Tamper cases stir unease

More than 20 states report needles in Pepsi cans

NEW YORK (AP) — Aluminum soft drink cans are about as tamperproof as food containers get. Yet people in more than 20 states claim they've found needles in cans, making some consumers uneasy.

■ Related Story/8B

"When I put the straw in, I did this," said Brad Sauro, demonstrating they way he stirred his Pepsi to make sure the can contained just soda. "I suppose I was concerned enough to swish it around."

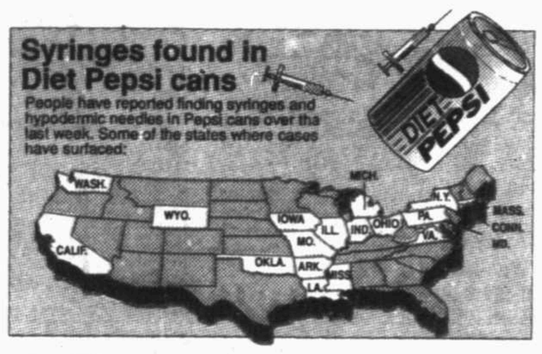

Sauro, a Rutherford, N.J., resident eating lunch in midtown Manhattan, was typical of Pepsi drinkers who said they couldn't buy the soda without thinking of the tampering reports that began June 9 in Tacoma, Wash.

A hypodermic needle that was found to be uncontaminated was reported to be found in a Pepsi can there, but authorities haven't confirmed that the can had been tampered with.

Many of the subsequent reports could be hoaxes. A man in Williamsport, Pa., was charged Wednesday with making a false report that he found a syringe in a Diet Pepsi can, and police in Branson, Mo., said they would be filing a similar charge against a man there. The crime carries up to five years in prison upon conviction.

Health care 'nut'

WASHINGTON — Rep. Pete Stark dismisses Ira Magaziner, the top White House adviser on health care, as a "nut" who sprinkles "fairy dust" on problems.

Managed competition — a cornerstone of the Clinton administration's developing health care plan — is like a unicorn, Stark says. "A beautiful animal in fairyland, but unseen on earth."

And the White House is full of big-headed geniuses.

"They think they are so bloody smart," complained the 11-term lawmaker from California. "Politically, they're as naive as all get out."/8B

Cult tape

WASHINGTON — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has begun an internal inquiry into how a congressional panel obtained a tape recording of conversations between Branch Davidian leaders and Texas authorities during last February's bloody raid on the cult compound.

The administrative review is to determine why FBI officials in Texas turned the 30-minute tape over to a House subcommittee at a time when the conversations on the tape have been subpoenaed by a federal grand jury investigating the cult.

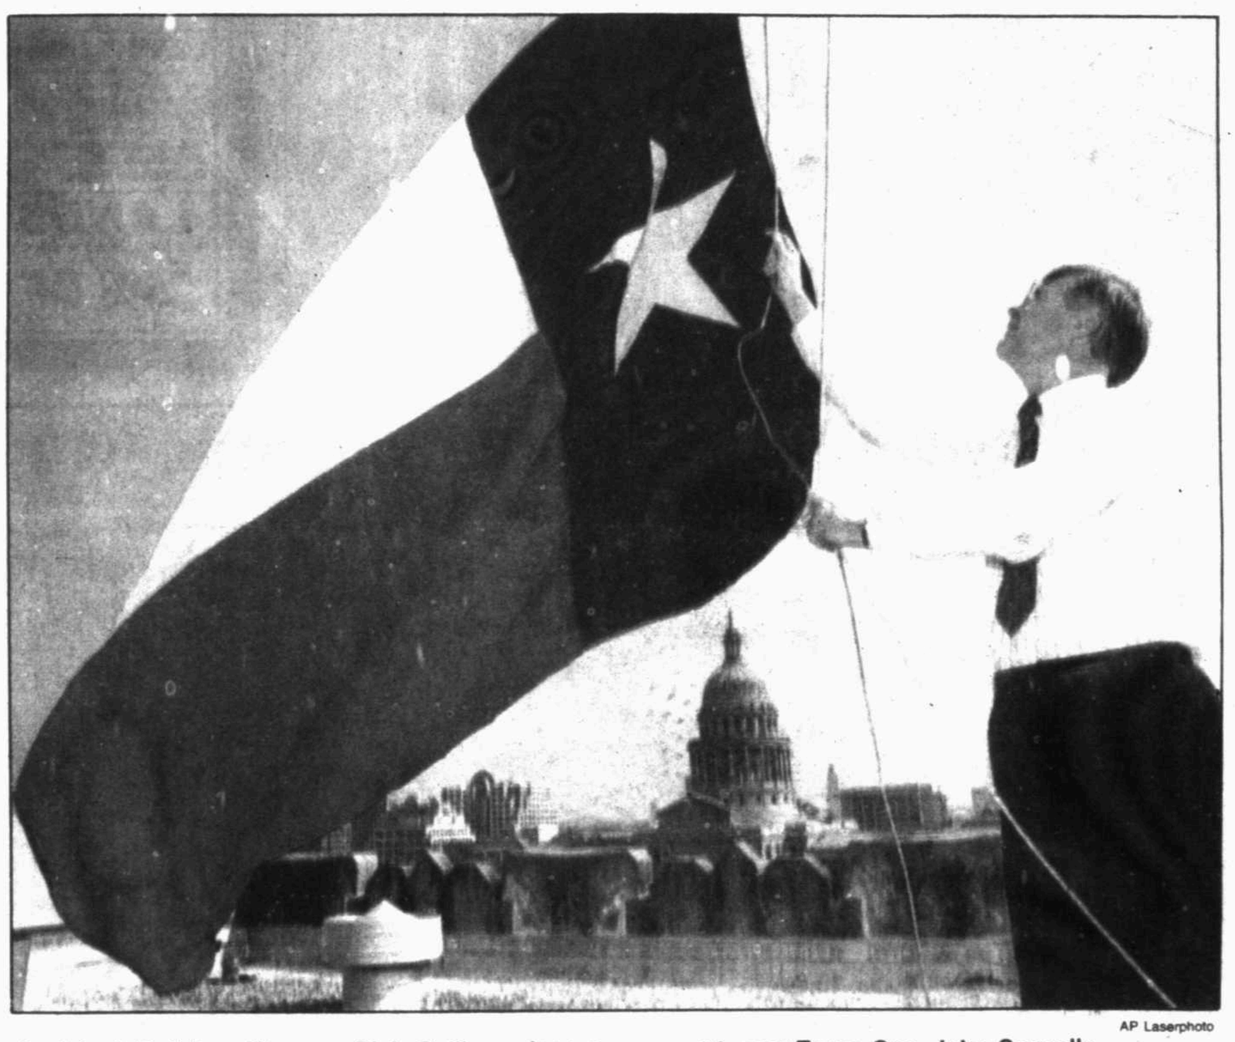

Bureau officials said Wednesday that grand jury secrecy rules did not explicitly apply to such material./4B

Family, friends mourn former Gov. Connally

By Michael Holmes

AUSTIN — State flags flew at half staff Wednesday in memory of three-term Gov. John Connally as family, friends and dignitaries prepared for his funeral.

Former first lady Lady Bird Johnson is one of three people scheduled to deliver eulogies in the 45-minute service at First United Methodist Church, a stately sanctuary almost in the shadow of the Capitol that Connally knew so well.

Connally and the late President Lyndon B. Johnson were dominant forces in Texas politics for decades. Connally served as governor from 1963 to 1969.

A former Cabinet member, business tycoon and war hero who was wounded in the shooting the killed President Kennedy, Connally died Tuesday of pulmonary fibrosis. He was 76.

'John Connally, in my view, was one of the great governors of Texas. He represented his state and nation with distinction.'

—Former President Bush

U.S. Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle and John B. Connally III also are to deliver eulogies, and the Rev. Billy Graham will make remarks at today's service, said Terry Young, a spokesman for the family.

Gov. Ann Richards ordered flags flown at half staff. Connally's body was to lie in state in the Texas House chamber this morning with burial in the State Cemetery later in the day.

As preparations were being made, political leaders and old friends from across the nation remembered Connally.

President Clinton and former presidents Bush and Reagan all hailed Connally's accomplishments.

"John Connally, in my view, was one of the great governors of Texas. He represented his state and nation with distinction," Bush said.

Officials meet to share ideas on technology

Early strides toward economic development between Midland-Odessa and Chihuahua, Mexico, were made earlier this week when West Texas and Mexico officials conferred in the city of Chihuahua.

"They (the Mexico officials) were very receptive," Midland City Councilman Jose Cuevas said of the conference. "They were very excited about future prospects between the two countries."

Discussion focused on exchanging of technologies and raw materials to mutually benefit both regions.

"Basically, we went down as the first contact with the state of Chihuahua to feel what their needs are as far as technology we might have in Midland and Odessa and any raw material that we might have here," said Cuevas, a Midland restaurateur.

And the reverse would apply — Texans ferreting out Chihuahuan technologies and raw material that could be applied to the Midland-Odessa economic base.

"It's got to be both ways," Cuevas said. "It's mandatory."

Chihuahua Mayor Patricio Martinez had characterized the initial meeting of Chihuahua-Midland-Odessa officials this way: "'First, we must date before we are engaged,'" Cuevas said. "We were checking each other out."

All told, about two dozen Midland-Odessa officials, including Midland

Democrats agree on cuts plan, tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats agreed Wednesday to raise taxes on motor fuels, the well-to-do and many Social Security recipients, responding to President Clinton's plea for deficit reduction but shrinking his broad energy tax proposal.

Taxes on gasoline, diesel and aviation fuel would rise by 4.3 cents a gallon on Oct. 1. There would be no new tax on coal, natural gas and electricity — in contrast to Clinton's proposal.

"This is the most progressive change in our tax system since the 1940s," said Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., after majority Democrats on his Senate

'Buy the Basin' enters second phase with 'Set a Goal' drive

By Mella McEwen
Staff writer

The Midland Chamber of Commerce's "Buy the Basin" campaign entered a second phase with Wednesday's announcement of a "Set a Goal" pledge drive.

This segment of the year-long campaign designed to increase the amount of money spent with Permian Basin businesses rather than in other areas will begin with a phone bank staffed by volunteers. The phone bank, which will operate from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. beginning today through June 24 will contact banks, hospitals, utilities, retailers and other businesses asking them to pledge to shift a portion of their outside-Basin spending to local businesses.

Linda Bond, who is coordinating the campaign, said that a random survey of 49 firms found they spend nearly $600,000 per day outside the Permian Basin.

Somali aid continues as U.S. flotilla nears

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Foreign aid workers began trickling back to Mogadishu on Wednesday after a lull in U.N. bombing raids. But the approach of a U.S. Marine amphibious force raised fears of more fighting.

The four ships with 4,200 sailors and Marines aboard steamed toward Mogadishu from the Persian Gulf and have "been told to prepare for possible operations," said the U.N. military spokesman, Maj. David Stockwell of the United States.

Aid workers who began evacuating after Somali gunmen ambushed Pakistani U.N. soldiers said the United Nations had not encouraged them to return.

But with food distribution sites closed for the 11th straight day, the need to resume humanitarian work superseded concern of being caught in a showdown between warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid's supporters and U.N. peacekeeping troops.

Marines on four amphibious assault ships have been told 'to prepare for possible operations.'

— Maj. David Stockwell, U.N.

The United Nations has accused Aidid of orchestrating ambushes that killed 23 U.N. soldiers from Pakistan and injured more than 50 on June 5.

The United States led reprisal air strikes on areas where Aidid's weapons were believed stashed. But the attacks have caused civilian casualties and raised anti-American and anti-U.N. sentiment among many Somalis. The last air strike occurred Monday.

Aid workers are concerned that U.N. troop escorting and protecting their relief missions will be targets of Somalis angry at the air strikes.

But Mike McDonagh of Irish Concern said aid agencies have no choice but to work with the military.

"Our objective is to deliver humanitarian aid," he said. "Their objective is to create an atmosphere where humanitarian aid can be delivered. They're hand in glove."

Despite the fighting, food deliveries have continued to the northern half of the divided capital, the fiefdom of Aidid's rival warlord, Ali Mahdi Mohamed. The 35 food distribution centers in south Mogadishu, the part of the capital controlled by Aidid's forces, have been closed since June 6 after operating six days a week for six months.

U.N. spokesman Barrie Walkley said agencies would try to reopen some sites Thursday with the usual escorts from U.N. soldiers.

Seven workers from four agencies returned Wednesday.

Australia allows male to compete in beauty contest

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Organizers of Australia's biggest beauty pageant, the Miss Australia Awards, said Wednesday they would welcome an entry by the male winner of a local contest.

Damian Taylor, 24, a hotel doorman and part-time lifeguard, beat seven women Tuesday to win the Wintersun Quest at Tweeds Heads, about 60 miles south of Brisbane.

Now he is seeking to enter the Miss Australia pageant.

"Who knows how far I can go?" said the 6-foot Taylor, who added that he held back tears when accepting the winner's sash and a bouquet of flowers to applause and wolf whistles.

Thousands of women enter the Miss Australia contest annually. All are required to raise money for a charity to benefit sufferers of cerebral palsy.

"If Damian, or any other male can do that job, we're delighted for them to enter," Miss Australia Awards spokesperson Marelle Thorton said.

Taylor raised about $7,000 for charity at the Wintersun Quest, the most of any entrant.

PEPSI: Tamper reports about Pepsi spread, cause worry

(From 1A)

Midland.

In an informal survey of grocery and convenience stores, buyers' reaction has ranged from no change in current sales to one store having its entire stock of Pepsi still sitting on the shelf.

"I haven't seen any (Pepsi cans) move during my shift," said a cashier at the 7-Eleven store at 4400 W. Wadley. "The Crystal Pepsi has sold, but I still have my entire stock of dark Pepsi. I haven't had to restock."

A clerk at Kent Kwik Convenience Store, 1001 N. Midkiff Road, said she had not sold any Pepsi during her shift.

"We normally sell it, definitely," she said. "But, none have moved tonight."

Several stores reported a minor drop in sales.

Three locations of Friend's Convenience Store — 610 Andrews Highway, 2110 W. Front Ave. and 2404 N. Big Spring — reported sales were down slightly.

A manager at Fiesta Foods located at North A St. and Scharbauer said the store had not seen a dramatic drop in sales, but sales were down.

"We are definitely not selling as much," the manager said. "I don't have any hard numbers, but it's just not moving like it normally does."

Personnel at the three locations of Albertsons did not report any difference in sales nor did the 7-Eleven stores located at 809 S. Midkiff, 4310 Neely and 4601 N. A St.

Employees of the four Furr's Supermarkets locations and the two locations of Al's Grocery stores would not comment on Pepsi sales.

Some consumers questioned on Wednesday said they hadn't stopped buying Pepsi products.

"I bought it in defiance," Joe Scorese said as he ate lunch in a Manhattan park. "I didn't want my choice to be based on the media reports."

Still, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has advised consumers to pour the soda into a glass before drinking it. Or buy bottles and look inside before drinking.

"There's no such thing as a tamper-proof package, so people have to take reasonable precautions," FDA spokeswoman Betsy Adams said Wednesday.

The soft-drink company established a toll-free hotline for customers with questions about the needle reports: (800) 433-2652.

"I can't give you a 100 percent guarantee, but I would assure you it is 99.99 percent assured that nothing is happening in the facilities themselves, in the plants. It's literally, physically impossible," Pepsi-Cola Co.'s North American division president and chief executive, Craig Weatherup, said Wednesday on NBC's "Today" show.

"There is no pattern whatsoever" to indicate tampering at the plants, he said later in a video statement. The cans involved were produced in different plants over several months, when several hundred million cans were produced, he said.

Yet the calls came in over just 48 hours, "immediately following the news in Seattle."

In production, the soda cans are turned upside down, blasted with hot air and water and then flipped, filled and sealed. The Philadelphia plant manager, Charles Congdon, said in the video statement that it takes 0.9 seconds to fill and seal each can.

"We think it's the safest packaging ever," said Jeff Nedelman, spokesman for the Grocery Manufacturers of America.

Among the latest reports was that of a woman in Nashville, Tenn., who on Wednesday said a bullet fell out of a Pepsi can.

Meanwhile, there were two confirmed reports of foreign objects found inside soda cans, but in both cases authorities said the objects apparently fell off of machinery during the canning process.

A Jacksonville, Fla., couple brought a sealed Diet Pepsi can to a hospital after hearing something rolling around inside it, and X-rays confirmed a screw was inside, said Randy Bringger of the Food and Drug Administration's office in Jacksonville. "It just sounds like a quality-control problem," he said.

And an object found in a can of caffeine-free Coca Cola in Litchfield, Conn., on Tuesday night turned out to be a piece of machinery from the bottler, said Gloria Schaffer, Connecticut's consumer protection commissioner.

A couple of stores pulled Pepsi from their shelves after customers reported finding syringes in cans. But Pepsi-Cola Co., based in Somers, N.Y., has said it has no plans for a recall, and the FDA has agreed that's not needed.

FDA Commissioner David Kessler has said that news of a report of product tampering always generates other complaints.

Consumers have become savvy to this type of crime; and polls by his organization and others have shown that the public has confidence in the safety of the food supply, Nedelman said.

"This industry, as a result of the Tylenol experience, went through and redesigned packaging to be tamper-evident," he said.

Consumers always should look at shrink wrapping, freshness seals and other closures. "If the packaging doesn't look right, they ought not to buy it or ought to take it back to the store" for a refund, Nedelman said.

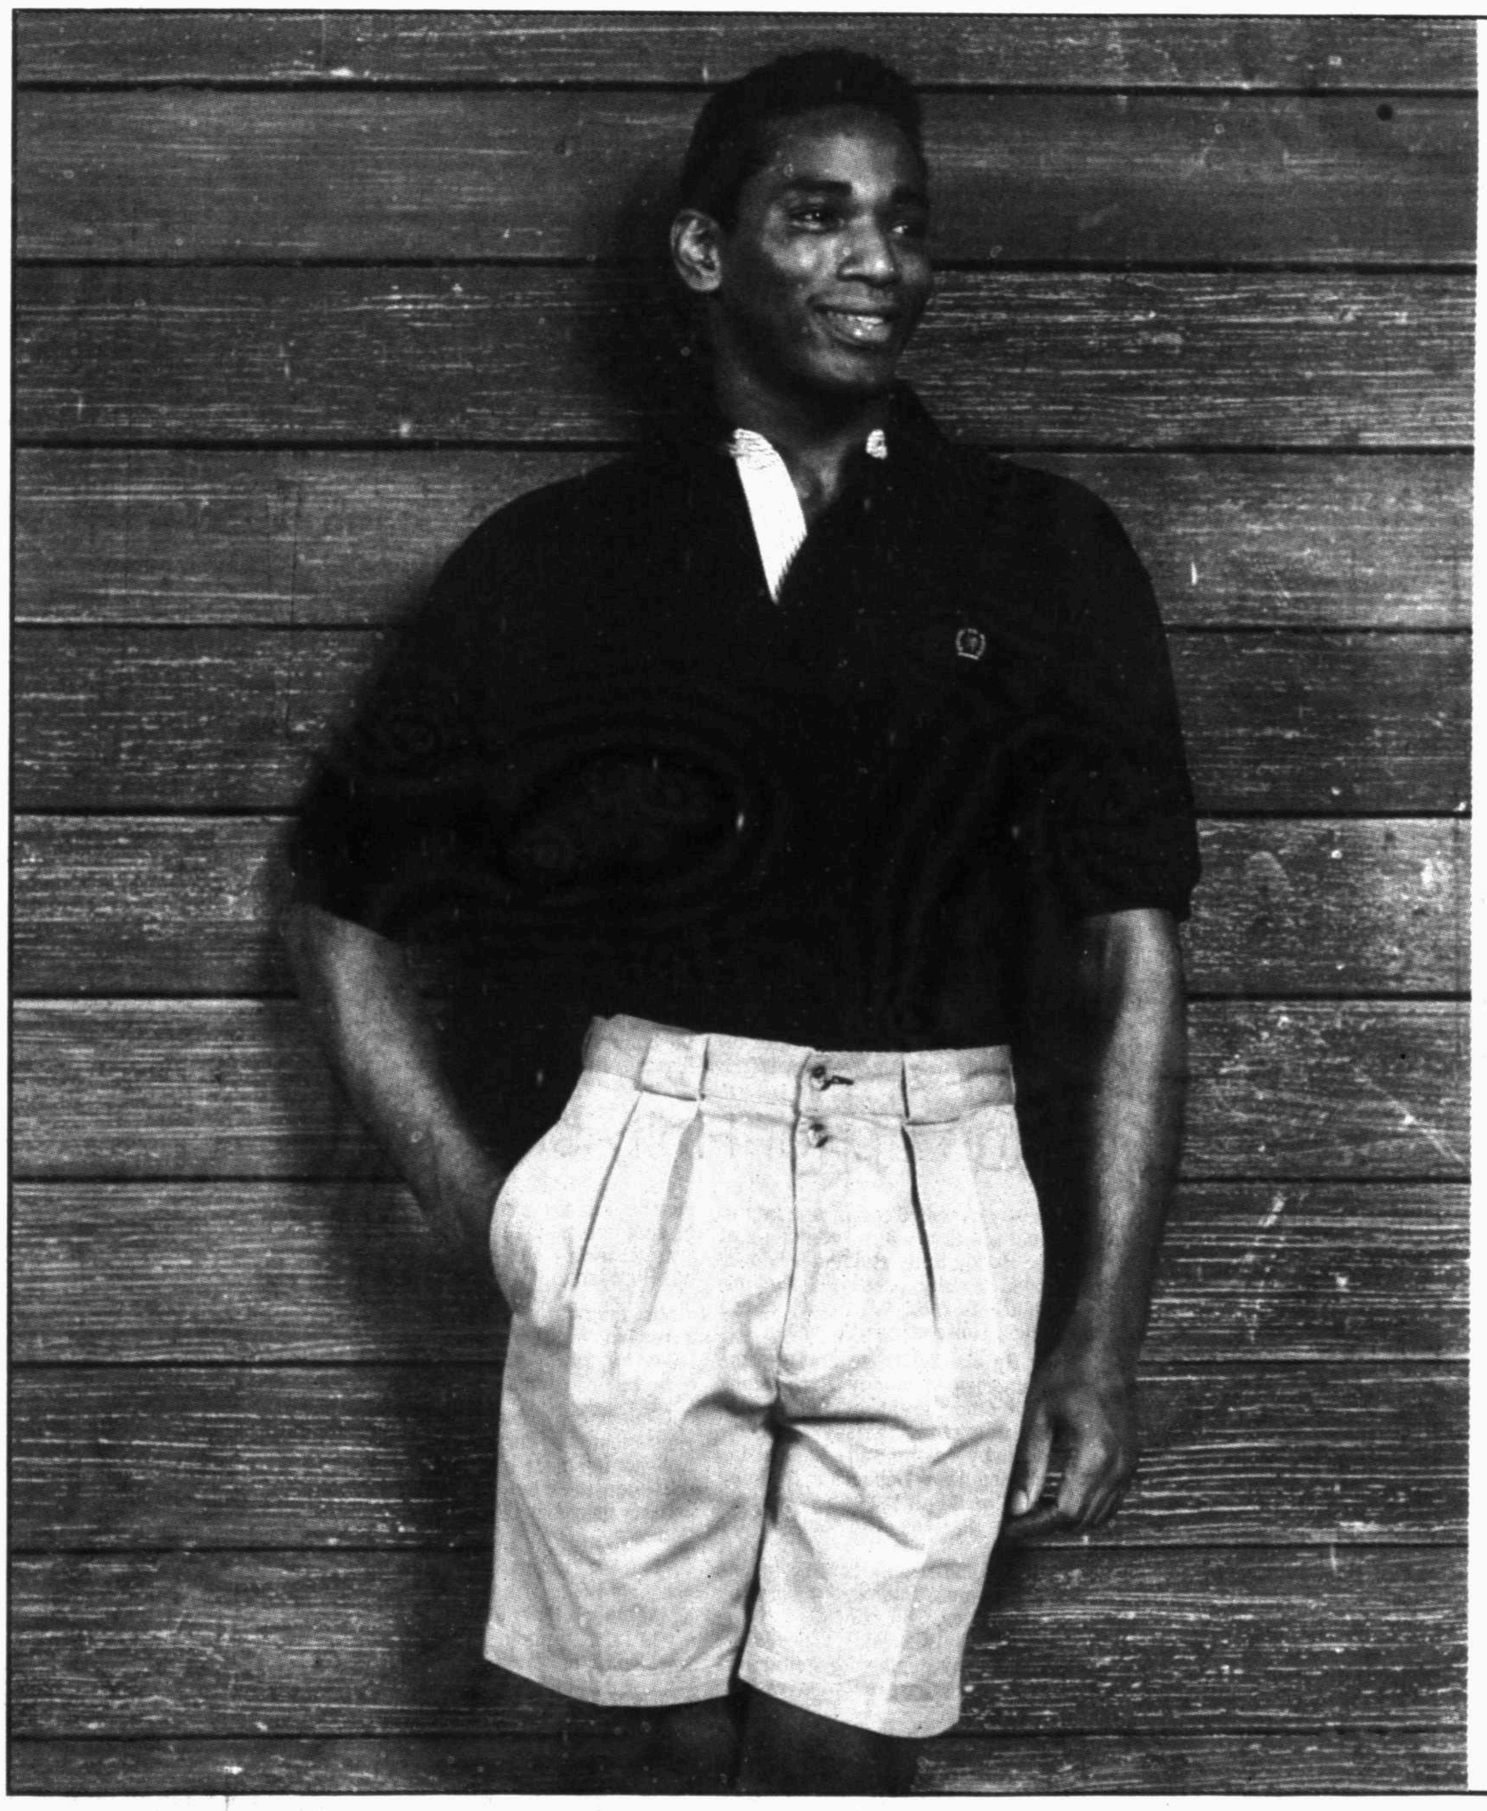

Carroll County Sheriff Dispatcher Clay Blair holds up a sealed evidence bag containing a can of Pepsi that has what appears to be a syringe inside Wednesday in Carrollton, Miss.

MEET: Officials discuss economic development

(From 1A)

Mayor J. D. Faircloth and Odessa Major Lorraine Perryman, made the flight to Chihuahua. Both mayors were out of town on Wednesday and were unavailable for comment on the trip.

Midland Chamber of Commerce officials have scheduled a news conference on Friday to discuss the meeting and Tom Stinson, the chamber's manager for economic development, deferred comment on the trip until then. Tony Valadez, president of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, postponed talking about the trip.

Cuevas said that Mexican officials expressed "some interest in our environmental clean-up" technology.

"They are very interested in companies that could help them in environmental studies and clean-up," Cuevas said.

The Mexican government officials are imposing laws to clean up the environment in an effort to purge pollution from the country.

"They are coming in line," Cuevas said. "They feel they have as great a responsibility to protect the earth as any other country does."

The Midland-Odessa officials held discussions with Chihuahua-based Ford Motor Co. executives.

They talked about an influx of capital to re-start jalapeno pepper canneries in the state of Chihuahua.

In other preliminary talks, the West Texas and Chihuahua officials noted the importance of clearing any international contracts with Mexican attorneys.

"It is advisable when signing contracts in Mexico to have Mexico attorneys review them," Cuevas said. "Our laws are different."

Cuevas noted the geographic similarities between Chihuahua and the Midland-Odessa area.

"They are pretty much in desert" country similar to that of the Midland-Odessa area. The annual rainfall there, Cuevas said, is six inches, while Midland's is more than twice that.

Water is supplied to the metropolitan city of Chihuahua by way of underground streams, Cuevas said. Chihuahua is the capital of the state of Chihuahua, which has a population of 2 million and covers 95,403 square miles, and is Mexico's largest state. About 400,000 people live in the city. The region's economy is dependent on cattle, sheep and goat ranching; smelting plants for silver, gold, lead and zinc; and irrigated fields that produce wheat, potatoes, and cotton.

"They are also expanding and trying to build water-purification plants," Cuevas said.

The outlook for economic cooperation between West Texas and Chihuahua is positive, Cuevas said. "First, we have to get accustomed to doing business in Mexico and building confidence" between the two cultures.

"They believe attitudes have to change" between the two cultures, Cuevas said. "'Ojinaga is not Chihuahua, as Presidio is not Midland,'" he said in quoting Martinez.

"The poor border towns are not reflective of what the interior towns are like," Cuevas said. Mexico is into top technology and is "growing and expanding" economically.

Today to be cloudy, windy

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with a 30 percent chance of rain, a high in the mid-80s and southeast winds at 15-25 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain and a low in the mid-60s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Friday should be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain and a high near 90.

After an overnight low of 66, Wednesday's high reached 83, compared to the record high for that date of 105 set in 1975. The record low was 49 set in 1981.

STATE

A weak upper level disturbance over North Texas combined with warm moist gulf air Wednesday to produce a large area of showers with embedded thunderstorms.

More than one inch of rain fell in some places, with small hail also reported.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms accompanied by brief heavy rains developed Wednesday afternoon across South Texas. The weather service said they were caused by a combination of afternoon heating and abundant moisture over the region.

Widely scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms also were reported across West Texas.

The National Weather Service said more rain is possible today, with temperatures again likely to be in the 90s.

Winds were brisk across West Texas, with speeds of 20 to 30 mph and higher gusts from the Permian Basin to the Oklahoma Panhandle. Winds were 5 to 15 mph in far West Texas and 10 to 20 mph for the rest of the region.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

PLEDGE: 'Buy the Basin' starts 2nd phase

just 5 percent of their purchasing, it would improve the local economy by $10 million per year," she said. "We can't afford to let that pass."

