Permian Basin OIL & GAS LOG

Fifth Gasser Set To Final In Eddy Pool

Cities Service Oil Co. has reported four-point gauges for its No. 2-A-Y Elizondo-Federal, fifth Morrow well and 1¼-mile east extension to that pay in the La Huerta field of Eddy County, N. M.

It flowed gas natural through perforations at 11,446-11,684 feet, at the following per-day rates: for one hour on an 8-64-inch choke, 1.3 million cubic feet; for 45 minutes on an 11-64-inch choke, 1.75 million cubic feet; for 45 minutes on a 14-64-inch choke, 2.3 million cubic feet, and for 45 minutes on a 16-64-inch choke, 3.65 million cubic feet.

During prior production tests it made a trace of 50.9-gravity distillate, however, no hydrocarbon liquid was reported on the four-point tests.

Operator was preparing to calculate absolute, open flow potential, and the well is shut in, awaiting market facility.

The well is 1,880 feet from south and 1,780 feet from west lines of section 21-21s-27e, two miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Confirmation Try Set In Tom Green

Zinke & Philpy, Inc., Midland, has made plans to re-enter and clean out to 6,400 feet at No. 1-C Baker, Tom Green County failure, for completion try as a second well and ¾-mile north extension to the Red Creek (Caddo) oil field.

Originally drilled by Wilson Germany of Dallas and Paul Page of Eldorado, it was plugged and abandoned in April, 1959, at 6,532 feet It swabbed 10 per cent oil, 90 per cent water, through Caddo perforations at 6,306-6,310 feet, and also tested through perforations at 6,317-6,319 feet, and Ellenburger perforations at 6,457-6,464 feet.

It is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 5, T&NO survey, abstract 2147, 10 miles north of San Angelo.

Offset Planned

Weco Production, Ltd., of Midland, will drill No. 2 Herbert J. Untermeyer as a ⅝-mile north offset to production in the current three-well Canyon oil sector of the Susan Peak, North field of Tom Green.

Drillsite is 1,300 feet from south and 2,090 feet from east lines of section 137, block 11, SPRR survey, 11 miles southeast of San Angelo. Contract depth is 4,300 feet.

Teal Recompletes McCulloch Strike

Teal Petroleum Co. of Houston has repotentialed No. 1 J. K. Shelton, discovery of the one-well Fife (Pennsylvanian) gas field of McCulloch County, about five miles north of Lohn.

Calculated, absolute open flow was for 580,000 cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 1,210-1,340 feet.

It originally was completed in December, 1953, by J. W. Alsabrook of Houston, for 4 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 1,305-1,310 feet.

It has 5½-inch casing seated at 2,200 feet, on total depth of 2,300 feet.

Application to re-enter the well

Doctor Panel Says Nixon Not Able To Travel Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — The court-appointed panel of doctors that examined former President Nixon earlier this week told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today that Nixon is not presently able to travel to Washington testify in the Watergate cover-up trial.

The doctors also said that Nixon is not well enough to give a deposition but that "we would estimate that he should be able to give a deposition in his home by Jan. 6."

No Prediction

The report signed by Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel said that "it is difficult to predict with accuracy" when Nixon could travel to Washington "without excessive risk."

The report added that if Nixon recovers at an anticipated rate without further complications "we would estimate that such a trip would be possible by Feb. 16, 1975."

Ninth Week

The trial, now in its ninth week, is expected to be concluded by Christmas, therefore making it certain that Nixon cannot testify. He had been subpoenaed by John D. Ehrlichman, one of the five defendants.

The doctors said that if Nixon's recovery continues that he might be able to testify at a courtroom near his home at San Clemente, Calif., by Feb. 2.

The possibility remained that Sirica could order a delay in the trial long enough to obtain the former president's testimony by deposition.

No Medical Reasons

Hufnagel's report did not discuss the medical reasons on which it was based but said that the panel could do so if required.

"This would involve specific information regarding his condition which we have been instructed is confidential," the Hufnagel letter said, adding, "I would be pleased to meet with you to discuss the reasons for the opinions."

The other members of the panel are Dr. Richard A. Ross, a cardiovascular specialist from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, and Dr. John A. Spittell Jr. of the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota.

Hufnagel is a cardiovascular surgeon at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington.

Interview Cited

The report, headed "Physical Condition of Mr. Richard M. Nixon," called attention to the panel's interview with Dr. Eldon Hickman, who inserted a clothes pin-like clip in Nixon's left leg on Oct. 29 to prevent phlebitis-caused blood clots from moving through his body.

The report also said that the medical records, x-rays, and laboratory data on Nixon were studied and that the former president was given a physical examination at his home "with his consent and cooperation."

Testimony Interrupted

Sirica interrupted testimony by former White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman, sent the jury to lunch and summoned prosecution and defense attorneys to his office before publicly releasing the physicians' report.

In his testimony, Haldeman denied knowing anything about any political intelligence plans which contemplated using illegal wiretapping or any other unlawful methods.

He said he had never met Watergate break-in defendants G. Gordon Liddy, E. Howard Hunt or James W. McCord.

Haldeman was the second

LATE NEWS FLASHES

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford granted full pardons today to eight convicted military deserters and draft evaders and gave clemency to 10 others.

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas International Airlines spokesman said today the company has canceled its contract with ground workers and put into effect what he called substantial pay and benefits increases. Jim O'Donnell, the spokesman, said the action was taken under the Railway Labor Act after contract talks broke down Thursday night in Washington at the end of a 30-day cooling-off period.

Butz' Apology Ordered For Remarks On Pope

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today ordered Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz to apologize for using an Italian accent to mock Pope Paul VI's position on birth control.

Ford summoned Butz to his Oval Office and told him that an earlier statement the secretary made explaining his remarks was inadequate and that he should "apologize to any and all individuals who may have been offended."

(Related Story Page 11A)

Reporting this, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford told Butz he did not think the controversial remarks alone were cause to dismiss the secretary.

Nessen said Ford made it clear he "disapproved of the remarks, disavowed the remarks, and that the remarks in no way represent his own views."

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York wired Ford Thursday to demand that Butz either apologize or resign.

Asked if Butz had offered to quit, Nessen said he had no indication he did so.

The press secretary also was asked if Ford could fairly be described as angry about the matter. He said he would "let the tone of these remarks speak for themselves," referring to Ford's statement of disavowal and disapproval.

Asked about Ford's views on family planning, Nessen said these were a matter of record,

Convicted Bombers Start New Hunger Strike In London

LONDON (AP)—Dolours and Marion Price, convicted bombers and members of the Irish Republican Army, began a hunger strike in London's Brixton prison today only hours after the British parliament enacted emergency measures to deal with terrorism.

Dolours 23, and Marion, 20, ended a 205-day hunger strike in June after they had received assurances they would be allowed to serve the bulk of their life sentences in a prison in their Northern Ireland homeland.

A government announcement said the two women began refusing food because of Home Secretary Roy Jenkins' announcement in the House of Commons Thursday that they would not be transferred to Northern Ireland.

Jenkins was speaking during a marathon sitting of parliament to rush through legislation increasing police powers to deal with the IRA.

Queen Elizabeth II formally assented to the act within minutes of its approval without op-

Texas Firm Hikes Newsprint Price

DALLAS (AP) — Southland Paper Co. will raise the price of newsprint $20 per ton effective Dec. 31, a company spokesman has confirmed.

The spokesman said the price hike was the result of general production cost increases at Southland's paper mills.

The price hike will raise the cost of a ton of newsprint to about $225 across Texas, the spokesman said.

Oil Billionaire Hunt Dies

DALLAS (AP) — Oil billionaire H. L. Hunt, considered one of the world's wealthiest men, died today, a Baylor Hospital spokesman said. He was 85.

Hunt had been in failing health for months, entering a Dallas hospital in late September for treatment of what his personal secretary, Paula Lindsay, called a flu virus.

Hunt's incredible wealth, earned primarily through his vast oil empire, ranked him with J. Paul Getty and Howard Hughes as one of the world's richest men.

Hunt was captain of an oil-based industrial empire that included petroleum, canned foods, pecans, asphalt and drug items among other products.

He started his tremendous fortune in the fabulous East Texas oil strikes and pyramided it successfully although he had only a fifth-grade education.

Remained Alert

Hunt remained alert and active until about September and was at his office almost daily. He was able to appear on television question-and-answer programs until recently.

He remained secretive throughout his life about his fortune which some have placed as high as $2 billion.

Hunt once was quoted as saying that if a man knew how rich he was he wasn't very rich.

He never invested in anything he didn't own outright and had no stockholders in the businesses he did control. No balance sheets ever were published and it had been said possibly only the tax man knew Hunt's exact financial worth.

Hunt once said, "I've never tried to become the biggest oilman or anything else. For all practical purposes I regard a man with $200,000 as well off as a man with $200 million. A millionaire who throws his money around is stupid."

Hunt's frugal nature and spartan standards were legandary. He never adopted—or wanted to—the cliche image of a wealthy Texas oil baron. He never owned a yacht or a personal plane.

He said he "felt like a sucker paying $3 for a hotel breakfast."

He was usually critical of whomever occupied the White House, once telling a nationwide television audience while on a television talk show that the last really good president, in his opinion, was Calvin Coolidge.

Low In Mid 20s Predicted

A damp norther dusted parts of the Texas Panhandle with snow and sent freezing drizzle or light rain spreading deep into the state today.

The swift-moving cold front was expected to sweep all the way to the Middle Texas Coast by nightfall.

Midlanders are expected to see the season's lowest temperature tonight when the mercury plummets into the middle 20s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal.

The high marks for this afternoon and Saturday should range in the low to middle 40s, following the Thursday high of 70. The low this morning was 35.

Hazardous driving conditions were reported in Wichita Falls, where snow continued to fall late in the morning with an accumulation of about an inch in 28-degree weather.

Sleet mixed with rain fell on Dallas.

The National Weather Service at Brownsville warned agricultural interests in the Lower Rio Grande Valley to prepare for a cold night. Temperatures were forecast to drop into the upper 20s in the western and the northern fringes of the valley's citrus belt.

The most dismal weather was generally confined to extreme North and North Central Texas.

About one-half inch of snow whitened the ground at Dalhart in the upper Panhandle and occasional flakes fluttered down at Amarillo. Forecasters looked for the snow to spread as far south as Abilene.

Freezing drizzle caused a little icing around Childress before dawn, and cold rain kept moving downstate with the advancing front. There was no re-

Kissinger Arranges Trip Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will visit mainland China sometime next year, White House press Secretary Ron Nessen announced today.

Tentative plans for the visit, which would be the second by an American president in three years, were arranged by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in talks in Peking this week with Chinese officials.

"I look forward to visiting the People's Republic of China sometime next year and to continuing the process of normalizing our relations," Ford said in a written statement.

Nessen said he could not be more specific on the timing of Ford's trip.

Brief Communique

Plans for the Ford visit were disclosed in an unusually brief communique issued simultaneously in Washington and Peking to report on Kissinger's visit to the Chinese capital.

Nessen summoned reporters and read the text of the brief document, which said simply:

"Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, U.S. secretary of State and assistant to the President for national security affairs, visited the People's Republic of China from Nov. 25 through Nov. 29, 1974. The U.S. and Chinese sides held frank, wide-ranging and mutually beneficial talks. They reaffirmed their unchanged commitment to the principles of the Shanghai communique. The two governments agreed that President Gerald R. Ford would visit the People's Republic of China in 1975."

Issued In 1972

The Shanghai communique was issued at the conclusion of former President Richard M. Nixon's pioneering trip to China in February 1972.

In that document, the two countries pledged they would work toward a normalization of relations.

Nixon and his Chinese hosts failed to agree, however, on a common policy toward the Nationalist Chinese island of Taiwan.

Secretary Of State Leaves Chind With No Breakthrough

PEKING (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, on his way home from Peking without seeing Chairman Mao, made no major breakthrough during this trip to the Chinese capital.

But he said Thursday night in a parting toast the Americans and their hosts had "deepened our common understanding. . . . We committed ourselves to continuing the process of normalization."

Fly To Tokyo

Kissinger, his wife Nancy and his two children by a previous marriage — Elizabeth, 15, and David, 13 — flew to Tokyo today after sightseeing in the ancient garden city of Soochow.

The secretary was meeting with Japanese Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura Saturday before returning to Washington.

Kissinger met twice on Thursday with China's vice premier, Teng Hsiao-ping, but no details on the talks were disclosed.

In his banquet toast to Kissinger, Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua said their exchanges were held "in a candid spirit." Kissinger replied that "the process of improving relations with the People's Republic is a fixed principle of American foreign policy."

Unsettled Point

The Taiwan issue remains a major unsettled point between Washington and Peking. U.S. officials said both sides were simply waiting for developments on Taiwan, and neither side is pushing for a fast resolution.

China wants the United States to break off its ties with Chaing Kai-shek's Nationalist China regime on Taiwan.

Mao Tse-tung invited Kissinger to personal meetings during both of the American's visits to China last year.

On this trip Kissinger saw Premier Chou En-lai, the second most powerful man in China. But the lack of an audience with Chairman Mao was an obvious disappointment, although it might have been because the Chinese felt their 80-year-old leader was physically too weak for such a meeting.

Death Toll Hits 28 In Two Storms

By The Associated Press

A 12-foot tidal wave swept across small islands in the center of Bangladesh's "cyclone alley," and first reports reaching Dacca today said 20 people were dead.

In the Philippines, the toll in the wake of Typhoon Irma climbed to eight dead and rescue officials rushed aid to about 300,000 persons whose homes were destroyed or damaged on the main island of Luzon.

Irma struck Luzon Thursday with winds reaching 115 miles per hour and initial reports estimated crop damage at $6 million. Today the storm weakened to 90 m.p.h. as it headed out to the South China Sea.

The Bangladesh cyclone roared inland Thursday from the Bay of Bengal on the southeastern coast near Burma.

Sixteen fishermen were reported killed on Sonadia, one of four islands still without outside communications today. The others were Kutubdia, Maiskhal and Chakaria.

But the fate of thousands of other islanders was unknown.

Large areas were flooded near the southern port of Chittagong and the beach area at Cox's Bazar, 200 miles south of Dacca. News reports said thousands of dwellings were destroyed.

The mainland appeared to have been spared the full force of the 100 m.p.h. winds although first reports said the storm sent ashore a 10-foot tidal wave.

Officials in Dacca said Bangladesh navy and merchant vessels sailed the region for rescue operations.

The Red Cross sent volunteers with relief supplies from Cox's Bazar, but they were impeded by uprooted trees blocking roads to the north of the city.

The area, directly in the path of most cyclones that come into Bangladesh from the bay, is dotted with islands. In the delta of the Ganges River, it is the most densely populated region of the impoverished country of 75 million because of the fertile soil deposited there by the Ganges.

Death estimates from a cyclone that struck there in 1970 never have been verified, but most sources say 300,000 to 900,000 persons were killed.

The Philippines National Disaster Control Center placed initial damage to crops and property at $6 million in that country, mostly in the central plains of Luzon, the main island. Irma struck the area, the Philippines' main rice-growing region, on Thursday with maximum winds of 115 m.p.h.

The Philippines Constabulary said four persons drowned and three were reported missing from a boat that capsized off Boac, Marinduque, 100 miles southeast of Manila. The boat carried 102 passengers, the constabulary said. The fifth known victim of the storm was a woman killed by a flying sheet of galvanized iron in Zambales province north of Manila.

Irma was the seventh typhoo.. to strike the Philippines in two months.

Nitze Says New U.S.-Soviet Arms Accord Falls Short Of Objectives

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul H. Nitze, a former top U.S. arms limitations negotiator, says the new U.S.-Soviet agreement fails to go far enough in curbing the nuclear weapons race.

"The real problem we face is the imminent deployment of a new family of Soviet missiles," Nitze said in an interview. "I don't see that the new pact reduces that problem appreciably."

He also said he had hoped for a lower ceiling on missiles that can carry multiple independently targetable warheads (MIRVs) than the 1,200 to 1,300 reportedly allowed on each side under the new agreement.

Nitze, who played a key role in negotiations leading to the first SALT agreement in 1972, resigned abruptly last June, saying the Watergate scandal made it impossible for the Nixon administration to achieve a successful long-term pact that would enhance U.S. security.

He said at the time that, until the effectiveness of the presidency was restored, "I see no real prospect for reversing certain unfortunate trends in the evolving situation" surrounding the then-deadlocked talks on SALT II.

Asked for his opinion of the new agreement worked out during Ford's meeting with Soviet Communist chief Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok, Nitze said, "I am disappointed."

Nitze made it clear he is concerned because the agreement leaves the Russians free to deploy big new missiles with several times the "throw weight," or lifting power, of U.S. missiles.

With this major "throw weight" superiority, critics say, the Russians may be able to mount enough powerful and accurate MIRV warheads by the early 1980s to threaten U.S. land-based missiles in their launch silos, even with the agreed ceiling on the number of missiles that can launch them.

As a result of the new agreement's failure to curb Russia's big new multiple warhead missiles, Nitze said, "There is much we will need to do" to assure the survivability of the U.S. land-based missile force.

"We certainly should consider a land-mobile missile," Nitze said.

A mobile missile system, which would be costly, would be extremely difficult for an enemy to destroy in a surprise attack, unlike missiles which sit in fixed silos.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 29, the 333rd day of 1974. There are 32 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the monarchy was abolished in Yugoslavia.

On this date:

In 1760, the French surrendered Detroit to the British at the end of the French and Indian War.

In 1825, the first Italian opera presented in the United States, Rossini's "Barber of Seville," was performed in New York.

In 1899, the United States, Switzerland and France recognized the Republic of Brazil.

In 1922, archaeologists announced they had found fabulous treasure in the tomb of King Tutankhamen in Egypt.

In 1929, U.S. Navy Lt. Commander Richard Byrd radioed that he had made the first flight over the South Pole.

Ten years ago: Several hundred thousand Chinese demonstrated in Peking against American involvement in the Congo, calling it aggression.

Five years ago: Communist forces in South Vietnam eased up a four-week offensive in which nearly 400 South Vietnamese and 70 Americans were killed.

One year ago: More than 100 persons perished in a department store fire in Kumamoto, Japan.

Today's birthdays: Skiier Suzanne Chaffe is 28. Artist James Rosenquist is 41.

Dane Takes Page From Evel's Book

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A Danish performer who bills himself as "The Human Cannon" says he plans to make an 8,000-foot flight from the top of the Eiffel Tower to the roof of the Arch de Triomphe.

But Stephen Leoni, 36, refused to say how he will make the trip which he says will make Evel Knievel's Snake River Canyon jump look like child's play.

He did say he won't be shot out of a cannon when he makes the flight next summer.

Detectives Press British Manhunt

LONDON (AP) — Detectives hunting for the Earl of Lucan, who is wanted for murder, have been granted permission by a magistrate to examine his bank accounts.

Lord Lucan, 39, disappeared three weeks ago shortly before the body of his children's nanny, Mrs. Sandra Rivett, was found trussed in a canvas bag at his wife's home. He is also sought for the attempted murder of his wife.

Detective Chief Superintendent Roy Ranson said he was not interested in the Earl's financial holdings, but he did want to know whether any money had been withdrawn recently.

Bomb Blast Demolishes Virginia Family's Home

McLEAN, Va. (AP) — "We had been planning just a regular Thanksgiving — but now I'm glad that we're alive," said Linda Banks, whose $200,000 home was demolished in an apparent bombing.

Mrs. Banks, her husband William and their three young daughters were awakened early Thursday morning as an explosion blew out one side of their refurbished 100-year-old farmhouse. All five escaped injury.

A Fairfax County police spokesman said, "We don't know what type of bomb it was, but we do know it was an explosive device" that demolished the two-story frame house.

Police said there appeared to be nor political motive and it seemed as if someone planted a bomb in the house in "some sort of personal vendetta."

The explosion apparently originated in a first floor area of the home containing a utility room and recreational facilities, officers said.

Two Cars Destroyed

Two family cars in the outside driveway were destroyed and windows were blown out of the nearest house about 200 feet away.

Mrs. Banks said she and her husband were asleep in a second floor bedroom and the children were sleeping in another part of the house. She said the children screamed and she and her husband "gathered them up and ran."

Banks, an executive of the construction firm of Banks & Lee, Inc., said he and his family had just about finished renovating the house. They moved into it about three years ago.

Hospital Releases Separated Twins

PHILADELPHIA — Altagracia and Clara Rodriguez, Siamese twins until they were separated in a rare operation two months ago, have been discharged from Children's Hospital.

"May God bless this country and its people," said Mrs. Salvador Rodriguez, their mother. The twins had been born Aug. 12, 1973 in the Dominican Republic.

Mrs. Rodriguez was told the girls would die but Mrs. Joseph Zimnoch of Harrington, Pa., got her church to raise funds to bring them here for surgery.

A 23-member medical team performed the 6½ hour operation in September.

Canadian Solon Urges Continued Trade With U.S.

OTTAWA (AP) — Sen. Grattan O'Leary says any attempts to diminish Canada's trade dependence on the United States would amount to "treason to Canada."

The Progressive-Conservative from Ontario added that suggestions that Canada join the Common Market are "dangerous heresy."

The 86-year-old senator said Thursday, "Just as in the old days when we were twisting the tail of the British lion, we now are plucking the feathers of the American eagle."

But he added he wasn't suggesting Canada should become a U.S satellite.

San Antonio's Bus Deadlock Continues

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The work stoppage that has left San Antonio without bus service entered its third week today with little chances foreseen for a settlement to get the buses back on the streets.

The shutdown began Nov. 14 when members of the Amalgamated Transit Union Local 694 called for a "permanent meeting" that in effect meant going on strike although as city employes they cannot do it.

The union has called a special session Monday night to vote on the latest proposal submitted by the San Antonio Transit System.

Union president Robert Thompson said after a meeting Wednesday that "some progress" has been made on the wage proposal and benefit package but, "It really amounts to very little."

Transit system assistant manager Tom Fuller said any further discussion about "more money is fruitless" because the city has reached "the limit" on the money it is willing to pay. The city has offered a 6 per cent increase.

Thompson said one of the problems is—lack of communication.

Thompson said eight days of system and union negotiations have been "wasted."

He said on several occasions the union committee would get the nod from the system committee on a proposal on one day and have it rejected the next.

The transit manager said the committee meetings have been "frustrating" because there is "very little to talk about when you've reached the limit on money spending."

"We're not trying to put things off," Fuller said.

"We are encouraging the union to recognize there is no more money allocated."

"As soon as the union comes to that type of thinking we can come to agreements such as other options."

Colonel, Ronald Ziegler Win Doublespeak Awards

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The annual Doublespeak Awards have been imposed on one-time White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, an Air Force colonel, a candy company and a college official.

The awards were made by the Committee on Public Doublespeak at the National Council of Teachers of English convention. Doublespeak is a term invented to describe the words and phrases used to distort language to mislead, or to hide or gloss over unpleasant truths.

'It's Not Bombing'

Air Force Col. David Opfer was honored for complaining to reporters about their stories on a U.S. bombing raid, "You always write it's bombing, bombing, bombing. It's not bombing! It's air support."

Ziegler's prize was for his response to a question from reporters about whether a batch of Watergate tapes was intact. The reply was:

"I would feel that most of the conversations that took place in those areas of the White House that did have the recording system would in almost their entirety be in existence but the special prosecutor, the court, and, I think, the American people are sufficiently familiar with the recording system to know where the recording devices existed and to know the situation in terms of the recording process but I feel, although the process has not been undertaken yet in preparation of the material to abide by the court decision, really, what the answer to that question is."

The other citations were to the M&M-Mars candy company, for candy advertising, and to Donald Jay Willower, professor of education at Pennsylvania State University.

CRANE — Joonna Smitherman and Randall Pittman, both seniors in Crane High School, have been named Gold Star Girl and Boy of Crane County 4-H for this year.

Joonna, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Smitherman. An eight-year member of 4-H, she has worked projects in foods, clothing, lambs, public speaking and recreation. She is president of the Senior 4-H Club and has been a delegate to the State 4-H Club Congress and to the District 4-H Council.

Randall, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Pittman. During his five years in 4-H work, he has had projects in lambs, steers and swine and is presently president of the steer club. He has attended the Range Camp at Junction, the State 4-H Congress and the State 4-H Round-up.

Most Expensive Film

The most expensive film ever made is "War and Peace," the U.S.S.R. government adaption of the masterpiece of Tolstoy produced by Sergeo Bondarchuk over the period 1962-1967. The total cost has been officially stated to be more than $96 million.

Next Time They'll Take The Car Keys

EGG HARBOR, N.J. (AP) — Two policemen responded to a burglar alarm that went off at a women's apparel shop Thursday.

They left the motor of their patrol car running while they checked the store. After they found nothing missing in the store, they tried to find their car. Someone had stolen it.

Fraudulent Marriage Racket Involving Aliens Booming

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities are worried about a booming racket in marriages purchased by poor aliens from those who prey upon their dreams of life in the United States.

Fraudulent marriage rackets are popping up with increasing frequency in the big cities harboring thousands of aliens who come to this country illegally and live in daily fear of deportation.

Probes Increased

Officials of the Immigration and Naturalization Service say they have stepped up their investigations of the practice.

The scheme typically involves a racketeer scenting easy prey in the alien desperate to remain in the United States but understanding little of its language and less about its laws.

