Hanging on

WICHITA FALLS — The manager of an amusement park where a boy hung upside from an overturned Ferris wheel car said he was investigating the accident Friday. Nine-year-old Joshua Handy of Weatherford hung for about 15 minutes from the Ferris wheel car Thursday night until a police officer could climb up and hold him./12C

Cultists' sentence

SAN ANTONIO — A judge proclaimed the Branch Davidian shootout and standoff a "tragedy of epic proportions" then sentenced five Davidians on Friday to maximum 40-year prison terms for killing four federal agents. U.S. District Judge Walter Smith handed out less-than-maximum sentences to three other David Koresh disciples. Their terms for weapons convictions ranged from five to 20 years./8C

Knicks win, 91-84

NEW YORK — A revived Patrick Ewing kept New York in the game, then John Starks and Derek Harper won it. And the Knicks moved a win away from their first NBA title in 21 years. New York blew a 13-point, third-quarter lead but rallied with an 11-1 run in the last three minutes for a 91-84 victory Friday night and a 3-2 lead over the Houston Rockets in the NBA Finals./1B

Show to air

In a reversal of its decision last fall, station management at KMID-TV, the Midland-Odessa ABC-TV affiliate, will begin airing the controversial police drama "NYPD Blue" beginning Tuesday at 9 p.m. Steve Dant, general manager of the station, said the decision was made based on a survey conducted locally./4A

O.J. surrenders, finally

Long day's events, high drama transfix nation

■ Police charge O.J. Simpson with murder of ex-wife, her male friend.

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson was hunted down and captured in his driveway Friday night after running from charges of murdering his ex-wife and her male friend and leading police along 60 miles of freeways and city streets.

"I can't express the fear I had that this matter would not end the way it did," said Simpson's attorney, Robert Shapiro, who had worried earlier that the former football great would kill himself.

Outside the walls of Simpson's estate, members of his family hugged each other and cried after word of the arrest came out. The crowd of 300 spectators erupted in cheers.

The arrest shortly before 9 p.m. culminated an incredible drama that unfolded on live national TV in which police first announced charges against Simpson, then said he had disappeared and finally followed him along the highways for more than an hour.

After five hours of searching, police spotted Simpson's white Ford Bronco and followed it with more than a dozen patrol cars along three different freeways and finally

Los Angeles police face criticism, embarrassment in handling of case

By Paul Hefner

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson's flight from justice Friday left the Los Angeles Police Department humiliated and facing criticism from city leaders and within its own ranks.

City officials immediately demanded answers about the handling of the case that many say left authorities deeply embarrassed.

"I'm dismayed and I'm embarrassed for the Police Department that O.J. — after days went by that we could have arrested him and didn't — could have gotten away," Sgt. Doug Abney said.

One Los Angeles police detective said Simpson should have been detained as soon as evidence suggested he might have been involved in the slaying of his former wife and her friend.

Officials confirm some details of evidence reported by media

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two bloody gloves. Blood in his driveway. Blood in his car.

Reports of physical evidence mounted daily in the investigation of the slayings of O.J. Simpson's ex-wife and a male companion.

But for several hours Friday, no matter how much evidence authorities reportedly had against him, they didn't have the most important thing of all: Simpson.

Instead of surrendering to police as arranged by his attorney, the retired football great disappeared. He resurfaced several hours later in a car on Los Angeles freeways, and wasn't arrested until after he returned at nightfall to his estate in the Brentwood section.

At news conferences Friday, authorities confirmed some details of the evidence that had been reported in the media earlier in the week.

Police said a knife was used to kill Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and Ronald Lyle Goldman, 25. But the weapon hadn't been found as of Friday.

Stunned nation watches as hero's drama plays out

First sadness, skepticism, disbelief. He couldn't be guilty of murder.

Then sorrow, anger — and sheer shock.

When he fled police and disappeared Friday, O.J. Simpson ceased for many to be an American hero — even before he was captured that night.

Simpson's celebrity life meets tragedy

By Fred Bayles

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Orenthal James Simpson's uniquely American tragedy can be plotted by his journey through three decades of newspaper headlines.

He appeared first on the sports pages, an invincible running back with no chinks in the armor of personality common to today's athletes. He moved gracefully to the features pages: an affable commercial spokesman and actor, a knowledgeable sports commentator.

But the journey has veered off the road of celebrity into a drama as wrenching as Othello. This week the headlines were filled with an unbelievable turn to gore and death. To a world who knew and admired him, the notion of an O.J. who could cover himself in the blood of the woman he loved was anathema.

"To me, this is the equivalent of the Pope showing an act of violence," said Ron Yary, a teammate of Simpson's at the University of Southern California. "If O.J. could do something like this, I second-guess human

Manager: Overall cable rates to go down

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Dimension Cable subscribers should see lower rates when cable bills are sent between July 14 and August 14.

"Overall rates should go down," said Missy Orr-Ryan, general manager of Dimension Cable.

She emphasized that "the differences in the amount the bill will go down will depend on the customer's service level and whether he lives in the city or county."

For cable subscribers living within the city limits, the basic service composition rate for 18 channels will be $10.33, or about 57 cents a channel. This is down from $10.49 in September 1993, when the first rate changes took effect. In August 1993 — before the changes took effect — customers paid $9.95 for 12 channels.

In the upper tier, customers will pay $9.36 for 17 channels — up slightly from $9.33 for 16 channels in September and $7 for 18 channels in August 1993.

She said the most dramatic changes will be seen in installation and transfer-of-service charges.

Installation in a standard prewired home has fallen from $50 in August 1993 to $28.63 in September 1993 to $20.62 effective next month. For a non-wired home, the cost has fallen from $50 to $43.79 to $25.51.

Transfer of service has risen from $20 in August 1993 to $28.63 in September to $20.62 next month.

A residential upgrade, or change of service, will cost $17.87 — down from $25 last August, but up slightly from $17.69 last September. A commercial-users upgrade will cost $5, down from $15 last August and September.

Ms. Orr-Ryan said 95 percent of the company's 30,600 customers live in the city. For the remaining 5 percent who live in the county, rate changes will be similar.

County customers will pay a basic rate of $10.19 for 18 channels beginning in July, down from $10.49 last September, but up slightly from $9.95 for 12 channels last August.

Upper-tier channels will cost $9.23 for 17 channels, down from $9.33 for 16 channels in September 1993, but up from $7 for 18 channels last August.

Installation, transfer and service-change costs will be the same for county customers as for city customers.

Ms. Orr-Ryan explained that the changes are part of the second round of rate rollbacks required by the Federal Communications Commission as a result of the new federal cable television regulations.

"Unlike September — where everything followed a uniform formula based on the franchise area — the formula for this rollback takes into consideration variables such as the number of customers, the average median income of the community, the number of converters and remotes," she said.

Under the new FCC rules, the franchise authority — in this case the city of Midland — must authorize any new rate increases for basic service rates, while rate increases for higher service levels require customer notification but not authority approval.

The city regulates basic programming rates and installation and equipment charges. Upper-service tiers and non-franchised areas — in this case Midland County — are regulated by the FCC, according to Ms. Orr-Ryan.

Pay-per-view, premium and a la carte services are not subject to regulation.

She said the cable company has gained customers in the last year

TRAGEDY: O.J.'s life can be found in headlines

behavior."

Since the early hours of Monday, when his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson was found, throat slashed, a battered body of a young acquaintance nearby, friend after friend stood to testify about an O.J. who was warm and outgoing to friends and strangers, a man devoid of anger.

But the subsequent media spotlight revealed a darker side, a man obsessed with his companion and wife of 17 years, a man whose unrelenting jealousy burst into ugly fits of noise and violence.

By Friday afternoon, the multimillionaire who had conquered the worlds of sports and entertainment was a fugitive from justice, charged with two murders.

How could things go so wrong for a man whose life had been a signpost for success with grace?

A close friend of the family believes the violence turned lethal after Nicole told O.J. any hopes of reconciliation were over.

With hindsight, the experts now offer explanations for what would have been unthinkable a week ago.

O.J. and Nicole, they said, were caught in a web of uncontrolled jealousy and passion that trapped abuser with abused. He was a man whose violence flared with his love; she was a woman who couldn't leave despite the threats and beatings.

The "nice guy" description echoes across the years of O.J.'s life, made even more compelling by his beginnings: a poor child, born with rickets, raised in a single-parent home in a tough San Francisco neighborhood.

Others cite the determination of the young boy who devoted himself to football to escape the crime and gangs pushing into the edges of his life.

"He made up his mind that he just was going to pull himself above that," said former high school coach Jack McCaffrey. "He was streetwise in the sense that he knew if he elected to go down and act like the rest of the idiots . . . he wasn't going to get anywhere."

By his final high school years, Simpson knew where he wanted to go.

He played for City College of San Francisco, after being snubbed by four-year universities. But his skills were recognized; he transferred to the University of Southern California where he won the Heisman Trophy in 1968.

He went on to the Buffalo Bills, setting a National Football League record 2,003 yards rushing in 1973. And he crossed the tough barrier of race to cash in on his skills.

His role as spokesman for Hertz — the famous commercial of him dashing through airport aisles — has become a historical artifact. He was a widely respected football commentator and also managed to parlay his fame into an acting career, almost exclusively playing good guys.

It was not, as they say in Hollywood, a stretch. Throughout those years, Simpson was the good guy. There were no suggestions of egotism, of arrogance.

But there was another Simpson that apparently existed outside the public's perception.

An 11-year marriage to Marguerite Whitley, marked by various separations, came to an end in 1979. An attorney for the first Mrs. Simpson will only say that abuse was not raised as an issue in the formal divorce proceedings.

By 1977 Simpson had a new love. He met a waitress, Nicole Brown, a vivacious blonde and former homecoming princess who had just turned 18. Within a year, they were living together. O.J. became very possessive.

"I only attended junior college for a very short time, because respondent wanted me to be available to travel with him whenever his career required him to go to a new location, even if it was for a short period of time," Nicole said in a 1992 divorce deposition.

WEATHER WATCH

Today partly cloudy, mid-90s

Staff Report

There will be early morning and late night low clouds this weekend, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the mid-90s and southwest winds at 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the upper 60s.

Sunday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 90s.

After an overnight low of 68, Friday's high was 96 compared with the record high for that date of 106 in 1977. The record low for today's date was 52 in 1945.

STATE

Light showers popped up around the state Friday, but most of Texas still had temperatures in the 90s, according to the National Weather Service.

West Texas had some thunderstorms over the panhandle with temperatures mostly in the 90s throughout the region, but El Paso hit 100. Winds blew up to 30 m.p.h. over parts of the area. Today should be clear with highs in the low 100s and lows in the 60s.

South Texas was hot with some scattered showers. Temperatures were in the 80s and 90s. Port Aransas had the area's low at 82 and Del Rio had the high at 95. The region should be partly cloudy today, with lows in the 70s and highs in the 90s with some scattered showers and thunderstorms.

Partly cloudy skies covered parts of North Texas, with a few showers and temperatures in the 90s. With heat indexes considered, Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and Tyler both were hotter than 100 degrees.

North Texas should be mostly sunny today, although there's a chance for scattered thunderstorms in the western portion of the region. Highs should be in the 90s while lows were expected in the 70s.

NATION

Hot and muggy weather stretched from the East to the Midwest on Friday for the third day in a row. Record cold came again to the Rockies, and thunderstorms were scattered across the East.

More than a dozen cities reported record high temperatures for the date. In Ohio, the temperature hit 93 in Cleveland, breaking the 92-degree record set in 1957. Youngstown (91) and Mansfield (90) also set records, while Toledo tied the 97-degree mark from 1957.

In Wisconsin, temperatures hit 94 degrees in Green Bay, Madison and Milwaukee, breaking records for all three cities by one degree.

Other record highs for the date included Burlington, Vt. (93), Montpelier, Vt. (92), Saint Johnsbury, Vt. (91), Fort Wayne, Ind. (98), South Bend, Ind. (97), Concord, N.H. (96) and Flint, Mich. (95).

The high of 93 in Buffalo, N.Y. broke the record of 92 from 1957. It was the third straight day that Buffalo set a record for the date. Rochester tied its record of 93, first set in 1952.

The story was quite different in the northern Rockies, where morning lows fell into the 30s and 40s, with some in the 20s.

In Montana, the low of 40 degrees in Billings broke the 42-degree record for the date set in 1949. In Great Falls, it got down to 33, breaking the old record from 1902 by two degrees. A low of 34 degrees in Pocatello, Idaho, broke the record of 36 set in 1956.

It was muggy with temperatures in the 60s and 70s from the Plains to the Atlantic seaboard. A few 80s were reported in parts of southern Florida and the southwestern deserts.

Storms and showers developed across parts of the Gulf Coast, Atlantic states and the middle Mississippi Valley. Other storms developed across the upper Mississippi Valley and northern Plains along a stationary front.

Hail the size of dimes fell in Trenton, N.C.

CHARGE: O.J. surrenders after 2-county chase turned off toward his Brentwood home. Police believed he had a gun to his head.

Hundreds of motorists got out of their cars and lined the highways. Some waved as the Bronco went by.

After it came to a halt at Simpson's estate, a man believed to be his lifelong friend and teammate, Al Cowlings, got out. Simpson's lawyer arrived at the mansion nearly an hour later and the arrest came in a few more minutes.

Before fleeing, the football Hall of Famer who could be sentenced to death if he's convicted left a handwritten letter proclaiming his innocence, saying goodbye to friends and making "a last wish" to "leave my children in peace."

"I've had a great life, great friends," said the letter, read by a friend at a news conference. "Please think of the real O.J. and not this lost person."

The district attorney called it "the fall of an American hero," and Los Angeles police, angered that he reneged on a promise to surrender earlier in the day, mounted a manhunt for him and Cowlings.

In the letter, Simpson wrote that he tried to do "most of the right things" in life and asked: "Why do I end up like this?"

"First, everyone understand, I had nothing to do with Nicole's murder," Simpson's letter begins. "If we had a problem, it's because I loved her so much."

"I don't want to belabor knocking the press, but I can't believe what is being said. Most of it is totally made up. I know you have a job to do, but as a last wish, please, please, please, leave my children in peace," he wrote.

Shapiro said Simpson has been "exceedingly depressed."

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed and praying that we will be able to bring him into a court," he said.

Addressing Simpson, he added: "Wherever you are, for the sake of your family, for the sake of your children, please surrender immediately."

Police immediately mounted a manhunt when Simpson fled, and said he may be armed.

"Mr. Simpson is out there somewhere and we will find him," Police Cmdr. David Gascon told reporters.

If convicted of killing Nicole Simpson and Ronald Goldman, Simpson — among the most prominent celebrities ever charged with murder — could face the death penalty.

"We saw, perhaps, the fall of an American hero," District Attorney Gil Garcetti said.

Simpson, 46, was scheduled to surrender at 11 a.m. but failed to honor the agreement, Gascon said.

Shapiro said he was with Simpson, Cowlings and two doctors in a San Fernando Valley house Friday morning when police called to say they were coming to arrest him. He said Simpson and Cowlings, who grew up with Simpson in a San Francisco housing project and was his teammate in high school, at the University of Southern California and the Buffalo Bills, vanished before police arrived.

"The Los Angeles Police Department is actively searching for Mr. Simpson," Gascon said. "The Los Angeles Police Department is also very unhappy with the activities surrounding his failure to surrender."

Authorities also were looking for Cowlings, Garcetti said, warning, "If you assist him in any way you are committing a felony."

The investigation was anchored by a grisly array of evidence, from media reports of a blood-stained ski mask to a bloody glove.

Gascon declined to say how the police lost Simpson, who was handcuffed and questioned by police Monday but let go. He had been seen at his house earlier in the week and attended his ex-wife's funeral Thursday. Someone resembling Simpson was seen driving away from his house an hour before his expected surrender.

Mike Botula, a spokesman for Garcetti, said the charges included the special capital punishment circumstance of multiple killings. There is no bail in such cases, Botula added.

"A final decision on whether we would seek the death penalty will be made at a later time," Botula said.

Fans and colleagues of the sports legend who had insisted on his innocence were forced by Friday's arrest warrant to confront an ominous possibility — that Simpson could have killed the mother of their two children.

"There's nothing to say except that the law must take its course," said Howard Cosell, who worked with Simpson on ABC's "Monday Night Football."

The bodies of Mrs. Simpson, the football star's strikingly beautiful ex-wife, and Goldman, a 25-year-old aspiring model and waiter at a trendy restaurant, were found outside Mrs. Simpson's posh condominium.

Mortally wounded by multiple stab wounds, the bodies were discovered in a pool of blood by a passerby.

The couple divorced in 1992 following a seven-year marriage. While still married, Mrs. Simpson called police in 1989 saying she feared he was going to kill her. She had been punched, slapped and kicked by Simpson, who pleaded no contest in the case, authorities said.

JUSTICE: Simpson case leaves police embarrassed

(From 1A)

"The Penal Code tells us when we believe a felony has occurred that we act," the detective said. "He should have been booked on probable cause. You book him. You don't let a suspect who killed two people run the streets. Who's liable if he kills his kids and takes his own life?"

Although he was detained briefly in handcuffs four days ago at his estate in the Brentwood area of Los Angeles, Simpson evaded police Friday after he was charged in the double slayings of his ex-wife and her male companion.

District Attorney Gil Garcetti and Assistant Chief Bernard Parks defended the intra-jurisdictional decision that allowed Simpson to remain free all week as detectives gathered evidence in the case.

"He's a witness until he's something else," Parks said.

Garcetti said there was no cause to arrest Simpson until Thursday night, when forensics tests positively linked him to the crime.

"Once we had that information (on the test results), we moved as quickly as we could," he said. "What happens if you make the arrest and the blood comes back and it doesn't connect to him? Then we're on a vendetta."

Los Angeles Police Chief Willie L. Williams, who was in Philadelphia all week for a court appearance, said in a television interview that the arrest warrant for Simpson was issued as soon as sufficient evidence was in hand.

"Based on what we have received and obtained and developed since Monday morning we, in consultation with the district attorney, felt we had enough evidence to go out and seek an arrest warrant which was approved."

Police officials rejected the notion that Simpson had been treated differently than other suspects. Detectives needed time to put the case together, said Cmdr. David Gascon, a spokesman for the department.

"There is no preferential treatment, there has been no preferential treatment," Gascon said.

Lt. John Dunkin said the department will look into the circumstances of the disappearance.

"We are all disappointed that the agreed upon surrender didn't take place," he said. "We are going to examine very closely all aspects of this failed surrender issue."

Legal experts said that police may have given Simpson special treatment, but that's understandable since his celebrity status would make it so difficult for him to hide.

"Not every murder suspect is known," said Robert Pugsley, a professor at Southwestern University School of Law in Los Angeles. "He can't walk down the street without being recognized instantly."

Pugsley also said that by volunteering Monday to be questioned by police, Simpson probably gave officials the impression he didn't intend to flee from justice.

"Probably all concerned had reason to believe he was going to face up to this."

A source close to the investigation said police did not move to arrest Simpson sooner because there was no indication he would not cooperate. He returned from Chicago after the slayings, agreed to speak to police and remained in close contact with police.

At Los Angeles City Hall, some officials were shaking their heads over the handling of the case.

"They should have booked him earlier," said one high-level city official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "This is an embarrassment. It looks like there was special treatment. You and I wouldn't have been given that amount of time to turn ourselves in."

City Councilwoman Jackie Goldberg said she did not want to second-guess the LAPD, but added: "To the average lay person it does seem odd. I think it's an embarrassing moment to the LAPD."

Goldberg said the LAPD's failure to arrest Simpson in 1989 after eight complaints of spousal abuse was "unfortunately not unusual at that time."

Since then, state law has been changed requiring arrests in certain domestic abuse cases and she said the LAPD has a "a good record of enforcing the law since then."

City Councilman Marvin Braude blamed the system for allowing Simpson to escape arrest during the assaults in 1989. "We didn't have a system that would have stopped him then," said Braude, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee.

Braude said he was trying to find out what happened that allowed Simpson to escape arrest Friday.

"I will have some conversation with the Police Department and then determine whether this matter is suitable for a committee investigation," Braude said.

HERO: Stunned nation watches Simpson tragedy

ly at the television as it brought him the news that the retired football great had become a fugitive, then the news that Simpson had written a farewell letter.

