Nancy Huval, 13, eighth-grader at Pampa, strikes a pose of wonderment before a giant map of Texas, largest state in the Union—that is if Alaska, about which she wrote to President Truman, is not admitted. She would like to have the President divide the territory so that Texas would still be the nation's largest state.

Charges Alleging Armed Robbery, Auto Theft Filed Against Young Desperado

Congress Group Rejects Proposal On Service Funds

WASHINGTON — (P) — The 102 member House-Senate Budgetary Committee Friday rejected a proposal to keep Army and Navy funds intact and agreed to decide later whether to work toward an overall federal budget slash of $5,000,000,000 or $4,150,000,000.

The compromise figure was offered by Senator Gurney (R-SD) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who was leading a drive to prevent cuts in military funds which he contends would jeopardize the nation's security.

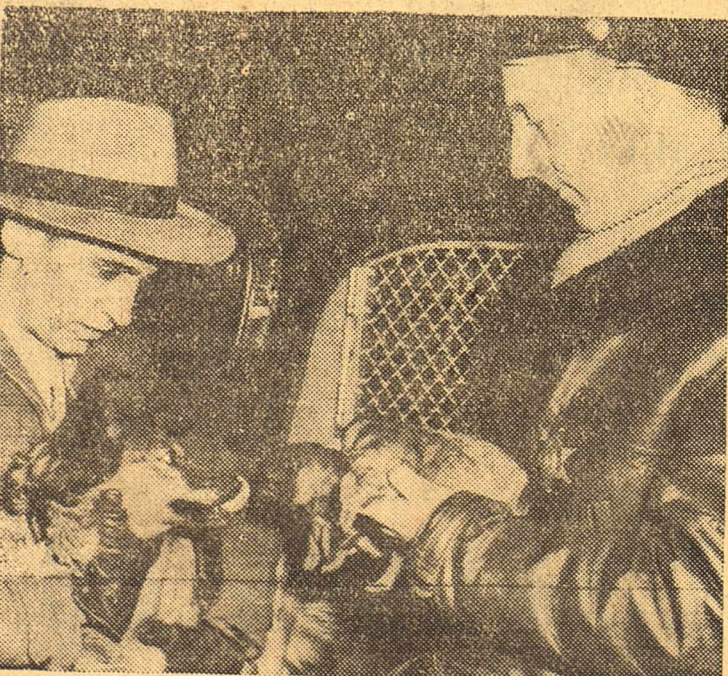

Gurney said his compromise would allow only "token cuts" of the armed forces of about $200,000,000 each for the Army and Navy. A $5,000,000,000 slash as recommended by the subcommittee calls for a $1,750,000,000 cut in the armed services.

President Truman has asked for approximately $11,200,000,000 for the armed forces out of a $37,500,000,000 budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Midland Junior College Issue To Be Decided In Election Saturday

Voters of the Midland Independent School District will go to the polls Saturday to determine whether Midland will have a junior college.

The election will be held in the Children's Library in the basement of the Midland County Courthouse, with Mrs. Harry Tolbert serving as election judge. Her assistants will be Mrs. Myrtle Golladay, Mrs. Mamie Tolbert, Mrs. Alma Ligon and Miss Cordelia Taylor.

The polls will be open from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m.

Much interest has been displayed on both sides of the junior college question and a large vote is expected.

Qualified property tax payers of the Midland Independent School District, who have rendered property for taxation, will be eligible to vote. A total of five absentee ballots were cast.

The Midland Junior Chamber of Commerce is urging all qualified voters to vote Saturday.

"Vote as you wish—but vote," the Jaycees urged.