These aliens usually were lured here by the promise of jobs and high wages to send home to their impoverished families. Others may have come to study at universities, then lingered beyond the time allowed by their student visas.

Whatever their motives, they form the pool of potential victims or sometimes knowing conspirators in the marriage scheme.

The racketeer and the alien need one other party to complete the fraud: a U.S. citizen or legal resident alien willing to marry for money or at least go through the motions of a wedding ceremony.

Wedded to an American citizen or permanent legal immigrant, an alien almost automatically gains official permission to remain in the United States no matter how he got here.

William Wood, a criminal investigator for the Immigration Service, said some fraudulent marriages appear to be real because the spouses live together for a time. But investigators become suspicious when the alien spouse wins legal resident status, then quickly files for divorce.

The organized marriage racket, however, often relies on a few American citizens who carry out multiple "marriages" with the aid of false identification papers, Wood said in an interview.

$1,500 Wedding

Marriage brokers charge an alien anywhere from $250 to $1,500 to arrange the wedding, he added.

"Fraudulent marriage is one of the popular, growing and expensive schemes to flout the immigration laws," INS Commissioner Leonard F. Chapman said in a recent speech.

"Organized marriage rings are being uncovered monthly," he continued. "We recently discovered in Miami a woman and her two daughters who had petitioned for entry into this country for 13 alien 'husbands,' all from Haiti.

"The mother has eight marriages that we know of, one daughter has three and the other has two — all without benefit of divorce."

He said the Americans who agree to marry aliens often are victims themselves.

Persons Of Low Income

"Many are persons of low income, especially women who perhaps have children to support," he related. Aliens searching for Americans to marry are more often men, he said.

"Not in every case does the U.S. citizen know that the marriage may be fraudulent," Wood continued. "The alien will on the surface show affection and the woman may think it's true love."

Foreign Banks Investing In Stolen Italian Art, Rome Publication Claims

ROME (AP) — A government publication charges that foreign banks are investing in stolen Italian art works and that several European museums are displaying "illegally acquired" masterpieces.

A recent issue of Vita Italiana, published by the office of the premier, said more than 8,000 works were stolen in 1973 and the problem is worsening.

Museums Emptied

It declared that the provincial archaeological museum of Brindisi and the civic museum of Termini Imerese have been virtually emptied. Thieves have pilfered from them 1,500 ancient vases, coins and bronze statues, mostly dating back to Greek and Roman times, it said.

An Italian abroad feels "painfully astonished" at seeing masterpieces of "illegal acquisition" exhibited not only in private collections but also in state museums, Vita Italiana said.

It cited a madonna and child by Lorenzo Monaco reported stolen in Milan and now on show in the Museum of Stuttgart in West Germany. As another example, it said a panel painted in 1483 by Jacopo del Sellaio was stolen from the church of San Frediano in Florence and is now on display at the State Museum of Berlin.

Painting In Germany

"Perhaps the most striking case is that of a madonna by Paolo Veronese. It was taken away by German armies in 1943 and is still adorning a German government building," the article said.

It said most of the stolen art works are smuggled and sold abroad by international organizations "that can count on a ring of experts" and claimed that "some European banks" investment plans include the purchase of art works even if stolen." Vita Italiana identified none of the banks allegedly involved.

The article complained that legislation from sources like the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization have been ineffective in halting the drain. "Not all countries have signed the UNESCO agreement calling for the extradition of art works unlawfully imported," it said.

"You can trade a stolen art piece as you like if you just keep it hidden for a while."

As for Italy's efforts to protect its artistic heritage, the publication said sufficient protection is almost impossible. Italy has almost 30,000 churches and 60,000 other religious buildings, many with splendid Renaissanee period artifacts; 200 state museums; and hundreds of municipal and private art collections.

'Marriage' Author Sued For Divorce

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The wife of a St. Louis Park physician and author is suing him for dissolution of their marriage.

Dr. John Eichenlaub's wife, Elizabeth, contends in Hennepin District Court that their marriage of 30 years has broken down irretrievably.

Among books written by Eichenlaub was a best-seller titled "The Marriage Art."

U.S. Coast Guard Continues Search For Missing Trio

FREEPORT, Tex. (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard plane was to continue a search today for three Houston men missing since last Sunday on a duck hunting trip along the coast south of here.

Missing are Richard Jacobson, 26, Ronald Jacobson, 17, and James Lamberth, 23. The Jacobsons are brothers.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman in New Orleans said Thursday two Coast Guard planes and a beach party searched from the mouth of the Brazos Rivers south to Matagorda Ship Channel at Port O'Connor but turned up nothing new.

The search began Tuesday after the trio failed return from the trip. Their 14-foot aluminum boat was found Wednesday drifting in the Gulf of Mexico about 40 miles southeast of here.

A pickup truck belonging to Lamberth was found half submerged Tuesday in the marshlands at the mouth of the Brazos.

Fast Turtle

The leatherback turtle is said to swim as fast as an athlete sprinting the 100-yard dash, according to the staff at the Miami Seaquarium, currently studying one in a tank. If this turtle could maintain the speed of 100 meters in 10 seconds for as long as an hour, he would be traveling about 22 miles an hour.

Mrs. Don Weaver

Kathryn Owens Lightfoot, Cecil Don Weaver Marry

ABILENE — The Rev. Sharon Howell, minister of the Edwardsville United Methodist Church, Edwardsville, Kan., and cousin of the bride, officiated for the Thanksgiving Day marriage of Kathryn Owens Lightfoot and Cecil Don Weaver.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James L. Owens of 4416 Monty Drive, Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil C. Weaver of Albany.

Mrs. Velma Welch of Albany, organist, provided wedding music for the double ring ceremony performed at 4 p.m. in the chapel of Aldersgate United Methodist Church here.

Best men were Joe Bob Brewster of Monahans and Ken Caldcleugh of Amarillo. Claire Owens of Lubbock served her sister as maid of honor. Ushers were Gaye Swenn of Weatherford, Okla., and Sherry McGowen of Dimmitt.

The bride was attired in a floor-length pale oyster shell gold gown styled with long, full sleeves and a sash at the waist. She carried a bouquet of bronze and yellow daisy poms and wore matching flowers in her hair.

A reception was held in the parlor of the church.

The bride is a 1970 graduate of North Texas State University with a B. S. degree and a 1974 graduate of Southwestern Oklahoma State University with a B. S. in pharmacy. While at Southwestern, she was on the Dean's Honor Roll and was given the Rho Chi Research Award and the Meritorious Achievement Award. She was a member of Kappa Epsilon, professional fraternity for pharmacy women, and Kappa Gamma Delta, scholastic sorority, served as secretary of the Student American Pharmaceutical Association (SAPhA) and was listed in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

Weaver, a breeder and trainer of racing quarter horses, as well as a pharmacist, also is a graduate of Texas Tech and Southwestern. At Tech, he was an officer in Pi Kappa Psi, social fraternity, and a member of Alpha Zeta, professional fraternity. He was a member of SAPhA and on the Dean's Honor Roll at Southwestern. He is a member of the Shackleford County Historical Survey Committee at Albany.

Special out-of-city guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Joe M. Howell of Arp, parents of the Rev. Mr. Howell.

Parents of the bridegroom hosted a rehearsal dinner the night before the wedding in the banquet room of Abilene's Holiday Inn.

A miscellaneous bridal shower was given recently in the home of Mrs. Claudia Minton, Weatherford, Okla., with Cathy Foreman as co-hostess.

Following a wedding trip to El Paso and Sunland Park, the couple will reside in Albany.

Alpha Omegas Entertain Mu Psi Chapter Members

A yellow, orange and green color scheme was used, with silver appointments, when the Preceptor Alpha Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi entertained the Mu Psi Chapter recently with a dinner party in the home of Mrs. Robert King, 3202 Seaboard St.

Following dinner, Dubs bridge was played with winners being Mrs. Charles Boatman of the Mu Psis and Mrs. Robert Weeter of Preceptor Alpha Omega. Dorothy Herzer won overall and Mrs. King won the special prize.

Members of the guest chapter present included Mrs. Sam Barber, Mrs. Dorman Blackman, Mrs. Boatman, Mrs. Jim Campbell, Mrs. Rick Etheredge, Mrs. Bill Hartzoge, Mrs. Marty Hearne, Mrs. Dwain Martin, Mrs Jim McAninch, Mrs. William Southerland, Mrs. David Bennett, Mrs. Randy Wynne and Mrs. Carl Williams, chapter adviser.

All members of the hostess chapter were present. They were Mrs. Graham Bevel, Mrs. Ben Crowell, Mrs. Don DeBerry, Miss Herzer, Katie Hibler, Mrs. Gene Holmes, Mrs. LeJeune Horton, Mrs. Jack Howard, Mrs. King, Evelyn Levisay, Mrs. Bill McCoy, Mrs. Ernest Nance, Mrs. Rudy Rubin, Mrs. Russell Sexton, Mrs. Francis Stickney, Mrs. A. K. Thorn and Mrs. Weeter.

Hostesses with Mrs. King were Mrs. DeBerry and Mrs. Holmes, social committee members.

Mrs. Charles Lynch Hosts HD Meeting

Mrs. Charles Lynch, Route 1, hosted a recent meeting of the Valley View Home Demonstration Club when it met to plan a Christmas party slated Dec. 5 in the home of Mrs. Joyce Jones.

A state meeting report was given by Mrs. W. B. Stanley of the Prairie Lee Home Demonstration Club.

Beverly Bedford Party Honoree

Beverly Bedford, bride-elect of Gene Drummond, has been the honoree at recent pre-nuptial parties. The couple is to be married at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the First Christian Church.

A rice bag party was held in the Garden Room of Midland Country Club, with Mrs. Frank Qualia, Mrs. Lamar Eschberger and Ann Eschberger as hostesses. Members of the house party were Mrs. T. P. Tarwater, Mrs. Archie P. Farr, Mrs. Gerald Graham, Mrs. John Hackney and Mrs. K. M. Jastrow. A special guest was Miss Bedford's grandmother, Mrs. H. G. Bedford.

A "First Christmas Party" was given for the engaged couple by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winkler, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baird, Mr and Mrs. Paul Karcher and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Vasicek in the Winkler home.

Guests presented the couple with ornaments and placed them on a Christmas tree. A holiday motif was featured in the entertaining rooms.

Sewing Clothing Can Ease Bind In The Family Budget

By JOANNE SCHREIBER
(Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Feeling a little pinched in the family budget? No money for coats or curtains? It's time to take a new look at your sewing machine — it can save you money in many, many ways.

Some good suggestions come from Billie Kratky, co-owner of a fabric and sewing shop in Darien, Conn. She reports an exceptionally busy fall, with women coming in and saying such things as "I haven't sewed in 20 years but I will not pay the ready-to-wear prices!"

To get the most from your sewing dollar, Billie advises buying good fabric. "Your time is worth more than it ever was before. Don't waste it on cheap, ugly materials. Even if you pay $10 a yard for fabric — and there are plenty of lovely fabrics around for much less than that — you can make a simple dress for $25 which would be the equivalent of a $125 dress at retail."

Billie points out that fabric shops have twice-yearly sales when there are fabric bargains aplenty. Her shop's schedule is typical: In July, they clear out the summer cottons to make room for the fall wools; in January, they clear out the fall wools to make room for the summer cottons.

Try Remnants

All fabric retailers have remnant racks, to clear out the last couple of yards of a fabric at greatly reduced costs. There's nearly always enough for a skirt.

Billie tells us that patterns are getting costlier. "So don't buy a new pattern every time you sew something. Make the same basic dress in wool for winter and cotton for summer. Learn how to change the skirt line for a different look. And nobody needs more than one pattern for slacks!"

Use up the fabrics, threads, zippers and trims you've been saving. You'll clear out the clutter, save money and create new clothes — all at the same time.

Remember that useable material comes in forms other than on a bolt in a store. Sheets are the biggest bargain in home decorating — they may be used for curtains, slipcovers, tablecloths, dressing table skirts, dust ruffles or quilts. An unused blanket can be turned into a swinging cape. A quilted bedspread, though worn in the middle, will have enough good material for a child's quilt or an evening skirt.

Other Uses

Sheets which are worn in the middle should be cut to crib or carriage size or turned into extra pillowcases. Worn towels may be cut into washcloths. Large curtains may be cut down to smaller ones. A pretty tablecloth will make a pretty skirt or dress.

The proverbial "stitch in time" is a money saver. If you sew on that loose button, you won't have to spend for a whole new set of expensive buttons when you lose the loose one. If you patch a tiny hole, it won't turn into a big one. If you reinforce the knees of new jeans, they will wear longer. If you check the seams of a new dress and repair places where the thread has popped or a seam has raveled, your dress will wear longer.

Secure Ends

Keep a few spring-type clothespins in the kitchen, handy in a drawer, where you can use them to secure the opened ends of packages of bread, cookies, dried beans or crackers.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Blue And Pink Make Snow Pants Orchid

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR POLLY — I washed the pants to a child's light blue hylon snow suit in the same load with a pink house coat. The house coat had been washed before but this time the color ran and now the blue pants are orchid. You can imagine how they look with the blue coat. The suit is in good condition and my younger child could wear it if I could get the color back. Any help, anyone? — CAROL.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those companies that send bills marked "Do not fold or mutilate" and then enclose envelopes too small for the bills.—TONIA.

POLLY'S NOTE: May I add my Peeve about enclosed envelopes that are a bit too small to take a check without folding one end?

DEAR POLLY — I have an idea for Willia Ann whose first grade pupils are going to make Christmas gifts for their mothers. Have each child bring a favorite recipe from home, compile all these into a simple little book so each of the children could give his or her mother a copy as a gift. My mother uses the one I made her all the time. —SUSAN.

DEAR POLLY — An ideal Christmas gift project for Willia Ann's first graders would be to have them bring tops from spray cans of deodorant, starch and such, fill each with plaster, insert a plastic fork (prongs up) to hold recipe cards. A small artificial flower also could be inserted in front of the fork. Cheap but practical and I am sure children's mothers would find them most useful.—DEL.

DEAR POLLY — The rod in my closet was set so close to the shelf above that taking clothes off the hangers was a lot of trouble until I had my husband make some small wood blocks that we slipped under the corners of the shelf. They raised the shelf enough so the hangers now slip on and off easily. —MRS. C.B.S.

DEAR POLLY — I hope I have help for Willia Ann who wants ideas for things her first grade pupils can make for their mothers for Christmas. Cover the entire outside of a small glass baby food jar with that popular milky white all-purpose glue and then apply brightly colored scraps of tissue paper. Allow to dry thoroughly and then outline the various pieces with a black marking pen. Make the pieces and lines straight or angular so the finished product looks like stained glass. Put a small fat scented candle inside each one. You will have a holiday decoration the child and mother can both be proud of. — JANICE.

Holiday Dinner Held By Lodges

The Rebekah Lodge and IOOF Lodge met recently in the Odd Fellow Hall for a Thanksgiving dinner.

The table was decorated with autumn flowers and turkey figures.

Mrs. Pat Killmer presented a Thanksgiving program, with Mrs. Mary Hubble reading a poem and the audience participating in a sing-song.

The guest speakers were Henry McIntyre, IOOF grandmaster of Texas, and Leonard Miller, past grand master.

Hostesses to the dinner were Mrs. Archie Booth, Mrs. Anna Bell Mauldin, Mrs. Nelly Hughes; Mrs. Hubble and Mrs. Killmer.

An hour of fellowship was held following the dinner.

New officers of the lodge will be installed in January.

Martin Earnest Synatschk Marries Katherine Ozmun

Mrs. M. E. Synatschk

AUSTIN — Katherine Jeanne Ozmun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ozmun of Tulsa, Okla., and Martin Earnest Synatschk Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Earnest Synatschk of Route 1, Midland, were married at 3 p.m. Thursday in St. Theresa Catholic Church here.

The Rev. Marion Atomanczys officiated for the double ring ceremony. The music was provided by Mrs. Allan B. Noonan, organist, and John Walding, soloist.

Mrs. Dan T. Harrell Jr., twin sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Cathy Dunn of Austin was maid of honor. The bridegroom's sister, Sara Synatschk of Midland, was the bridesmaid.

Bruce E. Synatschk of Midland was his brother's best man. Henry Blackwell, Dan T. Harrell Jr. and Leroy Materanek were the groomsmen. Guests were ushered by Kenneth Synatschk and Stephen Synatschk of Midland, brothers of the bridegroom, and Joseph Michael Ozmun of Austin and Kevin Patrick Ozmun of Norman, Okla., brothers of the bride.

Mr. Ozmun presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a formal gown of white satin-faced organza with a full skirt with chapel train bordered with a wide flounce edged in Venise lace. The bodice of Venise lace over organza had a square scalloped neckline and full bishop sleeves with wide Venise lace cuffs. A Camelot-styled headpiece covered with matching Venise lace had a double tier of silk illusion veiling in fingertip length. She carried a cascade of Woburn Abbey roses, miniature white carnations, Marguerite daisies, English ivy, baby's breath and ferns.

The reception was held in the church parlor.

The couple will reside at 5701 Ave. F in Austin. She and the bridegroom received bachelor of science degrees in elementary education from The University of Texas-Austin. They both are employed by the Austin Independent School District as special education teachers. She is teaching at Reagan High School, and he is a teacher at Marbridge Ranch.

Midkiff Study Club Holds Meeting

MIDKIFF — The Midkiff Study Club met recently for its regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Frank Midkiff, with Mrs. Tennie Rosenbaum as co-hostess.

Tyson Midkiff of Rankin presented a program on the early community of Dameron City, which was on the Midland-Upton County line. This community was built in the early 1900s and Frank Midkiff and his brother, the late Herd Midkiff, helped survey the town site. Mrs. Rosenbaum also reminisced on the historical events of the community.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tyson Midkiff, Mrs. Gertrude Smith of Rankin, Mrs. Nell Benedict and Mrs. Joyce Robinson of Midland and Mrs. Son Jackson and Frank Midkiff of Midkiff.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

Lawyer Advises Lady To Charge

DEAR ABBY: As a lawyer, may I comment on the dilemma of the divorcee who didn't know what to say when a man asked for sex outside of marriage?

She should give him a calm, lawyer-like answer; he is asking her to trust him with her body. She is running the risk of an unwanted pregnancy. What is HE risking?

Shouldn't the risk be equal? Why doesn't he give her $1,000 in cash to put into her savings account, and at the end of nine months, if there is no unwanted baby, she can cheerfully return his $1,000.

If she does become pregnant, she can use the money for an abortion, or partial support of the child. In that way, he at least risks something. It is clearly unfair to ask a girl to have sex, and should something go wrong, all the risk be hers.

While the risk can never be made truly equal, the deposit of $1,000 to her account before sex would make it a little more equal.

I wonder how many men who would ask a girl to risk her body are willing to risk some of their money?

J.M.S.: PLANDOME, N.Y.

DEAR J.M.S.: If your proposition is truly "lawyer-like," the legal profession is in trouble. The girl's unlawyer-like response could be: "If you really want to monkey around, I'm not settling for peanuts!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old fellow who has always liked older women. (I mean women about 45 or 50. I really groove on gray hair, and a woman with middle-age spread.)

I could never get turned on by girls my own age, and I have tried. Do you think there's something wrong with me?

When I was 17, I became very much attracted to one of my high school teachers (she was about 40), and she told me I should have a long talk with the school psychologist, but I never did.

I've heard of men marrying women 20 years older than themselves, and I can't see where there is anything terribly wrong with that.

Please tell me if you think I have a problem, and if I have, how serious is it? Thanks.

Don't tell me I am searching for my mother, because she died when I was a baby and you can't miss what you've never had.

LIKES THEM OLDER

DEAR LIKES: Yup. You have a problem. Your high school teacher gave you some good advice. You need professional help, and I suggest you get it. (P.S. And who said you can't miss what you've never had? It's possible to miss that the most.)

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, I married a handsome, trim man with whom I'd been in love for three years. The first four years of our married life were wonderful. The last two have been something else.

He started to gain weight, and kept piling it on until now he looks like a barrel of lard. When I try to tell him it's unhealthy and unsightly, he gets angry and refuses to listen. He is so gross it makes me sick to look at him. I no longer want him to make love to me. He's repulsive.

Three weeks ago, I gave him an ultimatum. Either lose 50 pounds in the next six months, or I'm leaving. Apparently he didn't take me seriously because he's still drinking and eating like a herd of horses.

I'm not asking for advice. I want to go on record in your column, and I'll see that he reads it.

MEANS BUSINESS

DEAR MEANS: You're on record, but if you really love him, you'll help him. An ultimatum is no help. He needs a physical examination, a good diet program, and lots of love and moral support from you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANNAMARIE: One woman's leftovers can be another woman's banquet. Now is the time to talk turkey.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

One-Man Navy In Des Moines

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Des Moines Police Department has a one-man Navy in Danny Palmer.

The 37-year-old patrolman cruises the Des Moines river in an 18-foot boat powered by a 455 cubic-inch engine. His job is to see that boaters take proper safety precautions on the river. He is also responsible for emergency river rescues and is trained in life saving techniques.

"On a Saturday, Sunday or a holiday, there can be between 35 to 40 boats on the river," Palmer said. "They are running over one another. That's when you have your work cut out for you."

BPS Chapter Holds Rituals

Rituals were held recently by the Xi Epsilon Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi when it met in the home of Mrs. Wayne Richardson, 2301 Stanolind St.

Pledge rituals were held for Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Ed Heath and Mrs. Edd Tucker. The Ritual of Jewels was conducted for Mrs. Richard Schultz.

A leave of absence was granted to Mrs. Duane Peters.

Each member brought a Christmas gift for the girl the chapter sponsors at Girlstown, U.S.A. A program on India and Southeast Asia was presented by Mrs. Herman York.

The next chapter meeting will be a Dec. 9 Christmas dinner at High Sky Restaurant at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Delightful Flavor

Sliced bananas won't become dark, but will acquire a delightful flavor, if you dip the slices into fresh or canned lime, grapefruit, orange, lemon, or pineapple juice.

Many Uses

Keep a pot of chives growing in the kitchen window. A few sprigs cut off and chopped fine peps up mashed or baked potatoes. They are delicious in many kinds of salads and on meats. They add zip to salad dressings, vegetable sauces, and cheese dips, too.

Doll Collecting No Longer Limited To Children's Play

By JEAN BARNES
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Traditionally, from now until Dec. 25th is "doll season." But for many the season never closes, they never outgrow the desire for dolls.

Ruth (Mrs. G. E.) Mills is one such. Mrs. Mills of Wichita, Kan., has been a doll collector more than half a century. She is a recognized authority on the subject and, if her collection is an example, a connoisseur.

She began collecting at the age of nine with family dolls, then became interested in German bisque dolls and later advanced to the French dolls. Now, she says she is a "plebian" collector and has a sampling of almost every kind of doll possible.

'Didn't Know Much'

"When I started collecting I didn't know much," she said. "I bought because I liked them and they appealed to me." This is her advice to beginning collectors. "Don't buy what you are supposed to have in a collection, add what you like."

Dolls have been around since nearly 2000 B.C. and have evolved from the form of an idol or figurine for adults. These were supposedly endowed with the spirit of ancestors or magical properties. As man's knowledge increased and superstition faded the child began using the doll for play.

For Royalty

Prior to the 18th century, dolls were made by artists for children of royalty. During that century, improved production methods made it possible for potters and craftsmen to make dolls in larger quantities. By the 19th century, fine dolls were available to almost every family. These are the dolls today's collectors seek but many are focusing their attention on the older dolls of this century which are still plentiful.

Rare Dolls

One of the rarest dolls in Mrs. Mills' collection was purchased for $2 during the Depression. "That's when you could take a taxi for ten cents," she explained. To pay for her "extravagance" she forced herself to walk to and from work 20 times.

Most of her dolls are displayed in three floor-to-ceiling glass cases which nearly fill the medium-sized room. An area adjacent to the "doll room" is used as a work space where Mrs. Mills restores and refurbishes dolls and costumes for her collection.

Mrs. Mills, herself a member of the United Federation of Doll Clubs, advises would-be collectors to consider membership in a doll club. "It's a good way to learn."

After many years as a doll collector, she still has a deep joy in her hobby and philosophized, "When the world at the dolls and think: 'They gets too much for me, I look remain the same."

DOLL COLLECTING — Dolls designed to delight children of the 19th Century now are the prized possessions of collectors. Pictured are a few of the dolls from the collection of Mrs. Ruth Mills. Doll in center is life-sized.

Policemen's Mother Is Proud

NEW YORK (AP) — The four sons of Mrs. Petra Sanchez give her a sense of pride as wide as the nation — what with three of them serving as New York City police officers and the fourth as a Los Angeles policeman.

All the sons gathered recently when Anthony, 33, came home on furlough from Los Angeles for a family reunion and to pay homage to Mrs. Sanchez, a 69-year-old widow.

Mrs. Sanchez' other sons are: John, 39, George, 36, and Richard, 31.

Wave Of Firearms From California May Be Flooding Across Border

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — A wave of firearms purchased or stolen in California by aliens may be flooding across the border into the hands of Mexican revolutionaries and drug barons.

Federal, state and local authorities say they are aware of the problem, but the purchase of weapons by aliens apparently violates no California laws.

In a two-week period last month, 27 of 56 handguns sold in the Modesto area were purchased by Mexicans believed to be aliens, according to Stanislaus County sheriff's Lt. Jack Zietan.