"Truth is stranger than fiction," Allan said.

In Bull's restaurant in San Francisco, O.J.'s hometown, people were still trying to digest the news that he'd been charged with murder.

But then at halftime of the World Cup Germany-Bolivia match, ESPN broke in to say the Hall of Famer had become a fugitive.

Jerome Fuentes could only open his mouth and suck in his breath. Next to him, his friend Eric Kinder just shook his head.

"It sounded like he was set up — it seemed like a Perry Mason case," Kinder said. "I expected someone to break down on the stand. But now, he's starting to sound dirtier and dirtier."

"It's a strange feeling," Fuentes chimed in.

Across America, people in sports bars, in restaurants and at work stared at TVs to listen to Simpson's defense attorney, the police, the prosecutors. They turned away, saddened, when a friend read the letter that sounded like a farewell message.

In Buffalo, where he was a star running back with the Bills in the 1970s, hot dog vendors knew the time of his scheduled arraignment, then knew he'd failed to show up.

Some held out hope it was all a big misunderstanding.

"I still don't want to believe it," said Cheryl Price, a diehard Bills fan. "It's like you lost a best friend, that's what it's like."

Others had already made up their mind.

"Why would he run?" Paula Thornton said at a restaurant and bar in Little Rock, Ark. "He's my idol. I just can't believe he would do that."

But confusion was the most widespread emotion — and amazement that a life so good could turn bad so fast.

"Take a look at a guy like him who had everything — success, respect, fame, money — why would he do it?" Daryl Green asked as he ate lunch with his wife at a restaurant in Yakima, Wash.

Green could not decide what he believed, or what motivated people.

"He was everyone's hero," he said.

PHYSICAL: Officials confirm evidence

based on police sources had listed the following evidence:

—A bloody glove found near a side entrance to Simpson's Brentwood estate that reportedly matches another glove found at the murder scene.

—Bloodstains in Simpson's white Ford Bronco.

—Rust-colored spots in Simpson's driveway determined to be blood.

—A bloody ski mask found in Simpson's home.

—A vehicle resembling Simpson's, spotted by a jogger, parked on Mrs. Simpson's street the night she was slain.

—A report from a limousine driver that Simpson wasn't at home Sunday night when the driver arrived earlier than scheduled, contradicting Simpson's alibi that he was at home at the time of the slayings.

Local station to air controversial 'NYPD Blue'

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

In a reversal of its decision last fall, station management at KMID-TV, the Midland-Odessa ABC-TV affiliate, will begin airing the controversial police drama "NYPD Blue" beginning Tuesday at 9 p.m.

Steve Dant, general manager of the station, said the decision was made based on a survey conducted locally.

"We recently did some market research," Dant said, "and as part of it we asked people, 'Should we or should we not air 'NYPD Blue'?' The clear majority said they felt we should air it and have people decide for themselves.

"It's an award-winning program; it's achieved wide acceptance all over the country, and we're going to clear it to air beginning next Tuesday."

The survey, conducted by an independent marketing research firm in Minneapolis, found that 57 percent of the respondents were in favor of the station airing the program; 39 percent were opposed and 4 percent had no opinion. The study surveyed 500 people in Midland-Odessa.

Dant said nationally there have been "a few" of the 25 affiliates to reverse their decision and air the program — which has been widely criticized as well as praised for its depiction of nudity, profanity and other adult situations.

Amarillo's ABC affiliate recently began airing the show after choosing not to last season. The Dallas-Fort Worth market — the largest to refuse to air the program — has remained by its initial decision.

When KMID made the decision last September to not air the program, Dant said, "We looked at the first three episodes and we decided the language and nudity in the program are not appropriate for that time period."

Dant said episodes that have aired since the first three have not been as graphic as the initial programs.

When KMID chose to not air the program, station management received a flurry of feedback — both positive and negative — for its decision. Dant expects a repeat of that.

"We expect we'll receive some feedback for this," he said. "And we expect the Reporter-Telegram will receive some letters to the editor."

Dant said Channel 2 will begin airing the program with episode 11 or 12 and will continue airing previously viewed programs until the new fall schedule begins later this year.

He said KMID has not yet received permission from the network to air videotaped editions of the show's first episodes.

Tutsi rebels kill U.N. major; Hutus storm U.N.-guarded hotel

■ Both sides in civil war display scant regard for 490 lightly armed, ill-supplied U.N. soldiers.

Associated Press

KIGALI, Rwanda — Maj. Juan Sosa was driving his white U.N. truck under supposed safe passage through a no man's land in Rwanda's civil war Friday when a rocket-propelled grenade blasted through his windshield.

The Uruguayan officer did not die instantly, but during an hour's delay while the rebels who destroyed the truck debated whether to grant the survivors safe passage, angry U.N. witnesses said. They included Sosa's badly wounded U.N. comrade and two other peacekeepers in an accompanying truck.

A Russian U.N. officer said rebel troops delayed him at a checkpoint when he tried to speed an armored personnel carrier to the ambush site about 13 miles northwest of Kigali, the rebel-besieged capital.

"They told us, 'You came here only to die,'" he said.

The officer, who did not want to be quoted by name, spoke as Sosa's body wrapped in U.N. blue plastic sheeting was loaded onto a Canadian C-130 transport plane at Kigali International Airport.

The airport remains officially closed to aid flights and other traffic because of shelling between troops of the Hutu-dominated government and predominantly Tutsi rebels. The plane that took out Sosa's body and the wounded Bangladeshi peacekeeper had flown in the first blood supplies in weeks.

The United Nations and aid groups estimate that about 200,000 have been slain since the war broke out April 6. Most of the victims have been civilians, many of those ethnic Tutsis murdered by gangs of Hutus.

Sosa died on a day when both sides in the civil war displayed scant regard for the 490 lightly armed and ill-supplied soldiers of the U.N. contingent.

Rwandan Patriotic Front rebels blasted their way through government lines early Friday to rescue about 600 Tutsi refugees at the Ste. Famille church complex. U.N. officials had planned to evacuate the refugees later in the day, but rebel spokesmen said they could not wait for the peacekeepers to act.

Government-trained Hutu militiamen later stormed into the Milles Collines Hotel in central Kigali, where another 600 Tutsi refugees were guarded by four U.N. soldiers. Officials said no one was killed inside the hotel, but some refugees might have been abducted.

"The militias just stormed into the hotel in overwhelming numbers," said Brig. Gen. Romeo Dallaire, the U.N. commander. He sent a platoon of U.N. soldiers and several armored personnel carriers to reinforce the hotel.

U.N. officials said they feared murderous reprisals by the Hutu militias were taking place Friday, but it was too dangerous to venture out.

Speaking with reporters at the main U.N. parking lot, Dallaire threw up his hands in exasperation: "We are protecting people with the resources available. I've deployed all that I have. You can see that the APCs (armored personnel carriers) here are broken down and I don't have spare parts for them."

His deputy, Brig. Gen. Henry Anyidoho, said: "This is one of the worst days we have ever had here. Even one of our ambulances broke down."

He spoke as representatives of both factions left U.N. headquarters in eastern Kigali without shaking hands or with any prospect of a cease-fire agreement.

In other developments Friday:

■ At the United Nations in New York, French Ambassador Jean-Bernard Merimee said he plans to introduce a Security Council resolution next week authorizing a French military mission in Rwanda for humanitarian purposes.

Feud within PLO police threatens security

■ Some fear truce may crumble, lead to open confrontation between two PLO officers' followers unless PLO leadership quickly moves to Jericho.

Associated Press

TUNIS, Tunisia — Already struggling with organizational snags, Yasser Arafat's embryonic self-rule government took on a new problem Friday — a police feud threatening to tear apart the security apparatus in Jericho and Gaza.

Reports of the power struggle between two top Palestinian police commanders leaked out as the PLO chairman tried to overcome the World Bank's reluctance to quickly hand over promised aid money.

The police dispute was just the latest in a long list of financial and security problems that have kept Arafat from setting a date for his move to Jericho, the West Bank town that will be seat of the Palestinians' government.

Sources in the Palestine Liberation Organization said the fight involved Gen. Nasr Youssef, overall commander of the new Palestinian police force in the self-rule zones, and Col. Jibril Rajoub, head of a special security unit.

Rajoub refused orders from Youssef, insisting the security unit answered only to Arafat, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Rajoub's main duty is to protect Arafat and other top Palestinian leaders when they move to the territories.

The sources said a heated argument between Youssef and Rajoub in Arafat's presence degenerated into a scuffle, with the men threatening each other Thursday.

Concerned the problem would lead to a clash in the restive territories, Arafat summoned the central committee of his mainstream Fatah faction to a Thursday night session to map out specific duties for Youssef and Rajoub.

The committee persuaded both men to put their personal animosity aside and coordinate on security matters through Arafat, the sources said.

Arafat then sent Rajoub back to his base in Jericho but kept Youssef in Tunis for further talks in an effort to calm the struggle.

PLO sources expressed fears the truce would break down and lead to an open confrontation between the two officers' followers in the territories, unless Arafat and his national authority moved quickly to Jericho.

Youssef, 57, who is a member of the Fatah central committee, was formerly deputy political commissioner for the Palestine Liberation Army, the PLO's military arm. Rajoub, 47, internal security chief for Arafat, was deported by Israel in 1988 for being a key organizer of the Palestinian uprising.

She was born Nov. 5, 1905, in Brown County. She retired from Grissom's Department Store. She was a member of Southside Baptist Church.

Her husband, Thomas Lee Dillard, preceded her in death in 1970.

Other survivors include another son, James Dillard of Houston; and three grandchildren.

Other states adopt Juneteenth holiday

DALLAS (AP) — Juneteenth has always been a special holiday in Texas, marking the date in 1865 when Texas slaves learned they had been freed. But the celebration has quietly become an unofficial national holiday.

"We need a reason to celebrate and this was like the perfect forum for that," said Geri Blanchet, director of public relations for Jomandi Productions Inc., which put on last year's Atlanta Juneteenth celebration. "It allows us to delve into our history and our culture in a very positive way."

In many Texas cities, blacks celebrate Juneteenth with parades,

Haitians rely heavily on flights from U.S. scheduled to end soon

By David Beard
Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — As times get tougher, Haitians depend even more on the flights from Miami and New York, carrying needed goods, cash-rich relatives and immeasurable hope.

The end of these flights June 24 represents a big psychological blow, cutting off the possibility of a family-aided getaway and further isolating the Haitian people.

In ordering a halt to commercial air traffic, the Clinton administration believed it was targeting the elite in the latest economic sanction against military coup leaders.

But the vast majority of those aboard an American Airlines flight Thursday afternoon, including 41 Haitians who had gained political asylum because of political persecution, were far from rich or even middle class.

"I didn't pay for this ticket," acknowledged Pierre Philippe Jean, 41, a civil engineer fired from his government job after the military coup in 1991 who was granted asylum.

Some flights carry needed medicines, batteries, other hard-to-find items from U.S. relatives to Haitian kin.

His sister, a restaurant worker in Spring Valley, N.Y., a college friend and a cousin in Miami put up some of the money.

Leaving his wife, 9-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son at their home just north of Port-au-Prince, Jean booked his return for mid-July — hoping Haiti's political crisis would resolve itself by then.

As he spoke, Creole-speaking flight attendants filled out immigration forms for some of the illiterate passengers.

"I don't know what they are going to do when the flights end," said Carole Saint Come, chief flight attendant on the 90-minute run from Port-au-Prince to Miami.

When American Airlines added a second flight to the Haitian capital last week, it was to help ferry out the more than 8,000 U.S. citizens, most of them Haitian-Americans, in the impoverished Caribbean nation. But the airline unexpectedly drew strong business from panicked Haitian-Americans in the United States seeking to make one last run to help relatives.

Some carried needed medicines, batteries or other hard-to-find items for their kin.

Willens Bertrand, a 20-year-old college student from Port Lucie, Fla., waited for his mother at the arrival gate in Miami Thursday.

"My mother took a chance, but she had to go there," said Bertrand. "My grandma is supposed to be dying sometime soon, so she is paying her last respects."

Bosnian truce violations worry U.N. officials

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.N. officials expressed concern Friday about increasing violations of a week-old truce that mediators hoped would lead to overall peace in Bosnia.

More fighting was reported in the northwest corner of Bosnia between renegade Muslims backed by Serb artillery, and the Muslim-led Bosnian army.

Serbs reported an attack by the Bosnian army on their vital corridor across northern Bosnia. Serb-Muslim fighting was reported elsewhere in northern Bosnia, and tension increased around Sarajevo, the capital.

The commander of U.N. peacekeeping operations in Bosnia, Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, was very concerned about the increasing violations and intended to write to both factions to stress the need to observe the truce, U.N. spokesman Maj. Dacre Holloway said.

Mediators had hoped to use the monthlong cease-fire to build momentum for an overall settlement in Bosnia after 26 months of war that has left 200,000 people dead or missing and 70 percent of the republic in Serb hands.

The war began after Bosnia's Croat and Muslim communities voted to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia, over the objection of Bosnian Serbs.

Numerous international attempts to end the bloodshed have failed, and there is no firm date for resuming the latest talks on an overall settlement.

The warring sides discussed some prisoner exchanges, but U.N. hopes for talks this week on a broader settlement did not pan out.

"We are working on that," said Paul Resley, a spokesman for Yasushi Akashi, the U.N. chief envoy for former Yugoslavia.

The Bosnian army and Serb forces exchanged artillery fire Thursday near Maglaj, 50 miles north of Sarajevo, said a U.N. spokesman, Cmdr. Eric Chaperon. Tank fire was reported farther north near Gradacac and Brcko.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported a Bosnian army attack on Serb positions five miles west of Brcko on Friday.

Brcko is at a narrow point in the corridor across northern Bosnia that connects Serb holdings to the east and west, and is vital to their goal of uniting Serb lands.

A local cease-fire around Sarajevo, in effect since February, also showed signs of strain. Chaperon reported one civilian killed and two wounded by sniper fire in the southwestern suburb of Dobrinja.

He said a Serb soldier also was killed by a government army sniper in nearby Nedjarici, and gunfire forced a utility crew to abandon repair work in the area.

Further complicating peace efforts is fighting around Bihac in the northwest between government forces and soldiers loyal to a local Muslim leader, Fikret Abdic.

Russia agrees to sign NATO cooperation accord

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Russia will join NATO's military cooperation plan for east Europe, ending months of uncertainty about whether Moscow would sign the accord at the heart of NATO's post-Cold War security scenario for Europe.

Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev will sign the Partnership for Peace agreement on Wednesday during a visit to NATO headquarters, NATO spokesman Florent Swijssen said Friday.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher and other allied foreign ministers plan to attend the signing ceremony, he said.

Pressured by anti-Western hardliners, Russia had balked at signing a basic framework accord, arguing for special consultative ties that reflect its claim to superpower status.

At a June 10 meeting in Istanbul, Turkey, the NATO foreign ministers reiterated Russia must first sign a partnership deal before there can be any discussion of broadening the relationship.

A basic partnership opens the door to as much political and military cooperation as east European nations care to develop with NATO.

Parallel to signing the cooperation accord, Russia and NATO will issue a document on the relations they want to develop beyond a basic partnership, officials said.

This will include consultations on European political and military matters, on nuclear arms and safety issues and on preventing the spread of weapons of mass destruction to unstable regimes, NATO sources said.

Russian and NATO officials will start drafting a text over the weekend.

NATO officials stressed, however, that Russia won't get a say in how the alliance runs its post-Cold War affairs.

Nor will NATO yield to a demand by Moscow that it tone down its ambition to be Europe's key post-Cold war security organization.

As a superpower, Russia argued it deserved a relationship with NATO unlike that of other east European nations.

Negotiator's resignation jolts Mexico at election time

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The resignation of Mexico's peace negotiator with Indian rebels is sending powerful shock waves through an already troubled country as it faces a pivotal presidential election.

Thursday night's resignation by Manuel Camacho Solis deepens a split in the Institutional Revolutionary Party, which is struggling to maintain its 65-year hold on power in a tight race for the Aug. 21 vote.

Camacho, a popular former Mexico City mayor, is standard-bearer for a pro-democracy faction in the PRI. Although he is not running for president, his resignation may cause backers to withhold their support from the PRI's candidate, Ernesto Zedillo, whose campaign is just gathering steam.

A loss for the ruling party, known as the PRI, would profoundly change Mexico. No presidential election here this century has resulted in one party handing power to another.

Camacho's resignation also adds uncertainty to the future of the Jan. 1 rebellion in southern Mexico, whose combatants have won sympathy from a broad group of Mexicans who want democratic and social reforms.

S. African government eyes traditional healing

By Tom Cohen
Associated Press Writer

SOWETO, South Africa — With sparkling eyes and practiced hands, Lina Ramahlo pored over the tools of her centuries-old trade — assorted bones, stones, sea shells, a silver coin and a single die, which came up six.

Soon she began a cadence in her native Zulu, reciting to an inquisitive journalist his state of mind and body in melodic declarations punctuated by "vuma?" ("Do you understand?")

Ramahlo is a sangoma, or traditional healer, and her diagnosis from "throwing the bones" hit home on some points, such as stress and ill humor from problems with a girlfriend. She missed on others, like foot pains early in the morning.

The next step, if desired, would be medicine, maybe an herbal tea or ground tree bark and roots rubbed on the skin or into cuts from a knife.

An estimated 80 percent of the 30 million blacks in South Africa rely on sangomas, herbalists, spiritualists and other healers for some of their health care in their strongest link to life before whites arrived almost 350 years ago.

Healers practice surreptitiously, fearing arrest for violating labor laws that brand them as witches and charlatans preying off fear and superstition.

Now the first black-led government, headed by the African National Congress, wants to legalize and regulate traditional healing and include it in a sweeping program to upgrade health services for blacks after decades of neglect under apartheid.

Jo Bierman of the national health department said the goal is to incorporate the knowledge and experience of the healer, which has existed for centuries.

"We're saying that primary health care must still provide the facility and the medical back-up, but it must link up with this man who can tell the problem," she explained.

Obstacles loom in getting the white-dominated medical community to accept traditional healing, linked in folklore and newspaper headlines to fortune telling, barbaric practices and even ritual murders for human body parts. One healing association announced only this week it would ban members found to be using human flesh in their practices.

"There's enormous prejudice to be overcome," said Dr. Nigel Gericke of the pharmacology department at the University of Cape Town Medical School.

Coke resumes business after death of apartheid

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Coca-Cola announced on Friday it was resuming its own operations in South Africa, eight years after the world's most prominent U.S. brand pulled out of the country because of apartheid.

The head of Coke's Africa operations, Carl Ware, met with President Nelson Mandela on Friday, further underlining the importance placed by the new government on bringing South Africa back into the commercial mainstream.

South Africa has been seeking to build its economy by attracting investment from big-name companies that had left the country because of whites-only rule, which ended with the April elections.

Coca-Cola withdrew its operations from South Africa in 1986 under heavy pressure from civil rights groups. It closed a concentrate plant, pulled its employees out of the country and sold its interest in a large bottler.

But Coca-Cola products have continued to be distributed in South Africa by locally owned bottlers. The company says Coke has a 75 percent share of the South African soft-drink market.

As it reinvests, Coke pledges to adopt affirmative action policies for blacks and women.

Court: Murderers can tell jurors about parole odds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court gave some convicted murderers a better chance to avoid the death penalty Friday, ruling they can tell sentencing juries there's no chance they could be paroled from a life-in-prison term.

The court, by a 7-2 vote, ruled that such defendants have a right to tell jurors when the only alternative to a death sentence is life without parole.

The decision struck down a South Carolina law that barred jurors, many of whom might think a "life sentence" doesn't really mean a lifetime behind bars, from hearing that parole is impossible for some defendants.

Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas, the court's two most conservative members, dissented.

"The heavily outnumbered opponents of capital punishment have successfully opened yet another front in their guerrilla war to make (the death penalty) a practical impossibility," Scalia wrote for the two.

In other decisions, the court:

■ Said federal regulators generally cannot give long-distance telephone companies competing against AT&T greater leeway to decide what rates to charge customers.

■ Barred Massachusetts from requiring milk wholesalers to pay an assessment on all milk sold in the state and then distribute the money only to in-state dairy farmers.

