Police Brand Mrs. Weaver's Murder As 'Mistake Bombing'

POLL TAX RUSH STARTS

W. R. Sellers is shown here paying his poll tax to Mrs. Pauline Taylor, a clerk in the county tax office. The number of poll taxes and exemption certificates issued so far jumped 290 to a new total of 3,102 between noon Friday and noon yesterday. Of this total, 2,424 were paid taxes, and 678 were exemptions. Although the office has been jammed several times within the last few days, there has not yet been a long waiting line. There was a short line yesterday morning. Tomorrow is the last day for paying poll tax. (Lee Watson photograph)

Welfare Agencies May Have To Wait For Their Pay Raises

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Legislators pocketed their $15 a day pay raise this week, high state officials were about to get theirs, but it looks like the dependent children, needy blind and old folks may have to wait.

While Gov. Shivers was signing a $1,500,000 appropriation bill giving lawmakers the $25 a day authorized by the amendment voted last November, a powerful House majority was busy passing another bill upping the pay of six high state officials.

Efforts to write in funds that would also have given welfare beneficiaries an immediate increase were cut down.

Shivers, in his first message to the Legislature, recommended that it provide funds for the welfare spending increase approved in the amendment adopted last November.

Several proposals for such increases are in the mill: One in the general appropriations bill to be effective Sept. 1, others in single shot measures. The move that failed in the House this week was to make the raises immediate, along with those of the legislators and officials.

Voters authorized the state to spend 7 million dollars a year more on old age pensioners, the needy blind, and dependent children. The voters also authorized the Legislature to increase the pay of members from $10 to $25 a day, and gave the lawmakers latitude they have never had before in deciding how much the state will pay its six constitutional officers.

These are the governor, the attorney general, the comptroller of public accounts, the treasurer, the land commissioner and the secretary of state. The bill approved by the House boosts the governor's salary from $12,000 to $25,000; the attorney general from $10,000 to $20,000; the treasurer, comptroller and land commissioner from $6,000 to $17,500; the secretary of state from $6,000 to $15,000.

Public welfare department sources said the program for aid to needy children still operates on a cut-rate basis because of fund shortage, while the old age assistance and needy blind payments are at par.

As of Jan. 1, some 223,335 old age pensioners were getting an average of $38.77 a month; 6,416 needy blind were averaging $44.04 a month; and 22,627 families with needy children getting an average of $59.75 per family a month. Texas ranks 39th among the states in its average old age pension payments.

The legislative pay raises went into effect Thursday with Shivers' signature on the session's first spending bill. The bill to raise the state officials' went to the Senate. It would apply for the rest of this fiscal year—until Aug. 31.

Welfare officials said if the Legislature should go ahead now to increase funds authorized by the amendment—for the rest of the fiscal year—they could include it in the March checks. If the boost should come March 1, it would have to wait until April for distribution.

The pay raise bill, first public hearing on insurance bills, and introduction of dozens of proposed laws, was the principal business in the session's third week. Both houses went home after a Monday-Thursday work week.

SNYDER SPOTLIGHT

By WACIL McNAIR

Juvenile delinquency has made one of its periodic appearances in the national spotlight recently, this time in the form of a controversial series of magazine articles. Doubtless there will come a new list of recommendations for solving the problem, but past experiences indicate there will be no sure-fire cure.

So far, it appears that about the only thing definitely proved is that little progress can be made by attacking the problem with our heads buried in the sand ostrich fashion. At the same time little can be accomplished by raising a hullaballoo about certain factors which may contribute to it.

We suspect that some of the trouble stems from the fact that most adults don't realize how smart their children are. After all, children in their teens, and younger, are in daily contact with many things that their predecessors never even heard of, and they accept them as matters of fact.

A lot of theories have been offered, many of them with merit. Some cases where neglect was apparent led to the theory that "parent delinquency" was responsible for juvenile delinquency. It was substantiated in a lot of cases. Yet, some canny youngsters soon seized upon it and boasted that they could indluge in vandalism, etc., without blame because their actions would be charged up to their parents.

The broken home theory has received widespread attention, and again there have been numerous cases for substantiaton. Still, thousands of problem children come from homes untouched by divorce.

* * *

Snyder has its share of juvenile problems, but the situation here probably is no worse, or no better, than in hundreds of cities and towns. In fact, there probably has been more diligence here in keeping track of the problem than in many other towns. It is the limitation of knowledge as to the best methods of coping with it that keeps everyone perplexed.

So, along with everybody else we await the solution.

It is not easy to realize that children are no longer to be "seen, but not heard."

"He wasn't exactly a ball of fire as a speech-maker," somebody said after hearing Maj. Gen. Samuel Williams at the Chamber of Commerce banquet a week ago last night.

We understand the general didn't win any of those decorations on his uniform for oratorical engagements. Chat with him for a few moments, however, and you get the impression that America's soldiers are in solid hands.

There's an old Spotlight saying that goes something like this: The man who starts off like a ball of fire usually burns himself out before reaching his objective.

If you haven't paid your poll tax, remember that time is running out.

Incidentally, reports have been coming in from over the state of women neglecting to pay their poll tax because they think they won't be eligible for jury service without a poll tax receipt. It ain't so. The law says you've got to be eligible to vote to serve on a jury, but it also notes that failure to pay poll tax won't disqualify you for service on a petit jury panel. You can even serve on a grand jury without a poll tax if there are not enough people readily available with poll taxes and the judge decides you are needed.

Progress Is Slow In Rubenstein Case

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—New York police worked on scores of angles and theories today in the slaying of Serge Rubinstein—but apparently didn't make a single speck of progress.

As the body of the international financial schemer, draft dodger, playboy was put on public view in a $6,500 copper casket at a Manhattan funeral home, police concluded that his strangler entered Rubinstein's luxurious Fifth Avenue home with a key.

There also appeared little doubt that it was a grudge killing.

The room in which Rubinstein's body was found was in considerable disorder. Servants and relatives said apparently nothing was missing.

Some money was found in drawers, and a wall safe in an adjoining dressing room contained miscellaneous papers which had not been touched.

Officers expressed certainty that the killer brought with him the adhesive tape and cord used to bind and throttle the 46-year-old Rubinstein.

Rubinstein's body, clad in black silk pajamas, was found in his third-floor bedroom at 8:30 a.m. Thursday by his butler.

It was soon established that he had been alive as late as about 2 a.m.

This information came from a beautiful 23-year-old showgirl and model, Estelle Gardner, one of many who dated the multimillionaire.

She said she and Rubinstein left a night club about 1:30 a.m. and went to Rubinstein's home for a night cap and Rubinstein told her he was tired.

He took her downstairs and saw her to the door, she said.

She walked a block south to the Hotel Pierre and took a cab there for her own residence, she said.

Shortly after she left he telephoned another comely woman friend, 24-year-old Patricia Wray.

The phone call to Miss Wray, a secretary, was made about 2 a.m. She said he wanted to see her, but she hung up.

That about sums up the extent of police knowledge after two days.

Serge Rubinstein, wealthy industrialist who served a prison term as a draft dodger, was found dead, bound and gagged, in his apartment on New York's fashionable Fifth Avenue.

Two Are Charged, Motive Not Found

By GARTH JONES

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 29 (AP)—Police unfolded today a fantastic story behind the bomb-slaying of a wealthy West Texas ranchwoman.

They branded the killing of Mrs. Harry Weaver a "mistake" and said her former son-in-law plotted for nearly a year the ambush of her husband.

Still untold was the motive for the death plot, outlined to police by two men who said they were given money, guns and a car to do the job.

The former son-in-law, Harry Washburn, 38, and another man, Carl Henneger, 37, were arrested in Houston before dawn today. They were charged with murder. Henneger was also charged as an accomplice.

They were brought the 469 miles from Texas' Gulf Coast to this sheep ranching center where the slaying took place Jan. 19.

Washburn said nothing.

Henneger denied any knowledge of the killing.

Mrs. Weaver died when she pushed the starter of her husband's car. A nitroglycerin bomb triggered to it exploded with a roar that rattled the downtown section. Chunks of the car were sailed a block away.

Weaver is a noted Texas architect and scientist. He won wide recognition for his excavations in the Midland area seeking the bones of primitive man and animals.

Washburn once was charged with terrorizing the Weavers with two guns and a knife and attempting to extort $20,000 from Mrs. Weaver.