If an alien is in the United States legally, he can own a gun after 90 days, said Charles Nixon, information officer for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Requirements Listed

To meet federal requirements, buyers simply provide identification such as a driver's license and sign a form saying they are not a convicted felon, a narcotics user, under 21 or dishonorably discharged from the armed forces, Nixon said.

"People in Mexico will give turquoise, gold, narcotics—anything for guns," Nixon said. "Some are criminals, some are rebels—the kind of person the government doesn't want to own guns."

The main attraction for gun running is the fabulous sums to be made if and when the guns arrive in Mexico. "You can purchase a good handgun in California for $130 to $140," Nixon said. "You can sell it for five times that much in Mexico."

Guns Illegal

A gun's great value south of the border stems mainly from the fact that it is in most cases illegal to own one there, Nixon said. Like Prohibition in the 1920s, cutting off the legal sources has created a mammoth and lucrative illegal trade.

Although selling guns to aliens is not always illegal, shipping them across the border is.

Nixon said taking guns into Mexico without a permit is a serious violation of federal law and international treaty. A permit is very hard to obtain, he added.

Many Stolen

Tulare County sheriff's Lt. Jerry Barker says many guns which wind up in the hands of revolutionaries or narcotics smugglers were originally stolen in residential burglaries, then purchased by aliens.

"We have unconfirmed reports that weapons will be taken back to Mexico by the people who run illegal aliens into the country," he said. "They take guns down and bring back aliens."

But authorities say this type of weapon is difficult to trace, and because aliens usually have no criminal record in the United States, even fingerprints and the other usual tools of the law enforcement trade are often useless in covering suspected burglars.

Support Authorities

"We see our role as mainly in support of federal authorities," said Fresno County Asst. Sheriff Americo Papaleo. "We tend to think that in addition to guns, however, quantities of ammunition are also finding their way into Mexico."

Nixon cited the case of a Nicaraguan who purchased more than 60 semiautomatic rifles from a Los Angeles gunshop to arm a revolutionary band in his country.

When a large purchase like that shows up, ATF officers investigate.

They kept the Central American under surveillance.

"He planned to drive the load, and more than 8,000 rounds of ammunition to Nicaragua through Mexico in a camper," Nixon said. "Of course, we stopped him before he crossed our border."

Thai Terrorists Kill 11, Injure 10 In Ambush

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Eight policemen and 3 university students died and 10 officers were injured seriously in an ambush by Communist terrorists on a road in northeastern Thailand, police said today. Three persons were reported missing.

The victims were attacked last Wednesday in Ubon Ratchathani province as they rode in a jeep to inspect the body of a villager killed in a clash earlier in the day, police said. They said the vehicle detonated a mine as it rounded a bend, and terrorists hiding in roadside jungle caught the survivors in a crossfire.

The attackers escaped.

Pressure, Anxieties, Depression Make Christmas Not So Merry

By ART ARTHUR
Copley News Service

CHICAGO — Conjure up a mental picture of Christmas and you'll probably come up with one including family gatherings, gaily decorated packages and plates overflowing with extraordinary foodstuffs.

Chances are you'll never give a thought to such words as "pressure," "anxieties," and "depression."

Yet, psychiatric experts here claim, those words and what they stand for are every bit as much of Christmas as Santa Claus, mistletoe or any of those features in your mental picture.

"Let's face it," says Dr. William B. Siegel, associate professor of psychiatry at Northwestern University, "the best of Christmases may be less than beautiful."

According Dr. Spriegel, there are a mber of reasons for this, mar dating back to childhood.

"For man of us," he continues, "fro childhood on, Christmas a season of magica' expectation. In adulthood, on this expectation is not achied, with pressure, anxieties , d depression the possible rest.

"Throw to this the grim adult realits —inflation, unemployment, the energy crisis or whatever—which we attempt to gloss over during the Christmas season and you can see the pontial for problems."

Two of the most popular of Christmas traditions — family gathering and gift giving—apparently cause much of the diffulty.

Famil gatherings, says George Holmes, executive director of the Family Counseling Clinic in suburban Grayslake, "put a tremendous strain on many marriage relationships."

"Young adults become particularly angry about sharing Christmas with in-laws," said psychiatrist Jack M. Buffington.

"The in-law is insisting on having Christmas and keeps saying: 'This is the way we celebrate,' and the daughter-in-law is saying to herself: 'This is not the way our family celebrates. I want to have my family's Christmas.'

"There is no winner in that kind of argument. Each one just gets crushed."

According to Dr. Edward Tyler, a child psychiatrist and associate dean of Northwestern's Medical School, the prime problem area centers around gifts.

"In our affluent society," he said, "we frequently say we are giving when what we mean is: 'Damn you, stand still while I give you something because it makes me feel good.'

"Too often we think of gifts not in terms of what the receiver wants and needs, but what we need to give, so we give inappropriately; we give too much, and we demand that the receiver be grateful.

"So what ought to be a relaxed, enjoyable period of giving and receiving, one filled with love, becomes a nightmare, filled with stress over what we gave, what we received, and whether enough gratitude was shown."

Dr. Tyler said teen-agers in particular are resentful at having to be grateful and to show that gratitude.

"That's particularly the case," the doctor said, "when parents are prone to say: 'Say thank you,' or 'Write your thank-you notes.' "

Sheep Producers Vote To Continue Promotion Of Wool

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheep producers have voted by a wide margin to continue financial support for a national wool promotion campaign through 1977, says the Agriculture Department.

A preliminary count of ballots cast in a mail referendum Nov. 4-15 shows 85.5 per cent of those voting favored continuing the promotion program. In all, USDA officials said, 40,181 producers voted in favor of the plan and 6,829 were against.

The promotion work is handled by the American Sheep Producers Council, Inc., under a cooperative agreement with the department. The program has been in operation since growers first approved it in 1954.

Financial support for the council's work comes from deductions USDA makes from federal payments due producers under terms of the National Wool Act. The deductions are at rates of up to 1.5 cents per pound for shorn wool and 7.5 cents per pound for unshorn lambs sold for slaughter.

In the fiscal year ended last June 30, the department said, the council spent about $2.2 million on wool and lamb promotion. This year's budget was set at $1.6 million.

Doctors Tell Sirica Nixon Can't Travel

cover-up defendant to take the stand in his own defense.

Haldeman began testifying after former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell completed his defense case with 20 minutes of cross examination by an attorney for one of the other defendants.

Haldeman described his role on the Nixon White House staff as having "the basic responsibility for the planning and implementation of the President's daily activities . . . my time was scheduled solely on the basis of the demands of the President's time."

'Totally Available'

He described himself as "the one person who was totally available to the President day or night" with the responsibility to "get done whatever he wanted done or find out whatever he wanted to find out."

Then he described where various White House aides worked in relation to the President's Oval Office.

Located closest to the President's office was Alexander P. Butterfield, said Haldeman. Next was the office of Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, and next to her office was Haldeman's.

Haldeman, Mitchell, former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman, former assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, one time lawyer for the Nixon reelection committee, are charged with conspiring to obstruct the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Parkinson's lawyer drew from Mitchell testimony that the former attorney general had never met Parkinson before July 13, 1972, when Parkinson was brought in to defend the re-election committee against a civil suit by the Democratic National Committee. Mitchell said he told Parkinson the re-election committee had no involvement in the Watergate break-in.

Before the trial took a one-day Thanksgiving break, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell testified that he withheld information from Watergate investigators out of a belief that he was protecting Nixon's campaign for re-election as president.

But while acknowledging he had not volunteered information, Mitchell maintained he never lied.

Mitchell was the first of the cover-up defendants to take the stand in his own defense.

The Haldeman defense outlined by his attorney, John J. Wilson, is based largely on the contention he was unaware of illegal activity on the part of others who were trying to conceal the role of Nixon campaign aides in the Watergate break-in.

Almost all day Wednesday, Mitchell underwent grueling, often heated cross examination by prosecutor James F. Neal.

Two Men Spar

For hours the two men sparred. Neal, his jaw thrust forward, glasses pushed back on his forehead, fired questions at the former attorney general who leaned back in the witness chair and often brushed aside accusations with a tart, "No, I did not, Mr. Neal."

Neal reminded Mitchell of a conversation he had on March 22, 1973, with Nixon and asked:

"Do you remember him telling you to stonewall it?"

"I remember it very well," replied Mitchell.

"And you have stonewalled it, haven't you, Mr. Mitchell," the prosecutor asked.

Mitchell insisted he and Nixon had been talking about only the Senate Watergate Committee.

Earlier, Mitchell acknowledged that he withheld some of the things he knew when interviewed by FBI agents three weeks after the break-in.

"I did not volunteer it for obvious reasons," Mitchell testified.

"What obvious reasons?" Neal asked.

"The re-election of the President of the United States," Mitchell said.

port of serious travel hazards, however.

Temperatures in the Panhandle-Plains sector near dawn dived to 21 degrees at Dalhart and 22 at Perryton, where it stayed dry; 24 at Amarillo, 27 at Childress and 28 at Lubbock. The mercury dipped to 30 at El Paso and 32 at Big Spring.

Readings at other points ranged from the higher 30s into the 60s, staying as warm as 64 at Corpus Christi and 66 at Galveston on the coast. Southeast winds pushing balmy air ashore from the Gulf of Mexico kept areas ahead of the norther comparatively warm through the night, The Associated Press reported.

Overnight temperatures in the teens were forecast for much of West Texas, and freeze warnings went up for the rest of the state's north half and adjoining parts of South Central and Southeast Texas.

The wintry onslaught blustered southward from the Panhandle-Plains sector after permitting thermometers to get no higher Thursday than 38 degrees at Amarillo. Far to the south the maximum was a relatively hot 79 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Described by Home Secretary Roy Jenkins as unprecedented in peacetime Britain, the measure outlaws the Irish Republican Army and extends police powers to search, arrest and detain suspected terrorists.

Jenkins proposed the bill after two tavern bombings blamed on the IRA killed 20 persons last week in Birmingham, England's second largest city. A bombing campaign in Britain to back up Irish separatists' drive to break Northern Ireland away from British rule has taken about 50 lives and injured 800 persons in two years.

Earlier Butz had said he regrets that his remarks has been interpreted by sone as intended "to impugn the motives or the integrity of any religious group, ethnic group or religious leader."

"It is unfortunate that a few remarks that I made at a news breakfast with 20 reporters last Wednesday morning were taken out of context in one account of that meeting and escalated in the news with an interpretation clearly not intended," Butz said in a statement issued by his office.

Oil Prices Called Culprit In Stock Market Troubles

NEW YORK (AP) — "Oil makes everything run, even the Dow Jones average."

It was early last spring and the stockbroker who made that comment was in a light-hearted mood. The approaching end of the Arab oil embargo was setting off a vigorous rally on Wall Street.

The embargo is long past now. The cheery mood of March was dissolved in the steep stock market decline that drove the Dow Jones average to a 12-year-low of 584 on Oct. 4.

No Bull Market

Stock prices have rallied since that date. The Dow Jones average was well above 650 by mid November.

But is this the beginning of a long-term bull market? There is a wide belief among experts that it isn't; that a bull market can't develop while oil prices and oil supply remain unresolved issues in the American economy.

Perhaps the recovery that stocks have shown since their low point on Oct. 4 will continue for a while longer, says Alan R. Shaw, vice president and director of market research at the brokerage firm of Harris, Upham & Co.

"But I don't think you're going to see a sustainable long-term rally, a major bull market, until you get some sort of policy or adjustment to the oil situation."

Other analysts interviewed expressed the same belief.

The core of the problem is the impact of oil on the economy. Rising oil prices cause inflation; and the combination of rising prices and uncertain supply from the Middle East contribute to a business slump.

The stock market is well known for its dislike of delicate situations. And, brokers point out, it has shown little enthusiasm for the answers to the oil problem proposed so far. These include conservation or rationing at home and intervention in the Middle East.

Many explanations were advanced for the sharp, 300-point decline in the Dow Jones industrial stocks average between March and October. Some of the explanations, such as bad weather in farm areas, had little to do with the oil situation.

But a surprising number did — enough to convince many analysts that oil uncertainties are the nearest thing to a common thread running through the market's miseries.

In early March, when the oil embargo was about to end, the stock market rallied in anticipation. The Dow Jones average spurted up 70 points. The potential effects of the dramatically higher costs for oil were overlooked, for the moment.

But since then, it has become increasingly difficult to forget.

Recent figures from the Commerce Department show that the nation imported less oil in the first eight months of this year than it did in the same 1973 period. Yet the cost of those imports jumped from $4.4 billion one year ago to $15.8 billion this year.

The result, as market analysts describe it, has been a two-pronged assault on investor confidence. First, the sharply elevated cost of oil adds to inflation, which drives people from the stock market. And second, the added cost strains the nation's finances.

"Oil prices provided the coup de grace on inflation," observes Lucien O. Hooper, a vice president at Thomson and McKinnon Auchincloss Kohlmeyer. He has spent 50 years on Wall Street.

Plastics, Fertilizers, Too

"Our rate of inflation might well have been tolerable if this hadn't happened. It raises the prices of all plastics, all fertilizers, hurts every public utility company and just about every family's budget — certainly the budget of everybody who drives an automobile."

Inflation, in turn, has helped push up interest rates, analysts note, and high costs for borrowing raise the cost of doing business for companies in every corner of the economy. This discourages economic growth.

Trade Deficit Soaring

At recent rates, economists at New York's First National City Bank have projected, the U.S. trade deficit — the amount by which our import costs exceed the value of our exports — could be as much as $6 billion for 1974.

"This isn't just an economic problem. It becomes a social and political and psychological thing," says one Wall Street executive who asked anonimity because he felt some of the views he was expressing might be unpopular.

"The market is certainly trying to tell us something now — and maybe what it's saying is that the good deal we had, the days of cheap resources are over, and we're going to have to readjust our way of doing business and our way of living life."

Post Office Sets Open House Event

Postmaster David E. Holster has announced that an "open house" celebration has been scheduled at the Main Post Office, 100 East Wall St., from 2:00 until 6:00 p.m. Dec. 7. The public is cordially invited. Refreshments will be served.

Plans are being made to have postal employes act as tour guides to explain the mail handling operations and explain the functions of some of the electronic mechanized equipment now being used in this modern new postal facility. Signs will be placed to indicate the different sections, such as carrier, airmail, parcel post, registry, cancelling and the dispatch.

Electric Eyes Used

Of special interest will be the Mark II Facer-Canceler machine that, through the use of electric eyes, will hunt the stamp on a letter and then cancel and date the letter, at the rate of 30,000 per hour. Another attraction will be the 15-ton, 70-foot-long Letter Sorting Machine. This machine is operated by some 18 people and sorts the letter mail by ZIP CODE after it is coded by specially trained clerks. This machine has a capability of 43,200 letters per hour.

Of historical interest is the fact that the new post office is located on the site of the first post office building in Midland and also the site of the first water well ever drilled in Midland.

The first post office in Midland was a boxcar set off by the Texas and Pacific Railway Co. The first postmaster in Midland was C. H. Welch, who took office on Jan. 4, 1884. Midland has had 13 postmasters over the years and Postmaster David E. Holster has served since July 26, 1963.

Holster is not only Midland postmaster, but he serves as manager of 65 other West Texas post offices comprising the Midland 769-797 Sectional Center Area that serves approximately 365,000 people covering 32,000 square miles in 23 West Texas counties. All of the mail leaving and entering this vast area comes through the Midland sectional Center Post Office.

There are presently 257 postal employes in Midland who will be glad to show the New Post Office at Open House, December 7th, 1974.

First Adhesive Stamp

The British Penny Black, the world's first adhesive postage stamp, was first issued in 1840.

BURN VICTIM—Betsy Morrison, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morrison, boards a Permian Corp. plane this morning for flight to the Shrine Burns Institute at Galveston. She received third-degree burns on her right leg and arm when hot grease accidentally spilled on her Tuesday. With Morrison and Betsy is Joseph W. Burrell of Midland, past potentate of the Suez Temple. The transportation was arranged for by the Midland Shrine Association.

Revolution Based Upon Two Battles

By PAUL DAVISON
Copley News Service

At Lexington Gen. Thomas Gage's British soldiers, under command of the very able Maj. Pitcairn, about strong, had gained no victor They were weary of marchi and under real mental strain because of what they anticipated to encounter at Conord Gen. Gage knew that large quantities of ammunition an military stores had been gathred here. This arms cache Gge ordered Pitcairn to captur or destroy.

In Concord, lass., April 19, 1775, a few ove 100 Minutemen waited anxiouy through the night. About 8n the morning, word came ofthe fighting at Lexington.

Move On Concd

After the Amicans dispersed at Lexington, ol. Smith and the British ma body of 800, moved on to Ccord.

Perhaps, thing Lexington had been an Aerican victory, about half th militiamen at Concord, now treased to about 200, took the ad to the east, to meet the Bish. The brave little battle foe marched, its fifes and drus in the lead. From the bro of a hill this eager force caht sight of the British 800. he Americans realized that e British had too large a comand to attack. The American eader gave the command a n marched back toward Concordwith the British marching only a few yards behind.

Like Dress Parie

The formatio resembled a dress parade. he American fifes and drum had changed ends and were w leading the retreat with marial music.

The American were as an honor guard fo the British regulars coming long behind. Minuteman Amos Barrett gave a description of e return to Concord: "We...rched before them with our drms and fifes a going . . . we h grand music."

The American militia retreated to the gh ground west of the Concon River and the town. The Britis with Col. Smith and Maj. Pcairn, occpied Concord witho firing a shot. The British und little military plunder. Th military stores had been mod away. John Hancock and Sa Adams had gone elsewhere. l. Smith sent a British force ross the North Bridge to atck the Colonials, who had been somewhat reinforced r units arriving from neighbring towns.

British Open Fire

A Colonial militia force headed by Capt. Isaac Dis of Acton, Mass., started do the hill to stop the British. here was no question of whofired first that time. The Britishpened fire. Capt. Davis was lled. His men spread out taking over and pouring a hot fire o the British troops, without offing any good target. Under the onstant sheltered fire, the Brish broke and fled back into oncord.

The Americans did not pur

Firing From Cover

From cover along both sides of the road, the Colonials gave the British the gun. From behind woodpiles, stone walls, sheds, houses, stumps, ditches, anything that offered cover, the Colonials, with new companies joining all the time, poured a "veritable furnace of musketry" into the thoroughly defeated British. The British tried to stand, but Col. Smith was wounded and Maj. Pitcairn lost his horse and pistols. At last, the red-coated veterans threw away their arms and ran.

Lord Percy with a British relief of some 2,000 met the running column near Lexington Green.

It stopped the run, but could not turn the retreat.

Under heavy Colonial fire from all sides, the British finally limped back to the hills above Charlestown and were safe under the guns of the British navy.

Glory, hallelujah! What a victory for an infant military force with no organized country behind it. The British lost 73 killed and 174 wounded. The Colonials lost 49 killed and 41 wounded.

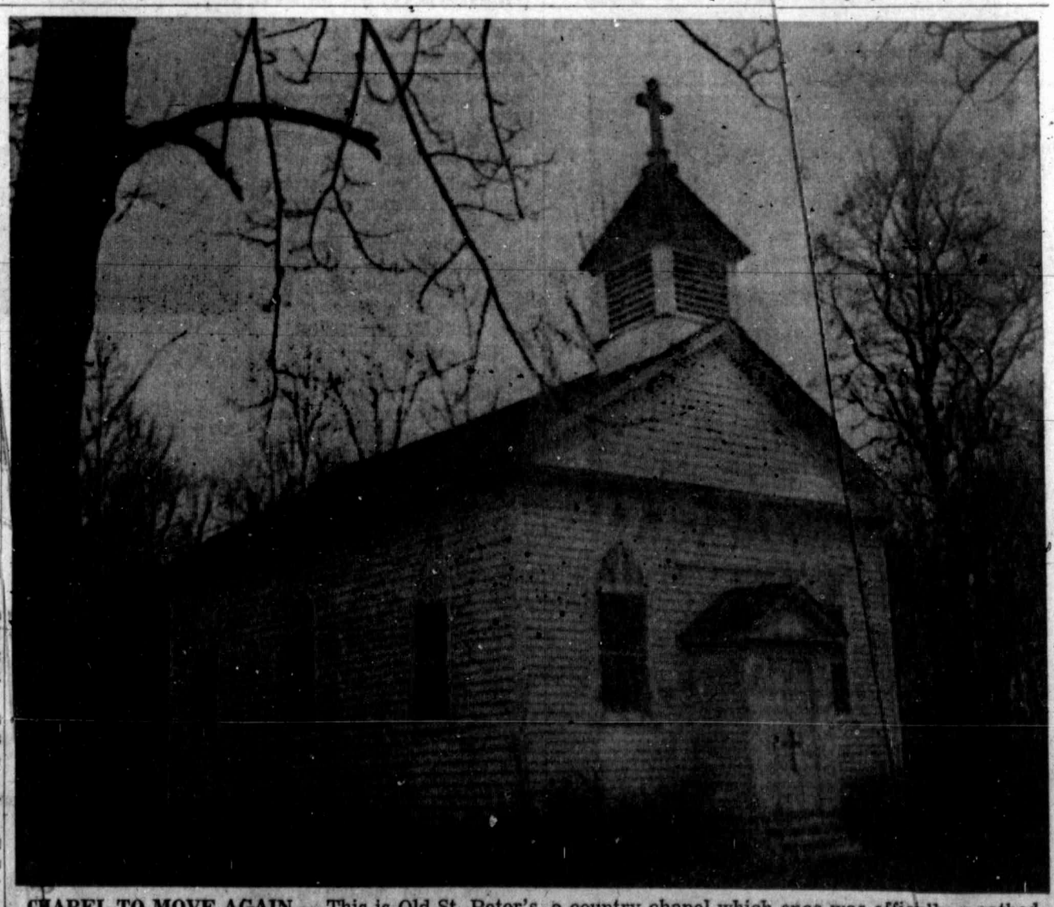
Dawson Accepts Remodeling Bid On Courthouse

LAMESA — Dawson County commissioners have accepted a base bid of $123,146.49 submitted by local contractor Joel Fletcher to remodel the lower floors of the courthouse.

The bid includes extensive mechanical and electrical work designed to improve the over-all appearance and working conditions in the courthouse. Fletcher was the only individual to submit a bid on the project.

The remodeling job is expected to be funded by federal revenue sharing monies, part of which has already been reserved for remodeling.

Other action taken in the commissioners' meeting Monday was authorization for County Judge Leslie Pratt to sign grants with the Texas Aeronautics Commission accepting $40,000 for the airport remodeling project and passing a resolution accepting $222,403 from the Federal Aviation Agency for the same project.



CHAPEL TO MOVE AGAIN — This is Old St. Peter's, a country chapel which once was officially a cathedral. The 135-year-old structure, now on the grounds of a Milwaukee seminary, is scheduled to be moved next spring to the grounds of the Old World Wisconsin Museum near Eagle. (AP Wirephoto.)

Cyprus President In Greece For Meet

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Cyprus President Makarios arrived in Athens today to confer with Greek officials on the future of Cyprus and was acclaimed by tens of thousands of Greeks.

Premier Constantine Caramanlis and leading members of his cabinet greeted the bearded archbishop as he stepped off a commercial airliner from Frankfurt.

Short Address

Makarios drove into the center of the capital to give a short address from the balcony of his hotel overlooking Constitution Square.

Police cordoned off the hotel and kept the surging crowds as far away as possible.

Security measures were among the tightest in recent days after rumors circulated that members of EOKA-B, an anti-Makarios group from Cyprus, would attempt to assassinate him.

Hailed On Placards

Placards carried in the crowded square hailed him as the "Savior of Cyprus."

Athens is the closest Makarios has been to his homeland since he was toppled by the Cyprus national guard led by Greek army officers on July 15. After avoiding an attempt on his life, Makarios fled the Mediterranean island with British military assistance a day later.

He is scheduled to confer with Greek leaders to chart a common course for a solution to the Cyprus problem and the possibility of renewing negotiations with Turkey.

Invaded On July 20

Turkey invaded Cyprus July 20 and occupied more than one-third of the island.

Glafkos Clerides, who has been acting president in Makarios' absence, has been conducting talks with Turkish Cypriot leader, Rauf Denktash.

Makarios has said he will return home Dec. 6 to resume his presidential responsibilities.

Soviet Union, China Boycott Grain Meet

ROME (AP) — The Soviet Union and China today boycotted a meeting of the world's major grain producers and importers on ways to feed 500 million hungry people of Asia and Africa.

The United States and other principal wheat exporters met with representatives of famine-stricken countries amid reports that the world's wheat production would be lower next year, forcing further depletion of already dwindling stocks.

Moscow and Peking were both represented at similar meetings during the World Food Conference this month in Rome. But although they were invited, they did not show up for the one-day consultation called by Addeke Boerma, director-general of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

Their absence seemed to indicate that both countries are unlikely to join current international efforts to procure emergency supplies for the needy.

A knowledgeable source predicted that the talks were unlikely to produce immediate pledges of wheat for poor nations. He said he expected another meeting would be called in a month or so.

The International Wheat Council in London predicted that the 1974-75 world wheat crop would be about 325 million tons, 17 million tons less than this year's figures. The estimate included Russia's production but not China's.

