Pampan's Mother Drowns At Clarendon

Rainfall Totals .70 of Inch Here

Fall-like weather clung to the Top O' Texas today in the wake of a nine-hour-long tornado alert yesterday afternoon and evening.

Rainfall measured .70 inch in the rain gauge atop The News building, marking the largest amount of precipitation in several months.

More rain, in the form of scattered thunderstorms, is in prospect late today, according to the United States Weather Bureau in Amarillo.

Rainfall in the area varied from a trace at Skellytown to .25 inch at Canadian.

McLean got .20 inch with some small hail reported but little or no damage.

Strong winds accompanied the rain in Canadian but no damage was reported by early this morning.

White Deer reported .20 inch and Miami had .21 inch. Perryton received .25 inch with some small hail but no reported damage.

Here, police and sheriff's officers reported no damage in the city or area.

Meanwhile, the weather was of a more violent nature as close to Pampa as Clarendon, where the mother of a Pampa woman was killed in a flash flood.

Mrs. Dan Roy of Clarendon was killed when the pickup in which she was riding was swept off a road by a flash flood. Mrs. Roy was the mother of Mrs. Ila Wood, 721 E. 15th St., Pampa.

A flash flood set off by six inches of rain in 45 minutes drowned two persons in the Texas Panhandle Wednesday night. It was a night of violent weather in West Texas that included 80-mile an-hour winds and a tornado that destroyed thousands of acres of cotton.

Hailstones up to hen egg size stacked up eight inches deep on a farm near Dimmitt. The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal said several thousand acres of cotton in seven counties was wiped out.

Four persons were hurt when an 80 mile- an- hour windstorm swept through the Robertson community 19 miles east of Lubbock.

BULLETIN

The U.S. Weather Bureau shortly after noon today issued a severe weather warning and tornado alert which includes the Texas Panhandle. The alert will be in effect until 7 p.m. today. It covers an area 60 miles on either side of a line from 80 miles northeast of Dalhart to Midland, Texas.

Plane Will Carry Crash Victims To US From Mexico

HARLINGEN, Tex. (UPI)—The Air Force sent two planes into Mexico today to bring back the bodies of a crew aboard an Air Force T29 that crashed in rugged mountains during a "wild goose chase" hunt for a plane that had already been found.

Mexican authorities sent up planes at dawn today looking for parachutes which could mean the possibility of survivors. But a spokesman for the U. S. embassy in Mexico City said reports from the desolate crash site indicated it was "not likely" any of the nine airmen aboard the plane survived.

The pilot of a U. S. Air Force C54 search plane found the wreckage southwest of San Luis Potosi, about 400 miles below the United States border.

He said the wreckage was scattered and burned, and it appeared there were no survivors.

Soldiers dispatched by the Mexican Defense Ministry went to the scene in jeeps. They reported finding one body with dog tags on it.

The Air Force said it would not release the name until it could confirm the identification and then notify relatives. The Mexican soldiers had radios capable of

Royal Premier Due Back From Formosa

By MICHAEL T. MALLOY
United Press International

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Prince Boun Oum, premier of the royal Laotian government, was due back from Nationalist China today to prepare for another attempt at reconciliation with his rival neutralist and pro-Communist princes.

Reported agreement of the three factions to reopen negotiations on a coalition government stirred some hope that the civil strife would be eased. But the optimism was tempered by a rebel refusal to give up the city of Nam Tha, captured from government forces last week.

Boun Oum and his strongman deputy, Defense Minister Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, wound up a three-day visit to Taipei where they received Nationalist Chinese promises of aid for their struggle against the Communists.

Nationalist China is the latest of several friendly Asian countries which Boun Oum and Phoumi visited in search of moral and material support for their campaign to keep Laos from Communist control.

The breaking of the cease-fire by the pro-Communist rebels last week, and the advance of rebel units across northwestern Laos toward the Thai border, has led to the dispatch of U.S. Marines, airmen and soldiers into Thailand.

There were no reports of any new rebel military action in Laos. Royal forces were reported regrouping in unoccupied areas from which they fled last week.

At a news conference in Taipei before their departure, Phoumi reiterated willingness to negotiate a coalition government with neutralist leader Prince Souvanna Phouma on condition that Souvanna would not relinquish control to the Reds.

Souvanna, who is in Paris, has agreed to reopen negotiations, and is expected to head for Laos soon, possibly during the weekend.

Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels, has made no public statement on new negotiations, but his followers said Wednesday that the Pathet Lao favors peace talks with Boun Oum and Souvanna.

The rebels told the International Control Commission (ICC) that the talks should be conducted under previous agreements which, they contended, would give the important defense and interior ministries to the Souvanna faction.

Britain Ready To Help

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons today that Britain is prepared to send a contingent to Thailand where the United States has landed forces to hold back any Communist advances from neighboring Laos.

Macmillan said Britain's contingent probably would consist of Royal Air Force units. But he said this country had not yet received any request for assistance.

Marines Land In Full Battle Dress

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Eighteen hundred U.S. Marines in full battle dress landed in Thailand with artillery and tanks today and were deployed swiftly to bases facing the Communist threatened border with Laos.

U.S. Air Force C130 transports began airlifting the troops to the interior shortly before noon in the most dramatic move against Communist aggression in the Far East since the Korean War.

Light jeeps and "mechanized mules," tractor-type vehicles for hauling equipment and supplies over rough terrain, went in the planes with them.

The Marines started arriving in the capital by air and sea shortly after dawn.

With a minimum of delay they began moving out by air and motor convoys for eventual deployment near the northeastern border to deter pro-Communist rebels from driving across the Mekong river from Laos.

The Marines joined a 1,000-man U.S. Army battle group from the 27th infantry which has been in Thailand since early May when it took part in exercises of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO).

Other American ground forces will follow until the total strength is up to 5,000.

At least two squadrons of F100 Supersabre jet fighters also are being brought to Thailand along with C130 Hercules transports, tankers and RF101 reconnaissance planes. The first of these aircraft arrived Wednesday. It is possible that troops from some of the other SEATO nations also would be deployed here to underscore the determination of the United States and its Allies to halt communist aggression in troubled southeast Asia.

Public Hearings Set In Inquiry On Estes

WASHINGTON (UI) — The Senate investigations subcommittee voted unanimously today to hold public hearings on Billie Sol Estes' multi-million dollar farm empire to "get to the root" of any corruption or malfeasance.

Chairman John L. McClellan D-Ark., announced the action after a 90-minute meeting in his office. He said hearings will begin as soon as the greatly augmented subcommittee staff can prepare for them.

The subcommitee also agreed unanimously to question certain witnesses behind closed doors in preparation for the public sessions.

The action came as President Kennedy held a 20-minute meeting with Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman, presumably to discuss the Estes case which already has involved several of Freeman's subordinates.

The White House gave no details but there was speculation Freeman and the chief executive reviewed developments to date in anticipation of Kennedy's news conference in the afternoon.

McClellan said he envisioned an investigation of "the entire situation," in the Agriculture Department and elsewhere. Hearings, he said, could go on "for months."

Two administration officials have lost their jobs over the case in the past week.

Informed sources said the Senate leadership had assured McClellan that additional funds would be available for the inquiry.

McClellan said subcommittee members would be briefed today on the information assembled by the staff. Twenty investigators from the General Accounting Office have been assisting the subcommittee staff in pouring over records of the case.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S. D., the subcommittee's top Republican, said Estes was certain to be called for testimony in the inquiry, perhaps in a closed session first.

Secretary Didn't Seem Psychotic To Psychoanalyst

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A psychoanalyst said today that the secretary of an official involved in the Billie Sol Estes case did not seem psychotic when he interviewed her three hours after she was released from a mental ward.

Staff psychiatrists at the hospital where she was confined made a statement saying she needed hospital treatment.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., citing psychoanalyst Dr. Vincent Daly, said he still thinks that Mary K. Jones, 51, was railroaded into the hospital because she knew too much about the Estes Case.

She was secretary to N. Battle Hales, who was in charge of the files on Estes at the Agriculture Department before he was transferred to another department in too much about the Estes case.

Estes is under indictment on fraud charges and four government officials lost their jobs during the investigation into his dealings with the government.

Miss Jones was taken screaming from the Agriculture Department on April 25 and confined for 13 days in D. C. General Hospital. She was released to the custody of her sister by a district court judge, acting on the advice of the city's mental health commission.

Frederick A. Thuee, chairman of the commission, said Miss Jones was a "very sick girl" and commission officials emphasized to her sister that Miss Jones needed psychiatric care.

Court records showed that Drs. Richard Schaengold and Robert H. Pine, staff psychiatrists at the hospital, filed a form saying she needed treatment and was "dangerous to herself and others because of her mental condition."

Their report said she showed a "silly, inappropriate affect as associated with inappropriate gesturing, loose associations, ideas of reference and excessive evasiveness, suspiciousness and guardedness."

Williams reiterated his charge that Miss Jones had been railroaded after listening to a tape recording of an interview Daly held with her three hours after she was released.

Dutch Down Indonesian Troop Plane

HOLLANDIA, West New Guinea (UPI)—An Indonesian air force transport carrying paratroopers was shot down this morning during a new attack on West New Guinea, the local Dutch government announced.

The plane, a DC3, was downed in the sea south of Fak Fak, where Indonesian paratroopers have been dropped this week.

"The plane was shot by air defense units during a new Indonesian infiltration attempt," the announcement said.

At The Hague, the Defense Ministry said the plane was knocked down "before it had dropped the paratroopers it was carrying to the mainland."

There was no immediate indication of the number of paratroopers aboard the plane or their fate.

Dutch officials said Wednesday the Indonesian had established a small bridgehead on West New Guinea north of Fak Fak harbor.

The announcement today said fast action by Dutch marines had forced the Indonesian to withdraw from the beach.

"The Indonesians left arms, mortar grenades, hand grenades, clothes, medical supplies and food on the beach," the announcement said.

It added that documents found among the materiel indicated the paratroopers had been dropped in the wrong location.

Fourteen Killed In Plane Crash

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Fourteen persons apparently were killed today when an American C130 transport crashed near Nairobi, Kenya, while flying a support mission for this country's man-in-space program, the Air Force announced.

'50-50' Chance Is Seen For Orbit Try Saturday

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Space officials said today that bad weather in the Atlantic Ocean gives them only a "50-50" chance of blasting astronaut Scott Carpenter on his planned orbital voyage Saturday.

Carpenter and the project Mercury launch team already were moving like clockwork through the final 48 hours of technical preparations.

Scientists kept their fingers crossed and their eyes on an Atlantic weather pattern that was described as quite similar to the one which caused numerous delays in the flight of astronaut John Glenn in February.

Weathermen said winds of 25 to 30 miles per hour and waves seven to 10 feet high were churning the ocean between Bermuda and the Azores.

Oil Allowable Is Still At 8 Days

AUSTIN (UPI)— The Texas Railroad Commission today continued its eight-day oil proration pattern for the month of June, setting the daily allowable at 2,785,724 barrels.

The June allowable will represent an increase of 49,456 barrels daily. The increase comes from the change from a 31-day to a 30-day month. The current production, as of May 4, was 2,546,650 barrels daily.

Nine major purchasers of Texas crude called for the continuation of the eight-day pattern, along with a group of Corpus Christi independent operators. Three major purchasers asked for a seven-day schedule.

Bogus Boxer Bamboozles Bride

GALVESTON (UPI) —Joe Giardello, a New Jersey middle-weight, would like to see the man who took his name for a bit of fame and a trip to the altar.

That is more than the bride wants now that she has found out she didn't marry a famous boxer.

"I never want to see him again," she said.

It all started several months ago when Sidney Thronton Rogers, 38, of Santa Monica, Calif., came to Galveston and modestly told the people he met:

"Just call me Joey. . Joey Giardello."

Rogers met Sylvia B. Young, 21, and swept her off her feet. Last Friday, they were married.

He applied for the marriage license under the name of Giardello, and even filled out an application for a drivers license using the same name. A radio station arranged for an interview with him.

The phoney fighter's downfall began when his bride's sister told a friend, who is a boxing fan, about the family landing a famous ring personality.

The friend was dubious.

"What's he look like," he asked. When she explained, he said: "That doesn't sound like Giardello. . besides, he is already married."

Miss Young's sister became suspicious and called Police Chief, R. E. Jacobs of Hitchcock, Tex., their hometown.

The drivers license division of the state highway patrol filed charges against him for false swearing, and Rogers paid a $100 fine Wednesday.

Clean-Up To Be Started In New Area

Workers in Pampa's city-wide cleanup campaign were expected to finish their job in Ward 1 today and move into Ward 2 tomorrow, according to R. B. Cooke, public works director.

Cooke said more than 110 loads of rubbish will have been moved from Ward 1 by the time the city workers finish there late today.

The cleanup crews started in Ward 1 Monday. Cooke said the cooperation of the public in this year's cleanup drive has been wonderful.

"We have been having the most successful cleanup campaign in the city's history," Cooke said, "and we are sure this cooperation will continue through the cleanup periods in Wards 2, 3 and 4."

The works director said trucks will be hauling off rubbish and trash in Ward 2 tomorrow and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

The schedule calls for the Ward 3 cleanup to start Thursday, May 24 and the windup will begin in Ward 4 May 30 and run through June 4.

What Has Been Happening To Stock Market?

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The morning after New Year's Day, trading on the New York Stock Exchange opened with the Dow Jones averages at 731.14.

Today at the opening of trading: 654.04.

Difference: 77.10.

Wall Streeters differ in their regard for all the technical values of indexes; but they all watch them. This particular set represents the general levels of 30 industrial stocks.

People ask: What happened to the level of stocks? Is there something wrong in the stock market?

Out in Chicago, engineer Robert E. Lyke said he is "perplexed."

"All the business indicators point to a rise, but the bottom keeps dropping out," he said.

But down in Washington Tuesday Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, pointing on jumps in the rate of personal income for April over the figures for the preceding month and a year ago, said what was happening in the stock market was "not a reflection of what we find in the economic picture."

Traders and analysts—the men who try to keep track of what the market is doing—have varying theories on its behavior. But most agree it is not one single thing, but a combination of many, which has led investors to watch IBM go from 579 last Dec. 29 to 457 Tuesday; American Telephone and Telegraph from 136⅛ to 120½ and others perform similarly.

They talk about the "earnings ratio." That is the ratio of the dollar value of a stock at the current market price to the dollars it earns—the dividends—per year.

More simply: How much of a dollar comes back for the dollars tied up?

Some investors during the later months of 1961 and on into 1962 certainly had the feeling that the earnings ratio was too high.

In a frame of mind of this kind, one may or may not choose to ignore whatever might be the long-range worth of the company or industry behind the stock; decide simply that the price to pay —or the price one could get for a share — was such that there might be a better opportunity elsewhere.

After all, banks and other financial institutions raised interest rates. Or perhaps the growth potential — the amount by which one's stock could hope to increase just because of the population figures or the opportunity for a business expansion—was not growing as fast as it had in the past.

