MRS. R. G. SHANKLE TOOK FIRST HONORS AT FAIR

Mrs. R. G. Shankle of this city, was one of the numerous exhibitors in the flower department at the South Plains Fair this week, and was awarded a premium on each of her four exhibits. They were: First on white rose buds, first on tube roses third on pink rose buds, and third on white roses. Slaton exhibits always take premiums however, but Mrs. Shankle has a collection of flowers at her pretty home that cannot be surpassed anywhere.

NOTICE.

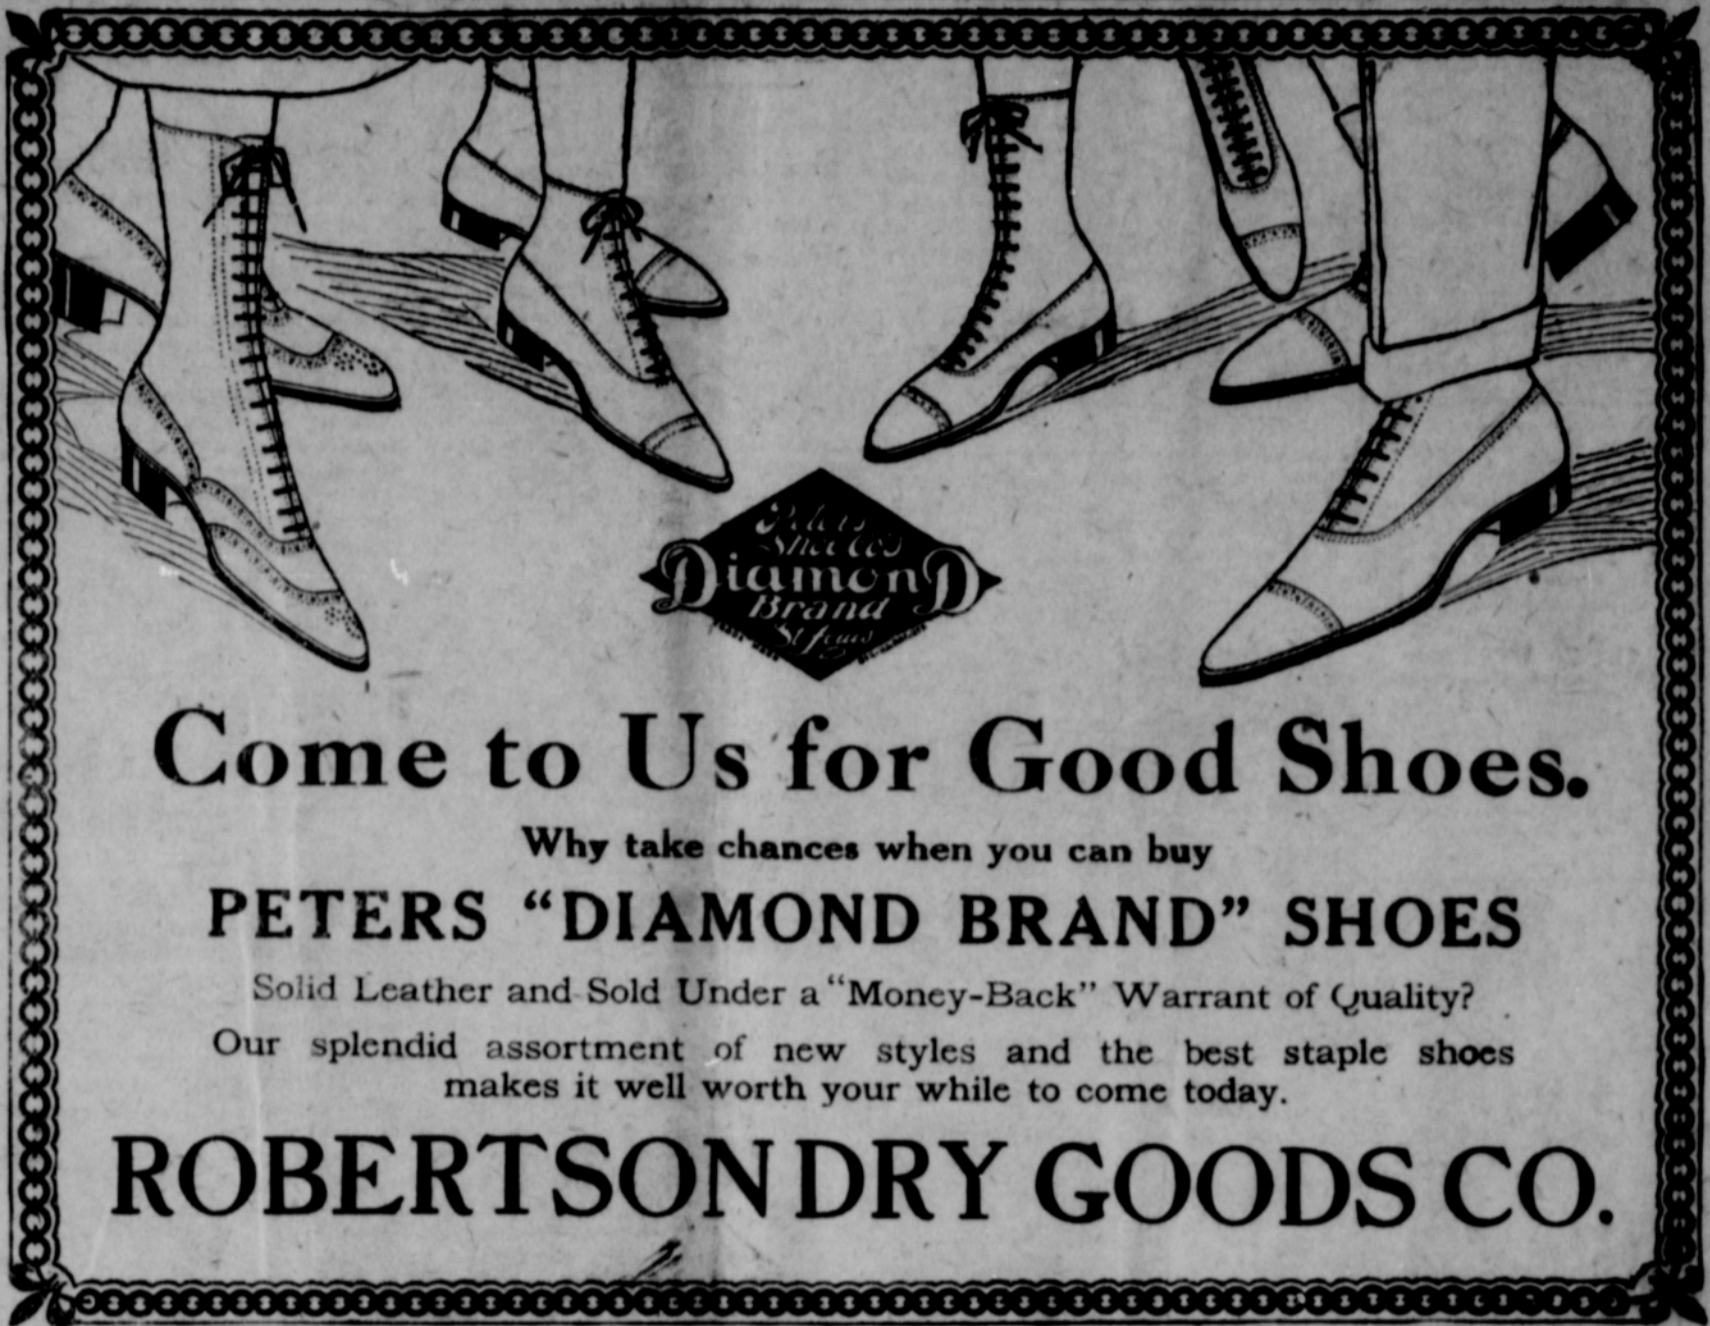

I have sold my grocery business to Messrs. W. A. Dykes and Geo. Berkstresser, who have already assumed active charge of the business. I wish to thank the people of Slaton and surrounding community for the liberal business they have given me and hope that you will continue to give these gentlemen your business, believing that they will treat you right in every respect. All outstanding accounts are due me. Please call at the store and settle same at once. Thanking you in advance for your early attention, I remain, yours very truly,
J. M. SIMMONS.

AVALANCHE SPECIAL EDITION.

In the rush of work last week we overlooked the special Fair edition of the Lubbock Avalanche recently issued. It was the largest paper ever issued in the Plains-Panhandle country, containing 128 pages, and certainly reflects credit upon Editor Dow and the entire force. Any town of any size should be proud of a paper like that issue of the Avalanche.

Of pertinent interest to everyone is the musical program of the Fine Arts Quartette which is to be given here on the evening of Oct. 14th.

SOMEBODY TRIED TO HAND SLATON A "LEMON"

Recently a large party of Lubbock boosters visited Slaton for the purpose of advertising the Panhandle-South Plains Fair, and were given a royal welcome by the citizenship of Slaton—such a welcome as is extended to every stranger within our gates. Their visit was much enjoyed and a few days later a large party of Slaton boosters joined the Lubbock party and visited a number of towns, covering a distance of about 130 miles, and helped boost the Lubbock Fair.

While the Lubbock boosters were in Slaton M. M. Dupre president of the Fair Association and also superintendent of the Lubbock city schools, extended the Slaton city schools an invitation to be present on the opening day of the fair and compete for a prize, which he stated would be open to every school in the county except Lubbock. Last week's Lubbock Avalanche, in mentioning the school competition, stated the following:

"The largest percentage in attendance from any rural school in Lubbock county taking part in the street parade at 1 o'clock Tuesday will receive a prize of $15."

If it was the intention of some one to class Slaton in the rural school column they have another guess coming. Slaton schools rank among the best in this section, affiliated with the State University, handled by one of the ablest school men in Texas, assisted by a large corps of competent teachers in all branches. To further show the progressiveness of our school and the community in general we voted an increase of 50 per cent in the tax rate for school purposes. To the contrary, Lubbock turned the increase of her tax rate down, remaining in the 50-cent class.

We have it from reliable authority that the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce denies authority for any such statement as quoted in the Avalanche. Naturally the blame will rest upon either Mr. Dupre, president of the Fair Association, or upon the Avalanche. In a telephone conversation Mr. Dupre stated to a person in the Slaton office that he did not authorize any such statement. If that is a fact the Avalanche has made a blunder. If they have we hope it was not intentional.