Boerma tells exporters and importers that the world's half-billion hungry need 8 million to 12 million tons of grain before next June to prevent massive starvation.

Western nations maintain that the immediate need is for only about 5 million tons. They want the oil-rich Arab nations to take more responsibility for poor nations.

Peaceful March By Indians Wins Return Of Girl's Bones

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A group of Indians who staged a peaceful Thanksgiving Day march on the Pilgrim Museum has won the return of an ancestor's bones.

The bones of a 16-year-old Wampanoag girl were dug up on Cape Cod in 1863 and later were put on display in a showcase at the museum in the town where the Mayflower landed in 1620.

"We ask you what your feelings would be if they were the bones of your mother or a relatives on display," Frank James, co-president of the United Alliance of Indians of New England, told a rally of about 75 Indians and 150 onlookers before the march on the museum.

"We want them from the museum," James said. "Put them back in the sacred burial ground where they belong."

Museum Director L. D. Geller gave up the bones after signing a "treaty" with the Indians.

They "were in such force, we had no choice but to hand over the bones," he said.

Geller said the museum would make no effort to get the bones back. The Indians said they would be taken to Barnstable, on Cape Cod, for burial.

Steel Industry Warned On Price Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vice chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee says any further price increase by the steel industry in the near future would be unjustified.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the industry is "in a very strong position to proceed with its expansion plans without any additional price increases in the near future."

Proxmire said the committee staff found that utilization of steelmaking capacity dropped by 1.7 percentage points in the first half of 1974.

"While this decline is not large and some of it can be related to deficiencies in raw materials, I find it peculiar that utilization has declined to 94 per cent in a period of the most sharply rising steel prices in the nation's history," the senator said in a statement.

He said the staff estimated the total raw steel capacity of the industry at nearly 163 million tons a year, adding this is almost 10 million more tons than generally acknowledged by the industry.

Proxmire said announced projects to expand capacity by 18 to 20 million tons a year should be sufficient to meet the demand for steel for the rest of the decade.

Is Catholic Church Foundering In Seas Of Change?

ROME (LENS) — While Pope Paul and his bishops tusseled and maneuvered during this fall's month-long meeting in the Vatican's new Synodal Hall, their flock has been deserting the Roman Catholic Church in droves, even in the traditional bastions in southern Europe and Latin America.

The process is still going on, to the point where many people wonder whether this venerable institution is now doomed.

That may be premature. Things could be a lot brighter, to be sure. But the old firm may still be capable of pulling itself together and staying in the business of universal churchdom.

Time Of Turbulence

The years that have passed since the Second Vatican Council ended in 1965 when Vatican II thought up these synods as a way of giving the bishops some say in the running of the Church, have been a time of trouble and turbulence for the Catholic church.

The three previous synods, in 1967, 1969 and 1971, have disappointed those who wanted the church to change faster and those who basically wanted it to stay the same.

At this year's synod, the unhealthy brooding had apparently stopped. The three previous synods all turned out to be inwardlooking and defensive. That was especially true of the one in 1971 which tore itself apart over the question of whether Catholic priests of the Latin rite should be obliged to remain celibate.

This time the subject chosen for discussion by the Pope was the more constructive one of evangelization. The result was that, in order to decide how best to preach the gospel to the world, the bishops were obliged to sit down and take a hard look at what was required from them and their church.

Instead of hitting each other over the head with theological and moral arguments, they spent the first two weeks of this synod swapping experiences.

For many of them — and the Pope, who listened in to most of the reports — there was sobering news. The picture that emerged of the state of the Roman Catholic church in the west was particularly gloomy.

An Austrian bishop reported that, although about 90 per cent of his fellow-countrymen considered themselves Catholics, fewer than a third actually practiced their religion.

Even in Italy, under the Pope's very nose, fewer than one Italian in three goes to church now; as recently as 1956 more than half did.

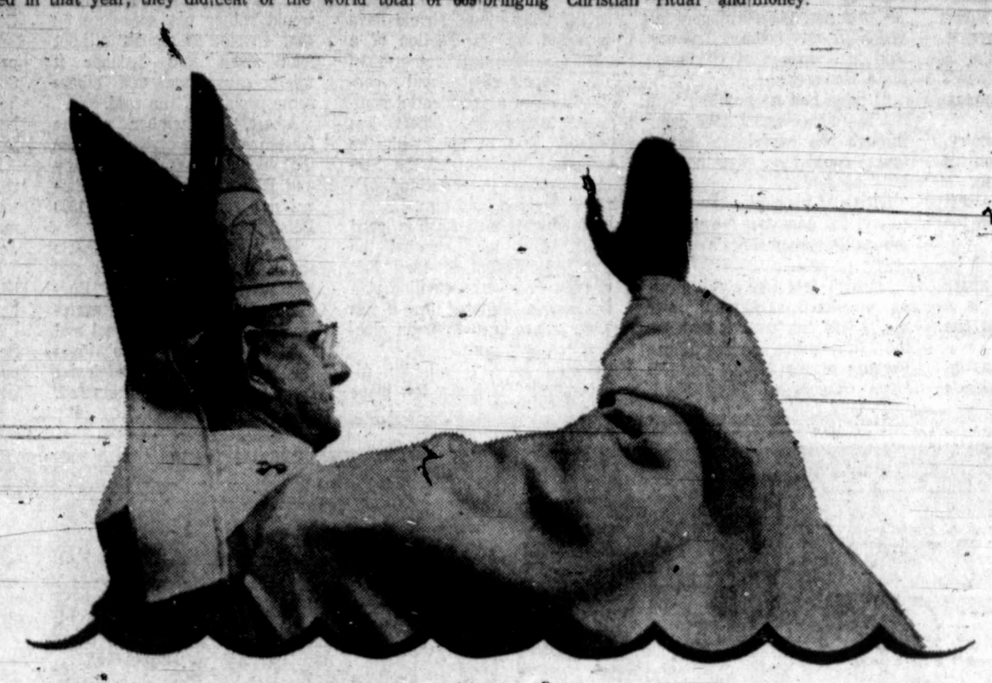
The desperate shortage of priests is even beginning to hit countries like Italy, where nearly 2,000 have left the priesthood since the war. The Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano pointed out during the synod that all over the world more than 20,000 priests have left the church since 1945.

In recent years the rate of defection has accelerated: 3,579 priests walked out in 1972 alone. Although 7,735 new ones were ordained in that year, they did not replace all those lost through defection and death.

In Africa, on the other hand, Christianity is growing fast, at the rate of 7½ million more Christians each year. Not all of them are Catholics, of course, but quite a lot are. Africa now has 42 million Catholics, and although that is only 6.2 per cent of the world total of 669 million Catholics the synod was delighted by Africa's evidence.

The synod also relished the optimism and the confidence of the African bishops. That made the other bishops readier to lend a sympathetic ear to their African colleagues' call for more "indigenization," which means bringing Christian ritual and practice closer to African custom.

Unless they could preach the gospel more simply, the African bishops said, they could not beat Islam in the neck-and-neck race for the soul of Africa, in which Moslem preachers are powerfully backed by Arab money.



But both the Africans and the Latin Americans, who talked a lot about revolution and the "theology of liberation," were told by their fellow-bishops about the dangers of too much horizontalism, the word used to describe the involvement of priests in politics at the expense of the spiritual side of their job. This has been a central issue at the synod.

The Pope touched on it in his opening address. A cogent and powerful warning came from Cardinal Bengsch of Berlin and his colleague from West Germany, Cardinal Hoffner, spoke against a secularized pseudo-eschatology which seeks paradise on earth in the name of a revolutionary counter-gospel. There was a visible effort at this synod to say that the most important thing was the spiritual life. No doubt one reason for this is the appearance in many parts of the world of small unofficial communities dedicated to contemplation and prayer. These things are felt in Rome.

The problem of how to climb aboard the modest new bandwagon of spirituality was clearly preoccypying the bishops, particularly Cardinal Suenens of Belgium who has put himself at the head of the new effort. But there are other reasons for this shift in emphasis.

One of them is that the passage of time since the second Vatican council in 1965 has provided a better sense of perspective. Most of the ultra-conservatives who were then opposed to all change have been pensioned off or died.

Those who remain in top positions have realized the inevitability of change and are trying to adapt themselves to it. Perhaps even more important, some of the reformers, having achieved some of what they wanted, are now having second thoughts.

Many Priests Have Left

Many of the impatient younger priests have left, often to marry. The field has thus been left to men of the center whose inclination is to consolidate what has been done since 1965.

There has also been a distinct conservative backlash against excessive reformism, especially in the United States. It may be a symbol that a radical new theological movement that had come into being before the previous synod disbanded itself on the eve of this one.

There was virtually no vocal opposition on the fringes of the synod this time, except for a few redoubtable women campaigners from the United States lobbying their bishops, and everybody else, with slogans such as "No mini-ministries for women" and "Let the Holy Year of 1975 be holy for women, too."

Meeting Of Jesuit Order May Decide Its Future

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Jesuits, facing declining numbers and criticism from Pope Paul VI over their activist image, are gathering for deliberations that could decide the religious order's future.

On Sunday, 237 Jesuits from 80 countries begin a two-month session of the General Congregation, governing body of the Society of Jesus. The largest delegation, 33 members, comes from the United States.

"Our principal motive is to determine what type of service we should offer to the church in the face of a rapidly changing world," said the Rev. Pedro Arrupe, the Spanish-born superior-general, who heads the Roman Catholic order.

From his apostolic palace a stone's throw from the austere Jesuit headquarters on Borgo Santo Spirito, the Pope will keep a close watch on the deliberations. He has been displeased with some of the more vocal elements of the order. At one point the pontiff told Jesuit leaders the tendencies within their order, "if fostered and given support, could lead to serious and possibly irreparable changes in the essential structure itself of your society."

The order was founded by St. Ignatius Loyola 434 years ago as an elite service to popes. Since then, the Jesuits have survived and thrived on controversy. In recent times, many Jesuits have been outspoken in demanding that the order do more to further social justice in the world.

In the last nine years, the number of Jesuits has declined from 30,000 to 26,000, but among its clergy there remains an individualistic group of scholars, missionaries and even politicians.

They include such diverse personalities as the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, who served 18 months in jail for destroying draft board records in protest to the Vietnam war, and the Rev. John McLaughlin, an adviser to former President Richard M. Nixon.

Others are the Rev. Robert Drinan, a liberal Democratic congressman from Massachusetts, and the Rev. Jose Maria Diez-Alegria of Spain. He was suspended from the order for two years after refusing to submit to Jesuit censorship his autobiography dealing in part with priests' sexual frustrations.

Certain to dominate discussions here will be the role Jesuits should play in the pursuit of social justice.

Catholics Want Butz Fired

NEW YORK (AP) — Outraged Catholics are demanding the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz because of a joke he used with a mock Italian accent to attack Pope Paul VI's stand on birth control.

Butz was quoted as having dismissed the Pope's criticism of rich nations who tell poor nations to control hunger through birth control with the remark: "He no playa the game, he no maka the rules."

The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York sent a telegram to President Ford demanding that Butz "apologize immediately or resign." It denounced his remark as "a crude and pointed insult."

The Senate of Priests, representing 1,500 priests who serve nearly two million Catholics here didn't ask for an apology in its telegram to Ford, just Butz's "immediate resignation or removal."

The Archdiocese, which said Terrence Cardinal Cooke was fully aware of the contents of its telegram, told Ford:

"If Mr. Butz can speak this way and remains in your cabinet, Catholics, Italo-Americans and the starving people of the world will all know how poorly they are esteemed by your cabinet."

Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., said Butz "has shown an offensive and bigoted mentality," and urged Ford to fire Butz for his "anti-Italian and anti-Catholic remark."

A White House spokesman said Ford would have no comment until he talked to Butz and found out exactly what had been said.

Butz made no immediate response to the storm of criticism, but an Agriculture Department spokesman said Butz was merely repeating a joke he had heard at The World Food Conference in Rome.

Burrall To Assume Pastorate Of Hope Lutheran On Sunday

The Rev. Elmer E. Burrall is the new pastor of Hope Lutheran Church and will be in the pulpit for the first time Sunday. He succeeds the Rev. Neale O. Jenson, who moved to the pastorate of a church at Mesquite, near Dallas, earlier this year.

Mr. Burrall will be officially installed as pastor of the Midland church at a service scheduled for mid-December.

A native of Wheeling, W. Va., Mr. Burrall comes to the Tall City from the pastorate of a Lutheran congregation at Fountain Hills, Ariz. Before that he held pastorates in Lewisburg and Washington Court House, Ohio, and previous to that had served 15 years in missionary work in India for his denomination.

Mr. Burrall studied civil engineering at West Virginia University, receiving a bachelor of science degree in 1950. He and his wife received commissions as lay missionaries in late 1950, being assigned to service in India where Mr. Burrall had responsibility for design, contracting and supervision of construction of schools, hospitals and other structures of the Andhra Evangelical Lutheran Church. He also had supervisory responsibilities at various schools operated by the church.

Following three years of seminary training during furloughs from the mission field, Mr. Burrall received his master of divinity degree in 1964 and was ordained in India late in that year. He is one of the few missionaries ever ordained in the field. He and his family returned permanently to the U.S. eight years ago, and he has served as a pastor since then.

Mr. and Mrs. Burrall are the parents of five children: Karen, now married and residing in Dayton, Ohio; Robert and Alan, both attending universities in Arizona; Linda, a ninth grade student, and Carolyn, a fourth-grader.

Watkins To Speak At Unitarian Church

"The Family: Then, Now and Where?" is the topic of a talk to be presented Sunday morning at the Unitarian Church of Midland, 3400 North A St.

The speaker will be Howell Watkins, a member of the faculty of Midland College where he is serving his second year as chairman of the behavioral science department. Watkins was a minister in the United Methodist Church for 20 years and also previously taught at West Texas State University at Canyon. Currently, he is completing work on a doctoral degree at Texas A&M University.

Watkins' talk at 10:45 a.m. will present a structural-functionalist view of the evolution of the family. It is the first of two programs examining the family unit which have been scheduled at the Unitarian Church. The Sunday service will be open to the public.

Musical Program Planned Saturday

A musical evening is plahned Saturday at the Antioch Baptist Church, 1400 E. Golf Course Road.

The program, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., will feature outstanding vocal and instrumental talent of the area. The event is sponsored by the decorating committee of the church, whose chairman is Mrs. W. Bigham.

The Rev. G. T. Curry, host pastor, has invited the public to attend the musical program.

Memorial Christian Elects New Officers

Elders, deacons and deaconesses were elected at a recent annual meeting of the congregation of Memorial Christian Church.

The new elders are Dr. Ray Bristol, Dale Dawson, David Leaverton and Dorothy Melzer. Deacons are Jim Arrington, Cecil Barton, Elmer Brimberry, Ed Groves, Jim Henry, Richard Morris, Scott Schelton and Jim Zetsche. Deaconesses include Sue Aulick, Elwanna Collins, Mickey German, Goldie Glascock, Donna Hemenway, Fredna McHam and Bennie Sue Thomas.

All of the above will serve three-year terms on the church board except deaconesses, who were named to one-year terms.

Brunei Forming Its Own Airline

BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, Brunei (AP)—Brunei is forming an airline, to be called Royal Brunei Airline. The British protectorate's government announced Thursday that the line has signed a letter of intent to buy two Boeing 737s, one to be delivered next May and another in August.

Prayer Helps Soybean Crop In Controlled Ohio Experiment

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — With county officials measuring the results, experimenters on an Ohio farm say they found that portions of a field that had been the object of loving prayers yielded the biggest crop.

The case offered an unusual instance of recent stepped-up interest in psychic phenomena, viewed by many with keen skepticism.

"Somehow God's creative energy of growth can be channeled through us even to plants," says Gus Alexander of Wright State University, who holds a doctorate in communications research and who set up the project.

It was carried out on a soybean field near Jamestown, Ohio, east of Dayton, with daily prayerful attention of a church group focused on six designated plots, but not on six adjoining control plots.

Alexander says the yield of soybeans receiving the special attention was increased by 4 per cent over the comparable control plot, even though the experiment had extended over only a third of the growing season.

"If put to use, our psychic abilities — our abilities of prayer — could vastly improve the world's food supply," says Alexander, who teaches speech communication and who began studying psychic phenomena about a year ago.

"By some means, when a person concentrates on sending his love, God channels that love to others, to a pet or even a plot of soybeans," he said in a telephone interview.

In checking results of the experiment late in October, the Greene county agent's technical assistant, Donald H. Tate, was on hand to weigh the yields from the six experimental and six control plots.

According to the figures, five of the experimental strips had produced heavier yields than had adjacent control strips, while in the sixth case, the control strip had a slightly greater yield.

In the experiment, a group of 10 people at Dayton's Church of the Golden Key, supplied with diagrams of the soybean plots, took on the task of "sending love" to the experimental areas each night at 11:30 p.m. for about 40 days.

The Rev. Noel Cornely, founder and minister of the non-denominational church which incorporates ideas of various major religions and which works with extra-sensory perception, says:

"These experiments deal with the direct communication of energy, as a kind of nourishment."

Alexander said the process involves "psycho-kinesis with living things. It's similar to what people do through prayer and to the whole idea of spiritual healing. In this case, it's healing for the soybeans."

Although psychic communication involving human beings has been attested by various researchers, the idea of such communication with vegetation has been generally considered far-fetched.

New FM Station Starts Broadcasts In Midland Today

West Texas heard the first sounds of a new radio station today as KBAT-FM, Midland, began stereo broadcasting at 10 a.m.

Lisa Hicks, daughter of owners Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hicks, pushed a button that started the station in operation after a brief chamber of commerce ceremony.

KBAT will broadcast at 93.3 on the FM dial and will cover West Texas and Southern New Mexico. Hours of operation are from 6 a.m. to 12 midnight featuring Great American Country Music.

Dick Rowland, a former Midlander, with more than a decade of broadcasting experience has been named station manager. KBAT is the sister station of KWEL managed by Don Richardson.

The KBAT installation is a first in Texas for the Son-a-Mag Corp. featuring a computer which blends the music electronically. Two officers of the computer company are former Midlanders Mike Flood and Pete Charlton.

Senator Dominick Reported In Line For Cabinet Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Peter H. Dominick, who lost a re-election bid earlier this month, reportedly has been approached about becoming secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. But his wife says she doubts he's interested in a Cabinet post.

The Washington Star-News in a story Thursday quoted White House sources as saying an approach was made to the Colorado Republican to replace HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger but that he has not agreed to take the job.

Dominick's wife Nancy said in Colorado that she did not believe he had been contacted personally.

"Frankly, I don't think he's interested in a Cabinet position," she said.

Dominick, defeated in the Nov. 5 election by Democrat Gary Hart, was reported to be on a duck-hunting trip in North Carolina and not available for comment.

"Public Sentiment and Public Policy" will be his topic.

'The Gospel Road' Being Shown Here

"The Gospel Road," a film conceived and produced by singer Johnny Cash and wife June Carter Cash, currently is having showings in the Tall City.

The latest screening is scheduled for 7 p.m. Sunday in St. Paul United Methodist Church. Visitors are welcome to attend at no charge. The church nursery will be open.

"The Gospel Road" resulted from the Cashes' desire to tell the story of Jesus Christ in a realistic, meaningful way. The viewer is transported to the Jordan River and the Sea of Galilee, where he sees Jesus Christ in many human situations that establish a practical and personal rapport. The viewer also is introduced to Jesus' disciples, thereby gaining insights into their varied personalities. Finally, the viewer experiences the highly-charged emotional impact of Christ's trial before Pilate and shares the pain of the physical attack on Him that precedes the crucifixion.

The new film is a unique blend of scripture-based narrative, an abundant supply of specially written songs, and a series of in-depth character portrayals, with Israel itself as the mixing bowl.

—DEDICATION SERVICE—

The Midland Latin Free Methodist Church will dedicate their new facilities on November 30, 1974 at 10:00 A.M. at 411 So. Terrell, Midland.

A meal at the Southside Lions Club will follow the Dedication Services.

Officiating for the Dedication Ceremony will be the Rev. M. Wayne Mote, pastor of the Houston Free Methodist Church and also the Supt. of the Texas Conference of the Free Methodist Church.

Members of some Free Methodist Churches throughout Texas will be attending the dedication. The history of the church dates back to the year 1969 when it was first organized. At that time, their place of worship was in a small building at 711 W. Indiana. Their new facilities seats approx. 160 in the sanctuary.

With the exception of the electrical work, Pastor Julio Castillo says all the construction was done by church members and friends.

Special recognition is given to Lawrence Houston for directing the construction of the building; also Mr. Roy Rotan of Scooters Plumbing for donating the heating system; Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Odessa for donating chairs for the auditorium and Featherlite Block Company for donating a part of the masonry blocks.

To the many unnamed who have donated of their time, given counsel or advice, given gifts, or in any way made the completion of the first unit a reality.

Since Aug. 8, Carl Albert Has Been Heartbeat From Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Day after day since the evening of Aug. 8, a team of neatly dressed Secret Service agents has been following Carl Albert as he moves through the routine of the Speaker of the House.

From his apartment in a high-rise complex in Arlington, Va., to his suite in the Rayburn House Office Building. From the Rayburn building to his offices on the second floor of the Capitol. From the Capitol offices down one floor in the elevator, through the revolving doors, to the waiting limousine. From limousine to, perhaps, a reception or some other Capitol Hill social function and, eventually, back across the Potomac River to his home. The agents are constantly in his shadow.

One of these days — the day the nation has a new vice president — the agents won't be there anymore. Carl Bert Albert will no longer be one heartbeat away from the presidency.

As Speaker of the House, Albert has been first in line for the presidency since Richard M. Nixon left the White House and Gerald F. Ford entered it, just as he was during the 58 days between Spiro Agnew's resignation and Ford's swearing in as vice president.

With Ford out of the country, as he was for one week on his Far East journey and for a one-day trip to Mexico, Albert has been the top official in the United States.

The unique position, which he describes as "one of the spare tires of the presidency," is a bit easier now than it was one year ago.

That burden last year was increased because the President's own hold on the office was becoming tenuous.

"I realized that if I did anything that gave any impression that I was trying, through the impeachment process and the resignation process to veto an election, it would cause a major and perhaps permanent division in this country," Albert said in a speech at Oklahoma State University.

"I have had no problem with my conscience and I have come through the experience feeling that I could have done no better," he said.

Sitting at his desk, Albert discussed his new, but temporary, job as President Ford's understudy.

"I don't feel like some shadow of gloom is hanging over me," said the man known as the "little giant" in the House because of his 5-foot-4 stature. "The chances of Jerry Ford, who's a terribly athletic man, of anything happening to him are very slim. So, I've got mathematics on my side."

But maybe, Albert thinks, he should never have been in this position. Maybe the Congress, in writing the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, should have provided for an election of a new vice president, rather than the appointment and confirmation of a presidential nominee. Meanwhile, Albert has waited, next in line, with the president pro tem of the Senate, James O. Eastland, D-Miss., right behind him.

"It might have been a good thing when they enacted the 25th Amendment if they had thought to have an election at a reasonable length of time if you were a long way from an election," Albert said.

Should the odds fail him, Albert admits he has a few ideas about what he would do as president; as a Democrat inheriting a Republican administration; as a chief executive who, for the second time in a row, had not been elected to the position by the people.

"I have my own ideas but I would rather not speculate on that. I would rather not talk out loud about that because it might cause me and others some problems," he said.

Albert, a member of the freshman congressional class that included John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon, professes no desire to move to 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

He was born in a miner's shack in McAlester, Okla., and was raised in the town of Bugtussle. He won a national oratorical contest in high school and used the prize money to attend the University of Oklahoma from which he was graduated. He also studied at Oxford University in England as a Rhodes scholar and the University of Madrid.

He and his wife Mary have two children: Mary Frances, 26, a Washington teacher, and David, 19, a student at Harvard College.

The 66-year-old Albert expects to retire in four years. Since he was six years old, he has had one overriding goal: to be Speaker of the House of Representatives.

He works at it 12 hours or more each day, seven days a week. His last vacation was more than one year ago, aide Joe S. Foote says.

Since Jan. 20, 1971, when Albert became the 46th speaker, he's kept to the same schedule.

He arrives at his Rayburn office, where he reviews matters pertaining to the Oklahoma district he has represented since January 1947, shortly after 7 a.m. He reads his mail, opening some of it himself, and then, at about 9 a.m., heads for the Capitol building and the office he occupies as speaker. He spends the next three hours meeting with congressional leaders and other members, reporters, lobbyists and friends.

At noon, when the House session generally begins, he walks down the hall to the chamber, taking the seat he rarely leaves until the House adjourns for the day.

As speaker, Albert's salary is $62,500. He receives $10,000 annually to cover expenses.

Albert the politician has little to worry about. Although he faced two opponents in the Oklahoma primary and he didn't return to the state to campaign, he won 85 per cent of the vote. He was unopposed in the general election.

Economy Puts Damper On Festivities For Some

By The Associated Press

Most Americans celebrated Thanksgiving with traditional family gatherings, football games and stuffed turkey. For some, however, the economy put a damper on festivities.

In several cities, Salvation Army officials said that due to the growing number of unemployed, many more free dinners were prepared than in past years.

Organizations such as Helping Hands in Sunnyside, Wash., and Seattle's Neighbors In Need reported fewer contributions this year. Helping Hands said it turned away 25 families for dinner, while the Seattle group said it received only one turkey donation this year, compared with 20 a year ago.

