A Tough Life—
Even For Champs—
What Lindy Says—
Suspicious Idleness—

ROSSER J. NEWMAN, endurance king in a half dozen events, drives around the city and to neighboring towns, attracting crowds of spectators who show an unfailing curiosity in a man who can stay awake for more than five days.

Most of us boast of it when some circumstance limits us to two or three hours' sleep in a night, hence the interest in this man who sleeps not at all for night after night. Many probably follow the course of Mr. Newman's drive with considerable envy, with perhaps a longing somewhat akin to that of the small boy to become a pirate or Indian fighter.

But it's really a dog's life, Mr. Newman avers, a tough job in which the endurance king spends his time longing for slumber, the more the better. Mr. Newman would have us believe that even the business of being champion is more or less a matter of sticking to some job that always seems less desirable than that of the other man.

THE RECORD NEWS believes the Real Estate board has touched the most important needs for settlement of valley lands in the program for development of marketing facilities and the advertising of the possibilities of the area.

Markets for the produce of farmers, of new settlers who may be induced to come to the valley, are of course of fundamental importance if the sale of land in small areas is to bring any permanent development.

Hardly less important, however, is an intense advertising-publicity campaign. California, Florida and the Magic Valley of Texas are examples of the power of publicity when there are natural advantages to justify such a campaign. The Wichita irrigated valley undoubtedly has every natural advantage that could be desired.

"SPEED," publication of the American Air Transport association, quotes Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in this week's issue as follows: "The first need of any community for aviation progress is a well-equipped airport, large enough for safety of operation and easy of access."

Colonel Lindbergh's advice seems very familiar. In fact, if the writer remembers correctly, Hubert Harrison, general manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, had practically the same thing to say several weeks ago.

Dallas and Fort Worth are building municipal airports. Houston is building a municipal airport.

When will Wichita Falls step in line?

CITY officials of Houston report that the annual fall and winter pilgrimage of the unemployed to that city has started, and that from all indications the city will be swamped with an army of jobless men and women.

It appears the great American wave of prosperity left the jobless ones untouched and down and out. Isn't there cotton picking to be done? Building activities in Texas, in certain sections, are greater than ever before.

Is there an army of the unemployed in the United States or is the army composed of idlers who drift from town to town and from state to state?

HARP CONTEST DRAWS 10,000 TO PARK HERE

Record Crowd Acclaims Efforts of Harmonica Players

YOUTH WINS TITLE

William Savage Declared Champion In Final Elimination

Before a crowd estimated by city officials at 10,000 persons and declared the largest audience ever witnessing a single entertainment in Wichita Falls, William Savage, 16 years old, Wednesday night won the harmonica championship of Wichita Falls in a contest held in Bellevue park.

The oldest entrant in the cohtest was W. D. Bolding Sr., 78 years old, and the youngest, Guy Rogers Jr., 6 years old. There were 21 entered in the contest, nine were in the junior division and 12 in the senior.

Shep Presides

W. S. Martin won first place in the senior division and Savage the honors in the junior group. Arrayed against each other for the championship of the city, Savage was declared the winner over Martin by the judges.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd headed the list of judges, which was composed of Alva Wilgus, Charles J. Johnson and Steve Stevenson. Mayor Shepherd also was the official announcer and master of ceremonies.

The contest was held under the direction of Will Ward, recreational director of the department of parks, and C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks. The prizes, consisting of valuable harmonicas, were donated by the Hohner Harmonica company.

Prizes Awarded

Second and third prizes in the junior division were won by Scott Allday and Byron Cochran, respectively; second and third prizes in the senior division were won by George Taylor and Ernest Ivers. Young Rogers was awarded a harmonica for being the youngest entrant in the contest and Mr. Bolding Sr., received a similar prize for being the oldest.

One of the features of the contest was a "father and son duel" in the senior division. W. D. Bolding Jr., was a "rival" of his father for harmonica honors.

Judges Also Play

At the conclusion of the contest Mayor Shepherd insisted that the judges, not including himself, had to demonstrate their ability relative to "knowing their harmonica stuff." As a result, Wilgus, Johnson and Stevenson "harped" for the audience.

The following were contestants: Junior division, Guy Rogers Jr., William Savage, Dick Crocker, Byron Cochran, Scott Allday, Jack Baxter, William Hardy, Guy Lewis and Eugene Putty. Senior division, Harry Foree, L. C. Ogle, P. Glascow, Ernest Ivers, W. D. Bolding Jr., W. D. Bolding Sr., J. J. Bevers, George Taylor, Ralph Brown, W. S. Martin and Cran Wiers.

Youth Makes Statement In Haskell Slaying

Officers Hold Two Men in Separate Jails Pending Trial on Charge

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, Texas, Aug. 24.—Walter King, 20, held in Haskell on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of J. K. Beauchamp, Haskell night watchman, more than eight months ago, has made a complete statement in connection with the affair, District Attorney Clyde Grissom announced today.

Implicates Companion

In his statement, King implicated Ruben Davis, 26, who is also held on a charge of murder in connection with the affair, District Attorney Grissom told a Record News representative.

King, who was said to be in a very nervous condition, after questioning by officers, told of events leading up to the slaying of Beauchamp on the night of Oct. 24, 1926.

Beauchamp was killed when he surprised two men in the robbery of the Davis Economy store of Haskell.

Both King and Davis are said to live in Comanche county.

"I've seen that —— dead man's face too many times," King cried to officers before making his statement, District Attorney Grissom said.

Await Trial.

King and Davis are being held in separate jails pending their trial here. The statement to officers was made to District Attorney Grissom, Sheriff Al Cousins of Haskell and Sheriff Gilbreath, City Marshall Fate and Deputy Ash of Comanche county, it was stated.

The arrest of the two men followed several months search by officers of this county.

Governor Moody Extends Convict's Furlough

AUSTIN, Aug. 24. (AP)—Believing statements of physicians that the convict's child's life virtually depends on clemency, Governor Moody today granted 10-day extension of furlough to Frank Lenier, serving seven years from Harris county on conviction of swindling.

Lenier got a furlough some time ago because of the serious illness of his wife. Hardly had he arrived at his home when she died. His child became ill. Physicians, recommending clemency said they believe its recovery or death practically depends on whether its father is allowed to stay at home during the crisis.

$62,875 SUIT FILED HERE

Drilling Company Claims Damages in Action

Suit was filed in district court Wednesday by the Bailey Damuth Drilling company, et al, against the Earl P. Halliburton Sand Testing company to recover alleged damages of $62,875, claimed to have resulted from the Halliburton company's failure to remove from an oil well an "instrument" inserted for the purpose of taking out sand to be tested.

The plaintiffs allege that on May 7 employes of the Halliburton company put the instrument in the well on the T. J. and J. L. Waggoner lease and failed to remove it, thereby making it impossible to continue drilling operations and putting the drilling company to an expense of $10,875 in trying to clear the well of the obstruction and forcing it finally to abandon the lease.

The plaintiff claims that the lease was worth $72,000 at the time the instrument became lodged in the test but that its value has declined $52,000 since that time.

MEXICAN OIL LAW FIGHT IN PROGRESS

Companies Accepting Government's Program Are Hampered

DRAFT ACCUSATIONS

Thousands of Workmen Thrown Out of Work, Is the Charge

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24.—Anglo-American oil interests fighting the enforcement of Mexico's petroleum legislation are working together as a trust to hamper the operations of companies which have accepted the Mexican government's program for the nationalization of resources.

Such is the substance of accusations drafted today for submission to the federal ministry of industry, commerce and labor by a group claiming to speak on behalf of the oil field workers.

Since the big oil companies opposing the law began their drastic curtailment of operations last winter, thousands of workers have been thrown out of employment. The alleged combination against the other companies, it is declared, threatens to compel them also to curtail and so discharge many more workers.

The accusations against the big oil interests are regarded as bearing out the predictions made some time ago that the part played by these companies in handling the world's oil supplies would make it difficult for smaller enterprises operating in Mexico to do business without their aid.

The interests opposing the enforcement of the law because of its alleged confiscatory provisions now are charged with preventing others from obtaining tank steamers and also with refusing to purchase Mexican oil from independent operators. Facing such conditions, the independents are compelled to limit their production.

The answer of the big companies is that they need the tankers for their own use in other and more hospitable fields and also that, in view of the great production of oil elsewhere, they do not need the Mexican oil offered them by the independents.

Four-Year-Old Boy Kept In Dog Kennel Strapped to Stake

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 24. (AP)—Strapped to a stake to prevent him from wandering away, four-year-old Charl Garland, was housed in a dog kennel for two weeks, it was revealed today with the filing of a complaint, charging cruelty, against Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Steinman, who live near Grapeville, Westmoreland county.

Roy Hallam, humane agent, found the child, suffering from exposure, in the kennel in the back yard of the Steinman home yesterday. A dog was the child's only companion.

Investigating, Hallam found Mrs. Tillie Lovell, the child's mother, in the Steinman house. Mrs. Lovell said her husband had deserted her six months ago and she returned to the Steinmans, to whom she is related. They gave shelter to her and her 3-year-old son, Henry Lovell, but refused, she said, to have anything to do with the Garland child, her son by a former marriage. The Steinmans forced her, she said, to keep the elder boy strapped to the post and would not permit her to bring him into the house. The boy had no attention aside from water and food she was able to carry to him surreptitiously, Mrs. Lovell said.

Austin Bank Robbers Head For Wichita From Fort Worth

MAY CROSS LINE

Bandits Attempting To Get Across To Oklahoma, Officers Believe

A state-wide search for three youthful bandits who Monday robbed the University bank of Austin of $26,000 in cash and securities extended to Wichita Falls Wednesday, with officers of three departments searching roads in all directions for the robbers and the bank loot.

Warning that the bandits had headed for the Wichita area, probably with hopes of escaping into Oklahoma, was received by Police Chief Frank Burns early Wednesday morning in a telephone conversation with officers at Fort Worth, who said the men had been seen there, and had headed toward Wichita Falls.

One of the men sought by officers in connection with the bank robbery has a sister living in Burkburnett, and is believed to have at times made his home there.

Bridge Guarded

Police Officers Pat Allen and Luke Hart stationed themselves on the Henrietta road immediately after receipt of the message and a short time later they were joined by Constable Frank Morgan and his deputies.

Constable Morgan, believing that the men had taken refuge until night at some point between here and Fort Worth, stationed Deputies Dan Ellis and Joe Saye at the Byers bridge across Red river and asked the aid of the toll taker there in case suspects were noticed.

Deputies of the sheriff's department were also active in the search and watched outlying roads during the day.

Constable Morgan gave chase early Wednesday to one car bearing passengers resembling the suspects but abandoned the chase when he came near enough to see that the car had a Wichita county license plate.

Description Lacking

Officers here have no detailed description of the car in which the bandits are supposed to be riding but it is believed they may have switched cars at intervals in their journey with the idea of throwing police off of their trail.

Supposition here is that Sheriff Burleson of Travis county is closing in on the bandits, forming a tri-cornered net of officers that would prevent their escape into Oklahoma at any point in the vicinity of Wichita Falls. Sheriff Burleson has left Travis county for an unknown destination, reports from Austin said.

Weather Man Joins In Battle Against Newman In Endurance Test

One man in Wichita Falls is keeping a close check on Police Chief Burns.

That man is Rosser J. Newman, endurance king, who at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning started a 125-hour non-stop drive in an automobile under the auspices of the Parmenter Motor company, The Record News and several other business firms of Wichita Falls. Chief Burns carries the key to the handcuffs by which Newman is locked to the steering wheel of a Star automobile, and Mr. Newman doesn't want the police chief to forget about having the key and go away on a vacation, for he is anxious to be released from that steering wheel at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon so he can make up for five days' loss of sleep.

Newman left Wichita Falls at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning for a tour of several surrounding towns, returning here at 5:30 o'clock in

Light Thought to Have Been Fliers Only Gasoline Lamp

By Universal Service.

HONOLULU, Aug. 24.—A gasoline lamp being tried out by a cook in a ranch house was thought responsible tonight for the green flares which caused many to believe that the missing Dole fliers might have landed on the Island of Hawaii.

Three army airplanes and the "Aloha" piloted by Martin Jensen, winner of second place in the Honolulu race returned here today after a trip of investigation. They found no trace of any plane landing.

Before sailing today on the steamer Manoa, Art Goebel, winner of the Honolulu aerial derby, said that so far as he knew none of the planes in the Dole race had green flares.

Both Goebel and his navigator, Lieut. W. V. Davis were given an enthusiastic farewell.

"Perhaps" and "If" and "Maybe" We'll Get a Postoffice

Anyhow, Election Revives Hopes of Action From One of Parties

As national elections begin to loom Wichita Falls citizens begin speculating as to this city's chances for obtaining a new postoffice and federal building adequate to the needs of the community. Some of the "wise" ones even make predictions. It matters not which party these prophets are affiliated with, each camp feels that its party, if successful in the elections, will at last hear Wichita Falls' plea for a federal building.

So it has been for a number of years. The postoffice moved into the present federal building on January 1, 1913, the new building having been authorized and constructed the previous year.

At that time Wichita Falls' population was somewhere around 10,000. It was a hustling and growing little city and federal authorities probably felt that the town would continue to grow for some time so they built an edifice sufficiently large for a city of 25,000 population. It was "some" building, declared an old timer Wednesday.

But Burkburnett was not taken into consideration. The world knows what Burkburnett did. Just seven years after the postoffice building had been completed to care for a city of 25,000, Wichita Falls was a metropolis with between 40,000 and 50,000 inhabitants.

Of course something had to be done. A group of local men leased the lot adjoining the postoffice building and built an annex which in turn was leased to the postal department. Parcels post is handled in the annex.

The main building is one story in height and has no basement, the heating plant being located at the west end of the main floor. There is enough office space on the "second" floor to care for a part of the internal revenue offices located here.

If a person set out to walk to every federal office located in Wichita Falls and then to a session of federal district court to hear a mail train robber tried, he would wall several miles.

Prohibition enforcement, narcotic operatives, United States commissioner, deputy United States marshal, income tax and other internal revenue department representatives have shown no preference to any particular office building, but, being forced to secure office space where they might, they are well scattered over the city. Federal court is held in the county courthouse. The postal inspector for North Texas is located in the postoffice building.

Bids have been closed for a new plumbing and heating system for the postoffice building which will more than likely insure warmth for employes, Postal officials, however, make it no secret that the quarters are not large enough.

And they hope more than ever before that Wichita Falls will secure a federal building within the next two years.

During the last year the Valley View school was accredited as a four-year high school and the Cashion school classified as a three year high school.

The county superintendent Wednesday received for free distribution in the rural schools 17,000 paper book covers from the Texas Cotton Seed Crushers' association.

Will Recommend Replacement To Congress

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Congress at its next session should appropriate about $25,000,000 for construction of ships to replace obsolete vessels in the government's merchant fleet, Commissioner E. C. Plummer of the shipping board recommended today.

He called for a replacement program by congress that would allow for construction of about 200,000 tons in ships each year. The immediate need is up-to-date freighters of about 10,000 tons each and capable of making 12 or 14 knots, he said.

"There ought to be an annual replacement of about 5 per cent of the fleet in order to keep this country abreast of other nations in merchant shipping," said Commissioner Plummer.

Other countries, while circulating propaganda that there are too many ships, are steadily modernizing their fleets, which come in direct competition with ships under the American flag.