Forty dollars of a man's money might be tied up to get him $1 a year. He might be able to get $1.60 by putting it into a bank and leaving it there for a while.

So he doesn't buy the stock. He may even sell it. Pull out for a while and see what comes next. Sit still.

All this is pretty much a matter of arithmetic. But a dollar doesn't put itself into a stock market; some one puts it there.

Last Monday, so many people sold stocks that for a time the tape—the ¼-inch wide paper strip which reports transactions on the market—was more than 30 minutes behind telling what was going on at the floor of the exchange. There were too many sales for the machinery to cope with.

It could have been bad news from Laos, and that small investors were worried. Or there were some solid figures about business expansion and the general outlook out of a conference of business leaders and administration figures at Hot Springs, Va., but nothing to indicate any sudden spectacular push upwards.

Then about midday, the market turned around and started to

Scott Carpenter Family Orbits Together Here On This Planet

THE CARPENTERS: Rene holding Kristen, Robyn, Mark, and Scott holding Candace.

By RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — When he's fired into orbit in a Mercury capsule, Astronaut Scott Carpenter will be having the time of his life. "So," says a friend, "Will his wife, Rene — just thinking about it."

"Scott and Rene Carpenter have a closer marriage than any other I've seen. Scott gives in to his wife more than any other man I know and Rene gives in to him more than any other woman I've met," says a Navy officer who has been close to them for a long time.

"When I knew them they had a car about 10 years old. It ran because Scott fiddled with it all the time," says another old Navy friend. "When Scott had a few days off, they would hook on a beat-up old trailer and go up to the mountains. Or Scott and Rene and the four children and the dog would go walking or hiking.

"Scott can't see anything unusual without picking it up and trying to figure out how it was made and how it works. He always has to be making things, mostly out of driftwood.

"One house they lived in looked almost like the bottom of the ocean. There were nets on the walls. Shells were decorations. Scott had made a lamp out of driftwood. Rene had painted fish on some sheets and put them up as curtains. They didn't have the money to buy the furniture they needed. So they put pillows on the floor and used them for chairs. This didn't bother them. They acted as though this were the natural way to live."

Says another old friend, "Scott is very tolerant of his wife's hobbies. She likes to make hats. She's always making hats. If you see her in a hat you can be sure she made it. I think the hats are weird, but to women they're beautiful and unusual."

An officer who went through air training with Carpenter recalls:

"I first met Scott and Rene Carpenter at a Navy training school party. I thought, here is a woman with a serious idea. Then somewhat later a friend of theirs died, a captain in the Marine Corps. Rene sent flowers. But then she thought 'No this isn't enough' and wrote a long letter for the captain's widow to give to her small daughter when she grew up.

"In that letter, Rene Carpenter told the captain's daughter about her father as she, Rene, had known him — incidents, things he'd done and said, good times they'd had, what kind of a man he had been — so the girl, when she grew up, would have something to remember him by.

"She also has a sense of humor. Rene told Lt. Col. John Glenn she'd stuck pins in a doll dressed like him so he'd get sick and Scott would be the first in a satellite. 'But you were too healthy,' she said and laughed."

When the Carpenters moved to Langley Field in Virginia for the space program, one of the first things that Rene Carpenter did was to organize a group of 20 to 30 carolers who went from place to place around the base singing. An officer who lived nearby recalls:

"They were good neighbors. We had a lot of fun together. Someone in the neighborhood would play a few notes on a piano. Everyone around would hear. Then all the windows would open around the neighborhood. Scott Carpenter would get out his guitar and everybody would be invited over to the Carpenters' to sing.

"There was one thing about the Carpenter children I never quite understood. They were so well mannered. They were polite. They did what they were told. But then maybe it's because of his closeness with his family.

"Scott is always out with his family. He loves to go out with his two boys. They go bicycle riding, water skiing, anything that comes up. Scott seems to get pleasure out of just going out in a boat and watching his boys fish.

"When Scott goes into something, he goes into it hard. His boys had a couple of cheap boomerangs, they'd gotten from a store. When Scott went to Australia, he brought back a couple of first rate boomerangs. They all worked at it until they were good."

Another friend who's known them for years says, "Rene is blonde, outgoing, enthusiastic. You think at first that Scott is quiet and that they don't match. You say to yourself, opposites attract. Then you find that he's just as enthusiastic in his own way as she is.

"You get the feeling they're very religious. Yet it's hard to say why. They don't talk about it. They just seem to do things for people. You get the feeling that they're interested in you and what you're doing. Not in a superficial way. They don't just ask you how you are, politely and let it do. They dig in so you're sure they mean it. They don't talk like Good Samaritans. But you feel like that's the way they live."

Lt. Comdr. Malcolm Scott Carpenter is 37. He and his wife are both from Boulder, Colo. They have two boys and two girls — Mark Scott 12; Robyn Jay 9; Kristen Elaine 6 and Candace Noxon 5.

Carpenter majored in aeronautical engineering at the University of Colorado. In the Korean War he was in aerial mining, anti-submarine patrol and shipping surveillance. After Korea, he was assigned to the Electronics Test Division of the Navy Air Test Center. Following graduation from the Navy's General Line School and the Naval Air Intelligence Schiol, he was assigned to the anti-submarine aircraft carrier Hornet as Air Intelligence Officer.

But he didn't care much for sea duty. He was glad when the chance came to switch to Project Mercury. Like Lt. Col. John Glenn, he's scheduled to go around the world three times.

Crazy, Mixed-Up California TV

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI)— The way this southern California city's temperamental television sets have been acting lately, local viewers won't be a bit surprised if they start picking up the late, late late show from Moscow.

For the past several days viewers have been tuning their sets to their favorite programs only to find that the were receiving channels from as far away as Laredo, Tex., Portland, Ore., and Wichita, Kan.

Local servicemen have been answering hundreds of calls connected with the jamming, but say they are powerless to correct it.

Television technicians explain that the freak reception apparently is being caused by cloud formations that bounce television beams into the area.

Viewers are now awaiting the next cloudy day to find what the next offering will be from this unique national video grab-bag.

Quivira Girl Scout Council Giving Study To Proposed 26-County Unit

Discussion for formal presentation of plans to organize a Girl Scout Council embracing 26 counties in this area, with Amarillo as headquarters, highlighted a meeting of the Quivira Girl Scout Council held recently in Borger.

Plans for organizing a council to cover a larger area were outlined by Miss Gay Shepard of Dallas, Region IX council advisor, and by Mrs. Clayton Malone of Weslaco, chairman of the regional committee.

The Quivira Council board of directors approved a motion to interpret the proposed jurisdiction to all membership during the summer months, so that all factors involved may be understood and an intelligent vote may be cast on the recommended proposed jurisdiction (or similar plan) at the October council meeting.

This plan, which had been informally discussed at previous board and council meetings of the Quivira Council, is part of a nation-wide effort to complete the organization or re-organization of councils so that all will contain within their jurisdictions, the resources to provide a uniform level of service throughout the country. This goal was established in 1946 and last year the National Board set 1963 as the completion date.

Jurisdiction of the proposed council would cover 20 Texas Panhandle counties, three Oklahoma Panhandle counties, and Morton, Seward and Stevens counties in southwest Kansas.

Within this area are five Girl Scout Councils; Amarillo, Moore County; Panhandle, Texas; Quivira with headquarters in Pampa; Yucca with headquarters in Guymon, Okla. Five counties either have lone troops or no Girl Scouting at all, Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith, and Randall. Two communities, Dalhart and Canyon, have lone troops.

Suit Seeking $36,650 In Damages Here

W. H. Fuller and his wife, Jon, 1721 Evergreen, have filed a damage suit of $36,650 in 31st District Court, seeking recovery from damages and injuries sustained in a three-car accident July 4, 1961.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller were in his automobile traveling north on Charles street when he approached the intersection of Charles and Louisiana. Fuller said he pulled over to the curb and stopped his car as two other cars collided. The vehicles were driven by Darrell G. Seitz, Pampa, and Lowell Gunter, also of Pampa. The auto Gunter was driving was owned by Roy and Helen Foster, Pampa residents.

Fuller stated after the Seitz and Foster cars collided, the Seitz auto struck Fuller's car.

The suit asks for $20,000 for injuries to Mrs. Fuller and $5,000 for loss of her income. It also asks for $10,000 for injuries, $1,000 for medical expenses for Fuller and $650 for repair of his automobile.

The defendants are Seitz and Mr. and Mrs. Foster.

Two Hurt In Auto Crash Yesterday

Two persons suffered minor injuries in a two-car collision at 19th Ave. and N. Sumner St. shortly after 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Police reported that cars driven by Mrs. Velma Carter, 2221 N. Christy, and 18-year-old Michael J. Trimble, 1834 N. Nelson, were in collision at the intersection.

Mrs. Carter and Dickie Fortner, 15, of 2226 N. Sumner, a passenger in the Carter car, were taken to Highland General Hospital. Young Fortner was released after emergency examination and Mrs. Carter was reported in good condition this forenoon.

Trimble was cited for two traffic violations, failure to yield right-of-way and driving without an operator's license.

Police estimated total damage to the two automobiles at $375.

No Absentee Votes Cast So Far In City Commissioner Race

With Pampa's special election to pick a city commissioner for Ward 2 only 12 days away, there seemed to be little talk or activity on the surface in political circles today.

The three-way contest for the commissioner post will be among Dr. Will Graham, Herman M. Brown and George O. Hamlin. Each is seeking to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Commisioner Newt Secrest.

City Secretary Ed Vicars said today there had ben no absentee ballots cast in the race so far. Deadline for absentee voting will be one week from tomorrow, Friday, May 25. Tuesday, May 29, is election day.

The Ward 2 voting place will be located in the North Fire Station at 321 E. 17th St.

Stock

climb. By the end of the day, the averages were up.

Institutions and funds came into the market to try for the stocks at the low prices, and they bought. But Wednesday, the market was a bit aimless again.

"This market has fooled a lot of people," said one analyst. "Two weeks ago, it looked like it might have 'bottomed out.' (reached a low level for the time). It fooled me . . . the indicators this time didn't work.

"It has been in an emotional state."

"The market is nervous," said another. "people don't know what is coming."

The question of confidence, or lack of it, is one which will draw debate from Wall Streeters, depending on the short or the long view.

The quick reaction of the administration to a proposed steel price increase dropped the stock averages on the second trading day after the proposal was announced. They climbed again, then fell off steadily for the last five trading days of April. Last week they slid every day.

Premise here is that with government keeping prices and wages in check, the factors that would drive stock prices up are restrained.

And some find the Securities and Exchange Commission's yearlong investigation of stock market dealings a curbing factor; it brings caution, and there are a few who eye this quality skeptically in a risk capital market.

But the statistics — mostly — looked good this week. Industrial production; payrolls; the hours that people worked, and the personal income figures went up.

And that inflation: "I can't see that it is over," said one member of a brokerage firm who has been working in Wall Street since 1927. "It may be in check for a while. But it'll keep on."

"You need a good economy for a good market," said another. "You need business to create jobs if it is going to be sound. The administration will be trying to stimulate business again, maybe in a subtle way."

Plane

only short distance communication and did not make it clear whether there were other bodies they were not able to identify.

The plane, based at the Harlingen Air Force Base, was last heard from at 4:40 p.m. Monday. It was hunting for a private plane piloted by Marcus Hoyt Hooks of Donna, Tex., that earlier in the day was listed as missing on a flight from Texas to Mexico City.

Shortly after the Air Force plane began its search, reports filtered into Mexico City from Soto La Marina, a small town in Tamaulipas state, that Hooks had made an emergency landing the previous Saturday.

The reports said a fire had broken out in clothing Hooks carried as cargo. The plane was demolished.

Hooks disappeared, but United Press International learned today he had made his way back across the border to Donna, a small town in the Rio Grande Valley.

Hooks could not be reached immediately for comment. A Donna telephone operator said he did not have a telephone.

"I don't know where you can reach him," she told UPI. "But I saw him downtown last night."

Maj. Hal Harlan, public information officer at the Harlingen AFB, said the base had an "additional 11 or 12 airplanes standing by in case they are needed" for the recovery operation or in an additional search.

He declined to comment on the slowness of communications between Mexico and the United States which resulted in the search craft being launched two days after the object of the search had been found.

"We wouldn't have sent a plane down there if we had known," he said. "If we wanted to go to Mexico, we can drive our automobiles over there. We don't make pleasure flights."

The Air Force said the search plane had four scanners (airmen) equipped with field glasses to study the ground and a crew of five aboard it.

The crew was identified as Capt. Ronald L. Miller, pilot; 1st Lt. Noel F. Alsdorn, co-pilot; Maj. William S. Cameron, navigator; Capt. Edward L. Cobb, second navigator, and airman 1.C. Samuel C. Snell. Snell was from Houston, the rest of the crew was from Harlingen.

The scanners were identified as S. Sgt. David Silva of Harlingen, airman 3.C. Robert E. Wade of Houston, airman 2.C. Rodney F. Kawamura of Honolulu and airman 2.C. Edward L. Curley of Goldsboro, N. C.

Rainfall

The winds smashed the home of Pedro Ogeday, a tenant farmer. Ogeday and his three children were treated and released from a clinic at Lorenzo, Tex.

Hail also battered the South Plains cotton crop to pulp in many areas. Heavy rain, high winds and at least one tornado were reported in the South Plains.

The heavy rain lowered overnight low temperatures to 41 degrees at Dalhart and 56 at Amarillo, compared with 77 at Corpus Christi.

Amarillo recorded .90 inch of rain in the 24 hours ended at 6 a. m. Laredo had .04 and Fort Worth .01.

The turbulence erupted from a line of heavy thunderstorms raking West Texas and the South Plains. The tornado whipped through farm country near Muleshoe.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said the thunderstorms would increase in every part of Texas today.

The bodies of John Purdue and his sister, Mrs. Dan Roy, both of Clarendon, were recovered by Texas highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies about dawn.

Blaze Destroys Pampan's House

A house owned by Debra Watkins at 536 W. Crawford, caught fire Wednesday evening about 7:20 p.m. resulting in a total loss to the structure.

Oriental Cookery Noted For Wonderful Flavor

Oriental cookery is world famous for its wonderfully flavored, crisp-tender vegetables. Here's a dish with oriental overtones appetizing enough to tempt even the most reluctant vegetable eater, . . who is probably rebelling at the usual "buttered or creamed" routine. Frozen green peas with their jade-green beauty and garden-fresh flavor, combine with sweet pungent pork and crispy celery piquantly refreshing with subtle onion and mushrooms, will find favor with all the family members . . . and it's fancy enough for your most important dinner party. Whether you follow the rage for oriental settings and serve from an authentic Chinese wok and individual rice bowls. . .or use your favorite casserole and usual serving dishes, here's a treat that's sure to win laurels for the cook.