The public schools observed Tuesday as a holiday and attended the Fair 100 per cent strong, but took no part in the parade, as they had been eliminated by the publication of the item above quoted.

Come to Slaton, the gateway to the Great South Plains.

WILSON.

A pall of sadness was cast over the town Friday afternoon when it was heard that Milton Cobb had been hurt while working in the gin. In some way his right hand got caught in the saws and was so badly mangled it had to be amputated just above the wrist. He was immediately carried to Slaton, where he received prompt medical attention and is now doing nicely. It is hoped that he can soon return home.

School began here Monday with the promise of the finest term we have ever had. Every one seemed enthused over the prospects of the coming year. The teachers are: Prof. A. L. Foster, Supt.; Miss Celia May, principal; Mrs. Rayburn Metcalf, fourth and fifth grades; Miss Clara May, primary department.

Truman Walker and grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Evans of Slaton, carried Mrs. L. F. Craft to Tahoka Sunday after visiting at the home of Prof. A. L. Foster.

Homer Scott and R. C. Forrester and families spent last week end with relatives in Brownfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Rayburn Metcalf visited the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Metcalf of Southland Friday night.

About fourteen young people enjoyed the party at Mr. Cobb's home last Wednesday night. Watermelon was served at the close of an entertaining social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Montgomery of Tahoka visited at the home of A. L. Jones Sunday.

Miss Katherine Knoy of Tahoka visited the Misses West Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. W. H. May has been sick but is better at this writing.

Quite a number of our people are attending the South Plains Fair at Lubbock this week.

Miss Nevada Houston of Iredell came in Monday to accept a position with Wilson Mercantile Co.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The Slaton High School boys matched Falls in a close game in football last Friday afternoon. The result was a score of 6 to 12 in Falls' favor.

In a short business session Friday noon, the school elected as its color, black and red. Plans were discussed as to adopting school yells and songs, and as to electing pep and song leaders.

The school observed a holiday Oct. 4, that all who wished to see the Fair at Lubbock might attend.

We are beginning our second month. Real work has begun.

You'll miss a treat if you miss the Fine Arts Mixed Quartette to be here October 14th.

The Autumn Season is Just Around the Corner

It is the season of gathering in the fruits of the year's labor. Has your labor proved to be remunerative and satisfactory? If not, why not? Perhaps you have spent a little more than you should have done, perhaps you were handicapped by the want of sufficient capital to run your business. Perhaps you did not count on the big drop in the prices of your products, and perhaps you cannot see how you can pay out and get by.

Perhaps you could not if you go on in the same old rut. Perhaps it might be a good plan to come in and have a talk with THE BIG FRIENDLY BANK and perhaps they can assist you to get your business in shape to pull through and make some money besides.

We are strong for the Farmer and Producer and will go the limit to help him. We want to talk over your business and to help you make a success, for your success means our success.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED To Visit Our Interesting and Instructive Exhibit at the Texas State Fair, Dallas, Oct. 8th to 23rd.