The incident took place on April 23, 1951, at a plush ranch home near San Angelo.

Charges were dropped before the case came to trial.

When Mrs. Weaver was killed, she and her husband were staying in town at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ralph Harris. The old-fashioned house is a landmark here.

The two men who came to police with their story claimed they knew nothing of the slaying of Mrs. Weaver. They said they never intended to go through with Washburn's plans, but only wanted money.

Detective H. K. Thompson of Houston said John McKinnis, 45, and Ray Fife, 33, made written statements. They were not held. This is what Thompson said McKinnis told him:

Washburn, formerly married to Mrs. Weaver's daughter, talked to McKinnis last March. McKinnis said Washburn offered him and Fife money to kill Harry Weaver.

McKinnis said Washburn gave them a 12-gauge shotgun, a .32 caliber pistol, and $450. Later, he said Washburn supplied them a car and more money, and provided information on Weaver's movements in San Angelo.

McKinnis said Washburn never told them why he wanted Weaver killed.

McKinnis said there was a period of "stalling" Washburn when they were pressed about "the job."

Ike's Signature Is Added As Final Touch To New Power

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—With his signature, President Eisenhower today attained complete, push-button power to fight Red China if necessary in defense of Formosa. He called this a step for peace in the war-charged area.

"We are ready," he said, "to support a United Nations effort to end the present hostilities in the area, but we also are united in our determination to defend an area vital to the security of the United States and the free world."

Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and the Joint Chiefs of Staff had already worked out orders for initial use of the special authority—overwhelmingly voted by Congress.

Informants said the first problem was use of the U.S. 7th Fleet with air cover for evacuation of the division of Chinese Nationalist troops from the Tachen Islands, and that this operation would now proceed.

The House first approved the joint resolution Tuesday by a vote of 409-3. Then Friday night, after a bitter argument over the extent of the President's powers and whether he could order a "preventive war" against Communist China, the Senate adopted the resolution 85-3.

Under it Eisenhower now has clear authority through his own constitutional powers and from Congress to use American armed forces to defend Formosa against any attack on the island itself or on any island off the Red China shore. He also has authority to use American forces against any concentration of troops assembled on the Communist mainland for the presumed purpose of invading Formosa.

The evacuation of the Tachen Islands 200 miles north of Formosa will involve grave risks of some American losses, administration officials believe, and so will the redeployment of Chiang Kai-shek's forces to Formosa or to such key offshore positions as the Quemoys and Matsus. It was understood here that American pilots will have the right of "hot pursuit" if Chinese jets attack and then run back over the China mainland, a right denied the Americans during the Korean War.

The Eisenhower administration apparently felt no sense of emergency as a result of the signing of the resolution and the imminence of 7th Fleet operations under it.

At 9:15 a.m. the President took off for a golfing weekend in Augusta, Ga., and Secretary of State Dulles left for a week's fishing and rest in the Bahamas.

At the brief and informal signing ceremony in the White House conference room, Eisenhower thanked congressional leaders grouped about him for "their great patriotic service" in getting the Formosa resolution passed by an "almost unanimous vote."

"By their vote, the American people through their elected representatives have made it clear to the world," he said, "that we are united here at home in our determination to help a brave ally and to resist Communist armed aggression.

"By so asserting this belief we are taking a step to preserve the peace in the Formosa area."

It was at this point that he spoke of support for "a United Nations effort to end the present hostilities."

An earlier draft of the President's statement had referred to a U.N. effort to obtain a cease-fire. The change in language may have been an effort on Eisenhower's part to show that what the United States is interested in is peace, and not the mere technicality of a cease fire.

The Chinese Communists began attacking the cease-fire idea over the Peiping radio today as "absolutely unacceptable."

The fact is that the administration does not believe Red China will risk war with the United States. It is also understood—although no one but Eisenhower could speak with authority on the matter—that the President is determined not to let incidents of combat—such as may happen in connection with the Taches evacuation—provoke him into using the great authority which is his for extreme action against Red China.

Authorities said it could be expected that the President would not strike against the Communist mainland unless in his judgment such action was inescapable to provide an adequate defense for Formosa against Red forces massed for action.

Navy Getting Support For Big Carrier

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—The Navy had the support of the two top members of the House Armed Services Committee today in its plans to build a fifth supercarrier of the 60,000-ton Forrestal class.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) said that while the carrier already has been authorized his committee will hold formal hearings on the project with a view to lending its "moral support" when a request is made for funds.

Rep. Short of Missouri, senior Republican on the committee, also said a formal recommendation by the armed services group might help offset reported opposition to the new supercarrier by Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the Appropriations Committee.

The Forrestal cost nearly 200 million dollars. Cannon said recently he had been informed that big carriers are highly vulnerable to enemy attack.

The Navy's shipbuilding program includes a fifth supercarrier to add to the recently launched Forrestal and three others in the planning stage.

Secretary of the Navy Thomas told Vinson's group yesterday the carrier is "more important today and more vital than it's ever been in history." He said "there's no disagreement" with the Air Force now on the need for carriers.

Nationalists Relieved By U.S. Action

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sunday, Jan. 29 (AP)—News of final United States approval of the resolution for defense of Formosa was greeted with satisfaction and relief by Nationalist Chinese.

The action, not unexpected, gave President Eisenhower authority to use American armed forces to evacuate Chinese Nationalist troops from the Tachen Islands.

There was no apparent rush to get such action under way. Unofficial quarters said the movement probably would start sometime this week.

Militarily, there was little action. Nationalist warplanes attacked six Red vessels in the Tachen area Friday night. The type of ships was undetermined, but returning pilots reported fires started on all six. An attempt by Red planes to intercept the raiders failed, the Defense Ministry reported.

Nationalist press reports said the Reds had set up 155mm guns on Yikiangshan Island, presumably for bombardment of the Tachens eight miles away.

Press reports said too that the Communists still were pouring men and equipment into Yikiangshan. In some quarters the lull in military action by the Reds was regarded as of possibly sinister portent.

The U.S. 7th Fleet now in Formosan waters is ready to cover evacuation of the 15,000 Nationalist troops and as many civilians from the Tachens.

Nationalist Defense Minister Gen. Yu Ta-wei, returned Friday night from a secret visit to the Tachens. It was believed he carried orders to the commander of the Tachen garrison for evacuation of troops.

Communist propaganda broadcasts from Peiping recently have been appealing to the Tachen Nationalist troops to defect. The troops, however, were said to have pledged full support for any decision taken by the Nationalist government.

Peiping radio asserted the Reds want no cease-fire. A broadcast of a lead article in the official Peoples Daily said the idea of a cease-fire "is absolutely unacceptable."

Commenting on President Eisenhower's Formosa policy, the Red radio said: "The Chinese people resolutely oppose and sternly condemn this U.S. war provocation. We are determined to liberate Formosa. If U.S. armed forces dare attack us, we will firmly strike back with heavy blows."

Two Flight Times Change

Slight changes in the schedules of two Pioneer Air Lines flights will go into effect here Tuesday, according to Jim Babcock, Pioneer station manager.

Babcock said that westbound flight 43, which now arrives here at 4:23 p.m., will land here at 5:04 p.m. on the new schedule. Flight 48, eastbound, has a new arrival time of 7:04 p.m., while it now lands at 6:19.

The other two flights will remain the same. They are eastbound flight 42, which arrives at 6:49 a.m., and westbound 45, which arrives at 8:26 p.m.

Munro To Ask Red Chinese Bid To Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Sir Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand, president of the U. N. Security Council for January, said today he will press Monday in the council for an invitation to Red China to attend cease-fire debates here despite a discouraging Communist Chinese broadcast this morning.

Britain will support the invitation, and the United States will not oppose it.

Munro called the council meeting yesterday in an attempt to halt fighting in the Chinese offshore islands north of Formosa. He said then the invitation to Red China would have to be the council's first decision.

Today's Peiping broadcast said a cease-fire was unacceptable and threatened heavy blows at the United States if it thwarted Peiping's plan to "liberate" Formosa.

President Eisenhower signed a joint congressional resolution this morning which gives him approval for a "fight-if-we-have-to" move in the area. At the same time, he voiced support for U. N. cease-fire efforts.

The Peiping broadcast gave no hint whether the Chinese Communists would accept a council invitation to send a representative here—under U. N. charter provisions requiring both parties to a dispute to be invited to debates—except to say "there is nothing to discuss" on a cease-fire.

