TORRENTS FLOOD SOUTHWEST TEXAS

Legislature Inactive on Election Quiz Resolutions

CONGRESSMEN REQUESTED TO FAVOR BONUS

AUSTIN, Sept. 2—Disappointed crowds thronged from business to the galleries today in expectation of new election action in the state legislature.

The crowd waited in the senate until that body had refused to suspend its rules and take up the election investigation and then thronged to the house where a similar resolution for a house investigation had been sent up.

Its presentation in the house was cut off by expiration of the time allowed for resolutions. The house refused to vote to extend the time.

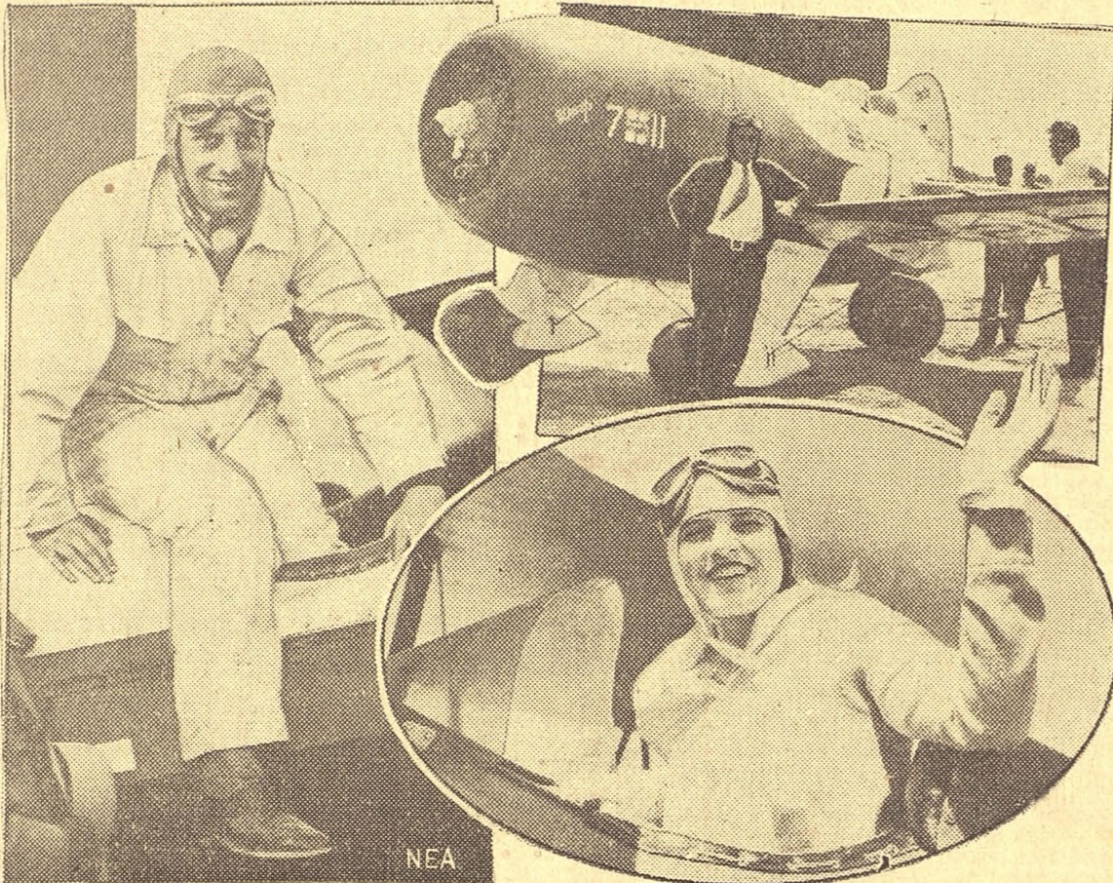

The house resolution now cannot come up until Monday as the house recessed until Saturday morning and no new resolution period will occur until after an adjournment is distinguished from a recess. The senate resolution may be taken up tomorrow morning, that body having adjourned today.

The house resolution differs from the senate resolution in being directed particularly at election practices and activities of state department in the recent election rather than the investigation of illegal voting.

A resolution in the house calling on Texas members of congress to support payment of the soldier bonus was passed after an unsuccessful attempt had been made to tack on it an amendment endorsing a beer tax to meet the bonus demands. Another resolution was passed asking the federal farm board to hold its cotton.

