'Whupped a ring-a-ding'

"Estes?"
"Here."
"You're free to go."
Only the man wasn't Estes.
Ronald Ray Smith, wanted in Florida for armed robbery, sauntered out of the Midland Police Department about 11:30 p.m. Monday after answering to William Leslie Estes' name.
Estes was due to be released. Smith wasn't.
"He (Smith) whupped a ring-a-ding on one of my desk sergeants," a police official said Monday by way of explanation.
"Last we saw of him (Smith), he was hitchhiking toward Odessa," said

Capt. Roger Meurer.
Smith was last seen wearing a large straw hat with a feather in it and carrying a blue suitcase, according to police reports.
"Estes just sat there while this Smith character got up and posed as Estes and the desk sergeant released him," Meurer said.
Police discovered the mix-up only when Estes mentioned it to officers.
The suitcase had both Smith's and Estes' name on it.
According to reports, Estes answered to the name of Smith at one point in the release procedure.
About 1 p.m., the man jailers thought was Smith asked if Estes had left the jail. When he was told "yes," the prisoner reportedly told a jail official "no, he hasn't" and announced that he was actually Estes.

Smith and Estes were arrested together Feb. 26. Smith was being held on a city traffic violation and on a warrant for armed robbery in Panama, Fla. Estes, 32, was being held on a charge of failure to identify himself, according to police reports.
Smith was thought to be en route to Newport Beach, Calif., police said.
Estes was charged this morning with "escape as a party" in connection with Smith's escape Monday.
Bond was set at $5,000.

Farmers attempt to intercept trucks

By LINDA HILL

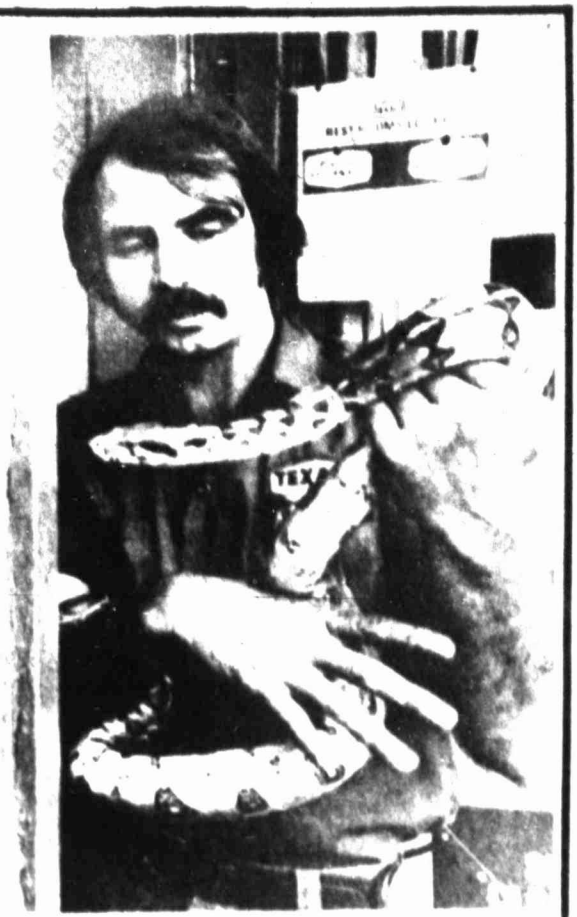

BIG SPRING — "It was their feeling that if they were going to be out there helping the people of the United States, the trucks were going to stop," Big Spring farmer Roger Coats said of other farmers who were responsible for breaking a trucker's windshield this morning in Big Spring.
That incident was the only reported violence as farmers tried to convince truckers hauling food products to stop for 72 hours — part of a nationwide effort which American Agriculture Movement organizers hope will cause food shortages in the Northeast.
In the Permian Basin, farmers gathered on Interstate 20 and U.S. 87, trying to stop trucks leaving Big Spring.
Coats said he was at the U.S. 87 location when an object was thrown through the trucker's windshield. He said he immediately asked that the person responsible "leave and not come back" because the effort was to be a non-violent one. About 10 to 15 persons left, Coats said.

He said the farmers collected more than $100 to help pay for the damage to the truck and the driver "seemed satisfied."
Coats estimated that a total of 200 farmers are involved in this phase of the farm strike in Big Spring. "We got a lot of them (truckers) to stop and ask questions. We had a few who said they'd stop for 72 hours," he said.
"Right now, it's not near effective enough," he said.
Coats said the farmers would try to continue the effort the full 72 hours.
St. Lawrence farmer Dennis Suchs said he worked from about midnight to 3 a.m. talking to truckers on his CB radio. During that time, he said, four or five trucks did stop — "They turned their trucks around and went back to town. How long they'll stay, I don't know."

He said another four or five trucks stopped long enough for their drivers to have coffee and talk to the strikers. And, he added, all of the truckers were polite when contacted on the CB.
"We were afraid we'd get a little bad-mouthing," Howard County Sheriff A. N. Standard this morning said there had been no problems with the demonstration.
"There were a number of trucks that stopped, but this was strictly at their own discretion. There were no bottlenecks or traffic problems from this," Standard said. He said the farmers were staying in the rest areas and not blocking the highway.
Also, Standard said, a small group of farmers picketed a railroad in Big Spring. The picket lines were set up on city of Big Spring property, and there were no problems, he said.
Farmers from St. Lawrence, Coahoma, Ackery, Seminole, Seagraves, Roby, Haskell, Hamlin, Lamesa and Big Spring were involved in the Big Spring demonstration.

Wade Montgomery holds Herman, his 6-foot-long, decidedly serpentine watchdog.

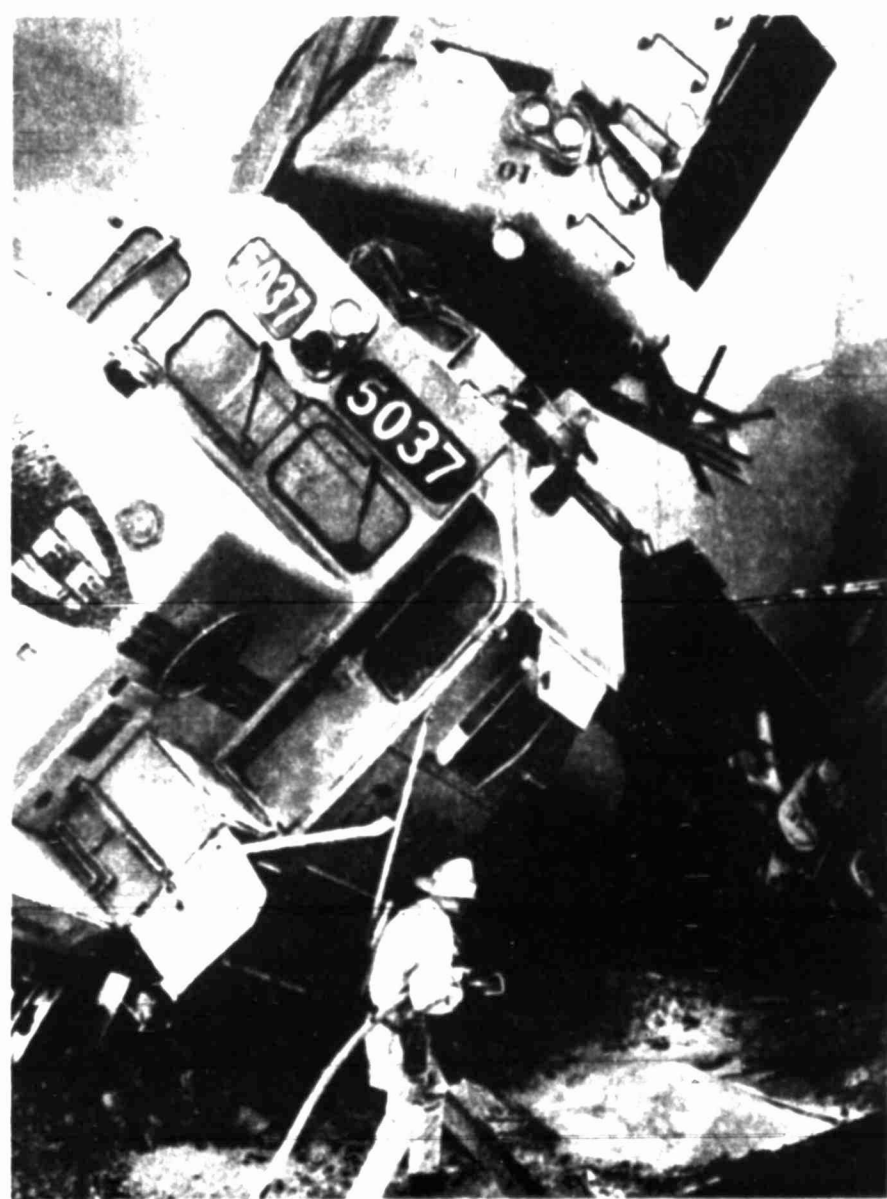

He doesn't bark much, but he might put the squeeze on you

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Herman, the guard at a local gas station, makes a formidable night watchman. He never blinks, eats only once a month and is meaner than a junkyard dog — especially when he's shedding.
But Herman sheds skin, not hair. He's a 6-foot South American boa constrictor — half of a two-snake guard team that has foiled at least one burglary.
"We got broke into a couple of times before. The burglars they have around here just kill dogs and we found the snakes would do better," says Wade Montgomery, chief boa handler at the station.

When the doors are locked at Plaza Towers Texaco, Wade turns loose bony Herman and his companion, an unnamed 4½-foot Mexican boa.
The two brown and black snakes slither under the desk, stretch themselves up onto the shelves and coil around the water cooler until morning.
Lest the larcenous be unaware of their presence, a sign in the window warns of "a 12-foot boa constrictor" and shows a toothy, hostile reptile.
"The 12 feet means both of them together," says Wade, 28, who allows that he has always preferred snakes over dogs.

The two boas, sexes unknown, probably could not seriously injure an intruder. They have teeth and nip a bit. And they become quite irritable when it's time to shed a skin.
But their value as guards is chiefly psychological.
"Most people are kind of scared of snakes, especially if they don't know where they are," says station owner Larry Montgomery. Wade's 29-year-old brother.
Larry says the station has been broken into only once during the two years the snakes have guarded it. Those burglars rifled a drawer or two but then lost heart and fled.

Decision protects minority voter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even southern cities and school districts that do not register voters are subject to a federal law protecting the rights of minority voters, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.
In a decision carrying great impact for Alabama and Texas as well as other southern states covered by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, the court ruled that all entities holding elections within those states fall under the law.
The court voted 6-3 to reverse a ruling by a three-judge court in Alabama that Sheffield, Ala., is not covered by the law. In an opinion written by Justice William J. Brennan Jr. it said "the act covers all political units within designated jurisdictions like Alabama."

Disagreeing with Brennan were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices John Paul Stevens and William H. Rehnquist.
Brennan's opinion specifically ruled that Congress meant to include under the 1965 law all government entities within states in its definition of "political subdivisions."
Sheffield officials had argued successfully in the lower court that a

"political subdivision" under the law is one that registers voters—and such duties in Alabama as well as in Texas are handled at the county level.
Monday's decision rejected that interpretation of the law.
In 1975, Sheffield officials decided to switch from a commission form of government to a mayor-city council system. The city advised the Justice Department of the proposed change, and won federal approval for the holding of a public referendum on it.
The city's residents voted in favor of such a change, and plans were made to elect council members in an at-large election, meaning all council members would be elected from one voting pool in the 13,000-resident town rather than each member representing a certain portion of the city's voters.