The shipping board has about 325 ships in operation today. That is a sufficient force "to balance trade conditions and prevent exorbitant rate charges and cargo delay," in Plummer's opinion. He continued:

Studebaker Official Here For Meeting

P. A. Rumpf, manager of the Dallas branch of the Studebaker corporation, who addressed a sales meeting at the Fritz Motor company here Wednesday night, declared that business reports for the last 10 days for the Dallas branch shows the greatest volume of business in the history of the corporation.

"The new Studebaker models are going faster than we expected, orders coming in so fast that our September allotment has already been absorbed," he stated.

Mr. Rumpf stated that the showing made by the Fritz Motor company has been satisfactory and he predicted an increased early fall business.

Henry Fuller, formerly in the service department of the Studebaker corporation who recently took charge of the Fritz maintenance department, addressed the meeting.

Sunday School Class Gives to Milk Fund

The Record News milk and ice fund received a contribution Wednesday of $2.60 from Mrs. Claude Peters' class of 12-year-old boys of the junior department of the First Baptist Sunday school.

The class raised the money to help furnish their class room, but decided that it would do more good if given to the milk and ice fund. The fund was officially closed some time ago, but the contribution was added to the money still avialable for relief work.

Newman Battling The Weather Man

the afternoon. He drove around Wichita Falls from 5:30 in the afternoon until 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night, when he started back on the same tour. He will return at 8 o'clock Thursday morning and leave again at 9 o'clock. This schedule will be followed until 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He will be in Wichita Falls from then until the drive ends at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Newman reported Wednesday night that he was getting tired and sleepy and had suffered somewhat because of the excessive heat. He made it through the first day and night fine, he said, but the second day was trying on his nerves. His eye lids began to feel heavy and his body ached from sitting in one position so long. He said that sitting thus interferred with circulation of blood, which produced a more painful effect than the loss of sleep.

Newman began drinking coffee Wednesday afternoon to keep sleep away, and sleep is what he wants most, too. But he is determined to stay awake until 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. His past record of driving an automobile 197 hours and 35 minutes, dancing 217 hours and skating 72 hours indicates that he is capable of finishing the drive.

Newman drives in high gear all the time. The gear lever was removed from the car so that it would be impossible to shift gears. He stops at street crossings, but starts again in high gear.

Newman will dance at the Miller Summer Gardens on Lake Wichita Thursday night for 15 minutes, beginning at 10 o'clock. Dancing is Mr. Newman's specialty. He shakes a wicked toe, and when he gets started he is hard to stop.

MODISH MITZI— Mitzi Is Delayed By JAY V. JAY

It was hard to keep office hours especially in the morning. Here she is so early that she can buy a hat before her first client arrives at nine thirty. The one she wears is rather smart, the brim is wider than most and the ribbon trimming spirals around the crown.

Hats are so different, that Mitzi will not rest till she has one of each kind. Now a skull cap style is fascinating, especially when it is made of stitched black velvet. Points come over the ears and the lines are very severe. Of course, she is due at the office but—

This other hat with the odd treatment to the brim must be tried. The brim is slightly longer over one eye than the other. The crown has a soft fold. It was the brim that did it really. It was the brim that made her late because she liked it.

"Mad as the March hatter" says Polly in describing the attitude taken by Mitzi's first and only clinet who waited for Mitzi an hour and left. Polly is wearing by the way, a dress trimmed with satin bands. "I don't see why," replies Mitzi, the business woman. "I waited for clients all yesterday and no one came."

Fashions Change, But Qualities That Make a Lady Do Not, Says Dorothy

Dear Dorothy Dix — Don't you think that women come out at the short end of the horn? Don't you believe that there are many women —even some of those apparently hard-boiled—who are aching for love and companionship and who hope against hope that matrimony will give it to them? And then, when they are married, nine times out of ten the husband grows tired of them and is sorry he married them, anyhow. Do you believe that men are inveigled into matrimony through the wicked wiles of women (as they say) and regret it ever after? I once had terribly high illusions, but they have flopped.

GENEVIEVE.

Answer: I should say your illusions have flopped if you have arrived at the conclusion that every husband is tired of his wife and that there are no happy married men.

Believe me, my dear, that is far from the truth. On the contrary, we might infer from the fact that far more wives apply for divorce than husbands, that men generally are more content in the holy estate than women are.

Perhaps the reason why you think that most men tire of their wives after marriage is because those are the cases that we hear about. It is the divorces that get in the papers, not the happy homes. It is the philanderers who are chasing around with girls young enough to be their daughters that we notice, not the domestic men who go home as regular as clockwork and who think there are no women in the world that equal their Marias.

Evidently the great majority of men do not have the aversion to matrimony that you seem to think, because, if you will notice, when they lose their wives, either by death or divorce, they almost invariably try it again. Therer are many widows in every community, but very few widowers.

Of course, every woman wants to marry. Most women do marry, and I do not see how they take any greater risk in matrimony than men do or where they get the worst of the bargain.

For if there are disillusioned wives, there are also disillusioned husbands.

If there are wives who have cold and neglectful husbands, there are plenty of husbands who find that they have cold and neglectful wives. And if there are men who tire of their wives, there are also wives who tire of their husbands. If there are husbands who fail to support their wives, there are lazy and trifling wives who make no homes for their husbands.

Probably the average man is more in love when he marries than the woman is, because, while the woman may marry the man for the sake of getting a home and somebody to support her, there is no reason for the man to marry except for love. And a man must have a very strong feeling for a woman to make him take upon himself the burden of providing for her so long as he lives.

So when a man falls out of love with his wife generally it is because she has not taken the trouble to try to keep herself attractive to him and hold his love. Untidiness, nagging, temper, fretful whining and complaints have been responsible for alienating more men's affections from their wives than has fickleness.

So don't be afraid to get married. You have at least a fifty-fifty chance of your husband being as good a husband as you are a wife. And if you will make any real, intelligent effort to keep him interested in matrimony he is not likely to tire of it.

Marriage is like everything else, we get out of it what we put into it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 24 years old and have been supporting my mother for seven years. I am making a splendid salary, but I have no liberty of my own. I cannot even take a walk without asking my mother's permission, and very often she refuses. I have several brothers and sisters who are all married, and they back my mother up in her tyranny, thus making matters worse for me. I am thinking seriously of leaving home. Would I be doing wrong?

ANXIOUS.

Answer. You would be doing exactly right to leave home. Any self-supporting business woman of 24 lacks courage and independence of spirit and intelligence and backbone if she permits herself to be treated as you are.

Make a strike for freedom. Declare a little Fourth of July on your own account.

The next time you want to go anywhere put on your hat and go without asking mother's permission, and when she raises a ruction tell her that you are free, white and 24, and you have cut her apron strings, and that you are going to leave home if she doesn't recognize your right to your own personal liberty.

One good fight will settle the whole matter.

DOROTHY DIX.

HOUSE QUARANTINE

By Dr. REED

Means of Checking the Spread of Contagion

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU are liable some time to be annoyed by having your doctor, or your local officer of health, put a red card or a yellow card on the front of your house. That is to warn people to stay away from you. It likewise warns you or some member of your family to stay away from other people. That is house quarantine.

CHARLES A.L. REED, M.D.

Now the rules of quarantine follow from the facts of incubation of "catching" disease. But since medical officers hold different opinions about how long diseases are dangerous, the regulations of one place are apt to differ from those of the next. All are agreed, however, that the child or other victim of a "catching" disease is not so dangerous at the end of its illness as it is at the beginning.

In all the infectious diseases, except measles and diphtheria, a child should be held to have exposed his classmates if he has attended school within twenty-four hours of the first evidence of the disease. If his classmates have not been with him for twenty-four hours or longer before he shows the first signs of ill health, he has not infected the school.

This rule can best be illustrated by a simple example. For instance, out of seven susceptible children in a certain classroom, five took mumps from a child on the day before his face started swelling.

This is a rather high percentage of "takes" for mumps, as a matter of fact. On the other hand, out of 104 susceptibles exposed to infection on the day the swelling appeared, only five became secondary cases.

In measles an infected child who comes to school on any of the three days before his rash appears will probably give the disease to some of his friends, but if he has been kept at home from the fourth day before his rash, i. e., from the time the cold in the head began, his classmates will probably escape. No rule, however, is invariable, and there have been scattered instances of children catching measles from a schoolmate on the fourth day before the rash was seen.

In diphtheria it is impossible to tell exactly when a child first becomes contagious, and the safest rule to follow is to call every child dangerous for the three days immediately before he shows actual signs of ill-health.

It is always difficult to know what to do with children who are known to have been exposed to these contagions. The drastic measure of keeping them away from school for the full incubation period is reasonable in the severe infections like diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles, but many parents would prefer their children to take a chance for the milder infections rather than be constantly keeping them away from school for periods of two or three weeks. An arrangement that proved satisfactory at one school was to allow susceptible children, to stay at school up to the day when secondary cases might be expected to appear, but to make each child bring a certificate that its temperature was normal and that it had shown no signs of ill-health on the previous day. Classes in which a case had occurred were kept away from other classes where there was a clean bill of health.

Now that you understand these facts you will be more willing to co-operate in protecting your neighbors from their diseases just as you would wish them to protect you and your household from similar harm. That is not only the golden rule, but sound ethics based on natural law.

SHE'S had her own way ever since she was a tiny, adorable bit of pink and white loveliness. Everyone fell beneath the glance of her laughing eyes and her path is strewn with the victims of her innocent wiles. Like Caesar, she is ever seeking new worlds to conquer, but he fell under Cleopatra's spell and the victor was vanquished. And little Miss Loveliness will some day meet the same fate.

So long has she danced her way down Life's rosy path, conquering the hearts of all, that she feels confident that defeat and vanquishment will never be her lot. But she must beware, for there will come a day when One who falls beneath the spell of her charming little self will masterfully proceed to adopt the role of King of her heart, and the victor will be vanquished!

And Love, the true conqueror, will steal the sceptre from them both and sway their lives with the bright happiness of his despotic reign, and the Victor and the Vanquished will bow in grateful obeisance to his stern demands.

Good Listeners Make Popular Friends

By Lucy Lowell

A LITTLE GIRL wants to know what she should do to make people like her.

She writes that she so much wants to be liked! But when she meets new folks she's always a little afraid. Something, in fact, just sort of freezes up inside of her so she can't say the things she'd like to say or even act naturally.

LUCY LOWELL

And it makes her think everybody will believe her stupid or perhaps disagreeable. And what would I advise?

First of all, I should advise her to stop wondering what people are going to think of her. It's the surest way to be self-conscious and give the impression of insincerity—that constant thought of "How do I appear? What should I say?"

The way to make people like you is, first of all, to like people. Look for the fine things you will find in everybody you meet—there are sure to be many.

Setting about the task of making people like you is largely a matter of giving people a chance to be themselves. That is what is meant when you hear it said that one is easy to meet—easy to talk to, unpretentious.

The person easy to meet is the one who gives the other a chance; who is not so eager to make an impression himself that he crowds out the personality of the other and spoils his opportunity of expressing himself.

Be a good listener. That is a trite saying, but it is a true one. The person who knows how to listen in a pleasant, interested manner invites confidence and friendship.

Unless you have something of real importance to say, do not be too eager to air your views and experiences. Nearly always others would rather talk about themselves than hear about you.

Forget yourself. That is the best recipe I can think of for making people like you.

Folly's Daughter -:- A Thrilling Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

A Note From Mac

FOLLY gave herself over to her new love with all the abandon of her volatile nature. Having claimed Jill as her child, she lavished a sudden, overwhelmingly possessive mother-love on the girl she had always held at arm's length. For the moment Jill was her only love!

ANN LISLE

At the end of a day of growing intimacy Jill found herself suddenly feeling as if the tables were turned, as if she were Folly's mother. She was passionately sorry for the moth who had fluttered into every flame she saw. She saw with terrible young honesty that Folly had done the wrong thing every time she was given a choice of two things to do. She felt that even now Folly was doing the wrong thing in setting her lips and refusing to tell the whole truth about her life.

"Don't question me any more," Folly said. "You know enough. I was married, rich, unhappy, lonely—another of those birds in cages song-writers have made sound funny. But they're tragic. And I—found somebody to love, somebody I had no right to love. When the family discovered it I was an outcast....You see, you looked so terribly, precisely, exactly like your father. He's dead. You'll never see him. It's no good bringing any of it up. You were only three when I married Jim Hathaway and got him to adopt you. You've a right to his name. He drank himself to death. After that I danced in the chorus of one road show after another——"

"To support me?" Jill asked. "To keep me in a good school."

"To give you a chance. I owed you something. I had brought you into a world that didn't want you. I had to do something about it. Later I didn't acknowledge you because I wanted to seem young. Later I didn't acknwledge you because I wasn't the kind of a woman you'd want the world to know was your mother. . . .And I still wanted to be young. I didn't want to be saddled with a daughter. My! but it's fun to be brutally honest at last," Folly added with a laugh. "I'd almost forgotten how."

"You remembered just in time," Jill told her.

"And you don't mind knowing I wasn't—a good woman?"

"I guess you had to be nice to men so they'd help you and you could look out for me."

Folly thought a moment. Then she shook her head. "No. I was the kind of a woman I was—and still am—because I have always craved love, adventure, excitement, admiration. I guess I'm not good, Jill. I guess a woman who lets the beast in her win out too often, finally gets so it rules her . . . That's what I'm afraid of for you. I'm afraid your nature will run away with you."

"It almost did," Jill said simply. "But I understand now. Tony Savelli and the—beast in me couldn't fool me again."

She said it as simply and naively as a child. But she could be honest because she was sure she was so old and wise that nothing could fool her any more.

Days passed. There was no work to be found. Here and there someone told Jill to come back after Labor day. Everyone put Folly off. The devasting experience of the last few days had marked her face—aged it. And then one morning, just as their meagre resources had come to an end, a letter arrived from Vivian Scarlett. It contained a check for one hundred dollars.

"Why should she send us money?" Jill demanded. "If she's nothing to me and hates you——"

"She hates us both," Folly said. "She's part of the tragedy."

Jill broke in eagerly. "My dream! I wonder if she's in my dream. There's Beppo and the rose bush with the red roots and there's my nursery and somebody who looks like you and there's the tall lady and gentleman she's running after when I look from my nursery window. Folly—you seem like my mother now. I feel as if you were. But Vivian Scarlett—"

"Is the worst enemy you have," Folly said grimly. "Listen Jill, I'd rather starve than take her money. I'm going to send it back. I'll find work. I'll do something. I don't care what——anything, rather than take the money Vivian flings at us....But I'd rather take her money and die of spleen from living off it than have you go behind my back to Vivian or .....Beppo with questions about your dream. If you're fond of me at all, if you've forgiven me my blunders, if there's anything between us, if that wonderful moment when my baby knew me for her mother, means anything—give me a promise now...Promise you'll never ask anyone to tell you what I'd—die to keep from you."

But now there was the problem of work, the problem of living and the terrible ache of loneliness for MacNeil Shannon. The shadows under Jill's eyes deepened. When they were violet smudges turning to black Folly telephoned MacNeil Shannon. A day later Jill got a note from him.

"I want to see you," it said.

Pride told her to ignore that brief, curt, commanding note. Her heart urged her to go.

To Be Continued.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and my sister is nearing twenty. I am sure you will agree with me that we should have friends and go out just as others do. But my parents are very strict and we are deprived of all pleasures.

I do not think this is fair. We have talked matters over with them, but in vain. Evenings, we must stay home, and afternoons, if we want to go out our parents come along. We are not allowed even to have girl friends.

I am beginning to think we will have to go out against their wishes. I do not see any other way. Please tell me what to do. TROUBLED.