Munro conferred with his staff this morning to frame the procedure by which the invitation will be put to the council for a vote. It could be by resolution or by a simple declaration without opposition. That is still to be determined.

Guilt Placed On Two By Bank Examiners

LEWISVILLE, Tex., Jan. 29 (AP)—A Denton businessman and a Lewisville woman were identified by a responsible source today as the persons who got part of the estimated $253,000 missing from a small town bank.

Bank examiners put the First National Bank in receivership yesterday, four days after its cashier, E.R. Wolters, committed suicide. They said about $253,000 was missing.

One of the bank's nine directors said today bank examiners indicated the Denton man and Lewisville woman were the only depositors involved in an apparent systematic looting of funds.

The director, who asked not to be named, said examiners described the system in this way: The Denton man would write a check for an amount larger than he had on deposit. The check would be cashed.

Then Wolters would record the withdrawal—from the account of another depositor. He "tapped" the accounts of a few depositors with with large amounts of money in the bank.

Examiners thus found the books in (apparent) order when they made their periodic visits to this little town near Dallas. Those depositors whose large accounts were "tapped" apparently never wrote enough checks to disturb the system. Statements sent to their homes did not show the unauthorized withdrawals.

"Why, the examiners often told us we had one of the safest little banks in Texas," the director said.

He said Wolters kept an account in another small book of his unauthorized withdrawals and that this may have led to his downfall. He said the examiners had given notice they intended to come last Tuesday but instead came Monday night at the close of business, sealed all books (possibly including Wolters' book showing unauthorized withdrawals.

The director said the checks had grown larger in the last six months but that the procedure had been underway at least three years.

Bill Murphy, FBI agent in charge of the Dallas office, said an investigation is underway to determine "the nature and extent of the shortage and who is responsible."

C.Y. Milliken, 66-year-old dry goods merchant who has been president of the bank since his brother died three years ago, wept as he told how examiners described cashing of checks by persons without the stated amount on deposit.

Wolters went xxx 11th graf 150.

WHAT IS AN EPISCOPALIAN?

Church Has Three Orders Of Ministry

EDITORS NOTE: This is another in a series of informative articles on the role of religion in today's world, written for the Snyder Daily News by leading authorities of the various faiths and denominations. Later articles will discuss the Methodists.

By W. NORMAN PITTENGER
Professor of Christian Apologetics, General Theological Seminary.

Do Episcopalians believe in heaven and hell?

The teachings of the Episcopal Church about death, judgment, heaven and hell are stated plainly in the Book of Common Prayer.

Death marks the end of this period of man's life. He is judged in terms of his real character, by a God "unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid."

Heaven is a state in which the vision of God is enjoyed in a "life of perfect service" of God.

Hell is alienation from God, and therefore the loss of that goal to which man's whole existence is directed.

Episcopalians do not believe in a physical heaven or hell; these are "states of being." The departed in whom there is some possibility of goodness are prepared for the full enjoyment of God by such cleansing and purifying as they may require — in a way, this resembles the idea of "purgatory." But Episcopalians do not use the term in their official teaching because they feel that it is often associated with crude ideas of payment of penalty and the like.

By the "resurrection," the Episcopal Church means not the raising of the physical body we now possess but the re-creation by God of the total personality of man with a "spiritual body" — that is, with an instrument of self-expression appropriate to a heavenly life.

What then is meant by salvation?

Modern Episcopalians tend to understand by this term "health or wholeness of life."

Salvation means that one is given the wholeness which is God's will for man, and is delivered from arrogance and selfishness. Salvation has to do not only with the "hereafter" but also with man's present earthly existence. In man, sinner because he is ridiculously proud and self-centered, there is no real "health"; by fellowship with God in Christ, he is brought into the sphere of healthy and whole life.

Does the Episcopal Church have a priesthood?

It does. There are three "orders of ministry" included in "Holy Orders": bishops, priests, deacons.

The Offices of Instruction state that the bishop's office is "to be a chief pastor in the Church; to confer Holy Orders; and to administer confirmation."

A priest's office is "to minister to the people committed to his

AEC Is Mum About New Developments

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today held out the prospect of new "major developments" in the field of atomic weapons.

AEC said in a semiannual report that "new areas of research" were opened by last spring's Operation Castle tests in the Pacific.

It said also new tests to start in about two weeks at the Nevada test site are needed "to obtain scientific knowledge essential to development and utilization of nuclear weapons for defense of this nation and the free world."

AEC gave no details in the report and officials declined to elaborate on it.

There was unofficial speculation, however, that the "new areas" might have to do with (1) long-range hydrogen bomb guided missiles, (2) shorter-range missiles aimed at knocking down atomic-armed aerial invading craft, or (3) better ways of making atomic weapons.

Air Secretary Talbott told the House Armed Services Committee last Thursday this country has made a "marked advance" in a race with Russia to develop intercontinental missiles with atomic warheads.

Another possibility—that some sort of super hydrogen bomb might be in the works—appeared less likely. AEC Chairman Lewis Strauss has said there seems to be no need to develop a more powerful bomb than the existing type. Similarly there have been official throwdowns of speculation that an ultrapowerful cobalt bomb—which in theory could wipe out all life on earth—might be under study.

The AEC report gave these other progress highlights of the nation's atomic energy program, which it said has cost $13,200,000,000 since its beginning in World War II:

1. "Added emphasis" on peacetime uses of atomic energy as a result of new authority given by the Cole-Hickenlooper Act of 1954.

2. Greater participation by private industry in atomic development, especially in experimental production of atomic power for commercial use. The report said AEC now has "evolved a pattern for research and development from which it believes will come nuclear power plants that will compete with other sources of energy."

3. Continued stress on research into the uses of radioactive materials to treat cancer and other diseases. The report said the Argonne Research Hospital in Illinois has found it practical to treat cancer of the pancreas with radioiodine encased in plastic tubing. It says attempts are being made at Argonne to implant plastic envelopes containing another radioactive substance, cesium, in the brain and chest.

4. A heavy increase in the mining of uranium, the raw material for most atomic products. The report said ore is being mined in this country faster than it can be processed, resulting in large stockpiles at many points. Private drilling was said to be going on at twice the rate of government drilling.

Russia May Intercede In Cease-Fire

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government has promised to consider a British request that it intercede with Communist China to further a proposed cease-fire along the Formosa Strait. But the Russians say the United States is primarily responsible for tension in that area.

The Soviet position was set forth last night in a reply by Foreign Minister Molotov to the British. A text, described as Molotov's answer, was distributed by the Soviet news agency Tass and broadcast by Moscow radio.

The London request was delivered to the Kremlin yesterday by British Ambassador Sir William Hayter. His visit was timed to coincide with a similar plea to the Peiping government by the British charge d'affaires in China.

Hayter specifically asked for Soviet support of a move in the United Nations aimed at bringing about a cease-fire. The U.N. Security Council will meet Monday to consider an invitation to Red China to participate in such talks.

The British ambassador also asked Soviet authorities to urge restraint on Communist China in the present crisis. A British Embassy spokesman said Hayter acted with the prior knowledge of the U.S. State Department.

The text broadcast by Moscow radio quoted Molotov as saying "If the United States were to stop its aggressive actions in the area of Formosa, this would facilitate the easing of international tension."

The broadcast said Molotov also "drew the attention of the British ambassador to the fact that if Britain were not supporting the United States in her aggressive actions in this area, the United States would not have decided to undertake such actions."

POLICE

Four days before Mrs. Weaver was killed, McKinnis said, Washburn advanced the bomb plan. He said he rejected this and Washburn said, "I'll do it myself, then."

McKinnis said that was the last he heard of the plot until the car blew up in San Angelo, killing Mrs. Weaver.

Three days later, Fife advanced the idea of going to the police, McKinnis said.

McKinnis said he and Fife had been living at Henneger's house, and that once Henneger pawned the shotgun given them by Washburn. It was recovered by police at a pawnshop.

Henneger was arrested on a Houston street last night.

The murder warrant issued at San Angelo was on Carl Henneger. Capt. Cecil Priest said he knew the man as Carlton Heninger.

Weaver was not available at once for comment.

Dist. Atty. Aubrey Stokes of San Angelo termed Mrs. Weaver's death a "mistake killing, no doubt about it."

"There are two more we have to get before this is wrapped up," Stokes said.

Priest said Fife should be in line for the $10,000 reward offered by the Weaver family.