PEAS AND PORK ORIENTAL

1 pound lean pork, cut into thin strips (2x¼x¼ inch)
2 tablespoons cooking oil or shortening
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon soy sauce
3 tablespoons sherry
1½ cups cold water
½ cup sliced onion
½ cup sliced celery
1 can (3 oz.) sliced broiled mushroms
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 vegetable bouillon cube
1 package (10 ounce) frozen green peas, partially defrosted and broken apart

Brown pork in 1 tablespoon hot oil or shortening. Add ½ teaspoon salt, pepper, soy sauce, 2 tablespoons sherry and ¼ cup water. Cover; cok slowly until meat is tender, about 1 hour. If needed, add more water, a tablespoon at a time. Remove meat from pan. Add remaining 1 tablespoon oil or shortening to drippings. Add onion, celery and mushrooms; cook slowly until vegetables are crisp-tender. Remove vegetables from pan. Add remaining 1½ cups water to cornstarch and stir until free of lumps; stir into drippings. Add bouillon cube, peas and remaining ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon sherry. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened and peas are just tender. Add meat and vegetables; heat. Yields: 4 servings.

"A" Is For Accent Almonds Add As Inspiration To Tasty Desserts

Culinarily speaking, "A" is for the accent almonds add. No more than a few drops of almond extract in baking or a scattering of chopped or slivered almonds over a vegetable or main dish produces an inspired effect.

Almonds also play a starring role in breads and desserts. One example is Almond Chiffon Pie, a gossamer filling in a golden corn flake crumbs shell. Garnish this sumptuous creation with crumbs reserved from the crust and toasted slivered almonds.

ALMOND CHIFFON PIE

3 cups corn flakes or crumbs
¼ cup soft butter or margarine
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
2-3 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup evaporated milk
¾ cup water
3 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon almond-flavoring

If using corn flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Combine corn flake crumbs, butter and sugar; mix well. Press evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of 8-inch pie pan, reserving 2 tablespoons crumb mixture for topping, if desired. Chill.

Mix together in heavy saucepan gelatin, 1-3 cup of the sugar and salt. Blend in milk and water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved. Do not boil. Remove from heat. Beat with rotary beater until well blended. Pour slowly over slightly beaten egg yolks, stirring constantly. Return mixture to sauce pan and cook until thickened, stirring constantly (about 3 minutes). Remove from heat; cool until mixture begins to thicken by setting pan in ice water. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add remaining 1-3 cup sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Continue beating until stiff peaks form. Add flavoring to gelatin mixture; fold in egg whites. Pour into chilled crust. Garnish with reserved corn flake crumbs, if desired. Chill until firm.

Yield: 1 8-inch pie.

Quick Off-The-Pantry Shelf Dessert Concocts Variation Of Peach Melba

Want a quick, out - of - the freezer or off - the - pantry shelf dessert? Take a pound cake out of your freezer or buy one at the bakery counter. Then take a can of cherries off the pantry shelf. Make the sauce, slice the cake and serve a really yummy dessert. And you can vary this to make it even more delectable. Put a drained cling peach on your sauce and top the dessert with snowy coconut. You will have a variation of peach melba. Or, instead of a peach, top the cake with a scoop of ice cream, then the sauce and coconut.

RED CHERRY TOPPING

1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) sour red cherries (water pack)
1 cup cherry juice
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon allspice
Few drops red food coloring
3 tablespoons Cream of Rice, quick-cooking rice cereal

Drain cherries. If necessary, add water to juice to make 1 cup liquid. Add sugar, lemon juice, allspice and red food coloring. Bring to a boil in a saucepan. Slowly stir in rice cereal, stirring until mixture thickens. Add cherries and heat for an additional 5 minutes, until cherries are throughly heated. Serve hot or chilled over plain cake, pudding or ice cream. Makes 2 1-3 cups sauce.

Distinctive Flavor In Sundae Sauce

Distinctive flavor adds excitement to this ice cream topping. California Muscatel, a dessert wine with a fresh, fruity flavor, is combined with jam. Lemon juice adds a trace of tartness. For those who hate to cook, it's ideal because no trip to the stove is necessary to make a memorable dessert. For aded flair, serve the sundaes on slices of pineapple.

PINEAPPLE-APRICOT SUNDAE SAUCE

(Serves 6)

1 cup pineapple-apricot jam
½ cup California Muscatel or other dessert wine
1 teaspoon lemon juice
6 slices canned pineapple

Mix the jam, wine and lemon juice; chill. At serving time, place a slice of pineapple in each of 6 dessert dishes or on dessert plates; top pineapple with vanilla ice cream; pour jam-wine sauce over all.

LAMP CHOP ACCOMPANIMENT

Broiler meats, especially broiled lamb chops, are popular menu headliners on warm days. As colorful complements, tomato halves may be topped with grated cheese or buttered bread crumbs. A peach or apricot half could be filled with a marshmallow. Both of these lamb chop partners may be broiled right with the chops as they finish cooking on the second side.

ATTENTION SENIOR CITIZENS!

Research has discovered that many of our senior citizens consume a high carbohydrate, low protein diet. Protein requirements do not vary that greatly between the younger and older person, even though calorie needs will differ. Therefore, senior citizens need to be more aware of the value of meat in their diet. . .meat being one of the main sources of high-quality protein.

Pizza Popular Choice For Teen Gatherings

Pizzas have been popular in the United States for more than 10 years. Traditionally, pizza dough is a yeast dough, but for a quickie, use biscuit dough for the base. Pizzas are still a popular choice for teen-age get-togethers, television parties and impromptu entertaining. And if yours is a growing family, they are still a good choice for Saturday luncheon or Sunday night supper. Why not make up the toppings in doubles or larger quantities? Store them in freezing jars in the refrigerator or freezer until you need them. Then roll out your biscuit dough—spread with the topping, bake, cut each pizza in quarters and serve hot and savory. You will need at least two quarters per serving, more if pizzas are extra popular or your guests are extra hungry.

LUNCHEON PIZZA

2 tablespoons fat
¼ cup finely diced onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
½ pound chopped beef
1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1 can (1 lbs. 4 oz.) tomatoes, drained
¼ cup tomato paste
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon powdered oregano
1 cup biscuit mix
1-3 cup milk, about
1 cup grated American cheese

Melt fat in saucepan over moderate heat. Add onion and garlic and cook three minutes. Add chopped beef, pulled into small bits, and sprinkle with kitchen bouquet. Cook until meat is lightly browned. Add drained tomatoes—there should be about 1 cupful of pulp. Then add tomato paste, sugar, salt, pepper and oregano. Bring to a boil and let simmer over low heat for 15 minutes to blend flavors. Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix and milk to make a ball of dough. Divide dough into two portions and roll each portion into a circle about 8 inches in diameter. Place circles of dough in two lightly greased shallow layer cake pans. Spread dough with tomato and meat mixture. Sprinkle cheese over the tops of the pizzas. Bake in preheated 400 degrees oven until biscuit is done and cheese melted and lightly browned, about 20 minutes. Serve immediately with tossed green salad. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Wide Range Of Casserole Cookery Offers Warm Weather Dinner Winner

The wide and wonderful range of casserole cookery offers something to suit the tastes of every member of the family. Here's a great favorite. . .a new and intriguing way to use up the last of a baked ham. . .or to satisfy those requests for ham for dinner, with a minimum of kitchen time. With frozen French fries in the freezer, some hard - cooked eggs and cubed ham prepared ahead of time, we delight in having some free time to enjoy the outdoors. Not too long before we expect the hungry family to arrive, we hie ourselves indoors and put together the casserole. While it heats in the oven, we are free to set the table, toss a crisp green salad with a tangy dressing and fix a cooling dessert of fresh fruit and cookies. What could be more taste-tempting on a warm summer evening?

FROZEN FRENCH FRIES HAM 'N EGG BAKE

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
1-½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2-½ cups milk
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (¼ lb.)
2 packages (9 ounce each) or 1 package (1 pound) frozen French fries
1 pound baked or canned ham, cut into ½ inch cubes (about 3 cups)
3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
2 tablespoons buttered bread or cereal crumbs

Melt butter or margarine. Blend in flour, salt, mustard and pepper. Add milk; cook stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Remove from heat; add cheese and stir until it melts. Add French fries; mix carefully. Place ½ of the potato mixture in shallow 2 - quart casserole. Spread ham and chopped egg in layers atop potatoes. Cover with remaining potato mixture. Sprinkle with crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until thoroughly heated, about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Fixing First Meal Fun For New Bride

Many an ingenious bride has taken along a thermos bottle on her wedding trip. An intimate breakfast for two is easy for the bride to prepare. (Saves money, too, which can go towards an elegant evening meal!) It's easy to get the thermos filled with fresh coffee at a roadside refreshment stand. Stop at a grocery store for fresh fruit, a package of individual boxes of ready-to-eat cereal, sweet rolls, fresh milk, paper napkins, plastic spoons and bowls. With these minimum supplies the bride is all set to prepare an adequate breakfast.

Drive along until a pleasant spot comes to view to leisurely enjoy a cozy breakfast just for two. Such a breakfast follows a basic breakfast pattern of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter. (Sweet rolls take the place of the bread and butter.) This breakfast pattern is recommended by doctors and dietitians as an adequate morning meal for most persons.

Thus the wise bride not only provides breakfast for just the two of them, but she is starting to establish a most important habit which will contribute to the future well-being of both her husband and herself — the habit of starting each day with an adequate breakfast.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Pork Boston Butt.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. This is the upper half of the pork shoulder and contains a part of the blade bone.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By roasting. Place the meat on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not add water and do not cover. Insert a meat thermometer into the center of the thickest part, making sure it does not rest in fat or on bone. Roast in a moderate oven (350° F.) until the thermometer registers 185° F. Allow 45 to 50 minutes per pound.

Television In Review

By RICK Du BROW

United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — All of the moral indignation over the death of fighter Benny (Kid) Paret apparently will have little immediate effect on televised boxing.

ABC - TV has renewed the matches for next season. But ABC sources say the program's future may not be so certain in the fall of 1962. Investigations continue. And shows such as Wednesday night's David Brinkley interview with Emile Griffith — the other boxer in the ring when Paret was fatally injured—keep the matter alive.

Welterweight champ Griffith, appearing on NBC - TV's weekly "David Brinkley's Journal," sat with the newsman beside a boxing ring.

The over-whelming impression was the pathetic situation of a man trying to justify an occupation he feels was good to him, but which eventually landed him in the center of a nightmare he never really made.

In remarks preceding the interview, Brinkley said the 7,600 persons present at Madison Square Garden and 15 million televiewers who saw the fight "watched one man kill another." But Griffith, in the talk, said he did not feel he killed Paret. He did not feel guilt, he added.

"I was just doing a job in there, like any other fighter," he said. He defended boxing. "I don't think the sport—boxing — is that bad," he said. He suggested that people start knocking football because, he said, more athletes are killed in that sport.

Griffith grimly acknowledged he had not yet fully snapped out of the Paret tragedy. "It isn't easy," he said. He added he didn't realize Paret was hurt as he punched him; and that his manager had told him to keep swinging until the referee stopped it. It is not a boxer who makes such decisions, he said.

Wearing a business suit, Griffith said he would try to go on boxing. He admitted receiving letters calling him "killer" and "murder." But he said "accidents will happen" and "I'm sorry for what happened to Benny—really."

Brinkley brought out in an epilogue that Paret had earned $223,000, but hardly any of it was left when he died. Implicit in his statement and the interview was the fact that two ambitious youngsters, each of poor background, had become involved in a business in which others created the rules, shared the profits but escaped personal tragedy.

The Channel Swim: Roy Rogers and Dale Evans will have a weekly one-hour variety show on ABC-TV this fall, wih Cliff Arquette and the Sons of the Pioneers as regulars.

Ralph Bellamy joins Margaret Leighton in a CBS-TV drama, "The First Day," June 20 . . . NBC-TV will present a one-hour special about the Quakers July 30 . . . Loretta Young, Fred Astaire, Arlene Francis and Cyril Ritchard will be present on NBC-TV's Emmy show Tuesday.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Rarely since King Arthur has there been a roundtable discussion to match the one held Monday on television by Tennessee Ernie Ford, Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov and Mrs. Titov.

The illustrious peapicker very nearly succeeded in turning his ABC show into a homey version of "Ma and Pa Titov" with a domestic earthiness that poses him as a distinct threat to Arlene Francis.

Ernie corralled the Titovs on their recent visit to San Francisco, from where his program originates, and devoted about half of his 30-minute air time to a taped chat with the aid of interpreter Ivan Shkylar.

There was a sense of impending disaster when Ernie began by addressing Shkylar as "Mr. Ivan." But before you knew it, Titov and his reticent wife had let their hair down for the first time on television as Ford guided the talk to hunting, recipes and marriages.

Titov drew a big laugh from the audience when Ernie asked him how long he had been married, and he couldn't remember. Finally, he answered, "Three years," and his wife corrected, "No, it's really been four." Said Titov: "We don't count the first year. It was paradise."

Well, you could hardly top that. But Ernie almost did when, after extracting a promise to get the recipe for Titov's favorite dish—a mixture of beef and flour meal—he presented the Soviets with an assortment of hush puppy mix, hominy grits and black-eyed peas.

Personally, I can't think of more perfect present, because it is bound to convince the Russians that any nation which can consume such stuff is able to withstand anything.

Anyway, Titov informed Ernie that golf is not played in Russia, and that his favorite hunting position is sitting under a tree, waiting for the quarry to romp by. And Mrs. Titov, who is studying to be a doctor, said he preferred ready-made food.

Well, there was lengthy applause at the end. Shkylar said it was "the most relaxed few minutes Titov has spent since his arrival in the U.S." and things got so chummy that I thought Ernie might break out a deck of cards for a bridge foursome at any moment.

It will be interesting to see how the mail reaction runs. Titov revealed a flair as a panelist. Like maybe for the Communist version of "What's My Line?"

Bing Crosby, who owns ABC-TV's "Ben Casey," tossed it off the air for one night Monday for an hour of smiles and music with Bob Hope, Edie Adams, the Smothers Brothers, Pete Fountain's jazz group, and his son Gary.

Hope's effect on Crosby is amazing. In the past the Groaner's shows have been slow, but with his old sidekick there to bounce lines off, Monday night's entry was a breezy, well-paced romp devoted to leisure.

Bing and Bob are still the best song - dance - and - comedy team around. And naturally they plugged their latest movie, "Road to Hong Kong," with gags about the old "Road" films. Bob looked at an old shot of Bing with money in his hands and cracked: "Just counting the room rent from Kennedy." The President recently was Bing's guest in Palm Springs, Calif.

The Channel Swim: Former baseball great Jackie Robinson and Peggy Lee headline Ed Sullivan's CBS-TV show Sunday . . . Robert Q. Lewis guests on ABC-TV's "Room for One More" June 2 . . . Carol Burnett, of CBS-TV's Garry Moore Show, plays the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., in August.

The Rev. Martin Luther King appears on CBS-TV's "Washington Conversation" Sunday . . . Show offers the Count Basie Trio May 28 . . . Lee Marvin, former star of the "M Squad" series, is planning a new show, "Lawbreaker," based on police cases.