Philadelphia's traditional Thanksgiving Day parade attracted more than a half-million spectators to see its 5,000 costumed marchers, 40 motorized floats and 23 bands from six states.

In New York City, Macy's 48th annual Thanksgiving Day parade also drew large crowds. New to the parade this year were the Cookie Monster, Big Bird, Ernie and the Count, all characters from the children's television program Sesame Street.

Television supplied its customary fare for sports fans. There were two professional football games and many college contests.

Among the football fans were members of the sequestered Watergate cover-up trial jury, who watched some of the action on television sets brought to an unidentified hotel where the jurors had Thanksgiving dinner with their families.

Thanksgiving also was a day for nostalgia for President Ford and the teammates, who played with him on the Grand Rapids South team in 1930. The team had eggs Benedict and strawberries at a White House brunch.

Mrs. Rockefeller Out Of Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Happy Rockefeller, who underwent her second breast operation for cancer five days ago, spent Thanksgiving at home with her husband and their two children.

The 48-year-old wife of Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller was released earlier than expected from Memorial Hospital because of her "remarkable" recovery.

"I feel great and very thankful," Mrs. Rockefeller said as she left the hospital Thursday, accompanied by her husband. They planned to spend the holiday weekend at their Fifth Avenue apartment.

Mrs. Rockefeller had her cancerous left breast removed by radical surgery last month, and last Monday she had a mastectomy to remove the right breast, in which a small tumor had been found during her first hospital stay.

"We hope that those who face what Happy's had to face will have the same wonderful recovery she's had," Rockefeller said. Mrs. Rockefeller advised other women who find they are suffering from cancer to "take heart and don't be afraid."

Research Program Proves Jets Need Not Create Booms

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A researcher says supersonic aircraft can fly faster than sound across the United States without causing sonic booms—if advance routing and attention to meteorological conditions take place.

A research program is being run by the Kaman Aerospace Corp. for United Air Lines. Kaman is the main contractor for supersonic flight studies sponsored by the Federal Aviation Administration.

United spokesmen said two recent flights were run between San Francisco and Dulles International Airport in Washington, D.C. The flights, each using Air Force FB111 jets, hit speeds as high as 1.34 times the speed of sound at altitudes up to 57,000 feet.

Data showed that no sonic booms reached the ground, Boynton Beckwith, chief meteorologist for United, stated Thursday.

Beckwith said the sounds "would have been turned parallel with the earth 1,000 to 2,000 feet above ground or refracted back into the atmosphere without annoying those below."

He said further tests will be made next year on the West Coast.

Foes Of Tentative Coal Pact Appear To Be Gaining

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Opponents of the tentative contract between the United Mine Workers Union and coal producers appear to be picking up strength in the nation's coalfields.

At a Thanksgiving Day meeting in Bellaire, Ohio, Local 2262 President William Yost joined the growing list of low-echelon officials voicing opposition to the agreement reached last Sunday.

"The contract doesn't add up to snuff," Yost charged. "It's really a sad day when coal miners get sold down the road."

Pay Too Low

Specifically, he said the pay scale is too low and there is not enough vacation time. He also criticized UMW President Arnold Miller for failing to win increased medical and dental benefits.

A protest rally is scheduled for today at the union's District 6 headquarters in Bellaire. And another is to be held when local officers gather Saturday at Wheeling College in Wheeling, W.Va., to hear an explanation of the accord.

The Wheeling meeting is one of several set up to explain what Miller calls "the fattest labor settlement in this decade." The local officials are then expected to sell the pact to their members.

The three-year contract was approved by the union's 38-member bargaining council Tuesday night. Critics say an earlier rejection the same day indicates the council was pressured into the action.

"They (the bargaining council) know what the rank and file are thinking," said one local official, adding that most miners feel the 10 per cent pay boost the first year is not enough.

Caravans Planned

Meanwhile, more militant miners in southern West Virginia are organizing car caravans to spread their campaign against the settlement because it contains no provisions allowing them to strike over local grievances.

Opposition is also developing because of the union's efforts to speed up ratification. Officials have said that if the voting can begin on Monday, the union's 120,000 members could be back on their jobs by the end of next week.

Eight Alabamians Killed When Car Rams Into Bridge

LEEDS, Ala. (AP) — "It looks like the car just ran off the road," said a Leeds, Ala., police officer after looking over the site where eight young Alabamians died in an auto accident.

Six men and two women, all of Talladega, were killed early Thanksgiving Day when their car smashed into a bridge on Interstate 20 in St. Clair County east of Birmingham.

"We don't know if somebody forced it off or not," said Capt. Jack Meacham, but he added that police do not suspect foul play in the crash.

Meacham said the impact of the crash was great enough to drive the engine of the car into the back seat.

Study Gives U.N. 'A-Plus' For Radio, Tv Coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — Staffers from a congressional committee this year journeyed to the United Nations, not to see and hear debate, but rather to study how the U.N. helps broadcasters air international oratory.

Their finding: The U.N. way is "perhaps the most impressive example" anywhere of a radio and television system created to help broadcasters provide live and taped coverage of a deliberative body.

The study was for the Joint Committee on Congressional Operations, which in October urged the Congress to think about creating some system to help provide live radio-tv coverage of regular House and Senate floor sessions, starting on a trial basis in early 1975.

Live coverage of such sessions has been allowed only once — back in 1947, when tv cameras were permitted in the House chamber to broadcast the opening session of the 80th Congress.

But the U.N.'s broadcast system has fed live coverage of regular open U.N. sessions — both the General Assembly and the Security Council — to radio broadcasters since 1946 and to television outlets since 1962.

The tv feed — direct via satellite if desired — is provided to any broadcaster asking for it and willing to pay the fees which help defray the cost of the service. The U.N. says the radio feed is free.

The man running this electronic show hall is Polish-born Josef C. Nichols, a short, witty man of 54 who's been with the U.N.-operated broadcast office since its inception in 1946.

Compared to a network, his operation is small, even though its reach is global. It employs about 135 persons, 90 in production and management, the remainder in engineering.

There are five radio and two tv studios, six color tv cameras, and tape and editing machines to serve outside broadcasters as well as the 80 accredited broadcast correspondents who regularly report on U.N. doings for between 35 and 45 countries.

When the General Assembly is in session, usually from Sept. 15 through December, the U.N.'s tv system cranks up at 9:30 a.m. It shuts down at 5:45 p.m., unless a major debate is raging or a broadcaster asks — and pays — for overtime service, Nichols says.

While the networks and other subscribers are consulted, a U.N.-employed director calls all the video shots fed to the outside world.

His only rule, Nichols says, is "keep it dignified and professional."

If a face-to-face shouting match or even a fistfight — as happened once — occurs, that will be televised, but not at such length it totally distracts from the importance of the main event, Nichols says.

All three American networks maintain permanent booths overlooking the General Assembly, and they're each allowed one tv camera in the booth.

The catch is that neither they nor foreign broadcasters are allowed to use those cameras for their own video coverage of floor proceedings. They only can focus on persons inside the booth.

This is to avoid charges of sensationalized or flippant video coverage and maintain the dignity of the proceedings, Nichols says.

The day Nichols took a newsman on a tour of his operation, an Algerian correspondent was in a studio readying his live and film report of a meeting between the U.N.'s president — Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika — and several visiting dignitaries.

It was to be sent — entirely in Arabic — via satellite to Paris and then to Algeria. Alas, a strike in Paris possibly had left that city's satellite relay station unmanned.

Agonizing Decision

The Parisian phone system also had been crippled by the strike, and no one was answering the call of the U.N. technician in New York, who was sweating out the fast-approaching moment of transmission.

"We'll have to make an agonizing decision whether to transmit blind to Paris," Nichols said half-jokingly, sitting at a console with an American director, a British producer and the Ukranian technician.

"Is Paris burning?" Nichols sighed when no reply still was forthcoming from that fair city. Finally, he beamed. "It's okay. We've gotten through to the ground station at Brussels."

Within minutes, Algeria's tv man at the U.N. was having his say, his film was rolling and three minutes and 31 seconds of news was sent whisking to Algeria. He did it twice, just in case.

Times Change

The next day, Nichols would be processing 17 advance orders for satellite time from foreign newsmen getting ready to report the controversial appearance of the Palestinian Liberation Organization at the U.N.

"It used to take days to set things up," he said. "But times have changed. We've done it as quickly as 15 minutes on one occasion."

The three U.S. networks each pay a basic fee of $1,650 per week to plug into the U.N. television system when the General Assembly is in session, Nichols says. But who uses the system the most?

"The Europeans — East and West — by far, over and above the United States," he said. The reason, he added, "is there is greater interest in international events over there.

Wells Very Busy

The 627 oil wells in Saudi Arabia pump an average of 11,830 barrels a day each, National Geographic says. The United States has 503,500 wells, but they average only 18 barrels a day each.

"Also, it's because in many instances what happens here affects their countries directly. Any debate on the Middle East affects the whole Mediterranean, from the price of oil to the state of mobilization of some nations."

Burton Makes One Of His Rare Tv Appearances Tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Richard Burton makes one of his rare television appearances tonight on NBC in "The Gathering Storm," a dramatization of the first volume of Winston Churchill's history of World War II.

Burton, who portrays the late English statesman in the years immediately preceding the outbreak of war with Nazi Germany, labors mightily to bring to life Churchill's soul and character.

Greatest Impulse

The greatest specific impulse of any rocket propulsion fuel combination is 435 lbs.-f.-sec. per lb. produced by lithium fluoride and hydrogen. This compares with a figure of 300 for liquid oxygen and kerosene.

Unfortunately, he and his acting colleagues are saddled with a stiff script by Colin Morris which, while touching on all the key historical points, falls as surprisingly flat as the direction by Herbert Wise.

It's a disappointment because this 90-minute program, made in England for showing both by NBC and the British Broadcasting Corporation, had many things going for it — among them adequate financing, a good cast and the opportunity to film and tape the show in the actual locales in which Churchill lived and worked.

But all this goes for naught because of the script's tendency to reduce the major and minor figures of "The Gathering Storm" to one-dimensional players in an often harrumphing historical pageant.

The crises, from the abdication of King Edward VIII in 1936 to the outbreak in war in September 1939 come and go with suitably grave and important sounds from the participants in the drama.

There are brief personal glimpses of Churchill in private life, a man advised by his gentle wife, challenged by his quarrelsome son, Randolph, and counseled by his close friend, Lord Beaverbrook.

The only time the special seems to come to life is towards the end, when Churchill, as Britain's new wartime prime minister, makes that famous 1940 speech to Parliament and tells England: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

Hollywood Jumps Gun On Birthday

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Leave it to Hollywood and its environs to jump the gun on America's 200th birthday.

Everybody else will celebrate in 1976. But Pacific 21, the Bicentennial - inspored mini-World's Fair, will open in 1975, for a one-year run.

"We're doing it in '75," says John McComb, Pacific 21's executive vice president and general manager, "because we'd be lost if we did it in '76. That year, the focus will be on the East, Philadelphia and Boston primarily."

This will be California's only major event for the big year (or the year preceding it, as a matter of fact). It's what McComb calls "a mini-World's Fair," covering about 10 acres in Los Angeles' Century City area.

"Costs, economics and the time factor prevented it from being a maxi-World's Fair," McComb says.

The somewhat confusing name stems from its aim. Pacific 21 will look at the Pacific area in the 21st century.

"The Pacific is the arena of the future in world politics," McComb says. "What we're doing, in effect, is to invite all the countries around the Pacific Ocean to help us celebrate our birthday."

They hope to have some three to four million people attending Pacific 21 during the time it is open. It will be another tourist attraction in this land of tourists.

It's Board's Decision

The board of education of the Midland Independent School District should proceed as rapidly as possible in making boundary changes designed to equalize enrollment between Lee and Midland high schools.

This seemed to be the concensus of opinion of the comparatively large crowd attending the board's Tuesday meeting.

The board, several weeks ago, voted to alter the boundary lines, and the sooner the trustees can complete the job, the easier it will be on them. The pressures then will be relieved and the board members and school administrators can get on with other business.

* * *

It is realized, of course, that this sort of thing cannot be accomplished overnight; that necessary studies and considerations must be made before a decision can be reached. Studies now are being made by school district personnel, and the board members will lean heavily on the advice of the professional staff.

Citizens may rest assured that the trustees will do what they consider to be right and in the best interest of the school system. This is the kind of school board with which Midland is favored.

Citizen Don Clay used good judgment at the recent meeting when he urged people "to get off the soap box and let the board make a decision."

* * *

The board is capable of making a wise decision in the matter, and now that the whole business has been aired in the open, and patrons have had an opportunity to express their feelings on the subject in public hearings, the final decision must be left to the trustees.

They were elected to set the policies and guide the destinies of the system, and the changing of school boundary lines falls well within their jurisdiction.

They had to determine in the first place whether changes were needed, and having decided that issue, they now must move ahead in implementing the program.

Good luck to them and to all persons directly concerned.

Government In Charge

An Albuquerque, N.M., drug store, according to Wes Izzard's "From A To Izzard" column appearing in the Amarillo Daily News, displayed this sign next to the prescription window:

"This business now controlled by the Federal Government. All complaints should be directed to Washington, D.C."

Most all businesses rightly could display such a sign these days.

'Things Are Tough All Over!'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—Despite all the rhubarb over secret expenditures on former President Nixon's estates in Florida and California, federal money is still being poured into the Key Biscayne compound.

A team of General Services Administration (GSA) workmen are busily ripping out partitions and repairing walls in at least two of the buildings just as if Watergate never happened.

And seven Secret Service men are still puttering around the premises on vague security details, even though the former President has not even visited Key Biscayne since he left office on August 9.

When we approached the General Service Administration concerning the continued use of federal manpower and material for the Nixon home, a spokesman huffily denied any such activities.

But when my associate Bob Owens pointed out that, posing as a sandle-shod Florida trourist, he had observed the comings and goings of the government workmen, GSA conceded repair work was going on.

It was only fair to "restore" the homes of Nixon and other rented dwellings in the compound to their pre-presidential condition, the GSA said. One of the homes under repair is owned by Nixon crony Robert Abplanalp.

Actually, the government had already done considerable work on Abplanalp's home. While it was being used by the White House, it got a $1,667 paint job and other improvements.

The GSA said the new work would be completed by Christmas, although the negotiations to get compensation from Nixon for improvements on the Key Biscayne property may go on for months.

Still at issue, for instance, is whether the Nixon-designed "security fence," costing $66,314, and $4,786 worth of carnation hibiscus shrubs surrounding it will be paid for by the ex-President.

The Secret Service, meanwhile, has pulled out most of its detection equipment. The Coast Guard has phased out its five-year-old $2 million patrol of the Nixon beach area. And the Navy has removed the $20,267 shark net which had protected the waterfront swimming areas of Nixon and his friend Bebe Rebozo.

UNDIPLOMATIC SLIP: Rarely do America's envoys in run-down foreign capitals relax their stiff upper lips and criticize their hosts.

But a "Limited Official Use" cable in the State Department's file drawers bluntly reveals how U.S. Ambassador to Nigeria John Reinhardt regards his militarist hosts.

Apparently upset over a proposed junket to the Nigerian capital of Lagos by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., Reinhardt wired the State Department that appointments with government leader might be hard to line up because the Nigerians preferred fun to fidelity.

"Must state frankly that arranging Sunday meetings with FMG (Federal Military Government) officials will not be easy," the diplomat cabled, "most of whom cannot be budged to attend any weekend gathering which is remotely official."

Reinhardt then switched to the Javits' hotel reservations. "I am having some second thoughts about the adequacy of Ikoyi hotel accommodations, which are only ones available," he wrote. "Hence, I urge that Senator and Mrs. Javits stay at residence, where I believe I can arrange some informal gatherings with articulate FMG representatives and at the same time, hopefully provide a few amenities not otherwise available in Lagos."

Concludes the document wryly, "Assume that senator's seeming reluctance to spend two nights in Lagos stems from city's earned rating among the world's least inviting. However, we can guarantee some compensations for one eager to feel the African pulse which beats rapidly and strongly in Nigeria."

FUDDLE FACTORY: Sometimes Washington seems an enormous "Fuddle Factory" where everything goes wrong for the ordinary Americans the bureaucracy is supposed to serve.

For example, E. H. Weder, head of the Highland (Ill.) Manufacturing and Sales Co., had for years sold cellophane Easter grass, which was flammable. When the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ordered him to stop, he dutifully complied.

At the cost of $950,000, he destroyed his flammable stocks and converted his machines to produce safe, nonflammable grass. But he and many of his employes had to work 16 hours a day to fill enough new grass orders to stave off bankruptcy.

Then, a few months ago, he saw unsafe flammable grass for sale in a drug store. To his bewilderment, he learned that the government had given the go-ahead to another manufacturer as long as the dangerous Easter grass was marked "Flammable."

Outraged, he called the FDA. It was all a $950,000 misunderstanding, he was assured. Weder's only recourse now is to sue the government, which he lacks the time and money to do.

In a letter to his sympathetic congressman, Rep. Phil Crane, R-Mich., Weder sounded the plaint of many small businessmen trapped inside Washington's "Fuddle Factory."

It is, he said, "persecution of small businesses by an unfeeling, stupid, cold, calculating, antibusiness bureaucracy."

The government goof almost destroyed his own life work and "the means of livelihood of hundred of employes," he wrote.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD And JAMES JACOBY
(Newspaper Enterprise Association)

We aren't going to try to settle the argument about whether North or South bid too much on the way to six hearts. Suffice to say that with West sticking in a club overcall, the bid figured to be a loser.

West opened the jack of spades and East made the mistake of rising with the king. There was little purpose in that play. His partner had not underled the ace. If East had hung on to the king, South would have wound up one trick short of his slam.

South grabbed that king with his ace and noted that his queen-nine were now established as the top tenace in that suit.

He proceeded to run off all six trumps while discarding two spades, a club and a diamond from dummy. Then he cashed dummy's three top diamonds to discard his own eight of clubs.

South was now left with the queen-nine of spades and king of clubs. West in back of him decided to hang on to two sapdes and a club.

Now South led dummy's club. West won the trick and had to lead a spade right into South's tenace.

Cave-In Attitude Can Lead Only To Disaster

ROANOKE, Va. (NEA) — Wilbert Moss is one of an uncounted number of Virginians and other Americans who have decided to fight inflation with inflation. What he's done is to plant a sign in his front yard announcing the creation of a new industry. "Garage Sale," the sign reads.

Moss is one of many who have turned their yards into perpetual flea markets; "I buy from neighbors and sell to neighbors. Every Saturday and Sunday. And times being what they are, I get every penny I can get."

The enterprise is admirable, of course. The accompanying philosophy, however, is something less. Moss has concluded that inflation is here to stay, that prices can only go up, so he has made his choice: since he can't fight it he has joined it. "I got $5 for a $2 picture frame last week; I wished I'd asked $6."

The mentality here is worrisome. But it is decidedly American. The refusal to hold the economic line and the readiness to go along with inflation are two solid reasons why we have inflation at all.

To be sure, the cave-in attitude can lead only to disaster. John Stafford, research director of the U. S. League of Savings Associations, has computed that inflation abetted will in a short time be inflation unimaginable. At the present rate of double digit escalation, says Stafford, "today's dollar will be worth 50 cents in six years time, and only 32 cents four years after that."

Put another way, says Stafford, if people continue to feed inflation rather than starve it, "We'll all of us need about three times as much to live on 10 years from now." Thus a family earning $10,000 today would need $31,337 in a decade, at the current rate of inflation, and those earning $20,000 now would need $62,674.

What's more, the figures do not account for taxation; as one earns more one pays more, as in the law, thus most families would fall even further behind.

So far behind, says Stafford, that true catastrophe would befall millions. For example: A family head who today takes out a $10,000 life insurance policy, and who died 10 years from now, would leave his dependents the equivalent of $3,191. "And what about people retiring?" Stafford adds. "If a man is planning now on $1,000 a month 10 years from now, he'll wind up with only $318 a month purchasing power. My wife already says we can't make it."

But even for people who do continue living and working, under the outlined inflation prophecy, times would be shuddersome. Stafford says that, based on 1973-74 price increases, a $20 bag of groceries would cost $80.91 in a decade, $3 worth of drycleaning $8.75, $5 dungarees $25, a $3 babysitter $15.70, and a 15-cents newspaper almost 75 cents.

Under such circumstances, naturally, not only financial but social and institutional changes would multiply. There are predictions that the United States would have to employ "go along" measures such as those exercised in inflation-skinned South America, where nations such as Chile have experienced up to 5,600 per cent cost of living increases in the past five years. In one South American country, inflation-accommodating bank officials keep only noon to 4 p.m. hours, so that employes can go out to other jobs.

Beyond this, say the gloomers, the time would come when bloated American currency would have to be deflated by dropping zeros. Thus $10 would become $1, or something similar. This is what repeatedly happens in South America; the Brazilian real of the 1880s has been devalued and renamed so many times that today it would take seven billion of them to equal even the weak value of the U. S. buck.

Still, all this escapes Wilbert Moss and many others whose only interest is No. 1. Too bad. A decade from now, statistically, we may all be paying for sugar on time payment. The year: 1984.

THE CONSUMER ALERT—

Lost Baggage Aggravates, Inconveniences Traveler

By JOHN L. HILL
Texas Attorney General

AUSTIN — Few things can aggravate and inconvenience an air traveler like losing his baggage. In previous columns, we've discussed other problems of the air traveling consumer, along with his rights and responsibilities in regard to an airline.

When a consumer purchases an airline ticket, he also is purchasing certain services, such as the safe handling and return of his baggage.

Statistics indicate that only a small percentage of all airline baggage is lost, delayed, or damaged. But the consumer who has to spend part of a holiday or vacation with only the clothes on his back, or a person who has to take valuable time from a business trip to make frequent inquiries about luggage seldom is interested in statistics.

What he or she wants is to get the missing articles back as soon as possible or to be reimbursed. Here's what the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Texas Aeronautics Commission, and the Attorney General's Transportation and Consumer Protection Divisions recommend:

— Notify airline personnel immediately if your bags don't appear at the baggage claim area. They still may be on board the plane and, if the loss is reported in time, the plane can be checked before its next takeoff.

— If the bags aren't located right away, make sure airline personnel fill out a form reporting your loss. This will require your description of the bag and what it contained, including purchase date for items, their original cost, and their value when lost.

— If your bags aren't found in three days, the airline will send a claim form which should be filled in and returned within 45 days, the maximum time for filing claims. Airline agents will check the claim, perhaps asking for sales tickets or other documentation of value.

Consumers often fail to realize that an airline may not reimburse the full amount paid for items, because value usually depreciates after purchase.

— Never release your baggage claim check or throw it away until you have your bags or your claim has been settled.

— While airlines are liable for damages to baggage which they caused or could have prevented, they are not liable for damage which is the air traveler's fault.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division says thay many airlines ask passengers to take the following precautions themselves to prevent problems:

— Label bags inside and out with name, address and telephone number.

— Don't overpack, since airlines won't pay for damage to overstuffed bags.

— Always lock bags.

— Don't pack glass or fragile items, since the airline isn't liable for them. Take such items with you on the plane.

— Don't pack money, check books, credit or identification cards, expensive jewelry, or other highly valuable items or documents in bags. Keep them with you on the plane.

— Likewise, don't pack essential medicines such as insulin or digitalis in bags. These should stay with you at all times.

— Don't confuse baggage handlers by keeping old labels from previous trips on luggage. Only the current label should be on bags.

— Report all baggage damage immediately, since long-delayed damage claims may not be honored. You will be asked for a description of the bag and the damage to it.

If you need help or information with a consumer problem involving air travel, consult the Texas Aeronautics Commission or the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division.

Old Farmer's Almanac

Even though most of its 2,500,000 readers live in cities, the 1975 Old Farmer's Almanac, now on local newsstands, contains, as it has for 183 years, information pertinent to farming, such as a gestation schedule for farm animals, outdoor planting table and daily weather forecasts for a year in advance.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The National Weather Service defines a blizzard as a wind of 35 miles an hour or higher, with temperatures 20 degrees Fahrenheit or lower and sufficient falling and/or blowing snow to reduce visibility to less than one-quarter of a mile, The World Almanac says. A "severe blizzard" has wind speeds of 45 miles an hour or more, temperature near or below 10 degrees Fahrenheit and visibility reduced by snow to near zero.

Ford Having Weekend Of Football

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford travels to Philadelphia Saturday to watch the annual football game between Army and Navy, two teams he could sympathize with even if he weren't commander-in-chief.

Both teams have records of three wins and seven defeats. But even that is better than Michigan's record of only one victory during Ford's senior year there.

Nostalgic Reunion

In addition, the President will be fresh from a nostalgic reunion on Thanksgiving Day with his former high school football teammates.

One member of the 1930 South High School team in Grand Rapids, Mich., Silas McGee of San Francisco, called the White House gathering "the high point of my life."

McGee, who played end and halfback, called the President "Junie," as the team members posed with a football, laughing and joking in front of the team banner. A seven-man Marine band combo played the team's fight song.

"Can you still catch one," Ford, the center on the team and later at the University of Michigan, called to McGee.

Retired longshoreman McGee clowned with the ball and jokingly told reporters, "Junie's following me. That's the way he always gave me interference — he always followed me."