Mrs. Weaver's daughter, now Mrs. Helen Willcockson of Billings, Mont., filed suit for divorce from Washburn Dec. 14, 1950, and was awarded custody of two children, Gregory, 3, and Margaret, 18 months.

Percy Foreman, a Houston attorney representing Washburn, said his client was awarded the children in a later custody suit.

Washburn is a former Houston photographer now in the construction business.

Police went to Oklahoma City yesterday and returned to Texas Jack Cordell, 32, of Brownwood, Tex. He was questioned about attempts to extort $3,000 from Mrs. Weaver's husband.

Cordell denied he knew anything about telephone calls in which the caller promised to exchange a picture of the killer for $3,000 cash.

No charge has been filed yet in the extortion attempt. Cordell waived extradition on a felony theft indictment returned in Brown County.

Stokes had said he doubted Cordell's arrest would have any effect on the solution of the case.

Washburn and Heninger arrived in San Angelo about noon.

Before being taken to jail, Washburn and Heninger posed for pictures. Washburn was in handcuffs.

Asked why Heninger was not, Stokes said:

"He (Washburn) is the mean one. He's No. 1."

Stokes was asked about a statement he was reported to have made, saying Weaver was a main suspect.

"We had two suspects," Stokes said. "Weaver and Washburn."

Asked if the arrest of Washburn cleared Weaver, Stokes answered, "Yes."

"Completely?"

"In my mind it does," Stokes said.

Stokes said he had enough evidence to take the case to a grand jury and planned to talk to Judge Joe Mayes Monday.

He said no further arrests were expected at once.

Washburn made no statement about the case, Stokes said.

Washburn had $51.25 in cash and a $9.41 check in his pocket when checked into jail.

Heninger had $12.52. He said he had given $15.50 to an officer to mail to his baby-sitter in San Antonio. He explained he was separated from his wife, but had a 22-month-old daughter.

Protection Is Urged For National Abroad

By ANDY ANDERSON

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 29 (AP)—Herman Talmadge, former governor of Georgia, tonight demanded armed protection for U.S. nationals abroad and criticized this country's leadership and foreign policy. He spoke at a dinner given for relatives of 11 U.S. airmen imprisoned by Red China.

"The United States has looked the other way for so long while its people have been mistreated by hostile governments that the rights of American citizens are no longer respected in more than half the world," he said in a speech prepared for the dinner.

"We have lost ground because we have no strong foreign policy. We have been floundering with no direction. Our people want leadership which will set a course and follow through.

"The point has been reached when the President and members of Congress should declare as the policy of this nation the guarantee of the full protection of our armed might to American civilians and servicemen where ever they may go or be sent to serve in the world.

"We should spell out exactly what areas we will defend and make it perfectly clear that to violate this is to invite all - out war."

Earlier the relatives had issued a statement saying they felt the recent State Department ruling "not to issue passports at this time is in the best interests of all the members of this group, our loved ones in China and the nation as a whole."

Many of those here branded the Red offer as purely for propaganda purposes but no group statement was made. Neither was any concerted action taken on a possible visit to China if the passport ban is lifted.

The mothers, sisters and wives from various parts of the country each prepared a one-minute speech for tonight's dinner thanking the government for interest taken in behalf of the airmen, thus backing up a group statement this morning saying "we would like to thank President Eisenhower and U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold for their efforts in endeavoring to obtain release of our loved ones."

They all met for the first time this morning at a cheerful breakfast in the George Washington Hotel. They showed each other photos of the men the Reds are holding; swapped ancedotes and got acquainted generally.

Later in the day they went sightseeing; planned to attend various churches tomorrow and after a final dinner together leave for home.

They were brought here by a committee of 11 business men whose chairman was Weldon K. Weldon, beauty shop operator. The committee paid their expenses and sold approximately 100 tickets to the public for $10 each for the roast turkey dinner.

Leader Of Swedes Dead

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 29 (AP)—Denmark's Prime Minister, Hans Hedtoft, 51, a leader in his country's resistance movement during the Nazi occupation and later a strong supporter of Western defense against communism, died unexpectedly here today.

Hedtoft, here for a meeting of the Nordic Council was found dead in his bed at a hotel. He apparently had suffered a heart attack. His wife died 2½ months ago while he was on the Scandinavian Airlines System's inaugural transarctic flight from Copenhagen to Los Angeles. Since then, his friends said, Hedtoft had been depressed.

In Copenhagen, the press agency of Denmark's Social Democratic party which Hedtoft headed said he would be succeeded as Prime Minister by Foreign Minister H. C. Hansen.

Hedtoft's death was discovered when he failed to show up at today's session of the Nordic Council. The Council, a consultative body on Scandinavian affairs, convened here yesterday.

Pescadores Are Bleak, Monotonous

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—Few outposts on earth are bleaker, windier, more monotonous than the Pescadores, which the United States is pledged to defend against Communist assault.

The description was furnished today by the National Geographic Society, which also reported that almost 10 per cent of the islands' total land area of 50 square miles is covered by graveyards.

"For the Pescadores are old islands," the Society said. "They have weathered not only killing storms but many wars. The people venerate their ancestors."

It said there is probably not another corner of the globe where so much of the land is covered by graves.

The largest of the 64 tiny islands commanding Formosa Strait is Penghu, and the foremost town is Makung. The Pescadores derive their name from the Portuguese word "fishermen," and fishing today supplies a scant livelihood for most of the 80,000 population.

Only peanuts, sweet potatoes and a scattering of other stunted plants can cling to the sandy soil against relentless buffeting of the monsoon that funnels through the Strait from October through March.

Man Quits Driving Because Of Accident

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio, Jan. 29 (AP)—John Barr, 63, who drove an automobile for 46 years before he ever had an accident, turned over his automobile license plates yesterday to police Chief Joseph Blackmore and said:

"I've had enough. Things ain't what they used to be so I'm going back to my first love—a bicycle."

Barr's decision to quit driving came as the result of a collision on Jan. 4 that cost him a total of $75 in assessments on charges of careless driving and failure to have a driver's license. The accident was a minor one.

TOMORROW'S BREAKFAST?

This calf, sniffing at a mesquite in a pasture near Snyder, may not know it but he may be eating trees in a few months. Experimenters are now cutting down mesquites, chopping them up, and hammering them down to get a substance for a feed mixture. In that way, they can get rid of mesquite and provide cattle feed at the same time. (Staff photograph)

It Happened! They've Figured Out A Use For Mesquite Trees

Some people won't be surprised, but others will be shocked. Know what they're figuring on doing now?

Experimenters have tried grinding up mesquite trees and using them for cattle feed. They mix the sawdust, or whatever you would call the remains of the trees, 50-50 with cottonseed meal and grain. And they come up with a nourishing feed, one which has been tried in Texas at the Spur experiment station of the Texas Extension Service.

The way the experts have it figured, farmers and ranchers could kill two birds with one stone by using a new wood chopper now being manufactured by at least one firm to chop up mesquites which have been cut down, and while they are cutting the trees down to get the cattle feed, they can spray the tree stumps with a mixture of one gallon of 245-T to 40 gallons of deisel oil.

The spraying mixture, when applied to the sump, is figured to give near 100 per cent kill on the mesquites.

The mesquites, after being chopped down, are fed into the newfangled machine, which can be mounted on a tractor. The chopper gets chips, which are regulated by adjustment of the machine, and the farmer or rancher who wants to make use of the mesquite runs the chips through a hammer mill to get a coarse, sawdust-like material. This is what is mixed with the cottonseed meal and grain.

The choppers are made in various sizes. The one being tried out by the Spur station can handle trunks up to four inches in diameter.

And here's something of interest, as reported by Oscar Fowler, Scurry County agricultural agent: At Spur, when the chopper was being tried, experimenters found that they could get 18 tons of mesquite per acre, or 10 tons of mesquite on the dry basis. The density of mesquite around Spur is about the same as that in this area.

A ton of this mixed feed is figured to cost about $30 at present prices.

Agriculturists here might not want to think about putting in so much labor and buying such a chopper now, since they can get feed at low cost with government participation in the emergency feed program, but the time is coming, says Fowler, when some might welcome a chance to get feed at $30 per ton.

