role, service goals

Police services and how and where law enforcement fits into society were discussed by Capt. Julian Whitley of the Texas Department of Public Safety at the Wednesday noon meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton.

The speaker explained that freedom and order are major goals in society, and that the maintaining of the proper balance between freedom and order is a constant problem for both law enforcement and the public at large. He said it is a very critical area in which police officers work in this regard.

Due to the make-up of man, society must be controlled, Whitley said in mentioning various police services.

"When disorder breaks out, it must be controlled," the veteran DPS officer said. He added that the cause of the disorder can be researched later. The fact that organized society must enforce its laws was emphasized by the speaker.

He said also that good, law-abiding cities don't just happen, but rather that they result because of a desire of residents for same.

"And one of the things which citizens can do to help law enforcenent agencies is for each individual to set a good example," Capt. Whitley said.

"They also can and should demand good police administration and good police service," he added. "They also have a right to expect members of their law enforcement agencies to be persons of high caliber."

Stressing the importance of adequate training for police officers, Whitley pointed out that funds spent for training certainly is not money wasted.

He said that adequate pay is another essential for good law enforcement.

Whitley said that despite some views to the contrary, he is of the opinion that law enforcement generally speaking has citizen support, when and where merited.

Probation revoked following man's plea

A Midland man pleaded true Tuesday to charges leading to revocation of his probation.

John Earl Williams of the 600 block of South Adams Street did not contest charges of theft of more than $20 and less than $200 in a June 24, 1977, incident.

State District Judge Perry D. Pickett revoked probation given for a theft conviction and sentenced Williams to five years in prison.

Court orders Carney to pay $500 support

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor-comedian Art Carney has been ordered by a state Supreme Court justice to pay $500 a week temporary support to his estranged wife, Barbara, pending divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Carney filed for divorce recently, and Carney followed with a countersuit.

The order was issued on Friday by Justice Kenneth L. Shorter, who made the payments retroactive to June 30.

Stellar performance

Oil patch conversation over in neighboring New Mexico right now centers around the recent "drilling of an oil well" by that state's popular U.S. Rep. Harold Runnels of Lea County, for House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, members of his staff and a television audience.

Kathryn Morris, oil editor of the Hobbs, N.M., Daily News-Sun, tells the Runnels story in an interesting article appearing in the Hobbs newspaper.

She said that many persons in Washington are saying that a "star" may have been born as a result of the television show, and that Congressman Runnels, "the boy from Humble City, may be it."

This is not altogether surprising to Runnels' friends in Midland and throughout the Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico. And, based on election returns in his district, many voters also must consider Harold Runnels as a star in Congress.

According to Ms. Morris, a question typical of the confused thinking of those persons who know nothing about what goes into the drilling for and the production of oil and gas, precipitated the Runnels performance.

It is said that Speaker O'Neill had said in a speech that he had been unable to answer questions put by a Massachusetts constituent concerning the energy shortage and what caused it. O'Neill was quoted as saying that his constituent couldn't understand how there could be an oil shortage in view of the fact that so many thousands of wells had been drilled ... and that it seemed to him that when oil was pumped out, more oil would flow back into the hole if they would just wait awhile.

This disturbed the New Mexico representative, who is exceptionally well versed, through experience, on the subject. He sought out O'Neill and asked for half an hour of his time to explain where oil comes from and how it is removed from sub-surface formations.

The Speaker, believe-it-or-not, quickly accepted the offer. And, as it turned out, the session was photographed and taped for later television viewing by Boston audiences.

Runnels, with chalk in hand, stood before a blackboard and "drilled an oil well" for O'Neill and those who ultimately will view the film.

The "driller" went through the entire process. He also exhibited well cuttings, core samples and well logs in his lecture.

He said later that O'Neill thought oil was in a pool, like a lake or in a stream. And even after "completion" there apparently was still some doubt in the Speaker's mind how oil comes out of fractured rocks. But overall, the briefing was most informative and highly beneficial to all concerned.

The New Mexican also explained the interdependence between major oil companies and independents, telling O'Neill that the independents do much of the wildcat drilling on leases owned by the majors as well as on those privately owned.

Runnels also got across the point that "the industry helped build this country with no controls, and that we still had the cheapest fuel in the country."

The congressman listed four factors as converging in the ear ly '70s to produce the present shortages of oil and gas:

— President Eisenhower encouraged the majors to go abroad for supplies in the '50s and the fields in the Middle East turned out to be much cheaper to develop than domestic fields — That, in turn, caused many to abandon drilling and exploring in this country because of restraints on production due to state conservation laws.

— About the same time, the Federal Power Commission put a ceiling on the price of natural gas at the wellhead, causing utilities to use the gas that previously had been flared off. Natural gas then became a leading by-product of the oil industry.

— The petrochemical industry was launched during the early '50s, eventually turning out a wide range of products from plastics to carpets to clothing.

We need more instructors like Harold Runnels.

BIBLE VERSE

For behold, the Lord cometh forth out of his place, and will come down, and tread upon the high places of the earth.—Micah 1:3.

New party line

ART BUCHWALD

No atheists at Con Ed since 'blackout'

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — There are no atheists at Consolidated Edison. Ever since the New York blackout Con Ed lawyers have been working day and night to prove that what happened was an "Act of God." If they can't prove that the Lord did it, they will be spending their next 20 years in court fighting lawsuits from the Bronx to the tip of Staten Island.

I stopped by to see how Con Edison's lawyers were doing.

"God bless you," the receptionist said as she looked up from her Bible.

"I just wanted to speak to one of Con Edison's lawyers," I told her.

Thou comest at the wrong time," she replied. "Mr. Flaherty is at Mass, Mr. Bradls is at a prayer breakfast meeting and Mr. Seligman is with his rabbi."

"My, this sounds like a religious office."

"Con Edison would never hire a lawyer who didn't believe in God," she said.

"They must have been pretty shaken up by the blackout," I said.

She sighed. "The Lord moves in mysterious ways. We must not question His decision to black out New York at a most inopportune time. He must have been very angry at the city or He would have never sent down those bolts of lightning to smite our power lines."

"Then you people believe that it was God who did it?"

"As Mr. Flaherty wrote in his brief yesterday, 'The Lord giveth light and He taketh it away. The power of Con Edison is in his hands.'"

"So you are not looking for any other reason for the blackout?" I asked.

"What other reason could there possibly be? Every safeguard known to man was in operation at the time. But there is no failsafe when the Lord turns his wrath against sinners."

"Is it Con Edison's position that New Yorkers are sinners?"

"Verily," she said. "You have only to walk down 42nd St. or Eighth Ave. to know why God was enraged. We are living in a virtual Sodom and Gomorrah," she said.

"Why didn't God just black out the porno shops and theaters showing X-rated movies if He was so mad?"

"Even the Lord cannot smash one of our circuits without putting the others out of commission. Besides this happened in the summertime and there was sinning going on all over the city, particularly in apartments and motels when the wives were away on vacation."

"I forgot about that."

"Con Edison knew about the sinning, and our engineers feared the wrath of God for a week before the blackout. But we felt that, as a power company, it was not our place to warn the populace that if they continued their behavior the Lord would loose the fearful lightning of His powerful swift sword."

"Do you think the 'Act of God' defense will hold up in court?

"We can only pray it will. If the courts decide against us, then no one will ever believe the Lord is trying to tell the people something. As Mr. Bradley said to his Bible class yesterday, "If this blackout doesn't make people believe in God, nothing will."

I heard an organ in the background.

"What's that?" I asked.

"It's the beginning of Vespers. Con Ed has Vesper services for its employees every day."

"Is this something new?"

"We started them the day after the blackout. It was the legal department's idea."

"Is it an electric organ I hear?"

"No, it's manual. The Lord only knows when He will strike us again."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Federal inmate marries in pen

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Confidential documents smuggled to us from inside the maximum security penitentiary at Atlanta prove that, despite the high walls and the celibate life behind them, love can still conquer all.

The love story from Atlanta is not written in the language of a Shakespearean sonnet. It is related, rather, in turgid Justice Department prose. Yet it has its Romeo and Juliet overtones.

The story is told in a confidential "incident report," which begins dryly: "On Monday, June 27, 1977, it was brought to (the authorities') attention that information had recently been received which indicated that inmate Farrell Kirk96321-131 married one Marcella Brockett in the institution visiting room on or about January 24, 1977."

This was strictly against the rules; inmates simply aren't married or given in marriage in federal prisons. Or to put it in Justice Department language, the reported marriage was "in violation of institution policy statement A-7300.70."

Aroused over such an irregularity, the authorities began an investigation which, according to the official account, "involved contact with the Probate Court in Ringold, Georgia. Officials of this court verified the existence of a marriage certificate ... bearing the names of Farrell Kirk and Marcella Brockett, with the Rev. James Gallahan officiating."

This succinct if unromantic account of the wedding of Marcella and Farrell omits the spicy details. Not mentioned is the story of how the intrepid couple arranged the ceremony and kept it secret, all behind prison bars. Nor does the official version describe what viccisitudes they face in the future.

So tranquil was the nuptial ceremony that prison officials didn't discover it had happened for six months. The officiating reverend, it turns out, was also an inmate and, therefore, handy for the occasion. Marcella ingeniously had the marriage document legalized in court; then she sneaked it into the visiting room. And there, right under the noses of the prison guards, the couple was made one.

Almost. The disapproving federal government is now claiming the marriage is null and void. The Probate Court judge, on the other hand, assured our reporter Tom Rosenstiel that the marriage certificate is quite legal.

The true test of legality will have to wait until Marcella and Farrell apply for legal benefits as married persons. But this isn't their only problem. The prison has no intention of allowing conjugal visits, so the honeymoon will have to be postponed until September, 1980, when Farrell finishes his sentence for violating parole on a burglary rap.

COUPONS, COUPONS, COUPONS — In case the United States is hit by another fuel crisis, President Carter would rather impose gas rationing upon the public, say insiders, than let motorists fight for gas in chaotic pump lines.

He has even inherited 4.2 billion rationing coupons, which the Federal Energy Office printed three years ago. But this enormous stack of coupons, which is stored at a secret military installation out West, may not be useable.

Distraught officials have discovered that the coupons, with only slight modification, will give change for a dollar in money vending machines. Hundreds of thousands of these money changing contraptions are located across the country in laundromats, airports, amusement arcades and other establishments.

Thus the embarrassed officals apparently have a lot of colorful but worthless coupons on their hands. This is, it turns out, a multi-million-dollar embarrassment. It cost the taxpayers about $11 million to print all those coupons. Nor is it cheap to store 4.2 billion ration tickets, although the precise figures are unavailable for storing and guarding them.

They were rushed off the printing press during the worst days of the Arab oil embargo, as the government prepared to resort to emergency rationing. But the crisis ended before the coupons were ready.

Ex-President Gerald Ford's energy advisers studied rationing last year but weren't satisfied with the findings. Congress had ordered his administration to submit a report on rationing. The report, however, was never presented.

The White House blamed buraeaucratic delays. But our own sources insist that the Ford administration simply couldn't decide what to do about rationing.

The Carter crowd, meanwhile, favors rationing but doesn't know what to do with the quesitonable coupons. No final decision has been reached, an energy official told us.

THE BIBLE

CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. "There is little friendship in the world and least of all between equals." Consider the jealousy between professional people, and worst of all are kings. One of the first accounts of war is in Genesis 14, where many kings are mentioned. How did Abraham and Lot figure in it? 14:12.

2. With spiritual hunger a very basic need, what food did Jesus use as a synonym for His name and being? John 6:51.

3. Where did the expression, "I wash my hands of this" apparently originate? Deut. 21:6.

4. What animal did Jesus speak of as being in sheep's clothing? Mat. 7:15.

5. "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will ——." Mat. 11:28.

NICK THIMMESCH

Mystery: The principles of American foreign policy

(Editor's Note: Nick Thimmesch is on a fact-finding trip to the Far East. This is one of the several guest columns provided during his absence.)

By SEN. DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN (D-N.Y.)

The setting was Dartmoor, and the subject was murder.

The local colonel was testy.

"Is there any point to which you wish to draw my attention?"

"To the curious incident of the dog in the nighttime."

"The dog did nothing in the nighttime."

"That was the curious incident," remarked Sherlock Holmes.

The scene shifts to Washington, D.C., in the spring of 1977. The subject is crime. And much more — international espionage; the vast struggle between free nations and totalitarian nations which moves and shapes our age; above all, perhaps, the steadfastness and morale of American society which history has seemingly decreed must lead the free nations in that struggle.

On Sunday, April 3, the front page of the Atlanta Constitution featured a story by a young journalist, Charles Osolin, of its Washington Bureau. WIRED SPIES, the headline ran.

"Top Secret Plan Hopes to Halt Soviet Access to Private Calls."

The story broke the news that Soviet agents, operating from the rooftops of their embassy in Washington, their United Nations mission in New York, from consulate buildings in Chicago and San Francisco, and elsewhere, were intercepting the long-distance microwave telephone calls of thousands—millions—of Americans.

The Russians had developed the computer technology that enabled them to find and listen to just about any call they want, be it identified by name, subject matter or whatever.

Young Osolin had pieced the story together with great care. He had, moreover, learned what only a handful of persons could have known at that time, which is that the new Administration had set in motion a study as to what might be done to counter the Soviet intercepts.

This was big news, and the young journalist must surely have awaited a big response. Pulitzer Prizes are won for this kind of reporting. Then a curious thing happened.

Nothing happened.

Incredible? And yet "nothing" had happened before. The Ford Administration had discovered the Soviet wiretapping. Opinion on what to do was divided. Some felt it was clearly the duty of the government to warn the American people.

Others felt the issue was too explosive. Would the people overreact? Would some vast Red scare engulf the nation? Would the Russians be furious? Would detente be destroyed?

In June, 1975, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller sent to the President the report of the Commission on CIA Activities Within the United States. The report outlined abuses of our own intelligence agencies, violating the Fourth Amendment right of Americans. The commission also knew that Soviet intelligence was even then violating such rights on a massive, unprecedented scale. It wished to include this information in its report. Counsels within the government overruled the commission.

A year later, the Vice President decided to take matters into his own hands. In June, 1976, he warned the nation that Soviet-block nations were using "sophisticated technology" to "invade the privacy of U.S. citizens by listening to telephone conversations within the United States..." He made particularly clear that the object of the Soviet spying was not government and the military so much as private business.

The Vice President blew the whistle. All hell could be expected to break loose. Then, as later, a curious thing happened. Nothing.

And so it went until July 10 of this year when the New York Times ran the story as the lead article of its Sunday edition. The following Tuesday, July 12, President Carter in a press conference acknowledged what the Soviets were up to. "But," he added, "I would not interpret this use by the Soviet Union or by other embassies to be an act of aggression."

On July 21, the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence held hearings on legislation designed to control eavesdropping by counterintelligence agencies of the American government. I asked the general counsel of the CIA whether the legislation would also protect citizens against violation of their Fourth Amendment rights by a foreign government. I was informed that the Fourth Amendment only protects Americans against their own government, not against foreign governments. (And so I have introduced a bill that would.)

What is going on here? I offer the thought that we are going through a great inversion of the American political climate. For a long period we generally felt that the true threat to American liberties was external, that it came, in effect, from foreign governments.

We are now changing. The dominant institutions and voices in the nation more and more tell us that the real threat to our liberties comes from within — from our own government. This thesis is only sustainable by denying the evidence of outside threats. Curious.

Sand castle building grows up

By ALIX RILEY
The Los Angeles Times

SOLANA BEACH, Calif. — The days of the plastic pail and shovel may be numbered.

Sand castle building, once the realm of preadolescents, has been taken over by the big kids — some of them as old as 46.

They gathered at the shoreline here last weekend, armed with spades, spatulas and palette knives, for a University of California San Diego extension course designed to turn the ordinary person into a Frank Lloyd Wright of the beach.

Some of the 16 students really were children, but the adults, whose occupations ranged from managing an electronics firm to teaching art, seemed to be having the most fun.

They had spent nearly three hours turning several tons of sand into a 7-foot-tall pile that would eventually be the main section of the castle. Now it was time for the creative part — shaping the details, working from the top down.

One of the instructors, 34-year-old Gary Kinsella of Cardiff-by-the-sea, paused to explain the art of sand-castle construction.

"The most important part is building a good pile of sand," he said. "You have to pour water on it continuously.

"Compaction is probably the key word there," he added, speaking as if it were a class in something infinitely more technical.

Kinsella teaches the class along with his partner in a pottery business, John Laver, 32, of Leucadia.

The class includes a dose of philosophy, as well as practical instruction.

Joe and Laureta Gibbs of Rancho Bernardo said they saw the potential for that type of interaction, so they enrolled along with their four children, aged 10 to 17.

"We wanted something the family could do together," Gibbs explained.

Patricia Olson, 44, an administrative aide at UC San Diego, said she took the class so she could have something to do while her husband children worked on their tans.

"I'm a redhead, and we sunburn, so I can't just lie there," she said.

But 10-year-old Lynn Garrett was less than enthusiastic about the whole thing. When asked why she was taking the class, she replied, "My mom told me to."

Congress likely to approve amendments to Clean Air Act

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Congress is expected to approve Thursday or Friday sweeping amendments to the Clean Air Act, including a two-year delay in tailpipe cleanup requirements that will avert a threatened shutdown of the auto industry.

Other changes in the 1970 act will make it possible for coal-burning power plants to locate near national parks and will give industrial polluters and smoggy cities such as Los Angeles more time to meet federal cleanup goals.

But the amendments also call for tougher penalties against slow-moving polluters, for better control devices at new factories and for stringent rules to govern industrial growth in urban and rural areas.

And for the first time, visibility becomes an explicit value to be protected in areas where the air is still relatively clean, most notably in the scenic canyon country of the West.

Bedraggled Senate and House conferees agreed on all these provisions at 2:20 a.m. Wednesday, climaxing a final seven-hour round of testy bargaining over conflicting bills.

Although the compromise bill will stretch out the nation's air cleanup timetable, environmental groups expressed happiness with it while industry spokesmen indicated displeasure or unease.

The conferees labored under vigorous prodding by President Carter and Democratic congressional leaders, who took seriously the warning of auto company officials that assembly lines would close unless imminent federal cleanup deadlines were postponed.

Auto makers said they had been worried that Congress would begin a month-long recess Saturday without granting relief.

Full production of 1978 model cars is scheduled to begin next week, but current law prohibits shipment to dealers, because the cars don't meet new emission standards that were supposed to take effect this summer.

Auto officials said they would shut down rather than pay stiff fines for shipping illegal cars, but the government actually could have winked at the shipments on the theory that Congress was certain to delay the standards after the recess.

Whether the shutdown threat was real or was an attempt to obtain favorable legislation — as some charged — the conferees' action did not please Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.), the industry's chief supporter in Congress.

"By this agreement it must be known we are sacrificing the consumer to greater costs and lost fuel efficiency for no proven health benefits to be realized in the near future," said Dingell, whose district embraces Ford Motor Co.'s headquarters.

Ceremony opens site

BIG SPRING—Ground breaking ceremonies Wednesday marked the official opening of construction of a new $602,000 Webb Federal Credit Union Building.

The credit union will move from Webb Air Force Base to a site on Farm Road 700 near the southern perimeter of the city.

Participating in the ceremony were manager-treasurer Wade Choate, vice president L. V. Misek, Mayor Pro Tem Polly Mays and Linville Haney, representing Haney and Sivley contractors of Abilene. Gary and Hohertz of Big Spring are architects for the new facility.

Greek parties gather to discuss procedures

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The heads of the four major Greek Cypriot political parties met today with acting President Spiros Kyprianou to discuss the future of this divided island in the aftermath of President Makarios' death.

Kyprianou told newsmen after the meeting that party leaders reached no decisions and will meet again, possibly on Friday. Other leaders said the discussion was confined to procedures for replacing Makarios, the Greek Orthodox archbishop who was Cyprus' first and only president.

"Our main objective is to avoid tension and to ensure a smooth transition," Kyprianou said.

An Iranian newspaper, meanwhile, published what it described as Makarios' last interview, given here last Saturday. In it the archbishop was quoted as saying Kyprianou, a moderate and president of the all-Greek National Assembly, was "the only man who can lead Cyprus" after Makarios' death.

The interview was published today in the Tehran newspaper Rastakhiz, organ of Iran's ruling party.

In Nicosia, Kyprianou conferred with leaders of the Communist and Socialist parties, the conservative Democratic Rally and his own centrist Democratic party.

They met at the presidential office immediately after an emotional visit to St. John's church where the archbishop's body is lying in state dressed in gold ornaments and a heavy gold crown. It will remain there for public viewing until a state funeral and burial Monday.

DEATHS

Phyllis Sue Etheredge

Bell strike 'inevitable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide strike by 700,000 telephone workers Saturday is almost inevitable, the chief union negotiator in contract talks with the Bell System said today.

President Glenn E. Watts of the Communications Workers of America said that bargaining has come to a standstill. He said that time for the negotiations, recessed since Tuesday, is running out.

"I can see no way to avoid a strike unless there is a dramatic break-through in the next few hours, which I candidly do not forsee," Watts told a news conference.

Current contracts with the Bell System expire at midnight Saturday and the unions involved in the negotiations have threatened a strike at 12:01 a.m. EDT Sunday.

ACLU official admits keeping FBI informed

The Washington Post

Irving Ferman, ACLU Washington office director of the American Civil Liberties Union, reached by telephone in New York, Wednesday night issued a 600-word statement in which he acknowledged a relationship with the FBI.

He said ACLU policy was to "maintain especially close relations with the FBI and other government agencies. Such a relationship was not to be obviously an endorsement of the policy or the practices of the bureau. The policy reflected a recognition that particularly during the cold-war period of the 1950s, there was need for some clear channels to those forces operating in the relevant political framework to develop an understanding of what the ACLU truly represented."

Ferman said his relationship was maintained largely with Louis B. Nichols, assistant director of the FBI, and that Nichols greatly assisted the ACLU so that "its relatively small staff could be spent affirmatively in protecting civil liberties, rather than being absorbed in defending itself."

Nichols, Ferman said, aided the ACLU in its disputes with the House Un-American Activities Committee and the American Legion.

Ferman said Nichols "was instrumental in cooperating with my office in assisting many people whose careers and status were being threatened for being characterized as 'subversive' or 'security' or 'loyalty' risks."

Documents show special reports

By GRAHAME L. JONES
The Los Angeles times

LOS ANGELES — A top American Civil Liberties Union official regularly provided the Federal Bureau of Investigation with information on ACLU members suspected of left-wing activities between 1953 and 1959, documents released to the ACLU under the Freedom of Information Act have revealed.

In addition, other "high level employes" of the ACLU maintained "very close contact" with the bureau, especially during the McCarthy era of the mid-1950s, according to ACLU executive director Aryeh Neier.

Most of the contact between the organization and the FBI was made by Irving Ferman, director of the ACLU's Washington, D.C., office from 1953 to 1959 and now teaching law at Howard University, Neier said.

He identified two others — whom he said had had lesser contact with the bureau — as former ACLU staff counsel Herbert Monte Levi, a contemporary of Ferman, and John Pemberton, ACLU national director from 1962 to 1970.

Ferman and Pemberton, contacted by telephone Wednesday night, denied any wrongdoing, with Ferman saying his contacts with the FBI were in accordnace with existing ACLU policy.

Levi could not be reached for comment.

Neier said more than 13,000 pages of material had been obtained from the FBI covering the period from the 1920s to the present. the material was obtained under a suit filed by the ACLU's Illinois branch.

"The documents that we have right now tell us that during the 1950s, a number of high-level employes of the ACLU maintained very close contact with officials of the FBI and periodically informed the FBI when they saw what they thought was left-wing activity in affiliates of the ACLU," Neier said in a telephone interview from his New York home Wednesday night.

"At the same time, on a couple of occasions, they seem to have sought from the FBI information about people becoming active in ACLU affiliates."

Neier said none of those allegedly involved in such activity was currently a member of the ACLU and said he knew of no similar contact between the organization and the FBI existing today.

"It's a very painful experience for us," he said. "It tarnishes the reputation of the ACLU and it means that people active in the ACLU compromised the principles of the organization."

Neier said most of the activity took place between 1953 and 1959 and that about "90 per cent to 95 per cent of the material involves Irving Ferman."

"He was the person who had the closest relations with the bureau and the files have quite a number of handwritten notes and letters from him to the bureau saying this or that affiliate of the ACLU either was being critical of the FBI or had people in it who seemed to him to have left-wing associations."

Neier said such contact ceased after Lawrence Speiser replaced Ferman as director of the Washington office in 1959.

The contact Levi and Pemberton had with the FBI was much more limited, Neier said.

"There's not much information about him (Levi)," Neier said. "There are a few letters indicating that he had fairly cordial relations with the FBI (and) there is a single document in which the bureau summarizes a conversation with Levi (in which) Levi is worried about one chapter of the ACLU and whether there are Communists active in it and he wants bureau help in finding out.

"In essence, the document suggests the bureau tells him that he doesn't have that much to worry about. That's a bureau document and not a letter from him (Levi) so there's always a question as to how reliable it is."

Neier said the ACLU had gotten in touch with each of the three men subsequent to the receipt of the FBI documents and in Levi's case, he had "not said specifically that his document is fraudulent."

Justice gives House group 'payment' list

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department agreed Wednesday to turn over to a House investigating committee a list detailing alleged payments from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park to more than 20 members of Congress and some executive branch officials.

The decision defuses a potential confrontation between the department and the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, which had threatened to subpoena the list and some supporting documents if necessary for its inquiry into charges of South Korean influence-buying in Congress.

Jay Shin Ryu, the former Park employe who furnished the documents to the Justice Department, began telling committee attorneys about the list Wednesday, He is known to have delivered a cash payment to a member of Congress in Chicago on at least one occasion.

Sources familiar with the list, which dates back to the early 1970s, say figures indicating payments into "the thousands of dollars" are written next to the names of public officials Park claimed to be paying.

The committee's agreement with the Justice Department was referred to obliquely after Wednesday's committee session by Chairman John J. Flynt Jr. (D-Ga.). He said, "There have been some extremely significant developments" in the investigation, but refused to elaborate.

Wednesday evening, however, Peter A. White, deputy to committee special counsel Leon Jaworski, issued a brief statement saying the committee and the Justice Department had "reached mutual agreement with respect to a number of pending matters."

He added it would be "inappropriate" to discuss them further, saying only that the committee's investigating staff was "optimistic" about the "atmosphere of cooperation" with the department.

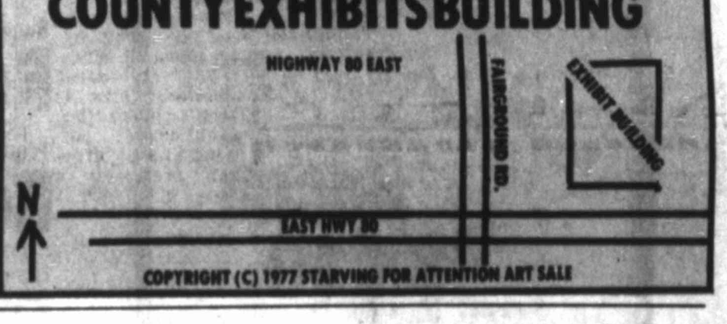

Other sources confirmed the agreement meant that Justice Department officials would soon turn over the list and supporting documents they had obtained from Ryu.

The Justice Department had feared that giving the documents to the committee might hamper their parallel, but separate, criminal investigation of the allegations of South Koeran influence-buying.

Jaworski wrote Attorney General Griffin B. Bell last week promising to subpoena the documents if necessary because they were considered crucial to the House investigation.

Maritime chief turns down job from companies

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The head of the Maritime Administration, Robert J. Blackwell, said Wednesday he has turned down a $100,000-a-year job offer from a group of nine ocean shipping companies.

Blackwell, who has been assistant secretary of commerce for maritime affairs since 1972, came under fire last week when the job offer was disclosed at a House Merchant Marime Committee hearing under questioning by Rep. Paul N. McCloskey (R-Calif.)

The Commerce Department official denied there was anything more than "the specter of an impropriety" hanging over the office that he head a prospective new trade association for the nine firms. He insisted he had successfully insulated himself from any conflicts of interest while he mulled over the offer.

The firms included eight federally subsidized shipping lines: American Export Lines, Moore-McCormack Lines, Prudential Lines, Farrell Lines, Delta Steamship Lines, Lykes Bros. Steamship Co., American President Lines, and States Steamship Co. In a June 24 memo to Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps, Blackwell listed the companies and said he would "immediately refrain from doing business" with them and would "avoid all personal and business contacts with representatives of the companies.

He said Wednesday he felt free now to resume dealings with those companies as federal maritime administrator and would resume his chairmanship of the three-member Maritime Subsidy Board.

Involvement reaps benefits

By PATSY GORDON

The only way a person can be comfortable in a club is to put their whole self into it and enjoy the involvement.

Benefits will be reaped from this which will rub off on fellow workers and fellow members.