Failure of the house and senate to agree on their own pay for the session prevented proposed adjournment of the house until Monday.

Sky Daredevils Thrill Crowds at Great Air Races

S. P. TRAINS ARE DETOURED OVER T. AND P.

Both the eastbound and westbound Golden State Limited trains, crack transcontinental fliers of the Southern Pacific system, rushed through Cisco over the Texas and Pacific tracks today. This is the second time within two months that the Southern Pacific has detoured its fast through trains over the T. and P. because of washouts in the main line of the S. P. road near Del Rio.

The detoured trains run from Houston to Fort Worth over S. P. tracks and there transfer to the T. and P. tracks. They re-enter the Southern Pacific tracks at Sierra Blanca from which point the Texas and Pacific uses the Southern Pacific road into El Paso.

Early in July, when the first washout occurred this year at Del Rio, the S. P. detoured its transcontinental passenger and express freights over the T. and P. One of them, taking water in the local yards on July 4th held up a line of automobiles en route to Lake Cisco for the celebration there for 14 minutes. The trains were detoured for two days at that time.

A charge of one dollar per mile is made for detouring these trains. Southern Pacific crews operate the trains but the Texas and Pacific sends along an engineer and conductor with each as pilots. The Southern Pacific pays the wages of these and also pays for water and fuel used.

By using the T. and P. tracks only about 500 miles is run over foreign line. Surprising as it may seem there is little difference between the distance from Houston to El Paso via Fort Worth than from Houston to El Paso via the Southern Pacific main line and no time is lost in the detoured journey.

Three star performers on the program of the National Air Races at Cleveland, are pictured here. At the left is Lieutenant Jean Assolant, France's greatest flyer who is a member of the international team that vies in aerial acrobatics. Upper right is Lee Gehlbach and his queer-looking low-winged monoplane, The Bumble Bee, in which he expected to hit better than 300 miles an hour in speed events, including the Bendix race from Los Angeles to Cleveland. Below is Edith Foltz of Portland, Ore., one of the fair flyers enlisted to thrill the crowds with their daring stunts.

HALL IS BOX CAR BLUE HILL, Neb., Sept. 2.—An abandoned box car has been converted into a meeting hall for the local American Legion. The car, donated by the railroad, was dragged by a log owned by the Legionnaires, jacked up on a foundation, landscaped and dedicated as the Legion Hall.

SPEAKER WILL EXPLAIN PLAN OF SOCIALISTS

William Busick of Los Angeles, California, will speak tonight in the city hall here at 8 p. m. on the subject "Unemployment Its Cause and Cure."

Mr. Busick will endeavor to explain the cause of the panic, what brought it on and how it can be stopped. He claims that the panic can be stopped in 30 days time, everybody put back to work at high wages and the farmers receiving high prices for their farm products.

Mr. Busick will explain his plan in detail in his speech this evening. Busick has been traveling and lecturing all over the country. In his speech this evening he will tell of business conditions in the rest of the country, how the people feel about the panic and how it is affecting business in other parts of the nation.

"Unless something is done very soon" Mr. Busick says "we are going to see food riots and bloodshed in the larger cities, the unemployed are becoming desperate. Charity has broken down, people have lost their homes and are afraid of cold and hunger during the approaching winter. This problem must be faced, or we are going to face disaster. The American people must find out what caused this panic and how to stop it or they will face a long period of strife and suffering for ever if we get out of this panic, we will have another one in five years that will be just as bad and last twice as long."

Sees Worst Panic. Mr. Busick declares that many of the world's leading economists have said this panic will last forever. He will show in his lecture what economic foundations these men base their fears on. He will explain why he says we will have a worse panic in five years even if we get out of this one.

REPORT UPON LONE STAR IS DUE SATURDAY

FORT WORTH, Sept. 2.—A report valuating Oklahoma properties of the Lone Star Gas company will be completed tomorrow by Hawley, Freese and Nichols, consulting engineers, Simon W. Freese said today.

The report is believed to be the last link in the chain of circumstances needed by governing bodies in Texas and Oklahoma to decide the fairness of gas rates in cities supplied by the Lone Star company.

Copies of the report will be sent the Oklahoma Corporation commission and the Texas Railroad commission Monday.