It takes some investment to get started, however. A chopper such as that the Spur station has costs about $1,000. Another thing to consider, though, is that some persons here have gone to great expense in trying to eradicate mesquite from their land. While there would be labor costs in cutting the mesquite trees down to feed the machine, there are also labor costs in spraying the mesquite trunks by hand or in hiring aerial spraying services for mesquite control.

Diethylstilbestrol Helps Cattle Gain

Favorable results have been shown recently in experiments conducted in Texas in feeding diethylstilbestrol, a synthetic production with female hormone characteristics, to beef cattle.

According to unofficial report, a 60-day feeding test at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Spur resulted in steers fed a premix containing diethylstilbestrol making an average daily gain of 3.27 pounds in the feedlot compared to 2.59 pounds daily for those in another lot which were fed the same basal ration as those who had a small stilbestrol ration. This was a gain of 39 pounds per head during the test, or 26 per cent.

The station obtained 12 Hereford yearling steers for the test, feeding six of them 15 milligrams of diethylstibestrol per head daily for 60 days. During the winter before the test they grazed on wheat pasture, while they were on native grass in the spring and summer. On Aug. 15 the steers were placed on sudan grass pasture and fed one pound of cottonseed meal and four pounds of sorghum grain per head daily during the last two weeks in September. On Oct. 1, they went into the feedlot for an adjustment period just before beginning the test, which started Oct. 6. That's when the slight difference in ration was made.

While the steers fed stilbestrol grained 39 pounds more than the others during the test period, they lost weight rapidly when trucked from Spur to the Fort Worth market, a distance of 230 miles, and when they arrived there they weighed only 15 pounds more. A price of $23 per 100 pounds was paid for each lot of steers by Swift & Co. The buyer could not see any difference in quality of the two lots. Those not fed stilbestrol did not shrink as much enroute and had a higher dressing per cent. Carcass weights and grades for both groups were equal. These were the first cattle to be fed the hormone in Texas and among the first in the nation to be sold on the market after clearance by the Pure Food and Drug Administration.

The unofficial reports on these tests included the statement that no recommendations are warranted, since they were only preliminary tests. The Spur startion has four more groups of cattle and are feeding them the hormone to provide more complete information. The cattle include steer yearlings, spayed heifers, open heifers, and steer calves.

The diethylstilbestrol premix used contained one gram of the hormone in one pound of soybean oil meal.

The Iowa State College agricultural extension service, making a report on stilbestrol feeding, warns that chemically pure diethylstilbestrol should hever be fed directly to cattle. It would be fed only when properly incorporated in approved cattle feeds. It is not to be fed to breeding herds, nor to any other animals or poultry, the Iowa report said, saying only fattening cattl. sould be fed the mix.

Some firms handling feed are now producing a stilbestrol premix supplement for commercial purposes. Most of the firms, however, still lack adequate mixing and laboratory facilities and cannot double-check dispersion of stilbestrol in cattle feed mixtures.

The agriculture division of one pharmaceutical firm, reporting on stilbestrol, said it would be sold only to feed manufacturors for inclusion in existing beef fattening supplements. It will not be sold directly to cattle feeders, the firm said, since accurate mixing of the premix within the supplement is highly desirable.

Billy Rip Boss Is Awarded Commission

Billy Rip Boss, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Boss, Big Spring Highway, recently received a commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force reserve.

Boss was commissioned upon graduation at North Texas State Collete, where he had participated in Reserve Officer Training Corps activities. He was awarded a bachelor degree there. He majored in accounting and personnel management.

The 1950 Snyder High School graduate will report April 1 to Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio for active duty. He will enter jet flight training.

Grass Team From Snyder To Compete

A grass judging team made up of Snyder High School agriculture Fort Worth to enter a grass judging contest in the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show.

This is the first judging competition in which Snyder students have entered this year, McMullan said. He estimated that 60 teams will be entered in the contest, which is broken into four levels, covering grasses, forbs, legumes, and woodies. The teams will have 85 specimens to identify, telling whether they are annuals or perennials, cool or warm season plants, native or introduced, and whether the grazing value is good, fair, or poor.

Several judging team activities are planned by the Snyder agriculture students, McMullan said. On Feb. 18, another grass judging team made up of Richard Miller, Billy Clyde Roberson, Sonny Harrell, and Benny Rinehart, all sophomores, will enter the San Antonio Livestock Show contest. Other competition involving Snyder teams will be at Abilene, Sweetwater, and Texas Tech. The agriculture teacher said the boys will also have a crops team and wool team, possibly also having livestock and land judging teams.

Last year the school's grass judging team took second place in district competition, while the crops team was first.

Snyder, Gail Boys Showing Their Stock

Agriculture students from Snyder and Gail are now in Fort Worth with project animals entered in various divisions of the Southwestern Exposition and Livestock Show.

Three Snyder FFA students, along with agriculture instructor Kenneth Goforth, went to Fort Worth last week. Elwyn Weathers was to enter two Hereford steers, while Buddy Drum had two Southdown and two crossbred lambs and Richard Miller had one Holstein bull.

All the animals were to show yesterday except the bull, which is scheduled for Wednesday.

From Gail were Borden Reeder and Pat Porter, both taking lambs for entry. Going with them was Bobby Gray, agriculture teacher.

Porter was to exhibit one Southdown and one Shropshire lamb, while Reeder was to have two entries in the Shropshire class.

FARM AND RANCH

Dan Gibson, North Scurry rancher, has 15 Beefmaster steers at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Spur. These will be used in various tests at the station.

Gibson also has 20 cows and bulls at the Pantex Farm near Amarillo for testing purposes.

Many feed manufacturors are now including nitrophenide, a chemical which helps in prevention of outbreaks of coccidiosis in chick flocks, in production of poultry feeds.

This is used especially in chick starters. Nitrophenide, at the level usually included in poultry mixes, is toxic to mammals, especially hogs and dogs, so chick raisers might want to watch this. Numerous cases of heavy death losses have been reported by hog feeders who were feeding weevil-damaged chick starters or feeding warehouse sweepings, reports county agent Oscar Fowler.

Crop production in the Upper Colorado Soil Conservation District here is governed largely by the amount of water available for plant growth at planting time.

In most years prior to 1951, rainfall was adequate for production of crops, but erratic distribution, with torrential rains followed by long dry spells, has always made it desirable to conserve as much rainfall as possible. The soils generally are relatively porous, deep, and have enough water-holding capacity to store large amounts of rainfall for plant use if steps are taken to prevent heavy runoff and reduce evaporation.

The use of conservation practices, contour farming in combination with closed level terraces, diverting and spreading of flood water will increase production in this area, and according to farmers here this area is definitely in need of more moisture than ever before.

Many oldtimers say that never before has this country needed moisture as much as it needs it now. Four dry years have reduced the available moisture in the top four feet of soil to the critical point. The snow in December and rain and snow in January cannot be overlooked, of course. They did some good, penetrating to as much as 12 inches in the mixed and coarse soils, but penetrating barely five inches in some of the heavy soils. Farmers are refraining from too much optimism about the moist appearance of the top few inches. Some are listing, but many are holding off for more rain.

Lewis Blackard is one who is working on prevention of water runoff. Mapping out a conservation plan, he put it into effect last week and is now in the process of building 12 miles of level closed end terraces. He has a good production record on his place, but he is now shooting for higher production with less soil and water loss. He said he believes terraces will hold down soil blowing because most of his terraces were run cross-way to the southwesterly direction of the wind.

* * *

A. L. Pieper is planning to plant several acres of guar next spring, provided it rains. A summer legume which promises lasting soil benefits by adding nitrogen and organic matter to the soils, it also increases water intake. Seeds should be inoculated with the proper bacterial culture before planting. Five to six pounds of guar seed per acre should be enough to get a stand. Planting time is in the spring when the soil is warm, about cotton planting time.

* * *

Alex A. McMillan says terraces on his farm were a great aid toward production of the quarter-bale of cotton per acre last year. Speaking from experience, he says terraces are of extreme value. "It rains so seldom in this country that we must conserve every drop that falls." Level terraces with closures will hold much water on the land, and when they get full the water will just run out the ends, he added.

McMillan formerly staked off rows to make them straight, but that was before he began to find the value of terraces in reducing erosion and storing water. Twelve to 14 miles of new terraces are almost complete on his place.

Drilling For Oil Is Rugged In Alaska

TULSA, Jan. 29 (AP)—"One of the most rugged exploratory efforts of modern man's search for oil."