Because Kathy Peters, 1977-78 president of the Midland Woman's Club, shares this philosophy, she has chosen "Make Yourself Comfortable" as the theme during her administration.

There will be plenty of opportunity for members and other Midland women who are not members, especially the working woman, to be involved in the Woman's Club during the upcoming club year.

A "welcome back" luncheon Sept. 15 will kick off activities for the year. This will be followed at a later date by a Mexican fiesta dinner. Both will take place in the Woman's Club.

A shopper's luncheon is held every Friday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Woman's Club and this event is open to the public.

Art exhibits are hung each month by the club to expose members and friends to fine arts in various mediums.

The Woman's Club, according to Mrs. Peters, is available for rent for special occasions such as Christmas parties and wedding receptions and the building can accommodate from 12-300 persons. Catering service also is available if desired.

Funds for operation of the club are raised through such ways and means projects as a flea market sale.

A playday is held the fourth Tuesday of each month and is made up of bridge and canasta players who play cards all day with a break taken at noon for luncheon.

Various programs are presented each month by the Woman's Club and its shareholding or associate clubs. "I am especially hopeful outstanding speakers will be brought in that will educate and be enjoyed by the memberships.

"We encourage Midlanders to take advantage of these programs in a marvelous and comfortable place where the atmosphere is great. I have stressed to the board that the working woman be encouraged to come."

Mrs. Peters feels that the purposes of the club are met through the above mentioned events. The purposes are "to unite our club women for the purpose of mutual benefit and for the promotion of our common interest in education, public welfare, morality and fine arts."

The objectives, said the club president, are to meet these purposes and to provide Midland women with facilities to do so.

Mrs. Peters has been an active member of the Woman's Club since 1975. She became a shareholding member in the spring of 1974 when she joined the Midland B&PW Club. "I feel the advantages of belonging to the Woman's Club includes meeting new friends."

When the club woman is not busy presiding over her family, she creates. "I love creative art, sewing...anything creative."

But her family is very important to her. "Family" consists of a husband, Ralph, who is associated with Phillips Petroleum Co.; a daughter, Mrs. David Dunn of Midland; a son, Gary Peters of Colorado Springs, Colo., and anothsr son, Kevin Peters, a student at Texas Tech University.

Kathy Peters...1977-78 Woman's Club president

The president, an employe of The First National Bank Trust Department, also is "very interested in teenagers and presently is involved, through the B&PW Club, with developing a career planning program for them.

Other officers of the Woman's Club include Mrs. I. W. Hynd, first vice president; Mrs. George H. Glass, second vice president; Mrs. R. H. Wilson, third vice president; Mrs. H. V. Beck Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. Taylor E. Bowers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. J. Flannery, treasurer, and Mrs. Ben W. Golladay, assistant treasurer.

Active directors are Mrs. Peters, Mrs. Hynd, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Flannery, Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. Glass.

It appears as though a very exciting and comfortable year is in store for Midland and the Midland Woman's Club.

Erma Colvin, Borens to exchange vows

"You Just Can't Beat A Seale Deal"

DEAR ABBY

Reader believes wakes should be solemn

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My best friend's mother died recently, and I attended her wake. There were many people there. Most of them were telling jokes, drinking and laughing as if they were at a wedding or some kind of celebration.

I thought it was disgusting, and it made me both angry and sad. When I asked my mother why people behaved that way at a wake instead of being solemn and serious out of respect for the dead, she said, "That's just the way it is. The only time some people see each other is at weddings and funerals."

I'm only 14, but I think people should save the jokes and laughter for weddings, not funerals.

What do you think, Abby? If you print this letter, maybe people would change the shameful way they act at wakes.—JOHN

DEAR JOHN: It's more than mere coincidence that the two words most frequently interchanged by accident (?) are "wedding" and "funeral."

It's not the lack of respect for the deceased, it's the human tendency to make the most of the opportunity to catch up on old friendships and family ties that accounts for the partylike atmosphere at most wakes. Add to that the fact that alcohol tends to break down inhibitions.

Don't be angry or sad, John. Were the deceased able to express his opinion of the apparent merrymaking at his own wake, I'll wager he'd be all for it. (I would.)

DEAR ABBY: I would like to voice a complaint against teenagers in general: A teenager had a transistor radio on a public bus yesterday, and he just about blasted the whole busload of passengers off the bus with rock and roll music. Why don't those teenagers show a little respect for the rights of others?—IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED:

•

WOMEN'S NEWS

•

Why condemn ALL teenagers? Only one was guilty. The bus driver (an adult) was responsible for the comfort of his passengers. Didn't HE shirk HIS duty?

DEAR ABBY: I am so mad, I have to unload on someone, so here goes.

My husband is self-employed. A year ago he did a job for a customer who lives in a home much more beautiful than anything we could ever afford. After a year, we received a check for this job. The check was misplaced (I thought it was stolen), so I called the lady and asked her to please stop payment on it.

I found the check today and called the lady back to tell her I had found the check and to apologize for any inconvenience I had caused her. She asked me to send HER ONE DOLLAR, as this is what it cost to stop payment on that check!

After waiting a year for our money, how could anyone be so miserably cheap?—CLEVELAND

DEAR CLEVELAND: For people who are miserably cheap, it comes naturally.

•

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Announcement coffee held

Leann Holland, bride-elect of Donald Mark Schumann, was honored with an announcement coffee by her mother, Mrs. George T. Holland, in the Holland home at 806 Lawson.

Assisting in hostess duties were Mrs. C. B. Odom, Mrs. Larry Melzer, Mrs. Hoy Harrison, Mrs. Ralph Danner and Mrs. T. L. Cauthen.

The serving table was set with silver appointments, and a floral arrangement in shades of yellow, coral and green.

The couple plans to be married at 4 p.m. Dec. 31 in Memorial Christian Church.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Phillip Schumann of Aurora, Colo.

Miss Lines becomes bride of R. H. Martin

Mrs. Robert H. Martin

ALPINE — Georgie Lines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guss Lines of this city, became the bride of Robert H. Martin, son of Bobby L. Martin of Midland and Mrs. Leedie Lynn of Odessa, during a double ring ceremony in the First United Methodist Church here.

Mrs. Tom Karvonen, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Mrs. Jerry Petree, sister of the bridegroom, soloist.

The bride wore a long, white slipper satin gown over lace with appliques of the same lace on the high necked bodice and long, slim tapered sleeves. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a cap of seed pearls, and a chapel-length train completed the ensemble. She carried a bouquet of white roses, carnations and English ivy atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Jack Bow of Alpine attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Kenneth W. Johnson, sister of the bride from Odessa; Julie Wilson and Anna Fitzgerald, both of Alpine, and Tricia Arnold of Midland, sister of the bridegroom. Flower girls were Kathleen Henderson and Kristie Smith of Alpine and Ruth Anne Johnson of Odessa.

Jack T. Bow served as best man and groomsmen were Kenneth W. Johnson of Odessa, and Wayne Fabian, P. K. Brenner, Mickey Browne and Donnie Darwin, all of Alpine. Chris Henderson and Gary Smith were ring bearers.

Women's clubs to be highlighted in R-T

As a service to Midland club women, The Reporter-Telegram is planning a special supplement noting the achievements of the Tall City's women's clubs.

Although there are more women's groups in the city than the ones which will be featured in the section, we will include the local clubs which fit the traditional scope of women's clubs — garden, auxiliary, social, study and service groups.

The section, to be called "Women With a Purpose," will not include teen clubs, bridge groups, women's clubs of individual churches or ad hoc fund-raising groups.

The Reporter-Telegram photo staff has set aside seven specific periods when the presidents of participating clubs may have their photographs made at the newspaper office at 201 E. Illinois.

Those times are: Wednesday, Aug. 10 between noon and 2 p.m.; Thursday, Aug. 11 between 3 and 5 p.m.; Wednesday, Aug. 17 between 3 and 5 p.m.; Thursday, Aug. 18 between noon and 2 p.m.; Saturday, Aug. 20 between 10 a.m. and noon; Wednesday, Aug. 24 between 2 and 4 p.m., and Thursday, Aug. 25 between 1 and 3 p.m.

Each club president should make an appointment to have her picture made during one of those times, by phoning the Women's News Department.

Appointments will be necessary to avoid long waiting time. Special arrangements have been made to make these particular photographs during the times listed above. It will not be possible for the photo staff to handle drop-ins at other times.

In addition, the president of each club will need to complete a form outlining her club's history, special projects and current officers.

The forms may be picked up at the time of the photographic appointment and returned later, or they may be picked up in advance in the Women's News Department anytime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Forms must be completed and returned to the Women's News Department by 5 p.m. Sept. 5.

"Women With a Purpose" will be published as a tabloid supplement to The Reporter-Telegram's Sunday edition on Sept. 18.

Attorney backs idea of divorce insurance

By LUCRETIA STEIGER
Copley News Service

When a couple takes out a marriage license, they should start considering divorce insurance, says Diana DuBroff, a New York attorney.

DuBroff, 68, who retired after 20 years as a public school teacher in New York, then turned to a new career in legal aid and finally her own legal practice, believes that such insurance "would ease the torture of the first several years after divorce for people of the middle-income group."

"Very rich or poverty-level divorced persons don't notice the financial impact of divorce as much as the middle-income group, because they're in very much the same financial position before and after the divorce," DuBroff says. She is founder and president of a program called NOISE, the National Organization to Insure Support Enforcement.

Insurance companies are not responding too eagerly to her idea, DuBroff said, although she is working with one group she won't name on the possibility of such insurance. Lloyd's of London also is interested, she added.

DuBroff had been a member of the New York Bar for nearly 40 years — although she did not practice there — when she retired from teaching and decided to go into legal aid work.

In taking up a new career late in life, she said she is "following the footsteps of my mother, who opened a hotel at 65 and became a wealthy woman. I figure that as long as I'm living, I might as well get the most out of it." After working with thousands of divorced persons — she won't say whether or not she is divorced, but does say that she is a grandmother — DuBroff developed the idea of divorce insurance.

Birth announced

Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Gallagher of Midland announce the birth July 27 in Big Spring of a daughter, Rainy Lynette. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gallagher and Mrs. Janelle Miller of Midland and Bob Miller of Pecos.

Living through 'terrible twos' impresses women

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have written two books, play a ukelele and can drive a car without looking at my feet, but do you know what singular thing impresses women when I am in a group? The fact that I have survived a two-year old.

In all modesty, I must admit I am not the only woman in North America to endure the terrible 2s, but I am possibly one of the few who can talk about it without knotting my handkerchief.

One of the reasons I think I was so successful is that I adjusted earlier than most women. My kids were born being two years old. They seemed to have a full set of teeth for biting, an emergency supply of saliva for spitting and little legs that ran the mile under three minutes.

One evening, I said to my husband, "I cannot go on like this. I am exhausted."

He said, "You're just a little tired."

"When you fall asleep on an obscene phone call," I said, "You're exhausted."

"Do you mean to tell me a bald baby a yard high with a smile that could defrost Mount Everest is getting you down?"

"You don't understand," I said. "Between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., he put the cat in the dryer, got his arm caught in a rake, put his training pants in the oven, ate a guppy, pulled over the flour canister, sat on my geraniums, put his orthopedic shoes in the bathtub, dropped a television knob down the register, tore up my card for jury duty and talked 15 minutes without operator assistance to a housewife in New Mexico."

"Have you tried naps?" asked my husband.

"I've tried, but he keeps crawling in my playpen and slobbering, 'Mama, play...'"

Then, my husband remembered an old Burt Lancaster movie in which he was a prisoner of war. In order to maintain his sanity, he disciplined his mind to concentrate on things other than the pain he was enduring.

The next time my two-year-old oiled his tricycle with my $5.50 jar of cream that was to bring everlasting youth to my chins, I smiled and recited the Declaration of Independence.

When I looked up from bridge one night and saw him sitting on the steps with nothing on except a 45 rpm phonograph record slung over one ear, I recited the alphabet backwards.

Come to think of it, I was the only woman on our block who could recite all the vice presidents from John Adams to Alben Barkley.

Teen alcohol PTA target

Give a wild grizzly bear a home permanent? Roller skate over a bog of quicksand? Load yourself with alcohol and then try to drive?

That's just what contestants in a mythical game show entitled "First To Do It," attempt in the National PTA's new radio spots. Released in July as part of the organization's nationwide public service media campaign, the spots promote awareness of problems stemming from teen-age alcohol abuse.

Alcohol is currently the number one drug of choice among young people. The National PTA, alarmed by the increasing number of teen-age deaths involving automobiles and alcohol, and the long-term destructiveness of abusive drinking, has launched the campaign as part of its Alcohol Education Project, now in its fifth year.

Positive in tone, the campaign is not against drinking itself, but rather its harmful aspects. Both the radio and print ads suggest realistic, affirmative options to abusive drinking, and give teens credit for being able to make their own responsible choices about alcohol use.

According to Richard Spoonster, director of the PTA's Alcohol Education Project: "To our knowledge, this is the first such prevention campaign in the country to focus exclusively on teen-agers, depicting typical youth alcohol-related situations, and offering positive alternatives to abusive behavior, instead of using the more common authoritarian or 'scare' messages."

Posters will be placed in schools and other locations frequented by teen-agers, begining this fall.

Buildings evacuated; one dead in bombings

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal and city police investigative teams stepped up their search for a Puerto Rican terrorist group today following bombings and bomb threats which forced at least 100,000 workers to evacuate skyscrapers in Manhattan's business district.

The FALN, the Puerto Rican independence group whose bombings have frustrated authorities for three years, claimed to have struck again, with two explosions Wednesday in busy office buildings.

One person died, seven were injured and the economic impact from bomb damage and lost work time ran into the millions of dollars. The bombings also touched off a spree of more than 200 hoax bomb threats to police.

More bomb threats today emptied two skyscrapers as numerous threats were telephoned to police headquarters. They apparently were not connected with Wednesday's violence and no bombs were found.

An estimated 1,500 persons were evacuated today from the 44-story Gulf & Western building, which once was bombed by the FALN, and others were evacuated from the 45-story Transportation Building in lower Manhattan.

A policeman at the Gulf & Western building said he expected numerous crank calls today "from people in the mail room who want the day off."

Police agencies admitted they have been unable to crack the terrorist group, which has been blamed for 60 bombings in the past three years.

The FBI ordered top investigators to New York to join others already on the case and city police, already busy trying to find the killer who calls himself "Son of Sam," promised to add more officers to the investigation of the FALN.

Two bombs exploded an hour apart in two midtown office buildings.

The first blast, at 9:37 a.m. in the U.S. Defense Department office in the Christian Science building at 43rd Street and Madison Avenue, injured no one.

The second explosion, at 10:44 a.m. in the Mobil Oil Corp. building at 42nd Street near Grand Central Station, killed 26-year-old Charles Steinberg of Manhattan.

Almost 200 bomb threats telephoned to various locations — many of them hoaxes, police said — caused massive traffic jams as about a dozen skyscrapers were evacuated.

Estimates on the economic losses caused by interruptions of services throughout the city ran as high as $5 million. The Long Island Rail Road started rush-hour service in mid-afternoon for home-bound workers forced from their offices.

Most of the bomb threat calls did not lead to evacuations, but in two phone calls identifying themselves to WABC-TV, the FALN warned of four other buildings where bombs purportedly were set.

Among the buildings emptied were the twin 110-story towers of the World Trade Center, from which 35,000 people fled after a bomb threat, and seven floors of the Empire State Building.

Since Aug. 31, 1974, the FALN — initials for Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional (Armed Forces of National Liberation) — has claimed responsibility for about 60 bombings in New York, Newark, N.J., Chicago and Washington.

Vance, Assad meet in peace negotiations

By BARRY SCHWEID

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met President Hafez Assad today, beginning the toughest round of talks so far in his effort to win approval of a new plan for preliminary Middle East peace negotiations.

The talks opened against a backdrop of skeptical comments in Syria's state-controlled press on the proposal — arranged by Vance and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat — that Middle Eastern foreign ministers gather in the United States to prepare for a resumption of the Geneva peace conference.

Press reaction contrasted sharply with the warm reception Syrian newspapers gave Vance on his first visit to Damascus last February.

"It is not a secret that discrepancies are still very wide between the Syrian and American points of view on the basic issues concerning the Middle East conflict," the government newspaper Tishrin said.

"The issues have become very clear and there is no need for all these complications and discussions over marginal issues," said the semiofficial daily Al-Thaoura.

The newspaper commentaries did not indicate outright rejection of the proposed foreign ministers meeting, but they did appear to signal Syrian impatience over what the government calls Israeli-initiated stalling tactics.

Informed diplomats here also reported that Syrian officials were annoyed that Sadat did not consult Assad before the proposal was announced.

The concept of "working group" consultations of foreign ministers, announced Tuesday after two days of talks between Vance and Sadat in Alexandria, Egypt, appeared designed to circumvent the main obstacle to resumption of the Geneva conference — Arab insistence that the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) be invited to represent the Palestinian people.

Israel and the United States oppose PLO representation. U.S. officials contend they cannot recognize the PLO as long as it advocates destruction of the Jewish state.

Energy department signed into reality

By RICHARD E. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, with flourishing pen and abundant praise, today signed into being a Department of Energy, the first new Cabinet agency in 11 years.

Born in one of the biggest government shuffles ever, it raises the number of Cabinet departments to an even dozen.

In a ceremony in the Rose Garden at the White House, Carter signed legislation establishing the department, which absorbs nearly all of the federal government's energy programs. They number about 50.

The new department will have 20,000 employes and a budget of $10.6 billion. It will be run by James R. Schlesinger, presently the President's chief energy adviser.

Asked whether Schlesinger will become an "energy czar," White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter aides are avoiding those words.

Schlesinger said he hopes to put the department into operation by Oct. 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

"An outstanding job," Carter declared Tuesday when Congress approved the new department. He had asked that Congress create it to administer his comprehensive energy program, the details of which are now before the House. The program is surviving relatively intact.

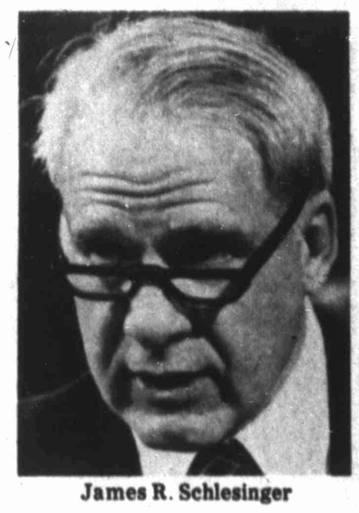

In a major victory for the President, the House refused Wednesday to remove federal price controls on natural gas. Carter praised that as "a courageous action," and Powell told reporters the President was "extremely pleased" with Congress.

The Senate Energy Committee held a confirmation hearing for Schlesinger even before Carter formally submitted his nomination to head the department. Schlesinger, who headed the Defense Department, the CIA and the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission under past Republican administrations, is expected to be approved overwhelmingly.

Schlesinger's credentials have been applauded even by critics who say legislation creating the department puts too much power in the hands of a single person. Senate leaders plan to put his expected nomination to a vote before the end of the week.

Praising Congress for "giving us the tools" to carry out a national energy policy, Schlesinger told the committee that dismantling existing energy programs and transferring them to the new agency will be a difficult job. But he said the task is already under way.

Carter had asked for the secretary of the new department, the first to be created since the Department of Transportation in 1966, to have broad powers to set energy prices.

Krueger suffers another defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Congressman Bob Krueger has suffered defeat for the second straight year in his efforts to deregulate natural gas prices.

Krueger, a New Braunfels Democrat, said the 227-199 vote that killed his amendment to stop federal price controls over new interstate gas was caused by excessive partisanship by both parties.

Last year the then-freshman lawmaker introduced a similar proposal that was narrowly downed, 205-201.

Krueger said Wednesday that the House probably would have gone along with a plan to raise the price of gas gradually and deregulate it some time in the future, perhaps five years hence.

But when that idea was broached to Republicans in the House, they refused to go along. Liberal Democrats, sensing they could defeat an outright deregulation proposal, refused to back down. Krueger, who needed Republican support to buck the Carter administration and the Democratic leaders, said he was stymied.

Krueger said he has no doubt that the GOP expects the Carter price control policy to fail and will use it as a campaign issue in the 1978 congressional elections and against the President 1980.

Krueger's Republican cosponsor, Clarence Brown of Ohio, denied partisan motives. He placed the blame for deregulation's defeat on Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth, the House majority leader.

Wright did not support deregulation this week. Instead, he and Reps. Charles Wilson and Bob Eckhardt engineered a compromise that Brown condemned as "a hokey fake."

In return for supporting Carter's price control policy, Wright won a more liberal definition of "new gas," which gets higher prices, and an assurance that the Democratic leadership would resist efforts to repeal a tax preference for independent oil men.

Wright, in debate, said he still favored eventual deregulation. But he said sudden deregulation would have a severe inflationary impact on the economy. His compromise position, he said, allowed the House to reach a position acceptable to all regions of the country.

Carbon added to help city water

By JIM STEINBERG

Activated carbon was added to Midland's water supply Wednesday afternoon in an attempt to combat the water's poor taste and strong odor.

The aesthetically displeasing "wood-like" taste and accompanying unpleasant odor began to emerge in the tap water this weekend, city officials said, when green-blue algae on the bottom of Lake Spence suddenly began dying and floating to the surface.

City Assistant Utility Director John Lowe said that this "turning of the lake" poses no health danger and is a common occurrence every summer, although this year's problem is noticeably worse than last year's.

Cool weather or a heavy rainfall would end the water problem, Lowe said, adding that with this unlikely solution, the addition of the activated carbon treatment at the city's water purification plant is the only answer.

The additional stage in the water treatment costs an additional $337 a day.

Water from Lake Spence located near Robert Lee comprises about 80 per cent of Midland's drinking water. The remainder comes from the Paul Davis well field about 30 miles north of Midland.

Lowe said it would be several days before the activated carbon treated water moved down the water lines and into users' faucets.

Ironically the city's potential supply for the most pleasant tasting water is suffering heavily from drought conditions and is not presently used.

Lake Thomas, located northeast of Big Spring, has a capacity of 220,000 acre feet of water but now holds only about 36,000 acre feet. By contrast, Lake Spence has 160,000 acre feet of water with a 400,440 acre feet capacity.

The city draws about 15 million gallons of water a day from Lake Spence and another 9 million or so from the Paul Davis fields. Water from both sources is mixed and treated at the purification plant located in the 5600 block of North Midland Drive. The exact ratio of well water to lake water varies each day, Lowe said.

The addition of chlorine at the purification plant intensifies the odors and poor taste produced by the decaying algae, Lowe said.

So far this year Midland's demand for water has topped last year's twice. On July 11 Midlanders used 26.2 million gallons of water and on July 28 some 26 million gallons were used. The record day last year was in August when 24.6 million gallons were used. During the winter the average use is six or seven million gallons per day.

Lowe calculated that during the summer four to six million gallons of water a day are consumed by evaporative air coolers.

Although some parts of the country are facing strict water rationing, because of some far-sighted thinking, Midland would probably not face these hardships, even if no significant rain were recorded for seven years.

At that time Lake Spence would be dry, Lowe said, but water rights on the T-Bar Ranch, 65 miles northwest of Midland, provide access to 926,000 acre feet of water, enough to last almost 100 years.

One good rain near Gail, Lowe pointed out, could put Lake Thomas back in business as a possible supplier of city water.

Electrical shock kills

CRANE — John Dee Daniell Jr., 19, was fatally injured at approximately 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in an accident at the Well Service Company yard at Crane, according to a spokesman for the Crane Sheriff's office.

According to the spokesman, Daniell died as a result of an accidental electrical shock. The spokesman said that Daniell was holding the guidewire to a pole being lifted to the deck of a rig when the pole struck a highline wire.

He would rather be cowboy than president

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

Austin Doolittle looked lean and hungry — like an old cowhand who had been riding the West Texas range on a tired and scraggy horse for days on end.

Instead of swinging off the left stirrup, Doolittle stepped down from the left side of the dingy-white pickup truck.

It was loaded down with an old upright piano, drums and other such things for making hot-shot country music — more hillbilly than swing.

It wasn't like Doolittle to drive up, either. Usually, he hitches a ride in from Seminole each Tuesday to help herd the cattle for auction at the Southwestern Livestock Auction Co.

Or, it wouldn't surprise anybody who knows this old cowhand if he were to mosey in on a trusted mount.

He had come to Midland to entertain and to work. He was outfitted for the latter.

But he gave you the distinct impressed that his dress for most any occasion was always the same: working cowboy garb.

After all, that's what he is: a hired hand.

"I've worked ranches in six different states," said this 6-feet-2, lanky character who claims kinship with aviator Jimmy Doolittle.

"His granddaddy and my granddaddy are (were) brothers," he said.

But this land-loving Texas Doolittle can do without the name-dropping bit. He stands out fine all by himself.

And he's proud of his upbringings, his heritage and what he is.

"Lord have mercy," Doolittle declared, "my granddaddy was a cowboy."

He was wearing an old Army-type olive-drab trench coat, faded jeans, well-worn boots, a blue shirt and, quite proudly, a Western hat approaching the 10-gallon size.

Before the day was out, Doolittle would partake of some of the vittles being prepared at the old chuckwagon and in a pit.

He would be playing the drums and occasionally singing with the Jean Ennis "Hot Shots" Western band out of Lamesa.

The eight-piece country band was brought in to entertain the hundreds of folks who came to help Doug Brazil celebrate his first year of owning and running the Southwestern Livestock Auction just east of Midland.

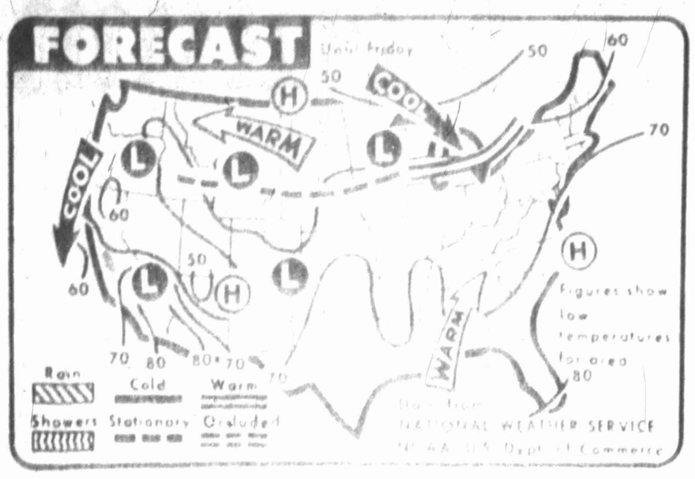

Fittingly enough, the group's lead singer was a Hank Williams type.

Suit seeking tax law repeal filed in federal district court here

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

"The 16th Amendment is part of an atheist-inspired plan to overthrow a nation divinely inspired by God," according to Thomas Flournoy.

Flournoy said Wednesday, "Almost everyone in America unless they are an atheist, believes the Constitution is a divinely inspired document."

Flournoy compared the 16th amendment with Article II of Karl Marx's Communist Manifesto which, Flournoy said, advocates a heavy and graduated income tax as a way to overthrow a government.

Although Flournoy's statements are hard for some people to believe, he and a group of Midland and Odessa residents backed up their beliefs by filing a suit Friday in Midland's Federal District Court against the Internal Revenue Service in an effort to have the Federal Income Tax Law declared unconstitutional and void.

One reason the law is illegal, Flournoy claimed, is because Federal Reserve Notes are not legal money, and thus cannot be taxed as income.

"The real purpose of the suit is to get backing of our money with gold or silver, and not be at the mercy of the Federal Reserve System'" he said.

Congress has defined a dollar to be equivalent to 428 grams of silver, he said. "A silver dollar is wealth, but a Federal Reserve Note is debt," he added.

A secret to a good government and economic system is to have gold and silver behind the money, Flournoy said.

Flournoy blames the current inflationary spiral on Federal Reserve Notes because they are not backed by gold or silver. "The Federal Reserve System can cause a depression by controlling the amount of money in the country by controlling the interest rates," he said.

Gold or silver backing would control the amount of money put into circulation, he added.

Flournoy cited a Supreme Court case in which the Court ruled promissory notes cannot be taxed, "and Federal Reserve Notes are promissory notes," he said.

Although he claims Federal Reserve Notes are illegal, he admitted that they are accepted for payment in daily transactions.

However, he said a silver dollar and silver certificate are worth five times more than a Federal Reserve Note or silver coins currently used.

A silver dollar is worth $5 at a coin shop, he maintained.

Another reason cited by Flournoy for the illegality of the income tax law is that only Congress is allowed to collect taxes, not the IRS. He also said the tax was intended to be a volunteer tax, but the IRS uses coercive methods to collect taxes.

"A person...can tell if a law is good or bad by asking himself if the law abides by individual rights," he said.

"Do I, as an individual, have the right to force my neighbor to do something to accomplish my goals?"

Flournoy said if the tax law was left on a voluntary basis for someone to give his money, it would be proper, but the law is not.

