It was standing-room only for the crowd which packed into Midland City Council Chambers Tuesday afternoon for the public hearing on one-way streets in Midland. After hearing testimony from both sides, the council voted to turn four pairs of streets into one-way thoroughfares.

New direction for city streets a step closer

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

After listening to objections by residents against the idea of one-way streets in Midland, Mayor G. Thane Akins laughingly summed up the situation on Tuesday by quoting satirist Ogden Nash: "Progress might have been fine at one time, but it's gone on too long."

If it hadn't been for Midland's booming progress in the past few years, the council wouldn't have been considering one-way streets to ease traffic congestion.

It wasn't all rotten tomatoes that the residents threw at the council when the panel met in a regular session in City Hall Council Chambers; the councilmen got their share of roses for trying to upgrade the city's traffic flow by instituting five pairs of one-way streets.

In the end, the council decided to go with four pairs of one-way streets, leaving out Missouri Avenue and Wall Street. The decision is subject to a second and final reading at the council's Aug. 25 meeting.

Jack Hatchell with PAWA of Dallas, a traffic consultant, explained that Midland's Central Business District contains 3.9 million square feet of office space, and that should more than double by 1990 to 8 million square feet. To accommodate the traffic, he recommended one-way streets as the only solution.

Some streets already are inching very close to their peak carrying capacity by being two-way. For example, Hatchell said, Wall Street east of A Street carried 7,840 vehicles per day in 1977. By 1981, the number has jumped to 12,120, an increase of 54.6 percent.

That street's capacity is 20,000, said Hatchell. By 1990, it is projected to carry 24,845. Making it one-way would increase the capacity to 28,000 vehicles.

By 1990, the 8 million square feet of office space will add 50,000 more trips per day to the downtown area, according to Hatchell.

One-way streets to ease the downtown traffic jams have been recommended for years, he noted. The idea first came in 1965 from the State Department of Highways and Transportation. It reappeared in 1978 and was shot down then.

The pairings approved by the council include Colorado-Loraine, Big Spring-Marienfeld, Illinois-Texas, Louisiana-Michigan.

Bill Ortloff, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, supported the idea, saying it "would improve traffic flow in the Central Business District. The plan is overdue."

THE CHAMBER earlier this year brought in parking experts to recommend ways to remedy the parking shortage, and their plan included one-way streets.

Dr. Robert Boynton Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, outlined the increasing number of traffic mishaps occurring at the intersections of A Street with Texas and Illinois avenues. "I plead and beg you not to delay the proposal."

Jess Moore, 3102 Lockheed St., who has been pushing the council to institute the one-way streets, explained,

Smaller housing lots approved

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Midland City Council backed down from its philosophy of large lots and low density by approving a change Tuesday for Northgate Joint Venture at Loop 250 and Holiday Hill Road that would allow smaller housing lots.

The change came during an appeal by the owners — Citizens Savings & Loan Association of Midland and Home Savings & Loan of Odessa — who put up as their major argument that the housing scene had changed in the year since the plan and plat were approved.

The council, meeting in a regular session in City Hall Council Chambers, argued that the smaller lots wouldn't reduce the cost of a house by much.

But Martin Allday, representing the developers, and Ray Moudy, president of Citizens Savings & Loan, held steadfast to their philosophy that the housing market in the near future in Midland will change its character drastically.

They were asking to reduce the size of conventional home lots to 6,000 square feet and increase the amount of apartment space. The council finally approved the smaller lots, but reduced the amount of apartment space at the southern edge of the subdivision.

"WE HAVE A super severe problem as far as housing is concerned," Allday said. "There are lots of jobs and no place to put the people. We tried to hire a couple of young lawyers and they refused to come here because of housing. If we don't do something about housing, we're going to have to ask the people putting up those office buildings to convert them to apartments."

Moudy explained that middle-income families can't afford to buy housing because of the rising costs and the high interest rates. To afford a $60,000 home, he said, a family needs a yearly income of $38,500.

Profit is not the developers motive for wanting smaller lots and higher density, he claimed.

Backing the two men was Roy Allen of Ramcon, a local homebuilding company. In less than two years, he said, Ramcon won't be building the conventional single family home. They will have to turn to townhouses and condominiums.

Mayor G. Thane Akins explained the council had changed its thinking about smaller lot sizes in the past two years. But what concerned them about this proposed change is that it would increase the density by about 50 percent.

"THIS CREATES a distinct instability in zoning policies," he said. "We all realize there's a housing problem in Midland. But a man sleeping under a tree can't buy one of those houses or rent a $400 a month apartment."

Councilman Carroll Thomas contended that "out here in West Texas

Midland's controller force growing

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

While Midland's 16 striking Professional Air Traffic Controllers have chosen not to budge from their side of the fence, Midland Regional Airport is continuing to rebuild the control tower work force.

Bill Hill, chief control tower supervisor, said this morning four more controllers have been added to his staff.

"Today, four radar qualified controllers are reporting to this facility from Amarillo — one is already here," Hill said.

"We're stabilizing the system by reassigning personnel to locations who were impacted the hardest by the strike," he added.

Asked whether the additional personnel to Midland Regional Airport's control tower are PATCO members, Hill said: "They are bargaining unit personnel who chose not to participate in the illegal job action."

Counting two controllers who came to Midland from the Lubbock airport, the two returning PATCO members, the four controllers who arrived today, plus the supervisor staff, Midland's control tower crew is now up to 12.

Hill added one of the controllers brought in is an ex-Midland control tower supervisor, and the four "will remain with us until our complement permits them to return to their permanent duties."

Tommy Urps, officer for Midland's PATCO Local 428, said Tuesday the FAA "cannot do without them," and insisted the FAA is "snowing" the public about an influx of applicants for their jobs.

However, according to the FAA regional office in Ft. Worth, Hill said the office mailed out 3,500 response cards to applicants on Tuesday.

"They have eight dedicated lines for receiving applicant's calls and three additional switchboard operaters are being utilized — they are constantly busy," Hill said.

While Hill's first concern is to provide safety and to rebuild the control tower staff, he said, "The facility management and staff wish those strikers no ill in any way and we regret the situation."

Meanwhile, Mark Flavin, Midland PATCO member who received his notice of dismissal Saturday, began his grievance procedures Tuesday to the Department of Transportation's Federal Aviation Administration.

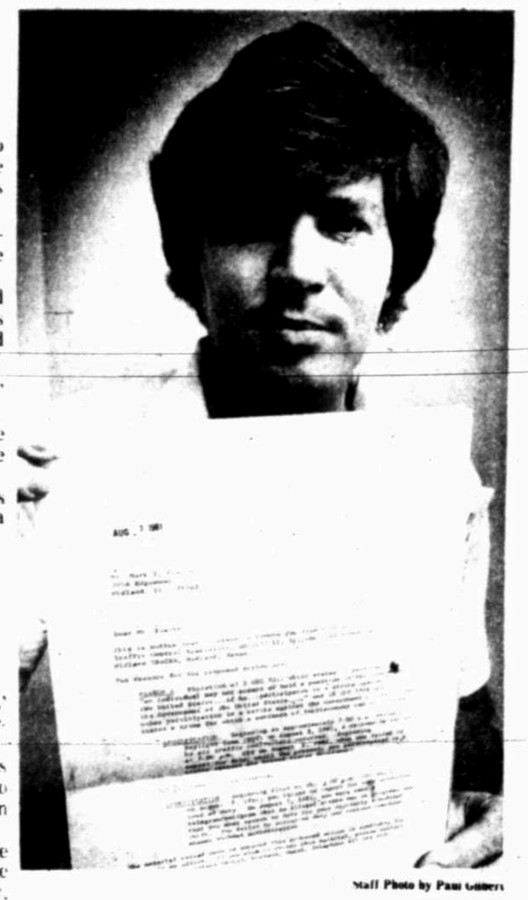

The notice states: "Therefore you may reply to this notice...documentary evidence in support of your answer to me within seven calender days after you receive this letter."

While Flavin acknowledges that the aircraft landing and taking off from Midland airport are "fairly safe," he insists that "Midland's control tower is not being as safe as it should be."

"We had 18 guys (working) and we were working overtime," Flavin said.

However, commercial, private and corporate pilots, who are flying in and out of Midland daily say the control tower service has never been "smoother or safer."

"I'd like to assure the public that flying (during this time) is safe or we as pilots wouldn't be here," Capt. Don Yeater, a pilot for Continental Airlines, said.

Foreign facilities again handling U.S. flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, bolstered by the support of airlines and Canadian air traffic controllers' resumed handling of U.S flights, appears to be strengthening its hand in a strike by 12,000 U.S. controllers.

Officials sought to restore air traffic between Europe and the United States to near-normal levels today as Canadian controllers ended a two-day boycott that had cut trans-Atlantic flights to a trickle.

Dick Stafford, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman, said the key trans-Atlantic control center near Gander, Newfoundland, reopened at 6:30 a.m. EDT today after being closed since 4 a.m. Tuesday.

Transport Canada, the government agency that operates Canadian airports, said controllers throughout Canada agreed shortly after midnight today to resume handling flights to and from the United States.

Airline executives, after meeting Tuesday with Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, said they staunchly support President Reagan's handling of the crisis and his decision to fire the striking controllers.

But the executives said the strike, now in its 10th day, will have far-reaching effects on their industry, forcing layoffs, pay cuts and scrapping of marginal routes. Some companies may have to be restructured, they said.

The end of the Canadian boycott and of one in New Zealand leaves only Spanish controllers refusing to handle flights to the United States in support of the American strikers.

But action by controllers in other countries sympathetic to their American counterparts could still create havoc for international travelers.

Australian controllers, saying U.S. skies are not safe because of the strike, were seeking a court injunction to stop flights between Australia and the United States. That same safety argument was used by the Canadian controllers in their boycott.

Portuguese controllers have voted a boycott beginning Saturday and the international federation of controllers' unions meets Thursday in Amsterdam to discuss joint international action.

The FAA is seeking ways to ensure service on overseas flights in the event Portuguese controllers carry out a threat to begin blocking a trans-Atlantic route over the Azores on Saturday.

FAA Administrator J. Lynn Helms said that if both the northern route over Gander and, and the Santa Maria route over the Azores were interrupted, "we'd have difficulty, major difficulty."

But he said he had a plan that he hoped would prevent total interruption of trans-Atlantic flights should that occur. He would not give details of the plan.

The protest by the Canadian controllers had resulted in scores of cancellations and delays of eight to 10 hours in those flights that were able to depart. Thousands of passengers were stranded at many European airports.

Train wreck traced to wrong timing

BEVERLY, Mass. (AP) — A freight train that was struck head-on by a whistle-blowing, braking commuter train, killing four people, wasn't supposed to be on the track at the time, a railroad official says.

Many of the 27 people who were injured in the crash Tuesday afternoon had been headed back to Boston from a day at the beach.

Cranes separated the wreckage early today so the mangled bodies of victims could be removed.

The commuter train, with a passenger car and crew compartment in the lead and a locomotive at the rear, was moving along an eight-mile section of rail that had been reduced to a single track for more than a year because of railroad construction, officials said.

The two Boston & Maine Railroad trains collided 200 yards from a station in the wealthy Prides Crossing section of Beverly, about 17 miles northeast of Boston.

Metal exploded. The lead passenger car, its crew compartment shredded, reared atop the locomotive.

It wasn't clear how fast the trains were going when they hit.

The freight train "was on the tracks at the wrong time," said Gloria Stone, a spokeswoman for the Boston &

Maine Railroad. "The reason why is under investigation."

"Commuter trains always get priority," she said.

"Somebody got the wrong train orders," said Roger Bergeron, a Federal Railroad Administration inspector. "One of those trains was given the wrong information."

Christopher C. Rich of the state Department of Public Utilities said it was likely the crash would be the subject of separate state and federal investigations. Both studies, he said, would focus on what type of orders were given to the crews of the two trains.

Those written orders, Rich said, "are the Bible."

"If it says go, you go. If it says don't go, you stop," he said. "You don't question that. Evidently, something went wrong."

The body of a conductor on the passenger train, 61-year-old Paul Sullivan of Rockport, was found on the tracks.

The bodies of three crewmen were extricated from the cab of the freight train's locomotive hours after the crash, trooper Edward Connolly of the state police said today. Earlier, authorities had said only two bodies were trapped in the locomotive.

Their identities were unavailable.

Deputy Fire Chief Bill McPherson said two of the men were crew members, but the third was not an authorized member of the crew.

The injured, many of whom suffered cuts and bruises, were treated at nearby hospitals.

Joan Lowery, 32, of Boston, had fallen asleep on the passenger train and woke up just before the collision. "And then the horn. I heard the horn," she said. "And then crash. The front of the train folded like an accordion."

Linda Woodford, a 36-year-old Boston resident, was headed home from work in Gloucester "in a lovely reverie" when she heard the whistle.

"They stood on the whistle and locked the brakes, and I knew we were going to hit something," she said.

The commuter train was southbound from Gloucester to Boston with 70 passengers on a run operated by B&M for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, greater Boston's mass transit agency.

First Haitian refugees will arrive today in Puerto Rico

JUANA DIAZ, Puerto Rico (AP) — Ten months and more than $10 million after plans were first made to divert some of the refugee flood to Puerto Rico, a former Navy base called Fort Allen receives its first Haitians today.

A planeload of 125 men was to be flown to the airport at Ponce, on Puerto Rico's south coast, from the overcrowded Florida reception center known as Krome North. Then the men were to be bused to Fort Allen.

The camp is spread over 10 acres, with wood-frame, screened tents, each housing 20 people on aluminum and canvas cots. There are communal showers and lavatories and communal mess tents.

A chain-link fence topped by barbed wire divides the camp into three sections — for single men, single women and married couples — and another fence topped by barbed wire and razor wire encloses the entire camp.

James Switzer, director of alien processing at the center, took reporters and photographers through the administration building where the Haitians were to be "processed" — "first a strip search, then photographing and fingerprinting, then filling out and issuance of identify cards, then quick health examinations."

"What it amounts to is we're just putting them in jail here. We're just transferring them from one facility to another," said Switzer.

Haitian exiles led by Professor Jean-Claude Bajeux of the University of Puerto Rico contend that it is cruel to keep the refugees behind barbed wire on a treeless site baking in the tropical sun. But Bob Bowen, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, dismissed suggestions that they be housed in the former Navy buildings of concrete and glass that will be used for the workers who will look after them.

"Security would be horrendous," he said. "You've got to be able to watch the people; you've got to be able to keep them under surveillance; you've got to be able to take care of them. And you can't do that if there's a wall around them and you can't see them."

Eventually, as many as 800 Haitians will be brought here, relieving conditions at Krome North, where some 950 refugees have been housed in recent days. The monthly cost of running Fort Allen will be $1.5 million, or $18 million a year, according to Bowen.

Last October, the Carter administration designated 20 acres alongside an unused airstrip at the former naval base for the site of a holding center for thousands of the Cuban and Haitian refugees pouring into Florida.

The site was asphalted over, tents were put up, equipment was brought in and barbed wire strung wt a cost of more than $10 million. But there was an immediate outcry from Puerto Ricans fearful of Cuban competition for scarce jobsand fearful of the violence that had already begun to plague such stateside Cuban refugee centers as Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Local residents, unions and the government of Puerto Rico filed suits that blocked the transfer of any of the refugees until last month.

The commonwealth government claimed the site could sustain no more than 800 people without detriment to the local environment and public order.

Last month, the Reagan administration and Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo reached agreement on the "temporary" housing here of no more than 800 Haitians. A Federal court set aside the injunction against transferring any refugees to Fort Allen.

Bowen said 700 people will eventually be employed at the camp, including 156 maintenance and clerical workers, 390 security guards and others who will provide food, medical and other services. He said Puerto Rico had been guaranteed that nobody with a communicable disease, criminal record or mental problem would be sent, and there will be no minors without families.

Panamanians claim U.S. violates canal treaty

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panamanians claim U.S. congressional legislation and other measures are violations of the treaties that will give them control of the Panama Canal by the end of the century.

A senior Panamanian official said a letter p... testing the alleged violation, will be presented shortly to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. along with a document summarizing the complaints.

"The next step will be for President (Aristides) Royo to contact President Reagan," the official said. "If that doesn't work, we will take our case to any world forum that will listen."

He asked not to be identified by name because the matter is still in a formative phase.

The dissatisfaction has given rise to one incident of violence. Rocks and bottles were thrown at the canal administration building July 28 during a demonstration called to press demands that a Panamanian replace the American director of public affairs for the Canal Commission, the U.S. agency created to run the canal until the year 2000.

The death of Gen. Omar Torrijos in a plane crash July 31 increased the likelihood of more violence. The strongman, who signed the canal treaties with President Carter in 1977, was credited with keeping the militant forces in check, especially the students.

U.S. Ambassador Ambler Moss said most of the discontent is rooted in the legislation the U.S. Congress adopted to carry out the treaties. The Panamanians charge that it deprives the commission of autonomy implied in the treaties and tries to impose U.S. law on Panama.

The treaties gave Panama sovereignty over the U.S. Canal Zone on Oct. 1, 1979, but the U.S.-controlled Canal Commission runs the waterway until Panama takes full possession in the year 2000.

Instead of granting the commission the more independent status of a U.S. corporation, as sought by President Carter, Congress made it a U.S. government agency. That means Congress oversees its budget and other matters. The legislation also imposed portions of the U.S. Labor Code.

One of Panama's treaty negotiators, former Ambassador Carlos Lopez Guevara, maintained that the canal operation and the treaties themselves will be jeopardized if the United States doesn't heed the complaints.

Neighbors concerned about Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela's plans to become Latin America's first nation to buy the sophisticated U.S-made F-16 jet fighters are stirring some controversy here and in neighboring countries.

Guyana, Venezuela's small English-speaking neighbor in the northerneastern tip of South America, has formally asked the U.S. State Department to block the sale of the planes to Venezuela.

Colombia, another Venezuelan neighbor, has expressed "concern" about the risk of an arms race in the area.

Venezuela has border or territorial disputes with both nations.

Some domestic opposition also has been voiced although so far it has been low-keyed. Left-wing Congressman Hector Perez announced that he will summon a special Chamber of Deputies session to express his opposition to the planned purchase. He did not give the reasons for his opposition but another member of his party mentioned the high cost of the planes — $13.5 million each.

Former President Carlos Andres Perez, a leading figure in the opposition Accion Democratica Party, told reporters that the announcement by the government that it plans to buy the planes "has caused me some concern." But he refussed to elaborate.

The government says the controversy is at least premature and by all means unwarranted.

"We are not embarked in an arms race," said President Luis Herrera, who is a member of the Social Christian Party. He added that Venezuela has "no agressive plans" against any nation.

"What we are doing is merely to renew some obsolete equipment of our armed forces to bring it in line with the country's needs," he said.

At present, the Venezuelan air force's most advanced jet fighter aircraft is the French-made Mirage-5.

The government has not said yet how many of the supersonic F-16 fighters it plans to buy or when it expects to order them. Press reports have indicated that Venezuela wants to buy 24 to 48 planes.

The government also is dismissing reports that the State Department may block or indefinitely postpone the authorization for Venezuela to buy the planes because of the Colombian and Guyanese opposition.

"At this point, we don't see anything that may indicate that Venezuela will not be able to buy the planes," Herrera said.

The air force commander in chief, Brig. Gen. Maximiliano Hernandez, told reporters he is "convinced" that Washington will approve the sale.

"We even have some Venezuelan pilots already trained to fly the F-16s," Hernandez said.

During a visit here in June, U.S. Undersecretary of State for Inter-American Affaires, Thomas O. Enders, appeared to suggest than an eventual request by Venezuela would not meet opposition in Washington.

"We would not attempt to dictate to friendly countries what their defense needs are," Enders said.

A Foreign Ministry official who asked not to be quoted by name said Venezuela should be considered "a stabilizing force" in the strategic Caribbean area and, because of that, it may be "in Washington's best interest" to authorize the sale.

He said there is a "coincidence" of U.S. and Venezuelan positions and policies on some crucial Caribbean and Central American issues, including El Salvador.

Foreign Minister Jose A. Zambrano recently joined U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and the foreign ministers of Canada and Mexico in a meeting in Nassau, Bahamas, to study a U.S.-proposal to launch a major aid program for Caribbean and Central American nations as a means of promoting political stability.

The Venezuelan military leaders have maintained a low profile throughout the controversy surrounding the planned F-16 purchases.

Wright will head paper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Times announced Monday Donald F. Wright will become president and chief operating officer of the newspaper Jan. 1, 1982.

The announcement came from publisher Tom Johnson, who also reported that Vance L. Stickell has been named executive vice-president, marketing, of the Times.

Since 1978, Wright has been president and chief operating officer of Newsday, the Times-Mirror newspaper based in Long Island, N.Y.

Wright will report directly to Johnson and is to be responsible for all operations of the Times with the exception of editorial and news policy. A native of St. Paul, Minn., Wright received an undergraduate degree and a masters in business administration from the University of Minnesota.

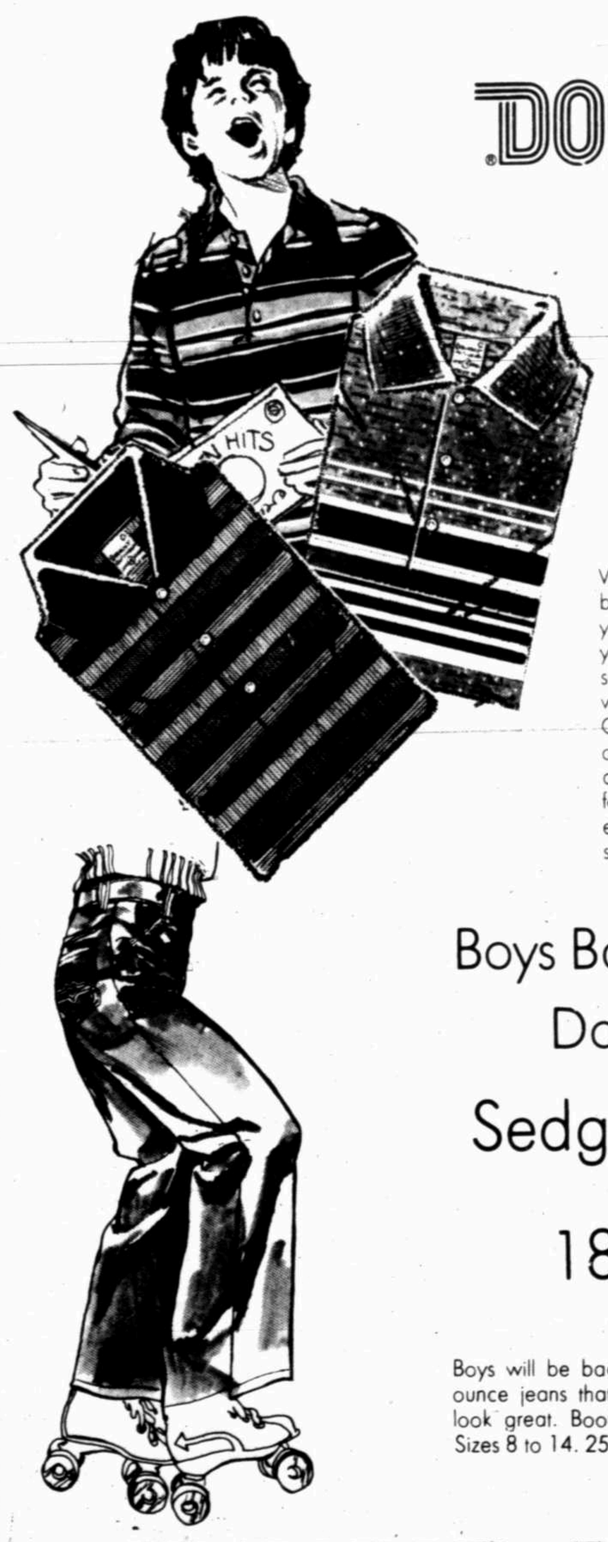

Stickel has been with Times since 1948 and is credited with bringing the paper to its position of national leadership in newspaper ad lineage and revenue. He is responsible for all the revenue departments of the newspaper, including circulation, and for the promotion and marketing research departments, the announcement said.