That's the Oil and Gas Journal's description of the 18-month work by Phillips Petroleum Co. and Kerr-McGee Oil Industries Inc. on the southern coast of Alaska.

The companies are looking for petroleum in an uninhabited, remote, million-acre area of the Katalla-Yaktaga region, the first oil activity in those districts in 20 years.

"A capricious nature has fought back every inch of the way in an apparent effort to keep the area uninhabited," the Journal related.

A contract with the Interior Department provides the companies must spend $1,200,000 for exploratory work by June 30. By that time they must have begun a wildcat well in each of the two districts or forfeit all acreage where drilling has not been started.

Already one stratigraphic test—one seeking information on the area's geology—has been drilled in the Yakataga district. It was completed last May as a dry hole at 4,837 feet. A second, spudded in June, is now being drilled five miles from the first.

The Journal reported the crews had to battle numerous obstacles thrown up by nature, most of them from the weather.

It described the difficulties posed by inland weather and in icy bay, at the foot of Guyot Glacier, in which grinding hunks of ice complicated the arrival of equipment and supplies in cargo landing ships.

Once ashore, transporting equipment over terrain soaked by annual precipitation of 150 inches was a super project.

Wildlife and insects were other complications. The Kodiak bears became camp pests. Mosquitoes described as the "most voracious found anywhere in the world" and stinging winged gnats added to the discomfort.

When weather blocked road building, the crews picked for the first well a location they could reach. As they rigged up, it began snowing.

"A bulldozer had to clear the road ahead of them every day," the Journal continued. "Finally, when seven feet of snow had hidden the equipment on the ground and a rain had packed one snow to a hard-frozen five feet of ice, topped almost immediately by another 30 inches of snow, the whole operation came to a halt.

"Most of the crew was eligible for a vacaton in a month, so the men were flown back to the states and the drilling equipment left where it was until the snow melted."

Texans Try Washington Night Life

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—In b rowed mink and rented tails, the Jim Wrights attended a social affair given by President and Mrs. Eisenhower Jan. 14. Mrs. Wright was "tingling" with excitement and Wright, congressman from Weatherford, Tex., was "grumbling about 'receptions'."

Mab Wright, the wife, told the story today in one of the rare congressional newsletters written by a wife.

"After all, it's just another party, and the people there will be just people," Mrs. Wright said she kept telling herself that day.

"Then suddenly it hit . . . that tingling sensation. I ran upstairs to look at my dress wondering if it was pretty enough. . . . I went to work with an ironing board, still wondering if it was frilly enough for such an occasion."

She borrowed a mink cape from an aunt from Lubbock and "by this time I was feeling a very close kinship to Cinderella."

"Jim kept up a steady stream of grumbling and mumbling in his beard about 'receptions!' and how he had come up here to work and not to attend social functions, and how he didn't wonder the government was in the red, with all this falderal going on all the time, and so forth and so forth and so on. (Actually, although he wouldn't admit it, he was just excited as I was.)

"Much to his pretended disgust, he had to rent a pair of tails. 'What a ridiculous costume,' he kept saying."

At the reception, "all we saw in the line (of people preparing to meet the Eisenhowers) was people just like ourselves . . . Oh, a famous name here and there, and a few you'd recognize from magazines or television . . . but really just a lot of people. . . .

"I don't know why, but somehow I was surprise to note that the President and his wife were people of average stature. Mrs. Eisenhower not as tall as I and the President lacking just a fraction of an inch being the same height as Jim.

"They are an extremely attractive couple. Mrs. Eisenhower is much prettier than her pictures and looked very lovely in a white dress with silver sequins.

"I'm not sure what I said, but something profound like, 'How do you do?'"

EPISCOPALIANS

care; to preach the Word of God; to baptize; to celebrate the Holy Communion; and to pronounce absolution and blessing in God's name."

The deacon assists the priest in divine service and other ministrations; he is a minister in the real sense of the word, but without such "higher" privileges as priest and bishop.

The priest is the "ministerial representative" for Christ in his church; he also represents the priesthood of the laity, which is shared by all who are baptized.

An Episcopal minister is never called a "preacher," since that is only one aspect of his office; he is also celebrant of the Holy Communion — absolver, teacher, shepherd of his flock.

The ministers of the Episcopal Church may marry or not marry as they see fit, "as they shall judge the same to serve better to godliness."

Are there monks and nuns in the Episcopal Church?

Yes. There are many orders of Episcopal monks and nuns, both in the United States and elsewhere.

Some are purely "contemplative" — that is, engaged in prayer; others are "mixed" — that is, engaged both in prayer and in teaching, writing, preaching.

These men and women take the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. They do not marry. They live in communities established for the purpose of sharing a common life of work and prayer.

What is meant by "high," "low" and "broad" Church?

These words are used to describe parishes, but they are misleading.

A "high" parish is one which emphasizes sacramental worship, the supreme value of the "Catholic tradition," and a rather elaborate service of worship.

A "low" parish is one in which the services are simpler and a stronger emphasis is placed on the gospel and on personal religion.

In a "broad" parish, which may be either "high" or "low," the importance of a rational understanding of the Christian tradition is stressed, with a concern for "liberal values."

But all these emphases meet in the procamation of the gospel, sacramental worship and the reasonable presentation of Christianity. Episcopalians appeal to scriptures, tradition and personal experience, as well as reason, for vindication of the truth of the Christian faith. Differences in emphasis are welcomed in the Episcopal Church, as long as the central affirmations are maintained.

Does the Episcopal Church permit divorce?

In America, the "canons" (or church law) do not recognize divorce, but do provide a number of grounds for annulment — the ecclesiastical declaration that no marriage has in fact existed because of some factor that made such impossible.

A bishop may permit a divorced person to remarry if certain conditions are met. He may also admit to Holy Communion persons who have been divorced and remarried — if they can prove that they are in good faith, are struggling to live a Christian life and have demonstrated their stability and repentance.

What is the Episcopalian attitude to birth control?

The Anglican Communion has spoken, through its conference of bishops at Lambeth, on birth control, saying that when practiced without selfish motives, it is permissible. There has been much discussion of the "moral theology" of contraception, but no more clearly defined position has yet been taken.

Do Episcopalians believe that theirs is the only true faith?

No. We hold that all who are baptized (whether by Episcopalian or other baptism, provided it is with water and in the name of the Holy Trinity) are members of the Church of Christ. Christ is the "head" of his Church (called in the New Testament "The Body of Christ") and those who belong to him by baptism are his "members."

Confirmation by the bishop is necessary to communicant status, but it is not believed to be "joining the Church." It is a sacramental rite by which, Episcopalians believe, the Holy Spirit is given to a Christian reaching communicant status.

Even those who are not actually baptized, but by intention would be baptized if they were able, are believed to be "saved." The Church is Christ's instrument for fulfilling his purpose in the world and the means by which his continuing presence is made available. Of that one Church, Episcopalians believe they are a part; they have never claimed they are the only part.

How is the Episcopal Church governed?

In difference countries, the Anglican Communion has different kinds of government.

In the United States, there are parishes, with elected laymen to represent the congregation; dioceses, with the "convention" under which the bishop and his clergy carry on the Church's work; and a general convention which meets every three years and represents the entire American Church.

The Church is democratic: delegates to the general convention and laymen to diocesan conventions are elected. At the general convention, the House of Deputies, composed of laymen and priests, and the House of Bishops, in which all bishops may sit, must concur in legislative measures. Neither bishops nor parish clergy have any authocratic rights; all must cooperate with the laity.

How many Episcopalians are there in the United States?

Over 2,715,825 Americans have been baptized in the Episcopalian faith. In addition, a quarter-million or so persons look to the Church for ministrations but are not formal members. The Episcopal Church has 6,958 clergy in the United States, in 7,954 parishes and missions.

What role has the Episcopal Church played in American history?

The first service of the Anglican Commuhion in the New World was held at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607. For many years, the Episcopalians in the colonies were under the bishop of London; with the War of Independence, they became self-governing.

A majority of the founders of this nation were Episcopalians—including George Washington, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, James Monroe, John Marshall and John Jay. From that time to the present, the Church has played a significant part in our national life. Despite its close fellowship with the Church of England, it has been thoroughly American and its members are loyal citizens of this land.

Nichols Has Quit Atomic Managership

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Kenneth D. Nichols was reported today to have submitted his resignation as general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission.

One congressional source, unwilling to be quoted by name, said he understood Nichols had tendered his resignation to AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss.