She said the businesses contacted will be asked to sign a pledge card pledging an actual dollar amount or pledging to shop local businesses first. Or businesses can contact the chamber to receive a pledge card.

"We're asking people to take time and give local vendors a chance to earn their business," she said.

The "Set a Goal" portion of the campaign is being sponsored by Hy-Bon Engineering Co. Inc.

Hy-Bon President Jim Woodcock said, "I was delighted to become involved with this effort," adding that it's important businesses that buy products and services from other local businesses.

He said his company has examined its purchases over the past year and to find vendors in the Basin wherever possible, and he said he has set a goal for his company of shifting 50 percent of their non-Basin purchases to local suppliers.

Patricia de Little, owner of Temporary Resources, said that her company's policy has always to buy in the Basin. So supportive is she of the campaign that she has included the logo on her company's envelopes, on all mailouts and in her advertising.

She said she has always found Midland businesses were willing and able to meet the best price she could find outside the Basin.

Debbie Floyd of the Midland Independent School District pointed out that Midland businesses have been very supportive of school activities and other non-profit activities. The campaign offered her a way to return the favor by generating business for local businesses, she said.

Patsy Welmaker, owner of Adventure Travel, said she has lived in Midland since 1951 and founded her business soon after and she has always made it a policy to buy locally. "When you're in the retail business," she said, "you want other businesses to buy from you, and you want to buy from them."

Paul Andres of Don-Nan Pump & Supply Co. and affiliated with the local chapter of the National Association of Purchasing Managers, said many major corporations urge their employees to get involved with local communities and, while reluctant to commit to a specific percentage, will try to cooperate with campaigns like Buy the Basin if they know about them.

Janna King, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said officials "realize there are situations where you don't have any control over where an item is bought. But we encourage purchasers to look locally first and, certainly, local businesses should buy here."

She added that this new segment of the campaign, which will last six to eight weeks and overlap with a "Back to School" campaign, is designed to begin quantifying the results of buying in the Permian Basin.

"If we can get a dollar amount, once people realize what kind of dollars we're talking about, they'll get excited. This will help educate and motivate people."

AGREE: Tax writers approve budget plan

(From 1A)

Finance Committee approved the plan. He said 80 percent of the tax increases would be borne by those with incomes over $100,000. Families under $20,000 would actually get tax cuts, he said.

"President Clinton's budget has advanced further faster and more nearly intact than any budget presented to Congress in nearly 15 years," said Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen praised the Democratic agreement for increased emphasis on spending cuts, calling the action "an important step along the path to enactment."

Tax increases, spending restraints — chiefly in Medicare for the elderly and disabled — and outright spending cuts that are anticipated later this year would reduce the deficit by $508 billion over the next five years, Mitchell said. Slightly less than half — $248 billion — would come from higher taxes.

The agreement cleared the way for the full Finance Committee to consider it Thursday. Approval by the Senate next week would send it to a House-Senate conference committee to resolve differences between the Senate and House versions. The House approved Clinton's broad-based energy tax last month.

The Senate Democratic plan would junk Clinton's broad energy tax on most fuels in favor of the 4.3-cent increase in the tax on gasoline and diesel fuel. It would make up for part of the revenue loss by cutting health care for the elderly and Clinton's proposed expansion of a tax incentive for the working poor.

It would moderate slightly the president's plan to raise taxes on higher-income Social Security recipients. Only couples with total incomes above $40,000 and singles over $32,000 would be affected; up to 85 percent of their benefits would be taxed,

The new plan also would delay until July 1 the tax increases on upper-income individuals that Clinton wanted to impose retroactively to Jan. 1. A corporate tax rate increase would be retroactive to Jan. 1. Unlike Clinton's plan, most of which was approved in the House, the Senate proposal would apply a new 10 percent surtax on taxable incomes over $250,000 to capital gains as well as to ordinary income.

On the other hand, the Senate bill would scale back Clinton's proposal to sharply reduce tax benefits U.S. companies enjoy on profits from Puerto Rican subsidiaries.

The Senate plan dropped a House provision that sharply raised the tax on barge fuel for use on the nation's waterways.

At the White House, Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers repeated that the important thing for the president is to keep the deficit-reduction process going by ensuring that a bill gets through the Finance Committee and then through the Senate. Clinton will look to the House-Senate conference to work out a final compromise that is more to his liking than what Moynihan is producing.

Although the Senate's income-tax increase on the well-to-do would be delayed, it still would raise nearly $107 billion over five years.

The Senate energy tax would raise $24 billion, compared with $72 billion in the House version.

Senators struggled for several days to find spending reductions to make up for that huge loss from the energy tax.

MOURN: Family, friends remember Connally

(From 1A)

"the quintessential Texan. He came to symbolize all the forceful and attractive elements associated with the Texas character — gallant, self-confident and decisive, daring, almost swashbuckling."

"He was born to lead," said Liz Carpenter, a former aide to President and Mrs. Johnson.

Gov. Richards, who canceled bill signing ceremonies planned for Thursday, said she had lost a dear friend. "I'll miss his phone calls. I'll miss his extraordinary good humor. I'll miss his optimism and his encouragement."

Burial will be in the State Cemetery, a historic hillside plot were state officials, Confederate veterans and legislators are buried.

Among them are Stephen F. Austin, the father of Texas; Confederate General Albert Sidney Johnston; several signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence, and 10 former governors.

Pallbearers will include former Ambassador Bob Strauss, Pickle, former U.S. Rep. Joe Kilgore, Houston oilman Oscar Wyatt and George Christian, who served as press secretary to President Johnson, Young said.

A native of Floresville, Connally studied at the University of Texas at Austin, where he was elected student body president. Connally married Idanell "Nellie" Brill of Austin in 1940, and a year later received his law degree from UT.

His World War II service in the Navy, starting in 1941, earned Connally a Bronze Star for bravery and the Legion of Merit.

After the war Connally was president and general manager of Austin radio station KVET from 1946 to 1949. The station's call letters recognized the veterans who organized it.

He managed Johnson's controversial 87-vote U.S. Senate victory in 1948, and served as Johnson's administrative assistant in 1949.

Connally was riding in Kennedy's automobile when a sniper killed the president on Nov. 22, 1963. Connally was struck too and the bullet passed through his body, leaving him with scars on his back, chest, wrist and thigh.

He has served as Kennedy's secretary of the Navy and was treasury secretary for Nixon. After switching to the Republican Party, Connally unsuccessfully ran for president in 1980.

In 1990, he and Wyatt negotiated the release of 21 hostages held during the Persian Gulf crisis by Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein. Last month, Connally announced he was helping steer a $75 million venture to build a pari-mutuel horse race track outside Houston.

Besides his wife, Connally is survived by daughter Sharon Ammann of Austin, and sons John B. Connally III of Houston and Mark Connally of Austin. Other survivors include three brothers and two sisters.

ROCK: Fans line up for Holly stamps

(From 1A)

president of the Chamber of Commerce. "Buddy Holly brought a new beat, a new rhythm to music and he created an enthusiasm among young people that the world had never seen before."

Holly is one of seven musicians featured in 20-stamp booklets and 35-stamp sheets that debuted Wednesday in selected cities. He is shown wearing his trademark glasses and cradling the neck of a guitar.

The stamp series also depicts Bill Haley, Elvis Presley, Clyde McPhatter, Otis Redding, Ritchie Valens and Dinah Washington.

Although a Presley stamp already has been issued, the new one includes both his first and last names. The previous version said only "Elvis."

Official first-day of issue ceremonies were held in Santa Monica, Calif., and Cleveland. The stamps go on sale nationwide today.

Lubbock Postmaster John Frisby canceled the first stamp in Lubbock at a 9 a.m. ceremony at the Buddy Holly statue near downtown. Frisby presented the memento to Holly's widow, Maria Elena Holly of Las Colinas.

"By issuing these stamps, the memories of Buddy Holly along with other great musicians will live in history," Frisby said.

Frisby estimated Wednesday evening that Lubbock's first-day sales would hit $50,000. Three post office stations ran out of the stamps.

"We had people coming in and buying more than $1,000 worth by themselves," he said.

The city's special cancellation Wednesday depicted a guitar and a cricket whose antenna cancels the stamp.

Fans stood in line more than one hour before stamp sales began at a postal van near the statue. Some had rolled up their jeans bottoms or wore poodle skirts.

Travis Holly, signing autographs for the crowd, said his brother would take all the attention in stride. "Oh, he'd get excited. He'd laugh."

Members of the Crickets played a free lunch concert of Holly's late 1950s hits including "Oh Boy," "Maybe Baby" and "Every Day."

Trolleys took tourists to Holly sites including the lot where his first home stood, his high school, the roller rink where he performed and his grave at City of Lubbock Cemetery.

"I think Lubbock's going all out," said Bill Griggs, who founded the Buddy Holly Memorial Society in 1975. "Buddy Holly's known worldwide, and now his own country is going to honor him."

Holly scored his first No. 1 hit in 1957 with "That'll Be the Day," a song Griggs says he listens to daily. He recorded 88 songs and two gold records before he was killed along with Valens in a 1959 plane crash at age 22.

Growing recession pushes European unemployment up

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Community's deepening recession will push the jobless rate past 12 percent next year, the highest level in more than 30 years, the trading bloc predicted Wednesday.

That translates to 18 million people without jobs.

The community's executive agency also forecast the economy of the dozen West European nations would shrink by 0.5 percent this year, the poorest showing since 1975.

"The community is in an economic recession," declared Henning Christophersen, the trading bloc's economics chief.

The downturn has been attributed largely to the world economic slump and a tight money policy in Germany, which has been blamed for forcing up short-term interest rates throughout the trading bloc.

Germany nudged up its interest rates to recoup some of the costs of unifying with eastern Germany. The rates have eased some in recent months.

The community projected the number of unemployed would surge to 11.5 percent of the civilian workforce this year and more than 12 percent in 1994. It was 10.1 percent last year.

A jobless rate of 12 percent would be the highest since 1960, when the then-3-year-old community, began keeping comparable figures. The previous peak was 10.8 percent in 1985.

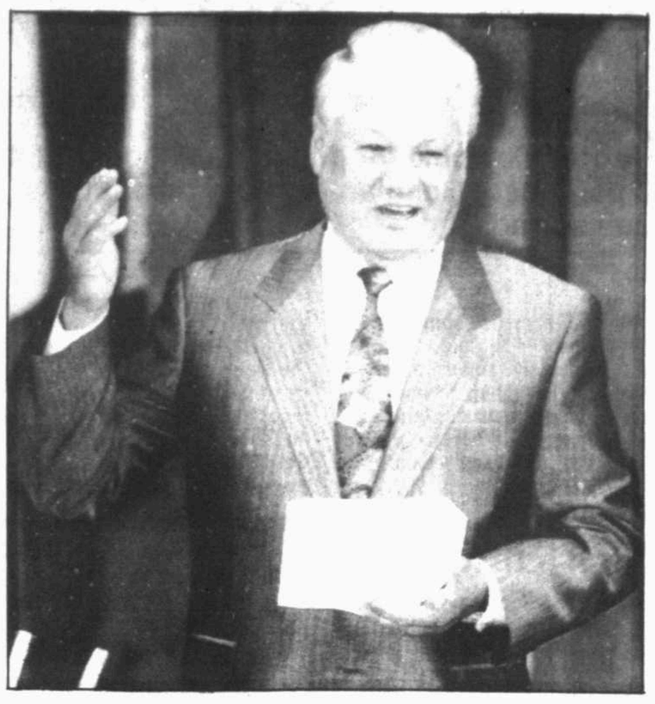

Unemployment rates among community members, however, range widely.

Spain will post an out-of-work rate of a staggering 23 percent next year, and Ireland's will surge to 19.25 percent. But tiny Luxembourg will register a mere 2 percent.

German unemployment will rise to 10.25 percent in 1994. It was 7.5 percent last year. France will see the number of unemployed reach 12 percent next year.

By comparison, the jobless rate in the United States will be about 6 percent next year, and just 2.5 percent in Japan.

"In the face of this economic crisis, can Europe find an answer?" asked Belgian Prime Minister Jean-Luc Dehaene.

President Boris Yeltsin delivers an address to delegates of the Constitutional Convention in the Kremlin, Wednesday. Beaming with satisfaction, he won an important victory when delegates endorsed his principles for a new constitution.

Yeltsin victory promises constitution, private land

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian President Boris Yeltsin won major concessions toward a new constitution on Wednesday which could eventually eliminate the Communist-dominated Congress and allow private land ownership.

"We are going at such a pace that we ought to complete work in June, and then have early parliamentary elections in ... September or October," the Russian president said after 467 of the 594 hand-picked delegates endorsed his "state of principles" for the proposed constitution.

Despite his success, Yeltsin still faces several hurdles, among them deciding how the charter should be ratified and how to balance power among Russia's 21 republics, 67 regions and the central government.

But the tentative endorsement by the constitutional convention showed that Yeltsin retained the momentum he gained by winning an April 25 referendum on his reforms.

If Congress does not endorse the proposed constitution, Yeltsin has said he may seek ratification through another nationwide referendum.

The new charter would create a bicameral legislature and provide for more checks and balances among the executive, legislative and judicial branches of power, which all formerly were run by the ruling Communist Party.

Besides guaranteeing private property rights, the statement approved Thursday calls for greater protection of human rights. It said Russia is a secular state ruled by law whose "highest value is the individual and his inalienable rights and liberties."

It says the powers of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government must be strictly separated, but it does not define how. Those details would be considered later in the drafting of a full constitution.

Kohl calls for crackdown on radical rightists

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl launched a campaign Wednesday for major changes in German law to help authorities crack down on neo-Nazi violence that has killed 26 people in the past 18 months.

Kohl made the proposals in his first parliamentary speech on rightist violence since five Turks were killed in a May 29 firebombing in Solingen.

The chancellor, pressed to take action amid criticism that he has been too lenient with the radical right, wants to allow the preventive detention of rightist extremists and a ban on neo-Nazi symbols, among other legal changes.

Kohl accused Germans of showing too little solidarity with endangered foreigners, and suggested law officers and the country's 16 states haven't tried hard enough to stop the rightist outrages.

Proposed changes will include preventive detention and bans on neo-Nazi symbols.

Speaking to the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, Kohl complained that many Germans find it hard to show "friendliness that comes from the heart. Good manners and dignity are concepts that have become alien words to many people."

Hans-Ludwig Zachert, head of the Federal Criminal Office, has said there is a "latent xenophobia" among Germans.

But intellectuals and artists are trying to win Germans' sympathy for foreigners. Poets give readings in asylum shelters and musicians perform at anti-fascist benefit concerts.

Kohl said his government will seek changes in federal laws to help authorities in their battles with the radical right. His proposed changes include:

—A law allowing preventive detention of radicals before they have a chance to attack foreigners.

—An expansion of existing bans on symbols used by neo-Nazi organizations.

—Greater powers for the Federal Prosecutor's Office.

—Changes in privacy laws which make it difficult for federal investigators to get their hands on information about suspected criminals.

Many intellectuals say Kohl's relentless push for a new asylum law strengthened neo-Nazis. The new law, which takes effect on July 1, will make it nearly impossible for foreigners to win asylum.

Guenter Grass, Germany's most prominent author, has appealed to President Richard von Weizsaecker not to sign the law, saying it will "provoke further acts of violence" against foreigners.

Yugoslav factions move closer to peaceful settlement

GENEVA, (AP) — Signs emerged of a possible deal to divide Bosnia-Herzegovina among its ethnic Serbs, Croats and Muslims after leaders of Yugoslavia's rival factions met at a lakeside mansion on Wednesday.

After a day of talks, Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and Croatian President Franjo Tudjman all gave upbeat assessments and indicated that key concessions had been made.

Bosnia's Muslim President Alija Izetbegovic, clearly unhappy, said he walked out of the talks. But Milosevic questioned whether Izetbegovic left the talks prematurely.

"We finished the talks and greeted each other," he told Belgrade TV. "There was no such thing as a walkout."

Milosevic, in separate comments to reporters in Geneva, said: "It is my strong belief that we made a substantial step toward peace."

Karadzic spoke of giving back some of the 70 percent of Bosnian territory his fighters have seized during 15 months of war that has left an estimated 138,000 people dead or missing, but gave few details.

Karadzic spoke of giving back some of the 70 percent of Bosnian territory his fighters have seized.

"We will sacrifice some territory for peace," he said. "We are talking about 400 square miles."

Croatian President Franjo Tudjman said consensus was emerging that Bosnia should become a "federal state of three constituent peoples."

Tudjman told a news conference that Muslims — who formed the majority of the population before the war — should be given territory in central Bosnia around Sarajevo, and to the east around Tuzla and Zenica. He added that Croatia would give them access to the Adriatic sea at the port of Ploje.

By dividing Bosnia among the three groups, the plan would signal the final demise of the peace plan drawn up by European Community envoy Lord David Owen and former U.N. envoy Cyrus Vance. That draft would formally have left Bosnia a unitary republic while giving each of Bosnia's ethnic groups a clear majority in three provinces each and leaving Sarajevo jointly administered.

The Bosnian Croat and Muslim alliance against the Serbs has broken down nearly everywhere except in northern Bosnia and the besieged capital Sarajevo. This has fed long-held Muslim fears that Serbs and Croats will gang up to divide the country between themselves.

The military chiefs of the three Bosnian factions signed a nationwide cease-fire Tuesday, to take effect Friday. All past truces have failed.

Wednesday's meeting was closed to reporters. It was the first gathering of all the leaders since a session in Greece in early May.

"We came here to reconfirm our intention for peace," said Milosevic, widely considered the chief instigator of the Bosnian and Croatian wars and "ethnic cleansing".

Ciudad Juarez fears possible serial killer

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Police are investigating possible links among the slayings of seven women whose bodies have been found around this border city since February, a state police spokesman said Wednesday.

Despite similarities — all the women were raped, strangled and beaten — police say it would be premature to characterize the slayings as serial killings. But the possibility is being investigated, said State Judicial Police spokesman Eduardo Romero.

"It could be one or two or three (killers)," Romero said. "It's very risky to say that one man is responsible."

The seventh victim's partially-clothed body was found Monday at the Chamizal Park near the border with El Paso, Romero said. The woman, who has not been identified, is thought to have been between 19 and 24 years old.

Romero said the other victims, who were apparently killed between February and June, were all between the ages of 19 and 30. Only one, Luz Ivon De La O, whose body was found in February, has been identified.

Romero said police have few leads in their investigation, though the homicide department has been beefed up with an additional 12 detectives.

"When we got the third case, we were put on alert," Romero said.

He said the probe has been hampered by the lack of victim identifications.

"We need . . . to know who they were, which areas of the city they frequented," Romero said.

Ms. De La O is thought to have been one of the earliest victims in the possible slaying series.

Romero said investigators have a possible suspect in her slaying, but the man has fled and police have been unable to locate him. The man is not suspected in any of the other six slayings, Romero said.

Kravchuk takes direct control to thwart chaos

Group would have power to 'prevent emergency situations in the social and economic spheres.

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — Facing strikes and government chaos, President Leonid Kravchuk took over direct control of Ukraine's Cabinet on Wednesday and gave broad economic powers to the prime minister.

The step was aimed at pacifying at least a half-million striking miners, who have demanded the president and government be replaced, and skirting the parliament that has hobbled Kravchuk's proposals to end the strike.

Their strike has nearly crippled Ukraine's already staggering economy.

Kravchuk acceded to the miners' demands by offering a resolution calling for new parliamentary elections and a nationwide vote of confidence in the president.

But, fearing for their jobs, lawmakers rejected the suggestion on Wednesday. Kravchuk issued his decree immediately after the parliament adjourned.

The decree empowers top officials to carry out "immediate steps for the stabilization of the economic and political situation in the country." It was not clear what specific steps were envisioned.

The decree called for creation of a single Cabinet committee to carry out "urgent management of the economy."

The committee would have power to "prevent emergency situations in the social and economic spheres" — an apparent reference to the strikes that began in Ukraine's eastern Donetsk coal basin and spread to other coal mines and to some factories.

The committee was to be headed by Prime Minister Leonid Kuchma and include most key economic officials.

Hours earlier, Kravchuk appealed to the miners to end their walkout and urged lawmakers to quickly approve the miners' demands for new elections and a referendum. Both appeals were ignored.

The miners are demanding lower taxes on the coal they produce and lower prices at the new private stores that have sprung up in Ukraine.

They have also called for new elections and regional self-administration for the Donetsk Basin, one of the largest coal fields in the former Soviet Union.

The strike began June 7. More than 220 mines are on strike, and a few other industries and businesses have joined in.

Kravchuk has endorsed the miners' call for new elections and promised further economic reforms, including more local control for the Donetsk Basin.

Amid the turmoil, top lawmaker Volodymir Gryniov resigned Wednesday as second deputy chairman of parliament without explanation.

Kravchuk's advisers urged the president to postpone a meeting Thursday in Moscow.

Security Council threatens Haitian blockade

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council voted unanimously Wednesday to give Haiti's military rulers one week to restore exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power or face a blockade on oil and weapons.

The resolution greatly increases the economic sanctions on Haiti, beginning June 23, unless the Caribbean nation's first democratically elected president is reinstated.

Under the resolution, Haiti's financial assets would be frozen worldwide and shipments of weapons, oil, gasoline and other fuel would be blocked on the seas or overland from the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

The text cites Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter, which allows the use of economic sanctions or military force to compel countries to obey the council.

Canada has already offered warships to help enforce such a blockade.

But Haitian Ambassador Fritz Longchamp, who supports Aristide, said he believed the military regime would be so shaken by the vote that political changes would occur within days, making enforcement of a blockade unnecessary.

The Haitian army and elite are hostile to Aristide — a radical Roman Catholic priest popular among the poor — and have resisted pressure to accept his return. Hundreds of people were killed in the coup that ousted Aristide.

The council's resolution essentially takes the 34-nation Organization of American States' embargo on trade and oil shipments to Haiti and extends it worldwide, as well as adding the arms embargo and the freeze of assets.

The OAS embargo, adopted shortly after Aristide's ouster in the September 1991 coup, was not enforced by a blockade.

Haiti's de facto military rulers have thwarted the OAS embargo by buying oil on the spot market in Rotterdam, Netherlands. Ninety percent of Haiti's oil is shipped to its main port in Port-au-Prince.

Haiti usually has about six weeks of fuel reserves, though diplomatic sources in Port-au-Prince say the military has stockpiled several months' worth of fuel.

Two weeks ago, the Clinton administration revoked the visas and froze the assets of leading Haitian officials, though several wealthy supporters of the coup were not on the list. Clinton acted after Haiti's army rejected a U.N. plan to send 500 police monitors to Haiti, a step toward the reinstatement of Aristide.

The groundwork was laid for the new resolution a week ago when diplomats from the United States, France, Venezuela and Canada agreed in New York to pursue the sanctions.

The United States and France are permanent members of the Security Council, and Venezuela is a very active nonaligned member.

Radioactive water leaks from Ukrainian plant

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — Radioactive water leaked from a nuclear power plant and contaminated some soil outside, plant officials said Wednesday. It was the latest in a string of accidents in nuclear plants in the former Soviet Union.

Officials, mindful that Ukraine was the site of the world's worst nuclear power plant accident — the 1986 explosion at Chernobyl, expressed concern about the accident at the plant in Zaporozhye, 280 miles southwest of Kiev.

Authorities told the ITAR-Tass news agency the contaminated soil was distant from paths used by pedestrians and that "there was no danger for the employees and environment."

The contaminated water leaked through a concrete-tile wall. A hydrogen explosion earlier this year killed one worker and injured another.

The leak, discovered Tuesday in the plant's No. 1 reactor, was the third accident in the past month at the plant. A recent hydrogen explosion at the No. 5 reactor killed one worker and seriously injured another.

Parliament member Volodymyr Usatenko, who has worked at nuclear power plants and sits on a commission that monitors their safety, said of the plant's history: "This is very dangerous."

Western and Russian experts have long warned of the dangers of nuclear plants in the former Soviet Union, where operations are lax and safety standards are inadequate.

The contaminated water was part of the plant's cooling system, and leaked through a concrete-tile wall because of an apparent drainage malfunction, officials said.

Heavy rains washed the radioactive sediments onto a 9-by-15-foot area near the wall of the reactor, which had been shut down for repairs at the time, said plant spokeswoman N. Oberkovych.

Connally impact won't soon fade

John B. Connally Jr., who died Tuesday at the age of 76, will be long remembered as the "other politician" riding in the Dallas motorcade in which President John F. Kennedy was assassinated on Nov. 22, 1963, but that proximity to the death that changed the course of history was only one in a long list of noteworthy events marking Connally's life.

Three times governor of Texas, the tall, silver-haired Texan from Floresville reflected the image of the Texan people in other parts of the nation envisioned. He was tall, as comfortable wearing a three-piece business suit as he was a Stetson and western-cut slacks, and exuded a confidence and grasp of the issues important to the state's residents that few other state leaders have embodied.

That familiarity with Texas and Texans served Connally well during his six years as governor when he was one of the state's best-known conservative Democrats and later, when he switched to the Republican Party in the early days of what became a major exodus of conservatives from the Democratic Party.

In fact, politics dominated much of Connally's life including a race for the Republican nomination for president in 1980, serving as U.S. secretary of the Treasury under President Richard Nixon, and serving as secretary of the Navy under President Kennedy.

His political mentor had been Lyndon B. Johnson, but his philosophical differences with Johnson were apparent when in 1973, after Johnson's death, Connally switched his political affiliation to the Republican Party. That was the culmination of a philosophical change that numerous Texans had seen coming for years and which was being evidenced in political circles throughout the state.

Although political scandals dogged other politicians during his years in the political arena, Connally was not tainted by them. In fact, in 1975 he won acquittal of charges that he accepted a $10,000 bribe from milk industry executives for a 1971 recommendation while serving as Treasury secretary that the Nixon administration raise milk price supports.

Connally's career was impressive in the field of politics, but in the field of business was marked by his bankruptcy in 1987 after the Texas economy collapsed due to a period of overdevelopment.

John Connally was a remarkable man whose impact on the political life of Texas and the nation will be felt for years to come.

'Nonprofit' law requires more on indigent care

In exchange for their tax-exempt status, nonprofit hospitals in Texas now will have to begin obeying a state law requiring them to earn the exemption by contributing at least 4 percent of the work they perform to charity cases.

The Legislature wisely wrote a tight definition of indigent care, prescribing that the charity work be inpatient or outpatient medical care and services, including those unreimbursed under Medicaid.

Simply sending a team of nurses out to the mall to offer cholesterol tests for shoppers or providing public-interest seminars will not qualify.

The new law, signed this week by Gov. Ann Richards, came in response to complaints that hospitals claiming to be nonprofit were spending only small amounts of their resources to treat people too poor either to pay for medical services or buy insurance. . . .

Krueger can blame Clinton for his overwhelming defeat

The devastating, humiliating defeat of Bob Krueger by Kay Bailey Hutchison in Saturday's runoff cannot simply be attributed to the self-acknowledged fact that "Krueger is a lousy politician." . . .

First, Hutchison did better than expected in the first special election May 1. She raised twice as much money as Krueger. And even though outnumbered, the Texas GOP got out the vote.

In contrast, the Democrats presented a generally lackluster front. . . .

The overwhelming reason, however, was, in two words, Bill Clinton. He has never been very popular in Texas, getting only 37 percent of the vote last November. . . . Though Krueger tried to distance himself from the president, many felt a vote for him was a vote for Clinton.

Guys in White House don't know sic 'em

Bob Dole's title is Senate Republican Leader. The sign over his door used to read, "Minority Leader," a tradition Sen. Everett Dirksen preserved, but Sen. Hugh Scott changed it in the late 1960s when he was leader because it struck him as down-putting.

Safire

The Senate Republican Leader (going against Times style, I capitalize the letter l because it is part of a title) called the other day and, before passing along a hot news tip, observed, "Those guys in the White House just don't know sic 'em."

I asked what he meant; Dole seemed taken aback, as if surprised to find that I didn't know sic 'em, either. "It means 'anything,' " he said. He thinks I've been inside the Beltway too long.

A quick call to DARE — the Dictionary of American Regional English, at the University of Wisconsin in Madison — turned up the geographic dispersion of the dialect term: a few spottings in the Midwest, explaining Kansan Dole's usage, but heaviest in the Pacific Northwest.

Question JJ156 on the DARE questionnaire, skillfully designed to elicit regionalisms, is "Sayings about a person who seems to you very stupid: 'He doesn't know ——.' " Although some would respond with a brief expletive, DARE's query drew 27 answers of Sic 'em, along with these more detailed responses: " 'Here' from sic 'em," "Sic 'em from 'come here' " and "Sic 'em from 'go get 'em.' "

When American Speech magazine queried readers about sic 'em in 1961, one observed that his mother heard it from Arkansas friends who owned hound dogs. Another reader, the great San Francisco dialexicographer Peter Tamony, replied: "The remark describes an unresponsive, indolent, shiftless person. He is like a dog that shows no courageous and instant reaction to the command 'sic 'em.' " Tamony gave an etymological insight by adding that sic 'em is "merely a pronunciation modification of seek 'em or seek 'im."

The earliest citations are from Stewart Edward White's 1907 "Arizona Nights" . "You see, for all their plumb nerve in comin' so far, the most of them didn't know sic 'em. . . . I didn't know sic 'em about minin'." In Ramon Adams' 1968 "Western Words," the term is defined as "a cowboy's expression meaning 'ignorant.' I have heard many unique references to ignorance, like 'He don't know 'nough to pack guts to a bear,' 'He don't know dung from wild honey' and many others. Ted Logan referred to a man with 'His head's so hollow he's got to talk with his hands to get away from the echo.' "

The key is the unspoken from. Not to know sic 'em (sometimes spelled sickum) means not to distinguish the master's command to his dog to attack from the entirely different command "come here." (This is not a canine slur; either the master or the dog can be the stupid party. Or both can be: when I say sic 'em! to James, my Bernese mountain dog, he snarls ferociously and comes at me.)