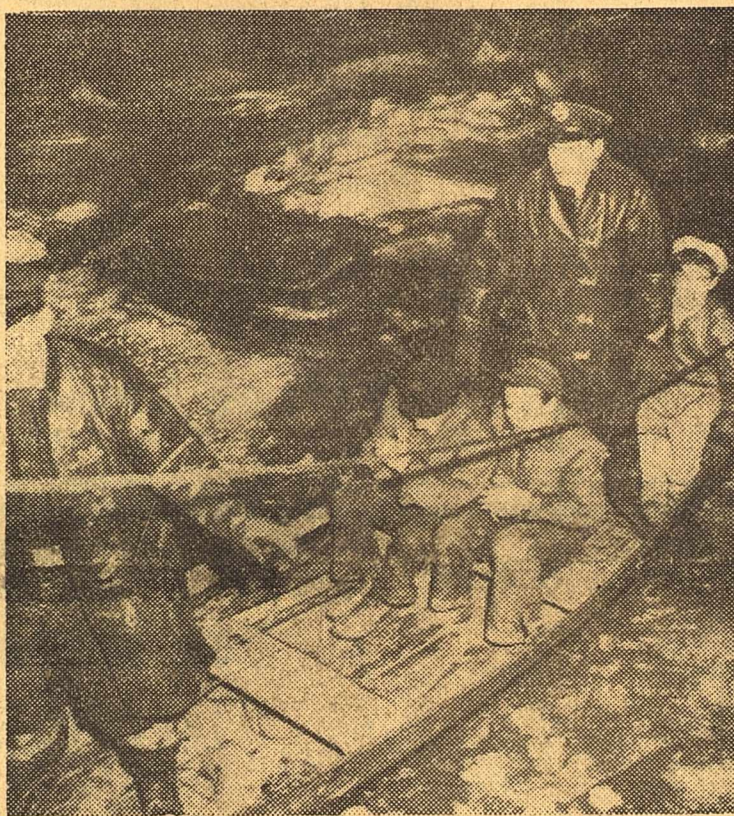

School officials said a tax levy to support the proposed junior college is not involved in the election.

Trustees of the school district called the election after a petition requesting it had been submitted to them. The petition, signed by more than the required number of tax payers, was forwarded to the State Board of Education which authorized the calling of the election.

The Junior College Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce late last year recommended, after making a thorough study as to the potential, curricula, cost of operation, available resources and facilities of a junior college, that the matter be submitted to the voters for final decision.

The question has been under consideration here several years, but has not been voted on previously.

U.S.-Russian Fight Over Atomic Control Brought Out Again

LAKE SUCCESS — (P) — The bitter conflict between the United States and Soviet Russia over atomic control was brought into the open again Friday by a new Soviet demand that atomic weapons must be outlawed before any control system is set up.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko disclosed his position as the United Nations Security Council prepared to meet to resume debate on a blueprint for atomic control, based on American proposals and approved by the UN Atomic Energy Commission last December 30, with Russia and Poland abstaining.

Since the Soviet proposal already had been rejected by the Atomic Commission last Summer, the move to raise the issue again was interpreted as an indication that Gromyko was prepared to make a last-ditch fight against the U. S. plan.

Members of the delegations indicated that they were chiefly anxious to find out from the secretary what this country will be able to do in helping to keep the disease from spreading.

Movie Maker Asks Congress To Prohibit Union's Closed Shop

WASHINGTON — (P) — Movie maker Cecil B. DeMille asked Congress Friday to prohibit the closed shop and "free" workers "from a serfdom unparalleled in American history since the abolition of slavery."

Terming the power of the closed shop union absolute, the Hollywood producer declared it controls "the right to work" and thereby "the right to live."

It is "a grotesque departure from American democracy," DeMille said in a statement prepared for the Senate Labor Committee.

DeMille said he was "deprived of the right to work" for refusing "to pay a political assessment" of $1 levied by his union, the American Federation of Radio Artists.

Referring to an incident in the 1944 election, DeMille said his local made the assessment as part of its campaign against a state election proposal which he favored.

Halt Work In Sympathy Move For Coal Diggers Protesting Pay Dock

LANSFORD, PA. — (P) — Six thousand miners Friday quit work in sympathy with 13 hard coal diggers on a sitdown strike 800 feet below the surface of the earth.

The Panther Valley Committee of the AFL United Mine Workers voted to halt work beginning with Friday's first shift in a sympathy move for the coal diggers who are protesting docking of pay.

Meanwhile, miners went to work supplying the sitdown strikers with food, blankets, newspapers and other comforts.

Fifteen miners refused to leave the Lansford Workings of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company Wednesday night, but two emerged later, one because of illness and the other because he was a bridegroom and he had promised to help his wife set up a new home.