Members of the Senate-House Atomic Committee said they had no official information. Sen. Anderson (D-NM), chairman of the group, said, however, he "would think there may be some substance to the report."

Nichols, former chief of the Army's research and development program, became general manager of AEC on Nov. 1, 1953. He reportedly wants to accept a job in private industry.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Friday night Nichols had resigned to accept a $100,000-a-year outside job. It said the firm he would join is working on industrial uses of atomic power.

The New York Times reported Nichols was leaving to accept a post in an industry controlled by the family of the late Andrew W. Mellon, financier and former secretary of the treasury.

Both newspapers mentioned R. W. Cook, assistant AEC general manager, as a possible successor to Nichols.

Employment Reaches High

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—The Texas Employment Commission predicted today a good start for employment in 1955 with December at an all time record.

The commission said 2,781,000 persons were employed last month. Unemployment totaled 112,800, the same as in December 1953.

December was the only month in 1954 in which the jobless total was not above the one for the corresponding month of 1953.

The annual upturn in job numbers is expected in March, but could start in February, the commission said.

Texas employment is undergoing the usual winter lull between the Christmas shopping peak and the outdoor activities season.

Good weather will create farm and construction jobs, and positive relief of drought conditions could produce an even greater demand for more helpers on Texas ranches and farms, TEC said.

Tiger Cagers Stick To 2nd Loop Place

The Snyder Tigers were still at their winning ways during the weekend. After barely getting by the Big Spring Steers Friday night, they edged the Lamesa Tornadoes 59-57 last night in an overtime thriller.

Plainview was still leading the district after downing Breckenridge Friday night and taking Vernon 74-53 last night. The Tigers are now right behind the Plainview team.

The score was tied up 53-53 at the end of the regular playing time. During the three - minute overtime, Jimmy Bennett quickly bucketed a field goal to put Snyder ahead, then the game was tied when the ball went into Lamesa's basket in a rebounding shuffle. Two free throws by Joel Tankersley, however, put the Tigers out front again. Don McNew put some insurance on the lead with a field goal, making it four points. With less than 10 seconds to go, Lamesa's Doyle Chapman made a basket to put the Tornadoes within two points of the Tigers, but that's all his team had time to do.

Both of last night's games went into overtime. In the first game, the Snyder B team downed Lamesa's B 55-51.

In the varsity game, Lamesa led off in the first period and was ahead 18-13 as that quarter ended. Snyder got ahead to 29-26 by halftime and held a 44-39 lead at the end of the third. Lamesa picked up to tie the game on free throws by Joe Boles just as time was almost up.

Alan Snead, hitting several of his side shots, led scoring for the team with 13 points. Jack Spikes, Snead, and McNew led rebounding for the Tigers, while Bennett, Milton Ham, Spikes and Jerry Taylor stole the ball several times during the game. Wayland Reeves, who fouled out in the third period, paced the Tornadoes with 17 points.

The Tigers hit 39.6 per cent on field goals to Lamesa's 32.6. On free throws, the Snyder team hit 50 per cent, while Lamesa got 62.5.

Lamesa led at the end of the first quarter of the B game 12-10 and at halftime 26-20. By the end of the third, the Tornadoes were leading 40-35. Earl Rhoades, Pat Fowler, Powell Berry and Ronnie Smith were all instrumental in catching the Snyder team up to a 49-49 tie at the end of the regular game. In the overtime period, Berry, Robert Dabbs, and Tommy Prichard each dropped field goals ino the basket, while Lamesa's only score was a goal by Orville Prather.

The Friday night game was a thriller which saw Big Spring holding the big end of the score for a large part of the way and the Tigers winning by only three points, 58-55.

The Steers, a rapidly-improving and fairly tall team, took an early lead in the game and held it most of the first quarter. At one time near the end of that period, Snyder tied the game, but the Steers moved out again and led 17-13 at the end of that qarter.

With three minutes to go in the second, shots by Taylor, Snead, and Bennett put the Tigers in a three-point lead. At halftime they were leading 35-32.

Big Spring took a brief lead early in the third, but the Tigers grabbed it again and went ahead, leading by nine points at one time. They had a lead of 50-45 as the fourth period opened.

The Steers made it rougher in the fourth, getting within one point of the Tigers with about one and one-half minutes to go, but their star shooter, Charles Clark, missed two shots, while two of his teammates missed one each. During the last few seconds of play, Snead was fouled and put in two free throws to make the lead three points.

Snead and Spikes led Tiger scoring with 18 points each. Clark topped Big Spring with 15, followed by Kenneth Harmon with 14.

The Tigers hit 46.8 per cent of their field goal shots and 50 per cent of their free throws in the game. Big Spring had 38.1 on field goals and 56.5 on free throws.

In the Friday night B game, Snyder downed Big Spring 47-29.

Taking an early lead, the team led 8-2 at the end of the first period and gradually increased the lead throughout the game. The score was 23-10 at halftime and 36-21 at the end of the third.

Dabbs led Snyder scoring with 20 points, while Jerry Musgrove topped the Big Spring B with 10.

National Loop Gives Up Expansion Idea

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—The National League today abandoned the idea of expanding to a 10-club league. President Warren Giles said "it is my conclusion there is no sentiment for any 10-club league now."

Giles said no "formal or informal" vote was taken at today's league meeting, but the expansion idea was discussed for an hour and a half.

Giles said the general sentment of the clubowners seemed to be that expansion to 10 clubs might dilute the other eight teams already in the league. Other reasons cited, he said, were that there would be too many second-division clubs in a 10-club league and that there weren't enough ball players of major league caliber to go around.

Asked if the action, taken at a special league meeting to look over schedules of a possible 10-club league, did not give the American League an edge in the majors' battle for new territory, he replied:

"We realize all those things. If they (meaning the American League) want to go to 10 clubs, let them. Maybe we'll be better off than they."

The league head explained, however, that he did not want to shut the door on any future changes within the framework of an eight-club league.

"Practically everyone feels some eventually will be in the majors," he explained. "How and when I don't know, but it is inevitable. Maybe by transfer. Maybe by a third major league, but I don't think so."

Giles said the owners spent hardly any time at the meeting discussing the so-called "dry run" schedules for a 10-club league which he had sent them in advance.

The National League action came on the eve of a scheduled meeting Sunday of the American League's Realignment Committee.

NFL Works On All-Star Game Rules

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—The National Football League took a couple of steps to level off competition and straighten out a few knotty problems in connection with the pre-season All-Star game at its final session of a three-day meeting today.

The pro club owners, who previously had agreed to provide professional coaching for the College All-Star team, voted today to allow the All-Stars one practice scrimmage prior to the August exhibition, provided that the game itself is played under professional rules.

Then, for the benefit of the clubs which want to survey rookie talent, they voted a temporary increase to 35 men in the player limit to apply to players on the All-Star squad.

These decisions grew out of a lively rhubarb over rules that developed last season and a long-standing complaint that All-Star participation deprived the coaches of a chance to evaluate their new players.

The All-Star game, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, always has been played under college rules and a contract which has five years to run provides that future games shall be under the same rules.

The big difference developed when the colleges returned to one-platoon football and the pros continued free substitution: Last fall, Detroit Coach Buddy Parker protested vigorously against using the college rule, but he didn't have any trouble beating the collegians.

Today's action apparently was an effort to put a little pressure on the game's sponsors to change their stand on rules and at the same time give the collegians the benefit of some pre-game competition.

First Baseman Is Minor Batting King

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 29 (AP)—Neal C. Cobb, 28, outfielder-first baseman for the Crestview, Fla., club of the Class D Alabama-Florida League, today was named the 1954 minor league batting champion.

Cobb, Crestview police chief in the off-season, hit for a .432 percentage in 115 games to nose out Leonardo Rodrigue of the Cananea club of the Class C Arizona-Texas loop in the rankings announced by George M. Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Rodriguez hit .430 to win the award as the rookie batting champion, playing in all 141 games on the schedule in his first try at organized ball. He's a third baseman.

Dallas Contracts Are Put Into Mail

DALLAS, Jan. 29 (AP)—Contracts have been mailed 30 members of the Dallas Baseball Club of the Texas League. Only seven from last year's team are included.

Dallas will train this year at Melbourne, Fla., in conjunction with other members of the New York Giant farm system.