The Justice Department objected to that and tried to block the election.
The Sheffield mayoral and city council elections were held, and the new form of city government already is in effect. Now, presumably the city will have to submit its at-large election system to the Justice Department or a three-judge court in Washington for approval.
If approval is not granted, the at-large voting system will have to be

Kindergarten program supported

By MARLEEN RAY

Parents and teachers spoke out in favor of continuing full-day, multi-age kindergarten programs at Rusk, Long and Burnet Elementary schools in a panel discussion Monday night at the Rusk school.
Nearly 100 persons came to hear the seven-member panel, moderated by Sarah Crowe, mother of two children who are enrolled in the full-day, multi-age kindergarten program at Rusk.

Members of the panel were Printus Burkhardt, principal of Rusk; Cindy Witten, teacher of the full-day, multi-age kindergarten program at Burnet; Roberta Bain, teacher of the same program at Rusk; Carol Ann Hunt, mother of a child attending the full-day, multi-age program at Rusk; Nancy Genzel, mother of a first-grader at Rusk; Corby Considine, Midland attorney and father of a first-grader at Rusk; and Gail Ashby, coordinator of early childhood education.

In an opening statement, Mrs. Crowe said the purpose of this discussion was "to inform the public, especially the parents of children attending Rusk, Long and Burnet Elementary" schools that the school board is considering doing away with full-day, multi-age kindergarten programs at these three schools.
In its Jan. 10 meeting, the school board discussed a list of alternatives, presented by Mrs. Ashby, for reorganizing the kindergarten program. Schools Superintendent Dr.

James Mailey said the board is contemplating changing the kindergarten structure because of the "inequity" of the programs among the schools. Currently, only seven schools, including Rusk, Long and Burnet, have full-day, multi-age kindergarten programs. The rest have self-contained, half-day programs, except for DeZavala Elementary School, which has a self-contained, full-day program.
Mailey also pointed out that re-

Speck admits to killings

CHICAGO (AP) — "Yeah, I killed them. I stabbed and choked them," said Richard Speck, admitting for the first time that, while high on whiskey and heroin, he murdered seven of eight young nurses in a South Side townhouse almost 12 years ago.
Speck, whose account of the July 1966 mass murder was published in today's editions of the Chicago Sun-Times, said the eighth nurse was slain by an accomplice who Speck claimed to have killed later and tossed into a railroad boxcar.
But a spokesman for the Chicago Police Department was quick to discount the existence of an accomplice.
Speck, 36, said in a copyright interview with columnist Bob Greene that he killed his unnamed accomplice, "an effeminate homosexual," because he feared he would testify against Speck.

Speck, convicted of killing all eight nurses, originally was sentenced to die in the electric chair, but the Supreme Court overthrew that sentence. He was resented to eight consecutive prison terms of 50 to 150 years each for the murders.
"If that one girl wouldn't have spit in my face, they'd all be alive today," Speck told Greene in an interview at Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet.
Just a few hours before the murders, Speck said, he and his accomplice met for the first time on the far South Side. He said at first he and his companion only intended burglary.
"We knocked on the girls' door. No one answered. It wasn't planned or nothing. When we got upstairs we seen them all in the bedrooms asleep. There were three or four bedrooms. I don't know how many.
"Some girls woke up. We said,

"Stick up! We want your money." I told one of them to get the money. She spit in my face and said she'd pick me out of a lineup. Ninety-nine percent of the people in this country are stool pigeons. I just blew."
"I can't tell you if the girls put up any resistance or not," Speck told Greene. "I killed seven of them; the other guy killed one. We left. He was frantic. He says he doesn't want any of the money at all. He's dead now."
"I know he's dead because I shot him six times."
Speck was apprehended several days after the murders in a skid row flophouse after a suicide attempt.
"Speck's a liar. It's not true," citywide police homicide Commander Joseph DiLeonardi said of the account.
He pointed out that the surviving nurse testified that Speck acted alone in the killings.

Cloudiness not to last

Although it is expected to be cloudy and cooler in Midland today, the clouds should break up sometime tonight, resulting in fair skies and warmer temperatures Wednesday, the weatherman said.
The low temperature tonight should dip to the middle 30s with northeasterly winds decreasing to 5 to 10 mph. Wednesday's high temperature is expected to reach the middle 60s.
Monday's high temperature was 73 degrees, and the overnight low temperature was 39 degrees, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.
In Andrews, Lamesa and Stanton, the winds were blowing the sand around this morning. Otherwise, temperatures were cool and skies were somewhat overcast in most areas towns with clear skies in Crane, according to reports.

WEATHER

Decreasing cloudiness tonight. Fair and warmer Wednesday. Complete details on Page 2A.

ADVANCED to finalist standing in the 1978 National Merit Scholarship competition recently are Midland High School students Paul Laverty and Morgan Kennedy, among about 14,000 finalists nationwide. They will compete for approximately 1,000 one-time scholarships at $1,000 apiece and about 2,800 renewable scholarships. Each finalist is awarded a certificate of merit. (Staff Photo)

Officials hint at new coal plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, anticipating initial defiance by coal miners to any back-to-work order, is hoping that available supplies and at least some resumed mining will tide coal-dependent states over until warm weather arrives.

"We now think we could postpone indefinitely the day of economic catastrophe," said one official, referring to warnings that dwindling coal supplies were pushing the nation to the brink of serious economic setbacks.

The White House plan was described by high-level officials, who asked not to be named, after President Carter announced Monday he will seek a back-to-work order under the Taft-Hartley Act.

It hinges on several factors convincing miners to return to work, among them court orders, increased wages — and loss of food stamps if they refuse.

But it also includes the hope that individual coal companies and union districts can reach their own agreements, sending some of the nation's miners back to work under new contracts.

For several weeks, White House officials have been holding out the possibility that individual contracts could be reached outside the national bargaining effort so that some mines, if not all of them, could be reopened.

Now they are saying that the Taft-

Hartley injunction might be conducive to such a solution. Once a few such contracts are agreed upon, it is hoped that other union districts and companies would be encouraged to take similar action.

"Several companies and districts have indicated a desire to negotiate independently," said one administration source. "For those that don't, we will be in a position to stretch out available resources until warm weather comes."

One official, who asked not to be named, conceded that the "game plan" was more what the administration sees as a plausible scenario than a well-charted course.

If the administration is not counting completely on the voluntary compliance of the miners, it is at least hoping that the arrival of U.S. marshals carrying back-to-work court orders to the Appalachian coal towns may convince the miners to adopt a more cooperative attitude.

The administration also is prepared to use court orders to go after as many as 5,000 officials of the United Mine Workers, carrying the government effort well past the union's national level.

One official said at the White House that if court orders are defied, the administration would seek penalties that would put the union's local, as well as national, treasuries in jeopardy.

If that isn't enough, according to the White House plan, the miners may be convinced to return to work if they are paid the higher wages offered by the Bituminous Coal Operators Association in the contract that was rejected over the weekend.

Miners may forfeit food stamp eligibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — If striking coal miners don't go back to work under a Taft-Hartley injunction, President Carter will hit them where they already hurt: in the breadbasket.

He will take away their eligibility for food stamps, starting next month.

"The administration will act promptly," Joe Shepherd, deputy director of the government's food stamp program, said Monday after the president announced he will seek a court injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act to force the miners back to work.

"If the courts order the miners back to work and they refuse, there is provision in our regulations for terminating food stamp recipients," Shepherd said. "The provision is for terminating any household that has a member in an illegal work stoppage."

"Refusing to obey a Taft-Hartley order would make a strike illegal, and we would require the states to take action to terminate the strikers' eligibility," he said.

Shepherd said federal officials would issue the order in telegrams to the states.

The food stamp program is administered by the Agriculture Department, where figures show a multimillion-dollar jump in the use of the coupons to buy groceries during the 92-day coal strike.

Strike-related layoffs and bad weather account for some of the jump. But department officials think striking miners also account for part of it.

The officials can't tell exactly how much they have calculated only aggregate increases, and for only three states.

In West Virginia, 258,289 recipients got $6.1 million worth of free food coupons during December. The numbers climbed to 332,000 and $9.3 million in January and to 350,000 and $9.8 million in February.

In Ohio, 716,994 recipients got $19.6 million worth of free food stamps in December. The numbers climbed to 752,843 and $21.8 million in January and to 805,542 and $23.3 million in February.

In Indiana, 175,530 recipients got $4.2 million worth of free stamps in December. The numbers climbed to 177,285 and $4.5 million in January and to 187,922 and $4.7 million in February.

Although the figures for March haven't been tabulated yet, Shepherd said, "most recipients already have their March allotments." He said that means loss of eligibility would not take effect until April.

Romantics disappear in winter

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Motel owners at Niagara Falls can testify it's hard to be romantic when you're cold. "There are just no people — period," said Lily Huang, new owner of the Moonlite Motel.

She said when she and her husband bought the motel, they were assured, "business during the summer was good enough to help you make it through the winter."

Lions completing syrupy plans

What in the world does one do in preparing to serve pancakes to 10,000 hungry guests?

Well, in the first place, one probably would say, "How in the world did I ever get into this situation?"

And the answer comes back, "You invited them, so you had better get set to serve them all the pancakes they can eat."

And this is exactly as it is with the Midland Downtown Lions Club, which anticipates serving pancakes to 10,000 Midland and area residents Saturday.

The occasion is the club's 22nd annual Pancake Jamboree to be held from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the Dellwood Plaza Mall.

Careful planning was the first step taken by club members several months in advance of the Jamboree.

The naming of committees followed, with chairmen setting about lining up Lions to handle the work chores at the Jamboree.

It then was time to get out the invitations and each of the club's 300-plus members was handed anywhere from 25 to 450 tickets to sell in advance of the big fund-raising event. To date, several thousand tickets have been sold, with Ticket No. 10,000 expected to be sold by the end of the week.

It then was time to purchase the groceries, whivvps to be quite an impressive item. The buyers started off with 2,600 or 2,700 pounds of pancake mix, but this probably won't be enough. Add to that 1,700 pounds of sausage, 3,500 half-pints of milk, 3,500 half-pints of orange juice, ingredients for 6,000 or more cups of coffee, 75 cases of syrup and 300 cartons of butter, and you have quite a grocery bill.

Then it is time to get the necessary equipment — 20 or more griddles, six electric fryers and a like number of food warmers, in order to assure fast-moving lines throughout the day.

The "silverware" to be used in the Jamboree previously had been packaged by the Lion Tamers, the club's women's auxiliary.

Then comes one of the most important assignments — the arranging for top musical talent to perform at scheduled hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

All this has been done, and the Downtown Lions are ready for pancake action Saturday. Everyone is invited and urged to attend.

All proceeds go to finance the club's far-reaching sight and hearing conservation programs, youth welfare, community projects, charitable causes and others.

Monday's ruling puts schools 'back in court'

Midland public schools trustee Joe Dominey today said he supposed Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision extending the Voting Rights Act of 1965 to school districts and cities "puts us (the school district) back in court."

The U.S. Justice Department currently is suing the district and several other political subdivisions to comply with the Voting Rights Act. The district is contending that since it does not have jurisdiction over voter registration it is not covered by the Voting Rights Act.

Dominey said, it "appears the Supreme Court ruling negates the school district's contention" that it is not covered by the Voting Rights Act. However, he said he didn't think it would affect the upcoming trustee elections since they already are under way.

The next move, he said, is up to the Justice Department. Justice Department officials were unavailable for comment.

Board President Johnny Warren said he, too, thought elections in April will go on as scheduled. He said he thought the school district would have to change the election system in the future, though.

Warren said he would have to consult the school attorney, Charles Tighe, to find out for sure what the effects of the Supreme Court ruling will be. Tighe could not be reached for comment.

Presently, the school trustees are elected according to a place system with a majority vote requirement.