YOUR strict home life is most unusual in this day and age, my dear. But until you are legally of age and earning your own living—in fact, as long as you live under the protection of your parents' roof—they are morally and legally responsible for you, and they have the authority to govern your social and home life.

You know they love you and have your good at heart. So try to be patient.

At least you are not wrecking the health and happiness of future years by dissipation, reckless living and late hours as so many flappers do. Some day you may devoutly thank your parents for their watchful care over you.

Are you preparing to earn your own living? When you go out into the world you will have more outside life, necessarily. As you grow older, doubtless, your parents will expect you to entertain and accept invitations from congenial young people. For certainly you need the companionship of girls and young men of your own age.

Don't Believe Gossip.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty and am considered popular and attractive. I am well acquainted with a certain young man two years my senior. In fact, I may say I am in love with him and he has told me many times that he loves me.

Not long ago I received a telephone call from a young woman with whom he used to go out. She said some insulting things. She also said he told her he just took me out for amusement.

Since then I have not spoken to this young man, because I do not know whether what she said is true. He doesn't know why I am angry. Am I right in doing this? I know a great many men, but I love only this one. I cannot even hope you will print my letter, but if you knew how much your advice means to me I am sure you would answer it. B. B.

DO you call it loyal, my dear, to judge and condemn a friend on hearsay evidence without giving him a chance to defend himself? Utterly ignore this gossip. Judge him entirely by the way he treats you. That is only fair and is common sense.

If you are ready to believe personalities and catty remarks made about folks you know, you will soon find yourself without a friend. The sooner you apologize to this young man and the more steadfastly loyal you are to all friends hereafter, the happier you will be. I can assure you

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

I USED to fancy when I left the schoolhouse long ago (dear little schoolhouse, old and gray, where memory loves to go) that I had left, along with it, my teachers, one and all, that I was through for all my days with lessons, great or small. But I am finding, year by year, that I have teachers still; they teach me much I need to know, they guide my wayward will. That friend who smiles when things go wrong, who does not fear defeat, he teaches me how I may make life always bright and sweet. Those patient hands that gladly toil, yet ask for no reward, they teach love always will repay, though tasks be long and hard. Kind glance, warm smile and tender phrase, they teach me, day by day. Dear little schoolhouse, life has sent loved teachers all the way!

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Send Gifts Early.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a wedding is celebrated at a hall, the gift should be sent to the bride before the wedding, should it not?

(2) If so, and one does not know the bride's address, how would you word a letter explaining that you wished to send the bride her gift and did not know her address? This note is to be sent to the sister of the groom.

(3) Or would it do to take the gift to the reception, as we got our invitation only two weeks previous to the wedding?

(4) The groom is a cousin of ours. However, neither of us has met the bride. What would be the correct thing to say when being introduced and extending felicitations?

(5) Is it necessary to acknowledge the invitations?

A READER.

YES. No matter where the wedding takes place, the gift should, if possible, be sent before the wedding.

2. Say just that. That is, explain the situation to the groom's sister and ask her if she will be so kind as to send you the bride's address.

3. No. I advise you not to take the gift to the reception. Usually at that time there is a great deal of confusion, or at least excitement, and no one has much time to take charge or care of wedding presents. It would be best to try to find out the bride's address and send the present to her home, even though late.

4. Offer your "best wishes" to the bride and your "congratulations" to the groom. Tell the bride, too, how happy you are to "welcome her into the family."

5. If the invitation is to the church ceremony only, it need not be acknowledged, but if it is to the reception, too, you should acknowledge it. If it is the regulation formal engraved invitation, your acknowledgment should be formal, in the third person.

Afternoon Weddings.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you be kind enough to tell me which is proper, a tuxedo or a full dress, at a five o'clock church wedding?

Is it proper at this time for the bride to wear a veil and train? ALICE.

NEITHER is correct. Both of these attires are for evening, after six-thirty o'clock. The correct clothes for a formal five o'clock wedding are cutaway coat and dark striped trousers.

Yes.

(Mrs. Beekman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Fashion Fads and Fancies

SHORT Cuts to Smartness are being taken by both crowns and brims of advance Fall hats. Crowns are cut in many curious ways that show inserts of contrasting fabrics, while brims show the most interesting irregularity, developing odd little kinks and unexpected V's and points.

Preferably on the Square, the latest hand-bags, of antelope, calf or patent leather, have corner clips of gold or silver that are useful as well as ornamental. While these metal corners appear to be but trimming, in reality they form the clasp of the purse, for they have to be opened before access can be gained to the inside.

Belts with Brilliant Buckles are one of the latest Parisian fads. Antelope and suede are the favorite leathers for these smart belts, without which few daytime frocks are complete. The buckles are of white metal, elaborately studded with rhinestones, and frequently the corners are formed of clear crystal stones.

Blossoms with Blazer Stripes are utterly contrary to nature but entirely in keeping with the sports mode of wearing striped flannel flowers, with solid-tone wool stamens.

Reversing Their Decision—Stripes, that have had a decided horizontal trend all Summer, are now lending themselves to vertical treatment. The latest sportswear is featuring them in up and down designs, many of which are of geometric origin.

Household Hints

When repairing wallpaper match the pattern and cut out a piece rather larger than the required size, then tear the edges irregularly. Lay the paper face downwards on a piece of glass and scrape the edges very thin with a sharp knife. Paste it in position and smooth down, and the repair should not be noticed when dry, as the thin edges blend in with the paper already on the wall.

Why Armour Lost

"KEEP away from the stock exchange; keep close to the stock yards." This was the advice given Philip D. Armour, the father to J. Ogden Armour, the son, when the latter was a very young man. This from the San Antonio Express, is interesting.

"Southwest Texas stockmen, it appears, were not the only persons who lost in the livestock slump in 1921. J. Ogden Armour, whose business once was valued at $150,000,000 leaves an estate now said to be $20,000,000. Probably it is more but the shrinkage is striking enough to give idle talkers who expand on the profits of the big packers something to think about. Business, as well as farming and stock raising, has its ups and downs."

Yes but J. Ogden Armour did not take the advice of Philip D. Armour, his father. If he had kept away from the stock exchange and kept close to the stock yards he would have had the $150,000,000 when he died at the age of 63.

He listened to the ticker. At first it filled his soul with music. This when the war closed. He thought he saw an opportunity to double his great fortune, he saw three hundred million dollars within easy reach instead of the one hundred and fifty million dollars that was all his own.

He was a bull to the finish. Then the ticker turned the other way. It sang another song. Its music sent gall and wormwood to the Armour soul. He lost a million dollars a day for 160 days. This may be business, "the ups and downs of business," but some men call it gambling.

Business Outlook For Texas

NATHAN ADAMS is a prominent Texas banker. He has been prominent in cotton circles for many years. In a review of business conditions he declared that the business outlook for Texas this fall is as fine as it has ever been in the history of the state. His viewpoint is that Texas cotton crop ought to bring in about $525,000,000 between now and February 1.

His prediction is that the crop this season will produce more money than any other crop since 1920. Furthermore the fed creop is one of the finest in years. Looking forward the Texas financier is convinced that in a few short years Texas is going to be producing more wealth than any other state in the union with a possible exception of New York.

There isn't a doubt about it. Texas has greater natural resources than any American state. Texas has more acres of tillable land than any American state.

No Mercy For Hijackers

HIJACKERS who rob banks and pedestrians should be shown no mercy. Men guilty of robbery with firearms should be given life terms and where murder has been perpetrated they should be sent to the electric chair.

This is the law of the commonwealth. It was made by civilized men. Bank robbing hijackers have reappeared in Texas. They have raided half a dozen banks within a month. They go armed to the teeth. They would not hesitate at committing murder to make their get-away.

They should be trailed and captured regardless of cost. This is the automobile age and the swift gliding auto makes it easy for hijackers to commit daring and desperate crimes.

Texas the Banner Goat State

OREGON is a large producer of wool. Oregon is a limited producer of mohair. A. C. Gage of Portland is an authority on the Angora goat and its fleece.

He is the editor of the Angora Journal, a periodical which has an extensive circulation in the goat producing sections of Aemirca.

Editor Gage is touring Texas. He predicts a great future for the mohair in Texas and other parts of the United States. In a recent address he said that the goat population in the United States during the last 15 years has been growing at the rate of 65,000 a year.

Furthermore a goat offers one of the best examples of service that he has ever known. He knows all about goats and their value. He has made the discovery that a goat will work for his master 365 days a year and then at the end of the year will give his clothes to his master and go out to get itself another.

He submitted interesting figures as to the industry in the Lone Star state. Eighty per cent of the goat hair from which American mohair is made is clipped from angora goats from Texas.

Fourteen counties in the Edwards plateau area of Texas produce more mohair than any like area in the world.

Texas has 2,200,000 goats of an aggregate value of $11,000,000, and this Oregon editor advises that a flock of goats will within two years pay back the original investment. This for the goat and mohair industry of the greatest of states.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Primarily for the purpose of giving the city an adequate water supply, Aaron Burr and a group of prominent citizens organized the Bank of the Manhattan company. This was in 1799, at which time the bank was located at 40 Wall street. Four years later, the Merchants bank was opened to business at 42 Wall street under the leadership of Alexander Hamilton. The very next year, 1804, Burr killed Hamilton in their historic duel on the Elysian fields. These facts are in every history.

But it is not so generally known that in 1833, the banks founded by these rivals jointly built a single building at numbers 40 and 42 Wall street in which both were established. A marble wall separated the two houses. Moreover, in 1920, the partition was torn down and the banks consolidated. And New Yorkers pass daily what is now known as the Bank of the Manhattan company, never realizing that it is the result of the labors of two men, whose former enmity is one of the outstanding episodes in American history.

For forty years there has been a small jeweler's store on Waverly place. The shop is now conducted by two little old bent men, whose long service in their trade is evidenced by the fact that they flatly refuse to do any sort of repair work on wrist watches. They regard these as new-fangled nonsense and refuse to lower themselves in dallying with such frivolous baubles.

A woman from out of town had a friend from a Long Island suburb visiting her in town. After the theater, the hostess, by some heavy persuasion, induced a hack driver to take them out to Long Island. And this is by no means an easy thing to do. After the long ride out from, and back to town, the woman paid the fare and tipped the driver. Still her conscience troubled her. She felt that perhaps she had not tipped the man sufficiently. So she dove down into her bag and produced a silver flask. The driver took it calmly, guzzled a hearty draught; then shook his head as if to clear his brain. His eyes watered and he coughed. But always polite, he wiped the mouth of the flask on his sleeve and handed it back.

"No Ma'm" he remarked "that's no drink for a lady!"

• • •

A young woman standing in front of a theater during an intermission was garbed in a pale pink dress, cut very low in the back. This frankly and generously exposed expanse was evenly tanned a deep brown. Evidently she had either been bathing au naturel or else dousing herself with henna, for there were no telltale white lines of shoulder straps. The lady wore stockings which were flesh-colored—tan, to match her back. Moreover, as she stood there, talking to her escort, she constantly shifted her position so as not to hide this enchanting spectacle from the hordes of passersby. And with good reason, for most people, including myself, appeared to be enjoying the display. And as one who has no great knowledge of artistic criterions in this respect, I venture to assert, that it was a darn good back.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC. ©

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consist of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for grouchy MR. PEEVEY afternoons.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her, making her expensive presents, lending her his car, etc. But Millie confesses that while she likes Nye, and that she more than likes his money and position, she really prefers DAVY DAVIDSON, a salesman whom she knew in a former place of business. She says she intends to get Davidson a position in Nye's office.

Beau and Millie give so little towards the support of the flat that Sally often borrows from her spinster aunt, EMILY JEROME. Aunt Emily is going to turn her country house into a wayside inn, and wants Sally to go into business with her. But Sally, always in need of money, is afraid to risk it.

Beau gets $110 from Sloan by means of two bad checks. Sally borrows the money to pay him back from Mr. Peevey. But instead of paying his debt, Beau uses the money to elope with MABEL WILMOT, and Sally begins paying both Ted and Mr. Peevey at the rate of $4 a week. A check for $200 comes from Mr. Jerome and Mrs. Jerome gives it to Beau and Mabel for a wedding gift. Sally hopes Beau will pay his debt, but he and Mabel buy a second-hand car.

Millie goes to the hospital for an appendicitis operation. During her illness Sally does as much of her work as she can in an effort to partly earn her salary. One Saturday noon John Nye gives her an additional check for herself and she tears it up and rushes away from the office in tears, feeling humiliated, somehow, because he knows how much she needs money.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII

All that long Sunday following her outburst in John Nye's office Sally tried to make up her mind whether to go back to work for him on Monday or not.

"I've made such a fool of myself that I'm ashamed to look him in the face," she thought miserably, as she cooked dinner for her mother and Beau and Mabel.

No matter how empty the family purse might be, Mrs. Jerome insisted upon having a roast, two vegetables and a dessert for Sunday dinner. She looked forward to that dinner as a child might look forward to Thanksgiving or Christmas.

"What are your plans for the day?" she asked Beau and Mabel as they all sat at the table, having the stuffed veal and the squash and scalloped tomatoes that Sally had got ready for them.

"We thought we'd take a ride out into the country," answered Mabel, who seemed to make all the plans for the pair. "We thought maybe we could buy some grape-juice cheap along the road and put it away for wild parties."

Mrs. Jerome's whole face stiffened at the mention of "wild" parties. But she said nothing about them.

"Perhaps you'll drop me off at the hospital on your way," she sniffed. "I'm going to take some of this veal and dressing to poor Millie. The nurse says she doesn't eat enough to keep a bird alive—" And all at once her face crumpled up and she began to whimper.

At the familiar sound Sally came running from the kitchen, where she had been cutting the peach cobbler that she had made for dessert.

"What's wrong, Mother?" she asked, looking from Beau's blank face to Mabel's scornful one. She wondered if either of them had said anything to hurt her mother's tender feelings.

"She's crying about Millie—because she won't eat," snapped Mabel. "My goodness, I just wish I could stop eating. Maybe I'd lose a hip or two!"

Sally put her arms around her mother. "There's nothing to cry about, dear," she said, smoothing back her mother's graying hair and holding her face against her shoulder. "Millie's been through a dreadful operation, and it's going to take time for her to feel herself again. She'll be all right, you'll see."

"She's so white and so thin," sobbed Mrs. Jerome. "And she doesn't seem to have any life in her. Oh, I don't know what to do about her, I'm sure."

"Mother," Sally said, "do you see that begonia plant over on the window sill?"

Mrs. Jerome lifted her head and gave her a startled look. "Of course, I see it," she answered, plainly puzzled. "What about it?"

Sally laughed cheerfully—much more cheerfully than her feelings warranted.

"Well, just this," she said. "That plant was just nothing but a stalk a while ago, and it was so white and sickly that I thought it never would live. And look at it! Doesn't it make you think of Millie? All pink and pretty. Please don't worry about her, Mother. I know she'll be all right. I just feel that she will be.' "

Mabel burst out laughing. "Girl," said with a sneer. "You're wasting your talents working around offices. You ought to turn into a woman preacher or something. . . . Well, come on, Muggsy, if you're going with us you'd better dry those tears and get your hat on."

For some reason best known to herself Mabel had taken to calling Mrs. Jerome "Muggsy." Every time she did it Mrs. Jerome frowned and winced, but that did not bother Mabel.

"Well, I thought I'd take a chance," he said.

At 4 o'clock, while Sally was ironing, her white blouse, Ted Sloan came running up the back stairs, taking them two steps at a time and making a great noise.