"An illegal organization like the IRS, under a code of law, forces people to do things they don't have to do. As a result, people have started taking the Fifth Amendment on their income tax returns," he said.

Although Flournoy contends that the Constitution gives Congress the authority to collect taxes, Congress does not have the authority to spend tax money for things he said were unconstitutional, including foreign aid, food stamps and welfare.

"The people have not delegated authority to the elected officials to give foreign aid, food stamps, welfare, or to control anything," he said.

"They (Congress) are in the business of controlling free enterprise."

The suit also contends the income tax law requires information on tax returns that "might tend to incriminate defendants," thus violating the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Flournoy said the IRS admits there is never a tax return submitted in which they cannot find something wrong.

"Anything put on a tax return can be used against you in court," he said.

If the IRS wants to charge you with fraud, they can, he added.

Flournoy said it is not a criminal offense to claim the Fifth Amendment.

He also claimed the Fourth Amendment protects a person from unreasonable search and seizure of his property and papers, yet the IRS has full access to property and papers.

Several court rulings in the past have ruled against the contentions claimed in the suit, including the contentions using the Fifth Amendment, illegal money and objection to government spending.

In Autenrieth, et al., v. Cullen et al., the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in 1969 ruled, "The fact that some person may object, on religious grounds, to some of the things that the government does is not a basis upon which they can claim a constitutional right not to pay a part of the tax."

In Porth v. Brodrick, the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1954 dismissed an attack on the Sixteenth Amendment as being "clearly insubstantial, without merit, farfetched and frivolous."

And in U.S. v. Daly, the Eighth Circuit Appeals Court ruled in 1973 that the contention that only gold and silver currency may be constitutionally taxed is "clearly frivolous."

Despite these rulings, Flournoy still believes he will be successful with his suit.

Although he could not cite any specific incidents, "unless he looked them up," he claimed the IRS takes these court rulings out of context. "They leave part of it out," he said.

Finally, the suit contends the tax law is unconstitutional because Ohio had not been legally admitted by Congress into the union at the time of the 16th Amendment's ratification, while the state played a significant part in composing and ratifying the amendment.

However, Flournoy could not specifically state why Ohio was not a legal state other than "it had something to do with the governor not being a legal governor." He also could not cite the role Ohio had in composing and ratifying the amendment.

If the group is successful in their suit, Flournoy said the country would be better off.

"We became the greatest nation on earth without an income tax, and we have been going down ever since the 16th Amendment was ratified in 1913," he said.

Instead of an income tax, the suit advocates the issuance of "U.S. Notes" to replace the Federal Reserve Notes to pay off the national debt. The suit contends this action would release $200 to $300 billion to pay for products and plants, and to give the economy a boost.

The group has requested a jury trial instead of a single judge's ruling for the suit because, Flournoy said, that is the way the judicial system is set up.

"I don't like having one man —a king you might say— giving a ruling on something," he said.

WTPA annual meeting to open here Friday

The West Texas Press Association's 47th annual summer convention will convene here Friday, with headquarters to be established in the Midland Hilton.

The conference, which will continue through Saturday night, is expected to attract more than 150 newspaper editors and publishers, both men and women, from throughout West Texas. The Reporter-Telegram is the host newspaper.

Roy McQueen, publisher of the Snyder Daily News, Snyder, is president of the association, and Bill Comedy of the Haskell Free Press, Haskell, is the first vice president and convention chairman.

Other officers are Terry Neill, Stanton Reporter, Stanton, second vice president; Virgil Moore, Breckenridge American, Breckenridge, chairman of the board, and Bob Craig, Hamlin Herald, Hamlin, secretary-treasurer.

Directors are Gene Snyder of Denver City, Dr. Billy I. Ross, Texas Tech, Lubbock; Charles Richards, Levelland; Larry Crabtree, Vernon; Jim Reynolds, Crosbyton, and Don Richards, Azle.

Bob Hamilton, publisher of the Iowa Park Leader at Iowa Park, who was named president of the Texas Press Association at its annual meeting in June, will attend the convention as a special guest. He is a past president of the West Texas association.

A golf tournament scheduled at Ranchland Hill Country Club and a tennis tournament to be held on the courts at Midland College are the convention openers. Participants will assemble in the hotel lobby at 8 a.m. Tom Blakemore of Lubbock and Jim Allison Jr. of Midland are co-chairmen of the golf tourney. Don Richards of Azle and H.A. Tuck of Midland are in charge of the tennis meet.

The convention registration desk will open at 10 a.m. in the hotel lobby, with Mrs. Bob Craig of Hamlin in charge.

The opening session of the conference will begin at 2 p.m. Harrell Feldt, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, will voice the address of welcome.

A panel on "Newspaper Persons and Their Community" will open the session. Terry Neill of Stanton is the moderator.

"Advertising and New Ideas" is the subject of another panel discussion to be heard during the afternoon, with Frank Baker of Fort Stockton in charge.

A dinner is scheduled at 6 p.m., following which the convention delegates will attend the Summer Mummers' production in the American Legion Hall.

The annual West Texas Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Awards Breakfast at 8 a.m. Saturday will start the second day's activities. WTCC President E. Bruce Street of Graham, J. Fike Godfrey of Abilene, executive vice president, and other WTCC staff members are expected to be in attendance. Don Richards is the newspaper contest chairman.

The breakfast will be followed at 9:30 a.m. by another general session at which David Werst of Big Lake will head a panel discussion on "The First Look at Newspapers by Newcomers."

This will be followed by another panel including three veteran newspaper publishers — Roy Craig of Stamford, Walter Buckel of Lamesa and Bill Comedy of Haskell — — on "Central Plants and Other Matters Which Need Attention."

A luncheon at the Hilton is scheduled for noon, with J.C. "Jim" Bowden Jr. of Midland, Mid-Continent Division reservoir engineer, Exxon Co.,U.S.A., as the guest speaker.

New officers and directors of the association for 1977-78, to be elected at the Saturday morning business session, will be presented during the luncheon.

Conducted tours of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame and of The Reporter-Telegram are scheduled during the afternoon.

The president's reception is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. at Hilton poolside. A dinner and dance, scheduled to follow, will be the concluding events.

Tanzania president due for Carter talks

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, turning his attention to the problems of southern Africa, is receiving a long-time opponent of white supremist rule in that region, Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere.

Nyerere, widely known as the "conscience of Africa," is arriving in Washington today for two days of talks on his first official trip to the United States in 14 years.

The Tanzanian president is the first African leader invited here on a state visit by Carter. Discussions between the two are expected to focus on the intensifying black-white confrontation in Rhodesia, South Africa and Namibia and on ways of promoting black rule in all three areas.

Following a meeting with Carter at the White House, Nyerere was scheduled to attend a State Department luncheon hosted by Vice President Walter Mondale in the absence of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who is on a tour of the Middle East.

Officials said Carter would seek advice from Nyerere on what course to follow in Rhodesia, where Prime Minister Ian Smith has rejected a series of proposals by Britain and the United States. Smith has turned down one recommendation from Washington and London to move quickly to establish a one-man, one-vote system in the breakaway colony he leads.

Intense and scholarly, the 55-year-old Nyerere has played an increasingly active role in black African attempts to end white minority rule in southern Africa. He has served as chairman of a five-nation African group which has been working jointly toward that objective.

Also on Nyerere's schedule today were World Bank President Robert S. McNamara, Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Dick Clark, D-Iowa, professor John Kenneth Galbraith and U.N. commissioner for Namibia, Martti Ahtisaari.

Mercury hits 100 mark again

Temperature readings around the nation Wednesday resembled a basketball scoreboard, as temperatures in many cities hit the 100 degree mark once again.

Midland was no exception with the high here reaching exactly 100, according to the National Weather Services office at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The moisture received in a surprise early morning shower Wednesday did not last long under the heat.

The high today was supposed to reach 100 degrees again, according to the weatherman. The high Friday is predicted to be in the upper 90s. No chance of rain is listed in the forecast. Winds tonight should be 5 to 10 mph.

Thundershowers and thunderstorms appeared in the El Paso area during the night, but by early today most of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies and quite warm temperatures.

The only cloudiness reported was in the form of patchy, high clouds over extreme Southwest Texas and along the lower portion of the coast.

Forecasts called for continued hot temperatures today with most readings in the 90s and some readings near 100 in Central and South Texas. There will likely be some afternoon and evening thundershowers and thunderstorms in the Panhandle, the mountains of Southwest Texas and along the coast, forecasters said.

He would rather be cowboy than President

Bobby Richter of Lamesa.

"I guess I play with feeling," Richter said modestly, as he was mending his guitar. A string had busted.

Doolittle, too, played with feeling. But it was not with the spark of a wound-up tenderfoot half his age and with considerably less mileage. He's 74.

Doolittle made a fair showing on the drums and at the mike.

He kept that hat on all the while. He has a flair, a fondness, for good hats.

"Oh, Lord," he said before the Hot Shots got set up, "I'll tell you: I've never in my life worn a sorry hat. I can't stand a man with an old sorry hat with a hole in it. I never wore a sorry hat in my life."

He's particular about other things, too. Like work. He cottons to it, especially if it's "cowboying." He can't see doing anything else, let alone retiring.

To Doolittle, retiring just ain't living.

Doolittle said it "gives me a sour stomach to be around" those men who, say at age 60, sit back and brag: "I'm retired."

"Their bellies stick out."

Doolittle's doesn't. And there's a reason or two why he's fit 'n' trim and as lanky as ever.

"You just stay active and horseback," Doolittle said. "Them horses will keep you in shape."

Later on in the day, after the music had died down and the steaks and red beans had been put away, this old cowhand demonstrated what he meant by being active. He rode his horse around herding cattle for the auction.

And he had rather do that than anything else, including retiring and lazing around. Simply, that's not his way.

Doolittle said some people ask him what his hobby would be were he to pick one out.

He'd keep on working.

"My hobby would be what I'm doing right now," he said.

"So, I couldn't retire. I'd rather be a cowboy than the President of the United States," Doolittle said.

Air service suspension OK'd

AUSTIN — The Texas Aeronautics Commission Wednesday granted a request from Trans Regional Airlines to suspend its passenger service to Big Spring for one year, in spite of efforts by Howard County officials to have the permit canceled.

Four Big Spring county officials went to Austin Wednesday to request cancellation of the permit in order to aid in negotiations with another airline for service.

Trans Regional said county officials don't cooperate — charges which the county officials denied — and asked license suspension for one year. The airline hopes to be able to move to Webb Air Force base by then.

Sand castle building grows up

By ALIX RILEY
The Los Angeles Times

SOLANA BEACH, Calif. — The days of the plastic pail and shovel may be numbered.

Sand castle building, once the realm of preadolescents, has been taken over by the big kids — some of them as old as 46.

They gathered at the shoreline here last weekend, armed with spades, spatulas and palette knives, for a University of California San Diego extension course designed to turn the ordinary person into a Frank Lloyd Wright of the beach.

Some of the 16 students really were children, but the adults, whose occupations ranged from managing an electronics firm to teaching art, seemed to be having the most fun.

They had spent nearly three hours turning several tons of sand into a 7-foot-tall pile that would eventually be the main section of the castle. Now it was time for the creative part — shaping the details, working from the top down.

One of the instructors, 34-year-old Gary Kinsella of Cardiff-by-the-sea, paused to explain the art of sand-castle construction.

"The most important part is building a good pile of sand," he said. "You have to pour water on it continuously.

"Compaction is probably the key word there," he added, speaking as if it were a class in something infinitely more technical.

Kinsella teaches the class along with his partner in a pottery business, John Laver, 32, of Leucadia.

The class includes a dose of philosophy, as well as practical instruction.

Joe and Laureta Gibbs of Rancho Bernardo said they saw the potential for that type of interaction, so they enrolled along with their four children, aged 10 to 17.

"We wanted something the family could do together," Gibbs explained.

Patricia Olson, 44, an administrative aide at UC San Diego, said she took the class so she could have something to do while her husband and children worked on their tans.

"I'm a redhead, and we sunburn, so I can't just lie there," she said.

But 10-year-old Lynn Garrett was less than enthusiastic about the whole thing. When asked why she was taking the class, she replied, "My mom told me to."

Clean Air Act changes expected

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Congress is expected to approve Thursday or Friday sweeping amendments to the Clean Air Act, including a two-year delay in tailpipe cleanup requirements that will avert a threatened shutdown of the auto industry.

Other changes in the 1970 act will make it possible for coal-burning power plants to locate near national parks and will give industrial polluters and smoggy cities such as Los Angeles more time to meet federal cleanup goals.

But the amendments also call for tougher penalties against slow-moving polluters, for better control devices at new factories and for stringent rules to govern industrial growth in urban and rural areas.

And for the first time, visibility becomes an explicit value to be protected in areas where the air is still relatively clean, most notably in the scenic canyon country of the West.

Bedraggled Senate and House conferees agreed on all these provisions at 2:20 a.m. Wednesday, climaxing a final seven-hour round of testy bargaining over conflicting bills.

Although the compromise bill will stretch out the nation's air cleanup timetable, environmental groups expressed happiness with it while industry spokesmen indicated displeasure or unease.

The conferees labored under vigorous prodding by President Carter and Democratic congressional leaders, who took seriously the warning of auto company officials that assembly lines would close unless imminent federal cleanup deadlines were postponed.

Auto makers said they had been worried that Congress would begin a month-long recess Saturday without granting relief.

Full production of 1978 model cars is scheduled to begin next week, but current law prohibits shipment to dealers, because the cars don't meet new emission standards that were supposed to take effect this summer.

Auto officials said they would shut down rather than pay stiff fines for shipping illegal cars, but the government actually could have winked at the shipments on the theory that Congress was certain to delay the standards after the recess.

Whether the shutdown threat was real or was an attempt to obtain favorable legislation — as some charged — the conferees' action did not please Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.), the industry's chief supporter in Congress.

"By this agreement it must be known we are sacrificing the consumer to greater costs and lost fuel efficiency for no proven health benefits to be realized in the near future," said Dingell, whose district embraces Ford Motor Co.'s headquarters.

In a statement released here, General Motors President Elliott M. Estes said the company was "relieved" that the conference committee "has reached a decision."

Chris Goddard, a lobbyist for the National Clean Air Coalition, called the agreement on auto emissions "a victory for environmentalists."

Auto makers, joined by the United Auto Workers union, had asked for a two-year delay in meeting stricter standards for hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions — and for an eight-year delay in reaching a tighter standard for nitrogen oxide, the most difficult and perhaps most unhealthy pollutant to control.

The conferees approved the two-year delay for hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide but held the nitrogen oxide delay to three years for General Motors, Ford and Chrysler — and five years for financially troubled American Motors.

The conferees also went along with the industry's request to substantially relax the final nitrogen oxide standard, but refused to ease the final carbon monoxide standard.

For 1978, 1979 and 1980 models, the current nitrogen oxide standard of 2 grams per mile will remain in force. Beginning in 1981, cars with fuel-saving diesel and "innovative" engines could qualify for a 1.5 nitrogen oxide standard. But most cars that year will have to meet a final standard of 1, relaxed from the .4 standard in current law.

The current carbon monoxide standard of 15 grams per mile will drop in 1980 to 7 grams and in 1981 to a final 3.4. The industry wanted the final standard loosened to 9 grams.

The current hydrocarbon standard of 1.5 would move to a final .41 in 1980.

Despite loosening the national nitrogen oxide standard, the conferees adopted a key House provision that could have the back door effect of forcing the industry to reach the .4 level anyway.

The provision allows dirty air states to adopt California's emission standards instead of the less strict national standards.

Administration denies column's defense charge

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Senior Carter administration officials denied Wednesday a report that the United States is considering adopting a defense policy that would concede the loss of one-third of West Germany in the case of a Soviet invasion of Western Europe.

The denials, in response to a syndicated column by Rowland Evans and Robert Novak, came from the State Department, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, White House press secretary Jody Powell and President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Brown, testifying before a Senate Armed Services subcommittee, said U.S. policy remains to seek to contain any Soviet attack near the German border.

"I don not advocate and will not support a policy which called for the United States to accept a loss or defeat in Europe," Brown said.

Powell, answering questions at the White House, said that Presidential Review Memorandum-10 — the subject of the column — proposes no change in policy that would accept the loss of territory in Europe. U.S. policy, he said, remains unchanged and includes the possible use of tactical and strategic nuclear weapons as well as conventional forces in a defense of Europe. PRM-10 is the administration's overall review of U.S. global strategy, including military strengths and force levels. It has not yet been presented to the President.

Ceremony opens site

BIG SPRING—Ground breaking ceremonies Wednesday marked the official opening of construction of a new $602,000 Webb Federal Credit Union Building.

The credit union will move from Webb Air Force Base to a site on Farm Road 700 near the southern perimeter of the city.

Participating in the ceremony were manager-treasurer Wade Choate, vice president L. V. Misek, Mayor Pro Tem Polly Mays and Linville Haney, representing Haney and Sivley contractors of Abilene. Gary and Hohertz of Big Spring are architects for the new facility.

More than 250 Sul Ross rodeo exes turned out for the two-day event.

Sterility's cause studied at farm chemical plant

LATHROP, Calif. (AP) — The men noticed it first, swapping stories over lunch at the chemical plant where they worked in this tiny central California town. None had fathered children lately.

That was a few years ago. Today, part of the Occidental Chemical Co. plant is closed and doctors are scrambling to figure out what has made several young workers sterile.

Twenty-six men work in the section of the plant which makes farm chemicals. According to a company spokesman, 23 of the men agreed to tests a month ago after initial studies raised questions about their sexual fertility. Eight of them had already had vasectomies.

But James Lindley, Occidental vice president and Western Division manager, said that of the remaining 15 men tested, 10 were totally sterile.

Mrs. Robert H. Martin

ALPINE — Georgie Lines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guss Lines of this city, became the bride of Robert H. Martin, son of Bobby L. Martin of Midland and Mrs. Leedie Lynn of Odessa, during a double ring ceremony in the First United Methodist Church here.

Mrs. Tom Karvonen, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Mrs. Jerry Petree, sister of the bridegroom, soloist.

The bride wore a long, white slipper satin gown over lace with appliques of the same lace on the high necked bodice and long, slim tapered sleeves. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a cap of seed pearls, and a chapel-length train completed the ensemble. She carried a bouquet of white roses, carnations and English ivy atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Jack Bow of Alpine attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Kenneth W. Johnson, sister of the bride from Odessa; Julie Wilson and Anna Fitzgerald, both of Alpine, and Tricia Arnold of Midland, sister of the bridegroom. Flower girls were Kathleen Henderson and Kristie Smith of Alpine and Ruth Anne Johnson of Odessa.

Jack T. Bow served as best man and groomsmen were Kenneth W. Johnson of Odessa, and Wayne Fabian, P. K. Brenner, Mickey Browne and Donnie Darwin, all of Alpine. Chris Henderson and Gary Smith were ring bearers.

Women's clubs to be highlighted in R-T

As a service to Midland club women, The Reporter-Telegram is planning a special supplement noting the achievements of the Tall City's women's clubs.

Although there are more women's groups in the city than the ones which will be featured in the section, we will include the local clubs which fit the traditional scope of women's clubs — garden, auxiliary, social, study and service groups.

The section, to be called "Women With a Purpose," will not include teen clubs, bridge groups, women's clubs of individual churches or ad hoc fund-raising groups.

The Reporter-Telegram photo staff has set aside seven specific periods when the presidents of participating clubs may have their photographs made at the newspaper office at 201 E. Illinois.

Those times are: Wednesday, Aug. 10 between noon and 2 p.m.; Thursday, Aug. 11 between 3 and 5 p.m.; Wednesday, Aug. 17 between 3 and 5 p.m.; Thursday, Aug. 18 between noon and 2 p.m.; Saturday, Aug. 20 between 10 a.m. and noon; Wednesday, Aug. 24 between 2 and 4 p.m., and Thursday, Aug. 25 between 1 and 3 p.m.

Each club president should make an appointment to have her picture made during one of those times, by phoning the Women's News Department.

Appointments will be necessary to avoid long waiting time. Special arrangements have been made to make these particular photographs during the times listed above. It will not be possible for the photo staff to handle drop-ins at other times.

In addition, the president of each club will need to complete a form outlining her club's history, special projects and current officers.

The forms may be picked up at the time of the photographic appointment and returned later, or they may be picked up in advance in the Women's News Department anytime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Forms must be completed and returned to the Women's News Department by 5 p.m. Sept. 5.

"Women With a Purpose" will be published as a tabloid supplement to The Reporter-Telegram's Sunday edition on Sept. 18.

When a couple takes out a marriage license, they should start considering divorce insurance, says Diana DuBroff, a New York attorney.

DuBroff, 68, who retired after 20 years as a public school teacher in New York, then turned to a new career in legal aid and finally her own legal practice, believes that such insurance "would ease the torture of the first several years after divorce for people of the middle-income group."

"Very rich or poverty-level divorced persons don't notice the financial impact of divorce as much as the middle-income group, because they're in very much the same financial position before and after the divorce," DuBroff says. She is founder and president of a program called NOISE, the National Organization to Insure Support Enforcement.

Insurance companies are not responding too eagerly to her idea, DuBroff said, although she is working with one group she won't name on the possibility of such insurance. Lloyd's of London also is interested, she added.

DuBroff had been a member of the New York Bar for nearly 40 years — although she did not practice there — when she retired from teaching and decided to go into legal aid work.

In taking up a new career late in life, she said she is "following the footsteps of my mother, who opened a hotel at 65 and became a wealthy woman. I figure that as long as I'm living, I might as well get the most out of it." After working with thousands of divorced persons — she won't say whether or not she is divorced, but does say that she is a grandmother — DuBroff developed the idea of divorce insurance.

AT WIT'S END

Living through 'terrible twos' impress women

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have written two books, play a ukelele and can drive a car without looking at my feet, but do you know what singular thing impresses women when I am in a group? The fact that I have survived a two-year old.

In all modesty, I must admit I am not the only woman in North America to endure the terrible 2s, but I am possibly one of the few who can talk about it without knotting my handkerchief.

One of the reasons I think I was so successful is that I adjusted earlier than most women. My kids were born being two years old. They seemed to have a full set of teeth for biting, an emergency supply of saliva for spitting and little legs that ran the mile under three minutes.

One evening, I said to my husband, "I cannot go on like this. I am exhausted."

He said, "You're just a little tired."

"When you fall asleep on an obscene phone call," I said, "You're exhausted."

"Do you mean to tell me a bald baby a yard high with a smile that could defrost Mount Everest is getting you down?"

"You don't understand," I said. "Between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., he put the cat in the dryer, got his arm caught in a rake, put his training pants in the oven, ate a guppy, pulled over the flour canister, sat on my geraniums, put his orthopedic shoes in the bathtub, dropped a television knob down the register, tore up my card for jury duty and talked 15 minutes without operator assistance to a housewife in New Mexico."

"Have you tried naps?" asked my husband.

"I've tried, but he keeps crawling in my playpen and slobbering, 'Mama, play...'"

Then, my husband remembered an old Burt Lancaster movie in which he was a prisoner of war. In order to maintain his sanity, he disciplined his mind to concentrate on things other than the pain he was enduring.

The next time my two-year-old oiled his tricycle with my $5.50 jar of cream that was to bring everlasting youth to my chins, I smiled and recited the Declaration of Independence.

When I looked up from bridge one night and saw him sitting on the steps with nothing on except a 45 rpm phonograph record slung over one ear, I recited the alphabet backwards.

Come to think of it, I was the only woman on our block who could recite all the vice presidents from John Adams to Alben Barkley.

Teen alcohol PTA target

Give a wild grizzly bear a home permanent? Roller skate over a bog of quicksand? Load yourself with alcohol and then try to drive?

That's just what contestants in a mythical game show entitled "First To Do It," attempt in the National PTA's new radio spots. Released in July as part of the organization's nationwide public service media campaign, the spots promote awareness of problems stemming from teen-age alcohol abuse.

Alcohol is currently the number one drug of choice among young people. The National PTA, alarmed by the increasing number of teen-age deaths involving automobiles and alcohol, and the long-term destructiveness of abusive drinking, has launched the campaign as part of its Alcohol Education Project, now in its fifth year.

Positive in tone, the campaign is not against drinking itself, but rather its harmful aspects. Both the radio and print ads suggest realistic, affirmative options to abusive drinking, and give teens credit for being able to make their own responsible choices about alcohol use.

According to Richard Spoonster, director of the PTA's Alcohol Education Project: "To our knowledge, this is the first such prevention campaign in the country to focus exclusively on teen-agers, depicting typical youth alcohol-related situations, and offering positive alternatives to abusive behavior, instead of using the more common authoritarian or 'scare' messages."

Posters will be placed in schools and other locations frequented by teen-agers, begining this fall.

Employes stand in rain after bomb threat forced their evacuation from twin-towered World Trade Center in New York. (AP Laserphoto)

Buildings evacuated; one dead in bombings

NEW YORK (AP) — A Puerto Rican independence group whose bombings have frustrated authorities for three years has struck again, this time killing a man and forcing thousands to flee Manhattan skyscrapers.

The pandemonium that ensued — with police and fire vehicles screaming to buildings where additional bomb threats sent almost 100,000 persons streaming into rain-soaked streets — knotted a city already shaken by the attacks of a killer known as "Son of Sam."

Two bombs planted by a cabal that calls itself the FALN exploded an hour apart in two midtown office buildings Wednesday.

The first blast, at 9:37 a.m. in the U.S. Defense Department office in the Christian Science building at 43rd Street and Madison Avenue, injured no one.

The second explosion, at 10:44 a.m. in the Mobil Oil Corp. building at 42nd Street near Grand Central Station, killed 26-year-old Charles Steinberg of Manhattan.

Seven persons were injured, two of them seriously.

Almost 200 bomb threats telephoned to various locations — many of them hoaxes, police said — caused massive traffic jams as about a dozen skyscrapers were evacuated.

Estimates on the economic losses caused by interruptions of services throughout the city ran as high as $5 million. The Long Island Rail Road started rush-hour service in mid-afternoon for home-bound workers forced from their offices.

Most of the bomb threat calls did not lead to evacuations, but in two phone calls identifying themselves to WABC-TV, the FALN warned of four other buildings where bombs purportedly were set.

Among the buildings emptied were the twin 110-story towers of the World Trade Center, from which 35,000 people fled after a bomb threat, and seven floors of the Empire State Building.

Since Aug. 31, 1974, the FALN — initials for Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional (Armed Forces of National Liberation) — has claimed responsibility for about 60 bombings in New York, Newark, N.J., Chicago and Washington.

An FALN note left in Central Park after the blasts Wednesday was similar to previous communiques. It demanded independence from the United States for the island commonwealth, an end to alleged oppression of Puerto Ricans and other minorities and the release of five Puerto Rican terrorists, jailed some 20 years ago for trying to kill five U.S. congressmen and then-President Harry Truman.

The letter also sounded a more ominous note:

"Since the colonial case of Puerto Rico is to be discussed soon in the United Nations, we seize this opportunity to demonstrate to the world that the Puerto Rican independence movement is willing to sacrafice (sic) everything in order to achieve the independence of Puerto Rico."

The message referred to a Cuban resolution that declared Puerto Rico a colony of the United States. The resolution is to be discussed Aug. 15 by the United Nations decolonization subcommittee.

Vance, Assad to meet in peace negotiations

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance meets today with President Hafez Assad to seek Syrian approval of a new plan for preliminary Middle East peace negotiations.

There was no immediate indication whether Assad would join Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in supporting the proposal that Middle Eastern foreign ministers gather in the United States to prepare for a resumption of the Geneva peace conference.

The concept of "working group" consultations of foreign ministers, announced Tuesday after two days of talks between Vance and Sadat in Alexandria, Egypt, appeared designed to circumvent the main obstacle to resumption of the Geneva conference — Arab insistence that the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) be invited to represent the Palestinian people.

Israel and the United States oppose PLO representation. U.S. officials contend they cannot recognize the PLO as long as it advocates destruction of the Jewish state.

The proposal to limit talks to foreign ministers would sidestep the issue, leaving it open for negotiation among members of the "working groups."

But it was not known whether Assad, the most militant of the Arab leaders directly involved in the conflict with Israel and the prime champion of the Palestinian cause, would approve such a compromise.

Vance held his first talks with Syrian officials at a dinner Wednesday night given by Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam.

On arriving here Wednesday from Lebanon, Vance appealed for Syrian support of the new plan, saying the working group meetings would "make very good sense." Acknowledging potential difficulties, he told reporters: "It is too early to say whether all the parties would think this is a good idea. We would welcome it if they would."

Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin endorsed the proposal in a speech Wednesday to war widows and orphans in a Tel Aviv suburb. "This will be a negotiation for a peace agreement between us and our neighbors," he said.

Gasoline tax increase House failure predicted

By JOHN LENGEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to raise the federal gasoline tax by five cents a gallon appears doomed in the House, a victim of opposition from the folks back home, says the chief backer of the tax hike.

Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., says the provision apparently will fail by about 100 votes when it comes to a vote today in the House. The proposal is being debated as lawmakers plow ahead with debate on the 580-page energy bill.