Home still for sale

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan's Pacific Palisades home still is on the market after the first potential buyer to offer the full asking price was turned away on the basis of the terms he wanted.

The terms of the $1.9 million offer by Long Beach Realtor John Saunders "were totally unacceptable," said James Wix, vice president of Coldwell Banker, the firm hanling the sale for the Reagans.

Wix declined to elaborate Monday, and Saunders was unavailable for comment.

There's still a chance of rain for area towns

Rain dances proved effective throughout West Texas Tuesday evening as area cities reported varying amounts of precipitation.

The official gauges at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport showed .59 of an inch of rain. Midland totals ranged from .78 to 1.3 inches, while Lomax topped the evening's rainfall reports with 1.47 inches. During a two-day span, Lamesa's gauges measured over 2 inches.

Rain still figures in the forecast with a 30 percent chance of more rain tonight, decreasing to 20 percent on Thursday.

Tonight's low should be in the mid-60s while temperatures Thursday should climb near 90 degrees.

Winds will be out of the east tonight at 5-10 mph. On Thursday the gusts will increase to 10-15 mph and come from the southeast.

The high temperature on Tuesday reached 86 degrees. The record temperature for that date was 106 degrees set in 1964. This morning's low was 69 degrees, not quite reaching the 1931 record of 60 degrees.

Widely scattered thunderstorms rumbled across the Southwest, with widespread rain over western Texas and strong thunderstorms in the Gulf Coast states and along the Eastern Seaboard.

On Tuesday, hot weather continued in the Northwest, as a temperature of 91 degrees was recorded at the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport — the fifth straight day that Seattle basked in temperatures above 90.

Council accepts bid from bank to sell library land

Midland City Council accepted a bid from The First National Bank to sell its share of the land on which the Midland County Public Library is located. The action came this morning during a continuation of the regular session which started Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers.

The coucil held a five-hour executive session last night, which ended at 2 a.m. today, with four members of the city police department.

The bid from the bank amounted to $701,240, and the city will get about 20 percent of that. Of the 12 lots sold to the bank, 2½ lots were owned by the city.

The council decided to pull out its support of the new library, which currently is being planned to be in Eagle Plaza. The bank has pledged $5.5 million toward building a new library.

Instead, the council will have to concentrate its money on the streets around the plaza, they said.

In other action, the council looked at a proposal from the U.S. Postal Service for mail delivery in new subdivisions which would eliminate curb or door-to-door service. Marie Hodges with the Postal Service explained the rule of thumb calls for a subdivision to be 50 percent completed before they can initiate curb service. Until then, residents must pick up their mail at a substation.

The new delivery would involve one substation stop which would have all the boxes at that spot. As an example, one box would serve all the houses in a cul-de-sac.

The question raised by the council is who would be responsible for accidents caused by the box in the city's right of way. The representative will have the Postal Service legal department contact the city as to where the responsibility lies.

When Councilman Tom Sloan complained about the cutback of door-to-door service, the woman replied that new residents have a choice of waiting seven months to get curb service delivery or having it delivered immediately to the central boxes.

At the end of the session, Councilman Steve Davidson advised Ms. Hodges, "It's not often we get to grill someone from the federal government. Usually, we're on the other end."

The council also approved ordinances designating truck routes in the city limits and decided to establish an industrial development corporation.

Accident near Stanton kills one, injures five

STANTON — One person was killed and five others were injured in a three-vehicle accident four miles east of here on Interstate 20 about 4:20 p.m. Tuesday.

Dead is Maria Deras, 66, of El Salvador. She was pronounced dead at the scene by Martin County Justice of the Peace Francis Kennedy.

According to the Department of Public Safety, she was thrown from a Ford van driven by Zitino Deras, 45, also of El Salvador. He suffered head and foot injuries and was in fair condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring late Tuesday.

Two other passengers in the Deras van also were injured. Mercedes Deras, 45, was listed in critical conditon with chest, leg and back injuries. In fair condition was 20-year-old Rene Deras Grovanni. He suffered leg and foot injuries. Both are from El Salvador.

In critical condition at Malone-Hogan with head and chest injuries was 64-year-old Minna Boyd Mayberry of Odessa. Mona Altiver Elmore, no age available, of Stanton apparently escaped injury.

The accident occurred, according to the DPS, when the eastbound Deras vehicle went out of control, crossed the center median of the interstate and struck Mayberry's westbound 1976 Chevrolet station wagon, which in turn hit Elmore's 1980 Dodge.

The Deras woman's body was taken to the Gilbreath Funeral Home in Stanton, where services are pending. The accident was investigated by Trooper Freddy Gutierez.

Deputy sheriffs to get overtime pay

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Sixteen deputy sheriffs who were put on overtime duty due to a shortage of lawmen have been granted $15,536.29 in overtime pay for five months up to a year prior to Aug. 1.

The overtime pay is computed on straight time, as county government workers by law are exempted from time-and-a-half overtime pay accorded workers in private industry.

The pay was justified by Sheriff Dallas Smith due to an average shortage of "about seven" deputies, including jailers, patrolmen, criminal investigators, bailiffs, and civil warrant officers.

The sheriff is allotted 38 deputies this year, but that allotment has been upped to 41 in 1982.

"Lieutenants, captains, of course, we don't pay (overtime)," Sheriff Smith told the Midland County Commissioners, who did not quibble over granting the extra pay. "They (the ranking deputies) just lose their" overtime.

Last March, the commissioners approved almost $19,000 in overtime for the deputies, who, by the sheriff's policy, are not eligible for overtime pay until they have a year's service in.

The deputies' pay scale ranges from $7.45 per hour for a bailiff to $10.46 per hour for a sergeant, according to the latest overtime pay request, and includes incentives for law-enforcement certifications, high-education credits and longevity. Clothing allowances at $30 per month per deputy are extra; that allowance will go to $50 per month per deputy in 1982.

Hours for overtime ranged from a low of 38 for 318th State District Court Bailiff Ed Brackeen to 314 for Sgt. Ken Scheer, who is assigned to the jail. Brackeen was authorized $285.10 in overtime, and Scheer, $2,227.68.

The deputies who received the overtime, the number of hours they worked over 40, and their overtime pay for hours were:

Ed Brackeen, bailiff, $285.10 for 38 hours; Joe Brownlee, patrol, $1,208.12 for 124; David Cobos, investigator, $617.12 for 72; Bryan Cook, investigator, $425.59 for 55; Benny Cureton, investigator, $1,774.86 for 189.

Benny Fishback, former civil deputy, $102.48 for 12; Ava Lee Fultz, bailiff, $268.20 for 31; Hal Heathington, patrolman, $525.46 for 62; Les Hunter, investigator, $1,294.05 for 141; Tommy Jones, civil deputy and former investigator, $1,543.92 for 152.

Mike Love, investigator, $2,238.15 for 291; John McDaniel, patrolman, $379.12 for 40; Roy Merket, bailiff, $373.23 for 47; Jim Phipps, patrolman, $1040.15 for 125; Ken Scheer, jailer, $2,227.68 for 314; George Yielding, civil deputy, $1,233.06 for 126 hours.

The sheriff's budget for 1981 is $1,009,066, which includes $793,068 for salaries and wages for deputies and other hired help. The sheriff's pay is $26,448.

For 1982, the budget has been increased to $1,281,984, which includes $1,012,020 for salaries and wages. The sheriff's pay is pegged at $30,864 in 1982.

Haig urges Soviet restraint

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Soviet Union must show "greater restraint in the use of force" if it expects arms treaties and better trade agreements from the United States, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says.

"The Soviet Union must understand that it cannot succeed in dominating the world through aggression," Haig said Tuesday at the American Bar Association convention, which ends today.

Referring to both the Soviet Union and Cuba, Haig said: "It is time for those who preach peace to contribute to peace. The way to do it is through new restraints, both in Moscow and Havana."

He said it was time "to refashion East-West economic relations" but added that "we cannot have full and economic relations if they (the USSR) are not prepared to respect international norms of behavior."

He said the Reagan administration wants the Russians to show "greater restraint in the use of force," coupled with "greater Soviet respect for the independence of others, and we want the Soviets to abide by their reciprocal obligations" such as the Helsinki accords designed to encourage basic freedoms.

In return, Haig listed what he said the Soviets can expect from improved relations with the United States:

—"We offer a reduction in the tensions that are so costly to both our societies.

—"We offer diplomatic alternatives to the pursuit of violent change.

—"We offer fair and balanced agreements on arms control.

—"And we offer the possibility of western trade and technology.

"We are creating incentives for Soviet restraint," Haig said. "We are offering a broader relationship of mutual benefit."

The speech was generally devoid of the Reagan administration's previous harsh statements toward the Soviets.

Haig said the United States already has taken steps "toward the achievement of a more stable and beneficial relationship with the Soviet Union."

Four pairs of one-way streets favored by City Council vote

"Our city is suffering from congestion. Relief is spelled o-n-e-w-a-y. Midland's growth is surging forward while our traffic is standing still."

Much of the opposition to the idea centered on the Missouri-Wall street pairing, with several area residents saying they didn't object to the other one-way streets.

Harris Kerr, 2104 W. Missouri Ave., explained that the development along Missouri is "unique" in that a part of the city's past is being preserved in that area. "The one-way street plan would destroy the character of that neighborhood," the attorney said.

He suggested the council look at encouraging Front Street as the major artery for traffic into downtown from West Highway 80. It would involve straightening out that street's connection with Bankhead Highway.

STEVE STEWART, representing owners of businesses on far east Illinois and Texas avenues, requested the one-way streets be stopped at Main Street. He contended that extending the one-way on those streets to East Highway 80 would destroy the businesses.

Joan Hellin, director of the Museum of the Southwest, noted that she works on one street involved in the move and, as a resident at 2802 W. Michigan Ave., she lives along another proposed one-way street. She urged the council to "go back to the drawing board and see if the plan really does satisfy the needs today."

Lawrence Connally, a Michigan Avenue resident, added that he felt the quality of life along that street would be ruined with one-way traffic. He noted that the change might involve widening streets, thus taking down the old trees in that neighborhood.

"The climate out here isn't meant for people and the trees in the older neigborhoods help," he said.

The mayor advised the audience that "our major industry is the downtown office buildings. With what's under construction and on the drawing board, we're facing a crisis. We see no solution any easier or any cheaper than making one-way streets. If they don't work, we can easily change them back to two-way."

Councilman Tom Sloan, who lives at 1801 W. Missouri Ave., remarked by the time they're changed back to two-way, the quality of neighborhood and businesses might already be destroyed.

When the vote came on the motion to turn the pairings into one-way streets, except for Missouri and Wall streets, Sloan and Steve Davidson voted against. Davidson said he wanted to exempt Michigan and Sloan wanted the Texas-Illinois pairing to stop at Main Street, rather than at East Highway 80.

Fund formed

A fund to help defray expenses for a 3-year-old child in a coma at Midland Memorial Hospital has been formed, according to Vi Evans at Commercial Bank & Trust in Midland.

Paul Vasquez, who was hit by a car Thursday "went into a coma" Tuesday, Evans said. "The doctors have said this will set him back," she added.

Anyone wishing to make contributions should mail them to Commercial Bank & Trust Co., Attention: Vi Evans.

Council approves smaller lots

you ought not to be insisting people live on small lots, even if they have to buy a small house."

However, Councilman Tom Sloan noted that water will become more of a problem as the community grows. The smaller lot will cut down on the size of yards and need for water, he theorized.

The vote to allow the change was 3 to 2 after the two men reduced the area for apartments.

In other action, the council voted to go with the 39.5 cents per $100 valuation on the tax rate. Thomas suggested cutting out $600,000 in the budget for MidTran and the $180,000 allotted for economic development through the Midland Chamber of Commerce. But that motion died for lack of a second.

In fact, Councilman Gordon G. Marcum II laughingly asked what the city would do with the eight new buses they had purchased earlier in the day. That bid was for diesel buses, with one being a 25-passenger vehicle to carry the employees to Texas Instruments or Levi Strauss plants.

The council also accepted a bid for a new fire truck, which will cost $98,150, to replace one that had been destroyed recently in an accident. Continental Engineering Sales is promising delivery within a month.

AND AFTER TWO years of seeking an improved telephone system for City Hall, the council decided to purchase its own equipment through a company that is new to the area — Universal Communications Systems of Roanoke, Va.

Two men from Communications Advisors, Inc., studied bids from Southwestern Bell, Communications Corporation of America and USC and determined the last bid was the cheapest.

Looking at the three on an apples-to-apples basis, USC is charging a total of $199,000 for the 180 phones which will be hooked up to 36 Bell telephone trunk lines.

Pay-out over five years for the equipment was listed as $4,790 a month for USC, $5,357 a month for CCA and $9,354 a month for Southwestern Bell.

Joe Moss of the consulting firm said that USC was checked out and he had received no complaints about their service. Roger Hassen of USC promised the council a service center will be established in Midland and vital components will be stored in City Hall. For major problems, personnel can be in Midland in less than four hours, he said.

THE SYSTEM ALREADY serves 38 states and is installed in numerous hospitals, stores and military bases around the country, including Lackland Air Force Base in Texas.

The equipment by Hitachi-America has a life span of 25 years, said Hassen. The system is capable of being expanded to 1,000 lines. The new system will allow the city to use a microwave tower for long distance calls, thus saving about 35 percent, said a city official.

In other action, the council approved seeking bids for remodeling a part of the basement in Midland Center for meeting rooms. Cost estimated by architect Rusty Arnold is $36,000.

A heliport on top of the BTA Building at 104 S. Pecos St. was approved. The item has been on the agenda since April, but the council first investigated what types of regulations it wanted to institute. The ordinance spelling out those requirements was approved on second reading.

R.H. Davis was turned down on his request to put in a nursery on his five acres of land at the southeast corner of Bluebird Lane and Midkiff Road, and Citimedia (KNFM radio) was approved to install a radio antenna next to their building at Wall Avenue and South M Street.

Thai vocational students continue tradition of violence

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vocational students have laid down their anti-government banners and have turned on each other in a renewal of a long tradition of interschool violence.

In recent months, vocational students have hijacked buses, knifed rivals on the streets and hurled plastic explosives into a school compound after one of their colleagues had his pen taken by students from a rival school.

Analysts say the student outbursts are part of a rising tide of violence in Thai society, but they added that they are inclined to dismiss them as a youthful "phase" with no real criminal implications.

This reservoir of violence, however, has been open in the past to exploitation from different political quarters.

In 1973, vocational students became heroes when they helped overthrow an unpopular military dictatorship.

A year ago, a right-wing general turned politician, Maj. Gen Sudsai Hasdin, used his influence on the students to mount a demonstration at the Soviet Embassy, protesting an alleged Soviet role in supporting a Vietnamese military incursion across the Cambodian border into Thailand.

But political motives appear lacking this year. The students have formed into larger gangs and brandish more sophisticated weapons — sharpened rulers, knives, pistols, plastic explosives and hand grenades.

Police statistics show that 1,862 students at all levels were arrested between January and June in interschool clashes.

The vocational students are young males aged 18-22 learning electrical, mechanical and construction trades. They typically enter vocational school after high school, while others with higher grades go on to universities.

Thailand has one of the highest homicide rates in Asia, with deadly weapons in use to settle even minor quarrels. But experts say that the vocational students are harmless as individuals, and are unlikely to go on a solo spree of robbery or murder.

Psychiatrist Arun Chavanasai explains the their actions as "mass or group psychology."

"These vocational students have to contend with a stigma of inferiority to the elite university students, and when they are together their egos are boosted," he said.

"Fighting in the streets is one way to compensate for their (feelings of) inferiority. It's the image they want to show — bold and always ready to fight for a friend," said Arun, who is chief of the psychiatry division of Phramongkut Hospital.

Education Ministry officials claim that the troublesome vocational students are those attending private schools. They add that students in government vocational schools have rarely been in trouble because the Education Ministry controls them.

Thailand has about 1,000 private vocational and technical schools which operate for profit. The government runs about 100 such schools.

University student activities have also changed since the violent political confrontations of the 1970s.

In the 1973 uprising, university students recruited vocational students to do the most of the fighting against government troops, eventually leading to the fall of the military government.

Both vocational students and university students were politically active until a bloody clash between students and troops in October, 1976, which was followed by a military coup and restrictions on student political activities.

Since the ouster of the civilian government of 1976, universities have stopped regarding themselves as the "watchdog for democracy," and instead have more directly taken up public welfare issues.

Soviet food hopes in jeopardy

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet hopes for improved food supplies this year appear in jeopardy because of stagnating milk and meat production and an unseasonably hot summer that threatens the grain crop.

The Soviets, who had aimed for a record grain harvest this year, now face the prospect of record grain imports.

President Leonid I. Brezhnev demanded last February that authorities assure "uninterrrupted food supplies," and said the government was preparing a "special food program" to improve the situation.

The full program still has not been announced, and official statistics released late last month showed no gains in meat production compared to the first half of 1980, while milk production declined.

Authorities have called for substantial increases in both milk and meat output each year from 1981 through 1985. Soviet per-capita meat consumption is about 60 percent of that in the United States, and fresh fruits and vegetables are often in short supply.

Soviet journalist Lev Voskresensky wrote recently that the daily food consumption here is 3,200 calories but that "Soviet people get these calories mostly from potatoes, bread, cereals, flour and macaroni. The part of the daily diet provided by valuable protein products such as meat, milk, eggs, etc., is lower than the standards recommended by dieticians."

The national grain crop this year may fall well short of the target of 238 million to 243 million metric tons — which would have exceeded 1978's record harvest of 237.4 million tons.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture predicted in July that the 1981 Soviet harvest will be about 200 million tons, but Western and other experts here believe it could be even lower unless farmers quickly reap grain that is ripening fast in the hot, dry weather.

The Soviet newspaper Rural Life said in a recent article, "The speed of harvesting is slightly faster than in previous years, but weather conditions make it necessary to shorten the period to a minimum."

Official concern about the harvest is reflected in active negotiations for imported meat and grain, and new warnings against wasting bread.

The government subsidizes bread production, and a loaf costs as little as 14 kopeks (19 cents). To eliminate waste, the Communist Party organ Pravda said, there were plans to produce smaller bread loaves.

Soviet negotiators recently concluded deals for meat from Argentina and grain from Brazil.

Reagan has political advantage concerning economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to the state of the economy, President Reagan has been pretty lucky.

Inflation is coming down, oil supplies are plentiful, food prices have stabilized, the economy has not collapsed under the weight of record interest rates, the dollar is almightly overseas once again, and — at least for now — even unemployment is on the wane.

The new president cannot claim much credit for these trends, which began before he moved into the White House last January. But he certainly can take political advantage of them.

When his presidency began, Reagan said the economy was in a mess. Seven months later, he has noted the improvements.

The economic fortune already has helped Reagan sell his controversial budget and tax cuts to Congress. The receding inflation rate made it easier for members of Congress to vote for a tax cut that opponents labeled as inflationary. Similarly, it was easier to vote for cuts in food stamps and unemployment benefits when the jobless rate was declining, rather than rising as widely predicted.

The lack of an economic crisis also has spared Reagan a major distraction at a time when he was concentrating on winning enactment of his economic proposals.

Reagan's string of good luck is something his predecessor could have used. Instead, Jimmy Carter seemed to be a victim of economic misfortune.

The Iranian revolution triggered a worldwide oil shortage in 1979 that sent energy prices soaring and rekindled double-digit inflation in the United States. Bad weather contributed to higher than expected food prices from 1978 through 1980. The U.S. dollar plummeted on the foreign exchanges, forcing Carter to rush to its aid.

Some critics suggest many of Carter's problems were of his own making. His administration might have prevented the 1979 oil shortage had it remained supportive of the late shah of Iran. And Carter might have kept inflation down and the dollar up had he held a tighter rein on federal spending and encouraged the Federal Reserve Board to continue a tight-money policy.

But surely Carter could not be blamed for last year's severe summer drought and other bad weather responsible for rising food prices any more than Reagan can be credited for the mild winter weather and unexpected surplus of beef cattle that have held food prices steady most of this year.

The most encouraging economic development since Reagan took office has been a steady decline in the inflation rate to less than 10 percent for the first time in more than two years. Economists attribute the drop, which began last year, almost exclusively to the stablization of energy and food prices.

The current oil glut is mainly due to a combination of energy conservation by the major consuming nations and the decision by Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, to keep production up so that prices would not rise.

Reagan's economic advisers, who estimate it will take at least a year for the president's budget and tax cuts to produce positive results, acknowledge their man has benefited from some good luck thus far.

"The good Lord has smiled on the American people since Ronald Reagan took office," the president's chief economic adviser, Murray L. Weidenbaum, told a Senate committee seeking explanations for why inflation has been moderating.

But Reagan's advisers say the president has enhanced his breaks by making right decisions early on and spurring the public to adopt an optimistic economic outlook.

For example, the administration contends Reagan's decision in January to hasten the removal of federal price controls from domestic crude oil has helped sustain the oil surplus.

Reagan's desire for the Federal Reserve Board to maintain its tight-money policy at the cost of continued high interest rates will mean permanently lower inflation, his advisers say.

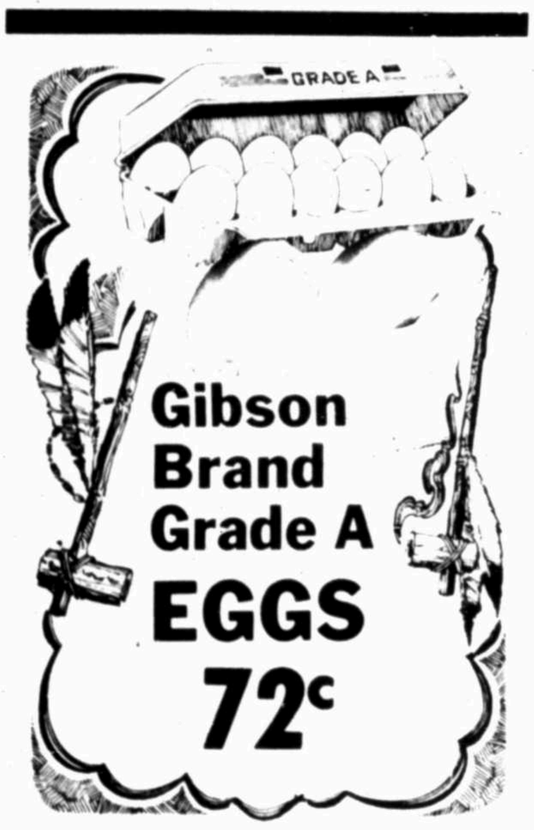

The high interest rates are weakening the economy but an unexpectedly large spurt of economic activity in the first quarter of this year may minimize the damage the high rates will cause later in the year.