Writing for himself and three others, Justice Harry A. Blackmun said, "Where the defendant's future dangerousness is at issue, and state law prohibits the defendant's release on parole, due process requires that the sentencing jury be informed that the defendant is parole ineligible."

But Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and two other members who voted against the South Carolina law did not join Blackmun's language about a due-process requirement.

In an opinion written by O'Connor, they said the Constitution's due-process protection "entitles the defendant to inform the capital sentencing jury . . . he is parole ineligible."

The apparent bottom line: A defendant has a due-process right to let a jury know there's no chance of parole.

Clinton seeks free trade with Latin nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration asked Congress on Friday for authority to negotiate free-trade agreements with Chile and other Latin nations, but language dealing with the environment and worker rights was drawing heavy opposition.

The administration released a proposed bill asking for "fast-track" authority to negotiate new trade agreements that could extend the current North American Free Trade Agreement to cover the Western Hemisphere. NAFTA now links the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Agreements negotiated under fast-track authority go through Congress in a streamlined process that does not allow amendments.

■ More news/9C

Chile and a number of other Latin American countries have expressed the hope that they will be added to NAFTA, which cleared Congress last November over strenuous objections from labor unions and environmentalists.

Under the language submitted to Congress, the administration is seeking to extend such negotiating authority until Dec. 15, 2001.

The language does not specify which countries would be covered, but a number of Latin American nations have indicated a desire to get free-trade agreements with the United States.

Officials from Chile last month said they expected to begin negotiations with the United States later this year and conclude the agreement by early 1995.

Under pressure from key Democrats, such as House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., the administration added labor standards and the environment as two of seven principal negotiating objectives.

In the labor section, the legislation says America's principal negotiating objective will be to "ensure that the benefits of the trading system are available to all workers and that the denial of such standards is not a means . . . to gain competitive advantage in international trade."

Bass in Oil

WICHITA FALLS — State championship quarterbacks from Texas and Oklahoma will lead their teams in the 57th Oil Bowl football game tonight at Memorial Stadium.

Chad Nelson, who guided 15-0-1 Lewisville to the Class 5A, Division 1 state title, will start for the Texas all-stars. Nelson, who has signed with Rice, led an 80-yard touchdown drive in the final three minutes as Lewisville beat Aldine MacArthur, 43-37, last December.

Odessa Permian wide receiver Sheldon Bass, who has signed with Texas Tech, will play for the Texas all-stars. Bass is the only District 4-5A representative on the squad.

The Oklahoma team will be led by Travis Hartfield, who took 13-1 Watonga to the Class 2A championship. Hartfield signed with Oklahoma State after passing for more than 5,000 yards in three years starting for Watonga.

Oklahoma lost the annual game 23-14 last year. Texas has a 37-12-1 advantage in the series.

But the Texas line is not as big as it has been in the past. This year, the squad's strength appears to be the secondary.

Derick Bates of Temple, Robby Cartwright of Boyd and Shunte Hall of Kilgore could make passing tough for Hartfield.

"I expect that they'll throw the ball, with the talent they have, so it's just a question of who executes the best," said Texas head coach Matthew Robinson of Holliday.

The Sooner State coaches have brought in some big linemen — average weight 260 pounds for the starting offensive line.

Tulsa Union's Jeremy Ray Shadrick, a 6-4, 275-pound guard headed for Nebraska, and Bristow's Russell Brown, a 6-2, 275-pound guard signed by Arkansas, are the leaders of the Oklahoma offensive line.

Knicks squelch Rocket rally

■ New York uses an 11-1 rally in the last three minutes to preserve a 91-84 win and a 3-2 series lead in the NBA Finals.

By Howard Ulman
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — A revived Patrick Ewing kept New York in the game, then John Starks and Derek Harper won it. And the Knicks moved a win away from their first NBA title in 21 years.

New York blew a 13-point, third-quarter lead but rallied with an 11-1 run in the last three minutes for a 91-84 victory Friday night and a 3-2 lead over the Houston Rockets in the NBA Finals.

New York can become the fifth team in six years to win the title on the road Sunday night in Houston. A seventh game, if necessary, would be there Wednesday night.

"We've got to be confident," said Harper, who finished with 14 points. "Winning this game gives us good confidence going into Houston, and I think the pressure's on them."

The Rockets rallied from a 56-43 deficit with a 22-5 spurt that gave them a 65-61 lead two minutes into the fourth quarter. But Ewing, who had 13 of the Knicks' first 26 points in the second half, got six straight New York points to tie the game at 69 with 8:02 to play.

Ewing had 25 points, 12 rebounds and eight blocks for the Knicks, who made 16 of 19 foul shots. Hakeem Olajuwon had 27 points for the Rockets.

"The main thing is that we don't give Houston the things that make them good," Harper said. "Olajuwon can't be stopped, but the other guys can be."

With the Rockets on top 79-76, Starks hit a basket with 4:09 to play. Vernon Maxwell's free throw gave Houston an 80-78 lead. But then Starks hit a 3-pointer. Harper followed with two foul shots and a lead pass to Anthony Mason for a dunk that put the Knicks in front 85-80 with 1:25 to play.

Pirates steal win

Jamie Begley played a small part in Mid Cities Pirates' pitching this Little League season. But Friday in a 2-1 win over the Tower League White Sox in the city championship round he grabbed the lead role.

Begley held the White Sox to one unearned run and forced an A League championship game today at Joe Mowles Little League complex at 1 p.m. The White Sox (21-1) lost their first game of the year and missed out on a chance to take the city title in the double-elimination tournament.

"Jamie didn't really pitch that much for us this year," Pirate manager Jan South said. "(But) once we got into the tournament we had to use some more kids."

Begley had started only one regular season game and one tournament game

Soccer brings world to America

By Rick Gano

CHICAGO — The World Cup, the most popular sporting event on the face of the earth, began its passionate month-long run Friday with a mix of cultures and languages at steamy Solider Field.

President Clinton and a crowd of more than 60,000 were on hand for the opening game of the 24-team tournament.

Fans from the world over painted their faces, pounded on drums, bellowed their favorite cheers, hoisted banners and blew whistles, revving up a tournament making its first appearance in the United States.

"Soccer is now a universal language that brings us all together," Clinton said after being introduced to a chorus of boos at the opening ceremonies.

He welcomed Bolivian President Gonzalo Sanchez de Lozada and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, saying "let us appreciate the unity of people through the world that this game represents."

Master of ceremonies Oprah Winfrey was in no mood to appreciate unity. Minutes after her opening remarks, she slipped off a platform and had to be helped off the stage after introducing Diana Ross.

Then Ross' attempt at kicking a ball into a nearby goal went wide left before she began singing a medley of her hits. Winfrey was able to resume her duties.

Montgomerie

OAKMONT, Pa. — Colin Montgomerie's brilliant 65 gave the Scotsman the 36-hole lead at the U.S. Open on Friday, the day Arnold Palmer bid a tearful goodbye to the Open, Oakmont and, in a way, golf itself.

Montgomerie was at 6-under-par 136 at the halfway mark, two strokes better than Hale Irwin, who sweated his way to a 69, and John Cook, who sizzled to a 65.

But on this day the only name that could rival Palmer's was Jack Nicklaus. He shot 70, his second consecutive under-par round here, and was at 3-under-par 139, three strokes back.

Only Nicklaus' ovation approaching the 18th green was as great as Palmer's.

Irwin's second straight 2-under-par round at Oakmont Country Club was a roller coaster round in which he followed an eagle with a double bogey. Cook, meanwhile, knocked in putts from all over and finished eight strokes better than he managed on Thursday.

The late-finishing Montgomerie was simply brilliant. He

Midlander builds 'from ground up' to winner's circle

By Mike Butts
Staff Writer

If Jay Watson owns a television, it's a good bet the remote control's got cobwebs.

Watson has little leisure time these days. But he has plenty of time for the stock car racing avocation that has made him one of the best drivers on this year's Texas International Drivers Association tour. The native Midlander demonstrates his stock car racing skill and goes for a tour-leading third win tonight at Twin Cities Speedway in the 9:30 p.m. feature race.

It's hard to imagine Watson any busier. He recently sat in his auto shop office talking of the 1994 TIDA season, in which he ranks second in the point standings — seven behind David Umscheid. Seventeen repair orders where stacked on his desk as he juggled three phone calls in a five minute span.

After his day at the shop, Watson spends about six more hours tending to the Oldsmobile Cutlass that he drove to win the TIDA late model stock car series races at Twin Cities May 14 and in San Antonio June 4. Watson said he built the car "from the ground up."

The auto shop owner also sells stock car bodies and a pressurized drinking systems for racing drivers. He has a room attached to the auto shop where he lifts weights six days a week on equipment he built himself. He rides a stationary bike every morning. Driving is physically challenging, and Watson keeps in shape even during the off season.

"I don't want the kids outrunning me," said Watson. "I'm 37 years old and there are some young kids (on the tour) who are pretty tough."

The busy Midlander is the only TIDA driver with two wins in this season's six races. He came close to recording two more. In Corpus Christi, he crashed while making a pass for second place.

Cleveland ties 43-year-old victory record

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians tied a 43-year-old franchise record with their 16th straight home victory Friday night, beating the slumping Boston Red Sox 8-1 behind the strong pitching of Dennis Martinez.

The Indians' streak at Jacobs Field is the best in the majors since Boston won a record 24 in a row at Fenway Park in 1988. Cleveland won 16 straight at Cleveland Stadium in 1951.

The Indians have won seven in a row overall while the Red Sox dropped their ninth straight — their first nine-game skid since 1977.

Martinez (5-4) gave up one run and eight hits in eight innings.

Cleveland jumped on Nate Minchey (0-2) for seven runs by the third inning. Everyone in Cleveland's starting lineup except Sandy Alomar had a hit, an RBI or both by the third inning.

Brewers 8, Yankees 1

NEW YORK — Cal Eldred pitched a three-hitter and put Paul O'Neill below .400 for the first time this season.

Dave Nilsson hit a grand slam for Milwaukee, but Eldred (7-7) was the main star. He pitched his third complete game in 15 starts, walked three and struck out none.

O'Neill was hitless in four at bats, dropping his average to .397.

Nilsson's first career grand slam came in a five-run fifth in which Scott Kamieniecki (4-3) walked three batters.

Orioles 9, Twins 2

BALTIMORE — Ben McDonald won his 10th game as the Orioles ended seven-game winning streaks by the Twins and pitcher Kevin Tapani.

McDonald (10-4) pitched a eight-hitter, striking out five and walking none. The Orioles broke the game open by sending 11 men to the plate in a five-run fifth inning that made it 7-0.

Blue Jays 7, Tigers 4

DETROIT — Paul Molitor had three hits, including a three-run homer, and the Toronto Blue Jays ended a three-game losing streak.

The Tigers, playing before a crowd of 36,210 — their largest since Opening Day — lost their third straight.

Mariners 5, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY — Ken Griffey hit his 30th homer of the season, Edgar Martinez added a three-run shot and Dave Fleming snapped a personal five-game losing streak for the Mariners.

Griffey's homer enabled him to match Babe Ruth's mark for most home runs before June 30. Ruth hit 30 by that date in both 1928 and 1930, finishing with 54 in 1928 and 49 two years later.

Angels 5, White Sox 3

CHICAGO — Chili Davis hit a two-run single to cap a five-run rally in the ninth inning.

Roberto Hernandez (1-3), who blew his third straight save opportunity, relieved Wilson Alvarez with the bases loaded and none out in the ninth. He walked pinch hitter Jim Edmonds and gave up an infield single to Spike Owen to make the score 3-2, then walked Tim Salmon to force in the tying run.

Athletics 4, Rangers 2

ARLINGTON — Stan Javier homered twice and drove in three runs, lifting the Athletics to their sixth win in their last eight games.

The Rangers have lost six of seven.

After Eric Fox doubled in the seventh, Javier lined an 0-2 pitch from reliever Tom Henke over the wall in center for his ninth homer.

Todd Van Poppel (3-5), making his second appearance in his hometown, allowed two hits over seven innings. Dennis Eckersley pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Blauser rallies Braves over Reds, 6-5

Associated Press

■ NL Roundup

ATLANTA — Jeff Blauser hit a two-run home run in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night to rally the Atlanta Braves to a 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Barry Larkin's two-out, two-run double in the top of the inning had given the Reds a 5-4 lead.

Roberto Kelly led off Atlanta's ninth with a single off Jeff Brantley (4-3), and Blauser followed with his second homer of the season over the left field fence.

The Braves' fourth straight win was also the 1,000th for Atlanta manager Bobby Cox.

Jeff Blauser had four hits and three RBIs and Roberto Kelly had three hits for the Braves.

Atlanta starter Greg Maddux, attempting to become the majors' first 110game winner, allowed three runs and six hits in 7⅓ innings. He struck out eight and walked none.

Padres 3, Astros 2

SAN DIEGO — Eddie Williams hit his first big-league homer in nearly four years, Andy Benes pitched eight strong innings and San Diego beat Houston.

Bip Roberts went 2-for-4 to extend his hitting streak to 20 games, longest in the NL this year, as the Padres snapped Houston's three-game winning streak.

Benes (5-9) broke a personal four-game losing streak to the Astros and won his third straight decision. He struck out seven and walked three. Trevor Hoffman pitched the ninth for his 11th save.

Greg Swindell (5-4) allowed nine hits in six innings to lose his third straight start.

Williams, starting at first base against the left-handed Swindell, homered to left-center with one out in the second for a 1-0 lead. It was his first homer since July 23, 1990, also with San Diego. He added an RBI single in the fifth for a 3-0 lead.

Williams, who went 3-for-4, played 14 games for the Padres in 1990. He played in Japan in 1991 and spent time in both the minors and the Mexican League until San Diego purchased his contract from Class AAA Las Vegas on Tuesday. He continues to lead the Pacific Coast League with 20 home runs.

San Diego made it 2-0 in the third when Brad Ausmus hit a leadoff single and later scored on Craig Shipley's sacrifice fly. Roberts followed with a single to extend his career-best hitting streak.

Mike Felder hit a two-run, bases-loaded single with two out in the seventh. Chris Donnels was tagged out after being caught in a rundown between third and home.

Phillies 10, Expos 8

MONTREAL — Pete Incaviglia's single drove in the go-ahead run and Darren Daulton followed with a two-run double as Philadelphia scored six runs in the eighth inning for a victory over Montreal.

Trailing 7-4 in the eighth, Kevin Stocker and Mickey Morandini each hit one-out singles. Pinch-hitter Milt Thompson singled to score Stocker and Morandini and Thompson advanced on right fielder Larry Walker's errant throw which got past catcher Darrin Fletcher.

Morandini then scored on a groundout before Mariano Duncan's triple scored Thompson to tie it at 7-7. Incaviglia then singled off John Wetteland (2-4) to bring in Duncan, and Daulton followed with a two-run double.

Paul Quantrill (2-0) pitched two innings for the win, and Doug Jones got the final four outs — striking out the side in the ninth — for his National League-leading 18th save.

Mariano Duncan went 3-for-5 with three runs scored and John Kruk drove in three runs for the Phillies.

Moises Alou homered and had three RBIs for the Expos.

Marlins 6, Mets 5

MIAMI — Greg Colbrunn hit a three-run homer following an intentional walk and Kurt Abbott homered for the fourth consecutive game to help Florida beat New York.

Dave Weathers (7-5) allowed six hits and five runs — two unearned — in seven-plus innings. Closer Robb Nen got Ryan Thompson to hit into a double play to end the eighth, then pitched a perfect ninth for his fifth save.

Florida has won four in a row.

Pete Smith (3-7) intentionally walked Jeff Conine with a runner on second and two out in the third inning. Colbrunn followed with his second homer to give Florida a 5-2 lead.

Colbrunn, who spent seven weeks on the disabled list earlier this season, has an eight-game hitting streak with 14 RBIs in the past seven games.

Abbott hit a solo home run in the second to make the score 2-2 and set a team record by homering in his fourth game in a row. The rookie now has seven homers.

Pirates 7, Cardinals 4

ST. LOUIS — Rookie Jon Lieber pitched eight effective innings and Al Martin went 4-for-5 to lead Pittsburgh to a win over St. Louis.

Lieber (3-2) gave up three runs and scattered nine hits in his seventh major league start. Rookie Ravelo Manzanillo gave up a sacrifice fly in the ninth but Alejandro Pena got the final out for his third save.

The Cardinals, who have lost four straight games, fell below .500 for the first time since May 16.

Pittsburgh, which has won nine of its last 14, have had more than 10 hits in six of their last eight games.

Carlos Garcia went 3-for-5 with two RBIs and Jay Bell drove in two runs for the Pirates, who got 16 hits off five St. Louis pitchers.

Giants 6, Cubs 1

SAN FRANCISCO — Bill Swift gave up eight hits but was bailed out by three double plays, and Royce Clayton went 3-for-4 and scored twice to lead San Francisco.

Swift (8-4), winning his fifth game in six decisions, walked four and struck out four in eight innings.

Jim Bullinger (3-2), an emergency starter when Mike Morgan was scratched, allowed four runs, two earned, in five innings. He walked one and struck out seven.

Dave Martinez scored two runs for the Giants and robbed Mark Grace of a home run in the fifth inning.

CITY: Pirates, Sox meet for championship today

(From 1C)

before his important win Friday. Against the previously undefeated White Sox he retired eight in a row at one point and struck out three.

The performance didn't surprise South.

"We've been working with him throughout the year and he's just kept getting better and better," said South, who wouldn't name a starter for today's championship but said he could use any of four or five players.

The Pirates (21-2) hit White Sox starter Cliff Mitchell hard almost from the start. They left men on base in every inning except the fifth and stranded three in the sixth, getting two doubles along the way.

The Tower League team lost a good chance to tie or win the game in the bottom of the sixth and last inning. But a double play, the third of the game, on a controversial call crippled the White Sox rally.

Trailing 3-2, Cory Simmons led off the sixth with a single to right. Mitchell then blooped a base hit over the third baseman. With no outs White Sox first baseman Jarred Martin lined to Pirate first baseman Jeff Brock for an out and the Pirates tagged second to put out Simmons, who had gone to third on the play. The White Sox argued that Simmons had tagged second, but the call stood.

"We just let it get away from us," White Sox manager Bryan Webb said. "It's going to be pretty tough getting over the first loss."

The White Sox have little time to do that as the start Simmons in today's game.

The Pirates scored first when Chris Howard singled to open the third. He went to second on a wild pitch and later scored on a wild pitch.

The White Sox tied the game in the bottom of the same inning when Omar Urquidez singled with two out, moved to second on a wild pitch, to third on Tyler Webb's infield single and scored on an error.

Begley scored the winning run for the Pirates in the fourth. He doubled to lead off, moved to third on Jeff Levea's ground out and scored on Jason South's ground out, the only RBI of the game.

Webb, who said his team "came out real flat" Friday, hopes the loss will inspire his team to more intense play today.

"They're really mad now," Webb said. "They want that City Championship. They've been over there looking at that trophy all week."

Sebach gets complete, 10-inning win for Angels

Staff Report

WICHITA, Kan. — Angel starter Kyle Sebach, who joined Midland just last week, became a hero to his support staff in the bullpen when he pitched a complete 10 innings to get his first win in a 5-4 victory over the Wichita Wranglers here Friday.

The Midland bullpen, which was worked extensively in an 11-9, 15-inning Angel win Thursday, did not face a single batter in the Angels third extra-inning win of the season. The Angels are 3-1 in extra-inning games this season.

Sebach gave up 10 hits but walked only one while striking out 10 Wichita batters.

In fact, there have been three very recent newcomers to the Angels who have played a major role in the current three-game winning streak which began at the open of the six-game series with the Wranglers.

Friday, it was pinch hitter Jim Walewander whose only at-bat in the game resulted in the winning run being scored after the game went into the 10th tied at 4-4. Walewander, who was just signed Friday, drove a hard grounder to Wichita third baseman Steve Bethea with two outs in the 10th. Bethea misplayed the ball and Chris Pritchett, who reached base on a walk, scored from third.

Wednesday the hero was newcomer Rob Katzaroff, who replaced Vancouver-bound Mark Sweeney. Katzaroff went 3-for-4, stole a base and drove in the game-winning RBI.