First Game Attendance

The Army-Navy game will be the first contest Ford has attended this year although he says he loves to watch both the colleges and the pros on television, often while reading official papers.

Although he has been described as an All American, Ford has acknowledged that the myth of his prowess grows bigger with each passing year.

After starring on the high school team, he was a benchwarmer on two good Michigan teams in 1932 and 1933 but was a starter on what he describes as a bad 1934 club, one riddled by graduation.

After the season, Ford was named "most valuable" and his abilities as a center and linebacker won him an invitation to play in the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco on Jan. 1, 1935.

His 58-minute performance on offense and defense earned him several bids to play professional football.

"Pro ball did not have the allure it has now," Ford told Jerry ter Horst in his biography, "Gerry Ford and the future of the Presidency."

"Though my interest was piqued at the time. I didn't lose any sleep over the offers."

Instead of turning pro, for $200 a game for a 14-game season, Ford went to Yale, where he later attended law school.

Small Oklahoma Community Has Real Telephone Problem

POCOLA, Okla. (AP) — Residents of this eastern Oklahoma town of 2,200 are calling for an end to problems with their telephone service.

It seems that North and South Pocola are divided by wire—not barbed wire but a tangled web of telephone wire.

North Pocola is served by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and South Pocola by Allied Telephone Co.

Residents can't call from one side of the town to the other without paying a long distance toll.

In an effort to solve the problem, residents have taken their complaints to the Oklahoma Corporation Commission.

"Our biggest problem is police protection," said Mayor John Farris, who also is a lineman for Southwestern Bell in nearby Fort Smith, Ark. "Half the town has to go through the operator and make a long distance call to the police. Then they can't always get through."

Farris said about 100 citizens huddled last week to complain about the phone service, mostly in the southern section.

He said he has received 37 letters from citizens complaining about South Pocola service and he plans to present those to the Corporation Commission at a Jan. 8 hearing.

"What we're interested in is having the same service for South Pocola," Farris said. "It doesn't matter who serves them as long as they have the same service."

Frequent Service Breaks

Residents in North Pocola may call Fort Smith, which most citizens work and shop, without a toll. But South Pocolians must pay a toll to call Fort Smith.

"To have a service we can live with, we need everyone to have toll-free service to Fort Smith," Farris added.

Municipal Court Judge Samuel George, a South Pocolan, says he has had his share of problems with the southern phone system, including frequent breaks in conversations that don't help his public image.

"People think I'm hanging up on them," he said. "This gives them a bad idea of my services."

Army Woman Completes Rugged Assault Course

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — Federal law prohibits women from drawing combat assignments in America's armed forces. But if the law is changed, Penny Hartley will be ready.

This week Miss Hartley, an Army private, became the first woman to complete the 101st Airborne Division's rugged air assault course.

"It takes an unusual woman to desire to do this and then actually accomplish it," said Maj. James Daily, commandant of the assault school. "She made it on her own, without any special treatment except to be allowed to use the WAC latrine."

Miss Hartley had to hike five miles on a forced march in two hours; run two miles in 16½ minutes; pass a written examination; do 37 situps and 33 pushups in one minute; climb a troop ladder into an airborne helicopter, and rappell off a 40-foot tower.

"I'm glad I did it," said the petite brunette from Jackson County, W.Va. "It was something to do, and I would do it again."

"Once or twice I almost decided to give it up," she confessed, "But always the next morning, I felt better and wanted to go on.

"The course is really tough, but I had encouragement from everyone in the class, and that helped, believe me," she said. "Not a single person harassed me. They all kept giving me confidence and helping me in little ways that count."

Her regular Army assignment is driving a truck for a supply and service battalion. She wants to be an illustrator in the Army.

Road Crash Kills Turkish Pilgrims

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Eight Turkish Moslem pilgrims en route to Mecca were killed and five injured in a collision involving two cars of their convoy and a truck, the Jordanian government reported today.

A spokesman said the collision occurred Thursday night near the Jordanian town of Maan, 162 miles south of Amman on Jordan's border with Saudi Arabia.

Greek, Japanese Vessels Collide

TOKYO (AP) — The 14,790-ton Greek ship Pantazis-I reported today it and a Japanese fishing boat had collided in the Tsugaru Strait of northern Japan, the Maritime Safety Agency said. There were no casualties aboard the freighter, but officials said there is a possibility that 10 crewmen of the fishing boat were missing.

Explosions Rip Ammunition Dump In South Vietnam

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Explosions ripped through a big ammunition dump at the Da Nang Air Base in northern South Vietnam today, causing heavy damage, the Saigon command said.

Lt. Col. Do Viet, a command spokesman, said first reports listed 48 civilians injured and homes and a textile mill heavily damaged by the explosions and shrapnel. No deaths were reported.

Viet said the dump on the base perimeter contained bombs and ammunition for small arms and other weapons. Two South Vietnamese aircraft also were reported damaged.

He said the cause of the explosions was not immediately known.

Weicker Asks Reduced Prison Term For Dean

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., says former White House Counsel John W. Dean III deserves a reduction in his prison term because of his Watergate disclosures.

"Whatever hurt John Dean did his fellow countrymen was more than replaced by the risks which he took on their behalf," Weicker said in a letter to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

Dean was sentenced by Sirica to one to four years' imprisonment for obstruction of justice in the Watergate case. He began serving the term last Sept. 3 at Ft. Holabird in Baltimore, Md.

Weicker, a member of the Senate Watergate committee, said he understood Dean has moved or will move formally for a reduction in sentence and also that it was appropriate for acquaintances of sentenced defendants to write letters in their behalf.

The Connecticut Republican was a staunch defender of Dean's credibility during the Senate Watergate hearings last year, in the face of repeated attacks on Dean's testimony by former associates in the Nixon White House.

The two men became friends, and Weicker subsequently bought an Alexandria, Va., townhouse from Dean after the former White House lawyer pleaded guilty in Sirica's court.

Toward a National Energy Policy

1. Setting the objectives

A week ago we published an "energy manifesto" in this newspaper listing what seemed to us to be the priorities for a national energy policy. We took this step, not because we have all the answers—nobody does—but because we believe we can make a useful contribution to an informed national debate.

Today we want to discuss the basic question of how much energy the United States will need.

The U.S. now consumes about 17 million barrels of oil, and 63 billion cubic feet of natural gas, a day. Oil and natural gas (plus liquids extracted from natural gas) make up about 77% of our total energy consumption.

But only a little over three-fifths of the oil we use is produced within the United States. This means some 6 million barrels a day of oil—nearly 40% of what we use—must be imported. While the U.S. still produces almost all the natural gas it uses, oil imports have been rising as domestic production has declined.

A key objective of national energy policy must be to reduce this dependence on foreign oil. Political considerations and the costs of that oil make this imperative. The costs are driving the U.S. balance of payments increasingly into the red, jeopardizing the international monetary system, and causing the transfer of basic wealth and strength away from the United States.

There are several ways to reduce dependence on foreign oil. We can use less. We can produce more of our own. And we can increase the production of coal from the truly huge domestic reserves of it.

Curiously, many people are urging the first approach—using less—as the complete answer. We think this is a prescription for disaster. While we can and should cut out waste, we are going to need more energy—not less—in the years ahead. Disproportionately large conservation efforts that inhibit expansion of supplies will tend to lock the nation into a posture of zero economic growth, probably producing widespread economic dislocation, large-scale unemployment, and a general lowering of living standards.

In particular, a policy of no economic growth—or very low growth—penalizes the poor. Economic growth and hence living standards depend critically on abundant energy supplies, and millions of Americans have not yet achieved adequate living standards. With our population still growing, as it is, a no-growth economy would mean less and less for everyone.

We also need more energy to protect, and expand on, the environmental gains we have made. As one instance, emission controls on automobiles added 4 billion gallons to our national gasoline consumption in 1973. We could use less gasoline if we had an adequate system of public transportation. But that's years away. By the same token, improved gasoline mileage built into new cars can exert real impact on gasoline consumption only over a period of several years.

Since cutting out waste is only part of the answer, we need to produce in this country enough of the energy we use to enable us to disentangle energy questions from those of international politics. No great power can be comfortable as long as it is excessively dependent on other countries for essential raw materials. A vigorous U.S. domestic energy program would make a major contribution to the development of an orderly international economy with a free flow of goods, services, and investment.

So, for the next decade at least, the focus must be on cutting out waste and developing additional energy supplies. In the near term—for at least the next 20 years—this means mainly oil, natural gas, coal, and nuclear power. By how many percentage points should we improve our energy self-sufficiency? We don't know. Because to answer that question we have to know how much oil and natural gas is available to supplement the vast U.S. coal reserves. And we won't know that until we drill a great many more wells, onshore and offshore.

For the long term, our aim should be a surplus of energy of all kinds. We will never be able to predict to the last decimal what the aggregate of individual needs will be. Prudence argues that we should err on the side of a moderate surplus. A surplus will enable us to continue cleaning up our environment and will facilitate responsible economic growth. It will avert or alleviate foreign dependence and related problems. It will give us more discretion in whatever we as a nation want to do.

So our objectives are clear. Eliminate waste. Increase domestic production of crude oil, natural gas, coal, and nuclear power. Aim for a moderate long-range energy surplus.

Toward a National Energy Policy

2. What went wrong?

Mobil believes the nation's energy goal can be simply stated: In the coming decade, to produce a larger proportion of the energy we use; in the longer term, to achieve a reasonable energy surplus. Since nobody can forecast exactly how much energy the U.S. will need, it will be prudent to end up with too much rather than not enough.

But before we talk about surpluses, or even improved self-sufficiency, we have to ask: Why the present crisis? What went wrong?

The questions are necessary, because a nation should be able to learn from its past mistakes.

- Mistake #1 is 20 years old. In 1954 the U.S. imposed price controls on natural gas shipped across state lines. In its eagerness to protect the consumer, the government focused on low prices for the short term. It gave short shrift to the consumer's long-term stake in security and adequacy of supply. The artificially depressed price of natural gas has produced today's shortage of natural gas, by stimulating demand while reducing the incentive to look for new supplies. Even under the best conditions, this shortage will be with us for years, and it will probably get a good deal worse before it gets any better.
- Mistake #2 was the failure in past years to allow oil companies to press the search for oil and gas fully enough on the U.S. outer continental shelf. Reaction to the Santa Barbara spill caused too many people to lose their perspective. We must work to prevent spills and at the same time move ahead to try to assure adequate supplies.
  Britain will be self-sufficient in oil about 1980, because it has actively promoted exploration under the seas around it, while the U.S. still puts "off limits" signs on thousands of square miles of outer continental shelf waters.
- Mistake #3 was the failure to permit construction of the Alaska pipeline to begin much earlier. The pipeline raised legitimate questions about the environment. But scare tactics led to overreaction. Result: the line—designed to safeguard both terrain and wildlife on the basis of probably the most detailed ecological analysis ever made—was unnecessarily stalled in the courts and in Congress when it should have been pumping oil into the American economy.
- Mistake #4 was the nation's snail's-pace development of other energy sources. Construction of atomic power plants has been delayed for a variety of reasons. Coal—our country's most abundant energy source—was clobbered from all sides. It couldn't compete with the artificially low prices imposed on natural gas (which in turn held down the price of another competitor, home heating oil), nor could it compete with low-cost foreign oil in the Fifties and Sixties. Finally, a lot of coal was made unusable by tight limitations on sulfur content.
  Ironically, too, the expectation of cheap atomic energy discouraged investments in new coal mines—so that the country got the worst of both worlds. There were and are legitimate environmental concerns with both atomic energy and coal. But the nation has let itself be steered away from the basic question: "How much energy do we need, how soon, and at what economic and other cost?"
- Mistake #5 was the naive belief by many that we could rely indefinitely on getting all the foreign oil we wanted at the price we wanted to pay for it—so that we could continue to waste energy and avoid correcting mistakes #1, 2, 3, and 4.

It could have been worse, of course. Remember the people who wanted to make the U.S. even more dependent on foreign oil, while assuring you that "national petroleum security" was a fiction devised by oil barons to keep domestic petroleum prices up? Remember the people who said not to worry about balance-of-payments problems, because these always righted themselves? And the instant tax experts eager to make sweeping changes, with little concern for the consequences? Fortunately, we didn't go all the way down any of those primrose paths.

Even so, for at least another 10 years, the U.S. is going to be heavily dependent on imported oil (coming increasingly from the Middle East), because of the long lead times that are unavoidable both in conserving energy on a large scale and in developing additional supplies.

To make a substantial reduction in energy use will require large investments by industry, new building standards for structures of all sorts, large numbers of low-horsepower cars replacing higher-horsepower cars year after year, the development of adequate public transportation systems, and other efforts.

It will take years, and very substantial investments, to discover and develop a new offshore oil field, or to get a new coal mine into operation or a nuclear power plant built.

Remember this when anyone tells you we can wait 10 years to even initiate any major effort.

Next week: "Alternate energy sources"

Papers Say Man With Two Hearts Out Of Bed Now

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Ivan Taylor, who was given a second heart in an historic operation this week, is out of bed, chatting with nurses and sipping cold beer, South African newspapers reported today.

Authorities at Groote Schuur Hospital said the 58-year-old mining engineer is making a rapid recovery and has an excellent appetite.

But medical bulletins have not said whether Taylor's system has accepted fully the 10-year-old girl's heart that made him the world's first person with two hearts or whether there are any signs of rejection.

Taylor's second heart was from Jennifer Schrickker, of Cape Town, killed by a car a few hours before the five-hour operation by Dr. Christiaan Barnard that began Sunday midnight.

Barnard, who performed the first heart transplant in 1967, said after the operation that Taylor had been suffering from terminal heart disease.

The child was buried Thursday at Cape Town's Maitland Cemetery during a windstorm that covered the area in a cloud of dust and sand. Among more than 200 persons who attended the funeral were students of the Kewtown School, which Jennifer attended.

Alec Bourne, manager of a company of morticians that arranged the burial, said the funeral was donated without charge. "All monies collected can be given to the family — they need it," he said.

Jennifer's father, Frederick Schrickker, 38, earns about $42 a week as a forklift operator.

After the operation, he said he was too poor to pay for the funeral, and scores of offers to help with expenses poured into Cape Town.

Ford Due To Sign First Grants Of Clemency Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford arranged today to sign his first grants of executive clemency, and perhaps some unconditional pardons, of convicted military deserters and draft evaders.

The Presidential Clemency Board earlier this week recommended an undisclosed number of cases for action by Ford, a board spokeswoman said. Board chairman Charles E. Goodell had said last week that 62 cases were being examined.

All 62 men had been furloughed from federal prisons or military stockades while seeking clemency.

The White House signing ceremony early this afternoon was to be followed by a news briefing by Goodell, and individual summaries of the cases recommended to Ford were to be released, the spokeswoman said.

The board is empowered to recommend executive clemency, including commutation of sentence and either unconditional pardon or pardon conditioned on alternative civilian service.

Goodell disclosed last week, the halfway point of the clemency program, that only 742 of the more than 100,000 men convicted of military absence or draft violations had filed applications with his board.

He called those figures "greatly disappointing" but said he expected the response to grow after the eligible men understood the program and realized that "they have nothing to lose" by seeking clemency.

Goodell said the board had concentrated during its first weeks on getting its ground rules established.

The clemency program is open only to those persons who have been convicted of absentee or draft charges. Those still awaiting trial may sign up for alternative civilian service under auspices of the Justice or Defense Departments.

Ford proclaimed the clemency and alternative-service programs last Sept. 16 and set Jan. 31 as the deadline for submitting applications.

Airline Workers Call Off Strike For Time Being

HOUSTON (AP) — Members of the Airline Employes Association have called off for the time being their planned strike against Texas International Airlines.

Union officials told the airline at midnight Thursday that their representatives would continue their negotiations with company officials in Chicago. The talks were recessed late Thursday night. The strike had been originally scheduled to begin at midnight.

Personnel Moved

Late in the evening Texas International announced that it was moving management personnel into stations all over the firm's routes in nine states in an attempt to maintain its operations on schedule.

The airline also serves four cities in Mexico.

The employes negotiating with the company are 1,100 workers doing secretarial work or employed at ticket counters and on the ramps.

There are no maintenance or flight employes involved.

Telegram Sent

The association told officials of the decision to postpone plans for the strike in a telegram to company president Francisco de Lorenzo. The telegram, sent by association president Victor J. Herbert, said:

"We do not intend to strike at midnight, but we do intend to continue negotiations and make every effort to resolve this dispute," Roper said.

Contract Expired

A 30-day cooling-off period was to expire at 12:01 a.m. Friday. The contract expired in August.

Jim O'Donnell, a company vice president, said wages were not the prime issue. Instead the dispute centers around productivity problems such as a paid lunch hour and the company's practice of hiring part-time employes on occasion.

Herbert said the company "seeks to greatly expand its part-time help, and it also wants to establish split shifts-archaic working conditions our members simply cannot accept."

Texas International flies in Texas, California, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, and to Monterrey, Mexico City, Tampico and Veracruz in Mexico.

Mexico May Leave OAS If Agency Not Overhauled

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa says Mexico might quit the Organization of American States unless the OAS is drastically overhauled.

Rabasa briefed Mexican senators Thursday on the foreign policy of President Luis Echeverria's government. Afterward, a newsman asked if Mexico planned to leave the organization to protest its failure to lift diplomatic and trade sanctions against Cuba.

"Not now," he replied. "But if the OAS is not drastically overhauled, we may consider it."

Official Statement

The Foreign Ministry added legitimacy to the answer by releasing it in an official statement.

Rabasa told the senators the recent OAS meeting in Quito, Ecuador, failed to lift the sanctions against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's government because "predominant hegemonies" within the organization preclude free expression. This seemed to be a slap at U.S. influence on smaller OAS members.

New System Urged

Rabasa said one way the OAS could be overhauled would be to do away with the two-thirds system, which he called absurd. He said that on the Cuba question the will of a minority "blocked the will of a majority."

Mexico was a prime backer of the proposal. It has ignored the OAS sanctions by refusing to break relations with Cuba.

On Tuesday, Mexico broke relations with Chile, one of three countries that voted against lifting sanctions. Rabasa said the Chilean "no" vote was a factor that led to the break.

Rookie Longley Keeps Flickering Cowboy Hopes Alive

Hooks Up With Pearson For 50-Yard Last Gasp TD

DALLAS (AP) — Welcome to the National Football League, rookie Clint Longley, and say "Howdy" to those quarterback devouring Washington Redskins!

Longley, who had never played in a regular NFL season game, bounded off the bench to the rescue of the Dallas Cowboys Thursday and proceeded to take charge like he was playing for alma mater Abilene Christian College against Angelo State.

Telling veterans to "shut up" so he could call signals, Longley rallied Dallas from a 16-3 deficit in the third quarter and winged a 50-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson with 28 seconds left for a dramatic 24-23 victory over the Redskins.

Cowboys One Back

The victory gave Dallas a 7-5 record and kept the Cowboys one-game behind Washington (8-4) in the chase for an NFL playoff spot.

Washington came into the game with the intention of knocking Roger Staubach out of it so the Redskins could tee off on raw rookie Longley. They got their wish . . . and paid for it.

"If you knock him (Staubach) out, you've got that rookie Clint Longley facing you," growled Washington defensive tackle Diron Talbert before the game. "That's one of our goals. If we do that, it's great."

Young Longley, the 1973 NAIA passing champion, who hunts rattlesnakes as a hobby in the off-season, did not take kindly to that remark.

Comment Stings

"Yea, I had heard about that Talbert quote earlier in the week and it kind of hurt me," said Longley who had appeared in only two exhibition games.

Redskin linebacker Dave Robertson kayoed Staubach midway in the third period and it appeared the lights also were out for the Cowboys.

"I was really out," Staubach said after the game. "I've been hit before, but I was really out this time."

Then he snapped: "It is almost more satisfying to win with Longley because of what Talbert said. He may deny it now, but he said it nationwide.

"He wanted me to get hurt and he wanted Longley in the game. Well, it backfired. That was Washington's big mistake. Now the words are back where they belong."

Longley Hits DuPree

Longley quickly found tight end Billy Joe DuPree open on a 35-yard touchdown pass. He then drove the team 70 yards climaxed by Walt Garrison's one-yard touchdown run.

Suddenly, the man Washington wanted in the game, had dealt Dallas a 17-16 lead.

The sellout Texas Stadium crowd of 64,000 and a national television audience began to wonder "doesn't Longley know where he is?"

Washington quarterback Bill Kilmer cooly got the Redskins back in the game on a 64-yard drive with former Cowboy Duane Thomas circling end for 19 yards and the score early in the fourth period.

Dallas', rookie fullback Charles Young gave the ball right back to the Redskins, who couldn't move. Mark Moseley, who had kicked three field goals to give Washington a 9-3 halftime lead, lined up what appeared to be a sure chip shot, but Ed "Too Tall" Jones blocked the 24-yard attempt to give Dallas life.

No Time Outs

The Redskins punted to the Cowboys with less than two minutes to play, but they had no timeouts and faced fourth and six at their own 44. Longley found Bob Hayes with a first down pass that had only inches to spare.

The clock was still running when Coach Tom Landry sent him the play of the game.

Landry said "the pass was perfectly thrown . . . we just caught them flatfooted. Clint just has incredible ability. He just knows where his receivers are. He is too young to read defenses correctly, but he just has a special football sense."

Harvey Banks Martin then pounced on a Kilmer fumble after the dramatic pass to Pearson and Texas Stadium was bedlam.

"I wasn't nervous, but I sure was excited," Longley babbled after the game.

Super Celebration

While the Cowboy dressing room resembled their celebration after the victory in Super Bowl VI, the Washington dressing room locker room was like a tomb. "This is the toughest loss . . . to be ahead and then lose," said George Allen.

"I can't remember a tougher loss . . . to be ahead and then lose it . . . Longley did a great job."

Robinson said "I wasn't trying to put Roger out of the game . . . I've never tried to put anybody out."

Then he added: "Maybe that was the turning point in the game, him going out, maybe we should have wanted him to stay in." That Longley — I was really impressed with him."

Longley completed 11 of 20 passes for 203 yards against the leading defense in the National Conference.

Coaches Pick All-America Team

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Notre Dame, Nebraska and Ohio State each placed two players on the American Football Coaches Association All-America team, announced Thursday.

David Humm of Nebraska was chosen as the quarterback. In the backfield with him are running backs Archie Griffin of Ohio State, Joe Washington of Oklahoma and Anthony Davis of Southern California.

Pete Demmerle of Notre Dame is the split end, Ben Cunningham of Clemson is at tight end and the flanker is Pat McInally of Harvard.

The interior linemen are tackles Kurt Schumacher of Ohio State and Marvin Crenshaw of Nebraska, guards Ken Huff of North Carolina and Gerry Dinardo of Notre Dame and center Sylvester Croom of Alabama.

On defense, Jimmy Webb of Mississippi State and Pat Donovan of Stanford are at end with Randy White of Maryland and Mike Hartenstine of Penn State at tackle and Rubin Carter of Miami, Fla., at middle guard.

The linebackers are Rod Shoate of Oklahoma, Ken Bernich of Auburn and Bub Bruening of Arizona State. Dave Brown of Michigan, Robert Giblin of Houston and Mike Williams of Louisiana State are the defensive backs.

Peanut Registration

Registrations are open for the Midland YMCA's Boys Peanut Basketball League program for boys in the fourth to sixth grades. Deadline is Dec. 6 with practice to begin Dec. 11 and games will start Jan. 11. Players may register at the Central, Alamo or Park Center Y's.

Pitt No Problem For Penn State

By The Associated Press

Penn State, ranked 10th, got the college football weekend off to an impressive start with a 31-10 rout of No. 18 Pitt Thanksgiving night.

Tom Shuman threw a pair of touchdown passes to Jim Easie and Chris Bahr added four field goals for the Nittany Lions.

This afternoon the excitement continued as Auburn faced the Alabama Crimson Tide, a second-ranked undefeated power hoping to complete its third perfect regular season in four years.

Auburn, 9-1, was given little chance of winning by the oddsmakers, who established Alabama, 10-0, a two-touchdown choice in the nationally televised encounter set for a 4:05 EST kickoff in Birmingham's Legion Field.

A&M Vs. Texas

Today's schedule also included a Southwest Conference battle featuring No. 8 Texas A&M against No. 17 Texas in Austin. If the Aggies win, they will assure themselves of at least a share of the conference crown and a trip to the Cotton Bowl for the first time since 1967.

"This Auburn team is different than any I've ever had," says Coach Ralph "Shug" Jordan of his seventh-ranked Tigers. "They're steady in the boat."

Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant says this may be "the best Auburn team we've ever played. They have more big capable athletes than any team in the (Southeastern) conference, maybe more than any team has ever had."

SEC Title On Line

The SEC title is at stake. Auburn could tie for the title with a victory over the Tide, which has at least a share of its 13th conference title, including an unprecedented four straight.

Topranked Oklahoma, banned from a bowl appearance by the NCAA for recruiting violations, closes out its season Saturday at home against Oklahoma State, 6-4. The Sooners, 10-0, will be out to win impressively in order to secure their hold on the No. 1 ranking.

No. 5 Notre Dame, 9-1, visits No. 6 Southern California, 8-1-1, in a battle of bowl-bound clubs. The Irish are headed for the Orange Bowl against Alabama and the Trojans will appear in the Rose Bowl against Ohio State.