Texas Attorney General John Hill in Midland this morning said he is certain a motion for rehearing will be filed before the Supreme Court. Although "the odds are against it" being approved, Hill said, he declined to comment on the case until that motion is filed.

Students win again at area speech meet

EL PASO — For the sixth time in a row, Lee High School speech and drama students from Midland won the Grand Sweepstakes trophy, the top prize, at the recent Irvin High School Forensics Meet here.

In addition, eight Lee High students qualified for competition at the Texas Forensics Association State Tournament. They were Greg McCabe and Bruce McConnell, humorous interpretation; Kelly Westerman and Craig Stanford, duet acting; Mike Shaunessy, original oratory; Stanford and Miss Westerman, dramatic interpretation; and Tricia Munson, girls' extemporaneous speaking.

Students from Midland High School in Midland also participated in the tournament. Hal Coon won first place in dramatic interpretation and Therese Folger and Joni Brown took third place in debate. Finalists were Jane Forsyth, girls' extemporaneous speaking, and Coon, humorous interpretation.

The winners and finalists from Lee High were:

HUMOROUS INTERPRETATION: McCabe, second place, and McConnell, finalist.

DUET ACTING: Liz Shrode and John Gould, second place, Stanford and Miss Westerman, third, and Torbin Quist and Rhonda Huxman, finalists.

ORIGINAL ORATORY: Shaunessy, first place, and Mike Cummins, finalist.

POETRY INTERPRETATION: Liz Shrode, second place, McConnell, finalist.

DRAMATIC INTERPRETATION: Miss Westerman, second place, and Tricia Munson, finalist.

GIRLS' EXTEMPORANEOUS SPEAKING: Laura Snell, first place, Pat Harris, second, and Tricia Munson, finalist.

BOYS' EXTEMPORANEOUS SPEAKING: Tim Norman, first place, and Stephen Stovall, finalist.

TEMPORANEOUS SPEAKING: Dominey said, it "appears the Supreme Court ruling negates the school district's contention" that it is not covered by the Voting Rights Act. However, he said he didn't think it would affect the upcoming trustee elections

Duck reads new word

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Sir Lancelot, Drake University's reading duck, has added a new word to his burgeoning vocabulary.

Graduate students Roy Gilliland and Steve Yund say he now starts to quack when he sees the word "talk." Sir Lancelot already has been taught to respond appropriately when he sees "peck" and "turn."

DEATHS

Thomas Bass Pope

Thomas B. Pope

Thomas Bass Pope, 59, a 10-year resident of Midland, died this morning in a Midland hospital following a brief illness. He resided at 3803 Fannin St.

Services will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home with Dr. Charles Luttrell, senior minister of First United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Pope, born Oct. 13, 1918, at Alvarado, grew up there and was graduated from North Texas State University in Denton in 1941. He went to work for Mobil Oil Co., and then joined Texaco Inc., for which he worked as a landman for 27 years. He moved to Midland in the late 1960s from Roswell, N.M.

Survivors include his wife, Jane Estill Pope; two sons, Bruce Pope of Houston and Bryan T. Pope of Midland; a sister, Mrs. W. E. Steer of Amarillo and two grandchildren.

Carter infant

ANDREWS — Graveside services for Glenda Kay Carter, 5-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carter of Andrews, were to be at 4 p.m. today in Andrews Cemetery.

The Rev. Eddy Freeman, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church of Andrews, was to officiate. Services were to be directed by Singleton Funeral Home here.

The child died Monday at an Andrews hospital after a lengthy illness.

Survivors include the parents; a brother, James Thomas Carter of Andrews, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Carter of Andrews and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Housden of Aubrey.

Florence King

Florence M. King, 80, died Sunday night at a Midland hospital. She resided at 2001 W. Indiana Ave.

Services will be at 11:30 a.m. Thursday in the Blount Funeral Home Chapel in Tampa, Fla. Burial will be in Providence Cemetery in Tampa, Fla. Local arrangements were made by Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. King was born April 9, 1897 in Webb City, Mo. She spent her early life in Oklahoma, near Miami, where she met and married Jeff Newton Aldridge. They moved to Tampa in the early 1900's and lived there where Aldridge was a pioneer merchant. He died in 1942. Mrs. King moved to Midland nine months ago.

Survivors include two sons, Albert Forrest Aldridge of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Earl D. King of Tampa, Fla.; three daughters, Mrs. Richard K. Buckland of Midland, Mrs. Johnny Wells of Los Angeles and Mrs. Robert Gaines of Washington, D.C.; 14 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A. McLaughlin

Annie T. McLaughlin, 67, of 1916 W. Washington Ave., died early today at a Midland hospital.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home with Rev. Bob Porterfield, pastor of West Kentucky Street Baptist Church, officiating. He will be assisted by Rev. Ross Payne, pastor of Cottonflat Baptist Church.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Mrs. McLaughlin was born Feb. 21, 1911, in Hamilton County. She lived for a few years in Eunice, N.M., and spent the remainder of her life in Midland. She married S. G. McLaughlin in 1930. He died in 1937.

Mrs. McLaughlin belonged to the West Kentucky Street Baptist Church, was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, Rebekah Lodge and the auxiliaries of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign War.

Survivors included Wesley Paddock of Midland; a sister, Lilly Eiland of Socorro, N.M. and a nephew.

Edward B. Smith

BIG SPRING — Edward Bob Smith, 58, died Monday in a Big Spring hospital after a lengthy illness.

Graveside services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Mount Olive Memorial Park directed by Nalley-Pickie Funeral Home.

Smith was born Dec. 17, 1919, in Ada, Okla. He came to Big Spring 20 years ago. He married Genevieve Myers July 12, 1975, in Big Spring.

Survivors include his wife; a stepson, Gilbert Myers of Big Spring, and two sisters, Cecilann Carter and Leola Miers, both of Ada, Okla.

George Kidd

George Kidd, 72, a Midland oil operator who had lived here since 1935, died Monday night in a Midland hospital following an illness of a few days.

He resided at 1505 Humble Ave.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel. Officiating will be the Rev. J. B. Stewart, associate minister of the First United Methodist Church. Burial site is pending.

Kidd was born Oct. 23, 1905, in Brownwood and spent his early life there. He attended Howard Payne University and the University of Oklahoma.

After leaving his college studies, Kidd joined his father in the banking business at Brownwood.

Later, he worked in the oil fields in East Texas. In the 1930s, he lived in Oklahoma City, Okla.

In 1935, Kidd moved to Midland and was in the oil business with his brother until World War II broke out. He served in the armed forces, returned to Midland following the war and continued in the oil business.

Survivors include his wife, Lila; a brother, Barron Kidd of Dallas, and two nephews.

Moises Velarde

Moises Velarde, 64, of Route 3, Midland, died Sunday afternoon in a Big Spring hospital.

Rosary will be said at 8 p.m. today in the Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel. Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. Officiating will be the Rev. Charles Hasenauer, the church's priest. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Velarde, who had lived in Midland since 1940, retired two years ago as a sanitarian for the city of Midland.

Velarde was born May 28, 1913, in Imperial, and spent his early life in Colorado City. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Delfina A. Velarde, two sons, Roman Velarde of Midland and Reynaldo Velarde of Amarillo; two daughters, Yolanda V. Nunez and Mrs. Joe E. Chavez, both of Midland; three brothers, Elias Velarde of Midland, Domingo Velarde of Oceanside, Calif., and Alberto Velarde of Wasco, Calif.; three sisters, Faustina Banuelos of Bakersfield, Calif., Esperanza Aguilar of Yuma, Ariz., and Schana Alvarez of Colorado City; 20 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Hill supports truckers' layover

John Hill, state attorney general and Democratic candidate for governor, this morning said he would encourage truckers to honor the 72-hour layover requested by leaders of the American Agriculture Movement's farm strike.

"I support their activities," Hill said of the demonstrating farmers. "I think they're doing a good job" in telling the American people that farmers are "going broke," he added.

Striking farmers in Big Spring are trying to convince truckers, particularly those carrying produce, not to transport their cargoes for 72 hours.

Hill was in Midland this morning to attend a reception at the Midland Hilton.

Taft-Hartley Act draws criticism from miners

By The Associated Press

"It ain't gonna work," said one mine union official. Another called it "slave labor." An Ohio miner was even more succinct as he watched President Carter on television invoking the Taft-Hartley Act. "That does it," he said, and walked out.

Similar comments were heard across the coalfields Monday as miners heard Carter announce the first moves to order them back on the 91st day of the United Mine Workers strike, a day in which even harsher power cutbacks were announced in the coal-short Midwest.

Carter named a panel whose job it will be to recommend an 80-day, back-to-work order during which new efforts could be made to negotiate a contract. The panel has scheduled a hearing Wednesday, and a federal judge could be asked for an order that same day.

Administration sources also noted miners who violate a government order might become ineligible for food stamps and that refusal to work could result in fines or jail sentences for local union leaders.

Army staff officers, meanwhile, were reported reviewing civil disturbance control plans, but Pentagon officials said federal troops would be used in the coal strike crisis only as a very last resort.

Carter acted after miners from Appalachia to as far west as Oklahoma rejected, by a more than 2-

Of his office's investigation of the Ector County Jail death of Larry Lozano, Hill said, "It could be two or three months before we have everything wrapped up."

He said his staff has received information from the Department of Public Safety on the Texas Ranger investigation of the Lozano death, and that evidence will be studied.

Hill also indicated he will ask Ector County District Attorney John Green if Green has any evidence not subject to grand jury secrecy and which might be shared with Hill.

The purpose of the investigation by the Attorney General's Office, Hill said, is to determine whether to to-1 margin, the latest offer from the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. They had voted over the weekend and Monday.

Whether the 166,000 striking miners would return to the job under orders was in serious doubt, given the UMW tradition of no-contract, no-work, and the attitude of many miners' toward Carter's latest move. Some miners interviewed Monday said they would go back, but many more said they would not or would wait for local union votes.

UMW President Arnold Miller predicted fewer than half the strikers would return to work under Taft-Hartley. "And those that don't go to work will try to stop those that do," he said. "It's a sticky situation."

Some miners expected violence should any men return to work. Chester Newsome, president of Local 8100, which favors the contract, said his truck was smashed and overturned Monday near Pikeville, Ky.

Some miners and union leaders also said miners would go back only if the government seized the mines — one other option open to Carter and one they felt would put the onus on mine operators as well as miners.

"Nobody is going back. We want seizure, not Taft," said miner Terry Hodge near Cabin Creek, W.Va. "Nobody can make us do nothing. United we stand, divided we fall. We're going to stand."

Twice shot Larry Flynt still listed as critical

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt, shot and critically wounded outside the courthouse where he was being tried on obscenity charges, had his spleen removed today in an effort to control internal bleeding.

Flynt's surgeon was reported to be "very happy with the condition of the patient."

In a four-hour operation immediately after the shooting Monday, Flynt had parts of both his large and small intestines removed.

Flynt, 34, a pornography millionaire who recently said he had found God with the help of President Carter's evangelist sister, and his local attorney, Gene Reeves Jr., 47, were wounded during a luncheon recess in the trial in this community of 6,000 about 30 miles northeast of Atlanta.

They had been walking back to the courthouse from a cafeteria.

Flynt was shot twice, said assistant hospital administrator Walt Fielding. Reeves was shot in the arm and the side, said Herald Fahringer, a Flynt attorney.

Andrew Jaffee, a vice president of Flynt's business and a spokesman for the family, said the second operation lasted about 2½ hours and that "the procedure did what it intended to do," control the hemorrhaging.

Jaffee said the surgeon, Dr. Tahier Bagheri, "reported to Mrs. Flynt that he was very happy with the condition of the patient."