Caton, of Kansas City, and a brother, T. H. Rubel, of Mineral Wells, Texas, survive him. Funeral plans had not been completed.

Chaplin --- In Tragedy Role

Charles Chaplin was the tragedian, not the comedian, when he went to court at Los Angeles to oppose the plans of his divorced wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, to enter their two young sons in the movies. His face showing the signs of recent illness, the gray-haired comic said on the stand: "I had to work when I was five. My sons don't have to." Chaplin is shown here in court.

Pennsylvania Starts State Tax for Funds to Relieve Unemployment

By JOSEPH S. WASNEY United Press Staff Correspondent HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 2.—The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker boosted the price of their wares Thursday.

In Pennsylvania the new one per cent general sales tax went into effect to raise about $15,000,000 for unemployment relief.

Simultaneously the state's unemployment relief program to provide for 1,500,000 jobless became operative.

The emergency relief sales tax brought a general increase in the price of tangible commodities. A penny was added here, a dollar there.

Some Complaint Retailers may add the tax to the amount of sales, provided the sale's price and tax are plainly displayed. Merchants whose average maximum sales approximate less than one dollar are voicing the complaint that they will have little chance of passing the tax on to consumers and that the levy will have to come out of their own pockets.

RIVERS REACH RECORD MARKS DAMAGE HEAVY

(By United Press) Torrential rains in southwest Texas today sent the Nueces, Devils river and Rio Grande to the highest marks in history at many points. Damage was estimated at $2,000,000 in the vicinity of Del Rio with the new $1,500,000 Central Power and Light steam plant on Devil's river almost destroyed by a 30-foot wall of water.

Water blocked highways and railroad tracks between Del Rio and El Paso, causing San Antonio-El Paso traffic to be routed by Fort Worth.

Inhabitants of Piedras Negras opposite Eagle Pass evacuated homes as a 40-foot rise sent the Rio Grande to the highest point in history there.

Seven men trapped in the Central Power and Steam plant were rescued. A small boat was used as a ferry after stretching a cable from the plant to the bank. The men had spent the night on the roof of the plant.

Half a dozen Devil's river ranch homes, including two owned by Claude Hudspeth, former congressman, were washed away by the swilling waters.

Sam Taylor, an invalid, his wife and two children, were rescued from their home at the juncture of the cinegas and the Rio Grande. The water washed out 1,200 feet of the approach to the Villa Acuna, Del Rio international bridge, and carried away the government flood gauge.

Heavy Damage. Heavy damage was reported in Villa Acuna, flooded during the night, but Del Rio, two miles from the Rio Grande, was in no danger. Additional flood waters pouring into the Rio Grande from the Prio river and other streams caused ranchers and dairymen to abandon homes and drive their cattle to higher grounds.

At Abilene an additional 1.08 of rain fell in the last 24 hours, making a total of 6.34 inches there in four days. Steady downpours brought the total at Sweetwater to well above 12 inches for the same period.

Floodwaters washed out the steel railroad bridge of the Southern Pacific over Devils river. A Missouri-Pacific bridge over the Nueces river near Uvalde was washed out. Uvalde-San Antonio train service was suspended.

A dozen persons were reported missing in the vicinity of Eagle Pass and Piedras Negras, border towns built on the bank of the Rio Grande.

BROKEN LEG IS SUFFERED BY K. N. GREER

K. N. Greer was reported to be resting fairly well at the Graham sanitarium this morning where he is confined with a broken right leg.

The fracture occurred just above the right knee about 9:30 last night when Mr. Greer, manager of the R. and R. theaters here, tripped and fell in the street in front of J. C. Feinney company. He was unable to say just how the accident happened, although some who witnessed it said that he appeared to have stepped backward off the curb, throwing his leg into a sudden strain. He was wearing hunting boots and it was thought that he caught one foot behind the other and tripped when trying to step aside from a number of children who were playing.

He was taken to the hospital where the fracture was set. Greer had just returned from a dove hunting trip with a friend. He had been successful in bagging a number of doves.

A four-room residence at H Avenue and 11th street, owned by Tom Peeks, of Breckenridge and occupied by Marcus Pierce and his family was practically destroyed by fire shortly before midnight last night. The alarm was received at the city hall at 11:50 p. m.

The flames were believed to have originated from a woodstove. The family had just returned from church.

