'What can we do'...

Industrial chances targeted

A "what can we do" session is planned here Tuesday night regarding the expansion or addition of industry for Snyder and Scurry County.

Interest in such development is expected to be the key topic of conversation as the "Industrial Development Briefing" is held for all interested parties.

It will begin at 7 p.m. in the fourth floor courtroom of the 132nd District Court under the sponsorship of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Among those expected Tuesday are the presidents of Snyder's three banks, Roger Mize for Snyder National; Martin Brooks for West Texas State; and Eddie Johnson for American State Bank.

They will be joined by a gathering of both area and local representatives described as "people knowledgable in the field of industrial development."

A partial list of other individuals expected at the meeting include:

—Mayor Rod Waller and County Judge Preston Wilson representing the city and county.

—Arel (Red) Faver, chairman for the Board of County Development.

—Joe Fowler, president of the Industrial Foundation.

—Lloyd Stoebner of Fort Worth, manager of the area development division for Texas Electric Service Company.

—Harold Smith of Fort Worth, community development representative with TESCO.

—Rick Vaughn of Fort Worth, a member of the Lone Star Gas

City, school spring elections 'frozen'

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

In twin announcements made Monday night, the Snyder city council and school board indicated elections to decide board seats for both are now officially "on hold."

And representatives of both indicated this will be the case pending the outcome of legal action protesting each's at-large method of voting.

The net result will be no city or school elections this coming April 5.

Board members who would be facing expiring terms on that date include Mayor Rod Waller and Councilmen Don Osborn, Troy Williamson and Tommy Davis at the city; and Trustees Mike Reed, G.A. Parks Jr., J.M. Kayser and Charlene Light for the school.

The action announced Monday follows the advice of the lawyer engaged to represent both during negotiations to settle the legal challenge to the local voting systems.

Tom Johnson of the firm McWhorter, Cobb and Johnson of Lubbock commented, "The spectre of the lawsuit kind of puts things of ice."

He noted that as part of the initial filing, the plaintiffs in the case — five local individuals represented by the San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project (SVREP) — sought a legal injunction preventing any future elections.

"While the judge has not held a hearing regarding this, he could at any time and would likely call one if we did call an election," Johnson noted.

"Since there was reasonable doubt that we could have a vote even if we called one, my recommendation has been that the city and school freeze their boards for the present."

Regarding the legal action, Johnson said there has been "no agreement (regarding the) substance of the lawsuit," adding, "it takes the consideration of a substantial amount of data."

Johnson has received demographic information describing the ethnic makeup by

Hiker-biker trail tagged at $450,000

Initial cost estimates to construct a hike-bike trail which would wind along the banks of Deep Creek were projected at some $450,000 Monday.

The project — which as now proposed would include a concrete retaining wall on either side of the creek bank — has been submitted to the Snyder city council by members of the Scurry County Sesquicentennial Committee.

Council members Monday agreed to study the plan further with a joint meeting between the city and county plus committee members tentatively set within the next few weeks.

Sesquicentennial Committee members Charles Anderson, Elizabeth Potts, Tom Balentine, Brud Boren and Roy Baze presented the proposal Monday, noting their hope that the city and county would jointly fund the walkway.

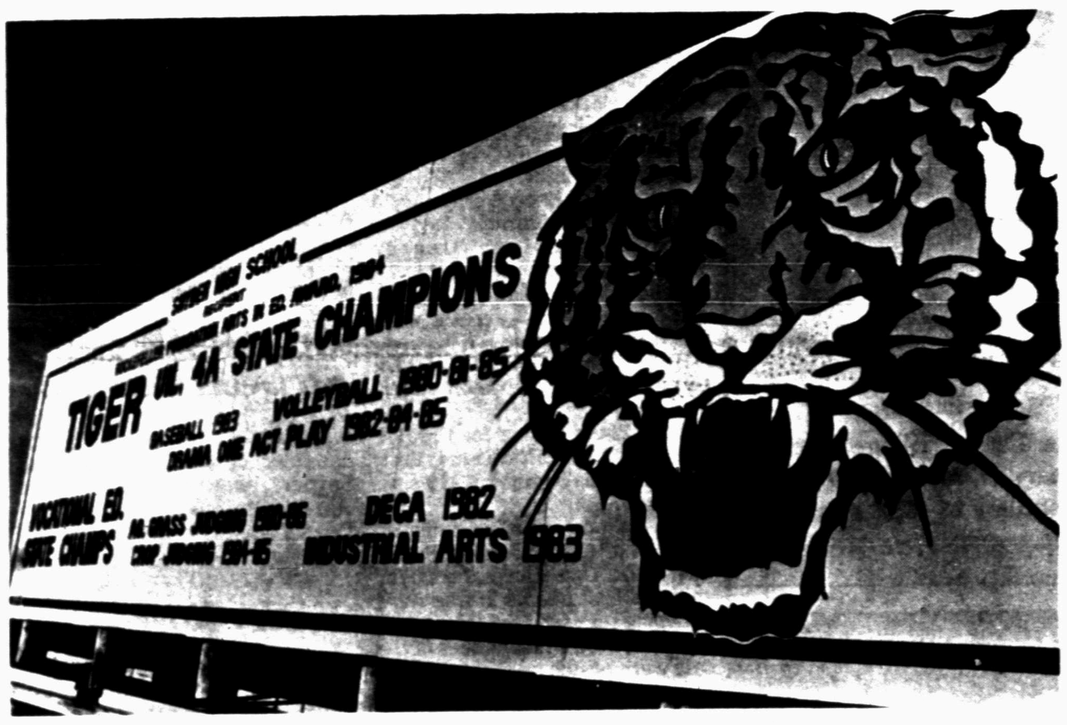

As outlined, the proposal includes some 6,000 feet of a concrete retaining wall lining each side of the creek bed. The concrete walking and riding trail would then extend out from one of these retaining walls.

If approved as proposed, the trail would run from 24th Street to 37th Street.

Staffers with the city's engineering department estimated total cost for the project at some $450,000. The project has been broken down into three separate areas.

These include $63,750 for an 350-foot section from 24th Street to 26th Street; $157,500 for 2,100 feet from 26th Street to 30th Street; and $228,750 for 3,050 feet from 30th Street to 37th Street.

Councilmen closed the meeting with an hour and a half executive session to discuss the pending lawsuit challenging at large election of city councilmen and personnel matters.

ACHIEVEMENTS HONORED — Work has now been completed to repaint this city-owned billboard southeast of Snyder on U.S. Hwy. 84 to honor state championship-level achievements by Snyder High School students. The city council voted in Feburary to change the sign — which had honored the 1983 Class AAAA State Championship Baseball Team. (SDN Staff Photo)

Towers, stadium lights due repairs

Two major replacement projects for Snyder school facilities — one to begin immediately and one to be considered once bid proposals are submitted — prompted school board action Monday.

Drawing immediate action from the board was the replacement of the cooling towers for both Snyder High School and the junior high.

Also noted as requiring action prior to the startup of football season next fall was the wiring and light situation at Tiger Stadium — now expected to be the more expensive of the two jobs.

The cooling tower work is estimated at a minimum of some $54,000 — money not included in the physical plant budget plans for the district this year.

The rewiring and light additions at the football stadium will likely have to be budget items for the 1986-87 school year.

Monday night, both school officials and plant maintenance staffers noted they have no exact estimate for what the stadium work might eventually cost.

The only estimate even speculated was "less than $100,000" — a figure noted by Mike Reed, board president.

Regarding the air-conditioning tower work, Bill Sealy, maintenance supervisor for the district, noted that the poor shape of both towers did not become evident until work crews began cleaning them in early winter.

The tower "shells," which hold the water used in the system's chilling unit, have deterioriated to the point of holes in the outside walls, he noted.

The work will entail replacing only the two towers. Pumps used with the system will be retained, as will the I-beam structures which hold them.

Any expense related to rewiring the units were not included in Monday's estimates.

It was noted if the district used the bid process to replace the towers, the work could likely not be completed before the end of school.

Because of this, trustees declared the work an "emergency" situation, an action which allows them to waive the bid process.

The cost estimate now submitted was received from O.W.

Radios, bid help receive city funds

City council members Monday approved expenditures for ambulance radio equipment and the city's 1987 bid related to the Region V junior college basketball tournament.

Councilmen unanimously approved the purchase of new communication equipment for Snyder Emergency Medical Service "if county commissioners do not object and if the city attorney can contractually settle the issue of ownership."

Council members again questioned Perry Westmoreland and Paul Gilbert concerning the equipment's purchase without bidding. Westmoreland noted that an employee with General Electric — the company offering the equipment desired by Snyder EMS — had contacted the state attorney general's office for an opinion.

If EMS staffers purchase the equipment, General Electric will offer a 33 percent discount, lowering the estimated cost from some $21,000 to about $14,000.

At their Feb. 10 meeting, county commissioners agreed to pay half the purchase price if the city council approved the proposal. Commissioners Duaine Davis, Hassie Sneed, C.D. Gray Jr. and Ted Billingsley and County Judge Preston Wilson attended Monday's council session.

Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell was also present for the discussion.

In other action, council members pledged "from $4,000 to $5,000" in city funds toward the

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The only thing more foolish than a child who is afraid of the dark is an adult who is afraid of the light."

Although there's lots more basketball in store for the Scurry County Coliseum, the season is over for the high school.

Despite the fact that the Tigers missed the playoffs, the season was successful in terms of both wins and maturity.

Those of you who missed the controversial finish to the Snyder-Andrews tilt may have missed one of the top games of the season. Andrews sank two free throws after the game was over to chalk the victory and a spot in the playoffs.

Poor officiating has become common place, but it was even worse last Tuesday. Until the final call, the poor calls were going both ways and were having little impact on the outcome.

The controversy began on a foul at the final buzzer. No one wanted to make the call. After almost seven minutes of indecision, it was determined that the foul was before the buzzer, therefore Andrews would shoot two.

It would have been appropriate had Andrews made only one of the shots, and the game could have been decided in an overtime. One veteran observer of District 2-AAAA basketball said, "You can be sure of one thing, had the same situation occurred in Andrews, it would have taken seconds, not minutes, for the decision to go in favor of the home team."

Tension was high that evening, but there was one positive note as relayed to us by High School Principal Ray Courtney.

He received a call from Karen Fowler of Lamesa who had driven to Snyder to watch the game. She complimented the coaches for "cool heads on the sidelines."

According to Ms. Fowler, the situation could have been a "total riot in a lot of other schools."

In observance of Community College Week, spectators will be admitted free to the WTC games Thursday night.

David Gist doesn't like the idea. "I got in free one time, so I just sat quietly. At halftime I went down and bought a ticket so I could yell at the refs."

Tyler poisoning has not yet been linked to Tylenol event

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A 41-year-old Tyler man almost died earlier this month from cyanide poisoning, but laboratory tests have failed so far to confirm the possibility the poison was contained in Tylenol capsules, authorities said.

The Feb. 4 Tyler poisoning was reported to police on Feb. 11, one week after it occurred and three days after a New York woman died after taking a cyanide-laced dose of extra-strength Tylenol.

Tyler Police Capt. Bob Bond said authorities waited until Monday to release details of the poisoning so as to not unduly alarm the public.

"Since there were no other poisoning reports and because this appeared to be just an isolated incident, we held off knowing full well that at some point we had an obligation to the local public to reveal the information," Bond told the Tyler Morning Telegram.

Dr. Michael Welch, who treated the patient at Medical Center Hospital in this East Texas city, said he called the Food and Drug Administration shortly after the incident and was advised to contact Tyler police, which he did on Feb. 11.

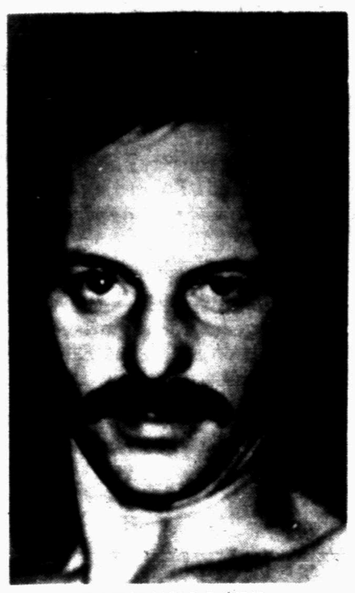

The victim, whose name was not disclosed, survived the poisoning and was released from the hospital, officials said.

Welch said the only link to Tylenol has been the man's statement that he took two Tylenol capsules on the morning of Feb. 4 and two more about 3 p.m. that day. Immediately after taking the last two capsules, he told doctors, he dropped onto the floor and went into convulsions.

The remaining capsules were sent by hospital personnel to Dallas, where they were analyzed by the FDA, Bond said.

"The FDA officer in Dallas, Lloyd Hult, has told us by telephone — so far we have nothing in writing — that no sign of cyanide had been found in other capsules in the container, nor in the container itself," hospital spokeswoman Pat Adans told the Associated Press.

The man said he got the capsules at the pharmacy at the Mental Health-Mental Retardation regional center of East Texas, where he was employed.

Offer creates scene

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — About 100 people, many of them shouting obscenities, responded to a car dealer's offer to sell used cars for 22 cents apiece to the first five customers to show up for a Washington's Birthday sale.

At one point Monday morning, security guards warned officials of Tom Benson Chevrolet that the front windows of the dealership were on the verge of caving in.

One of the first five in line — who asked that his name be withheld for personal safety reasons — said other people "were literally wanting to throw their bodies through the door" to get in first.

"The (first) five of us had to link ourselves together. You could hear the windows giving way. The people behind us were pushing and shoving, and the obscenities were flying. These were animals back there. I would call it a mob scene," he told the San Antonio Light.

The special 22-cent price was a promotional gimmick tied to Feb. 22 being George Washington's birthday.

Police were called to the dealership, but no arrests were made, officials said.

Benson Chevrolet ran newspaper and television advertisements Sunday offering the special 22-cent price for the five used cars on a "first-come, first-served" basis beginning at 9 a.m. Monday.

But customers began lining up in front of the dealership Saturday night. One successful buyer said the first people in line were shopping for used cars late Saturday afternoon when notices of the sale were posted on the premises.

By Sunday night, word filtered through a growing throng that the first five sale customers already had been determined.

Police seeking fugitive

KATY--Gary Arthur Huggard's twisted trail began with the pre-Christmas discovery of his abandoned two-year-old daughter, Angela, in a Central Texas church.

It led to the gruesome recovery of the body of Huggard's attractive wife, Christine.

Now the trail has cooled off and this week Huggard has been added to the Texas Most Wanted list.

A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by the governor's office for information leading to the capture of Huggard, who is wanted on state and federal charges.

Investigators say Huggard is a white male, 38, 5-7, 150 pounds, with brown hair and gray eyes. He was last seen wearing a mustache and long sideburns.

He is considered armed and extremely dangerous.

Anyone who might have information about Huggard is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers Program. Callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Dear Abby

Rekindled Romance Sparks Trouble in Two Marriages

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old divorcee. I married Larry (not his real name) when I was 16 and left him (like a fool) for another man when I was 18. I never realized what a jewel Larry was until it was too late.

Larry got married and now he has three children. In the meantime, I've been living with this other guy, "Barney," for six years. We have a child but we're not married yet. We plan to make it legal in the near future.

I have always regretted leaving Larry and have prayed for a reconciliation, but after all these years I never thought I had a chance. Well, I ran into him two weeks ago in a parking lot, and it was like our very first meeting all over again! We have seen each other a couple of times since and now he wants to leave his wife and marry me.

Should I leave Barney and go back to Larry? Let me know soon. Barney and I are booked on a cruise, and we'll lose our deposit if we don't cancel by March 10. Thank you.

LIBBY
(NOT MY REAL NAME)

DEAR LIBBY: Slow down. If Larry isn't thinking about his family obligations, he should be. You also have a child to consider as well as a six-year relationship. Don't do anything without considering the consequences very, very carefully. Go on the cruise you've planned with Barney and try to get your head straight before you go off the deep end.

DEAR ABBY: I have seen many letters in your column complaining about snoring bed partners. Your stock answer: "See an ear-nose doctor for a possible minor surgical solution." I have a better idea.

My husband was the champion snorer of them all. Then one day we figured out his snoring might be caused by breathing through his mouth, so we bought some paper "tape" 1 inch wide, and he began taping his mouth closed every night before going to sleep. (He would say, "No more talking. I am going to tape up now.") Then he would press his lips together and tape them shut. After sleeping quietly all night long, he would peel off the tape in the morning. (It peels off easily.)

This worked for 20 years. I have told others. Some say this will stop their breathing. Not so.

MRS. L.P. IN L.A.

DEAR MRS. L.P.: It sounds too good to be true, but I wouldn't recommend it for others without suggesting that they run it by their doctor to make sure it's safe for them. Another suggestion: Buy one of those machines that drone on endlessly to drown out street noises, snoring and other disturbing sounds that interfere with sleeping. They are available at sleep shops, hardware stores and listed in most gadget catalogs. If you try either of these suggestions, please let me know if it works for you. Pleasant dreams.

DEAR ABBY: You asked "Forgotten Parents," who had never seen a dime of the $10,000 their son had borrowed from them 10 years ago, if they had a promissory note. This reminded me that years ago, we foolishly loaned $5,000 to a relative without any kind of IOU or promissory note. Instead of asking for one after he had the money, my wife wrote to him asking when we could expect a partial payment on the $7,500 he owed us.

Quick as a flash we received a letter from him advising us that he did not owe us $7,500—it was only $5,000!

Mission accomplished. We got it in writing.

Gov. White urges agencies to trim

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White is urging the top officials of state agencies to aim for a 13 percent cut in non-mandatory spending and to impose a hiring freeze on all but essential jobs.