CHALLENGE GOP WARNING

DENVER (UPI)—To prevent theft of the cardboard sign over the door of their state campaign headquarters, Republicans posted beneath it another sign which read: "You have just been photographed in a childish act of vandalism."

The office sign was missing Tuesday and penciled beneath the warning was: "Send us three copies."

FAT OVERWEIGHT

Available to you without a doctor's prescription, our drug called ODRINEX. You must lose ugly fat in 7 days or your money back. No strenuous exercise, laxatives, massage or taking of so-called reducing candies, crackers or cookies or chewing gum. ODRINEX is a tiny tablet and easily swallowed. When you take ODRINEX, you still enjoy your meals, still eat the foods you like, but you simply don't have the urge for extra portions, because ODRINEX depresses your appetite and decreases your desire for food. Your weight must come down, because as your own doctor will tell you, when you eat less, you weigh less. Get rid of excess fat and live longer. ODRINEX costs $3.00 and is sold on this GUARANTEE: If not satisfied for any reason just return the package to your druggist and get your full money back. No questions asked. ODRINEX is sold with this guarantee by:

FRIEND OF THE COURT

Since ancient Rome, an amicus curiae is a friend of the court. He plays a vital part in presenting a court with arguments which help it to reach a just decision. A pending case may well affect many people besides the parties.

A court often welcomes outsiders into a lawsuit who cannot present evidence or question witnesses. Their main role is to inform the court, to write briefs, to tell the court of likely outcomes of its decision.

There are many types of friends of the court.

1. Court appointed Amici. The court may ask a professor of law or a public spirited group to help the court find facts, present the law, or supply other helpful information.

2. Special interest Amici are the largest group. Private commercial interest, trade and similar groups, have money at stake. They too might help the court—but their main purpose is to have the court set a precedent favorable to them.

3. Governmental Amici. The district attorney, Attorney General, or other lawyer for a public agency or the state or U. S. can present a public view of the case—often without a special interest. Such agencies can often inform the court how the outcome of a particular case is likely to affect the public.

Sometimes a government agency can represent a state's special interest. For example, California may join Texas in a dispute between Texas and the U. S. over off-shore oil. Or a principle in a water dispute between two eastern states may affect Texas' stake in Rio Grande river water. Though in such a case Texas would speak in the public interest it also has a special interest motive for Texas.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

NEW YORK — Ninety per cent of the 210 million pleasure trips made by Americans in 1960 were taken in automobiles, according to Oil Facts. The total number of trips is expected to rise to at least 325 million by 1970.

Man-Made Jewels In Splendid Settings

By GAILE DUGAS
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YOR K(NEA) — These precious gems that women covet —sapphires, rubies and emeralds —are now copied to perfection in synthetics.

These synthetics, which duplicate the brilliance, hardness and durability of true gems, are much less expensive than the real thing. And, at sight, the difference cannot be detected.

They are treated just as all fine gems are treated. That is, they are set in yellow gold, white gold or platinum and are surrounded by genuine diamonds. And the designs include rings, brooches, necklaces, bracelets, pendants, clips and earrings. Some pieces are convertible so that a ring, for instance, may also double as a bracelet.

The modestly priced synthetic emerald is made from a crystal clear beryl mined in Brazil and brought by a scientific process to the deep, flashing green color identified with all fine emeralds. The cost is as little as $100 for a ring to $1,000 for an elaborate piece of jewelry.

If you're wondering at this point just where the saving is, it's this way: a truly fine genuine emerald can cost as much as $5,000 per carat today. The synthetic gives you a brilliant gem, to all appearances the real thing, at far lower cost.

Star sapphires and rubies are also produced in this synthetic. They reproduce depth of color, brilliance and the clarity of the star. At the moment, the genuine star sapphires and rubies command the highest prices in history. Once again, the synthetic has the fine appearance at a much lower cost.

For women who dote on fine gems but find them financially beyond reach, the synthetic may be the answer.

These are manmade jewels, equaling natural stones in brilliance and clarity but costing far less than mined stones of similar quality. Linde Star in blue (upper left) is designed to be worn as either pendant or ring. It is surrounded by 26 tapered baguettes and 20 full-cut diamonds. Stars in the finest cornflower blue (upper right) flash in this brooch and earring set. Pin is set in yellow gold and has 60 diamonds. Plum colored star (lower left) does double duty as ring and as bracelet (lower right). Links of bracelet fold up to create huge dinner ring.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that so many people who would not think of eating peas with their knives think it is all right to ask my elderly mother how old she is? This seems to be their first question after making her acquaintance, no matter how casual the relationship. It is an annoyance to her. Will you please print a suitable answer to this bold and presumptuous question.

HER DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: A fit reply to a bold and presumptuous question would be: "If you will forgive my not answering, I will forgive you for asking."

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell me the true, up-to-date meaning when a boy gives a girl his fraternity pin? I have been going with this boy for quite some time now and he wants to give me his fraternity pin. My parents say it means you are engaged to be married and, since we can't even think about getting married yet, they won't let me accept it. The boy says it means we are going steady — not engaged. Please print your answer.

ALMOST PINNED

DEAR ALMOST: I don't know what it means on other campuses, but at California, Colorado, Illinois, Oklahoma and Iowa it means you are "engaged" to be engaged. A fraternity pin these days rarely sticks one for life.

DEAR ABBY: To the "Other Woman" who has never lied or cheated on "her man" for 5 years and expects to have him for her husband some day:

I am the wife of such a man. He will cheat every chance he gets. Madame, you have a few facts to learn. A man who cheats on his wife never stops. His wife is not ignorant of his behavior, but is too much a lady to bring disgrace on her family. She would rather have people think her stupid than to let her children know what an immoral, spineless heel their father is. Unless his wife succumbs of a broken heart, you will never get him. And if you do, you have my sympathy.

THE WIFE

DEAR ABBY: Our son is about to become engaged. Is it our place to invite the parents of the girl to our home first? Or should the parents of the girl invite us to their home first?

MUST KNOW SOON

DEAR MUST: The parents of the girl should invite the parents of the boy to their home first. But in case the girl's parents are not aware of this, you would be wise to extend the first invitation to them. Don't stand on ceremonies where the happiness of your children is concerned.

How's the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Guidance Suggestions Given At Horace Mann

Mrs. Essie Mae Walter, counselor of Robert E. Lee Junior High, spoke to the Horace Mann PTA unit on "Effective Learning For Wisdom and Stature" at the Thursday afternoon meeting of the unit held in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Walters said that "effective learning is what a man learns from the time he is born until he dies. It is an established fact that a child is not born lazy, stubborn, troubled, interested or disinterested, or has a tendency to be morally bad or morally good. All are effective learnings through the parents and teacher. Everyone is different, but effective learning is much more likely to take place if teacher and parent work closely together."

Mrs. Walters outlined six suggestions for effective learning: "1) guide youth in forming a worthwhile life purpose toward which they may exert themselves; 2) encourage children to be selective of the activities in which they engage; 3) encourage budgeting of time; there should be a balance of time between recreation and work; 4) recognize the value of work; that it is good for the body and soul; 5) help youth to be at peace with themselves; they need to be aware of our love, but they need a sense of true values and faith in God; 6) let us enjoy life and teach children to enjoy it."

Mrs. James Reeves, president, conducted the business meeting as reports were given by Mrs. Walter Davis, secretary; Mrs. Paul Turner, treasurer; and Sam Beget, school principal, of the auditing committee.

Miss Yvonne Goss, first grade teacher, gave the devotion which was concluded by The Lords Prayer sung by Miss Jean Holman and accompanied by Miss Johnlyn Mitchell, pianist, both former Horace Mann students.

In giving instructions to mothers, who will have children entering the first grade next year, Mr. Begert stressed that they read the booklet, "Getting Off To A Good Start", which had recently been mailed to them by the school.

Miss Goss, Mrs. Wanda Flowers and Mrs. A. E. Berry were introduced as first grade teachers. Mr. Begert presented Mrs. Berry with a PTA Life Membership card and pin for outstanding work in the PTA unit.

Following an introduction by Mrs. Howard Holt, program chairman, Mrs. Jack P. Foster installed the 1962-63 officers with an inspirational "building" theme: Mmes. James Reeves, president; Howard Holt, vice president; Walter Davis, secretary; Wayne Phillips, corresponding secretary; Paul Turner., treasurer; Ralph Collingsworth, historian; E. R. Southard, parliamentarian.

Door prize, a cake baked by Mrs. Walter Davis, was won by Mrs. McDaniels.

Room count was won by Miss Mary Reeves, Mrs. A. E. Berry and M. K. Griffith's room.

A tea honoring pre - school mothers concluded the meeting.

Exotic Hawaiian Atmosphere Created For Orion W. Carter SS Class Luau

Orion W. Carter Sunday School Class of First Methodist Church entertained with an Hawaiian Luau recently on the covered patio of the church with Mmes. Carl Williams, Lynn Thames and Richard Cooke as hostesses.

The patio was decorated with floral arrangements and greenery with miniature palm trees and tropical fruit appointing the dining tables.

Additional decorations to form a Hawaiian atmosphere were carried out with a make-believe banana tree forming the background with bananas on the ground; two grass shacks were placed on either side of the tree. A strip of white paper was placed on the floor encircled with flowers and greenery to form a stage for Linda Brumley, who performed two hula dances.

As guests arrived, costumed in Hawaiian dress, leis were presented to them at the door by Mrs. Richard Cooke.

Banquet tables were placed on bricks about a foot off the floor and pillows covered with colorful crepe paper were placed on the floor for seats.

During a business meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Tommy Cox, president; Verelene England, secretary; Bill Scogg, song leader; Les Howard, vice president; Judy Dennis, treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Thames, devotional chairmen.

Members attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Joe Hayes; Bob Bruner; Deannie Spoonemore; Gerald Marlar; Ronald Beard; Leroy England; Jim Duke; Leroy Kretzmeier; Jimmy Keel; Bill Hensley; Melvin Dennis; Bill Johnson; Tommy Cox; Les Howard; Bill Scogg; Mayo McKnight; Mmes. Joe Pafford, Libby Shotwell, class teacher.

Guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Bond, Dr. and Mrs. Hubert H. Brateher, pastor of the church.

Minutes from a previous meeting were read by Mrs. Weldon Carter.

It was announced that Miss Inez Elizabeth Brown had been awarded the WSCS scholarship.

Announcement was also made of the May 23 general meeting, which will be a salad luncheon to include brief reports by chairmen of work divisions.

Mrs. Colville reported that a decision was made at the District Meeting in Spearman recent- to increase the Society's pledge by 5 per cent, which is apportioned to about 50 cents per member.

There will be eight circles for next year; names will be drawn at the May 23 meeting.

Mrs. Colville announced that June 6 will be the first organizational meeting of circles and the pledge service will be held at that time.

Also, reported from the District meeting were plans to drop junior and baby life memberships.

The summer study course will be "The Book Of Mark."

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Lawson gave information to new officers concerning their duties for the new year's program.

Wilson Exec Board Has Luncheon Meet

The final executive board meeting of the Woodrow Wilson PTA was held Thursday in the home of Mrs. E. L. Henderson, unit president, 419 E. Foster.

A covered-dish luncheon was served to Mmes. W. B. Oler, Bus Benton, Calvin Hogan, Dan Cotten, Melvin Clark, W. M. Sims, J. C. Morris, Walden Haynes, W. R. Coyle, Ted Atwood, Bill Harris, E. L. Albritton, Frank Thomas, James Silcott, E. A. McLennan, Virgil Poole and Arthur Pfeil.

A brief business meeting followed the luncheon.

CHILLED MEATS FOR SALAD

Some Business Problems Are 'Really Tough'

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man's business problems, Patrick Skea said today, may range from what to do about a family dispute to where to invest his money in the stock market and some of them are really tough to handle.

For nearly 11 years, Skea, 38, has been fielding queries for information by mail or by personal conference, and mostly, he said, his organization merely points the way for people to help themselves.

Skea, an Air Force veteran, is director of the information service of the Alexander Hamilton Institute. It was set up to help subscribers of the 52-year old organization find answers to business difficulties.

Although he gets calls about stock market dealings from subscribers, the organization has a separate investment division, registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission, to hand out pertinent information.

"Monday, when the market dropped way down and then went way up, its telephones were ringing all day," Skea said.

Primarily, his job is to tell subscribers where to look for existing literature and guidance on any business subject in which they are interested.

Over the years, he said, the institute has built up a huge backlog of indexes to reference works, and of bibliographies.

Some subscribers who have been successful in the field of arts —Skea mentioned a popular recording star among them —have come to the service for guidance on where to learn how to handle their money and their business affairs, as a safeguard against the time when their popularity might wane or they might wish to retire.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The politics of medical care for the aging is building up another big political pressure group in the United States from which more is likely to be heard rather than less.

Anyone who remembers the Townsend old age pension plan that bloomed in the 1930s will have some idea of what the old folks can do when organized. The old folks fell for it with a whoop of delight. Headquarters was in Los Angeles.

Great sums of money accumulated there. The old folks showered down with their $1 and $2 bills and an occasional $5. The plan held its own national political convention in 1936 in the great Cleveland hall just vacated by the Republicans, who had nominated Alf M. Landon for president.

When the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith ended his speech, which was an appeal for contributions, the old folks stormed the stage filling hats and buckets with $1 and $2 bills.

The Townsend old age pension plan was a major factor in persuading Congress to enact Social Security legislation. That legislation disorganized but did not wholly quiet the old folks.

They kept the heat on Congress so that it has been customary since for Congress to regularly hike Social Security payments, during election years. All of that was nearly 30 years ago. The old folk have not had much if any organization or leadership since Dr. Townsend disappeared.

The medicare dispute is changing that. Operating now in Washington at an address conveniently close to the U. S. Capitol where the medicare votes will be cast is the National Council of Senior Citizens. This organization representing the oldsters is committed to the Kennedy administration plan for medicare through Social Security.

Its political base could be enormous. It could be as great, for example, as is the political base of organized labor. Given organization locally and nationally, the old folk could become a balance of power vote in many elections.

In that role, the old folk could dicate to political parties as organized labor or racial groups dictate. In 1958 there were in the United States just more than 14 million persons aged 65 years or more. In March of 1960 this number had grown to 15.6 million.

The Statistical Abstract of the United States says in 1959 there were in this country 236,818 physicians; 100,15 dentists; and (a year before) 460,000 registered nurses. The medical profession is well organized and better able than the old folk to get its story to the people.

But the old folk have the administration going for them in this political contest.

Misunderstanding Is Corrected By SS Representative

Hal Geldon, manager of the Amarillo Social Security district office, announced there has been some misunderstanding by farmers and ranchers as to which foreign born agricultural employees are covered by social security.

If you are a farmer or rancher and contract with a foreign government for specific temporary agricultural wokers, then wages paid to the employees are not taxable wags under the Social Security Act. However, wages paid to other foreign born persons who are admitted to the United State under a temporary visa are covered, if they meet the agricultural employment tests.