This is the first fire to occur here in more than a month. Fire Marshal O. Gustafson, said.

DALLAS REPORTS GREAT MARKET VOLUME.

Dallas wholesalers and retailers are jubilant over the rousingly successful annual fall market. Indeed, wholesalers are reporting the best business experienced by them since 1929, due to the upturn in cotton prices and improved business tone in general. As for the local business men, they declared that the optimism and the crowd in Dallas in connection with the market season have proved a tonic stimulant to local business. An additional 1000 buyers were in the Dallas market during the final week, giving a total for the month of August of well over 4000.

Firm after firm, it is said, with the highest credit rating and larger sizes of business done, sent their representatives this year. Members of the wholesale market affirmed that the most favorable factor of business outlook is that, with cotton advancing, the replenishment of retail stock begun in August will undoubtedly call for continuing purchases throughout the fall and the winter.

Speaking of business in the nation, wholesale commodity prices advanced one per cent in July, and a similar gain likely will be shown in the monthly index for August. As for the petroleum industry, The Lamp, mouthpiece of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, expresses satisfaction over the general improvement in the statistical position of the oil industry and in the earnings of the oil company. Building activities the nation over are very encouraging to the experts of the trade, and they are predicting increased activities in the fall months of the year.

KINGFISH HAS A NEW PLATFORM.

Kingfish Long of Louisiana has a new slogan, or plank, for the Kingfish platform. "Down with bathtubs" is the cry of the Kingfish. This is a quotation from a recent speech: "There ought to be a law prohibiting the sale of bathtubs. We have got to take some of this money away from the rich. They spend a lot of it foolishly in washing themselves in silver-lined bathtubs. A poor man has no business with a bathtub."

Kingfish is the ninth wonder of the world.

FARMERS OF WEST GO ON STRIKE.

Farmers of Iowa and Nebraska have launched a new agricultural movement. They have banded together. They are not going to send their farm staples to the market. They are going to do their level best to keep their neighbor farmers from sending farm staples to the market. They say an injury to one is the concern of all. They have adopted the old organized labor slogan, "All for one and one for all." They are picketing the highways and the by-ways as well as the country lanes. This is something new in farm life. As a protective measure it resembles the weapon used by the units of organized labor in manufacturing cities and towns and the mining regions. If the cotton growers of the South and the Southwest were to organize along the American Fed-

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—Whatever were the motives that impelled the appointment of Atlee Pomerene, a Democrat, as chairman of the great Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it appears that the probable political effects of that unusual move have been considerably exaggerated. The truth is that nearly every one has been left unimpressed. As a master political stroke, as an attempt to increase popular confidence in the R. F. C., it has only resulted in a certain amount of eyebrow-raising. There is no more point, if as much, in saying that the president took the R. F. C. out of the political campaign by appointing Pomerene than there is in asserting that the R. F. C. is just as much in the campaign as it ever was.

Attack on Idea, Anyway

WHETHER the Democratic leaders have been planning to make an important issue out of the corporation and its operations is very doubtful. If they do their effort will be directed at the basic idea of the corporation as a method of relieving depression and distress to the exclusion of more direct relief to small business men and other individuals. And any attacks upon the acts of the R. F. C. would be directed at past performances and at Republican officials responsible for them—including Hoover—rather than at Mr. Pomerene or anything likely to happen under his chairmanship.

The summer and fall operations of the R. F. C. became pretty well covered off as a source of political news when the Senate voted to investigate it through a committee headed by Senator Couzens and attended by the House Democrats got through an amendment to the last R. F. C. bill under which the corporation must report its loans to Congress each month. Those two developments killed off the big federal lending agency might be used for political purposes by the administration during the campaign and similarly ruined any chance the Democrats might have had to prove that it was so being used.

Offered to Al First

THERE is nothing in the Pomerene appointment to prevent the Democrats, if they so desire, from hammering at the fact that when the corporation was under Republican auspices it turned over $80,000,000 to the Daves bank in Chicago or to stam at anything else the organization did under Hoover, Daves and Eugene Meyer.

Meanwhile, nobody seems to have discovered just why Hoover picked on Pomerene. It is pretty certain now that he first propositioned Al Smith and Owen D. Young, both of whom refused. There are plenty of other Democrats of more or less comparable stature and ability. Pomerene was once a senator but he has been defeated in his last couple of attempts to get back in.