The three Midland wins over Wichita have been decided by a total of four runs and the Angels and Wranglers continued to battle Friday. The lead switched hands five times and was tied three times.

Dom Johnson (3-2, 4.58 era) is the probable starter for the Angels today in a 7:15 p.m. start against Wichita's Fernando Fernandez (3-2, 3.20).

Arnie's last goodbye a sad one

■ Arnold Palmer gives game he loved for four decades a teary goodbye.

By Alan Robinson
AP Sports Writer

OAKMONT, Pa. — Golf made him rich, famous and beloved. Never before had it made Arnold Palmer cry.

Palmer shed a tear — actually, many of them — in a moving scene of high emotion and high drama Friday as he said goodbye to the game that made him one of the world's most recognizable athletes.

Minutes after completing his final U.S. Open round, Palmer effectively announced his retirement in a news conference that ended with the rarest of sights — a standing ovation from the news media.

On the very Oakmont Country Club course where he was introduced to big-time golf as a wide-eyed 12-year-old in 1942, he said a teary-eyed farewell. He wasn't the only one crying.

"I'm sun-whipped and tired and ready to take a rest," Palmer said. "Oh, there will be a few more tournaments along the way, but ..."

Probably not many — he didn't say so, but didn't have to.

He'll be 65 in September, mandatory retirement age for nearly everyone but golfers, and his game — not long enough, not accurate enough, not brilliant enough by his standards — won't allow him to be all that competitive even on the Seniors Tour. Some golfers, like Seve Ballesteros, even complained when he was given his first exemption in 11 years for this Open.

He shot a 10-over 81 Friday, but no one counted, no one complained and no one cared.

As he walked up Oakmont's famed and punishing 18th for the last time, a groundswell of clapping and cheering rolled down the fairway, carrying him along every step. His straw hat couldn't hide the weariness in the eyes of a man not all that accustomed to playing in the 90s, the temperature, or in the 80s, his score.

Arnie's Army — some in the crowd were here for his first Open at Oakmont in 1953, his stirring near-miss playoff loss to Jack Nicklaus in 1962 — clapped and whistled and yelled, "Go, Arnie, Go," just as they did when Palmer's spectacular charges single-handedly put golf on America's sporting map. Some had rooted for him since he played western Pennsylvania amateurs here, on those days he didn't help his tractor-riding, golf-pro father tend to his Latrobe Country Club course.

Arnie's hitch-up-his-pants, go-for-it-all style — aggressive, relentless, all-consuming — was exactly what was needed to introduce golf to the masses as television became a part of every American home in the late 1950s and 1960s.

In his prime, only Muhammad Ali compared with Palmer for worldwide recognition, and probably only Ali has ever made more money from sports. Even now, in virtual semi-retirement for years, Palmer's estimated annual income from personal appearances and endorsements is $11 million.

After Palmer three-putted on 18 — who noticed? — he doffed the straw hat, raised his left arm in a wave, took a few steps, then waved again.

He tried to compose himself before what likely was his final major-tournament press conference, but, for probably the first time in his life, was nearly speechless.

"I think you all know pretty much how I feel," he said, dabbing at his eyes with a towel, pausing on almost every word to recharge his emotional batteries. "I got a little tired, I guess, and a little emotional coming up 18.

"I mean it is, you know, 40 years of fun, work, enjoyment."

He tried to slip in a joke — "I haven't won all that much," he said — but even he didn't smile. Even those forty-something years of pro golf hadn't prepared him for this — his farewell.

Finally, he choked out a few more words, "The most important thing is the fact that it has been good to me."

He paused once again, wiped more tears, put the towel over his face to hide emotions he had never before revealed, hesitated still more, but couldn't go on.

"I think that is about all I have to say," he said. "Thank you."

He strode off the podium, only to waver again before stepping outside the tent to greet more fans who wanted an autograph or a handshake. He turned one final time to the assembled media, and gave one final wave. Then he was gone, after 70 PGA and Senior Tour championships, $3.4 million in prize winnings and an immeasurable effect on American sports and society.

All those years, Palmer gripped a golf club. As it turned out, it actually was the other way around.

The king is gone. Long live the king.

eagled the par-5 9th hole then made three birdies on the back nine, including a short putt on 18 that gave him a 33-32 and a two-stroke margin over Irwin and Cook going into today's third round.

Tied with Nicklaus three strokes behind Montgomerie at 139 was Jeff Maggert. Steve Pate, who shot 66, Curtis Strange and New Zealander Frank Nobilo were four back at 140. Tom Watson, Kirk Triplett and Emlyn Aubrey were at 141. British Open champ Greg Norman was in a group at even-par 142.

On another sweltering, 95-degree day that was even steamier after an overnight thunderstorm, the 64-year-old Palmer bid a tearful farewell after shooting an 81 and missing the cut.

Putting through tears on the 18th green after a standing, cheering, whooping ovation reminiscent of the days of Arnie's Army, Palmer bogeyed the final hole of his final U.S. Open then broke down as he tried to address reporters.

"I think you all pretty much know how I feel," said Palmer, who played his first Open in 1953, missing the cut as an amateur. "It is 40 years of fun, work, enjoyment."

He buried his head in a towel, wiping away sweat and tears.

"I have won a few tournaments. I have won some majors, but I suppose, the most important thing is the fact that it has been as good as it has been to me," Palmer said.

After a few more tortured attempts at words Palmer said, "I think that is about all I have to say. Thank you very much."

He walked across the interview tent to a standing ovation from several hundred reporters, paused to collect himself, then lifted the tent flap and left with a wave but without looking back.

Fuller, Everest win golf qualifier

ODESSA — Midland's Kaimi Fuller produced an eagle on the way to a 75 to win the girls division of the Big "I" Junior Classic Regional Qualifier at Ratliff Ranch this week.

Fuller won the tournament by one stroke over Andrews' Tori Hester. With the win, Fuller qualifies for the Big "I" Youth Classic at Woodlands Resort in Houston in July. Third place went to Marissa Gortney with an 84 while Marissa Mainard was fourth with an 88.

Stephen Everest won the boys division over Midland Carey Gentry. The two tied after regulation play at 71, but Everest won on the second hole of a playoff with a birdie. Midland's K.J. Sanchez was third with a 73 while Sean Clements was fourth with a 76.

Everest will also advance to the Woodlands tournament.

Parker & Parsley go undefeated

The Parker & Parsley girls' fast-pitch softball team recently won the MUGS Division III league championship at Ulmer Park. The age 13-15 Parker and Parsley team finished with a perfect 14-0 record.

Parker & Parsley team members: Jennifer Aman, Kendra Gilbreath, Candice McGowan, Brandy McGowan, Ashlee Mills, Michelle Motley, Becky Morris, Kristi Nash, April Sheppard, Mindi Sheppard, Summer Van, and Jessica Van Ness.

Stockton's record 62 leads BellSouth

■ BellSouth Seniors

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dave Stockton shot a course-record 10-under 62 Friday for a one-stroke lead over Jim Dent in the opening round of the $1 million BellSouth Senior Classic.

Stockton, winner last week of the Nationwide Championship at Atlanta, had to set a course record for the 6,783-yard Springhouse Golf Club layout to stay ahead of Dent, who also broke the previous low of 64 set in the pro-am this week.

"All I'm going to do is go out and shoot birdies," Stockton said after posting 11 against one bogey. "I eliminated part of the field today, and I'm going to go out and try to eliminate part of the field tomorrow."

George Archer waited out a 2½-hour rain delay to finish at 65. Jim Albus and Bill Hall were at 66 and Tom Shaw, Tom Wargo, Rocky Thompson and Lee Trevino all had 67s.

Stockton hasn't shot above a 68 in his last four rounds, and thought he could shoot a low score at Springhouse, which opened in 1990, when he had a 68 in the pro-am.

"I wasn't envisioning scores like Dent and I shot. ... What we're finding are greens that are very, very puttable," Stockton said.

Stockton strung together four birdies starting at the 360-yard, par-4 No. 9 and went 8-under with his fourth at No. 12. He missed an eagle when he used a 4-wood and went up the high side 18 feet from the hole, settling for two putts and a birdie.

He added two final birdies on 14 and 15 on a sweltering day with a heat index reaching 110 degrees. He quickly headed to the fitness trailer to have his back treated to keep it from stiffening up.

Dent, the tour's driving leader, set the early pace with a 31 at the turn and could have reached 10-under with a birdie at the par 3, 212-yard No. 17. But he said his irons don't fit that hole.

"I was well aware of what he was doing," Stockton said. "It's like having a rabbit in front of a greyhound. I liked having him to shoot at. It helped me."

King takes one stroke lead at Rochester

■ LPGA Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Betsy King moved a step closer to the Hall of Fame, shooting a 4-under-par 68 Friday to take a one-stroke lead in the second round of the LPGA Rochester International.

Three birdies on the back nine put King at 10-under par, one ahead of Michele Redman, whose career-best finish was a tie for eighth in the Atlanta Women's Championship in April.

Dawn Coe-Jones of Canada and Lisa Kiggens were 8-under.

King would automatically enter the Hall of Fame if she wins her 30th tournament Sunday at the par-72 Locust Hill Country Club.

"That runs through your head now and again," she said. Eventually, she added, "I know it's going to happen."

The highlight of her round was a 55-foot putt for birdie at the par-4 10th, a sloping, two-tiered green where her opening round got going Thursday when she sank a 25-footer, also for birdie.

"I always thought that was a tough hole," she said, "but I've made two monster putts on it. I think for two days I've putted really well and that's the key."

In record-breaking 94-degree heat, which is expected to linger through Saturday, King said she was anticipating two more days of low scores.

Laurie Brower, whose opening-round 66 was worth a share of the lead for the first time in her career, slipped to 5-under with a 73.

Defending champion Tammie Green scored 70 to move to 3-under.

King has earned $4.6 million in 17 years on tour. This year, she has struggled on the greens, and her best finish was a tie for third in the Lady Keystone Open last month.

Defending champ Germany takes Cup opener

Associated Press

With the whole world watching, or at least much of it, World Cup soccer finally came to the United States.

High art it was not.

Defending champion Germany beat Bolivia 1-0 in Chicago in a crude, rough affair marked by a devastating slip by the Bolivian goalkeeper and the expulsion of Bolivia's star striker.

Say this for Germany, it did what it had to. It won the game, something no defending champ had done since 1970.

"It was not that exceptional or extraordinary," said Juergen Klinsmann, who scored the lone goal in the 61st minute. "What is important is that we won the first game."

And the United States, when it makes its historic opening Saturday against Switzerland, would do well to match Germany's result. After all, it has not won a World Cup game since 1950. Artistry can wait; the United States needs a victory.

"We've had four years to correct the mistakes we made in 1990," said goalkeeper Tony Meola, the U.S. captain. "Now's the time to see if it pays off."

Before a global television audience of some 750 million and a sellout crowd at Soldier Field that included President Clinton and the chiefs of state from Germany and Bolivia, the Germans made the most of a superb opportunity.

Lothar Matthaeus lofted a long pass to Thomas Haessler. Goalkeeper Carlos Trucco dashed out but slipped as Haessler chested the ball to a charging Klinsmann. He had an empty net to himself, and it was all Germany needed.

The United States knows what it needs when it faces a strong Swiss squad in the withering heat of the Pontiac Silverdome outside Detroit. In their last World Cup, the Americans were bounced out of Italy in 1990 in three quick games. Now there are real expectations.

More Sports/10B

In Friday's co-opener, South Korea enlivened things considerably, scoring twice in the final six minutes to tie Spain 2-2 in Dallas, the most stirring finish in South Korean soccer history.

Seo Jung Won, a second-half substitute, scored the tying goal on a drive from 12 yards in the final minute. This was South Korea's second tie in nine World Cup games. It has yet to win.

On Saturday, the Americans open play, followed by Ireland-Italy at East Rutherford, N.J., and Colombia-Romania at Pasadena, Calif.

In other World Cup news:

■ U.S. midfielder Claudio Reyna, recovering from a pulled right hamstring, is unlikely to play Saturday. He hasn't practiced since June 8 and his place probably will be taken by Mike Sorber. Reyna, the U.S. college player of the year in 1992 and 1993, should be able to play Wednesday against Colombia.

■ President Clinton, wearing a dashing World Cup tie, sat under an awning at midfield. He spoke at the opening ceremonies, his introduction bringing some boos.

"The love of soccer is now a universal language," he said.

First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton and daughter Chelsea, 14, a big soccer fan, also attended.

■ Giants Stadium in New Jersey will sizzle with nationalistic fervor Saturday for the glamour matchup of the opening round — Ireland vs. Italy.

Italy, one of three teams aiming for a record fourth World Cup title, beat Ireland 1-0 in the quarterfinals of the last World Cup.

"It will be difficult but we can master the heat and humidity and beat the Italians," Ireland coach Jack Charlton said.

Said Italy coach Arrigo Sacchi: "We are definitely ready for this game, for this team."

■ Amid all the demands and hoopla, Brazil's players are shadowed by trouble at home.

"Winning is not the most important thing," said Leonardo, a defender, whose team opens Monday against Russia. "There are so many problems — corruption, hunger, people are without hope. But during the World Cup, they can't concentrate on them. People have to change their thinking."

■ Taking part in the World Cup opening ceremonies can be hazardous work. Oprah Winfrey slipped off a platform and had to be helped from the stage after introducing singer Diana Ross. Singer Jon Secada also took a tumble and was treated at a hospital for a slight shoulder injury.

Allen Jr. takes third poll of NASCAR year

■ Loy Allen Jr. breaks rookie record by winning third poll position at Miller 400.

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Loy Allen Jr., overcoming a wall of heat and humidity that hampered the qualifying efforts of some of NASCAR's biggest names, earned the pole Friday for Sunday's Miller Genuine Draft 400.

It was the third pole for the 28-year-old rookie, breaking the record he shared with the late Davey Allison, who was a rookie in 1987 and whose event record Allen also broke with a lap of 180.641 mph. Allison set that mark in June 1992.

"It was pretty hot and I think it surprised a lot of people how fast the track was in qualifying," said Allen, who previously started from the top spot at Daytona in February and Talladega in May.

The air temperature climbed into the mid-90s Friday, with the temperature on the surface of the high-banked, 2-mile Michigan International Speedway oval reaching 130 degrees as qualifying began at 3:30 p.m. EDT.

■ Miller 400

Allen was fifth from the end among the 49 drivers who made one-lap qualifying attempts Friday.

"It's always good to run later. Maybe the track cooled off a little bit, but this was a brand new race car that had never been run before and it really ran well," Allen said. "This (pole) is a big tribute to the Hoosier tires and to this team."

He just missed the track record of 180.750, set last August by Ken Schrader.

Geoff Bodine, also on Hoosier tires, took the outside spot on the front row at 179.650, and Bill Elliott, on Goodyear tires, gave Ford a sweep of the top three qualifying spots at 179.609.

It is the 13th time in 14 events this season that a Thunderbird has won the pole.

Terry Labonte's Chevrolet Lumina was fourth at 179.596, followed by Rusty Wallace, winner of the last two races, at 179.574 and Ricky Rudd at 179.109, both in Fords, and the Lumina of Jeff Gordon at 179.011.

Rounding out the top 10 were the Thunderbirds of Mark Martin at 178.851, Greg Sacks 178.302 and Brett Bodine 178.183.

The top 20 qualifiers locked up starting positions for Sunday's 40-car field, with the rest getting another opportunity today.

Among the drivers failing to make it in the first round were Winston Cup points leader Ernie Irvan and series runner-up and defending champion Dale Earnhardt. Irvan was 38th at 175.165 and Earnhardt 41st at 174.592.

Irvan, who holds a 139-point lead over Earnhardt, said, "It's pretty slippery out there. I slid all the way through turn three."

Earnhardt said, "(My car) came out of the groove coming out of the second turn, and I almost hit the wall. I should have aborted the lap right there, but I didn't."

Allen, whose three poles are second only to Irvan's four this season, has been extremely erratic, failing to qualify for six events and finishing as high as 11th only once in the seven he has run.

But Allen exuded confidence after Friday's effort, saying, "In the last three races, we've been running at the end. We finished 11th at Charlotte, 15th at Dover, and last week we were running real well until I lost the clutch with about 20 laps to go and finished 31st.

Another driver looking for experience Friday was Robby Gordon, driving in only his third Winston Cup event and debuting the Ford of the new Kranefuss-Haas Racing team at 35th. The 25-year-old Indycar star came back from hitting the wall in practice to qualify at 176.086 treated for a minor shoulder injury and released at Mercy Hospital.

Sequined butterfly wings led a delegation from each of the 24 participating countries onto the field, creating a kaleidoscope of colors and dancers.

The United States, introduced last, got the loudest cheer, even though interest in the World Cup and soccer in this country has been hardly feverish. Many Americans surveyed do not even realize the tournament is being played here.

Richard Marx sang the national anthem before a fly over by four F16s. Jon Secada and Daryl Hall also sang before the game.

Soldier Field, spruced up by a $14 million renovation, provided a colorful backdrop, with its yellow and blue seats brimming on a hot, humid day with temperatures in the 90s.

Bottled water became scarce at the stadium's concessions stands where the most popular drink — if the long lines were any indication — was the same as it is for American football and baseball games. Beer.

Youngsters dressed in white clothes released a couple of thousand red and blue balloons into the sky before the opening ceremonies got under way. And, before long, the day was turned over to the main entertainment — soccer.

WATSON: Midlander races in TIDA circuit

(From 1C)

Watson led the next race, in Austin, for 35 laps before getting a flat tire.

Watson stands about 5-foot-7. The weight work is evident on his muscular frame, and he looks younger than his age.

The stock car racer has been in the sport for 16 years, racing with TIDA since '88. He rode bulls in his teens with the American Junior Rodeo Association, but has found no thrill to compare to auto racing.

"I've done a lot of things in my life. I've played rugby, football and snow skied," said Watson, whose high school football career lasted one-year at Midland High. "This is the most challenging sport I've been involved with because it takes so many combinations of (skills)."

This season has easily been Watson's best on the TIDA tour. He had won only two races before '94, finishing second in points in '90 with one win.

Watson uses "we" when describing his performances, and credits his engine builder Mike Mitchell and crew members Troy Messer, Kenneth Bertelson and Mark Carnes for much of his success this season.

The stock car racer hopes he can please his substantial home town following tonight with another win at Twin Cities.

"We were definitely real strong the last race here," Watson said. "We passed David Umscheid on the outside 59 laps in to get the lead and there was never a real challenge after that. I feel like we have a real strong car for this race here."

Watson's No. 48 Cutlass suspension is set up well for short tracks, like Twins Cities ⅛-mile oval. The former Midland Bulldog likes to race in his hometown, but doesn't necessarily see it as an advantage.

"Everybody says, 'Well, it's your home track and you get a lot of time there'," Watson said, "but I don't get any more time there than anybody on the tour. We just run well there."

Watson named as some of his top competition in tonight's race Umscheid, the '93 TIDA Late Model Series Champion, and Keith Riethmeyer, who holds the TIDA qualifying lap record at Twin Cities, posting a 17.688 seconds on May 14. Watson also cited Tommy Grimes and John Kelly as top contenders.