House leaders hope to have the measure passed and sent to the Senate by the end of the week when Congress is scheduled to begin its month-long summer vacation.

In a major victory for President Carter on Wednesday, the House voted 227-199 to continue federal price controls on natural gas.

But Howard blamed voter opposition for the lack of support for the proposed higher federal tax on gasoline, which Carter sought as a way of forcing conservation efforts.

Carter's energy program taxes "take money out of people's pockets 18 ways, but they only understand the gasoline tax: ding, ding, ding," he said, mimicking a gas pump.

Other tax provisions in Carter's program could add up to another nickel, tacking on 10 cents by 1980. The current tax is four cents.

The bill also would end the income tax deduction for state and local gasoline taxes.

The tax hike is important since the revenue would be earmarked for money-starved federal mass transit programs and badly needed state road and bridge improvements, Howard said.

House leaders and the administration want the gasoline tax hike to prompt the public to reduce consumption.

The nickel tax is all that is left of Carter's original request for authority to impose a tax of up to 50 cents per gallon of gasoline, a request killed in committee earlier this year.

Approval for Carter's natural gas pricing plan came after three Texas congressmen, Reps. Charles Wilson, Bob Eckhardt and Majority Leader Jim Wright, drafted a compromise.

The compromise had the effect of increasing slightly the volume of natural gas which would be eligible for Carter's higher price ceiling of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet. That price is 30 cents more than the present level, and it would rise roughly 10 per cent annually under a complex formula.

5 Texans vote no

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is how Texas congressmen voted in the roll call by which the House voted 227 to 199 Wednesday to defeat an energy bill amendment to deregulate new natural gas. A yes vote was a vote for the deregulation amendment. xxx—Denotes not voting

Test staked in Lubbock

A wildcat site has been staked in Lubbock County by Wil-Mc Oil Corp., Dallas. It is No. 1 Parker Neff.

Projected depth for the test is 9,400 feet and spots 1,779 feet from south and 1,614 feet from west lines of section 22, block X, James R. Robertson survey, four miles north of Idalou.

The new location is surrounded by dry holes.

Gas strikes complete in Crockett

Crockett County gained two discoveries, and Runnels one. Also, stepout sites have been staked in a Sutton gas area.

J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas, has completed No. 1-7-56 University as a Canyon sand gas strike in Crockett, 14 miles northeast of Ozona.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 2.030 million cubic feet of gas per day. Gas-distillate ratio was 17,631-1, and liquid gravity was 65.6 degrees.

The well was completed through perforations at 7,463-8,132 feet, after fracturing with 31,000 pounds of sand and 30,000 gallons of fluid.

Total depth is 8,287 feet, and 4½-inch casing was set at 8,270 feet. Top of the Canyon sand was picked at 7,450 feet, under ground elevation of 2,405 feet.

Location is 990 feet from south and 1,160 feet from west lines of section 7, block 56, ULS.

Thompson has proposed pool designation of University 56 (Canyon). It is in the Crockett part of the depleted Block 56 (Ellenburger) field.

PAY OPENER

Queen gas pay has been opened to production in the Vaughn multipay field of Crockett with completion by M. C. Vinson of Midland, of his No. 2-18 Shannon, 12 miles northeast of Ozona.

The well gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 400,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Gas-liquid ratio was 130,000-1 and gravity was 32 degrees.

Completion was effected through perforations at 1,010-1,041 feet, following treatment on the pay with 750 gallons of acid, plus 4,500 gallons and 12,500 pounds of fracture.

It was drilled to 1,124 feet, where 4½-inch casing was set, and it is plugged back to 1,110 feet.

Wellsite is 330 feet from south and 990 feet from east lines of section 18, block UV, GC&SF survey, a west offset to Queen oil production in the field.

RUNNELS GAS OPENER

W. W. West of Midland filed completion information for his No. 1 Helen Todd, an upper Gardner gas pay opener in the Lena Clayton field of Runnels County.

It rated a calculated, absolute open flow of 7,965,100 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 3,582-3,586 feet.

Drilled "tight," the total depth is 3,700 feet, with 4½-inch casing set at that depth. Top of the upper Gardner sand was picked at 3,582 feet, under ground elevation of 1,836 feet.

It is 3,250 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of James Caruthers survey 261, three miles west of Talpa.

SUTTON PROJECTS

Windsor Gas Corp., operating from Houston, has scheduled two tests in the Shurley Ranch (Canyon) gas field of Sutton, 11 miles southwest of Sonora.

They are projected to 8,000 feet and are in block C, HE&WT survey.

No. 4-189 Duke Wilson, a one-mile east outpost, spots 1,294 feet from south and 654.5 feet from east lines of section 189.

No. 2-173 Duke Wilson, a ⅝-mile north stepout, is 950 feet from north and 600 feet from west lines of section 173, block C.

Deep test proposed

Attempt will be made to reestablish production in a Cochran pool and a stepout is slated for a Cochran area.

I. W. Lovelady, Midland, will drill No. 1 Daniel Estate, a 12,200-foot test in attempt to reopen the Landon, East (Devonian) field of South Cochran.

It spots 2,856 feet from north and 1,700 feet from west lines of section 8, block L, PSL survey, 13 miles north of Plains, ¼ mile southeast of the depleted discovery.

The original opener, ATAPCO No. 1-A Daniel, finaled in July 1964 for 66.9 barrels of 38-gravity oil and 11 barrels of water daily, through perforations at 11,950-11,984 feet.

COTTLE STEPOUT

Perkins-Prothro Co., Wichita Falls, No. 1-B Carroll has been staked as a ½-mile southwest stepout to the five-well Cee-Vee (Canyon) pool of Northwest Cottle.

Drillsite is 853 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 8, block L, PSL survey, 10 miles northwest of Paducah.

Gas system plans told

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A Corpus Christi-based gas firm will build a $2 million, 26-mile gas gathering system and transmission line later this year through Rusk, Gregg and Panola Counties in East Texas, officials say.

Wallace Sparkman, president of Tejas Gas Corp. said the line, which should be completed by his fall or winter, will have the capacity of 40 million cubic feet of gas per day, with an initial daily delivery of 11.5 million cubic feet.

"We expect our entry into this highly productive area of Texas to cause a substantial increase in drilling activity and we want to be prepared for what we believe will be a substantial increase in throughput," he said.

The firm has also signed purchase and sales agreements for the gas, which will be purchased from East Texas independent producers and sold to an intrastate buyer, Sparkman added.

Amerada sets pipe in Nolan

Amerada Hess Corp., Tulsa, was running casing for completion attempt at No. 1 M. N. Pior, Nolan County scheduled wildcat, 1½ mile southwest of the Lake Sweetwater (Strawn) field, and separated from it by a depleted Ellenburger well.

A one-hour and 10-minute drillstem test in the Ellenburger from 6,135-6,193 feet, recovered 90 feet of oil and 60 feet of mud. One-hour initial shut in pressure was 1,800 pounds and two-hour final shut-in pressure, 1,275 pounds.

The test is bottomed at 6,195 feet.

Location is 2,300 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 83, block 21, T&P survey, 12 miles southeast of Sweetwater.

PB area gets wildcat; wellfinals, test slated

Glasscock County gained a wildcat site, an outpost has been staked in a Pecos field and a Ward wildcat flowed gas on production test.

Adobe Oil Co., Midland, plans No. 1-A Currie as a 9,850-foot wildcat in Glasscock, seven miles east of Garden City.

It is 1,980 feet from south and 1,427.5 feet from west lines of section 30, block 32, T-4-S, T&P survey, ⅞ mile west and slightly north of its No. 1 Adobe-James Currie, recently completed confirmer in the Apple Creek (Wolfcamp) field.

PECOS OUTPOST

Phillips Petroleum Co. No. 1-M Mitchell has been staked as a 1⅛-mile northwest outpost to the two-well Puckett, East (Strawn) gas field of Pecos County.

Drillsite is 1,570 feet from north and 1,220 feet from west lines of section 39, block 100, EL&RR survey, 36 miles west of Sheffield. Planned depth is 12,100 feet.

WARD PROSPECTOR

HNG Oil Co., Midland, No. 1-128 Lee, Ward County deep failure, six miles east of Barstow and seven miles east of Devonian gas production in the Barstow field, flowed gas at the rate of 6.5 million cubic feet of gas per day, along with ¼ to ½ barrel of water per hour, from the Devonian.

The flow was through perforations at 17,820-17,828 feet. Pay section had been acidized with 5,000 gallons. Choke size was unreported. Testing continued.

Total depth is 21,197 feet, and it is plugged back to 18,150 feet, in a 5-inch liner hung from 16,504-21,197 feet. Tests in deeper zones proved unsuccessful.

It is 1,980 feet from northwest and southwest lines of section 128, block 34, H&TC survey, one mile east of the one-well Phantom (Ellenburger) field.

DRY HOLES

CROCKETT — Dan J. Harrison Jr. No. 1 Jack Wilkins in the Davidson Ranch field, 1,300 feet from south and 2,000 feet from west lines of section 19, block 17, GC&SF survey, eight miles southeast of Ozona, td 8,710 feet.

Upton, Schleicher wildcats set; outpost operation slated in Irion

Exploration has been slated for Schleicher and Upton County areas and an outpost site has been staked in an Irion field.

Lamar Properties, Abilene, filed application for a 4,750-foot wildcat in Southeast Schleicher, as No. 1 Carl J. Cahill.

It spots 2,340 feet from north and 2,000 feet from east lines of section 3, block K, GH&SA survey, ¾ mile east and slightly south of the Carl Cahill (Strawn) oil field.

Also, Gas Development Corp. of Midland plans No. 105 Clovis Olsak as a 7,000-foot prospector in Schleicher, 2¾ miles southwest of Eldorado.

It is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 105, block A, HE&WT survey, a southwest offset to the firm's No. 1 Williams-Shell, an undesignated strike, which finaled July 12 for 2.460 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 6,395-6,483 feet.

UPTON TESTS

Attempt will be made to reopen Fusselman production in the Block 4 field of Southeast Upton with the scheduling of Aminoil USA, Inc., No. 1-15 University, an 11,000-foot venture, ⅜ mile southeast of the depleted dual Fusselman and Ellenburger pay opener.

Drillsite is 1,320 feet from south and 760 feet from east lines of section 15, block 4, ULS, seven miles southeast of Rankin. Ground elevation at the site is 2,878 feet.

Fusselman pay was opened in the field in January 1957 by T. M. Evans No. 1-B-15 University. It flowed 253 barrels of 50-gravity oil, 67 per cent water, through perforations at 10,650-10,684 feet.

Energy Reserves Group, Inc., of Midland, filed application for a 9,500-foot test of the Wolfcamp in the Amacker-Tippett pool of Upton. It is No. 2 R. P. Amacker.

Location is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 80, block Y, GC&SF survey, 10 miles northwest of Rankin. The field has eight Wolfcamp wells.

IRION OUTPOST

Hytech Energy Corp., Midland, accounted for the staking of a 1½-mile north outpost in the west part of the Ela Sugg (Wolfcamp) gas field of Irion. It is No. 1-87 Rocker B.

Location is 1,320 feet from south and west lines of section 87, block 14, H&TC survey, 31 miles northeast of Big Lake. Planned depth is 8,700 feet.

CROCKETT ACTIVITY

Two outposts have been planned in Crockett areas.

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., Midland, No. 1-65-W Halff Estate is slated as a ¾-mile south outpost to the Fergus (upper Grayburg) gas field of Crockett.

It spots 660 feet from north and 6,000 feet from east lines of section 65, block 1, I&GN survey, eight miles south of Iraan. It has a projected depth of 1,700 feet.

Also in Crockett, Delta-Suburban of Odessa, will drill No. 3-15 McDonald as a 2⅝-mile northeast outpost to the Hunt-Baggett (Strawn) gas field and for tests of the Canyon in the Ozona field.

Projected bottom depth is 9,200 feet, and it spots 1,493 feet from north and 1,320 feet form east lines of section 15, block MN, GC&SF survey, five miles southeast of Ozona.

West Texas, New Mexico gain 111 oil, gas tests

The Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico last week gained 111 new petroleum projects, including 26 wildcat tests, and 85 pool development probes.

Texas Railroad Commission District 7-C, headquartered in San Angelo was the leader in both categories, tallying 13 prospectors and 33 field tests, while the RRC District 8 office in Midland reported it received seven wildcat and 30 field permit applications.

Three wildcats were slated in each of the South Plains, Tex., and Southeast New Mexico sectors, which reported five and 17 development tests, respectively.

The over-all count was down 40 from the count two weeks ago, with wildcats dropping five from the prior report of 31, and pool tests off 35.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Fast-moving ball can injure eyes

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've taken up squash as a regular sport and find it great exercise. But I've heard that eye injuries are apt to happen occasionally. Do you think there is anything to this? I have never in my life known of anyone actually getting an eye injury from playing squash, but around the club, people talk of it from time to time.—Valerie C.

Dear Valerie: From what I have read about this, eye injuries do not happen very often, but when they do, they can be quite serious. That ball zooming along can really damage an eye, because it is so small, the eye socket cannot provide the protection it can from a larger ball. Also, you can get whacked in the eye with your opponent's racket because you play at such close quarters.

There is a simple little guard—without a lens—that is made for squash as well as for handball and racquetball. The frame is shaped so that it deflects the ball but doesn't cut down on peripheral vision. It is held by an elastic band that wraps around the back of the head. Cost: about $6.00.

You may be interested to know that cadets at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs must wear eye guards when playing any of these games.

A plain pair of industrial safety glasses also provides good protection—much more than ordinary impact-resistant lenses. Incidentally, older glasses made with lenses that are not shatter-proof are a real hazard. And contact lenses are not the answer either; they do not protect the eye from a projectile such as a squash ball.

There have been, incidentally, an increasing number of eye injuries reported in tennis lately. They are most likely to happen to players at the net who do not have the fast reflexes needed to protect them against a ball that is whizzing stright at them.

Even the badminton shuttlecock can do serious damage to the eye. It slows down rapidly because of the feathers, but if it is smashed at an opponent close to the net and hits him or her in the eye, it is still travelling at quite a murderous clip. There have been cases where the victim has lost sight in the injured eye.

So do be on your guard—with eye guards.

To K.C. of Los Angeles: Cellulitis is any spreading inflammation of the tissues; it usually affects the skin and tissues underneath the skin. Streptococci or Staphylococci are the most common germs that cause cellulitis. Any germ capable of invading the tissue may cause the inflamation. The treatment of choice is using the appropriate antibiotic to kill the germ, rest elevation of the infected area and local application of heat or wet dressings.

'Rhinestone Logger' seeks new, tougher competitors

By JIM BOYD
Eugene Register-Guard

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — "When you've got a good ax, you treat it gently, like you would your woman," said Bob Waibel, hefting his five-pound Australian racing ax.

Waibel, 42, is a 6-foot-1 timber faller from Sweet Home, Ore., who carries the nickname "Rhinestone Logger" because of the jeweled red suspenders he wears in lumberjack competition. He's one of the top three competitive axmen in the country.

Like the "rhinestone cowboys" who ride the rodeo circuit, he takes off from his job to compete for prize money around the United States. He's got a list of 70 timber carnivals he could attend this year.

"I got to 23 last year and that's just about as good as a guy can do," he said, estimating his winnings at "way over $2,000."

He's been chosen for the U.S. chopping team each year there has been an international competition. He went to Australia with the U.S. team in 1970 and 1974 and plans to return there next March. He was in Spain last year.

"Spain has endurance choppers," he said. "They don't believe in chopping less than four (posts) at a time, one right after another. We went over there and cut eight."

Why does Waibel spend seven hours a day cutting timber with a chainsaw and then devote his weekends to chopping and other logging sports?

"I enjoy these trips and I like to travel," he said. "And there's a little ham in almost everybody and it's a good feeling to win."

So he's adopted a logging lifestyle that permits him to work and compete. "I couldn't do what I'm doing if I worked in a sawmill or ran a machine, a tower or a loading machine or a truck, because I couldn't drop that and go," he said. "But as a timber cutter, I can work ahead and then take a few days off."

Waibel started competing in the ax-throwing event at the 1955 Albany (Ore.) Timber Carnival. He went into chopping because the prize money offered would permit travel.

"The first time I chopped a 14-inch log at Albany, I was five minutes and I got blisters on my hands and they busted and I wouldn't quit," he said.

Now he cuts through a log in 20-25 seconds. Maybe less.

Like many loggers, Waibel has had his share of accidents.

"I've been packed out of the woods three times," said Waibel, whose father was killed in a woods accident.

"My mother says, 'When are you going to give up that foolishness. You're too old for that.'

"But I've seen Aussie choppers that are better than us that are just white-headed, with white hair on their arms.

"The time you quit is when you can't win anymore," he said.

Attorney says he'll seek contempt citation against Kemp for no-show

HOUSTON (AP) — A State Bar of Texas prosecutor says he will seek a contempt cittion against former Victoria banker Bill Kemp, who failed to appar for a deposition hearing in connection with former Texas Supreme Court Justice Donald B. Yarbrough's disbarment trial.

Frank Bean, chief legal counsel for the bar, said Wednesday, "I will do whatever I must to get Mr. Kemp's deposition. I will take it with him behind bars if necessasry."

Fred J. Kolodey, an attorney for Kemp, showed State District Court Judge Bert H. Tunks a telegram from Kemp saying he was employed outside the state and would be unavailable to give the deposition.

Tunks, a retired appellate judge specially appointed to hear the case, said Kemp's deposition would be taken one way or another before the scheduled Sept. 6 trial date.

Kemp was president of the Commercial Bank in Victoria at the time Yarbrough was the bank's primary stockholder in 1974-75. Last June Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol Vance said he had tape recordings of conversations in which Yarbrough plotted to have Kemp killed. However, Vance said he did not have enough evidence to obtain conspiracy to commit capital murder charges against Yarbrough.

Vance said William Rothkopf, a former business associate of Yarbrough, had a special body microphone taped to him and made the recordings during conversatons with Yarbrough between May 12 and June 10.

Waggoner Carr, Austin lawyer and former Texas attorney general, accompanied Yarbrough to the hearings.

As two newspaper photographers shot pictures, Yarbrough raised his right hand and advanced toward one.

"You do that again boy and I'm going to lay you right on the floor," Yarbrough was quoted as saying. No blows were struck and Carr laughed during the incident.

Probe launched in doctor's death

MASON, Tex. (AP) — Most residents of this Central Texas community agreed two years ago when Dr. James Bodenhamer's body was found that he was not the type who would take his own life.

At the time the official report said the 62-year-old physician died of a "self-inflicted" gunshot wound.

Today, however, Mason County authorities have begun searching for a killer who they say fired two shots into Bodenhamer's body in a wooded area south of town.

Five days before the body was discovered on Sept. 2, Bodenhamer had kissed his wife and said he was going to see a critically ill patient. His wife never heard from him again.

Police found Bodenhamer lying on top of his own pistol. An autopsy report said he had been shot once in the chest.

The report said: Cause of death "undetermined." But retired Justice of the Peace Marvin Lange said his records show the 62-year-old physician died of a "self-inflicted" gunshot wound.

But suspicions about the death remained. Last week, Mason County Dist. Atty. Louis Crump ordered the body exhumed and a second autopsy performed.

Two entry wounds were found this time. One in the chest. One in the back. The suicide verdict was changed to homicide.

"We've got an unsolved murder on our hands," announced Mason County's current sheriff, Don Grote. "The ultimate goal is an arrest or arrests."

Bodenhamer didn't fit the stereotype of the country doctor. His neighbors said he was a flashy dresser. One resident said the doctor was a man "who made a lot of money and bought a lot of things."

Police Chief J.T. Gibbs was one of the townspeople who said they weren't convinced Bodenhamer's death was suicide, especially since he seemed a likely target for revengeful gamblers because of his known fondness for poker and racetrack betting.

"He'd know a quicker way of dying than two hapahzard shots in the chest," said Dr. Douglas Mims, a friend of the victim. "The average doctor has narcotics in his bag that he could have given himself a big dose of."

Gibbs said he returned to the death scene five days after the body was found and discovered two intact bullets. He said he told then Sheriff John Alexander and the district attorney "but I just couldn't get anyone interested in it."

Alexander said his office conducted the investigation "as thoroughly as we could with the evidence we had to go on." He added that he never completely discounted the possibility of murder.

In mid-July, it became official as far as law enforcement officials were concerned. The state attorney general's office entered the investigation.

Wheat protest planned

PAMPA, Tex. (AP) — Dozens of boxes of wheat — addressed to President Carter — will be shipped to the White House Monday, say more than 100 Panhandle farmers angry over current grain prices.

The farmers, along with their wives and children, gathered Wednesday to stockpile the boxes of wheat and threatened a farm strike to protest low prices "as soon as three months from now."

"It's farm power," said protest leader Fred Vanderburg Jr. "These people who have been silent so long are fixin' to come unglued and when they do..."

The local protest is growing, according to the farmers. Colorado and Wyoming farmers, they said, are starting to join. And a representative from the Rocky Mountain Farmers Union is expected to be here Aug. 25 to meet with local protesters.

Outlining some of the proposed protest actions, Vandenburg told the crowd, "We're going to mail in these boxes to let them know how dissatisfied we are. We're not being greedy. We are just trying to get that which we are due — a fair price."

Ron Butler of Waco, assistant to the Texas Farmer's Union president, said one step being discussed is to "try and get farmers to put up one acre as a protest acre along a road with signs showing it has been committed to the strike.

"Wheat farmers have nothing to lose," he said. "They could lay out next year and it wouldn't hurt them anymore than they've already been hurt. Every bushel harvested this year costs them money."

Wheat recently dipped below $2 a bushel. A bill calling for a $2.90 per bushel target (the price the government guarantees) price has passed Congress and awaits Carter's signature. The farmer's union recommends a target price of $4.98. per bushel.

Mrs. Sheridan Harnly, president of the Gray-Roberts chapter of TFU, reported on a recent trip to Washington to discuss grain prices with congressmen.

"I found we have very few there who really know how we feel," she said. "I talked to one congressman and tried to tell him how much it costs us to put in the crops and how little return we get. I told him we were going broke. Then he chuckled a little bit and said 'What else is on your mind.'

"I'll tell you, you don't know anger. It just makes you furious when you tell them you're going broke and they laugh at you. It made me angry enough to come home and fight."

TRC unrest produces suits, investigation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A turbulent period in the life of the Texas Rehabilitation Commission in 1975-76 produced a grand jury probe and four race discrimination suits in federal court.

The commission has won its first case in federal court, and its top executives say the matter should have died in the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Nothing ever came of the 1976 grand jury investigation.

U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow Seals of Houston ruled on July 22 that racial discrimination was not involved in the forced resignation of Billie W. Singer, a former TRC counselor.

Singer, a white man, sought $500,000 in damages, plus reinstatement and back pay. He accused the commission of retaliating against him for his friendship with James Copeland, a black who had filed an EEOC complaint.

Copeland complained of discrimination in January 1975 after his job was eliminated in an austerity program. Even though the EEOC found no discrimination had occurred, Copeland is suing the TRC in federal court.

Commissioner Jess Irwin said Singer was given the choice of resigning or being fired after inspection teams said he had falsified his record of rehabilitating TRC clients.

A client is considered vocationally rehabilitated if he gets a job and keeps it for 60 days.

"We either could not find the employer, could not verify a client had been employed or could not find he had worked the required 60 days," said TRC general counsel Edward Austin.

Two other discrimination cases against the TRC are pending in Houston federal court:

—Allan Provost, a black whose job was eliminated in the 1975-76 austerity program. EEOC said there was discrimination. Irwin says Provost was an unfortunate victim of inadequate state and federal funding.

—Bill Nunnellee, a white man whom Irwin says he fired as a supervisor in Houston because he refused to accept 180 days' probation. EEOC held that Nunnellee was fired for refusing to falsify personnel records sought by the EEOC in Provost's case.

Irwin said Nunnellee had failed to obey orders to closely supervise a counselor, who later resigned when it was learned she had paid an eye doctor for general medical treatment of TRC clients and had cleared illegal financial aid payments to four members of a Vietnamese refugee family.

Shooting brings probe

HOUSTON (AP) — The police department's internal affairs division investigated today an incident in which authorities said a robbery suspect and his hostage were shot to death by officers.

Police said the officers had no idea one of the men shot to death was a hostage.

Killed were Emmit Wayne Hines, 22, identified by police as the robbery suspect, and Roland Vincent Johnson, 19, a restaurant employe.

Police said the shooting followed a robbery of the office of the Forward Times, a weekly newspaper serving the black community.

They said Johnson was taking out the garbage at the restaurant when he was forced at gunpoint to go into the restaurant and get his car keys. Authorities said the two men were shot in the car by the officers as they left the restaurant. Police said Hines aimed a gun at the officers.

The fatal shooting followed a robbery of the newspaper office in which a reported $15,000 was taken.

Police officers H. W. Rogers and P. G. Walls, who said they fired into the car, were among several units answering the robbery call.

Homicide detective J. C. Mosier said each of the two officers flanking the car fired his weapon twice. Both occupants of the car were shot in the chest.

Police said a .32 caliber revolver was found in the car. Both Johnson and Hines were dead at the scene.

Police Chief Harry Caldwell, who went to the scene of the shooting, called it a tragedy.

"It's always a tragedy when human life in taken and I think we should view it in exactly that manner," he said.

Charles Simon, 25, a reporter-photographer with the Forward Times, said he was forced at gunpoint by a man to take the man to the money box.

"He put the gun in my ribs and pulled the trigger," Simon said. "But it wouldn't fire. I just went blank. I just fell to the ground. I thought I was shot and I didn't want him to shoot me again."

Johnson papers indicate he enjoyed no advantage

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson's private papers repeatedly claim that vote counting irregularities in the 1948 U.S. Senate election could have benefitted his opponent as much as they did Johnson.

Sixteen news reporters thumbed through the voluminous papers in eight bright red manuscript boxes Wednesday at the invitation of the LBJ Library.

The inspection followed an exclusive interview obtained by The Associated Press with Luis Salas, a Jim Wells County election official, in the controversial 1948 voting that lifted Johnson from the U.S. House to the Senate by a margin of 87 votes.

"I am without knowledge concerning the ballots in either Duval, Jim Wells or Zapata Counties, or any of the other counties in Texas, except what I have seen in the press," said an unidentified, undated memo that apparently was authored by Johnson. "I have not been to any of those counties and have not conferred with the officials in those counties."

In the Sunday story Salas said he certified 200 false votes for Johnson after the Democratic party's runoff primary, Aug. 28, 1948. Salas told the AP that the deal for the extra 200 votes was made at a late night meeting in San Diego, Tex., near Alice, between Johnson, South Texas political boss George Parr, Salas and other Jim Wells County Democratic officials.

Market narrowly mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was narrowly mixed today in an atmosphere of continued concern over rising interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Wednesday at an 18-month low for the second straight session, was off .86 at 885.14 at noontime today.

But gainers held a 7-6 edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted some cautious buying today by traders looking for "bargains" after the market's recent losses.

But they also cited continuing uneasiness over the recent uptrend in interest rates.

Speculation persisted that the Federal Reserve might soon raise the discount rate—the charge it makes on loans to its member commercial banks—following up on recent increases in open market money rates.

Frigitronics was the most active NYSE, off ½ at 9½ in trading that included a 163,000share block at 9.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .05 at 53.77. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .33 to 119.83.

Volume on the NYSE set a slow pace, totalling 7.26 million shares by noontime against 9.66 million at the same point on Wednesday.

Housing project's first applicants may move in soon

The first applicants for the city's $2 million housing project for the elderly and handicapped may be able to move in August 20, according to Midland Housing Authority officials.

So far 85 persons have signed leases at the nearly completed project located at Scharbauer Drive and Pecos Street. There were 133 eligible applicants for the 100-unit project, commissioners said Wednesday.

For the units rented thus far, average payment to the Midland Housing Authority was $46.54. That figure was below a ceiling set by the Department of Housing and Urban Development on the percentage of income that may be spent at housing project and one that should provide enough to cover most operational costs of the complex, Housing Authority Harry Clark said.

The remaining 15 spaces at the complex are expected to be filled by the Sept. 1 opening, Fred Kester, housing authority secretary, said.

Forty-six houses are expected to be renovated this year under a $160,000 housing rehabilitation project in low-income sections of Midland.

Although six more families were helped by the project than originally planned, some 54 qualified houses were turned away, Susan Edwards of the Human Relations Council said.

Midland housing authority chairman Harry Clark advised Mrs. Edwards to keep taking applications for next year, even though the fate of the program is in doubt. The housing rehabilitation program is funded by a Community Development Grant.

Donated money in Pringle case said returned

Approximately $550 donated toward a $1,000 reward offered in early 1975 for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of W. R. Pringle was returned to the donors approximately one year after Pringle's death, Jim Kent, former president of Kent Oil Company, said today.

Pringle, 61, was found dead in his south Midland pawnshop Feb. 19, 1975. There was evidence of a struggle and his face was pounded beyond recognition, police said then. Almost $400 in cash was found on the body.