"Gosh, it's a pip of a day! Want to go for a ride in 'Cheapsides'?" he asked. That was what he called his car—"Old Cheapsides."

Sally smiled up at him as she straightened the collar of the waist before her on the board.

"I'd love to go. But you'll have to wait until I finish this blouse," she said, "And then we'll have to stop at the hospital for mother and bring her home. After that we can go."

He did not look particularly pleased. But he said "All right" and went down stairs much more slowly than he had come up.

When they got to the hospital an hour later Beau's little red car stood in the street before it. Ted, who knew a thing or two about second-hand cars, hooted when Sally showed it to him.

"It isn't worth a hundred dollars," he declared; "And I'm going up with you to Millie's room and tell him so."

But he did very little talking after he stepped into the green-walled hospital room. For the family was just getting ready to go, and Millie was sitting up in bed, watching them listlessly as she rubbed her nails with mother-of-pearl nail polish until they were like little mirrors. On the tiny glass-topped table beside her was the plate of food that her mother had brought to her. It was untouched.

"Don't bother to come in and see me, Ted," she sang out when she saw his red head above Sally's dark one. "But I want to talk to you, Sally." She was like Du Barry receiving her ministers in her bed-chamber, ordering this one here and that one there.

Sally stood beside her.

"How do you feel today? Better?"

"Rotten," replied Millie, almost as if she were glad to be feeling badly.

"My pep's all gone," she went on, dully. "I don't know what's the matter with me. I guess maybe the old hospital gives me the blues. How can I eat in a place like this, with people going past the door on stretchers?—"

She broke off, gave Sally an intent look, and then held out a slip of paper. A telephone number was written upon it.

"That's Davy Davidson's number. Tell him I want to see him, will you?"

Sally put the paper into her shabby, gray leather purse.

"Yes, but ought you to see him when you won't see Mr. Nye?" she asked, her eyes passing over fresh-cut roses and shaggy white chrysanthemums that stood on the window sills and the dresser. She knew that John Nye had sent them.

"That's some more of my business!" Millie held out her hand for the paper. "Give me back that telephone number. I'll have the nurse give him my message."

But Sally put the bag behind her back. "No, I'll call him. But it does look funny, refusing to see the man you've made up your mind to marry and then asking another man to come. I think Mother or someone in the family ought to be here when he does come, too—"

"If you say another word I'll get right out of this bed!" Millie threatened angrily. "I just won't lie here and listen to you rave a minute longer—trying to tell me what to do and what not to do! You're a year younger than I am and don't forget it!"

But it was easy to forget that Millie was older, and therefore much wiser than she, supposedly. Sally told herself as she walked down the quiet, white corridors of the hospital. At times Millie acted as if she were still in her mud-pie and pinafore days.

"I'd give a lot to know what she wants to see Davidson for," she thought, riding home between her mother and Ted, all three of them very silent and subdued. Millie, on one of her bad days, was enough to subdue anybody.

"Beau and Mabel seem to have a pretty good time together, don't they?" Ted asked thoughtfully when he and Sally were alone that night.

They were sitting on the back steps, side by side, looking at the row of small houses and apartment buildings in the next street. Some of the windows were lighted up and through them they could see women moving to and fro as they got supper. Delicious odors floated up to them—boiling coffee, potatoes frying, and once the rich smell of toasting cheese.

"Pretty nice — having a little home of your own. Just two people," Ted said quietly, reaching out in the darkness for Sally's small work-hardened hand. "What more could two people want than a home of their own, and a little car, and each other?"

"They could want—love," Sally answered him stonily, and she jumped up and marched straight into the house.

"Goodnight," she called, and he heard the door shut.

He shook his head. . . . He couldn't make her out. Just when he thought she was beginning to warm up to him she became cold and distant. She put the whole world between them with the closing of a door and a single word, "Goodnight."

He got up and went slowly down the stairs to his own door.

• • •

On Monday morning, bright and early, Sally was in John Nye's private office, putting it into order for the day.

She loved working in it—touching the glass and silver ink-stand, laying the pencils and pens straight in the glass tray, slipping a new blotter in the blotting pad, shaking out the leather seat-cushion.

Just as she finished with the room and was starting to leave it a sharp knock came on the door.

She opened it to find Davy Davidson standing in the outer office, his brown felt hat in his hands.

He was all in brown, and for the first time she realized that he really was extraordinarily handsome in a loud way.

"Mr. Nye here?" he asked, trying to look beyond her into the private office.

EXERCISE AND TUBERCULOSIS

I disagree emphatically with those "authorities" on tuberculosis who recommend stuffing with milk and eggs, and complete rest in bed. I do not think it is ever advisable to over-feed patients, whether they are suffering from anemia, obesity or tuberculosis. Certainly, one who is as weak as a tubercular patient can hardly be expected to have the power to assimilate even as much food as the ordinary person.

Outside of the need for wholesome foods of the right quality, the most important thing for the tubercular patient is to gain strength If there is any way this can be accomplished except through exercise, I do not know of it. However, this exercise, as well as all other good things, must be taken in moderation.

The extreme, complete rest treatment is weakening on one hand, while violent exercise only adds to the enervation already existing. Too vigorous exercise would also be injurious to the lungs, themselves. A sensible plan of exercising can be adopted with increased movement and tensing of the muscles each day. The patient who has been in bed for several months should start with light exercises for the fingers and forearm muscles. Next, the legs should be exercised while lying on the back. Such easy exercises can be taken as raising and lowering the legs while stiff, or bringing the knees back and forth to the chest.

About once every hour while awake the patient should practice some tensing exercises. The knees and elbows should be slightly bent and the muscles all over the body tightened and relaxed alternately at about the rate of eighteen times a minute.

Gentle breathing exercises may also be taken with benefit. The breath should be slowly drawn in and out to cleanse the lungs of poisonous gases, but must be used that the lungs are not collapsed or expanded to the greatest possible extreme.

Patient should get up and take short walks several times daily, at first just around the room and finally out of doors, increasing the distance only a few steps each time. This will rapidly increase the patient's strength so he will soon be able to walk several miles daily.

No exercise should be taken at a time where there is much fever, but the exercises and walks used at other times in the day.

The tubercular patient needs strength, and the only way he can get it is by sensibly exercising.

QUESTION: Mrs. V. H. L. writes "Have catarrh very bad in the eyes, ears, nose and throat, also bothered with indigestion. Would like to try the orange diet if I thought it would benefit me, but I am so very thin now that I am afraid to try the diet for fear of losing more weight. Would it help any to eliminate starches and sugars instead of taking the orange diet, or what would you advise?"

ANSWER—Do not be afraid of getting thinner on the orange juice fast, as it can not hurt you in any way, but will surely bring rapid results in the cure of your catarrhal troubles. Afterward, leave out starches and sugars for a period of several months if you wish to entirely drain the system of all excess catarrhal mucus.

QUESTION: Office worker writes: "For a long time I have found it hard to get to sleep or sleep the night through. What could cause this?"

ANSWER—The principal cause of insomnia is digestive trouble, such as excess fermentation of food which produces gas pressure against the heart or diaphragh. Even though you are not conscious of such pressure, it is sufficient to unconsciously irritate you and keep you from getting into a deep slumber.

Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.

Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.

If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land:

But if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.—Isaiah: 1:17-20.

"My Son's Sweethearts"

Concluding Chapter as Written by Miss Lucille Clendenin

CHAPTER LIX.

"Dingle-ling-a-ling."

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV slowly opened his eyes and looked blankly at a bit of sky visible from the window. It was so blue—just the color of someone's eyes. Someone who would be his today! His wedding day! Fully awake now he jumped out of bed and was half way to the bath room when the sound that originally roused him came again.

"Dingle-ling-a-ling." That pesky telephone! Why should a man be bothered with trivialities on a day like this? Phillip thought good-naturedly as he stopped at the 'phone desk.

He halted his hand in mid-air over the little black instrument and the muscles of his body grew tense. He knew—intuition, mental telepathy, something—told him that the voice to issue from that perforated disc into which he stared would startle him, would perhaps change his life. With hands that shook a little he lifted the 'phone and uttered the time honored Yankee salutation:

"Hello!.... Hello! What? Say that again.... I'm wanted at the war department building?.... No? Oh, I see; this is the war department speaking and I am wanted at the soldiers convalescent home .... Urgent? Yes, Yes I see. Surely I'll hurry."

Phillip sighed with relief as he rushed out to the inevitable blue roadster and sped away at a rate that defied traffic signals. No use to feel so spooky today. Probably most men felt that way when they anticipated such an event as he did at high noon on such a day as this. He would hurry through with whatever business they had with him there, then shake that eerie feeling and get back to a pair of lapiz lazulli eyes, where he could tousle short strands of yellow hair, or perhaps caress it with his lips.

Thinking on these things he bounded up the steps and seeing no one turned down a hall where a nurse and a doctor were talking to a man. They would be the ones to give him information concerning his mission here.

The nurse had black hair—that declassed her in his opinion who cared only for golden locks. The doctor had a goatee—how funny. The man—the other man—that face—.

Phillip stopped, then jumped forward like a charge from a Big Bertha.

"Rod! Rod! My God, it can't be you! Say something, old man."

Phillip stretched out his hand in the inadequate greeting of his countrymen, but Rod did not offer his, could not, for his right sleeve was empty.

Seeing this, Phillip did not offer his left hand for an awkward hand-clasp, but opened both his arms and wrapped them around his old chum in a greeting that left nothing of his joy untold.

Rod spoke in a voice that sounded choked, "Wynne, it's awfully good to see you again. I've been here for ages. Didn't know what year it was till yesterday. Didn't even know my own name, and now I can't make them believe me. You'll have to identify me, and then I can leave, though I don't know where I'll go."

"Well, I certainly know where you'll go," said Phillip Tracy. "You are going to officiate as best man at a certain wedding today, then you are going to live with us always."

"Us?" inquired the bewildered Rod.

"Yes, Natlee and me. We'll need you to help us raise the kids. And I'll need you—I want you to take me out and bump me off if ever I'm untrue to her, and then you can marry her yourself."

Phillip meant most of what he was saying. He was talking fast and almost incoherently because he had to in order to keep from crying. To conceal his emotions he resorted to seldom used slang.

The two young men walked to the curb where the car waited.

"Is it the same one, Wynne?" asked Rod.

"No" replied Phillip, "but I'll always have a blue one, because they match her eyes."

"Wynne, you are absolutely hopeless—but I'm glad of it. Where in the world are you taking us?"

"I'm hunting a 'phone," was the enigmatic answer.

Natlee Jones wrapped in a blue silk negligee turned to her Aunt Julia, and announced:

"Wynne 'phoned me that he had another wedding present for me, and that I must be ready to see it in five minutes—as soon as he honked."

"That's unreasonable. Of course you won't."

"Oh, yes, I will. There he is now, help me get this thing off."

She fairly flew out towards the car.

"Aunty says I can't be gone but two minutes, we've got so much to do before noon, so you will have to hurry. Where is the present."

For answer Phillip took his eyes off her face and turned them to the old elm tree. Natlee followed his gaze, and ran to the person standing there. She, too, put her arms around him.

When Phillip walked up slowly to them he was just in time to hear her say:

"You are going to help make this the happiest day of my life."

It was one o'clock. Rod was standing with the newlyweds in the hall of the home where two of them at least had known many happy hours, and where the three of them anticipated many more.

Rod placed his arm on Natlee's shoulder and looked at Phillip.

"Guess I get to kiss the bride, don't I?" he asked.

"Which one?" asked a voice behind them, and turning, the three of them saw Anne Tracy entering the room on the arm of smiling John Aukland.

WAR GOVERNS STREET NAME

Odessa Wants 'Grant' Changed to 'Main'

ODESSA, Texas, Aug. 24. (AP)—Urging that strict neutrality be observed, citizens of Odessa, county seat of Ector county on the "staked plains" and of about 100 population, have petitioned the city council to change the name of the principal business thoroughfare from Grant avenue to Main street. The avenue was named after Gen. U. S. Grant by northern plaatters of the townsite more than 40 years ago.

Petitioners who are said to include persons of both northern and southern birth deny that the citvil war prejudices are existant but point out that the two other main streets paralleling Grant avenue are named Lincoln and Lee honoring the civil war president and the commander of the Confederat armies. No move is being made to change names of the latter streets. Odessa near the far West Texas oil regions which produce millions of dollars worth of oil annually with other towns of the section has experienced a great influx of population recently.

Highway No. 5 Paving Progressing

MEMPHIS, Texas, Aug. 23.—The work of paving the 13 1-2 miles on highway No. 5 through Hall county is progressing nicely, the first stretch being finished, connecting with North Tenth street, thus completing the first two miles of this paving project.

The paving machinery has been moved about three miles southeast of Memphis, and are now paving toward Memphis. A special switch has been built from the Fort Worth & Denver railroad for conveying the paving material to the highway, which will enable the work to be pushed at a rapid rate for several miles before another move will be necessary.

It will be about three weeks before traffic will be allowed on the two miles just completed, according to the county engineer.

More money is being spent this season in England on golf than on all other games combined, including the popular cricket and football.

Fall Footwear

THE SMARTEST STYLES

Smart women, accustomed to the standards of quality, comfort and fit of our shoes, have been eagerly awaiting the arrival of these new shoes for Fall wear. And here they are—the season's newest and most fashionable models. The new shoes are quite the last word in both the plain grain and reptilian effects—such novel cut-outs and designs. The toes are slightly pointed and graceful spike heels adorn the more expensive models. Others have medium and Cuban heels. There are colors to match the new Fall costumes, as well as smart black shoes in all the new leathers. Do not miss this first showing.

Lillie Independent Rural School Opened

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Aug. 23.—The Lillie Independent rural school was opened Monday morning with exercises fitting the occasion.

The pupils and parents began to arrive early as it had been previously announced that there would be an opening program rendered that morning.

The principal, W. H. Stuart, presided and after a few remarks introduced Miss Swafford, the county home demonstration agent. She expressed herself as being favorably impressed with the club girls of Lillie, and regretted that she was not permitted to work with the club boys.

Rev. Joyner, pastor of the First Baptist church of Wellington, delivered a very able address on the subject, "Why the Boys and Girls of Collingsworth county are different from those of other lands."

The next interesting feature of the day was two musical numbers rendered by Garland Hampton, a young clarinetist starring as a member of the Wellington band.

The residents of the Lillie district met in the afternoon and worked over the school ground, putting it in excellent condition.

While the patrons were thus engaged, the teachers and pupils were in their respective rooms where the teachers were enrolling and classifying the pupils and issuing to them the necessary text books.

The teachers for the present term are Trudie King of Paris, Texas, as first assistant, Miss Florye Stuart of Mount Pleasant, as second assistant, and W. H. Stuart, principal.

MILK MEETING IN IOWA PARK

Barnes and McGown Make Talks

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Aug. 24.—A meeting of the dairymen and those interested in the production of milk was held at the Christian church Tuesday night. County Agent McGown presided over the meeting, and O. K. Barnes from the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce was also present and made a talk. He urged the farmers and dairymen to improve the quality of their herds stating that poor cows will cause the owner to go broke. A cow that will not produce over two hundred pounds of butter fat per year is not a good producer.

He also said that production can be increased by proper feeding methods, and the new markets opened up by the Kraft Cheese factory will guarantee a steady income to the farmers selling milk though it will not make any one man rich. It was his opinion as well as that of other speakers present that milk can be produced cheaper here than in the north where most of the dairying is done.