Modern dialect users are more familiar with not knowing from beans, which probably originated in "not knowing split beans from coffee beans," or "not knowing beans from barley," "beans from bullfrogs," etc. The key from is found in "not knowing cow chips from kumquats," a fine double alliteration; indeed, alliteration is frequent in this trope of comparison, as the makers of Shinola shoe polish learned to their rue. Today, the from is usually dropped, and "He don't know beans" is all that remains.

I am indebted to Republican Leader Dole for this lead, if that's what he called about.

'Menace' deserves large American audience

WASHINGTON — Allen Hughes, one of the 21-year-old twin brothers who directed the movie "Menace II Society," says; "Our intention was to have the audience turn away." These two African-American prodigies have made a stunning, troubling movie that compels contemplation of this question: In a nation saturated with violence, can a portrayal of violence be valuable because it is therapeutic? The answer may be: Yes, if the portrayal is so relentlessly realistic that it nearly sickens viewers and strengthens their resolve to enforce domestic tranquility.

Will

This "Menace" does, from the first frames, showing the casual murder of a Korean couple in their convenience store, to the final fusillade of the drive-by shooting that kills the movie's protagonist and narrator, Caine.

Caine is shown as the essentially unparented child of an addictive mother (soon dead of an overdose) and a murderous father who guns down a man during a living room card game. At the end of the movie a child watches Caine die. The movie's unrelievedly bleak message is that the intergenerational transmission of violence will continue. The almost randomness of the killings and beatings, and the almost affectlessness of the killers and beaters, combined with the numbing profanity of people whose most common locutions are the coarsest in the language, bludgeon the audience into a frame of mind akin to the fatalism that envelops most of the movie's characters.

The Hughes brothers live in Pomona, quite a social distance from the grim Los Angeles neighborhoods their movie portrays as grinders of young lives. The script was written by another young African-American, Tyger Williams, 24, who calls himself "a suburban child." He says, accurately, that "Menace" is less like the most successful — until now — movie portrayal of Los Angeles gang life, "Boyz N the Hood," than it is like "GoodFellas."

"GoodFellas," an unblinking and entirely unsentimental look at the violent world of petty white New York mobsters, was a brilliantly made movie that, arguably, should not have been made. It told a truth rigorously, but, in a nation echoing with gunfire, there may be some subjects too savage, too desensitizing, to be suitable for mass entertainment. "Menace" tells a more important truth, about the savagery engulfing wide swaths of America's cities. But might the telling of it contribute to the contagion?

The critic whose judgement I trust most concerning such movies is Leroy O'Shield, a 50-year old African-American who is the no-nonsense commander of Chicago's West Side 15th police district, a dangerous place. In his astringent opinion, "Boyz N the Hood" is a "training film" for crime, communicating "the mystique of being tough." He noted that one of Chicago's most violent weekends followed the showing of "Boyz" on HBO.

At my request, he saw "Menace" last weekend and came away with mixed emotions. The movie's violence, extraordinary in quantity and character, may, he thinks, be necessary to attract into theaters the inner city young men who need to see violence presented without a scintilla of romanticism.

The American Psychological Association says that by the time an average television-watching, movie-going (never mind video game-playing) American child reaches seventh grade, he or she has witnessed 8,000 murders and more than 100,000 other acts of violence. But he or she probably has never seen violence rendered as convincingly as "Menace" does — unless he or she lives in one of urban America's war zones.

O'Shield is pleased whenever he sees movies with strong and caring adult males in inner city settings. In "Menace," one such, a teacher, says to a pair of young men, "Being a black man in America isn't easy. The hunt is on and you're the prey." But the point that the movie hammers home is that the predators are young black men.

I wish for "Menace" a huge audience of young inner city males who need to see violence drained of all traits or consequences that could make it charismatic. "Menace" also deserves a large audience of American adults, for two reasons.

First, it is an utterly unsweetened taste of life in a portion of America that is as foreign to most Americans as, say, Somalia. Such convincing works of art — Richard Price's 1992 novel "Clockers" is another are invaluable contributions to the nation's stock of realism.

Second, "Menace" may help concentrate the public's mind on the nation's bizarre misallocation of its energies.

Appointment from president calls for smoking gun

There was a time when being appointed by the President to a high position was a badge of honor. No more. As soon as someone's name is announced for an important job, people start looking for a smoking gun.

When Judge Lapchuck was on the short list for the Supreme Court justice vacancy, everybody in our neighborhood was surprised.

Buchwald

"I wouldn't have believed it of Lapchuck," Dandelion said. "He seemed like such a straight guy."

"You never really know about people until they are nominated for a major position in government," I said.

"But he served on the bench for 18 years. If there was anything on him, they would have known about it by now."

"That's the unfortunate part. He could have gotten away with what he was doing if it hadn't been for the appointment."

"What was he doing?"

"Nobody knows, but it must have been pretty bad if Clinton seriously considered his name for the court."

"Can you get jail time for being a Supreme Court nominee?"

"No, but it goes in your record and no one ever forgets it."

"I know a woman who was nominated to be the U.S. ambassador to Sri Lanka. Then they found out that not only did her maid not have a green card -- she didn't have one, either. Her husband was so humiliated that he filed for divorce."

"I should hope so. Where does Clinton find the people he appoints to high government positions?"

"Probably from halfway houses," Dandelion said.

"What's interesting about being nominated for an important job and not getting it is that the public automatically assumes that you've done something wrong. They don't know what you did, but if you strike out for a seat on the Supreme Court, you have to spend the rest of your life denying that you were the Boston Strangler."

"It's not just the Supreme Court. Ever since Clinton withdrew Lani Guinier's name for assistant attorney general there are reports of her holding up banks all over the country."

"The FBI was around talking to me about Lapchuck."

"What did you tell them?"

"I told them what they wanted to hear. Lapchuck was a closet mushroom grower, he had the British journal The Economist delivered to his house by mail, and he never flew the flag on the Fourth of July. I have a great deal of respect for the FBI, and if they are trying to get the goods on Lapchuck, I am going to help them all I can."

"I admire you for sticking your neck out. I don't think that we should have anyone sitting on the Supreme Court who has to be investigated by the FBI."

"Do you believe that now he's on the short list the neighbors will ask him to leave?"

"Definitely. Who wants to live next door to somebody who wasn't the President's first choice?"

Well, in spite of people's anger that Lapchuck turned out to be a loose cannon, he is still living in the same house. The only difference now is that after all the unfavorable publicity surrounding his nomination, no one is talking to him.

Asked if he would let his name be considered for another post in the government, Lapchuck replied, "It's an honor no American citizen can refuse."

Clinton's high court nominee criticized Bork's treatment in '88

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a 1988 lecture, Judge Ruth Bader Ginsburg criticized the liberal-led campaign to block Robert Bork from the Supreme Court as "badly distorted" and cautioned the Senate against overly specific questioning of judicial nominees.

As President Clinton's Supreme Court nominee prepares for her own hearings, her words offer a glimpse at how she views the Senate's role in a confirmation process that has been hotly disputed for two centuries.

The lecture shows Ginsburg's consternation at the campaign waged by liberal groups against Bork, a former appeals court colleague whose 1987 nomination to the Supreme Court was rejected.

Ginsburg spoke favorably of the "Frankfurter tradition," named for Justice Felix Frankfurter, of agreeing to discuss general judicial philosophy at confirmation hearings but refraining from answering specific questions about issues that could come before the court.

She said that line was blurred if not obliterated in the Bork hearings as the conservative judge tried to defend, under intense questioning, controversial academic writings that included many criticisms of Supreme Court rulings.

"Have we witnessed a transformation of the process that threatens the independence of judges and thereby the preservation of our civil liberties in a society government by the rule of law?" Ginsburg asked in a January 1988 University of Illinois lecture, published later in the school's law review.

"Does it follow from the position that judicial philosophy is a legitimate consideration for both the president and Senate that a nominee must agree to answer, on a senator's request, an inquiry like: 'Do parents have any rights with respect to abortions performed on their minor children?' "

Ginsburg's lecture also offered some advice: Presidents could avoid Bork-like fights, she said, if they sounded out key senators in advance of making nominations. Clinton took just that approach in his search, and Ginsburg's nomination has been greeted with bipartisan acclaim.

The scope of the Senate's role in confirmations was hotly debated at the Constitutional Convention in 1787 and has resurfaced as a contentious issue some two-dozen times during confirmation battles.

Ginsburg's own 1980 confirmation to the federal appeals bench in Washington was a tame affair, but only after the Judiciary Committee rejected an interest group's demand that senators ask pointed questions about such views as abortion, forced busing and women in combat. In the lecture, she recalled the "frightful prospect" of facing such questions.

It is still unclear what degree of scrutiny Ginsburg will face in her new confirmation hearings.

While no liberal groups have opposed her nomination, some have called for detailed questioning on the subjects of abortion and homosexual rights, because of past Ginsburg rulings and lectures worrisome to some liberals.

"I hope Judge Ginsburg's views, particularly on choice, will be examined with great care by the Senate Judiciary Committee," said liberal Democratic Rep. Don Edwards of California, who said he found "deeply troubling" a Ginsburg speech questioning the reach of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade abortion decision.

Clinton told a news conference Tuesday he did not ask Ginsburg her views on abortion but was convinced by her writings and decisions that she supported abortion rights. He has not said whether he believes it appropriate for the Judiciary Committee to ask detailed questions on this and other issues.

While Ginsburg's lecture left little doubt she believed the Judiciary Committee was too specific in questioning Bork, her words were carefully chosen. She often quoted others' criticism of the process and used questions to outline what appeared to be her own concerns.

"Are senators ill-equipped to engage in all inquiry into a nominee's judicial philosophy because they are too much occupied with domestic and foreign policy matters of the moment to think grandly, if at all, about constitutional theory?" she asked. "And if that is so, shouldn't senators confine themselves to less complex questions concerning the nominee's professional competence?"

U.S. studies 'mini-nukes,' officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has been quietly researching a new generation of "mini-nukes," low-yield nuclear weapons that can penetrate hardened underground bunkers, officials said Wednesday.

The weapons would have the advantage of great strength but minimal nuclear fallout because of their underground detonation, said the officials.

The research, which is being described as a "conceptual paper study," began about 18 months ago and is being conducted at the Energy Department's three nuclear laboratories at the request of the Air Force, scientists said.

"It's a 'what if' project, to see what is possible," said John Immele, associate director for nuclear weapons technology at the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico.

Immele and other scientists said they doubted the project would progress beyond a paper study, given the current climate of defense cutbacks and reductions of nuclear arsenals.

But William Arkin, director of military research for the Greenpeace environmental movement, said he was worried that military and scientific proponents of mini-nukes would manage to overcome political constraints against the development of new nuclear weapons by convincing policy makers that the weapons were small and containable.

Arkin also rejected the labs' assertions that the research was harmless. Not only does it risk escalating a nuclear arms race with Russia, he said, but it would encourage countries with nuclear ambitions such as Iraq, Iran and North Korea.

"Nuclear zealots couldn't care less that the Cold War is over," said Arkin, who published an article in the latest edition of the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists detailing the history and plans of the mini-nuke research.

Mrs. USA Pageant would oust woman for pose in Playboy

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — A suburban mother of two says posing topless for Playboy shouldn't disqualify her from taking her Mrs. Michigan-USA title to the national pageant next month.

Contest organizers say nudity isn't the kind of family value they want to promote.

Kathi Perry, 31, of Southfield posed for the September edition of Playboy in a package entitled "Fly Girls" and featuring flight attendants clothed and unclothed.

"Would you want your mother posing nude?" asked Dennis Holland, executive television producer for the national pageant, set for July 31 in Tyler, Texas.

Holland said he wasn't making a moral judgment against Perry, but her Playboy appearance might hurt the contest. He said pageant officials said they learned of Perry's appearance in the Playboy after she had won the Mrs. Michigan title May 16.

After she won the Mrs. Michigan USA title, Holland said Perry signed a contract that said he hadn't and wouldn't do anything "against public morality" that might harm the pageant.

The contract doesn't mention posing nude, but, "it's just one of those untold things you assume people would know," Michigan pageant director Johneane Powers said.

Perry defended her action and said she was fit to hold her title.

"I act as Mrs. Michigan every day of my life," she said. Perry and husband Lowell have a 5-year-old son and 4-year-old daughter. They married in Washington in 1987 and moved to Michigan in 1991.

There's not much left in 'Frogville'

By Ann DeFrange
Associated Press writer

FROGVILLE, Okla. — The dark and densely forested space along the Red River is unique geography in a state not known for its swamps. But it hasn't always belonged to this state.

From time to time throughout history, the river has washed the red soil from one bank to another, sparking border wars between Oklahoma and Texas over the place the locals call Frog Bottoms.

From some kind of collective memory, Ricky Houston calls up an image: "At one time, it was all pecans and squirrels and good hunting. Then they came in here and cleaned it all out."

At one time, too, it was filled with the leaping and croaking of frogs on frogs on frogs. And so, the nearly square-mile area that was most publicly populated was named "Frogville."

Omie Johnson is both a receptacle and a character for the collective memory.

"We never really did call it a town. We just always called it Frogville . . . and everybody felt at home," Ms. Johnson said.

"Oh Lord, child," she starts with one of her favorite phrases, "there were dozens of little stores down in the bottoms, and the houses were so thick. We had post offices and gins.

"There ain't nothing that wasn't here."

By now, that can be amended to "nothing here."

Houston, riding horseback from the far pasture with his brother and his cousin, creates the only traffic on the road to Frogville. They stop long enough to recommend a visit with Ms. Johnson. They call her Granny, they say, or Mz. Omie, and she's the "oldest and best" person they know.

"Let me tell you about Mz. Omie," Houston says. "She's the best lady you'll ever find down in these bottoms. She never has anything bad to say about anybody."

She rocks the swing on the porch under the dirt dauber nests with just the slightest of motion. She stuffs her ever-present hanky in to an apron pocket so she can point her arm to the few landmarks that verify Frogville's presence, or past — the Frogville Store up the road, beyond that the Frogville Baptist Church and the Frogville Cemetery, where "my husband and a bunch of them are buried up there."

She's not certain how long her husband's been there, either, only that "he just went on and left me here and I stayed."

She ponders population numbers for her town: "Oh Lord, child, I don't know and I wouldn't have time tonight to count them."

She can't count the local frogs, either. "Oh darlin', I haven't seen a frog in a hundred years."

Numbers, in fact, aren't her interest. Numbers and measurements of time might not matter in the calm and quiet of the languid bottoms.

"I've been down here an awful long time," she dismisses another request for specific figures. Family members, in fact, date her arrival there as a young bride to the 1920s. She considers that.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised. That would be some time, wouldn't it?"

She can't name or count all her grandchildren, but she knows there's a family feeling there that can't be translated into mathematics.

She knows nothing's the same as it used to be around Frogville since they blacktopped the road past her house. "I guess it was nearly a year now." Since then, "500 or 600 durn cars passes this road out here."

There are frogs to hear, actually. She just quit noticing them when they became part of the landscape, along with the chirps and buzzes and hums of bottomland fauna.

It's only that she hasn't much time to spend on the porch swing. Although, she admitted, "some days I work all day and some days I don't do a blooming thing."

Now, when she remembers things, she's likely to remark, "Lord, that was a hundred years ago."

Summertime means hammering out budgets for Midland College and Midland Independent School District. Both taxing entities have also announced their summer meeting schedules. Midland College's board will meet 4 p.m., Thursday, June 24, and at 6 p.m., Tuesday, July 27. The August meeting is set for 4 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 17. MC trustees usually meet 4 p.m. on the third Tuesday of each month. Meetings are conducted in the board room of the campus administration building. MISD trustees are scheduled to meet 4 p.m. Tuesday in the downtown administration building, 615 W. Missouri Ave. School board trustees usually meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month and will be back on a regular schedule in August.

Murder suspects

JUAREZ, Mexico — Odessa and Mexican officials arrested two suspects in connection with the death of an Oklahoma man whose body was found at an Odessa motel Saturday. According to Odessa police officials, Richard Wayne Smith, 25, and Dianna Rita Morin, 30, were arrested Wednesday in Mexico on capital murder warrants issued by the Odessa Police Department. Smith and Ms. Morin were wanted in connection with the death of Robert Rhea Haws of Reno, Okla., whose body was found Saturday afternoon at the Travel Inn Motel, 1831 East 2nd St., Room 116. Haws' body was severely beaten in the face and head, police said.

Agent links pair, drug dealers

■ DEA agent testifies that Odessa couple is involved in organized crime.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

A federal drug agent testified Wednesday that an Odessa couple indicted for conspiracy to possess and distribute cocaine have ties with Colombian drug dealers and are involved in organized crime.

In a preliminary examination and detention hearing, U.S. Magistrate Louis Guirola heard testimony against and for Moises Contreras-Olivas and his wife, Griselda Contreras-Cano. The couple was also indicted by the federal grand jury Wednesday.

A federal drug agent, whose name is being withheld for his protection, testified that the "drug bust" was the result of a "reverse undercover operation" in which an agent posed as a narcotics distributor.

The Drug Enforcement Administration special agent said the operation was headed by the Department of Public Safety, which had two undercover officers leading the investigation.

He said the case began in May 1991 and by spring of 1992 it was being investigated as an organized crime case because of information gathered from confidential informants.

The agent said that as a result of the investigation the DEA allegedly discovered that Contreras has ties with Colombian drug dealers as a transporter, arranging to bring cocaine, sometimes as much as 500 kilograms, into the United States in exchange for large quantities of drugs.

He said several different informants confirmed the information individually and several drug dealers identified Contreras as the source of their drugs.

The couple was arrested June 2 in the parking lot of a convenience store at 10th and Dixie streets in Odessa.

The agent said the two DPS undercover agents had arranged to sell to Contreras four kilograms of cocaine for $15,000 a kilogram. The deal was for cash on delivery.

He testified that he watched the deal from across the street and saw Contreras motion for his wife to deliver the money after receiving four kilograms of cocaine. Mrs. Contreras then, allegedly, drove up and delivered $74,360 in cash to one of the undercover agents.

Midlander to carry torch through city

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Midland residents can witness a unique event Friday afternoon when the Texas Torch Run blazes through town with a hometown woman carrying the torch for the first leg of the journey here.

The Texas Torch Run is a prelude to the U.S. Olympic Festival '93 (USOF) which will begin July 28 in San Antonio.

Midland native, Laura Fitz-Maurice Schneider, will carry the first leg of the torch run through Midland starting on Garfield near College Street in front of the Shell station. She will transport the torch for one-fifth of a mile at about 1 p.m. Friday. The time is tentatively set because the speed of the runners varies, according to torch run officials.

Midland is one of only 58 cities in Texas selected for the torch to pass through on its 4,600-mile journey to San Antonio for the USOF '93. The torch will also travel through Odessa at 8:30 a.m. Friday on its way to Midland.

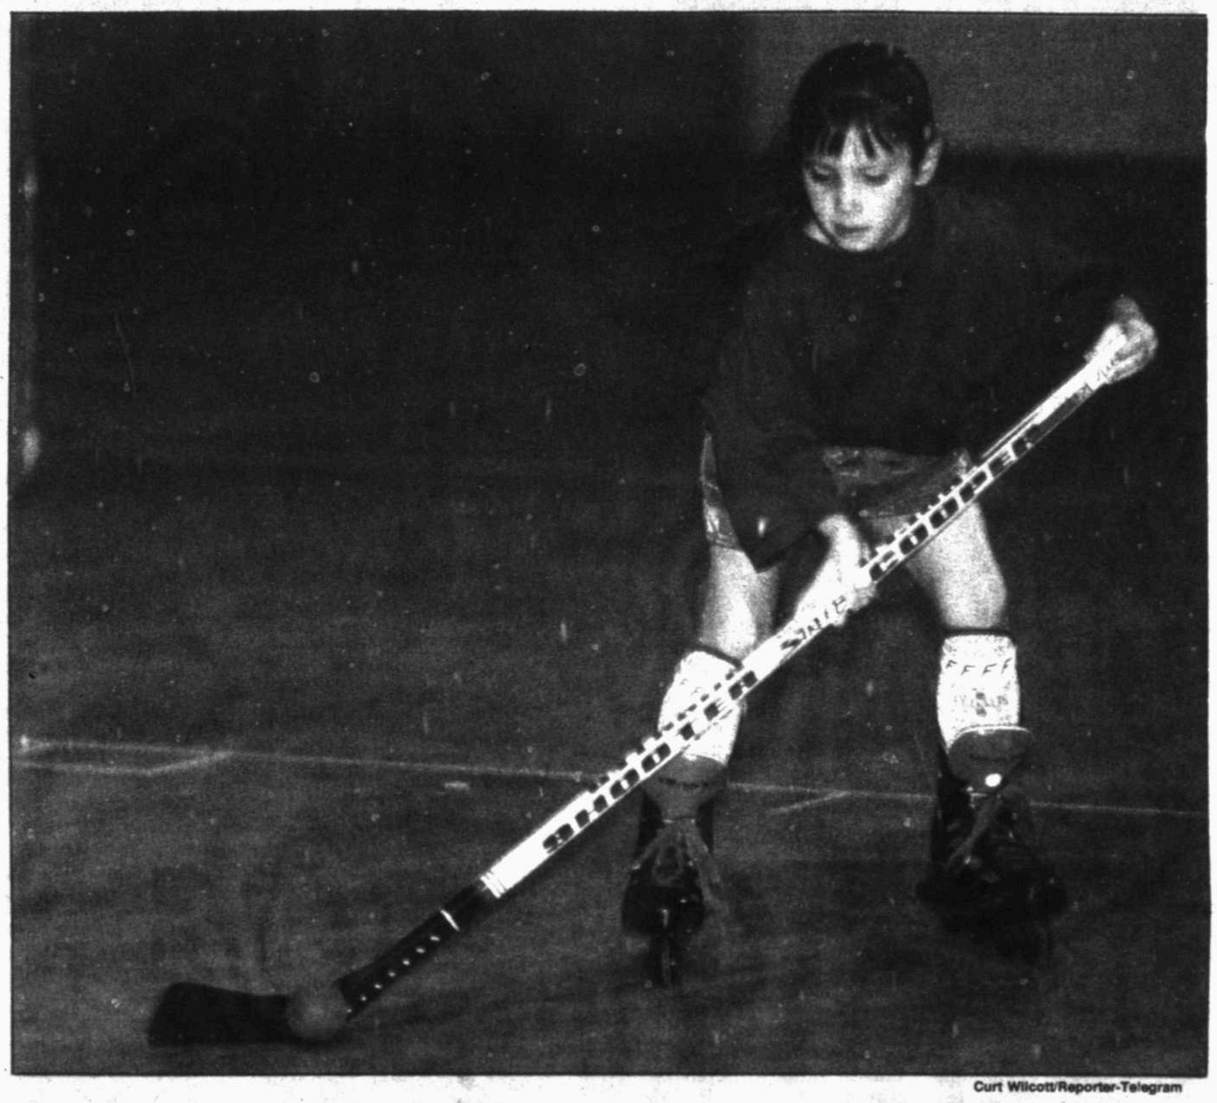

The torch began its journey June 13 at the Capitol in Austin with Olympic gold-medalist Mary Lou Retton running the first ceremonial leg. The torch will arrive in San Antonio on July 23 and end its journey with the lighting of the Festival Flame in San Antonio's new Alamodome. The events end Aug. 1.

The festival features Olympic-caliber competition in 37 sports for American athletes in a non-Olympic year, affording audiences a preview of the 1996 Atlanta games.

The USOF was established in 1978.

More than 3,500 aspiring athletes will compete for the gold, silver and bronze

Chuck-wagon cook relishes ranching life, its traditions

By Gina Augustini
Associated Press writer

DICKENS — In the early morning hours, while ranch hands lie sleeping in tents, Jimbo Humphreys begins his day with the sound of eggs cracking and bacon sizzling in a cast iron skillet over an open fire.

The 40-year-old Dickens chuck-wagon cook enjoys the time he spends cooking alone.

"That's what I like about it — just bein' by yourself and out in the country. The stars at night. No traffic. It's real peaceful. I spend a lot of time by myself — I like that," said Humphreys in a slow West Texas drawl, his brown handlebar moustache framing a smile.

Raised on the Pitch Fork, a 200,000-acre ranch between Dickens and Guthrie, Humphreys relishes ranching life and its traditions.

He especially enjoys serving up traditional chuck-wagon cuisine including sourdough biscuits, steaks, beans or eggs, bacon and ham for breakfast. Humphreys, a former fence contractor, has been cooking for area ranches for about six years.

"I try to keep everything just as simple as I can," he said of his menu and recipes. "It don't take a big spice rack for me. I like to try and keep everything the way it was 50 years ago."

And that goes for his chuck wagon as well. Humphreys spent this past winter — and about $20,000 — constructing his own rig.

The red and green chuck wagon, complete with cabinets for storage and a 30-gallon water barrel at its side, is leased to ranches when Humphreys isn't using it on a job.

Pulled by a team of four horses, the wagon moves about 5 mph, Humphreys said, adding that the bulky rig offers a smooth ride.

Marla Offield is an unlikely advocate for finishing school. She dropped out when she was in the ninth grade to get married, but has overcome the odds to obtain her GED and now she is on the path to success.

At 29, this mother of three has set her mind to achieve goals she always thought were impossible. But, with a little support from a United Way agency, Ms. Offield learned she could do anything she set her mind to.

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Marla Offield, a data entry clerk and certified phlebomotist, got her GED and professional training as an example to her children that anyone can achieve their goals if they set their minds to it.

She said she hit a low point in her life when she sought counseling.

"At the point when I started going ... I was emotionally a nervous wreck," she said. "I just got to the end of my rope and I didn't know what to do."

Ms. Offield said once she met Nancy Anderson Hill and Caroline Brown she was instilled with thoughts that just maybe she could set some goals and meet them.

Richards names Perryman to turnpike board

Reporter-Telegram Austin bureau

AUSTIN — Mayor Lorraine Perryman of Odessa has been named to the Texas Turnpike Authority board of directors, Gov. Ann Richards announced Wednesday.

Ms. Perryman will serve a term ending Feb. 16, 1999. The appointment is subject to Senate confirmation when the Legislature meets in 1995.

Ms. Perryman, 39, has been mayor of Odessa since May 1990. A native of Pampa, she graduated from Odessa High School in 1971 and earned a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Texas at Austin in 1976.

She is a former public relations consultant and was employed by KOSA-TV as a news anchor in 1987-'88. Before that she was communications supervisor for the Ector County Independent School District.

Ms. Perryman succeeds James Muns of Dallas, whose term expired.

Ms. Richards also reappointed Nathelyne A. Kennedy of Sugar Land, the owner of a civil and structural consulting engineering company, to the turnpike board.

The 12-member board has statewide authority to plan, finance, build and operate toll roads in Texas.

Richards blasts Hutchison's records request

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards' office Wednesday said an open records inquiry into her days at the state Treasury is a "sad attempt" to divert attention from an investigation of operations at the Treasury under U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

"Clearly, this is an attempt to muddy the waters and shift some attention away from the district attorney's investigation," said Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards.

"The fact of the matter is, they are the caretakers of the records they are looking for. They can walk down the hall and look at any records they want."

The open records request by Mrs. Hutchison's campaign officials comes less than a week after Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle launched an investigation into Mrs. Hutchison's 2½-year term as state treasurer.

Earle subpoenaed Treasury employees to testify about allegations that incriminating records were being destroyed at the agency under Mrs. Hutchison's leadership.

"There was absolutely no destruction of relevant documents during Mrs. Hutchison's tenure as state treasurer nor were there any plans to dispose of them," said David Beckwith, Hutchison's campaign spokesman.

"If Democrats are really as concerned about destruction of documents as they profess, perhaps it will turn out they were looking at the wrong administration," he said.

The open records request, filed by Dallas lawyer Robert Holland III, seeks files from Richards' tenure, including telephone logs, investment practices and travel. Richards served as state t easurer from 1983 to 1991, before winning election as governor.

Requests were also submitted for personnel records concerning six former Treasury employees who later went to work for Richards in the governor's office, including McDonald.

RANCH: Cook keeps his menus, recipes simple

(From 1B)

"This is just sure 'nough the old time chuck wagon, right here," Humphrey's said, his tall frame casually leaning against the wagon's thick wooden wheels. "It's just the way one would've been 50 years ago or 100 years ago."

Maybe he fudges a little. The cooler in the back of the wagon, for instance, preserves meat that most likely would have spoiled under storage techniques used more than 50 years ago. And the coffee grinder, once used by cooks, sits in Humphreys' wagon just for show, he said, smiling sheepishly.

"We don't grind our own coffee anymore either — but we got a grinder. We use that ol' Folgers out of the can," he added with a deep laugh. "We do boil the coffee. We don't perk it."

But some things around the chuck wagon haven't changed. Ranch hands still treat the cook with utmost respect, Humphreys said.

"Within 60 foot of this wagon, that's (the cook's) territory, and if somebody gets in it, they respect him," he said. "They may grumble off somewhere else, but they're not anywhere where you can hear'em. Used to, if they grumbled too much, well, it became their job.

"They keep up a lot of tradition like that," Humphreys added, putting his hands in the back pockets of his dusty jeans.

Humphreys works about six ranches a year with each job lasting about a week to 10 days. On a job, he cooks three meals a day for about 20 ranch hands. His cooking earns him about $100 a day in wages.

"It's long hours. From the time you get up to the time you lay down at night," Humphreys said, adding that he works 16-hour days. "If I serve breakfast at 6 o'clock, I'm going to get up at 4 o'clock.