In a private meeting with agency heads on Monday, White said he didn't discuss reducing the state's projected $1.3 billion budget shortfall through layoffs.

"We didn't talk layoffs at all in here. In fact, I think we can make our goal without any layoffs," White said after the closed-door session.

Following the worldwide slump in oil prices, Comptroller Bob Bullock last week announced that the state's projected revenue would fall $1.3 billion short of the $37.2 billion total appropriated.

A nip of brandy before braving the cold is a mistake, according to the American Heart Association. The group reports that alcohol dilates blood vessels, and blood more quickly is moved into extremities where heat-loss takes place. Smoking while in extreme cold also can cause problems, it says. It constricts blood vessels and speeds the effects of cold on the skin.

Twice around may be unsound

By James Jacoby

A thoughtful play by defender West went for naught when declarer kept his own thinking cap tight on his head. Declarer won dummy's diamond ace to take a spade finesse. If West wins the king, it's simple for South to draw trumps and then play a heart to dummy to take a club finesse. When that works, declarer has enough tricks for the slam — five spades, two hearts, three diamonds and two clubs. West was up to a clever play often missed by greedy defenders who grab their tricks quickly. He casually refused the spade trick led around to declarer's queen. He wanted to encourage declarer to waste an entry to dummy to try the spade finesse again.

What about declarer? He did plan to return to dummy for what he presumed would be another successful spade finesse and so played a low heart to the queen. But then he was shrewd enough to consider the remote possibility that West might be trying to hornswoggle him. Was there anything he could do to neutralize such a nefarious play? Of course. He played dummy's diamond queen, on which he jettisoned his heart ace. Now when East showed out on the spade led from dummy, South went up with his ace and played another spade. West won the king, but now what? A red card would put declarer in dummy and a club would be doing declarer's work for him.

When a finesse works, always remember that an astute opponent may be holding up his winning card to lead you astray. Look for ways to counteract his stratagem.

A safe way to clear a driveway or sidewalk of snow is a work-relax routine. Shovel for only two to three minutes, then pause to enjoy the wintery scene until your pulse and respiration have returned to almost normal. It may take a little longer to finish the chore, but it will be safer and more enjoyable in the long run.

ACU professors exonerated

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Trustees of Abilene Christian University voted their support of two biology professors accused of advocating evolution in their classrooms last year.

ACU President Dr. William J. Teague announced the trustees' decision, and the concurrence of the university's Senior Board and National Board, at the end of a Monday night session of ACU's annual Bible Lectureship.

The two professors, although they were not identified to a lectureship audience, or in a nine-page committee report that exonerated them, had been identified elsewhere as Dr. Ken Williams, professor of biology, and Dr. Archie Manis, associate professor of biology.

Abilene Christian University is a college operated by the Church of Christ.

Also during the lectureship, Dr. B.J. Humble, an ACU Bible professor, called for unity in Christendom, and called on members of the Churches of Christ to recognize that the whole "body of Christ" is not limited to those who are members of 12,000 listed congregations of the Churches of Christ.

Concerning Williams and Manis, the trustees endorsed an investigating committee report that found "no evidence" that the two sought to convince their students of the truth of organic evolution, or intended to undermine the faith of their students in the truth of the Bible.

The report rebutted accusations by Dr. Bert Thompson, an ACU graduate and microbiologist by training.

Thompson operates a publishing company, teaches at an Alabama Bible college, and travels over much of the country giving lectures attacking evolution.

Thompson, in a 200-page booklet published early in 1986, asserted that overwhelming evidence showed that Williams and Manis were teaching organic evolution as factual.

As evidence, Thompson cited the testimony of a student - identified elsewhere as Mark Scott - and a "handout" from one of Manis' spring 1985 classes titled "Evolution Notes."

In the margin of "Evolution Notes," Manis penned the words "hymn" and "myth."

Burke says J&J has not been defeated

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Johnson & Johnson will no longer produce over-the-counter medicines in capsules because it cannot guarantee their safety, but whoever killed a woman with cyanide-laced Tylenol has not beaten the health care giant, its chairman says.

"We fought our way back from the Chicago tragedy ... thanks to the fairness and good judgment of the American consumer," James E. Burke said at a news conference Monday. "We will do it again this time.

"What we've done is say, 'You're not going to defeat us.'"

The decision to stop production came nine days after a New York woman was killed by cyanide-contaminated Tylenol capsules and 3½ years after seven people in Illinois suffered the same fate.

Burke urged users of Tylenol capsules to switch to coated, oval tablets known as "caplets," and said Johnson & Johnson will replace free of charge any capsules now in homes or stores.

The drug industry reacted cautiously to the announcement and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration said it would be premature to call for an industry-wide ban on capsule medications.

Meanwhile, investigators were still trying to determine whether the bottle whose contents killed 23-year-old Diane Elsroth on Feb. 8 and a second one that surfaced five days later were tampered with during manufacture or when they reached two Bronxville, N.Y., stores.

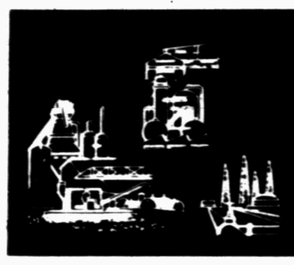

The first bottle was manufactured in Fort Washington, Pa., and the second in Las Piedras, Puerto Rico, J&J officials have said. They were stored within two weeks of each other at a warehouse in Montgomeryville, Pa.

On Monday, FBI and Westchester County, N.Y., investigators inspected the Fort Washington plant and the warehouse, but officials would not comment on the trip.

The company will stop producing capsule forms of Extra-Strength Tylenol, Regular-Strength Tylenol, Sine-Aid, Co-Tylenol, Maximum-Strength Tylenol Sinus Medication and Dimensyn, a menstrual medication.

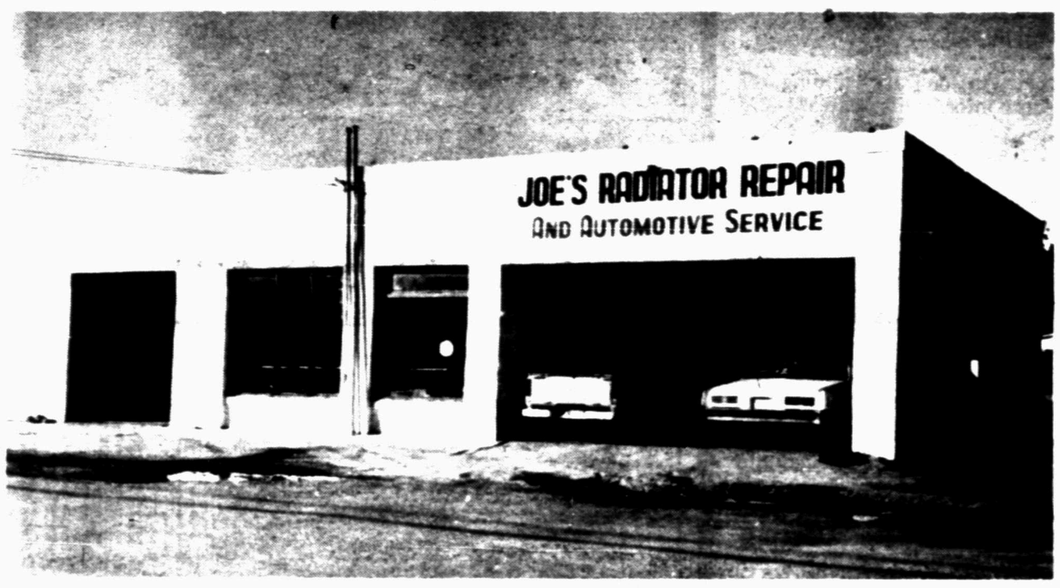

A Johnson & Johnson subsidiary will continue to make a prescription painkiller of Tylenol and codeine in capsules.

Consumers were urged to return unused Tylenol capsule products to Tylenol Capsule Exchange, P.O. Box 2000, Maple Plain, Minn., 55348, in exchange for a coupon good for the purchase of the same size bottle.

Pilot errors denied

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — The government began an inquiry today into the sinking of a Soviet cruise ship carrying 739 passengers and crew, and officials rejected the Soviet skipper's suggestion that map errors and a New Zealand pilot were to blame for the accident.

Meanwhile, a naval officer who was involved in rescuing passengers and crew from the Mikhail Lermontov on Sunday night said emergency equipment on board the Soviet liner was in a dangerous state of repair that might have proved fatal had the ship been farther out to sea.

The ship, on a 14-day Pacific cruise, went down in about 100 feet of water about two hours after it struck a reef in a channel near the northern tip of New Zealand's South Island.

Rescuers saved all of the 409 passengers and all but one of the Soviet crewmen, an engineer who is presumed to have drowned. Maritime experts said the ship probably could be salvaged.

Prime Minister David Lange described the rescue as a "really remarkable achievement," but said there were "disquieting aspects" about the sinking.