Since the crowd present was not large enough to organize the Dairyman's association for which the meeting had been called, it was decided to meet again next Friday night and to make a special effort to have a large number present at that time for the organization of the association.

Briscoe Cotton Blooming Heavy

QUITAQUE, Aug. 24.—Cotton in this immediate section of Briscoe county is blooming heavier than was the case a week ago and appears to be fruiting nicely. There is some complaint of insects, but no great damage will result from these causes, although the crop is some 30 days late.

It is estimated by some of the experienced cotton growers that this section of the country will make as much cotton this year as was grown last year.

The two gins are making great preparation for a heavy rush of ginning this fall. There was about 10,000 bales ginned here last year by the three gins that were in operation at that time, unfortunately one gin has been destroyed by fire since last ginning season.

Electra Farmers To Hold Meeting

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 23.—The agricultural bureau of the Electra Chamber of Commerce has sent out an invitation to farmers in Electra's trade area to meet in the assembly hall of the chamber at 4 p. m., Thursday afternoon, August 25 to discuss methods of fighting the leaf worm and other cotton pests which are likely to make their appearance during the next two or three weeks. The leaf worm has already appeared in rather large numbers and has done considerable damage to cotton in the eastern section of the county and County Agent G. C. McGown is making a survey of insect infestation of cotton crops in the western section of the county. Calcium Arsenate for poisoning the leaf worm can be obtained at much lower prices than prevailed last year and farmers are being urged to take preventative measures before the insect pests get beyond their control.

Spuds Stow Third Dallas Game, 9-5

Wichita Falls Artillery Unlimbers on Pence and R. Love With Jenkins' Spanking Three Doubles

Wichita Falls' Big Berthas unlimbered into explosive action again Wednesday after several days of near silence during which the pitchers had to win our games, and bombarded Russ Pence and Ruel Love of Dallas for the third straight victory over the Steer entry. The score was 9 to 5 and closed the Spudder home stand, making it 12 victories against four defeats since return August 10 to the Gardner pasture.

The Spudders hopped a rattler with the Herd last night and headed in direction of the Dallas corral for a one-day stand, the first jump of a 12-day road trip that calls for 15 games. The club returns to Wichita Falls for the final stand of the year, Shreveport and Fort Worth closing out the race, the Sports opening with a double header September 7.

Spudder bludgeons found Pence in a hurry yesterday, whipping the big righthander for five hits and five runs in the first stanza and then combing Love for another ere the inning was over. Milt Steengrafe came up not in the best of form and found it difficult to hold the advantage so Tom Estell, the spitter was drafted into box service. Estell went to the knob in the sixth couplet and shut the door in Dallas' face the rest of the way.

The league leaders pecked Love for a couple of runs in the seventh and then knocked another in during the eighth for good measure.

LaFayette Triples.

Every Spudder but Estell got in at least one safe rap. The burly Jenkins lead the attack with three two-baggers in four trips. Benton spanked a broce of safeties, one of which was a double. LaFayette contributed a loud three-sacker.

Fitzgerald opened the large first inning with a grounder to Morse for the initial out. Turgeon singled to left. Benton buzzer a hot one through the box for a single and Turgeon legged it to third on the blow. Lamb hit a hot one down the third base line that Tate knocked down, filling the bases. Jenkins crashed one into right center for two bases, Turgeon, Benton and Lamb galloping over the plate. Swenson smashed one to left for a base and Jenkins scored. Swenson went on to second when Bagwell juggled the ball. Pence was sent showerward following this deluge and Ruel Love went to the hill. LaFayette flied to Bagwell. Joe Cobb then reopened the battery with a long drive to deep center for two bases scoring Swenson. Hack Miller failed to complete his shoe string catch of Stengrafe's drive to right and it fell for a base hits scoring Cobb. Fitzgerald then ended the inning by sending up a high fly to Miller in right field.

The Steers broke the ice in the fourth inning for a couple of runs. Miller singled sharply to right. Riley lined a double against the right field fence sending Miller to third. Tate poked a single back of short scoring Miller and sending Riley to third. Berry struck out. Gross flied to Fitzgerald and Riley scored after the catch. R. Love singled to left sending Tate to second, but Morse flied to Lamb.

Doubles by Bagwell and Riley scored another Dallas run in the fifth inning off Steengrafe.

Herd Gets Rough.

Steengrafe was driven from the hill in the sixth inning and Estell went to his rescue. Benton went over back of third after Berry's hard ground ball and threw him out. Gross's high hopper to Swenson was pulled down with one hand and Gross was thrown out, LaFayette making a nice catch of Swenson's throw. Love then drew a walk to start the trouble. Morse singled to left sending Love to second. Mulvey singled through third filling the bases. Bagwell singled past first scoring Love and Morse and sending Milt to the showers. Estell took the bill and Miller popped out to LaFayette.

Spudder bats again broke out in the seventh inning for two runs. Fitzgerald doubled against the right field fence. Turgeon fanned. Benton doubled over Bagwell's head scoring Fitzgerald. Lamb rolled out to Morse and Benton took third. Jenkins doubled to left center scoring Benton. Swenson rolled out to Morse.

The last Spudder run came in the eighth inning when LaFayette opened with a crashing triple to right. Cobb lined out to Mulvey and LaFayette scored after the catch. Estell rolled out to Love. Fitzgerald walked and stole second, but Turgeon popped to short.

CARDS REFUSE VICK

HOUSTON, Aug. 24. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals, owners of the Houston baseball association have cancelled their option on the services of Catcher Ernie Vick, thereby making him outright Houston property and subject to the October draft.

Due to ill health he has participated in approximately 30 games of the 134 played by the Buffs.

With Warwick already sold to Syracuse the Houston catching staff will be limited to Burns and Vick.

LAZZERI STOPS DETROIT DRIVE

Tony's Home Run Breaks 5-5 Deadlock

DETROIT, Aug. 24. (AP)—Detroit's 12-game winning streak struck a snag today when Tony Lazzeri produced his seventeenth home run of the year with the bases loaded and two down in the ninth to break a 5-all count and give the Yankees a 9 to 5 victory. Nevertheless, the Bengals' stretch of triumphs stands as the longest in the majors this year, the Cubs having held the honor previously with 12 in a row. The score:

CUBS WIND UP LOSING STREAK

Chicago Wins Second Tilt Of Double Bill

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24. (AP)—The Cubs ended their losing streak at five in a row here today by winning the second game of a double-header with the Phillies by a score of 13-1 after dropping the first by a 7-6 margin. The Phillies scored five runs when Blake weakened in the ninth inning of the first game and overcame a 6-5 handicap. A double by Spalding drove in two runs that tied the score and then romped home with the winning run when Sand greeted Bush with a single.

The second game was settled in the first inning, the Cubs scoring six runs on five doubles, a walk and a costly muff by Cy Williams. Hack Wilson brought his home run total for the season to 23 by hitting one in the first game and two in the second. The score:

SPUDS PLAY IN DALLAS TODAY

Kiefer or Cobb to Chunk First Game of Trip

Either Harlem Joe Kiefer or Herbert Cobb will get the pitching call Thursday afternoon in Dallas as the Spudders hop off on their last road jaunt of the year, barring that trip into the Southern association booked next month, said Manager Carl Williams last night.

The Spudders depart for a 13-day tour and 15 games of play, just 10 games ahead of Houston in second place and with 21 games remaining on the schedule.

They were a more or less happy lot Wednesday night, were these Wichita Falls athletes, tickled because Birmingham beat New Orleans in its second straight yesterday, giving the Barons a full game lead on the Pels. The Spudders hope to play the Southern association end of the Dixie series in Birmingham. They say more money can be made playing the Barons than by tangling with the Pels.

Adkins won the first game, 3 to 0, and came back in the second for a 2 to 1 victory. Only ten hits were garnered off Grady by the Panthers in the two contests. The score:

HELEN, MOLLA TAKE MATCHES

British Betty Dances To Win Over Hutchins

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

FOREST HILLS, NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Quiet Helen Wills, champion of Wimbledon and vivacious Molla Mallory, today advanced one step nearer to the final round of the women's national tennis tournament in which they are expected to meet at the end of the week.

"Our Helen" and America's jovial Molla exhibited their two contrasting tennis styles in disposing of their second round opponents. "Little Poker Face," quiet and serious as usual drove, served and volleyed with the precision and deadly efficiency of a machine to crush Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester of New York 6-0, 6-2.

Not Same Molla.

Dark skinned Molla, who smiled herself into the hearts of American court fans when as Molla Bjurstedt of Norway, she first won in 1915 the title she has since monopolized, bounced to a strenuous two-set victory over Mrs. William Endicott of Boston, 6-4, 6-4. Although Molla displayed her usual dynamic energy her game has lost a great deal of its old surety and, playing as she did today, she would be fortunate to extend Helen Wills into extra sets.

Graceful Betty Nuthall, England's 16-year-old prodigy, danced to a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Miss Gladys Hutchins of Bermuda, it was British Betty's tournament debut and the tiny gallery which braved the raw weather was not disappointed.

Miss Gwendolyn Sterry, also of England and perhaps the prettiest girl player on the courts, took a swift match from Mrs. C. J. Hubbard Jr., 6-2, 6-1.

Miss Joan Fry, England's ranking player in this tournament since Mrs. Godfree withdrew, won easily from Miss Marjorie Gladman, of California, 6-1, 6-1. Miss Ermintrude Harvey of England required three sets to eliminate Mrs. Marjorie A. Morrill, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Miss Kea Bouman, champion of Holland and France, played her usual impressive game to defeat Miss Mayme McDonald, one-time Pacific Northwest champion, 6-1, 6-3.

Helen Jacobs Cops.

Helen Jacobs, drove to a 6-0, 6-1, victory over Miss Elizabeth Hugas.

Miss Eleanor Goss of New York defeated Mrs. A. L. Richards of St. Paul, Minn., 6-0, 6-1; Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin Jr., defeated Mrs. L. D. Hopkins, 6-1, 6-1, and Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., won from Miss C. L. Zink of Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-3.

Doubles play also began with Mrs. Mallory and Kea Bouman, the highly rated international team, winning from Miss Edith Moore and Mrs. P. B. Hawk, 6-0, 6-0, and Miss Helen Jacobs and Miss Eileen Bennett of England another international combination, defeating Mrs. Ted Johnson and Miss Barbara Stevens, 6-1, 6-2, in the feature matches.

Miss Bennett had earlier in the day won a stirring singles victory from Miss Mollie D. Thayer of Philadelphia, 6-1, 9-7.

Terris Rallies To Defeat McGraw

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Sid Terris, leading contender for Sammy Mandell's lightweight crown, fought his way to a close decision over Phil McGraw of Detroit after being knocked down three times for the count of nine in the first round.

The bout, a 10-round affair, was the feature match of Promoter Humbert Fugazy's Ebbett's Field card.

Terris, recovering from the shock of the terrific pummeling received at the hands of the Detroit Greek in the first round, came into his own in the sixth and seventh, staggering McGraw with a barrage of vicious rights and lefts to the jaw.

The New Yorker won the decision by his strong finish, using his superior boxing skill to pile up a large point advantage in the closing stanzas.

Despite that Terris is a local product and a big favorite the decision was an unpopular one, the referee's announcement being greeted by a storm of jeers.

Terris weighed in for the fight at 135 and McGraw at 134.

In an interesting preliminary Alf Goldberg of the Bronx outpointed the speedy little Filipino boxer, Pancho Dencio.

It's a safe bet that only 160,000 of the 161,000 who are to see the Dempsey-Tunney piece will squawk about their seats.

The Braves beat the Phillies 12 to 11 in 10 innings, the total of which was probably bigger than the attendance.

Charley Comiskey, White Sox owner, is 69 years old and he probably feels twice that when he sees the standing of his club.

Donie Bush of the Pirates never farmed it, but he sure knows his Meadows.

SORDS POINTS---By Jack Sords

Jack Britton, After 24 Years, Is Still Here

By JACK SORDS

The ever present query, "Can Jack Dempsey come back?" must give Jack Britton, granddaddy of the gloved brigade a heavy, hearty laugh.

Dempsey is just a rank beginner in the ring business when compared to Britton. More than a decade before the Manassa Mauler felt his nose annoyed by a gloved knuckle, Jack Britton was banging 'em and being banged.

The one-time welterweight champion has fought for 24 years and he's still fighting. Time seems unable to put the kayo on the hardy veteran.

He was in the ring, a seasoned veteran, when most of our present day pugilists were indulging in nothing more strenuous than marbles. Now we find him slated for 10 rounds at Chicago against a person named Irish Johnny Jordan.

Britton isn't attempting a comeback either. He doesn't have to try coming back because he never left. Since 1904 Britton has been boxing with virtually no let up.

Of course, the big boys no longer worry over Britton, but the fact that he is still among those now mauling is a miracle indeed.

As far back as 1913 when Battling Bill of Berlin was still taking on all comers the sharps had Britton on his way out. That was before his six-round setto with Benny Leonard, one of our few fistic marvels. How Britton outpointed Leonard easily is a matter of record. Four years later he won from the same Benny on a foul.

And if Benny hadn't retired years ago Britton would probably be still after him.

Britton, born in Clinton, N. J., is 42 years old. His real name is William J. Breslin. His first fight was against Steve Kinney, who promptly knocked him out in the first round. Ted Lewis beat him for the welter crown in 1917, but Britton won it back from Lewis in 1919. In 1922 Mickey Walker, present welter king, won the crown from the aging but always able Jack.

SPORTS through Edgren's EYES

By Robert Edgren

When Babe Ruth knocks out a home run he puts everything from his ankles to his ears into the clout. Babe follows through like a golfer. He uses every flexible muscle in his great body, in his legs, and in his long arms.

Leo Gehrig is a shoulder hitter. He takes a short chop at the ball. He is not a long swinger like Ruth. He is a tremendously powerful man, built like a wrestler. His shoulders slope, his neck is long and thick, his arms are like an ordinary man's legs, and his wrists and hands might easily make him a world's champion knocker-out if he went in for boxing instead of baseball. They're huge.

* * *

Comparing Ruth and Gehrig, the new rival for home run honors looks much more like a natural athlete. He doesn't have to bake off a lot of stomach every spring when he goes into training, as Ruth does. Ruth and Gehrig are a couple of behemoths, but Gehrig looks like a fellow who will last longer. Still, Ruth has the supple muscles of a born athlete, and he has played a lot of baseball in spite of an occasional lapse from championship form. The way he is going this year doesn't indicate that he is ready to "slip" like Ty Cobb. Walter Hagen, the well known golfer, who is something of an expert on athletic form, says that Ruth has "quick muscles." Hagen has seen Ruth swat golf balls and figures him one of the fastest moving big men in sport. Speed, Walter says, makes the difference between a long driver and a short driver, and probably speed accounts for Babe's ability to hit them out of the baseball lot even when he isn't in perfect physical form.

* * *

Last year the coaches tried to change Lou Gehrig's shoulder hitting and make him take a long swing like Ruth's. Miller Huggins saw a good natural hitter being ruined and refused to let his style be changed. The result is a home run batting streak that never has been beaten by anyone but Babe Ruth, and that is holding Ruth even in a long continued struggle for the circuit honors of the season.

Ruth and Gehrig have been alternating in the lead, and the battle between these mastodonic swatters has been the most interesting thing in many years of baseball. The game is changing. Until the last two or three years, baseball fans have been watching their favorite teams. Now they watch their favorite individual players. A Ruth or a Gehrig is like a boxing champion, monopolizing all the ballyhoo.