The TIDA schedule has 17 races, with the season ending in November. It makes for a grueling stretch for Watson. At least, he'll be able to dust off that remote control in time for Thanksgiving football.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Make the most of the advantages that come your way. Sticking to tried-and-true methods will mean fresh career or financial gains by late fall. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences. Early in 1995, you are a pillar of strength to those in need of guidance. Protect any confidences you hear. Keeping a close eye on professional expenses in the spring will prevent big headaches. Romance could catch you off-guard next May. Watch your step.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: model Isabella Rossellini, baseball player Lou Brock, singer Paul McCartney, actress Carol Kane.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Harmony returns to the home front. So does an old friend. Show consideration in your dealings with neighbors. Take the initiative about making introductions and issuing invitations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Family members will not take kindly to criticism. Adopt a live-and-let-live attitude, even if a loved one's choice disappoints you. Keep sailing toward a career goal. Do some weekend research.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An unexpected call or visit could get the day off to an exciting start. Fringe benefits should be shared with your allies. Someone who has opposed you previously could shift over to your side.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It looks as if you have the ball — run as far as you can with it! Many people will help you on your way. Seize the moment — new business and social alliances can be formed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your rapport with a newcomer gives you high hopes for the future. There may be some repercussions when you express an opinion that conflicts with the accepted line.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It may take you some time to get over a disappointment. Refuse to dwell on what might have been. Experiment with meditation and yoga. Heed an older person's words of wisdom. A wound will heal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Those who know how to drive a hard bargain can make some great buys today. Shop in small, out-of-the-way stores. Do not let past failures haunt you. Live in the moment!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Banish depressing thoughts. Good humor and laughter boost your spirits when challenges seem insurmountable. Nurturing a special friendship will have many benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A chance encounter could lead to exciting new romance. You may decide to express previously-hidden feelings. Stress your strong points while underplaying any weaknesses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Determination is the key to progress. Your efforts to conquer a special fear prove successful! Mate or partner offers strong support. You feel more settled than in the past. Stick close to home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your family may not understand a complicated personal relationship. Careful shopping will help you stay within the budget. You see a loved one's problem but may not be able to help.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Heed an ally's warning. This friend's instincts are excellent! Interesting social developments are part of today's plan. Play a waiting game. Put romance on hold while you get to know a new acquaintance better.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are constantly in motion. An abundance of energy and curiosity makes them intrepid explorers — eager to escape the backyard and see more of the world. Wise parents will keep a close eye on these fast-moving youngsters!

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — He swims! He dives! He looks good in a Speedo! And all he gets is a lousy T-shirt?

David Hasselhoff, top-dog lifeguard on television's "Baywatch," was named an honorary member of the Atlantic City Beach Patrol.

Mayor James Whelan and Roger Wagner, president and chief operating officer of Trump's Castle casino, presented the actor with a certificate and beach patrol T-shirt Thursday.

Hasselhoff gave Whelan a "Baywatch" jacket.

"This is great," Hasselhoff said. "I'm not a lifeguard at all, but we have to stay in shape in order to look like one on television."

LOS ANGELES — Woody Allen isn't sweating bullets anymore. He's sending them over Broadway.

Allen's new film "Bullets Over Broadway" has found a distributor and will come out this fall.

The period comedy follows Allen's messy custody battle with Mia Farrow. Miramax Films will release the movie since Allen's deal with TriStar was terminated last year with one picture remaining on a three-picture deal.

Allen doesn't appear in the new movie he directed and co-wrote. It follows a young playwright (John Cusack) and his relationship with a hit man (Chazz Palminteri). The cast includes Mary-Louise Parker, Dianne Wiest and Rob Reiner.

Allen has an upcoming television movie, "Don't Drink the Water," with Michael J. Fox.

SECAUCUS, N.J. — Gov. Christie Whitman is no backseat driver. She's a backseat state trooper.

Whitman was being driven by state police Sgt. Jordon Maskowitz on Wednesday night when they saw a car weaving through traffic at a high rate of speed, said state police spokesman Al Della Fave.

The governor ordered Maskowitz to stop the driver. Whitman didn't get out of the car but stayed at the scene until another car driven by members of her protection detail arrived and took custody of Donald J. Buro. He was charged with driving while intoxicated.

"The troopers with me are not supposed to do anything about that kind of thing while they have me in the car, but I said this fellow was obviously beyond the bounds of safe driving and we needed to pursue it," Whitman said Friday.

MIAMI — After months of fertility problems, singer Gloria Estefan is expecting her second child.

"She's four months pregnant, and she's having a girl," Janet Dearmas of Estefan Enterprises Inc. said Friday. "She's due the first week of December."

The 36-year-old Cuban-born singer has been trying to get pregnant since recovering from a March 1990 tour bus crash in which she broke her back.

She passed up a tour, a $2 million contract for a single concert in Japan, and film and stage roles while seeing a fertility specialist, The Miami Herald reported Friday.

A Fallopian tube problem was repaired, fertility shots endured, and finally she conceived March 13 — her lucky number. It's also the number of her 13-year-old son Nayib's hockey jersey. Her husband, Emilio, is also her manager.

Deal hammers field at USA-Mobil

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Lance Deal shattered the American record in the men's hammer throw by two feet Friday. He feels capable of throwing farther.

■ USA Championships

"My training mates say there is still more there because my finish was off," Deal said after hurling the hammer 270 feet, 8 inches, at the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

The distance, the third-best performance in the world this year, surpassed the record of 268-8 by Jud Logan on April 22, 1988, at University Park, Pa. Logan, who is serving a four-year suspension for drug use, was at Tom Black Field to watch Deal's record performance and congratulated him on the accomplishment.

Deal had an inkling he would break the record prior to the competition — and again after his first throw.

"Last night, I was thinking about that line (on the field marking the American record) and I thought what a monster it is," the 6-foot-2, 240-pound Deal said. "Then I thought, yes it is, but so am I."

He said that when he didn't foul on his first attempt — a throw of 256-0 — his good vibes increased.

"I'm notorious for fouling on my first throw in big meets," Deal said.

LaVonna Floreal of Atlanta, Ga., jumps a hurdle enroute to a preliminary win in the women's 100-meter hurdles at the USA-Mobil track and Field Championships at Knoxville, Tenn., Thursday. She will compete in the finals today. Austin's Tamika Higgins-Francis (rear) trails.

The record came on his second attempt.

"As soon as it was out of my hands, I knew it was a record," the 32-year-old Deal said. "To reach a certain milestone in a throw, check points, you will know if you do it right or wrong. Today, everything just went right, right, right."

Although there might have been a slight flaw in his finish, Deal said, "There were two or three things that went right in that throw."

There also were some things that went right during the entire competition.

"A lot of times, a mood pervades the area," Deal said, "and you know it's a good time to throw. One person throws far and here we go. Everybody was throwing well today, with a couple of exceptions."

After his record toss, Deal had throws of 269-6 and 263-4 plus two fouls.

This was Deal's second straight national hammer throw title and his third overall. He also has won the indoor national 35-pound weight throw title seven times, including the last six, and holds the world record of 81-6.

Deal's previous best hammer throw was 266-0 in 1992, when he made his second Olympic team.

"One of my big goals ... was to have top performances in the big meets," Deal said. "This is a big meet."

Jim Driscoll was the runner-up for the second consecutive year at 240-6 and Kevin McMahon of Georgetown was third at 235-4.

In another early final, Mike Gravelle, the third-place finisher in the men's discus in 1991 and 1993, won his first national title at 201-4. It was the shortest winning throw since 1966, when four-time Olympic gold medalist Al Oerter won at 193-9.

Randy Heisler finished second at 197-8 and Carlos Scott was third at 194-7.

Twelve other finals were scheduled Friday.

Bowe, Lewis sign deal for championship fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Riddick Bowe is set to fight for the WBC heavyweight title belt he threw into a trash can 18 months ago.

The former undisputed heavyweight champion has signed to fight WBC champion Lennox Lewis in November of December.

"A deal has been signed by all of us, and it is an iron-clad deal," Rock Newman, Bowe's manager, said in a conference call Friday from London.

Newman said Lewis is guaranteed $18 million and Bowe is guaranteed $13 million.

"We're looking forward to Lewis being recognized as the best heavyweight out there," said Lewis' manager, Frank Maloney, who attended a news conference in London with promoter Panos Eliades.

Newman said he thought the winner of the match would be recognized as the real heavyweight champion, and not Michael Moorer, who won the IBF and WBA titles from Evander Holyfied on April 22.

The fight is scheduled to be held in the United States between the first week in November and the first week in December. It will be shown on pay-per-view.

Bowe won the undisputed championship by outpointing Holyfield on Nov. 13, 1992. A month later, he threw the WBC belt into a trash can to protest a mandated title defense against Lewis.

The WBC then withdrew championship recognition from Bowe and gave it to Lewis.

Bowe currently is not ranked by the WBC. But Eliades said he talked with WBC president Jose Sulaiman on the phone Friday, and Sulaiman told him he approved of the fight "because it is good for the sport."

Lewis has defended the WBC title three times and is scheduled to make a mandatory defense against American Oliver McCall Sept. 23 or Sept. 24 in London.

Bowe hasn't fought since losing the IBF and WBC titles on points to Holyfield last Nov. 6. He pulled out of a bout against Buster Mathis Jr., set for last Saturday at Las Vegas, because of a back injury. He is scheduled to fight Larry Donald on July 15 at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif.

Newman said Bowe will be examined Monday. If Bowe can't fight Donald, he will fight in August against an undetermined opponent and could also have a match on the Lewis-McCall card, according to Newman.

Newman said a Moorer defense against former champion George Foreman set for November now is in trouble. Duva said the fight will be held.

■ Tennis Roundup

EASTBOURNE, England — Unseeded Meredith McGrath, who upset defending champion Martina Navratilova in the quarterfinals, defeated Yayuk Basuki of Indonesia 6-0, 7-5 Friday to advance to the final of the Eastbourne grass-court tournament.

McGrath will face another unseeded American, Linda Harvey-Wild, in today's championship match. Harvey-Wild won her semifinal 6-4, 7-5 over fourth-seeded Natalia Zvereva of Belarus.

Manchester Open

MANCHESTER, England — In a match with no breaks of serve, No. 2 seed Patrick Rafter of Australia advanced to the final of the Manchester grass-court tournament Friday with a 6-7 (5-7), 7-6 (7-4), 7-6 (7-5) victory over unseeded Karel Novacek.

Rafter will meet top seed Wayne Ferreira, a 6-4, 6-4 winner over defending champion Jason Stoltenberg, in today's final.

The Rafter-Novacek match lasted two hours, 52 minutes, contained just four break points, and ended on a Novacek double fault by followed by a service winner from Rafter, who also had 20 aces.

Halle Grand Prix

HALLE, Germany — Yevgeny Kafelnikov of Russia, proving his power game is adaptable to grass, outslugged Jim Courier 6-1, 6-4 Friday in the quarterfinals of the Halle Grand Prix.

In today's semifinal, Kafelnikov faces Sweden's eight-seeded Magnus Larsson, who beat German Marc Goellner 6-4, 7-6 (7-4).

Top-seeded Michael Stich of Germany ousted defending champion Henri Leconte of France 6-3, 7-6 (7-4) and will play Australian Wally Masur, a 7-6 (7-5), 6-3 winner over Switzerland's Jakob Hlasek.

Austrian

ST POELTEN, Austria — Rain postponed quarterfinal matches in the OTV-Raiffeisen ATP tennis tournament Friday.

The matches were put off until today.

Top seed Thomas Muster of Austria will play meet countryman Wolfgang Schranz on center court.

'Wolf' a howling hit, fangs to Nicholson, Pfieffer

By William Arnold
N.Y. Times News Service

■ 'Wolf' is playing at Midland Park Mall.

Mike Nichols' "Wolf" is far from a classic horror movie, but it's a great place to see world-class movie stars Jack Nicholson and Michelle Pfeiffer, and the first four-fifths of the film are — "Maverick" aside — about as much fun as Hollywood has given us so far this summer.

A genre werewolf picture played with only the tiniest hint of tongue-in-cheek, the story is about an aging New York book editor (Nicholson) whose life changes big-time when he's bitten by a wolf on a Vermont back road one wintry night.

Pretty soon, this fellow notices he is acquiring certain distinct canine characteristics — a strong sense of smell, eyesight and hearing; a tendency to sleep all day; unwanted facial fur; even the impulse to mark his territory with urine.

And when a conglomerate takes over his publishing house and replaces him with a younger man (James Spader), this part-time wolfman uses his growing lupine instincts to battle for his corporate survival and to sniff out a new love interest in the congolmerate-owner's wayward daughter (Pfeiffer).

It seems to be a big boon to his career and love-life, but unfortunately this wolf business gradually gets out of hand. He finds himself on unwanted nocturnal prowls, biting off the fingers of Central Park muggers, and severely punishing his unfaithful wife (Kate Nelligan).

And as his life goes downhill, so does the movie. The final portion disinte-

■ In his latest movie, screen star Jack Nicholson finds a role he can sink his teeth into.

By Bernard Weinraub

LOS ANGELES — Wolves fascinate Jack Nicholson. "What does a lone wolf represent?" he asked with a smile. "How's that wolf treated by the pack? The wolf pack is limited. Lone wolves are driven off by the pack. And it's hard to find a new pack."

The smile broadened enigmatically, a Nicholson smile. He lighted a cigarette.

Whatever his identification with lone wolves, the 57-year-old actor has found a role, in Mike Nichols' film "Wolf,"

Raitt's growing process continues

■ On and off the record, success and personal satisfaction have begun to follow blues-rocker Bonnie Raitt.

By Kira L. Billik
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Maturity — and marriage — have prompted Bonnie Raitt to closely examine both the external and internal parts of her life, a journey that inevitably has tinged her art as well.

"It's an evolu[illegible] has given deeper meaning to many of the songs on her latest record, "Longing in Their Hearts."

"I think there are some issues about your own ability to trust and let go and your own ability to forgive and accept yourself and the other person in your life that you probably have to come to terms with as you get older anyway," the fortysomething singer-songwriter-guitarist says.

"You realize that you've been playing house with people, or maybe not being as real or as serious about them, because you were waiting for the, quote, 'real thing' to come along. And then you find yourself in your 30s and you have to ask yourself, 'If this isn't the real thing I'm in, why haven't I let myself be in the position to find the real thing?' "

Raitt calls her marriage to actor Michael O'Keefe three years ago empowering, a chance to blend the values of O'Keefe's Catholic upbringing and her own Quaker philosophies.

"He comes from a family where people did get married and I came from a generation of women and men who, for the first time in history, didn't find it necessary to get married. So 20 years on in my adult life, I thought it was such a novel and very romantic and very deep step to take," she said in a phone interview.

"For me, marriage was making a commitment to get more serious about the things that were stopping me from getting close — holding out for what I really deserve and what I really want and not looking at love through some colored glasses of basically being in love with love."

Maturity carries into Raitt's attitude about her career as well. Taking home a total of seven Grammy Awards (four

Singer's latest fulfills musical longing for fans

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

Bonnie Raitt is like a comfortable easy chair. Or maybe an old shoe. Her music has become predictable, but it is still something to look forward to.

■ Review

Despite its predictability, the music that Bonnie Raitt puts out today is some of the best you'll hear on today's mainstream radio. She remains a rare link to the music that was played back when pop radio was good.

"Longing in their Hearts," Raitt's third album since her Grammy-laden resurgence in 1989, is standard fare from today's reigning pop-blues queen.

"Longing" mixes her-radio friendly style with a few straight-ahead blues cuts and a couple of soulful "missin' you" ballads.

It didn't take a genius to figure that "Love Sneakin' Up On You" would be the first song released off the album. Nor did it take a genius to figure that the song would be another big one for her, in the same vein as "Thing Called Love" and "Something to Talk About." Those three songs are really pretty much the same, with chords and melodies altered to fit the latest album. Be-

Celebs take advantage of advances in technology

By Evan Ramstad
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Forget Broadway and Sunset Boulevard. More and more, the best place to talk to a star is cyberspace.

■ The Future

Celebrities are making "appearances" on the nation's largest on-line computer services virtually every week now.

New York Rangers star Brian Leetch, the hockey championship's MVP, was taking questions on Prodigy on Wednesday. Vice President Al Gore, on CNN's "Larry King Live" Wednesday night, read questions that were directed to him on CompuServe. And rocker David Bowie will be on America Online next week.

Record labels, movie studios, book publishers, political parties and public relations firms have discovered they can reach a large audience quickly and directly.

Disorder in the court of public opinion

By Phil Rosenthal

■ Opinion

LOS ANGELES — It is so much easier to serve on jury duty when you don't have to drag yourself downtown, wait around in some sweltering courthouse and actually sit through a trial and deliberations with other jurors.

You just sit back, read the papers, watch TV, listen to the radio, talk to your friends and — voila — you've got a verdict.

It's so fun, fast and simple, you have to wonder why nobody thought of this sooner.

O.J. Simpson? Guilty!

Bob Barker? Innocent!

Bill Clinton, Michael Jackson, Dan Rostenkowski, Bob Packwood, the Menendez brothers? Do you even have to ask? Really?

Not us. Not anymore. Not when we can determine their guilt or innocence, their careers and their lives, from the insulated comfort of our own homes and offices.

Call it water-cooler justice.

We can pass judgment without being burdened by the facts, the rules of law or an overwhelming sense of responsibility.

And if the 12 angry men and women who actually get assigned to hear these cases somehow disagree with us, well, that's a miscarriage of justice. What do you expect from people who not only couldn't get out of jury duty but didn't know enough about the case beforehand to get the lawyers to disqualify them from hearing it?

At least we do our homework. We watch "Hard Copy." We listen to talk radio. We read the Enquirer. We know what's what. Case closed.

When someone holds a press conference before they are charged with anything, we know it is because they are innocent. When someone holds a press conference after they are charged, we know they are guilty and trying to employ spin control.

If they decline to try the case in the media, they are in hiding. If they do try the case in the media, they just want to manipulate public opinion.

The real truth isn't that hard to find.

It's revealed while camped out in a person's driveway during a 24-hour stakeout. It's heard from friends and family who are hounded for their insight. It's suggested in the unsworn testimony of co-workers, doctors, experts and anybody else who wants to shed some light — either on the accused or on themselves, it doesn't matter — and from the anonymous sources always close to the case.

We take what we get from these methods, and then we decide.

It makes so much more sense than to let these cases fall into our justice system, which is so flawed, so out of whack, that wrongdoers actually have as many rights as you or I.

We need to be tough on crime.

We have to make it so the guilty are swiftly convicted and locked up, so there is an ending for the TV movie before it goes on the air. They must be made to pay their debt to society and to their accusers.

Nobody likes our court system anyway. It's unwieldy and costly and it makes mistakes.

And nobody likes to be called for jury duty, either. It's really inconvenient and not much fun.

This is an alternative, and it wouldn't take much to implement it. It's practically in use now.

Yes, it's amazing nobody thought of this sooner.

Well, maybe they did, but it was a long time ago.

They called it a lynch mob.

CELEBS: A 'sexy' way of communicating now

(From 1C)

America Online, Genie and Delphi — have about 3 million paying customers and are used by an estimated 2 million more.

"There's a certain cachet to being able to talk on-line," said John Tesh, the "Entertainment Tonight" host who answered questions on Prodigy last week. "It's a sexy way of communicating right now."

CompuServe and America Online hold live "chat" sessions, in which up to 500 participants see the discourse scroll past and can jump in with questions.

The others put out a notice seeking questions for a particular celebrity. The responses follow generally a few days later. Prodigy will soon change to live celebrity chats, with room for up to 3,000 people at once.

The people who bring celebrities on-line are sometimes paid by how many people they can attract to their "chat groups" or "forums."

Lisa Robinson, a music journalist, regularly brings artists onto Prodigy.

"I have more than I have room for," she said.

Warner Bros. recently used online services to promote "Maverick." Stars Mel Gibson, Jodie Foster and James Garner and director Richard Donner appeared.

NBC last month started NBC Online, a bulletin board on America Online where five network stars have appeared. NBC also uses the system and another on Genie to get e-mail from viewers, put out news releases and hold discussion groups about its shows.

Celebrities in cyberspace get more than a chance to promote their latest show or song.

"It's really hard for a musician to go to a shopping mall and say, 'Hey what did you think of my last record?' People are not afraid to say what they think on a computer," said Howard Bragman, a publicist.

Another advantage, said Tesh, is the absence of an intermediary, such as a reporter or video producer, who can edit the celebrity.

"You know what you've said. You mean what you say," Tesh said. "The people who are using their computers are getting an online version of exactly what you're saying."

RAITT: Luck has always exceeded expectations

(From 1C)

in 1989 for the No. 1 album "Nick of Time" and her duet "In the Mood" on John Lee Hooker's album, "The Healer;" three in 1991 for "Luck of the Draw") didn't faze her after 23 years in music, though she still can find herself quietly awestruck.

"I've always been luckier than I expected to be, and to be in the stratosphere of the top 10 for these last few years is a wonderful, yet somewhat unreal position," she said.

"When the lights go down and I go out on stage, it isn't really any different than it was in the beginning. The people are out there because they chose to come see you in concert, and that is a great gift."