The captain, Vladislav Vorobyev, said in an interview with Soviet television Monday night that New Zealand pilot Don Jamison "decided to take a route where there were no indications of depth on the map."

But New Zealand maritime officials said the charts were "more than adequate," and that Jamison, an experienced navigator, had handed over control of the 20,000-ton liner well before it hit the reef.

Passengers who arrived in Wellington aboard rescue vessels early Monday said Jamison made an announcement to that effect over the ship's public address system well before they felt the jolt of the ship hitting rocks.

Lawsuit challenges Baptist leader's actions

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A power struggle between two factions of the Southern Baptist Convention has top officials of the nation's largest Protestant denomination scurrying to smooth out the differences, which have come to a head in a federal lawsuit.

The convention's executive committee began meeting here Monday to plan its defense against the lawsuit filed in December by a group of disgruntled Baptists.

Robert and Julia Crowder of Birmingham, Ala., and Henry C. Cooper of Windsor, Mo., contend that Southern Baptist President Charles Stanley overstepped his authority during the denomination's 1985 convention last June in Dallas.

They claim the rights of the delegates to the convention were violated when Stanley, an Atlanta pastor and fundamentalist, declared out of order several attempts to amend his slate of officers.

The lawsuit is the latest move by moderates to voice their opposition to what they said was the stacking of the denomination's administrative bodies with people they call heresy-hunting fundamentalists.

A similar suit, filed last month in an Atlanta Superior Court by churches in Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Texas and Kentucky, asks for an injunction that would force church officials to adhere to convention bylaws and seeks to have the vote on the church officers reconsidered.

Infighting between moderates and fundamentalists was the centerpiece of the convention's annual meeting last year in Dallas, where a "peace committee" was appointed to try to heal the rift.

The fundamentalist faction says it wants more traditional Bible teachings imposed on the denomination, while moderates want more independence for churches and schools within the group.

However, W.C. Fields, an executive committee spokesman, said the strife is based on more than biblical interpretations. Division stems from a "power struggle" between the groups, he said, and the lawsuit is the latest chapter in that struggle.

The denomination sought to have those who filed the suit barred from inquiring about the internal affairs of the convention, but a federal judge denied the request last week.

However, James Guenther, the SBC attorney, advised the executive committee Monday that the denomination, which represents 14.4 million Southern Baptists, would continue to defend itself on First Amendment grounds.

"In essence, our thrust is that the First Amendment prohibits the court from inquiring into the ecclesiastical governance of the convention," he said.

Fields said the convention, which contends a federal court does not have jurisdiction in the case, will also attempt to have the suit thrown out.

Efforts to reach the Crowders or Cooper by telephone for comment were unsuccessful.

Fields said the three had asked the executive committee to reverse Stanley's action and deem it inappropriate, but the committee declined.

Meanwhile, he said the executive committee was concerned that the infighting was distracting the denomination from its current drive to increase membership to 20 million.

"The executive committee generally is trying to find ways to breach this rupture. Too much time, energy and intellect has been devoted to this task. That's diverted us from the our main task," Fields said.

Leadership tries to get supplies to key regions

MOSCOW (AP) — Drilling for oil in freezing conditions is not the only hardship in the Soviet Union's key Tyumen oil-producing region of western Siberia, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda says. Most consumer goods are hard to get.

There are no wedding rings in some parts of the 574,000 square-mile region. In others, there are no toothbrushes, Pravda said in an unusually detailed report Monday.

Bed linen, clothes and any other textile products are such a rarity that most people questioned in a recent survey listed them as wares they ask for from Moscow when a friend goes to the capital on business, Pravda said in a report written by three economists.

One oil worker out of every five questioned said they turned to the black market as the only way to get decent clothes in season, the newspaper said.

Pravda's report on consumer conditions in the vast region painted a woeful picture of poor organization and planning compounding the difficulties caused by cold and the remoteness of Tyumen.

It also seemed intended to suggest that Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and the Communist Party care about consumer conditions, hoping improvements will encourage workers to toil harder for the economic goals the Kremlin has set.

Oil production consistently has failed to meet state targets, and the industry has been singled out for particular attention in Gorbachev's drive for improved economic performance.

The theme of improving consumer conditions has become a common one since Gorbachev became Soviet Communist Party leader almost a year ago.

The Polish Diet proclaimed Poland's independence in 1831, deposing the Romanovs.

ACU professors exonerated

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Trustees of Abilene Christian University voted their support of two biology professors accused of advocating evolution in their classrooms last year.

ACU President Dr. William J. Teague announced the trustees' decision, and the concurrence of the university's Senior Board and National Board, at the end of a Monday night session of ACU's annual Bible Lectureship.

The two professors, although they were not identified to a lectureship audience, or in a nine-page committee report that exonerated them, had been identified elsewhere as Dr. Ken Williams, professor of biology, and Dr. Archie Manis, associate professor of biology.

Abilene Christian University is a college operated by the Church of Christ.

Also during the lectureship, Dr. B.J. Humble, an ACU Bible professor, called for unity in Christendom, and called on members of the Churches of Christ to recognize that the whole "body of Christ" is not limited to those who are members of 12,000 listed congregations of the Churches of Christ.

Concerning Williams and Manis, the trustees endorsed an investigating committee report that found "no evidence" that the two sought to convince their students of the truth of organic evolution, or intended to undermine the faith of their students in the truth of the Bible.

The report rebutted accusations by Dr. Bert Thompson, an ACU graduate and microbiologist by training.

Thompson operates a publishing company, teaches at an Alabama Bible college, and travels over much of the country giving lectures attacking evolution.

Thompson, in a 200-page booklet published early in 1986, asserted that overwhelming evidence showed that Williams and Manis were teaching organic evolution as factual.

As evidence, Thompson cited the testimony of a student - identified elsewhere as Mark Scott - and a "handout" from one of Manis' spring 1985 classes titled "Evolution Notes."

In the margin of "Evolution Notes," Manis penned the words "hymn" and "myth."

Burke says J&J has not been defeated

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Johnson & Johnson will no longer produce over-the-counter medicines in capsules because it cannot guarantee their safety, but whoever killed a woman with cyanide-laced Tylenol has not beaten the health care giant, its chairman says.

"We fought our way back from the Chicago tragedy ... thanks to the fairness and good judgment of the American consumer," James E. Burke said at a news conference Monday. "We will do it again this time.

"What we've done is say, 'You're not going to defeat us.'"

The decision to stop production came nine days after a New York woman was killed by cyanide-contaminated Tylenol capsules and 3½ years after seven people in Illinois suffered the same fate.

Burke urged users of Tylenol capsules to switch to coated, oval tablets known as "caplets," and said Johnson & Johnson will replace free of charge any capsules now in homes or stores.

The drug industry reacted cautiously to the announcement and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration said it would be premature to call for an industry-wide ban on capsule medications.

Meanwhile, investigators were still trying to determine whether the bottle whose contents killed 23-year-old Diane Elsroth on Feb. 8 and a second one that surfaced five days later were tampered with during manufacture or when they reached two Bronxville, N.Y., stores.

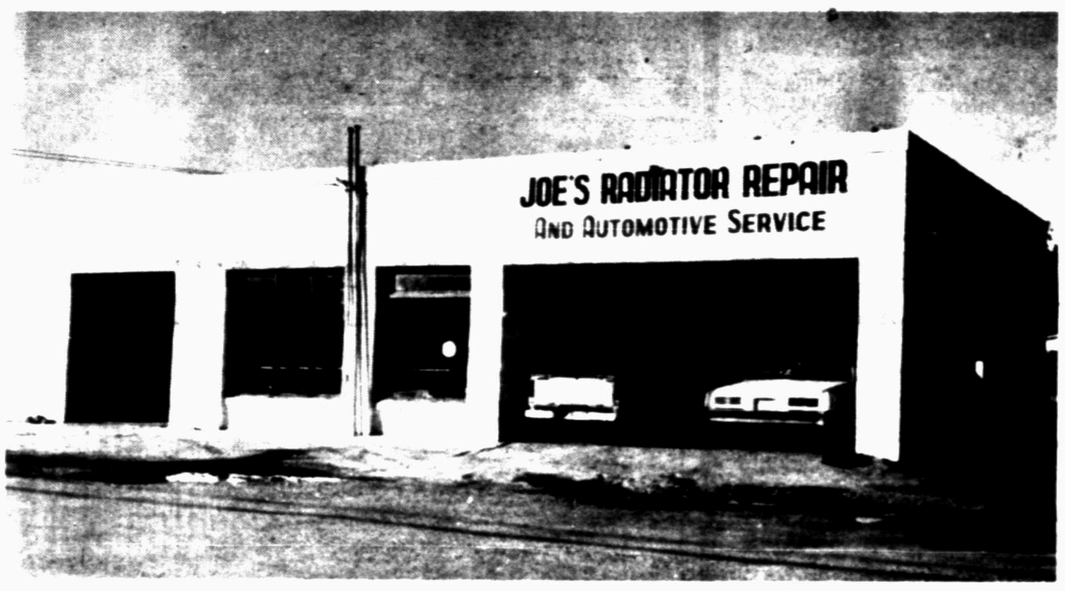

The first bottle was manufactured in Fort Washington, Pa., and the second in Las Piedras, Puerto Rico, J&J officials have said. They were stored within two weeks of each other at a warehouse in Montgomeryville, Pa.