Although prominent in Ohio, Pomerene's national fame lately has rested on his association with Owen J. Roberts, now supreme court justice, as one of the two special prosecutors in the naval oil reserve cases. Roberts did most of the work and appeared to much the better advantage.

Miller an Unknown

CHARLES C. MILLER, the banker from Utica, N. Y., who becomes president of the R. F. C., is another appointee not widely known to the country. Inasmuch as the R. F. C. is the keystone of the Hoover effort to meet the depression, because its leadership is about as important and powerful as any job below the presidency, it is reasonable to suppose that Hoover, Meyer and Secretary of the Treasury Mills will keep a watchful eye on it. Meanwhile, with Pomerene and Miller in their chairs, its aspect will be less that of "Wall Street" and "the big bankers."

OUT OUR WAY

UPHOLDING THE DIGNITY OF OFFICE

eration of Labor line, they would be able to keep the acreage planters within bound and have a large voice in the fixing of the price of the staples. They are not organized along the lines mentioned and never will be. In this new civilization home consumption of cotton goods as well as home manufacture of cotton goods will be one of the great solutions of the problem, but the day must come when the supply will be kept within the demands. What Texas needs is a hundred textile factories where there is one today and woolen and mohair mills to consume a large share of the annual clip taken from the hides of the sheep and goat. Tanneries and shoemaking factories would help some. Indeed, it would pave the way for the coming of Texas as one of the leading manufacturing states of the sisterhood.

FIFTY MILLION FOR FARM BOARD COTTON.

Col. Jesse Jones of Texas is a director of the reconstruction finance corporation. He is a power in the financial world of the East as well as the Southwest. He has let it be known that the R. F. C. has authorized $50,000,000 for cotton cooperatives and cotton stabilization corporations to enable them to hold their cotton until 1933. Reports had been current that the R. F. C. was considering such an announcement as made by Col. Jones. It is said the federal farm board had planned to dispose of 650,000 of its 1,200,000 bales now controlled by the American Cooperative association and other organizations which it fostered. No monthly limit was set on the sales of cotton as in the case of wheat. Col. Jones in his radio address said a great majority of the banks that have received loans from the corporation were located in small towns and cities and that approximately 18 per cent of all loans have gone to railroads. More than 507,000 individual seed loans to farmers aggregating over $64,000,000 have been made through the agriculture department according to the Texan. Cotton is hovering around the 10-cent mark. It would be wonderful if 10-cent cotton came in for the farmers of the Southland and a new crop could be disposed of above that price. Cotton is the new money crop of the South and the Southwest. It would place $50,000,000 in the pockets of growers in Texas alone. If the strike of English textile workers is long drawn out it will result in many heavy orders coming to American mills and factories. If it is a fight to the death between the British employers and employes it might spell the ruin of the British cotton industry.

MELLON A PROPHET OF PROSPERITY.

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, who was for 11 years secretary of the treasury, is said to be firmly convinced that the upward movement in the commodity and security market is sound and will be sustained. He is concluding governmental business in the city of Washington and will sail for the other side early in September. He would not be quoted publicly or interviewed on the subject, but from sources close to the head of the Mellon family in America, it was said he believed the present movement in stock and commodity prices represents an inevitable swing of the pendulum "correcting a downward trend that could not continue because values were below the cost of production." Thousands said it before the coming of the head of the family of Mellon to this country, but a man who represents a billion dollars and who served as secretary of the American treasury for 11 years and is American ambassador to the greatest empire history has known, is ever given an international audience instead of a local audience. Why shouldn't this pendulum swing into directions of a return to moral prosperity. This has been the record of history and is the cold logic of cycles of prosperity to be followed by cycles of depression.

PAIR OF CROONERS ON THE BRINK.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Vallee were married July 6, 1931. Now their confidential attorney advises the American world that the crooner and his movie bride had experienced matrimonial difficulties and are nearing the parting of matrimonial ways. What's wrong with the movie tie-ups? Are the matrimonial hitchers made mostly for advertising purposes to be followed by divorce court settlement for publicity purposes? Is marriage a failure in the crooner world? Is it a joke in the movie world?