CITY: Midlander to participate in Texas Torch Run medals including 1992 Olympic medalist, gymnast Shannon Miller. The USOF was established in 1978.

Ms. Schneider was selected to participate through a random drawing. She will join about 4,000 other Texans in carrying a leg of the run.

Ms. Schneider, a doctoral student in psychology at Texas Christian University, is an avid runner having participated in the Cowtown Marathon in February and various other races in the Metroplex.

She requested to run in Midland because it is her hometown and briefly explained why she wanted to be a part of the torch run.

"Its significance is that it makes me feel proud to carry the torch as an American ... to feel a part of it," Ms. Schneider said. "The Olympics are such an important event, uniting the country in competition and cooperation."

The Midland native will be cheered on by her parents Tom and Patricia Schneider as well as her sister.

As a corporate sponsor, La Quinta Inns is also sponsoring legs for selected employees and members of its frequent traveler's club. Also running a "VIP" leg in the run is KMID-TV's Sports Director Mark Packer.

La Quinta Inns will also host a kick-off celebration from 12:45 to 1 p.m. Friday to welcome the torch to Midland. Mayor J.D. Faircloth and local Boy Scouts will host the celebration at the kick-off site at Garfield St.

The public is invited to line the streets and cheer the runners on their way to San Antonio. The run begins at Garfield and College, travels south on Garfield until reaching Andrews Hwy. and Ohio St. Then the route follows Andrews Hwy. west until reaching Midkiff when the runner will take a right on Midkiff and travel north until turning right on Wadley.

From Wadley and Midkiff the route travels east until taking a right on Lamesa. The runners will continue south of Lamesa ending at Lamesa and Texas where the drive will continue on I-20 east to its next destination.

Torch run officials anticipate the complete route through Midland to take approximately two hours.

GED: Woman hopes children set goals at early age

(From 1B)

GED and with Ms. Brown for encouraging her enough to continue pursuing it, no matter how difficult it got.

The hard work paid off. In addition to the satisfaction of finally having that GED, she is now employed by the West Texas Pathology Lab as a data entry clerk and certified phlebotomist, a person who draws blood.

Ms. Offield is generous with her thanks for the folks who supported her while she worked toward her goals. She said her boss, Doug Schultz, helped her get enrolled in the phlebotomy course to get certified and then gave her a job.

The pride in her accomplishments is apparent, as is the love for her children, ages 6, 8 and 11.

"I want my kids to be able to look up and say 'my mom did this and did that and she was this old,'" she said. But, she is quick to add that she wants her children to set and meet their goals at a younger age.

"It makes you feel better about yourself to know you can do something ... It's hard when kids drop out of school to go back ... kids need to realize they need to stay in school. Don't wait until you're almost 30 to do something with your life; do it while you're still young," she emphasizes.

Ms. Offield said she wants her youngsters to set their goals and grow up to be independent. With a humble smile she adds that if she can do it, anyone can.

"I done it. I actually done it," she said, apparently in awe of her accomplishments.

But, that pride is a new feeling for her. Before she sought counseling, Ms. Offield had very little self-confidence.

"I made up my mind that no one is going to do anything for me. Your life is what you make it. If you don't get up and do something about it, it's not going to fall in your lap," she explained. "You have to get up and make things happen. It took me a long time to figure that out."

"I've come a long way in the last couple of years. If someone would have told me two years ago that I'd be doing what I'm doing now I would have probably have laughed," Ms. Offield said.

"You can do something. It don't matter who you are or where you come from, you can do something," she reiterated.

Ms. Hill, the counselor Ms. Offield credits with encouraging her to go for her GED, agreed that she has come a long way in the past few years.

She remembers Ms. Offield "coming and going for a while" to counseling sessions, but knew in the long run that "Marla wanted to get her GED and better herself."

"She wanted somebody to believe in her so she could believe in herself," Ms. Hill explained. "I will honestly never forget when she called to tell me she was graduating, I was so excited."

Ms. Hill praised Ms. Offield for having the courage to follow through with her goals, noting that she could have used a number of excuses to keep herself from doing it.

The counselor was also pleased to see the seed she planted bloom into fruition with Ms. Offield's achievements.

"It is rare to get any feedback from your clients. But, this is remarkable," she said.

DPS trooper dies in shooting

STRATFORD (AP) — A highway trooper died Wednesday afternoon after being shot numerous times at a roadside park near this north Panhandle city. A suspect was arrested.

Bobby Steve Booth, 28, was shot at about 3 p.m. on U.S. Highway 287 near Stratford, said Laureen Chernow of the Department of Public Safety in Austin.

Booth was dead on arrival at 3:47 p.m. at Moore County Hospital District in Dumas, hospital officials said.

Jerry Burgtorf, public information officer for the DPS in Amarillo, said Booth had been dispatched to a disturbance call north of Stratford. The caller reported a man waving a gun, Burgtorf said.

"The next information we had was that the trooper had been shot," he said.

Witnesses say the gunman left the roadside park in a 1977 truck. About one hour later, Burgtorf said, the suspect was arrested on foot inside the city.

The suspect was being held Wednesday evening at the Sherman County Jail on capital murder charges. No name was immediately available.

Booth was the first DPS trooper to be killed in the line of duty this year, said DPS spokesman Mike Cox. He is the 70th trooper to die in the line of duty since die since Jan. 18, 1932.

Booth had joined the department in 1987 and was stationed in Stratford, 80 miles north of Amarillo.

One friend of Booth's family described the Memphis, Texas, native as a family man who liked to fish and work with old cars.

Booth is survived by his wife and two young sons, Mrs. Melton said.

DEA: Federal grand jury indicts Odessa couple

(From 1B)

"This may have been the fastest dope deal I've ever seen ... from the arrival to the arrests was only about three or four minutes," the agent testified.

The agent said no recording devices, photographs or video were taken during the alleged drug transaction at the request of the DPS undercover officers. He said this was not unusual.

Between July 1992 until the time of the arrest, Contreras' travels to Mexico were monitored, showing that he crossed the border at least 22 timesr. However, during searches of his car no drugs were discovered by border patrol officers, the agent said.

The DEA agent also noted that the home of the informant who played a key role in the arrests of the couple burned to the ground soon after the arrests. He also said the informant's car was "shot up." The alleged retaliation occurred after the couple was in custody.

A special agent with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms testified that federal records indicated that in January 1989 Contreras purchased 28 semi-automatic shoulder weapons.

Contreras bought 13 AK-15s and 15 AK-47s and paid $15,750 in cash, the receipts showed. The ATF agent said, according to the federal purchasing form that Contreras had lied about being a convicted felon by checking "no" on a box asking about criminal records.

Contreras was convicted of possession of a firearm on unauthorized premises in 1986. The prosecutor did indicate that at the time of the arrest on June 2, no firearms were discovered on the couple or in their vehicles.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jake Snyder of San Antonio, who is prosecuting the case because of his expertise in organized crime, had no further witnesses for this hearing.

The defense called the 18-year-old daughter of the couple to testify. The woman said she had three younger siblings, ages 13, 12 and 6. Since her parents have been in custody, she and her husband have been caring for the children.

She said she would make sure her mother met conditions of pretrial release if the judge would allow her mother to be out on bond.

Following the hearing, the magistrate bound the couple over for trial on probable cause of a crime being committed and that they committed it. However, he agreed to release Mrs. Contreras on an unsecured bond of $25,000. Contreras will remain in the U.S. Marshal's custody because he is considered a flight risk and a danger to the community.

Connally's grave to be near Stephen F. Austin's

AUSTIN (AP) — The rolling hills of the 22-acre State Cemetery in East Austin boast of a proud but turbulent history.

Confederate soldiers, Texas Rangers, state legislators and judges are among those who lie there.

Today, former Gov. John Connally will be buried there.

Connally, a three-term governor and U.S. Treasury secretary under President Richard Nixon, died Tuesday of pulmonary fibrosis.

A war hero and business tycoon, Connally was critically injured by the sniper that killed President Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Connally is the eleventh Texas governor to be buried in the cemetery. He will be buried between a U.S. Army colonel and a state judge.

Robert McAlpin "Three Legged Willie" Williamson, who fought in the Battle of San Jacinto and served as a Republic of Texas Supreme Court justice, rests nearby.

A bronze statue of Stephen F. Austin, "the father of Texas," watches over the cemetery. Austin's grave is about 50 feet from Connally's.

Several signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence also were laid to rest in the state cemetery.

First to be buried on the plot was General Edward Burleson, a former vice president of the Republic, in 1851.

A year after Burleson's death, it was discovered that he bought the land for $200 from Andrew Johnson Hamilton, who had wanted to give the land to the state for a cemetery. Burleson also had intended to donate the land for a state cemetery.

Hamilton's daughters established the cemetery after his death.

The site hardly was used until Confederate officers were buried there in the 1860s.

Among the other prominent Texans buried at the state cemetery are historian J. Frank Dobie, author Walter Prescott Webb and Confederate General Albert Sidney Johnston.

City Hall renovations include espresso bar

HOUSTON (AP) — The wife of Houston's mayor has decided that city's majestic Art Deco-styled City Hall, equipped with garden and plaza, needs something more.

So armed with $200,000 in private donations, Elyse Lanier, wife of Mayor Bob Lanier, has taken it upon herself to remodel the terraces outside City Hall, complete with an expresso bar that opened Tuesday and black-and-white parasols shading picnic tables.

"I just thought City Hall ought to be open and friendly; an attraction, really, that people will want to come and see," Mrs. Lanier said while sampling a decaffinated iced mocha coffee from the new expresso stand.

Because the money came from private sources, Mrs. Lanier did not need City Council approval to renovate the city park outside City Hall, a spokesperson for the mayor said Wednesday.

"It's a donation to a city park," said Page Cullison, a Lanier spokesperson. "She doesn't need approval."

More changes appear on the horizon. Mrs. Lanier said she is negotiating for a lunch vendor — "Caesar salads, cold sandwiches; nothing fancy" — to set up shop next to the expresso bar.

Money for the transformation has come from the Brown Foundation, Cullen Foundation, Wortham Foundation and the Houston Endowment. Mrs. Lanier said she simply called officials of each group and said she needed help with a new idea.

How are downtown homeless people responding to the changes? Jim Bolt, operator of the expresso bar, said he's worked out a deal with the indigent residents of Hermann Square outside City Hall: free coffee and pastries in exchange for a watchful eye of his stand overnight.

And, of course, there are flowers. Mrs. Lanier, whose affinity for roses has become a trademark, insists that City Hall planting boxes and flower beds in adjacent parks be kept up with colorful, seasonal flora.

"It's just a feel-good thing," she said. "It's just something we hope helps bring people back downtown."

Researchers work on problem of moldy new shoes

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Researchers at the University of Texas Health Science Center are working on a problem just as stinky as moldy old shoes: moldy new shoes.

It's no laughing matter for shoe makers, who lose millions of dollars each year from fungal contamination of shoes.

"It looks like a loaf of bread that's gone bad, but it's a shoe," said Annette Fothergill, technical supervisor of the fungus-testing laboratory at the University of Texas Health Science Center.

The center received a small grant from a major shoe company, which Ms. Fothergill declined to identify, and has been working for three months on the project.

The researchers are trying to identify odor-causing fungus, test compounds to counter it and make suggestions for shoe manufacturing and packaging.

A number of American companies manufacture shoes in China, where old, open-air factories and high humidity contribute to the mold problem.

"The buildings are very old and in disrepair, in open air, and there's lots of vegetation around," Ms. Fothergill said in Wednesday's San Antonio Express-News. "It's very humid, and fungi really enjoy warmth and high humidity. So the product is becoming infected, but it takes a long time for it to grow."

By the time the shoes reach U.S. shores by boat, the mold has coated a large portion of the shipment, which then must be discarded.

"They're not just wiping them off and selling them," Ms. Fothergill said.

Doctor confirms shark attacks diver

DALLAS (AP) — Mexican officials have confirmed that a Dallas woman was attacked by a shark during a night dive near Cozumel.

The autopsy report lists the cause of 42-year-old Mary Eggemeyer's death as a drowning.

George Burgess, director of the International Shark Attack File who helped at the autopsy, said, "you simply cannot make a scientific call on it."

But there is no question a shark attack was involved, Burgess said.

The attacker was probably a 10-foot, 500-pound tiger shark.

Hutchison's 1st vote was almost not recorded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kay Bailey Hutchison's first vote as a U.S. senator almost didn't count.

The new Texas senator who was sworn in Monday thought she cast her first vote Tuesday against a procedural Democratic motion to limit debate on campaign finance reform. But it turns out the Senate clerks who record votes didn't hear Mrs. Hutchison and didn't record the vote.

"They called her name, she responded, but they didn't hear her," said Ray Sullivan, a spokesman for Mrs. Hutchison. "Since it was her first appearance on the Senate floor, she had many senators coming up to her and introducing themselves and congratulating her and she was unable to get down to the front desk."

So, a fellow Republican, Slade Gorton of Washington, stepped up to the front desk and pointed out to the clerks that Mrs. Hutchison was in fact on the Senate floor and had voted against the measure, Sullivan said.

The vote was recorded. But not forgotten.

During an appearance Wednesday before the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission to defend Texas bases, Mrs. Hutchison told the commissioners she was pleased to be making her first Capitol Hill appearance as a senator.

"I hope it's better than my first vote yesterday, which was not counted because they didn't know where my chair was on the floor," she said.

Replied James Courter, chairman of the base-closing panel: "You're counted."

Reno's staff investigates release of Koresh tape

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating why the FBI gave Congress an excerpted tape of conversations between cult leader David Koresh and a Texas police department as the Branch Davidian standoff began in gunfire Feb. 28.

"I've ordered the investigation, but I don't have the report back yet and I will not comment while I await the report," Attorney General Janet Reno said Wednesday before lunching in the department cafeteria with employees who helped deal with 10,000 letters on the cult standoff.

At issue are: why the tape of the 911 phone conversations was provided, since the Waco, Texas, police released it only for use by a federal grand jury in Texas; why it was excerpted when members of Congress believed it was the first 30 minutes of calls, verbatim; who was responsible and whether any laws were broken.

A Justice Department official said no laws were broken since only personal testimony before a grand jury — not taped evidence — is prohibited from release in the 5th Circuit federal appeals court area.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said a report on the probe would be sent to Congress today.

FBI spokesman Charles Mandigo said an FBI official, whose name he would not disclose, had given the tape to a House Appropriations Treasury subcommittee staff member.

"We're looking right now at whether providing the tape complied with all applicable rules and procedures," Mandigo said.

As for the editing, Mandigo said he was told the committee staff was informed the tape was "not the real time or verbatim."

The congressional panel last week played at a public hearing a 30-minute tape made when Treasury's Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents raided the cult compound outside Waco. The raid turned into a bloody shootout that killed four ATF agents and six adult cult members.

The tape involved exchanges between McLennan County sheriff's Lt. Larry Lynch and Koresh as well as one of his aides, Wayne Martin. Lynch was working at the police department.

"You brought a bunch of guys out here and you killed some of my children," Koresh said at one point in the conversation. "We told you we wanted to talk. How come you guys try to be ATF agents? How can you try to be so big all the time?"

The Justice Department official said the FBI's behavioral science specialists prepared the tape shortly after the shootout to train people headed to Waco to negotiate with Koresh.

"It was a sampler of his voice, exchanges," the official said.

The Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday that a Waco Police communications supervisor, Maria DeMar o, said the tape was incomplete and "gives a false impression of how the event occurred."

Rep. Jim Ross Lightfoot of Iowa, the panel's ranking Republican, said Wednesday that he did not know during the hearing that the tape was only excerpts, that he wanted to know who excerpted it and why.

"I think there was a bias in it to make the ATF look bad," by indicating it was tough for police to reach ATF officials when conversations left out would have reflected numerous contacts, Lightfoot told a news conference.

Lightfoot said he also was concerned the tape was obtained illegally, and he called Reno about the matter Tuesday, getting a response within 90 minutes.

Cult site cleanup may exceed $100,000, TWC official says

HOUSTON (AP) — State officials say cleanup of toxic amounts of lead and other pollutants including human waste at an armed cult's demolished complex could cost taxpayers between $100,000 and $200,000.

Larry Fergusson, Waco district manager for the Texas Water Commission, estimated the cleanup cost after taking four U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials on a tour of the Branch Davidian site Tuesday.

Fergusson told The Houston Post the agency was summoned to help decide how the costs of the cleanup will be divided among the FBI, the Texas Department of Public Safety and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The Mount Carmel compound is where leader David Koresh and more than 80 of his followers died in a fire April 19, culminating a 51-day standoff with federal authorities.

Fergusson said he was unsure when officials would determine who pays for the cleanup or when it would start.

It also was disclosed Tuesday that a quarantine at the site has been trimmed from 77 acres to about five so families may bury Branch Davidians in an existing cemetery. Officials say at least one family has made such a request.

The Texas Health Department declared a quarantine on the entire property May 14, citing open pits of human waste and caches of food with possible vermin contamination.

Fergusson, who oversees the quarantine, said the wrecked site also contains razor-sharp concertina wire, an unsafe well, fuel spilled by federal agents in their operations and jagged metal sticking out of twisted concrete.

Soil testing also has revealed toxic levels of lead leached from the thousands of rounds of ammunition at the site, he said.

Although the quarantined area has been scaled back, the entire property remains under a court-ordered, anti-trespassing injunction.

Brooks to perform 2nd Dallas concert

DALLAS (AP) — Garth Brooks fans who weren't among the 65,000 lucky enough to land tickets to his Sept. 24 show at Texas Stadium now have a second chance.

"For those of you who did not get tickets, please do not buy scalpers' tickets," Brooks pleaded in a prepared statement after the first concert sold out in 92 minutes June 12. "We are going to take care of you."

Brooks kept his word. Tickets to the second concert, scheduled for Sept. 25 at Texas Stadium, go on sale at 8 a.m. Saturday, June 19.

Buyers will be limited to six tickets apiece due to Brooks' concern about scalpers.

The concerts will feature extensive special effects.

Clinton's church defeats SBC's effort to eject it

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Delegates from President Clinton's home church in Arkansas defeated an effort Wednesday to unseat them from the Southern Baptist Convention after their church was accused of failing to take action against the president for his support of gay rights.

A motion to eject Immanuel Baptist Church in Little Rock, Ark., was rejected by the convention's credentials committee, which first investigated the church's position on homosexuality after a complaint from a Florida minister.

The Rev. Rex Horne, pastor of Immanuel, said he was angry and embarrassed after he and nine delegates from the church appeared before the committee to answer charges by the Rev. Bo Hammock, who alleged that Immanuel members "by their silence (are) supporting Bill Clinton's endorsement of the homosexual lifestyle."

The committee dispute came after delegates to the SBC's annual meeting in Houston formally rebuked Clinton in a mildly worded resolution for his support of abortion and gay rights. Following adoption of the resolution, delegates prayed for the president, a fellow Southern Baptist, to change his mind on the issues.

Since the convention opened on Tuesday, the 17,780 delegates have been highly critical of Clinton for his effort to lift the ban on homosexuals in the military. More than half of the 41 resolutions introduced at the annual meeting have dealt with Clinton's positions on homosexuality and abortion.

Efforts to expel Clinton from the denomination were ruled out of order on Tuesday, but Hammock's motion to oust Clinton's church was referred to the credentials committee, which oversees the seating of delegates.

It was the first time the committee investigated a church based on a new constitutional amendment allowing the convention to expel any church supporting homosexuality.

Horne said he was unequivocally opposed to homosexuality and has related his opposition to the president.

Lee Porter, registration secretary of the convention, asked each individual delegate if their church supported homosexuality. All stated their opposition.

Several committee members, including Porter, appeared embarrassed at the allegation and at the inquiry. But convention attorney James Guenther said the committee had no choice but to act on the complaint.

Lee Shepherd of Florida said the denomination was following a wrong path by making moral inquiries of churches because of the actions of members.

Sharp certifies 1994-'95 budget

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller John Sharp has signed off on Texas' $71.2 billion budget to fund government services over the next two years, saying it will balance thanks to lawmakers adopting many of his money-saving ideas.

"We think the Legislature did a remarkable job . . . in producing a budget with no new taxes," Sharp said Wednesday.

The comptroller is required under the state constitution to certify that there is enough revenue to cover state spending under a pay-as-you-go requirement.

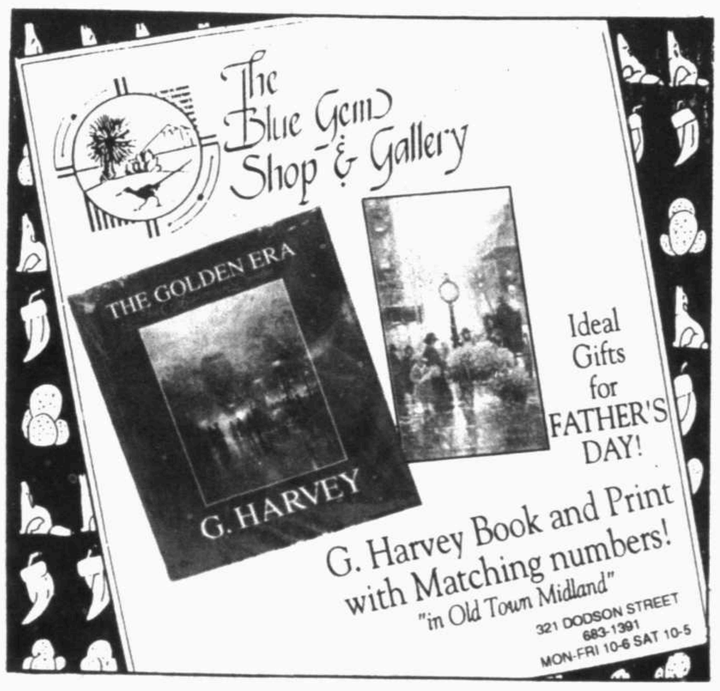

Sharp said "one of the principle reasons" he could certify the 1994-'95 spending plan is that lawmakers adopted about 85 percent of the $4.5 billion in savings recommended by his office after a state government audit.

The budget includes about $1.1 billion in accounting maneuvers that the state has been using for the past 10 years, he said.

State spending also was cut by criminal justice recommendations to lower prison operating costs, improve management and increase federal funding, according to the comptroller's office, as well as proposals to raise child support collections and increase job-training chances for welfare recipients.

More revenue came from a 1 percent fee increase to reinstate suspended driver's licenses, and from charges for providing copies, computer data and mailing lists.

Higher education institutions also must file a plan to cut general revenue spending or increase funds by at least $100 million.

Money woes cast shadow on California

By Jane Gross
N.Y. Times News Service

OAKLAND, Calif. — In years past during budget-making season, Tom Orloff, the chief assistant district attorney here, would amble across the street to the Alameda County administration building and plead, wheedle and threaten until he got enough money for his department to survive.

But this year, Orloff said, "even if we fight and scratch and claw on the county level, we'll still get killed" because of Gov. Pete Wilson's plan to balance the state's $52 billion budget by commandeering $2.6 billion in local property taxes.

Elected leaders in the state's 58 counties are howling in protest, with law enforcement officials, who rely almost entirely on county financing, leading the charge with dire warnings that criminals will go unprosecuted.

Those warnings, and the actual suspension of misdemeanor prosecutions in one cash-starved county for a month, have gotten the attention of California's Republican governor, who dreads a repeat of last year's two-month budget stalemate, which forced the state to issue IOUs and sent Wilson's approval ratings plummeting.

Wilson has already suggested extending a half-cent sales tax, due to expire June 30, for six months, with the revenue earmarked for local law enforcement. He also has called for a special election next fall so that counties can raise their own sales taxes. And he has asked the legislature to give local governments more flexibility

But those changes have yet to satisfy the lawmakers in Sacramento, who on Tuesday missed the constitutional deadline for passing a spending plan for the seventh year in a row.

Child's suicide stuns Florida town

DANIA, Fla. (AP) — Jackie Johnson was a kindergartener with a sun for a smile, until her morning walk to school on Tuesday.

The 6-year-old was on her way to Dania Elementary School with her sister, brother and a cousin when they crossed some railroad tracks.

She fought them off when they told her to get off the tracks as a train approached, telling them she wanted "to become an angel and be with her mother."

At the last minute, she turned her back to the train and closed her eyes. She was thrown 20 feet, her neck broken.

The death was ruled a suicide.

Jackie was living with relatives because her mother, Carla Johnson, has a terminal illness, authorities said. The nature of the illness wasn't disclosed.

The day after Jackie's death, students and school officials at Dania Elementary School struggled to cope. Counselors spent much of Wednesday helping students.

"If my mother was ill, I'd do the same thing," said 11-year-old Josh Coe, who attends the school in this tight-knit community between Miami and Fort Lauderdale.

"I know how she feels. My grandma is ill," he said.

Officials with the Broward County medical examiner's office said they were trying to confirm news reports that Ms. Johnson has AIDS.

Doctors prepare for legal fight against Clinton plan

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association is ready to do battle over federal price controls that doctors said Wednesday would violate their constitutional rights.

"If the physician's ability to care for patients is impaired, then a lawsuit could be contemplated," said Dr. James S. Todd, executive vice president of the AMA.

"On the other hand, we'd much prefer to avoid that sort of confrontational activity and try and reach an agreement" on cost-saving strategies for health services, he said.

Hillary Rodham Clinton, head of the White House task force on health reform, was cordially received after a speech to the AMA earlier this week, but the group has been staking out reform provisions it would fight.

The AMA's 17-member board of trustees said the Fifth Amendment requires prices to be set at a level that permits any enterprise, including a physician's medical practice, to operate successfully.

To do otherwise would be equivalent to confiscating their funds, Todd said.

The AMA hired a Chicago law firm to analyze the constitutional limits of government-imposed medical price controls and to wage a court battle if necessary, said AMA general counsel Kirk Johnson.

"The analysis reviews cases in which federal courts have upheld the constitutionality of price controls, and has concluded that the government does not have unlimited discretion about the levels at which it can set prices," the report said.

Smoking ban stirs worries of violence at post offices

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Asked about a smoking ban at U.S. postal buildings, 14-year employee John Scully digs his emphysema-medicine inhaler from his pocket and says, "I live on this."

The ex-smoker thinks the Postal Service should help others avoid his mistake, while shielding nonsmokers from someone else's wafting smoke.

But others say the restrictions, which went into effect nationwide this week, could aggravate tensions in post offices that have endured sometimes lethal outbursts of violence in the past. The American Postal Workers Union has lodged a grievance.

"Given the tragedies that have occurred in postal facilities ... one would think the Postal Service would be sensitive to issues that could arouse certain individuals," said William Burrus, a leader of the Washington-based union.

■ Judge temporarily blocks abortion law

PIERRE, S.D. — The state's abortion law won't go into effect July 1 as scheduled because of a lawsuit filed by Planned Parenthood and the only doctor who publicly acknowledges performing abortions in South Dakota, a judge ruled Wednesday.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, said the law is unconstitutional because it imposes an undue burden on a woman's right to get an abortion.

The law requires that doctors give women information on medical risks and other factors at least 24 hours before an abortion. It also requires that doctors notify at least one parent 48 hours before performing an abortion on a minor.

A federal judge on Wednesday temporarily blocked the state from enforcing the law until July 10 or until a hearing is held. The hearing would determine whether the law should be suspended until a final court ruling on its constitutionality.

■ Court's ruling excuses bankrupt polluter

SAN FRANCISCO — A polluter that declares bankruptcy can avoid cleanup costs if the government knew of the pollution problem at the time of the bankruptcy filing, a federal appeals court says.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals excused owners of a bankrupt northern California lumber mill, the Jensen Lumber Co., from paying 10 percent or $90,000 of the state's cost of cleaning up a toxic fungicide.

The dispute turned on whether the Jensens' debt to the state arose before their personal bankruptcy filing — in which case the debt was discharged, and the state would get nothing — or afterward, allowing the state to seek full repayment.

The state said the debt didn't arise until money was spent cleaning up the site. Such a standard would contradict the bankruptcy laws' "policy of giving the debtor a fresh start," the court said.

The appeals court, in a 3-0 ruling Tuesday, said a debt arises and is covered by a bankruptcy filing if the debtor is linked to a known release of a dangerous substance and the creditor — the state in this case — has discovered the pollution.

A Los Angelese group has filed a lawsuit against the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The lawsuit charges that FEMA has failed to deliver basic relief benefits in the wake of the riots.

■ Company pays $2.5 million for cleanup

LOS ANGELES — A California company accused of dumping huge amounts of toxic lead near Tijuana paid Mexico $2.5 million for cleanup, medical research and fines.

The money received Tuesday was from a settlement between the Los Angeles County district attorney's office and RSR Corp. and its subsidiary, Quemetco Inc.

The two companies pleaded no contest on June 2 to two counts of illegally transporting hazardous waste.

Senate breaks deadlock over campaign finance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate broke a Republican filibuster Wednesday and virtually assured approval of public funding for some congressional campaigns and voluntary spending limits designed to curb the influence of special-interest money.

The bill would ban contributions by political action committees, the campaign war chests operated by corporations, labor unions and a wide array of issue groups.

Democratic Leader George J. Mitchell said the Senate would vote Thursday on the measure, which even opponents now acknowledged would pass. Once through the Senate, the measure will go to the House.

The breakthrough was a victory for Democrats, who crafted a compromise with the help of seven moderate Republicans. It also was a triumph for President Clinton, who has been urging the Senate to pass the bill.

Clinton called the end of the filibuster — on a 62-37 vote to end debate — "a breakthrough in the fight to give the government back to the American people."

"Make no mistake: This legislation, while it necessarily contains compromises, will change Washington for the better," Clinton said.