On Monday, FBI and Westchester County, N.Y., investigators inspected the Fort Washington plant and the warehouse, but officials would not comment on the trip.

The company will stop producing capsule forms of Extra-Strength Tylenol, Regular-Strength Tylenol, Sine-Aid, Co-Tylenol, Maximum-Strength Tylenol Sinus Medication and Dimensyn, a menstrual medication.

A Johnson & Johnson subsidiary will continue to make a prescription painkiller of Tylenol and codeine in capsules.

Consumers were urged to return unused Tylenol capsule products to Tylenol Capsule Exchange, P.O. Box 2000, Maple Plain, Minn., 55348, in exchange for a coupon good for the purchase of the same size bottle.

Pilot errors denied

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — The government began an inquiry today into the sinking of a Soviet cruise ship carrying 739 passengers and crew, and officials rejected the Soviet skipper's suggestion that map errors and a New Zealand pilot were to blame for the accident.

Meanwhile, a naval officer who was involved in rescuing passengers and crew from the Mikhail Lermontov on Sunday night said emergency equipment on board the Soviet liner was in a dangerous state of repair that might have proved fatal had the ship been farther out to sea.

The ship, on a 14-day Pacific cruise, went down in about 100 feet of water about two hours after it struck a reef in a channel near the northern tip of New Zealand's South Island.

Rescuers saved all of the 409 passengers and all but one of the Soviet crewmen, an engineer who is presumed to have drowned. Maritime experts said the ship probably could be salvaged.

Prime Minister David Lange described the rescue as a "really remarkable achievement," but said there were "disquieting aspects" about the sinking.

The captain, Vladislav Vorobyev, said in an interview with Soviet television Monday night that New Zealand pilot Don Jamison "decided to take a route where there were no indications of depth on the map."

But New Zealand maritime officials said the charts were "more than adequate," and that Jamison, an experienced navigator, had handed over control of the 20,000-ton liner well before it hit the reef.

Passengers who arrived in Wellington aboard rescue vessels early Monday said Jamison made an announcement to that effect over the ship's public address system well before they felt the jolt of the ship hitting rocks.

Lawsuit challenges Baptist leader's actions

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A power struggle between two factions of the Southern Baptist Convention has top officials of the nation's largest Protestant denomination scurrying to smooth out the differences, which have come to a head in a federal lawsuit.

The convention's executive committee began meeting here Monday to plan its defense against the lawsuit filed in December by a group of disgruntled Baptists.

Robert and Julia Crowder of Birmingham, Ala., and Henry C. Cooper of Windsor, Mo., contend that Southern Baptist President Charles Stanley overstepped his authority during the denomination's 1985 convention last June in Dallas.

They claim the rights of the delegates to the convention were violated when Stanley, an Atlanta pastor and fundamentalist, declared out of order several attempts to amend his slate of officers.

The lawsuit is the latest move by moderates to voice their opposition to what they said was the stacking of the denomination's administrative bodies with people they call heresy-hunting fundamentalists.

A similar suit, filed last month in an Atlanta Superior Court by churches in Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Texas and Kentucky, asks for an injunction that would force church officials to adhere to convention bylaws and seeks to have the vote on the church officers reconsidered.

Infighting between moderates and fundamentalists was the centerpiece of the convention's annual meeting last year in Dallas, where a "peace committee" was appointed to try to heal the rift.

The fundamentalist faction says it wants more traditional Bible teachings imposed on the denomination, while moderates want more independence for churches and schools within the group.

However, W.C. Fields, an executive committee spokesman, said the strife is based on more than biblical interpretations. Division stems from a "power struggle" between the groups, he said, and the lawsuit is the latest chapter in that struggle.

The denomination sought to have those who filed the suit barred from inquiring about the internal affairs of the convention, but a federal judge denied the request last week.

However, James Guenther, the SBC attorney, advised the executive committee Monday that the denomination, which represents 14.4 million Southern Baptists, would continue to defend itself on First Amendment grounds.

"In essence, our thrust is that the First Amendment prohibits the court from inquiring into the ecclesiastical governance of the convention," he said.

Fields said the convention, which contends a federal court does not have jurisdiction in the case, will also attempt to have the suit thrown out.

Efforts to reach the Crowders or Cooper by telephone for comment were unsuccessful.

Fields said the three had asked the executive committee to reverse Stanley's action and deem it inappropriate, but the committee declined.

Meanwhile, he said the executive committee was concerned that the infighting was distracting the denomination from its current drive to increase membership to 20 million.

"The executive committee generally is trying to find ways to breach this rupture. Too much time, energy and intellect has been devoted to this task. That's diverted us from the our main task," Fields said.

Leadership tries to get supplies to key regions

MOSCOW (AP) — Drilling for oil in freezing conditions is not the only hardship in the Soviet Union's key Tyumen oil-producing region of western Siberia, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda says. Most consumer goods are hard to get.

There are no wedding rings in some parts of the 574,000 square-mile region. In others, there are no toothbrushes, Pravda said in an unusually detailed report Monday.

Bed linen, clothes and any other textile products are such a rarity that most people questioned in a recent survey listed them as wares they ask for from Moscow when a friend goes to the capital on business, Pravda said in a report written by three economists.

One oil worker out of every five questioned said they turned to the black market as the only way to get decent clothes in season, the newspaper said.

Pravda's report on consumer conditions in the vast region painted a woeful picture of poor organization and planning compounding the difficulties caused by cold and the remoteness of Tyumen.

It also seemed intended to suggest that Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and the Communist Party care about consumer conditions, hoping improvements will encourage workers to toil harder for the economic goals the Kremlin has set.

Oil production consistently has failed to meet state targets, and the industry has been singled out for particular attention in Gorbachev's drive for improved economic performance.

The theme of improving consumer conditions has become a common one since Gorbachev became Soviet Communist Party leader almost a year ago.

The Polish Diet proclaimed Poland's independence in 1831, deposing the Romanovs.

Major college roundup...

Midshipmen sailing full speed ahead

The Midshipmen, who hadn't been in The Associated Press Top Twenty since a preseason tie for 19th, celebrated its new No. 17 ranking Monday night with a 66-51 Colonial Athletic Association victory over William & Mary.

Navy is 22-4 thanks to an eight-game winning streak and 15 of 16 and William & Mary Coach Barry Parkhill said he "thought all along that they were a Top Twenty team." Helping to convince him even more was 6-foot-11 David Robinson, who scored 19 points, grabbed 14 rebounds and blocked eight shots.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 9 Syracuse held off Pittsburgh 69-62; 11th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas defeated Fullerton State 92-83; and No. 16 Louisville downed Southern Mississippi 83-74.

Navy's Robinson, who entered the game rated first in the nation with an average of 6.1 blocks per game, scored five of his points during a 17-0 first-half run that turned a 14-12 squeaker into a 31-12 laugher. Joining Robinson in double figures was guard Kylor Whitaker, who scored 10 of his 16 points in the second half.

No. 9 Syracuse 69, Pitt 62

Dwayne "Pearl" Washington scored 23 points, including six key points down the stretch as Syracuse, 23-1 over-all and 12-1 in the Big East, pulled away in the final 1:34. Trailing 55-54, Syracuse scored six straight points for a 60-55 lead with 5:35 remaining. Pitt again pulled within one point at 62-61 but Washington dribbled into the lane for an eight-footer with 1:34 to go and added two free throws at the 52-second mark to make it 66-61.

"When he wants to score, he can score," Coach Jim Boeheim said of Washington, who has averaged 28 points over his last five games.

No. 11 UNLV 92, Fullerton State 83

Freddie Banks scored 27 points - he was 5-for-5 from three-point range - and Anthony Jones added 26 as the Rebels clinched a tie for the Pacific Coast Athletic Association title with a 13-1 league record, 25-3 over-all.

The Rebels held Fullerton without a field goal for nine minutes as they pulled away from a 49-44 lead early in the second half and rolled to a 77-51 advantage.

After Jones' three-point jump shot made it 84-56 with 6:49 left, Coach Jerry Tarkanian cleared his bench and Fullerton responded with a 20-2 spree, forcing Tarkanian to bring his starters back with three minutes left and the lead down to 86-78.

No. 16 Louisville 83, S. Mississippi 74

Billy Thompson scored 19 points, including eight in the decisive final minutes, as Louisville boosted its record to 19-7, including a 7-2 mark in the Metro Conference.

The Cardinals, who had a 23-10 lead in the first half, saw it chopped to one point with 6:17 left but they outscored Southern Mississippi 17-9 the rest of the way.