The 1,200 others working at the colliery refused to go to work Thursday and emptied their lunch pails, lowering enough food to the men to last for several days.

Brings Complete Halt
Friday's shutdown brings a complete halt to the vast Lehigh Navigation operations at Lansford, Coaldale, Nesquehoning and Tamaqua.

The 15 men protested what they said was company docking of pay for failure to work a full day.

Evan Evans, vice-president and general manager of the company, said "no formal grievance has been presented to the company by the group and when this action is taken we shall hear it with a sympathetic attitude."

Government sources said that in a gradual relaxation of restrictions some industries at first might be given 50 per cent of their normal power needs, enough to restore to at least part time employment some of the workers left idle in the crisis. The Board of Trade has estimated that from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 were unemployed thus far.

The special three-man "coal cabinet," headed by Prime Minister Attlee, scheduled a meeting with company executive Friday to discuss the problem.

WORN OUT FROM GETTING UP NIGHTS?

If you get up nights—have frequent desire to pass your water—yes, and have backache, due to excess acidity in the urine, be glad you're reading this. Three generations ago Dr. Kilmer, a famous doctor, found hundreds of his patients with this trouble. So he made a medicine of 16 herbs, roots, vegetables, balsams. He called it "Swamp-Root." Millions of men and women have taken it—often with amazing results.

Swamp-Root goes right to work to flush out kidneys... increases flow of urine, helping relieve excess acidity... so the irritated bladder gets a good flushing out, too. Many report getting a good night's sleep after the first few doses. Caution: take as directed.

For free trial supply, send to Dept. R, Kilmer & Co., Inc., Box 1255, Stamford, Conn. Or—get full-sized bottle of Swamp-Root today at your druggist.

10 ways you can help yourself to good telephone service

Telephoning is easy. But more depends on the user than people realize. What you do when making or receiving a call often has a lot to do with how satisfactory that call is. Here are ten suggestions:

1. Before you call, make sure of the number. If you're not sure of it, look in the telephone directory, and thus avoid wrong numbers.

2. Give the called party time to answer. He or she may be some distance from the telephone. A minute isn't too long.

3. Speak directly into the mouthpiece. About an inch between it and your lips is right for best results.

4. Move the switch hook slowly up and down to recall or signal the operator. "Jiggling" the hook rapidly often won't cause a signal to come in and is useless.

5. Replace the receiver carefully when you have finished talking. A receiver partly off the hook puts the whole line out of order.

6. Answer calls promptly. It's courteous to do so and often keeps the caller from hanging up—thinking you're not at home.

7. Identify yourself when you call or answer. Not everyone recognizes you by your voice. Telling who you are saves time and sometimes embarrassment.

8. Space calls on party lines. If you have a series of calls to make, allow a few minutes between each one so others can use the line to call or be called.

9. Keep calls brief on party lines. Other folks on the line will appreciate your thoughtfulness and—who knows—may follow your good example.

10. Avoid calling in busy hours if possible. Switchboards are usually busiest during midmorning and late afternoon.

Dangerous Shortcuts

The United Nations Charter assigns to the Security Council "primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security". That primary responsibility certainly includes control of the use of fissionable atomic material. Yet the United States and Britain are being forced to consider a plan that would separate that responsibility from the council.

Both governments are reported to be considering proposals for putting inspection, control and punishment of violators under an independent atomic development authority. The reason, of course, is Russia's persistent refusal to waive the veto power of the council's permanent members over any council action against violators of an atomic control agreement.

Neither of the two plans has been formally announced. But the American proposal is said to give the independent agency the power to act only in serious violations, and to permit individual nations to declare war against the violator. The British outline would make an independent agency responsible for all atomic control, but would compel all governments to act together in any punishment of the violator.

It might be argued that it is results rather than methods which count, and that anything which might free the world from a fear of atomic warfare is welcome. But the dangers in these two proposals that might be acceptable only as a last resort.

The American idea of moving a dispute out of the council to the approach of a crisis seems to us to be better than the British alternative. This at least would keep much of the discussion within the UN, which, after all, was organized to keep the peace. On the other hand, the American plan for separate declarations of war is a questionable solution.

There is a clause in the charter, to be sure, which makes this possible. Article 51 states that the charter shall not impair "the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member".