Through the Editor's Spectacles

There goes about a whisper that Carl Levery has long cherished a passion for art. Publicly, however the yearning to be clasped as a connoisseur of these fragile perfections which genius inspired has been left to gaping patrons has been quietly suppressed. The whispers reveal that Carl has felt himself lacking in an essential finesse. To properly impersonate even the role of a dilettante demands a sublimated appreciation for delicate values. In this attitude Carl deserves commendation. He is eminently

Carl quite recently undertook a collection. He began modestly. His purpose was not to feed the appetite for secret hunger of his soul but the laudable one also, of endeavoring to increase his store of knowledge regarding noted masterpieces. His first order was for a reproduction of the famous Venus de Milo, a statue now in the Louvre at Paris. To due time the figure arrived and Carl opened the box eagerly. A look of disgust and disappointment burgeoned upon his face. He strode to the telephone, snapped up the receiver, called a number. The freight office responded. "Look here," cried Carl, "do you know what you've done? I can't accept this statue. Both its arms are broken off."

Some misconception of the city commission's attitude with regard to the plan now under consideration for solution of Cisco's bonded debt problem exists. In the first place, it was carefully explained, the commission has not obligated itself in any shape, form or fashion and in the second place no solution will be undertaken without a vote of the people. If a plan comes out of the present study of the situation such a plan will be laid before the citizens for a vote upon whether or not it will be adopted. No plan will be submitted to the public, however, until it has been scrutinized by a committee of citizens competent in matters of finance and capable of understanding all its ramifications and their effects.

The Eastland county home canning industry is profiting from liquor raids. Sheriff Virge Foster has turned over to Miss Ruth Ramey, home demonstration agent, the glass jars, bottles, bottle-caps and bottle caps confiscated in excursions against bootleggers. Miss Ramey and her home demonstration clubs will use this expatriated equipment in their canning and food preservation program. Even the small kegs and crockery jars are being utilized in pickle making. The commissioners court has furnished 45,000 cans to families unable to purchase them. Half of these cans, filled with home grown food, have been returned to the court to be used in charity work next winter.

E. O. Ellicott, once suffering from an attack of hayfever, waited upon the fountain of his drug store as a vendor entered and called for a cream soda. "What flavor, please?" inquired E. O. in his best Chesterfieldian manner (considering the hayfever). "What do you have?" "Chocolate and vanilla." "You have an affliction, too, don't you?" sympathized the customer. "No, ma'am, just chocolate and vanilla."

MONA TOWNSEND, beautiful young widow, inherits her husband's millions with the provision that she must not rewed. Her marriage, arranged by her husband's lawyer, who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVIII

BUD rose and walked toward the party, his hand extended. "Why, Mona! What are you doing here?" His sojourn in the tropics had improved Bud. His carriage was straighter. The furtive look had disappeared from his eyes.

"We were looking for you—," Mona told him. She flung her arms about her brother and Bud blushed beneath his tan. "I'm a pilot now," he explained. "Up here to handle some business for the mine. Then I've got to streak for Holiday."

"Can you take a couple of passengers?" Lottie cried. "Of course. Did you get my wire?" They sat down at a table and Bud signaled to a waiter. Mona asked, "Where is Holiday? Lottie and I have been at the binocular half the way down."

"Oh, it's up north a bit. Sixteen hours by boat when you can get one. One hour by plane." "And you'll take us with you?" "Sure thing," Bud grinned boyishly. "But we can't take off until tomorrow. I have some business on hand."

The girls were content to remain now that the end of their search was in sight. Taking leave of Bud, who promised to telephone later, Mona and Lottie registered at the hotel, prepared for luncheon and presently joined Dr. Allen on a sight-seeing trip. Bud telephoned in the evening while they were at dinner. They were to be ready at 10 o'clock next morning when he would call for them. He was remaining for the night in San Fernando.

The Miranda sailed at nine and the two girls drove with the doctor to the jetty. As they waited for the tender he said softly to Lottie, "Is the jury's verdict in yet?" "I'm afraid so," she hesitated. "You know how I feel. But there are loads of girls—"

"There are," he said ruefully. "But only one like you!" "Maybe that's plenty," Lottie said cheerfully. "If I can ever do anything for you—" he began. "I'll let you know. That's a promise. Neither of them realized just how soon that promise would be kept."