Baylor Vs. Rice

No. 15 Houston visits Tulsa and No. 16 Baylor entertains Rice in the only other games featuring ranked teams. A Texas A&M loss to Texas combined with a Baylor victory would make the Bears Southwest Conference champs and send them to the Cotton Bowl.

The remainder of Saturday's schedule is highlighted by several traditional games, including Army against Navy.

Four Tall City Games On Tap

Four games are on tap today as the 7th annual Tall City Invitational Basketball Tournament gets under way in the Midland Lee Fieldhouse.

In the opening game of the tourney, El Paso Austin tangles with Amarillo Tascosa at 4 p.m. followed by the El Paso Coronado-Lubbock Monterey tilt at 6 p.m.

Midland then takes on Del Rio in the 7:30 p.m. contest followed by the Midland Lee-Hereford battle at 9 p.m.

Both Midland and Lee go into the tourney with 2-0 records and could wind up in the championship game Saturday night.

Basketball fans will be treated to eight games Saturday with the first set for 10 a.m. in a loser's bracket game with the big two-day tourney winding up at 9 p.m.

Trophies for first, second, third and consolation will be awarded along with a sportsmanship trophy and a 10-man all-tourney team will be chosen, according to toufney director Paul Stueckler, Lee basketball coach. Awards will also be given to the championship team.

Lee has won four of the six previous tournaments while Midland High has captured two. Last year Lee defeated San Antonio Jefferson 80-74 in the finals.

The Rebels will be counting on the outside shooting of Brett Blackwell and Ronnie Farish for this year's victory.

Midland High floors a veteran five that should provide a strong challenge to the Rebels. The Bulldogs are led by Donnie Roberts and Michael Cobb, a pair of 6-5 postmen.

However, neither team faces an easy road to the finals.

Always tough Lubbock Monterey brings a 1-2 record into the tournament, but Coach Joe Michalka's Plainsmen are one of the perennial powers in West Texas basketball.

Six-five Scott Gardner, 6-4½ Pace Jackson, 6-4 Kevin Raullerson and 6-6 Dick Clardy give Monterey one of the biggest teams in the tournament.

El Paso Austin, noted for its fundamentally sound basketball, also has some size to go with it in 6-8 junior Bill Schneider. The Panthers are coming off an 18-12 season.

El Paso Coronado is led by 6-7 center Mark Boelens, backed up by Fernando Laje and 6-3 Eddie Ruiz.

Amarillo Tascosa has two 6-4 centers in sophomore Dwayne Gilbreath and senior Bill Phillips while Del Rio and Hereford both loom as darkhorses. 6-4 Mike Harris and 6-3 Rex Blevin are the Del Rio threats while Lynn Tarr and Mike Hull, both 6-4, lead the Whiteface entry.

Jim Hall Leaves Driving To Britain's Brian Redman

Battle Scene

By Ted Battles

Jim Hall, who a few years ago made sports car racing headlines piloting his revolutionary Chaparral, to a succesion of victories, is perfectly happy to leave the driving to England's Brian Redman these days.

Hall's driving days ended with a near-fatal accident at Riverside, Calif., and for a while he disappeared from the racing scene. But he's back as the man-behind-the-man-behind the wheel and once again is back in the familiar winner's circle.

This last year Hall and Redman, competing with a Carlton Beal-owned and Research Fuels-sponsored car, won the Formula 5000 series with three first and three seconds in seven races.

• • •

"We won five of the nine races in 1973, too," said Hall after a Chamber of Commerce luncheon recognizing the Formula 5000 success, "But Brian was forced to miss two races."

Brian, who has been driving for Hall for two years, still had some contractual obligations to Ferrari, for whom he drove for two seasons.

• • •

Redman pointed out that the Hall vehicle has had quite a success record over the last two years. "We completed 28 races in two years and failed to finish just one race in a class where the ratio of non-finishers is high."

During that stretch, there have been 20 firsts and six seconds.

Hall believes the Formula 5000 type competition is the coming thing in auto racing. "It's so much less expensive than USAC (United States Auto Club)."

USAC cars (Indianapolis type racers) were permitted to compete on the road courses with the Formula 5000 racers and the two will also compete on the oval (Indy-type) tracks next year.

The Formula 5000 gets its title from the fact that the engines are limited to 5000 cc. It is a production engine, pushrod operated with valves. There must be a maximum of two valves per cylinder.

Redman points out that the 305 Chevies used by the Midland-based team can attain speeds of 180 mph compared to 250 to 300 mph by USAC supercharged engines.

"The USAC extras costs are impossible," adds the 37-year-old Britain who has been driving professionally for 15 years.

The automatic shift which was successfully developed and made Hall's Chaparral the talk of the sports car world is missing.

For one reason, "The conventional English five-speed shift, enables us to accelerate from a standstill to 100 mph in six seconds," says Redman.

• • •

For another, "It isn't permitted in Formula 5000 racing," says Hall. "It's very restrictive and rather than innovations, it stresses detail-development. What you do is outprepare the opposition and then turn it over to a driver like Brian to carry it out."

• • •

The Indianapolis 500? "Certainly I'm interested. There's no way I could be disinterested. It's the most publicized race in the world, although winning the 500 isn't the achievement that winning the 5000 is, it brings more publicity," says Hall.

"At present, the expense, however, is too great."

Hall believes the expenses are prompting a trend toward the 5000. "With no Can-Am series next year, I believe we may have as many as 15 Formula 5000 races."

It is Hall's hope that the trend toward the 5000 will eventually bring the Brickyard within reach of the folks at Rattlesnake Raceway, birthplace of the Chaparral.

Louisiana Tech Goes Bowling With Streak

RUSTON, La. (AP) — As Louisiana Tech waited for playoff foe Western Carolina this week, those who have fallen before the Bulldogs' football machine were quick to praise what they had seen.

Undefeated in a record 22 games, unbeaten and at the top of the Southland Conference since it entered four years ago, Louisiana Tech prepares to defend its NCAA Division II crown in the first round of playoffs Saturday afternoon.

"What they've done is create a monster," said Coach Bud Elliott of the University of Texas-Arlington. The Bulldogs burst to a 42-15 conference victory over UTA.

"They're two touchdowns better than Texas Christian," Elliott said. "They're quicker, have a more balanced offense and a very versatile defense."

Ranked in every small college poll this year, Tech has lost only three of its last 46 games. And many small college coaches were saying publicly that the major colleges are lucky they don't have to face Coach Maxie Lambright's Bulldogs.

"They're better than they were last year," said Coach Ollie Kelley, whose Northeast Louisiana Indians fell 26-10 to Tech last week.

"I'm more convinced now than ever that Tech is quite possibly the best team in this state—LSU and Tulane included."

The Bulldogs jumped on Southwestern Louisiana 35-20.

"We've played Tulane, Tampa and San Jose, but Tech was the class team in our schedule," Southwestern Coach Augie Tammariello said.

"They play a lot like Nebraska, except without such big linemen," said Tammariello, who spent six years as assistant coach at Colorado.

"Tech would walk through the Southern Conference and do well in the Western Athletic Conference. They are just as good as people like Arizona State, Arizona and Wyoming."

The Western Carolina Catamounts are ranked ninth and have won nine straight since a 10-3 loss to Murray State of Kentucky in their opener.

"I sort of feel like Gen. Custer—outnumbered," Coach Bob Waters said. "But Tech has to have a weakness somewhere and we'll just have to find it."

Y-Church Cage Leagues Form

The 1974 YMCA Church League Basketball Program is being organized through Midland churches and the YMCA branches. Senior high boys who have not reached the age of 18 prior to Sept. 1, 1974 are eligible. No one who has been on the roster of a high school basketball team (Varsity, JV or Sophomore) at the start of the season may participate in the Church League.

Boys who do not belong to a church or whose church will not field a team, may register for the program through their local YMCA. Registrations deadline 15 Dec. 6.

The playing season begins Dec. 9 and ends in February. All "A" League teams will be eligible for participation in the Zone and State YMCA Championships and both "A" and "B" League teams will compete in local tournament at end of regular season.

Cage Loop Meets On Tuesday Night

Coaches and representatives in the YMCA Church League Basketball Program will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Central YMCA.

This is an important meeting and requires the attendance of all those involved in the program. Adult coaches are still needed to work with teams. Prospective coaches may contact the Y branch in their area.

Houston Closes Out Against Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A winning streak will end Saturday when the Tulsa and Houston football team clash in the regular-season closer for both teams.

Houston has won seven in a row and Tulsa, already champion of the Missouri Valley Conference has won six straight. straight.

Both teams have bounced back from early season difficulties.

"Houston had some quarterback problems early in the season, but they've solved those and they're strong," Tulsa Coach F. A. Dry said. "We're faced one good running back every week this season, but Houston has an abundance of them.

"Reggie Cherry had 170 yards last week and is dangerous and so is running back Marshall Johnson. Their defensive line is big, strong and quick—one of the best we've faced this year."

Tulsa, which lost three of its first four games, has rebounded with quarterback Jeb Blount hitting his peak. Blount ranks eighth nationally in total offense with 193.9 yards per game and sixth in passing with 14.2 completions per outing.

Wide receiver Steve Largent leads the nation in touchdown receptions with 14, is ninth in receiving at 4.7 receptions per game and ninth in scoring with an 3.4 average.

Dry said the key to the game is the offensive line. "If ours does the job, I think we can beat Houston."

Houston will play in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 23 against North Carolina State.

For Tulsa it is the final game of the season after the Hurricane was passed over for the Tangerine Bowl.

Loboes Fall

Brownwood Bops Monahans; Alpine, Denver City Clash

ABILENE — Coach Gordon Wood's Brownwood Lions advanced to the class AAA semifinals here Thursday afternoon with a 35-0 blanking of the Monahans Loboes. Brownwood now owns two shutouts in the playoffs.

The Lions allowed only 19 yards rushing and 94 in the air to the Loboes, who were missing the services of injured all-stater Wayne Petties. Brownwood rolled out 316 yards rushing and passed for an additional 103 yards.

Playoff action continues tonight with Alpine traveling to Denver City for a AA matchup against the Mustangs. Alpine is 9-2 while Denver City is 10-1. The winner meets the victor of tonight's Olton-Spearman contest which is being played in Amarillo.

In an important Class A struggle, the 10-1 Seagraves Eagles meet undefeated Jim Ned at 7:30 p.m. today in Big Spring. The winner will meet the winner of tonight's Petersburg-Memphis contest in the quarterfinals next week.

Hermleigh will take on Marathon at 7:30 p.m. tonight in McCamey in an important Class B struggle with the winner advancing to the semifinals against the winner of Cherokee-Jonesboro contest.

SWC Cagers Open Season With Six Games Scheduled

By The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference tries out its basketball muscle in opening intersectional games this weekend.

Defending champion Texas is at Brigham Young and Southern Methodist hosts Pan American in Friday night games to kick off the schedule.

Five SWC clubs play the guest role on Saturday night. Rockhurst is at Arkansas, Murray State is at Baylor, Wayland Baptist is at Rice, Texas Lutheran is at Texas A&M and Pan American is at Texas Christian.

Texas Christian opens its season Monday night at Oklahoma City and Texas Tech gets underway by entertaining Adams State. Houston, still playing an independent schedule, hosts Louisville also on Monday night.

Foster Ignites Cavaliers

By The Associated Press

Cleveland's Fred Foster came off the bench cold for the flu-ridden Bobby Smith and promptly cooled off Philadelphia Thursday night.

"We went to the bench and Fred was ready," said Cavaliers' Coach Bill Fitch after his team's 110-103 National Basketball Association victory over the 76ers.

Philadelphia sprinted to a 27-18 lead in the first quarter before Fitch decided to shake things up. He benched Bobby Smith, who missed practice Wednesday with a dose of the flu and was ineffective as a starter, and inserted Foster.

Foster led the Cleveland comeback and gave the Cavs their first lead with a driving layup in the third quarter. He wound up with 23 points, second to Austin Carr's 32 for Cleveland. Portland beat Phoenix 88-85 in the only other NBA game played.

Kentucky bombed Virginia 108-95 in the lone American Basketball Association contest.

Cleveland has won only seven of 19 games but has taken six of seven in its new coliseum.

Billy Cunningham and Steve Mix scored 24 points apiece for the Sixers

Portland 88, Phoenix 85

The Trail Blazers, playing without prize rookie Bill Walton, out with a bad ankle, came from behind with 28 points in the final period, 10 of them by Geoff Petrie. Sidney Wicks topped Portland with 29 points and 19 rebounds. Charlie Scott pumped in 27 points to lead the Suns

Kentucky 108, Virginia 95

Seven-foot Artis Gilmore netted 24 points and pulled down 20 rebounds for the Colonels. Bird Averitt added 22 points for the winners while George Irvine scored 27 for the Squires. Virginia has lost six straight and 13 of its last 14 starts.

Missing Marvin Returns

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rookie center Marvin Barnes will be in uniform tonight when the Spirits of St. Louis meet the Utah Stars in Salt Lake City, but even he admits he may not deserve to play.

"Maurice (Lucas) is playing well and I don't feel I can just go in and take over," said Barnes Thursday.

The 6-foot-9 two-time All America from Providence, who jumped the Spirits last week in a contract dispute, agreed to rejoin the American Basketball Association team after talking with Harry Weltman, Spirits' president.

"I'm going back and do my job," he said. "I think they (the Spirits) are fair people. I was led to believe they were not."

Barnes said he had told Spirits' Coach Bob MacKinnon he would be ready to play against the Stars but admitted he didn't know whether he would start. He was averaging 22.1 points and 14.8 rebounds a game when he left the team Nov. 20.

Who Is This Longley?

He Doesn't Wear Mask, But Rides White Horse

DALLAS — After the Dallas Cowboys rallied to defeat the Washington Redskins 24-23 in Texas Stadium Thursday afternoon, you may have been left with the question of, "Who is Clint Longley?"

Longley, Dallas' rookie reserve quarterback, came off the bench when starter Roger Staubach was injured in the third quarter, and directed the Pokes to victory by driving the team to three touchdowns. Two of the TDs came through the air to tight end Billy Joe DuPree and wide receiver Drew Pearson.

Longley has the credentials that makes the feat look like no fluke. He led Abilene Christian College to the NAIA championship last season when he passed for 3,167 yards as a junior.

The Cincinnati Bengals picked him up in the supplementary draft last season. This was allowed since Longley had been a red shirt at ACC and would have been entering his fifth year with the Wildcats in 1974. Longley gave up the remaining year of eligibility to join the pros.

If the Bengals hadn't been so far sighted, Longley would still be pumping aerials for the ACC crew this year. The Cowboys picked Longley up in a pre-season trade when Coach Tom Landry promised Craig Morton that they would try to trade him to another club. Morton, who was discontent with being a backup quarterback to Staubach, was traded to the New York Giants in mid-season, leaving Longley as the backup.

Well Thursday, Longley, who hails from Littleton, Colo., got his first chance as a pro when the scrambling Roger was injured on a run, one of Landry's pet peeves of his starter.

Redskin defensive tackle Diron Talbert, who has had a running feud with Staubach for the past year, said Wednesday, "You try to get a scrambling quarterback to scramble and into the arms of someone who's going to hurt him. If you knock him out, you got that rookie (Clint Longley) facing you. That's one of our goals. If we do that, it's great."

Talbert is eating a few words today.

HUNTING and FISHING

Glen Hixon took first place in the High Sky Bass Club November Tournament at Sportsmans Lodge on Oak Creek with a total weight of nine pounds, two ounces. Charlie Burns was second (6-8) while Melba Erck won the women's division with four pounds, nine ounces and Byron Hixon won the teen division, two pounds, six ounces. Kevin Erck won the children's division with two pounds, 10 ounces.

Glen Hixon won the big bass honors with a six-pound black . . .

Ike Pate, who operates Sportsman's Lodge, claims that while Oak Creek has long been recognized for its productive bass fishing, "What most people don't know is that this general area has one of the heaviest populations of deer and turkey in this part of the state . . ."

Pate reports that bass have been fickle during the past week, but some big crappie were caught on lures and channel cat fishing from the dock has been generally good.

* * *

Donald E. Wright, Air Traffic Controller with the Federal Aviation Administration at Terminal, shot a seven-point buck on the McKinney lease in Nolan County Tuesday. It was his first deer in Texas, although he had hunted for many years in Arkansas . . .

* * *

Maurice and Bubba Duncan of Robert Lee hold the new record for a striped bass at Lake E. V. Spence after landing an 18-pound, 11-ouncer. That topped the record of 18 pounds set by Maurice and Mike Ross.

Jim Patterson of Midland caught 12 channel cat to three pounds while Lee Davis, Midland, took an 11-pound striper and Fred Jones, Midland, 21 blacks to four pounds plus a 3 pound striper. Also James Pruitt, Midland, took five channel to 10 pounds; W. D. Brown, Midland, landed four black bass; and Alex Tucker, Midland, had five channel cats running to six pounds.

The first of 21,000 rainbow trout scheduled to be stocked in Texas waters this fall were placed in the Brazos and Guadalupe River systems on Nov. 19. As part of an experiment to see if trout will survive in the acidic waters of East Texas, some 500 were placed in the Tonkawa Spings in Rusk County . . . The 941,000 fingerling striped bass released in 13 Texas lakes this year seem to be doing well. During May and June, bass were released in lakes Granbury, Spence, Whitney, Travis, Canyon, Toledo Bend and Amistad. Striped white bass hybrids were turned loose in Nasworthy, Garza-Little Elm, Mayse, Bastrop, Jacksonville, and Martin Creek . . .

Jim Owens Resigns After 18 Years At Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — University of Washington football Coach Jim Owens resigned Tuesday night after 18 years as head man of the Huskies.

Owens' three-year contract, with an annual salary of $33,000, expires Dec. 31.

He was offered a one-year contract but turned it down, saying that he had always expected to leave coaching at some period of time. He did not indicate what he planned to do in the future.

At a banquet here he told his players, Owens said, "This decision was the hardest thing that's taken place in my life. But I consider myself the luckiest man ever in coaching."

Attending the banquet were Dr. John Hogness UW president, Joe Kearney, director of sports programs, and Alvin Ulbrickson, vice president for student affairs which encompasses intercollegiate athletics. University officials said Owens was being given an opportunity to stay on "in a role to be determined."

Rice Kicker Likes Action

HOUSTON (AP) — Alan Pringle likes to be where the action is and that doesn't always fit his sometimes lonely vigil as a kicker on the Rice University football team.

"I'm not anti-kicker or pro-kicker," said Pringle, who booted a 50-yarder against Texas Christian last Saturday. "I've just always been able to play a lot in the sports I've participated in.

"If I'd been able to play high school football in the United States, it might have been different. But now I'm a kicker because that's what I do best so I hope to make the best of it."

The education of Alan Pringle started back in 1971 when he was discovered by a Rice assistant coach, booting a soccer ball around in a P.E. Class.

Unprepared for the rigors of college football, Pringle dropped out of school for a year and then came back to become one of the most accurate kickers in Southwest Conference history.

Pringle finishes his college career against Baylor Saturday and he has hit 18 of 25 field goal attempts. Of those, Pringle considers he's really missed three. The others were in the unreasonable range, like one 69-yard attempt.

Unlike many kickers, Pringle isn't afraid to mix it up after a kickoff if he's needed. "I'm proud to say we've had eight or nine guys break through where I've made the tackle," he said. "I'd be letting the team down if I just kicked off and let the other 10 guys do the tackling."

When it comes to kicking field goals, Pringle figures the mechanical aspects of the kick are the least of the problems.

"Mechanically, you should split the uprights everytime," Pringel said.

Concentration is another matter. "When I'm on the field, I don't even see the rush half the time," Pringle said.

After adjusting to the intenseness of college football Pringle is looking forward to a career in the pros.

Pratt To Spring Fem Cager On Baruch Five

NEW YORK (AP) — Pratt Institute opens its college basketball season against Baruch College tonight, which is of no paticular concern to the powerhouses like North Carolina State and UCLA.

But the small New York City school has one thing going for it that the others don't. Pratt will present the first woman to play on a men's basketball team in National Collegiate Athletic Association history.

She's Cyndy Meserve, an 18-year-old freshman from Livermore Falls, Maine, who explains all the excitement surrounding her debut by saying, "I just like to play basketball."

When Coach Tony Missere announced tryouts for the team, Cyndy showed up. "I'm no women's libber or anything like that," she said. "I honestly thought it was for the women's team."

It was not, and when Missere tried to explain that Pratt didn't have a women's team, Cyndy said that was all right, she would try out for the men's squad.

"It completely floored me," said Missere.

What's more, Cyndy made the 15-man . . . make that person . . . squad. She won't start, but Missere assures that she'll play.

"I wouldn't have picked her if I didn't think she could play. She'll play some," said Missere. "I won't play her just for the fans. And I can't say when I'll play her because I don't want to give away my strategy."

Missere hinted that Cyndy, who's 5-foot-8, might be used to get other teams in foul trouble. The coach claims that she's the second best foul shooter on the team and one of the better shooters.

In a scrimmage earlier this week against some ex-college players, Cyndy scored eight points on just five shots.

"She is progressing," said Missere, who led the nation's rebounders when he played at Pratt in 1967. "She still has a lot to learn."

One thing Cyndy has accomplished already, without ever dribbling a ball or taking a shot, is to put Pratt on the basketball map.

"We've gotten more publicity than any other basketball school in the nation," said Missere. "She has generated a lot of excitement."

Gibson Makes Pitch For K-State Assistant

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — The man who made Purple Pride synonmous with Kansas State football says he would like to see one of his assistants take his place as head coach of the Wildcats.

Gibson took time out Thursday to reflect on his eight years at the helm of the Kansas State football program and make a pitch for 41-year-old Bob Webster, his offensive coordinator, to succeed him.

Athletic Director Ernie Barrett said he would be taking a close look at Webster along with 10 other assistants, but would also search around the country for Gibson's replacement.

Barrett said he hoped for a decision on the new coach before Dec. 15.

Word of Gibson's resignation leaked out late Monday although he wanted to wait until Wednesday to announce it.

The high point of Gibson's tenure was 1970 when his Wildcats finished 6-5 and tied for second with Oklahoma in the Big Eight.

AFTER SHOT BARRAGE—

Detroit Goalie Asks, 'What Thanksgiving?'

By The Associated Press

Detroit goalie Jim Rutherford, on the receiving end of 46 Buffalo shots, didn't have much to be thankful for Thursday night as the Red Wings absorbed a 5-2 National Hockey League beating at the hands of the red-hot Buffalo Sabres. Detroit, which has won only once in its last 15 games, managed only 19 shots on goal.

"We didn't give them much opposition," said Wings' Coach Alex Delvecchio. "This losing streak of ours is very frustrating and the future doesn't look very encouraging.

"We have jerseys but we don't have much ability in them."

The Detroit-Buffalo game was the only NHL contest Thursday night. In the World Hockey Association, Vancouver beat Toronto 6-2, Quebec downed Indianapolis 7-5, Houston blanked Edmonton 2-0 and Chicago shaded San Diego 3-2.

Buffalo, which has just one loss in its last 17 outings, struck for first-period goals by Rick Martin, his 15th, and Brian Spencer and coasted home. The Sabres outshot Detroit 22-3 in the first 20 minutes and the Wings never recovered.

Rene Robert, Rick Dudley and Lee Fogolin got the other Buffalo goals while Rick McCann and Marcel Dionne had third-period goals for Detroit.

Vancouver 6, Toronto 2

Toronto's Frank Mahovlich picked up his 545th pro career goal in a losing cause to move past Maurice Richard into third place on the all-time goal list. Only Gordie Howe and Bobby Hull have scored more goals. Dan Lawson connected twice for the Blazers.

Quebec 7, Indianapolis 5

Real Cloutier scored three goals and had one disallowed for the Nordiques. Rene LeClerc added a pair for Quebec as the Racers lost their ninth straight.

Houston 2, Edmonton 0

Gordie Howe scored his ninth goal of the season midway through the second period and son Mark added an empty-net goal with eight seconds left for the Aeros. Houston goalie Wayne Rutledge had to make just 15 saves to record the shutout.

Chicago 3, San Diego 2

Pete Mara had two goals, including the game-winner at 2:04 of the third period, and Jan Popeil had one for the Cougars. Andre Lacroix and Norm Ferguson connected for the Mariners.

UCLA Catches Wichita State, DePaul

By The Associated Press

UCLA, Southern Cal, Arizona and Penn, four of the nation's ranked teams, open their seasons tonight as the college basketball world eagerly looks toward a wide-open race for the national championship.

The UCLA Bruins, longtime dominators of the sport, will be just another of the boys this time with hard competition expected from every region of the nation.

Top-ranked North Carolina State, the defending champion which ended the Bruins' dynasty last year in the NCAA playoffs, hopes to enhance one of its own, opening Saturday night against East Carolina.

UCLA, ranked No. 2, makes a fast break with two games this weekend — tonight against Wichita State and Saturday night against DePaul.

Southern Cal, UCLA's bitter cross-town rival which starts the season ranked No. 10, takes on Louisiana State; Arizona, the country's No. 19 team, meets Northern Illinois and No. 20 Penn plays Middle Tennessee in a tournament at Clemson, S. C.

Many other ranked teams besides North Carolina State start shooting for recognition Saturday afternoon and night.