"Longing in Their Hearts," Raitt's third record with producer Don Was, is loaded with members of Raitt's impressive roster of friends — David Crosby, who sings on "Circle Dance"; Richard Thompson, who plays on "Dimming of the Day," a song he also wrote; The Band's Levon Helm, who sings on the title track, and Benmont Tench, one of Tom Petty's Heartbreakers, who plays on "Circle Dance."

"As we get ready to get in the studio, I've already got in my mind who I would like to have on the song and then, when we actually do record it, it's pretty apparent," she said. "It's basically just picturing which person would really perfectly fit on each song. That's how I've picked them all along."

Even though Raitt's life is going smoothly now — her marriage is happy, she kicked an alcohol problem several years ago — songs that hint at sorrow, at love gone sour, at a certain weariness of spirit, still attract her.

"I'm moved to sing about stuff where there's pain and there's regret and anger and doubt and confusion," she said. "These songs are all about real things that I'm going through, but that doesn't mean I'm melancholy all the time.

"I'm not a pop singer. I try to go a lot deeper than certain subjects, so that's automatically going to get you into darker waters."

She does hit some what she calls "playful" moments on this record. The first single, for instance, "Love Sneakin' Up On You," is insinuating and buoyant, almost akin to "Something To Talk About." And "Feeling of Falling" longs to go back to the headiness of the early parts of a relationship, that feeling of losing control.

"Longing in Their Hearts" is pretty equally split between Raitt's own songs and those written by other people. For her, choosing a song is "an intuitive process."

"I listen to so many hundreds of songs that when I get one that's even in the ballpark, they stand out like the sun hitting a jewel in the middle of a sand dune," she said. "It's like explaining why you're attracted to somebody.

"These songs that I end up putting on my records, from the first album on, (are) just instinctively the right song. I just have a very deep emotional connection to them.

"I immediately put them in my key and play them in my style, and in the process of learning them and trying them on, they become my songs, and I feel almost as if I'd written them."

SINGER: Album full of blues

ing the first releases off her last trio of albums, those three have become trademarks for Raitt.

It's fairly easy to predict that "You" and "Cool, Clear Water" will be songs two and three from the album. Those, too, are recognizable Raitt efforts, "You" being the slow-down ballad that normally follows up the first release, and "Cool, Clear Water" as safe as it gets in terms of what you hear on the today's radio.

But dig a little deeper into "Longing in their Hearts" and the listener will likely start to appreciate Raitt's musical prowess, especially as it relates to blues-tinged pop.

"I Sho Do" and "Hell to Pay" are two of those.

But it is the extraordinary "Feeling of Falling" that will hook listeners after three or four samplings. Starting with a bluesy solo, "Falling" slowly increases the tempo and then turns up the organ and bass line for full effect. The song sums up what Raitt's music represented before the public started eating her music up.

Raitt can also be an above-average storyteller. In the title cut, she sings of a couple that longs for the spark to return in their relationship.

He's a short-order cook, she's the boss. Together they hope for a little romance again.

"Well her, she likes running the joint/And he likes being a cook/Together they're doing very well/Th- [illegible] they could/But there's a fire burning towards them now/Coming from a distant wood."

Raitt co-wrote five of the 12 songs on the album, including "Feeling of Falling," and "You," as tender a ballad as Raitt will give you.

After all Raitt has been through in her life, including battles with alcohol and broken relationships, she was long overdue the widespread success she first enjoyed five years ago. So if she wants to settle back, get in a groove and be a little comfortable with what she's doing and what's she's good at, then we can all be a little thankful.

Coming from someone else, this zone she's in may be considered a rut. But coming from Bonnie Raitt, it's above-average fare that's welcome in today's pop music world.

JACK: Movie was shaped just for star

that seems to serve as a personal statement about the themes that most obsess Nicholson — himself, men and women, sex, and the viciousness of modern life.

Written by Jim Harrison and Wesley Strick, the movie, which opens Friday, was shaped specifically for Nicholson, who has a rare ability to seem dangerous on screen.

"Wolf" centers on a Manhattan book editor named Will Randall, a decent and erudite man about to be tossed off his career track as a high-ranking publishing executive, a man whose wife has cuckolded him.

After being bitten by a wolf on a dark country road, Will evolves into someone new, feral and dangerous. His senses sharpen (suddenly he can read without his glasses), his thirst for blood (both real and metaphorical) grows. He begins prowling Manhattan at night and becomes a lady-killer.

The film also stars Michelle Pfeiffer as a spoiled rich girl who is drawn to the man-wolf.

Because werewolves are often used as sexual metaphors, the actor says he understands how werewolves infecting people and turning them into other werewolves could be seen as symbolizing the spread of AIDS.

But, he says, he does not necessarily agree with the interpretation: "I don't get a lot out of that idea."

Another way of looking at the film is as social commentary. It trounces East Coast intellectuals, and the establishment is depicted as being corrupt, with special-effect werewolves running rampant through a rich man's country estate and wolfish characters negotiating the shoals of the New York publishing world. Needless to say, the infected Will seems to be a man who has finally learned to run with the wolves.

But, said Nicholson, "one of the things that Mike and I went back and forth with the writers over was we didn't want to make a statement that it's better to be a wolf. So we had this collaborative jujitsu about a man who tragically loses his humanity through no choice of his own."

Could any actor except Nicholson have played the role? Whatever the answer, it's unlikely that either Nichols or Columbia Pictures, which produced the film, would have proceeded without him.

"Wolf," which cost at least $40 million and has generated considerable early publicity, was originally scheduled to open three months ago, but an early test screening in Dallas proved dismal.

Since then, Nichols has substantially altered the movie, tightening the pace of the ending to make it more comprehensible to audiences and overhauling the musical score by Ennio Morricone, the film composer.

If the movie founders on bad reviews, Columbia, which has had a recent string of failures, will have a great deal to lose and Nichols, who has directed mostly lightweight comedies in recent years, will suffer a serious blow to his reputation.

But no one doubts that Jack Nicholson's career will survive. Although his name — unlike that of Kevin Costner or Julia Roberts — doesn't guarantee a strong opening weekend, a Nicholson film is still an event.

Nicholson said he had contemplated playing a classic horror role for years. He encouraged his friend Harrison to write a screenplay based on his own experiences with feeling wolflike. "I read the screenplay," Nicholson said, "and said, 'OK, let's start to talk.' " Four or five revisions later, Nicholson agreed to star.

Elaine May — Nichols' old stand-up partner and a script doctor — wrote the uncredited final version.

For makeup, Nicholson insisted on a minimalist approach because the first test, with wolf masks, was a disaster.

"It looked like 'Planet of the Apes,' " he said. "I thought, what's the sense of me playing the part?" Nicholson played it straight, using primarily his own hair, eyes, mouth and voice to turn into a werewolf, although the final results include gleaming yellow eyes, fangs and mangy facial hair.

No major hollywood actor has taken as many risks as has Jack Nicholson — and survived and even flourished.

He has been written about in unauthorized biographies (most recently, "Jack's Life" in April by Patrick McGilligan), heralded in cover stories (Vanity Fair in April, pegged to an earlier release date for "Wolf") and given a lifetime achievement award by the American Film Institute earlier this year.

Altogether, Nicholson has made nearly 50 films. His string of critical and commercial hits, starting in the late 1960s, includes "Easy Rider," which made him a star; "Five Easy Pieces"; "The Last Detail"; "Chinatown," and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Terms of Endearment," which won him Academy Awards for best supporting actor for 1975 and 1983, respectively.

His career has survived commercial and critical failures like "Ironweed"; "The Two Jakes," the sequel to "Chinatown," which he also directed; "Man Trouble" and "Hoffa."

There were also "Prizzi's Honor" and "Batman," the latter of which the actor almost certainly made for the money. His typical fee is $10 million a movie. On "Batman," the film's huge success resulted in his earning $50 million, perhaps more.

Nicholson's acting idol in his neighbor Marlon Brando. Like Brando in his heyday, Nicholson seems to hunger more and more for classical parts — and he sees "Wolf" as one of them.

"All these horror parts can be classical," he said. "The devil in 'Witches of Eastwick,' the Joker in 'Batman.' This is the most classical part I've had."

One reason "Wolf" so intrigued Nicholson was that the director, who is a friend, was taking an unusual career risk. (The two men have worked together on three other films: "Carnal Knowledge," in 1971, "The Fortune," in 1975 and "Heartburn" in 1986.)

Although Nichols has in recent years directed such films as "Working Girl," "Postcards From the Edge" and "Regarding Henry," he has never before dabbled with horror, special effects or action sequences.

"I was surprised when Mike was enthusiastic about doing the film, because it's a big creative stretch for him," Nicholson said the other day over lunch at the Hotel Bel-Air. "It's a bigger stretch for him than for me. I've worked on other films that are bizarre, and he really hasn't." (Nichols refused to be interviewed for this article.)

Having lost nearly 50 pounds over the last few years, Nicholson looks youthfully trim and elegant in a burgundy Armani sweater, gray Armani slacks and preppy saddle shoes. With his cocky half-smile and heavily lidded eyes, he could be a well-heeled, if slightly maniacal, country club habitue.

Clothes, in fact, are extremely important to Nicholson. Not so much for himself, perhaps, but in terms of creating his characters. Preparing for "Wolf," for example, he met Jason Epstein, the editorial director of Random House's adult trade division.

"I guessed his wardrobe even before I met him," said Nicholson. "Wide-wale cord pants, sports jacket, blue chambray shirt, tie." He laughed. "I was right. I already had it. He was wearing it." And that is what Nicholson wears in the film.

The importance of clothing to Nicholson's characterizations was echoed by James L. Brooks, who directed the actor in the 1983 film "Terms of Endearment" and in a small, uncredited part in "Broadcast News."

"There are no vanity issues with Jack," he said. "It's about the work."

WOLF: 'A wonderfully atmospheric drama'

grates into a battle-of-the-werewolfs that is, for the most part, unconvincing, unscary, unintentionally funny and surprisingly poorly directed by Nichols, who displays no flair for horror movie esthetics.

But before we get to this point, "Wolf" is a wonderfully atmospheric drama of offbeat characters and back-stabbing office politics, gorgeously photographed by the great Giuseppe Rotunno. It is fueled by some exceptionally strong supporting performances from Nelligan, Christopher Plummer as the conglomerate owner and especially Spader, who has no equal in playing insincere yuppie slimeballs.

The movie is also a fairly dazzling star vehicle. Nicholson resists his tendency to chew the scenery and actually underplays his part to the best possible effect; and Pfeiffer (who did duty as a wolf's girlfriend before, in "Ladyhawke") is just right as a maladjusted princess who becomes kinky for the wolfman. Individually, neither has been this charismatic or appealing in years, and together they're quite magical.

ON SCREEN

(Condensed movie reviews by Los Angeles Daily News film critics. The rating system for the film list is: ★★★★ — Don't miss it; ★★★ — worth your while; ★★ — Has it moments; ★ — If you must)

N.Y. Times News Service

BAD GIRLS: Silly, sporadically fun western, in which Madeleine Stowe, Mary Stuart Masterson, Andie MacDowell and Drew Barrymore indulge in all the dumb cowboy movie cliches guys have for decades. The negligible plot is something about prostitutes-turned-outlaws-turned-good guys. Guns and glamour keep facing each other down, while our interest trots off into the sunset. R. Rating: 2 stars.

BEVERLY HILLS COP III: The heat is gone from this third go 'round for Eddie Murphy's maverick cop. This time he's after a criminal who also heads the security force for a Southern California theme park. Director John Landis ("The Blues Brothers") has a lot of fun shooting up attractions, and Murphy is comfortable in the undemanding role. But this thing is so detached and repetitious, it's like watching a tape loop of the first "Beverly Hills Cop." R. Rating: ★★

CITY SLICKERS II: Billy Crystal is back in the saddle, but the herd of laughs has disappointingly thinned out in this urbanites-on-the-range sequel. This time, our favorite New York cowboys are searching for hidden gold instead of male-bonded smiles, and it's neither as sweet nor as fun. Jack Palance rustles the show from everyone else, again, as the late Curly's even nastier twin brother, Duke. PG-13. Rating: ★★

THE COWBOY WAY: "Coogan's Bluff," "McCloud," "Crocodile Dundee," "Midnight Cowboy" — throw them all in a blender, scrape up whatever flies out, and you've got this senseless, cowboys-in-New-York comedy thriller. Woody Harrelson and Kiefer Sutherland are the rustics who bust up an illegal alien enslavement ring. Harrelson supplies the film's only charm, and that's dependent on your tolerance of male narcissism. PG-13. Rating: ★★

THE CROW: This dark, visceral rendering of James O'Barr's comic books is also a haunting tribute to the late Brandon Lee, whose graceful performance will doubtless establish him as a cult figure on a par with his father Bruce Lee. Rookie director Alex Proyas has made one of the most visually striking violent movies in recent memory — and don't forget the killer alternative rock score. All in all, an impressive package. R. Rating: ★★★

THE FLINTSTONES: The live-action version of the Hanna-Barbera cartoon looks super, delivers dozens of Stone Age sight gags and paleolithic puns, and boasts the incomparable John Goodman as bumbling Fred Flinstone. But with only the flimsiest of stories to tie it all together, the film gradually becomes a yabba-dabba-yawner. PG. Rating: ★★

FOUR WEDDINGS AND A FUNERAL: "Enchanted April" director Mike Newell tackles a more contemporary collection of Britons in this stylish and winsome romantic comedy strung out over two years' worth of social gatherings. Hugh Grant shines as a commitment-phobic Londoner in non-pursuit of a forthright American beauty (Andie MacDowell), but the entire ensemble cast is first-rate. A fine, frothy entertainment, perfect for the date crowd. R. Rating: ★★★

THE LION KING: Disney's latest animated spectacular isn't quite as seamlessly perfect as the last three features. But it's nevertheless a gorgeous, enjoyable lesson in the eternal cycles of nature and the development of (some very humanlike) behavior. Set in Africa, it's about future King of the Beasts Simba's coming of age. Elton John and Tim Rice wrote the songs, voices include Oscar-winners Jeremy Irons' and Whoopi Goldberg's, and the artwork, though often dazzling, is built upon a becoming naturalism. (Opens in Midland next Friday). G. Rating: ★★★

MAVERICK: Lightweight fun in the Wild, West. Mel Gibson pours on the charm as the conniving gambler, Jodie Foster is almost as slick as the woman who loves and robs him, and original TV Maverick James Garner lends his solid presence to the role of a questionable lawman. "Lethal Weapon" purveyor Richard Donner emphasizes thrills and laughs; William Goldman's script is his cleverest since "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." PG. Rating: ★★★

RENAISSANCE MAN: This soggy, plastic hybrid of "Dead Poets Society" and "Private Benjamin" has Danny DeVito as an out-of-work ad man assigned by his unemployment office to teach "Hamlet" to disadvantaged Army recruits. The young performers who play the soldiers are the film's biggest strength. Director Penny Marshall has a way with warm-hearted comedies, but even she can't make this Hollywood boilerplate work. PG-13. Rating: ★

SPEED: An LAPD SWAT team officer (Keanu Reeves) tangles with a psychopathic bomber (Dennis Hopper) who wants to get rich the old fashioned way — by extorting it. Deservedly touted as the sleeper of the summer season, the film delivers nonstop thrills, a solid action performance by Reeves and an appealing supporting turn by Sandra Bullock as a perky and plucky passenger. A real crowd-pleaser. R. Rating: ★★★½

WHEN A MAN LOVES A WOMAN: An upscale San Francisco family's struggles with the twin evils of alcoholism and co-dependency are meticulously detailed, but the tale is never particularly affecting. Meg Ryan and Andy Garcia are solid as the unhappy couple, and their story is certainly instructive; but as directed by Luis Mandoki ("White Palace"), the screenplay by Ronald Bass ("Rain Man") and Al Franken ("Saturday Night Live") gives us no particular reason to care about these people and their problems. R. Rating: ★★½

— Ratings for children are by the Motion Picture Association of America: (G) general audiences; (PG) parental guidance suggested as some material may not be suitable for children; (PG-13) special guidance for children under age 13 as some material may be inappropriate for youngsters; (R) restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian; (NC-17) no children under 17 admitted: (NR) not rated by the MPAA.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church plans ordination

Kevin L. Cortez will be ordained into the ministry and installed as the new pastor for Lutheran mission churches here and in San Angelo during a special service of ordination set for 6 p.m. June 26 at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 3800 Bluebird Lane.

Cortez

As pastor, Cortez, 30, will serve Good Shepherd congregation here and Our Redeemer Lutheran Church in San Angelo. The two churches are missions operated by the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod (WELS).

The rite of ordination will be conducted by the Rev. James Tauscher of San Antonio, the WELS District Mission Board chairman. Guest speaker will be the Rev. David Sellnow of Lubbock, supervising pastor for WELS churches in West Texas.

Beginning July 3, Cortez will conduct weekely Sunday services at 10:30 a.m. at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 1201 Koberlin, San Angelo, and Sunday services at 6 p.m. at Good Shepherd Lutheran, here.

His wife, Theckla, is trained for teaching ministry in the Lutheran church. She has taught elementary students at Our Savior Lutheran School in San Antonio, and at St. Mark Lutheran School in Brown Deer, Wis. The couple has one child and is expecting another.

The public is invited to the installation service.

■ Bible school to begin

Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive, is hosting its Vacation Bible School "Come Blaze the Trail" from 7 to 9 p.m. June 25-30.

Classes will be offered for 4 years old through adult. Nursery care will be provided for members of the Adult Vacation BIble School.

For more information call the church, 697-3101, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

■ Church plans program

Mount Calvary Missionary Baptist Church, 303 E. Shandon St., is presenting a Vacation Bible School program called "Come to the Party, Celebrate Jesus" from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Sessions each day will focus on the celebration events form the life of Jesus.

Ages are from 2 years old through adult. Activities include crafts, games, songs and snacks. Directors this year are Loner Griffin, Betty Merritt and Betty Lathan. For more information call the church 682-4931.

■ Classes for children

During the summer months, Grace Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St., is holding special Sunday School classes for children ages 18 months through sixth grade.

The theme this summer is "Names of Jesus" with classes being held from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Those classes include, among other activities, Bible lessons, crafts and music. For more information call the church office, 684-6542.

■ Lutherans plan school

Vacation Bible School at Our Savior's Lutheran Church, 3309 Neely Ave., is set for 9 to 11:30 a.m. June 27 through July 1.

The school is designated for kindergarten through eighth grade. This year's theme is "God's Word Around the World" and will cover countries around the world which don't have Bibles in their own language.

An international food sampling set for 6 p.m. June 30 will culminate the study. For more information call 694-4517.

■ Salteens to perform

The Salteens will perform at The Christian Church of Midland at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The group, comprised of more than 90 teen-agers from six states, is sponsored by Dallas Christian College, a four-year private Bible college.

The 78-voice choir and 12-member band is directed by Dana Ihm and Mark Worley.

■ Student helps youth

DALLAS — Susan Hallford, daughter of Midlanders Nelson and Kaye Hallford, is helping conduct youth-led revivals in North Texas churches in Cooke/Wise Baptist Associations.

Ms. Hallford, a student at East Texas State University at Commerce, is children team leader for a three-person team of college students serving in the church through Aug.5 .

"Last summer, 475 professions of faith were reported in 64 youth-led revivals, the largest number of conversions in the four years since Texas Baptists reinstituted youth-led revivals, which first began 50 years ago " said Chuck Flowers, youth associate in the Texas Baptist Evangelism Division.

"Youth-led revivals, which swept across Texas in the late '40s and early '50s, generated much of the spiritual energy that made Texas Baptists the state's leading Christian force,"said Bailey Stone, director of the Evangelism Division.

■ Chile native is ordained

Rabbi Robert D. Feldmann, a native of Santiago, Chile, who served at Temple Beth El, was ordained a Reform rabbi at the Ordination Service of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati earlier this month.

Feldmann was ordained by Rabbi Alfred Gottschalk, HUC president. Feldmann will serve as an assistant rabbi in Santiago.

During his rabbinic training, he won the B'nai Zion Prize for Hebrew proficiency. He also served student pulpits in Harlingen, Midland and Barcelona, Spain.

■ Church to host revival

Hughes Street Church of Christ, 1701 Hughes St., will host its annual revival Sunday through June 26.