We invite all our thirty thousand former students, their friends and those interested in America's largest business training school to visit our booth in the Exposition Building, and see our splendid exhibit which has won first honors at state fairs in four different states. Our display will be interesting and educational to old and young. We will have demonstrations on some of the most modern office appliances, which are taught in our school, exhibit of students' work in bookkeeping, business training, shorthand, typewriting, business finance, penmanship, cotton classing and telegraphy.

Visit our booth and let our professors Thornton and Baker show you why we are the largest school of the kind in America; you will see clearly why it is that we can make you a more practical and thorough stenographer in three and one-half months with the famous Byrne Simplified Shorthand than other schools teaching other systems can in seven months, and why it is with our original copyrighted system of Bookkeeping and Business Training we can give you a course of both Bookkeeping and Business Training in less time than other schools teaching other systems can give you a mere theoretical course of bookkeeping and why it is that our practical department of telegraphy, the largest in the United States, with a loop of the Cotton Belt Railroad train order wire, giving real messages to our students, using every station blank and record book that is used by the Western Union or Cotton Belt Railroad, turns out practical operators and station agents, and why it is that we can place our graduates in good positions and have more calls than we can fill; also investigate the practical manner in which we teach cotton classing.

Write today for catalogue and read what we guarantee to give you; what our former students say we have given them, and what their employers say of their exceptional efficiency. Get facts and you will decide at once the kind of education you want and the place to get it. Address Tyler Com-

STATE SCHOOL APPORTION-MENT IS FIXED AT $13

Austin, Texas.—At a meeting of the State Board of Education today the State apportionment was fixed at $13 per capita. The total number of scholastics in the State was reported by the State superintendent as 1,298,282.
 The estimate of expenses for the purchase of free textbooks for the scholastic year of 1920-21 was given as $1,681,603. The balance in the textbook fund on Sept. 1 was estimated aside to be $300,000. The board set aside $1,381,603 as a textbook fund, the board being required to include each year the balance in the textbook fund to meet the expenses of the ensuing year.

The product of the 15c tax for textbooks was estimated at $4,044,563.
 Deducting from this the amount set aside as the textbook fund it was found that from this 15c tax there would remain in the available school fund for the session of 1290-21, $2,662,959.

A FEW BEAMS OF LIGHT.

One half of the world doesn't know where the other half gets its liquor.
 Where do you get yours?
 After all, if the country didn't have any bathing girls, where would our artists get their inspiration for magazine covers?

Millie Lightfinger says that at any rate the short skirt season has proven to be a knees-y time for the women.
 Cy Hamestring says the most attractive thing about farm life is to knock off work Saturday afternoon and drive to Slaton in the flyver.

Millie Lightfinger says that from the amount of time the bill collectors spend in talking to her one would think her office was the last place where they had to make a collection for the whole month.

Mose Samson says it takes his pastor eleven months to undo all that his flock has done during the month the preacher is away on his vacation.

If "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," we ought to have a colony of intellectual giants in the town of Slaton.

A friend tells us that if we want some bootleg at a reasonable price, if we want to slip into a quiet game of poker or crap game and want to get robbed, "it's in Fort Worth."

Cy Hamestring says if the fellows who are swinging a golf club every day will come out and help him pick a bale of cotton off of 30 acres he could get out of debt and start life anew.

We read some interesting statistics about Amarillo the other day. The statistics said that more people got killed in that city last year according to per capita population than any city in the United States. This goes to show that a real city has only two classes of inhabitants—the quick and the dead.

Millie Lightfinger says there may not be any professional "jelly beans" in Slaton, but that there are a lot of amateurs she thinks ought to be re-classified.

 Lightfinger that he would be in heaven if she would marry him, and she says if she did she would be going the other way.

"Why don't you dress before you start?" he said. "I'd just as soon see you put on your stockings in the car as your gloves." "Yes," answered his wife, "most men would."

 bors to try it first.

Advice to Lovers.

Dear Mr. Weevil: Some young men last night in a drug store called my gentleman friend a "jelly bean."
 What do they mean?—Thelma.

TWO OTHER COUNTY PARKS WILL BE ESTABLISHED

Since Lubbock County voted a special tax to maintain county parks there has been considerable controversy over the division of the park money. The city of Lubbock contended for three-fourths of the tax money.
 Finally a division of three-fifths for Lubbock and two-fifths for Slaton was agreed upon.

Lubbock has leased their park to the Fair Association there and it is being used for commercial purposes in various ways, without any revenue coming in for the county, or the people who are paying the taxes. This alone has caused considerable severe criticism among the rural population, who in turn rose up in arms and demanded the establishment of two other county parks, one at Idalou, the other at Shallowater.

At a meeting of the commissioners' court action was taken authorizing the establishment of two more parks and the tax money hereafter will be equally divided between the four parks.

Slaton's park site was donated by the Santa Fe and the tax money has been used in beautifying it. One-fourth of the available money will enable Slaton to keep its park in good condition, and it goes without saying that we will have the best improved and prettiest park in the county.

Little Touches Add to Clothes

Ways of embellishing clothes and of adding to simple frocks touches that bring them into an entirely new realm are as important as the clothes themselves; oftentimes more so, asserts a prominent fashion authority.

A great many women like little or no trimming on their clothes; others enjoy bits of color, ribbons and laces. This is more or less a matter of taste, and it would be making rather a strong statement to say that one is good taste and the other bad.

Things of this sort depend greatly on individual temperament. There is no reason why a woman should not have any kind of trimming she likes, especially in these days when so many kinds are offered and all are as rich in suggestion.

Because one woman likes her clothes plain and of severe simplicity is no reason why another should sacrifice her individuality by copying her.

Fussiness Threatens to Become Vogue.

There is a great deal of unnecessary criticism of women's taste in clothes. Never were they more comfortable, hygienic, prettier or more sensible than now. But there is a cloud looming on the horizon, heavy with the sug-world apparently are putting forth every effort to work out new ideas in arm covering. During the long time that arms were left wholly or partially uncovered each dressmaker apparently had hidden away in the recesses of his or her mind an infinite number of ideas on this subject, which grew to humane proportions through suppression.

Novelty in Fringe Sleeve.

Now we have sleeves of the Mandarin type, sleeves that are slightly flowing and have in turn wide, flowing cuffs, straight, loose sleeves of bright color set into somber-hued frocks, others that fit to a deep armhole and fall away from the arm, leaving it bare, and that are caught in again at the wrist. But more striking than any of these are the long sleeves of fringe which Patou has brought out. These take their place in the novelty class, but are interesting as one of the many strange things being done to this part of dress.

"The Parisienne is tying her sash in a new way; that is, wrapping it around her body, giving it a twist at either side by slipping the ends through the belt and bringing them back to be fastened in a loose knot in the front.

Nothing very novel about this, you will think, but it is really a pleasing change from the monotony of the way women have been tying string belts or wide sashes.