Flynt was still listed in critical condition, as was Reeves, said officials at Button Gwinnett Hospital.

John Hughes, hospital administrator, said late Monday that both men were conscious but were "not strong enough" to talk to police and "too critical to be moved."

Police said they had no suspects. Fahringer said a gunman was seen jumping into a car and speeding off.

A motorist who had been sought for questioning was interrogated Monday night, but police refused to give details.

Hughes said a bullet from one of the victims was turned over to authorities. He would not reveal its caliber or from which man it was taken.

Flynt was visited Monday by his wife, Althea, 24, and by evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton. President Carter's sister, Flynt said it was after several visits with Mrs. Stapleton last year that he saw a vision of Christ and underwent a religious conversion while traveling in his pink jet.

Flynt said in a Cincinnati news conference last month that he feared for his life because of his private investigation into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Flynt had offered a $1 million reward for information about the slaying, which he believed to be the result of a conspiracy.

Doug Campbell, Flynt's personal administrator, said Flynt had been optimistic Sunday that his two-week trial here on charges of distributing obscene materials — specifically the August 1977 issue of Hustler — would produce an acquittal.

recommend federal prosecution under civil rights laws.

"I'm not sure what the FBI and the Justice Department have done (so far). I'm meeting my own independent responsibilities" to conduct an investigation "in response to a legitimate citizen request," he said.

Hill said the "more credible public opinion surveys" show him ahead of incumbent Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

He charged that Briscoe "is beginning to realize he's behind in the race and he's adopting my issues," such as lowering utility rates.

Hill again promised to increase spending for education, without any new taxes.

Of the "no new taxes" issue, Hill said Briscoe "feels he's the only one in the world that can make that statement."

Hearing aid found through want ads

Want ads work. They bring quick results.

Just ask Midlander Jack Petosky.

On Monday, Petosky phoned The Reporter-Telegram's classified advertising department to place an ad. He had lost his $400 hearing aid.

When ad taker Peggy Anderson read the ad back to Petosky, she was overheard by switchboard operator Judy Ellis, who works nearby.

Mrs. Ellis, who handles the newspaper's lost and found, noted that the description of Petosky's lost hearing aid matched that of one turned in to her last week.

Mrs. Anderson phoned Petosky. He drove to the newspaper office, identified his hearing aid and, with much thanks, was on his way.

Petosky, of 2901 Sentinel Drive, regularly buys a Home edition each afternoon from the vending rack in front of the newspaper office. The hearing aid must have fallen out of his pocket one day last week when he bent over the rack, he said.

Petosky branded the newspaper's current "guaranteed results" want ad promotion a winner. His lost and found ad, he noted, was never even published.

Big Spring man Boys softball posts drug bond registration begins at YMCA

BIG SPRING — A 20-year-old Big Spring man was charged with possession of heroin here today following his arrest in a parking lot early Saturday afternoon.

Larry Marquez posted a $25,000 bond after his arraignment today before Peace Justice Bob West, police said.

Approximately ½-ounce of a substance believed to be heroin was seized by narcotics officers from Big Spring, San Angelo and the Department of Public Safety during a raid in the parking lot of the Veterans Hospital in Big Spring on Saturday, according to police reports.

The Alamo and Central YMCAs will be accepting registrations for first- to third-grade boys' softball until March 13. Any boy who is 6, 7 or 8 years old and who is an Alamo or Central member may register.

Peewee softball is a program designed to emphasize parent-son involvement. Mothers or fathers can play in the field along side their son to offer coaching and supportive encouragement. Every boy plays all of every game.

Farmers to stop trucks

PORTALES (AP) —

About 250 Roosevelt County farmers were asked to stop trucks on Interstate 70 and U.S. 60 east of Clovis in an attempt to halt food deliveries to eastern cities.

Dennis Baker, a Clovis farmer and coordinator for eastern New Mexico farmers, told the farmers at a meeting Monday night in Portales to ask the drivers not to carry any food for four days after they reach their destination.

Man charged with rape

BIG SPRING — Rape charges were filed Monday with Chief Justice Bob West against Ronnie Carter, 32, of Big Spring.

Carter is charged in connection with a Saturday night incident involving a 10-year-old girl. He was arrested early Sunday morning.

Street closing favored

The Midland Planning and Zoning Commission Monday recommended approval of the closing at some time in the future of Baird Street between Texas and Illinois avenues as part of a plan county officials have to eventually build a new courthouse annex.

County Commissioner Durward Wright told the commission that vacating of this section of North Baird Street was necessary so that architectural plans for the development of county property in the area can proceed.

On December 30, 1977, the county commissioners finalized purchase of property in the 200 block of Baird Street for $175,000.

The proposal must also be approved by the Midland City Council.

Some advice for city gardeners

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

It isn't too early to plan a city garden. By the time you get it on paper and list the things you need, it will be time to turn over a spade of earth.

Your friends may try to discourage you with horror tales, say experienced city gardeners. But don't be discouraged when they tell you air pollution, tomatoes and rubble in compacted soil will be obstacles along the way to achieving your goal, advises Frederick McCourt Jr., the editor of "Plants and Gardens," a publication of the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens.

McCourt is a super gardener at his weekend country home where he and his wife raise 500 kinds of perennials, but his small city garden is a no-sweat operation — one he can enjoy without being a slave to it.

"It is all a low-maintenance operation. On hot nights I don't want to go home and putter around in the garden. I want to relax."

"I have planted impatiens and wax begonias close together and these give you a big yield for low maintenance. Then, too, there is privet. A lot of people turn up their noses at privet but you can make it very attractive by shaping it and it requires little care."

"It also provides a great deal of privacy, especially in a small garden, important in urban areas," says McCourt.

He and horticulturist Edmond O. Moulin recently put together an encouraging article on the subject for a botanical garden handbook.

All gardens require a lot of care, they point out, and maybe the city garden will require more initially than a country one, but once you've established it, the condition and yield will be the same — maybe better.

But weeds can't be ignored — they stand out more in small gardens. And city gardens need lots of water, it should be remembered.

DEAR ABBY

Grandma's check for Christmas doesn't mean much to mother

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You were way off base to defend the lazy Grandma who gave her grandchildren checks for Christmas.

It's obvious that you haven't lived with small children for some time. A check means absolutely nothing to a small child. But I'll tell you what it means to a small child's mother. It means she has to make a trip to the bank, and then a trip to the store to buy something with the money.

That usually means dragging the kids along with her. That may not sound like much of a hardship, but working around the children's naps, it would take my whole day to do it.

I can think of a lot of ways I would rather spend my time than doing my mother-in-law's shopping! —NO CHECKS, PLEASE

DEAR NO: If the gifts happen to be the right size, the right color and exactly what the children need or want — wonderful! But what if they aren't? Wouldn't you rather have a check than the chore of exchanging the gifts? (Most mothers are more familiar than grandmothers with their children's needs and desires.) My mail has been running 20 to one in favor of checks. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: FURIOUS must be kidding! She's the ninny who complained because her mother-in-law gave her a check and told her to buy something for her kids for Christmas from "Grandma."

I should be so lucky! My mother-in-law walks in empty-handed on Christmas Day to pick up HER gifts! Tell FURIOUS I'll be glad to give her my mother-in-law if she'll give me hers. —FURIOUS WITH FURIOUS

DEAR ABBY: My mother is always on my back about something. It's "sit up straight, talk slower, turn down the TV, quit picking your face, go do your homework!"

What's a poor defenseless teenager supposed to do anyway? —HASSLED

DEAR HASSLED: Sit up straight, talk slower, turn down the TV, quit picking your face, or go do your homework.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the person who was looking for an alternative to the traditional cigars handed out on the arrival of a new baby.

We had a baby last October, and being a non-smoker, I had no intentions of handing out cigars. Instead, my wife boiled three dozen eggs and wrote "IT'S A GIRL" on each one with a pink felt-tipped pen. It made a great hit in the office. —RON G., GRANADA HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR RON: Considering that an "egg" started the whole thing, you hatched a great idea!

Couple married in church rites

HOUSTON — Dianne Nibe, daughter of Col. and Mrs. M. J. Nibe of San Antonio, and Tom Clader, son of Dr. and Mrs. Durwood N. Clader of Midland, were united in marriage in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer. The Rev. Brian McCullough officiated.

The bride's attendant was Mrs. Sue Dalton. Dan Clader served as best man, and Melinda Price was flower girl.

The bride, a registered nurse, is a faculty member of the Duchesne Academy of the Sacred Heart in Houston. The bridegroom, a graduate of Texas A&M University, will receive a doctor of medicine degree from Baylor College of Medicine in June.

The couple is at home at 12213 Troulon St., Houston.

Judge speaks at club meet

Midland County Judge Barbara Culver discussed laws pertaining to juveniles and the rights and responsibilities of parents for the Mothers of Twins Club at a meeting in Western State Bank.

Judge Culver also discussed programs provided by the State of Texas for juveniles, and explained Texas law is stressing basic educational needs as well as vocational training.

The Midland Mothers of Twins Club is open to all mothers of multiples. Interested persons may contact Mrs. Linda Golden, 682-5077, for information.

Half of nation not staying in debt to help the economy

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I just read a pretty shocking figure.

A survey was taken revealing that at the end of the year, 48 per cent of the American people were $500 in debt.

Have you any idea what that means? It means 52 per cent of you out there just aren't trying.

Lord knows, I've tried to do my share. I've overextended myself, lived beyond my means, and at one time suffered credit card burns over 34 of my hands.

Some people sit around and do absolutely nothing for the national economy. My friend, Mayva, is one of them. She and I will start out early in the morning to shop.

AT WIT'S END

By noon, I will have made three trips to the car and still have a shopping bag so laden that it is severing the fingers from my right hand.

Mayva will have purchased a 15-cent belt for her sweater and two potholders that are seconds.

"You make me sick," I told her the other day.

"You and your tight fists."

"I don't see anything I need," she said.

"Mayva, can 48 per cent of the American people be wrong?"

"You call yourself an American? What's that got to do with anything? Do you honestly think I enjoy dedicating my life to unpaid balances and second notices? This country was built on the premise that 100 per cent of its people would live above their means. There are only 48 per cent of us living up to our bargain. How does that make you feel, Mayva, to be a part of that vast majority who doesn't care?"

"Something is wrong here. Tell me again how by saving money, I'm letting my country down."

"Look, Mayva, when our forefathers came to this country they were bullish on poverty. They had to spend money to lose it, take it out of their socks and breathe life into our economy. If God had wanted us to save money He would have sent floods to EOM sales. Our whole system is based on supply and demand. We supply the bodies for Halston dresses and our creditors demand payment for them. Do you smell something, Mayva?"

She sniffed. "Not really."

"It's a sale. I smell a sale, Mayva. I do believe it's a half price. Here, give me your hand and I'll slide your charge card into it. Pick up the first thing you see and repeat after me, 'Charge it!'"

How does that make you feel, Mayva, to be a part of that vast majority who doesn't care?"

"Something is wrong here. Tell me again how by saving money, I'm letting my country down."

"Look, Mayva, when our forefathers came to this country they were bullish on poverty. They had to spend money to lose it, take it out of their socks and breathe life into our economy. If God had wanted us to save money He would have sent floods to EOM sales. Our whole system is based on supply and demand. Public Schools Week

This is Public Schools Week in Texas, one of the most significant and most widely observed of any statewide observance.

Public school districts across the length and breadth of the Lone Star State are observing the occasion in varied ways, most staging special programs and open house events in the various schools. It is an occasion in which all citizens can and should join in observing.

The observance is especially noteworthy in the Tall City of Midland, which is fortunate in having one of the very finest public school systems to be found anywhere. Midlanders always have provided the Midland Independent School District with the best of most everything — capable, well-qualified administrative personnel and faculty, along with modern buildings, excellent equipment and other facilities. The system also strives continually to keep abreast with recognized improvements in teaching methods and procedures.