A farm or ranch worker is covered by social security if he is paid $150 or more cash wages in a year by one employer or if he works for one employer on 20 or more days in the year for cash wages figured on a time basis.

Geldon emphasized that employers are required by law to keep accurate payroll records in order to report the employee's name and social security number as it appears on his social security card, along with the amount of wages paid during the year.

Man Is Executed For Store Holdup

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Herbert Bradley, 20, a Dallas Negro convicted of shooting and seriously wounding a grocer in a holdup, died shortly after midnight in the electric chair at Huntsville state prison Wednesday.

Bradley, a worn out bible clutched in his left hand, was pronounced dead at 12:08 a. m. He went to his death without making a last statement.

He was convicted Sept. 4, 1960, on a charge of robbery by firearms. The Dallas grocer was crippled for life.

A One-Way Ticket To Somewhere Else

Story Of Two Negro Families Who Took White Citizens' Council Offer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: There once was an underground railroad that smuggled refugee Negro slaves to the North. Today, a new kind of Negro migration has been started—and is being hotly debated around the country. The motives, thoughts and feelings of two New Orleans Negro families who accepted free one-way tickets to somewhere else are reflected in the following dispatch assembled by UPI reports in Los Angeles, New Orleans and New York.)

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

On the day before Good Friday, a taxicab pulled up in front of a four-room shanty in the Negro section of Algiers in West New Orleans.

Into it piled the Louis Boyd family. The father, 42, his pregnant wife, Dorothy, 38, and their eight children, ranging from 3 to 12 years old.

The Boyds never said a word of goodby to their neighbors. They just walked out of the house at 1308 Lamarque St. and took nothing but their clothes — which weren't many.

Not until they were in the cab did the children learn why they were taking the first taxi ride of their lives. They follow their solemn mother without question like baby chicks after a hen. So they accepted with no particular excitement her word that they were leaving New Orleans and going to New York.

The Boyds were the pioneers of a novel Negro migration. They were the first to accept one-way bus tickets from the White Citizens' Council of New Orleans.

Yet the Boyds were about as remote as a family could be from the South's convulsive struggle over integration.

Louis Boyd has virtually no opinion about it. Six of his children were in an all-Negro school and that was all right with him.

"I never thought much about it," he says. "They (the whites) are on one side and we are on the other. It's been that way for so long. It's hard to change—for them and for us, too."

What Boyd was concerned about was far less complex. It was a matter of food. A part-time longshoreman, he had been out of work for three weeks. He had been going down to the Mississippi and catching fish to feed his family.

His wife is the decision maker. She heard George Singelmann's offer of a free trip north on the radio at 10 a.m. She phoned Singelmann's citizens' council and by 1:30 p.m. she had a telegram back. Then she told Louis what she had done.

Two days later they pulled out of the Trailways bus station for the 42-hour ride to New York. It was the first time in his life Louis Boyd had gone farther from New Orleans than Bogalusa on the Mississippi border.

On the floor of the United States Senate, Jacob Javits of New York denounced Singelmann's campaign as "shocking and shameful." The NAACP termed it a "cruel hoax." New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller said it "violates every fundamental concept that we believe in as a people."

Congressman F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana replied:

"Now the freedom riders are north-bound and they are freedom riders in the truest sense of the phrase, for not only are they riding free but of their own free will.

"Why doesn't the NAACP want these free people in the North? Is it possible the NAACP has no genuine interest in the advancement of colored people?"

The train approaches Yuma and Billy is waiting in the vestibule to make another food run. He is a slender boy, 6 feet, 3 inches and painfully polite. He ran the 440 for the track team at Capital Senior High in Baton Rouge.

But he isn't about to make the run at Yuma. The tracks are elevated and it looks a good furlong to the station. His dad, in stocking feet, appears in the vestibule and says, "Get going, son."

"Dad, I ain't got time. I just ain't got time," says Billy.

Someone drags out an old cardboard box and passes around soggy looking soda crackers. California is just across the Colorado River.

A television reporter is interviewing the Denhams aboard the train. Brilliant lights are focused on them for the cameras.

The TV man asks the Denhams if they felt their acceptance of money from a white supremacist organization was embarrassing to the Negro race. They agree it was embarrassing. Both tried first to pronounce the word, "supremacist," and then gave up.

Denham's attitude about the trip is being moulded for him. Under repeated rehearsals of questions, he finally says: "Yes, I think it was embarrassing for the Negro race to accept the money and the tickets. I wouldn't do it again."

"I feel I was tricked," he says after being given the cue, "Yes, we were tricked."

Suddenly, Mrs. Denham whips down the aisle again to the women's room. She's got young Charles in her arms, a diaper pressed to his mouth. He looks as if his stomach is upset and he is about to vomit.

As Mrs. Denham makes the trip, the mask of smiles falls from her face and she bows her head. Her eyes show a lot of white. There is a sudden, stark sadness mirrored in her normally bland face.

As the Sunset Limited moved across the border into California, Louis Boyd was winding up the first week of a new job 3,000 miles across the nation in a medical electronics plant in Jersey City, N.J. It has been widely printed that he landed a job paying $ 00 a week. The last time he worked in New Orleans, he earned $23 a week.

His wife and the eight children were flopped on the bed and floor of a dingy room of a Harlem hotel, watching television, waiting for him to come from work.

The Boyds had arrived in New York on Easter Saturday, tired, dishevelled, confused. But there was a welcome waiting. In the bus terminal were representatives of the Urban League, the Traveller's Aid and the NAACP.

One of those on hand was Daisy Bates, no stranger to the publicity that has surrounded desegregation. She is the Little Rock housewife who led the fight for admission of nine Negro children to the Arkansas capital's Central High School.

"Looking at those frightened Boyd kids," she recounted, "they looked so lonely. I decided to buy them Easter outfits. It was spontaneous. But later I was reimbursed by the NAACP."

That night the Travellers' Aid got them rooms in the Walcot Hotel, three blocks from the Empire State Building.

But what Louis Boyd needed, and quickly, was a job. He had $15 left of the $50 that Singelmann gave him when they left Louisiana.

On that same Saturday morning, a man named Harvey Brudner was reading the New York Times in his apartment on Central Park West. He is of a wealthy Jewish family with a doctorate in physics and considerable experience in the field of medical electronics.

Three months ago, he and his family invested $100,000 in a new company in Jersey City where he plans to manufacture medical equipment. He has patented a transistor thermometer. It takes temperatures in one second and shows the degrees on a digital dial resembling the speedometer of a car.

Out of the call came the job for Boyd as maintenance man and truck driver.

The family had been in the Walcott Hotel only two days when its manager got an anonymous letter threatening to bomb the building unless they left. The Boyds moved that evening.

They went to the hotel in Harlem whose identity Boyd pleads must be kept secret until he can get located in a house in New Jersey. Brudner is making arrangements to get him one for rent. He was negotiating for one of seven rooms at $100 a month. Meantime, he is paying the hotel bill.

In New Orleans, Singelmann said he was delighted that Boyd had found a $100-a-week job. He said it should be encouraging to other Negroes who want to go North.

On Wednesday, May 2, at 6:40 p.m. the Sunset Limited pulled into the Los Angeles railroad depot. In Car 101, the Denham family and the four young Negro men looked out upon a scene of wild confusion.

There was such a jam of people shoving microphones at Denham as he left the train that he was speechless with disbelief. Representatives of Negro churches and of the Urban League and NAACP were on hand.

Also the Travellers' Aid which took the Denhams to the Rosslyn Hotel at Ffth and Main streets in a rather shoddy section of the city close to Skid Row.

Mrs. Dorothy Dupole, Travellers' Aid director, explained:

"Well, it's integrated and it's close to the Travellers' Aid office.

The management made a special rate of $2 a head.

The first thing Billy did was to run out and bring back hamburgers and milk for all.

On Thursday, May 3, Denham got a job. A Negro newspaper columnist named Al Mosby drove Denham and Billy out to the 1700 block on Longwood Ave. to a construction job of the L. M. Matthews Co.

Matthews, his partner, Robert Williams, and the project supervisor, Armenous Burke, were on hand to greet Denham. Matthews made a speech saying he had come from Baton Rouge years ago and was glad to help out someone from that area.

Matthews said he felt the White Citizens' Council was "misguided."

Burke said Denham would get $3 an hour. They are wrecking several old houses to make way for apartment buildings and, when construction gets underway, Burke said, Denham's pay would go up to $4 an hour as a bulldozer operator.

From the construction project, Denham was driven to the hotel where he picked up his family with all their wordly belongings—packed in six heavy paper bags, one grip and a plastic case.

By nightfall, the Denhams moved into the Jordan Downs housing project. It is largely populated by Negroes — there are seven Caucasian families in the project which has about 200 units with wide sweeping lawns and playgrounds.

A spokesman said the five bedroom unit "just happened to be available." The rent was set at $45.50 a month plus $8 for services.

"This is just great," said young Billy.

On the same day last week, at the other end of the country, Louis Boyd took a few minutes off from assembling a work bench at the plant at Jersey City. His foreman, Walter Haas, said he was doing fine.

"I could use 20 Louis Boyds," Haas said.

Boyd was asked whether he thought other Negroes in the South might follow his example.

"I haven't looked back once since I got here," he said. "I don't know what they'll do. I was only looking out for me and my family. My wife just says 'Thank God that we came' and that's how I feel, too."

Does he think the White Citizens' Council should finance the one-way trips?

"I don't know whether what they are doing is right or wrong," he said. "All I know is they have done me a favor."

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

As a young nation sensitive of its independence and national pride, the Republic of the Philippines frequently has shown bursts of temper against the United States.

But never have these outbursts been allowed to damage permanently the peculiar affection existing between the Philippines and the United States which gave the Filipinos their independence in 1946 and established them as a showcase of democracy in Asia.

This is another period of temper.

As result, President Diosdado Macapagal canceled a scheduled visit to the United States next month and accused the American people of a lack of interest in the "problems of a steadfast ally in the struggle against international communism."

The source of Filipino indignation was congressional failure a week ago to approve a $73 million appropriation which was to pay off the last of the Philippines damage claims from World War II.

Especially rankling to Macapagal was the congressional charge that payment of the damage claims would constitute a handout and a "windfall to thousands of individuals and corporations."

In the years since independence, U. S. aid to the Philippines has been as considerable as the quarrels have been numerous.

In 1950, President Truman dispatched Daniel W. Bell to Manila to check charges that $2 billion provided by this country had not been used wisely.

The Bell report criticizing corruption in the Philippine government raised a storm of indignation.

But it also resulted in Philippine tax and land reforms, establishment of minimum wages and continued U. S. aid.

The United States also aroused Filipino anger on the question of U. S. bases in the Philippines and jurisdiction over crimes committed by U. S. servicemen.

These differences simmered for years until the Philippines finally won a greater voice in the use of the bases and agreed that jurisdiction over criminal cases should be split—U. S. jurisdiction if committed on-base, Philippine jurisdiction off-base.

In the end, it seems that the present case will be settled as peacefully as the others. President Eisenhower favored payment and so does President Kennedy, who already has taken steps to start the bill through Congress again.

Mays, Cepeda Are Big Guns In Giants Surge Toward Pennant

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

They say in the dugouts around the National League that the San Francisco Giants scare you with Willie Mays and beat you with Orlando Cepeda.

It's no criticism of Willie the Wonder — at 31 the most exciting player in the majors — just the ultimate tribute to the prowess of the game-winning bat swung by the 24-year-old, 210-pound Cepeda.

This is Cepeda's fifth season in the big time — and it looks like it'll be by all odds his best. He's batting at a .336 clip, has hit 10 homers and leads the NL with 38 runs batted in. At that pace he'll surpass his 1961 figures of .311, 46 and 142 in those departments by a wide margin.

Cepeda supplied the crushing blow for the Giants again Wednesday when his three-run homer climaxed a five-run seventh-inning rally as San Francisco whipped the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-2. The win extended the Giants' latest winning surge to four straight games during which they have outscored their rivals, 31-7.

Juan Marichal yielded nine hits and five walks but was helped by three double plays in winning his seventh game for the Giants. One of the hits off him was a single by Stan Musial that tied the Cardinal all-time great with Hans Wagner's NL record of 3,430 lifetime hits.

The Los Angeles Dodgers remained four games behind the Giants with a 5-2 victory over the Houston Colts; the Cincinnati Reds downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-5; the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs, 6-5, in 11 innings, and the Pittsburgh Pirates shut out the Milwaukee Braves, 6-0, in other NL games.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians retained first place by defeating the Kansas City A's, 10-9; the New York Yankees outslugged the Boston Red Sox, 9-8; the Minnesota Twins topped the Detroit Tigers, 8-4; the Los Angeles Angels beat the Baltimore Orioles, 3-1, and the Washington Senators shaded the Chicago White Sox, 3-1.

The Dodgers collected only six hits but stole five bases as Joe Moeller won his second game. Shortstop Maury Wills and Willie Davis stole two bases each with Wills running his season total to 18.

Vada Pinson's ninth-inning double snapped a 5-5 tie and gave the Reds their sixth straight win after the Phillies tied the score in the eighth on Roy Sievers' first NL homer. Jim Brosnan went the last three innings to win his first game of the year for Cincinnati.

Felix Mantilla's 11th-inning bases-filled single gave the Mets their second extra-inning win over the Cubs in as many days. Johnny De Merit and Gil Hodges homered for the Mets, who have won six of their last eight games, while Ernie Banks hit No. 9 for the Cubs.

Al McBean and Diomedes Olivo combined in a five-hitter for the Pirates who routed Bob Hendley in 3 2-3 innings. Smoky Burgess and Dick Stuart hit homers and Bill Virdon had two triples and McBean one as the Pirates made eight of their 11 hits good for extra bases.

Johnny Romano's two-run homer in the last of the ninth won for Cleveland after the A's took a 9-8 lead in the top of the frame. Willie Kirkland and Chuck Essegian also homered during a game in which eight pitchers issued a total of 16 walks and allowed 17 hits.

Clete Boyer's tie-breaking double capped a three-run ninth-inning outburst that brought the Yankees their win over the Red Sox. Bill Skowron, Frank Malzone and Carl Yastrzemski homered during the three-hour and 16-minute slugging bee.

Vic Power drove in three runs with three singles and pitcher Camilo Pascual contributed two run-scoring singles for the Twins, who broke a 2-2 tie with two runs in the fourth inning. Jim Bunning, clipped for six runs in five innings, suffered his second loss.

Leon Wagner and Lee Thomas hit homers for the Angels as Ken McBride picked up his second win with the ninth-inning relief aid of Jack Spring and Ryne Duren.

Rookie Dave Stenhouse pitched a four-hitter for the Senators. Early Wynn, seeking the 295th win of his big league career, suffered his second defeat of the season.

Yankees Might Tumble In American League Scramble

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American League managers who almost perennially limp home in the wake of the New York Yankees are duty bound in the spring to make a show of optimism.

"You have to rate the Yankees at the top, of course," they admit. "But we've got a great chance and so do three or four other clubs."

Ordinarily this message of faith for the fans dissolves under a private confession that they are all playing for second place.