It must be said that in a simple matter such as this very little originality has been shown. It would seem that hundreds of different ways of knotting a sash might have been thought of. In countries where the sash always has played an important part in native dress the way in which it is tied is significant of many things.

Writing of high collars is about as discouraging as designing them. During the last two years much time has been spent on both. Still, nobody has taken to high collars with any amount of enthusiasm; in fact, they rarely are seen.

But collars of the type referred to and which are somewhat of a compromise between the high and low collar, have been in evidence of late. Sometimes the turnover part is much more exaggerated, like a wide Eton collar. These are quite becoming and are likely to enjoy considerable popularity among the younger women.

Contemplation of collars in general gives one a feeling of surprise that there has not been more change. Women must consider the monotonous neckline so long in evidence very becoming, otherwise they would have accepted some of the many things offered them. It would seem that the time is about ripe for some changes in this direction.

Fringes of self material are featured prominently on many of the autumn clothes. Both cloth and crepe frocks have a novel fringe trimming achieved by running rows of hemstitching along cascading panels, the sleeves, or even the bottom of the skirts, and slashing the hemstitching to form fringe, which, of course, leaves a picot edge on each strand of the material. Such a treatment is used on the French dress.

It seems impossible to get away from fringe in one form or another. All of the great dressmakers still are using it. A model from Douillet has fringe applied to a back tunic and a tuft of it on the short ends of a belt knotted in the front.

On this model we see another form of trimming which sprang into prominence this summer; that is the embroidery pattern made by perforations. As in most perforated cloths, a bright contrasting lining is used. Here the dress is of black and the lining revealed through the large eyelets is bright red.

Long Capes That Match Dresses

Long capes that hang as part of a dress or that match the dress, but are detachable, are among the new fashions. A model in which a cape is made to appear as part of the frock while really detachable is of black cloth, the cape having a lining of rust-colored taffeta. As it falls from the shoulders, a cascading effect is given at either side, thus revealing the contrasting lining.

Designing clothes is approaching more and more the imminence of a fine art. The sources from which designers gather the ideas that go into dress are as interesting as they are varied.

America is showing a growing interest in costume design, and it is a question as to whether, in time, this growing interest will not tend to make us rival Paris in fashion supremacy. Little by little we are relying on the ability of our own designers to create distinctive modes with less dependence on what they are wearing in Paris, and the time may not be far distant when the world will look with respect and concern to see what America is wearing.

The director of one of our great American fashion academies, when interviewed recently, had much to say in praise of the ability of the young American designer.

A successful costume designer must be responsive to the motifs and ideas to be found in the dress and arts of ancient times. The classic Greek dress is perhaps richer in suggestion than the costume of other ancients. This is because of the beauty that the Greeks obtained through simplicity.

Satin for Blouses.

The use of satin for blouses by the best designers denotes that this material is again to have its inning. Some of the newest things in satin are high-necked.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

SEA SCOUTING

"Pine Tree" Jim, as most of us know him, otherwise known as James A. Wilder, chief sea scout, is very happy over his experience in conducting the two sessions of training schools for sea scouts at Marlon, Mass. Both periods were well attended by boys from different sections of the country. Seven boys and the scoutmaster made a trip all the way from Port Arthur, Tex., and, incidentally, they worked their passage on an oil boat back and forth.

The training school was ideally located at the Tabor academy, the officers of which co-operated splendidly with Mr. Wilder in the conduct of the two camping periods and made available their facilities without reserve.

The first group were not only happy but very efficient. Their maneuvers and general operations made a profound impression upon Gen. Clarence H. Edwards, commander in chief of the department of New England, who took dinner with the sea-scout camp one evening.

The enrollment for the second group was even larger than the first and passed all expectations.

It was not all play, by any means, for each of the groups had the experience of cruising around Buzzard's bay, under conditions which tested their scout training and their endurance. The members of the second camp were mustered into service to co-operate with the committee in charge of the ceremonies incident to the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth.

The membership of the sea-scouting division has increased over 50 per cent in the last year. Their experimental stage seems to have passed, and the program has proven itself to be not only useful but attractive to boys, especially of fifteen years of age and over.

PROGRESS IN SACRAMENTO.

On October 1, 1920, there were 12 troops, totaling 287 scouts registered for Sacramento. By July 1 of the present year the numbers had risen to 700 scouts in 29 troops, not including five new troops in the process of organization, including some 75 scouts. This splendid gain has been the result of the tireless work and fine enthusiasm of the men behind it, who have every right to be more than proud of their achievement in promoting scouting to such a remarkable extent in so short a time. The scoutmasters' school, conducted by the leadership and training committee, has graduated 45 men and has had an average of 70 regularly at its meetings, a number which has more than once risen to considerably over 100. Sacramento has also successfully put over a big financial campaign.

SCOUT WINS CANADIAN TRIP.

Scout Arthur Conrad of Hamilton, O., was recently selected from some 300 of his fellows as the one most worthy of the honor and delight of being the guest of H. L. Kutter, a member of the camp committee of the local council on a three weeks' camping trip in Canada. Scout Conrad is a patrol leader and the ranking scout of Hamilton, a splendid specimen of boyhood physically and every other way, devoted to outdoor sports and scoutcraft and with a fine school record behind him. His friends all agree that "Art" well deserves the good luck which has befallen him.

DODSON STOPS SALE OF CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" is Taking Place of Dangerous, Sickening Chemical, Say Druggists

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it." Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—Advertisement.

MOTHER! MOVE

CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

REALLY NOTHING TO MENTION

Outside of a Few Little Pleasantries, Campaign in Chiggersville Was a Quiet Affair.

"Was the last municipal campaign in Chiggersville a lively one?"

"No," said Squire Witherbee. "I can't say it was as lively as some political fights we've had there in the old town."

"The candidates didn't indulge in personalities?"

"None to speak of. The Hon. Jasper Suggs, who was a candidate for mayor, called the Hon. Cleero Fillickins, who was the rival candidate, a pillager of widows and orphans, a white-livered skunk and a flop-eared hound, and Fillickins told the voters that Suggs was a wolf in sheep's clothing, an gin-soaked, booze-guzzling political turncoat, but outside of a few little pleasantries like that it was one of the quietest campaigns we ever had in Chiggersville."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

WATER FROM ARTESIAN WELL

Why Method of Bringing It to Surface Is Only Successful in Certain Localities.

Artesian wells are possible only in certain localities. When there pervious strata lying between pervious beds, the water percolates through will be imprisoned; lying on the lowest, and rising to the point in the highest, when a prevalent stratum brings it to the surface it escapes in the form of spring. However, a shaft can be sunk to the lowest point, the water of the well basin will pass upward for escape and will rise to a level corresponding to the greatest height to which the imprisoned strata reaches. The wells were named from one at Artois, France, which was the first sunk with full knowledge of the principle involved. The Chinese from time immemorial have used these wells, and they have also been used for centuries in the neighborhood of Vienna. The artesian well at Grenoble, near Paris, throws water to a height of 32 feet above the surface at the rate of more than 500 gallons a minute.—Boston Globe.