There also is a positive side effect from the high U.S. interest rates — a stronger dollar overseas. Because foreign investors have been attracted by the high American rate, the dollar has climbed to a 10-year high against European currencies.

Meanwhile, the nation's unemployment rate defied every prediction by falling to 7 percent in July, the lowest rate in 15 months. Economists had expected the rate to rise from the June level of 7.3 percent because of recent evidence that economic activity is falling.

Some economists suggested unemployment dropped because businesses are holding onto workers in anticipation of an economic boost from Reagan's tax cut and the expected rise in defense spending later this year.

Defense may be most serious issue between Japan, U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — The wide gap in U.S. and Japanese views on how much Japan should spend on its military forces will be the "most irritating, most serious" issue between the two allies for the next few years, according to well-informed Japanese sources.

The Reagan administration considers Japan's present and planned defense force inadequate to meet even a minimum threat from the Soviet Union. It is pushing hard to get the Japanese to beef up their forces and sharply increase defense spending.

But while Japanese officials agree that they must improve their military, they say they are already spending as much as possible, especially since Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's government is making serious efforts to cut back on overall public spending.

Lt. Gen. William Ginn of the U.S. Air Force, commander of U.S. Forces in Japan, claimed at a news conference recently that Japan's military is unable to repel "even the most limited, conventional attack."

He and other Americans say the Japanese army, navy and air force — called Self Defense Forces — lack coordination. The Americans also maintain that until recently there were no plans for cooperation with U.S. forces in case of attack, that Japanese forces are badly undermanned and their supplies and equipment are inadequate.

"Only three out of 50 or 60 ships have anti-aircraft missiles," said one U.S. Embassy official, who asked not to be identified. "Their reserves of ammunition are variously estimated at from 11 minutes to 5-10 days.

"Their bases and radar sites have no protection. They're very vulnerable," he added. "The Self Defense Forces have a lot of things to do — it will be very expensive (to improve them)."

"It is important to the peace and stability of Japan and Northeast Asia that Japan help us by assuming some of the self-defense responsibilities in and around Japan which are now borne by the United States," Gen. Ginn said.

There is no real possibility that Japan will meet the Reagan administration's demands on the issue, well-informed Japanese sources said, asking to remain anonymous, as most Japanese officials do when speaking on sensitive issues.

In fact, the sources added, another sharp dispute looms with Washington later this year, when the Japanese Finance Ministry is expected to cut the proposed 7.5 percent increase in the next fiscal year's defense budget — a boost the Americans already say is too little.

The Carter administration was angered last year when the Finance Ministry whittled a proposed 9.7 percent increase which the Americans thought was final down to 7.6 percent.

"The United States is very serious about this," one Japanese source said after the recent confidential consultations in Hawaii between military officials of the two countries. "They repeatedly stressed that the next five-year period is crucial, vital to the West."

Japan has the world's 8th-largest military force, but defense spending is limited by a 1976 Cabinet decision to less than 1 percent of gross national product, compared to 5 percent for the United States, about 3 percent for NATO nations and 12 percent for the Soviet Union.

In fiscal 1981, Japan will spend $11 billion on defense — 0.91 percent of GNP. The official said the 1983-87 five-year plan, now being worked out by the Defense Agency, would bring military capability up to the level outlined in a 1976 defense outline, and spending to about 1.5 percent of GNP, which is the sum of all the nation's goods and services.

"At Hawaii, U.S. officials said our pace of improvement was much too slow," said the official, who attended the talks. "They said the plan will be obsolete in the '80, and Japn is taking six years to reach even that level.

"They floated figures on submarines, anti-submarine warfare ships and fighter squadrons that are well over the '76 program. To accommodate (U.S. requests) we would have to abandon the '76 plan, and that's politically impossible.

"For instance," he said, "the '76 outline calls for 16 subs. The United States suggested we need 25. The plan calls for 60 anti-submarine warfare ships. They suggested 70."

He said the U.S. officials also had asked Japan to contribute more to salaries for the 2,000 Japanese employees at U.S. bases here, and help pay base utility costs. Japan now pays about $75 million a year of those personnel costs, while the United States pays $400 million, plus an additional $100 million in utility bills. About 45,000 U.S. military personnel are stationed in Japan.

The official estimated that meeting the U.S. request would require Japan to increase defense spending by 15-20 percent a year for five years. That, he said, was politically and financially impossible.

U.S. officials claim the actual amount of money involved in a major effort could be found if the Japanese government wanted to.

Arming China

"Playing the China card" may sound tricky and triumphant, but the name of the game is peril, not poker.

Secretary of State Aleander Haig's announcement during a visit to China that the administration is open to sales of military equipment to Red China was greeted with unease in many quarters. White House sources quickly got out word that things are not all that far advanced. Public discussion of arms sales was planned only later, when Chinese leaders visit this country, officials said.

Since Haig's visit, the Chinese have made changes in leadership that, though expected, nevertheless create uncertainties. But were the leadership outlook more stable, there would still be reason for concern about substantial sale of jet and computer age weapons to China.

The reason are many. First, such action is provacative in the most immediate way both to Russia, nervous historic enemy of China, and to other Asian nations over which China looms as a giant with a history of expanionism.

Second, like it or not, America is encumbered in much of the world with an image of the peddler of death-dealing weapons. It is one thing to assure that our defenses are adequate to the world's perils under Russia's stimulation, it is another to give Russia a high-visibility excuse to portray the United States as stalking the globe arming all potential enemies of the Soviet.

We should make allowance for the maneuvering needs of diplomacy, including the strong possibility that the Reagan administration doesn't intend to channel arms to China in the coming four years.

The administration is correct in its stern reaction to Cuban communists and other Moscow surrogates stirring up trouble in Central America.

There is nothing wrong in making clear to Russia that continued expanionism in the Middle East, Southwest Asia and Africa, or a Poland thrust, will push China and the U.S. closer. The same is true of joint Chinese U.S.-electronic surveillance of Russia already under way. But we must be clear about the risks of waking the Asian giant and then having a disagreement after he is alert.

To say that China is "useful," the traditional cold-blooded view of world power politics, is not to say that it has forever ceased to be a threat to stability and peace. Beyond that is the queston of human freedom, a scarce commodity in China.

Some are too young to remember the seemingly endless hordes of Chinese soldiers that rushed from the North, bugles screaming, and nearly knocked a big, modern American force entirely out of Korea three decades ago.

American door-opening is a decade old, yet trade-development relations with China are still insubstantial and nearly chaotic. Russia fears China with good reason. The United States would be wise to understand why.

Synfuel surprise

The program set up by Congress last year to subsidize production of synthetic fuels is having a difficult birth. Former President Carter, who backed the program, did not have time to set up the government's Synthetic Fuels Corp. to administer it. President Reagan, who is no enthusiast for such subsidies, has been in no hurry to pick up where the Carter administration left off.

The congressional act envisions using up to $88 billion of future revenues from the so-called windfall profits tax on oil for the synfuel program. Budget Director David Stockman who opposed the program as a member of Congress last year, is still arguing against it in the Reagan White House, contending that the rising price of oil will make synthetic fuel plants profitable without government subsidies.

That makes sense, and Mr. Stockman's view seems to jibe with the President's position that the forces of a free marketplace can do more to stimulate energy production than government programs. It comes as a surprise, then, that Mr. Reagan has overruled Mr. Stockman to approve government aid for three synthetic fuel projects — a plan in North Dakota to convert coal into natural gas, and two plants in Colorado to produce oil from shale.

Mr. Reagan may be in a poor position to defy the intent of Congress on the synfuel program, or to block projects that are the pets of certain members of Congress. He has just emerged from a round of bargaining on Capitol Hill to line up votes for his tax and budget cuts, and may have some political IOUs to settle.

Given the congressional interest in synfuel projects that can bring federal money flowing into various states, Mr. Reagan faces problems in the future if he hopes to reduce the scope of the program. Nevertheless, consistency in his energy policy may demand that he give the new Synthetic Fuels Corp. a more modest mandate than the one President Carter had in mind.

ART BUCHWALD

Washington will never be young again

It is not easy to write an obituary for a newspaper. The death of a newspaper in any country is a tragedy. The passing of a very good newspaper is doubly so.

Art Buchwald

The "Washington Star" was a very good newspaper. It had some of the best writers in the business. It was lively, it was informative and it was honest. Because it was printed in the capital, it had a much greater impact on the nation than any paper of its size and circulation.

With its death many important voices have been stilled — voices that should be heard by those who make our laws and decide our destinies.

A newspaper is a very human thing. It has a heart, a soul, and a mind of its own. When you first hear the news of the death of a paper, you think of the people who worked on it, loved it and brought it to life every day.

Their loss is incalcuable. To many it was not just their livelihood that has been snuffed out — but a part of themselves. It's hard for someone who has not worked on a newspaper to understand how personal it becomes. To the employees, the newspaper they work for is family. To some, their newspaper is the only family they have.

And so the death is a wrenching experience, the loss is greater than they imagine and a part of it remains with them for the rest of their lives.

The reader, though not as emotionally involved, also experiences a disquieting sense of loss. Something has gone out of his life, too. The mourning period may be much shorter for the reader but he or she knows instinctively that when a paper dies, everyone is poorer.

There are no villains in the death of the "Washington Star." It died from natural economic causes.

For those of us who worked for the competition there is no joy in the "Star's" demise. The joy was picking up the "Star" every day and seeing what it was doing that was better, and forcing us to be better because they were so good at what they were doing.

Without a second newspaper, Washington will be a much quieter town — much too quiet for comfort.

When President Kennedy was assassinated, Mary McGrory, one of the paper's great writers, said to Pat Moynihan, "We'll never laugh again." and Moynihan said, "We'll laugh again, Mary, but we'll never be young again."

It seems a fitting epitaph for the death of the Washington Star...

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter's Vesco role shady, circumstantial

WASHINGTON — Ex-President Jimmy Carter may personally have sent the "signals" that induced fugitive financier Robert Vesco in 1977 to transfer $10 million worth of his stolen securities to a cabal of Georgians with White House connections.

Jack Anderson

This startling possibility has been raised by sources close to the aborted investigation. They carefully point out that Carter's role was suspicious but circumstantial.

In return for the loot, the Georgians promised to get the federal government off Vesco's back. But before the wary fugitive would part with $10 million of his prime stock, he wanted some indication that the Georgians had the clout to keep their end of the bargain. He demanded two "signals."

First, he wanted President Carter to telephone the Costa Rican president, Daniel Oduber, and mention Vesco's name. The international swindler was then hiding out in Costa Rica. He explained that Oduber was in his "hip pocket" and would pass on the message.

Justice Department papers show that one of the conspirators, Spencer Lee IV, an Albany, Ga., attorney, contacted the White House on Feb. 8, 1977, and described the bribery scheme to presidential aide Richard Harden.

The next day, Carter put through a telephone call to Oduber in Costa Rica. Carter later explained to FBI agents that he had merely called to congratulate the Costa Rican president on receiving a conservation award.

Vesco's second demand was that the Justice Department drop its efforts to extradite him from Costa Rica. White House records show that on Feb. 15, 1977, Harden slipped into the oval office for a five-minute huddle with the president. Immediately thereafter, Carter dispatched a handwritten note to Attorney General Griffin Bell: "Please see Spencer Lee from Albany when he requests an appointment."

Investigators suspect that Lee, with the White House's blessing, intended to ask Bell to stop extradition proceedings against Vesco. Apparently, Lee never called upon the attorney general. It wasn't necessary; the White House apparently ordered that the extradition effort be dropped.

Last September, a former New York Times investigative reporter, Charles Kaiser, was told that the decision to halt the extradition proceedings was made by Carter himself. Kaiser, lacking the backup documents now available to me from Justice Department files, never wrote the story. But he has agreed to provide me with a sworn affidavit.

His information came from Robert Fiske, the former U.S. attorney in New York City, who was pursuing a five-count indictment against Vesco. According to Fiske, there was a dispute between the State and Justice departments over dropping the extradition effort.

In an interview with my associate Indy Badhwar, Fiske hedged on the question of Carter's personal involvement. All Fiske would confirm was that the ultimate decision to stop the extradition proceedings was made in the White House.

Griffin Bell recalled the dispute over the extradition and acknowledged meeting with Fiske on the subject. But Bell said he "could not remember the White House being in on the decision."

Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, apprised of Fiske's statement about the White House intervention, responded cryptically: "I can't say that's not the way it happened."

The Carter version of these events is that the extradition effort was abandoned for tactical reasons. Instead of continuing to seek Vesco's extradition, the Justice Department supposedly decided to bring pressure on Costa Rica to expel him.

The extradition proceedings were dropped in June 1977. Vesco left Costa Rica a year later for the Bahamas for his own reasons, not because of any U.S. pressure.

MARSHALL PROTESTS: Secret congressional criticism of the Labor Department's lackadaisical investigation of the Teamsters Union published in this space has drawn a rebuttal from former Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and his subordinates.

In short, Marshall claims the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee just didn't know what it was talking about when it faulted him for failing to pursue criminal prosecution of union officials and others accused of looting the pension fund. He pointed out that it was a joint agreement among the Labor, Justice and Treasury departments and the Internal Revenue Service that limited the investigation to civil recovery of pension fund losses.

Marshall also noted that he ordered the internal Labor Department report that wound up criticizing the department's handling of the probe. The Senate subcommittee charged that the report was improperly destroyed to cover up the department's mishandling of the investigation.

In Marshall's favor, the subcommittee report he objects to conceded that "during the four years of Secretary Marshall's tenure, it is beyond question that the (pension) fund's financial picture improved." The report also acknowledged that the Labor Department successfully removed pension fund trustees who were charged with abusing their trust, and placed the fund's assets in the hands of independent managers.

And finally, the subcommittee report said, "The subcommittee does not doubt Secretary Marshall's sincerity and good intentions in desiring to bring about reform in the pension fund."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 12, the 224th day of 1981. There are 141 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 12, 1898, the peace protocol ending the Spanish-American War was signed.

On this date:

In 1851, Isaac Singer of Pittstown, N.Y., was granted a patent on his sewing machine.

In 1898, the Hawaiian Islands in the Pacific were transferred to the United States.

In 1914, Britain declared war on Austria-Hungary at the start of World War I.

And in 1972, the last American ground combat unit in South Vietnam was de-activated.

Ten years ago: Syria severed diplomatic relations with Jordan as border fights erupted.

Five years ago: right-wing Christians in Lebanon announced they had captured the Palestinian camp of Tel Zaatar after a one-month seige.

One year ago: the Democratic National Convention handed Sen. Edward Kennedy, D.-Mass., a major consolation victory by agreeing to the main points of his economic platform.

Today's birthdays: actor John Derek is 55 years old. Singer Buck Owens is 52.

Thought for today: Man cannot discover new oceans unless he has courage to lose sight of the shore. — Andre Gide, French writer (1869-1951).

A CHANGING WORLD

Patients, Medicare ripped off by doctors, hospitals

These are the days when millions of Americans, particularly oldsters and even young wage-earners, worry about Social Security, Medicare and associated programs. Will these programs survive? What has gone wrong?

John Pinkerman

At the same time, many Americans also worry about hospital bills, doctors' bills and the costs of medicines. Those who do not encounter the financial concerns attendant to illness encounter rumors, secondhand stories and other unconfirmed complaints regarding what appear to have been excessive charges by doctors and hospitals.

However, when a neighbor presents the written evidence of almost unbelievable itemized bills, only one conclusion is possible. That is that some doctors and some hospitals are regularly and consciously ripping off patients, Medicare and the American taxpayers — with the active assistance of those who preside over Medicare bills and patients who feel they have no choice but to pay up.

As for the doctors, they have the best of both worlds — reimbursement for excessive charges from both Medicare and patients.

The particular case this reporting exercise covers involves an eight-day hospital stay with four different doctors being involved. The illness was not routine but neither was it life-threatening. The total tab, so far, according to the neighbor's bills, has been $7,087.

That is not exorbitant, as some hospital bills go these days, but are you prepared for some of these itemizations — 161 in all in that eight-day stay:

A simple emergency room dressing, $34.10. Less than 12 hours in an incredibly noisy intensive-care unit at $665. Seven days in a double room at $220 a day. Or, try this one: a bandage similar to a Band-Aid at $4.60. Something listed as "routine urinalysis," $12.25. Thirty minutes' use of an operating room stall at $161. A tiny portion of milk of magnesia with cascara at $1.25 (the cost, perhaps 10 cents).

One Tylenol pill with codeine at $1.50 (cost, perhaps 5 cents). Twenty-one charges of $17.50 each for use of a small tube (cost, perhaps $1) to test breathing, the procedure being administered by the patient himself.

One of the most favored hospital rip-offs of Medicare is in charges for laboratory work. One "for instance": two blood cross-matches, $97.50.

Because Medicare (or some other insurance program) pays for these charges, they are not assessed against the patient or his family. And, Medicare seems to pay them readily without protest. However, none of this makes the procedure right, particularly for a hospital that boasts, as all do, that it is a "non-profit" institution. It is a crime against taxpayers who finance Medicare and it is a crime against those who put up with frequently rising health insurance premiums.

Doctors, of course, share in the rip-off. Some doctors visit hospital patients daily whether they are needed or not. They may visit eight or 10 in an hour's time at the hospital — at $40 each, for an hourly rate of $400. They bill Medicare or collect directly from the patient, and if Medicare doesn't pay the full freight, the patient makes up the difference, and is even grateful that his share of the total cost is so small. However, again the taxpayers are paying for the rip-off, as are those who pay health insurance premiums.

There likely is little that can be done about any of this. If Medicare was more alert in checking hospital bills, the hospital merely would bill the patient. The same would be true of the excessive doctors' bills.

But, the taxpayers, health insurance holders and patients are paying some outrageous charges to hospitals and doctors. And, heaven help the middle-income guy who doesn't happen to be old enough for Medicare and has no or insufficient self-financed, or employer health insurance.

Marxist guerrillas are winning propaganda war

WASHINGTON (AP) — While being held to a draw on the battlefield, Marxist guerrillas are "clearly winning" the propaganda war against American attempts to prevent a communist takeover in El Salvador, the U.S. ambassador to that country says.

"In the propaganda battle, we're not very good," while the guerrillas "are doing very well," Ambassador Deane Hinton said in an interview Monday night.

Some members of his own family "disagree profoundly" with American policy, Hinton said.

"They're clearly winning," the ambassador said of the guerrillas. "They're winning American public opinion, too. They have managed to portray the government as nothing but your typical bloodthirsty, autocratic, military dictatorship, which is wrong. They're just wrong.

"And people tend to believe it," he added. "Some of my own kids believe it."

Hinton, a career diplomat who is in Washington for consultations, said he does not disagree with human rights groups in the United States which complain about widespread abuses by Salvadoran security forces.

"There are a lot of things in San Salvador that I don't like one little bit," he said. "But what they don't seem to understand is that there's something worse that could happen."

Hinton left no doubt of his belief that the alternative to the ruling civilian-military junta is a Marxist-Leninist dictatorship.

And, he gave little credence to the claims of opposition leaders that peace will come to El Salvador only through negotiations between the government and guerrilla representatives.

He said the largest of the guerrilla groups has always scorned negotiations, insisting instead there are only two choices confronting the movement: "death or victory."

Hinton, who has served in El Salvador since spring, expressed confidence in the constitutional process now under way and which will culminate in presidential elections in 1983.

Even though some 18,000 persons have died in El Salvador in less than two years, fair elections can be held, he said.

"I'm convinced that there are going to be elections," he said. "I'm convinced there's going to be very widespread participation and that the results will be clean and honest and recognized as such."

Hinton said the guerrillas use many of the same tactics employed by the Viet Cong in Vietnam. "They don't stand and fight. They run away and come back after the Army leaves."

He said he is "absolutely certain" Nicaragua is continuing to send weapons to the insurgents but said he was not at liberty to discuss details of the Nicaraguan operation.

The Nicaraguan government has said it no longer engages in such activity but cannot r7le out the possibility of weapon being shipped through the country without the government's knowledge.

Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, the administration's chief spokesman for Latin American affairs, was to hold talks with Nicaraguan officials on that subject today in Managua.

Hinton said he doubts that the six Salvadoran servicemen being held in the slaying of four American missionary women will ever be convicted, though he personally is convinced they are "guilty as hell."

"The evidence that will be used in court is not normally the kind that would bring convictions in the Salvadoran legal system," Hinton said. "The rules of evidence are very different from our system."

The Newspaper BIBLE

IT'S NOT WHAT YOU KNOW BUT WHO YOU KNOW!

For salvation that comes from trusting Christ--which is what we preach--is already within easy reach of each of us; in fact, it is as near as our own hearts and mouths. For if you tell others with your own mouth that Jesus Christ is your Lord, and believe in your own heart that God has raised him from the dead, you will be saved. For it is by believing in his heart that a man becomes right with God; and with his mouth he tells others of his faith, confirming his salvation. For the Scriptures tell us that no one who believes in Christ will ever be disappointed. Jew and Gentile are the same in this respect: they all have the same Lord who generously gives his riches to all those who ask him for them. Anyone who calls upon the name of the Lord will be saved. (Romans 10:8-13)

(Jesus said) "If anyone publicly acknowledges me as his friend, I will openly acknowledge him as my friend before my Father in heaven. But if anyone publicly denies me, I will openly deny him before my Father in heaven." (Matt. 10:12-13)

And who is the greatest liar? The one who says that Jesus is not Christ. Such a person is antichrist, for he does not believe in God the Father and in his Son. For a person who doesn't believe in Christ, God's Son, can't have God the Father either. But he who has Christ, God' Son, has God the Father also. (I John 2:22-23)

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Beans are nutritious as well as inexpensive

Dear Dr. Solomon: Like many other people these days, I'm trying to cope with the high price of food and still provide my family with nutritious meals. I recall that when I was a young child during the Depression years of the 1930s, my mother would often serve beans because she said they were both nutritious and filling. Are beans really a healthful food, or are they just a relatively inexpensive way of filling one's stomach? If they do provide important nutrition, which kinds of beans would you recommend? — Mrs. C.K.

Dear Mrs. K.: Beans are a nutritious food, particularly when measured against the number of calories they supply. They are a good source of niacin, thiamin, riboflavin, vitamin B6, and folacin, as well as of minerals and trace elements. You can obtain the greatest benefit from serving beans by combining them with a small amount of grain or animal protein foods, such as fish, meat, cheese, corn, wheat, or other grain.