School trustees also are dedicated persons, interested sincerely in making sure that the best education possible is made available for every child in the school district.

It is no wonder that residents of the school district are proud of their public school system. They certainly have every right to be.

And, generally speaking, this very same feeling of pride in their public schools exists in communities across the state. All Texans are interested in making their respective schools better in every respect. This is why Texas Public Schools week meets with such widespread, favorable response everywhere.

At the same time, citizens are finding out that quality education is expensive, and becoming more so all the time. This brings the realization that citizens should and must become better informed as to the operation of their public school systems, making sure that full value is received for every dollar spent.

If you haven't done so recently, this particular observance provides an excellent opportunity for you to visit your public schools in order to gain first-hand information as to their operation and teaching procedures. Chances are that many visitors will be amazed at the innovations and improvements made since their last schoolroom visit.

Meanwhile, a snappy, well-merited salute is directed to our public schools during Public Schools Week in Texas.

WASHINGTON — Each year, Americans scatter like ants around the world, backpacking through the Rockies, riding the Hawaiian surf, kissing the Irish Blarney stone, sipping rum and Coca Cola at Bimini's End of the World Bar.

They lay out billions of dollars for their vacations, but they don't always get what they pay for. This is the conclusion of Federal Trade Commission investigators who have spent two years examining the travel industry.

Their confidential report charges that tour promoters engage in "hotel overbooking," fail "to provide advertised items" and don't always "provide notification of changes in tour packages." These abuses increase vacation costs and cause untold inconveniences for the travelers.

Yet despite these findings, we have learned that the commission is not likely to correct the wrongs in the travel industry. Chairman Michael Pertschuk told our associate, Marc Smolonsky that the commission is "skeptical" about the adequacy of the investigation. He feared it may have been "misleading."

In a confidential memorandum to the commissioners, the consumer protection chief, Albert Kramer, tersely advised ending the massive investigation. It "indicated," he wrote, "that 50 percent of the overbooking complaints emanate from Las Vegas and Hawaii."

"All that may be necessary to demonstrate our continued involvement," he suggested, "might be a couple cases aimed at operators in these markets."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

FTC probes travel industry

The secret investigation was conducted by the Boston regional office which subpoenaed the records of more than 80 wholesale travel operators, 39 airlines and approximately 25 hotel chains. The investigators also examined 2,500 unsolicited consumer complaints.

They have accumulated what they describe as "overwhelming evidence of significant deviations from promised tour arrangements." The investigators also discovered that "hotel overbooking causes consumers to be denied promised hotel accommodations." This may be "the most significant advertised item often not delivered."

Sometimes the travel agents changed "features of the tour without notifying their customers." The report explained that the agents "are reluctant to notify consumers about changes for fear of heavy cancellations."

The harassed travelers often don't know who to blame for fouling up their travel arrangements. The retail salesmen "rarely disclose the wholesalers' identity, thereby making it difficult for a consumer to trace the guilty party."

Adds the report: "Refunds are often unavailable or, if obtained, usually inadequate."

Footnote: Neither Kramer nor the Boston office would discuss the investigation, because the study is privileged. We learned from our own sources, however, that the Boston investigators strongly disagree with Kramer's assessment.

CHARLEY REESE: Equal rights amendments get writer's attention

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Those tight-lipped, steely-eyed, oh-so-sincere sisters are stirring again in the hope of frightening hold-out legislators around the country into ratifying the ridiculous Equal Rights Amendments.

What nature hath wrought these persons would have the law erase.

Joining them in their stir are those liberal males who wear their support for the ERA like a silver ring in their noses by which Fear-of-Being-Thought-Non-Liberal leads them about.

As for me, I am seeking in my home state a brave legislator who will introduce a bill proposing the death penalty for any legislator who votes for the ERA on the grounds that it constitutes yellow-bellied flight in the face of an enemy.

The ERA is one of those useless ideas which will not accomplish what it is supposed to accomplish but will bring off several negative results its more sincere, if glib, supporters will hate along with the rest of us.

Equal pay for equal work is not an issue. That is covered by the Equal Pay Act of 1963; Title VII, Civil Rights Act of 1964; and Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972.

ERA will not help women in the field of credit. This was taken care of by the Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1974. It will not change their educational opportunities. If there had been any real discrimination here, it was eliminated by law with the Education Amendments of 1972.

What, you may be asking, will the ERA accomplish?

Well, it will be meaningless until it is interpreted by the courts and applied to specific instances. Unfortunately, the ordinary working gal or housewife is not going to hop up and file a federal lawsuit.

But the wackos and freaks will.

So depending on which test cases go before which judges and what their rulings are, the ERA could legalize homosexual marriages; abolish segregated facilities like restrooms, prisons and college dormitories; require women to be equally responsible for the support of their families (and thereby perhaps eliminate alimony and child support).

The important point is that nobody knows for sure what nut will go to court with what idiotic suit before what far-out judge.

Therefore the reasonable thing to do — since all its legitimate aims have already been accomplished and there is no protection against bad consequences — is to let it die unratified.

Being a reasonable position, of course, means that most of the march-in-the-street feminists will have nothing to do with it.

Naturally, being over-emotional, these persons think anyone who dares oppose their crackpot scheme is automatically a male chauvinist. A male chauvinist would say, "What do you expect from female logic?"

Contrary to popular myth, however, I don't fall into that category. It's no skin off my ego if women wish to run for president or stop hogs and drive trucks. In fact, I have never made a speech on politics to a group of women that I didn't urge them to get involved.

I don't like the idea, however, of a bunch of muddle-heads muddling up the law under which I — equally, you know — have to live.

Furthermore, I especially don't like bubble-heads who insult women who choose to stay at home. Anyone who doesn't know that managing a household and rearing children requires 10 times more intelligence, energy, skill, and dedication than most jobs in the business world is dumb.

The feminist movement went off the track when the women let the Marxists, lesbians, and freaks take it away from them.

Hamilton Jordan has a new title at the White House — Token Libertine.

Jordan has received lots of support, including this wire: "Hang in there, Ham — tough it out." (Signed) Wayne Hays.

Jordan has been asked to speak at the annual Norman Mailer Symposium on Social Graces.

The White House is a study in contrasts. President Carter could drink but doesn't. Hamilton Jordan does but can't.

Since teetotaling is a hallmark of the Carter White House, I suppose Jordan is there to take up the slack.

Mr. Jordan's social life is none of our business until it affects his performance. Perhaps as a precaution he could be given a less critical position requiring neither decision making nor any talent whatsoever. How about Vice President?

Power diffused

Fears of a radical takeover in France are relieved somewhat by the inability of the Communists and Socialists to tolerate each other.

Both parties are so concerned with wooing the leftist vote in this month's elections that they are creating a gap that their ambitions for power may not be able to bridge. The beneficiary of the growing incompatibility is the administration of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

But the allies who depend upon a stable France in maintaining economic and military security in Europe and throughout the world are also pleased with the disunity.

The Communists, who advocate sweeping nationalization and massive social change, have accused the Socialists of turning "to the right." The kind words bestowed upon Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand by President Carter during his Paris visit have stained Mitterrand, in Communist eyes, with the capitalist brush.

Observers believe that the Communists and Socialists together can win half the votes or more, unless they alienate their supporters with their sniping.

But neither would be able to take power without the help of the other and the exchange of accusations makes a pact increasingly unlikely. The friends of France are grateful.

INSIDE REPORT:

Hamilton Jordan's problem hints at future problems

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Continuing expansion of Hamilton Jordan's jerry-built power at the White House, despite the titillating public debate over what he did in a Washington singles bar, reveals much about the Carter presidency and hints at future problems.

Once President Carter's principal aide became the target of political cartoons and Johnny Carson monologues, old Washington hands presumed Jordan's days were numbered. That betrayed the establishment's inability to understand Jimmy Carter. The Oval Office perception that anti-Jordan ridicule is a cultural attack on the Georgians now in power solidifies Jordan's position.

The result is more than mere survival. Rather, the unfavorable publicity coincided with the evolution of Jordan into a de facto chief of staff who will not and cannot fulfill the duties of that post. Because nobody else can perform those duties while Jordan holds the job, the trouble afflicting the White House in the first Carter year may be perpetuated.

Serious problems posed by Jordan's unsuitability for the role are now eclipsed by his difficulties with the gossipists. Other presidential aides say that for Mr. Carter to downgrade the beleaguered Jordan at this time would invite anti-Carter snipers to pick off others in his official family.

This admirable sentiment,

Evans

however, hints at an "us-against-them" bunker mentality. By the account of presidential aides, the attack on Jordan stems partly from the Washington establishment's scorn for the Georgia upstarts and partly from a desire to damage the President himself. Such intense emotion tends to bury the real Jordan problem.

Jordan spent his early White House period as a patronage dispenser, but in easy, unpublicized steps has taken on the difficult assignment of coordinating action and policy. He was first assigned the task of political analysis on all questions, then given the job of coordinating all policy steps with political ends. He now runs meetings of both the senior staff and overall staff and attends national security staff meetings. Jordan has been the point-man on everything important: Lance, Panama, coal, Midwest, SALT.

This looks suspiciously like the conventional chief of staff, that both the President and Jordan abjure, but herein lies the danger. While seeming to perform that necessary function, Jordan cannot really meet its administrative requirements. Of all the Georgians close to Mr. Carter, press secretary Jody Powell must best be qualified to handle that job, but never Jordan.

A symptom is his refusal to return press or congressional telephone calls. He explains this by saying he does not want to preempt press secretary Powell or White House lobbyist Frank Moore, but in fact he never returns anyone's call.

How explain this phobia about the telephone, unparalleled since the notorious phobia of Czar Nicholas II? Friends of Jordan insist it is not arrogance, but shyness and administrative incompetence. "Hamilton just can't handle hundreds of phone calls," one staffer told us.

If that administrative task is beyond Jordan, obviously he cannot handle what other presidential aides feel is urgently needed: a reduction of Mr. Carter's routine, an early-warning system for trouble ahead, a high degree of political coordination. While Jordan stays as ineffective chief of staff, obviously no effective chief can be installed.

Moreover, Jordan is no formulator of coherent administration philosophy. Some colleagues say he is a committed liberal; others that he is more pragmatic than ideological. He was instrumental in the President's decision to scrap the B-1 bomber, but his argument was Mr. Carter's duty to fulfill a campaign promise.

Canal pact opponents retrench after losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Battered by repeated setbacks in trying to cripple one of two controversial Panama Canal treaties with amendments, opponents are retrenching with an agreement allowing the pact to come to a showdown vote in nine days.

"We took a look at it and figured the time had come to expedite matters," Sen. Paul Laxalt, the anti-treaty forces' chief strategist, said after the arrangement was announced Monday.

The agreement to set a time limit on debating the neutrality pact means the opponents have abandoned their attempts to attach amendments that would tie up Senate business for weeks and which Panama would not accept.

And, in all likelihood, a vote on the second treaty, which would actually give the waterway to Panama, probably will not come before the 10-day recess that begins March 24.

Behind the treaty foes' retrenchment is the evident hope that, over the recess, enough senators will hear enough sentiment against the treaties that the second pact will be scuttled in a floor vote.

For the present, the two sides are in a standoff: While backers don't have the 67 votes to ensure the neutrality pact's ratification, neither can its opponents count on the 34 votes needed to guarantee it will be killed.

While opponents lost in another vote Monday, Laxalt, R-Nev., and Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., said they were not conceding that the neutrality treaty will pass.

Monday's vote, on a proposal to restrict enemy ships from the waterway in wartime, saw the foes muster 40 votes, their highest total yet and six more than would be needed to block ratification.

Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., played down the vote. "A lot of these amendments have surface appeal, and senators vote for them for reasons which I don't attempt to understand," he said.

Treaty foes are still trying, meanwhile, to pick up enough votes on what they consider substantive changes to the neutrality treaty to alter the document.

Laxalt and other treaty opponents said Monday they intend to raise new arguments about the so-called "leadership amendments" drafted by Byrd; Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn.; and other treaty supporters.

Laxalt said Monday's agreement came after a group of the most ardent foes — he called them the "100 percenters" — met over breakfast Monday. The March 16 proposal was then put to the Senate leadership, which accepted.

Even Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., who has led much of the opponents' floor debate, agreed somewhat grudgingly to go along with the deal.

The arrangement calls for debate on the neutrality treaty — which provides for joint U.S.-Panamanian defense of a neutral Panama Canal after the year 2000 — to end after eight more days.

Byrd hopes that the arrangement will bring an end to the entire issue before May 1.

PLANNING for the 14th annual French Symposium are, from left, Lynn Erwin of Lee High School, Kelly Callaway of Trinity School of Midland, Kaki O'Shaughnessy of Midland High School and Patrick Kennedy of Edison Freshman School. An orientation session for local students helping with the symposium and the judges was held this past weekend at Midland College. More than 1,000 high school students from schools across the state are expected to compete in the event, sponsored by French language teachers in Midland. The symposium will take place Friday and Saturday in the fine arts building at the college. (Staff Photo)

SS national computer complex security system not so secure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators testing the security of the Social Security System's national computer complex walked out recently with a cart carrying the names and addresses of 1.14 million beneficiaries.

The incident was acknowledged by agency officials who said corrective steps have been taken.

The tapes were taken by representatives of the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, who later returned them to Social Security officials.

"They were boasting that they were completely secure and we wanted to test and see," a GAO official said. "They were kind of embarrassed."

The GAO has told the Carter administration that, had real computer-era criminals stolen the tapes, adding to or altering the beneficiary list could have resulted in a massive fraud.

The computer facilities at Social Security headquarters in Baltimore process about $80 billion in incoming Social Security taxes and outgoing Social Security benefits a year.

"This is probably the biggest civilian computer center in the world and, frankly, I am shocked at such lax security," said Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

The GAO has conducted several studies intended to ward off computer crime at federal installations at the committee's request.

Social Security spokesman James Brown said the agency has been concerned about security for several years and has tried "different methods" to improve it.

He said in an interview that the system now used has been installed on a trial basis by its manufacturer and has not yet been accepted.

"We are trying to iron out any bugs that we see," he said, adding that because of the GAO investigation, "We are taking immediate corrective steps."

The GAO said that although the Social Security Administration recently has spent $500,000 to install a new security system for its computer operation, "the central computer facility is still not secure."

"Unauthorized personnel have access to the computer room and tape vault," the GAO said in a letter to Social Security's acting administrator, Donald J. Wortman.

"Magnetic tapes, disc packs and other property can be removed without proper authorization and blank and valid Social Security and Medicare cards can be taken from the central computer facility without question," the GAO said.

A source close to the investigation said the GAO auditors found thousands of both kinds of cards stacked in the hallways.

Brown acknowledged that cards had been stored in insecure places, but said that the situation "has been corrected."

MC workshop 'success'

Despite bad weather that curtailed attendance by some schools, the first Midland College Developmental Forensic Workshop recently held here was termed a "success" by Public Relations Director H. A. Tuck.

"The objective of the workshop was to give students an opportunity to be judged informally and to have constructive criticism presented about their abilities and areas of weakness," Tyler Tindall, college debate coach, said.

The results of the event, listed according to competition categories, were:

ORATORY: Ed Pax, New Mexico Military Institute; superior and most outstanding; Bill Buck, Vernon Regional Junior College, superior; Mark Wheeler, Midland College, superior; Patti Cobb, Midland College, superior; Dave Cates, New Mexico Military Institute, excellent; Catherine Bess, Midland College, excellent; and Lonnie Hawkins, Vernon Regional Junior College, good.

EXTEMPORANEOUS SPEAKING: Wheeler superior and most outstanding; Buck, superior; Pax, excellent; Cates, excellent; and Glen Ingram, Vernon Regional Junior College, excellent.

RADIO AND TELEVISION ANNOUNCING: Ingram, superior and most outstanding; Connie Hennig, Midland College, excellent; Anthony Taylor, New Mexico Military Institute, excellent; Bennie Jackson, Midland College, excellent; and Bryan Eng, Midland College, good.

Lee YC Chatter

By DIANA SCOTT, ANITA RAGAN & MISSY SERIGHT

Hey gang, what's happening? Can you believe Easter vacation is almost here? Only two more weeks.

This Chatter is dedicated to our Mighty Rebel Women Roundballers who went to the Regional Basketball Tournament in Abilene this past Friday. They charged into El Paso Parkland and ended the first half with a sixteen point lead. They kept on pushing for a victory but the final score ended with a loss of 59-55. Their excellent ability on the court was displayed, and we are all very proud of Mrs. Stephenson and her girls. The members of this fiery team are: Carla Goodley, Patty Adams, Liz Hellinghausen, Cindy Harrison, Melissa Oestmann, Dee Dee Poole, Gloria Young, Leisha Watkins, Deborah Kittle, Jan Carnes, Schilla McCallister, Lorry Brown, and Deborah Ledbetter. When you see these girls in the halls, congratulate them on such a fine effort.

Saturday, our Rebel Batmen cinched a double victory against Lubbock Coronado. Watch this week as they travel to Lubbock to crunch Coronado again. This Friday and Saturday, the batters will be playing at Cub Stadium in the Tournament of Champions. Everyone come out and watch.

The truckin' trackin' girls and guys trucked on the West of the Pecos Relays last Saturday. Congratulations to them on their victories. The girls trackers will travel to Odessa Friday and Saturday, while our boys travel to Amarillo Invitational Saturday.

Our swiftness Rebel golfers, both girls and boys will be playing Thursday and Friday. The boys will tee off here in Midland while the girls travel to Big Spring.

Congratulations to all our Speech and Drama competitors who did so great in the tournament at Abilene. A special congratulations goes to David Kloas for achieving the chance to go to Nationals.

"Good Luck to our L.H.S. choir as it goes into competition in the UIL contest, Wednesday and Thursday.

Larry Gatlin, a very well educated and family-loving man, writes and sings many very popular songs, some of which are, "Broken Lady," "Statues Without Hearts," and "If Practice Makes Perfect." We are very pleased with how the ticket sales are doing. Publicity has aroused people from all over West Texas to come and see this great talent. So everyone buy your tickets now from both Youth Centers and let's fill the M.H.S. auditorium on March 15.

Attention Senior Girls: The Midland Panhellenic Association is sponsoring "Sorority Forum," Monday March 13 at 7 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church. This is for college-bound senior girls who would like to know more about sororities. All interested girls should attend, and please, no jeans.

That's it for this week, M.A.D.

P.S. Senior Girls in Junior council—last Sunday was the final day to pay $7.25 for the deposit on rooms. We will be leaving March 21 and returning March 24. So start saving now for the time of your life at Padre Island.

Reception honors ARCO officials

Members of the board of directors and officers of Atlantic Richfield Co. were guests of the Midland Wilcat Committee at a reception Monday in the Petroleum Club of Midland.

Robert O. Anderson of Los Angeles, chairman of the board, headed the group of company officials from Los Angeles, Calif., New York City, Dallas and Midland.

Atlantic Richfield is the leading producer of oil in New Mexico and one of the top overall leaders in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

"We increased our activity last year over the previous year in the Permian Basin," Anderson said, "and the company will increase its activity in this area over the next few years."

"We now are re-examining various producing areas in the Basin," he said.

The ARCO boss said there are no plans to make any drastic increase in the Midland staff because "we have gradually increased our operation here and the office is capable right now of handling any increased activity."

Anderson said his company feels there still are many opportunities for the oil industry to expand, not only in the West Texas area, but throughout Texas.

Turning his thoughts to the Washington scene, Anderson predicted there will be no bill to come out of Congress this year that "will meet the needs of our energy problem, although it will be a step in that direction."

"The problem is much deeper and much more complex than the Carter Administration is willing to face," Anderson added.

He looks on imports as the main cause for the deterioration of the American dollar — one of the "greatest problems faced by our nation today."

"Our monetary problems are far more serious than the average American realizes. We will have to take very strong remedial measures in the near future and one of those steps will have to be a development of all of our energy sources, not only petroleum," he said.

In the reception line at the Petroleum Club Monday with Anderson were Louis F. Davis, executive vice president, Dallas; E. M. Benson Jr., executive vice president, Los Angeles; W. F. Kieschnick Jr., executive vice president, Los Angeles; J. P. Downer, executive vice president, Los Angeles; J. B. M. Place, executive vice president of The Anaconda Co., New York City; R. E. Wycoff, senior vice president, planning and finance, Los Angeles.

And, B. J. Lancaster, senior vice president, North American Producing Division, Dallas; J. L. Wilson, vice president, Western Region, North American Producing Division, Dallas; and Clarence E. Cardwell Jr., district manager, Permian Basin, Midland.

Robert L. Wood is chairman of the executive committee of the Wilcat Committee.

More than 500 expected for annual SEG meeting

Registration was to get underway at 1 p. m. Wednesday for the 31st Annual Midwestern Exploration Meeting of the Society of Exploration Geophysicists in Midland.

The meeting, with a theme of "Update on Exploration Expertise," will continue through Friday. Headquarters are the Midland Hilton, and the technical program will be presented in the Cinema I Theater.

The meeting, hosted by the Permian Basin Geophysical Society, with Fred D. Meyer of Geo Search Seismic Processors as the general chairman, expects to draw more than 500 delegates. It is the second major oil industry convention for Midland in two weeks. The annual Southwest Section Meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists preceded the current event.

Registration will continue Wednesday to 5 p. m. in the hotel lobby and resume at 7 p. m. and continue to 9 p. m.

An additional registration period will be from 8 a. m. to noon Thursday. An "icebreaker" party will be held for the delegates, their wives and guests from 7 to 9 p. m. Wednesday in the Midland Hilton.

The kickoff luncheon Thursday will feature an address by Robert R. Aitken, acting chief of the Crude Oil Division, Office of Oil and Gas, Office of Resource Applications, in the Department of Energy.

The keynote address will be made on "The emergence of the National Oil Companies," at 9:15 a. m. Thursday by E. J. Northwood of San Francisco, president of the Society of Exploration Geophysicists.

Events for the women attending the convention are geared to the theme, "A Touch of Class."

A luncheon will be held in the Midland Country Club Thursday and will be accompanied by a book review.

A tour of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame is scheduled from 2:30 to 5 p. m. Thursday, and a champagne brunch and jewelry style show by Sam L. Majors will be presented in the Midland Hilton Ballroom from 9:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. Friday.

Transportation for the delegates will be provided from outlying motels and for convention activities away from the Midland Hilton.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and Don Hibbitts, with Pennzoil Co. and president of the Permian Basin Geophysical Society, will make welcoming remarks at 9 a. m. Thursday, preceding the keynote address by Northwood.

Twenty papers will be presented during the two-day technical program, with the sessions beginning at 10 a. m. Thursday and 8:30 a. m. Friday.

Wildcat trio scheduled

Wildcat operations have been staked in Cottle, Lubbock and Scurry counties.

Samedan Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1 Gregory will be drilled 660 feet from north and east lines of tract 328.31, Isaac M. Lyons survey in Cottle County.

It is six miles southwest of Paducah and slated for a 7,100-foot bottom. The location from the survey lines is 5,200 feet from north and 660 feet from east. There is no nearby production.