A Midland County grand jury named Richard Earl Snider in a capital murder indictment Tuesday in connection with the death. Snider reportedly is in custody of authorities elsewhere in the state.

The indictment followed more than two years of investigation into Pringle's death. District Attorney Vern Martin said police Det. Les Fine had been working almost exclusively on the case for the last few months.

According to the spokesman for the Kent Oil Company, who handled the reward funds, six donors contributed a total of $550 to the fund, which was kept at The First National Bank. Approximately one year after the death, letters were written to the donors advising that the money would be returned or offered to the widow. Mrs. Pringle refused the money, and it was returned.

Pringle's shop had been across the street from a Kent station on Florida Avenue.

Pringle also had been a neighbor of Arthur M. Sparks, a 20-year employe of Kent Oil Company.

Board denies banks' request

The Midland Board of Equalization denied a request Wednesday by three Midland banks for 20 per cent equalization factors on assessment of stock held by the banks.

In doing so, the board ruled to keep the 1977 assessment valuation at the levels determined during the 1977 reevaluation, city tax assessor-collector Virgil Jones said.

The ruling was consistent with a ruling made by the Midland County equalization board, Jones added.

The ruling affirmed the assessed value of personal property holdings of Commercial Bank and Trust at $782,480; the First National Bank of Midland at $18,942,990 and The Midland National Bank at $7,915,500.

The Board of Equalization affirmed the valuation of Pioneer Natural Gas at $3,900,710, Lone Star Gas Company at $2,746,780 and Lo Vaca Gathering Company at $2,642,730.

The three companies had contested the 1977 reevaluation.

Odessan indicted by grand jury

An Odessa man, James Wallace Jr., was indicted Tuesday by a Midland grand jury on two counts of aggravated assault.

Indicted on a criminal mischief charge was Ricardo Baeza of the 700 block of North Lincoln Street in Midland.

Jerry Wayman Owen of Odessa was indicted on a credit card abuse charge and David P. Teer of Odessa was indicted on a burglary charge.

Odeasans Michael Jeffery Moreland, Ray Charles Ellis and Charles Edward Robinson also were charged with burglary. Elmer England of the 1500 block of South Fort Worth Street in Midland was indicted on an arson charge.

Indicted on a theft charge was Leroy Dennis Kendall of the 2300 block of College Street.

Sam Nelson Jr, of the 1400 block of East Wall Street was indicted on a burglary charge and Alan Dean Mohler of the 3200 block of Cimmaron Street and Alan Curt Relph of the 2000 block of Culver Street were indicted on attempted burglary charges.

Helen Reddy attends first board meeting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Singer Helen Reddy attended her first state Parks and Recreation Commission meeting and thanked Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. for giving her a chance "to put my time and energy where my mouth is."

The bureaucrat-entertainer hopscotched from Las Vegas to Los Angeles to San Francisco for her first commission session on Friday.

Ms. Reddy had actively campaigned for Brown. He announced her appointment to the Parks and Recreation Commission on July 13 for a term that ends in 1981.

Mushrooms enhance casseroles

Whether you count by fives or tens, or use a computer, $57,196,000,000 is a lot of money. It represents the increase in America's annual grocery bill, between the year 1970 and 1975 (most recent figure available.) The 1976 cost of food will be higher still. More and more, the times call for a lot of ingenuity in planning and cooking family meals.

Home economists of the American Mushroom Institute suggest a cost-conscience main dish such as a Cheese-y Noodle and Mushroom Casserole. This flavorful and nutritious meal-in-a-dish can be enjoyed indoors or out. Another delicious quickie, easy and thrifty, is Skillet Tuna and Mushrooms with Rice which makes four to six generous servings.

Mushrooms add eating pleasure to both of these hearty dishes, making "company dishes" of concoctions starting with cheese or tuna fish. Fresh or canned, they need only a few minutes cooking time to ready them for casseroles such as these.

Mushrooms "go" with everything and you can eat every bit of mushroom you pay for since they should never be peeled. Only if the bottom of the stem looks brownish or dry should the thinnest slice be removed.

CHEESE-Y NOODLES, MUSHROOMS

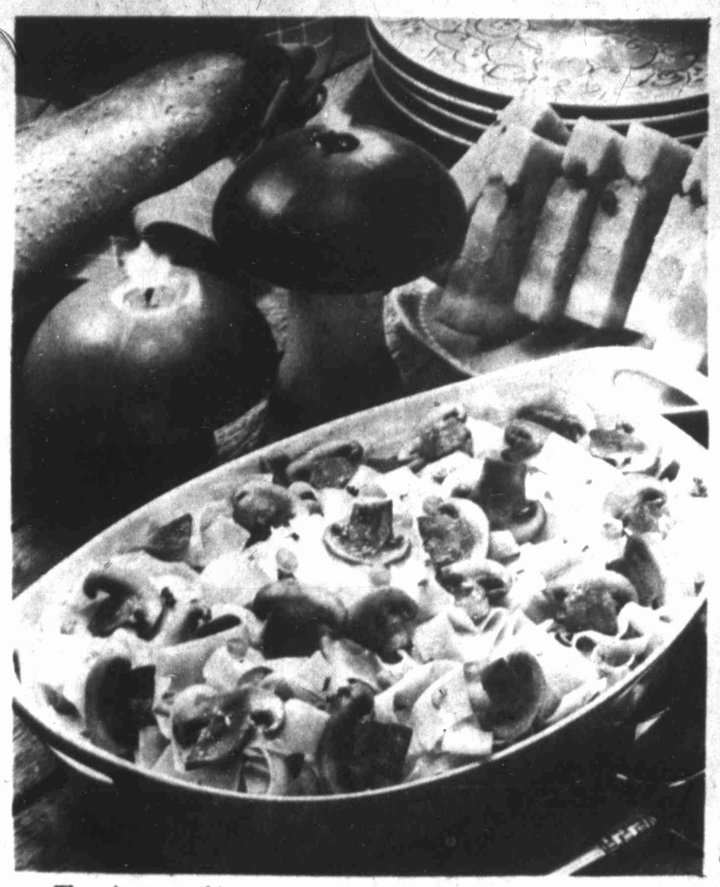

1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) sliced mushrooms
1 package (8 oz) medium-width egg noodles
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup light cream or milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped onions
¼ cup sliced scallions
¼ cup chopped parsley

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms (makes about 5 cups) or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. In a large saucepot cook noodles following package directions until noodles are just cooked, about 8 minutes. Drain and return immediately to saucepot. Stir in cheese, cream, salt, black pepper and nutmeg. Cook and stir over low heat until hot and cheese melts. Cover and keep warm. Meanwhile, in a large skillet melt butter. Add onion and scallions; saute for 2 minutes. Add reserved sliced mushrooms; saute for 3 minutes. Stir into noodle mixture; heat until hot. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Yield: 4 portions.

SKILLET TUNA, MUSHROOMS WITH RICE

1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) sliced mushrooms
6 tablespoons butter or margarine divided
1 cup raw regular cooking rice
½ cup chopped onion
3 chicken bouillon cubes
2-½ cups boiling water
2 cans (6-7 oz. each) tuna, drained and flaked
½ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup diced pimientos
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms (makes about 5 cups) or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. In a large skillet melt 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add rice and onion; cook and stir until golden, about 4 minutes. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water. Add to skillet. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until rice is tender and all of the liquid is absorbed, about 20 minutes. Stir in tuna, sour cream, parsley, pimientos and black pepper. Cook and stir over moderate heat until mixture is hot. In a medium skillet melt remaining 4 tablespoons butter. Add reserved sliced mushrooms; saute for 3 minutes. Stir into skillet with rice. Serve hot. Yield: 4 portions.

There's everything to be said for this thrifty and healthy Cheese-y Noodles and Mushrooms casserole to which sautee sauteed mushrooms, onions, scallions add flavor and crunchiness.

White House brings charisma to goober

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

With a peanut farmer dwelling in the White House, the lowly goober has taken on a charisma it never had before.

In Washington, some government officials have set out bowls of unshelled peanuts for visitors, and at cocktail parties in the nation's capital salted peanuts are much in evidence these days.

Peanuts have long received high marks from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which includes peanut butter on school lunch programs. Nutritionists say the sticky spread is 26 per cent protein. It is also rich in Vitamin B, phosphorus, thiamine and niacin.

For a long time it was believed that peanuts originated in Africa, but discovery of the nuts in Inca tombs indicates that they were native to the Americas. In fact, the Peruvian tribes are said to have mixed minced up peanuts with honey. In Mexico there was an Indian tribe which used cocoa in a peanut butter recipe and called it earth chocolate, since peanuts grow underground.

Peanuts are not nuts at all but a member of the pea family. Thomas Jefferson, who liked the little nuts, called them "ground peas."

The evolution of the peanut is interesting in light of recent discoveries. We are told they caught the fancy of Spanish explorers who encountered the nuts in Peru and took samples back home with them and began their own fields. In the 16th century, Spanish and Portuguese ships brought peanuts to Africa and traded them for spices and ivory. They have flourished in the dark continent ever since.

Peanuts recrossed the Atlantic in the 18th century in the holds of slave ships, which stocked them as a source of cheap food for their human cargo. Soon Southerners were growing nuts on plantations and calling them goobers, a derivative from the Congolese name "nguba."

B'nai B'rith to hold '78 convention here

Midland will host about 300 delegates and representatives of B'nai B'rith when that group's District 7 holds its 1978 convention here.

Errol Imber, district director, was in Midland Tuesday to talk to Permian Basin Lodge members about their role as host lodge.

The district covers seven states. Imber said about 300 district delegates and representatives of B'nai B'rith are expected to attend the convention, which will be held July 1-4, 1978.

B'nai B'rith was founded in 1843 and is the world's oldest Jewish service organization.

David Hoff of Midland, who is on the district executive board, said the Midland Chamber of Commerce and the Midland Hilton staff helped persuade the executive board to name Midland as the convention site.

Imber, prior to becoming district director, was assigned to the Washington B'nai B'rith office which was taken over by Hanafi Muslims March 9.

Errol Imber

Imber said he was able to barricade himself in his office and was freed after about eight hours, when police cleared the first six floors of the building.

Texans back big peanut subsidy

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes July 21-27.

HOUSE

FOOD STAMPS. Rejected, 102 for and 317 against, an amendment to retain the "purchase requirement" for food stamps. Defeat of the amendment left intact plans to provide food stamps free of charge to poor people. The amendment was proposed to the new farm bill (HR 7171), which was headed for final passage and conference with the Senate. Part of the bill is a four-year extension of the food stamp program, which costs $5.6 billion annually.

ROLL CALL REPORT

The government now requires the payment of a minimum amount — an average of 25 per cent of a family's net income — for stamps which at the grocery checkout are worth much more than they cost the recipient. HR 7171 eliminates the requirement that the stamps be bought.

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., a supporter of the amendment, said HR 7171 would make food stamps another "handout" program. "Providing food for one's family has always been considered a first priority by both savage and civilized people," he added. "This bill shifts that responsibility and puts the entire burden on the government."

Opponents of the amendment said doing away with the purchase requirement would enable the poorest people to obtain stamps, reduce the program's administrative costs, and cut down vendor fraud and black-marketing.

Members voting "nay" favored removing the purchase requirement for food stamps.

Reps. Samuel Hall (D-1), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roberts (D-4), Jim Mattox (D-5), Bill Archer (R-7), W. R. Poage (D-11), Omar Burleson (D-17), George Mahon (D-19) and Dale Milford (D-24) voted "yea."

Reps. Charles Wilson (D-2), Bob Eckhardt (D-8), Jack Brooks (D-9), Jake Pickle (D-10), James Wright (D-12), Jack Hightower (D-13), John Young (D-14), Kida de la Garza (D-15), Richard White (D-16), Barbara Jordan (D-18), Henry Gonzalez (D-20), Robert Krueger (D-21), Bob Gammage (D-22) and Abraham Kazen (D-23) voted "nay."

Rep. Olin Teague (D-6) did not vote.

FOOD STAMPS. Rejected, 170 for and 249 against, an amendment denying food stamps to persons on strike. This vote left strikers subject to the same eligibility requirements that apply to other applicants for food stamps. The amendment was proposed to HR 7171, the Agricultural Act of 1977, which was headed for final passage.

Rep. Richard Kelly, D-Fla., the sponsor, said his amendment says "we are not going to reward him who goes out on strike and quits working...."

Rep. Floyd Fithian, D-Ind., an opponent, said, "I do not believe strikers should be treated any differently than we treat anyone else in applying food stamp regulations. Individuals who qualify for food stamps...should not be excluded...simply because they are on strike."

Members voting "yea" opposed allowing strikers to receive food stamps.

Hall, Collins, Archer, Pickle, Poage, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Krueger and Milford voted "yea."

Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Wright, Young, Jordan, Gonzalez, Gammage and Kazen voted "nay."

Teague did not vote.

PEANUTS. Rejected, 207 for and 210 against, an amendment allowing the federal price support level for peanuts to diminish to $345 per ton in 1981. It sought to replace language in HR 7171 setting a subsidy level of $420 per year through 1981.

Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., the sponsor, said that commercial prices for peanut products are pegged to the federal subsidy level. "...This peanut subsidy is driving up the cost of peanuts and causing yet another drain on the budget of the average American homes, particularly the poorest homes where peanut butter sandwiches are served more regularly than roast beef."

Rep. Robert Daniel, D-Va., said: "The immediate effect of this amendment would be to impose a recession on vast areas of Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Texas and Oklahoma" and that it would "in the long run save the taxpayer and the consumer very little money."

Members voting "yea" favored the lower price support level.

Collins, Mattox and Archer voted "yea."

Hall, Wilson, Roberts, Eckhardt, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage, Kazen and Milford voted "nay."

Teague and Brooks did not vote.

SENATE

PUBLIC FINANCING. Rejected, 37 for and 56 against, an amendment ostensibly to provide for public financing of Senate general election and primary campaigns. Despite its stated purpose, supporters and opponents understood that the actual intent was to bring defeat of pending legislation providing for public financing of general election Senate campaigns.

The topsy-turvy strategy arose in the midst of a fillibuster by Republicans and conservative Democrats who oppose S 926. The bill would enable a Senate candidate to finance up to 62.5 per cent of his campaign with public funds, with each state having a spending ceiling based on voting population. The money would be raised by a tax-checkoff method similar to the checkoff now used to publicly finance presidential campaigns.

Supporters of the amendment understood that S 926 would probably meet defeat if weighted down with primary campaign provisions.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., an opponent, called the amendment "a Trojan horse intended to make the overall bill impassable." He said public financing of primary elections was inevitable but should not be enacted this year.

Virtually all senators voting "yea" opposed public financing of Senate campaigns. Most senators voting "nay" favored passage of S 926.

Sen. John Tower (R) voted "yea" and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D) voted "nay."

BLACK LUNG. Adopted, 47 for and 45 against, an amendment to extend indefinitely a coal tax to be used to raise money for black lung benefits. The amendment removed a proposed Oct. 1, 1982, termination date, a "sunset" date set so that the tax's success or failure could be measured after five years.

The amendment was attached to S 1538, which was awaiting final passage. S 1538 is designed to improve the federal law providing disability benefits for coal miners stricken by black lung disease.

Senators voting "nay" favored automatic termination and review of the one per cent tax.

Bentsen and Tower voted "nay."

BLACK LUNG. Voted, 48 for and 42 against, to continue the present system whereby the government can double-check chest x-rays submitted to document black lung disability claims. This vote adopted an amendment to S 1538, the Black Lung Benefits Revenue Act of 1977, which was awaiting Senate passage.

In order to speed up claims processing, S 1538 had proposed dropping the government review of x-rays which were already certified by the applicant's private physician. This amendment maintained the review except for claimants with more than 25 years in the mines.

Bentsen and Tower voted "yea."

Greyhound profits dip

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Greyhound Corp. has reported net income for the second quarter of $15.9 million and 37 cents per common share, a decrease from results of one year ago.

Gerald H. Trautman, board chairman, said Tuesday that income for the period ending June 30 compared with $17.7 million, or 40 cents per share, for the same period last year.

Revenues for the quarter totaled $933 million, compared with $950 million a year ago, he said.

For the first six months of the year, net income was $24.9 million, or 57 cents per common share, compared with $31.5 million, or 72 cents per share last year, Trautman said.

Revenues for the six months reached $1.8 billion, unchanged from the same amount last year.

According to the board chairman, the decrease was a result of substantial losses suffered by the Armour Food Group of the corporation. He said Armour results, like the rest of the meat industry, were hurt by inadequate profit margins caused by the inability to advance prices to cover escalating costs.

Avoid infernal fate at trump contracts

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

An especially hot corner of the infernal regions is reserved for bridge players who draw trumps on the wrong hands. French expert Robert de Nexon proved that he was on the side of the angels by his play of a slam contract some years ago.

Opening lead — ◇ Q

West opened the queen of diamonds, and de Nexon won with the king. The hell-bent bridge player would draw three rounds of trumps and then do his thinking, but it would come too late. Since the jack of spades does not drop, the trumps don't break and the queen of clubs is on the wrong side, South goes down.

After winning the first trick with the king of diamonds, de Nexon cashed the king of spades, got to dummy with the king of hearts and led the ace and queen of spades to throw diamonds.

TAKES TOP CARDS

Declarer continued by taking the top cards in the side suits. He then ruffed a club with dummy's low trump and returned by ruffing a diamond with the eight of trumps.

De Nexon ruffed another club with dummy's ace of trumps, thus winning his eleventh trick, with the queen-ten of trumps still in his hand.

The small slam was thus quite sure, and he actually made an overtrick by leading a spade from dummy and ruffing with the ten. West could not overruff, and South took the last trick with the queen of trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-J984; H-92; D-QJ10 C-Q542. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. You have 6 points in high cards, 1 point for the doubleton, and may also count 1 point extra for the jack of partner's bid suit. This is more than enough for a raise.

Hospital plan legal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A proposal for a bank to collect installment payments owed by patients to the Odessa Medical Center Hospital "would generally be valid," Atty. Gen. John Hill said today.

Hill's opinion was requested by Mike Atkins, county attorney of Ector County.

Atkins said under the proposed financial arrangement with a state or national bank, installment accounts for more than 60 or 90 days would be sold and assigned to a bank.

Briscoe assistant to manage campaign

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Ken Clapp has moved out of his job as Gov. Dolph Briscoe's executive assistant to manage the governor's campaign for reelection.

David Dean has left his job as staff attorney to become campaign counsel and treasurer.

Charles D. "Dicky" Travis, head of the governor's Office of Planning and Budget, will fill in for Clapp as Briscoe's No. 1 assistant.

The Briscoe campaign headquarters will be in the same suite of offices, conference rooms and work areas that the governor used for his 1974 campaign, at 1212 Guadalupe, near the Capitol.

"We're contacting about 300 local coordinators, letting them know we are here and what the phone numbers are," Clapp said.

Briscoe's chief opposition is expected to come from Atty. Gen. John Hill, who says he will formally announce whether he is a candidate at a $50-a-person fund-raiser Sept. 15.

Hill has become an almost daily critic of the governor in speeches and interviews and few doubt he will announce as a candidate.

Dr. J. Y. Henderson, head veterinarian for Ringling Bros. Circus, checks a chimpanzee's heartbeat.

Gorillas, cats touchy patients

By DAVID LARSEN
The Los Angeles Times

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — There is nothing more cranky than a constipated gorilla.

"It took us a while to figure out what was wrong," said Dr. J.Y. Henderson. "And when we did, we had one other little problem. How do you get a gorilla to take a laxative?"

It was then that Henderson remembered the ape's weakness. He dearly loved Coca-Cola.

The doctor handed him a bottle and the gorilla greedily began gulping until he realized it was a cocktail, half of which was castor oil.

"It was a long time before we were on speaking terms again," the vet recalled.

All in a day's work for Henerson, who for 36 years has been chief veterinarian for Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The 69-year-old vet was making his morning rounds at the Forum here, making sure the 300 animals in his care were fit for their daily performances.

"See those elephants," he pointed. "People think they are thick-skinned. But your house cat has tougher skin than they do. That's why you see elephants tossing hay and dirt onto their backs. It insulates them against the bites of flies."

He popped a few raw carrots into a row of gaping elephant mouths, then rached into his jacked for a mint.

Congo, who likes her breath kissing-sweet, gulped it and nodded appreciatively.

By and large the circus animals are healthy specimens, and Henderson attributes much of that to the high quality food they receive.

"Believe me, when a tiger has an injured paw, he isn't the most cooperative of patients," the vet said.

He recalled that years ago one of his big concerns was that the big cats suffered frequently from sinus troubles. But vaccines have been developed which have just about eliminated that.

Apes are particularly susceptible to coughs and colds, and for that reason they are kept in glass cages.

Henderson had just one more stop to make, at the camels.

"Don't ask me why, but they stay more healthy than any other beast we have," he said. "We used to have llamas, and they were the same way."

Whiteside heads R-T City golf entries

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Defending champion Steve Whiteside heads an impressive list of entrants who will be vying for the title in this weekend's 1977 Reporter-Telegram City Golf Championship, which gets underway Friday afternoon at Hogan Park Golf Course.

More than 60 golfers had signed up for the 54-hole event, which will feature competition in four flights.

But Rex Worrell, tourney chairman and club pro at Hogan Park, expects that number to increase by tonight's 6 p.m. entry deadline.

Whiteside, a recent graduate of Texas A&M University, won the 1976 title by one stroke over runnerup Steve Cromwell. Whiteside finished the three-day event with an eight-under-par total of 205.

Cromwell will be back once again to challenge Whiteside, his former Lee High teammate, as will last year's third place finisher Royce Woolard.

The championship flight is flooded with talent, and Whiteside will be hard-pressed to make it two in a row. Cromwell won the title two years ago.

Among the hopeful young prospects entered are Kelly Eng and Bill Sitton. Eng played for Midland High last season, while Sitton golfed at Lee. Steve Wise, the District 5-4A champion from Lee last season, who is headed for Western Texas College next month on a golf scholarship, had not entered as of late Wednesday, but was expected to compete.

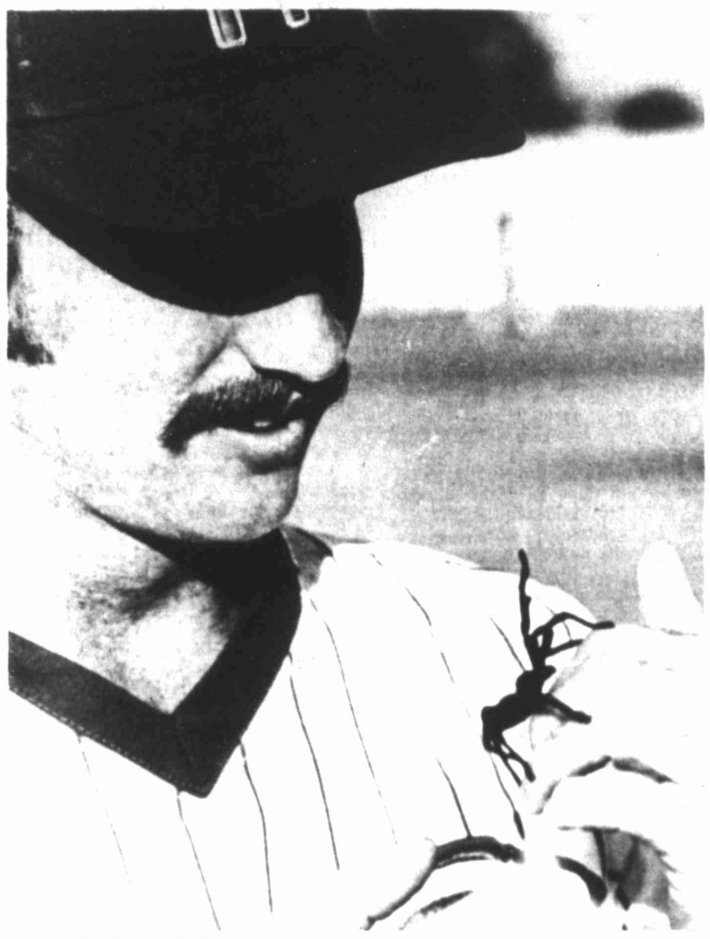

Another golfer expected to give Whiteside a run is Chris Brown, who like Whiteside, made it to the second round of last month's Trans-Mississippi Amateur Golf Tournament, which was held at Midland Country Club.

Brown defeated Arizona State golfer, Rusty Brown, in the first round, two and one, but was beaten by Fort Stockton's 18-year-old boy wonder, Blaine McCallister in the second round, one-up. McCallister is Houston-bound.

Whiteside whipped Dennis Beard, five and three, in his opening round match in the Trans-Miss, but had the misfortune of bumping heads with Oklahoma State All-American, Lindy Miller the following day, and was beaten two and one. Miller was the low amateur in the 1977 U.S. Open at Southern Hills.

Action will get underway in the championship flight at 2 p.m. on Friday, with the other flights not beginning play until Saturday. Trophies will be awarded to first and second place finishers in each flight.

There will be a barbeque for all contestants and a guest Saturday night, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Houston, Dallas teams advance

By BOB DILLON

Houston Bellaire's Cardinals and Dallas Kips took narrow victories Wednesday night in the second round of the Texas Teen-Age State Hi-Junior Baseball Tournament at Simon Field.

Bellaire polished off El Paso Products of Odessa in the featured game under the lights, 6-5, while Kips tripped the Waco Optimists, 2-1 in the heat of the day.

The Carda and Kips now move into the third round with unbeaten records in the big four-day double elimination tournament and square off in the 6 p.m. headliner today.

Odessa and Waco were dropping their first games of the tourney and move into the loser's bracket today. Odessa tries LaMarque at 1 p.m. today with the loser being eliminated from the tourney while Waco and Tyler will battle in the 3:30 p.m. tilt with that loser also dropping out of the meet.

THE WINNER of the Odessa-LaMarque contest will then face the winner of the Tyler-Waco game at 8:30 p.m. today.

The loser of the Dallas-Houston game will square off with the survivor between Odessa, LaMarque, Tyler and Waco at 1 p.m. Friday.

Houston and Odessa hooked up in the best game of the tournament Wednesday night with a great finish in the seventh inning. Great for the fans, that is.

Odessa's Jay Doelling and Houston's Benny Jasek were sailing along in a tremendous pitcher's duel for three innings until the West Texans erupted for three runs and a comfortable 3-0 lead.

First baseman Roger Lightfoot, who also shows his talents on the football field for Odessa Permian, smacked a long double into right field to start off the rally and Gary Smith was safe on a high chopper that went for an infield single. Sammy Ballew walked to load the bases with nobody out.

RANDY PETERSEN was safe on an error by the shortstop, scoring a run for a 1-0 lead. Doelling struck out, but Kelly Howard was safe on an error by the third baseman to make it 3-0 when both Smith and Ballew raced home.

Winning pitcher, southpaw John Ofield came in and got the Cards out of a jam by getting Huddleston to line into a double play, ending the rally.

Houston cut the lead to 3-1 in the bottom of the fourth inning when Mike Adams walked, went to second on a groundout and scored on Kenny Albritton's booming double into left.

Lightfoot, a lefthanded swinger then put Odessa into a 4-1 lead with a home run over the fence in right at the 320-foot sign in the fifth and El Paso Products looked to be in great shape with a 4-1 advantage over the Gulf Coast outfit.

HOUSTON CAME back in the bottom of the fifth inning to chase Doelling and also rough up relief pitcher Paul Kunz by scoring five big runs.

Singles by Roland Pate, Adams, Albritton and Glen Ellis, keyed the uprising along with two Odessa errors.

Suddenly, Odessa was behind 6-4 and Ofield struck out the side in the sixth inning, but the excitement was far from over.

Odessa went into the seventh trailing by two runs, but stormed back and nearly won it.

Huddleston rammed a long double to the fence in left and Mike Fowler was safe on an error by Albritton at short and Vic Vines hit a long drive to the 370-foot sign in left-center where it was caught by Pate right in front of the fence to score Huddleston.

ANOTHER FIVE feet and the Odessans would have pulled out a 7-6 victory, but it was not to be. Ofield struck out Lightfoot looking and got Smith to pop put out to second to end the game.

Dallas pulled out its second narrow win in the tourney by scoring two runs on a dropped fly ball in the fifth inning. (Dallas had already beaten LaMarque, 7-5 in eight innings Tuesday night in the opening round).

Brian Flook silenced the Waco bats, giving up a single to pitcher Jerry Penney in the third inning. The Optimists score their only run in the top of the seventh inning on a walk to Terry Knobel, a Waco Richfield High School athlete, an error, wild pitch and passed ball.

Penney plays his high school ball at Moore High in Waco.

John Heal, Dallas' first sacker and Highland Park standout, hit a double in the sixth inning, but died at second when the next two batters were put out.

DARRELL PATTILLO also had a two-bagger for Dallas which has players from no less than nine Dallas area high schools on the team.

Waco's lineup is dotted with Richfield, Moore and Mid-Way athletes. Mid-Way recently played in the Class AAA state high school baseball tournament in Austin.