Different kinds of beans are most popular in different parts of the country. For example, while pinto beans ar used most often in the South and Southwest, navy beans are preferred in the Northeast, and the black-eyed pea (which is actually a bean) in the Midwest and South. You can also choose from lentils, lima beans, soy beans and a number of local varieties.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been told by my doctor that it is necessary for me to restrict my intake of sodium, and that I should therefore give up the practice of adding salt to my food at the table. However, it seems to me that some salt in the diet is necessary for everyone, and I don't understand this absolute restriction. As you've often mentioned, shouldn't moderation, rather than complete restriction, be the key? — Mr. H.P.

Dear Mr. P.: I'm afraid you misunderstand both the significance of sodium in the diet, and my own policy of moderation that I recommend for my patients and through this column. First in regard to the latter, moderation — whether in diet, exercise, or any other area — is a good rule for individuals with no outstanding health problems. However, there is no such thing as moderate use of alcohol by a confirmed alcoholic, or moderate consumption of pastries or other foods with a high sugar content by diabetics, or moderate cigarette smoking by anyone. Similarly, in your case, your physician apparently feels that even moderate use of salt at the table is inadvisable.

Moreover, if you are only rstricted to adding salt at the table, don't think that you are on a salt-free diet. Sodium compounds occur naturally in a number of foods including meats, fish, dairy products, and vegetables, and salt is added to foods during a number of food processing operations.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, August 13, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The late great Alfred Hitchcock was born on this date. Those born on this date are personable, sentimental and independent of mind. Although you find your greatest happiness by making others happy, you may have to be a bit less generous with your money this year. It is important that you develop better saving habits now. Instead of bestowing gifts on your friends and loved ones, give them encouragement and understanding. Romance will provide some of the year's brightest moments! Your career picks up steam when you display your leadership qualities. Be willing to explore new and unfamiliar areas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An initial feeling of boredom or indifference will be replaced with excitement as a result of today's events. Set yourself some new goals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Act quickly on a unique opportunity and you will make new financial gains. Acting out of character could bring some surprising benefits at work. Play your cards close to your chest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Loved one has ideas that can help you gain the attention you need. Evening hours will prove to be most productive. Confide in an old friend if planning a change of residence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Guard against being harsh or selfish when dealing with other people. Get better organized to take care of top priorities. Your rapport with someone special improves.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Attention to detail is the key to success in business. Put aside impractical hopes and wishes, and make wise work decisions. Be conservative in your dealings with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An unexpected visitor can cause a change in your business or personal plans. You benefit in amusing but lucrative ways! Influential is impressed by your ability to perform when under fire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Acknowledge your responsibilities and fulfill your obligations. Mate or partner will be understanding if you are under unusual pressure. A quiet evening at home holds special appeal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can be very persuasive in promoting both your ideas and yourself to friends, business groups. Let others know exactly where you stand. Pet project moves ahead and so does romance!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your income stabilizes. Investments in securities improve, easing your mind. Stick to your regular work, and avoid taking any new gambles. Tend to personal correspondence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You should be feeling more secure at work now. A bonus or promotion may be in the wind. Avoid extravagance when making work-related purchases. Socialize with people on the job scene.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get your priorities straight and sort out a complicated domestic situation. Your romantic prospects are excellent if you play your cards right! Seek financial advice from experts only.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Others may be unusually sensitive today. A relationship that has caused you some concern in the past now becomes easier to handle. Your friends are pleasant guests but could add to your expenses.

At least two books have been written recently about trump management, so you can understand how important this subject is. Here's a rule of thumb for drawing trumps: "If you can count enough tricks for your contract, draw trumps. If not, delay drawing trumps until you've planned your strategy."

After his partner opened one no trump, North used the Stayman Convention in the hope of locating a major-suit fit. When South showed a spade suit, North confidently raised to game.

West led the top of his club sequence. Declarer took the ace, crossed to the jack of trumps and led a heart to his king. West won and returned a trump, and declarer began to realize that he was in trouble. He tried to rescue something from the shambles by playing on diamonds, but East won the third diamond and played another trump. Declarer eventually had to settle for eight tricks—down two.

Declarer's trouble was that he didn't stop to count his tricks. Had he done so, he would have seen that he had only seven top tricks. Applying our rule, that means that declarer should have postponed drawing trumps.

The fact that declarer held all the high trumps should have alerted him to the possibility of using dummy's high trumps as ruffers. Add three ruffs to seven tricks, and you have enough to fulfill the game.

Declarer need only take advantage of the entries in his hand to ruff clubs in dummy. After winning the ace of clubs, declarer should ruff a club, cross to the ace of diamonds and ruff another club. Back to the king of diamonds for another ruff to guarantee ten tricks, and now declarer can afford to lead to the king of hearts in an effort to make an overtrick.

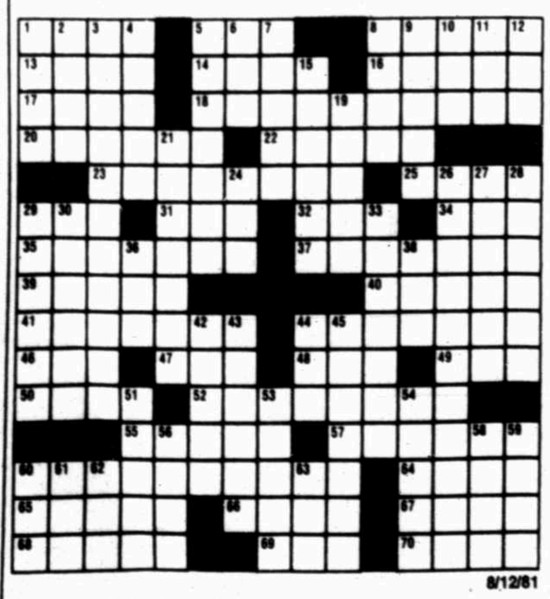

Note that declarer cannot afford to give up the lead more than once before scoring his ruffs. If he does so, the defenders can defeat him by returning a trump whenever they gain the lead.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? MISD's promotion policy discussed

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Midland Independent School District trustees Tuesday voted unanimously in favor of several policies for the promotion and retention of elementary students, and asked that some revisions be made to the criteria and be brought back to the school board.

The purpose, according to Manuel Carrasco, director of elementary education, was to "outline a more definitive procedure for retaining or passing a student."

Carrasco and MISD Deputy Superintendent Dr. Joseph P. Baressi Jr. told the board that 247 elementary students were retained last year. A total of 148 students in grades kindergarten through sixth were retained in 1979.

"I don't mind seeing a fair amount of retention," Superintendent Dr. James H. Mailey said. "We just want to strengthen the manner with which we move the students through the gates."

The suggested program presented to the board was, first, an elementary student would be retained if he did not pass reading and either math or language. He also must pass one subject in the spelling, social studies and science group.

If he fails to meet those requirements, then he must pass the minimum grade on the California Achievement Test.

For first graders, the minimum score is 1.6, 10 percent of the national norm. For sixth graders, the minimum score is 4.7, 20 percent of the national norm.

Baressi and Carrasco predicted that 10 percent of the Midland sixth graders would not achieve the minimum score. That means approximately 115 students who do not meet the first requirement will not pass the CAT and, therefore, will be retained.

If a student fails to pass both of the previous requirements, three options can be taken.

First, the student can repeat the grade. The program suggests that no restrictions be placed on how many times a pupil may be retained in the primary grades.

Second, the student may attend a summer school approved by the principal and those parties concerned.

The last option is if the indication is that the student is handicapped, he can be put into a special and more individualized program.

Baressi and Carrasco also outlined plans for a committee to meet with a retained student and his parents every six weeks. These conferences would assist the parents and the teacher in helping the child progress successfully through the year.

Trustee Ann Page requested that a revision be put into the policy so that a parent may request a child be reviewed by the committee for possible retainment.

She also said that the board would have to deal with enlarging the summer school program if the retainment program is to be put into effect. Presently the summer school program includes grades four and up.

Trustee Bill Jackson suggested that the board check to see if including first through third grades in summer school would be economically feasible.

In other business the board approved school meal recommendations. All increased lunch prices are as follows: elementary, 75 to 85 cents; secondary, 80 to 90 cents without dessert; school employees, $1.25 to $1.40 without dessert; visitors, $1.75 to $2.00 with dessert of the day.

Breakfast prices have increased from 40 to 50 cents for students, 70 to 80 cents for school employees and 80 to 90 cents for visitors.

Trustees also approved a group health insurance program for employees. The program will be on a minimum premium arrangement with the district agreeing to self-fund 90 percent of the health claims while the insurance company continues on the risk for any claims in excess of the self fund liability.

The board approved bids for alterations and an addition to the Midland High School Band Hall to Pace Construction and the replacement of ceiling material at Lee Freshman High School boys' gym to Mid-Way Construction.

Rep. Smith announces

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Carlyle Smith, a conservative Democrat who took a leading role in the Legislature's fight over congressional redistricting, has announced as candidate for speaker of the 1983 Texas House.

Smith, a Grand Prairie architect, said Tuesday he decided to run because other speaker candidates had failed to show any leadership.

More indictments returned in milk scheme

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A second set of indictments charging seven Mission school employees with conspiracy to bilk the federal government out of almost $500,000 culminated a year-long investigation into the operation of a school lunch program.

Federal grand jurors Tuesday accused an assistant school superintendent and six employees, who already had been named in a July 14 indictment, with participating in a five-year-long phony invoice scheme.

Tuesday's indictments, including one of 51-counts and another of 12, supercede last month's document and include charges of conspiracy, wire fraud, mail fraud, and misprison of a felony, said assistant U.S. Attorney Eddie Medrano.

School workers were accused in Tuesday's indictments of conspiring with employees of Golden Jersey Creamery in Edinburg to file false claims with the U.S. Agriculture Department on undelivered half pints of milk.

Grand jurors alleged school workers called the dairy with the number of half-pints needed for a certain amount of federal reimbursement, and then dairy employees completed phony delivery papers that school officials signed and filed with federal offices.

Assistant school superintendent Robert Harold Wicks was the only defendant charged with all counts in both indictment.

Wicks and food services director Michael Jon McCarthy were accused in the 12-count indictment Tuesday of making and mailing false claims for summer lunch program reimbursements.

Others indicted Tuesday included school employees Doylene Elliott Thompson, Gerardo Montoya Cortez, Angelica Hernandez Padron and former employees Edelmiro Garcia and Jane Alice Cook.

Five other people named in the seven-count July indictment, including four dairy workers, pleaded guilty Monday to one count of conspiracy in a plea bargain to drop the remaining counts.

Those who pleaded guilty were dairy general manager Frederick Norman Hagerdorn, dairy employees Jeannette Jay Hall, Duane Leroy Towne and Irma Marie Cortez and former school food services director Myrtice Irene Caddell.

The dairy, through Hagerdorn, also pleaded guilty.

The new indictments dropped all charges against dairy worker Jose Trevino Martinez, but named him and the five who pleaded guilty Monday as unindicted co-conspirators.

Criminal charges against the Mission Consolidated Independent School District also were dropped, Medrano said. The district will be investigated by the U.S. Justice Department office in Houston for possible civil violations, he added.

Wicks declined comment on charges against him but said the new indictments should vindicate the school system.

"We felt it was not legal for the school district to be indicted," Wicks said.

Medrano said the defendants will not be arrested as in July, when most of them spent a night in jail awaiting arraignment. All have posted bonds on the earlier charges and will be notified of new arraignment dates, the prosecutor said.

Senate excepts house version of bill legalizing bingo games

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators faced with a take-it-or-leave-it bingo bill accepted the House version and sent it to the governor after the Senate sponsor said it was better than nothing.

"I am in favor of responding to what the people of Texas want. If they want bingo, I'll sign the bill," said Gov. Bill Clements.

House members adjourned three hours before the Senate on Tuesday, the final day of the special legislative session, leaving senators the option of taking the House bill legalizing bingo or no bill at all.

Smith 'gave Clements hell'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General William French Smith and Texas Gov. Bill Clements have had a falling out that included an acrimonious telephne call in which Smith "gave Clements hell," Justice Department sources say.

The immediate issue was Clements vocal opposition to the Reagan adminstration's proposed immigration law reforms, which apparently surprised and angered Smith.

Longview woman criticizes books

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Norma Gabler of Longview and her conservative staff of textbook analysts asserted Tuesday that three homemaking books really are sex education texts.

Mrs. Gabler, who has protested texts for about 20 years, issued her criticism while a film crew from public television recorded her presentation for a documentary on textbook controversies.

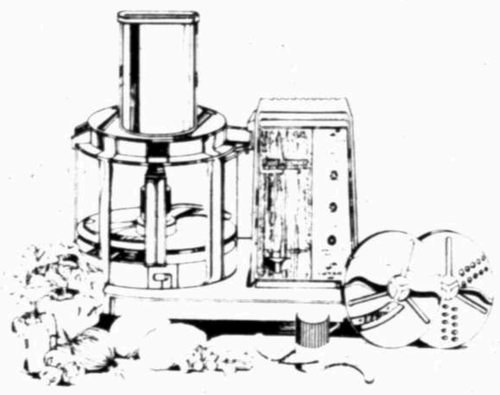

Bootleg cough syrup confiscated

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men were in custody after Houston narcotics officers seized 1,700 bottles of bootleg codeine cough medicine, a police spokesman said.

Police said the street value of the illegal cough medicine, which they said came from Mexico, is estimated at over $50,000.

She was born in April 1897 and raised in Tulsa, where she retired as a schoolteacher before moving to Sarasota.

Other survivors include another nephew, three great nephews, a great-great niece and a great-great nephew.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

Sheila Lemmon

Services for Sheila Lemmon, 63, of 3101 N. Midland Drive, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home chapel in Odessa. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Gardens.

Mrs. Lemmon died Monday night in Lubbock.

Pallbearers will be Earl Johnson, Phil Archer, Terry Taylor, Troy T. Hunt, Troy L. Hunt and John Erby.

E.W. Grieneeks

HOUSTON — Edward William Grieneeks III, infant son of Edward William Grieneeks II and Mary Adelyn Grieneeks, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Edward William Grieneeks of Midland, died Sunday after a brief illness.

Memorial services were to be at 10 a.m. today at Gloriedei Lutheran Church in Houston (Nassau Bay). Burial will be at Forest Park East Cemetery in Houston.

Edward was born May 8, 1981.

Other survivors include a sister and grandmother.

The family requests that memorials be sent to the Edward William Grieneeks III fund, High Risk Nursery, St. Joseph's Foundation, P.O. Box 1919, Houston, Texas 77001.

Odessan keynote speaker

Jo Berne Shedwin of Odessa will make the keynote address in the "Welcome to Midland" program for visitors, officers and delegates of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The conference is being held through Sunday at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church at the corner of Adams and Kentucky streets.

Mrs. Shedwin is a Baptist missionary and a member of the Education State Congress of Christian Education. She also is a teacher in the Ector County Independent School District.

Welcomes will be given by Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins, Midland Independent School District Superintendent Dr. James Mailey and the Rev. C.S. Johnson, president of Ministers Alliance. T.J. Patterson, editor of the Lubbock Digest, also will respond.

Music will be provided by soprano Flora Harris as well as a male chorus.

A reception will follow the program. The public is welcome to these events.

Airline employee bill stalls

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Legislation to let Continental Airlines create stock that its employees could buy to prevent a takeover has stalled in an Assembly committee.

The Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee decided Tuesday to delay the bill until next week to determine if the proponents and opponents could agree on letting 30,000 small stockholders vote on the plan.

"This should be resolved in the corporate world and not in the legislative world and bureaucratic world," said Assemblyman Bruce Young, D-Cerritos.

But the author of AB2271, Assemblyman Doug Bosco, D-Occidental, said he had the votes on the committee to approve the bill if necessary.

The picture as painted by Bosco seems simple and romantic: The employees of a money-losing airline band together to buy stock and prevent a takeover by an outsider from Texas.

He said his bill would "enable the employees of Continental Airlines to purchase a majority interest in the company they've worked hard over the years to build up" and stop "a Texas corporate speculator who decided several months ago he wanted to raid the assets of this corporation."

But the testimony revealed a complicated web — the late president of Continental initially suggested the employee stock plan, and the opponents contend it would hurt both employees and other stockholders.

Continental Airlines, based in Los Angeles, has been losing money for three years, icluding $36 million during the first half of 1981.

Texas International Airlines, based in Houston, bought 49 percent of the 15.4 million Continental shares last March and the stock was put in trust pending final federal approval, expected Oct. 1.

To prevent the takeover, employees led by pilots formed the Continental Employees Association and an Employee Stock Ownership Plan, or ESOP.

Paul Eckel, president of the CEA, told an April news conference that the idea for the employee stock plan came from Continental President A.L. Feldman, who committed suicide Sunday.

Under the plan, Continental would issue an additional 15.4 million shares. The ESOP would borrow $185 million from a group of banks, with Continental putting up the firm's airplanes as collateral, and buy the stock. Employees would forgo future wage increases totaling 15 percent of current salary.

State Corporations Commissioner Geraldine Green ruled last month that the proposed stock issue was "unfair, unjust and inequitable" to employees and the other 30,000 small shareholders.

Brady may face fourth operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary James S. Brady faces the likelihood of undergoing a fourth major operation because of a lingering complication in his long recovery from a bullet wound in the brain.

Doctors said Tuesday that Brady, wounded in the March 30 assassination attempt on President Reagan, is still troubled by a leakage of spinal fluid through his nose — a development that poses the risk of infection in the skull.

The problem began Aug. 3 when Brady suffered a major, epilepsy-like seizure. It apparently created pressure in the skull that forced the discharge of the fluid, said Dr. Dennis O'Leary, a spokesman for George Washington University Hospital.

Although the seizures have stopped, the spinal fluid continues leaking into the sinuses from inside the skull along a passage through bullet-damaged bone, O'Leary said.

"It's not life threatening in any sense," O'Leary said. "We don't see him as being in immediate danger from it. The only real risk is infection. That's a relatively low risk but it's a finite risk."

Many Spanish red wines of the Rioja area are comparable to wine of the French Bordeaux region, and Spanish whites make for excellent drinking. Spanish sparkling wines have also been receiving much attention. Many Spanish wines, even those in the "Reserva" class, are much more attractively priced than the comparable French, making this tasting an excellent opportunity to learn about Spanish wine and all wines tasted are available locally. The emphasis of this tasting will be on the wines of the "Rioja" district of Northern Spain.

Persons attending will be tasting a selection of quality red and white wines, one sherry, one madiera and one sparkling wine...

Clothing: Quality vs. budget

By SHARON A. HILLIS
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series on quality dressing for fall.)

QUALITY LEVEL KEYS

Clothing budget "strained at the seams?" Maybe your wardrobe is too high quality. That may sound "funny," but it's true. All clothing need not be of the same quality—high quality—to give good value. Several factors can help you decide quality levels for various clothing items.

QUALITY VS. PRICE

Be!ore looking for high quality or lower quality, it's wise to understand a basic quality-price fact of life: quality and price are not always related.

For example, an expensive fabric or garment may be of poor quality, but costly because of some unique characteristics.

You can't always rely on a manufacturer's brand name, either. Although the maker may have a reputation for a certain quality level, it still varies from garment to garment. And everyone can make a mistake now and then.

'WEARABLE TIME SPAN'

In deciding on quality needs, consider "werable time span" as a major factor—how long the item will be worn. This depends, also, on who will wear it and for what kind of activities. Then you can determine how "good" the quality must be to meet your needs.

For example, a pre-school child's play clothes receive hard wear. The child's activities train every seam and button and grind soil into the fabric. So, even though children outgrow play clothes quickly, the wear, tear and many washings make high quality in these items a good value. That means high-quality construction and high-quality fabric.

On the other hand, adult party clothes may not require such high quality. These items usually are not worn often, and they're worn in dimly lit rooms in many cases. So the best buy in formal wear (usually) may be the least expensive, even if that means poor construction and not-very-durable fabric.

FASHION TRENDS

Fashion trends are another major factor in deciding quality level for various wardrobe items. A garment that is faddish or highly fashionable today may not be so tomorrow. Buy knowing that these will need replacing more quickly than the more basic styles in your wardrobe.

RULE OF THUMB

Finally, here's a rule of thumb: Invest more time, money and effort in searching for good quality when it comes to clothes you'll wear the most. Select lower-quality items—usually less expensive—for spice and variety. When you follow this rule of thumb, your clothing budget wll "fit" better.

PRESSING KEYS

Look like a million—for little or no money. It's a very "pressing" issue these days, especially when it comes to real pressing, an important wardrobe key. Pressing is a major factor in clothing construction—and later in clothing care. It can "make or break" the "million-dollar look" that fashion-conscious consumers strive for.

Two first steps are necessary for successful pressing: have the right pressing equipment and use it properly. And remember, you can make your own equipment for little or no money. Some items include a seam roll, a tailor's ham, press cloths and point pressers.

SEAM ROLL

A seam roll is used to press seams open without making an impression of the seam allowance on the right side of the garment. You can make your own by rolling up magazines tightly and covering them with felt. Or use a heavy cardboard tube from wrapping paper—cut it to the desired length. You may want to cover the tube with a terry towel or felt, but you don't have to. Other variations can be made from a towel rolled one-inch in diameter, an old broom handle or a rolling pin wih one side smoothed off flat.

Another way to prevent the imprint of seam allowances on the right side of the garment is to use two strips of plain brown paper and insert them between each seam allowance and the garment before pressing.

To use the seam roll, simply let it serve as your "ironing board" and press the stitching line only. The curve of the seam roll underneath will keep most of the iron's flat surface from touching your fabric, so only the stitching itself will be pressed.

TAILOR'S HAM

A tailor's ham is used for pressing curved seams, darts, sleeve caps or any other rounded areas. As a substitute for a purchased tailor's ham, use a small hard pillow or a tightly balled terry towel or terry cloth pinned securely to hold its shape. Again, let this be your "ironing board" for the special curved item.

PRESS CLOTHS

Press cloths are placed to the fabric's "right side" to prevent shine and protect the fabric from the iron's heat. You can use a piece of lightweight muslin, cheesecloth, batiste, or a disposable paper towel. Here's how press cloths work: In pressing silk, for example, put the silk item on the ironing boad right-side-up. Put the press cloth to the right side of the item. Then press.

In pressing napped fabrics, such as velvet or corduroy, use a piece of the same fabric as a press cloth. Place the press cloth on the ironing board right-side-up and the garment on the press cloth right-side-down. Then press. This keeps the nap from crushing.

POINT PRESSERS

Point pressers are used to press seams open in the hard-to-reach areas, such as collars and lapel points. Use a pencil rolled in several layers of fabric—or use a woodencooking spoon, a wooden dowel with a point or several layers of cardboard cut in the shape of the pattern. Insert the pont presser down into the hard-to-reach area, and press.

Her best friend is protective hearing dog

By NOLAN DAVIS
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — Margarita Schaufele is deaf. A dog named Casper is her "ears."

Part collie, part mutt, Casper is a so-called hearing dog.