When the ice made a crust over the snow, he learned to walk on snowshoes. At first there were painful ankles and endless floundering in the drifts. But between the fall of fresh snow and the thaws that softened the crust, he slowly mastered the art. Snowbird—and Dan never realized the full significance of her name until he saw her flying with incredible grace over the snow—laughed at him at first and ran him races that would usually end in his falling headfirst into a ten-foot snowbank. She taught him how to ski and more than once she would stop in the middle of an earnest bit of pedagogy to find that he wasn't listening at all. He would seem to be fairly devouring her with his eyes, delighting in the play of soft pinks and reds in her cheeks, and drinking, as a man drinks wine, the amazing change of light and shadow in her eyes.

She seemed to blossom under his gaze. Not one of those short winter days went by without the discovery of some new trait or little vanity to astonish or delight him—sometimes an unlooked-for tenderness toward the weak, often a sweet, untainted philosophy of life, or perhaps just a lowering of her eyelids in which her eyes would show lustrous through the lashes, or some sweeping, exuberant gesture startlingly graceful.

Lennox awakened one morning with the realization that this was one of the hardest winters of his experience. He began to be very glad of the abundant stores of provisions that overcrowded his pantry—savory hams and bacon, dried venison, sacks of potatoes and evaporated vegetables, and, of course, canned goods past counting. With the high fire roaring in the grate, the season held no ill for them. But sometimes, when the bitter cold came down at twilight, and the moon looked like a thing of ice itself over the snow, he began to wonder how the wild creatures who wintered on the Divide were faring. Of course most of them were gone. Wolf, long since, had grumbled and mumbled his way into a winter lair. But the wolves remained, strange gray shadows on the snow, and possibly a few of the harder smaller creatures.

More than once in those long winter nights their talk was chopped off short by the song of the pack on some distant ridge. Sometime, when the night is old, possibly a man will be so tired that can continue to talk and let his mind on his words while the wolf pack sings. But he is certainly unknown quantity today. The cry is in vibration curious memory words, and for a moment the listener sees in his mind's eye his ancient ancestor in an ancient world—Darkness and Fear and Eyes shining about the cave. It carries him back, and he knows the wilderness as it really is; and to have such knowledge dries up all inclination to talk, as a sponge dries water. Of course the picture isn't entirely plain. It is more a thing guessed at, a photograph in some dark part of an under-consciousness that has constantly grown more dim as the centuries have passed. Possibly sometime it will fade out altogether; and then a man may continue to discuss the weather while the Song from the ridge shudders in at the windows. But the world will be quite cold by then, and no longer particularly interesting. And possibly even the wolves themselves will then be tamed to play dead and speak pieces—which means the wilderness itself will be tamed. For as long as the wild lasts, the pack will run through it in the winter. They were here in the beginning, and in spite of constant war and constant hatred on the part of men, they will be here in the end. The reason is just that they are the symbol of the wilderness itself, and the idea of it continuing to exist without them is stranger than that of a nation without a flag.

It wasn't quite the same song that Dan had listened to in the first days of fall. It had been triumphant then, and proud with the wilderness pride. Of course it had been sad then, too, but it was more sad now. And it was stranger, too, and crept farther into the souls of its listeners. It was the song of strength that couldn't avail against the snow, possibly of cold and the despair and courage of starvation. These three that heard it were injured to the wilderness; but a moment was always needed after its last note had died to regain their gaiety.

"They're getting lean and they're getting savage," Lennox said one night, stretched on his divan before the fireplace. He was still unable to walk; but the fractures were knitting slowly and the doctor had promised that the summer would find him well. "If we had a dog, I wouldn't offer much for his life. One of these days we'll find 'em in a big circle around the house—and then we'll have to open up with the rifles."

But this picture appalled neither of his two young listeners. No wolf pack can stand against three marksmen, armed with rifles and behind oaken walls.

Christmas came and passed, and January brought clear days and an ineffective sun shining on the snow. These were the best days of all. Every afternoon Dan and Snowbird would go out on their skis or on snowshoes, unarmed except for the pistol that Snowbird carried in the deep pocket of her mackinaw. "But why not?" Dan replied to Lennox's objection. "She could kill five wolves with five shots, or pretty near it, and you know well enough that that would hold 'em till we got home. They'd stop to eat the five. I have had enough time keeping up with her as it is, without carrying a rifle." And Lennox was content. Dan had told the truth when he said that five deaths or even fewer, would repel the attack of any wolf pack he had ever seen. There was just one troubling thought. He had heard, long ago, and he had forgotten who had told him, that in the most severe winters the wolves gather in particularly large packs; and a quality in the song that they had heard at night seemed to bear it out. The chorus had been exceptionally loud and strong, and he had been unable to pick out individual voices.

The snow was perfect for skiing. Previously their sport had been many times interrupted either by the fall of fresh snow or a thaw that had softened the snow crust; but now every afternoon was too perfect to remain indoors. They shouted and romped in the silences, and they did not dream but that they had the wilderness all to themselves. The fact that one night Lennox's keen eyes had seen what looked like the glow of a camp fire in the distance didn't affect this belief of theirs at all. It was evidently just the phosphorus glowing in a rotten log from which the winds had blown the snow.

Once or twice they caught glimpses of wild life; once a grouse that had buried in the snow flushed from their path and blew the snow-dust from its wings; and once or twice they saw snowshoe rabbits bounding away on flat feet over the drifts. But just one day they caught sight of a wolf. They were on snowshoes on a particularly brilliant afternoon late in January.

He was a lone male, evidently a straggler from the pack, and he leaped from the top of a tall thicket that had remained above the snow. The man and the girl had entirely different reactions. Dan's first impression was amazement at the animal's condition. It seemed to be in the last stages of starvation; unbelievably gaunt, with rib bones showing plainly even through the furry hide. Ordinarily the heavily furred animals do not show signs of famine; but even an inexperienced eye could not make a mistake in this case. The eyes were red, and they carried Dan back to his first adventure in the Oregon forest—the day he had shot the mad coyote. Snowbird thought of the beast only as an enemy. The wolves killed her father's stock; they were brigands of the worst order; and she shared the hatred of them that is a common trait of all primitive peoples. Her hand whipped back, seized her pistol, and she fired twice at the fleeing figure.

The second shot was a hit; both of them saw the wolf go to its side, then spring up and race on. Shouting, both of them sped after him.