BUD called next morning while the girls were seated at a little table in their room having a breakfast of coffee, toast and fruit. There would be a delay, Bud said. He could not get back to Port of Spain until four in the afternoon at the earliest. They would not, in any case, leave for Holiday island until the following day.

"Let's go to an Indian temple or the pitch lake," suggested Mona. But Lottie had varying ideas. The pitch lake was too far. The temple did not appeal. "Did you notice the gentleman so closely resembling Clark Gable who sat in the lobby at tea? No? Then you certainly are in love with Barry!"

It appeared that not only had Lottie noticed the young man but he, in turn, had observed Lottie. He had appealed to the manager for an introduction and the introduction had been managed when Lottie left Mona for a trip to the hair dresser's. Mr. Grayson was an American in Port of Spain on business. He had suggested an outing for today. Ringing a bell, Lottie dispatched a note by the boy who responded. The answer came promptly. Mr. Grayson was delighted and would meet them in the lobby at their convenience.

"You go," Mona said. "I'm tired and I want to think." Left alone, the prospect of thinking seemed less intriguing. Mona determined to set out in a cab for San Fernando to find Bud. Although she would not admit it even to herself she was anxious about her brother. What was this "business" he referred to vaguely? Barry and Steve trusted him, certainly, or they would not have sent him on a mission. He had learned to fly. He looked well, surely.

ORDERING a car, she prepared for the drive. She chose a gown of white linen with short sleeves, a white panama hat, square white purse and white shoes. The waiter brought her a basket as she rose from her seat on the terrace after the bellboy had announced the arrival of her car. "Luncheon, Madame," the waiter said. "There may be few hostleries where one would care to rest."

"You will provide for the chauffeur?" That apparently had already been done. There was a smaller package for the chauffeur. "Is the road to San Fernando quite safe?" Mona asked the young man at the wheel of the motor car. He smiled. His face, carved from coffee-colored marble, was handsome. His hands rested on the wheel with competent assurance. "Safe? Ah, perfectly."

The car shot forward through Abercromby street along the railroad tracks and out toward Tuna Puna. It glided smoothly past the end of the town and beyond the reservoir into little clusters of coolie villages. Priests with painted foreheads glanced up casually. Tourists were plentiful. Buses—the usual transportation service between Port of Spain, Tuna Puna and San Fernando—passed filled with Hindoo women wearing pasteltinted, floating veils.

The car passed groups of children. There were brown, round-bodied little girls with wondering eyes and straight hair, clad in the briefest of garments and often wearing silver bracelets on each chubby wrist. The boys wore torn shirts and trousers. The formality of their costumes, the chauffeur explained, was due to the fact that they attended school. Education was not compulsory here and only the boys availed themselves of the privilege.

An hour of this and the car had reached the outlands. Palms and thickly interlaced jungles skirted the highway. Here and there they crossed a tiny bridge beside which rose a stile to be used by foot passengers when the water was high.

AND then they reached San Fernando, reeking with oil. Its oily streets, lined with tiny houses from which dark faces peered, glistened in the sun. "Stop here," ordered Mona, indicating a crossroad. How foolish she had been to make the trip! This was San Fernando, but if Bud had been there, or even were there now, she could hardly discover him.

"Will you have tea, Madame?" the chauffeur asked. They had stopped by the roadside some hours back to eat lunch. "Where?" Mona asked doubtfully. "At the Paradise Hotel. A lovely spot, Madame. A romantic spot." She agreed and they drove around a curve of thick bushes dotted with orchids. The Paradise Hotel rose before them, a green and white fairy cottage on the side of a precipitous rise. White steps rose from the road to the door.

"Delightful!" burst from Mona's lips. She went up the steps, breathing in the scented air. Poinsettia, begonias and honeysuckle crowded each other. Hibiscus dotted the smooth green beyond the railing. The Paradise Hotel tea room apparently was empty but as Mona entered an old man, a native wearing a carefully cut suit of light-colored material, approached her, bowing. He was, doubtless, the maitre d'hotel.

"Ten, Madame?" he queried. He waved her toward a seat on the veranda, but not before Mona had seen within. She was not the only patron. At a far table sat a man, dark and cautious looking, who wore a white linen suit. He was conversing in low tones with a companion. A scattering of bright stones lay before them. As the man saw Mona approach he covered them with a deft motion of his napkin. "Ah!" he pronounced warningly. The other man lifted a dark head, rose and wheeled. "Mona!" he cried, amazed. It was Bud.