Pervis Ellison added 17 points for Louisville while Jeff Hall had 15, Herbert Crook 14 and Milt Wagner 12. Southern Mississippi sophomore Derrek Hamilton scored a game-high 27 points, making 13 of 17 shots from the field.

Olajuwon injured; out for two weeks

HOUSTON (AP) - All-Star center Akeem Olajuwon will miss at least two weeks of the season with a knee injury - just as the Houston Rockets were beginning to establish themselves as a power in the National Basketball Association.

Team physician Dr. Charles Baker said Olajuwon received a sprain of the medial colateral ligament Saturday in a game against the Los Angeles Clippers when teammate Robert Reid fell on him under the basket.

Olajuwon started receiving therapy on the knee Monday, Baker said.

Monday night's game against the Golden State Warriors marked the first time in Olajuwon's pro career and only the second time in his entire career that he had missed a game because of an injury.

Olajuwon, who averages 23.4 points and 11.4 rebounds per game, missed four of the first six games of his college career at the University of Houston and had played in 237 consecutive games.

Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson moved quickly to sign former Rockets player Hank McDowell to fill Olajuwon's roster position.

McDowell, who has been playing basketball in Europe, averaged 1.4 points and had nine rebounds in 34 appearances for the Rockets last season.

Olajuwon's injury came as the Rockets were mounting a challenge to the Los Angeles Lakers for supremacy in the NBA's Western Confernce. They lead Denver by 4½ games in the Midwest Division.

Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said he would move 7-4 Ralph Sampson into the center position and start Jim Petersen or Rodney McCray at Sampson's power forward spot.

Olajuwon's injury forced Fitch to change his starting lineup for the first time this season.

Western takes over 3rd spot as Howard Hawks shock OC

Western Texas College's Westerners moved into sole possession of third place in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference Monday night despite not suiting up.

Western vaulted to third when Howard College shocked Odessa, 54-52 in Big Spring.

The loss knocked the Wranglers to fourth place with a 7-5 conference record. Meanwhile, New Mexico Junior College, an 88-83 loser to South Plains, dropped to fifth place with a 6-6 record.

Western Texas, which hosts Frank Phillips Thursday night and Clarendon on Saturday, is 8-4.

Odessa's loss takes some pressure off the Westerners, who still have to play undefeated Midland in Midland and second-place South Plains in Levelland this season.

Odessa must also play Midland, South Plains and Clarendon. New Mexico's schedule is presumably less of a challenge. The Thunderbirds have games with NMMI, Frank Phillips and Howard.

Also, Odessa and New Mexico square off in Hobbs, N.M. on the final date of the regular season, Feb. 27.

In other men's games Monday, Midland, 13-0 now, slammed Frank Phillips 86-57, and Clarendon, 5-7, topped NMMI 77-58.

Thursday's games have FPC at Western and Howard at Clarendon in a couple of women-men double headers. Also, Midland is at Odessa and NMMI is at Hobbs to play NMJC.

In women's action Monday, Howard College came just short of planting a loss on top-ranked Odessa College. The Lady Wranglers, 25-0 on the season and 9-0 in conference play, edged out a 77-75 victory, however. Also, South Plains defeated NMJC 82-65.

NBA roundup...

McKenna plays best game of his career

by The Associated Press

Kevin McKenna, less than three weeks removed from a $500 a week salary in the Continental Basketball Association, played the best game of his NBA career under a heavy burden of pressure.

Unaware that it had already been decided that his second 10-day contract with the Washington Bullets would be extended to the end of the season, McKenna thought he was fighting for a job. He scored a career-high 25 points, 15 on three-point shots, as the Bullets defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 96-94 Monday night.

McKenna, who had scored a total of 11 points in his first seven appearances with the Bullets, said he thought last Saturday's game with Seattle and the meeting with the Clippers would decide his immediate future.

"I knew they were two critical games if I was going to stay," said McKenna, with his fourth NBA team in four years. "I just tried to go out and play hard and not worry about that (the contract expiration.)"

McKenna said Bullets Coach Gene Shue told him after Monday's game that the decision to keep him was made Sunday.

In other NBA action, it was Dallas 126, New Jersey 124; Cleveland 111, New York 97; Indiana 124, Chicago 110; Seattle 100, Atlanta 87; Detroit 117, Utah 96; Milwaukee 111, Philadelphia 106; Phoenix 108, Boston 101; and Houston 116, Golden State 110.

McKenna was 5-for-9 from inside the three-point line en route to surpassing his previous NBA career high by four points.

Suns 108, Celtics 101

Phoenix handed Boston only its 10th loss in 51 games after Larry Bird and Coach K.C. Jones both were ejected for committing two technical fouls in the fourth quarter.

"Those technicals totally turned the game around," Jones said. "We were getting ready to make our move. But Larry got clobbered at one end of the floor and there was no call, so I said something to the officials and Larry did, too. There was no cursing involved."

Walter Davis scored 20 points for the Suns, who snapped an 0-8 streak against Boston dating back to 1982. Bird and Dennis Johnson had 20 for the Celtics.

Rockets 116, Warriors 110

Ralph Sampson, starting at center for the first time in two years because of Akeem Olajuwon's knee injury, had 25 points and 14 rebounds for Houston against Golden State.

The Rockets got 10 points from Allen Leavell in the fourth period and held the Warriors without a point in a span of nearly 2½ minutes down the stretch.

Purvis Short had 25 points and Eric Floyd 22 for Golden State.

Bucks 111, 76ers 106

Sidney Moncrief scored 28 points and Terry Cummings 24 as Milwaukee improved its Central Division lead to six games with a victory at Philadelphia.

Mavericks 126, Nets 124

Rolando Blackman scored a Meadowlands record 42 points as Dallas handed New Jersey its fifth loss in the last six games.

Blackman hit 10-of-13 field goals and made 22-of-23 free throws to break the old arena record of 40 points by Bernard King of the New York Knicks on April 20, 1983.

Pistons 117, Jazz 96

Detroit won its ninth straight game at home as Isiah Thomas scored 31 points and Kelly Tripucka 30 against Utah.

Herschel Walker loyal to the USFL but Dallas bound if problems arise

DALLAS (AP) - Herschel Walker says he's loyal to the United States Football League and wants to see it do well, but if the league doesn't play this fall he will probably join the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

"I'm going to stay with the USFL as long as I can - if they're going to play football," Walker told USA Today in its Tuesday editions.

"I'm very loyal to the USFL. I want to see the league to do well because it's going to help out a lot of athletes, but ... if they don't play football, I think I've got to do what's best for Herschel."

Walker's agent, Peter Johnson, had told the Dallas Morning News on Sunday that if the USFL goes along with the recommendation of one owner to cancel or delay the 1986 fall season, Walker likely would join the Cowboys, who drafted him in the fifth round last year.

"Herschel will be playing this fall, either for the (New Jersey) Generals or the Cowboys. I can't get into specifics about his contract, but he is not going to wait for the USFL if they don't play this year," Johnson said Sunday.

"Well, it does have time schedule in there," Walker said of his contract. "I think after you sit out so long it's really like a breach of contract."

The USFL is meeting Wednesday in New York, and will consider the request of Baltimore's Myles Tannenbaum that the league suspend play until the resolution of the USFL's $1.32 billion lawsuit against the NFL. That would preclude the USFL's being ready for a fall 1986 season.

WBA champ Witherspoon agrees to conditions of boxing council

ATLANTA (AP) - World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Tim Witherspoon will undergo drug education and speak to youngsters about the dangers of drug abuse under an agreement with the Georgia State Boxing Commission which will allow him to keep his boxing license.

If Witherspoon does not comply and his Georgia license is stripped, he would not be able to fight in the United States, said Commission Chairman Lanny Franklin.

Franklin said Georgia and the other members of the national Association of Boxing Commissions have an agreement to "honor each other's suspensions."

The WBA has not announced a decision on whether it will discipline the fighter for using marijuana prior to his Jan. 17 title victory over Tony Tubbs in Atlanta.

The Georgia commission Monday placed Witherspoon on probation for the rest of the year and fined him $500. He agreed to probation conditions which require him to undergo drug testing, take drug education classes and speak to young Georgians about the dangers of drugs.

Witherspoon has admitted smoking marijuana with some friends around Thanksgiving, almost two months before the fight at the Omni. A urinalysis found traces of marijuana after the fight.

Witherspoon, 24-2, won the title in a 15-round decision over Tubbs, who was previously unbeaten in 22 professional fights.

Rangers give Stearns opportunity at catcher

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Former New Yorks Met catcher John Stearns has been invited to training camp by the Texas Rangers as a non-roster player, Vice President and General Manager Tom Grieve said Monday.

Stearns, 34, appeared in 798 game with the Mets from 1975-82 and was selected to play in four All-Star games. He missed most of the 1983 and 1984 seasons after developing tendinitis in his right elbow.

Stearns became a free agent after the 1984 season and spent last season with the Cincinnati Reds organization at Denver. Used as a designated hitter, Stearns batted .264 with three homers and 19 RBI in 72 games with Denver.