In a few moments he was out of sight among the distant trees, but they found the blood-trail and mushed over the ridge. They expected at any moment to find him lying dead; but the track led them on clear down the next canyon. And now they cared not at all whether they found him; it was simply a tramp in the out-of-doors; and both of them were young with red blood in their veins.

But all at once Dan stopped in his tracks. The girl sped on for six paces before she missed the sound of his snowshoes; then she turned to find him standing, wholly motionless, with eyes fixed upon her.

It startled her, and she didn't know why. A companion abruptly freezing in his path, his muscles inert, and his eyes filling with speculation, is always startling. When this occurs it means simply that a thought so compelling and engrossing that even the half-unconscious physical functions, such as walking, cannot continue, has come into his mind. And it is part of the old creed of self-preservation to dislike greatly to be left out on any such thought as this. If danger is present, the sooner it is identified the better.

"What is it?" she demanded.

He turned to her curiously intent. "How many shells have you in that pistol?"

She took one breath and answered him. "It holds five, and I shot twice. I haven't any others."

"And I don't suppose it ever occurred to you to carry extra ones in your pocket?"

"Father is always telling me to—and several times I have. But I'd shoot them away at target practice and forget to take any more. There was never any danger—except that night with a cougar. I did intend to—but what does it matter now?"

"We're a couple of wise ones, going after that wolf with only three shots to our name. Of course by himself he's harmless—but he's likely enough to lead us straight toward the pack. And Snowbird—I didn't like his looks. He's too gaunt and he's too hungry—and I haven't a bit of doubt he waited in that brush for us to come, intending to attack us—and lost his nerve the last thing. That shows he's desperate. I don't like him, and I wouldn't like his pack. And a whole pack might not lose its nerve."

"Then you think we'd better turn back?"

"Yes, I do, and not come out any more without a whole pocket of shells. I'm going to carry a rifle, too, just as Lennox has always. He's got only a flesh-wound. You saw what you did with two cartridges—got in one flesh-wound. Three of 'em against a pack wouldn't be a great deal of aid. I don't mean to say you can't shoot, but a jumping, lively wolf is worse than a bird in the air. We've gone over three miles; and he'd lead us ten miles farther—even if he didn't go to the pack. Let's go back."

"If you say so. But I don't think there's the least bit of danger. We can always climb a tree."

"And have 'em make a beautiful circle under it! They've got more patience than we have—and we'd have to come down some time. Your father can't come to our help, you know. It's the sign of the tenderfoot not to think there's any danger—and I'm not going to think that way any more."

They turned back and mushed in silence a long time.

"I suppose you'll think I'm a coward," Dan asked her humbly.

"Only prudent, Dan," she answered, smiling. Whether she meant it he did not know. "I'm just beginning to understand that you—living here only a few months—really know and understand all this better than I do." She stretched her arms wide to the wilderness. "I guess it's your instinct."

"And I do understand," he told her earnestly. "I sensed danger back there just as sure as I can see your face. That pack—and it's a big one—is close; and it's terribly hungry. And you know—you can't help but know—that the wolves are not to be trusted in famine times."

"I know it only too well," she said. Then she paused and asked him about a strange grayness, like snow blown by the wind, on the sky over the ridge.

Bert Cranston waited in a clump of exposed thicket on the hillside until he saw two black dots, that he knew were Dan and Snowbird, leave the

CHARGED WITH DESERT SAND

What is Known as the "Red Wind" Makes Life Miserable Along the Mediterranean.

Sojourners in the Mediterranean for any length of time see the red wind as well as feel its oppressive influence. It blows from the deserts of Africa and derives its name from the particles of red sand with which it is charged. Should rain descend while this wind prevails, the sand becomes mud, and thence arise the "mud snows."

In its dry state it is more oppressive by far than any other wind known to the Mediterranean, not excepting the black "sirocco." Its effects are in many ways remarkable. The sand, of excessive fineness, enters between your eyelids and your eyes; it gets into your nostrils and down your throat; it adheres to your skin and works itself into your watch; it increases the annoyance of mosquitoes, and it is so dry that, as you write or read, the paper curls up as if exposed to fire-heat. Tables and chairs of seasoned wood and of old manufacture, crack with a report almost like a pistol-shot, and no quantity of drink has much effect on your raging thirst. All this time your skin is hard and dry, and without the relieving influence of perspiration.

Lennox home. He lay very still as they circled up the ridge, noticing that except for the pistol that he knew Snowbird always carried, they were unarmed. There was no particular reason why he should be interested in that point. It was just the mountain way always to look for weapons, and it is rather difficult to trace the mental processes behind this impulse. Perhaps it can be laid to the fact that many mountain families are often at feud with one another, and anything in the way of violence may happen before the morning.

The two passed out of his sight, and after a long time he heard the crack of Snowbird's pistol. He guessed that she had either shot at some wild creature, or else was merely at target practice—rather a common proceeding for the two, when they were on the hills together. Thus it is to be seen that Cranston knew their habits fairly well. And since he had kept a close watch upon them for several days, this was to be expected.

He had no intention of being interrupted in this work he was about to do. He had planned it all very well. The elder Lennox was still helpless. Cranston had noticed that when Dan and Snowbird went out, they were usually gone from two to four hours; and that gave him plenty of time for his undertaking. The moment had come at last to make a thorough search of Lennox's house for those incriminating documents that Dan had found near the body of Lady Hildeth.

The only really dangerous part of his undertaking was his approach. If by any chance Lennox were looking out of the window, he might be found waiting with a rifle across his arms. It would be quite like the old mountaineer to have his gun beside him, and to shoot it quick and exceptionally straight, without asking questions, at any stealing figure in the snow. Yet Cranston felt fairly sure that Lennox was still too helpless to raise a gun to a shooting position.

He had observed that the mountaineer spent his time either on the fireplace divan or on his own bed. Neither of these places was available to the rear windows of the house. So, very wisely, he made his attack from the rear.

Salesmanship Appreciated.

The late J. P. Morgan was short-tempered and testy, especially with strangers. He closed interviews by ringing a buzzer which called a secretary. "I have finished," he would say. "Show the visitor out." And the visitor was generally outside before he realized what had happened. But there was an insurance agent who started out to capture big policies from the richest men in the money belt. He started on Morgan. He got inside by diplomacy.

"What do you want?" inquired the elder Morgan.

"I have come to talk life insurance," was the reply.

Morgan took out his watch. "I will give you three minutes," he said, toying with the watch. The agent talked and went away with the banker's agreement to take a $500,000 policy. A few months later he was called to the Morgan office and offered a position, which he accepted.

Whom Can We Trust?