BRITISH SEEK MILLIONS FOR WAR DEVICES

By W. G. QUISENBERRY United Press Staff Correspondent. LONDON, Sept. 2. — The United States has been presented a bill for nearly $2,000,000 by British inventors claiming credit for the steel helmet the six-inch trench mortar a famous secret cipher and a dozen other devices which helped win the war.

The bill has remained unpaid because the United States disputed the value or authenticity of the inventions. In August a mixed claims commission appointed by congress held hearings here of the British inventors and adjourned until some future date in Washington. After the Washington hearings are concluded the Commission will tell the U. S. government how much should be awarded.

The inventor of the "tin hat" used by the British forces is John Leopold Brodie a British subject now living in Buffalo. His design was the only one in 100 submitted to the war ministry which was deemed satisfactory. He demands $134,487 from the United States in royalties, representing six pence on each of 1,537,000 steel helmets supplied by Britain to the A. E. F. The six-inch mortar, one of the deadliest trench weapons of the war was invented by Lieut-Colonel Henry Newton Early in the war Britain had only two-inch mortars with a short range that enabled the enemy to locate them easily and train heavy fire on their crews. The larger mortar, with its longer range, was highly praised by the United States forces. Newton is leaving the commission to decide the amount of the award.

The "A. B. C." cipher was that most widely used in the last year of the war. Its originator, J. C. F. Davidson, claimed the American navy found it valuable in co-operating with British naval forces. It had the advantage of simplicity but was baffling because one group of letters might mean several words instead of only one. It dispensed with the necessity of many cipher volumes and tedious deciphering, saving valuable time in critical moments.

American Buys Once Royal Yacht

PARIS, Sept. 1. — Anthony J. Drexel, the American owner of 20 yachts, recently has acquired a new one which he calls "Sayonara" and which in his opinion, surpasses his previous ones.

The "Sayonara" is considered the most handsomely furnished of all pleasure yachts and formerly bore the name of "Vandana." It was constructed before the World War and its first owner was the Archduke Karl of Austria. The Italian government took it over and it passed eventually into the hands of R. G. Fethergill, of London. Two years ago the "Sayonara" was purchased by Drexel, but he has kept it more or less in seclusion pending the completion of its decoration and stocking with fine treasures from all over the world.

Interior decoration schemes lean toward the Chinese, not only in the Oriental rugs, which are among the rarest in personal collections, but also in the cabinets and objects of art.

Hubert Robert and other 18th century masters have furnished the paintings, which adorn the salon walls. The decks are polished to the brilliance of glazed ballroom floors and radio equipment turns music from the best orchestras "on the air."

The yacht has ten guest cabins, and ten bathrooms and has a crew of 45. Deauville is the new headquarters of the "Sayonara."

Will Debate.

Mr. Busick said that he desires to issue a challenge through this newspaper to any democratic or republican officeholder or official in either party to meet him in debate this evening in the city hall, on any of the following subjects:

"That neither of the old parties can bring back prosperity."

"That both democratic and republican parties have failed the people in their hour of need."

"That the capitalist system cannot last five years longer."

"That socialism is beautiful, necessary and practical."

Mr. Busick says that he earnestly hopes that his challenge will be accepted so that the people of Cisco can hear both sides of the question. The meeting will start promptly at 8 p. m., everyone is welcome and admission is free.

PARIS, Sept. 2. — Those new sleeve lengths that Chanel is howling in her winter collection are causing quite a lot of varied comments. They are impressive for the first sight of them makes a phrase something like this pop into your mind. Just a minute till I rinse out this pair of hose and I'll be with you! For you feel sure that the mannequin has just shoved her arm to a couple of inches above the wrist to keep the cuffs from getting wet, and forgot to pull them down again!

But they do have their virtues. Gloves on occasion, come up to meet them and their being different like that gives us all something to talk about.

If there is an old knitting bag about the house with bits of extra wool or yarn in its depth, you'll be all fixed up as to the new tie that should trim your wool sport or town frock. Take just a good handful of the bright threads about six, eight or ten inches long, slip them through a ring or tie them in the center with the same or some contrasting threads, and your tie is ready to fasten at your high Buster Brown collar, or at the depth of the V neckline whichever you may prefer.