"After 10 years of struggle, we have now broken through the roadblock," said Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., the chief sponsor and longtime advocate of campaign finance reform. "I'm optimistic we will be successful in passing this legislation."

But the chief opponent, Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said provisions that would punish candidates who exceed voluntary spending limits were an unconstitutional violation of free speech. He vowed to personally file suit if the bill becomes law.

"I think this is clearly dead on arrival in the courts," McConnell said. He was critical of provisions that would provide public funds to the opponents of candidates who exceeded the voluntary limits. He equated the concept with mandatory spending limits that were banned by the Supreme Court in 1976 as an infringement on free speech.

Most majority Democrats favored a broad public financing provision, coupled with voluntary spending limits, while most Republicans opposed use of government funds for congressional campaigns — calling the proposal a new tax.

Senators were mired in gridlock for three weeks.

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The New York State Health Department said Wednesday that it would investigate an incident in which two New York City emergency medical technicians mistakenly pronounced a Brooklyn woman dead, leaving her without medical help for several hours.

The woman, Nancy Vitale, 40, a parochial-school teacher, was in critical condition Wednesday in the intensive-care unit of Coney Island Hospital, said Ken Kiernan, a hospital spokesman, although he added that she had regained consciousness and was speaking with doctors.

Emergency Medical Service officials cleared the two technicians of any wrongdoing after the Monday incident. They said the technicians had followed state procedures in deciding not to resuscitate Ms. Vitale because they found no vital signs on the woman and saw indications of rigor mortis and the mottling of skin caused by the failure of blood circulation.

Adding to the complexity of the case Wednesday, the Medical Examiner's office appeared to disagree with EMS officials on the conditions the technicians said they used in deciding not to resuscitate the woman.

Ellen Borakove, a spokeswoman for the office, said Dr. Charles Hirsch, the chief medical examiner, wanted to "clarify the record" by noting that rigor mortis is never seen in a living person and is "an irreversible condition."

"I don't know what they saw, but it was not rigor mortis," Ms. Borakove said.

Prostate cancer diagnosis rate hits high mark

N.Y. Times News Service

Prostate cancer is being diagnosed at a higher rate than ever before reported, according to new data from the National Cancer Institute. And as more cancers are diagnosed, record numbers of men are undergoing operations to remove the prostate or are having radiation treatment.

But no evidence exists to show that this aggressive effort to diagnose and treat the cancer has had any effect in improving survival. And most of the increase in diagnosis can be attributed to new, more advanced diagnostic techniques, researchers say.

In fact, they say, what is happening is that the cancer is being caught earlier, at a more treatable stage. The risk rather, is in the treatment. Removal of the prostate not only has a higher death rate than similar surgery, but it can also cause impotence and incontinence in large numbers of patients.

At a meeting held by the cancer institute Tuesday and Wednesday to assess the prostate cancer problem, researchers reported that in 1990, the most recent year for which national data are available, detection of prostate cancer grew by 16 percent over the previous year.

Democrat needles top adviser on health care

■ Stark dismisses Magaziner as 'nut' who sprinkles 'fairy dust' on problems.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Pete Stark dismisses Ira Magaziner, the top White House adviser on health care, as a "nut" who sprinkles "fairy dust" on problems.

Managed competition — a cornerstone of the Clinton administration's developing health care plan — is like a unicorn, Stark says. "A beautiful animal in fairyland, but unseen on earth."

And the White House is full of big-headed geniuses.

"They think they are so bloody smart," complained the 11-term lawmaker from California. "Politically, they're as naive as all get out."

All of Stark's wisecracks and needling and put-downs would be standard fare for a Republican. But Stark's a Democrat. Not just any Democrat, but the chairman of the House Ways and Means health subcommittee, a panel that normally would have substantial jurisdiction over whatever plan Clinton proposes to revamp the nation's health care.

But he's become such a pain to the White House — he recently denounced part of Clinton's plan in advance — that White House advisers are keeping their fingers crossed that House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski steers the bill away from Stark's subcommittee.

A spokesman for Rostenkowski said the Illinois Democrat, who has pledged to do whatever it takes to get Clinton's plan through Congress, will not decide where to assign the bill until after Clinton proposes it.

White House officials declined to return Stark's darts publicly. They attribute them mostly to philosophical differences, since Stark would prefer a government-run system.

Other Clinton loyalists say some Democrats in Congress are so used to throwing bricks at a Republican White House, they have not gotten used to accommodating a president of their own party.

Magaziner said he does not take Stark's belittlements personally.

"We have some differences. ... I think at the end of the day we'll wind up supporting the same bill," Magaziner said.

Many Democratic chairmen in Congress have been better troopers for the president, including House Energy and Commerce Committee Chairman John Dingell of Michigan who also will have a major say in health care.

"I gain nothing by tearing down what the president's trying to do," Dingell said when asked about Stark. "If you ask me what I think chairmen ought to do, I say wait to see the president's plan before picking fights and castigating."

'We have some differences. ... I think at the end of the day we'll wind up supporting the same bill.'

— Ira Magaziner

Some view Stark as a loose cannon. A few weeks ago, he called southern lawmakers "crackers," and in 1990, he had to apologize when he labeled Louis Sullivan, the Bush administration's only black Cabinet officer, a "disgrace to his race."

On health care, Stark advocates a "single payer" plan in which the government would pay all health bills, eliminating private health insurance. But given the minimal political support for such a plan, he says he's open to Clinton's ideas.

He denies he's a troublemaker. "No. I'm a soldier," Stark said.

"But I want a bill that's real. Details, details. Where's the details? I'm saying empirical, absolute, scoreable costs. Not some voluntary mishmash that if it doesn't work, two years from now, we'll think about cost control. That doesn't work. That's like voluntary taxes."

Stark complains that the White House has yet to decide how to pay for the 37 million uninsured

Pepsi faces marketer's nightmare with reports

By Skip Wollenberg
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Pepsi-Cola Co. is going through a marketer's nightmare.

People in at least 20 states have claimed they found syringes and other objects in cans of Pepsi soft drinks. The nation's second-biggest soft drink maker is convinced its packaging system is blameless.

But even if some or all of the reports ultimately are disproven, as federal officials have said usually happens, the incidents have exposed Pepsi's treasured brands to the kind of prolonged attention no marketer wants.

"Everybody who drinks a Pepsi between now and when this thing is resolved will have a negative thought," said Stephen Hoch, a University of Chicago marketing professor.

That is a particularly acute problem in the soft drink business where advertisers dwell so heavily on image, he said.

So what can Pepsi do?

Marketing experts say the company should demonstrate its concern for public safety, treat each complaint seriously, cooperate with appropriate regulators and examine its own operations and publicize its findings.

"The first thing one does is to prove that it couldn't possibly be their fault," said Clive Chajet, chairman of the consulting firm Lippincott & Margulies Inc. "Then they must be aggressive in demonstrating that regardless of whose fault it is, the company will be relentless in solving the problem."

Pepsi has been working with the Food and Drug Administration since last week, when the first tampering claim involving a Diet Pepsi can was made in Tacoma, Wash. By Wednesday afternoon, authorities and media reports said similar complaints had been filed in about half the states. Authorities couldn't quickly determine whether any of the complaints were legitimate.

Pokes ink Bates

DALLAS — Bill Bates, forced to watch most of last year's Dallas Cowboys championship season from the sidelines with a knee injury, has gotten another chance.

The Cowboys signed Bates on Tuesday to a one-year contract that will pay him a base salary of $200,000, with an additional $250,000 possible if he is stays healthy.

"I'm ready to put the pads on and hit somebody," said Bates, about to start his 11th season. "I know I'll be given a chance to win a spot on the roster, and that's all I need."

Bates, 32, will compete for a spot as a linebacker in the Cowboys' third-down defense and as a member of the special teams.

Bates' contract leaves running backs Emmitt Smith and Daryl Johnston and safety Ray Horton as the team's last unsigned veterans.

Taylor signs

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Lawrence Taylor finally signed his new contract with the New York Giants on Wednesday, two months after agreeing to a two-year deal worth $5.05 million.

The timing couldn't have been better with Giants coach Dan Reeves upset that the 10-time All-Pro linebacker failed to show up at this week's three-day minicamp.

The 34-year-old Taylor, recovering from surgery to his right Achilles' tendon, did not work out Wednesday, but met with Reeves for 15 minutes.

"Both came away from the meeting with a clearer understanding of where they were coming from," said Giants spokesman Pat Hanlon, adding that Reeves was unaware of Taylor's practice of missing minicamps.

Taylor's deal, which puts him among the highest paid linebackers in the NFL, calls for a $550,000 reporting bonus with yearly salaries of $2.25 million in 1993 and '94. Taylor made $1.45 million last season.

One month before he injured his tendon Nov. 8 against Green Bay, Taylor announced he would retire after the 1992 season. He changed his mind after the injury.

Taylor still led the Giants' defense last season with five sacks to boost his all-time league-leading total to 136.5. Taylor had 47 tackles last season.

Sox on shelf

OAKLAND, Calif. — Kirk McCaskill, troubled by elbow pain in his throwing arm, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Wednesday by the Chicago White Sox.

The White Sox purchased the contract of right-handed pitcher Scott Ruffcorn from Class AA Birmingham to fill the roster spot.

Oilers sign Small

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers have agreed to terms with Jessie Small, an outside linebacker with the Phoenix Cardinals, club officials say.

The Oilers released no contract terms Wednesday in making the announcement.

Small, 26, a free agent, was with the Philadelphia Eagles from 1989 to 1991, then went to the Cardinals last year.

Bulls turn up the heat

■ Michael Jordan drives 55 points down the throats of Phoenix as Chicago takes a commanding 3-1 lead in the series.

By Bill Barnard
AP Basketball Writer

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls finally found the way to win on their own home floor against the Phoenix Suns.

After five losses by the home team in five meetings between the Suns and Chicago this season, Jordan took the ball inside and scored 55 points Wednesday night, leading the Bulls to a 111-105 victory and a 3-1 lead in the NBA Finals.

The Bulls, whose only loss in the series was in triple-overtime on Sunday night, are now within one victory of a third straight title.

"I'm very disappointed with the way I played the last game," Jordan said. "I wanted to do my part in this game. I was a little nervous at the beginning of the game."

Jordan, criticized for primarily shooting jump shots despite 43 points in Game 3, made 21 of 37 shots, with 12 of those baskets coming inside, including a decisive three-point play with 13 seconds left.

Jordan's aggressiveness also resulted in 18 free throws, 12 more than he had in the triple-overtime defeat.

Charles Barkley led the Suns with 32 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists, showing few ill effects from an injured right elbow. Horace Grant added 17 points and 16 rebounds for the Bulls, and six of his seven baskets were on offensive rebounds or dunks.

Jordan, the fifth player to score 50 in the finals and the first since Jerry West in 1969, now is averaging 43.0 in the series. The NBA Finals record is 40.8 by Rick Barry for San Francisco in 1967.

Chicago, which shot just 60 percent (20 of 33) from the foul line, led by 13 late in the third quarter, but the resilient Suns closed to 86-85 in the second minute of the fourth period. Jordan's jumper and layup started and finished a 9-4 burst that put the Bulls ahead 95-89 with 6:49 left.

Phoenix again bounced back, and a free throw by Kevin Johnson made it 97-94 with 4:22 to go. Jordan's three-point play, on another drive to the basket, and B.J. Armstrong's jumper made it 102-94.

Johnson, who scored 19 points, hit two more baskets to pull the Suns within four with 2:41 left. Grant's fourth basket of the game off an offensive rebound gave the Bulls a 106-100 lead at the 1:47 mark, but a rebound basket and dunk by Barkley made it a two-point game with 1:01 left.

A steal by Barkley was followed by a steal by Armstrong with 33 seconds left before Jordan's final drive with 13 seconds left resulted in a three-point play and a 109-104 advantage with 13 seconds remaining.

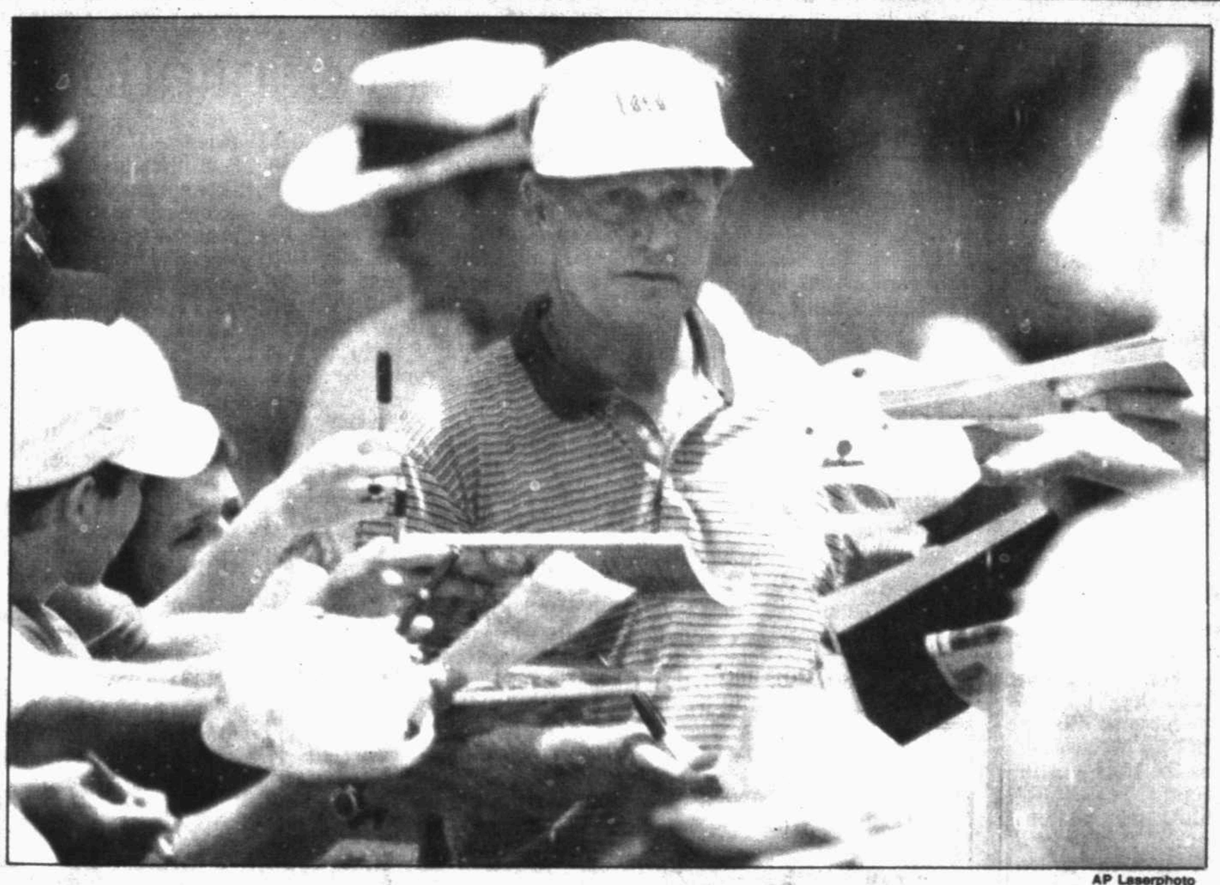

Armstrong's two free throws with 7.2 seconds left sealed the outcome.

Open season for Bear

■ Jack Nicklaus hopes for a threepeat as the U.S. Open makes its third appearance at Baltusrol, but Nick Faldo is cocked for bear to win his first U.S. Open which begins today.

By Bob Green
AP Golf Writer

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. — Jack Nicklaus would like nothing better than to win his fifth U.S. Open at the course he has captured two previously, but Nick Faldo wants to win the U.S. Open for personal reasons. It would put him among the elite in the game's history.

But it would also have an international impact. For the first time, all the world's major golf titles — the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA — would be held by non-Americans.

Faldo, of England, started the run in July when he won the British Open. Nick Price of Zimbabwe won the PGA in August and Bernhard Langer of Germany caputured the Masters in April.

U.S. Open: First Round Coverage, 9:30 a.m., ESPN.

All three will be among the favorites when play starts this morning at Baltusrol Golf Club.

And, with Baltusrol presenting a more forgiving, familiar appearance than most U.S. Open courses, the foreign field should have a better chance than usual of breaking through in the American championship, where only three foreign players have won since 1927.

"It's very much like a British Open course," Tom Watson said, adding that should aid the Europeans, "even favor them."

Faldo stopped well short of that, but admitted "at least it gives us a chance.

"I really see no reason we shouldn't do well," he said.

Faldo, three times a British Open winner and twice the Masters champion, knows that winning the Open would be a huge step toward being regarded among golf's all-time greats.

Cowboys could deal Johnston

By Mike Fisher
N.Y. Times News Service

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys have pulled their qualifying offer — and maybe the rug — out from under Daryl Johnston.

The new collective bargaining agreement gave Dallas the right, as of Tuesday, to yank its mandatory one-year proposals to unsigned running backs Emmitt Smith and Johnston.

The moves could be perceived as "playing hardball," though the club might argue that they serve as protection against a player holding out until late in the year, then reporting to collect his one-year salary before departing for free agency.

"I don't think of it as a way to play hardball," said Johnston's agent, John Maloney. "This doesn't serve as a threat, veiled or otherwise. In fact, the Cowboys have made it clear to me that something around that one-year, $700,000 deal is going to be there. They've never talked less than that amount."

But the point is, the Cowboys now have the right to talk about paying Johnston only $343,750 — the 10-percent increase over his 1992 wage of $312,500 that is in accordance with the rules. And that fact could serve as an obstacle, considering that Johnston's request is for a three-year, $3.6 million deal ($600,000 in bonuses and $900,000 in salary for 1993, $1 million in '94 and $1.1 million in '95.) "There could be a psychological factor, in that a team could feel it had established a lower starting point (the $343,750 figure) that it was at before ($700,000)," Maloney said. "But I trust the owner (Jerry Jones) at his word." A source said team vice president Stephen Jones is following up repeated conversations with Maloney this week with a three-year counterproposal that is well above the $343,750-a-year figure. Any backpedaling won't have much impact on negotiations with Smith; the one-year, $800,000 qualifying offer made to him simply was for the purpose of retaining his rights. And Dallas since has presented a four-year, $9 million offer.

But the move could affect Johnston's negotiations. Tuesday was the deadline for players to accept the qualifying offer or risk losing it. Considering the present million-dollar market for fullbacks, Johnston thought it worth the risk.

"Taking that one-year deal would have made me a free agent next offseason," Johnston said.

Stephen Jones would not confirm that the club had used the ploy on either Johnston or Smith.

"We're still talking with both, and we plan to keep all talks on a friendly basis," Jones said.

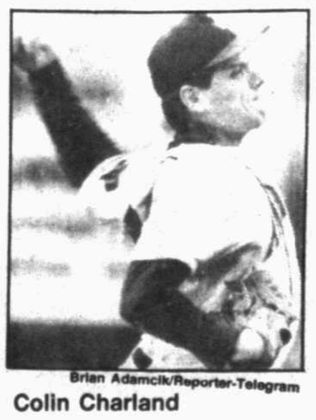

Robinson has surgery

Robinson was released after the surgery and was expected to be on crutches about two days before resuming normal activities and conditioning.

Midland wins, but El Paso wins title

El Paso parked its car in the Texas League West Division's first half garage at Angels Stadium Wednesday night — even though it was driving in reverse gear.

The Midland Angels belted the Diablos 8-3, but the first half crown belongs to El Paso by virtue of Wichita's 2-1 win over San Antonio. The Diablos have backed into the title even though they have lost three of four games to Midland in the current six-game series.

"Obviously, this isn't the way you want to win the first half, but we aren't going to throw (the title) back," said El Paso manager Tim Ireland, who saw his Stockton team win both halves last year. "These guys have played hard in the first half and this division is evenly matched.

"The second half will be hard to win since we won the first half. That's a tough thing to do, but we did it at Stockton last year. You really have to get it in gear in the second half and that's our goal.

"It's more fun to win the title with a victory, but sometimes that's baseball. Those other victories we had in the first half also count."

But this night belonged to the Angels, who put all the phases of the game together behind starting newcomer Colin Charland, who won his second outing in a row since joining Florida Marlins' Dave Magadan (18) is safe at second on an attempted double play by Chicago's Ryan Sandberg. The Cubs went on to defeat Florida 6-4, the first time Florida has been swept in a series.

Portugal homers as Astros halt losing skid

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Scott Servais hit a homer and an RBI single, and Mark Portugal homered and won his fourth straight game as Houston snapped a five-game losing streak by beating San Diego 5-4 Wednesday night.

Portugal (5-2) went 6 2-3 innings and gave up two runs on five hits. He struck out four and walked two. Al Osuna, the fourth Hoston pitcher, got the final two outs for his first save.

Fred McGriff had a two-run homer and three RBIs for San Diego.

Doug Brocail (1-2) allowed five runs on 10 hits while striking out five and walking none in 6 1-3 innings.

The Astros moved ahead 5-2 in the seventh when Casey Candaele, pinch-hitting for Portugal, led off with a double. Candaele scored on a single by Andujar Cedeno, who took second on the throw to the plate and third when center fielder Derek Bell erred on it. Cedeno scored when Brocail balked.

Cardinals 3, Pirates 2

ST. LOUIS — Hot-hitting Bernard Gilkey had three hits and an RBI and Joe Magrane won his third straight start as St. Louis beat Pittsburgh 3-2 Wednesday, sending the Pirates to its seventh straight loss.

Gilkey singled twice, doubled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth off Zane Smith (0-1) and stole a base. He tied his career-high with four RBIs on Tuesday night and was 6 for 12 in the three-game series.

Magrane (5-6) allowed five hits in six innings, struck out two, walked two and scored the run that broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth after doubling with two outs for his first hit in 24 at-bats.

Rockies 7, Dodgers 6

DENVER — Charlie Hayes and Daryl Boston hit solo home runs and Colorado held off Los Angeles 7-6 Wednesday night for its first victory in six games against the Dodgers.

Cory Snyder's three-run homer off Keith Shepherd capped a four-run rally in the ninth for the Dodgers.

Cubs 6, Marlins 4

CHICAGO — Ryne Sandberg drove in three runs and reliever Jim Bullinger won for the first time since last Aug. 30 as Chicago beat Florida 6-4 Wednesday, handing the Marlins its first-ever sweep.

■ NL Roundup

Sandberg's sixth inning double off Luis Aquino (4-4) broke a 2-2 deadlock and drove in Jose Vizcaino, who also scored on Sandberg's RBI single in the fourth. Sandberg added an RBI groundout in the seventh, making the score 6-3.

Bullinger (1-0), one of three Class AAA pitchers called up Tuesday to replace three injured starters, relieved Jose Bautista in the sixth. He went 1 1-3 innings, allowing no hits and two walks before being relieved by Paul Assenmacher.

Randy Myers pitched the ninth for his major league-leading 21st save.

Giants 6, Reds 5

CINCINNATI — Barry Bonds hit a two-out, game-tying homer in the ninth inning off Rob Dibble, and Will Clark singled home the go-ahead run in the 10th as San Francisco beat Cincinnati 6-5.

The Giants hit four solo homers, including Bonds' game-tying 19th homer off Dibble, who has blown saves in his last two appearances. The other three homers came off starter Jose Rijo — two by Dave Martinez and one by Matt Williams, who remains tied with Bonds for the NL lead with 19.

Braves 5, Mets 2

ATLANTA — Jeff Blauser's two-run homer keyed a four-run first inning, and Greg Maddux pitched a three-hitter as Atlanta beat New York 5-2 Wednesday night, handing the Mets its 11th loss in 13 games.

Blauser's fifth homer came on his first pitch from Pete Schourek after Otis Nixon opened the game with a walk. It was Nixon's first plate appearance and start since June 3.

Schourek (2-9) took his sixth loss in a row. He issued a walk and five hits before being chased with one out in the first inning.

Expos 4, Phillies 3

MONTREAL — Mike Lansing drove home the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the 10th inning for Montreal.

The Phillies tied the game 3-3 in the ninth on Lenny Dykstra's two-out solo homer.

Mel Rojas (2-5), who allowed Dykstra's homer, got the victory with three innings of relief.

Sean Berry homered and drove in two runs for the Expos.

Olerud extends streak to 21 games in win

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — John Olerud's sacrifice fly broke a scoreless tie in the ninth and Jack Morris pitched a five-hit shutout as Toronto beat Minnesota 4-0 Wednesday.

Morris (4-7), who entered the game with a 9.91 ERA and hadn't pitched into the eighth inning all year, had a season-high seven strikeouts and didn't walk a batter. He allowed only one runner past second base in his first shutout since June 11, 1992.

Olerud, who singled in the fourth to stretch his hitting streak to 21 games, drove in Devon White, who opened the ninth with a single off Scott Erickson (3-7). White had moved to second on Luis Sojo's sacrifice and went to third on Paul Molitor's hard single to center.

After Olerud drove in the first run, Erickson hit Joe Carter to load the bases. Tony Fernandez's single scored Molitor before Ed Sprague drove in two more runs with a single.

Erickson and Morris, two pitchers who were instrumental to the Twins' 1991 World Series championship, matched zeroes through the first eight innings.

Brewers 7, Orioles 2

MILWAUKEE — Greg Vaughn had three hits and two RBIs Wednesday as Milwaukee pounded Baltimore ace Mike Mussina for the second time this season, beating the Orioles 7-2 Wednesday.

Vaughn had run-scoring doubles in the first and seventh innings, giving him 12 RBIs in the last six games.

Mussina (9-3) hadn't lost in four games since giving up seven runs to the Brewers in three innings on May 21. On Wednesday, he was roughed up for four hits and three runs in the first inning, all with two outs.

Jamie Navarro (5-3) lasted only five-plus innings, giving up just three hits but walking six in raising his lifetime record against Baltimore to 9-1.

The loss was only the second for the Orioles in their last 14 games.

Darryl Hamilton and Vaughn hit back-to-back doubles for the first Milwaukee run. Kevin Reimer then walked and Robin Yount and B.J. Surhoff followed with run-scoring singles to make it 3-0.

Baltimore cut the lead to 3-2 in the fifth when Navarro walked the bases loaded and gave up a two-run double to Brady Anderson. The Brewers averted a big inning when Jeff Tackett was thrown out at the plate on a bouncer to first and Cal Ripken hit into a double play.

Mussina was knocked out in the seventh when John Jaha and Tom Lampkin singled, Billy Spiers hit a two-out RBI single and Hamilton hit a two-run double. Vaughn greeted reliever Mark Williamson with an RBI double for the seventh run.

Mussina gave up 11 hits, struck out six and walked one.

■ AL Roundup

White Sox 4, Athletics 0

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jack McDowell threw a three-hitter to become the major league's first 10-game winner, leading Chicago to its second straight shutout of Oakland.

McDowell (10-4) gave up two singles to Rickey Henderson and a two-out double in the eighth to Craig Paquette. He walked two and struck out a season-high eight in pitching his second shutout and fifth complete game of the season.

Henderson broke baseball's all-time stolen base record, stealing second after singling in his first at bat. It gave him 1,066 career stolen bases, one more than Yutaka Fukumoto had from 1970-88 in the Japanese League.

Ron Darling (1-4) fell behind in the first inning when the White Sox loaded the bases with one out and George Bell hit a sacrifice fly. The White Sox added three runs in the seventh on Ozzie Guillen's RBI single and Frank Thomas' two-run double.

Indians 8, Tigers 2

DETROIT — Paul Sorrento's two-run homer keyed a six-run third inning and Cleveland beat Detroit 8-2 Wednesday night, ending a three-game losing streak.

The Indians are only 10-26 on the road. Detroit lost for just the second time in nine games.

Tom Kramer (2-2) held the Tigers, who had homered six times in the previous two days, to two runs on five hits in six innings. Jeremy Hernandez took over to start the seventh and earned his first save.

Bill Gullickson (4-3), seeking his third straight win and the 150th of his career, was in trouble from the very start. He gave up a leadoff double to Kenny Lofton, who scored on a double by Carlos Baerga.

Gullickson lasted only 2 1-3 innings, giving up five runs on seven hits.

Red Sox 7, Yankees 1

NEW YORK — Mike Greenwell hit a three-run homer in the first inning and John Dopson and Greg Harris combined on a three-hitter as Boston beat New York 7-1 Wednesday night.

Boston won for just the second time in 11 games. The Yankees had won five of six.

Greenwell's third homer of the season followed singles by Billy Hatcher and Ivan Calderon off Melido Perez (4-6).

Dopson (4-5) gave up three hits, struck out six and walked two in seven innings. The only run he allowed came in the first inning when he walked leadoff batter Bernie Williams, who later scored on Kevin Maas' single.

Boston left the bases loaded in each of the first two innings. The Red Sox managed to score once in the second when Calderon doubled, continued to third when Williams bobbled the ball in center and scored on a balk by Perez.

ANGELS: Charland continues hot comeback

(From 1C)

Angels after being released by the Cleveland organization.

Charland has now given up only two earned runs in 14 innings of work, both coming from the Diablos Wednesday. But Charland was in command and had some great defensive work behind him.

"I feel good about the way I'm throwing right now, but more than that, I feel fortunate just to have a job," Charland said. "A lot of guys are looking for a job and I just spent three days at home before signing again with the Angels.

"I had two arm surgeries while with the Indians and I didn't show them a lot. It was a situation where they didn't think I could help their big club and I understand that. It was a business decision."

Charland was helped a great deal by the Midland defense with five great plays behind him, including three at the hot corner by Mark Brakebill, one at shortstop by Brian Grebeck and another over the shoulder stab by right fielder Orlando Palmeiro. Midland catcher Jorge Fabregas also nailed three would be base stealers.

"It's nice to know you can go out and pitch your game and know that you don't have to do everything yourself," Charland said. "There were some great plays behind me."