The former Met has also played first base, third base and the outfield and has a .260 lifetime batting average in the major leagues.

"He (Stearns) will be comiong to our major league camp as a free agent, and we'll be looking at him as a player who could be used in a utility role as well as number three catcher," Grieve said, noting that reports indicate Stearns has made progress in the last few months in overcoming the arm problems.

Search intensifying for parts of right rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A deep-diving nuclear submarine headed here today to join the seabottom search for chunks of the right booster rocket that may have caused the explosion of space shuttle Challenger.

The NR-1, a seven-man Navy sub which can operate at a depth of 2,600 feet, was being towed from Connecticut by its support ship, the USS Sunbird. The 137-foot sub is equipped with cameras, floodlights and a grappling arm.

Sonar from surface ships and photos taken by a smaller four-man sub, the Johnson Sea-Link 2, indicate parts of the right booster are on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean, 1,200 feet down, 45 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral.

The Sea-Link 2 has been photographing the suspected wreckage for three days and its robot arm has brought a few small pieces to the surface.

Photos and videotapes taken by the sub's crew are being examined by experts at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., which oversees NASA's shuttle engine work.

NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said officials don't expect an answer before Wednesday on whether parts of the right rocket booster have been located.

Salvaging the remains of the rocket, if they have been found, could take several days because of murky waters and swift undersea currents.

The focus of the investigation shifts today to Washington where the Senate subcommittee on science, technology and space scheduled hearings into the Jan. 28 accident that killed Challenger's seven-member crew.

Slated to testify were William P. Rogers, a former secretary of state who heads the presidential commission probing the tragedy; commission member and former astronaut Neil Armstrong, and William Graham, acting administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Recovery of right rocket sections could provide a vital clue to what caused the explosion because NASA photographs show a puff of black smoke bursting from the booster near a seal on liftoff and a tongue of flame spewing from the same area 59 seconds into the flight.

Challenger's fuel tank, holding nearly 500,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, exploded at 73 seconds, eight miles high.

The presidential commission has focused on the right-hand booster as one of the most likely causes of the explosion.

Engineers particularly want to look at an area near a seal between the lower two of the rocket's four segments, where the smoke and flame were seen.

The joints between segments are sealed by synthetic rubber O-rings intended to keep hot gases and flames confined within the booster casing. The rings are protected from heat and flame by a putty-like substance.

Documents released last week by the commission detail a history of concern among NASA and its contractors about the vulnerability of the rings. The concerns were linked to a 1983 decision to lighten each of the two shuttle boosters by 4,000 pounds and to increase the power of their motors.

The alterations, made so the shuttles could lift heavier payloads, put greater stress on the joints, the documents show.

Congress deals with Reagan roadblock

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. is challenging President Reagan to back tax increases to help trim budget deficits or watch his military buildup come to an end.

"The time has come for the president to face the facts," O'Neill, D-Mass., told the AFL-CIO executive council meeting Monday in Bal Harbour, Fla. "Unless he moves on revenues his defense buildup is over."

The speaker's remarks were the latest shots in this year's budget struggle that continued away from Capitol Hill for the past week while Congress took time off to observe the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington.

Action was resuming in Congress today with the House and Senate budget committees considering the fiscal 1987 spending plan Reagan submitted on Feb. 5. The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office was presenting the Senate committee with its analysis of the president's budget.

O'Neill's remarks Monday capped a week-long, cross-country effort by House Democrats to focus attention on the president's budget and specifically his proposal for a military spending increase while cutting or eliminating scores of domestic spending programs.

The president's budget, O'Neill said, "makes sure that the hungry will be hungrier, the poorly housed will be homeless and that the welfare recipient struggling for a job will give up the struggle."

In five cities, elected officials and civic leaders voiced similar sentiments about the president's spending priorities in sessions organized by the Democratic-controlled House Budget Committee.

Republicans on the committee said it was a partisan publicity stunt and stayed away.

Back in Washington, five GOP members of the panel invited reporters in Monday to watch a strategy meeting with White House budget director James C. Miller III.

Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill., said she hoped Republicans and Democrats could agree soon on an "end to the dog-and-pony shows" and begin "trying to do some real work" instead.

The budget debate has been complicated this year by a new law aimed at forcing a balanced budget by 1991. Although a federal court has ruled against a key provision mandating automatic spending cuts to meet interim deficit targets, the presence of those targets has increased pressure for deficit-reduction action.

Farm machinery sales down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of new and used farm machinery to farmers are expected to drop again in 1986, in a seven-year slump that shows little sign of easing, according to new projections by the Agriculture Department.

Farm machinery sales peaked at nearly $11.8 billion in 1979. This year, analysts say, sales could be less than half of that, perhaps in the range of $5.25 billion to $5.5 billion.

The latest projection was included in a new outlook report by the department's Economic Research Service. If sales do drop to the level indicated for 1986, they would be down 10 percent to 14 percent from $6.1 billion last year.

Carlos Sisco, who worked on the report, said 1986 machinery sales could be the lowest since the mid-1970s.

The reason for the drop in machinery sales has been the crunch on farm income in recent years and the plummet in farmland values, which has reduced sharply the assets and borrowing power of farmers.

Real estate assets, for example, were shown in the report at $638.2 billion as of Dec. 31, 1985, down from $693.7 billion at the end of 1984. Since Dec. 31, 1980, real estate assets have dropped more than $200 billion, according to the report.

Another decline is expected this year, with farm real estate assets projected in the range of $600 billion to $620 billion on Dec. 31, 1986. Farm debt, meanwhile, continues at near-record levels, estimated at $212.1 billion as of Dec. 31, 1985. The peak was $217.2 billion at the end of 1982.

"Consequently, domestic demand for farm machinery will be further affected," the report said. "Capital expenditures for new and used tractors are forecast to total $1.8 billion to $1.9 billion in 1986, compared with an estimated $2.05 billion last year."

Farm spending on all other new and used machinery is expected to drop to between $3.45 billion and $3.6 billion this year, compared with $4.05 billion in 1985.

"The projected declines are due somewhat to reduced machinery prices, but for the most part reflect expected lower unit sales," the report said.

If the 1986 projections are accurate, the U.S. farm machinery industry probably will continue efforts to curb production in order to keep inventories in line with sales, it added.

Two warrants cause arrests

Police jailed two local men on misdemeanor warrants Monday evening.

One was jailed for failure to pay a fine levied for being intoxicated on a premises licensed to sell alcohol and the second on a county court warrant charging him with misdemeanor criminal mischief.

3 accidents here Monday

Three minor traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder Monday.

The first accident was logged in the 4200 Block of College Ave. at 7:55 a.m.

Involved in it were a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Doris Duffy Small of Rt. 3, Snyder and a 1982 Mercury driven by Walter Erwin Littlefield of 2900 Ave. E.

The intersection of 37th St. and the Brick Plant Road was the scene of the second mishap at 10:50 a.m.

Involved in it were a 1978 Triumph driven by Marvin Glen Morrell of 201 38th St. and a vehicle driven by Gordon Gray of Snyder.

Police did not obtain information on the Gray vehicle at the time of the accident.

A hit-and-run incident was reported at the Plaza Truck Stop at 9:43 p.m.

According to the report, a parked 1964 Chevrolet pickup owned by Benny Gee of Rt. 2, Snyder was apparently struck by a vehicle which fled the scene.

No injuries resulted from any of Monday's mishaps.

CRMWD operations are said on target

BIG SPRING--Operations for the Colorado River Municipal Water District were on beam for January. Revenues of $1,004,362 of which $985,259 was from sale of water, was $3,000 over budget projections.

On the other hand, operating expenses of $445,800 were $85,424 under projections for the month, principally because electric power charges of $263,352 were $72,179 under estimates. The difference between income and operating costs left $558,179 for application to debt service.

Sale of water totalled 1,319,872,760 gallons, of which 1,146,260,000 went to municipalities and 173,612,760 gallons to oil companies. Of total productiom, 87.65 came from Lakes J. B. Thomas and E. V. Spence; and only 3,629,900 gallons from wells. Diverted water to improve quality amounted to 159,321,080 gallons.

At the end of January Lake Thomas had 28,490 ac. ft of water, or 13.97 percent of capacity; Lake Spence had 196,525, or 4023 percent of capacity. Together they represented 32.48 petcent of capacity. Withdrawal from the lakes was 3,550 ac. ft. and there was no inflow.

Tracking down health hoaxes

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm confused about the claims and counterclaims made by "experts" on subjects such as megavitamin therapy, food additives and consumer safety. Do you know of a factual resource that could help me separate fact from fiction?