Don McCord of Los Angeles will be the guest preacher.

Meeting times are 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. weekdays. Offerings will not be solicited during evening services.

Children are invited to attend. The annual revival concludes at 3 p.m. June 26. For more information call 697-4848.

■ Baptists tap Midlander

DALLAS — Kelly Brown of Midland has been appointed to serve on a Theological Education Study Committee authorized June 7 by the 214-member Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Brown, employed by Linebery and Scarborough Foundation, is one of 21 persons appointed to the study committee by Leroy Fenton of Waxahachie, executive board chairman, and Jerold McBride of San Angelo, BGCT president.

■ Spirit Wind '94 to sing

Spirit Wind '94, the Northwest Texas United Methodist Annual Conference Choir, will perform during the 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. services Sunday at St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

The choir represents a select group of youth from the Panhandle and West Texas area who were chosed from more than 160 youth who auditioned this January. The youth represent communitiess and churches of all sizes.

The music for this year's concert includes, among others, works by Richard Farrant, Hans Leo Hassler, G.F. Handel and Franz Joseph Haydn.

This year's tour will include performances in Seminole, Sweetwater, Rotan, Aspermont, Wellington, Lubbock, Amarillo, Dumas, Borgerm Perryton, Muleshoe and here.

The choir was featured at the ordination/consecration worship during the Northwest Texas UM Annual Conference, held here this month.

■ Church to host concert

Jon Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers will present a community-wide concert at 6:30 p.m. June 26 at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomasons Drive.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

(From 4C)

The concert will feature contemporary Christian music, praise and worship and personal witness and ministry. The group features 10 singers and a 12-piece orchestra.

"Celebrant Singers is not 'just another music group,' " said Stemkoski, the group's founder. "It's a powerful ministry."

The group has traveled through 50 states and 56 foreign countries, singing before more than 4 million people in live concerts and countless others via broqdcast media.

During 1994, seven teams of Celebrant Singers will present more than 1,400 concerts in some 30 nations, nine Canadian provinces and 50 states.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Fall Fine Arts School

First Presbyterian Church will be hosting a Fine Arts School this fall.

Registration for the school begins Aug. 1. The school will offer for ages 4 through adult drawing, water coloring, painting, kindermusik, piano, voice, organ and orchestral instruments.

For more information call Rebecca Sawyer, director, at 684-7821.

■ Church plans farewell

The congregation of Trinity Presbyterain Church will host a farewell reception in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. A.J. Moreau from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the parlor of the church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave.

Moreau has served as pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church for nine years. He is leaving to accept the pastorate of First Presbyterian Church in Mexico, Mo. His last Sunday here will be June 26. His sermon for that day will be "A Parting Word," with Philippians 1:1-11 as the text.

All are invited to attend the reception.

■ Bible/book study

Adelphai, Sisters in Christ, Women's Bible/Book Study will meet once a month during the summer months.

The study will be held at 7 p.m. Mondays in Room 103. Topics include June 20, "He Still Moves Stones" by Max Lucado, reviewed by Paula Norman; July 25, "Mr. God, This is Anna," reviewed by Liz Bush-Ivie; and Aug. 22, "Who Needs God?" by Harold Kushner and reviewed by Betty Sumner.

For more information call 682-3701.

■ June March for Jesus

A worldwide March for Jesus is planned for June 25.

Marches will begin in New Zealand as the sun rises and continue around the globe through every time zone.

The event was started in London in 1987 with 15,000 marchers. Within two years it had grown to 200,000 in 600 locations throughout England.

In August 1991 the Rev. Tom Pelton of Austin, founded March for Jesus USA.

On May 23, 1992, March for Jesus was linked internationally when 300,000 people participated in 150 cities in the United States and another 300,000 participated in 24 other nations.

Last year's march held on June 12, drew over 800,000 in 350 U.S. cities and almost 1 million in 46 other countries.

Permian Basin residents will gather on the parking lots across from the federal building at 9:30 a.m. that day. The March for Jesus begins at 10 a.m. The route will be around two miles in the downtown area and conclude with a prayer assembly at the courthouse.

For more information call 683-7055.

■ Marriage seminar

The Family Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ will present a "Marriage Enrichment Summer" this month.

The series presents discussions, lectures and exercises designed to assist couples in understanding, accepting and supporting each other in marriages. Enrollment is open to married couples or engaged couples.

Tom Vermillion, family minister for the church, will be leading the series. For more information call Vermillion, 694-8836.

■ 'A Course in Miracles'

A Course in Miracles Study Group has been reactivated at the Permian Church of Religious Science, 2311 Elizabeth St.

Hours are 7 to 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

Sociologist-minister to address purpose of the Christian life

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

Tony Campolo finds ministers to be "very influential opinion molders in today's society."

So, when the Midland Ministerial Alliance and the Midland Association of Churches — along with individual churches that are not members of either organization — invited him here, he accepted the invitation.

"I felt that it was an excellent opportunity to talk to a group of ministers, and whenever I have a chance to do that I take advantage of it," said Campolo, who is the author of 23 books, a sociologist and an ordained American Baptist minister.

He spoke Friday at Chaparral Center and will speak there again at 7:30 p.m. today and Sunday. Music begins at 7 p.m. No admission is being charged. The public is invited to attend.

His topic, "Fully Alive: The Passion and Purpose of the Christian Life," is drawn somewhat from his latest book, "Carpe Diem," which has been on the best-seller list for three months.

"We wanted to find someone who would bridge the denominations; someone that every church of every denomination could get behind and support," said the Rev. Jon Stasney, pastor of St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church.

"And then we wanted to find somebody that really could present the Gospel in a winsome way.

"And maybe for the first time somebody could hear it in a way that would be engaging and attractive and would draw them in. And, we wanted to build on that theme 'Fully Alive,' to help people that may be kind of lapsed in their faith, be more actively committed in living out their faith in some kind of active life and service."

While here, Campolo will make special appearances at the following events:

- Juneteenth Celebration, 12:30 p.m., today, Washington Park, following the annual Juneteenth Parade;
- Habitat for Humanity dedication, 1 p.m., today; and
- Youth Rally, 1 p.m., Sunday at Ulmer Park.

"As a sociologist, I can tell you that most of my colleagues are convinced that we are on the verge of a new explosion of student activism," said Campolo, who is a professor of sociology at Eastern College at St. David's, Pa.

"Unlike the '60s, however, the evidence is clear that it's going to be activism on the local level; whereas the activism of the '60s was aimed at transforming national and international policy, i.e., the Vietnam War.

"Contemporary students are more focused on what is going on in their own communities. The bumper sticker that reads: 'Think globally. Act locally.' says it all."

Sunday's Youth Rally has been coordinated by Charlie Dodd, youth minister of First Baptist Church, who is working in conjunction with youth ministers of other churches, Stasney said.

The rally, which includes music and volleyball and softball tournaments, will last all afternoon. Hotdogs and hamburgers will be served. Campolo will speak around 2 p.m.

"It's open to all youth," Stasney said. "One of the purposes is to reach people who have never had a really winsome presentation of the Gospel, who don't know what it's really about."

Campolo, an active supporter of Habitat for Humanity, is founder and president of the Evangelical Association for the Promotion of Education. The organization is committed to ministry in social programs in less-developed countries as well as with at-risk American youth.

"Tony would be satisfied if every Christian were like Mother Teresa — that active and that committed," Stasney said. "That's what he wants to do, get people who are not acting out their faith that fully to do it in some concrete way.

"And he himself, he practices what he preaches. He's got a number of ministries of economic development and education in inner-city areas and Third World countries like Haiti."

Judge slaps 5 Davidians with 40-year sentences

■ Five David Koresh disciples receive maximum prison terms; three other Davidians get sentences ranging from five to 20 years.

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — A judge proclaimed the Branch Davidian shootout and standoff a "tragedy of epic proportions" then sentenced five Davidians on Friday to maximum 40-year prison terms for killing four federal agents.

U.S. District Judge Walter Smith handed out less-than-maximum sentences to three other David Koresh disciples. Their terms for weapons convictions ranged from five to 20 years.

"The evidence from this trial has not faded from my memory. Certain images are clear," the judge said. "I remember evidence the jury didn't see, evidence I ruled was too gruesome."

Smith said none of the eight Davidians had apologized for their crimes.

He reminded the defendants of the weapons they used, the dead federal agents and the fire that engulfed Koresh's compound near Waco following a 51-day standoff. Koresh and 78 others died amidst the flames.

The stalemate had begun with a Feb. 28, 1993, gun battle between Koresh's religious sect members and officers of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. Four agents were killed and at least 16 wounded. Six Davidians died.

"On February 28, 1993, an American tragedy of epic proportions took place," Smith said, noting that mistakes made by government officers were not the questions before his court.

The Davidians showed no emotion during sentencing. A packed courtroom full of friends, relatives and federal agents looked on.

On Feb. 26, jurors in the seven-week Davidian trial cleared all 11 defendants of the most serious murder and murder conspiracy charges, but convicted five of voluntary manslaughter and three others on weapons charges. Three were acquitted of all charges.

Smith sentenced Brad Branch, Kevin Whitecliff, Jaime Castillo, Renos Avraam and Livingstone Fagan to maximum 40-year sentences, including 10 years for manslaughter and 30 for using a firearm during a crime. All face fines ranging from $2,000 to $10,000.

Graeme Craddock, a soft-spoken man who told Smith he is "not a person who would harm anyone," got a 20-year sentence and a $2,000 fine for possessing a grenade and using or possessing a firearm during a crime.

Paul Fatta, who was not present during the shootout, got a 15-year sentence and a $50,000 fine for two convictions on machine gun charges.

Ruth Riddle, the only woman on trial, got the lightest sentence — five years and a $2,500 fine for using or carrying a weapon during a crime.

Initially, Smith threw out that weapons verdict for all seven defendants convicted of it, but then reinstated it after hearing prosecutors' post-trial legal arguments.

Jury forewoman Sarah Bain since has said the guilty verdict on that count was a mistake and that jurors never intended the Davidians to serve so many years in prison.

"I feel directly responsible," a crying Ms. Bain said after watching the sentencing. "If we had done that (weapons) count properly, the maximum sentence for anyone in there would be 10 years . . . I just regret that part."

Smith ruled all eight defendants would be responsible for $1.31 million in restitution. The judge largely followed the sentencing recommendations of prosecutors, who declined to say much afterward.

"It's clear that the judge carefully crafted the sentences in what he thought was the proper response," said lead prosecutor Ray Jahn, who earlier dubbed the defendants "religious terrorists."

Defense attorneys criticized the five Davidians' 40-year terms.

"I hurt for them. I'm shocked," said lawyer Rocket Rosen of Houston, who represents Whitecliff and Fagan.

Defense attorney Douglas Tinker of Corpus Christi blasted Smith and said there are plans to appeal.

Residents of a Port-au-Prince slum get clean water at an international aid destribution center in Haiti Friday. White House and Pentagon officials are divided on whether to use military force against Haiti to restore order and perhaps democracy.

Officials split on whether to invade Haiti

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is deeply divided over whether to use military force against Haiti if — as many experts expect — economic sanctions fail to dislodge the country's military leaders.

After almost a month of a global trade embargo, there is no clear sign that Haiti's rulers are prepared to flee, increasing speculation that the administration may choose to send in the troops.

And the administration has made clear that reliance on tightened sanctions is only a short-term option because of the catastrophic social and economic situation in Haiti brought on in part by the embargo.

The sense of unease among policymakers has been heightened by recent news leaks about the possibility of invasion.

The Pentagon is described as most hostile to the military option because of fear that Haiti would become a quagmire for U.S. troops. Career diplomats at the State Department share the Pentagon's wariness.

But top National Security Council officials are said to believe that a military strike is the most efficient way for President Clinton to extricate himself from his Haiti dilemma. These officials include National Security Adviser Tony Lake and his top deputy, Sandy Berger, according to people familiar with the situation.

Outside the government, one influential pro-invasion voice is that of Randall Robinson, director of the TransAfrica lobbying group.

O.J.'s old friend becomes involved

By Tony Knight
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Allen G. Cowlings was O.J. Simpson's best friend in high school, his teammate in college and professional football, his employee in later years and his fellow fugitive as police closed in Friday evening.

The 6-foot-5-inch Cowlings often was seen hanging out with Simpson and Raiders star Marcus Allen at Cowlings' two-story apartment building in the Los Angeles-area city of Santa Monica, neighbors said.

The trio liked to jog along San Vicente Boulevard together, and Cowlings was often seen with other joggers running up and down the Fourth Streets steps that lead down into Santa Monica Canyon.

"He was the greatest," said Jack O'Brien, the former apartment manager known to the three friends as OB. "Al was a wonderful tenant, never bothered anybody. He mixed in great."

Cowlings and Simpson went to San Francisco's Galileo High School and played football together. Both went to City College of San Francisco before being recruited to play for the University of Southern California Trojans.

"We were a little wild," Cowlings told the Orange County (Calif.) Register in a 1987 interview. "O.J. and I ran together everywhere, partying, playing cards, sometimes scuffling around pretty late at night."

Simpson went to USC the year before Cowlings and convinced the coaches to recruit his longtime friend. Cowlings beefed up to 255 pounds and played defensive end.

Cowlings was chosen All-Conference and All American in 1969 after USC defeated Michigan in the Rose Bowl. His greatest game was against University of California, Los Angeles for the conference championship and the roses when he had 16 tackles.

He had hopes of being drafted by his hometown 49ers. But he was drafted by the Buffalo Bills in the first round and ended up playing three more years with Simpson, who had arrived in Buffalo the year before.

Cowlings played with the Bills, Houston Oilers, the Los Angeles Rams and Seattle Seahawks during a nine-season career that ended in 1979.

Neighbors said they often saw Cowlings driving his white Ford Bronco. They said they knew Cowlings worked for Simpson, but they didn't know exactly what his duties were.

Around the apartment buildings he was known as a gentle and graceful giant.

"We had one guy drunk in here, and Al had to get him off my back," O'Brien recalled. "And he even did that gracefully. I said, 'Why don't you belt him Al,' and he said, 'No no, that wouldn't be right OB.' "

Cowlings also had entertained ideas of becoming an actor, said screen writer and neighbor Jeff Bergquist.

"I think he was a member of the Screen Actors Guild," said Bergquist, who runs a playwrights' support group. "I talked him into reading for a play once that one of my playwrights had written. He was perfect for the part, and he said he was looking forward to doing it. But I think he was just so busy that he ended up not doing it."

Clinton stands behind policy on N. Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration moved swiftly Friday to clarify its North Korea policy, saying that unless the communist state freezes its nuclear program and resumes negotiations the United States will keep pushing for U.N. sanctions.

"We have to go to sanctions if the violations continue," President Clinton told reporters after a speech in Chicago. But if the North Koreans are ready to suspend their nuclear activities, then high-level negotiations can be resumed, he said.

The issue was consumed in confusion Friday after CNN reported from Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, that former President Carter had told North Korean President Kim Il Sung that the Clinton administration was prepared conditionally to suspend its push for U.N. sanctions and restart negotiations.

The White House quickly denied that it had decided to hold off on the sanctions effort, which has just gotten under way, and Clinton said it had not been possible yet to speak directly with Carter to clarify what he told the Koreans.

Robert Gallucci, the administration's point man on Korea policy, told reporters at the State Department that administration officials expected to speak to Carter today or Sunday.

ADOPT-A-GOLFER

HELP! Forty golfers are going to risk total exhaustion, sunstroke and a possible coronary to help make a difference in the lives of our young people. You too can help these kids by sponsoring a golfer in Birdies, Bunkers & Bogeys -- the Second Annual Midland Boys and Girls Club Golf Marathon.

Each golfer's goal will be to play 100 holes of golf or more on June 27, 1994. Will you sponsor one golfer at 50 cents, $1.00, $2.00, or even $5.00 a hole? Just indicate the amount you would like to pledge on the slip below.

As the Boys & Girls Club continues to grow, so do our needs. Community support is a primary factor in providing club members with the equipment, programs, facilities and staff necessary to make a positive impact on these young people. What these kids need is your help!

For further information call Jon Farr at 683-5297. Proceeds from Birdies, Bunkers & Bogeys will benefit the Midland Boys & Girls Club in their continued efforts to provide a "Positive Place for Kids."

The Midland Boys & Girls Club is a participating member agency of the United Way.

Greenville woman works to preserve others' memories

By Carol Ferguson
The Greenville Herald Banner

GREENVILLE — With a husband and six small children to care for, Wendy Reynolds of Greenville would seem to have her hands full.

She also wants to "re-establish the tradition of family photo historian," and with that goal in mind she has become a consultant for Creative Memories, teaching classes on photo preservation in her own home.

"People ask me, 'How do you do it with six children?' but I say 'I do it because I have six children.' I want the children to know where our family has come from — our values — how much they mean to our families," she said.

'People ask me, 'How do you do it with six children?' but I say 'I do it because I have six children.' I want the children to know where our family has come from — our values — how much they mean to our families.'

—Wendy Reynolds

Mrs. Reynolds had always put family pictures and memorabilia in scrapbooks, but it wasn't until she visited a former college roommate in California that she realized her albums were literally destroying the family's photos.

The two women stayed up all night looking at her friend's scrapbooks, Mrs. Reynolds said, and there she learned that the most commonly used albums — the so-called magnetic albums with cardboard pages covered by a peel-back layer of plastic — are the most dangerous.

"Your pictures are much safer in a shoe box than in a magnetic album," Mrs. Reynolds said.

Conservators from the Rochester Institute of Technology, the Hoover Institution at Stanford University, and the Art Institute of Chicago have all pointed out in national publications that the cheap-quality cardboard in most commercial albums gives off peroxides that cause yellow staining in the whites of prints in both black and white and color photos. In addition, the plastic covering completely seals the photo in the cardboard and also gives off gases that attack photographic images.

Mrs. Reynolds said the first things she did when she returned to Texas was to take all of her pictures out of the magnetic albums and put them in file folders until she could organize them in albums free from the damaging peroxides or PVC (polyvinyl chloride).

She also got in touch with the home office of Creative Memories, a nationwide photo-preservation program headquartered in Minnesota. Later she attended a two-day training seminar in Tulsa and another in Dallas to learn to teach classes on organizing and preserving family photos.

Mrs. Reynolds conducts the classes in her dining room which is equipped with a U-shaped arrangement of worktables and lights.

To finance this initial investment, "I tole-painted 116 pumpkins (this past Halloween) and sold them," she said. "I started teaching in November and I've been going ever since."

The course includes instruction in organizing and preserving photos, factual information about the damaging effects of acid and PVC pages, creative tips on cropping, decorating, and album page layout ideas. Each student actually puts together a page of her/his own keepsake album.

Cost of the class, which lasts three hours, is $10, but for her first session, Mrs. Reynolds conducted a free workshop/practice class. "I picked two friends from among my neighbors, two from PTA, two from soccer and two from church," she said.

"Now people hear about the class word-of-mouth. When a woman finishes a page, she has five friends she wants to show it to," Mrs. Reynolds said.

She buys supplies in bulk, but only carries "things that can't be found here in Greenville ... acid-free albums and paper, photo-safe adhesives. I'm not trying to take customers away from local stores. I tell my students where they can buy other supplies in town."

Mrs. Reynolds stresses the importance of identifying each photo in an album. "Many people have old black and white photos and they have no idea who the people are in them. There's a story, a life, a history behind every one of those pictures, but because someone didn't take the time to document it, a whole history is lost. They say, 'A picture is worth a thousand words,' but it's worth a whole lot more if there are words with it," she said.

She also cautions against depending entirely on camcorders to preserve family memories. "A lot of us think we're keeping history by using video cameras, but the life expectancy of that tape is about 15 to 20 years. Photographs last a lot longer, and they're also a tangible record. You can pull an album out and look at it rather than having to search through 20 cassettes to find what you want."

Mrs. Reynolds recommends that a family make a point of taking at least one roll of black and white pictures every year as a record, because black and white film has a longer life than color film.

Her husband, Larry, a chemical engineer at Fiberite, has been very supportive of her new endeavor, she said, and often watches the children while she teaches.

"In November, when I did my first show, my husband had the kids all day. Two of them went into a closet — he thought they were asleep — and cut off their hair and then got my makeup all over everywhere ... carpet, walls, hamper, clothes. It was interesting when I came home," she said grinning.