All of this is the result of a strange alchemy produced by those gray Yankee pinstripes and a dynasty which has made a fetish of victory. It is a matter of record that humpty-dumpties from nowhere have made it big for the Yanks once they pulled on the Bronx flannels.

Yet there are those who thought that they detected a certain difference this spring.

"I honestly believe," said manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox on a bright day in Fort Lauderdale, "that the rest of the league is catching up to the Yankees. Sure, I have to say I think we have a chance. But the fact of the matter is that I honestly believe we do. And you can't count out teams like Cleveland, Baltimore and Detroit."

Now one day doesn't make a season and the standings of mid-May don't necessarily reflect anything except that the field should be about ready to shake down to some sort of prophetic order. But you have to think of something else that Lopez allowed.

"Nobody in this league can afford to look past any other club at any time. As sure as you do, you'll get knocked flat on your back."

Then you see where the lowly Boston Red Sox up and completely flatten the Yankees, 14-4. This is something which, in the old order of thinking, you could expect to happen to the Red Sox. But not to the Yankees.

Except that then you recall another sunny day in Miami when Billy Hitchcock, the calm man who manages the Baltimore Orioles, was contemplating his new problems and considering the plight of the nine clubs consigned already by the experts to following the Yankees home once again.

"That's one of the strange things about baseball," said Hitchcock. "Like with the Reds last year. All of a sudden there they came out of nowhere. Now personally I don't think we, or several other clubs, have to come from that far away. We have to think we're in the pennant race and so are four or five other clubs."

So, if you looked at the American League standings after the Red Sox beat the Yankees in a common cante', you saw that the top eight teams were separated by only three and one-half games. And that, at least for the moment, it wasn't the Yankees on top.

You saw, too, that in ninth place were the Kansas City A's. And that they were only five games off the pace.

Which brought to mind the afternoon in West Palm Beach when Hank Bauer admitted that his club was building for three years hence. But, more important, his determined statement that "we'll win a few good games and throw a surprise into somebody here and there."

All of which means that the long-time defeatist attitude may be vanishing. And that the good Senor Lopez said a volume when he asserted the rest of the league was catching up. If, that is, the standings in mid-May are indicative of anything at all.

SKELLYTOWN QUEEN—Karen Slavens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slavens, Skellytown, was named sports queen at an all-sports banquet held recently in the school cafeteria in Skellytown.

Slavens Is Queen Of Sports Fete

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — Karen Slavens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slavens, was named Sports Queen of the Skellytown Elementary school, at an All Sports banquet held recently in the school cafeteria.

Boys and girls participating in any school sport were honored at the banquet. School principal, E. A. McCreary was master of ceremonies for the event and introduced the guests, including parents of the students.

Miss Slavens was crowned by Vernon Marlar. Her attendants and their escorts were Linda Allan, escorted by Johnnie Porter; Wanda Moore, escorted by Randy Elliott; Rita Spence, escorted by Rickey Paul; Ruth Geisler, escorted by Lonnie Harris; and Patricia Beighle, escorted by Troyce Phillips.

Vic Bates, White Deer grade school coach, who coached the Skellytown football team because of the injury sustained by Skellytown coach Keifer Butler, was presented a plaque with his name inscribed on it.

Bill Evans and John Banks, faculty members, were each presented a Skellytown letter jacket for their help in sports activities.

Mrs. P. E. Stephenson, who substituted as girl's baseball and volleyball coach, was given a charm bracelet.

Following the presentation of the Queen's Court, the group watched a film of the championship Class A state basketball game in Austin, which was won by the White Deer Bucks.

Daniels Pitches No-Hitter For Ideal Food Store Nine

Larry Daniels fired a no-hitter Wednesday night as Ideal Food Store downed Kist 10-1 in a rain-shortened contest in Pony league play.

Kist picked up their lone run in the bottom half of the fifth on an error.

Ideal scored three runs in the first, three more in the third and four more in the fourth to sew it up.

James Matney was the losing pitcher.

AT QUARTER-BACK

DALLAS (UPI)—Slingin' Sammy Baugh, coach of the South team for this Saturday night's 14th annual prep All-America football classic in the Cotton Bowl, may use an Oklahoma schoolboy product in his No. 1 quarterback position.

Curt Cook of Tulsa turned in a good performance Wednesday for Baugh in a contact drill. Prime receivers of Cook's passes were Robert McClain of Beaumont and Jay Hurt of Pawhuska, Okla.

The North team, coached by Doak Walker and Rusty Russell, also scrimmaged. Walker said the squad was adapting well to the double wing formation.

BACK AGAIN

BOSTON (UPI) — Home run king Roger Maris was expected back in action today after suffering a muscle pull that sidelined him in the midst of Wednesday night's 9-8 New York Yankee win over Boston.

The powerful New York outfielder suffered the injury when he leaped high against the bullpen fence at Fenway Park in a vain atempt to grab Carl Yastrzemski's home run. Though the injury occurred in the first inning, Maris continued in the game until the fifth, getting two singles and one run batted in.

Affectionately Is Tops In Two-Year Old Class

By United Press International

Affectionately, a 2-year-old daughter of Swaps, solidified her position as tops in her class Wednesday while Ahoy showed she'll bear some watching among the 2-year-old colts.

Both Affectionately and Ahoy extended their unbeaten streaks in romping to victory.

Affectionately scored a two-length triumph over Fashion Verdict in the 64th running of the $22,850 Fashion Stakes at Aqueduct. Ahoy, a son of Sailor, flew to a nine-length success in the $17,825 Cherry Hill Stakes at Garden State Park.

Affectionately's victory was her fourth straight while Ahoy rang up his second triumph.

Braulio Haeza once again was aboard the Bay Filly, clocked in :58 4-5 for five furlongs. Affectionately paid $2.70 for $2.

Ahoy, owned by the Jacyln Stable, paid $2.80 and was timed in :58 1-5 for five furlongs under jockey Herbie Hinojosa. War Pilot was second and Future Design third.

Bill Skuse rode Pistol W. to a $6.60 payoff in the Melrose purse at Suffolk Downs. Clear Vista finished second and Boy Brigand was third in the six furlong event.

Tenserino, with Alex Maese up, won the Hollywood Park Feature and returned $4.00. Finishing a half length back was never more.

At Tanforan, Kem-Lo's first overtook the favored overdrive II in the stretch to score a half length success in the Pebble Beach purse. The winner paid $8.80.

Avelino Gomez scored a consecutive triple at Washington Park, booting home W-Wa Cy ($5.00), Don't Be Little ($6.20) and Sing Along ($7.60) in the sixth, seventh and eighth races. Sing Along's victory came in the $15,000 added Tri-State Stakes, a six fur-long test for 3-year-olds.

Rock Age ($5.40) scored in the Churchill Downs feature polarity ($7.80) won at Pimlico and Sea Legend ($5.40) captured the Detroit main event.

Wright Leading Golfing Field

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (UPI) — Favored Mickey Wright, proclaiming the greens "in wonderful condition," leads a field of 28 professional women golfers into the opening round of the $7,500 Civitan Open today.

Miss Wrght, who shot a 75 in Tuesday's program, then passed up Wednesday's practice rounds, was expected to draw her most serious challenges from Mary Lena Faulk, Patty Berg, Ruth Jessen and Marlene Hagge.

The 72-hole tournament, being played on the 6,410-yard Muskogee Country Club course winds up Sunday.

Although Mss Wright, whose powerful tee shots are already legend, is the odds on favorite, the biggest noise here so far came from Marlene Hagge. The little Florida golfer shattered the course record in Tuesday's pro-am with a two-under-par 68 using the full men's tees.

Giants, Indians, Twins Are Improved Big League Teams

NEW YORK (UPI) — Early shakedown sessions indicate the San Francisco Giants, Cleveland Indians and Minnesota Twins are baseball's most improved teams in '62.

They achieved their ends by different means but the results so far have been a delight to the home town customers who pay the freight.

The Giants perked up by adding "insurance" veterans, the Indians hired a new manager and went on a personel - shuffling spree and the Twins hit the jackpot with rookies.

Each system proved to be a happy formula and, at least for the Giants, improvement could pay off in a pennant.

Except for the New York Yankees and Washington Senators, the entire American League looks stronger than it did a year ago. In the National, the Phillies are better but the Milwaukee Braves, and Chicago Cubs, are worse. The NL picture is tossed out of kilter even further by those freshmen question-marks — the New York Mets and Houston Colts.

The Giants have matured in Alvin Dark's second year as manager and the trade that brought Harvey Kuenn from Cleveland a year ago now is paying big dividends. To that, add the deals that that brought in pitchers Billy Pierce and Don Larsen from the American League. Pierce, especially, has been a bargain. He won his first five without a defeat.

The power has been there right along with Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Filipe Alou leading the way. The Giants routed 27 straight opposing starting pitchers with their early bombing and it's a cinch there's more of the same to come.

If this is to be another year "The Yankees lose the pennant," the Indians figure they might as well be the World Series stand-in.

Two additions — pitcher Dick Donovan and second baseman Jerry Kindall—have been particularly helpful. Donovan won his first six and Kindall has been a sensation at bat and afield. Willie Tasby was added from Washington to patrol center field and wanderer Chuck Essegian, who finished up with the Indians last year, has been installed as a regular in left.

General Manager Gabe Paul made a daring move in shipping fancy-fielding first baseman Vic Power to the Twins for pitcher Pedro Ramos, now down with a sore elbow, but the club lost nothing in the transition. New Manager Mel McGaha put outfielder Tito Francona on first and all is well.

The Twins patched up their leaky infield with Power, plus rookie finds in ex-Purdue footballer Bernie Allen for second base and Rich Rollins for third. They're also hitting well.

Both the Indians and Twins had a long way to go from last year. Cleveland finished fifth, 30½ contests back of the Yankees, and the Twins were seventh, 38 games back.

Injuries have kept the Detroit Tigers from putting up their expected big challenge but that could come later. The White Sox, Angels and Red Sox look considerably stronger unless that's an optical illusion.

The Braves and Cubs are the National League's unexpected flops. Other contenders, led by Cincinnati, Los Angeles, and St. Louis haven't earned an "improbed" label yet—and maybe they won't if those Giants keep rolling.

By stealing two bases, Dodger shortstop Maury Willis ran his string of thefts to 17 straight and 18 for the season. Center fielder Willie Davis also stole a pair and Wally Moon had one theft to his credit.

Rookie pitcher Joe Moeller, although he tired in the ninth inning and needed the help of Ed Roebuck, recorded his second victory of the season as a starter despite being touched for 11 hits.

Houston starter Dick Farrell dug his own grave in hte first inning when he walked Wills, and Jim Gilliam who were sacrificed along by Willie Davis, with Wills scoring on a wild pitch and Gillam on a ground out.

In the third after lacing a single, Wills stole second, went to third on a passed ball, and came home on Moon's single. Wille Davis after walking in the fifth, stole both second and third and scored on an error.

The Colts capitalized on doubles by Roman Mejias in the third and catcher Hal Smith in the fourth to push over their two runs.

Steers Face Arizona In Playoffs

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)— Two old foes in NCAA playoffs, the University of Arizona and the University of Texas, open another best-of-three series tonight at Hi Corbett Field.

The winner advances to the college world series in Omaha, Neb.

The two schools have met in District Six tournament play six times previously with the Longhorns winning all but once. The exception was in 1958. In their last meeting a year ago Texas won two straight.

The Wildcats, with a 40-6-2 mark this year, were the winningest college team in the nation and rated Number One by Collegiate Baseball, a national publication. Texas was ranked 11th in the latest poll, with a 17-5 mark and was Southwest Conference champions.

Arizona coach Frank Sancet planned to throw two undefeated lefthanders against the visitors in the games tonight and Friday.

Sophomore Dan Schneider (13-0), who has been followed closely all year by several major league scouts, will be on the mound in the first game. Schneider pitched 13 straight complete games before being knocked out of the box by Los Angeles State in his last outing.

Junior Warren Hedding (7-0) is slated to work Friday for the Wildcats.

Texas coach Bibb Falk planned to open with senior Tom Belcher (10-1). He defeated the Wildcats in one of the playoff games last year and has a 23-3 college record.

Palmer's Wife Is Always In Wings

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Winifred Walzer Palmer's ears do not "burn" readily.

In fact, she gets a great kick out of hearing remarks, both complimentary and otherwise, made about husband Arnie Palmer by golf galleries unaware of her identity.

Anonymity is her preferred role in life—life on the world's golf links, at least.

Palmer, who tacked another star on his flag of fame by winning the Colonial National Invitation title in a playoff last Monday, says he has trfed to get "Winnie" to walk with him down the fairways.

"But, she won't do it," he says.

Winnie says she follows Arnie "every hole he plays in the tournaments I attend, but I prefer to stay behind the ropes in the galleries."

"I wouldn't care for the prominence and recognition that would come from me tagging along at his heels out in front of everybody," she said.

"I can follow him in the galleries without anyone recognizing me. And, while I might twist a little trying to pull the ball into the cup, I consciously try to conceal my emotions.

"And, I get a kick out of hearing people talk about Arnie. . .and the others. . .without them knowing who I am."

While some of the players' wives get mad at uncomplimentary remarks they overheard about their husbands, Mrs. Palmer said she does not.

"Only the other day here, I heard two women standing behind me on the fairway. One was a Palmer fan and thought Arnie was ' honey,' while the other said she 'just couldn't stand that Palmer. . .he looks mean.' ".

"I just smiled, and choked back a chuckle," Mrs. Palmer said. "But, that's typical. A lot of people in the gallery, too, are sure they could have played that last shot better than 'Ol Arn' when he hits one sodr."

Mrs. Palmer said she never dreamed when she married Palmer in December, 1954, shortly after he had won the national amateur and turned pro, "that our life would be like it has been."

Although she stays home in their new house at Latrobe, Pa., with daughters Peggy and Amy much of the time, she does join Arnie on tour at times.

"I like our life the way it is," she says. "I like traveling. I enjoyed our trip to England because I like golf and they are so golf-conscious."

Despite the Palmers' rise in fame and fortune, they have not succumbed to the popular fashion of an unlisted phone.

"It's rather trying at times," Winnie admits.

Four Rated Favorites In Golf Tourney

HOUSTON (UPI)— Sandra Palmer of Fort Worth and three other women who shared medalist honors with her teed off today as favorites in the quarterfinals of the 29th annual Texas Women's Public Links Golf Tournament.

The 21-year-old Miss Palmer met Mrs. Paul Nash, the pride of Galveston, in the featured match.

Other co-medalists are Jerry Poe, Bay City; Mrs. Herman Myers, Houston, and Mrs. J. C. Newberry, Gonzales.

Quarterfinal pairings, in addition to the Palmer-Nash twosome, matched Miss Poe against Ruth Benton, Dallas; Mrs. Myers against Mrs. Art Schacht, Alvin, and Mrs. Newberry against Mrs. Julian Carr, Conroe.