Schaufele, 26, got him two years ago from the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

At home, Casper is trained to get Schaufele's attention, gently, whenever her alarm clock or microwave oven buzzer goes off.

Away from home, he also is prepared to, not so gently, defend her life.

"Someone tried to reach in my car outside a bowling alley recently, and Casper barked and snapped at the person," Schaufele said. "He really protected me."

Born deaf in Mexico City, Schaufele rarely speaks. Though she speaks both Spanish and English, she usually communicates in sign language, or through interpreters.

Reticent to talk about herself, Schaufele became downright chatty when asked if she loves her dog.

"I'm crazy about him," she said, smiling as she made her signs. "He always obeys me. He has a lovely personality and follows me everywhere I go. He works all the time. He's happy, too. I can tell because his tail wags. We always play. We play ball. I throw the ball and he retrieves it. And I have a rubber doughnut ring. We play tug.

"If he's running after the ball and the phone rings, he'll stop regardless of what he's doing, and tell me. He has onlymissed once — when he was asleep."

Schaufele is a secretary at Deaf Community Services of San Diego, which provides a number of services for tne hearing impaired. The center maintains a communications relay network which allows deaf people to "talk" on the telephone via teletype machines.

When Schaufele's home telephone rings, Casper runs to her, stands on his hind legs and nudges her. She answers by placing the phone in a coupling device connected to a TDD (Telephone communication Device for the Deaf).

The machine translates the caller's audible sounds into print. Schaufele's replies are typed back. If the caller does not have a TDD, he may route his call through the Deaf Community Center relay service. Workers at the relay will "translate" Schaufele's replies back into words.

Ironically, dogs like Casper are part of the high technology deaf people are now using to enhance their lives.

"He's a kind of warm-bodied way to replace some electronics," said Pat Siegler, director of Deaf Community Services.

Possessing a hearing dog has allowed Schaufele to have a number of amenities previously denied the deaf.

Besides the telephone, microwave and alarm clock, Casper is trained to alert Schaufele to her doorbell, fire alarm, smoke alarm and car alarm. He hasn't had to warn of danger yet. But one night last year, her compact car was stolen from outside her house. Now that the car is equipped with an alarm, Schaufele is confident that her nearing dog will be alerted to any attempted car theft.

"And when I'm traveling," she says, "I can take my dog anywhere — restaurant, airport, hotel — because of his orange collar and identification card. People read his identification card and let us pass. That's great. If I had to leave my dog at home, it would break my heart."

She leaves him at home while she's at work, however. Then, he doubles as a sentry until she or her husoand, Robert, comes home. Robert, an architectural engineer, also is deaf.

The Schaufele's twin handicaps made it easy for them to get Casper. The San Francisco SPCA, Siegler said, gives priorityto families where both spouses are deaf. Single deaf people also get priority. Then come single hard-of-hearing people. People in "mixed marriages," where one partner can hear, get lowest priority.

Schaufele said, "People from the SPCA gave a demonstration. They said it costs $2,500 to train each dog. I applied to San Francisco and had to wait for six months. Finally, they gave us Casper — for free."

World 'chutzpah' master

He instructs students on how to successfully break rules

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — He kisses strangers on the street and cajoles his way out of traffic tickets. Now, self-defined "world chutzpah master" Richard Wexler is sharing his brash and beguiling skills with classrooms full of giggling grown-ups.

Twice a month, Wexler — a classically-trained violinist known for his theater-district street performances — puts on his bold-colored chutzpah clothes and drives his blatantly unlicensed moped to the private Rhodes School on Manhattan's Upper West Side.

There, he becomes part cheerleader, part evangelist and part clown, finally winning a round of applause after putting his students on the spot for three hours in an effort to chip away some of their inhibitions.

"My job in the span of three hours is to let the students have the experience of breaking the rules and seeing what happens," he says. "I leave them with a doubt about the way they live their lives, and plant a seed in their guts that grows chutzpah."

Audacity, along with a sense of "playfulness," are the main ingredients of "chutzpah," a Yiddish word that Wexler says can apply to people from all walks of life.

Wexler, who also dabbles in broadcasting, acting and "public relations," has used his chutzpah as a street performer for more than a decade, appearing on TV talk shows, and in newspapers, magazines and a book about "Street People."

An inventive, animated talker, he tells his students that he has used chutzpah "in ways that would shock you" — like running onto an airport taxiway, trailed by security guards, after a plane carrying his dog pulled away from the gate without him.

"The plane stopped, so I laid down flat in front of it and started screaming, 'I'll sue the airline.' It was more acting than real," says Wexler. "The pilot was flabbergasted. They checked and found out the dog was on the plane, so they returned to the gate and I got on."

At the time, he says, "Richard Wexler and His Piano-Playing Dog" were flying to a job on a cruise ship. The ship's passengers were sympathetic, Wexler says, when he admitted he had lied about the dog's piano-playing abilities so his employers would allow his pet on the cruise.

Wexler — whose age varies from the early to late 30s, depending on who's asking — recently used his entrepreneurial instincts to sell chutzpah through the Learning Annex, which sets up the classes at Rhodes School.

In the classroom, singing and shouting are in store for his unsuspecting students, who are about to undergo a lesson in "being your own hero."

Wexler's students start their evening milling around the classroom with plastic cups of wine, choosing a stranger to become their partner, or "ally."

Then, the two "allies" stand before the class as Wexler directs them to discuss, in loud voices, why they chose each other, or what they think of their partner's body. Two women are instructed to touch each other's faces, while another is persuaded to pinch her male partner's backside.

"The point is that we're not very free. We're very sensitive, very afraid," Wexler tells them.

Bringing damaged trees to life

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Trees in many areas have been ravaged by gypsy moth caterpillars, leaving them stripped of leaves and thus weakened. It is important that they establish new growth as soon as possible. Feed and water these defoliated trees promptly to nurse them back to health.

Ethel Daniels of West Des Moines, Iowa, who has been in the tree-feeding business for many years, advises:

"All feeding of trees should be done in a ring around the outermost reaches of the branches and at intervals of about 30 inches. For trees with a wide branch span, it is advisble to repeat this process in a ring halfway between the outer branches of the trees."

Mrs. Daniels, whose Ross Daniels Co. specializes in root-feeder devices and nutrients, says root feeding helps create new growth. Plant-food cartridges that are high in nitrogen are placed in a root-feeder chamber attached to a garden hose and inserted into the soil. When the water is turned on, it rapidly dissolves the tablet and delivers nutrients.

Reader wants advice on getting advice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, but I never thought I'd be writing with a personal problem. However, before I do, I need some answers:

1. If I don't want to sign my name and address, is there a chance that my letter will be answered in your column, or do you use only signed letters?
2. If I want a personal reply, what is your address?
3. If you use a letter in your column from someone who doesn't want to be identified, do you ever change the names? How about the cities?
4. When you answer a letter personally, do you ever put your name on the envelope?
5. When you answer with a personal letter, how long does it take to get an answer? Thank you. — NEEDS HELP IN WYOMING

DEAR NEEDS: 1. A letter need NOT be signed in order to appear in my column.

2. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to: Dear Abby, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. And please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (I am not obligated to answer letters that do not.)

3. The names and locations are sometimes changed in order to protect the privacy of those who request it.

4. I NEVER put my name on the envelope.

5. Unless there is an unusually heavy load of mail, every letter is answered the same week it is received.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the possibilities of outrageously long, hypenated, compound-complex family names, may I submit the following?

China has a population of over a billion people. However, there are only 100 Chinese family names, and almost all of them have only one syllable, such as Chang, Wang, Yen, Lee, Woo, Chou, Chu, Deng, Ma, Liu.

Would you believe that you have just finished reading 10 percent of all the Chinese family names of the one billion Chinese people! Believe it or not. Amen. — WALTER H. YEH, COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR WALTER: Fascinating? Yeh!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from STILL IN SHOCK IN N.C. concerned inappropriate questions asked a widow at the funeral of her husband. ("Did he leave you fairly well fixed?" And, "Do you think you'll ever marry again?")

I think this tops them all: After 22 years of marriage, my husband died. Four months before he passed away, he had sold a secondhand truck to a man who had the nerve to come up to me at the funeral and ask, "Did your husband happen to leave any 'touch-up' paint for the truck?"

My blood pressure still goes up every time I think of it. If they gave a bad taste award, this person would win it. — OHIO WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Sorry, I think the bad-taste award would go to the woman mentioned in the following letter:

DEAR ABBY: Speaking of stupid, ill-timed remarks: At my husband's funeral, a friend (?) put her arms around me and said, "Well, now that Willie is gone, I'll bet you end up with your old boyfriend Raymond after all. I hear his wife is dying." — SPEECHLESS IN OREGON

CONFIDENTIAL TO HATE HIS GUTS IN JACKSONVILLE: Save your hate. It will eat YOUR guts out long before it will make a dent in HIS!

'Medievalists' rediscover mead

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO
Associated Press Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Beowulf loved it, the Babylonians savored the stuff and Christian monks made it the top quaff in medieval Europe. No wonder Bill Oliver, who makes it today, believes in the commercial destiny of mead.

Oliver and his wife make Camelot Mead, a still wine made of honey, hops, water, Montrachet yeast and a blend of herbs that are part of their "secret recipe."

"It was the No. 1 drink in Europe up until cheap sugar came in from the colonies in the 1600s," says Oliver, a law professor-turned-winemaker who started making mead from Indiana honey in 1973. "I just think this product's going to have a destiny."

Oliver has good reason for his optimism. From an initial production of 5,000 gallons, sales of Oliver's Camelot Mead have blossomed to 12,000 cases annually. A five-star restaurant in Cincinnati lists the mead at the top of its wine card, and The Wall Street Journal called Oliver's wine and the mead business "a gold mine" in a front-page story in 1977.

Oliver, a 59-year-old tax law professor at Indiana University, is a closet medievalist who thinks nothing of dressing up in doublet and tights for an annual Middle Ages festival to promote Camelot Mead. But his reasons for going into the mead business have more to do with practicality than nostalgia for the good old past.

The Olivers were part of the winemaking boom that hit the Midwest in the 1960s, when scientists were starting to cross-breed French wine grapes with hardier American strains to make it easier for the fruit to survive the punishing Midwestern climate.

Oliver was intrigued when he heard of a experimental project being conducted by Cornell University using French hybrid grapes to make new American wines.

The Olivers arranged with friends at Cornell to grow 35 varieties of the hybrid grapes as part of the experimental program. Oliver thought he would start a southern Indiana winery as an auxiliary business. The main problem was time.

"It takes four years for a grape to bear fruit," says Mary Oliver, 52. "We obviously needed some non-grape product that could carry us until we could turn a profit."

"Starting a winery in a place where there are no wineries and no grapes is a tough business," Oliver says. "You've got to make wine out of something besides grapes in order to survive when you just start out."

Shortly after the first vines were planted at the Olivers' southern Indiana winery, the couple traveled to Northern California, where Oliver was a visiting professor at the University of California at Davis.

They made the rounds of Napa and Sonoma valley wineries, but didn't think of their own operations until they tasted a brew called Camelot Mead, formulated by Ernest Lane for a small winery.

"It's just the perfect product to have, because there's lots of honey in the Midwest," says Mrs. Oliver.

The Olivers, who bought the rights to make Camelot Mead, say Lane's recipe and the LaPorte County honey they use in concocting the mead are the reasons for the product's success.

"It was just like hanging on to the tail of a tiger," Mrs. Oliver says. "We weren't ready to have a product that sold so well."

The southern Indiana winery is not the only mead-making establishment in the country, but the Olivers say their main competitor, the Monarch Winery near Chicago, turns out a mead that is much sweeter than Camelot Mead.

Oliver says they have the right to manufacture Camelot Mead in all 50 states now, with plans to expand to foreign markets like Nigeria, the Netherlands, the Dominican Republic and Japan.

The 21-proof drink is slightly paler and sweeter that most domestic white wines, with a slightly smoky taste that comes from being aged for at least nine months in charred oak casks.

The Olivers don't mind complaints from oenophiles who say the brew is overly sweet and not too subtle. As Bill Oliver says, "Mead is most popular with people who don't like regular wine."

Friday night at Holmes' Coin-O-Mat

By JOE STROOP
Associated Press Writer

AZLE, Texas (AP) — Standing in an alcove between rank of washers and dryers in his laundromat, Marshall Holmes grinned, nodded at pianist Joe Petrikovic and set the tempo for a spirited rendition of "San Antonio Rose."

A network TV crew squeezed through the sweating, dancing, standing-room-only crowd that had jammed into the washateria on south Stewart Street.

It was just another Friday night at Holmes Coin-O-Mat.

"Oh, gosh, I don't really know for sure, but I guess there's been about six or seven television crews out here to do a story on us in the past three or four months," chirped Bonnie Hinkle.

"Yeah, I just hope they have a good time," said Holmes. "That's all we're trying to do."

What is it that draws all the attention? It's just a band of amateur musicians who come to the laundromat on Fridays to play some country music — plus a load of friends who come to listen, visit and pass the time.

"We've had people coming from all over to see us," Mrs. Hinkle, the band's vocalist, said. "Why, we even had somebody come in from Bolivia just to visit Azle and come see the laundromat band. Of course, he was the brother of one of the band."

The little band — sometimes ragged-sounding but always enthusiastic — had humble beginnings. Holmes, the organizer, remembers it all started one cold, windy January day in 1963. Snow was on the ground and business was slow when a friend strolled in — not to use the washing machines, just to get out of the cold.

"Things were so slow I told the fellow that it would be a good time to do some pickin'. He said, 'Hold on, let me go get my guitar.' He said he played some steel guitar and I told him to bring it on down, that I'd pick a little flat top along with him," Holmes recalled.

He said the informal jam session got to be a regular Friday-night thing, and other local pickers, fiddlers and piano-pounders began to drop by. Before long, the word was out: you could spend a whole evening at the Coin-O-Mat, visit with neighbors, hear some fair country music and not spend a dime — unless you wanted to wash some clothes.

It was a good thing but nobody knew about it except folks in and around Azle, a town of about 5,000 just northwest of Fort Worth. It took television to make the band a phenomenon.

Dallas-based reporters for a nationally syndicated television program somehow — nobody remembers exactly how — found out about the Friday music and broadcast a feature story about Holmes, the laundromat and the band in November 1980. Word was out.

Holmes is philosophical about his place in the spotlight.

"This hasn't changed me, it hasn't changed a thing. We're still having a good time, and we'll keep on having a good time after they (TV crews) leave," he said.

"I know it will die down sooner or later," he said. "I just hope the chance to play here might let some of these younger musicians know if they're any good or not and maybe give them an incentive to keep on with it — maybe get to Nashville or something."

'Fragile X' chromosome major cause of retardation

By JOANN RODGERS
Science Writer
Hearst Feature Service

BAR HARBOR, Me. — An abnormally crimped "X" chromosome has now been firmly identified as the second most common, clear-cut cause of mental retardation, says a Harvard University geneticist.

Called the "fragile X" because of its tendency to break, the chromosome accounts for 2 to 3 percent of all mentally-retarded males and an unknown number of females. Down's Syndrome, marked by an extra chromosome is the most common single-known cause of retardation present in 5 to 10 percent of all cases.

In a refresher course in medical genetics at the Jackson Laboratory here, Dr. Park S. Gerald said new surveys of institutions for the retarded have confirmed the "fragile X" role in low IQ's in the 20 to 70 range.

Much remains to be learned about "fragile X" and what it does to the developing brain before birth. Gerald said it has even been seen — although only very rarely — in people with perfectly normal IQ's, suggesting that the "crimping" alone is not the whole story.

This much is known: "fragile X" males have a certain "look" that can, with practice, be readily spotted: a normal-to-enlarged head size, instead of the smaller head size present in many retarded individuals; enlarged sex glands; prominent chins and protruding ears. Many have very pale blue eyes and are overweight.

However, the defect does explain, why there are far more men than women in institutions for the retarded and, possibly, why there are more males than females with learning disorders.

Males inherit one "X" chromosome from their mothers and a "Y" sex chromosome from their fathers. If they inherit a "fragile X" carried by their mother, they will be retarded. But because females have two "X" chromosomes, their healthy "X" apparently protects most of them from the ravages of any "fragile X" they inherit.

More than 40 years ago, scientists first discovered there were up to 50 per cent more males than females among retarded inmates in hospitals and other institutions. This suggested their mental retardation was transmitted in the "X" or "female" chromosome, carried by mothers much the same as the gene or hemophilia, which also afflicts males only.

Gerald, chief of clinical genetics at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston tested four retarded brothers, all institutionalized very young. He knew there was a genetic explanation but was unable to discover it for 15 years. Then he found they each had a "fragile X", while a normal bother did not. One sister who was normal also had a daughter who was mildly retarded with a "fragile X." When females have a "fragile X," the retardation tends to be less severe.

It is now estimated that one in every 2000 to 3000 live-born males will have "fragile X" and be retarded to some degree. (Down's afflicts one in every 1000 live births of both sexes.) The syndrome plays no favorites, theatening all racial and ethnic groups.

Gerald also said a $300 blood test can accurately analyze a person's 23 pairs of chromosomes to spot the "fragile X".

"The role of "fragile X" in retardation is now so firmly established that I would consider it malpractice if a physician failed to order this test when they are caring for or counseling families with a history of unexplained retardation," Gerald said.

He recommended that any family with a male child with unexplained retardation and a history of retardation in other family members should have the child blood tested.

In any subsequent pregnancy, if the test is positive, there is a 50-50 chance a male fetus would inherit the "fragile X" and be retarded. The sex of an unborn baby can be diagnosed prenatally through amniocentesis, in which cells are drawn out of the fluid surrounding the fetus in the womb.

"We have a legal responsibility to tell such families of the possibilities," Gerald said. "My inclination would be to test girls as well. State health agencies should incorporate the test into the care of all mentally-retarded males for whom there is no clear-cut reason for their condition."

Gerald said many major medical centers can now perform the test accurately and many more are training technicians to do it.

Eventually, he added, advances in methods of taking blood samples from an unborn baby and manipulating skin cells drawn during amniocentesis should permit more certain pre-natal diagnosis of retarded males and normal IQ female carriers of the "fragile X."

China's colleges overcrowded

There are some 650 institutions of higher learning in China, but there is room in China's colleges for only about 4 percent of the high-school graduates in any year.

Begin plans to meet with Reagan

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin plans to go ahead with his scheduled meeting with President Reagan next month, despite protests here over the American embargo on delivery of advanced warplanes to Israel, a spokesman for Begin said today.

Members of Begin's government and several Israeli parliamentarians have suggested the premier delay his United States visit until the Reagan administration releases 10 F-16 and two F-15 warplanes.

Begin, who is on vacation, has made no public statement on the embargo.

"All the panic around the delivery of the aircraft is no more than the panic of the media," said spokesman Uri Porat. "Mr. Begin didn't say anything and won't do anything before he's sure about what's going on."

Reports from Washington said President Reagan was expected to decide next week to lift the three-month suspension.

Israel has protested the delay in delivery of the planes, which were held up following Israel's June 7 raid on Iraq's nuclear reactor and the bombing last month of Palestinian guerrilla headquarters in Beirut. A Foreign Ministry spokesman Tuesday called the embargo "unjust and damaging."

Israel's army radio quoted sources in Jerusalem as saying Israel "will not beg" for delivery of the planes, but "will continue to insist that they be delivered according to contract."

Israeli newspaper editorials today criticized the embargo and called for it to end before Begin's Washington trip so the two leaders can concentrate on Middle East issues in their summit instead of U.S.-Israeli relations.

"The embargo must be lifted before the prime minister's visit to Washington," said the mass-circulation Maariv, "not just to restore faith in relations between the two countries, but so that the first visit of the Israeli prime minister in the U.S. after elections in both countries ... can deal with fundamental issues related to implementing the Israel-Egypt peace treaty and forwarding the joint interests of Israel and the United States."

Maariv said the embargo was "a problem for America no less than for Israel" because "American reliability is under inspection."

In its editorial, the independent Haarietz wrote that "as long as the conflict does not end, and as long as the rules of the game by which the United States maintains its ties in the area are not clear, it is doubtful if there is much purpose in a summit meeting between President Reagan and Mr. Begin.

The Jerusalem Post said that "no Israeli government can accept with equanimity denial of needed arms and violation of American contractual obligations."

Meanwhile, nine Israeli soldiers patrolling the occupied West Bank were wounded Tuesday when their jeeps hit two land mines planted by Palestinian guerrillas.

Iranian navy seizes Iraq-bound vessel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Danish vessel "carrying military hardware and explosives material" to Iraq was seized by the Iranian navy as it passed through the Straits of Hormuz, the official Iranian new agency Pars reported today.

Pars quoted a spokesman for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs as saying the vessel, which was seized Monday, would be allowed to leave the Iranian port of Bandar Abbas on the southern fringe of the Persian Gulf in southwestern Iran, after it unloaded its consignment.

Danish radio, which identified the vessel as the "Else Cat," said it was carrying 177 tons of dynamite bound for Baghdad and another consignment of ammunition destined for the Arabian Gulf emirate of Dubai. It quoted a Danish Embassy official in Tehran as saying the nine-man crew had been unharmed.

In Denmark, Thor Nielsen of Nielsen Chartering, owner of the vessel, said his only contact with the crew was a call from the captain just after the 399-ton "Else Cat" was taken over. He said the Danish Foreign Ministry was taking up the case with the Iranians.

Picturesque Swiss villages victims of highrises, highways

FRIBOURG, Switzerland (AP) — Switzerland's picture-postcard beauty is disappearing as Alpine chalets fall victim to highrise buildings and highways, Swiss environmentalists contend.

Hans Weiss, the director of the Swiss Foundation for the Care and Protection of the Landscape, said he figures that "at least half of the country's scenic spots have lost some or all of their original beauty forever, mostly to the forces of development."

"If it continues, the beautiful lakes, mountains, and scenery will be known just on calendars," he added.

The old town here in Fribourg has been preserved, but clustered on the bluffs high above the orange-tiled roofs of its Gothic homes is a maze of white-faced apartment buildings standing like an ill-chosen frame around a masterpiece painting.

Studded with church spires and crisscrossed by narrow cobblestone streets that open onto expansive squares, Fribourg's old town often has been cited as a particularly memorable example of Gothic architecture. Census-takers a few years ago identified more than 1,200 dwellings that date from the Middle Ages.

The apartment houses stand as an example of what many Swiss environmentalists maintain is the decline of picturesque Switzerland. The country, they assert, has paid aesthetically and environmentally for the development that has paralleled the country's affluence.

"There are still picture-postcard parts of Switzerland, but they are getting fewer and fewer and you have to go further and further to find them," said Lee M. Talbot, director general of the Swiss-based International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources. "You have here something of a microcosm of environmental problems in the rest of the world, especially in terms of growth versus quality."

Evidence of that conflict is readily present along the heavily populated plateau arching from Geneva to Zurich between the Alps and the Jura mountains. To some, the plateau, in broad sections resembles a city without boundary, development without interruption.

"It's like driving through one big village, from Zurich to Geneva, particularly Zurich to Bern," said Roland Wiederkehr, a World Wildlife Fund-Switzerland official. "Beautiful Switzerland, it's almost gone."