Both Ruth and Gehrig started late this season, which makes the breaking of Ruth's home run record of 59 a tough one to break. In mid season the two were tied with 30 each, and since then Ruth has taken the lead and Gehrig has hopped ahead again a couple of times with two homers in one game. To reach record figures it will be necessary for one of the pair of home run kings to clout out about three a week for the rest of the season. Babe's record doesn't seem to be seriously endangered.

Welsh a Clever Champion

Freddy Welsh, former lightweight boxing champion who died recently in New York, was a remarkable boxer. A large part of the little Welshman's success came through his careful living and endless endurance. He had a world of speed, plenty of boxing skill, and no great punching ability. He is one of the few recognized champions who didn't have to wallop his way to the top, yet he beat a lot of hard hitters. He won the world's lightweight title from Willie Ritchie in England, where boxing points are carefully figured in each round and the added totals for all the rounds fought automatically govern the decision. Gene Corri, one of the most capable and conscientious of English referees, gave Welsh the decision over Champion Willie Ritchie by half a point. A small thing to carry a world's title with it. Corri marked his program at the end of each round and added the points at the end of the twentieth round.

When Welsh first came to America he was a physical culture expert. He got a job as janitor in a New York boxing club and picked up boxing. He already had some reputation as a boxer in England, but was quick to learn the American style. He beat some of the cleverest lightweights in this country and was one of the two men Champion Battling Nelson barred. The other was Packey McFarland, who was even more clever than Welsh.

Fred was a crank on diet. He lived on vegetables and seldom ate any meat. After losing the title to Benny Leonard, when he was slowing after a long career in the ring, Welsh gave up boxing and his careful habits at the same time. But for that he'd probably be alive and well today. He was only 41, and he never took any beatings in the ring that might have some after effect.

"Turning pro" is the latest amateur sport. Now Duke Kahanamoku, the famous Hawaiian swimmer and holder of many world's records, is surrendering his amateur standing to do swimming stunts on the stage. Duke is 37 and says that he has been an amateur long enough. Duke started at the early age of five and has been among the champions ever since.

George Von Elm, who was twice defeated by Bobbie Jones in the national amateur event and then defeated Jones last year, will be ready to defend his championship against Jones and the rest of the field at Minnekahda. Jones played amazing golf in winning the British open a few weeks ago. But Von Elm has been playing golf of exactly the same brand through the past two months. In the British open at St. Andrews in Scotland, Jones averaged approximately 71 strokes for the four rounds played. In doing this he completed ten successive games with an average of 71. Von Elm has recently played 12 successive games on a hard western course with a par of 72, one stroke under par at St. Andrews, with an average under 70. He averaged two strokes better than par, which is what Jones accomplished at St. Andrews. Of course, Jones was playing under a greater mental strain. But Von Elm is noted for his strength in hard competition play, where he shows his best form. He is a marvel in match play—a great fighting player. Perhaps he is even better than Bob Jones in match play. The coming championships may bring out the greatest struggle ever seen on an American course.

GUSHERS COP, 7-4

TYLER, Aug. 24. (AP)—Before two thousand rooters, several hundred being from Mexia, the Tyler Trojans suffered severe drubbing by the Gushers in the first game of the Lone Star league series, 7-4. Tyler used three pitchers, starting with Burleson who lasted five innings, being relieved by Wafer who was pulled for Pinch Hitter Underhill. Williams was sent in and held the Gushers scoreless for the last three innings. Seely started as initial hurler for the Gushers and was relieved by Carter in the fifth inning.

Paavo Nurmi and Edvin Wide will race at Berlin, probably trying to beat the record set by Bill Hohenzollern on his way out in 1918.

POLO SQUADS BEGIN TRAINING

Practice Melee Booked at Call Field Sunday

Wichita Falls pololsts begin intensive preparations Sunday for tournament play in Oklahoma next month. Both squads of local mallet wielders will be on deck this week-end and a lively practice melee appears in store.

If present plans go right the bulk of the Wichita Falls Blue machine will be on hand for a skirmish with the Red quartet of the National Guardsmen. This game is to be played Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock on Call Field.

Robbins, Fletcher, Whyte and Goodman more than likely will line up with the Blue against Col. Wieler, Prendergast, Dr. Anthony, andand Capt. Hogan in the guardsmen Red.

Featherston is not expected back with the Blue before the first of the month. He has lead a team representing Wichita Falls through one tournament to victory in play at Colorado Springs and appears on the verge of winning another tournament. The team of Featherston, Braun, Lieut. Jones and Cecil Adkins which has been burning up Colorado polo fields the past several weeks has been traveling under Wichita Falls colors.

It's Every Municipal Club Golfer's Duty to "Get In and Pitch' on Big Tournament Here, Says Keirsey

The fourth annual Texas state public links golf tournament scheduled for the Weeks park (Wichita Falls) course looms as the greatest tournament of its nature yet staged in Texas, says Charles Keirsey, president of the state association. The tournament is to be played here Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 27 and 28.

BY CHARLES KEIRSEY
President of Texas Municipal Golf Association

Word from Dallas and Fort Worth assures us of 50 or more players from those cities to enter the fourth annual tournament of Texas Municipal Golf association at Weeks park, Saturday and Sunday, August 27 and 28. San Antonio, Houston, Beaumont, Texas City, San Angelo, Abilene, Waco, Sweetwater, Corsicana and Amarillo are assuring us good entries. There is sure to be at least 150 visiting players competing for the attractive and valuable prizes—by far the finest and biggest prize list ever put up in a public tournament in Texas; and the only prize list that ever gave to players in class B the chance they have long deserved.

The merchants and business institutions of Wichita Falls have generously shown their high appreciation of Weeks Park Golf club by the way they have come forward and offered these valuable prizes.

Step around to Landon-Hill company's window and take a look at them. If you are not amazed at the value and number of them, then there's no surprise in your system. Notice carefully the prizes reserved for class B players—real, genuine and valuable, every one of them. If you play poorly enough you are bound to win a golf hat. Remember! Weeks park golfers may enter and be classified by the tournament committee as late as 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

If the players who are accepting the privileges of Weeks park course come forward and enter the tournament with a fraction of the spirit which the merchants have shown we will give to these visiting golfers a welcome and an entertainment they will long remember and a showing of civic pride worthy of Wichita Falls. Mr. Weeks Park Golfer, there is more involved in this than the mere question of whether you win a prize. It is a matter of whether you appreciate what has been done at Weeks park for your pleasure and convenience, and whether you have a proper notion of the duty of civic pride in Wichita Falls and in Weeks Park Golf club that you cannot escape as a citizen and a player on the course. It is your duty as a citizen, as a golfer and as a sportsman to put aside the selfish question about you chance at winning a prize and come into this tournament, play with these visitors and sit down with them at the banquet Sunday night. These visitors are golf players just like you. They will carry home with them lasting impressions of this affair. Come along now fellows and let's show them what a whale of a guy a West Texas sportsman really is when he spreads himself. Get yourself ready for that banquet for it will be a Wow. Admission by tournament entry ticket only.

CONFIDENCE.

Which will be the more confident when they meet—Champion Gene Tunney or his challenger, Jack Dempsey? Although the long, tiresome training grind is still before both gladiators, and the reams of hogwash anent same is still to be devoured by the fans—this pertinent question is already being discussed. The Tunney admirers maintain that Gene will have the assurance bred of a previous conquest over the once terrible Manassa Mauler. That is an almost unbeatable asset, 'tis claimed. Dempsey's adherents, on the other hand, assert that Jack will do lots better this time, having non title-holding responsibilities to weight his mind. Dempsey has everything to gain and nothing to lose, runs this argument.

At any rate, the early tongue-wagging has assuredly selected a toothsome morsel for debate. Confidence, and how it is built up and either weakened or destroyed—what subject more fascinating in sports? The mental hazard is the big obstacle to be surmounted along every trail in the sport realm.

The really great leaders and champions in sportdom win as much by brain power as by skill and physical agility. To implant the inferiority complex in an opponent's skull—that is as important to them as sliding over a killing clip to the lower maxillary or scoring a burning cross-court placement.

* * *

As a matter of fact, the champion in any department of sports usually starts hostilities with a "bulge" on his rivals. The mere title of champion is sufficient to dazzle and bewilder most of the underlings.

They magnify every movement of the great man into a piece of formidability; be it the most trifling of things. And even the less skittish and timid of the challengers are at least imbued with a sort of awesome for the bozo with the bay leaves.

How Sully, Fitz and McCoy Did It.

Most of the champions believe in instilling doubt in an antagonist's mind from the outset. John L. Sullivan and Bob Fitzsimmons were famous for their glaring tactics before a fight. It was their wont to stand in the corner and fix a malevolent eye on an opponent, scaring him half to death before a glove had been unleashed. Kid McCoy curled his lips in a contemptuous sneer—a grimace that became famous as the "Kid McCoy sneer." No fighter ever got the idea that McCoy thought him a dangerous foeman—at least not from the expression on the Kid's handsome "pan."

Bill Tilden on the courts has his own subtle stratagems to disconcert the enemy. Big Bill pulls nothing so vulgar as a sneer or an animal-like scowl. He is too much of a gentleman for that. However, Bill has his own polite, and one the less effective, methods of preserving the fact that a genius of the courts is performing.

"Big Bill" has a penchant for appearing on the court for play in a sweater. His opponent may also sport one as he stalks from the clubhouse, but he quickly sheds it when time is called to combat the greatest tennis player ever known.

Tilden often is not so painstaking in stripping himself of of sartorial hindrances. Frequently he plays a whole match without divesting himself of the sweater. In a matter it amounts to alloting a sort of handicap to himself, and, needless to say, he understands the caliber of his opponents during such proceedings.

* * *

Often Tilden pulls this ruse when opposed to a redoubtable opponent. He will play several games, possibly a set, with the outer garment on. Possibly the struggle has been close and the rival's confidence has been heightened by his good showing.

Then it is that Bil Bill inflicts his inferiority complex thrust on his rival. Off comes the sweater and immediately the spirits of the other experiences a drop. He realizes now that royalty means business, that he can expect no quarter and nothing but the best the genius can offer. Usually Mr. Tilden begins to definitely win his match from that particular moment.

Speaking about taking the heart out of a man, remember Coveleskie, the "Giant Killer" of some years back? The Pole was one pitcher who "had it on" the Giants. McGraw couldn't stand the jinx and he was always figuring out some way to annoy the Nemesis of his players.

Finally he learned something of Coveleskie's history. It seems that he had once been a snare-drum player in a village band in Pennsylvania. That was enough for Jawn. When the "Giant Killer" next appeared in the box Mac had his players on the bench send up a monotonous chorus of "rat-a-tat, Rat-a-tat."

Coveleskie couldn't make out the antics. It annoyed him considerably. Every time he faced the Giants he was subjected to the same dose. Finally he found out what it was all about. But that didn't help him any. He continued to lose regularly to the Giants. In the end his morale was so shaken the Coveleskie was shipped back to the minors.

There are at least 57 varieties of goat-stealing in sport. But the passing of Coveleskie, the "Giant Killer," represented as ingenious and as merciless a sample as you'll find any where.

Panhandle Rearing For Panther Series

Wichita Falls Amateur Champions Workout Friday Afternoon on Fort Worth Diamond

With but two more practice days remaining before they hop off in the first preliminary series for the championship of the Texas amateur athletic federation, Wichita Falls' amateur baseball kings, the Panhandle Refiners are on edge for the fray.

Panhandle invades Fort Worth Friday for a workout Friday afternoon on the Panther park diamond as the finishing touches to preparations for titular engagement with the powerful Turrentine and Thompson Printers, Fort Worth amateur champions, Saturday and Sunday in Fort Worth.

A three-game series is to be played with the Cowtown team in Panther park, the first game starting at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A double header, the opening game billed for 3 o'clock, is to be staged Sunday afternoon in Panther park.

Manager Bill Hohen of the Wichita Falls team Wednesday declared his champions ready and rearing for action. The Longhorns have been practicing industriously each day since close of the local Twilight league race. Panhandle is rated a good chance of whipping the Fort Worth team. An ever-fighting combination, the Longhorns are noted for their ability to come back in the face of odds and a heavy lead and surmount the toughest of obstacles.

Beat Fort Worth Last Year

The Panhandle club this year is made up to a great extent of the same squad of players who last year defeated Stine Printers, Fort Worth champs, in preliminary play after losing the first game of the series to the Panther City crew. After beating Fort Worth in 1926 Panhandle went to Dallas and played the Victory-Wilson team, Dallas champion, winning one game in three. One of the games was stolen in bald-faced manner by a Dallas umpire. Wichita Falls appeared on the verge of beating out the Dallas entry when the umphs came to Dallas' rescue. Dallas fans and sponsors of the Dallas team themselves admitted the Wichita Falls club was given one of the rawest of raw deals and expressed sincere regret over the turn of events. Dallas carried on into the federation final and walloped Galveston with ease, winning the state title but then was disqualified for using ineligible men. Galveston and Wichita Falls were recognized as the unofficial co-champs. On comparative play, the Panhandle stacked up as a far better team than the Galveston entry. It was too late in the season for a play-off to be arranged between Panhandle and Galveston, the Longhorns already having disbanded for the year.

Now they're back again, champions of Wichita Falls twice in succession. After a rugged campaign against local teams, conditioned by stiff combats with two strong contenders, the Continental Oilers and the speedy Texas Electric company club, Panhandle appears even in better shape this summer than last year when it whipped the champions of Cowtown.

Manager Hoehn goes into the Fort Worth series with a team that has batted all season in the vicinity of .350 against some of the most effective pitching North Texas has to offer. Four heavy hitters especially are expected to carry Panhandle colors far in the titular drive. They are McMahon, a .350 hitter; Maddox, who has batted around .400; Rawls, a .350 slugger, and Melear, who has hit up near the .400 mark.

Same Old Juggernaut

The same batting order that time and again this year has struck fear into the hearts of opposition hurlers of this section will open its broadside on the Fort Worth pitchers Saturday. The probable starting lineup will be as follows:

McMahon cf, Roberts 3b, Maddox lf, Rawls 1b, Melear rf, Hoehn 2b, Hinds ss, Graves c, and either Randolph or Parker pitcher.

In either Parker or Randolph, Panhandle boasts a heaver who already has won his spurs in Texas amateur baseball circles and whose delivery should prove sufficient to topple the best Fort Worth has to offer.

The old standby, Snipe Connally who last year beat Fort Worth twice after the Panther City crew had drawn first blood, will be on hand for service this week-end against the new Fort Worth baseball menace.

The squad is to leave Wichita Falls Friday noon, says Hoehn, with expectation of arriving in Fort Worth soon enough to get in a sharp workout at Panther park later in the afternoon.

SHARKEY MUST HAVE THOUGHT TRUCK HIT HIM LOW, SAYS LEO

"That's How Hard Dempsey Socked Him in Solar Plexus—Just Jack's Training Camp Victims"

(This is the eighth of a series of articles in which Leo P. Flynn, the noted trainer, tells how he brought back Jack Dempsey.)

BY LEO P. FLYNN
Manager of Jack Dempsey
Written Expressly for Universal Service
(Copyright 1927, By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The wild squawk that Jack Sharkey let loose after his knockout by Jack Dempsey came as no surprise to me. I knew it was on the way at the end of the sixth round, and so did Dempsey.

Dempsey took his first punch at Sharkey's head in the sixth, but he did not connect squarely. By this time the great crowd sensed that the tide of battle had changed. So did Sharkey. I could tell by the way he was fighting that his spirit was broken.