Mrs. Nash won the most decisive match in championship flight when she beat Mrs. Joe D. Chiara of Houston, 8-6. Miss Palmer defeated Mrs. Archie Jackson of Houston, 3 and 2.

Other results Wednesday found Miss Poe beating Mrs. John Mats, Alvin, 2-1; Mrs. Myers defeating Mrs. Ralph Watkins, Houston, 1-up; Mrs. Newberry edging Mrs. F. W. Estill, Freeport, 2-1; Miss Benton defeating Mrs. Leo Beckley, Corpus Chrsti, 2-up; Mrs. Schacht beating Mrs. L. W. Noblett, Houston, 32, and Mrs. Carr downing Mrs. H. F. Massey, Dallas, 4-3.

PACKERS SIGN SLADE

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Packers of the National Basketball Association Wednesday signed Jeff Slade of Kenyon College. The 6-6 Slade was the club's No. 3 draft choice and averaged 24 points a game in three varsity seasons.

Favorites Scarce In Preakness Classic

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Handicappers are still struggling to come up with the favorite for Saturday's $150,000 added Preakness Stakes, which is expected to draw 11 starters when entries are accepted today.

Should it be Decidedly, the Kentucky Derby winner from California; Ridan, third in the Kentucky Derby, or Jaipur, a newcomer to the classics who boasts an impressive record of six wins in nine races with three seconds? Each was listed at 3 to 1 in the early betting line.

Also expected to be named for the mile and three-sixteenth race — one-sixteenth of a mile shorter than the Kentucky Derby — were: Roman Line, Greek Money, Sunrise Country, Crimson Satan, Vimy Ridge, Green Hornet, Prego and Flying Johnnie.

Bill Hartack, once again rides Decidedly, the handsome gray son of Determine he rode to a record win two weeks ago at Churchill Downs, completing the mile and one-quarter in 2:00 2-5. The time wiped Whirlaway's record of 2:01 25 off the books after 21 years.

A record run in the first of the triple crown classics usually would make the Derby winner the favorite automatically but Decidedly has less distance this time and Ridan, unbeaten as a 2-yearold, was on his good behavior in an impressive final workout for the Preakness Wednesday.

In the Derby, Ridan fought jockey Manny Ycaza all the way, particularly on the turn into the homestretch.

Jaipur, owned by George D. Widener, has a host of admirers in the east, where he stayed when the Kentucky Derby was run, winning the Gotham and Withers stakes in his only two starts. Of the three, Jaipur most likely will wind up favorite.

Texas House Is Studying Fixes

WACO (UPI)— The Texas House of Representatives today began a hearing into reports that some Southwest Conference basketball referees controlled the point-spread in games to win bets with bookies.

The results of today's session will determine whether a public hearing on the matter will be held Friday, Rep. Charles Ballman of Borger, chairman of the investigating group, said.

At least 12 witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear. Ballman said the committee will not confine itself to the basketball scandal, but will also check on gambling in a wide area of central and north Texas.

Sheriff Herny Mayfield of Dawson County said he served subpoenas on two Lamesa men ordering them to appear before the committee today. Mayfield identified them as Jack Meador and Dan Singleton.

Ballman said witnesses subpoenaed to testify included members of the Department of Public Safety, which has been investigating the game-fixing reports for some time.

Detroit Might Get Title Bout Between Floyd, Sonny

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit's chances of landing the multi-million-dollar Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston world heavyweight title bout shot up today—but hinged on settling tricky schedule and financial problems at Tiger Stadium.

Local promoters and real estate men Elisha Gray and Leon Saddler, encouraged by Patterson's corner, have applied to Tiger Stadium for possible fight dates.

They will meet Friday with Harry M. Sisson, executive vice president of the Detroit Baseball Co., in an effort to work out arrangements.

Gray's brother, James, said Wednesday night the local promoters received a call from Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, who said the only thing holding up settlement of Detroit as the site "is the working out of arrangements with the Tigers."

James Gray said D'Amato told them the Motor City had "the inside track" in the negotiations over Chicago, Seattle, and Las Vegas—other cities bidding for the lucrative match.

Elisha Gray, with a slightly different version, said he expected another call from D'Amato Saturday. "He told me nothing definite has been established but we're still very much in the running. I'll have more to say Saturday," Gray said.

Gray and Saddler last week offered $500,000 to Patterson and $250,000 to Liston to hold the fight here.

They asked Sisson for three tentative dates—Sept. 13-14-15, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Problems arise, however, because the Detroit Lions have a National Football League game with Pittsburgh on Sunday, Sept. 16, ruling out that date as well as Sept. 15.

Title fights are normally arranged on a three-day basis as a guarantee against bad weather.

Patterson would have to approve a two - day arangement, since the Saturday is ruled out, leaving Sept. 13 and 14.

If these two dates are not acceptable to Patterson, there was a possibility the fight could be switched to the following week. The Tigers are out of town from Sept. 17-21, Monday through Friday.

Its reliability is probably its greatest single asset

When you build a quality truck, the inclination is to run around asking users what they think of it. We do quite a bit of this.

It's a funny thing. You'd think people would talk mostly about the mechanical features of the vehicle—the good ride, its power, the double-wall construction, cab comfort, or tough tailgate.

These things get comment, of course, but they're consistently outnumbered by expressions of satisfaction with the dependability of a Chevrolet truck. Its greatest single asset seems to be the fact that it does its job well day after day without a lot of fuss or attention—and that's what impresses people the most.

Quality is the key to reliability. The next time you have to buy a truck, call your Chevrolet dealer and make your money go farther.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandmants, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to set its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

It's Just A Coincidence, Sure It Is, Lyndon!

Why, said Mr. Kennedy, we wouldn't think of having anybody but Lyndon aboard next trip. He's a real rod & staff-to the Chief, and if he wants to sign on for another voyage — as first mate, of course — we'd love to have him.

So said the Chief.

It was purest coincidence that Lyndon's protege, John Connally, had just won the top spot in the Texas gubernatorial primary, pulling well ahead of a labor-liberal, a wavering middler and a pack of also - rans of some-what indistinct lineage. (Except in the case of General Walker who was nothing if not distinct!)

We must, of course, accept this as coincidence because the Chief says it is.

The problem now confronting conservative Democrats and anti-Johnsonites is whether it is better to vote for Yarborough in the second primary, next month; and thus pit a rousing all - out liberal against Republican Jack Cox in November. This is a calculated risk based on the hope that many Democrats either will vote for Cox or not vote at all, as happened in the election of Republican John Tower to the Senate.

On the other hand, they say, putting Connally against Cox would result in putting a conservative against a "non - liberal," if you get what the means.

The Republicans might pick up party strength and vitality if Yarborough is nominated and elected, thus driving some conservative Democrats formally into the Republican establishment. These are entertaining possibilities but there's not much profit to be gained from sitting around thinking about them. The point is, Lyndon has been reprieved and once more Texas has come to the aid of its party.

Those S.O.B.'s

Recently Jack Kennedy said that steelmen are — all steelmen.

Originally the President of the United States was quoted as having said, "My father told me all business - men were. . .but I didn't believe him until now." "Now" was during the brief period when steel price increases were announced.

The President says that he was somewhat misquoted. He did not say that about all businessmen, only about steel - makers. However, he added, it is his understanding that he and Steel now appear to be friends and why bring it up, even if it's true!

Mr. Truman's outburst of candid criticism occasioned a thoughtful piece in Mercury magazine in which the author pointed out there are various forms of the animal in question. The "revolving" one, he concluded, is the most consistent because he looks the same from all angles.

It also brought about a flood of indignant comments on the kind of language used by a Chief Executive, whom we have come to regard as a man - god, incapable of such human frailties as Anglo-Saxon words and earthy sentiments. Perhaps the salubrious effect of Mr. Kennedy's comment is to rekindle the knowledge that a man elected to high public office does not enter into a remote and better world from ours. He can get mad, and make mistakes — big ones—even as the rest of us.

Should Other People's Mistakes Be Ours?

One of the ways in which a newspaper serves a community—willingly or not — is that it is so convenient to blame it for every misfortune.

The simplest way out for a public official who says something he wishes he hadn't is to claim he's been "misquoted." Nobody has a better understanding—or is more sympathetic—of this human frailty than the newspaper reporter, but he knows, as does most of the public, that what the man really is complaining about is not that he's been misquoted but that he's been quoted.

Then there are those who find themselves in trouble with the police authorities. When the morning after arrives, they are filled with remorse. Next they begin to look for somebody or something to blame other than themselves. They don't have to look long — only until the afternoon paper arrives. Suddenly, all their sins become the fault of the newspaper, and some of them call in to say so.

The conversation, via the telephone, goes something like this:

Very Irate Voice: "That story you ran about me was all wrong!"

Somebody in the News Department: "Let's go over the story and see. Are the name and address correct?"

"You were arrested last night, weren't you? And you were charged as reported weren't you?"

"Yes, but you said I was arrested at 43rd and Cuyler. It wasn't there at all. It was at 44th and Cuyler. Can't you reporters get anything right?"

Well, some things, obviously, but, admittedly, not always everything, and even the insignificant mistakes we do not brush aside as of no importance. Not because they mislead readers about what actually happened. They don't. But any inaccuracy, however inconsequential, is a warning signal that somebody is getting careless.

Then there are those who anticipate tragedy, newspaper-caused, and phone in to try to head it off. It's alarming—if true—how many people have elderly relatives with heart conditions, "and if she sees this in the paper about me, well, I don't know what might happen."

Actually, it isn't grandma they're worried about (She already knows it). It's themselves.

But it doesn't work. Once again, however, somebody has found the newspaper a convenient whipping boy: It caused the trouble by printing the news.

There are those who complain that the "inference" is wrong. Yes, they admit, the facts are correct, but it's what people may make of those facts that's wrong. Suggested way of correcting this "fault" is to leave out some of the facts.

Also there's the story that's altogether true but "inflammatory." This kind of story is supposed to cause some people to get mad, their anger directed against whoever or whatever is in the news. Suggested way of eliminating the "inflammatory" part of the story is to toss out the whole thing.

Believe it or not, it's easier to print all the news than part of it. Imagine what it would be like if those responsible for a newspaper had to decide every day which requests for censorship were to be honored, which news to be printed, which ignored.

Subscribers expect a newspaper to print all the news. They are being cheated if their expectations are not fulfilled.

Pull Up A Chair

Hey, young folks: Acne, one of the most common of all skin diseases, is associated with overactivity of the oil glands of the face, chest and back. The hair canals into which the glands open become plugged and the oily mass stagnates in them. Acne is not a serious disease, and given time and proper treatment, it will clear up. . .If Harvard is conferring an honorary degree on you in June, you can purchase the appropriate doctorate gown for as little as $55 or invest as much as $150 in the garment. . .In announcing a new motel in western Pennsylvania, its owner advertised thus: "I wish to state that I have sacrificed nothing in order that you may enjoy yourself in pleasant, up-to-date, refined surroundings."

New on the market for weight-watchers is a whipped cream which contains only 14 calories per serving. . .Automation has taken a heavy toll in New York city where 40,000 elevator operators have already been replaced by automatic elevators.

Today's favorite gag: The phone rang as the doctor's family was dining, and Dr. Brown answered. Turning to his wife, he exclaimed, "Quick, my satchel!' A man in a dying voice says he can't live without me." "Wait a minute," said the wife as she grabbed the receiver and did a little questioning. "That call is for Edith.". . . Purely psychological: A wave of suicides among women in Scotland during the 16th century was abated by a royal decree that the bodies of such suicides should thenceforth be exposed nude in the village market-place.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. To those invited to be listed in "Who's Who," the publication sends a questionnaire to be filled in with biographical details. One item lists "War Record," and one man frankly answered the query thus: "None. I have always been a coward.". . .2. "Astronaut" is a modern term applied to those who traverse outer space but back in 1784 Horace Walpole wrote to Sir Horace Mann about the early balloon ascensions as follows: "An Italian, Signor Lunardi, is the first argonaut that has mounted into the clouds in this country (England)." That's rather close to "astronaut," isn't it? . . .3. A government bulletin on the care of house plants puts it delicately this way: "Always keep in mind that plants, like human beings, need an occasional bath." . . .4. Today's fierce competition in the automotive industry calls to mind the candor of Henry Ford when he was rolling up a fortune with his model T. Mr. Ford was honest enough to admit, for publication, that the Fords' upholstery was not so costly as the upholstery in more expensive cars. It wasn't so comfortable, either, but Henry didn't go into that.

Country editor speaking: "Press coverage of Mrs. Kennedy has been intensive. Never have so many been told so much about what one woman is wearing."

Adenauer's Blasts on Berlin Talks Triggered By Reports of U.S. - Soviet Understanding on Rusk Plan

WASHINGTON — Chancellor Adenauer's alliance-shaking decision to toss a monkey wrench into the U.S.-Soviet talks on West Berlin was triggered by a warning that Russia was preparing to accept Secretary Rusk's three-point solution to ease the German crisis.

This sudden change of heart by the Soviet was reported to Adenauer last week by an alert German diplomat who discovered it at his post in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, more than 5,000 miles from Bonn.

The German Foreign Service officer, whose name must remain secret, learned that Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev told Brazil's Foreign Minister Francisco San Tiago Dantas that Russia planned to accept Rusk's Berlin proposals.

He reported that the Kremlin's acceptance of the U.S. plan would include Rusk s proposal for setting up a 13-nation international control commission to police the access routes to West Berlin, which Adenauer opposed.

Other provisions of the U.S. plan, that the Soviet indicates it will accept, call for (1) a pact banning the supplying of nuclear weapons to troops of both East and West Germany; and (2) a non - aggression pact between NATO and the Warsaw Pact alliance.

This surprise intelligence on Soviet reaction, which was directly opposite to the findings Secretary Rusk presented to the NATO foreign ministers meeting in Athens, caused the West German leader to seek further clarification from Washington.

Meanwhile, Adenauer's own intelligence officials confirmed his diplomat's report of the Patolichev-Dantas conversations. They also came up with a report that Secretary Rusk had discussed the international control commission plan with Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin during their last meeting in Washington.

When the State Department confirmed these Washington talks, the 86-year-old Chancellor decided to issue his public blast. His reasoning was that the Dobrynin-Rusk talks must be halted until his diplomats determined whether the U.S. and Russia had already reached an understanding on Rusk's three-point plan.

Adenauer frankly told aides that if such an understanding did exist, West Germany would join France in refusing to take part in any further negotiations on West Berlin.

State Department officials deny any such U.S.-Soviet understanding. They point out that the talks have been only of an exploratory nature with no attempt to reach any type of accord.

NOTE: President Kennedy is so disturbed by Adenauer's inquiries that he is considering sending Secretary Rusk to Bonn for a face-to-face meeting with the West German leader. If that doesn't reassure him, the President says he will arrange a meeting with Adenauer.

STRANGE CONFLICT — Information trickling into Washington from Ladakh, the Himalayan area under contention between India and Red China, indicates that each country has from 20,000 to 25,000 troops in the high plateau region but that both sides are cautiously avoiding clashes.