In a loser's bracket game early Wednesday afternoon, LaMarque romped past outmanned Abernathy,

Info you may just survive without

The Baseball Register isn't exactly one of those books that once you pick up you can't put down. As a matter of fact, it's one of those books a reader can open to any page and start reading...well, scanning perhaps is more appropriate than reading.

The latest edition just received from the Sporting News is chocked full of information, some 517 pages of player records of major leaguers and players who were listed on major league spring training rosters, like Steve Hamrick and Dennis Lamp, a couple of former Midland Cubs now toiling with Wichita.

ONE CAN search out specific information about a Joe Morgan, such as the well-known facts that the Bonham, Texas, native was the National League's MVP in 1975 and 1976.

But did you know that Joe also was the Texas League's MVP in 1964 at San Antonio. He also was the first player to steal 60 or more bases and hit 25 or more home runs in a season, a feat accomplished in 1973 and 1976.

One can brouse from page to page finding kernels of interesting tidbits, some forgotten almost as quickly as they are read. Okay, quick now, what was the first National League game that went extra innings? Give up? Hartford vs. Boston on April 29, 1876.

Not all of the information is flattering. For example, Dick (Don't Call Me Richie) Allen holds the major league record for most times, four or more strikeouts in a game (13) and most four or more strikeouts in a single season (7) in 1968. His nine 100 strikeout seasons (9) also rates as a record. It doesn't mention his "how many times failed to show up for the game" record.

Bob Apodaca, another Texas League grad now pitching for the Mets, pronounces his name "apoh-DACK-uh". Hear that Rick Ethridge, let's get it right.

Who holds the National League record for 30 or more home runs in consecutive seasons? If you had the Register, you'd know. You'd also know that Albert Autry's nickname is Al and Texas Tech has to share claim to Doug Ault with Panola College...who the hell is Al Autry?

Cincinnati's Bob Bailey received a $135,000 bonus to sign with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1961...outrageous, absolutely outrageous the way these clubs throw money around on unproved talent.

ALAN BANNISTER, one time Arizona State phenom, was signed for an $85,000 bonus by the Phillies in 1973, that's more like it...

Chris Batton, who beat Midland the other night for Shreveport, is the twin brother of Twins' pitcher Jim Batton. One reason Juan Beniquez is playing centerfield for the Rangers is that he set the major league record for most errors by a shortstop in two consecutive games (6) back in 1972 when the Red Sox were wondering what in the world to do with a three-thumbed infielder.

Jack Billingham and Christy Mathewson are cousins, distant cousins, that is....Larvell Blanks, Cleveland Indians, attended Sul Ross and is the nephew of Sid Blanks, former Houston Oilers and Boston Patriots halfback...Vida Blue pitched a league-leading eight shutouts in 1971.

Bobby Bonds' hobbies are singing, dancing and listening to records.

THADDIS BOSLEY is listed in the Register, but never has played higher than Salinas in Class A ball... how comes he's listed, huh, how come? William Buckner, who played at USC and Arizona State, is the brother of Jim Buckner. Everybody in Midland knows Jim, but who is William?

Jeff Burroughs weighs only 195 pounds. Know why they call him Bert Campaneris? Easy, his real name is Dagoberto Blanco.

Bill Campbe!l's hobby is coaching a girls basketball team. Buzz Capra got his nickname from his dad because he thought he swung like a buzz saw. Rod Carew is an .073 hitter in World Series play, so much for that .400 talk.

Steve Carlton was once 10-1 for Rock Hill in the Western Carolina and Rick Cerone of the Cleveland Indians, if he is still with them,

4th-string Tony Dorsett to see 2nd half duty

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas' Tony Dorsett, the National Football League's most heralded fourth-string tailback, will start the second half of Saturday night's preseason opener against San Diego, says Head Coach Tom Landry.

Dorsett, the Cowboys' Heisman Trophy-winning No. 1 draft choice, is listed as Dallas' fourth tailback. He has had a knee injury that has forced him to miss several days of practice and has yet to work with the first unit in practice.

Veteran Preston Pearson will start at tailback, Landry said Wednesday, and will be joined by fullback Robert Newhouse and quarterback Roger Staubach.

Meanwhile, Tom Rafferty, a second-year guard-center, will start at center in place of injured veteran John Fitzgerald, who will miss the game with an arm infection that has prevented him from practicing this week.

Rafferty will join a Dallas offensive line that suddenly has become youthful. Third-year man Burton Lawless has replaced retired Blaine Nye at right guard and Pat Donovan, also a third-year player, has taken over for injured veteran Rayfield Wright.

Yet another third-year man, Herbert Scott, will start at left guard, while veteran Ralph Neely will be at left tackle. Veterans Drew Pearson and Golden Richards will start at wide receiver, while Billy Joe DuPree will be a tight end.

Starters on defense will be: safeties Charlie Waters and Cliff Harris; cornerback Benny Barnes; linebackers D.D. Lewis, Bob Breunig and Randy White; ends Harvey Martin and Ed "Too Tall" Jones, and tackles Larry Cole and Jethro Pugh.

Cornerback Mark Washington, who suffered an ankle sprain Wednesday, will probably be replaced by Mel Renfro or Beasley Reece.

Midlanders lose two

SAN ANGELO — Midland Furr's took it on the chin twice Wednesday in the Texas Teen-Age State Sophomore Baseball Tournament, losing to Dallas, 5-3 and Victoria, 9-4.

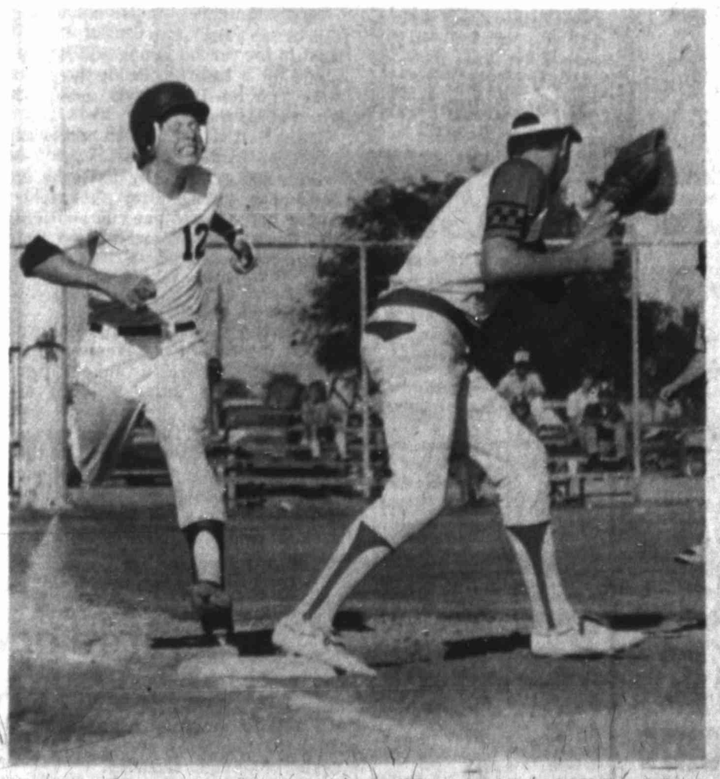

The two losses eliminate the Tall City team from the 10-team tourney. Midland had opened play Monday night with a 6-0 victory over Crane behind the three-hit pitching of Jeff Hicks.

Midland blew a 3-0 lead against Dallas Wednesday afternoon. Dallas pitcher Kevin Sumrow struck out 15 Midland batters and also poked a home run.

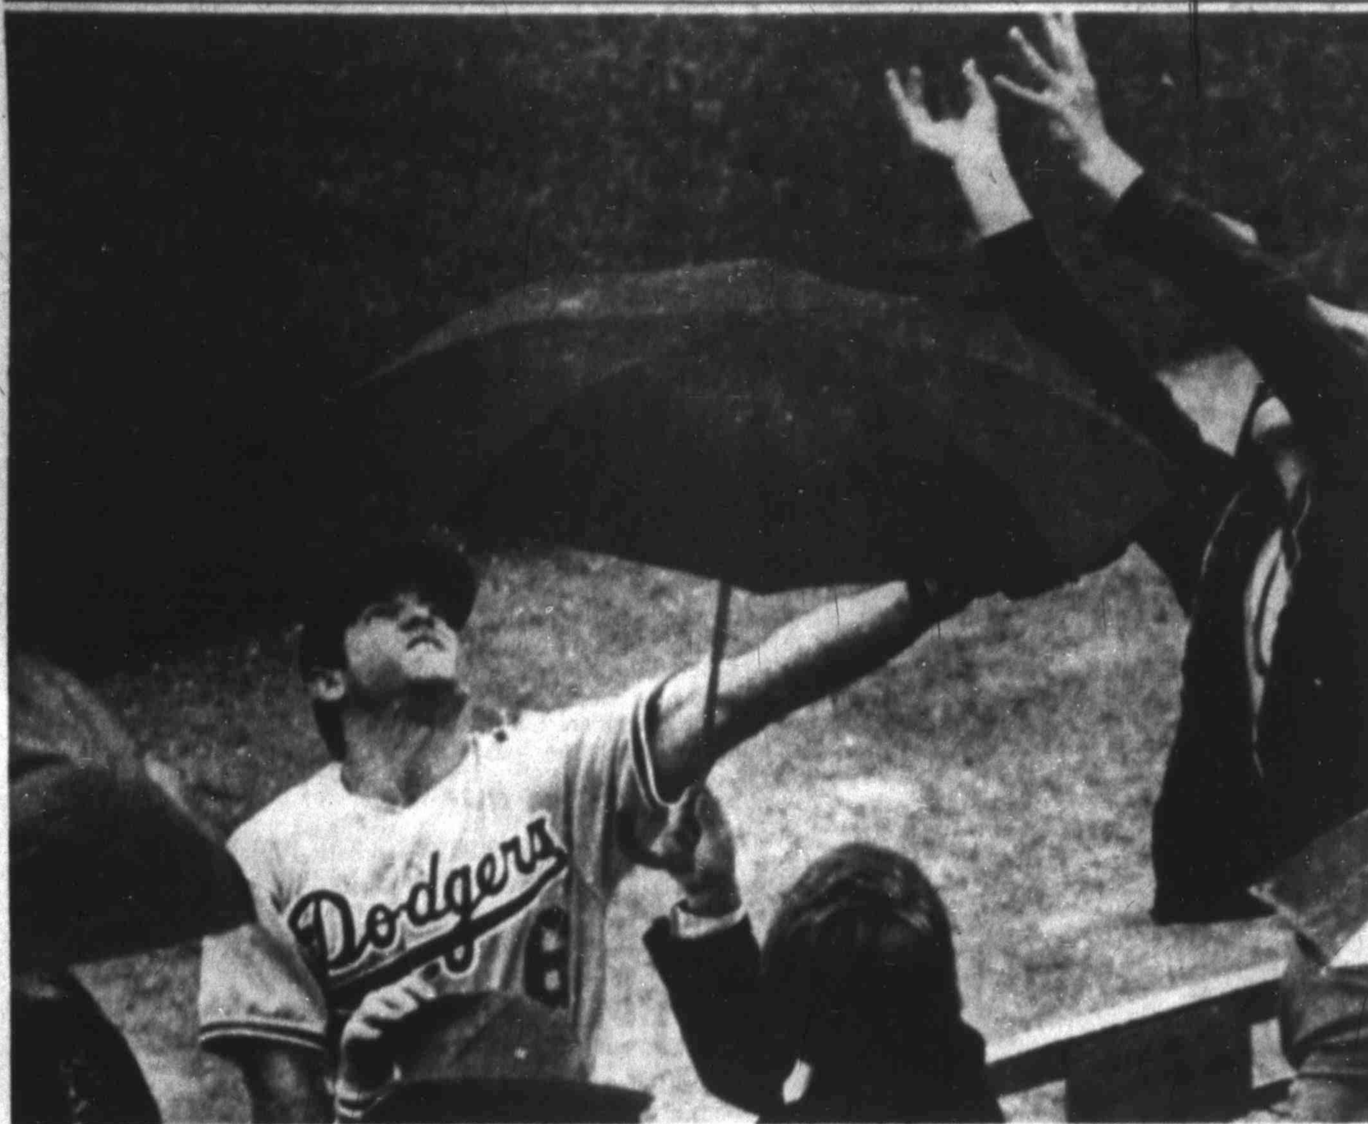

Furr's got behind 7-0 to Victoria in the late game Wednesday night and never recovered.

Mark Hewitt was the losing pitcher while Gerald Foster picked up the win for Victoria. Steve Miller was the losinh hurler against Dallas.

Bill Dern and Hicks were named to the all-tourney team which is announced to teams that are eliminated with two losses.

Rangers go 12 innings to beat Chicago, 12-10

CHICAGO (AP) — Hitting has dominated the race in the American League West so far, but Mike Hargrove of Texas Rangers says superior pitching—which he believes his team has—will prevail in the end.

Superior pitching, or just good pitching, wasn't evident Wednesday night. The Rangers and Chicago White Sox hooked up in a marathon battle which lasted 12 innings before the Rangers claimed a 12-10 victory.

Each team collected 19 hits in the contest which lasted four hours, 30 minutes.

"MINNESOTA, Kansas City and Chicago all have good hitting, but we've got better pitching and maybe—just maybe—that will give us an edge in the division race," said Hargrove, who blasted a three-run homer during a six-run Texas 12th inning.

The six-run rally gave the Rangers a 12-6 lead. They needed every bit of it.

Chicago came back to score four runs in the bottom of the 12th as Eric Soderholm, Ralph Garr, Jorge Orta and Richie Zisk, each collected runs batted in. The outburst sent reliever Adrian Devine, 8-5, to the showers in favor of Darold Knowles.

"What can you say after a loss like that," said Chicago Manager Bob Lemon, who saw his team lose its fourth straight game. "Nothing went right."

The setback reduced the Sox' lead in the AL West to 2½ games over Minnesota and 4½ over Kansas City and the Rangers, who have now won five games in a row and 11 of 12.

"WE CAME in here with winning all four games in mind," said Bump Wills, whose single drove in the go-ahead run in the 12th. "We wanted to move into contention and we've done that."

The White Sox entered the Texas series after winning three of four from Kansas City in an emotion-filled series last weekend. Lemon said he doubts that his team experienced a letdown against the Rangers.

"I really can't tell you if the Kansas City series took that much out of us," said Lemon. "Our pitching has let us down in this (Texas) series."

The lead see-sawed through the first three innings before the Rangers took a 6-4 lead with a pair of runs in the fourth and another in the fifth on Toby Harrah's 16th homer.

CHICAGO cut the edge to 6-5 on Jim Spencer's RBI single in the bottom of the fifth and tied it in the eighth on Garr's eighth homer. Chet Lemon also had a solo homer, his 15th, for Chicago.

Don Kirkwood, the fifth Chicago pitcher, came on in the 11th to put down a Texas scoring threat, but fell victim to the Rangers' assault in the 12th.

In addition to Hargrove's three-run homer, his fourth, and Wills' RBI single, Jim Sundberg singled in a run and Willie Horton drove in another with a sacrifice fly.

Twins 11, Tigers 1

Lyman Bostock and Butch Wynegar led the Twins' 17-hit attack with three hits apiece. To an 11-1 win over Detroit. Carew raised his league-leading average two points to .384. Craig Kusick and Bostock knocked in three runs each to back Paul Thormodsgard's seven-hitter for the sizzling Twins, who romped to their fourth straight victory and their 14th triumph in their last 18 games.

Royals 7, Blue Jays 4

Frank White drove in four runs and George Brett slammed his fifth home run in his last eight games to power Kansas City past Toronto.

White blasted a homer deep into the Toronto bullpen in the fourth, scoring John Mayberry and Fred Patek ahead of him. Brett followed with a solo drive as the Royals shot out to a 4-0 lead.

Red Sox 12, Mariners 4

Jim Rice smashed two solo home runs and Bernie Carbo added a grand slam as Boston crushed Seattle. George Scott and Butch Hobson also homered for the Red Sox. It was the eighth time this season that Boston has pounded five home runs in one game.

Rice collected a single and also reached on a walk in scoring four times.

Orioles 8, A's 6, 10 innings

Rookie Eddie Murray slammed two home runs, including a two-run shot in the 10th inning, to give Baltimore its victory over Oakland.

Murray's homer, his 18th of the season, came off reliever Bob Lacey, 3-6, with one out in the 10th. It gave the victory to Tippy Martinez, 3-0, the fourth Baltimore pitcher of the night.

Ken Singleton also homered for the Orioles while Tony Armas had a round-tripper for the A's.

Angels 5, Yankees 3

Nolan Ryan, who needed relief help from Dave LaRoche, became the AL's first 15-game winner as California defeated New York.

Terry Humphrey singled home two runs to cap a three-run California outburst in the second inning and Bobby Bonds hit a two-run, inside-the-park home run for the Angels, his 23rd homer of the season.

Graig Nettles hit his 25th homer of the season for the Yankees.

Ryan was relieved by LaRoche in the eighth inning after the right-hander had allowed one run and five hits, but struck out only three and walked two.

Brewers 7, Indians 4

A two-run single by Jim Wohlford capped the three-run seventh-inning rally that lifted Milwaukee over Cleveland in a game delayed 68 minutes by rain.

The Brewers filled the bases against loser Pat Dobson, 3-10, in the seventh on a single and two walks, one intentional. Dobson then walked Sal Bando to force in a run, breaking a 3-3 tie, and Wohlford followed with his two-run single.

Rico Carty homered for the Indians.

Foster's tape-measure homer juices up Reds

By The Associated Press

Sparky Anderson has been in baseball 25 years and he's seen his share of home runs, but George Foster still makes him wonder.

"I've never seen a ball hit like that, never," said Anderson, a touch of awe in his voice, the sight of Foster's eighth-inning blast fresh in his mind following the Cincinnati Reds' 5-3, 10-inning victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday night.

"That's my all-time all-time," added Anderson, who estimated at 550 feet the shot hit off Cubs reliever Willie Hernandez.

The ball jumped off Foster's bat like a shot and headed down the left-field line on a steady rise. It was still rising when it landed to the right of the foul line, in the third row of the third tier at Riverfront Stadium—the red seats, which have been reached only five times in the eight years the stadium has been in use.

"IT WAS a pretty sight," said teammate Pete Rose.

Foster's home run was his 36th of the season and gave him 105 runs batted in—tops in the majors in both categories. It tied the score at 3-3, then Dan Driessn cracked a two-run homer in the 10th to win it.

Afterwards, despite his game-winning homer, Driessen could only talk of Foster's blast.

"HE'S GOT ungodly power," said Driessen. "I'm trying to find out what he eats for breakfast so I can try some. He makes it look so easy, he makes the rest of us look bad. I'll take mine, but mine was just nothing compared to the one he hit."

Steve Swisher, the Cubs catcher, had a good view of the tape-measure clout. He, too, was in awe.

"What can you say about Foster that hasn't been said?" Swisher asked. "He's just amazing."

Foster provided some extra incentive for himself during batting practice before Wednesday's game when he stroked a practice pitch all the way to the red seats.

"You do it in batting practice," Foster said, "and you think to yourself, 'I want to do it in a game so everybody can see it.'"

He did, and the fans in Cincinnati are still marveling at the sight.

The game started out as a pitching duel between the Cubs' Rick Reuschel, going for his 16th victory, and Reds rookie Paul Moskau. The only run of the first six innings was Swisher's homer in the fifth.

The Cubs stretched the lead to 3-0 in the seventh on Larry Biittner's two-run double. Mike Lum led off the bottom of the seventh with a home run off Reuschel, who left the game later that inning because of an ailing back.

Foster tied it in the eighth with his huge blast, then singled and scored ahead of Driessen's 13th home run of the season in the 10th.

Phillies 8, Padres 1

Steve Carlton, 15-6, stopped San Diego on six hits, striking out 12 and walking just three. He also drove in three runs as the Phils moved within one game of first-place Chicago in the National League East.

Tim McCarver, Carlton's designated catcher, assesses his batterymate this way: "He's not as powerful as Tom Seaver, can't finesse like Don Sutton, and doesn't have Rick Reuschel's sinker, but he's a combination of the three."

Carlton said he moved his thumb slightly on his slider, and that helped his breaking pitches.

"The experiment gave me my best slider of the season," he said. "Both of my breaking balls, the curve and slider, were excellent. I threw a ton of breaking balls. Moving the thumb made my slider break later and quicker."

Astros 3, Pirates 0

Joe Niekro, 7-3, scattered nine hits for his second consecutive shutout and third straight complete game for the Astros. Jose Cruz drove in two runs with a fourth-inning double and Bob Watson knocked in a run with a single.

"For consecutive innings, this is probably the best I've ever pitched in my entire career," said Niekro.

"He's got great pitches, experience, and he knows how to hold runners on base," said Astros catcher Joe Ferguson. "He knows how to handle every situation."

Mets 4, Dodgers 3

Lee Mazzilli's pinch single in the 14th gave the Mets their victory over the Dodgers in a marathon which twice was delayed by rain for a total of nearly two hours and took over 5½ hours in all. The Mets sent it into extra innings with two runs after two were out in the bottom of the ninth. Doug Flynn drew a bases-loaded walk off rookie Lance Rautzhan to force home the tying run.

Expos 4, Giants 2

Jackie Brown evened his record at 8-8 by stopping the Giants on seven hits, with ninth-inning relief from Don Stanhouse. Ellis Valentine's 18th home run of the season and RBI singles by Andre Dawson and Dave Cash paced Montreal's attack.

Cardinals 5, Braves 1

Eric Rasmussen pitched a four-hitter to give St. Louis its 11th victory in the last 13 games and the season series against Atlanta 11-1. Jerry Mumphrey led the Cards' offense with four hits, scoring three runs and driving in another.

Longley prefers to forget past

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Roger Staubach and Clint Longley, who spiced the Dallas Cowboys training camp with fisticuffs last year, meet again Saturday night. Apparently it will silent warfare this time.

Longley, who was hastily dispatched to San Diego after being involved in two fistfights with Staubach in four days, will start at quarterback for the Chargers when the teams open the pre-season slate in Dallas.

He is talking to the media only through Charger publicist Rick Smith. And even then, his comments are brief.

"I'm going down there to play football and I'd rather not think of the past," says Longley through Smith.

Staubach, Dallas' veteran quarterback, was equally terse when asked about the rematch:

"You're the 18th guy who's asked me about that," he said. "No comment. I don't care if he plays right tackle."

But Staubach's teammates say he still steams when last year's incident is mentioned.

"It's been close to a year now and we still hear him talk about it," says wide receiver Drew Pearson. "I know how much pride Roger has. My only concern is that he doesn't do anything foolish."

Cowboy officials were stunned when the clean-cut Staubach and the normally-cool Longley, a former Abilene Christian University star, engaged in the two fights.

The first fight took place on a baseball field adjacent to the practice area. The alleged trigger was a Longley remark about a teammate. Assistant Coach Dan Reeves broke up the first fight with Staubach astride a prone Longley.

The second occurred in the locker room a few days later as players were dressing for practice. Longley claimed Staubach pushed a chair toward him. Staubach vehemently insisted that he was the victim of a blind-side punch over his eye.

Staubach was taken to a local hospital for stitches in the cut, while Longley left camp.

Longley remained suspended for several weeks before being traded to San Diego. Dallas and the Chargers exchanged No. 1 draft picks and the Chargers threw in a No. 2 pick—all of which figured prominantly in the deal with Seattle this spring that brought Dallas heralded rookie Tony Dorsett.

Chaps sign Levelland golfer to scholarship

Mark Roberts, a three-year letterman at Levelland High School, has signed a letter of intent to attend Midland College this fall, according to MC Athletic Director and Golf Coach Delnor Poss.

As a sophomore and junior, Roberts was runnerup in district and qualified for the regional tournaments in Class AAA. Both years the team finished fourth in regional. As a junior and senior, he averaged 78 strokes per round.

"Mark is a good golfer with a lot of potential to improve," Poss said.

Roberts is the sixth incoming freshman to sign with Poss for the Chaparrals' golf team. He joins Shayne Berry, Midland High; Russell Wimberly, Rankin; Bert Wimberly, Las Cruces, N.M., Mark Purvis, Houston Westbury, and Kelly Eng, Midland.

8 remain in girls junior golf play

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The field of eight entered in match play quarterfinals today in the National Junior Girls Golf tournament will not include the young ladies who had the top two qualifying scores.

The girl who had the lowest score after two rounds of qualifying play, Mary Murphy, 17, of Naples, Fla., was knocked out of the tourney in match play Wednesday. She lost to Althea Tome of Honolulu, who was one up on the 19th hole.

Sutter injured again

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bruce Sutter, the Chicago Cubs relief specialist, returned to Chicago Wednesday to undergo a series of tests on sore back muscles of his right shoulder.

A club spokesman said Sutter, who leads the major leagues with 24 saves and has a 1.06 earned run average, had ailing muscle flare up again. He said the 24-year-old righthander may have a torn muscle.

Sutter suffered the injury prior to the All-Star game last month and did not pitch for more than 10 days.

Foster on road to 53 home runs

By DAVE KINDRED
The Washington Post

George Foster of the Cincinnati Reds has 35 home runs this season. If we put a pencil to it, do some long division and addition, we discover he will hit exactly 53.4 home runs before Bowie Kuhn puts on his thermals for the World Series. It has been a dozen years since anyone hit 50 big ones, and Foster says he isn't thinking about it.

"I don't project in that fashion," he said. "Goals and guideposts sometimes get in the way. I'm only striving to do my best. Sometimes you can amaze yourself by making demands of yourself. You can do amazing things."

Such as hit 53.4 home runs in a season?

"I'll just add them up at the end of the year."

Foster, 28, the left fielder for the defending world champions, is fascinating. There's the name. Plain, unvarnished George Foster. Could be a banker's name, or the name painted with whitewash on a garbage truck. If a guy's going to hit 53.4 homers, he ought to be Willie or Mickey or Hack. Flash is what we need, some style. Not George. George Herman Ruth was nobody. Babe Ruth was a pinstriped deity.

And there's George Foster's face. An unforgettable face. Strong chin. High cheekbones. Slanting eyes, small and pinched, Oriental even. He wears sideburns cut in an arrowhead pattern, the points slashing along his jaw line. If the name, George Foster, suggests deserved anonymity, then the face says here is a man of majesty, a creation in black jade.

On a team of voluble stars, Foster has risen to acclaim silently. Unlike some outfielders, he has not asked his city to name a candy bar in his honor, nor has he asked that a Brink's truck make home deliveries three times a week. What Foster has done is wait. And wait. Then wait. And at least, he says, God made him a man who could hit 53.4 homers.

Originally a Giant, Foster was nailed to the bench, watching fellows named Willie Mays and Bobby Bonds. The Reds traded for him in 1971, giving up a mediocre infielder, Frank Duffy, and a forgotton pitcher, Vern Geishert.

Four undistinguished years later — "They don't make bats long enough to swing from the dugout,' Foster said in rationalization — the outfielder suddenly was made a regular in the grand experiment of moving Pete Rose to third base.

Dallas wins

16-0 to send that South Plains team home.

Pitcher Brian Richard had the only extrabase hit of the game — a double for the Gulf Coast outfit.

Abernathy pitchers issued a total of 11 walks to the Texans in the rout.

Midland's host team — Mustang Mud, one of the younger teams in the tourney, lost to Tyler's Raiders, 7-0, to drop from the tourney.

Tyler is made up of athletes from Tyler Lee High School, but it was pickup pitcher Mark Jones from Chapel Hill, that went all the way with a neat one-hitter to pick up the shutout victory over the Midlanders.

DAVID BRIGHAM had Midland's only hit — a single in the second inning.

Leadoff hitter and shortstop David Reed, led the eight-hit attack for Tyler with three hits. The speedster also stole three bases for the East Texas team.

Four more games are on tap and after the dust clears today, there will be only three teams left in the drive for the coveted state championship trophy.

Finals are set for Friday at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Willis seeks surgery

FOOTBALL — Houston Oilers fullback Fred Willis will return to Houston from the Oilers' summer camp at Nacogdoches to undergo surgery on his left shoulder. Willis, Houston's second leading ground gainer in 1976 with 542 yards, said he made the decision because the Oilers have declined to guarantee his contract....

The Kansas City Chiefs of the NFL cut several players, including sixth round draft choice Rick Burleson, a defensive lineman from Texas...Former Oakland Raiders quarterback Daryle Lamonica has been sued for $5.2 million by former business partners who contend he failed to tell them he planned to start a competitive trucking firm...

TENNIS — Second seeded Roscoe Tanner defeated 19-year-old Matt Mitchell 6-4, 6-3 and Ray Moore turned back Larry Gottfried, who had upset third-seeded Wojtek Fibak, 6-4, 6-3 at the Orange, N.J., Lawn Tennis Club Tournament. In other action, Mary Carillo, top-seeded among the women, downed Caroline Stoll 7-6, 4-6, 6-3...