Along the Canadian border, a goat butted a hunchback and displaced his hump. A lynx-eyed customs officer made prompt and wondering investigation and found the hump, caused by a two-quart bottle of choice Scotch. Thus warm compassion vanishes and cold suspicion takes its place. Sympathy for the deformed gives way, through prohibition, to callous doubt. If there be hollow stock, why may there not be hollow crutches of much greater capacity, four times as great to be exact, on which fake unfortunates may hobble across the border? Hist! Look! Yonder comes a man with one leg shorter than his mate. Do not exclaim, "Poor fellow!" That would be old-fashioned. His crippled state, doubtless, is a crafty sham; his heavy-soled shoe but a shell, a hollow shell in which he smuggles a quart of prime cognac.—Arthur H. Folwell, in Leslie's.

WIFE TAKES HUSBANDS ADVICE

And Is Made Well Again by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Springfield, Mass.—"The doctor told my husband that I had to have an operation, otherwise I would be a sickly woman and could not have any more children on account of my weakened condition. I refused to have the operation. My husband asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see if it would not help me. For the first four months I could do but little work, had to lie down most of the time, was nervous and could eat hardly anything, but my husband was always reminding me to take the Vegetable Compound, which I did. Of my eight children this last one was the easiest birth of all and I am thankful for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend it to my friends when I hear them complaining about their ills."—Mrs. M. FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN. (Copyrighted)

Washington, Oct. 5.—A high temperature wave will develop in the extreme northwest during the week centering on October 12 and the storm wave, a low barometer, one day behind it, will control the weather for that week. That warm wave moving southeastward is expected to reach meridian 90—a straight line extending north and south from St. Louis—near Oct. 12. Three days earlier it will be in Alaska, and, after reaching the Gulf of Mexico, it will spread over the St. Lawrence valleys and surrounding sections near Oct. 14. The usual changes, first the storm wave, then the cool wave one or two days later, will affect the whole continent as they move eastward.

This disturbance will not be very great but above the average, and rainfall accompanying will be about the average and in the sections where most rain occurred during the Summer. The most severe storms of the first half of October were expected from 1 to 8. This will be the last disturbance that will be controlled by the moisture that comes from the Atlantic east of Newfoundland.

By October 8 the humidity, or dampness, of the wind that comes from eastward will have begun to lessen and by October 15 will begin, gradually, a long spell of dryness. This does not mean a drouth. The sea water will be evaporated in an entirely different section of the ocean and in some parts of the continent the precipitation will be greater and in some less than for several months. These Bulletins will forecast, from one to four weeks in advance, the rains, snows and other weather events in accord with the new location from which the moisture must come during the next five or six months.

If that moisture comes from the Gulf Stream we will get a warm Winter, because the waters of the Gulf Stream are much warmer than other ocean waters near it and when those warm waters are evaporated the air is thereby warmed and, of course, grows warmer as it approaches the low, or storm center as the latter moves eastward. That moisture is often carried 3,000 miles or more, warming the atmosphere as it goes, before it reaches the storm center.

No one should be alarmed about the farmers' organization clubbing together to sell their products; it will do no harm. It will not increase market prices but will steady them. Putting all their surplus grain and cotton into storage so that all can more readily know how much surplus there is, will tend to lower market values as much as the combination will raise them, will prevent the big speculators from causing injurious fluctuations in option dealing and legitimate grain and cotton dealers will have much safer markets to deal with. Paris is losing to America its lead in fashions, Chicago board of trade will lose its lead in grain markets and option dealing will lose its lead in the cotton markets, while general markets of these and other great farm products will gradually return to supply and demand as the only natural controllers of values. With these will come better financial conditions for all.

For Sale or Trade for City Property.

Three 60-acre blocks of land, close in; one 64-acre block, just in edge of town, 50 acres in cultivation, modern 6-room new house, fenced and cross fenced; one 65-acre block, 50 acres in cultivation; two 60-acre blocks raw land. This land is all close to town and very desirable. I will sell it worth the money on terms to suit, or will trade for Slaton property.

Tuneful Operettas, in Costume, Feature Programs of Fine Arts Mixed Quartet

Noted Concert Organization of Splendid Voices to Be Heard Here Soon—"Pirates of Penzance," "The Fortune Teller" and Other Tuneful Skits in Repertoire.

LOCAL FOLKS TO ENJOY MUSICAL TREAT.
(Second Lyceum Number)

The Fine Arts Mixed Quartette brings to Lyceum a varied program of infinite charm. It is a noteworthy personnel, the members of the organization having had extensive concert and operatic experience. Therefore it is more than a company of good voices—it is an organization of artists who have had wide experience in the operatic field.

Elaborate costuming features the program of the Fine Arts Quartette.

Selections from "The Bohemian Girl," "The Persian Garden" will be sung, also some Gypsy numbers from the Italian opera "Il Trovatore." Solo groups, duets, and trios will also be used in the program. Musical folks have a rare treat in store and a delightful evening is promised when the "Fine Arts" folks come on October 14th. The net proceeds of the entire Lyceum course will be given by the Civic and Culture Club to the Public Schools.

AT THE WILSELMA.

Tom Mix Coming With Stunts, Humor, Thrills.

Stunts, humor and thrills are on the program for next Wednesday night, Oct. 12, when Tom Mix, the William Fox star, will be seen in his latest picture, "A Ridin' Romeo."

Mix, as a cowboy, invents many come comforts in this photoplay, some of which may be a help to those who are to get up early on cold mornings, but he can't think of anything that will keep him out of trouble. He loves excitement, but he fails to see the humor in excitement pursuing him. His big heart opens wide when he finds a baby on a rock. He thinks it has been abandoned. He takes it home to his cabin. The next thing he knows the sheriff is after him for kidnapping.

Many other big, thrilling and laugh-provoking scenes are promised in this nature picture.

WONDERFUL GAIN IN WEIGHT REPORTED

Young Woman Only Weighed 76 Pounds—Now Weighs Over 100 and is Gaining Every Day.

"Before I began taking Tanlac I only weighed 76 pounds, I now weigh over one hundred and am gaining every day," said Miss LaRue Davis of Chattanooga, Tenn.

"I bought my first bottle of Tanlac at Gas City, Ind., and it helped me so much that I continued using it. I have always been very delicate and suffered a great deal from stomach trouble and rheumatism. I rarely ever had any appetite and simply could not relish anything. I fell off until I only weighed 76 pounds and was so thin I looked perfectly awful. This is the condition I was in when I began taking Tanlac. "Oh, I feel so different now. Even my complexion is improved. My appetite is good and I can hardly get enough to eat. Tanlac is simply grand and I can truthfully say it is the only medicine that has ever done me any good."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 9

PAUL AT EPHEBUS.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:1-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.—Matt. 4:10.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Rev. 2:1-7.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul a Loving Friend and Minister.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul and the Silversmiths.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Experience in Ephesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Planting the Gospel in a Center of Paganism.