The Midland offense, too, showed spunk with 12 hits, including Jeff Kipila's three-run homer in the seventh that broke a tight game wide open. Leadoff hitter John Jackson had four hits in five trips, knocked in a run and scored twice.

"Hitting leadoff, the main thing is to get on base any way you can. It doesn't matter how," Jackson said. "A lot of good things happen when the leadoff man does that. It doesn't help that much if you don't get on base and a guy like Kipila comes up and hits a solo homer. You have a couple of guys on and it makes a big difference."

The first half race may be over by the numbers, but there are still two games left before the fresh start. And that won't be so fresh for these two clubs since they square off again for six more to open the second half in El Paso. This is a nightmare.

"The scheduling is crazy," Jackson said. "It's like playing 12 games with your brother. Sooner or later you're going to get on each other's nerves. But this is the way it is and we know what we have to do. It's a shame that we got off to such a slow start at the beginning of the season because we've been playing pretty good ball. We've turned the corner."

U.S. Open

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Hole-by-hole description of the Baltusrol Golf Club lower course, site of the 93rd U.S. Open Championship, June 17-20:

No. 1, 470 yards, par 4:
No. 2, 381 yards, par 4
No. 3, 466 yards, par 4:
A new tee has built since the 1980 Open, extending the distance on this downhill dogleg left 24 yards. Trees line the fairway leading to a large moderately contoured green.
No. 4, 162 or 194, par 3:
Baltusrol's signature hole, overlooked by clubhouse patio. Alternate tees will be used hitting to two-tier green fronted by pond and framed by bunkers at the rear.
No. 5, 413 yards, par 4:
Straightaway. Bunkers line fairway. An uphill second shot to an elevated green that is sloped right to left and back to front.
No. 6, 470 yards, par 4:
Blind tee shot to a crowned fairway. Greenside bunkers flank the lower course's flattest and largest green.
No. 7, 470 yards, par 4:
A new bunker has been added at the corner of this dogleg right, requiring some 275 yards from the tee. Green is extremely wide, shallow and sloped.
No. 8, 374 yards, par 4:,
New fairway bunkers on this slight dogleg right. Green is small and well bunkered.
No. 9, 205 yards, par 3:
Another new tee, to the right of the original. Small green is virtually surrounded by bunkers.
No. 10, 454 yards, par 4:
Overhanging tree branches guard approach to green, so tee shot should be directed to left side of fairway. Green is well protected with some difficult undulations.
No. 11, 428 yards, par 4:
Dogleg left. Miss the corner and there is thick rough and dense woods. Large and undulating green.
No. 12, 193 yards, par 3:
Slightly downhill shot to an unprotected green.
No. 13, 401 yards, par 4:
Dogleg left requires a tee shot to carry a creek that crosses the fairway. The second shot is into a large, unguarded green.
No. 14, 415 yards, par 4:
Trees line the left side, which might cause some players to use irons off the tee. Large green is unprotected except for a new greenside bunker on the left.
No. 15, 430 yards, par 4:
Tee shot out of chute. Second shot is uphill to an average-size green that slopes from right to left and back to front.
No. 16, 180 or 216 yards, par 3:
Alternating tees will be used from this elevated tee. The green is fronted by bunkers.
No. 17, 630 yards, par 5:
The first par 5. The USGA says it believes this is longest hole in U.S. Open history. Cross bunkers 400 yards out. Uphill approach to well bunkered green.
No. 18, 542 yards, par 5:
Dogleg left which can be reached in two. First shot is straightaway. The second crosses a creek and a pond about 350 yards out and heads toward an elevated green guarded by a deep front bunker. Jack Nicklaus and Isao Aoki,each birdied the final two holes in their final-round showdown in the 1980 Open, which was won by the Golden Bear. Both players broke the Open record.

Police arrest Sheffield

HOUSTON (AP) — San Diego Padres third baseman Gary Sheffield was arrested early Wednesday after arguing with a Houston police officer at an all-night restaurant.

Sheffield was charged with resisting arrest after the argument about 3 a.m. at an International House of Pancakes restaurant near the Astrodome, said police Sgt. Mike Lewellen. He was being held without bond.

Police officer Michael Shiver, 34, was taken to St. Joseph Hospital after the scuffle outside the restaurant, police spokesman Rick Hartley said.

Shiver was treated for a strained left shoulder and release, hospital spokesman Rob Cahill said.

Christopher Tritico, a Houston attorney hired to represent Sheffield, said he expected the player to be out of jail before the afternoon.

"We're going to get him bonded out as soon as we can," Tritico said. "I imagine he is going to play (tonight) whether he got any sleep or not."

Tritico said he had spoken with Sheffield only long enough "to tell him to keep his mouth shut."

He said Sheffield was not injured as far as he knew.

Hartley said Sheffield could be charged with assaulting an officer once a report is filed on the altercation. He said he had no further information because the arrest report hadn't been filed by Shiver.

"There was a verbal exchange, an altercation afterward and the officer did arrest Gary Sheffield," Hartley said.

Demetra Arceneaux, a friend who was sitting at the table with Sheffield, said the altercation started when Sheffield pushed a restaurant booth into an officer sitting behind him and the two argued.

THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You can really turn things around if you want to. Be willing to make certain sacrifices in order to salvage an important relationship. A larger paycheck, not the lottery or risky investments, is the answer to a money shortage. Think big at work and your dreams will come true! Learning new skills this fall will bring a big payoff in 1994. You have the right stuff to handle increased responsibilities. An emotional love relationship blossoms next spring.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Joe Piscopo, actor Mark Linn-Baker, songwriter Barry Manilow, baseball's Dave Concepcion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are in a better position to assess a financial situation today. Postpone signing a legal document. Your positive approach is the key to your continued success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your love life improves. Delightful new friends enter your life when you expand your social activities. Follow your intuition when cementing a business deal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do not let others persuade you to dip into your financial reserves. "Doing your own thing" now could boomerang. Putting loved ones' needs ahead of your own will boost domestic harmony.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Partnership ventures are starred today. Your earnings increase when you organize your financial affairs along new lines. Heed that strong inner voice. Cut negative ties.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): VIPs see the value of your methods. Look forward to taking on a large and important project! Physical fitness activity has you feeling good about yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A great day to approach higher-ups. You can afford to take the lead. Letters and telephone calls help promote a pet project. Keep your private life and business affairs completely separate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Look out for someone who challenges your expertise or authority. You need to stay calm. Limit your personal spending. Once you get better organized, things will go more smoothly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A reorganization works to your advantage. Careful money management will increase your cash flow. Major changes at your workplace make you feel more confident about the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A forgiving attitude will help you and your partner draw closer together. Good luck accompanies you when you travel. Many clever ideas pop into your mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In the office or in the field, the numbers begin to add up now. Think big and you will succeed beyond your wildest expectations. Share your good fortune with the deserving.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Words said, read or written this morning will step up career progress. You could unearth a real bargain. Time may be of the essence — act immediately. Romance may be hiding in the wings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day for paying what you owe, collecting what is due you, and making plans for the future. A loving, nurturing attitude will enhance a close relationship.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have an ear for languages and love to read. They will use their highly inventive minds to get what they want in both business and their personal lives. Detail work and repetitive chores can literally give these highly impatient Geminis a headache. They thrive on change and long to travel. Their clever, innovative ideas will never cease to amaze others. Somewhat fickle in romance, they should postpone marriage until their 30s.

The more tricks that have been played, the more everyone should know about the lie of the cards. Therefore, if you want to put anyone to a guess, whether you are the declarer or one of the defenders, the earlier you do so the more likely you are to succeed. There's a subtle variation of that theme at the core of today's hand.

The auction was straightforward. North's three clubs was a probe for a 4-4 spade fit, but when South denied a major, North settled for game in no trump.

West's heart opening lead struck declarer's only weak spot. South could count eight fast winners, so the contract hinged on a finesse in one of the black suits. How would you go about the play and which finesse should you take?

One possible line is to run your diamond winners and hope a defender makes a revealing discard. Over the years, however, we have learned not to put too much faith in opponents' signals in these situations. All you are likely to achieve is to give the opponents a count of your winners, making the defense easier.

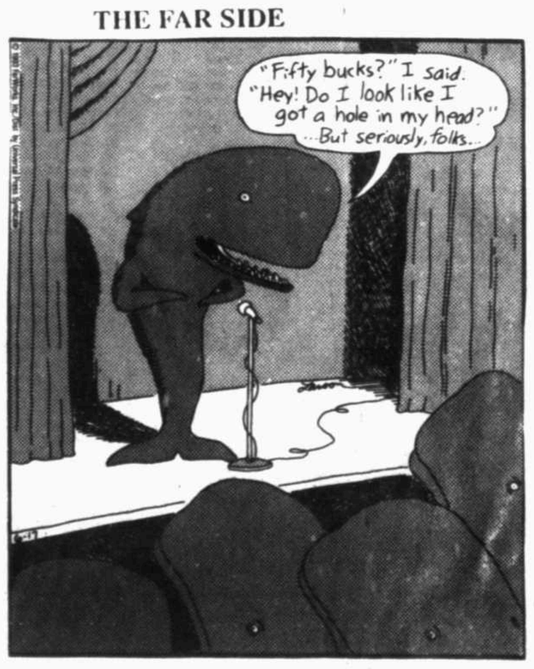

We prefer making a defender guess at trick two. After winning the ace of hearts, we would lead the queen of spades immediately. It would take a brave West to play low in tempo when holding the king and looking at the ace-jack in dummy, so if West does not cover, we would rise with the ace and play East for the king of clubs. A successful finesse in that suit delivers the fulfilling trick.

Marla Maples wans to drop charges against ex-publicist

NEW YORK — Marla Maples is willing to forgive her former publicist for allegedly stealing her shoes and boots, but the district attorney seems to have dug in his heels on a gun charge.

Maples

Donald Trump's girlfriend signed an affidavit Tuesday saying she doesn't want to see Chuck Jones prosecuted, citing their six-year association, said his lawyer, Sal Alosco.

Police arrested Jones last year after he was videotaped taking high heels and clothing from Maples' bedroom. He was charged with burglary and three other charges, including a misdemeanor stemming from an unlicensed, semiautomatic handgun found in his safe.

The Manhattan district attorney's office likely will drop most of the charges if Maples doesn't want to press them. But prosecutors have refused to drop the misdemeanor, which doesn't relate directly to the Maples case.

The misdemeanor carries a maximum penalty of up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Dan Aykroyd was filming "My Girl II" when his second daughter made her debut.

Belle Kingston Aykroyd was born June 9 at Saint Johns Hospital and Health Center. She weighed 8 pounds, 5 ounces.

"They are absolutely thrilled with their beautiful and healthy new arrival," publicist Susan Patricola said Tuesday.

Aykroyd and his actress wife, Donna Dixon, have a 3-year-old daughter, Danielle.

OMAHA, Neb. — General admission tickets for Mother Teresa's speech July 25 went fast at $3.50 a pop. But people who really want to see her may still get a chance.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner is addressing a conference sponsored by the Pope Paul VI Institute. The institute's director, Dr. Thomas W. Hilgers, general admission seats are sold out, but more will be available if any conference seats are unsold by July 19.

Hilgers said he expects 1,500 to 2,000 people to hear Mother Teresa's address.

In an unusual Father's Day celebration, some 150 people, including several ambassadors, have been invited to spend this Sunday at a barbecue in the backyard of Zbigniew and Muska Brzezinski in McLean, Va.

The party will benefit Seeds of Peace, a program that will send about 60 children, ages 11 to 14, from Israel, the West Bank, Egypt and Morocco — and, the organizers hope, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon — to a camp in Maine at the end of the summer.

"We want to send a message that since Israel and the Arab governments are negotiating at the peace table, now is the time that they should allow their own people to begin interacting with each other," said John Wallach, president of Seeds of Peace.

The program, which includes two and a half weeks at Camp Powhatan in Oxford, Me., and trips to Washington and New York, was the idea of Wallach, a co-author of three books on the Middle East.

He assembled a board that includes Brzezinski; Marian Wright Edelman, president of the Children's Defense Fund; Dr. Clovis Maksoud, former representative of the Arab League to the United Nations; and the Very Rev. James Parks Morton, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

Brzezinski sat through many a meeting between Israelis and Arabs as national security adviser in the Carter administration. Recalling his participation in the 1978 Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt, he said Tuesday: "I want to help create a long-term foundation for Israeli-Palestinian reconciliation. The best way is to make an investment in the children who will live in that region many decades after we are gone."

LONDON — Queen Mother Elizabeth, suffering from mild flu, canceled plans to attend the Royal Ascot races, Buckingham Palace said Wednesday.

Queen Mother

The 92-year-old mother of Queen Elizabeth II also missed Tuesday's race day in the four-day meeting, one of her favorite sporting events.

"It is a touch of mild flu," a palace spokesman said. "She has seen the doctor today.

"She will not be attending Ascot at all this week but she hopes to be carrying out an engagement she has next week," he said anonymously, in keeping with British custom.

The Queen Mother, widow of King George VI, was hospitalized last month after surgery to remove a piece of fish that caught in her throat.

At Ascot, thousands of racegoers found themselves drenched in an almost continuous downpour. The traditional champagne picnics in parking lots were washed out as bettors huddled under umbrellas and packed Ascot's many bars.

OPEN: Faldo shoots for his first U.S. Open title

(From 1C)

"It's a very important tournament to me," he said. "I want to win all four of the majors and this is the next biggie."

Faldo, who has finished second, third and fourth in the U.S. Open since 1988, is at his best in golf's Big Four tournaments and is unquestioned as the top player in the world.

He may be slightly off his best game at the moment, however, and said his chances will depend largely on getting away to a fast start.

But that will be difficult on a course that features fairways 28-35 yards wide, 5-inch rough and firm, fast greens.

The rough, however, "is not as thick and lush as we'd like it because of the lack of rain," David Eger of the sponsoring U.S. Golf Association said.

"The lightest rough I've seen in an Open — ever," defending champion Tom Kite said. That, however, benefits no particular category of player, he said.

"I don't think it particularly favors a British player, or an American or a Texan," Kite said.

But it's certainly different from the course on which Jack Nicklaus set consecutive U.S. Open scoring records the last two times the event was held here, in 1967 and 1980.

With the extension of several tees, the course now plays from 7,152 to 7,084 yards. Several bunkers have been added to cope with the greater length of today's players.

But the lack of a collar of rough around the greens represents the major change from the conditions usually found on U.S. Open courses, Masters champion Bernhard Langer of Germany said.

"It is not a typical U.S. Open course," he said.

Faldo agreed. But that doesn't make it all that much easier.

"There is deep rough and narrow fairways. You must drive the ball in the fairway. You must hit your irons well. With the greens hard, fast, with slopes that can give you eight feet of break on a 15-footer, you must putt well," he said.

"We don't see greens like this in Europe. I think the American players spend a lot more time on greens like this than we do.

"I don't think you'll see many low scores. It's going to be a matter of just plugging along."

Greg Norman of Australia and Vijay Singh of Fiji, a winner a week ago on the American tour, also represent major threats.

Kite, 43, is one of the key figures on the front line of the American defense.

He admitted, however, that he is "not 100 percent" recovered from a back injury that forced him out of action for almost a month following the Masters.

Prices rebound

Energy futures prices turned higher on the New York Mercantile Exchange, responding to industry data showing a decline in crude oil stocks that was greater than expected.

West Texas Intermediate advanced 26 cents to $18.84 per barrel.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $17.25 per barrel.

The American Petroleum Institute in its weekly report said oil stocks declined by 6.77 million barrels. The figures also showed a big drop in gasoline stocks, contrary to the buildup that the market had expected.

Natural gas for July delivery rose 4.1 cents to $2.193 per thousand cubic feet.

New Mexico commissioner

Ray Powell, newly appointed Commissioner of Public Lands for the State of New Mexico, will be honored in Roswell Monday at a reception hosted by the Roswell Landmen's Association.

Powell was appointed by Governor Bruce King to replace Jim Baca, who left the post to become the new Director of the Bureau of Land Management in Washington D.C.

The reception will be from 5:30-7:00 p.m. at the Roswell Inn in Roswell, and will be open to the public. Those interested in attending may contact Shari Darr with Harvey E. Yates Co. at (505) 623-6601.

Dollar soars

NEW YORK — The dollar rallied to a three-month high against the German mark Wednesday as continued expectations for a cut in German interest rates propelled the U.S. currency above key resistance levels.

The gains spilled over into other currencies, giving the dollar a broad-based lift. However, several participants cautioned that the upward move seemed to be mainly driven by speculators and technical factors and that the market could face a correction in the near term.

It closed at 1.6570 marks, up more than a pfennig from late Tuesday's 1.6460 marks. The last time the dollar closed this high in New York was on March 17, when it finished at 1.6620 marks.

In New York, the dollar was quoted at 106.45 yen, up from late Tuesday's 105.75 yen.

In New York, the pound fell to $1.5050 from late Tuesday's $1.5155.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Tuesday, included: 1.4850 Swiss francs, up from 1.4715; 5.5710 French francs, up from 5.5395; 1,507.00 Italian lire, up from 1,496.00; and 1.2787 Canadian dollars, down from 1.2801.

Stocks rally

NEW YORK — Technical factors set off a late rally on Wall Street Wednesday, turning around a soft reaction to an unexpected report on housing starts.

In the last two hours of trading, the market dipped and then rallied. Analysts attributed the moves in part to Friday's quarterly expiration of stock-index futures, stock-index options and options on individual stocks.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 19.65 points to 3,511.65.

Advancing issues narrowly outnumbered advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Nasdaq composite index fell 1.09 to 696.25. The NYSE's composite index rose 0.68 to 246.60, while at the American Stock Exchange the market value index rose 0.20 to 435.67.

Mesa to defer $150 million in interest

■ Natural-gas company reaches preliminary agreement to restructure its $150 million revolving credit line.

Associated Press

DALLAS — Mesa Inc. has reached an agreement with noteholders that will allow the company to defer about $150 million in interest payments over the next two years, the company said Wednesday.

The agreement to restructure $600 million in debt, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, followed a preliminary pact April 28 that came after months of negotiations.

Also Wednesday, Mesa announced it had reached preliminary agreement with bank lenders to restructure its $150 million revolving credit line to a $90 million loan, subject to completion of the bond exchange. The final credit maturity date would be extended from June 1994 to June 30, 1995.

Under the terms of the noteholder accord, Dallas-based Mesa will issue $615.75 million in new notes and pay bondholders $13.5 million in cash. Some of the notes are convertible into common stock, equal to about 16 percent of the company. The company wants the transaction to be completed by mid-August, Mesa spokesman Jay Rosser said.

The bond exchange involves $300 million in 12 percent subordinated debt due in August 1996 and $300 million in 13.5 percent subordinated notes due in May 1999.

The deal would permit holders to exchange that $600 million in old notes and the accrued interest for three series of new notes and the cash. Yearly interest payments of about $76.5 million on the new debt would be deferred for more than two years, with the first payment in December 1995.

Under the proposed bank credit amendment, Mesa would be required after completion of the bond exchange to pay $20.6 million in principal: the difference between the $90 million loan and the $110.6 million outstanding on the revolving credit line.

The additional principal payments would be $10 million on Dec. 31; $10 million on March 31, 1994; $20 million on June 30, 1994; and $50 million on June 30, 1995.

Mesa sought the change because the company's cash flow problems meant its net book value threatened to drop below the $150 million threshold required by the lenders, Rosser said. Under the proposed terms, that requirement will drop to $50 million, he said.

"What we've accomplished is we're moving towards completion of a transaction that gives us some financial breathing room. It enhances our financial flexibility and, in turn, our survivability in what has been a tremendously volatile natural gas market," Rosser said.

Mesa Inc. is a natural-gas company led by one-time corporate raider Boone Pickens.

Costco, Price plan to merge

N.Y. Times News Service

In a deal that would create the nation's largest warehouse club, Price Co. and Costco Wholesale Corp. said Wednesday that they would merge in a stock swap valued at more than $2 billion.

The move by the companies — ranked second and third, respectively, in the industry by annual sales — is the latest sign of the winnowing of the warehouse industry. Same-store sales have faltered as the mammoth discount retailers saturate markets and encounter stiffer competition from supermarkets, as well as from category killers like Office Depot and CompUSA.

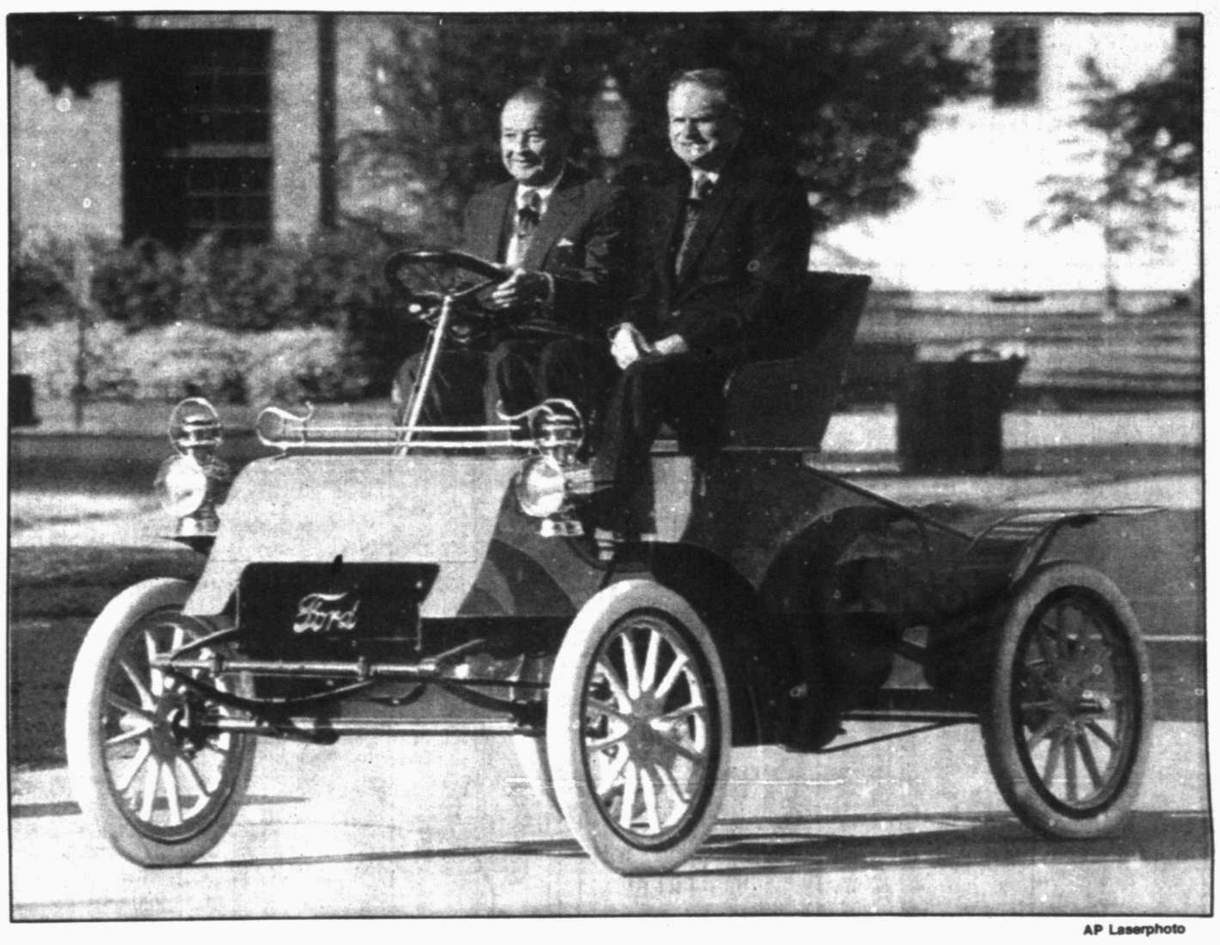

The new company, Price/Costco, would offer an intriguing marriage of strengths and personalities, analysts said.

Price stores are the most productive in the industry, with average annual sales of roughly $95 million each. Costco, on the other hand, is perceived as the best-managed member of the small club of companies in the $35 billion industry. Costco's managers are considered open and forthcoming about their business, while Price executives, who founded the warehouse membership club concept in 1976, are viewed as more discreet.

Yet Fran Blechman Bernstein, a retail analyst at Merrill Lynch said, "I think it's going to be a good fit."

The merger will create a company with 195 warehouses in the United States, Canada and Mexico and annual revenue of roughly $16 billion for the fiscal year that begins in August. Sam's Club, the current market leader, posted sales last year of $12.3 billion, and is expected to report sales of roughly $15 billion this year.

Investors in each company applauded the merger.

90 years of Fords

Honda adds 900,000 cars to earlier recall

DETROIT (AP) — American Honda is recalling an additional 900,000 cars to inspect for corrosion of their fuel filler pipes that the company said could lead to gasoline spills.

Honda recalled 400,000 1982-85 Accords last year to check for the problem, which it said occurs in states where road salt is used.

The recall was expanded to include 1986-87 Accords and 1983-87 Preludes, Honda said Tuesday.

Adobe ships Acrobat software amid high hopes

N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Adobe Systems Inc. said Tuesday that it had begun shipping copies of Acrobat, a new software program that the Silicon Valley company hopes will have as broad an impact as its Postscript desktop publishing software had when it was introduced eight years ago.

Acrobat is intended to let users transmit newsletters, annual reports, newspapers and even magazines via computer networks or as floppy disks.

While it is now possible to exchange simple text messages or documents electronically, Acrobat includes a file standard that makes it possible to send an entire document or publication on a computer disk or via modem to a remote site and have it appear on screen exactly as it would on paper.

But in the early going, at least, Acrobat is intended to supplant some of the reams of paper that changes hands each day in the modern business office. In so doing, the software will need to overcome generations of established habit by small and large businesses that use paper as the standard mechanism for information exchange. Most office workers and executives tend to be more comfortable reading paper documents that they can shuffle and carry with them than they are reading documents on a computer screen.

Acrobat is intended to function as the Esperanto of computer document distribution, making it possible to send computer files from one manufacturer's system to another without having to translate them or print on paper. Such a standard for documents is missing in the computer world today, and as a result the investment of billions of dollars in office automation gear has meant an upward spiral of paper in the modern office.

Adobe said that 11 companies had committed to adopting Acrobat as a standard in a number of electronic publishing applications. Lotus Development Corp., for example, said that it would work with Adobe to make it possible for users of its Lotus Notes computer conferencing software to go beyond messaging to share entire documents — illustrations and all — in Adobe's format.

Other companies that are developing applications based on Acrobat include Knight-Ridder's Presslink on-line computer service, Eastman Kodak, Multex Systems, R.R. Donnelley & Sons and Ventura Software.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Investor seeks odd lots of stock with DRPs

By Bill Doyle

Q: I'm interested in getting odd lots of stock from companies that have dividend reinvestment plans (DRPs). Once I have the stock, I could purchase more shares from the company to avoid brokerage fees.

Where can I buy odd lots? Is there any way to purchase just one share?

A: In most cases, an odd lot is anywhere from one to 99 shares. That's because stocks usually trade in round lots of 100 shares. The exceptions are those stocks that trade in 10-share round lots.

You can buy and sell odd lots through any securities brokerage firm. Just place an odd-lot buy order, pay for it and you will own the shares. Yes, you can buy one share that way.

You wouldn't duck the commission. The brokerage would levy its minimum charge for small transactions. That commission varies from firm to firm and typically is in the $30 to $60 range. Since you want to shave costs, you had better check that before placing an order.

Besides the commission, you would have to pay an odd-lot fee --either 25 or 50 cents per share, depending on how your transaction is handled.

Then, if the company has a DRP with an optional additional investment feature, you would be able to send in money to purchase additional shares. Approximately 85 percent of the more than 1,000 U.S. companies with DRPs have optional additional investment features.

While the vast majority of those companies make their DRPs available only to established stockholders, about a half-dozen allow the very first purchase to be made through DRPs, thus avoiding brokers entirely.

Details on DRPs vary from one plan to another. So, spend some time studying DRPs in general and the plans of stocks you might want to buy in particular.

A number of books contain detailed DRP information. My favorite is the "Directory of Companies Offering Dividend Reinvestment Plans," which is available for $28.95 from Evergreen Enterprises, P.O. Box 763, Laurel, MD 20725-0763.

Q: After I have purchased 100 shares of stock through a DRP, I could write a covered call option on that round lot. Do you have any advice on this?

A: "Writing," another word for "selling," covered options is a conservative move — the only conservative use of options. All other option tactics are speculative.

When you write a covered call option, you give the option's buyer the right to purchase shares you own at an set price, known as the "strike" price, within a certain period of time.

The option buyer pays you a premium, which you keep no matter what happens. Stockholders who sell covered options thus get additional income.

If the stock reaches the strike price and is called away by the person who holds the option, that buyer will pay you the strike price. But you will miss out on any future additional rise in the stock's price.

My first bit of advice to you is to write only covered options, providing you won't mind if the optioned stock is called away from you, and you won't go into a snit about missing future profits.

My second nugget is to stay with covered call options, which will give you income and no risk.

Unless you are ready, willing and financially able to speculate, don't buy options. Although an option provides a relatively inexpensive way to gamble, you can lose every penny you pay for it. Above all, stay away from "naked" options — on stock you do not own — where your risk would be very high.

Continental chief says his airline is looking for Southwest's secret

CLEVELAND (AP) — Continental Airlines President Robert Ferguson said Wednesday that his airline, freshly emerged from its second bout of bankruptcy court protection, is looking for lessons in profitability.

Ferguson said a Continental management team is studying ways to model the company after Southwest Airlines, the only U.S. air carrier to show a profit in recent years.