GOLF — Bruce Lietzke, Rik Massengale, Hubert Green, Dave Stockton, Al Geiberger and Lee Trevino are among the standouts in the 156-player field of the $210,000 Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament which got underway today.

SOCCER — The Dallas Tornado beat the Las Vegas Quicksilvers 3-1 to win the Southern Division of the North American Soccer League, eliminating the Quicksilvers from possible playoff competition.

TRACK — Canadian Olympic sprinter Hugh Spooner, who has run the 100 meters in 10.3 and the 200 in 21.1 seconds, has signed with the University of Texas. Also signing were Tim McManus, 208-foot, six-inch javelin thrower from North Bergen, N.J.; Keith Sandres, 156 pole vaulter from Donna; and Owen Hamilton, middle distance runner from Jamaica, who has run the 400 meters in 48.8 and the 800 in 1:52.1...

TROTTING — B.G.'s Bunny, the fastest three-year-old pacer of all time, has been syndicated for $2.3 million by Phil Tully of Monticello, N.Y., and Louis Guida of Morrisville, Pa. The colt won an elimination division of the $425,000 Meadowlands Pace in a record 1:54 last month but sustained a hairline fracture of the sesamoid bone in his right rear leg during the one mile test and never raced again.

BASEBALL — Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia has been selected as Player of the Month in the National League and Chicago's Rick Reuschel repeated as Pitcher of the Month. Luzinski drove in 32 runs in 28 games and hit 10 homers while batting .355 in July. Reuschel was 4-1 in eight games and pitched three shutouts....

Judy battles Austin for lead

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Debbie Austin and Judy Rankin, disputing the lead in the $100,000 European Women's Open Golf Championship, agreed that a woman's best friend is her caddy.

Miss Austin, first-round pacesetter with a six-under-par 68 on Sunningdale's scarred and bumpy course, had brought Ray Rash, her regular caddy on the U.S. circuit.

"He is indispensable," she said. "He talks all the time and soothes my nerves."

Mrs. Rankin, one stroke behind at 69, has local veteran Bill Mullins, a well known character at Sunningdale, to carry her clubs.

"He's fantastic, and he knows every inch of this golf course," Mrs. Rankin said. "I love playing Sunningdale more than any other course in the world, and Mullins is part of the reason."

MISS AUSTIN, a 29-year-old blonde from West Palm Beach, Fla., played fine iron shots for eagle threes at the 463-yard 10th and the 409-yard 16th.

"I am a pessimistic person and I get easily depressed when things go wrong," Debbie said. "That's where Ray comes in. He gives me confidence. If I miss a putt, he says: 'Forget about that one and think about the next hole. There are lots of birdies ahead.'

"He was at college and I think he must have majored in psychology or something."

In fact Rash, 23, majored in business studies. He said he planned a business career but is caddying for the moment because he enjoys traveling around.

"I just couldn't do without him," Debbie said. "But don't get me wrong, this is platonic. Ray and I have a strictly professional player-caddie relationship."

Mrs. Rankin's husband, Yippie, follows her around the course and silently watches every shot. But it's Mullins, the wise, old man of Sunningdale, who gives the advice.

"I DON'T let anyone else tell me what to do as much as Mullins," Mrs. Rankin said. "Caddies in the United States help me to choose my clubs, but Mullins actually helps to line up my putts on the green. I never argue with him because he is always right."

Mrs. Rankin, 32, of Midland, Tex., the first woman golfer to earn $100,000 in one season, won the Inaugural European Women's Open at Sunningdale in 1974. She arrived that year and was told Mullins was her caddy.

"Of course I had never heard of him," she said. "Now it is automatic that he caddies for me. It was the luckiest thing that ever happened to me in my golfing career."

Sunningdale's 6,174-yard course is in bad condition after last summer's drought and heavy autumn rains. The players are being allowed to move the ball up to 12 inches on the fairways.

Sally Little of South Africa ended the first round in joint second place with Mrs. Rankin at 69. Sandra Palmer and Pam Higgins, both of Palm Springs, Fla., were at 70, one stroke behind. The four-round tournament lasts through Saturday.

The tournament is sponsored by Colgate-Palmolive.

Longhorn team posts sprint win

The Midland based Longhorn Racing Team had a busy weekend on race tracks around the country.

Bubby Jones, who drives the Longhorn's sprint car, had an impressive victory at the Terre Haute, Ind., Action Track Sunday.

Jones, whose first USAC triumph came in last year's Ted Horn 100 Dirt race at the DuQuoin, Ill., State Fair, passed early leader Sheldon Kinser on lap seven and led the rest of the way to win Sunday's 40-lapper

Jones' victory gave him 570 points in the sprint car division, good for fifth place in the national standings. Tom Bigelow leads with 916 points.

George Snider, Longhorn's championship driver, didn't have it quite as good with a 20th place finish in a 22-car field in the American Parts 200 at the Texas World Speedway.

Snider left the race after 17 laps when a stabilizer bar broke. The team still pocketed $1,866 for the effort. Snider had earned the 10th spot on the starting grid.

Allied Oil Field Service was the Longhorn sponsor for the race. Allied has its main offices in Denver City.

Connors triumphs

NORTH CONWAY N.H. (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors had trouble in the first set but breezed through the second against 19-year-old Werner Zirngibl of West Germany 7-6, 6-0 in the third round of a $125,000 international tennis tournament.

Seventh-seeded Stan Smith did not fare as well against Terry Moore of Monroe, La. The 26-year-old newcomer to the pro circuit eliminated the 30year-old veteran 7-6, 6-3 with passing shots that left Smith standing flat-footed at the net.

Unlike rich owners, Veeck risks his whole bankroll

By DAVE KINDRED
The Washington Post

CHICAGO — "I'm the only operator in baseball who has invested his entire bankroll, including his wife and children's inheritance, in a ball club — a bad ball club. For me, the ball club is eating or not eating. I can't afford to fail."

So Bill Veeck, president and chief imp of the Chicago White Sox, has caused nine witches to gather around a boiling cauldron at home plate on Friday the 13th. On Mexican Fiesta Night, Veeck's players wore sombreros. The Sox scoreboard, silent too long, again is volcanic. Best of all, the Sox, unraveling a year ago, are in a pennant race now.

A lot of people grow up believing baseball is the greatest game. They would pay to see professional football the day they pay to see a war. Forget basketball. Only sedentary millionaires play golf and tennis is ping-pong with snowshoes.

For those blessed multitudes who worship baseball, who feel good if only thinking about a hot dog in the bleachers, Veeck is their man. He has this outrageous idea about what baseball is and ought to be — fun.

"THIS SPRING I got in trouble with Chicago sports writers because I wouldn't talk about contracts and free agents and lawyers," Veeck said. "The fans — my customers — they don't want to read about that. That's what they're trying to avoid. It's life. Sports events are an escape from those things."

Ink enough to float Ted Turner's yacht has been spread across newspapers in explanation of the "changing" nature of baseball, the "revolution" of the players.

Veeck is 63 now, and he has been working at ball parks for a half-century. He has done everything from putting a midget at bat to conducting an invasion by men from Mars. But when asked how the game has changed, Veeck says it hadn't.

"Baseball is the least changed thing in our society," he said. "In a confused and confusing world in which the underpinnings are less stable than shifting sand, more like a quagmire, baseball is an island of stability.

"Except for the designated hitter, the rules haven't changed. Where else can you go in our society and find a clearly defined field of competition known to participants and contestants alike?

"And justice. Justice which is absolutely equal. Three strikes and you're out. It doesn't matter if Edward Bennett Williams or F. Lee Bailey defends you, three strikes is out.

"WHERE ELSE in our society can you find equal justice? Wealth, color, influence — they have absolutely no bearing."

But if the rules haven't changed, what about the people running the games?

"Egos get involved in the game, and then they have to protect those egos," Veeck said. "There are not career baseball operators. These are successful businessmen from other fields who get into baseball for — who knows? — personal publicity, to buff and burnish those egos.

"And then they suddenly find themselves losing in baseball. Along comes the free agent. And these egos get involved in a giant auction of player contracts.

"The auction is a combination of giant egos and tax dollars. Well, we have no tax dollars here — it's no secret I'm one of the poorer operators — and my ego is not that large."

"IS THE game the worse for it?

"I don't know about that. But it minimizes the amount of fun in it," Veeck said.

For 15 years, from the frightening day in 1961 when Veeck sold the White Sox because he thought he had an aneurysm on his brain, Veeck was out of baseball.

Finally declared as healthy as any one-legged, beer-drinking, chain-smoking baseball man can be, Veeck made efforts to buy his way back in. He tried the Orioles, with the idea to play some games in Washington, but the deal fell through. Then came the White Sox.

"That man made it happen," Veeck said, nodding toward a picture of Richard Daley, the late mayor of Chicago.

With Daley's help, Veeck lined up the necessary money to keep the Sox in Chicago when some American League owners wanted the team moved to Seattle to stave off a lawsuit by that city. For his troubles, Veeck was rewarded with a very bad team.

AND IT quickly became very, very bad, finishing last in its division. "Last year I betrayed the White Sox fans who had dreams of 1959 all over again," he said. That year, Veeck's first with the White Sox the team won its only pennant since 1919.

Drawing at a beer, Veeck smiled. "But you can't recapture the first, fine, carefree rapture."

Still, Veeck said, he felt an obligation to his customers, to say nothing of his wife and children's inheritance.

Vermonter challenges UIL's transfer rule

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A suit to test the University Interscholastic League's transfer rule has been filed on behalf of a Vermont schoolboy basketball player whose family moved to Texas.

The suit was filed in district court by the American Civil Liberties Union.

It says John Sullivan, who transferred to Austin Anderson in March when his father was moved here by his employer, should be allowed to play next season — his junior year.

UIL rules say any transfer other than a senior must sit out a year before playing football or basketball.

"The right to freedom of interstate travel is a firmly established principle of law," said John Buckley, staff council for the Texas branch of the ACLU. "This (transfer rule) is a clear infringement of that right. I don't think the rule is constitutional."

Bailey Marshall, the UIL's new director, said the UIL has won the only two court tests in which athletes and their parents have questioned the transfer rule.

Sullivan, 16, is a 6-foot guard who attended Rice Memorial High in South Burlington, Vt., last year.

David Clyde was born in Kansas City and attended Texas A&M after signing with the Texas Rangers for $125,000 in 1973. Gee, that's almost as much as Bob Bailey got. Bruce Sutter's first name is really Howard.

Richie Zisk went to Seton Hall. Carlton Fisk is the brother of Calvin Fisk, former catcher in the Baltimore organization, brother in law of Dick Miller, Boston Red Sox outfielder; and cousin of David Jennings, New York Giants punter. Strangely enough, Fisk and Zisk are not related.

Sooner coach impressed

WICHITA FALLS, Tex.(AP)— Texas and Oklahoma high school all-stars face each other in the 40th annual Oil Bowl football game here Saturday and a Sooner coach says the Texans are talented.

"I know that they think they've got the best high school quarterback in the United States and they have the best split receiver,' said Darvis Cole of Marlow, the offensive line and specialty team coach for Oklahoma. 'That should say something about them."

The quarterback is Odessa's Darrell Shepard, perhaps the most highly publicized athlete to play in the Oil Bowl in recent years. The receiver is Eric Herring of Houston Yates, who Texas' offensive coach Gordon Wood says can be "as good as he wants to be."

Shepard, center of a recruiting controversy, reportedly didn't impress coaches in workouts for last week's Texas High School Coaches Association all-star game in Dallas and didn't play much.

However, after early workouts at Memorial Stadium here, Wood said Shepard is "one of the best kids I ever saw." And the Brownwood coach has named Shepard as starting quarterback.

Behind Shepard in the wing-T attack will be Big Sandy's David Overstreet at tailback and Garland's Donnie Love at fullback. Abilene Cooper's Tim Orr, top offensive player in the all-star game at Dallas, will start at flanker.

Oklahoma's starting backfield will include Paul Valley's Tony Bradley or Tulsa Webster's Mike Murray at quarterback; Clinton's Clifford Chatman at fullback and Del City's Steve Hammond at tailback.

Texas, which won 37-28 last year, leads in the series with a 24-6-1 record. Eight other bowl games were played among various Texas teams.

Enthusiast denies hang gliding is unsafe sport

GAYSVILLE, Vt. (AP) — Mark Harvie of Pittsford says he'd defy gravity every day to fly without an airplane in this hilly Vermont area — if he had the time.

Michael Platt, 15, has been joining the birds in Vermont skies without a plane since he was 11 and is one of four persons in the state certified as an instructor by the U.S. Hang Gliding Association.

Hang gliding, the art of flying strapped in a harness fastened to a dacron sail, is the closest he can get to wings on his arms, says the 21-year-old Harvie, a private pilot. "It's just you and the glider. You're looking around at the earth, in full control just like a bird."

Platt's father, Chapin, has owned Hang Flyer, a flight and glider school here, since 1969, and operates the only hang glider factory of its size in the Green Mountain state.

A rig of dacron fitted with an aluminum and stainless steel frame can measure up to 34 feet wide and contain as much as 200 square feet of sail in its 50 pounds.

Platt says anyone in reasonably good physical condition can hang glide. "We even have one man in his 70s who hang glides. Another one of our flyers weighs 350 pounds. We made a special glider for him."

Platt scoffs at doubters who argue hang gliding is dangerous and says statistics show that the sport is safer, per flight, than flying a small airplane.

However, he refuses to sell his gliders to people he hasn't seen fly. Platt says he has a responsibility "to protect the image of hang gliding" and warns flyers to avoid Vermont's mountains, with their tricky air turbulence.

Most hang gliding injuries, he says, are caused by pilot carelessness, lack of preparation for landings and flights during gusty winds.

"The ones who get hurt are the ones who want to go up on a cliff and jump off," Platt says. "The biggest way to get hurt on one of these things is to go to the edge of a roof and jump off. You jump, you get hurt. We like to teach the stable person who is willing to practice and learn how.

"You wouldn't go to the edge of a roof and jump with an umbrella. You wouldn't do that in one of these either. They're made to fly."

And the excitement of the flight is one thing that keeps hang gliding enthusiasts loyal to the sport, Platt claims.

"Why do people ski? Why do they take up any sport? We have people being converted from skiing, from tennis and from almost all other sports," he says. "We find that frequently when they come to hang gliding, they give up the other sport. So it must be something."

Georgia's weather 'hurting business'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Billy Carter says hot and dry weather is hurting his peanut business, but his service station still has "more business than we can take care of."

"We're really dry," said Carter, who recently attended a benefit party at country singer Tom T. Hall's Nashville home. "The crop is almost gone this year."

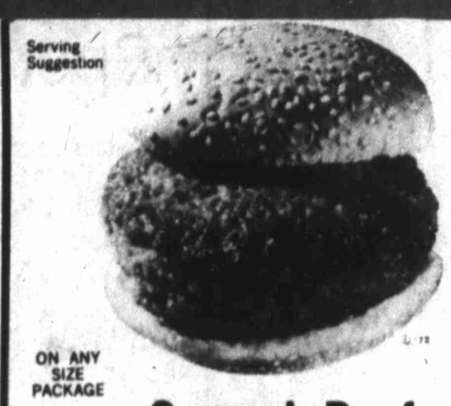

Hall said receipts from the $50 per person affair would go to the Nashville Humane Association.

Neighbors snitch on neighbors, using city's water hotline

By CINDY KADONAGA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city's water hotline has been flooded with calls as neighbors snitch on neighbors, turning in everyone from their landlords to little old ladies.

Someone recently turned in an elderly woman, who pleaded that her sidewalk needed hosing to clean pigeon droppings. And neighbors a few weeks ago reported a woman who said she wouldn't water her garden at night because she might be mugged.

The pigeon lady was told to use "the old bristle broom and bucket of water method" to clean up the mess, said Jim Derry, head of the Department of Water and Power's water conservation program. The woman who feared muggers was told to have friends water her lawn.

The hotline may receive from 700 to 900 calls a day on alleged violations of an ordinance barring nonrecycling fountains, daytime garden waterings, sidewalk hosings and water served in restaurants unless requested.

The hotline, set up last year as part of the department's conservation program, also gives water saving tips to people like horse owners who say their animals won't drink 10 per cent less water.

About 100 warnings are mailed daily to first-time violators since the ordinance took effect July 1, Derry said. Sixty per cent of the violators are in the west Los Angeles and San Fernando Valley areas, he said.

Catching water wasters is difficult, Derry said, because every call isn't immediately followed up by a water official who rushes to the scene. And unless meter readers or other water department workers are in an area, the violation could go on for weeks, Derry said.

"We don't drop everything to run out there," he said. "We try to enforce the ordinance to the best of our ability without costing too much." The conservation program and lost revenue from a mandatory 10 per cent city cutback have cost the department $8.8 million, he added.

Although the city has reduced its water use 20 per cent so far this month, second-time water wasters have been cited. Their punishment is a pep talk in their homes from water officials.

No third-time violators have yet been cited, but if they are, their water flow will be reduced from 15 to 20 gallons of water per minute to one gallon.

"It'll take them five minutes to fill their toilet tanks after flushing and 18 minutes to fill their tubs," Derry said. And, he said, it'll cost them $50 to drown their sorrows.

Hiroshima A-bomb effects linger after 32 years

By TERRY A. ANDERSON

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Tomiko Matsumoto will mark the 32nd anniversary Saturday of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima as she has observed many of the others — with a moment of prayer in her hospital bed.

Mrs. Matsumoto, 51, is one of 156 patients at the "A-Bomb Hospital" in Hiroshima. Doctors say that her illnesses — leukemia, diabetes and other problems — and those of the other patients cannot be positively blamed on that bomb. But since she is officially designated a "bomb victim," she receives free medical care and other benefits.

Mrs. Matumoto was a clerk in a building a little more than a mile from the bomb's "hypocenter" on Aug. 6, 1945.

"I was on the ground floor when I saw a terrible white flash. I ran for the bomb shelter outside, and was the fourth person to reach it. Just as I got to the door, the wind picked me up and threw me against the side of the door. Everyone behind me was killed.

"When I came out, all the buildings had been destroyed. I went to a medical station, where there were many people lined up, badly injured, burned. Some died in line. It was just like hell," she said in an interview.

Mrs. Matsumoto suffered radiation sickness. Her hair fell out and she became sick for several days.

"My stomach has been bad since the bomb," she said. "I've been in the hospital 17 times in the past 15 years with 10 different illness.

"Maybe it wasn't the bomb directly (that caused them). But indirectly it was the bomb," she said.

She has also had two divorces since 1945 because she was afraid to have children.

"I thought they might be deformed. It would have been better if I had been killed by the bomb," she added bitterly.

The Hiroshima bomb demolished five square miles of the city. Eighty to 90 per cent of those within a half-mile of the blast were killed immediately or died quickly of radiation burns. Half of those within a mile were killed.

Total deaths in Hiroshima and Nagasaki have been estimated at from 100,000 to 300,000. Thousands of others were badly burned, crippled or disfigured.

The bombs also have taken their toll in the years since. The leukemia rate among those exposed to radiation jumped to more than 20 times normal by 1955, according to medical statistics. Lung cancer, breast cancer and thyroid cancer increased sharply. Of some 4,000 pregnant mothers exposed, more than 50 had babies suffering from microcencephaly (small head), 25 of them mentally retarded.

The Radiation Effects Research Foundation — formerly the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission — has been studying the A-bomb survivors in both Hiroshima and Nagasaki since 1950.

With about 500 staff members, doctors and scientists, the foundation has an extensive laboratory and record-keeping complex in Hiroshima and another in Nagasaki. The foundation is funded half by the Japanese government and half by the United States.

In 25 years, the negative findings have far outnumbered the positive ones.

"There is no difference — except for a cancer rate two to three times higher than normal — between the A-bomb survivors and the normal population," said Dr. Stuart O. Finch, director of research.

"There has been no genetic effect on the children of A-bomb survivors, which surprised us," he added.

"The mortality rate, if you take out cancer, is the same. We have no evidence that any other (present) illness is related to the bomb."

Despite the foundation's findings, the Japanese government continues to support the welfare programs for bomb victims. It spent more than $150 million last year and the city of Hiroshima more than $25 million. The spending continues to increase.

"The law was passed 20 years ago," said Yasuo Hamamoto, of the city's Bomb Victim Accounting Department. "It was originally compensation, but it's become a social security program."

Jim's widow puts it all together

By VI MURPHY
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — After Jim Croce, 31, the rising popular music star, was killed in 1973, his wife put their tiny son, Adrian, in the car and headed for Mexico.

Ingrid Croce had been to Mexico once before, in 1966, on an art fellowship to study Mexican pottery.

That was not long after she and Jim were married. They were very young then and lived on a slender income but their heads were filled with dreams.

But when Ingrid headed for Mexico after the tragic plane crash that claimed her husband's life, she just kept on driving south.

When she reached the border, she drove on through to Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and finally into Costa Rica.

But she quit driving when she reached the quiet fishing village of Puertos Quepos on the Pacific Ocean and dug in.

For six months she and Adrian, then 2 years old, lived among the Costa Rican fishing families in that quiet tranquil place.

They lived in an A-frame house made of sheets of tin. There was no electricity, no running water. They grew their own vegetables and ate seafood fresh from the Pacific Ocean.

When it got dark, they went to bed. When daylight broke, they got up.

When the work was done each day, Ingrid composed music on her guitar as she said she and her husband had done ever since they married in 1966.

She healed emotionally and sorted out her life in Quepos. When she returned to San Diego in 1974, Croce brought 120 new songs back with her.

"But I couldn't forget Costa Rica," she said. "My love for the country was too deep and I couldn't forget its rich culture, its marvelous ways.

"I started looking for a way to identify again with Costa Rica even though I was living in San Diego."

Her enthusiasm was so appealing to Dr. Gabriela Myers, Costa Rican consul general here, and Croce's knowledge of the Central American country was so impressive, she was asked to enter the nation's diplomatic service. She accepted.

Croce is in charge of cultural affairs for the consulate. Her first assignment has been to work out the complicated international details connected with a two-week series of concerts to be given this summer by the San Diego Youth Symphony.

But the concerts will be more than just a cultural interchange to Croce.

The works she composed while living in Quepos will comprise half the symphony program, with Croce performing her compositions on the guitar while the orchestra accompanies her.

Ingrid Croce feels the bad years are behind and she looks ahead each day toward a future that looks full and satisfying.

But she worked to make the good things happen and because she is a doer, life has always been rich, even during the bleak and lean times.

Jim and Ingrid were both energetic, determined young people. They worked hard to attain their goals.

When they returned from Mexico, back in the 1960s after she completed work on the art fellowship, Jim began singing in coffeehouses, little nightclubs, any place he could find an audience and an opportunity. Ingrid often worked with him.

They made an album for Capital Records, "Jim and Ingrid Croce" and drove thousands of miles doing concerts on college campuses.

He worked as a truck driver, a construction worker, a telephone lineman and once taught in ghetto schools in Philadelphia while struggling for recognition as a musician.

They moved to a farm in Pennsylvania where Adrian was born. But times were hard and money was often lean.

"I would just as soon forget about most of those two years there," said Ingrid.

In 1971, his star began to rise. In 1972, the Croces savored the sweet victory of his first hit record. In 1973, he zoomed into the big time with his hit, "Bad, Bad Leroy Brown."

Meanwhile, Ingrid had had it with the farm. "I decided I just had to rejoin the world. We moved to California and when I saw San Diego I knew this was where I wanted to be, so we moved here."

Croce's songs were beginning to be heard everywhere and the gold records for top sales began coming.

He had finished "I've Got a Name" and "Time in a Bottle," considered surefire hits, which they were, but not until after his death.

They had lived in San Diego for a week when Croce left for a concert tour. Sept. 20, 1973, after a personal appearance he boarded his chartered plane for the next stop.

As the plane took off, it slammed into a tree near the end of the runway and, as the fame he had sought so long and worked for so hard began to peak, Jim Croce died.

Calligrapher watches his Ps & Qs

By MILES CORWIN
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — He spends weeks transcribing biblical passages into 16th Century Italic script on fine parchment. Sometimes spending hours on a word, he is obsessed with the controlled elegance of each letter.

For a pen, he cuts his own goose quills and he mixes his own ink. When he is through transcribing the pages, he binds them into book form with Nigerian goatskin.

The scene could be from a monastery in the Middle Ages. The setting, however, is a suburban Lawndale home and Michael Hughey is not a monk, but a free-lance calligrapher.

"I use old tools, but with a modern application. You see calligraphy everywhere — on record covers, book jackets, billboards and other advertisements," says Hughey, who is small, soft-spoken, balding and resembles the caricature of a monk.

Calligraphy, translated from Greek, means beautiful writing. Hughey acquired his skills through two years of art school and further study with master calligraphers.

In addition to a familiarity with different types of script, Hughey has had to transcribe passages for customers in several different alphabets. When he was commissioned to write five lines of Arabic, he spent weeks in the library familiarizing himself with the alphabet.

In addition to calligraphy he does quite a bit of free-lance graphic design. He often combines the two — designing a project, then doing the lettering himself. He does graphic design so he can afford to spend large amounts of time on his calligraphy.

"Graphic design buys the groceries," he says, "but calligraphy feeds the soul."

He does a variety of work, from corporate letterheads, brochures and business cards to posters, diplomas and certificates. He prefers to do large projects, where he can spend a great amount of time — from the original design and the lettering to the binding of the papers.

After he was involved in calligraphy for a few years he met a bookbinder. They spent one day a week tutoring each other in their respective crafts.

"Bookbinding is a natural extension of calligraphy," he explains. "It's another of the arts of the book."

He advertises very little, most of his business comes from recommendations. While he would make more money working for a company, he enjoys the freedom of setting his own schedule.

"Sometimes it's a temptation to go into industry, but money isn't the most important thing for me. My lifestyle and time are more important."

It takes a certain temperament to slave over letters hour after hour, and feel satisfaction in seeing a stylishly printed word. Hughey finds it difficult to express his love for his craft and his intimate relationship with the alphabet.

By way of an explanation, he offers a quote by Rudolf Koch, a German calligrapher. He transcribed it onto parchment.

"The making of letters in every form is for me the purest and greatest pleasure, and at many stages of my life it was to me what a song is to the singer, a picture to the painter, a shout to the elated or a sigh to the oppressed — it was and is for me the most happy and perfect expression of my life."

Youth makes inexpensive world tour by working

By ESTON McMAHON
Copley News Service

Ron Crosthwaite, 29, figures he is out-of-pocket less than $3 a day for a world tour extending three years, seven months and five days.

But he had to work his way around the world to do it.

In New Zealand he worked as a bartender, a construction man, a cowboy and an apple picker. In Adelaide, Australia, he helped to build a 22-story building. He also worked as a deckhand on pleasure crafts to parts of the world he wanted to visit.

In Singapore he said he bought a pocket calculator.

In Singapore he said he bought a pocket calculator, a tape recorder and a camera which he later sold at a profit when he visited India. Interviewed at the home of his parents in San Diego, Calif., Crosthwaite said he taught at an elementary school for a year following his graduation from UCLA. "I decided I wanted to do something different," he said. He said he had more than $3,500 saved up when he left his parents' home for Los Angeles on Sept. 15, 1973. He said he started out with the intention of visiting Australia. "That was the hardest part of the tour, leaving this home right here," Crosthwaite said quietly. With a world map spread out on the coffee table, Crosthwaite pointed out the countries he had visited.

They were, in addition to Australia and New Zealand: India, England, Ireland, Germany, France, Italy and countries in Africa, South America and Central America.

He said he was treated pretty well all over, but "the New Zealanders are among the nicest people."

The traveler said he carried a backpack weighing 30 pounds and a sleeping bag. "I traveled lightly," he said.

At the start of his tour he tried to get a job on a freighter for Hawaii, but had no luck. At the first stage of his trip he spent $650 for a flight ticket to Hawaii and the Fiji islands.

Homeward bound from South America, Crosthwaite toured the countries in Central America, then Mexico and at long last, a bus trip from Mazatlan to Tijuana.

Pickwick Players doing thriller

"Dracula's Treasure," a mystery thriller for youngsters, is onstage at Theatre Centre as the third and final summer production by the Pickwick Players, the young people's performing company at Midland Community Theatre.

Additional presentations of the show will be at 2:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. All seats are reserved and tickets are now on sale at the box office. They may be reserved by telephoning Theatre Centre at 682-2544. The tickets are $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for children.

Russian vodka vital in Olympics bidding?

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — We were sitting around talking about NBC's acquisition of the Summer Olympics of 1980, which will be hosted by the Russians in Moscow. One vital issue came to mind and it can be summed up in a word — namely, vodka.

"How did you take to the vodka in Russia?" I asked Chet Simmons, who is vice president for NBC Sports. Simmons is an urbane gentleman, a product of Manhattan who obtained his schooling and polish at the University of Alabama, and who has set foot in some of the great watering holes of the world.

"The vodka in Russia," said Simmons in tone of awe, "is mighty formidable. It has muscle. It hits one's inner body as Jim Brown used to hit the line, as Pancho Gonzalez once struck a serve on the tennis court, as Mickey Mantle once powdered a straight fastball right across the letters. The vodka in Russia, I am trying to say, will really set you free."