DEAR READER — Yes, I do. Dr. Stephen Barrett is a nationally acclaimed opponent of health fraud. He is a practicing psychiatrist, editor, author and adviser to the American Council on Health and Science. Dr. Barrett publishes the Nutrition Forum, a monthly newsletter that is a clear, up-to-date and concise analysis of quackery and bogus health claims. The publication is available by subscription for $30 per year. You may order it by writing George F. Stickley Co., 210 West Washington Square, Philadelphia, PA 19106. Credit-card orders may be placed by calling 215-922-7126. This is an extremely valuable and factual resource that I recommend to every consumer who is concerned about nutrition information. Dr. Barrett addresses subjects from A (anti-quackery) to Z (zinc and the common cold).

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is stenosis of the esophagus, and what treatments are available?

DEAR READER — Esophageal stenosis means that there is a constriction somewhere along the course of the esophagus, from the throat to the stomach. Stenosis simply means "narrowing."

Some forms of stenosis are congenital, which means that babies are born with them. Surgical correction is usually necessary.

In adults, stenosis is more likely to be produced by irritation, such as the chronic burning of gastric acid. In this instance, antacids may help ease the symptoms, but procedures to dilate the narrowed esophagus are usually necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My friend gave me some pills for dieting she calls 20/20s. I call them diet pills, but she calls them "speed." Who is right, and what harm can they do? They are bought over-the-counter, so I assume they are legal.

DEAR READER — I am not familiar with the product you mention; it is not listed in the Physician's Desk Reference for Non-Prescription Drugs, and none of my local pharmacists have heard of it.

The term "speed" refers to amphetamine derivatives; these are available by prescription only for specific medical indications. Your friend's diet pills may contain caffeine, which can cause jitteriness and some stimulation. As an over-the-counter medicine, 20/20s cannot legally contain "speed" or any other potent compound.

What are the benefits of VITAMIN E? Dr. Gott's new Health Report tells what's true — and what isn't. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Vitamin E.

Sesqui displays planned

Snyder merchants are now invited to enter a window display contest sponsored by the Scurry County Sesquicentennial Committee.

In keeping with the historical theme of the Sesquicentennial, window displays may be entered in four categories — Texas memorabilia, Texas artifacts, Texas antiques and an "other" category.

Ribbons will be presented to first, second, and third places and honorable mention. The awards will be presented March 2, Texas Independence Day, at dedication ceremonies for the committee-sponsored bandstand built beside the courthouse.

The display should be in place by Feb. 26, and should remain up through March 5.

A similar contest was conducted in the summer of 1984 during the Scurry County Centennial celebration. Twenty two local businesses participated in it.

Merchants are to receive a letter this week telling them of the contest. To enter, they should contact Myra Martin at 573-6512.

Two elections frozen locally neighborhoods for the city and school district.

This is viewed as the first step toward organizing a proposal for dividing up the entity's boundaries into "districts" based upon such information.

Agreements reached in other West Texas cities following similar lawsuits have divided city councils and school boards into a "combination" of elected board members.

This includes some seats elected from specific "districts" and others elected "at-large," entailing a vote of all voters in the district or city.

The most recent involved the City of Brownfield. An order agreed to by both sides in that issue will see the council there comprised of eight members after the upcoming April election.

This will include five councilmen elected from single member districts, two elected at large and the mayor elected at large.

Officials note that such agreements are subject to the individual case, however.

Passed check points to burglary suspects

A suspicious check noted by a Colorado City store clerk Monday afternoon led Snyder police to clear two business burglaries that occurred here Sunday evening.

Store employees at B&B Liquor in Colorado City called their local police department shortly after noon Monday questioning a check drawn on Charles R. (Randy) Perkins of Snyder and passed at their store by three women.

Investigators here said the appearance of the Perkins check in Colorado City confirmed that a burglary had occurred at The Shack Restaurant Sunday afternoon.

Paula Carpenter Owens, 36, of 2800 36th St. and a companion, Jackie Lou Walden, 36, of 2011 Ave. O, were arrested here Monday afternoon on warrants for forgery issued in Mitchell County.

A third woman — alleged to have been with Carpenter and Owens in Colorado City — remained at large.

A broken window had been noticed at the restaurant Sunday but employees were unsure if the building had in fact been entered or if anything had been taken.

Once investigators made contact with Shack owner Randy Perkins Monday afternoon, he confirmed that a checkbook, a radio and a quantity of meat were missing from the business.

Further investigation of the case led police to 26-year-old Don Carol McClain of 3412 Ave. I.

He was arrested and charged wth the burglary of the Shack around 9 p.m. Monday.

Perkins' checkbook, the missing radio and about $50 worth of meat were recovered with the arrest.

Questioning of McClain also led police to file additional charges against him for a previously unreported Sunday evening burglary of The Cubby in the 1900 Block of 25th St.

A stereo, radio, baby stroller and jewelry taken from that business were also recovered Monday evening.

Police reported making contact with the third woman thought involved in the case Tuesday morning but as of 11 a.m. she had not been arrested or charged.

McClain remained in the Scurry County Jail Tuesday morning in lieu of bonds set at $2,500 on each burglary charge.

Walden was released from custody Monday afternoon after posting a $1,000 to the forgery charge from Mitchell County while Owens posted a similar bond on that charge plus bonds on several misdemeanor issuance of bad check charges in Scurry County.

Gymnasium use fees reduced by trustees

Fees for the use of Snyder ISD gymnasiums — in particular Travis Gym at the old junior high site — were substantially reduced Monday by school trustees.

In the case of Travis, this fee was reduced from $75 per hour to $12.50 when requested by individuals living in the district.

The $12.50 cost was estimated as sufficient to pay for utility and custodial costs related to the use.

The Travis gym is used for basketball and volleyball league play by city teams.

In addition, the charge for the use of Tiger gym for UIL-related activities was reduced also. This fee was dropped from $100 per night to $50.

When the school requesting the gym's use is a member of District 2-AAAA, there will be no charge, school officials noted.

The action was requested by Athletic Director Dennis Tomlin, who said the revised policy more closely followed those adopted by other schools in the district.

The action came during the regular February meeting for trustees. Board members attending were Mike Reed, board president, and trustees Charlene Light, Allen Grimmett, G.A. Parks Jr., Mike Jordan and J.D. Hinton. Absent was J.M. Kayser.

In other school-related action, trustees voted to:

—Extend for a one-year period the contracts for Assistant Superintendents Jack Gorman, Tom Scannicchio and Artie Butler; Principals Charlie Anderson, Bob Travis, Jim Irwin, Gerri Parker, Wayne Kennedy and Frank Miller; and Athletic Director Dennis Tomlin.

—Accepted the resignation effective Feb. 6 of Anna Sears, kindergarten teacher at Central Elementary.

—Approve a request submitted by Denise Hinton, fifth grade teacher at West Elementary, to take six hours at Texas Tech University this spring toward her masters.

Council to aid tournament bid tourney bid. In the past, such funds have come from the city's hotel-motel tax.

Jack Denman, Dr. Jim Tully, Judge Wayland Holt, Dr. Harry Krenek and Chamber Manager Mort Ewing explained that bids for the 1987 contest must be made immediately following the 1986 tournament. Krenek noted that under the 1986 bid proposal, the city agreed to contribute $5,000.

Holt explained that the tournament committee and the Booster Club "may be able to hold that figure down. Last year we didn't have the tickets until the first day of the tournament. This year we have a number of boosters who have committed themselves to selling. Tournament tickets came in Friday," he said.

"We are promoting ticket sales to get good crowds. Good crowds will insure the tournament's return next year," he added.

Tully noted that the group's $5,000 advertising goal has almost been met. "This will help defray some of the costs the city has helped us absorb," he said.

The men noted that in an effort to provide a good community image, a host and hostess will be assigned to each of the 16 teams slated to appear. "The host and hostess will greet the team when they arrive, answer questions and provide assistance," Holt explained. "If the team wants them to, either the host or hostess will sit on the bench during the games."

Council members present Monday included David Hines, Tommy Davis, Troy Williamson, Mickey Nunley, Truett Bryan and Don Osborn. Also attending were Mayor Rod Waller, city manager John Gayle and city attorney Ernie Armstrong.

Projects told to board

Chisum & Co. of Lubbock, the firm which originally installed the two cooling towers.

It is now estimated that delivery of the towers will take from six to eight weeks — making a delivery date around mid-April. Sealy said the work could likely be completed in two weeks.

The repair to the stadium light wiring was characterized also as a "have to" situation.

Fans at the Snyder-Fort Stockton game last fall saw one-half of the stadium's lights go dark due to problems with the wiring.

School officials said Monday that they have found that the 31-year-old wiring system is now severely deteriorated. In some cases, the old rubber insulation has cracked and fallen away — exposing the wires to metal.

This has even resulted in isolated cases of a metal fence behind the stadium conducting electric current when rainy conditions exist, Sealy noted.

This has prompted workers to install grounding poles and to shutoff the electric current to the poles.

Sealy noted the most serious danger is posed only when damp conditions exist, but future uses of the stadium lights should be approached with caution.

Trustees authorized seeking bids for both rewiring the system and purchasing new lights — a change that will produce "lower electricity costs and twice the light," Sealy told the board.