I. John's Disciples Become Christians (vv. 1-7).

These twelve disciples had only been taught the baptism of repentance as a preparation for the kingdom of God. Paul taught them to believe in Christ, that is, to receive Him as the One who had on the cross provided redemption for them.

II. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

1. In the Jewish synagogue (v. 8). His message is characterized by: (1) boldness. He realized that God had sent Him and that His authority was back of Him. (2) Reason. He reasoned with them. God's message is never sentimental nor arbitrary, but in accord with the highest reason. (3) Persuasion. It is not enough to come boldly with a reasonable message; it must be accompanied by persuasion. (4) Concerning the kingdom of God. He did not discourse on current events, literature, or philosophy, but upon the message of salvation through Christ.

2. In the schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10). Paul's earnest preaching only hardened the Jews. When they came out, and spoke openly against this way of salvation in Christ, Paul separated the disciples from them and retired to the schoolhouse of Tyrannus.

III. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16).

So wonderfully did he manifest His power that handkerchiefs and aprons brought from Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits from those whose lives had been made wretched by them.

IV. A Glorious Awakening (vv. 17-41).

1. Fear fell upon all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity.

2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ while not living right lives (v. 18). They believed, but had not broken from sin.

3. Gave up the practice of black arts (v. 19). This means forms of jugglery by use of charms and magical words. All such are in opposition to the will of God; therefore no one can have fellowship with God and practice them. They proved the genuineness of their actions by publicly burning their books. Though this was an expensive thing—valued at about $12,500—they did not try to sell the books and get their money back. When you find you have been in a wrong business, make a clean sweep of things; burn up your books on Spiritualism, Christian Science, etc.; empty your whisky and beer into the sewer, and have a tobacco party similar to the Boston tea party.

4. Uproar of the Silversmiths at Ephesus (vv. 23-41). (1) The occasion (vv. 23, 24). This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows. It was clear to them that idolatry was tottering before the power of the gospel. They were not interested particularly in the matter from a religious standpoint, but because it was undermining the principal business of the city. (2) The method (vv. 25-29). Demetrius, a leading business man, whose business was the stay of others of a similar nature, called a meeting and stated that much people had turned from idolatry and that the market for their wares was materially weakening. He appealed to his fellows (a) on the ground of business, saying "This, our craft, is in danger of being set at naught," (v. 27). (b) On the ground of religious prejudice. He said "The temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised" (v. 27). He became quite religious when he saw that his business was being interfered with. His speech gained his end; the whole crowd was enraged and yelled in unison, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." The mob was quieted by the tact and good judgment of the town clerk.

DYED HER DRAPERIES, SKIRT AND A SWEATER

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can dye or tint faded, shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, hangings, draperies, everything like new. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed, even if you have never dyed before. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade, or run. So easy to use.—advertisement.

Spare the kiss and spoil the wife.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement

An ideal is meant to live for, not with.

THIN, FADED HAIR NEEDS "DANDERINE" TO THICKEN IT

35 cents buys a bottle of "Danderine." Within ten minutes after the first application you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping your hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant.

Girls! Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin, scraggy. A single application of delightful Danderine will double the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant.—Advertisement.

COMMON EVERYDAY FOODS.

Every cook should own a small iron kettle with an iron cover for roasting meats. A pot roast cooked in such a receptacle is far superior to any cooked in other ways. Take a shoulder of beef weighing five or six pounds, sponge the meat and brown all over in any sweet fat. If the meat looks as if it were tough, add a tablespoonful of vinegar to the boiling water which covers it and simmer, tightly covered, for three or four hours, or until tender. Never cook meat until it breaks up in shreds, as its flavor will be destroyed. Salt and pepper to season when the meat is half done. Vegetables for seasoning such as onions and carrots may be added, if desired. Thicken the liquid or as much of it as will be needed for gravy.

Stuffed Potatoes.—Bake large, smooth potatoes until soft. Take from the oven, cut a slice from the upper side of each potato and scoop out the potato into a bowl. To six potatoes add one-half cupful of cream, four teaspoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of white pepper. Fill this into the skins and set into a hot oven to brown.

White Sauce.—Take two tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and when well blended add gradually one cupful of milk. Stir and mix with a wire whisk, then add salt, pepper and onion juice, if desired. When well cooked, remove from the heat.

Russian Salad.—Cut carrots and turnips into fancy shapes with a vegetable cutter and boil until tender. Cut three boiled potatoes into dice and mix the other vegetables with three tablespoonfuls of olive oil and one of vinegar. Arrange the potatoes in a pyramid in the center of a platter, sprinkle with chopped celery. Arrange mounds of cooked peas in four mounds and place the carrots and turnips between the peas. Serve with boiled dressing.

EVERYDAY FOODS AND DAINY DISHES.

Coffee is a delicious flavor to use in various dishes. The delicate aroma and flavor enjoyed at the morning meal is equally tempting when used in desserts.

Steamed Coffee Pudding.—Cream together one-tenth of a cupful of butter. Add one cupful of sugar and one egg slightly beaten. Add four tablespoonfuls of ground coffee to one cupful of milk and scald ten minutes. Strain through a cheesecloth. Sift together two and one-fourth cupfuls of pastry flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add this alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Turn into a large buttered mold and steam two hours. If small molds are used steam one-half hour. Serve with the following sauce: Melt one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of powdered sugar and one egg slightly beaten. Then add one cupful of milk which has been scalded with three tablespoonfuls of coffee and strained. Flavor with a few drops of vanilla.

Sardine Canape.—Cut bread in circles a little larger than a silver dollar, brown in a little butter and set aside. Remove the skin and bones from a small box of sardines. Add the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, salt and cayenne to taste. Spread smoothly over the bread. Chop the whites and one small green pepper. Cut strips of pimento to divide the canape into quarters. Fill two with the egg white and the other two with the pepper.

Fruit Cocktail.—Use a small potato cutter and scoop out small balls from firm but ripe bananas. Sprinkle with lemon juice, cut large balls of watermelon and use only the firm pink centers. Mix them, add a sauce of thick sirup flavored with a grating of orange or lemon rind. Serve in stemmed glasses garnished with sprigs of fresh mint.

Valuable New Gas.
A new gas to take the place of acetylene in blowpipe work has been produced. It is called calorene, and is said to have a thermal value of 1,580 British thermal units to the cubic foot. The composition is 86 per cent carbon and 15 per cent hydrogen, and as the gas can be safely stored in unpacked cylinders at a pressure of 3,500 pounds to the square inch, a considerable saving in weight can be effected. The maximum temperature obtainable is put at 6,200 degrees Fahrenheit.

Most of Them Behave.
"Who is that gentleman?"
"One of our obscure millionaires."
"Do you mean to tell me a man worth millions in this country can be obscure?"
"Certainly. They don't all get into the divorce courts."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine
Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Tonic and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions. All Druggists. Circulars free.