When Dempsey came back to the corner I called the turn.

"This is the round to go out and finish him, Jack," I whispered. "That guy is getting ready to fold up. I can tell by the way he's acting that he's getting ready to holler foul. Let him have a couple more in the bread basket and then give him everything you've got on the chin."

As Jack left the corner I called after him:

"Don't forget now! Step back on your right foot."

You may not know that Dempsey is a natural southpaw. He hits harder with his left than any heavyweight that ever lived. I wanted him to be set for this punch. I wanted it to be the hardest blow he had ever struck.

Ask Jack's Mates

The punch that softened Sharkey for that final left on the jaw was a right hand in the solar plexus. I think I can prove it.

The biggest point that Sharkey advanced in support of the contention that he was fouled is that he suffered internal hemorrhage for days after the fight.

What will Mr. Sharkey say when I tell him that EVERY SPARRING PARTNER WHO WORKED WITH DEMPSEY HAD THE SAME EXPERIENCE?

The trouble with Sarkey was that he was hit with a real good right in the stomach. He had never stopped anything with such power behind it, and he didn't know that anyone could hit that hard.

He could not understand it, so he concluded it must have been crooked.

So far as I know, no one has accused Dempsey of fouling his sparring partners.

I don't give Sharkey much for the attitude he took. He tried to take away glory which Dempsey richly deserved to furnish himself with an alibi.

Down Like Shot

Sharkey's mouth popped open from that right hand. He must have thought that some one had bumped him with a five-ton truck. He dropped his guard and turned his head to squawk, and as he did, Jack soaked him with the hardest left on the jaw I ever saw. That was the stiffener. Sharkey went down as if he'd been shot.

Referee O'Sullivan could have counted to 60, and he still would have been on the floor. As it was, Sharkey got a plenty long count.

Even Sharkey can't throw any asparagus at that left hand. I don't think anyone ever has seen a prettier exhibition of co-ordination than Dempsey gave in delivering that blow. Everything about it was perfect. Dempsey hit that one from his heels.

I never felt like kissing a man in my life, but I came pretty close when Dempsey came back to our corner. There were tears in his eyes—tears of happiness.

"Well, kid, I did what you told me," he exclaimed, joyously.

He certainly did. He did more than I told him. All the tellings in the world wouldn't do any good if it hadn't happened that the fighter I told it to was the gamest man that ever pulled on a glove. Also, the best puncher that ever lived.

My small part was to get him in shape, and I am satisfied that I did that.

Will Kayo Gene?

There is an old saying that a little man can cut a bigger man down to his size.

In the case of Sharkey vs. Dempsey, my theory was that the older man could slow the younger man down to his speed. An application of the almost forgotten science of body punching was my prescription and it did the work.

Long before the Sharkey fight I predicted Dempsey would score a knockout. Everyone laughed.

Now, I'm going to make the same prediction on the Gene Tunney bout, and I think I'll be taken a little more seriously. I mean what I say, and I'm going to point out a few facts that have been overlooked.

Moody Condemns Shoes Worn by Guardsmen

AUSTIN, Aug. 24. (AP)—Criticism of the style of shoes furnished Texas national guardmen was made today by Governor Dan Moody in a conference with Colonel Taylor Nichols, acting adjutant general, and Lieutenant Colonel Dallas J. Matthews, former adjutant general, as to whether better shoes can be provided.

Governor Moody recently reviewed the troops at the Palacios summer encampment. He said today that he had not seen a single pair of "russet" or "garrison" shoes and that the prevailing footwear was comparable to "hobnail" shoes.

Uniforms, shoes and equipment are furnished by the federal government.

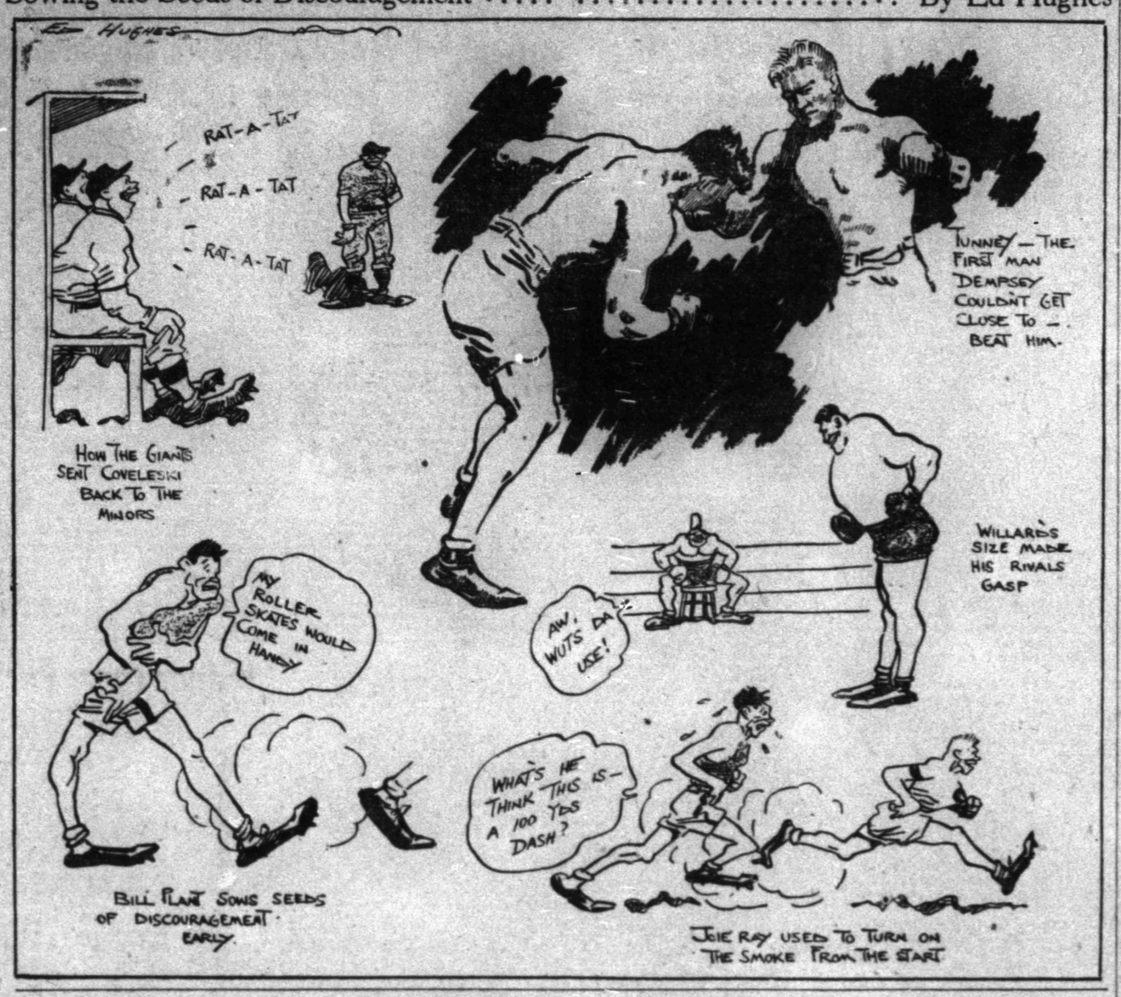
Sowing the Seeds of Discouragement ..... By Ed Hughes



Sports Done Brown

By NORMAN E. BROWN

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—While waiting for the two heavy boys, Jack and Gene, to get under way for their "mint" julep, the sport bugs here are discussing the baseball situation just as pro and con as ever.

Joe McCarthy seems to be getting most of the pro. The White Sox fans feel as if Owner Charley Comiskey has been handing them the con—by his failure to let Ray Schalk run the White Sox, win, lose or drop into last place. They couldn't play much worse baseball than they have been of late.

Chicago scribes always have been lenient with Comiskey because he has long been "the Old Roman" of baseball. But the feeling now is that Commy ought to turn around and give the boys a baseball team. Fans are becoming somewhat weary of paying at the gate to talk about the good old days.

Schalk's admirers insist that his failure to hold the team to a winning pace is due partly to the fact that some of his star players are aware of the fact that he is but a figurehead, without the power needed to wield the whip. The players in question are prone to take advantage of this knowledge and play listless "eight hour" ball.

* * *

Watched the Sox here a couple of days and noticed this attitude. At least three of the regulars aren't playing the brand of baseball of which they are capable. One of them is an outfielder—with ambitions to move to New York. The other's an infielder who has had managerial ambitions for some time—stifled to date.

Schalk's lack of control over his team, due to whatever causes may be assigned, is responsible for the in-and-out pitching he has been getting. The general opinion is that the hurlers labor when they feel like it.

The unofficial watchdog duties of Secretary Harry Grabiner have also come in for criticism by Chicago writers who are familiar with the inner workings of the club.

They blame his nightly first-hand reports to Owner Comiskey on the day's events as one of the possible reasons for the general demoralization.

It may be that Comiskey is planning on a change of management over the winter to give him a counter irritant against the Cubs next spring. He cannot hope to get away with such a move, however, unless he decides to make the next manager the real boss of the team, unhampered by other agencies.

Meanwhile McCarthy is giving the Cub fans a feast after years of fasting.

It will take some dainty looking pie at the Sox park to lure the fans back there.

Settle Society Leaders Bankruptcy Suit

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.(AP)—The bankruptcy suit of Rita H. de Acosta Lydig, society leader and former wife of the late W. E. D. Stokes, was settled today when Judge Winslow confirmed the creditors' composition of 40 per cent. The amount involved was about $50,000, according to Walter Ernst, attorney for Mrs. Lydig, and C. C. Parmet, who appeared for the trustee in bankruptcy.

The case had been pending for several months. All the testimony had been heard before a referee. The settlement of 40 cents on the dollar was accepted by all the creditors. When the case was called in court today both attorneys declared there was no opposition and a perfunctory anouncement of confirmation by the clerk closed the case.

There certainly isn't anything sour about Molla Mallory's tennis, even if she does eat lemons between matches.

Legg Eliminates George Von Elm In Round Two

Bob Jones Wins Handily From Homans With Other Favorites Coming Through Snappily

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 24. (AP)—George Van Elm of Los Angeles today lost his national amateur golf championship in the second 18-hole round of match play, yielding to Harry Legg of the home course one down after a desperate fight in which the title-holder shot close to par.

Bobby Jones, the only one who has defeated Von Elm in the championship in the last three years, won handily from Eugene Homans of New York, who led in medal play the first day with 71 but in the first round he was down most of the way to Maurice McCarthy, another young New Yorker, and won only by par on the last four holes.

Other favorites came through but Roland Mackenzie of Washington had to go 19 holes twice to survive over George Thomas of Chicago in the morning and Dave Martin of Los Angeles in the afternoon.

The third Los Angeles player, Allen Moser, went down before the par golf of Chick Evans of Chicago, 3 and 1. Eddie Held of St. Louis, formerly trans-Mississippi champion, readily defeated Dexter Cummings of Chicago and Arthur Yates of Rochester, scoring under par at times.

Francis Ouimet of Boston after downing Billy Sixty of Milwaukee handily, took on a former title-holder, Max Marston of Philadelphia, and got revenge for a defeat at the latter's hands at Flossmore in the semi-finals by winning, 3 and 2.

Jimmy Johnston, another local star, took into camp the Canadian champion, Don Carrick after ousting Dick Jones of New York. Carrick shot good golf all day but could not get the breaks. Bobby Jones could not find the cunning that gave him a record of 67 yesterday, but revived his wizardry sufficiently to stall off defeat when McCarthy got frightened in his attempt at giant killing and to shoot par in the afternoon against Homans. The other second round match went to Philips Finlay of New York, who overcame Clarks Corkran of Philadelphia, 3 and 2.

Tomorrow's rounds at 36 holes will consist of Legg and Mackenzie, Evans and Held, Ouimet and Finlay, and Johnson and Jones.

Brooklyn Releases Aged Jess Barnes

NEW YORK, Aug. 24. (AP)—Jess Barnes, veteran righthanded pitcher, was released Wednesday by the Brooklyn Nationals.

As a 10-year man he received his unconditional release.

He has signed with the Toledo club of the American association for the rest of the season.

Barnes' release follows reports of disagreements between him and the Brooklyn manager, Wilbert Robertson. Late pitching records show the veteran around the bottom of the National league list. He has won two and lost 10 games.

LA BARBA CHAMP

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24. (AP)—Fidelo LaBarba today was again the undisputed ruler of the flyweight ranks as the result of his convincing victory over Johnny Vacca, Bridgeport, Conn., scrapper here last night. Vacca twice before had defeated the champion.

The consensus of experts on the round by round gave LaBarba a wide margin.

While Vacca's potent right hand was much respected by the champion LaBarba displayed a willingness to mix at all times. He was given an ovation as he left the ring.

Tunney Seeks Cannon Fodder

Heavy Champ Wants More Sparring Partners

By HERBERT WESTEN
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 24.—An S. O. S. was sent out from Gene Tunney's camp tonight for more sparring partners. The boys already in camp have been taking some stinging lacings from the champ during the past ten days and are calling for help.

A big rough heavy fellow of the Dempsey type is expected here tomorrow. His name was not announced.

Tunney disclosed this morning that he will be backed in his corner with the same faces that encouraged him to his Philadelphia victory. Jimmy Bronson, who used to referee fights for Gene when he was with the marine corps in France, is the last to sign. The other two men will be Billy Gibson, Gene's veteran manager, and Lou Fink, his trainer.

Eddie Eagan, a Rhodes scholar with four university degrees, who rates as amateur light heavyweight champion of America, and is Gene's bosom companion and intellectual mentor, will act as an adviser. Eagan, who has been in New York undergoing a minor operation, arrived back in camp today.

With sparring partners at a premium, Tunney called a halt on his afternoon workout. He spent the morning on the road. This afternoon he summoned "Pants" Lawrence, the old Adirondack guide who accompanied him last year to Philadelphia, and cheered him to victory, and gave orders that the afternoon be spent in picnicking. Tunney likes to go to the woods and grabs every chance he can get to hie himself away from the crowds.

Gene is in high spirits and neither thinking nor talking fight.

SEABOARD GETS FLOWING WELL IN NORTHWEST JACK COUNTY

CULLERS WELL FLOWING HEADS

Sand Encountered High In Producer

Seaboard Oil and Gas company Wednesday was bringing in a flowing well in the field northwest of Jacksboro in Jack county.

The well is Seaboard's No. 1, J. W. Cullers, located in the J. R. Cullers survey, abstract 2188, and approximately 1100 feet south of the nearest producer, Leidecker and Holmans No. 1 Holman, the discovery well of the pool.

Hit Pay High.

Hitting the sand about 10 to 15 feet higher than it was found in the previous producers, the well was flowing at short intervals, according to reports from the field received by Wichita Falls companies.

The sand was topped at 1996 feet and at two feet in, the first head was made, followed by several others in quick succession.

Preparations were being made late Wednesday to drill deeper into the pay with prospect of materially boosting the production.

Fifth Producer.

This is the firth producer in this pool, Leidecker-Holman, Shaw and Rathke and Buttram Petroleum corporation having previously completed wells. All of them however, got the pay just below 2010 feet.

The fact that Seaboard's well is flowing gives rise to the belief that the pool will extend some distance to the south. Oil produced at the other wells in the pool is rated among the highest grade produced in the district.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24. (AP)—The cotton market showed increased activity and strength today, prices making new high records for the season on buying promoted by additional unfavorable crop reports. December contracts sold up to 21.82 and closed at 21.72, the general market closing steady at net advances of 17 to 21 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 14 to 17 points on a continuation of the buying movement responsible for the recent advances. Relatively firm late Liverpool cables probably stimulated demand, while there were reports that farmers were not selling their early receipts freely and that spot demand was becoming more active.