But this is the old-fashioned method that turns its back on the purpose of the UN and on the lessons of two world wars. It would not permit any move of defense until after the first atomic attack. And even if the self-defense clause were broadened by rewriting, a small nation threatened by a powerful one would probably hesitate to make a lone move without complete assurance of united support.

Basically, these two plans are only a subterfuge. Certainly the American and British governments know it, and as certainly they must be considering the proposals with reluctance. For the idea of an independent atomic agency is only a sort of legalistic maneuver where no real legality exists.

There is little likelihood that Russia, if she does not like any vetoless function of the Security Council, would like a vetoless independent authority any better. It is extremely doubtful that Russia would be a member of such an authority. And an independent atomic agency with Russia might lead to a United Nations without Russia.

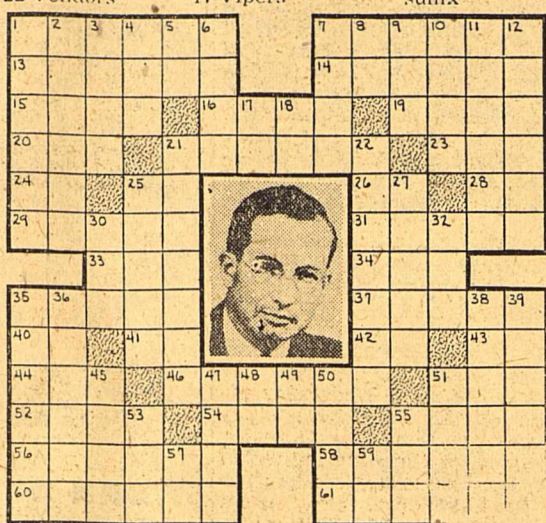

The Soviet government will find more to object to the new proposals than in the Baruch plan, at which it balked so long, and hence be more willing to retract its original stand. In any event, the new Anglo-American short-cuts appear from here to be about as thorny as the highway which they would abandon.

A Colorado thief was caught after stealing $20 from a juke box. He should be made to listen to the 400 records that had been played.

Gallant Lady

In a quavering voice, Helen Dorch Longstreet, widow of famed Confederate Gen. James Longstreet, faced a Georgia legislative committee in Atlanta and denounced the Talmadge white primary bill as "monstrous" and "infamous." When she sat down the committeemen rose and applauded her. Mrs. Longstreet, who refuses to divulge her age, donned slacks and worked in a bomber plant in her home town, Marietta, Ga., during the war.

Deliberately Setting Grass Fire Is Crime

AUSTIN—(P)—Deliberately setting a grass fire can be either a misdemeanor or a felony, the attorney general ruled.
A 1939 statute said it was a felony for a person to "willfully fire any grass within any inclosure not his own in the state."
The attorney general ruled that the 1939 provision did not repeal the earlier law.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS—By Merrill Blosser

Love Has Two Faces

By Irene Lonnen Ernhart

XXVI

"MIKE!" The protest was useless, and anyway she hadn't really meant it. She wanted Mike to kiss her, didn't she? She had longed for Mike's arms around her so many, many times!

And now she was in his arms, and his mouth, hard, eager, demanding, was on hers. A giddy, fierce excitement whirled her through space, and when he at last released her she was breathless and shaken.

"What's the matter, baby?" His blue eyes were a baffled look. "Didn't it ring the bell, like it used to?"

"Yes." It had been so long since she'd been kissed with passion. She and Parker hadn't really loved each other in such a long time.

"Well then, what gives?"

"I don't know what you mean, Mike!"

"Something's missing, and you know it, Cass!"

Mike sat quietly, both arms resting on the steering wheel, as he studied her face. He smiled suddenly. "You aren't by any chance in love with the guy, are you—just because you've been married to him for a long time?"

"Well, I—." She wanted to say "I don't know!" But she was quiet. Something was different in the way she felt about Mike—but somehow it wasn't anything she could name or fathom.

"Wait—don't try to answer, baby. I know now what it is. Guilt. No less. You're still married to the guy—and you have a guilty feeling of disloyalty—kissing me. You always were such a puritan, Cass!" He laughed. "You'll feel different, once you're divorced and completely free again."