The largest Swiss cities — Zurich, Basel, Geneva, Bern, and Lausanne — have been losing population steadily. In the past decade, their aggregate population declined by 128,700 persons, or 11.6 percent. Suburban and rural areas, on the other hand, have generally registered firm gains, and metropolitan regions have spread.

One of the consequences is that more people took to automobiles, and the result of that was an expanding network of major highways.

Nearly 33 percent more new cars were put into circulation in 1979 than in 1970, federal government figures show. There are nearly 2 cars for every 5 residents.

The major roadway network in Switzerland, which is about twice the size of New Jersey, now covers more than 725 miles; in addition, 174 miles of main highway are being built, according to Interior Ministry statistics.

"It can be startling to compare photographs of some areas taken in the 1950s and 1960s with those taken today," Weiss said. "The differences can be shocking."

World Wildlife Fund-Switzerland asserted in a publication devoted to a critical examination of highways, "The construction of roads and auto routes and (the increase in) motorized traffic have modified the face of Switzerland."

The organization was particularly critical of the construction of the world's longest highway tunnel, a 10.1-mile passage through the St. Gotthard Massif in south-central Switzerland. The two-lane tunnel was hailed as an engineering masterpiece when dedicated last September after 10 years of work.

The tunnel, designed to cut north-south driving time by two hours, has proved incapable of accommodating heavy vacation traffic. Weekend traffic jams as long as 4.5 miles have been common since the summer vacation season began.

Environmentalists argue that Switzerland's tourism industry also carries the threat of blighting the beauty that attracted tourists in the first place.

Chances were 20,000 to one that these twin colts would be born and survive. They were born April 6. They are shown with their mother, and Mackinac Islander Dean Gillespie Jr. and are at home in their corral — especially built for "Mutt" and "Jeff" — on Surrey Hill Square, near the Grand Hotel. "We named them after the comic strip characters," said Stedman, "because one was normal size when born and the other was very small." Tourists have flocked to the corral fence even though many don't know of the rarity of their birth and survival.

Hearst acquires more papers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hearst Corp. has acquired 30 Los Angeles County newspapers as part of a program to create a community network in conjunction with the Herald Examiner, officials announced.

Expanding Hearst's county distribution to more than 700,000 copies a day, the firm has purchased two dailies and 28 weeklies, Los Angeles Herald Examiner officials said.

Combined circulation of the new papers, to be owned by Hearst Community Newspapers Inc., will be 425,000.

"One day coverage for advertisers will, including the Herald Examiner, be larger than the circulation of the L.A. Times in Los Angeles County," said Francis Dale, publisher of the Herald Examiner said.

William J. Brehm was named as publisher of the suburban network. Brehm was head of the W.J. McGiffin Newspaper Co., whose CLAS papers — 17 weeklies and two dailies circulated in southeast Los Angeles — were bought by Hearst.

Three other publishing groups sold to Hearst were:

—The American Publishing Co. newspapers, six weeklies circulated in the east San Fernando Valley and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Horwith.

—The San Fernando Sun and the Valley View, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Flannery and circulated in the central San Fernando Valley.

—The Los Virgenes Independent, a three-weekly group circulated in the west San Fernando Valley and owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Coffin.

The southeast Los Angeles papers include the Huntington Park Daily Signal; Daily Southt st News; Herald American papers in Norwalk, Bellflower, Compton-Lynwood, Downey, Paramount, North Long Beach and Lakewood; Maywood Journal: South Gate Press; Bell Gardens Review; Huntington Park Bulletin; Florence-Firestone Bulletin; Artesia-Cerritos Community Advocate; Cypress-La Palma Community Advocate; Los Alamitos, Hawaiian Gardens Community Advocate; Pico Rivera Advertiser Herald American; and Bell Maywood Industrial Post.

In east San Fernando Valley, the company acquired the Record Ledger; Tolucan; Burbank Scene; Sun Valley Scene; Valley Scene and Canyon Crier.

Hearst also bought the San Fernando Sun and the Valley View newspapers in central San Fernando Valley; in the west valley, the company acquired the Agoura Valley News, Westlake Valley News and Calabasas Valley News.

Screwworm outbreak possible

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A screwworm outbreak in Texas this fall is a distinct possibility, the executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission said Monday.

"The potential for an outbreak of screwworms is in place, and we must take steps now to thwart it," Dr. J.E. Holcombe said in a statement.

He said an increase in the number of confirmed screwworm cases in Mexico near the Texas border is a major reason for fearing an outbreak in Texas. Holcombe said 27 cases were reported in Mexico 50 to 120 miles south of Texas in July.

In addition, Holcombe said, more livestock than usual have tick wounds that are "made-to-order targets for screwworms."

"But perhaps our biggest problem is complacency. The screwworm eradication program has been so successful that we forget that continued checking of livestock for possible screwworm is essential."

Eight new 'cats planned, one moved

Permian Basin oil men have scheduled drilling of eight new wildcats, and relocated one.

GAINES WILDCAT

Laguna Petroleum Corp., Midland, will drill the 3,700-foot wildcat No. 1 Sherman, 15 miles northeast of Seminole.

The drillsite is 1/4 mile northwest of the dryhole R. Alsabrook No. 1 Sherman, abandoned Nov. 21, 1974, at 3,560 feet.

Laguna's Sherman will flank the G.M.K. South field, which yields San Andres production at a depth of 5,450 feet.

The stake is 2,173 feet from the south, and 467 feet from the west line of section 128, block H, D&WRR survey.

GARZA GAMBLE

Leeper Oil Exploration and Production, Inc., Midland, will drill the wildcat No. 1 J.D. Griffis, 6 miles south of Justiceburg.

The drillsite is 5/8 miles northeast of Continental's No. 1 Cameron-Justice, abandoned December 28, 1960, at 8,360 feet.

The Leeper well could be considered and within, or an extension of Fluvanna Field, depending on how you put your finger on the map.

The project spots 660 feet from the north, and 2,250 feet from the west line of section 687, block 97, H&TC survey.

PECOS CHANGE

John L. Cox, Midland, has changed the location of the 5,600-foot wildcat No. 1Yeager, to be drilled 10 miles northeast of Fort Stockton.

It was previously listed as being 990 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the east lines of section 18, block 140, T&STLRR survey. The new location is 1,290 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the east line of the same section, etc.

WARD BOBBED CAT

Clayton W.Williams Jr., Midland, will bob the 6,500-foot oil well No. 1 J.F. Pattee et al Unit, and call it a wildcat. The well is located 2 miles south of Barstow.

The well was yielding Scott (Cherry Canyon) production from perforations between 5,798 and 6,016 feet.

Williams will blug back from a cast iron bridge plug and 20 feet of cement at 5,750 feet, and complete the well at a depth of 5,644 feet.

The well is located 5,940 feet from the northeast, and 660 feet from the southeast lines of section 38, block 33, H&TCRR survey.

McCULLOCH WILDCATS

H.O.T. Exploration Co., Colony, will drill three 1,200-foot wildcats in McCulloch County, four miles southwest of Placid.

The No. 2 Bull & Marshall is located 1,580 feet from the north and 660 feet from the west lines of section 101 of the Rusk Transportation Co., abstract 1187, survey.

The No. 3 Bull & Marshall is located 980 feet from the north and 330 feet from the west lines of the same survey.

The No. 1 Bull & Marshall (amended to change the name from the No. 1 Bull) is located 330 feet from the north and 1,230 feet from the west lines.

The drillsites are 2 5/8 miles eat of the Bratton Ranch (Strawn) field.

RUNNELS VENTURE

Premium Oil & Gas, Inc., San Angelo, has scheduled a 4,600-foot wildcat in Runnels County, four miles southwest of Ballinger.

The No. 1 Philip Whitsett is located 2,511 feet from the southeast lines and 1,562 feet from the second most southwsterly southwest line of the Rama Christa No. 432 survey.

CONCHO PROSPECT

Darc Oil Co., San Angelo, will drill the No. 1 M.F. Barfnecht, as a 4,100-foot wildcat, 7 1/2 miles south of Paint Rock.

Location is 522 feet from the most northerly south line and 847 feet frm the most northerly east lines of Henry A. Roberson No. 9 survey.

Nova Scotia asks no oil drilling on Georges Bank

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — This Atlantic province has asked the federal government to bar drilling for oil off Canada's east coast in an area involved in a boundary dispute with the United States.

Edmund Morris, provincial minister for intergovernmental affairs, said he had written to Foreign Secretary Mark MacGuigan in Ottawa expressing concern that offshore drilling on Georges Bank and in other areas would affect the rich fishing grounds.

He told reporters he also was worried about U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt's plans to lease millions of acres of offshore territory, which he said would be made with little regard for environmental or fisheries concerns.

There has been no drilling yet in the disputed zone, where there are overlapping claims by both Canada and the United States, but two rigs have begun work in U.S. waters near the zone.

The U.S. Senate has not ratified an agreement reached by negotiators of both countries, and the administrations in Washington and Ottawa recently expressed willingness to accept international arbitration.

Seagram decides to sell Conoco shares to Du Pont

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of Seagram Co. Ltd. voted Tuesday to tender the company's 28 million shares of Conoco Inc. stock to Du Pont Co., giving the Canadian liquor dwstiller a 20 percent interest in the chemical giant.

Seagram paid $2.6 billion for the Conoco shares, which it continued buying even after Du Pont clinched victory in a bidding war for Stamford, Conn.-based Conoco, the nation's ninth-largest oil company.

Seagram said it received 1.7 Du Pont shares for each Conoco share, giving it about 47.6 million shares of Du Pont. That makes Seagram the largest shareholder in Du Pont with total holdings about 3.1 million fewer than the estimated 50.7 million shares held by all members of the du Pont family combined.

The transaction also, however, gives Seagram a big paper loss. Du Pont stock closed Tuesday at $44.75 a share, down $1, in New York Stock Exchange trading. At that rate, 47.6 million shares would be worth about $2.15 billion, or about $450 million less than Seagram paid for the Conoco shares.

Seagram Chairman Edgar Bronfman spoke glowingly of Du Pont in a prepared statement.

"This is an appropriate time to congratulate the management and board of Du Pont on the success of their offer for Conoco," Bronfman said. "While Seagram would have been delighted to have won 51 percent of Conoco, we are pleased at the prospect of becoming a large stockholder of the combined Du Pont and Conoco."

Gasohol supporters finally win victory

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Supporters of gasohol finally won a victory in the final hours of the special session Tuesday with the passage of legislation to give gasohol prodcers a tax break from the 5-cent-per-gallon state gasoline tax.

The gasohol measure, which still must be signed into law by Gov. Bill Clements, will give gasohol producers a tax credit from the 5-cent gasoline tax through the end of 1986, with the credit slowly decreasing until the tax is fully restored in 1991.

State Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, the longtime supporter of gsohol and co-sponsor of the bill, appauled his colleagues in the Legislature for passing the measure.

"Gasohol has been on the runway for six years," Kubiak said, "and the House and Senate have finally passed legislation that will make Texas the number one producer of gasohol in the U.S. and will make this nation less dependent on foreign oil."

Kubiak and Sen. Bill Sarpalius of Hereford, both Democrats, were able to guide the gasohol legislation through the House and Senate despite criticisms that it would give gasohol producers extra profit without guarenteing that consumers would see lower prices at the pump.

The bill also was attacked as a potentially-serious drain on state treasury because it would use general revenues to make up for monies lost by the dedicated highway fund. However, it was the threatened loss of highway funds that killed the bill during the regular session.

"Within four or five years, Texas will be the leading producer of gasohol in the United States," Kubiak said.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, another staunch gasohol supporter, also said the legislation will "give a tremendous boost to alcohol fuel production in Texas."

"It is just the impetus we need to get plants started," Brown said.

Kubiak said he expects gasohol plants to begin going up within 90 days, with several plants on line with two years. Five plants — to be located at Taylor, Hereford, Muleshoe, Dimmit, Dumas and Corpus Christi — are already ready to get underway and could produce up to 250 million gallons of fuel alcohol, he said.

That quantity of alcohol can be mixedd with gasoline to produce 1.5 billion gallons of gasohol.

"This will start helping us to erode this dependency we have on OPEC oil," Kubiak said. "It will allow Americans to do for themselves what they should have been dooing for 30 years."

Brown said the bill will provide a new market for agricultural products, while Kubiak said that new market will bring grain prices up to the point where farmers can once again make a profit.

"Gasohol production will give our farmers another market for their grain, and in the future for crops grown specifically for fuel production," Brown said.

He added that the five-year full tax credit "will allow producers to get their industry on a good footing."

"A Texas alcohol fuel industry will mean a savings for agricultural producers, and in the future to all consumers of gasoline," Brown said.

OPEC confernce confirmed

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' secretariat confirmed Tuesday the world oil cartel's ministers will meet here next week.

Several OPEC countries reporting a slump in crude oil sales at a time of a world oil glut have pushed for a special meeting of the 13-nation group.

Most OPEC countries are known to have pressured Saudi Arabia to reduce its output or increase prices. The Saudis are selling their crude oil for about $32 a barrel, compared to prices as high as $40 a barrel.

Saudi Arabia has refused to lower production, and OPEC's African members — Algeria, Libya and Nigeria — all selling at $40, have accused the Saudis of being responsible for their shrinking 4evenues.

Some observers have said Saudi Arabia may raise its price by $2 a barrel, while the African OPEC producers may agree to lower their prices for a temporary compromise.

Saudi Arabia is also expected to be pressured into curtailing production from a current 10.25 million barrels a day to its earlier 8.5 million barrel per day level.

Ghandi - nuclear energy only choice for India

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Nuclear energy is the only power source able to meet India's demands and "unless we have something positive to take its place, we cannot talk of replacing it," Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said today.

Mrs. Gandhi also called for total disarmament and an end to stockpiling weapons of mass destruction and death, including the neutron weapon.

"We should try and have a world in which there is no war, but if there has to be a war, we should try to avoid a nuclear war," she told a news conference in Nairobi, where she is attending the first United Nations Conference on New and Renewable Sources of Energy.

Asked whether India would follow Sweden in phasing out nuclear power plants, Mrs. Gandhi said,"It's a very difficult question because I have certain personal views, but I have to take a national viewpoint also." The prime minister is w well-known environmentalist.

"Now, we are using nuclear energy for electricity, for agriculture, for medicine, and it's extremely useful in all those areas," she said. "Ours is not on such a scale that we can think of reducing it much, and uhless we have something positive to take its place, we cannot talk of replacing it.

"At this moment, although we are going all out for renewable sources such as solar energy, wind, tidal power, biogas and so on, it isn't anywhere near meeting our requirements, especially the big energy requirements," she said.

India exploded a nuclear device at Pokhran in 1974 and currently has two nuclear plants in full operation. A third is in an advanced state of construction and several more are planned.

Mrs. Gandhi, who gave the keynote address to delegates from more than 140 countries on Monday, said "the world's eyes are on Nairobi," looking for positive action on drawing up a program leading to a world energy policy.

"We fully realize no miracles are possible," she said, "but at least if we take the first steps, there is hope for the next steps."

Mrs. Gandhi was scheduled to meet with Indian diplomats from various African countries and hold talks with Swedish Prime Minister Thorbjorn Falldin before returning to New Delhi this evening.

Gov. Rhodes denounces "bleeding heart" environmentalists, Brown

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Hearst Feature Service

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. -- One of the nation's costliest governors, James A. Rhodes of Ohio, took out after what he called "bleeding heart" environmentalists yesterday in what amounted to an indirect attack on California Gov. Jerry Brown.

The sarcastic comments from Rhodes pointed up the swiftly-eroding support that environmentalists enjoyed until recently. No governor spoke up to rebut the Republican Rhodes or defend the Democratic Brown.

"We're an industrial state. We need oil and I'm tired of these bleeding hearts thwarting us," Rhodes said.

"As far as I'm concerned, Interior Secretary James Watt is the best thing to come along in ages," he said. "We can't afford to have these people in $600,000 and $700,000 mansions along the Pacific coast dictating our oil policy."

Rhodes exploded after Brown had given his colleagues at the National Governors Association meeting here a briefing on the suit filed by California and six other states to preserve their rights to govern offshore oil exploration against Watt's activism in opening up the West Coast for drilling.

The states won the initial court round but Brown warned that Watt was trying to circumvent that order by changing the government regulations under the Coastal Zone Management Plan that had given states rights which the Interior Department had ignored.

The court battle probably will continue beyond President Reagan's term, Brown predicted, but he said he hoped other states would keep abreast of the state-federal struggle which was at the core of the suit.

At that point, because Watt's protege, Ann Gorsuch of the Environmental Protection Agency, was late for her scheduled address to the governors, the presiding governor, Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia, asked if any other colleague wanted to talk.

Rhodes seized the opportunity to lay out his liberal nemesis, Jerry Brown, without ever mentioning him by name. He did criticize the Sierra Club, the Pacific coast environmentalists, and just about anybody who agreed with the EPA's attempts to work for clean air and water.

"I'm for the secretary of the interior drilling anywhere and everywhere in this country. We should not be dictated to by those Arabs in this country who say where we can drill and where we can't," Rhodes said.

As the Ohio Republican paused briefly, Brown jumped in and added that the offshore oil tracts that Watt wanted to lease adjacent to California could produce no more than 10 percent of the country's total.

N&W Railway wins right to repurchase refinery

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Norfolk & Western Railway has won the right to repurchase a $4 million tract of land it sold seven years ago to a company with plans to build a $1 billion East Coawt refinery.

Circuit Court Judge Walter A. Page ruled Monday in a civil suit filed by the railroad that Cox Enterprises Inc. had failed to fulfill a contract provision to begin building on the site by Oct. 17, 1980.

The Atlanta communications company had argued at a four-day trial in June that the contract requirement had been met because land had been cleared and construction started on oil storage tanks.

But Page said such activity did not constitute "construction" as specified in the 1974 contract.

"The main thrust of the ruling was that the physical activity on the site did not meet the requirements of the deed," said Jack Greer, the railroad's lawyer.

Page's ruling gives the N&W the right to buy back the land for the original purchase price of $4 million.

Robert Porterfield, vice president of Hampton Roads Energy Co., a Cox subsidiary formed to develop the refinery site, said Cox lawyers are studying the ruling to decide whether to appeal.

Cox Enterprises said it had spent some $10 million in securing environmental permits for the refinery.

The 623-acre tract along the Elizabeth River has been targeted ws one of the best sites for an addit8onal coal export pier in the port of Hampton Roads.

The 1981 state General Assembly granted the Virginia Port Authority the right to condemn up to 220 acres of the site for a public pier. The N&W-Cox lawsuit held up implementation of that plan.

Cox had also announced intentions last October to build a pier on the site with four coal companies, all of whom later backed out of the arrangement because of the clouded land title.

N&W Chairman John Fishwick said the railroad will cooperate with the state in making the land available for a coal pier.

In Laguna Beach, thousands see life imitate art in 'frozen theater'

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Thousands of people are flocking to an outdoor stage to watch life imitate art, as residents of Laguna Beach strike elaborate poses in still-life recreations of the world's most famous artworks.

It's something like a play and something like a museum. But an element of suspense is part of the appeal as the audience watches for the least flinch by a player.

The Laguna Beach Pageant of the Masters, where actors duplicate paintings and sculptures with their poses, faces, costumes and backdrop for 90 seconds, is said to be the only show of its kind in the world.

The coiffed and costumed figures who take part in the show for eight weeks in the summer are volunteers from Laguna Beach. They are people like Charles Thompson, a 37-year-old designer of custom hairpieces, who portrays Jesus in a tableau of Da Vinci's "The Last Supper." The scene closes the pageant each night to the sound of "oohs" and "aahs" from the crowd of 2,600 in the open-air Irvine Bowl.

"It began 12 years ago," said Thompson, who plays Jesus for four of the show's eight weeks. "There was an ad in the paper saying they had an opening for Jesus. I called and auditioned, and I've been doing it ever since."

The show is always a sellout, with ticket grabbed a year ahead by residents and visitors, including many from abroad. Hollywood stars often make the trek from Los Angeles, 60 miles to the north.

"Jane Withers never misses the show. Charlton Heston was here last week, and so was Barry Manilow," said Sally Reeves, public relations director for the pageant and its parent event, the Laguna Beach Art Festival. The pageant runs through Aug. 30 this year.

Each year, the show raises $200,000 for Laguna Beach and thousands more for scholarships and grants to artists and performers.

Some say much of the fascination with the pageant comes from watching for a break in the pose — the statue that sneezes, the baby who squeals, the child who falls asleep in his pose.

Once, Ms. Reeves said, a pigeon landed on the painted breast of a woman frozen in the pose of a statue. The pigeon slid down the greasy body makeup, across the woman's leg and onto the stage.

The performer, a real trouper, never flinched and received a standing ovation.

The pageant has come a long way from a small street show begun in 1933 as a distraction from the misery of the Depression.

One father doesn't fall for portrayal of Romeo

YELM, Wash. (AP) — The Academy Award-winning film version of William Shakespeare's most famous love story has failed to win the heart of at least one local resident.

James A. Kitchen wants school officials to ban classroom showings of "Romeo and Juliet" as part of the literature curriculum at Yelm High School.

"What kind of educational value is there is showing a guy and a girl in bed, not even married, and with no clothes on?" asked Kitchen, whose daughter saw the movie in class.

"There's no reason to show that type of thing," he said. "I don't even think adults should be seeing that kind of stuff."

Basie's birthday bash kicks off festivities

Basie

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone was up for the Count when it came time to sing "Happy Birthday" to jazz great Count Basie, who turns 77 on Aug. 21.

"This is really a great moment for me. Imagine having a birthday party with all these fine people. You've made us very happy," Basie said Tuesday as he was honored at the kickoff of the 10th annual free Lincoln Center Out-of-Doors Festival.

The soft-spoken Basie, bothered by arthritis and forced to use a motorized scooter to get around, rse with some difficulty after the birthday song was sung by the more than 500 people on hand, as he and his wife, Catherine, thanked the enthusiastic crowd.

Basie's two-hour free concert in Damrosch Park was first on the list of acts that will include 60 free shows through Aug. 30.

•

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The state of New York has paid official homage to singer Harry Chapin, who promoted the arts and donated his talents at the guitar to world hunger. He was killed last month in an auto crash.

"If music feeds the soul, then Harry's music meant food for millions. It is up to us to see it play on undiminished," Gov. Hugh Carey said at the gathering Tuesday at Hofstra University.

Chapin's widow, Sandy, urged business and political leaders to continue her husband's work. It has been 10 years since Chapin gained notice for his ballad "Taxi," she noted, and said, "Just imagine what all of you can accomplish in the next 10 years."

•

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Williams, 39, a lawyer for entertainers Mickey Rooney and Redd Foxx, has pleaded no contest to $21,000 in forgeries.

In June 1980, Williams imitated Rooney's signature on a contract with Marble Arch Production Co. for a prospective NBC television movie, according to Deputy District Attorney Robert Youngdahl. Williams allegedly deposited a $10,000 check from the production company in his bank account to hold for Rooney as a signing fee.