Realizing became very heavy on the advance to about the 21.% cent level for December contracts and caused moderate reactions, but a bullish interpretation of the weekly weather reports brought in another wave of buying which absorbed the offerings. December sold off from 21.74 to 21.46, or back to about yesterday's closing quotation while the realizing was in progress, but later firmed up again on what appeared to be a broadening of trade and commission house demand.

October sold as high as 21.61 and January 21.82, while May advanced to 22.10 in late trading, or 34 to 42 points net higher, making an advance in the case of December contracts of 290 points from the low level touched on the reaction of a week ago last Saturday. Offerings increased sufficiently to check the advance at these figures and the close showed setbacks of 9 or 10 points from the best.

The buying was accompanied by reports that European spinners were becoming more nervous over the new crop outlook, and were asking for offers of cotton for forward shipment extending over the next few months, but that in most cases grades and staples were wanted which shippers were not disposed to offer freely at present.

Local brokers said trading was more active than at any time since the current advance started, and the readiness with which the market absorbed large realizing sales during mid-day probably led to covering and rebuying in later trading.

Exports today 16,299 bales, making 228,045 so far this season. Port receipts 16,575. U. S. port stocks 985,562.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24. (AP)— The cotton market made new season highs for the third consecutive day despite considerable realizing encountered on the advance. A bullish weekly weather and crop report and good trade and speculative buying were the main influences behind the bullish movement. December traded up from 21.35 to 21.68, but eased off in the final trading and closed at 21.56 compared with 21.34, yesterday's closing figure. The general market closed steady at net advances of 20 to 29 points.

Following an opening gain of 11 to 13 points due mainly to relatively steady Liverpool cables, the maret advanced to 21.39 for October and 21.58 for December, 24 to 25 points above the previous close. The early firmness was attributed to expectations of a bullish weather and crop report.

Realizing set in early in the second hour and all of the gain was lost. October dropped to 21.04 and December to 21.36. These proved to be the lows of the day. When it was shown that the crop report was fully as bullish as expected the market rallied sharply and prices made new highs but considerable realizing again developed and the market declined almost to the lows.

In the afternoon prices stiffened on trade and outside buying and October traded to 21.49 and December 21.68, 24 to 26 points above the previous close and new highs for the season. Additional profit taking in the final trading caused a recession of 7 to 10 points from the highs.

Exports for the day totaled 10,399 bales.

General Motors Rally Brings About Renewed Confidence In Wall Street Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—A late rally in General Motors served to bring about renewed confidence in the stock market today. Stocks resisted throughout the day attempts to bring about a reactionary tone. About 20 new high records were hung up for the year and the advance took in practically all groups excepting the oils. Easier money conditions were again the factor in the rise although the increase in car loadings over a year ago served to bring buying orders into the standard railroads at times.

Cotton sold at a new high record and is making good the prediction in this column recently that the white commodity is headed for higher prices. Wheat, however, lost three or four cents a bushel on profit-taking. Exchange was quiet.

General Motors was easily the star performer. As pointed out here recently the company is planning an extensive campaign abroad for the sale of small autos, trucks and busses and Delco Light, which can be used economically by gasoline. Nash and Packard made new highs and in connection with the latter the dise is understood to involve the transfer of a large block of stock and an extra dividend.

Irregularity in some of the standard stocks is understood to be the result of the fiasco of the Manhattan Electrical Supply pool. The pool started with 45,000 shares of stock and found itself landed with 78,000. While the pool had ample resources it had to sell stocks to get cash. Some of the issues which were dumped on the market were the tobaccos, including Reynolds and Liggett & Myers. This selling, however, is believed to be over.

What is termed good buying is going on in Mackay. It is understood that negotiations are under way for a merger with the Federal Telegraph company, which does a large business on the Pacific coast. The Federal is understood to have contracts with some of the transcontinental railroads.

Wright Aero was one of the specialty features. With a growing demand for airplanes and the backing behind the company people are buying the stock and holding it. There has been buying recently of Standard Milling. Earnings last year were approximately $11 a share and the business is showing steady growth. Pittsburgh Terminal coal was steady. The stock is up approximately eight points since it was pointed out here recently while Pittsburgh Coal has done practically nothing.

While Agricultural Chemical stocks have been quiet they have shown a steady advance. Conditions in the industry are improving. Negotiations are said to be under way for the establishment of a sales agency and the extension of credits to the farmers for fertilizer.

With the higher farm products prices and the stiffening in commodity prices the farmers are in a stronger position. This has been reflected in the increasing sales of fertilizer and the outlook for this industry is regarded as bright.

American Steel Foundries was well bought at rising prices. General Railway Signal on the other hand met profit-taking. Pressed Steel Car sold at a new high price for the year. A good part of the buying was said to come from Bar Harbor. Texas Gulf Sulphur was strong and active and a resumption of the move in this stock is believed to be on. Recent profit-taking has been well absorbed; interests with Pittsburgh connections are said to be the heaviest buyers. These interests already have a large block of the stock and are adding to their holdings.

Trading was a little slow with sellers a little reluctant to let go at prices offered though the market appeared to be usually steady in most clsifications. Beef steers from the same grass fed herd in the Fort Worth feeding are a that sold on Monday at $16.00 drew bids of $9.75 on the theory that they were not quite so good as the bunch that came in today, it was said.

Thirty-three mixed loads were included in the run of more than 100 car loads in the cattle and calf market. Cows were on a steady basis though quality brought prices a little lower than those that have reigned for better quality. Butcher cows. Few heifers and yearlings were offered.

In the sheep appeared both freshly shorn and spring shorn wethers to sell at steady prices bringing $8.00 for both clasifications that weighed 87 and 88 pounds. Some fresh clipped yearlings sold at $11.00 and a few spring lambs sold at the some price.

Receipts Tuesday were: Wheat 38 cars, corn six, oats three, barley one, sorghums two, cane seed one, snapped corn four, and milo and kaffir heads one.

Estimates on Wednesday receipts called for: Wheat 44 cars, corn 11, oats five, barley six, and cane seed two.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24. (AP)—General liquidation was on in all grains today with prices crumbling under hedging sales. Wheat led the decline with a net loss of 3¼ to 4¾c at the finish. Corn was 1¾ to 2½c down, oats declined ⅝ to 1 and provisions varied from 7½c loss to 15c gain.

Failure of the wheat market here to respond to bullish news recently did much to discourage the longs and improved conditions in Canada started liquidation.

Corn was easy with wheat, despite talk of light frost in parts of Iowa and Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. The forecast was for fair and warmer weather, although temperatures continue much too low for rapid development of the crop.

Oats were lower in sympathy with corn.

Provisions were firmer with cotton and hogs.

HEAVY TONE ON MARKET

Scattered Liquidation In Grain Offerings

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—A heavy tone dominated the wheat and other grain markets today. There was scattered liquidation in wheat, with discouraged longs letting go on account of the Canadian estimates which indicated as much or more wheat than a year ago in spite of the bullish news, which has been fairly sensational at times the past two or three weeks. In corn the more favorable weather checked the demand and prices eased off, no important frosts being reported. Oats and rye followed other grains.

LIONS HEAR STAGE STAR

So Bruce Didn't Make His Talk, After All

Assembled for the weekly luncheon, at which H. J. Bruce, Wichita Falls attorney, was announced as the principal speaker, the program committee put it over on the boys of the Lions club Wednesday and with deft formulation introduced a program of mirth.

For there was no speaking. After two vocal selections, "Mandalay," and a negro spiritual by W. E. Young, and two violin numbers, "Once Upon a Time," and "Serenade," by Miss Daisy Wharton, both of whom were accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Cole, the membership "settled back to listen to those speeches," as they phrased it —and to their surprise Mr. Bruce spoke only long enough to introduce the feature attraction of the meeting.

Another Champ

Which was the performance of G. D. "Tex" Lloyd, champion roller and ice skater of England and America, ventriloquist, yodeler, musician, composer, practical joker and entertainer extraordinary. In addition to all that Mr. Lloyd is the general sales manager of the Dallas Sales and Brokerage company of Dallas, and spends five months of the year on the International Majestic circuit.

Mr. Lloyd pulled several new gags on his audience and by his yodel selection, "Hi-Lee Hi-Lo," his imitation on the piano of the circus calliope and his play of wisecracks, kept the club in a continual roar.

Made Record in Electra

Mr. Lloyd also holds all Texas records in insurance salesmanship, and accomplished the feat in 1924 of selling 172 accident policies in Electra within eight hours, which he said he has duplicated in many other towns. As a musician he has composed a Texas song, "Here's to Dear Old Texas," soon to be released by the Victor Recording company.

R. H. Graham, president, was in charge of the meeting. Among the guests present were the Rev. Dan F. Greider, junior pastor of the First Presbyterian church; A. E. Kelly, new manager of the Texas Electric Service company, and several out of town guests.

Truck Pins Youth Against Brick Wall

R. G. Carter, 913 Mill, about 20 years of age, was taken to the Wichita Clinic hospital shortly after 2 o'clock Wednesday suffering from injuries in the abdomen sustained when a truck driven by one of his companions crushed him against a brick wall in an alley between Ninth and Tenth streets on Scott.

Carter, who said he was an employe of the Sproles Motor Freight company, was taken to the hospital in a Merkle ambulance. Injuries to the lad are not serious, hospital attendants said.

Scouts Plan Exhibit For T.-O. Fair Here

Plans are already being made to have the largest and best exhibit by Boy Scouts at the Texas-Oklahoma fair this year than ever before, declared Frank B. Creighton, scout executive, Wednesday. It is planned to have scouts of the various troops to give demonstrations in fire building, knot tying and other crafts each afternoon at the fair grounds. Scouts are now working on pieces of handcraft to place on exhibit, said Mr. Creighton.

BOARD OF REVIEW

The Boy Scout board of review will be held Monday and Tuesday at Boy Scout headquarters in the city hall annex, it was announced Wednesday by Scout Executive Frank B. Creighton. Mr. Creighton will be out of the city at that time and has requested that scoutmasters sit on the board.

Marceline Day and Brooks Benedict in "College Days," now showing at the Olympic theater.

College life and all it implies, interestingly told, with a tremendous amount of suspense is embodied in the Tiffany production of "College Days," which will be seen for the first time here today at the Olympic theater.

A word or two must be said first for the story, which is from the pen of A. P. Younger, who adapted the famous story, "Brown of Harvard," for the screen, and who in turning out "College Days" went one better than his last college story. Then again never has there been gathered on the screen such a bevy of beautiful young girls, led by the winsome and pretty Marceline Day, and the ensemble of college youths, who from appearance and acting must have been genuine college students.

The story in brief tells of a breezy young college boy, who comes to one of the big universities and soon makes himself known to all the pretty co-eds, until he meets the one. Many little kinks come to mar their love-making which is finally unravelled by his brilliant playing on the college varsity football team, in which he helps win the game for his Alma Mater and at the same time the girl.

The picture, which was splendidly directed by Richard Thorpe, under the personal supervision of the author, includes such well-known players as Marceline Day, Charles Delaney, James Harrison, Duane Thompson, Brooks Bendict, Kathleen Key, Edna Murphy, Robert Homans, Craufurd Kent, Gibson Gowland, Lawford Davidson, Pat Harmon.

Hall County First 1927 Bale Ginned

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Aug. 24.—Hall county's first bale of cotton was ginedn in Memphis today, which was raised by I. Perez, who lives on the J. H. Brumley farm 15 miles southeast of Memphis. The bale was ginned free of charge by Nall & Beaty and bought by Curtis Cudd, who paid 25 cents per pound for same.

The bale weighed 503 pounds. A premium was raised amounting to $66.75. The seed brought $16, bringing the total received for the bale up to $200. This bale was brought in one day later than last year's first bale.

Plans for Honolulu's new $700,000 city hall are being opposed by the public who desire delay until a more pretentious structure can be erected.

White House Has Roof Garden

When President and Mrs. Coolidge return to the renovated and repaired White House in September they may go up on the roof at night for a peek at the stars or a bit of fresh air. A roof garden has been installed atop the presidential mansion, part of the $325,000 worth of remodeling.

Harmonica Players Feature Musical Program at Optimist Luncheon

Politics started boiling Wednesday at the Optimist club luncheon after the program had been ended. Motion was made that J. W. "Py" Pyland, chairman of the program committee, be appointed permanently to that post. No action was taken but the motion was well founded, according to general agreement.

Members of the club had the privilege at their Wednesday luncheon of hearing "first performances" of two harmonicists who apparently would be in the running at the harmonica contest Wednesday night.

Charles J. Johnson, 1709 Monroe, one of the oldest entrants in the contest and Guy Rogers Jr., age 8, one of the youngest contestants each rendered several numbers on their harmonicas.

Mr. Johnson, a veteran player but always an amateur, played "Juanita," one of Sousa's marches, a selection from the "Bohemian Girl" and two popular numbers.

Guy played "America," "Prisoner's Song" and others.

Miss Camilla van Sickle of Childress played two piano solos, her rendition of "Turkey in the Straw" being especially pleasing to the Optimists.

Joel McGregor's song sheets were headed with: "Say fellows, let's make this the best singing luncheon club in the city." It was not announced whether this was a public challenge. There were no speeches.

Honor Scouts Leave Today For 1000-Mile Tour and Outing

A group of Boy Scout honor campers and officials, numbering 15, will set out at 7 o'clock this Thursday morning on the first lap of a 1000-mile journey which will carry them into five states and last 10 days.

The trip is the reward to boys making the best records during the three camping periods at Camp Ephriam Griffin, Diversion Lake, this summer. Some of the "top-notchers" being unable to make the trip, their places were taken by scouts with next best records.

The group will stop at Shawnee, Okla., Thursday night and camp, going the next day to a spot near Rogers, Ark., in the Ozark mountains where they will spend five days. They are travelling in the truck belonging to local scouts and a lighter truck belonging to Scout Executive Frank B. Creighton.

After breaking camp at Rogers the party will go to Joplin, Mo., coming back through Kansas to Oklahoma City for a one day visit. They will arrive in Wichita Falls on Sept. 3.

Besides Mr. Creighton the party includes Scouts Jerome Allen, J. W. Adair, Sennett Hill, Bill Steger, John Munsey, Berry Munsey, Maynard Creighton, Homer Lee, Stafford Helm and Billy Helm of Wichita Falls; Scoutmaster Taylor Cash, Don Garner, Joe Turner, Jerry Taryle and Noble Stedham of Electra.

New Rubber Traffic Signs Placed in Use

All six of the projected new stop signs, made of rubber, and intended to replace the more expensive boulevard stops in the city, will be ready for use by Thursday, it was announced by Traffic Captain J. H. Scott.

Three of the signs, two at Lamar and 11th, and one on the Henrietta road, are now in use. The others, at Tenth and Holliday and at Ninth and Holliday, will be ready Thursday.

Luncheon Clubs To Hear About T.-O. Fair

Starting this Thursday noon, the luncheon clubs of the city will begin to hear about the plans for the Texas-Oklahoma fair, according to announcement Wednesday by Manager R. E. Shepherd. It is planned to have speakers attend each luncheon club and to speak for only five minutes. George D. Keith, superintendent of the live stock division of the fair, will occupy five minutes at the Rotary luncheon today, Mr. Shepherd announced.