HE got out and came around to open the door for her. And they went inside and found a quiet booth. Mike put a nickel in the juke box and ordered Manhattans and sandwiches.

While they sipped their cocktails, he told her all about his western venture, how successful it had been, how much money he had made.

"So you see, baby, if you had just waited and not been so hasty—"

"You said we were through, Mike!" she reminded him.

"Ah—baby, that's what I thought of at the time. But I couldn't forget you, any more than you could forget me. Except it did get me down, when I came back and found out you were marrying Hamilton. When I got back to San Francisco they had to pour me off the train."

Cassie told him about Ellen.

"Gosh, that was tough on you, Cassie."

"Yes," she answered bleakly.

"But divorce doesn't have to be such a painful thing," Mike went on. "Why don't you let me take care of the details? I know a fine lawyer in Indianapolis. He could handle it without a lot of unpleasantness. Or—maybe you'd like to go to Reno. I don't like the way you look, Cassie—so thin. Your eyes are as big as dollars, and you're so pale. Reno would make a swell vacation for you. I'll even pay for things, if you'd let me."

"Mike!" She couldn't help laughing. It all somehow seemed hysterically funny. Parker had bought her trousseau and paid for the wedding, and now Mike wanted to finance the divorce. She laughed harder and harder, until Mike reached over and slapped her hard.

And then she relaxed, and felt very tired. Mike said he guessed they'd better go home.

CASSIE'S heart jumped with dread when she saw Parker's car in the driveway. She hadn't expected that he'd be home for the weekend.

Sid came running out to meet them. "Parker's home!" he shouted, and then he saw Mike. "Hi," he said.

Mike swung his arm around Sid's shoulder. "Well, well, if it isn't Sid. And pretty near grown up! Funny," he told Cassie, "how much grown' a kid can do in just three years."

Parker and Leni were in the living room. Leni was wearing some new blue hostess pajamas that matched her eyes and clung to her curves excitedly. As usual she was leaning on the piano, singing something in her husky, sultry voice, while Parker played.

Mike caught Cassie's arm, as they hesitated unseen in the doorway. "Mmm—how long has this been going on?" he whispered. "No wonder you're getting a divorce."

Cassie felt a flare of impatience toward Mike.

She felt tired and disheveled too, in spite of the new brown suit.

It was almost too much to come in and find Leni looking so exquisite, cool and charming. Or maybe it was Parker, looking at her in that curious way as he rose, that made her feel unstrung.

His look said plainly, "Well, you didn't lose much time, did you?" The moment was horribly embarrassing. Only Leni had any presence of mind. She took Mike's hat, and then led him to the davenport by the fireplace and sat him down and curled up beside him to talk.

"Well, Parker," Cassie said, "how's the new job?" She took off her hat, feeling awkward. You didn't kiss your husband any more, did you, after he suggested you divorce him, not even though you were somehow glad to see him after he'd been away a couple of weeks.

He sat down at the piano again, striking a few aimless chords. "Send it, I like it."

He didn't smile and there was a grim look about his mouth.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
(Written for NEA Service)

Bridge and the nation suffered a great loss in the death of Benjamin M. Golder of Philadelphia, the 1946 president of the American Contract Bridge League. Mr. Golder served for eight years in the Pennsylvania legislature and for eight years as a member of the House of Representatives in Washington. He served in both World Wars, retiring from the last war as a lieutenant-colonel. Just before his death he was elected honorary member of the American Contract Bridge League for 1947.

Ben never rated himself as a champion, but he was the champion of everything fine in bridge sportsmanship. It was his ambition to have many more thousands of people enjoy bridge, the pastime that brought him so much pleasure.

I enjoyed many sessions of bridge with Ben and today's hand is one we played as partners. Ben (West) figured that I probably did not hold anything worthwhile, in view of South's strong bidding so he made a very unusual opening, the queen of diamonds. South reasoned that if he went up with dummy's king, I would probably win with the ace and come right back with another diamond. West would win and lead a spade, and in all likelihood South would lose two spade tricks.

In any event, he played low from dummy, and Ben laid down the ace of diamonds, on which I discarded the deuce of clubs. Then Ben led the seven of spades.

Declarer could not figure that our nice president would underlead two aces in a row, so he let the trick ride to his jack. I won with the queen of spades, and realizing that South had to have the ace of clubs for his bidding, I returned a spade.