Logistics for the Indian forces have been vastly improved from Srinagar, in Kashmir, across the 11,500-foot Jugila Pass into Leh, Ladakh's capital.

According to U.S. Intelligence estimates, many new Indian military posts have been established in the area of the Karakorum Pass leading from Red China's Sinkiang province in Ladakh, where Peiping's troops are occupying 14,000 square miles claimed by India.

Red Chinese patrols reportedly have encircled Indian posts but pulled back without attacking. The Indians are under orders not to shoot unless the Red Chinese attack. So far, there have been no attacks.

CUTTING TAXES — President Kennedy is delaying until mid-July a final decision on whether to recommend a personal income tax cut this year.

The President told his congressional leaders last week that, "The prospects for tax reduction should not be completely ruled out."

He pointed out that while he plans no recommendation at this time, he will seriously consider sending Congress a request to cut personal income taxes later if the economy should take another dip or unemployment increases.

"We should know by the middle of July which way the economy is heading," the President told the legislators. "I'm not going to make a final decision on this one until then."

The President offered his "thinking" on tax cuting during a White House legislative meeting at which the Administration's tax reform bill was discussed. That tax bill is now before the Senate Finance Committee.

The President told the leaders that Economic Council Chairman Walter Heller is now making a study to determine what effect a tax cut would have on speeding up the business pace.

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

The suggestion is being heard in governmental circles with a strong echo from the left that the federal budget should be divided in two parts. One for so - called capital expenditures and the other for operating expenses.

It is argued that capital expenditures such as public buildings and military installations are an addition to the wealth and productive capacity of the country and should not be considered an expense for the current year.

Those who take this position say that the current income of the government should equal its outgo for operating expenses and that capital improvement might well be made by borrowing.

The trouble with this system is that no provision is made for depreciating such capital assets or writing them off during their period of usefulness. If we add to our indebtedness to erect a hundred new post offices we would have to find some way to charge off depreciation on a thousand alrealy existing post offices. It would be extremely complicated to try to keep books for government as is done for private businesses and in the end it would save nothing nor be more efficient. The trouble with increasing debt to provide for capital expenditures on the ground that they are more or less permanent is the well-established fact that more of them are needed every year. Every year brings its new quota of needed capital expenditures and may just as well be considered a part of the current expense, for the next year will not fail to bring the need for an equivalent or greater sum.

Since capital expenditures must be made in substantially the same amount from year to year, nothing is gained by capitalizing them and amortizing them over a period of years as new expenditure as incurred. But substantially the same result is achieved if the yearly expenditure for such purposes is considered a part of the operating budget of current expense for the year.

To do otherwise is to encourage the continuous expansion of debt. Let us say that current expenses this year are $50 billion and that the capital budget for more or less permanent improvements is $40 billion. We then proceed to tax ourselves to the extent of $50 billion to meet the current budget but add $40 billion to our indebtness. The following year we would be faced with adding $40 or more billion to the debt, an equal or larger sum the next year and every year thereafter.

Our national debt is already gigantic but the adoption of a separate budget for capital expenditures would send it into space like a rocket.

The suggestion of two budgets is unsound and is promoted by those who cannot control their desire to spend. Prosperity was not achieved that way and it cannot be maintained if we disregard all that human experience has shown to be sound and safe fiscal policy.

Test Ban, Disarm Groups Are Putting On Pressure

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — White House and State Department are under pressure from both sides on nuclear testing and disarmament.

Representative of the pressure for disarmament and an end to nuclear testing is the Society of Friends (Quakers) Washington demonstration for peace and world order through the United Nations, scheduled for April 29-30.

After assembling on the Washington monument grounds, "silent vigil" marches on White House and State Department were planned, with night rallies to follow in Calvary Baptist Church to hear speechs from pacifist leaders.

Ten days before, with the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington, a resolution was passed to abolish the State Department's Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. It had just submitted a detailed, three-stage, nine - year disarmament plan to the 17-nation U.N. conference in Geneva.

The DAR argument was that the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency was weakening American security, although this planning organization is specifically charged to safeguard national defenses until guarantees of world peace are established. Another DAR resolution opposed U.S. loans to help finance U.N. peace-keeping operations.

In the week of April 16-20, about 40 per cent of over 3,700 communications from the public received at the White House and State Department related to these subjects.

There were 194 letters on disarmament and 1,252 on the resumption of nuclear tests. A year ago there were only 100 communications a week on these subjects.

The interest has been building since January when a New York-organized Women's Peace Train brought 1,000 pickets to Washington. The mail volume reached a peak early in March when the White House had an accumulation of 18,000 communications on disarmament and nuclear testing. All this mail is eventually turned over to State Department for handling. But for the last several years, ever since Vice President Richard M. Nixon got involved in a hassle on the subject, there has been no breakdown count of "pro" and "con" communications from the public to the government.

It is estimated that from 30 to 40 per cent of all mail which eventually finds its way to the State Department is inspired by organized campaigns. Telegrams, letters and postcards aren't identical, but they have similar themes and arguments which are easily spotted.

Of the 1,446 communications received April 16-20 on disarmament and testing, 520 were identified as the result of organization lobbying drives.

It has been widely assumed that most of the pro-disarmament, protest-ban drive has been Communist-inspired. Senate Internal Security subcommitee and a few individual congressmen have made some specific charges to that effect.

After World War II the Russians tried to put over the idea that they were the No. 1 peace-loving nation. They organized countless international peace conferences in neutral capitals like Stockholm and Vienna. There were long peace petitions with millions of signatures.

Russian Chairman Nikita Khrushchev tried to make "gneral and complete disarmament" — G and CD — a Communist copyright after his U.S. visit in 1959. The Russians are even now attempting to put world censure on the U.S. for resuming atmospheric nuclear tests.

But when the Russians resumed nuclear testing after breaking the moratorium and breaking off disarmament negotiations last year, the bottom dropped out of the Communist peace crusade. And the hole in their barrel will be fully exposed when the Russians again resume testing, as they say they will.

Antiwar meetings and demonstrations in many parts of the United States are therefore being analyzed here as being more spontaneous, made - in - America movements. Pacifism is coming back in style again. There are an estimated 50 organizations working at it. The older, more responsible peace societies are trying to purge Communist elements from their ranks.

To further confuse the picture, antiwar and ban - the - bomb sentiment is growing on American college campuses where, only a short time ago, it was reported there was a great swing to the right, toward more reactionary nationalism.

MONTROSE (Calif.) LEDGER

(The Right to Bear Arms)

Millions of Czechs went to bed free men, and awakened slaves.

This was the story of the fall of Czechoslovakia, and to it is closely tied the restriction of the ownership of firearms. The Czechs had allowed the passage of an arms control and registration law, and through it — men walked to the front door and demanded all the guns listed for the owner of the house — the free people of Czechoslovakia were disarmed and their nation destroyed.

Before your Congress today is H.R. 613, known as the "Federal Pistol Regulation Act," authored by Congressman Victor L. Anfuso, Democrat of New York. Through this bill, if enacted into federal law, every American would be forced to register his pistols with the FBI. It is interesting to the patriot to realize that not only are American federal, state and municipal agencies exempt from the requirements of the law, but also the agencies of the United Nations. The Law would discriminate against Americans, but excuse foreigners within our borders!

Mr. Anfuso, by the way, is rated a flat zero by at least one nation - wide organization that grades individual congressmen for their conservative votes on critical measures.

Remember, the Constitution guarantees you the right to keep and bear arms. The infamous Sullivan Act in New York has not served to control crime—crooks operate outside the law, whereas decent citizens who obey such laws are disarmed. Write to your congressman and to the House Judiciary Committee, and demand that H. R. 613 be killed. Ask, also, why some officials seek to disarm America and her citizens, in the face of the greatest threat we have ever experienced.

Reims, 17 Years Ago

What A Day That Was!

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is based on a talk — "That Golden Day of Peace"—delivered to the first reunion of SHAEF war correspondents at the Overseas Press Club, in a symposium commemorating the 17th anniversary of V-E Day. The writer, now Executive Editor of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, was European News Manager and combat correspondent for the United Press in 1944-45.

By BOYD LEWIS
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — What can we say of the surrender at Reims 17 years later? We can say, perhaps, that it ended a war. But it did not end war.

We can say that it humbled the Germans. But they are not humble any more.

We can say that the Russians sat with us as allies at the surrender table. They sit on the other sides of other tables now.

We can say, perhaps, that this was a horribly mismanaged story and that not all who covered it gained honor or respect.

I prefer to recall it as a golden day, beautiful beyong magic. A day such as few men have ever seen and may never see again.

We had been to the surrender in the early hours. We had seen Jodl scrawl his name on the parchment with a few pitiful words of justification for the Germans.

We had written our stories on portables in the SHAEF map room while waiting for dawn because there were no lights on the Reims airport. Our stories would go back on the C-47 with us to Paris to be filed where the cable setup was big enough to handle the load.

So we wrote on and on. And the hours passed swiftly in the clatter of the Remingtons, Coronas and Underwoods.

And suddenly Honk Allen (Lt. Gen. Frank Allen, SHAEF PRO) was standing in the doorway urging us to get aboard the truck for the airport. It was dark as we left the big polytechnic institute which was SHAEF Forward. But by the time we rolled onto the airport daylight was beginning to spread.

It exploded up out of the massed clouds in the east like a Renaissance painter's vision of The Creation. Great golden rays stabbing upwards through the clouds. . .spreading, glowing ever brighter, melting the clouds in their way.

Up shot the rays, finding patches of blue, dimming the stars still visible on the opposite horizon.

And then your eye fell lower, upon the airfield itself. A layer of ground fog hovered perhaps five or six feet off the field, dense and impenetrable to a thickness of perhaps another five or six feet.

And through the fog layer projected the rounded backs of B-17 and B-24 bombers, silhouetted jet black against the rays of the sunrise far beyond.

Dinosaurs must have looked like that, browsing in the ancient swamps. Black, evil, hunched backs of monsters, mercifully half hidden in ground fog. Monsters who had had their final missions.

And as the fog began to burn away you looked upward again and saw new symphonies of color spreading across the heavens.

My God, what a day for Peace!

Suddenly you were not a technician hammering out his dispatch, sweating out the difficulties of transmission and censorship. No longer an automaton viewing death and danger, heroics and filth, brilliance and stupidity, and coldly setting it all down for the readers at home.

No, suddenly you, in this day like The Creation, were all at once stripped of your protective uniform, as vulnerable as Adam.

These were your feelings, not the feelings of Pvt. Joe Zilch of Hometown, Neb.

And you ached with the awaremess that you held in your pocket the words which told of the ending of the shooting. You had seen it done — the surrender, the signatures on the paper, the humbled Germans, old Ike sitting there in the floodlights thinking so hard you thought the top of his dome would pop off.

The men could go home now. They wouldn't have to crouch in holes and fight like animals through ruined cities, on and on and on. No more thousand-plane raids — with many left behind. No more civilians scuttling down the road with their total wealth in a baby carriage or on a bicycle.

Oh Golden Day of Peace! You knew that this was the end of the bloody foolish non-sense of war. Tears streamed down into the collar of your trench coat as you stared into the dawn of Peace and knew — you KNEW—that this was the end!

And then you climbed into the plane and you took off for Paris with the golden dawn spraying your plane with magic all the way in to Orly.

And you never knew until a long time later that it was not an end but a beginning and the Aurora of that magical dawn over France in 1945 was only a dim beacon compared to the manmade illuminations of the heavens which would follow.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Looking ahead, the possibility of a major advance materializing very near current levels is quite good, Investors Research Co., the West Coast advisory service, says.

Psychology is overwhelmingly on the selling side and in the face of this the maintenance of a fully invested position has tried the patience of investors, it notes: but it is precisely when fear psychology of this nature is overdone that it is time to hold stocks.

At the risk of being repetitious, Reynolds & Co. says that pending a look at the market's performance when the end of this intermediate decline (3 to 6 months) is clearly evident, "we still believe that stocks in general are better held than sold at this point."

Spear & Staff says it would be reluctant to see clients part with any basically strong situations at this juncture. The advisory service says more than likely a big turn for the better should come between 600 in the Dow Jones industrial stock average and present levels.

International Statistical Bureau says this is not the time to liquidate stock holdings. In fact, it adds, those who are under-invested should continue to utilize this period to accumulate desirable securities.

ACQUIRES STOCK

NEW YORK (UPI) — International Basic Economy Corp., (IBEC) a venture of the Rockefeller brothers, has anounced that it has acquired all of the stock of Transoceanic-AOFC Ltd., an international investment and financing firm. Transoceanic will be a wholly-owned subsidiary of IBEC which operates primarily abroad in a wide range of basic industries.

PRODUCTION DROPS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Paperboard mills produced 353,013 tons of paperbord last week compared with 366,982 a week earlier and 327,134 tons in the similar 1961 period, the National Paperboard Association reported.

HISTORY OF AMERICA — First grade students at Stephen F. Austin Elementary School will present a pageant entitled, "I Hear America Singing," Friday afternoon in the school auditorium. The program was written by Mrs. W. R. Altmiller, first grade instructor. The annual program will be presented at 12:30 p.m. for the school students and at 1:30 p.m. for the pre-school children who will enter the first grade of the school next year. The public is invited to attend the 1:30 performance. Shown here are several of the 85 students participating in the history of America program. Front row, left to right, Margaret Hinkle, JoLynne Ellis, Lisa Laycock and Glynell Bartee. Second row, left to right, Bob Altmiller, Steven Richardson, Steve Hopkins and Terry Arnold. Third row, left to right, Barbara Floyd, Terri Baker, Janie Price, Mary Maule, Don Stewart and Grand Price. Other first grade instructors assisting Mrs. Altmiller are Mrs. Don Hickman and Mrs. Theresa Humphreys. (Daily News Photo)

The Lighter Side

On Our Nervous Systems

By DICK WEST
United Press Internat iol n a

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For years, we have been taught to think of our nervous systems as resembling a telephone switchboard.

When we feel, see, hear, taste or smell something, a line is plugged in and a message is carried to the brain.

And if your nervous system is anything like mine, you get an awful lot of wrong numbers.

Now along comes Dr. Jerome Bruner, a Harvard psychology professor, with word that the switchboard concept no longer is valid.

He says recent experiments indicate the nervous system "works like a series of editorial rooms that receive messages from the chief editorial organ up above and exercise these instructions on copy arriving at the lower centers."

This seems to suggest that the nervous system operates something like a newspaper. Knowing what I do about the newspaper business, I think I would rather have mine work like a switchboard.

At any rate, in testimony before a House appropriations subcommittee Bruner reported that scientists in the past 10 years have made some rather startling discoveries in this field.

By placing electrodes on the bodies of animals, they have been able to trace the electrical impulses which the sensory system sends out when it is stimulated.

These show that the brain not only receives messages, but dispatches messages of its own telling the senses which stimuli to accept and which to ignore.

In one experiment, scientists hooked a wire to the auditory nerve of a cat and made a clicking noise in the cat's ear. Then they did the same thing while the cat was watching a mouse.