Indiana, a classy Big Ten team ranked No. 3, meets Tennessee Tech; fourth-ranked Maryland, an Atlantic Coast Conference colleague of North Carolina State's, plays Richmond and No. 6 Kansas of the Big Eight takes on Northeast Missouri.

Elsewhere, it's No. 11 North Carolina against Biscayne; No. 12 Notre Dame at Valparaiso; No. 13 Purdue hosting Indiana State; Montclair State at No. 15 Memphis State; Northwestern at No. 16 Kentucky; No. 17 Michigan entertaining Toledo and North Dakota State appearing at No. 18 Minnesota.

UCLA will be missing several strategic players from last year's superlative gang — including center Bill Walton and forward Keith Wilkes. The perrenial Pacific-8 Conference kings, winners of that title 12 of the last 13 years, wear the crown uneasily this year.

The Pac-8 is more well-rounded than it has been in several seasons. While the Bruins have lost four of their starters, none of the other league teams have lost more than two. Southern Cal returns its starting five and five others from last year's team.

North Carolina State, meanwhile, has only lost one player from its national championship team — center Tom Burleson. The rest of the sublime lineup is back, headed by Player of the Year David Thompson.

Indiana hasn't lost anyone, giving Coach Bobby Knight a team of formidable talents led by Quinn Buckner.

HOROSCOPE

by Carroll Righter

(Nov. 30)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to study the progress that you have already made and the direction you are headed in the future. A fine time for getting whatever information you need to make your endeavors a success. Obtain statistical reports you need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are thinking very cleverly now and can devise new ways to increase your abundance. Try to improve rapport with associates.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have good ideas on how to increase your income, so follow through on them. Listen to what a good adviser has to suggest.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss personal goals with trusted friends who can assist you in attaining them more quickly. Show that you have the common touch.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A little quiet thinking now will help you make up your mind as to what you must do in a new enterprise. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to deepen friendships with associates. Speak effectively in all your dealings and you can gain your cherished desire.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't neglect to handle an important business matter. Call an influential person and you can easily get the support you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are desirous of change in your life, so make the right contacts and go ahead with your plans. Avoid one who bickers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take time to make long-range plans for the future. Think and act in a practical fashion. Show increased devotion to mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get together with associates and express a more cooperative spirit than in the past. Show them that you have wisdom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have unfinished business to attend to, so get an early start, otherwise you could lose out. Think along logical lines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Put worry and work aside for now and engage in recreational outlets that relieve tensions. Sidestep one who is jealous of you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Strive for more harmony in the home. Do some entertaining in the early evening that brings happiness to all concerned.

European Firm Buys Bantam Books

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The sale of Bantam Books, a major American paperback publishing company, to a European firm for $70 million was announced Thursday.

Bantam was purchased by an Italian conglomerate, Institute of Finance and Industry (IFI), which is headquartered in Luxembourg.

Bantam was sold by American Financial Corp., a Cincinnati-based financial holding company, according to AFC board chairman and president Carl H. Lindner.

Bantam President Oscar Dystel said the publishing house would remain in its New York headquarters and that no significant changes were planned.

The sale called for $60 million in cash and a $10 million note guaranteed by the IFI parent.

American Financial had purchased Bantam earlier this year.

Bantam expects to sell 105 million paperbacks in 1974 for a projected $75 million. The book company also owns Transworld Publishers Ltd., a leading British paperback publisher.

Texas Navy Man Slain At Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Navy Fireman S. C. Van Buren Swearington, 26, of Houston, Tex., was shot to death Thursday at a Thanksgiving party.

Police said Swearington, assigned to the Great Lakes Training Center, was one of three Navy men attending the party on the city's West Side.

Chain Announces Price Freezes, Warning System

NEW YORK (AP) — The A&P supermarket chain has announced a price freeze on about 1,000 products bearing its own labels and instituted an "Early Warning System" on price increases in its stores across the nation.

The company said the price freeze on A&P private labels will extend at least until Jan. 1 and will cover over 1,000 items including bread, cheese, coffee, canned fruits and vegetables and frozen foods.

Under the early warning system, the company said, beginning Monday all stores will post weekly lists of products going up in price and the amount of the increase seven days before the change takes effect.

Suspect Charged In Texan's Death

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Geneva Pritchitt, 30, Maryville, has been charged with murder in the stabbing death of Carl Robert Muller Jr., 30, El Paso, Tex., police said today.

Detective Gerald Whaley said the stabbing occurred Thursday night at a mobile home on a rural road near here.

Window Shot Out

Ruth Roberson, 2001 W. Rhode Island St., told police Thursday that vandals shot out a window in a car parked behind her home. The window was valued at $25.

Turkish Premier Resigns

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Premier Sadi Irmak resigned today after he failed to win approval in the National Assembly for a government of independent parliamentarians and outside technocrats.

Irmak's action means continuation of the political deadlock that followed the resignation Sept. 18 of former Premier Bulent Ecevit.

President Fahri Koruturk accepted Irmak's resignation and asked him to stay on in a caretaker role until a new government is formed.

The vote in the 450-seat assembly went against Irmak 362 to 11, with the remaining members abstaining.

President Koruturk's next step to solve the political deadlock was not immediately clear. A growing number of politicians have come to the conclusion that only new elections can solve the problem.

Earthquake Jolts California Area

HOLLISTER, Calif. (AP) — Central Californians had their Thanksgiving holiday punctuated by a moderate earthquake that broke windows and tossed groceries off some store shelves.

No injuries were reported because of the quake, centered six miles north of here, but the tremor was felt in 10 counties from San Francisco to Monterey.

The five-second shock struck at about 3 p.m. Thursday with a magnitude of 5.25 to 5.5 on the Richter scale, said Dr. Bruce Bolt of the University of California's seismographic station in Berkeley. The Richter scale is a measurement of the earth's movement as registered on seismographs. The famous 1906 San Francisco earthquake measured 8.3 on the scale.

Hospital Report Meeting Slated

Kenny Jastrow and John J. Redfern Jr., co-chairmen of the Midland Memorial Hospital Expansion Fund Committee, have announced an "important" report meeting to be held at 3 p.m. Monday in the 1st National Room of The First National Bank.

"We will present exciting information on the funding of our new wing at the hospital," Jastrow and Redfern said in a meeting announcement addressed to "Trustees, Governors and Contributors."

The meeting, it was announced, will start promptly at 3:05 p.m. and end promptly at 3:25 p.m.

DISMISSED — Princess Elizabeth Bagaya was dismissed Thursday as Uganda's foreign affairs minister, Uganda Radio reported. The former film star and model was dismissed by Uganda's President, Gen. Middle Eastern Government Buys Into West German Auto Industry

BONN, Germany (AP) — A Middle Eastern government has bought a substantial share of the Daimler-Benz Corp., West Germany's second largest automotive producer, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's government said today.

There was no official confirmation of which government was involved, but there was widespread speculation the stock purchase was made by Iran, which has been active in financial dealings in West Germany.

Sources estimated the value of the transaction as high as $400 million.

The transaction is the second major acquisition by a Middle Eastern oil state of industrial holdings in Germany. In July, the Iranian government bought 25.04 per cent of the giant Krupp steel empire.

A spokesman for the Iranian Embassy in Bonn said he knew nothing about the deal. He said that even if Teheran were involved, the embassy would not necessarily have been informed at this point.

Daimler-Benz produces Mercedes cars, trucks and buses. Last year, it was second behind Volkswagenwerk AG in total sales with a turnover of $5.7 billion. Its profit was $102.6 million.

The sale came from the stock of the Quandt group, a holding company controlled by Herbert Quandt and the heirs of is late brother Harold. The group said in a statement that it had sold a major part of its 14 to 15 per cent minority share in Daimler-Benz to "a foreign party" without identifying the purchaser further.

Daimler refused comment on specifics of the transaction. It said comment was unnecessary because the sale was a "financial transaction between stockholders and doesn't affect the operational situation of the company."

Broadway Swinger Joe Namath Becomes Sensitive Soul With Yen For Teaching

By WILL GRIMSLEY

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (A) — Scrape some of the stardust off Joe Willie Namath and you find not a Broadway swinger but a deeply sensitive man with a hidden desire of some day becoming a schoolteacher.

"It's the truth," said old No. 12 of the New York Jets, reflecting on what may lie ahead for a 31-year-old quarterback with two bum knees, a good head, the sharpest passing release and the most magnetic name in the game.

Serious Thinking

"My health is good. I have security. Now I want to learn more about life and, if possible, pass on that knowledge to others. I seriously have thought about returning to Alabama to get my degree—I need 15 hours—and then go into teaching.

"I think I would like elementary teaching. I get along well with kids. I could help them relate to the rest of the world. The academic life appeals to me."

After 10 years with the Jets, during which time he not only dazzled the National Football League with his passing but became a symbol of the high life of the dashing bachelor, Broadway Joe is presenting a more subdued image.

He has moved out of his New York apartment with its mirrors and fabled llama rug into a two-story family dwelling on a quiet, tree-lined street in suburban Long Island.

Often Cooks Own Meals

There, he has the run of three bedrooms, two baths, living room, dining room and a kitchen in which he often cooks his own meals.

His only distraction comes from neighborhood kids who ring his door bell just to get a look and then run away.

On Halloween night, he blew $28 for candy bars, cookies and other goodies to satisfy the costumed "trick-or-treat" bandits who paraded to his door.

"They cleaned me out," Joe says, with more delight than distaste.

Of his new life, he adds: "The things I miss most in moving from Manhattan are the girls and good restaurants. It's pretty quiet here."

Despite all the publicity lavished on him as a bon vivant and man about town, Namath possesses a little boy's bashfulness at times—it is part of his charm. He guards his private life zealously. He is introspective and, except when with friends, is inclined to be quiet and reserved.

Laughs About Reputation

Of his reputation as a swinger, Namath shrugs his shoulders and laughs.

"I am single, I take an occasional drink and I like girls," he says. "I don't know that that makes me very unusual."

On a damp, dismal day last week when a Jets' practice was curtailed, Namath relaxed in his new, low-key surroundings and ponderer .is future.

The rumor mills have been busy. Some have said he will go to the Los Angeles Rams. Others have reported he is interested in buying a franchise in the new World Football League—either Memphis of New York—and becoming the first combination president-coach-player in the game's history. Another possibility is that he will take up an acting career.

Namath discounts none of them.

"No, I don't say any of those things is unrealistic," he said. "We just haven't made any firm decisions yet, but we are exploring several things. By 'we' I mean my partner, Jimmy Walsh, and myself."

Walsh is Namath's attorney, adviser and partner whose business acumen has made both of them very wealthy men.

The only seeming certainty is that Namath will not be back with the Jets, with whom he signed for a then-staggering $450,000 in 1965 and went on to become a living legend.

"I don't know why they would want me back," he said. "They are a young team. They are rebuilding. They should be working in a new, young quarterback. As for me, if I play, I would play two years at the most and there is no assurance I will play at all."

If Namath decides to suit up again in 1975—and he personally feels he is physically capable of carrying on—he insists he would want to play with a contending team.

"There are a lot of frustrations playing with a losing team," he admitted. "It's tough coming up with failures week in and week out, some of them my fault, some of them the fault of others. It is still a team game.

"It gets to be a drag."

Namath drives a white Cadillac El Dorado from his stone and shingle home to the new Jets practice complex at Hofstra University in adjoining Hempstead—only about 15 minutes away.

After practice, Joe frequently stops in a small neighborhood lounge across the turnpike from the university for a beer. The pub is festooned with Joe Namath photographs, blown up to almost life size.

Most of the customers recognize Joe but make no big fuss over him. Joe carries on small talk with the waitresses and the bartender.

"I can still play," Namath insisted, zeroing in on critics who say his fragile legs make him a detriment to the team. "I can throw the ball as well as I ever did. My mind, if anything, is better, I am better at reading defenses.

"As for my legs, I always have had bad legs. I have had less trouble with my legs this year than in many previous years. I can still scramble if I have to."

Services Today For Guy Z. Branch

Services for Guy Z. Branch, 70, were to be at 2 p.m. today in the Newt. W Ellis Chapel, with interment in Fairview Cemetery.

Branch died Wednesday in a Midland hospital.

Survivors include the widow; a son, Roriald Branch of Midland; two daughters, Mrs. Bill Lillis of Midland and Mrs. Bob McGar of Fort Worth; four brothers, Dee Branch of Midland, Burt Branch of Mount Vernon, Lloyd Branch of Rockport and Jack Branch of Dallas; three sisters, Mrs. Dovie Richters of Loraine and Mrs. Jack Merrill and Mrs. Truitt Hogan, both of Mount Vernon, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Kenneth Lesly of Stephenville, and A. W. Branch, Earl Branch, James Oakes, Larry Boren and Charles Collins, all of Midland.

Midlanders' Kin Dies; Rites Held

DUBLIN — Mrs. Bunnie Carter, 85, died Tuesday night in Mansfield. She was the mother of T. J. Carter and Jim Carter, both of Midland.

Services were held Friday in the Harrell Memorial Chapel with interment in New Dublin Cemetery.

Survivors include another son, a daughter, 11 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

HEW To Tighten Rules On Medicare, Medicaid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning next Feb. 1, doctors and hospitals will have to certify to the government within two days of admission that the elderly Medicare and needy Medicaid patients they treat actually require such care.

The "utilization review" program, announced Thursday, is designed to protect taxpayers from footing the costs of unnecessary hospitalizations and expensive treatments.

The federal Medicare and Medicaid programs, which cost $20 billion during the current fiscal year, could realize savings of $42.5 million by next June 30 under the review program, officials in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said.

They said a $60-million net savings in Medicare alone could be realized in fiscal 1976.

Utilization review is a substitute for an earlier, stronger proposal that would have required doctors and hospitals to certify the necessity of treatment before a Medicare or Medicaid patient could be admitted to a hospital, nursing home or mental institution.

The American Medical Association prevailed on then-President Richard M. Nixon earlier this year to pressure HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger to scrap the original plan. The AMA and the American Hospital Association also had threatened a court battle.

Midlander Hurt Seriously As Car Rolls Four Times

Shannon Mary Bates, 17, of Midland was reported in "guarded" condition this morning in Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, where she was taken following a one-car rollover Thursday afternoon 16 miles west of Odessa on Interstate 20.

Miss Bates, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bates of 1908 Oaklawn St., was driving the auto which left the interstate and rolled over four times before landing on its top.

Her aunt, Laverne Bates, 51, of 2101 N. D St., was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital.

According to investigating officer Dennis Reily, out of the Odessa Department of Public Safety office, the other four occupants of the car escaped injury.

Medical Fund For Paralyzed TCU Halfback Growing

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Thad Zeigler, San Antonio businessman and father of a former girl friend of Kent Waldrep, delivered $5,606 to Fort Worth this week as San Antonio's donation to the injured Texas Christian University halfback's medical expenses, the university said.

Zeigler, who became friends with Waldrep on a hunting trip at Ziegler's Mason County ranch last year, sent out personal letters to 767 friends and business acquaintances in the San Antonio area seeking financial help for Waldrep.

Waldrep is paralyzed from a bruised spinal cord suffered in the TCU-Alabama game Oct. 26.

"I guess the thought of how he was before the accident got me going more than anything else," Ziegler said.

Totals of the Kent Waldrep Fund are over $14,000 in Fort Worth, the university said. Additionally, Alabama residents raised over $20,000.

Waldrep was recently moved to a Houston rehabilitation center where he will undergo therapy.

Pre-Winter Blast Brings Snow To Much Of Midcontinent And Freeze To South

By The Associated Press

A pre-winter blast of arctic cold scattered snow through a wide stretch of the midcontinent today and dropped temperatures below freezing deep into the South.

Snowfall generally was light but widespread, dusting the lower Rockies, much of the Plains region, the lower Great Lakes and the eastern Ohio Valley.

Two inches or more of snow whitened Northeast New Mexico and Southeast Colorado. An inch coated Rapid City, S.D., Binghamton, N.Y.

Travel advisories remained in effect in parts of New Mexico, Colorado, Missouri and Pennsylvania because of snow.

Temperatures slipped below zero in portions of Wyoming overnight. Near-zero readings spilled out of the northern Rockies into the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Readings in the low 30s ranged across much of the South from Texas through Georgia.

Fair skies were scarce, confined mostly to sections of the Southwest, the central Rockies, the Southeast and the Middle Atlantic region.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from -1 at Laramie, Wyo., to 70 at Key West and Miami, Fla.

Some other reports: Anchorage 34 cloudy, Atlanta 39 clear, Boston 33 cloudy, Buffalo 29 cloudy, Chicago 27 partly cloudy, Cincinnati 31 cloudy, Cleveland 32 cloudy, Dallas 58 rain, Denver 14 clear, Detroit 30 partly cloudy, Honolulu 75 partly cloudy, Indianapolis 29 cloudy, Kansas City 28 light snow, Los Angeles 55 clear, Louisville 32 clear, Miami 70 clear, Minneapolis-St. Paul 27 light snow, Nashville 33 cloudy, New York 40 partly cloudy, Philadelphia 39 clear, Phoenix 50 clear, Pittsburgh 28 partly cloudy, St. Louis 31 cloudy, San Francisco 46 partly cloudy, Seattle 39 cloudy, Washington 37 clear.

Shanouk Backers May Try To Reverse U.N. Decision

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Exiled Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk's supporters today weighed a possible attempt to reverse the close decision of the United Nations General Assembly against seating Sihanouk's regime at the world organization.

Early Thursday, the assembly voted 56-54 to seek conciliation between the rival Cambodian factions, the pro-American government of President Lon Nol and Sihanouk's Peking-based group.

Twenty-four countries abstained and three were absent from the vote on the resolution, which also put off for a year any change in Cambodia's U.N. representation.

Because of a technicality, however, the issue remained today on the assembly's agenda and a revote was possible.

The technicality was that an unimportant paragraph in the adopted resolution received a 51-51 tie in a separate vote. Under the rules, the paragraph should be voted on again and this opened the door to reconsidering the whole issue.

Diplomats said the pro-Sihanouk forces, led by China and Algeria, would seek a reversal if they are able to lobby three more votes from Thursday's 27 abstentions and absences. Many regarded their chances as slim, so intensely had both sides already collected all possible votes.

Four Burglaries Reported Thursday

A color television set was reported taken from the Virginia Brito residence at 425 E. Magnolia St. in one of four burglary investigations made by police Thanksgiving Day.

Vending machines were broken into at the Tip Top Drive In, 2104 W. Front St. Police said an undetermined amount of change was taken.

Jeanette Cook of 200 W. New York St. told police someone removed a radio valued at $15 from her home.

A radar detector unit valued at $93 was reported taken from an auto parked at the Thomas Lowery residence, 1810 North A St.

The large river valleys of the Midwest probably had the most dense prehistoric plant and animal life in North America.

Transactional Analysis Program Slated At College

Midland College and Bob Avary and Associates are sponsoring a transactional analysis program for middle and upper management personnel scheduled for Dec. 2, 9 and 16.

Transactional analysis, discussed in the books, "Games People Play" and "I'm OK — You're OK," are transactions that take place between and within people.

The classes, which cost $95 including a notebook and four cassette tapes, will be held 6-10 p.m. at Lee High School.

The course concerns itself primarily with communication, employe motivation and morale. The goals are toward increased productivity, reduction of errors, reduced employe turnover and improved relationships.

Avery has said persons signing up for the course may hear the program explanation and the broad spectrum of material in the first hour. Individuals not interested in continuing after the first session are under no obligation of payment.

Two Escape Injury In Airplane Crash

RACHAL, Tex. (AP) — Two Beaumont men escaped injury today when their Cessna 123 airplane flipped over while making an emergency landing near this South Texas town.

A Brooks County Sheriff's Office spokesman identified the pilot as Walter M. Mayer Jr. and his passenger as Dr. Monty Sontag.

The spokesman said the plane apparently struck a hole on a small airstrip and overturned. He said the plane was destroyed.

Ford's 'Bite The Bullet' Just Good Western Language

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

A friend called up the other day, his voice shaking a little in anguish. An old hero we both admired had just stuck his foot in his mouth. Rather, he'd failed to stick a bullet in it.

Therefore we are going to propose to John Anderson, the caller, that we pool our personal fortunes and send 10 cents to Roy H. Copperud so he can go see one of the kid western movies.

Nation Needs Culture

Surely they still are being shown each Saturday. The nation needs culture. The tickets, though, may be as much as 15 cents today considering inflation.

Anderson, managing editor of the Corpus Christi Caller and Times, is one of these men who is more sensitive to language as it is spoken than most people.

For instance, he knows there is no such thing as barbed wire. It is bob wire. Ask any old ranch hand.

The issue arose when Mr. Gerald Ford, otherwise known as the President of the United States, said the American public, meaning you and Mr. Anderson, is going to have to "bite the bullet."

Copperud writes a widely read column in Editor and Publisher magazine on how newspaper reporters should use the language.

Copperud is somewhat flexible in his views of usage but he does try to keep writers honest.

But in the Nov. 2 issue of E&P, he complained somewhat petulantly that he didn't know what Mr. Ford meant by "bite the bullet."

He said he couldn't find the phrase in any of his reference works of which he must have a house full.

Copperud must be an effete easterner. So must be the people who write his reference books.

We Southwesterners will just have to tear up Webster's Unabridged Dictionary and write our own.

Everybody in the Southwest knows what "bite the bullet" means. We can't remember a period when we didn't recognize the term.

This means it was a part of the Southwest language well before we were 16 years old, as we were not allowed to attend movies before that advanced age.

Let us tell you how it happens in the western movies.

The hero has just been hit by a bullet which stopped somewhere in his shoulder. In fiction, heroes never get shot except in the shoulder.

The only doctor within 500 miles is an old man who hung out his shingle on impulse one day while under the influence of the bottle and whose only knowledge of the science is to shake his head over a patient and say, "It looks bad."

So he must dig out the bullet that is reposing in our hero.

He turns to the sheriff and says, "Lend me a bullet."

The guy already has one in him, doc! You need another?

Sure, he does. He shoves the soft lead bullet between the teeth of the wounded man.

"Bite on that," orders the doctor. "We'll have this out in a minute."

Two reels later, the doctor pulls his probe out of the man, declares triumphantly, "There it is," drops the bullet on the floor and looks around for someone to buy him a double bourbon.

Presumably the hero bit on the bullet to keep from grinding his teeth down to the gums as he writhed in pain.

Never in a western have we seen the use of chloroform, ether, morphine or any other anesthetic.

Sometimes a doctor with less than normal intelligence gave a man a great slug of whisky but probably soon regretted his error because dealing with a drunk patient couldn't be much fun.

Plot Changes Little

Ether and chloroform weren't invented until the middle-1840s, about the time man grew too soft to sustain surgery without pain killers.

What year they reached the Old West, goodness only knows. They apparently were suspect as works of the devil until Queen Victoria agreed to use chloroform during the birth of one of her nine children.

After that, anesthesia became a fad and we'll wager that many of the fashionable court ladies went around having babies they didn't even need just so they could emulate the queen and sniff chloroform.

Feared today's kids who never knew the Old West wouldn't understand "bite the bullet."

But every one of those we asked knew instantly. Further questioning showed they learned it from old westerns on tv.

One eastern type said yes he knew. He'd seen it done in "Beau Geste," a movie about the French Foreign Legion.

We have no idea how a good old western medical remedy leaped the oceans to reach Africa's desert.

Possibly some Hollywood brain decided a western done in Foreign Legion uniforms would be great. As we recall, the plot was about the same.

Anyway, we've never determined why they wanted to get the bullet out of the hero's shoulder in the first place.

The heat of the explosion in the weapon's barrel sterilized the projectile and there was no reason to dig it out. Unless, of course, the bullet weighed so much it made the hero walk lopsided, and some of those Old West bullets were big enough to do it.

Layoffs May Increase Productivity

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — One likely effect of the mass layoffs and other cutbacks by industry is a rise in productivity, which has been plunging at one of the sharpest rates in the years since World War II.

Although the postwar increases in productivity have averaged between 2 and 3 per cent, declines have been registered in five of the past six quarters. In the third quarter the drop was 2.4 per cent.

Productivity, or output per man hour, is not a measure solely of how diligently production workers attend to their chores. Instead, it measures how effectively manpower, capital and technology are used.

While to some extent the measure can be changed by poor worker attitudes on the assembly line, decisions by white collar workers in the front office are far more likely to raise or lower productivity.

Two of these decisions, it now seems clear, were to keep work forces at capacity and to continue high production schedules despite a dropoff in demand, most noticeably in the automotive industry.

The situation isn't at all unusual. Productivity often drops during the latter stages of a period of economic expansion as various inefficiencies — big inventories, oversized staffs, poor discipline — erode output per man hour.

One of the most obvious factors in the decline is the employment of marginal workers, those with little or only poorly developed skill. Overtime work, sometimes as premium wage rates, can also cut into output efficiency.

As various large corporations begin housecleaning both on the production line and in the executive office an increase in the productivity rate generally can be expected. That has been the experience.

However, many economists will be looking closely at the figures over the next few months. Some of them believe that the nation's productivity will be slow to recover, and that it might never reach its old plateau.

Among the reasons they give are changes in the work ethic, the channeling of corporate efforts into "nonproductive" areas, such as ecology, and the enormous bureaucracy that mature companies must support.

The optimistic view holds that productivity will begin moving ahead, and soon. Fears always are expressed that the United States is losing its ability to produce efficiently, they say, but the figures prove them wrong.