Southwest's cost per seat per mile in markets where it competes with Continental averages about 7.2 cents, Ferguson said. Continental's cost averages 11.9 cents per seat-mile.

"It struck us that if somebody had that kind of a cost advantage, eventually they would win," he said. "We want to understand ... where we were spending the other 4.7 cents. We wanted to know what we were buying."

Some of the costs are related to strategies for ticket sales, distribution and reservations, he said.

"At the same time, after you added up all of those things, you still had a huge gulf. The question becomes, what are we spending that on ... and were we getting our bang for the buck?" Ferguson said. "We are fairly close to getting that part of the equation."

The project is code-named "Continental Lite," Ferguson said.

A U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge in April endorsed Continental's reorganization plan, allowing the carrier to emerge from 2½ years of court protection.

Under the plan, Continental sold a majority stake to Air Canada and U.S. investors for a total of $450 million. Each group got 27.5 percent of the carrier. Continental's creditors got 35.6 percent of the airline's stock.

To comply with U.S. foreign ownership laws, Air Canada is limited to a 24 percent voting interest, while the U.S. investors, Air Partners, got the other 41 percent.

Continental had sought bankruptcy court protection once before, in 1983, after eliminating union contracts and hiring cheaper replacement workers.

Vought Aircraft to stabilize with lean look

By Michael D. Towle
N.Y. Times News Service

PARIS - The president of Vought Aircraft Co. said Wednesday that layoffs at the company's Dallas facilities should be over by the end of 1993, despite continuing declines in commercial aviation orders and problems for the C-17 program.

Reviewing Vought's outlook, Gordon Williams said at the 40th Paris Air Show that the Dallas subcontractor has been adapting itself to changes facing the global aerospace industry by becoming a smaller company.

Williams said the company's layoffs have been based as much on improving efficiency as on adjusting to the cancellation of key programs, like the B-2 Stealth bomber.

Vought has been laying off workers for several years after reaching a peak of 11,500 earlier this decade. The company has about 7,500 salaried and hourly workers at its operations in far west Dallas and Grand Prairie.

Last year, Vought cut 1,500 workers. The company plans to cut 1,500 this year after having already handed pink slips to about 500 employees.

Williams said Wednesday that the company's employment base would stabilize at about 6,500.

"But it's not something you can clearly predict more than six months in advance," he said.

Vought has seen its work force decline since the cancellation last year of the Stealth bomber. The company also has been hurt this year by a sharp reduction in orders from the Boeing Co., which has been hurt by the recession in the worldwide airline industry.

Vought produced major sections of the B-2 and is a supplier of large subsections of the Boeing 747, 757, and 767. It also produces portions of Canadair jets and is a subcontractor to McDonnell Douglas in the C-17 military cargo plane.

The company's goal is to add to its contract base, with its prime target being the Pentagon program to build a joint pilot-training aircraft for the Navy and Air Force.

"We call ourselves a support partner," Williams said. "We would like to have six or maybe eight major contracts in house at a time. We're sitting on five. The best way is to get one more major commercial contract and one more major military contract."

Williams said Vought, a private company, reached its goal of having an even split between commercial and military business, although he acknowledged that some of the shift could be attributed to the phase-out of the B-2.

Vought is owned by the Carlyle Group, a Washington investment firm, and Northrop Corp., prime contractor on the B-2 program.

Williams said the company has seen sales fall from more than $1 billion to about $850 million. But at the same time, he added, Vought has been able to pay down debt

Pagers become hot retail item

By John Eckhouse
N.Y. Times News Service

When teenager Michael Solis leaves his Oakland, Calif., home on a date, his father always slips a small package into his pocket: a pager.

"If he's late coming home, I page him and find out where he is," said Ron Solis, a junior high school principal who bought his pager last fall. "I think they're terrific, they really make me feel connected to my family."

Once considered the exclusive plaything of doctors and drug dealers, pagers suddenly are becoming hot consumer items. Falling prices, shrinking sizes and a switch from basic black to jazzy new colors such as Bimini blue and neon green have helped pagers find their way into millions of pockets and purses for nonbusiness uses.

"Our goal is to put pagers in the hands of 50 million Americans — that's about 20 percent of the population — in five years," said Robert Pollack, director of marketing for Motorola's Paging Products Group. Since that would more than triple the 14 million pagers in use at the end of last year, he acknowledges that success will depend on creating a mass market.

Three local girls selected to attend Bluebonnet Girls State

Staff report

Three local high school girls were selected to attend the 1993 seesion of Bluebonnet Girls State. Those attending are Kristi Pearson of Midland High School, daughter of Greg and Karran Pearson; Jennifer Silverman of MHS, daughter of Joyce and Charles Silverman, and Elizabeth Harris of Lee High School, daughter of Robert and Linda Harris.

The purpose of the American Legion Auxiliary Bluebonnet Girls State is to educate young women in the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities of American citizenship.

It is a mythical 51st state where the citizens of Girls State organize their own city, county and state governments. They chose their own officials in accordance with regular election procedures and learn the duties of the various city, county and state offices. They introduce and debate their own bills in a legislature. Justice is administered by their own law enforcement agencies and courts. In Girls State, the "citizens" learn by doing.

The girls began their session Tuesday at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin. The program continues through June 25. The girls were interviewed and selected by a panel of local American Legion Auxiliary members.

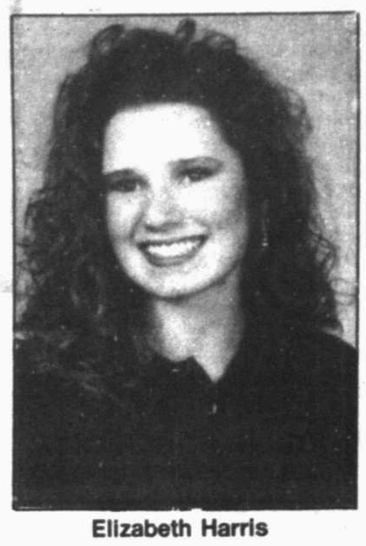

Woods W. Lynch Unit 19 sponsored the girls, paying their registraion fees and air fare.

Governor's big hair faces chopping block

By Karen Potter
N.Y. Times News Service

In the world of political hair, Texas Gov. Ann Richards has always been at the center of the beehive. But soon, that may not be the case.

It's still the same "Democratic upsweep" that Richards has been wearing for years now, but with a snip here and a snip there, it's gradually gotten inches shorter at the neck and the ears.

"I've been trying to get it a little bit shorter so it's easier to take care of," said Gail Huitt, Richards' hairdresser for nearly 20 years.

But that's not the big news. Huitt and Richards are talking about making A Really Big Change to one of the country's most recognizable coifs.

"We're thinking about it," Huitt said in a phone interview from her salon in Austin. "She's really ready for a new style. She would really like to change her hair. Who wouldn't?"

Some of the governor's advisers, that's who. They're apparently nervous about Richards' tinkering with a good thing: a symbol of strength and throwback familiarity.

The new look would be more casual, a somewhat radical departure from Richards' stiff-in-the-wind white halo, Huitt said.

"Could we have a governor without a helmet of hair? Sure," Huitt said.

Eliminating hair spray, however, is probably out of the question.

"If you had a governor without hair spray, you'd have a governor with messy hair," she said.

Richards goes twice a week to Huitt's salon for the ritual treatment: "I rat the tar out of it, spray the hell out of it, I get it up there and defy gravity," as Huitt likes to say.

The governor pays the same as Huitt's other customers, $35 a visit, Huitt said.

That's a drop in the bucket compared to what the president and first lady recently spent to get their hair done. Huitt said President Clinton was in a no-win situation; he would have been criticized for tying up traffic if he'd taken a motorcade into Los Angeles instead of holing up aboard Air Force One for his trim. In her view, Hillary Rodham Clinton's experience was more unfortunate.

"If you want to spend $275 on a haircut, go ahead," Huitt said. "I just wish it looked better. It's too dowdy."

DEAR ABBY

Son can't get message that his welcome has worn out

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I worked very hard and reared four children, trying to instill values, doing the best we could for them. We put all four through college. Three of our children are everything we ever hoped for — thoughtful, considerate and independent. But our fourth is a problem.

Van Buren

He lived away from home for five years, first attending college, then serving in the armed forces. While stationed abroad, he fell in love with a foreign girl and married her. After his tour of duty, he returned home, got a good job and they settled about 45 minutes away from us. Now they have a baby, and here's the problem:

Our son and his wife move in with us every weekend. They stay up most of the night eating and watching TV. I talked to my son, and he says that if he had married an American girl, we wouldn't feel resentful. We have always treated his wife well.

Abby, I didn't raise a leech. I don't want to run my son off. I don't know what to do, but on Monday morning, my house looks like a tornado hit it. I work hard, but feel like a servant. Every Saturday brings dread and worry. I think I'm losing my mind. Please help me. — MISERABLE MOM IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MISERABLE MOM: If your son takes advantage of you once, shame on him. If he takes advantage of you twice, shame on you.

Nothing will change if you don't stand up for yourself. Call your son and tell him exactly what you told me. Don't worry about running him off — he and his wife need to hear it.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the letter from a reader who thought it was a waste of time to look up a former lover due to the disappointment that was sure to come with the diminished sex drive.

Sex for me in a previous marriage was something I avoided, and I would try to get it over with as quickly as possible. My new love changed all that.

Two years ago, I met the sweetest man who ever lived. He's kind, considerate, and his concern for others would melt your heart. Just being cuddled and feeling those baby kisses on my face is total ecstasy. This wonderful man has changed my life. We married quietly seven months ago, and never have I felt so loved.

By the way, I'm 36 and he is 71. — COMPLETELY SATISFIED, ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

DEAR SATISFIED: What a beautiful love story — may it ever be thus. Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ABBY: Re The Name Game:

While calling a new insurance company, I stated my name, "Taft," and said, "'T' as in Tom, 'A' as in apple, 'F' as in Frank, and 'T' as in Tom."

The response was, "Great talking to you, Frank. Hold and I'll connect you to the agent for your area."

The next voice was, "Hello, Tom, good to hear from you." (I am a female.) — CLAIRE TAFT, PHOENIX

DEAR ABBY: In late January, you published a letter from Roberta M. Tew, Bradenton, Fla., who presented an inaccurate version of the famous poem "Voice of the Voiceless." Your response indicated that the author is unknown.

Abby, the poem was written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Please credit the author for her fine contribution to American literature. — RUTH PRICE, LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR RUTH PRICE: Thank you, I shall. Here is the correct version of that lovely poem:

VOICE OF THE VOICELESS
by Ella Wheeler Wilcox

So many gods, so many creeds,
So many paths that wind and wind,
While just the art of being kind
Is all the sad world needs.
I am the voice of the voiceless:
Through me, the dumb shall speak;
Till the deaf world's ear be made to hear
The cry of the wordless weak.
From street, from cage and from kennel,
From jungle and stall, the wail
Of my tortured kin proclaims the sin
Of the mighty against the frail.
For love is the true religion,
And love is the law sublime;
And all that is wrought, where love is not
Will die at the touch of time.
Oh, shame on the mothers of mortals
Who have not stopped to teach
Of the sorrow that lies in dear, dumb eyes,
The sorrow that has no speech.
The same Power formed the sparrow
That fashioned man — the King;
The God of the whole gave a living soul
To furred and to feathered thing.
And I am my brother's keeper,
And I will fight his fight;
And speak the word for beast and bird
Till the world shall set things right.

DEAR ABBY: The other night, my cousin and I went to the movies together and we decided to take my car. We parked at a meter and neither one of us remembered to put money in the meter, so when we came back, there was a ticket on the windshield.

My cousin says I should pay it because it was my car. I say we should split it because we have both parked there before and are familiar with the meter regulations. — NOT A KISSIN' COUSIN

DEAR NOT: I think you should split it.

'House' structure changing with fashion world

By Amy M. Spindler
N.Y. Times News Service

There is a creeping realization on New York's Seventh Avenue that the fashion deal as we know it may never be the same. The "house" structure — name designer, new creations twice a year to support a plethora of derivative licensed goods — is starting to seem like a house of cards.

Perry Ellis will introduce a concept today for a fully licensed label, with no in-house manufacturing. And Bob Mackie closed his ready-to-wear manufacturing business last week, leaving only out-of-house licenses, and his couture.

It is no coincidence that spokesmen for both companies mentioned QVC, the television shopping channel as a possible way of the future. After all, QVC bypasses much of what is crippling some of the big-name houses: press hype, fashion-show costs and reeling retailers.

"As long as the name doesn't die, he'll do very well, said Marc Schwartz, Mr. Mackie's lawyer. "You have to remember, the women buying his other products aren't the same as those buying the couture."

Mr. Schwartz added that unlike most other Seventh Avenue designers, Mr. Mackie built his business in Hollywood, designing couture costumes for celebrities. "If anything, his licensees are happy because he'll have more time to dedicate to them," he said.

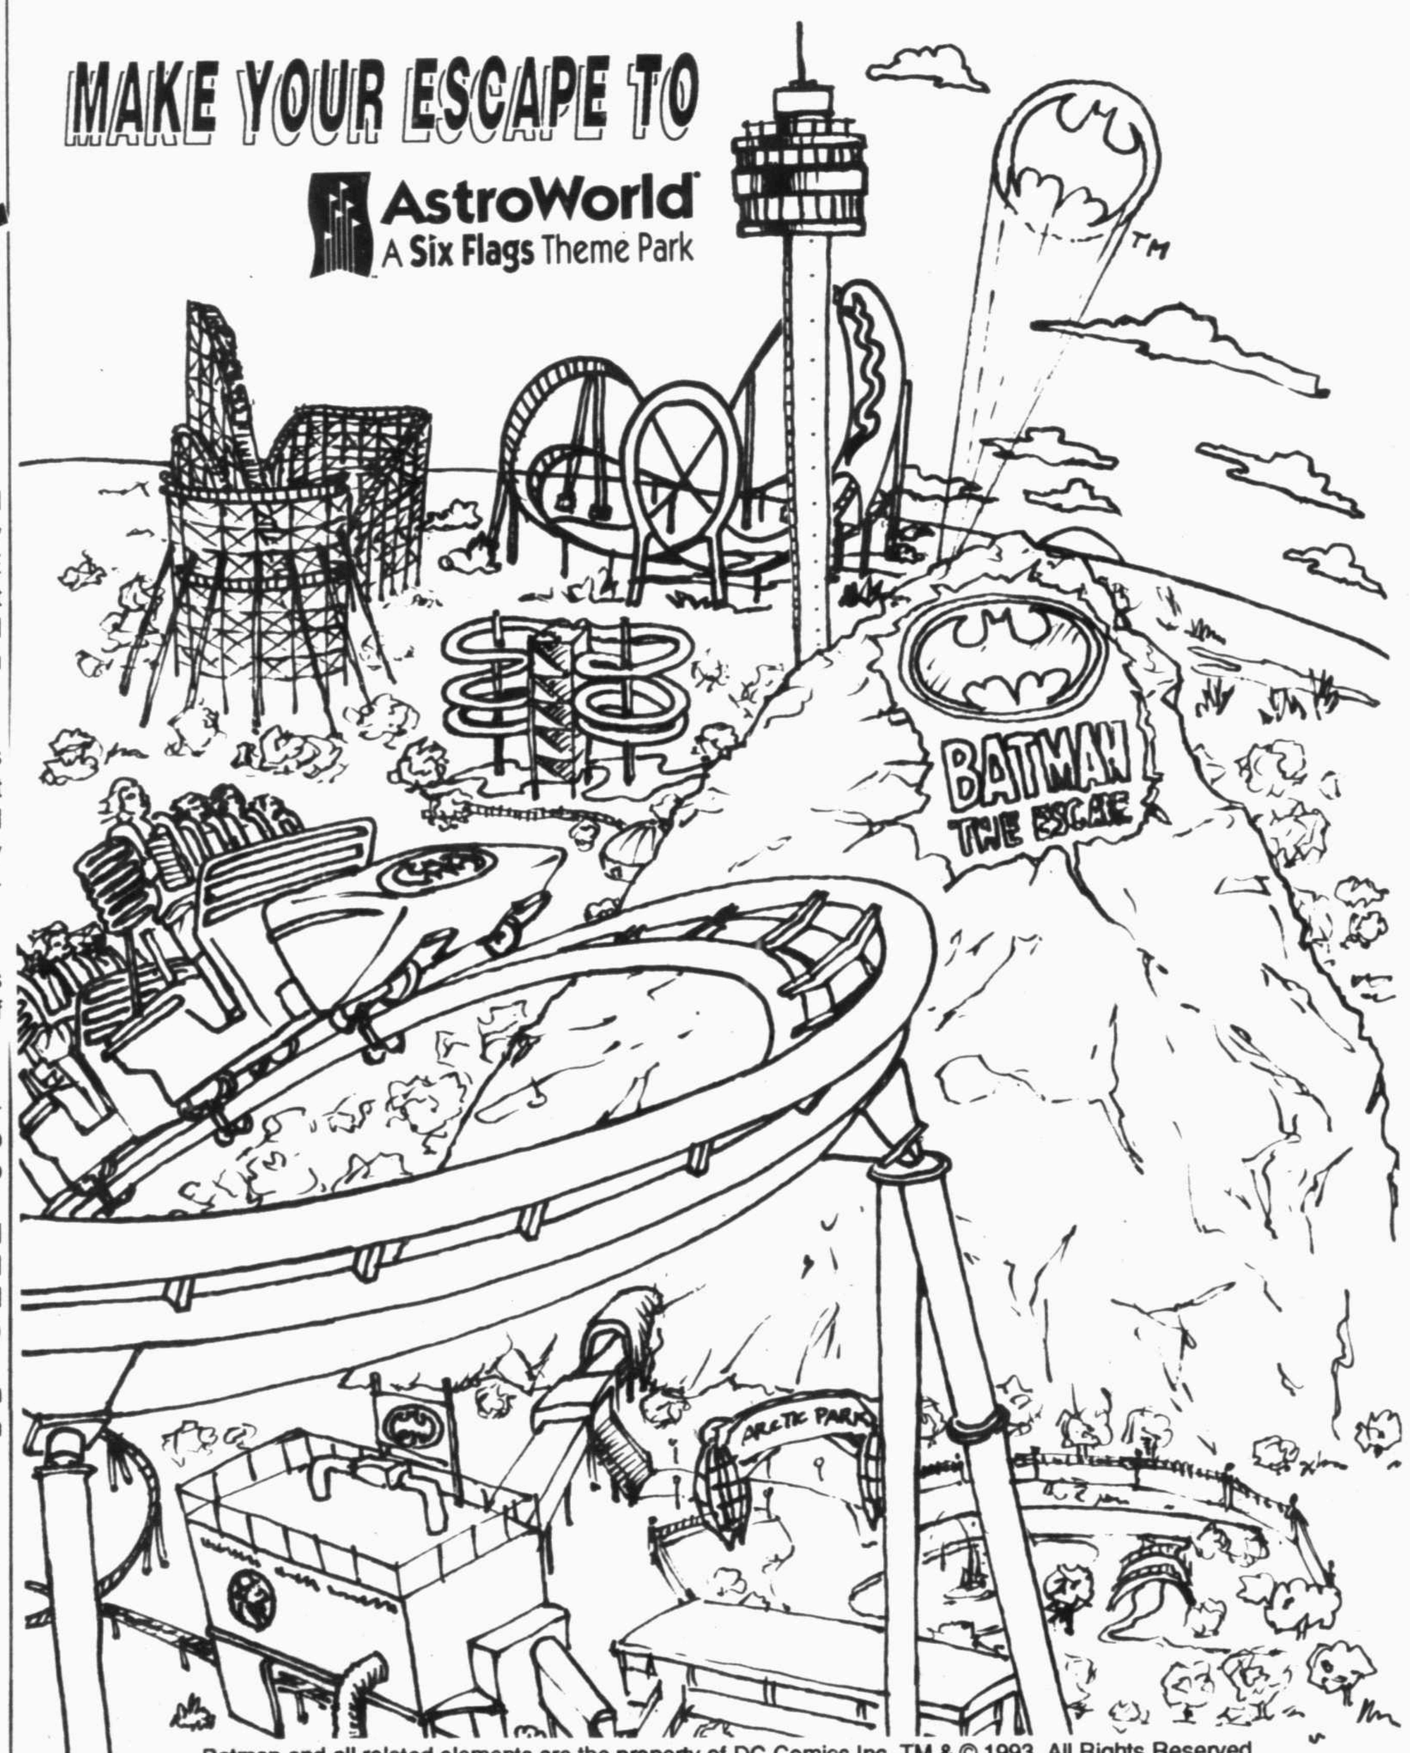

Perry Ellis, which sampled the European model of hiring a hot designer (in this case Marc Jacobs) to continue the house's name, is transforming itself as a design studio and consultant for its licencees.

The idea, said Claudia Thomas, chief executive of Perry Ellis International, is to change from "being led by a single designer's vision to a collective and collaborative design studio."

Julio Espada and Richard Haines are co-creative directors and vice-presidents of design, in charge of overseeing the design of clothing, accessories and home furnishings for Perry Ellis licensees.

AT WIT'S END

There are no easy riders cooped up in an airplane

By Erma Bombeck

When Orville and Wilbur Wright invented the airplane, one of the things it never occurred to them to worry about was how to keep passengers so busy they wouldn't know where they were.

Bombeck

Now that it's a competitive business, that's all that occupies the minds of company officials. Offering travelers a little bag with instructions on how to throw up in two languages and an in-house magazine where the crossword puzzle is always half done just doesn't cut it. People are just bored up there.

Back in the days before airlines became Boeing U-Hauls, some of the L-1011s used to have a piano bar and flying became just one big party. Then someone realized you could get 85 seats in the same space as a piano, and if you wanted music, you could sit next to someone who hummed.

Serving food relieves some of the boredom. People can eat up a lot of time trying to cut it or identify it. On longer flights, movies are a real attention-getter — especially the ones on hijackings and planes that plummet. Airline executives thought they had found the answer to entertaining fliers when they installed phones on board. But who wants to pay an astronomical phone bill just to call home with one of two messages: "Hey, Honey, guess where I'm calling from?" or, "I'm going to be late"?

A few years ago, one idea that took off was that for every mile you flew, you got bonus miles to use later and fly for free. The only hitch was that anyone who amasses enough hours to go anywhere becomes physically sick at the idea of climbing on an airplane when he doesn't have to.

A British airline, Virgin Atlantic, is coming up with an idea that might just fly. Come spring, it has plans to become the first airline to put casino-style video games in every seat of its jets. Winnings or losses would be credited or billed to fliers' accounts.

The possibilities are limitless. The system would allow fliers to watch movies, play video games, gamble or shop. Shop! That's what flying should be all about.

Many of us who fly read a lot. According to a recent survey, 70 percent of the passengers sleep. There's nothing to keep awake for.

Call me shallow, but Delta may have the answer to what people are looking for — hot oatmeal-raisin cookies fresh from the microwave. We're an idea away from having passengers lick the bowl.

Paperweight collectors plan meeting

The Paperweight Collectors Association of Texas will meet Aug. 7 in the meeting room of the Radisson Marina Hotel, 300 North Shoreline Drive, in Corpus Christi.

Steve Lundberg, an acclaimed glass artist, of Lundberg Studios in Davenport, Calif., will present a slide show and discuss his work. Examples of his paperweights and other art glass work will be on exhibit.

A business meeting will be from 10-11:30 a.m. and Lundberg's program will be presented from 1-2:30 p.m. A paperweight dealer will also be present.

Meeting sessions are free and open to the public. For more information, call (713) 468—6138.

'Powerful woman' emerges in advertising

N.Y. Times News Service

Even if the trend has been emerging since Madonna wore "Boy Toy" on her belt buckle, fashion advertising seems to be discovering anew the power of powerful woman. Liberto a jeans manufacturer, promises in a news release to "make other jeans-wear companies' blatantly sexist advertising look positively outdated by comparison."

Its new series of ads features "Liberto's heroine," a photojournalist traveling the world "in search of meaningful newsworthy subjects." The first subject so deemed is a barefoot, bare-chested man lying on a dock, eyes closed, with his pants unbuttoned.

Candies footwear is treading the same path, declaring itself outraged that four television stations refused to run its new ad, which shows a rear view of a naked man in an chair, a fully clothed woman in his lap. The man dares her to "take a chance or take a hike," and the segment ends with him alone, scratching his head.

Candies was so outraged by the TV boycott that the company sent out a news release and managed to secure a blaring headline on the cover of The New York Post. It was enough publicity to make the ad unnecessary.

But Rick Albert, a partner in Balet & Albert, the agency that produced the Candies ad, stands by the campaign. "You look at the way women are treated in music videos and in television soap operas, and it says a lot to me that a spot with a positive message can be rejected so offhandedly."

DELIVERY
MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

Often Asked ?????
Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth.

Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have F/T jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly!
Some make even more!

How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers'papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
$100.00 deposit.

Midland's ranching heritage to be represented in 6th annual rodeo

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Cowhands from 11 West Texas ranches will be moseying into Midland with their horses, livestock and chuck wagons this weekend to put into action the meaning of "West Texas ranching heritage" in the Sixth Annual Midland Ranch Rodeo.

That action, intrinsic to the romance and hard work of ranching, will include cowhands' competitive demonstrations of calf branding, wild-cow milking, team sorting, double mugging and team roping; the camp cooks' art of chuck-wagon cooking; and the cowboys' and cowgirls' romancing with words in cowboy poetry.

"Midland has a strong ranching heritage that goes way back into the 1880s," said Candi Cowden, a Midland-based rancher.

Ms. Cowden and Midland businessman J.P. "Pat" McDaniel, who has a background in ranching, are coordinating the rodeo.

"The Ranch Rodeo is designed to bring area ranching teams together to promote the history and the lore behind actual ranch events," McDaniel said.

Cowboys have their own kind of language

Staff report

The rodeo cowboy's lingo is chock with the Western flavor of the West Texas plains.

Here are some of the more popular terms:

Bicycling: The act of scratching with first one foot and then the other.

Bitin' the Dust: Being thrown from a horse.

Blowing a Stirrup: Losing a stirrup.

Bogging 'Em In: When a rider fails to scratch the horse.

Bronco: A Spanish word applied to native Mexican horses, meaning "rough" and "wild," now applied to any untamed range horse. Shortened to 'bronco' or 'bronc' in cowboy land.

Broomtails: Wild mares.

Buckaroo: A cowboy or bronco-buster.

Bucking: The gyrations of a bronc trying to unseat his rider.

Bulldogging: The throwing of a steer by his horns in a rodeo event.

Cantle Boarding: When the rider scratches back to the cantle of the saddle.

Cavvy: Saddle horses on a roundup.

Dogie: Weakling calf (motherless calf).

Four Footing: Catching an animal by the feet with a rope.

Grabbing the Apple: When a bronc-rider grabs the saddle horn.

Hooliganning: Causing the steer to fall on his horns in bulldogging.

Mail-Order Cowboy: A tenderfoot in cowboy regalia.

Man-Killer: A wild horse with a homicidal mania that strikes at mounted or unmounted men.

Maverick: An unbranded stray.

Outlaw: A horse that cannot be broken.

Pulling Leather: Holding onto the saddle.

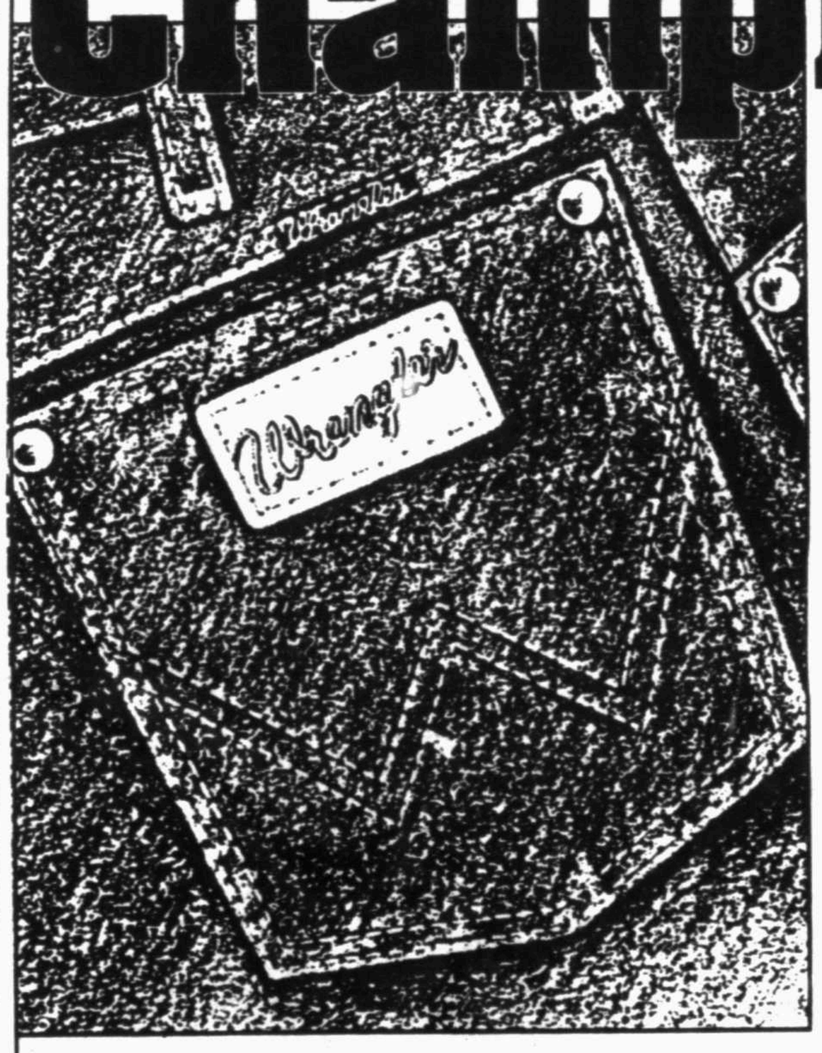

Scratching: The act of keeping feet moving while riding bucking stock.