Rooney testified in a preliminary hearing that he fired Williams last summer after Williams admitted the alleged embezzlement.

About three months later, Williams began working for Foxx and allegedly forged Foxx's signature on two $5,000 checks and cashed them. Williams also allegedly intercepted a $1,100 check mailed to Foxx, forged the signature, and then his own name to cash it.

He entered his plea to avoid a state prison term. He is to be sentenced Oct. 14 and faces a possible county jail term and probation.

Raiders heading for hung jury?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A hung jury appears appears to be a definite possibility in the Oakland Raiders-National Football League antitrust case, but U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson hasn't given up hope that a verdict can be reached.

Pregerson turned down two motions for a mistrial Tuesday night after questioning jurors, who haven't reached a verdict after 11 days of deliberations and don't appear close to any such decision. Deliberations were scheduled to continue today.

The mistrial motions were made by the NFL and the Oakland Coliseum Commission after Pregerson questioned one juror about his possible relationship to a man who once owned a franchise in the now-defunct World Football League.

Pregerson, the presiding judge in the trial, was attempting to determine if juror Tom Gelker is related to Bruce Gelker, who owned the Portland Storm of the WFL. There was no announcement Tuesday night as to whether the Gelkers are related, but it is believed that they are cousins.

PREGERSON'S CLERK, Dick Johnson, said if Tom Gelker responded that he was a relative of Bruce Gelker, the judge intended to ask him if that affected his deliberations and why he did not previously reveal the relationship.

The Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission motioned that Gelker be removed from the jury. Pregerson took the motion under consideration.

The judge also questioned every other member of the 10-person jury individually, posing three questions to each: Was there any reasonable chance to reach a verdict? Has any juror stated flatly he or she wouldn't be bound by the court's instruction? And if the answer is affirmative to the second question, who?

Ed Heafey, attorney for the Oakland Coliseum Commission, said after the seven-woman, three-man jury had been released for the day that eight of the 10 jurors told Pregerson they felt that there was little or no chance of reaching a verdict on any of the issues.

Heafey, who sat in on the questioning, said two jurors told the judge that there was a remote chance of a verdict being reached.

NINE OF the jurors answered that no juror had refused to be bound by the court's instruction. The remaining juror, who was not identified, said that there was one member of the panel who she felt wouldn't be bound by the court's instruction. There was no identity made public in that regard.

The judge's decision to talk with the jurors came after the panel indicated by note that it was unable to reach a decision on whether NFL rule 4.3 regulating franchise moves was in violation of antitrust laws.

The jury's verdict in the case must be unanimous.

The panelists indicated they would like to hear further closing arguments by the attorneys, particularly to explain the relationship between NFL rule 4.3 and antitrust law.

The jury, which received the case on July 31, also reported it was unable to reach a unanimous decision on whether there was a breach of good faith by the NFL in its dealings with the Raiders.

Cubs face Gold Sox in pair tonight

The Chicken is back

Cubs at home

TONIGHT—Amarillo (Troy Dixon 6-11 and Andy Hawkins 7-10) vs. Midland (Mike Thompson 6-1 and Henry Mack 3-3), 6 p.m. San Diego Chicken night.

THURSDAY—Amarillo (Byron Ballard 5-5) vs. Midland (Craig Lefferts 11-10), 7:30 p.m.

It's not only two-for-one night, but the outrageous San Diego Chicken will be on hand to keep things clucking at Cubs Stadium tonight when the Midland Cubs resume their chase for the Texas League West second half pennant against the Amarillo Gold Sox.

The Cubs and Sox will play a doubleheader as a result of showers that washed out Tuesday's game. The series is tied at 1-1 with Amarillo thwarting a ninth inning rally by Midland for a 7-5 win in Monday's game. It was a costly defeat since it enabled San Antonio, sweeping a doubelheader from El Paso, to open up a 1 1/2 game gap. However, the Cubs gained a half gain Tuesday when El Paso beat the Dodgers.

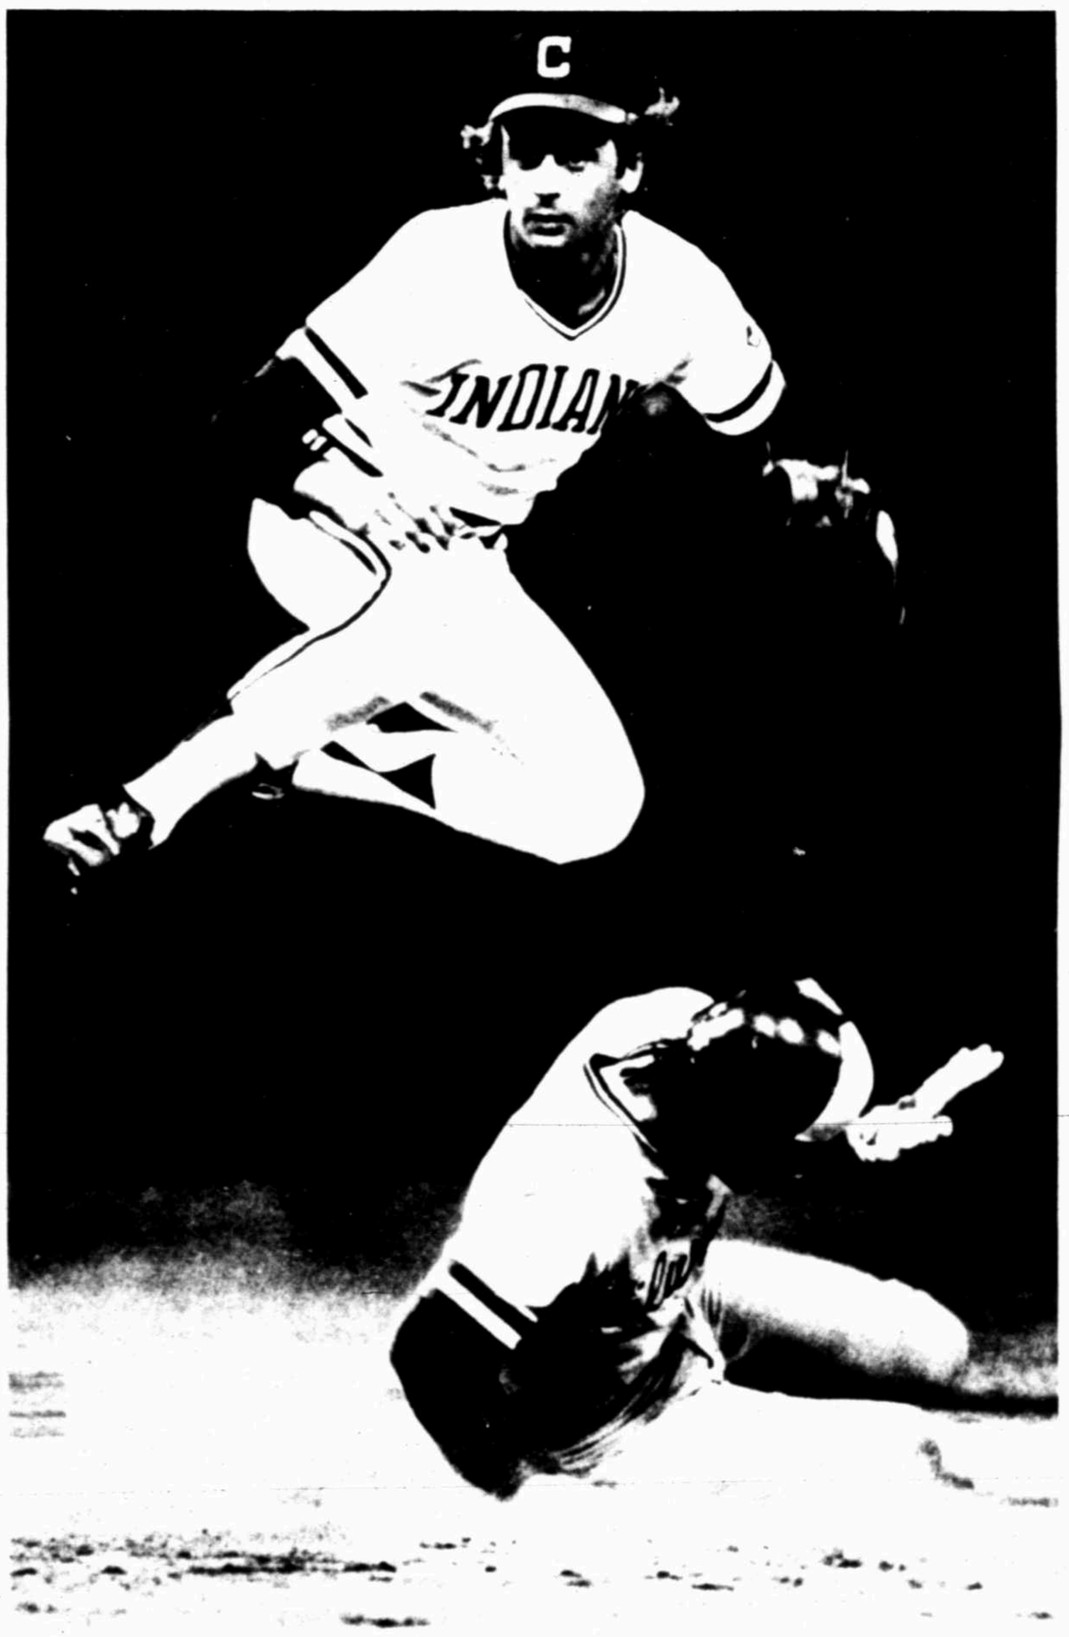

The Chicken, the crowd's delight, will be making his second Cubs Stadium appearance and General Manager Bill Schammel is counting on a banner turnout as the Cubs drive for their first 100,000-paid attendance season. The Cubs are at 92,846 with seven home dates left.

Lefthander Mike Thompson, 6-1, is scheduled to pitch one of the games for Midland with either Henry Mack to go in the nightcap. For the Gold Sox, Andy Hawkins, 7-10, will start one game and Troy Dixon 6-11 is the probable starter in the other. Hawkins is 2-1 against Midland this year while Dixon is 2-1 with one win a 4-0 shutout against the Cubs. Thompson is 1-1 against the Sox while Mack has yet to face Amarillo.

If rain postpones tonight's action, two games will be played in the series windup Thursday while the other game would have to be made up when the Cubs visit Amarillo.

Amarillo holds a 14-10 edge over Midland for the season.

BRUIN BREWIN'S—Jim Tracy, Texas League batting champion in 1979 with a .355 average, is expected to be in the lineup tonight...Mel Hall has an 11-game hit streak going...Randy LaVigne, who wallowed at .239 in early June, has hit .348 since June 17 tp raise his average to .340...

Cooper bludgeons Indians in sweep

By The Associated Press

Cecil Cooper homered twice, doubled three times, and singled twice as the Milwaukee Brewers collected 30 hits in sweeping a doubleheader from the Cleveland Indians, 6-5 and 6-1, Tuesday night, extending the Indians' losing streak to seven games.

Cooper, who was 5-for-5 in the nightcap and 7-for-9 for the night, hit solo home runs in the first and sixth innings of the second game against loser Rick Waits, 5-5.

In the first game, Robin Yount and Roy Howell hit solo homers to pace a 14-hit Milwaukee attack in front of 7,776 in Cleveland, more than 1,000 over the Indians' average on Tuesday nights before the players' strike.

ELSEWHERE in the American League, four Texas pitchers — Rick Honeycutt, Jim Kern, John Henry Johnson and Dave Schmidt — combined for a four-hitter to give the Texas Rangers a 1-0 victory over the New York Yankees before 30,117 at Yankee Stadium. Consecutive first-inning singles by Bump Wills, Al Oliver and Buddy Bell produced the game's only run and helped Honeycutt gain his seventh victory in eight decisions.

Greg Luzinski broke a tie with his third extra base hit of the game in the seventh inning as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox 4-2 behind the five-hit pitching of Ross Baumgarten, Steve Trout and Ed Farmer. A crowd of 17,889, about 1,000 under Boston's average, attended the game.

Toronto's Otto Velez and Buck Martinez both belted three-run home runs in the first inning to help the Blue Jays break a 12-game losing streak with a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers. A near-average crowd of 15,187 was at the game.

RICKEY HENDERSON and Dwayne Murphy each had two hits and scored two runs to ignite Oakland's offense as the A's held off Minnesota 6-5. The game drew 8,836 fans compared to the 15,414 for the first game of the "Second Season" on Monday.

The Kansas City Royals' game at Baltimore was rained out.

In the National League, Mike Easler snapped a 2-2 tie with a single and John Milner smashed a three-run homer to cap a five-run rally in the ninth inning that carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-3 victory over the Montreal Expos. The Pirates won despite being held to one hit for seven innings by Bill Gullickson. The crowd of 33,045 boosted Montreal's attendance in its two games since the strike ended to over 70,000.

KEITH MORELAND hit a bases-loaded single off Bruce Sutter in the bottom of the 10th inning to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Moreland had sent the game, played before 24,549 in Philadelphia, into extra innings with a run-scoring single in the eighth.

Hubie Brooks and Doug Flynn knocked in key runs in the eighth inning and Brooks doubled home an insurance run in the ninth as the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs 1-2 in an afternoon game in front of 10,250 in Chicago, nearly 3,000 more than the reopener Monday. Trailing 2-1 going into the eighth, the Mets scored two runs on Brooks' sacrifice fly and a single by Flynn.

Tom Paciorek backed Jim Beattie's pitching with a two-run double as the Seattle Mariners beat the California Angels 4-1. Beattie, who posted a 16.62 earned run average in three early season appearances for the Mariners, pitched the first eight innings, then was relieved by Larry Andersen. The game drew a crowd of 6,808 against a Mariners' average of 13,428.

RUFINO LINARES belted a two-run triple to help 42-year-old right-hander Gaylord Perry win the 295th game of his career as the Atlanta Braves downed the San Diego Padres 5-1. Only 5,360 fans showed up after Monday night's game in which all seats were free and a record San Diego crowd of 52,608 was attracted.

Right-hander Tom Griffin pitched a six-hitter for 8 1-3 innings and the San Francisco Giants bunched eight of their hits in the first three innings for a 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros. A crowd of 12,354 saw the Giants snap a six-game losing streak dating back to June 5.

Dan Driessen slugged a three-run homer to highlight a four-run seventh inning that lifted the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-6 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Dodgers rookie Fernando Valenzuela started in quest on his 10th victory, drawing a crowd of 45,817 — the club's season average — but he lasted only until the fifth inning.

Rose makes big hit in NY lottery

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Pete Rose made a big hit with New York state lottery players Tuesday when they wagered more than $7,000 on the No. 3631, the same amount of hits Rose has accumulated in his career.

The Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman broke Stan Musial's National League hit total of 3,630 Monday night, and Tuesday the four-digit WIN 4 lottery game was flooded with bets on 3631.

Betting was closed on the number at 1:40 p.m. Tuesday when the potential payoff passed the $3.5 million mark. State Lottery Director John Quinn said that the "automatic ceiling" is imposed to prevent "inordinate losses" by the state.

The real winners turned out to be those bettors who had the Win-4 number of 7590. The amount of money those ticketholders won will be determined later this week.

Sherry Harrington of the lottery division said that the automatic ceiling is occasionally triggered in lotteries the state runs, most frequently in the three-digit Daily Numbers game on St. Patrick's Day (317) and Christmas (125).

She added that after the American hostages were released from Tehran the No. 444, the same number of days of the American's captivity, reached the ceiling for a week in the Daily Numbers game.

Tuesday's winning three-digit number was 842.

El Tiante gets summons from Pittsburgh Pirates

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Pitcher Luis Tiant, or El Tiante as he has become known in Portland while compiling a 13-7 record with the Pacific Coast League Beavers, is headed back to the major leagues with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates bought the 40-year-old right-hander Tuesday from their Class AAA farm team to fill a vacancy in the pitching staff caused when Don Robinson suffered cuts on the hand in an automobile accident.

Tiant was expected to start for the Pirates against Montreal Thursday night.

Tiant failed to make Pirates' roster last spring and signed with the Beavers as a free agent for more than $100,000.

Beavers General Manager Dave Hersh said Tiant was sold to the Pirates for less than the $25,000 waiver price.

In Portland, Tiant had a 3.82 earned run average. He walked 47 and struck out 111. He pitched an early-season no-hitter in a seven-inning game, and followed that with a one-hitter in his next start. He also pitched two three-hitters.

A veteran of four major league clubs, Tiant had his best seasons with Boston in the mid 1970s when he won 20 or more games in three different seasons. He had a record of 22-13 in 1974.

Among his most memorable games were two victories over the Cincinnati Reds in the 1975 World Series.

His overall major league record is 225-160 with a career earned run average of 3.27.

Injuries ravage Steelers

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Jack Ham came out of a routine pileup with a broken arm. A helmet to the midsection left Randy Grossman with two cracked ribs.

That means the Pittsburgh Steelers will be without two of their steadiest, most reliable players for next Saturday's exhibition game in Philadelphia.

"Those things happen," Coach Chuck Noll said of the injuries sustained by Ham and Grossman during last weekend's preseason victory over Cleveland.

Ham, the All-Pro outside linebacker, will be out at least eight to 10 weeks with a broken left arm.

One candidate for his spot is rookie David Little, a seventh-round draft pick from Florida who has been a training camp standout.

Other possibities are veteran Zack Valentine, recovering from a knee sprain; Dennis Winston, backup to Jack Lambert at middle linebacker; and another veteran, Loren Toews.

"We have David Little working there right now," Noll said after a practice session.

"And we've got to see Zack. He's about ready to come back. Of course, we've got Loren and Dennis who can play out there. So we've got lot of folks."

GROSSMAN, who been sharing the tight end job with Bennie Cunningham, is expected to miss at least four weeks with his broken ribs.

That left rookie Jeff Finn as the lone tight end in uniform behind Cunningham.

Finn, a 6-foot-4, 240-pounder, is a free-agent from Nebraska, where he started two seasons and made Academic All-America as a pre-law major.

"He (Finn) is very smart, he doesn't make too many mistakes and he's progressing from a technique standpoint," said Noll.

MIKE DOMBROWSKI, a rookie tight end from Pitt, was released Tuesday from a hospital where he had undergone five days of treatment for a bladder infection. He was expected to resume full practice today.

Terry Bradshaw will start at quarterback Saturday against the Eagles after watching backup Cliff Stoudt pass for three touchdowns and run for two more in the 35-31 victory over Cleveland.

Bradshaw will work behind an offensive line that made a strong showing in Cleveland after being hampered by a rash of minor injuries earlier in training camp.

"OUR PASS protection will get a good test this week because this team (Philadelphia) does a good job with the pass rush," said Noll.

Noll also looks for improvement from a Steeler defense that allowed 31 points in Cleveland.

Diablos' home runs defeat SA

By The Associated Press

Bob Skube and Eddie Irvine had solo home runs Tuesday night as the El Paso Diablos edged the San Antonio Dodgers, 2-0, in a Texas League baseball game.

In other Texas League action, Shreveport swept a doubleheader from Jackson, 3-1 and 8-4, and Tulsa took both ends of a twinbill from Arkansas, 5-2 and 12-4.

Skube had a solo homer in the fourth inning and Irvine slugged his in the eighth.

Chick Valley, 10-5, pitching in relief, was the winning pitcher. Mike Glinatsis, 3-4, was the loser.

Don Gladden had a solo homer and a double as the Shreveport Captains beat the Jackson Mets, 3-1, in the first game of a doubleheader.

The winning pitcher was Alan Fowlkes, 12-6. Mike Lowry, 6-9, was the loser.

JIM ROTHFORD had a two-run homer in the 8-4 Shreveport victory in the second game.

Gladden stole three bases in the second game, bringing his season total to 48, tying a club record set in 1975 by Jimmy Sexton.

Expos' Carter credits Famer Spahn for tip

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal Expos catcher Gary Carter credits Hall of Fame pitcher Warren Spahn with an assist on his two home runs in Sunday night's All-Star Game in Cleveland.

"In both instances when I hit the home runs, Warren Spahn kissed my bat. After the first homer I stuck the bat back in the rack and Spahnnie gave it another kiss," Carter said Tuesday.

Spahn, the former Boston and Milwaukee Braves pitching great, was an honorary captain of the National League All Stars, who won the game 5-1.

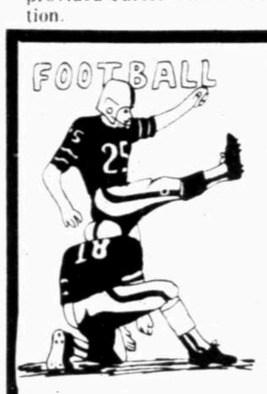

Besides directing traffic from the coaching box for a spell, Spahn also provided Carter with a lot of inspiration.

"The enthusiasm that Spahn showed meant a great deal to me. He was like a little kid in a candy store, and he was such a neat guy to be around. I'd like to make it a point of publicly thanking him."

Carter has gained a few admirers of his own since being named the Game's most valuable player.

"I took the phone off the hook when I got home after the All-Star game, but no sooner had I put it back on the hook then there must have been 20 calls," he said.

One of the calls Carter received was from officials at baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., requesting the bat that did the damage.

Rose aims at Aaron

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose said he had no afterthoughts the day after.

"I'm just happy all those people didn't get disappointed," said Rose Tuesday night before the Philadelphia Phillies met the St. Louis Cardinals, and a day after he became the National League's all-time hit leader before 60,561 fans.

Rose erased Stan Musial's National League career hit mark Monday night with an eighth-inning single off Cards' reliever Mark Littell, giving Rose a career total of 3,631 hits. On Tuesday night, he added another single to the growing total.

Next in line for Rose on the all-time hit parade is Hank Aaron, who has 3,771. Then, if the 40-year-old Rose can play long enough he'll try to pass Ty Cobb's all-time major league record of 4,191.

What was the day after like?

"I was up at 6:30 (A.M.) and in a television studio for an appearance on 'Good Morning America,' said Rose who didn't get to bed until after 2 A.M.

Last chance for grid tickets

Season ticket option holders for high school football games will have until Friday to renew their options.

Non-option holders may buy season tickets from the available list now through Aug. 28.

A book of tickets for Midland High games, six tickets, will cost $18, and a book of tickets for Midland Lee games will cost $12 for four home contests. Office hours are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., including the lunch hour.

Nelson scores ace at Ranchland

Oddery Nelson fired a hole-in-one at Ranchland Hills Country Club this week by recording an ace on the No. 8, 165-yard hole with a four-wood. Nelson was playing with Don Daugherty, Randy Randerson and Bill Russell.

Entry deadline for MJTA tourney

Deadline for the Midland Junior Tennis Association's tournament for boys and girls, ages 16 and under, is today. The tournament will be held Aug. 15-16 at the Lee High courts.

To enter call Yvonne Garton at 683-1529. Trophies and balls will be provided by the MJTA through the Midland Mixed Doubles Benefit, which is sponsored by the Midland National Bank.

Longhorns must remain healthy

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — After a near-national football championship in 1977, Texas has slipped in the football rankings, and Coach Fred Akers says the Longhorns must stay healthy to rebound.