Samedan No. 1 Neiman Estate is to be dug 1,320 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of tract 19, section 32, block X, Brown County School Land survey. There is no nearby production.

SURRY TEST

F. W. Holbrook of Midland No. 1 Winston will be drilled as a 7,000-foot wildcat in Scurry County, one mile southwest of Snyder.

Site is 2,425 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 12, block 1, J. F. Smith survey.

Explorers scheduled

A trio of wildcats, one a 20,000-foot test, will be drilled in West Texas counties.

The deep project is NAPECO, Inc., of Houston No. 1 Rio Pecos in Reeves County, 17 miles southwest of Monahan.

The project is 1,066 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 4, block 8, H&GN survey. There is no nearby production.

GULF EXPLORER

Gulf Oil Corp. announced location for a 6,900-foot project in Reeves County, 17 miles southeast of Pecos.

It is No. 2 G. C. Westervelt, 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 9, block C-4, psl survey.

The location is surrounded by wells in the Waha, West field.

EXXON PROJECT

Exxon Corp. No. 67-B Jax M. Cowden is a new 4,200-foot wildcat Crane County, 14 miles southwest of Crane.

Location is 7,600 feet from northeast and 660 feet from southeast lines of section 11, block 1, H&T survey. It is one location southeast of Cleark Fork production in the Bar-Mar field.

MIDLAND TRY

Mobil Oil Corp. No. 31 Louise Shackelford will be drilled as a two-mile northwest outpost to the Azalea (Atoka) field of Midland County.

The project is 13 miles southeast of Midland and 933 feet from north and 1,008 feet from east lines of section 29, block 37, T-S-S, T&P survey.

It is slated for an 11,500-foot bottom.

FIELD WORK

Parker & Parsley, Inc., of Midland staked locations for a pair of tests in the Spraberry Trend Area field Martin County.

No. 1-A Snyder is 1,485 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 25, block 37, T-S-S, T&P survey.

No. 1 Yarbrough is 1,155 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 12, block 37, T-S-S, T&P survey.

The tests are five miles southwest of Stanton and scheduled for 9,100-foot bottoms.

Atlantic Richfield Co. No. 5-F Block 31 Unit has been completed in the Block 31 (Devonian) area of Crane County.

The well, six miles southwest of Crane, was completed for a 24-hour flowing potential of 620 barrels of 46.2-gravity oil and eight barrels of water, through perforations from 8,001 to 8,944 feet.

Gas-oil ratio was 1,772-1.

The pay section was acidized with 9,000 gallons and fractured with 13,500 gallons.

Location is 1,320 feet from south and 610 feet from west lines of section 34, block 31, University Lands survey.

Total depth is 8,976 feet and 5½-inch pipe is set on bottom. Plugged back total depth is 8,968 feet.

ANDREWS OILER

Texaco Inc. No. 233-A-J. E. Mabec has been finalized as well in the Lowe (Mississippi) field in Andrews County.

A re-entry, it was completed for a daily flow of five barrels of 48.1-gravity oil, through an 8/64-inch choke and perforations from 11,224 to 11,287 feet. The pay was treated with 6,000 gallons.

Gas-oil ratio is 2,200-1.

Location is 2,080 feet from south and 790 feet from east lines of section 42, block 40, T-2-N, G&MMB&A survey and 22 miles southeast of Andrews.

It is a former Ellenburger producer.

Lawyer moves to bar evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — 268-day period the government illegally listened in on hundreds of telephone conversations and invaded the privacy of "large numbers of people" as it spied on a federal employee for nearly nine months before charging him with being a Vietnamese spy, his lawyers say.

Warren L. Miller, lawyer for Ronald Louis Humphrey, said the government's electronic surveillance was "pervasive and unchecked" and conducted without a proper warrant. He filed a motion Monday asking that the government be barred from using the electronically gathered evidence at Humphrey's espionage trial next month.

The issue is scheduled for a hearing before U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan in Alexandria, Va., on March 17.

Miller said the government intercepted 567 telephone calls in the named person to deliver "certain materials to the chief of the SRV (Socialist Republic of Vietnam) mission to the United Nations, Dinh Ba Thi."

Instead of carrying out his mission, the courier went to the FBI, where the "90 pages of State Department communications" were examined. The FBI then resealed the package and allowed it to be delivered to Thi in Paris.

Thi, named an unwitting coconspirator in the case, was recalled to Vietnam from his post at the United Nations after Humphrey and Truong were arrested. He denied receiving the classified documents.

On May 9 Justice Department officials approved a wiretap on the telephone in Truong's home in downtown Washington, and the tap operated continuously until Humphrey and Truong were arrested.

Jan. 31.

No court authorization was ever sought," Miller said. "The government has yet to file with any judicial officer any statement containing any justification for its failure to obtain a warrant."

On May 14, Miller said, the government obtained Justice Department permission to install an eavesdropping device to go with the wiretap — all without a court order.

On June 15, Miller said the government got permission from the Justice Department and the president to secretly videotape Humphrey in his office. That lasted 85 days, Miller said, again without court authorization.

Police force fired amid accusations

ROBBINS, Ill. (AP) — All 15 police officers in Robbins have been fired amid charges some of them committed armed robbery, burglary and car theft.

It is not the first time the Chicago suburb of 9,600 people has had trouble with its police. Over the years there have been frequent allegations of assaults against citizens, shakedowns and thefts.

The entire force was suspended in 1970 after two people were shot to death by police.

Douglas Polsky, attorney for the village, confirmed Monday that village trustees voted 3-1 to fire the police force effective today although the officers will be paid through April. He said the predominantly black village has received a $1.5 million federal grant to upgrade its police department and build a new village hall. It will rely on sheriff's officers and those of nearby suburbs for protection until a new force is hired.

Polsky said the mass firing was prompted by a variety of wrongdoing and slipshod work.

"Evidence was not inventoried, bond money and narcotics have disappeared, there have been a large number of brutality complaints, and police have been accused of armed robbery,"

Wife gets tattoos to please husband

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Elizabeth Weinzirl says that when she was in her 40s, her husband told her he wanted a tattooed wife. She didn't want to move out, so she gave in.

"I got one and thought that would do it, but then I wanted another one, and another one," the 75-year-old Portland, Ore., woman said Wednesday.

A large, black spider web radiates from Mrs. Weinzirl's navel, and from that, brilliant green scroll work incorporates vivid parrots, bluebirds, flowers, butterflies and other images done largely in blues, reds and oranges.

Her upper arms are covered, as are her legs to the knees and her entire trunk.

"Tattooing shouldn't be put down, because it's an art," said Mrs. Weinzirl, who was in Minnesota for the North American Tattoo Club's third World Convention of Tattoo Artists and Fans in St. Paul.

Lucinda Stout

The trial was rife with testimony described by some as "straight out of a dime-store novel."

It took the jury just two hours and 15 minutes to agree.

Teen labeled killer in Dallas murder trial

DALLAS (AP) — At 16, when the worst fear most girls have is being dateless on Saturday night, Lucinda Stout has been labeled a "backstabbing" killer and faces life imprisonment for murdering her mother.

The wooden expression on the petite brunette's face remained intact Monday when she was found guilty.

A state court jury will begin hearing arguments today before determining punishment.

For a city that prides itself for its southern sophistication, the trial has generated unusually large crowds. Moments before the jury delivered its verdict, State District Court Judge John Mead ordered deputies and bailiffs to ring the room to quell any outbursts from the divided family and onlookers.

William Karl, Lucinda's maternal grandfather, called the verdict "rotten."

"I do not believe she got a fair trial," he said. "I do not think she can get a fair trial in the Dallas courts because there's been too much publicity."

An advertisement for Midas Touch. At the top, a black banner contains the text "2101 W. TEXAS" on the left and "683-4882" on the right. Below the banner is a photograph of a dark-colored car, possibly a sedan, parked in front of a building. A large, white, rectangular sign is mounted on the car's hood. The sign has the text "MEMBER MULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE" at the top, followed by "EVERYTHING WE TOUCH" and "TURNS TO GOLD" in large, bold, black letters. Below this, in smaller text, it says "Let us give your home the MIDAS TOUCH. Call now for a free Market Analysis—NO OBLIGATION." At the bottom of the sign, it says "SOLD LAST WEEK" in bold. Underneath the sign, the address "2401 CUTHBERT" is printed, followed by "805 LAWSON" and "2812 METZ" on separate lines. To the right of the address, the phone number "245 APPERSON" is printed, followed by "4601 ANITA" and "1404 STORY" on separate lines.

Boxers returning

By The Associated Press

Joe Frazier hasn't given up singing and George Foreman isn't going to stop preaching, but the two former heavyweight boxing champions have given up their retirements.

Frazier, after at least two previous comeback attempts were aborted, is scheduled to come out of retirement April 15 for a fight in South Africa against South African Gerrie Coetzee, it was announced in Johannesburg.

Hal Tucker of Pro Boks, which will promote the fight, was not available for comment, but sources close to Tucker said the match was made after Tucker talked by telephone with Bruce Wright, Frazier's attorney.

Wright said in Philadelphia that a telephone agreement was made with Tucker and it is "in the process of being put into writing."

Although the details of the contract were not discussed, sources in Johannesburg said Frazier would get about $460,000 and Coetzee about $105,000. In addition to the fight purse, Frazier could earn another $170,000 from advertising contracts and commercial endorsements, Ron Fletcher, a local entrepreneur said.

The racially mixed fight — Frazier is black and Coetzee is white — will have a number of firsts for South Africa, according to local sources. It will be the first contest carried live by American television (ABC); Frazier will earn the biggest purse ever paid to a boxer in South Africa and Coetzee will earn the largest purse ever paid to a South African boxer anywhere.

Boxing is non-racial in South Africa but facilities for spectators are separated according to race.

Frazier, who sings in a popgroup called Joe Frazier and the Knockouts, hasn't fought since he was stopped by Foreman in June, 1976. He had previously lost the heavyweight title to Foreman on Jan. 22, 1973 in Jamaica.

Coetzee, the supreme heavyweight champion as opposed to the white champion or black champion, has a victory over fellow South African Kallie Knoetze, who earlier this year scored a third-round knockout of Duane Bobick, who is managed by Frazier.

Foreman, saying "I'm going in the ring for the second time for the sole purpose of manifesting Jesus," announced his plans to return to the ring in an interview with Houston radio station KYOK Monday.

Foreman, who retired after losing to Jimmy Young last year, said he was not coming out of retirement for the money or for the glory.

"I've asked God for a chance to do it again to exalt Jesus," said Foreman, maintaining he could spread the word of God through fighting.

"I know that God has not annointed me to be the heavyweight champion of the world or that He has not annointed me to win fights," Foreman said. "But He has annointed me to preach the word of God and he has given me the bait to catch fish with."

NBA via Sweden for Kings' Nash

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — To most people, Sweden means snow, skiing and Elke Sommer.

But to Bob Nash, the Scandinavian country is a reminder that a lot of people didn't think he could make it in the National Basketball Association.

But after what the Kansas City Kings forward did Monday night, you can be sure the Indiana Pacers are no longer among the nonbelievers.

"I never lost confidence in myself," said Nash after pumping in a career-high 18 points to give Kansas City a 98-88 victory over Indiana. "It was just a matter of finding someone in the NBA who could give me another chance."

Six years ago, the 6-foot-8 Nash was the Detroit Pistons' No. 1 draft choice out of Hawaii. But he averaged just 2.1 points in 71 games over the next two seasons with Detroit and found himself out of a job in 1975.

So, convinced that he could still play professional basketball, Nash wandered to Sweden and plied his wares there for the next two seasons. Last fall he wrote numerous NBA teams asking for a tryout. Only the Kings answered.