Wrangling: Rounding up, saddling, and riding range horses.

MIDLAND: '93 Rodeo to reflect true cowboy spirit, Texas heritage

(From 3E)

"It is my ancestry," Ms. Cowden said of ranching. "It is my livelihood, but I enjoy it, too." Her family has been strong in ranching in West Texas since the 1800s.

The Midland Ranch Rodeo, which was organized in 1988 to reflect "the true cowboy spirit," opens at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 19, in the Midland County Arena and Midland County Exhibit Building. Admission is $3 per person.

The show's main event, the rodeo, begins at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Line-up or rodeo events on Saturday include include:

- 10 a.m.: Opening of gates for Western Trade Show, Bit & Spur Collectibles Show, Animal Products Health Show, Chuckwagon Cookoff.
- Noon: Judging of Chuckwagon Cookoff.
- Noon: Playing of Country and Western music and other entertainment.
- Noon-4 p.m.: Cowhands' reading of Cowboy Poetry.
- 1:30 p.m.: Mexican cowboys' performing horsemanship acts, including the vaquero's (cowboy's) downing of a steer by twisting the steer's tail while the vaquero is speeding on horseback. The performance by the Charro Association will be headed up by Angel Gamboa, Mabee Ranch foreman.
- 4 p.m.: Opening of Ranch Rodeo performances.
- 8:30 p.m. Presenting rodeo awards.
- 9 p.m.: Firing up of the Ranch Rodeo Dance by the Texas Express featuring singer Mary Dodd of Wink. Admission is $7 per person.
- 9 p.m.: Night-time reading of Cowboy Poetry around campfires and chuck wagons.

Sunday's events include:

- 8:30 a.m.: Serving of Chuck-wagon Breakfast.
- 10 a.m.: Preaching by cowboy minister Leonard Cotten and singing led by Gary and Judy Jones.
- 11 a.m.: Opening of books for Open Playday sponsored by the Midland County 4-H Clubs.
- Noon: Beginning of Playday.

Ranches that will be represented in the rodeo and their rodeo-team captains are the Bird Ranch, team captain Cedar Nolan; C (Chicago) Ranch, team captain Melvin Cotten; Dean Ranch Company, team captain Rocky Dean; E (Eiland) Ranch, team captain Scott Welch; Guitar Ranch, team captain Phil Guitar; J&K (Munsell) Cattle Company, team captain Kenneth Munsell; Lazy Z Ranch, team captain Bobby Matthews; Mabee Ranch, team captain Angel Gamboa; Ralph Powell Ranch, team captain Shirley Naff; Scharbauer Brothers & Company, team captain Chris Scharbauer; and Scharbauer Cattle Company, team captain Ken Albus.

In addition to the regular Ranch Rodeo, there will be a stick-horse Buckaroo Rodeo for boys and girls.

While the "Midland Country" has been steeped in ranching since the late 1880s, this old land has gained an oil-country reputation since the 1920s.

"Everybody thinks of Midland as being an oil town," McDaniel said. "Well, it basically is an oil economy, but the heritage here is ranching and agriculture."

Midland, which is a ranching headquarters town and a petroleum headquarters for the Permian Basin, "lies in the very northwestern part of the county," McDaniel noted. "Midland was the (ranching) headquarters, but they (ranchers) all went to where the good grass was in the late 1800s and early 1900s. The best grass at the time was back to the north and to the west" in Martin and Andrews counties.

Midland dedicates rodeo to rancher

The 1993 Midland Ranch Rodeo is dedicated to Leonard Calvin Proctor, an enterprising Midland rancher and early-day rodeo promoter who grew up in Midland ranch country early in the 1900s.

Proctor, who was born in 1892, learned the ranch business, competed in rodeo calf-roping and saddle-bronc riding, and was a pretty decent camp cook who could "make good biscuits."

Leonard served as cattle inspector for the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association for 13 years.

He operated the Proctor Ranch in Reagan County where he raised both Hereford and Black Angus cattle and had as many as 40,000 head of sheep at one time. He raised prize cutting horses.

Proctor and his brother, Foy, were sponsors of the World Championship Midland Rodeo.

GREAT AMERICAN LEGENDS.
COORS AND RODEO.

Coors Rodeo

Rodeos bring excitement and thrills to small towns and big cities. They create a yearning in the young cowboy's heart that won't cease till he rides his first bronc, ropes his first calf. Offering a glimpse into America's past, rodeo attracts the young at heart, the old of spirit.

For years, Coors, The Rocky Mountain Legend, has been a proud supporter of American rodeo. For over 100 years, Coors has been brewing the finest tasting beer in the West. Our commitment to quality has made Coors the first choice in beers... from cafes in Manhattan to campfires in Montana. The original taste of Coors and the thrill of the rodeo—two great American legends.

11 West Texas ranches to be represented in '93 Rodeo

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Ranches to be represented in the 1993 rendition of the Midland Ranch Rodeo are:

BIRD RANCH: The Bird Ranch was established in 1928 by C.D. Bird and son, F.A. Bird, and is now operated by C.D. Bird's grandson, Charles A. Bird. The ranch was stocked with Hereford cattle. It currently has holdings in Andrews, Cottle, Dickens, Motley, Upton and Reagan counties, Texas, and still maintains a Hereford cow herd with about 20 percent of the cows being bred to Brangus cattle.

Bird Ranch's rodeo team captain is Cedar Nolan.

C (CHICAGO) RANCH: The C Ranch was established in 1883 by Nelson Morris. The ranch had the first windmill and the first barbed-wire fences in West Texas. The C Ranch was sold to the Fasken family, which originated in Canada, in 1913.

Fasken family members operated the C Ranch until 1946 and are still the ranch owners today. Foy Proctor leased the C Ranch from 1946 to 1984. Melvin Cotten took over the lease in 1984 and is still operating the C Ranch today.

C Ranch's rodeo team captain is Melvin Cotten.

DEAN RANCH: Rocky Dean operates the 45,000-acre Dean

Ranch in Terrell County. One-half of the ranch is University of Texas Land, and the other half is owned by the Pakenham Estate. Rocky Dean, his wife, Evelyn, and their daughter, Caroline, live on the ranch south of Sheffield. Carlos Rodriguez is the Dean Ranch foreman.

The Dean Ranch operates a Corrientes cow-and-calf operation and a Trophy white-tail deer buck program.

Jim Cowthen, Rudy Galindo, Joe Duhon and Bobby Watson are all good friends who help seasonally with the Dean cows and calves.

Dean Ranch's rodeo team captain is Rocky Dean.

Action is always fast and furious when area cowboys get together for Ranch Rodeo competition.

E (EILAND) RANCH: Troy Eiland came to Midland County in 1911 with his parents and settled in the area that is now Greenwood. Eiland worked on some of the old ranches in this area and, along with two of his brothers, served in World War I.

After the war, he returned to Midland and began farming and ranching for himself. He is well remembered by the old-timers here as the first rural mail carrier. He carried the mail during the day and still watched over his farming-and-ranching interests. In the 1940s, he acquired land in Ward County and moved most of his operations to the Pecos River area. Today, the ranch is owned by the four Eiland children and is headed up by Bethel Eiland.

Scott Welch, who is a grandson of Troy Eiland, and his partner, Toby McWilliams, currently are operating the ranch as their headquarters for an ongoing cow-calf operation. Just as Troy Eiland did, Welch and McWilliams still brand the "E" on the right hip of their cattle.

E Ranch's rodeo team captain is Scott Welch.

GUITAR RANCHES: The story of the Guitar Ranches began in 1910 when John Guitar Sr. purchased the Big Spring Ranch. He soon added the Spur Ranch and the Dell City Ranch to his holdings, as well as several smaller farms in Texas, New Mexico, and Missouri.

In addition to those ranches, Guitar operated other ranches, including the famous 101 Ranch in Oklahoma, and approximately 200 sections around Carlsbad, New Mexico. Jim White, discover of Carlsbad Caverns, worked for Mr. Guitar during the 1920s. The combined acreage in the early 1920s was in excess of 200,000 acres of ranch land and 6,500 acres of farmland.

The Guitar properties were held by the Guitar Estate until 1961, when they were divided among the eight heirs. Earl Guitar Sr. controls about 30,000 acres in addition to the the Hardy Grissom Ranch and other Abilene-area interests. His son, Phil Guitar, and Bill Flowers operate ranches at Stamford and Throckmorton.

Phil's wife, Jane, is from a farm-and-ranch family at Hamlin. Her family owns the Martin and Y6 Ranches and farms in the area.

The Guitar family maintains a cow-calf operation, yearlings in the winter, and feedlot cattle in the Panhandle. The Hardy Grissom Ranch east of Abilene is owned by Anita Guitar and is noted for producing outstanding Hereford cattle.

Guitar Ranches families and cowhands participate in the Western Heritage Classic ranch rodeo in Abilene. Their ranch-rodeo chuck wagon is used at roundups at Spur and Big Spring.

Guitar Ranches' rodeo team captain is Phil Guitar.

J&K CATTLE COMPANY: Jim and Kenneth Munsell have been in the cattle business for 30 years. They have had the Jim Parker Ranches in Andrews County since 1980. The Munsell brothers run crossbred cows.

J&K Cattle Company's rodeo team captain is Kenneth Munsell.

The LAZY Z RANCH: The Lazy Z Ranch, which was established in 1928 by the George W. Glass family, is located north of Midland in Martin County.

Part of the Lazy Z Ranch once was among the holdings of O.B. (Oscar Braxton) Holt Sr., an enterprising cowboy, trail-driver, banker and churchman. At the age of 25 in 1885, O.B. Holt Sr. drove a herd of 230 cattle from East Texas to Midland in West Texas. Though he was broke, the enterprising young man in search for a home for himself and his cattle rode 30 miles west of Midland to the Clabber Hill Ranch, where he "made-do" for 2½ years.

Holt, a genteel and inventive man, fared well. By the early 1890s, when Midland was a settlement along the Texas & Pacific Railway Company lines, Holt was the Midland County clerk and was the first man to deed land in Andrews County.

In 1892, he was married to Viola Josephine Bell, and the couple joined other church-goers in founding the First Methodist Church in Midland. In 1920, Holt became president of the First National Bank of Midland.

Their descendants today operate the Lazy Z Ranch, which covers 32 sections.

The ranch is owned and operated by Monta Jo Glass Johnson and George Holt Glass, who are children of the late George W. Glass and Mabel Holt Glass, who was the youngest child of O.B. Holt. George W. Glass was in the hardware and insurance business before he married into the ranching business.

Midland was once known for rodeos

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Midland, which is smack-dab in the middle of ranching country, was big-time Rodeoville from 1935 until the dawning of the 1960s.

For years, ranchers and townspeople united to put on world-championship rodeos.

"It's a shame that we ever dropped those (rodeos)," lamented Bill Collyns, retired newspaper editor and community booster. "That was the biggest community event held in this part of the country — the open-air rodeo, open to the world, and the purses were high. It was tops in the rodeo world."

The Midland Rodeo, sponsored by the Midland Fair Inc. and organized by Midland ranchers, including Foy Proctor and Clarence Scharbauer Sr., was on the national rodeo circuit for 27 years.

Midland's rodeo was the Labor Day weekend happening.

The Midland Rodeo and the West of the Pecos Rodeo in Pecos "were the best known rodeos" in West Texas. Midland's was the big rodeo of West Texas and was "bigger than the one at Pecos. It was the big-time rodeo."

The old Texas & Pacific Railway Company operated a special train that ran out of Fort Worth to bring folks to the Midland Rodeo.

Today, the old rodeo arena, chutes, pens and grandstands are all gone.

But memories aren't all faded.

"The Midland Rodeo in all those years never did lose money," Collyns said, "but it never did make any money." Money gained from one year's rodeo was pumped into next year's event.

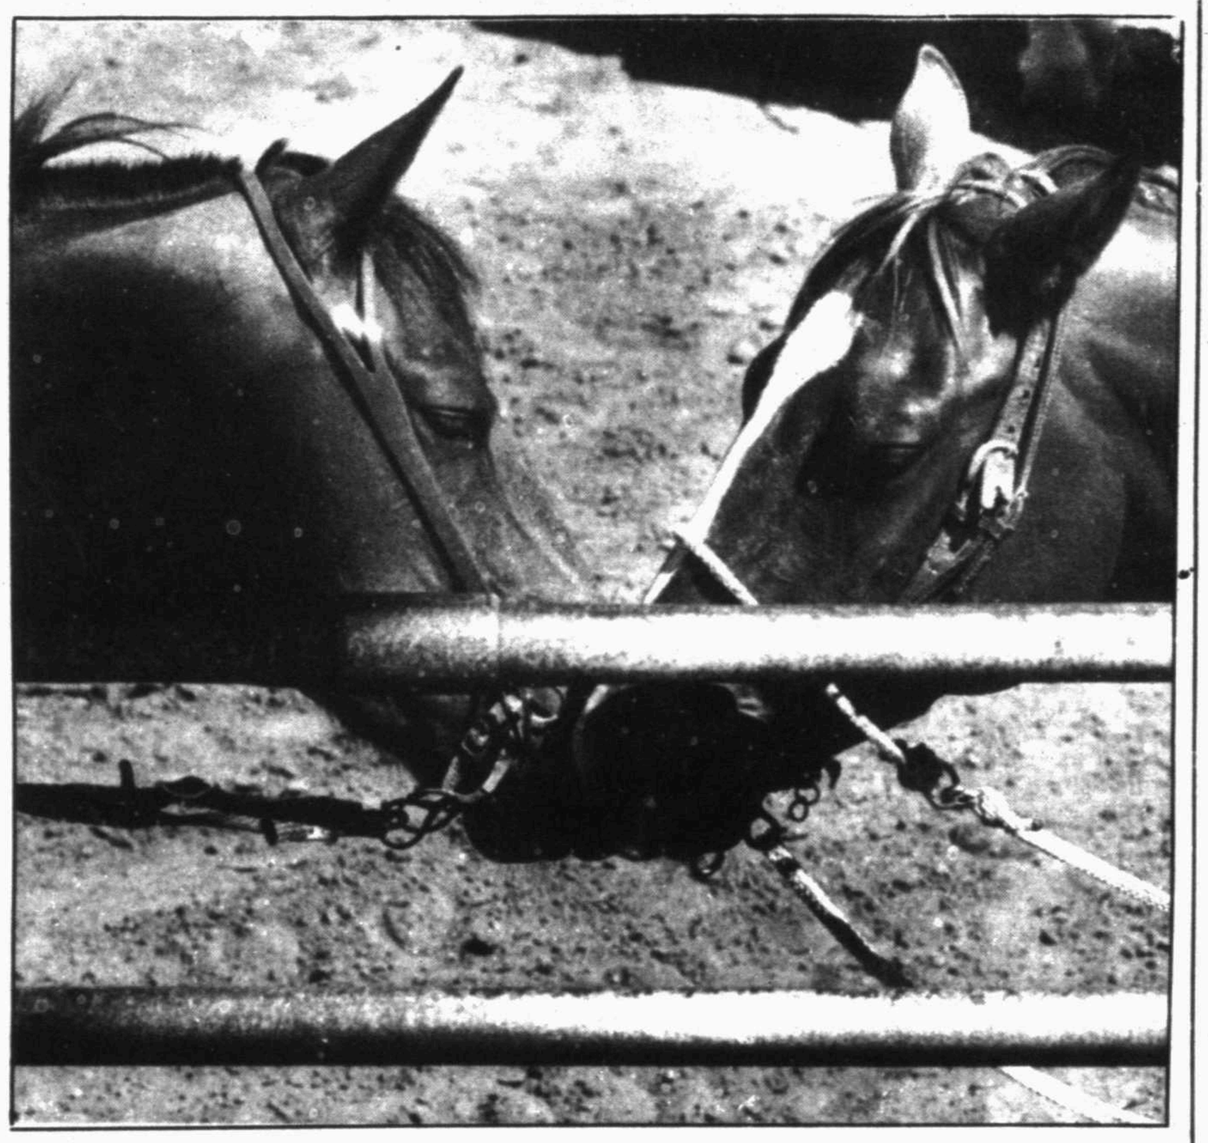

While it was going strong, the rodeo got the backing of the ranchers, the town-folks and the cowboys.

"All of the early ranchers kind of took turns serving as president" of the sponsoring Midland Fair Inc. Those included Foy Proctor, who in 1935 became the Midland Fair's first president, Clarence Scharbauer Sr., Roy Parks, George Glass, Clarence Scharbauer Jr., Marion Flynt, Frank Cowden Jr., Courtney Cowden, Leonard Proctor, and Ed Magruder.

Big name rodeo-circuit riders signed up for the Midland Rodeo. In the 1950s, for example, the likes of these cowboys and cowgirls showed up:

Rosemary Tompkins of Dublin; Berva Dawn Taylor, Doole; June Bill, Pampa; Snookie Sherrill, Pecos; Jim Shoulders, Henryetta, Okla.; Toots Mansfield, Big Spring; Dan Taylor, Doole; Bob Beal, Gale; Buster Welch, Midland; Walter Poage, Rankin; Bill Teague, Crane; Leonard Proctor, Midland, and Flop Roberts, Midland.

"It was really the big community event," Collyns recalled. "We haven't had anything like it since."

Boots are very much a part of the cowboy wardrobe.

Cowboy's boots were made to wear, wear out

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Western boots weren't made just for walking, riding, stomping, dancing, scuffing or looking downright pretty or handsome in.

They were made to wear and to wear out. And, given enough time and abuse, those old boots were born to really look "ugly" but in a friendly sort of way.

And if you know of any real cowboys or cowgirls at all, you know that many of them are downright fond of their old, worn-out boots, which they may patch up and re-patch, because they are so comfortable — like their riding partners. The ugly part doesn't matter. It's the wearing that counts. Ugly or not, they are pretty and pretty tough if the callused feet like them, and they hold up on the range patch after patch.

Celebration of the West portrays cowboy scene

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

As long as there are sunsets, open prairies, cattle to herd and horses to ride, there always will be cowboys. Yes, there will be wranglers, cowboys, cowgirls, ranchers, cattlemen and those wannabe cowpokes in their pickup trucks.

Most anybody, you would think, who has ever sniffed the dust of the American West and who has seen a real ranch-hand on horseback wants to experience the freedom of riding the range.

Cowboys are romantics. They love a life that isn't always easy. Sometimes it is lonely out on the back pastures and deep into the country. But it is a sweet loneliness. Sometimes it is harsh. There is always something going on even if the lone cowboy is the only ranch-hand in sight.

The windmill is pulling the water of life from within the bowels of the Earth.

Coyotes, at least as hardy as mesquite and die-hard cowboys, are yipping in the distance.

Old fence posts need re-setting, and the barbed-wire has got to be tightened.

Occasionally, a stray calf, a dogie, will be yearning for some motherly attention and suckling. And, lo and behold, some dusty, leathery-faced cowboy, hardened on the outside and tender at heart, becomes the dogie's loving caretaker.

The cowboy savors life, especially new and renewed life, on the range.

Pretty soon, the cowboy finds a mother cow to take on the dogie.

At roundup time, the rancher, the trail boss and the cowpunchers get together to bring their calves into the corral for calf branding, cuttin', de-horning and all that.

For ranch-hands, calf branding is a celebration — a coming together of the ranching community. It is sweaty, dirt-eating work, but fun work.

There is wonderful camaraderie. There is the common love of the outdoors, the excitement of working cattle on horseback, and the endearment of a sensitive, trusting, and sometimes skittish ol' horse.

There is the thrill of roping a young calf or an ol' steer, of cutting a head from a herd, of penning cattle, of milking out a wild cow that has lost her calf.

There is the quiet euphoria of a rousing sunrise and the solace of a warm, nurturing campfire about sundown time.

This country is old, as old as dirt. It looks it. As far as you can see, there's nothing but mesquite, tall grass, dust, dirt, and a blue sky graced with drifting clouds.

"This is strong, old country out here," says the rancher, Ralph Powell.

Nearby, there's dust getting kicked up and flying around the corral. There's the scent of cattle and cowboys and cowgirls stirring around and working, joking, laughing and sweating. And there's a Duke's Mixture of chuck-wagon food — beans and biscuits to beef ribs and corn — being cooked on mesquite wood on this old land.

The cattle, especially the calves, are bawling. Things are hectic and busy. The bellowing is sort of a lonesome wail repeated over and over. It's cacophony, sort of like an orchestra of big bass fiddles tuning up prior to a concert — the seasonal debut.

It's roundup time out on the range.

Indeed, it is a debut for about 180 calves, mostly young bull calves, who, through skilled cuts of the knife, are quickly transferred to steers.

One by one, mounted cowhands rope calves by tossing loops about their their rear legs and stirring up more dust. They drag them from the herd in a trail dust to two crews of neighborly and seasoned cowpokes. In a minute or less, each team of about six hands brand, dehorn, cut (castrate), inoculate, and implant each calf with a growth stimulant.

Not all of the calves bawl. Some seem resigned to the roundup tradition, which helps ready the calves for their steerhood. They will graze on pastures and, eventually, will be fattened in feedlots before they are taken to market and to slaughterhouses. There, they will be transformed into sides of beef and eventually will become fancy cuts, hamburger and other food products for America's di ing tables. Their hides will be turned into leather products — footwear, clothing, headgear, seat covers, and sporting gear and equipment.

The cowboys and cowgirls, their bellies full of a hearty breakfast of scrambled eggs, sausage, biscuits, gravy and cowboy coffee prepared by camp-cook Jerry Lee and his wife, Nancy, mount their horses and ride out on the range to roundup Powell's calves from the mesquite-crowded ranch north of town.

Lee, who is foreman of the Bird South Ranch, minds the camp.

"Friendship is all it is and a lot of good, free conversation," Lee says of the seasonal roundup, which attracts all sorts of cowhands, such as Lazy Z Ranch foreman Bobby Matthews and cowboy Braxton Glass, Trinity rancher-schoolteacher Shelley Madeley, Midland cowgirl Shirley Naff, Martin County Sheriff Mike Welling and Deputy Sheriff David Saunders, Inspector Don Braly of the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, oldtime cowboy Leeman Douthit and his son Bo, and the likes of Mike Payne, the singing and guitar-playing farmer, and Bud Lea, who is home on the range and farm.

The cowgirls are "as tough as nails," Powell says, and can ride, rope, cut and brand with the best of the cowhands. "I had just as soon have the two of them (Ms. Madeley and Ms. Naff) in the pasture (working) as any cowboy I've ever had."

The calf bawling is just part of the roundup. It's a new experience — once in a lifetime — for the calves who are accustomed to the licking, bossing, and feeding by their mother cows.

But they are in good hands, not cruel hands but firm and knowing hands, in the branding pen.

The roundup "kind of gives you back a touch of the Old West," says Mike Welling. The roundup cowhands all "have got big hearts," the sheriff says. "They care about each other."

Midland cowboy artist Tom Ryan, who was raised around rodeos and in the old, wild West, gets material for his art at roundup time.

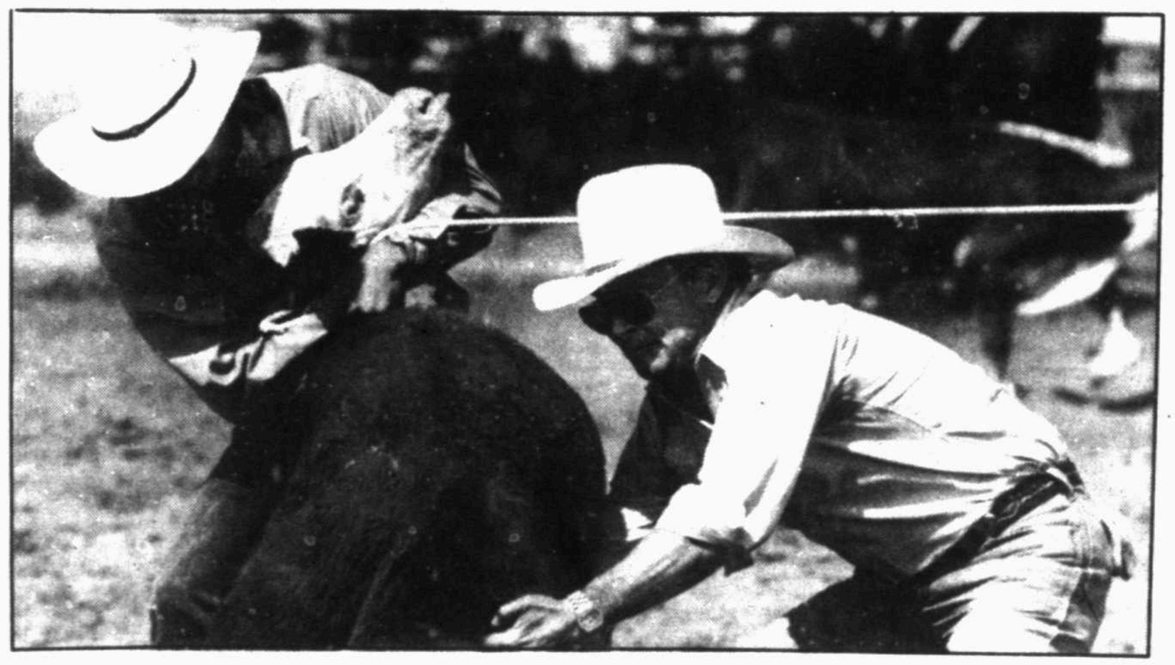

"Things don't change, when you watch them drag calves to the fire and put the iron to them," Ryan says.

Powell, whom Ryan deems a "cowboy's cowboy," ranches in the old "Midland Country," down in the Alpine territory, and, in partnership with Cactus Feeders out of Amarillo, brings in Mexican steers for fattening up for the market.

Powell ranges over much of Mexico and the Southwest: Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

"There's an old saying in the cattle business," Powell says."You either die broke or poor, just depending on what the market is when you die. The county buries you, or you die rich."

And this old country, which is strong enough to outlast droughts, windstorms and untold roundups, keeps moving along and getting older and tougher and more endearing to the cowboys and cowgirls.

Cowboys attempt to get a steer down during competition at the 1989 Midland Ranch Rodeo. Similar action highlights activity at this year's event.

TEXAS: 11 ranches to participate

(From 6E)

Glass had developed the Lazy Z Ranch from 7½ sections to 32 sections.

MABEE RANCH: John E. Mabee purchased the Mabee Ranch in 1932 after leasing it for several years. In 1959, his nephew, Guy Mabee, took possession of the ranch. He and his son, Joe Mabee, began raising Black Angus cattle. Together, they built a solid herd of registered and commercial Angus cattle. Guy Mabee retired from ranching in 1983. In 1987, Joe Mabee's sons, Guy and John Mabee, became partners in the ranch with their father.

Today, the ranch produces commercial replacement Angus heifers, commercial bulls, and feeder steers.

The Mabee Ranch's rodeo team captain is Angel Gamboa.

POWELL RANCH: Midland cattleman Ralph Powell heads up the Powell Ranch. Powell is the great-grandson of A.B. Powell, who came to Sterling County in 1891. The family raised horses, which they traded for cattle in Louisiana. Ralph Powell's maternal grandfather, Wadd Ellis, who was in the freight business from Galveston to San Antonio, bought a ranch in Frio County, where he caught wild horses and raised eight sons.

The Powell Ranch rodeo team captain is Shirley Naff.

SCHARBAUER BROTHERS & COMPANY: Scharbauer Brothers and Company is a corporation that was formed in December 1957. The principals are Clarence Scharbauer III, Douglas Scharbauer, Chris Scharbauer, and Pamela Ruth Scharbauer.

The corporation consists of two cattle ranches in Midland County. The Crowley Ranch is west of Midland and surrounds Midland International Airport. The Number One Ranch is south of Midland. The ranches are cow-calf operations consisting of foundation herds of Hereford cattle and American Quarter Horses. The Scharbauer Brothers & Company brand is the figure '5' on the left hip.

Scharbauer Brothers & Company is also involved in real-estate development with its subsidiary company, Glassland Corporation. Glassland Estates is the major thrust of the corporation.

Chris Scharbauer is the ranching company's rodeo team captain.

SCHARBAUER CATTLE COMPANY: Scharbauer Cattle Company is a Midland-headquartered, sophisticated family corporation which consists of a cow-calf herd of Hereford cattle, a ewe-lamb of Columbia-Debouillet crossbred sheep, and a remuda of working registered Quarter Horses.

The operation traces its Texas history to 1880, when John Scharbauer, the son of a German immigrant, left New York and followed the expanding railways to Texas. Scharbauer, who leaned the cattle trade on his relatives' Eastern farm, learning the West Texas terrain and invested in the sheep business. By 1888, he owned his first cattle ranch in the Midland area. His brothers and their families joined him.

John Scharbauer's nephew, Clarence Scharbauer, became general manager and director of the cattle company in the 1920s. By the late 1930s, Clarence Scharbauer controlled all of the Scharbauer holdings in Texas and New Mexico and built the famous Hotel Scharbauer in Midland in 1927 and served as president the First National Bank of Midland. He died in 1942.

His son, Clarence Scharbauer Jr., took over the ranching operation in 1947. Facing drought, short grass, and the well-being of cattle on the other ranches, he bought and added the Alamositas Cattle Corporation in Oldham County in 1952. Stocked with Hereford cows and steer calves, two-year-old heifers and bulls, the ranch, with its abundant water and tall grass, flourished.

Today, Chris Scharbauer, Clarence Scharbauer Jr.'s son, manages the families' ranching interests. The Scharbauer brand is the figure '5.'

Ken Albus is the company's ranch rodeo team captain.