"I'll guarantee you health is the No. 1 factor," Akers said. "The (Southwest) conference is an exciting one because the talent is distributed so evenly. That tells you that keeping players healthy is as important as anything you can name."

Five running backs and guard Joe Shearin and tackle John Tobolka on the left side of the offensive line were sidelined with injuries for part of last year as Texas fell to 7-5.

IN 1979 the loss of starting backs A.J. "Jam" Jones and Rodney Tate late in the season ruined a possible outstanding year as Texas dropped its final two games and finished 9-3.

"It's our year to stay healthy," Akers said in an interview. "I hope it (string of injuries) has run its course. The last two years we were hurt badly, but we're through with that."

Whether it is Texas' year to return to the Cotton Bowl as SWC champions depends largely on the play of Rick McIvor at quarterback.

Akers granted Donnie Little's request to switch from starting quarterback to wide receiver in spring training, and he installed McIvor, a 6-foot-4 junior with a strong throwing arm, as the No. 1 quarterback.

"Quarterback is the key for us," Akers said. "We're not proven there. ... It's a big question mark. You have to be honest about it. ... I don't know that I remember a team that won the championship that didn't have an established quarterback. If may have been us in '77."

JONES returns for his senior year with 2,040 yards rushing, and the line is the largest in Akers' five years as head coach at Texas. Akers describes 260-pound tackle Terry Tausch as a "bona fide" All-American, and he rates center Mike Babb — "the strongest football player we've had around here" — as another possible all-star.

Defensive leaders include tackle Kenneth Sims, 6-6 and 265, and linebackers Doug Shankle and Bruce Scholtz. "Kenneth Sims has got a shot at being the best lineman in college football," said Akers.

Akers has been described in published reports as a man under pressure to win big in 1981, but he said, "I feel the same way I've felt any other season I've coached. A coach who's worth his salt gets involved in pressure only when it comes from within himself. Good coaches don't pay any attention to outside pressures. They put enough on themselves — they want to win."

McInally plans guitar debut

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Sometime after opening day, Pat McInally plans to have an opening night as he demonstrates his talents as a singer and guitar player.

Already, the Cincinnati Bengals' punter and pass receiver can be heard from his dormitory room at the team's training camp competing with the blare of stereos and the whirring of film projectors.

The Harvard graduate taught himself to play the guitar and write songs about a year ago. He had written some lyrics before when he lived with another Harvard student who sings professionally.

"I joke and goof around about them, but I'm very proud of them," he said of his songs. McInally classifies his music as "pop," including some ballads.

"If you heard my stuff, you wouldn't be able to say that's anyone's (style)," he said. "I try to make mine easy to listen to, but if you look behind the surface you can find a lot of meat to the lyrics."

Sometime after the football season begins, McInally wants to set up an appearance or two to record some of the songs.

Angelo makes waves over Big Spring game

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Running between the dots...

San Angelo has been made the heavy in the current District 5-5A Schedule War of 1982 because they don't want to play Big Spring in the last game of the year. The University Interscholastic League has given San Angelo the right to ask for a change in the schedule, so the bottom line now reads, "Who else will accept a schedule with Big Spring on the bottom line?"...For that matter, since San Angelo was 0-10 last year, who will accept a schedule with San Angelo on the bottom line? Big Spring may be the better draw...

When the District 5-5A Executive Committee met last week, they had more heavy matters to consider than just the 1982 football schedule. For instance, they decided that the home team in basketball would wear white jerseys. And in a moment of brilliance, they unanimously voted to let Midland host the 1982 5-5A track meet. With the track facilities that we have in Midland, a saner vote would have been to bar Midland from ever holding the meet...

WHEN ABILENE High AD Shorty Lawson proposed that the 5-5A tennis teams could cut down on the schedule by playing on four dates instead of seven with some doubleheaders, Odessa High football coach Jerry Millsapps did him one better, "Shoot, why not let them play five times on one trip and they could cut down to two trips. Abilene could come to Odessa and play two matches and catch the Midland and Big Spring schools on the way back."

What happened to all those fans who were going to write off the 1981 baseball season? Was that a "real" crowd that we saw on TV Monday night for the All-Star game? It seems the fans have forgiven the owners and players for a lost season without a battle...It appears that baseball will also be able to sell a trumped-up, short season World Series to the nation's gullible fandom without even rearranging the schedule where the teams play the same opponents the same number of times or, at the very least, the same number of games...

We've heard of expanding playoff formats in all sports, but baseball's idea of a tiered playoff system is one of the worst we've ever heard of. It's possible that a team that didn't win either so-called "half" can get into the World Series. I wish someone could explain that one...The Yankees, A's, Dodgers and Phillies are already in the playoffs, so look for them to "throw" a few key games in this half...

TOM LANDRY didn't seem too upset when his Cowboys lost to the Green Bay Packers in an exhibition game Saturday, saying, "The Packers were going pretty hard to win the game, and that's fine. We wanted to look at as many players as we could and I'd say we stayed pretty well on schedule." Still, the game did nothing to quiet the fears that Cowboy fans have concerning the secondary...Brad Wright, former Midland Lee quarterback, tossed a five yard touchdown in his NFL debut Saturday with the Miami Dolphins. He completed two of three passes for 12 yards overall...Denver Bronco guard Keith Bishop, another former Lee grad, ruptured a foot tendon in a 33-7 exhibition loss against the New York Jets and will miss the rest of the season.

He had surgery Tuesday at St. Luke's Hosiptal in Denver. Wonder if Keith, who is considered one of the strongest linemen in the NFL, will now think more seriously about a sumo wrestling career?

WHILE SITT ING in the All-America Turf Club at Ruidoso Downs recently, I overheard a horse owner say, "If my horse doesn't do well, I'll shoot him. Better still, I may shoot myself." His horse finished last, and come to think of it, I didn't see the owner around again...

Girls softball should be instituted as a high school sport. Over the weekend, Midland's Division IV team won the UGSA's national championship in Hobbs, N.M. Yearly, Midland teams do well in UGSA playoff competition...Ran into Billy Taylor the other day, and the former Midland High sprinter is going to run at Odessa College this year...

Midland Lee's Keith Brown, who is headed for Oklahoma State to play football, was recently named as the North's MVP in the Texas High School Coaches Association's annual All-Star football game in Dallas. Odessa Permian's John Wilkins was the coach of the team. Midland High's Herbert Johnson, who will join Nolan Richardson's NIT champion Tulsa cage unit this fall, was the North's MVP of the THSCA's All-Star basketball game. How many times before have you seen athletes from the same city earn MVP honors in both All-Star games? None. It's a first...

And while we are still running between the dots, you will be glad to know that Memorial Stadium is still standing after another summer, and fans will get to pay more this year for a seat in the antiquated relic...Some things just don't seem to make sense in this world...

Hill listed as doubtful

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Wide receiver Tony Hill, recovering from a pulled hamstring suffered three weeks ago, was listed as doubtful for the Dallas Cowboys' preseason game Saturday against the Los Angeles Rams, team officials said Tuesday.

Butch Johnson was expected to replace Hill in the starting lineup.

Also listed as doubtful were second-year linebacker Bill Roe and second-year safety Dextor Clinkscale, officials said.

Roe sprained an ankle during last Saturday night's 21-17 loss against Green Bay. Clinkscale has been hobbled by a strained Achilles tendon.

Second-round draft choice Doug Donley, a wide receiver from Ohio State, also was expected to miss the game with a pulled groin muscle.

Could Dodgers' Rodas be next Valenzuela?

San Antonio's parting shot in leaving Midland last week was Rick Rodas' 8-4 victory over the Cubs. It gave the Sacramento, Calif., lefthander a 13-3 record in his first Texas League season, prompting some to label Rick this year's Dodger Fernando Valenzuela.

Karl Pagel...a year to remember.

The ages are about the same, but Rick's case history bears striking similarities to that of another lefthander who passed through these portals back in 1973, a 19-year-old for El Paso who went on to become known as Frank Tanana.

In decisions against Midland this year, Rodas is 3-1 and he'll get another crack at them in the final series of the season, which would give him an opportunity to equal Tanana's 4-1 record against the Cubs. Midland's lone win over Rodas was an emphatic 2-1 decision. Midland's lone win against Tanana was 1-0 in 11 innings.

Rick says despite his domination of the Cubs this year, "They are the toughest club in the league for me. With that lineup they have, I feel under pressure all the way. There's really no place to ease up."

AFTER A 12-0 season at Lethridge in 1979, Rodas missed the entire 1980 season. Seems they found an extra rib that was causing shoulder problems. Surgery removed the rib and took the pressure off the veins and nerves in the shoulder. Since the operation, Rodas is 13-3, an indicator that Rick shouldn't be much longer for this league.

After a 7-2 freshman year at Quad Cities, Midwest, Tanana sat out 1972 with a sore arm. He came back to post a 16-6 record and a 2.71 earned run average, in El Paso, no less, to earn a promotion to the California Angels by the season's end. That record included a league-leading 197 strikeouts, four shutouts and 15 complete games while pitching more than 4,000 feet above sea level. Those figures sound more suitable to sweltering, humid, oppressive Jackson.

SINCE TANANA didn't lead the TL in ERA that year, our curiosity got the best of us. The ERA leader, it turned out, was Midland pitcher Dan Corder with a 2.32 and Tanana's figures pale alongside Dan's 13-3 record and 11 complete games. Dan compiled his statistics in less than a half season here before being summoned to Wichita.

Despite Corder's promise, he never made it to the big leagues, some say because he was unable to push himself back away from the plate with his inside fast one.

Research shows that Corder is the Cubs' only Texas League ERA winner. In parts of two seasons here, Corder pitched 20 complete games, which is a club record. However, former University of Michigan righthander Chuck Rogers is the season leader in complete games, 15 in 1976.

Most victories by a Cub pitcher, 14 by Donnie Moore on the 1975 pennant winners, but Mike Krukow had the best record on the staff, 13-6 to Donnie's 14-8.

Naturally, Bruce Sutter is the all-time Cub leader in saves, right? Wrong. Bruce chalked up 13 with his infamous split-finger fastball in 1975, but a year later Rice University's Jay Temple had 14 when he opened his mouth to a vacationing Chicago sports writer in midseason. The result was a Sunday magazine expose that was less than complimentary about Chicago and its treatment of its minor league players. Chicago asked Jay if he really felt that way and then handed him his release. Jay, an intelligent youngster with a reasonable amount of promise, hasn't been heard from since in baseball, but he's probably doing okay in the business world.

TED BATTLES

THAT 1975 staff was remarkable for its earned run averages: Sutter 2.16, Bernie Beckman, 2.93, Gary Junge 2.24, Moore 2.97 and the rest in the 3.00-3.50 range.

Lefthander Dyain Frazier set the M-Cub record for whiffs in 1973 with 133, beating Steve Hamrick's 1976 total by one. Hamrick, who got as far as the Seattle Mariners before calling it a career and returning to Midland, also gets a "well-done" but no cigar for most innings pitched in a season with 185.1 in 1976. That wasn't even the most that year. Chuck Rogers had 196.1, which was the record until Jon Perlman's 200 last season.

CLUB RECORD holders in batting include Jim Tracy, who hit .355 in 1979 to deprive El Paso's Mark Brouhard of the TL triple crown. The same season Dan Rohn scored 122 runs and Jared Martin lashed out 168 hits to beat the old mark of 166 by Steve Macko the season before.

Tom Grant's 38 doubles last season represent a club record and Scott Fletcher hit 11 triples, but it wasn't enough to top Pete LaCock's league leading total of 13 in 1972. Pete loved his triples. He'd bring opposing outfielders around to testify that the ball that hit them on top of the head deserved to be triples and not three base errors. Strangely, Pete never summoned opposing pitchers to testify in his behalf.

The home run record of 29 by Jerry Tabb and Wayne Tyrone in 1974 seems safe from assault this year while Tyrone's 108 RBI the same year is a record.

However, no Cub has ever dominated club and league statistics as Karl Pagel, the former Texas Longhorn, did in 1977 when he hit .334, scored 88 runs, collected 137 hits, whacked 28 doubles and 28 homers while knocking in 104 runs. No wonder he was named Texas League Player of the Year.

Barrios arrest warant a mistake

CHICAGO (AP) — An arrest warrant was issued Tuesday for Chicago White Sox pitcher Francisco Barrios after he failed to appear in court on a cocaine charge. However, a White Sox spokesman said the warrant resulted from a "misunderstanding."

Spokesman Ken Valdiserri said Barrios' attorneys and Circuit Judge Gene Campion had a "misunderstanding" that may have involved the team's schedule. He said that Campion and the lawyers were discussing a new court date.

The White Sox are on a two-week road trip and currently are in Boston. Valdiserri said he believed a new court date would be set after the team returns to Chicago on Aug. 27. Barrios will not return until then, he said.

Weak field expected

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Thursday's opening of the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament may be more notable for who isn't there instead of who is.

Tournament officials had been expecting Larry Nelson, winner of last weekend's PGA Championship. They even promoted Nelson as an entry because they thought he had made a verbal commitment to play here.

Nelson, however, had not made that commitment and, when he failed to put it in writing Sunday, he was officially out.

There are other prominent no-shows. Raymond Floyd, a three-time titlist on the PGA tour this year and the second leading money-winner, withdrew because of an ailment. And the 1979 champion, Jerry McGee, will pass up this year's tournament because of the death of his father. Mark Macomber, a relatively new name on the PGA tour, withdrew Tuesday because of back problems.

Three alternates have been chosen to replace Floyd, McGee and Macomber.

Among this year's top 10 money-winners, only two will enter the GHO — Craig Stadler (eighth with $179,145) and Curtis Strange (10th with $176,531).

Those students receiving perfect attendance awards from Stanton were Lupe Barrers, Pam Garcia, Jonita Jones, Ruth Jones, Tammy Jones, Rosandrea Marquez, Rodney Matthews, Tulina Smith, Veronica Smith, Carol Williams, Denise Young and Jennifer Young.

Also awarded attendance honors were Algretta Watson and Kathy Young.

Governors criticize Reagan

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The National Governors' Association meeting concluded with a fiery exchange between the White House and Democratic governors over the economy and propriety of criticizing President Reagan.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. accused Reagan on Tuesday of wrecking the economy, the states and the cities, and Vice President George Bush called into question the national spirit of anyone who could say such a thing.

Agricultural region bracing for infestation of fruit fly

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — The nation's richest agricultural region is bracing for a Mediterranean fruit fly infestation, as state officials express little confidence they can stop its spread from backyards to commercial farms.

A fertile female medfly has already been found in Livermore, just west of the lush San Joaquin Valley, whose medfly-susceptible crops last year were valued at $277 million. California produces $4.7 billion annually in crops that can be medfly hosts, a big part of the state's $14 billion agriculture industry.

"We haven't seen the last medfly yet," said eradication project head Jerry Scribner. He said he was not confident the fly could be contained before reaching the valley.

DURING THE AIR TRAFFIC CONTROLLERS' WORK STOPPAGE...

KEEP FLYING, AMERICA.
BRANIFF HAS PLENTY OF SEATS
TO 40 U.S. CITIES.

PLUS BRITAIN, CANADA, MEXICO AND SOUTH AMERICA.

Many seats are available on flights to Braniff cities across the USA, including Honolulu, with daily nonstops from Dallas-Fort Worth.

All Braniff's international service is operating as scheduled in the current timetable. This includes daily nonstops to London, Toronto, Mexico City and Acapulco from Texas, as well as many flights to 10 nations in South America from our gateway cities of New York, Washington, Miami, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

We expect to continue serving these cities and nations during the Air Traffic Controllers' work stoppage. So you can plan round-trip travel on Braniff with confidence. We will offer additional service when the Federal Aviation Administration allows it.

More than 80% of all flights have been departing on time (within 10 minutes of scheduled time).

ANOTHER GOOD REASON TO FLY BRANIFF ...

YOU CAN EARN FREE TRIPS FASTER ON BRANIFF THAN ON ANY OTHER MAJOR AIRLINE.

Every time you fly Braniff to any city in Mainland U.S., Hawaii, London, Mexico or Canada between now and May 31, 1982, you'll earn Braniff Travel Bonus Bonanza points.

And during August, you'll earn double Bonus Bonanza points.

Use those points for free or discounted Braniff tickets (at least 75 points needed), for First Class tickets at Coach prices (30 points) or for one-year membership in the Braniff International Council clubs (30 points).

Next time you fly Braniff, save your boarding passes and ticket receipts, and start earning free trips. Fast!

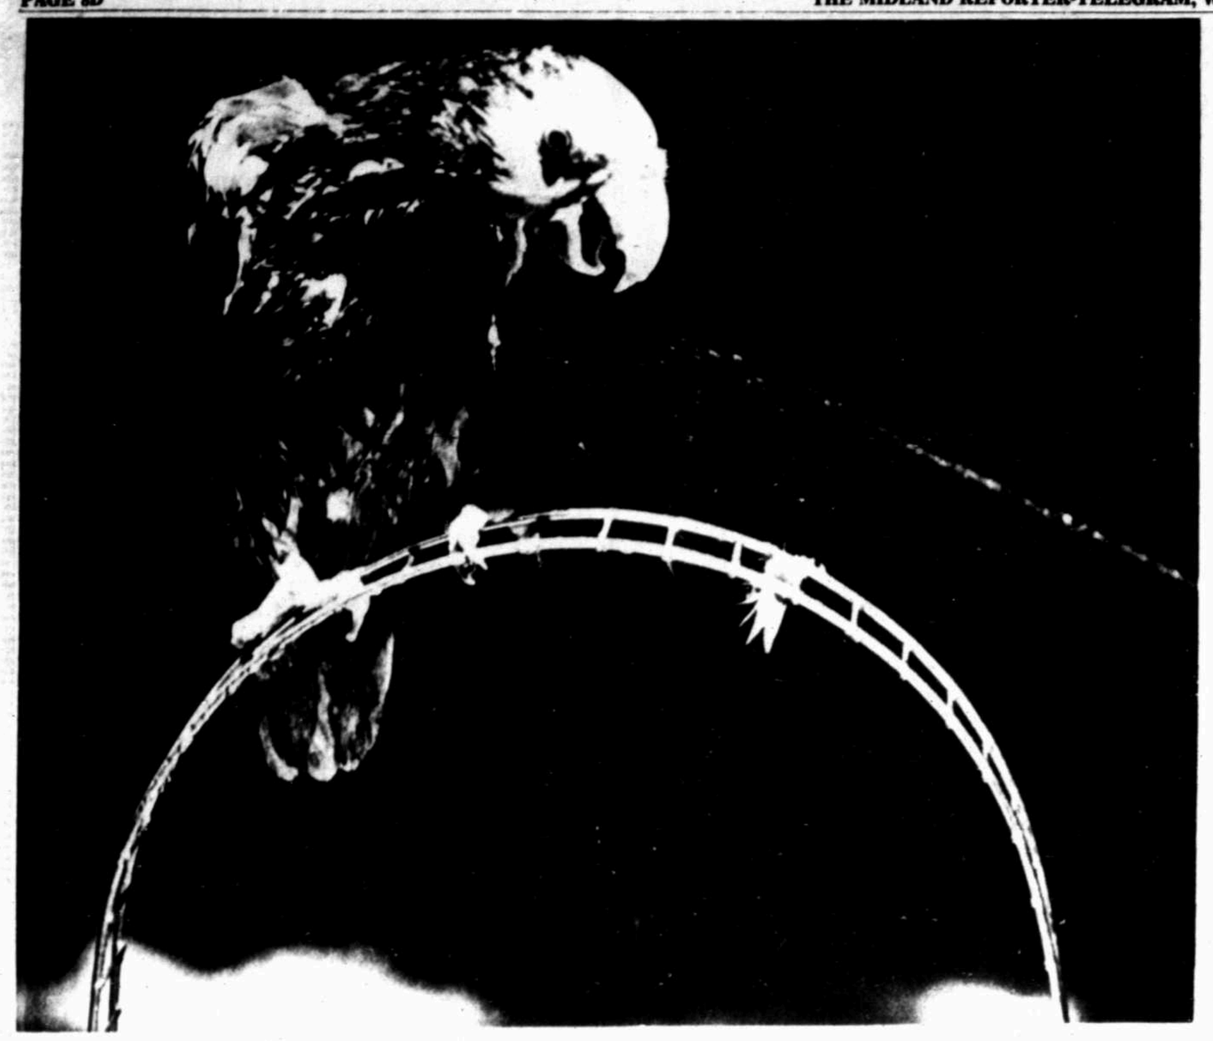

For specific details of rules and prize information, ask your participating travel agent for the Braniff Travel Bonus Bonanza folder or write: Braniff Travel Bonus Bonanza, W361, P.O. Box 61747, DFW Airport, Texas 75261.

For specific flight information and reservations, call your travel agent or Braniff in Midland or Odessa at 563-3885. All other Texas cities call toll-free (800) 492-4300.

Remember, seats are available right now on Braniff.

Bosco Bahama, an 18-month-old double yellow head parrot, is cooled off with water from a spray bottle in Portland, Ore., as hot weather continues in much of the Pacific Northwest. Portland's temperature climbed over 100 degrees for the fifth straight day Monday with more hot weather expected.

Recycled butts big business in Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Want to kick the smoking habit but lack the willpower? Visit Indonesia, where thousands of private entrepreneurs patrol the city sidewalks daily, searching for discarded butts to recycle into new cigarettes that may be doubly hazardous to your health.

Long bamboo tweezers and a metal can are the tools of the trade of the ubiquitous butt scavengers, known as "profesi jepit." Jepit in Indonesian means "to grip," and profesi means profession. Depending on quality, stubs fetch from 450 to 800 rupiahs (72 U.S. cents to $1.28 U.S) for 35 ounces.

Most prized are the butts of "kretek" cigarettes, a uniquely Indonesian type that is laced with cloves, and burns with a pleasant aroma and a soft crackling sound.

"The booming business of cigarette butts has given a better life to a few people, but has exposed lots of others to greater health hazards," the official Antara news agency said in a recent report.

However, the government is doing nothing to curb the recycled cigarette industry, and none of Indonesia's commercial cigarette makers acknowledge that they buy the discarded material for use in their products.

Forty-year-old Hariyanto — like many Indonesians he has only one name — says he can gather 11 pounds of salvageable cigarette butts on sunny days, but only about 7 pounds when it rains.

For his labors, he said, he earns between 40,000 and 120,000 rupiahs ($64 and $192 U.S.) a month. The East Java native became a profesi jepit only after he was unable to find construction work.

Miss Salminah, 45, a former maid, says she manages to pick up only about 7 to 9 pounds of butts a day, "but I prefer being a stub collector to being a housemaid."

The clove cigarettes that are most popular finds for the collectors were invented by a man named Nitiseoito, in the central Java town of Kudus, in the 1920s. The industry continues in that region today, a labor-intensive one that the government encourages in job-scarce Java.

According to the Directorate General of Multifarious Industry, the number of people employed in making clove cigarettes has almost doubled since 1975, to 130,328 last year. This did not include profesi jepits, about whom there is little official data.