"Then you downed a bit of it?"

Chet shook his head. "I, myself, downed very little of it," he said. "At the dinner sessions we had with the Russians, I deftly and furtively poured my vodka into the potted palms, which no doubt sprouted into monsters. Actually, I have a limited taste for vodka and I prefer it on the rocks. The Russians take it straight. They think anyone who wants vodka with ice is sissified, a decadent capitalist.

"It's the toasts that get you, but the toasts are necessary. When you sit down with the Russian Olympics people, they are quite formal. Then the toasts begin with the vodka — and there are many things that must be toasted. You start with American-Russian unity and then you are soon drinking to the waiter who's bringing in the vodka.

"And then," said Chet, "when the evening's over, everybody walks out arm-in-arm, singing the old songs in the Moscow night."

And so NBC received the rights for the Olympics for a mere pittance of $85 million. Given the job of playing host, the Russians have taken one laudable step, Simmons was saying. They brought in a French outfit to build a hotel in Moscow and train a bunch of Russian chefs in the culinary arts.

"They call it 'Operation Turnkey,'" Simmons said. "The French will teach the Russians how to run a first-class hotel and then they give the key to the Russians and walk away."

It is obviously an important coup for NBC, this wresting the Olympics from ABC and it created bitterness from the network that came in second.

In the office of Robert Mulholland, a vice president who will oversee the Olympics coverage for NBC, there now hangs a framed quote from ABC-TV's president, Fred Pierce, as follows: "We deeply regret that the American viewing public will be deprived of the experience and expertise gained by ABC Sports in televising six of the last seven games."

"There's no denying that many of ABC's successes were engendered off the Olympics," Simmons notes.

"The Olympics create excitement and ratings."

Although ABC will retain the Winter Olympics of 1980, it is the Summer Games that attract the biggest following, Simmons contends, and he may be right.

"The Summer Olympics," Simmons says, "is the greatest sporting event on television. No, it's more than that. It transcends sport — it is the greatest event on television."

Greater than the political campaigns, the debates, the elections? Greater than "Charlie's Angels?"

The Summer Olympics is an event that cuts across demographics," Simmons said. "It becomes a part of people's lives. And it has a lot to do with nationalism, national pride. It shouldn't, but it does."

Show has 'bad' Indians

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "We've all passed the time when we have to patronize every minority in the country," Ernie Frankel holds.

"If the Jews are entitled to Einstein, they're entitled to Bugsy Siegel."

And, that being the case, Frankel plans to defy current tradition and portray Indians in the new CBS television series, "Young Dan'l Boone," as occasionally less than noble.

Since Frankel, producer of the show, is boasting that the series will be as historically accurate as his writers' inventiveness will allow, and since the real son of the real Daniel Boone was killed by Indians, Indians in "Young Dan'l Boone" will occasionally kill white men along with vice versa.

"On the show, Daniel will be a man of contradictions," Frankel says, "just as he was in history. He was always sympathetic toward the Indians even after they killed his son, but he was present at parleys when they signed away their lands."

Boone is played by Rick Moses, son of actress Marian McCargo who used to tell playfully how she invited her then teen-aged son to visit her on a movie set and he arrived while she was enacting a nude scene with Anthony Costello.

Moses says this is a totally true story but that it doesn't explain his desire to be an actor.

"I was an actor before my mother was an actress," he says. "I used to go to acting classes, and that's what got her interested."

As a matter of fact, Moses has been acting so long that he met the girl he married, Jonnie Morris, in an acting class for 10-year-olds.

"I had no idea what the real Boone looked like," Frankel tells, "but I saw Rick on the Merv Griffin Show, asked him to come in and read and cast him.

"Then, while we were on location making the pilot, I walked into a museum in Kentucky and and saw a portrait of Boone. He and Rick look almost exactly alike."

The series is being shot in Kentucky, North Carolina and Tennessee with technical advice from various historians and from the Cherokee Indians of Cherokee, N.C.

It will be so true to the 18th Century, Frankel claims, that its music will be played on instruments of the period.

Violence of the period will be a sometimes-feature of the script.

"We'll get some complaints," Frankel concedes. "But I think it's just as dangerous to tell people that there's nothing worth fighting for — and that's what we've told a whole generation incidentally — as it is to say that everything can be solved by violence."

Smith work featured

ROSWELL, N. M. — A collection of photographs by Michael A. Smith is on view during August at the Roswell Museum and Art Center.

The collection of 61 landscapes in the exhibition here are the result of an eight-month photography tour throughout the Western U. S. and Canada which Smith made in 1975.

The New Jersey native is a graduate of Temple University in Philadelphia. He formerly taught photography at the Philadelphia College of Art and at Bucks County Community College before embarking on a fulltime career as a freelance photographer. This past year, he has held a photography fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts. He has had one-man shows in recent years at almost two dozen institutions in the U. S., including the University of Oklahoma Museum of Art, the Sheldon Memorial Gallery of the University of Nebraska and the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House. His work is in numerous permanent collections in this country.

Guthrie, at 30, taking stock

By PAUL RICHARD
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — When first he found his fame 11 years ago, singer Arlo Guthrie was a kid just out of high school. Whacky and endearing, he seemed the friendly folkie, a kind of Movement jester, Woody's bemused heir. He made pickle rhyme with motorcycle, more often he sang songs about his draft board, dope, the war.

That was long ago. Guthrie has just turned 30. He still wears jeans and moccasins, but he is no longer skinny. He has a dark moustache. He is sitting cross-legged in his bed in another bland motel room; he's been on the road for years. For an hour he's been talking. He laughs, he sometimes yawns. Though the sun is setting, he just got out of bed.

"Look at us," he says. "We could drink and talk all night about anything at all, about sailing boats or trucks, but look what we got into."

He has not mentioned politics. His subject has been awe, not outrage. He's been talking about God.

His father roved the country, he rode the rods, he walked. Arlo tours by private bus, "The Blunder Bus" he calls it. His father wrote "Hard Travelin'," "So Long, It's Been Good to Know You," and a thousand other songs, some of them still sung. The father left the son that legacy — and with it, an even chance of inheriting the cruel, incurable disease from which Woody Guthrie died.

Arlo says, "Every poet flashes, at some time in his life, and then he sees the infinite. The perception is a gift." Has Guthrie also seen it? "I'm a musician, not a painter. I've heard it," he replied.

He does not proselytize or preach. He avoids reciting dogma. He says he's "Catholic-Jewish" and does not explain further. Has he experienced a conversion? "It's nothing like that," he says.

"We're in an interesting situation. Most of us, I figure, don't know if we're religious, or atheists, or not. You can't live without confusion, not in a world like ours. But then something happens. I don't know how to tell you. I know that something yanked me— it was not of my own doing. It's like being thrown in water when you don't know how to swim. If you learn to paddle, wonderful. If you drown, why that's a shame."

Suddenly he smiles. "There are not many circumstances that allow me to be me. I think everybody feels that. I'm limited by life, by the work I have to do, by mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers. The world is a restrictive place — except for those aho go at it with pride or lust or envy. Spirit is, however, not burdened by such things."

He starts to laugh again. He knows it might sound corny. It's 1970, and the papers are chock full of E meters and Moonies, and here is Arlo Guthrie, a child of the '60s, on tour in his motel room, talking about Diety and Spirit and the dialogue of prayer.

All his life he's lived at the center of the fringe. Folk music, after all, was never all that folksy. The songs that made him famous, like those his father sang before him, rarely made the Top 40.

Their tunes were old, their words were new and their wordiness had purpose. The folk songs of the '30s had messages as blunt as the paintings of Ben Shahn ... "There once was a union maid who never was afraid of goons and ginks and company finks ..." And while liberals applauded (and brought their kids guitars, 10-inch Folkway records, Pete Seeger concer tickets, many others mumbled, "Lefties, Commies, punks."

Folk music, at times, seemed peculiarly conservative. it didn't have much beat. It seemed earnest, and not free. The singers who stood up at countless college hoots in the 1950s had memorized their songs. They sang Woody Guthrie's lyrics to Woody Guthrie's chords. Accuracy was all.

The rules changed in the '60s. Innovation spread with rock 'n' roll and hi-fi, the bulging of the baby boom, amplified guitars, the Beatles, dope, the war, and there stood Arlo Guthrie, Woody's son, now hip 18, in the middle of it all.

He is still there today. He is touring with Seeger, and the old men in the audience bring aong their Brownies, their neckties and their memories, and the kids who sit beside them pass joints from hand to hand. "If the '60s were a war," he says, "there is no doubt who won."

Arlo Guthrie is frequently perceived as half a youngster, half an oldster, half a media star. "I'm in the midst of an enjoyable situation. Nobody knows what to do with me, with me or with my product. I can tour 10 months a year, and sell my concerts out, but try to find my records. I'm never on the radio. I'm half in and half out."

Still they come to hear him, the oldsters and the youngsters, and Arlo Guthrie gives them all flashes of the past. There is in their nostalgia, and in the way they sing along, something bittersweet, pleasure mixed with fear. Even now, at east, laughing on his bed, Arlo Guthrie brings to mind something that is aging, something that is going, as the Christians say, for good.

He does not seem to have his father's joyous rage, the Old Testament prophet's anger that runs through Woody Guthries' songs. "Woody, like Dylan, was a singer driven by the muse. I'm not like that," says Arlo Guthrie. "She and I are on much friendlier terms." He does not seem a soldier in the war for change. He seems, well, resigned.

Woody's family was not lucky. Fire killed his sister. His father killed himself. His mother died in an insane asylum of the same disease — Huntington's chorea — that was to kill her son. When he died, at last, in 1967, Woody Guthrie had spent almost 15 years in bed. The disease destroys muscle coordination. At the end, only his eyelids moved.

Not until the victim is well into his 30s do the symptoms first appear. Arlo Guthrie does not know if he carries the disease. It does not skip generations. If he does not have it, then his three kids are free.

"The textbooks say my chances are 50-50," Arlo Guthrie says.

How could his father bear those 15 years in bed? "He wanted to stay alive, at least he was willing to be there," Arlo Guthrie says. "I was talking to a priest the other day. He told me a story. He'd been to a meeting of Jews who had survived time in Hitler's camps. One of them, a rabbi, toasted those then present. He held his glass in one hand. The other fist was clenched."

Pilot decides throat needs medical help

PORT LAVACA, Tex. (AP) James Tagert decided his sore throat was worth a quick trip to the hospital. So he simply set his helicopter down in the hospital's front lawn near the emergency room.

Tagert, a drilling engineer on an offshore oil rig, was flying to work with another man Monday when they spotted the hospital.

Astonished emergency room personnel said Tagert's common cold symtoms didn't warrant immediate treatment, so they hailed a cab and went to a nearby clinic.

They returned later, climbed into their helicopter and flew to work.

The hospital has no landing pad.

Pigeon performs for payoff, not superstition

By MIKE McCLOY

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Pigeons warble and wobble and walk funny when they're about to eat, but it's not because they're stupid, says psychologist Peter Killeen.

Killeen, director of graduate studies in physiological psychology at Arizona State University, is using a $50,000 National Science Foundation grant to show that pigeons aren't acting out of ignorant superstition. They're playing the long shot.

When a pigeon repeats any activity that was sometimes followed by food, the behavior is called superstitious, Killeen explains. The pigeon may pace and stare before pecking, or turn in circles and peck several times at a nail, for example.

It makes as much sense as a person knocking on wood to forestall bad luck or scratching his head for inspiration.

But it's not stupid, says Killeen. "I call it 'why-not' behavior — playing the long shot when there's nothing to lose."

To demonstrate that pigeons can play the long shot as well as humans, Killeen rigged a box with a computerized set of lights and a feeding device.

"Elaine," one of Killeen's pigeons, steps into the box and begins pecking at a white light, which is flanked by red and green lights. After a few pecks, the white light goes off and Elaine pecks the red light, signifying "I did it."

Indeed, the pigeon, not the computer, turned off the light, and Elaine is rewarded with a shot of grain.

After a few seconds, the grain hopper snaps shut, the white light goes out while she's looking at it but not pecking. Elaine pecks the green light for "I didn't do it" and gets another shot of grain.

The kicker comes when Killeen programs more grain for "I did it" responses than "I didn't do it" responses. Elaine pecks away at the white light and it goes out, but the timing is too close and she can't tell whether she did it or not. So she plays the long shot, pecking the "I did it" light. She may be wrong and get no grain at all, but if she's right the payoff is bigger than for hitting the "I didn't do it" light correctly.

Killeen has the graphs to show that the pigeons always discern well whether they shut off the white light or not, but if in doubt, they lean toward the response that offers the greater payoff.

"It's better thought of as performance biased by the payoff," he said. "It looks like it's the same in humans and pigeons."

House failure predicted for increase in gas tax

By JOHN LENGEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to raise the federal gasoline tax by five cents a gallon appears doomed in the House, a victim of opposition from the folks back home, says the chief backer of the tax hike.

Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., says the provision apparently will fail by about 100 votes when it comes to a vote today in the House. The proposal is being debated as lawmakers plow ahead with debate on the 580-page energy bill.

House leaders hope to have the measure passed and sent to the Senate by the end of the week when Congress is scheduled to begin its month-long summer vacation.

In a major victory for President Carter on Wednesday, the House voted 227-199 to continue federal price controls on natural gas.

But Howard blamed voter opposition for the lack of support for the proposed higher federal tax on gasoline, which Carter sought as a way of forcing conservation efforts.

Carter's energy program taxes "take money out of people's pockets 18 ways, but they only understand the gasoline tax: ding, ding, ding," he said, mimicking a gas pump.

Other tax provisions in Carter's program could add up to another nickel, tacking on 10 cents by 1980. The current tax is four cents.

The bill also would end the income tax deduction for state and local gasoline taxes.

The tax hike is important since the revenue would be earmarked for money-starved federal mass transit programs and badly needed state road and bridge improvements, Howard said.

House leaders and the administration want the gasoline tax hike to prompt the public to reduce consumption.

The nickel tax is all that is left of Carter's original request for authority to impose a tax of up to 50 cents per gallon of gasoline, a request killed in committee earlier this year.

Approval for Carter's natural gas pricing plan came after three Texas congressmen, Reps. Charles Wilson, Bob Eckhardt and Majority Leader Jim Wright, drafted a compromise.

The compromise had the effect of increasing slightly the volume of natural gas which would be eligible for Carter's higher price ceiling of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet. That price is 30 cents more than the present level, and it would rise roughly 10 per cent annually under a complex formula.

5 Texans vote no

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is how Texas congressmen voted in the roll call by which the House voted 227 to 199 Wednesday to defeat an energy bill amendment to deregulate new natural gas. A yes vote was a vote for the deregulation amendment. xxx—Denotes not voting

Gas strikes complete in Crockett

Crockett County gained two discoveries, and Runnels one. Also, stepout sites have been staked in a Sutton gas area.

J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas, has completed No. 1-7-56 University as a Canyon sand gas strike in Crockett, 14 miles northeast of Ozona.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 2,030 million cubic feet of gas per day. Gas-distillate ratio was 17,631-1, and liquid gravity was 65.6 degrees.

The well was completed through perforations at 7,463-8,132 feet, after fracturing with 31,000 pounds of sand and 30,000 gallons of fluid.

Total depth is 8,287 feet, and 4½-inch casing was set at 8,270 feet. Top of the Canyon sand was picked at 7,450 feet, under ground elevation of 2,405 feet.

Location is 990 feet from south and 1,160 feet from west lines of section 7, block 56, ULS.

Thompson has proposed pool designation of University 56 (Canyon). It is in the Crockett part of the depleted Block 56 (Ellenburger) field.

PAY OPENER

Queen gas pay has been opened to production in the Vaughn multipay field of Crockett with completion by M. C. Vinson of Midland, of his No. 2-18 Shannon, 12 miles northeast of Ozona.

The well gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 400,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Gas-liquid ratio was 130,000-1 and gravity was 32 degrees.

Completion was effected through perforations at 1,010-1,041 feet, following treatment on the pay with 750 gallons of acid, plus 4,500 gallons and 12,500 pounds of fracture.

It was drilled to 1,124 feet, where 4½-inch casing was set, and it is plugged back to 1,110 feet.

Wellsite is 330 feet from south and 990 feet from east lines of section 18, block UV, GC&SF survey, a west offset to Queen oil production in the field.

RUNNELS GAS OPENER

W. W. West of Midland filed completion information for his No. 1 Helen Todd, an upper Gardner gas pay opener in the Lena Clayton field of Runnels County.

It rated a calculated, absolute open flow of 7,965,100 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 3,582-3,586 feet.

Drilled "tight," the total depth is 3,700 feet, with 4½-inch casing set at that depth. Top of the upper Gardner sand was picked at 3,582 feet, under ground elevation of 1,836 feet.

It is 3,250 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of James Caruthers survey 261, three miles west of Talpa.

SUTTON PROJECTS

Windsor Gas Corp., operating from Houston, has scheduled two tests in the Shurley Ranch (Canyon) gas field of Sutton, 11 miles southwest of Sonora.

They are projected to 8,000 feet and are in block C, HE&WT survey.

No. 4-189 Duke Wilson, a one-mile east outpost, spots 1,294 feet from south and 654.5 feet from east lines of section 189.

No. 2-173 Duke Wilson, a ⅝-mile north stepout, is 950 feet from north and 600 feet from west lines of section 173, block C.

Pay strike, extenders final in New Mexico

A pay opener finaled in Lea County, N.M., two pool exteneders have been completed in Eddy, and a shallow prospector was staked in Chaves.

Union Oil Co. of California has finaled No. 1 Northern Natural-State, a Morrow gas strike, ½ mile southeast of the Rock Lake (Wolfcamp) discovery in Eddy.

The well had a calculated, absolute open flow of 2.392 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 76,154-1. It finaled through perforations at 13,557-13,565 feet. Gravity of the condensate was not reported.

Drilled to 15,377 feet, it is plugged back to 14,480 feet, and 7⅝-inch casing is set at 14,601 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 28-22s-35e, 15 miles southwest of Eunice.

EDDY EXTENDER

Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia, has completed its No. 1-HQ Federal as a second Atoka well and 2¾-mile northeast extension to that pay in the Little Box Canyon field of Eddy, 16 miles southwest of Lake Wood.

The well gauged a preliminary, daily flowing potential of 400,000 cubic feet of gas per day,through a ½-inch choke and perforations at 7,967-8,090 feet. The section had been acidized with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 15,000 gallons and 16,000 pounds.

Drilled to 8,679 feet, it has 5½-inch casing set at 8,240 feet, and it is plugged back to 8,198 feet.

Location is 990 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 5-21s-22e.

The Atoka pay opener was Yates No. 1-GS El Paso-Federal, which finaled last June for 1.552 million cubic feet of gas daily, through a ½-inch choke and perforations at 6,080-6,090 feet.

A ⅛-mile southwest extension has been completed in the White City (Morrow) gas field of Eddy. It is Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-AD Estill-Federal, which gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 8.441 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, through perforations at 11,431-11,444 feet. Completion was natural.

Total depth is 11,600 feet, and it is plugged back to 11,556 feet, in a 5-inch liner hung from 8,112-11,600 feet.

Location is 1,650 feet from south and east lines of section 19-24s-26e, five miles west of Black River.

CHAVES PROJECT

Dalport Oil Corp., Dallas, filed application for No. 1 Clifton-Federal, a 1,950-foot Queen wildcat in Chaves, 20 miles east of Hagerman.

Location is 300 feet from north and 330 feet from west lines of section 34-14s-29e, within the Southeast Chaves Queen Gas Area.

Deep test proposed

Attempt will be made to reestablish production in a Cochran pool and a stepout is slated for a Cochran area.

I. W. Lovelady, Midland, will drill No. 1 Daniel Estate, a 12,200-foot test in attempt to reopen the Landon, East (Devonian) field of South Cochran.

It spots 2,856 feet from north and 1,700 feet from west lines of section 8, block L, PSL survey, 13 miles north of Plains, ¼ mile southeast of the depleted discovery.

The original opener, ATAPCO No. 1-A Daniel, finaled in July 1964 for 66.9 barrels of 38-gravity oil and 11 barrels of water daily, through perforations at 11,950-11,984 feet.

COTTLE STEPOUT

Perkins-Prothro Co., Wichita Falls, No. 1-B Carroll has been staked as a ½-mile southwest stepout to the five-well Cee-Vee (Canyon) pool of Northwest Cottle.

Drillsite is 853 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 8, block L, PSL survey, 10 miles northwest of Paducah.

Discovery potentials

Morris R. Antweil, operating out of Midland, has completed No. 1 Mesa-Fuerte as a Strawn discovery in the Happy Valley field, in Eddy County N.M.

Calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 6.212 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

Production was through natural perforations at 9,822-9,829 feet.

Drilled to a total depth of 11,327 feet, it was plugged back to 10,110 feet, with 5½-inch casing set at total depth.

The discovery is 1,833 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 33-21s-26e, one mile west of Carlsbad and 3¾ miles southeast of Strawn gas production in the Catclaw Draw field.

Amerada sets pipe in Nolan

Amerada Hess Corp., Tulsa, was running casing for completion attempt at No. 1 M. N. Pior, Nolan County scheduled wildcat, 1½ mile southwest of the Lake Sweetwater (Strawn) field, and separated from it by a depleted Ellenburger well.

A one-hour and 10-minute drillstem test in the Ellenburger from 6,135-6,193 feet, recovered 90 feet of oil and 60 feet of mud. One-hour initial shut-in pressure was 1,800 pounds and two-hour final shut-in pressure, 1,275 pounds.

The test is bottomed at 6,195 feet.

Location is 2,300 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 83, block 21, T&P survey, 12 miles southeast of Sweetwater.

Two areas gain tests

Wildcats have been planned for Dawson and Hockley counties.

Monsanto Co., operating from Midland, filed application to drill No. 1 Carrie, a 10,700-foot venture in Dawson, four miles northwest of the Snowden (Spraberry) area.

Location is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 35, block 2, TTRR survey, nine miles east of Lamesa. Ground elevation at the site is 2,755 feet.

MGF Oil Corp., Midland, No. 1 J. H. Davis is slated as a 4,800-foot wildcat in Hockley, 7½ miles northwest of Levelland.

Drillsite is 467 feet from south and east lines of labor 17, league 719, State Capitol Lands survey, ⅞ mile southwest of a San Andres gas discovery in the Yellowhouse, South sector. Elevation is 3,587.5 feet.

Midlander nominated

Martin L. Allday, a senior partner in Lynch, Chappell, Allday and Aldridge of Midland, has been nominated, and is expected to be elected, a director of North American Royalties, Inc., at the company's annual meeting Sept. 22.

Gordon P. Street Jr., NAR president, made the announcement late Wednesday.

North American Royalties, headquartered in Chattanooga, Tenn., is a producer of gray iron castings, principally for the automotive industries.

Also, through its oil and gas division, it is actively engaged in exploration for hydrocarbons in the continental United States. One of its district offices is located in Midland. Other oil and gas offices are in Houston, Lafayette, Louisiana and Oklahoma City.

Allday has been in the practice of law in Midland 18 years. He formerly was with The Superior Oil Co. in Midland and Houston and earlier was a legal examiner for the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas.

Allday is a past president of the Midland County Bar Association and is former chairman of the Mineral Section of the State Bar of Texas.

He also has served as president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, the Midland Jaycees, Industrial Foundation of Midland and currently is a member of the board of trustees of Midland Memorial Foundation.

Hondo test rates flow

Hondo Drilling Co., Midland, No. 2 Alscott-Federal, ½ mile north of the Turkey Track, North (Morrow) field of Eddy County, N.M., flowed gas at the rate of 1.987 million cubic feet per day on an eight hour test.

The gauge was taken through natural perforations at 10,888-10,946 feet.

Test site is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 30-18s-29e, 18 miles southeast of Artesia.

Long stepout scheduled

Texas Oil & Gas Corp., operating from Midland, will drill No. 1 Means as a one-mile southwest outpost to San Andres oil production and ½ mile south of Yates gas production in the G-M-K, South field of Gaines County.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 200 feet from east lines of section 68, block G, WTRR survey, 10 miles northeast of Seminole. Planned depth is 5,500 feet.

West Texas, New Mexico gain 111 oil, gas tests

The Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico last week gained 111 new petroleum projects, including 26 wildcat tests, and 85 pool development probes.

Texas Railroad Commission District 7-C, headquartered in San Angelo was the leader in both categories, tallying 13 prospectors and 33 field tests, while the RRC District 8 office in Midland reported it received seven wildcat and 30 field permit applications.

Three wildcats were slated in each of the South Plains, Tex., and Southeast New Mexico sectors, which reported five and 17 development tests, respectively.

The over-all count was down 40 from the count two weeks ago, with wildcats dropping five from the prior report of 31, and pool tests off 35.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Fast-moving ball can injure eyes

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've taken up squash as a regular sport and find it great exercise. But I've heard that eye injuries are apt to happen occasionally. Do you think there is anything to this? I have never in my life known of anyone actually getting an eye injury from playing squash, but around the club, people talk of it from time to time.—Valerie C.

Dear Valerie: From what I have read about this, eye injuries do not happen very often, but when they do, they can be quite serious. That ball zooming along can really damage an eye, because it is so small, the eye socket cannot provide the protection it can from a larger ball. Also, you can get whacked in the eye with your opponent's racket because you play at such close quarters.

There is a simple little guard—without a lens—that is made for squash as well as for handball and racquetball. The frame is shaped so that it deflects the ball but doesn't cut down on peripheral vision. It is held by an elastic band that wraps around the back of the head. Cost: about $6.00.

You may be interested to know that cadets at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs must wear eye guards when playing any of these games.

A plain pair of industrial safety glasses also provides good protection—much more than ordinary impact-resistant lenses. Incidentally, older glasses made with lenses that are not shatter-proof are a real hazard. And contact lenses are not the answer either; they do not protect the eye from a projectile such as a squash ball.

There have been, incidentally, an increasing number of eye injuries reported in tennis lately. They are most likely to happen to players at the net who do not have the fast reflexes needed to protect them against a ball that is whizzing stright at them.

Even the badminton shuttlecock can do serious damage to the eye. It slows down rapidly because of the feathers, but if it is smashed at an opponent close to the net and hits him or her in the eye, it is still travelling at quite a murderous clip. There have been cases where the victim has lost sight in the injured eye.

So do be on your guard—with eye guards.

To K.C. of Los Angeles: Cellulitis is any spreading inflammation of the tissues; it usually affects the skin and tissues underneath the skin. Streptococci or Staphylococci are the most common germs that cause cellulitis. Any germ capable of invading the tissue may cause the inflamation. The treatment of choice is using the appropriate antibiotic to kill the germ, rest elevation of the infected area and local application of heat or wet dressings.

'Rhinestone Logger' seeks new, tougher competitors

By JIM BOYD
Eugene Register-Guard

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — "When you've got a good ax, you treat it gently, like you would your woman," said Bob Waibel, hefting his five-pound Australian racing ax.

Waibel, 42, is a 6-foot-1 timber faller from Sweet Home, Ore., who carries the nickname "Rhinestone Logger" because of the jeweled red suspenders he wears in lumberjack competition. He's one of the top three competitive axmen in the country.

Like the "rhinestone cowboys" who ride the rodeo circuit, he takes off from his job to compete for prize money around the United States. He's got a list of 70 timber carnivals he could attend this year.

"I got to 23 last year and that's just about as good as a guy can do," he said, estimating his winnings at "way over $2,000."

He's been chosen for the U.S. chopping team each year there has been an international competition. He went to Australia with the U.S. team in 1970 and 1974 and plans to return there next March. He was in Spain last year.

"Spain has endurance choppers," he said. "They don't believe in chopping less than four (posts) at a time, one right after another. We went over there and cut eight."

Why does Waibel spend seven hours a day cutting timber with a chainsaw and then devote his weekends to chopping and other logging sports?

"I enjoy these trips and I like to travel," he said. "And there's a little ham in almost everybody and it's a good feeling to win."

So he's adopted a logging lifestyle that permits him to work and compete. "I couldn't do what I'm doing if I worked in a sawmill or ran a machine, a tower or a loading machine or a truck, because I couldn't drop that and go," he said. "But as a timber cutter, I can work ahead and then take a few days off."

Waibel started competing in the ax-throwing event at the 1955 Albany (Ore.) Timber Carnival. He went into chopping because the prize money offered would permit travel.

"The first time I chopped a 14-inch log at Albany, I was five minutes and I got blisters on my hands and they busted and I wouldn't quit," he said.

Now he cuts through a log in 20-25 seconds. Maybe less.

Like many loggers, Waibel has had his share of accidents.

"I've been packed out of the woods three times," said Waibel, whose father was killed in a woods accident.

"My mother says, 'When are you going to give up that foolishness. You're too old for that.'

"But I've seen Aussie choppers that are better than us that are just white-headed, with white hair on their arms.

"The time you quit is when you can't win anymore," he said.