"I'm grateful to the Kings, but I always thought I could play in the NBA," he said.

Nash made the Kansas City squad as a forward but had played sparingly until Monday night when he was in the lineup because starter Richard Washington had a lung infection.

Chap netters back in action

Western Junior College Conference tennis action begins Wednesday for Midland College as the Chaps host WJCC rival South Plains in a dual meet.

The match begins at 1 p.m. on the MC campus.

Coach Brian Guiley's squad will go into action after an unexpected layoff. Midland's round-robin tennis tournament which was scheduled for last weekend was postponed because of cold weather.

In limited action this season, the Chaps have given notice that they'll be a team that needs to be reckoned with once again. In dual matches they tripped up both the University of New Mexico and New Mexico State, and followed that up by making a shambles of the McLelland County College Invitational tourney two weeks ago in Waco, winning the team title by 32 points and capturing three of the four individual titles.

Last year, the Midland men's team won the conference and regional title before finishing second in the national tournament in Scottsdale, Arizona. The women's team was second to Odessa in all three competitions.

Both of the squads this year boast two returning lettermen, plus a squad member for added depth. Top-notch first-year people bolster both teams.

Reg and Tony Luttrell, the twin court terrorists from Perth, Australia, are back. Reg earned NJCAA All-American honors last year by making it to the national doubles semi-finals with his partner Dennis McKeown, who has since graduated.

Sophomore Ron Cetrone, a hard-hitting sophomore squadman from Houston, gained quite a bit of experience last year and will be a big factor in the Chaps success this season. Rounding out the team are three freshmen, Mike Burch from Houston Cypress-Fairbanks; Jose Rivera from El Paso; and Steve Wyett from Lubbock Coronado.

Leading the women's squad is sophomore letter winner and NJCAA All-American Ann Layman, also from Perth, Australia. Joanne Hall, another sophomore from Perth, was injured last year, but has been playing extremely well lately. Another soph letterman back is Bianca Barriga.

Thompson leads bowling tourney

Peggy Thompson rolled a 676 over the weekend to take a 26 pin lead over runner-up Wanda Robertson in the first round of the Midland Women's Bowling Association city championship tourney being held at the Super Bowl.

The 25th annual event got underway Saturday and will conclude this weekend with action both Saturday and Sunday.

Frank See Chevrolet jumped out to the Class A team lead with a 2984 total, 32 pins better than the second place team Ken's Rent-It Center.

In Class A doubles, Jo Randolph and Norma Johnson hold a slim one-pin advantage over second place Mary Fesler and Beverly Burleson. Randolph also leads the Class A all-events competition with 1870.

'Cats hold down number one spot

By The Associated Press

For the first time in a month, a No. 1 team has managed to hold onto its ranking for two consecutive weeks in The Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Southeast Conference champion Kentucky Wildcats remained at the top of the latest and next-to-last balloting of sportswriters and broadcasters.

In the voting, which reflects games through Sunday, Kentucky, 24-2, received 37 of the 52 first-place votes cast, and a total of 994 points. The Wildcats beat Georgia and had an easy time with Nevada-Las Vegas in action last week.

UCLA held onto its runner-up spot, collecting 11 first-place votes and 926 points. The Bruins defeated cross-town rival Southern Cal and cross-country rival Michigan to improve their record to 24-2.

Marquette remained in the No. 3 position. The defending NCAA champion Warriors netted a pair of first-place votes and collected 826 points. Marquette defeated Butler and squeezed past Detroit and enters the tournament with a 24-3 record.

THE REMAINDER of the Top Ten bears little resemblance to last week.

DePaul jumped from sixth to fourth. The Blue Demons collected one first-place vote and 605 points. DePaul, 25-2, defeated Valparaiso and Illinois State in action last week.

New Mexico also moved up two spots, improving to the No. 5 position. The Lobos received 566 points and upped their record to 24-3 with two wins.

Michigan State moved from ninth to sixth with two Big Ten wins. The Spartans, 23-4, received 436 points. Arkansas, which was No. 1 three weeks ago, plummeted from fourth to seventh after its 70-69 loss to Houston in the Southwest Conference post-season playoffs. The Razorbacks enter NCAA play with a 28-3 slate.

Duke made the most significant improvement of the week. The Blue Devils leaped from 15th to eighth after capturing the tough Atlantic Coast Conference tournament. Duke, 23-6, received 382 points.

Kansas dropped from fifth to ninth after losing to Kansas State in the semifinals of the Big Eight tournament. The Jayhawks, 24-4, received 379 points.

NOTRE DAME rounds out the Top Ten, dropping from seventh. The Irish lost to Dayton in its only action of the week and finished the regular season at 19-6.

North Carolina is at the top of the Second Ten. The Tar Heels are followed by Louisville, Florida State, Houston, Utah, — which received one first-place vote — Texas, Illinois State, Syracuse, Detroit and San Francisco.

Eleven of last week's Top Twenty teams lost, and thus, only Kentucky, UCLA and Marquette held onto last week's ranking.

MHSboosters meet tonight

The Midland High Booster will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in the school's cafeteria.

The baseball, track and swimming teams will be introduced to the club by the respective coaches in each sport.

The meeting is open to all Midland Highboosters.

Jordan places first

The first National Bicycle Association sanctioned moto-cross race of the season was held Saturday at the Midland-Odessa track with Jimmy Jordan winning the 16 and over competition.

The races are sponsored by the West-Side Optimist's Club.

Eighty entrants ranging in age from 3 to 18 participated in the opening day event.

There will be another race this Saturday beginning at 12:30 p.m., and all interested competitors can sign up beginning an hour before the race. Trophies will be given to first, second and third place finishers in each event.

The track is located a mile east of the airport on old Highway 80. For more information, call C.E. or Nancy Boyd at 697-2728.

Austin places in speech meet

FORT STOCKTON — In their first year of competition, Austin Freshman School speech students from Midland won the top prize or sweepstakes trophy at the recent Fort Stockton High School Speech Tournament.

Austin Freshman students competed against freshman, sophomore, junior and senior students from 10 other schools. Speech students from Edison Freshman School and Lee High School, both in Midland, also participated in the contest.

Of the 15 students in the Austin Freshman speech squad, five placed in the tournament and three more made the final rounds. The winners were Bobby Dawson, third place, informative speaking; Karen Strawn, first, poetry reading; Teresa Fleetwood, third, poetry reading; and Eric Fryar and John Kimberly, first, debate.

The finalists were Jeff Savage, prose reading; Nancy Snyder, poetry reading; and Jon Franke, persuasive speaking. In addition, Fryar was chosen as outstanding speaker of the tournament.

The winners and finalists from Lee High were Mike Harrell, third place, prose reading; Edwin Scherzer, fourth, poetry reading; Ernest Angelo and Paul Raymond, fourth, debate; and Sonja Goza, second, prose reading. Lee High speech students, all juniors and sophomores, placed third in the total number of points earned by each school.

Edison Freshman winners included the debate team of Anthony Folger and Ralph Kenney who won second place in their event. Kelly McIlvain was a finalist in informative speaking.

MC sets record in enrollment

Midland College set its eighth consecutive spring enrollment record this year with 2,153 students signed up for one or more credit courses.

Registrar Dee Windsor said enrollment for the 1978 spring semester was 169 students more than the 1,984 who registered for last year's spring semester, an increase of 8.5 percent, the second highest jump since spring 1975.

Moreover, the number of full-time students and students taking more than one course increased, Windsor said.

"With the opening of the fine arts building this spring and the addition to the occupational-technical building last fall, we are now offering a larger number of academic and vocational courses," he said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Don't depend on bracelet

Dear Dr. Solomon: Do those copper bracelets help arthritis?—Helen L.

Dear Helen: If a copper bracelet—or a rabbit's foot—or a four-leaf clover—makes you feel any better psychologically, there is no reason not to wear one. All it can do is make your wrist green. But don't let it take the place of proper medical treatment—the medication, exercise, and other measures the doctor will prescribe to reduce inflammation, relieve pain, and keep joints working. If you have not had a detailed arthritis treatment program worked out for you by a doctor—after a thorough examination—you should do this right away. Delay can mean irreversible damage to your joints.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it true that the Pill raises your blood pressure?—Monica Q.

Dear Monica: On the average, it seems to raise the blood pressure very slightly. A study done by the National Institute of Health shows a small but significant increase—six points on the diastolic reading and one or two for the systolic one. You probably know that the diastolic number is for in-between heartbeats, and the systolic number indicates the pressure when the pumping action of the heart is at its maximum.

The NIH study was done by the Kaiser-Permanente organization in California and covered over 13,000 women between the ages of 15 to 60. We should all have our blood pressure checked regularly, and a woman on the Pill should simply make an extra effort to do that.

CB chatter leads to sex crimes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Hey good buddy, why not drop by my place and take a gander at my base station?"

It sounds like innocent CB radio chatter, but such a line has led to the sexual molestation of many young boys in Hollywood, police say.

A CB is a handy tool for "chicken hawks," older men who strike up sexual relationships with young boys, said police investigator Lloyd Martin, who specializes in such cases.

"A lot of kids have CBs," said Martin. "Instead of going to the hot dog stand or the beach, the chicken hawk can sit in his home and make his contacts."

Martin told of one 12-year-old boy who was sexually molested by a man he met over the CB airwaves. The man's handle was "Chicken-man," and he monitored a channel used primarily by young people in Hollywood.

"The chicken hawk listens for young kids talking, breaks into their conversations and tells about his fancy CB setup and invites them over to look at it," said Martin.

Martin works in the Los Angeles Police Department's Sexually Exploited Child Unit, set up six months ago as the first of its kind in the nation. He said most of the victims of chicken hawks are runaways or from broken homes.

Best play of hand depends on contract

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

From time to time remind your partner to bid a hand cautiously if he's not sure he can get the most out of his cards. Even with such good advice he may still run into bad luck, as South did in today's hand.

South didn't play the hand as cautiously as he had bid it. He began well by taking the top clubs and discarding a diamond, but then he slipped from grace by drawing trumps.

South ran into a bad break in hearts. East got three heart tricks, and the defenders also took two diamonds. Down one.

It was a grievous error to draw any trumps at all. After taking the top clubs South should cash the ace of hearts and lead a heart toward dummy's queen. East wins with the king of hearts and returns a trump to dummy's ten.

GETS RUFF
South gives up another heart, and East puts his partner in with a diamond to return a second round of trumps. South wins and ruffs his last heart in dummy. This ruff assures the contract.

Declarer would need good luck in hearts if he had bid game, but he needed only a heart ruff in dummy to make sure of nine tricks. The correct play of a hand depends not only on what cards you hold but also on how high you have bid.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S 5; H K J 10 9; D K 9 7 2; C 9 5 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds (or two clubs). You plan to raise hearts at your next turn, thus showing a hand too good for a raise to two hearts, but not good enough for a jump to three hearts.

Writing awards to be presented

The Midland College second annual Creative Writing Contest awards will be presented from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday in the fine arts building lecture hall.

Awards for first, second and third places and honorable mention in poetry, essay and short story will be given out by college President Dr. Al G. Langford.

Poetry entries were judged by Dr. Leonard Neufeldt and Dr. Dianne Peters, both of The University of Texas at the Permian Basin. Entries in the essay competition were judged by Dr. Bob Rothstein and Dr. Jill Taft, both of UTPB, and Alice Berthelsen and Stan Williams, both of Odessa College, judged entries in the short story category.

Each winner will receive a certificate of award. In addition, first-place winners will be given $50, and second-place winners will receive $25.

Critique Sessions, directed by the judges for each category, will follow the awards presentation. Judges will discuss the merits of entries and provide suggestions for writers.