Disappearing act was political triumph

By Stuart Eskenazi
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — The famous disappearing act pulled 15 years ago by a dozen liberal Texas senators dubbed the Killer Bees not only was the ultimate game of hide and seek, it was a zenith of political triumphs.

"If you feel strongly about and committed to something and you are willing to take the risk, by God, you can prevail," former Sen. Chet Brooks said.

'If you feel strongly about and committed to something and you are willing to take the risk, by God, you can prevail.'

— former Sen. Chet Brooks

Brooks was one of six Killer Bees who gathered June 9 in Austin for a 15th anniversary reunion to reminisce about their 4½-day flight from justice.

The Killer Bees were rebels with a cause, Democratic dissidents who went to great lengths to block a piece of legislation in the Texas Senate that they found repugnant. And they were cagey. Nine of the 12 hid out in a garage apartment in the Tarrytown section of Austin, another drove to Oklahoma, another cloistered himself in the Rio Grande Valley and another simply played a man on the lam.

By evading capture, the 12 militant lawmakers effectively shut down operations at the Texas Senate by foiling the two-thirds quorum necessary to do business in the final days of a legislative session. Their absence meant no more than 19 could meet, when the presence of 21 was required.

"We used the rules and the system to benefit those of us who were in the minority on an issue," Brooks said at the reunion, sponsored by the Capitol City Young Democrats.

The bill in question would have created a separate presidential primary, allowing voters to participate in the Republican presidential primary but still cross over later to vote in the Democratic primary for other state offices.

The legislation was a gift, of sorts, to former Gov. John Connally, who was seeking the Republican nomination for president in 1980. The Bees believed it would have had negative effects on minorities and liberals running on the Democratic primary ballot.

More than anything, the Killer Bees achieved legend. Rumors of where they were hanging out spread from the Rio Grande to the Red River. Were they, maybe, just maybe, in Beeville? National media converged upon Austin to savor the stories.

The Bees' hunter — then-Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, aided in the search by the Department of Public Safety — became so exasperated that he ultimately relented.

The only arrest made was of Sen. Gene Jones' brother, Clayton Jones — a snafu by Texas Rangers who believed the man was the fugitive senator. Clayton Jones was flown against his will from Houston to Austin before the Rangers could be convinced they had the wrong man.

As it turned out, the 12 senators got all they wanted: Hobby voluntarily scuttled the bill, and he promised no reprisals against the senators.

"It was the first time in my legislative career that I saw a concerted action by a minority to turn around something that would've been very deleterious to the people of this state," recalled former Sen. Oscar Mauzy, another member of the group.

As with any legend, the stories about the Killer Bees have grown more descriptive over time.

Agents' radio chats promote FBI image

By Philip True
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — Sometimes a day in the life of an FBI agent is more than cops and robbers.

On any given afternoon, for example, Raul Salinas, senior resident agent in the Laredo office, might be found behind the microphone of a San Antonio radio station, taping another in a popular series of broadcasts called "Platicando con el FBI" (Chatting with the FBI).

Salinas is a co-host with San Antonio agent Gregorio Rodriguez, and the show is produced at KCOR in San Antonio.

"I hope that this program carries an educational message for the Hispanic community, and I think that we're beginning to make an impact," Salinas said.

Salinas' show, a five-minute Spanish-language complement to the "FBI This Week" radio show aired by the FBI, works to overcome the image of an agency that, for many in the U.S. Hispanic population, is decidedly negative.

"Many only know the agency as a police force, represented by (television actor) Efrem Zimbalist Jr. Many have told me, "You're the only FBI agent that I've ever talked to,' " Salinas said.

Salinas thinks Hispanics should know that the agency can serve them, too, and that it is the place to go with problems of discrimination prohibited under federal civil rights acts.

And informed Hispanics might be recruited into the FBI, thus opening it and making it more responsive to the minority community.

Content runs to programs on drug abuse, gun control, information about special FBI programs, agency features, and more, Salinas said.

"I told my audience about the good cooperation we managed with Mexican state police when customs broker Leopoldo Garza Benavides was kidnapped from his Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, ranch early last year. We got the head of the plot with the reward money in San Antonio, while the Mexican police freed Garza in Mexico," Salinas said.

Other broadcasts discuss espionage. "People are very excited about spy cases," he said.

Beginning with only 12 stations in 1979, Salinas says, the program now is broadcast on more than 130 stations, reaching 26 states in America, and 11 more in northern Mexico.

Hugo Adames, of WRIB in East Providence, R.I., says he plays Salinas' show every day.

"It is clear, concise information and serves to break down a little of the sense of discrimination many of our Hispanic listeners feel about the FBI," Adames said by telephone.

More than anywhere else, the show plays in Texas.

"We get listeners' comments all the time," said Brenda Huerta, news director at KBGT in Harlingen.

"Raul and Gregorio do the show just like a platica — a chat — instead of straight news talk. They make it seem like a less aggressive, less threatening kind of entity," Huerta said.

Salinas was born in Alice and broke into radio in high school, doing a show called "High School Highlights."

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — It's not a story everyone would want to tell about themselves.

When Jenny Broughton was 11, her father strangled her mother with a towel, then fired a fatal gunshot into his own head.

Years earlier, her grandfather had shot himself in a barn.

Years later, Mrs. Broughton's brother killed his wife of six months and then shot himself, leaving a note that read: "My daddy did it this way, and so will I."

But Mrs. Broughton, 42, of Midland, has returned to Corpus Christi to research her family tragedies for a book that she hopes can help other people overcome their own adversities.

The report about her parents' murder-suicide on April 19, 1963, cannot be found at the Corpus Christi Police Department. Many people who lived near the little pink house where her parents' lives ended have moved or died.

Mrs. Broughton hopes that anyone who knew her parents, Ralph W. Lovic, a boatswain, and Virginia R. Lovic, a nightclub waitress, will contact her.

Her own memories of that day in 1963 are spotty. She remembers practicing for a play after school. Two of her siblings, Johnny, 4, and Eva, 2, were home, hungry and blocked from the parents' bedroom by a chest of drawers barricading the door.

Johnny climbed on his toy car and peeked through the bedroom window from outside the house. He saw blood. The children were home alone with the corpses nearly six hours by the time an adult called police.

"It's pandemonium. Ambulances, lights, police," Mrs. Broughton recalls. "I remember trying to get in. I go ... into the bedroom, seeing and smelling blood."

Mrs. Broughton lived at the South Texas Children's Home until she graduated from high school. She attended Bee County College for one year, then transferred to Howard Payne University in Brownwood.

She met her future husband in college and has been married 21 years to the Rev. Sam Broughton. She taught high school English for 12 years, raised three children and now is a nationally known motivational speaker.

In recent years, she began sewing together the memories of her past.

Those memories include the 1980 day when her brother, R.W. Lovic, kidnapped his wife and shot her, then himself.

Participants rehearse for the opening ceremony of the Gay Games in New York Friday. The Gay Games IV and Cultural Festival kicks off today and runs through June 25. More than 10,000 athletes from 43 nations are entered in 31 events at 42 locations around the metropolitan area.

Prosecutor: Early handling of O.J. was 'joke'

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — The Los Angeles district attorney prosecuting the murder case against O.J. Simpson Friday described the criminal justice system's handling of domestic violence charges against the football star five years ago as "a joke, a terrible joke."

"It sure seems like he got special treatment," the district attorney, Gil Garcetti, said at a news conference in Los Angeles.

According to police records released Thursday, Simpson beat his wife, Nicole, so badly on Jan. 1, 1989, that she required treatment at a hospital.

The records also portray a woman who was terrified for her life. When police arrived at the couple's house after the beating, the records show, Mrs. Simpson ran out of the bushes yelling: "He's going to kill me. He's going to kill me."

She told police that they had been called to her house on eight other occasions after her husband had beaten her, the records say.

Four months after the 1989 incident, Simpson pleaded no contest to a charge of spousal abuse, and he was sentenced by a municipal judge to 120 hours of community service and two years' probation.

The judge, Ronald Schoenberg, also fined him $200 and ordered him to give $500 to a shelter for battered women.

Deputy City Attorney Robert Pingle, who said in an interview Friday that, because of the severity of the beating, he had requested that Simpson serve 30 days in jail and undergo an intensive year-long program for men who batter their spouses.

Instead, he said, Simpson was allowed to receive counseling from a psychiatrist of his choice. That arrangement was characterized by domestic violence experts Friday as highly unusual and ineffective.

"I was pretty frustrated on all levels," Pingle said.

The deputy city attorney said the judge might have been trying to accommodate Simpson's busy schedule. "Mr. Simpson — being a celebrity on the go — he was going to New York," Pingle said.

"It had something to do with a new television program, something for one of the networks. Because of his schedule, it's possible that he asked that some of his contacts with his psychiatrist be by telephone."

Domestic violence experts, including the domestic violence coordinator for the city attorney's office here, said Friday that group therapy for men who batter women was far preferable to counseling.

Simpson rises from San Francisco slum to stardom

By Robert McG. Thomas Jr.
N.Y. Times News Service

You can hardly blame the Galileo High School coach for assigning the kid to the defensive line. After all, on a team awash with quick, small players from nearby Chinatown, the fellow from the Potrero Hill section of San Francisco was big, almost 6 feet tall and 160 pounds.

The assignment lasted until the new defensive tackle picked up a fumble one day and ran for a touchdown. In an instant he became a fullback. The coach had learned what every kid on Potrero Hill could have told him: Orenthal James Simpson was not only big, he was fast.

For a youngster growing up poor in a tough neighborhood, sports was one of the two routes to respect, and by his account, Simpson was good at the other one, too.

As he once recalled: "I was always the leader — the baddest cat there. You had to be."

It would become a familiar theme in the life of a man who became an American sports icon.

Simpson, born on July 9, 1947, was 4 when his father, Jimmie, deserted the family. The second youngest of four children, Simpson grew up in a low-income housing project supported by his mother, Eunice, who worked as an hospital orderly.

Strike, NBA Finals, Gay Games, World Cup hit N.Y.

By Larry McShane
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The ticker tape parade came after the railroad strike began, before the NBA Finals and the Yankees game, and right in the middle of World Cup and Gay Games preparations.

Confused? It's Friday in New York City.

"There's only a couple of cities in the world that could absorb this, and New York is one of them," said Rich Altman of the city Convention and Visitors Bureau, pondering what astrological phenomenon was responsible for this odd confluence of events.

There were 1.5 million hockey fans packing the New York Rangers' parade route; 127,000 riders battling a strike on the nation's largest commuter rail system; 19,000 Knicks fans readying for their basketball championship showdown; and 11,000 athletes prepping for the Gay Games.

The juxtaposition of a sport fan's dream and a commuter's nightmare came on a blazing hot June day, when lower Manhattan's "Canyon of Heroes" with filled with Rangers fans venting 54 years of frustration in a flood of falling paper.

"Next time it will be the Knicks, and then the Yankees," said parade-goer Nicholas Cuscado, 73, of Jersey City, N.J. And on frantic Friday, nobody disagreed.

Caught between the agony and the ecstasy was Gov. Mario Cuomo, who was forced to cancel his appearance at the ticker tape parade for a mediator's role in the Long Island Rail Road strike.

The Knicks faced the Houston Rockets in a critical Game Five at Madison Square Garden, just two hours after the first-place Yankees returned to the Bronx against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Long Island fans of both teams were scrambling for ways to get into the city — and back home — as LIRR employees went on strike early Friday.

Although Mayor Rudolph Giuliani advised LIRR riders to take a three-day weekend if possible, die-hard Rangers fans ignored that advice. Valerie Charms and Arlene Hochne, sporting Rangers' T-shirts, took shuttle buses to Queens and subways into Manhattan for the parade.

The shuttle buses — fewer than usual were available due to heavy chartering by Gay Games and World Cup groups — were dropping commuters off at Shea Stadium, home of baseball's Mets, which was mercifully empty.

Dems accuse GOP of blocking America's health-care reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an atmosphere of intense partisanship, House Democrats charged Republicans on Friday with obstructing passage of health-reform legislation. GOP Whip Newt Gingrich called for a compromise stripped of President Clinton's "big government" approach.

While Democrats labor to advance Clinton's proposal through balky committees, Gingrich said he had urged Republicans in the House to forget about improving it.

"To say, 'Why don't you go for 40 percent socialized medicine instead of 100 percent socialized medicine goes against everything our constituents believe in,'" he said. "His bill is dying."

But Democrats pounced on his attitude as evidence of obstructionism on the top item on the administration's agenda.

House Speaker Thomas Foley said House Republicans were pursuing a strategy of "flat opposition to achieving health care legislation," and added that their "mask of cooperation" had been removed.

Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., told reporters that Gingrich's strategic advice showed the "Republican effort seems to be to stop any bill."

The Democrats leveled their attacks as the Republican National Committee announced it was airing a radio advertisement aimed at Rep. Peter Hoagland, D-Neb., for voting to uphold a requirement that most employers help finance health insurance for their workers. "This mandate with its huge payroll tax will hurt the economy and cost jobs," said the ad.

The political activity came as the panel continued work on a measure patterned on Clinton's proposal, voting 36-2 to let businesses with 100 or more workers self-insure. That was a change from the threshold set at 250 in draft legislation presented by Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., the acting chairman.

Texas toddler, teen drown in same lake

BROKEN BOW, Okla. — A toddler and a teen-ager, both from Texas, drowned Friday afternoon in separate accidents on Broken Bow Lake in far southeastern Oklahoma, authorities said.

Alissa L. Black, 2, was last seen alive as she swam with other children and her grandmother in shallow water in a recreational area just north of Broken Bow, said Shaun Hughston, an Oklahoma Highway Patrol dispatcher in Durant.

A man reported seeing Alissa floating in the water around 4:10 p.m. She had been there for about 15 minutes, Hughston said.

Emergency crews tried to revive the child, but she was pronounced dead on arrival at an Idabel hospital, he said.

The second drowning occurred about 4:35 p.m. at a recreational center southeast of Idabel, Hughston said.

Daniel Lee Bailey, 19, was near the Kulli Recreation Center with his sister and a friend when the trio decided to swim across the cove.

Bailey, of Godley, Texas, could not swim very well and went under halfway across, Hughston said.

His body was recovered just before 6 p.m.

Man turns himself in after murder charge

AUSTIN — A Dallas man charged with murder in the 1991 smothering death of his wife in Austin has turned himself in.

William Anderson "Andy" McBride was released Thursday after posting a 5 percent cash bond of $2,000 on his $40,000 bail, according to jail records.

An arrest warrant was issued Wednesday for McBride, who is accused of killing Barbara J. McBride, 46. She was found dead at home in Austin's Cat Mountain subdivision on the morning of Feb. 7, 1991.

Texas A&M ends plans for power plant

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas A&M University System on Friday said it has canceled plans to build a $120 million power plant on the system's main campus.

The cogeneration plant would have been built by Houston-based Tenneco Power Generation Co. as the A&M system's biggest capital construction project ever.

The deal was killed by an inability to secure deals for the purchase of back-up power or the sale of excess power, said Richard Lindsay, the system's vice chancellor for finance and operations.

Bentsen attends 1st board meeting of NAFTA bank

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen and his Mexican counterpart urged private investors Friday to improve the border environment with the help of a new bank linked to the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Bentsen and Mexican Finance Secretary Pedro Aspe said the North American Development Bank will help clean up the border. Bentsen said he would like to see the Rio Grande River soon clean enough to swim in, as when he was a child.

"I'd like to urge the private sector to work closely with communities and states on both sides of that border to develop these important projects," Bentsen said.

"I envision a marriage of private lending and equity with government funds to hold down government costs and encourage private-sector involvement," he said.

Bentsen and Aspe attended the first board meeting of the NADBank at the San Antonio Convention Center.

The private meeting came after the two spoke to several hundred people at a community luncheon sponsored by the Free Trade Alliance-San Antonio.

At least two dozen NAFTA protesters demonstrated outside before the luncheon.

Afterward, Bentsen, Aspe and San Antonio officials signed an agreement to temporarily locate the bank inside a San Antonio bank building until permanent offices are built at HemisFair Plaza.

Aspe said NADBank is an important step toward shoring up the border's basic public services, such as water and sewage treatment and the handling of hazardous waste.

"We are at the beginning of a new dialogue that will generate real change in how the development of the border infrastructure is approached," Aspe said.

The San Antonio-based, binational NADBank would provide about $3 billion in government and private loans to finance environmental projects along the U.S.-Mexico border, officials said.

Morales: Illegal immigration costs state more than $1 billion

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' lawsuit against the federal government over illegal immigration costs will seek reimbursement for more than $1 billion in yearly expenditures, state Attorney General Dan Morales estimated Friday.

That includes such state and local services as health care, education and criminal justice, he said.

"I think we're obviously dealing with significant amounts of money here," Morales said "I believe that once we take into account costs imposed upon local units of government, that we will in all likelihood be talking about in excess of $1 billion that we can justify, that we can show on an annual basis."

Morales, a Democrat who is up for re-election in November, would not say how much in total damages he expects to seek from the federal government when the lawsuit is filed in an estimated 30 to 45 days.

"We really are in the process of finalizing those numbers," he said.

About two dozen heads of hospital districts met this week with the attorney general's staff to analyze their costs of serving illegal immigrants, Morales said. Similar efforts are being made to obtain criminal justice and public education costs, he said.

Counties, cities, district attorneys and sheriffs are getting figures together, he said. The state is looking at how local governmental entities may join in the lawsuit, perhaps as parties, he said.

Morales, who announced the lawsuit late last month, said he was working at a deliberate pace.

"We need to ensure that we can justify the amount that the state is going to be requesting by way of reimbursement, and we just don't want to go off half-cocked."

Houston authorities investigate retarded woman's heat death

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities are investigating the death of a retarded woman whose body temperature rose to 107 degrees after workers at a state-funded group home locked her in a garage.

Caroline Perez, 29, died of hyperthermia at Houston Northwest Medical Center on Wednesday, doctors said.

Harris County Sheriff's deputy Bert Diaz said Ms. Perez was a resident of Trinity House, a state-funded intermediate-care home for the mentally retarded.

Diaz said the woman "had a temper tantrum of some kind" on Monday and two attendants at the home locked her in an unventilated, detached garage behind the home. She was left in the garage for four hours, he said.

When attendants later found her unconscious, Ms. Perez was taken by ambulance to a hospital.

Doctors were unaware the woman had been locked in the garage until learning of the incident from a Trinity House employee a day later, when the sheriff's department was alerted.

Diaz said charges of injury to a disabled person, a third-degree felony, are being prepared against the attendants responsible.

Police officer climbs ferris wheel to rescue boy stuck upside down

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A 9-year-old boy spent about 15 minutes hanging upside down in a Ferris wheel car, until a police officer climbed up and rescued him.

Joshua Handy wasn't hurt Thursday night as he dangled from the top of the 35-foot wheel at an amusement park.

Officer Chris Taylor held Jushua until firemen put the boy into the bucket of a hook-and-ladder truck and lowered him to the ground.

Joshua's grandmother, Naoma Conner, was riding in another car and said she was struck in the left shoulder by a metal pin that may have fallen from Joshua's car.

"We had just gotten on, and we rode around once," she said. "It seemed like the cable went loose, and we stopped. I looked up, and my grandson was hanging upside down way above me."

Taylor scaled the side of the Ferris wheel without a safety line and held the boy so he wouldn't fall.

The cause of the accident was under investigation.

FRED and other SPCA Residents Need Your HELP!

PETS HELPING PETS

Our Cause For Paws Annual Benefit was rained out last year and the SPCA is short of funds. This year, we are asking the animals of the Permian Basin to help us in our time of need. Fred, the shelter mascot, is asking pet owners to send a $1.00 per pet donation to help the animals without homes. For each donation, we will place the pet's name on our Animal Wall of Fame at the shelter. Please mail donations to P.O. Box 4371, Midland, Texas 79704.

THANK YOU!

310 General Help Wanted

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its few "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $75 check each Friday in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is in the Goddard Jr. High area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for anyone willing to work early morning hours. These routes require a small deposit.

310 General Help Wanted

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:
- ★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
- ★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
- ★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- ★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?