Thus we took the first four tricks for a cold top.

City Of Midland Has One Of State's Best Fire Credit Ratings

Midland again has one of the best fire credit ratings in Texas, according to a listing of debts and credits in rates, based on fire records of various cities, released by Fire Insurance Commissioner Marvin Hall in Austin.

Midland's credit rating is 20, which is the same as last year. The maximum credit is 25. This means that fire insurance premiums here are 20 per cent cheaper than in a town with a zero rating.

The community ratings range from 25 per cent above to 15 per cent below. The debts and credits are local variations from statewide rates.

Debts and credits of other West Texas cities (figures in parentheses denote debts, and those without parentheses denote credits): Abilene (5); Amarillo 5; Big Spring 10; Brownwood (5); Del Rio (5); El Paso 5; Fort Worth (1); Lubbock (15); Odessa 20; Pampa 20; Plainview 10; San Angelo 10; Vernon 10; Wichita Falls (15).

North Beats South In Elementary Schools Sports Program Contests

North Elementary School girl's kickball and boy's softball teams are the city champions.
Wednesday the "Northerners" beat South Elementary team on the First Baptist Church playground in the title games. Previously the North team had beaten West Elementary.
Mrs. Jesse Orth's NF girls took a two-run lead in the first inning and never relinquished to Miss Wilda Samuelson's girl from SE. It ended 15-13.

Bulldogs End Regular Play Against 'Cats

Friday night at 8 the Midland Bulldogs play the San Angelo Bobcats at San Angelo.
This is the curtain game of the season for the hustling Bulldogs—except tournament play.
Midland is one of four 3-AA teams qualified for competition in the district tournament. Its location has not been announced.
Coach Jack Mashburn's Purples possess a record of seven wins and four losses in 3-AA battles up to Friday night. They aspire to make it eight wins. That will be difficult. The "Cats" are playing at home. And they are dangerous anywhere.
Mumps laid low James Urice, Midland regular. He will be sorely missed Friday night and in the tourney.
To fill in for Urice, Mashburn has Jimmy Greene, who played a swell game against Odessa and Dunny Goode, who is always capable.
Both "A" and "B" Midland fives will make the trip to San Angelo.

SIGNS FOR TITLE FIGHT

EL PASO—(AP)—Luis Vera has signed for a 12-round Texas lightweight title fight here March 7 with his opponent in the battle to fill the vacant championship throne to be selected by the Texas Labor Commission.

It was a close-call victory for the North boys softball team over the South. It ended 9-8. The issue was tightly contested all the way. But Miss Lila Stewart's boys came through with enough runs to win.
Champs of elementary school softball are: Bill Mims, Johnny Gray, Willie Dean Stephenson, Paxton Howard, Jerry Ramsey, DeWayne Chestnut, Paul Davis, Bill Crenshaw, Franklin Easley, and Gerald Holt.

Mrs. Lynn Aldridge's powerful runners include: James Cox, Roger Butler, Charles Crites, Milton Jones, T. J. Robinson, and Johnny Farris.

A "play day" is next scheduled for the elementary schools in their sports program. Mrs. Gladys Tolbert of North Elementary and Mrs. Inez Luce of South Elementary will direct the "play day". Included will be a track meet. Trophies will be awarded.
North and South Elementary schools have each won two pennants this year and West Elementary has one.
The "play day" will be held in late April. It will run off on Lackey Field. Events include everything from "sack races" to dashes, for all grades.

Wyoming's One-Shot Buffalo Hunt Has Ruling Change

RAWLINGS, WYO.—(AP)—Cries of "brutality" aimed at Wyoming's first one-shot buffalo hunt resulted Friday in a last-minute rule change when the assembled archers declared would guarantee "clean kills" of the three bulls slated for bow-and-arrow deaths.
Under the original rules, the archers, armed with 60-pound bows and standard broad-head arrows, would have lined up at 75 yards distance and fired one shot each until the bulls were brought down.
At a mass meeting Thursday night, called in response to newspaper charges that the hunt would be "nothing short of murder", the archers voted to stalk the bulls and fire at point-blank range if possible to assure quick executions.