It Doesn't Pay To Disobey Hunting Law

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Hunters who disobeyed Texas laws and got caught weren't treated gently during the recent season by the courts, E. M. Sprott, director of law enforcement, said today.

The standard fine for night hunting was $100 plus costs; some courts tacked on another hundred or two when the hunters were caught with contraband deer.

Eighty three cases specifically concerned night hunters, and at least 30 others were linked with illegal night hunting, Sprott said.

One Californian seized with a resident license, and with more than his limit of deer, was fined $500.

Sprott said the mood of the courts in cooperating with Game Commission efforts to curb lawless hunting was shown by the penalties handed down. Seventeen hunters were fined $200, six fines each totaled $150 and 42 fines each totaled $100, all plus costs.

Now that the season has ended, game wardens are more alert than ever, Sprott added.

Former All-Stater Injured In Wreck

BAYTOWN, Tex., Jan. 29 (AP)—Normal Adams, 19-year-old former All-State schoolboy football tackle, received critical injuries early today when his automobile struck a culvert eight miles south of La Porte.

Adams was co-captain of the 1953 University of Texas freshman football team but was ineligible for varsity competition last season. He had planned to return to the university next week.

Three other occupants of the automobile received minor injuries. They were Danny Craig, 17, Harold Wilson, 18, and Mike Stewart, 19.

Adams was an All-State player with the 1952 Robert E. Lee High School team that lost to Lubbock in the state Class AAAA finals.

Unknowns Tie For Lead In Golf Tourney

DUNEDIN, Fla., Jan. 29 (AP) — Three golfers who never reached the big name grade in their younger playing days today tied for the lead at the end of 36 holes in the annual PGA Senior golf championship.

Mike Murra of Wichita, Kan., who led the field in the 54-hole event on opening day with a six-under-par 66, had to share the lead on 141 today with Mortie Dutra, Los Angeles, and Louis Chiapetta, Sylvania, Ohio.

Murra slipped to a 37-38—75 for his round today on the 6,589-yard PGA National course. Chiapetta, who had an opening-day score of 71, shot a 36-34—70 which was outstanding because he is a slight chap who had to combat strong and cold winds sweeping across the course.

Dutra, a steady player, turned in of 70.

Denny Shute of Akron, Ohio, who is a freshman to the senior ranks where a man must be 50 or above to compete, had second place all to himself with a 72-70—142. He tied with Chiapetta in the best round today, a 34-36—70.

In third place was Jules Blanton of Charleston, W. Va., with a 70-73—143.

Defending titlist Gene Sarazen, of Germantown, N. Y., still wearing knickers, shot a 74 today to go with his opening day 72 and 146. This put him in a fourth-place tie with Frank Stazza of Greenwich, Conn., who has rounds of 73-73; Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., 71-75; Billy Burke, Clearwater 73-73; and Harry Cooper of White Plains, N. Y., 70-76.

The field will be trimmed to 60 for the finals tomorrow.

TV Reception Wide

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gilmore, 3009 Avenue I, newcomers in Snyder, were wondering yesterday if Snyder always had as good television reception as they were witnessing. They received "as clear as anyone could want" a station at Idaho Falls, Idaho, and a few minutes later received, also very clearly, channel 2, KBOI, Boise, Idaho.

Buddy Young, backfield star for the Baltimore Colts, has signed to do a daily disc jockey show in Baltimore.

Cubs Have Big Day In Sweetwater Plus Trains

Cub Scouts of all but one of the Snyder packs joined other boys from Midland, Colorado City, Big Spring, and Stanton packs yesterday morning in Colorado City and traveled by train to Sweetwater for a day of recreation.

The 1,200 boys, 186 of whom were from Snyder, ate sack lunches in Sweetwater, formed a seven-block parade to the Municipal Auditorium, saw a puppet show, then attended a movie, then returned to the auditorium and presented themselves a talent show.

They returned by train to Colorado City, the Snyder boys then returning here by automobiles.

Packs represented and their sponsors were 27 First Methodist Church, 37 North Elementary School, 36 East Elementary School, 38 First Baptist Church, and 112 St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church.

Only one world's heavyweight champion was born in Nebraska. Max Baer's birthplace was Omaha.

Korea Vet Retires

EL PASO, Jan. 29 (AP)—Col. Clyde Young, the officer who supervised transporting 104,098 communist prisoners-of-war from South Korea to Panmunjom during operations Big and Little Switch, retired from the army today at Ft. Bliss.

ABOVE THE BLEACHERS

By DALE WALTON

Texas A & M, the only Southwest Conference school ever to have a 50-foot shot putter, now has three more tho can heave the weight that far and may have another by the end of the season.

It's unusual for a weight man to pick up at the start of a season where he left off the year before, says Aggie coach Frank G. Anderson, but his three boys have done so. Bobby Gross of Big Spring, champion shot and discus thrower of the conference; Tom Bonorden of Port Lavaca; and Herman Johnson of DeLeon have all heaved the shot 50 feet on their first try of the season.

* * *

Looks as if three communities near here will have championship basketball teams this season.

Hermleigh Friday night took Loraine 69-58 and continued undefeated in its Class B play after six games. In that same district, the Ira girls are tops. In a district just east, the Hobbs girls have not lost even one of their eight district games. Trent and Highland are leading the boys division of that district.

Both districts will have two-out-of-three playoffs of the top two teams in each division to determine the champion.

Friday night, the Hobbs girls took a 39-27 win over Trent, while the boys lost to Trent 69-45.

* * *

Charles Clark, tall Big Spring scoring leader, has already tallied more than 300 points this season. He got those points in 19 games. His teammate, Al Kloven, is over the 200 mark, as are two Snyder cagers, Jack Spikes and Alan Snead.

* * *

The Plainview Bulldogs are going to be extremely hard to cope with for the remainder of the season.

Every team in the district which has the slightest chance of winning the championship is after the Bulldogs, but here's what's up against the rest of the teams: all the rest of Plainview's district games are at home. The Tigers go there Friday, while Plainview will host Sweetwater Saturday. On the following week, Big Spring and Lamesa must go to Plainview. Levelland will be at Plainview on the last night of district play.

Each of those teams has demonstrated enough potential to beat the Bulldogs, but it will be even harder to do on the Plainview court. Plainview did pretty well, we'd say, on out-of-town floors during the first half of loop play.

Some Teams Just Winners

STEPHENVILLE, Jan. 29 (AP)—Ever hear of a basketball coach whose teams suffered only one loss in 111 games?

The youngsters probably never heard of such a winning streak. But old timers in this part of the country still talk about it occasionally.

The coach was W. J. Wisdom of Tarleton State Junior College.

His teams won 86 consecutive basketball games, lost a contest to San Angelo College 27-26, then went on to win 25 more games.

The winning streak began in the 1933-34 season.

The most difficult part of the coaching during the streak, says the veteran coach, who retired in 1942, was to keep the players from being too tense.

"I never geared them up," he said recently in recalling those games. "They were always high enough."

He would have his players stage antics to break the tension. One was to have the big center, Joe Headstream, shoot blindly over his head.

Herb Moford, St. Louis Cardinal for Columbus in the American Assn, is a Kentucky tobacco weigher in the off season.

Plans Taking Shape For Pan-Am Games

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP) — Preparations are going ahead full steam for a solid American entry in the second Pan-American Games at Mexico City, March 12-16.

This won't be any token force like the one we sent to Buenos Aires for the first games in 1951 when we sent 128 athletes and took a good licking from the fully-manned Argentine delegation.

The growing sports strength of our hemispheric neighbors booth surprised and pleased U.S. officials. Now Uncle Sam is getting together a team of 204 men and 85 women determined to make a showing in the mile and a half high capital of Mexico.

Some U.S. teams already have been picked for the games but the majority of the athletes will compete for places in various tryouts around the country next month.

The men's track and field team for the games' premier sport will be named in New York Feb. 20, although a number of the outstanding specialists already have made the team on the basis of their showings in championship meets last summer.

People Not Stirred Much Over Formosa

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—Orators debated thunderously this week on whether the force-to-save-Formosa policy means peace or war, but no one really knew.

And if the White House mail was any guide, the American people were not stirred up at this stage beyond a wait-and-see attitude. "We haven't had too much one way or the other," Press Secretary James C. Hagerty reported.

Weekend trips charted by President Eisenhower — golf in Georgia — and Secretary of State Dulles — fishing in the Bahamas—didn't have any ring of urgency, either.

The cold fact remained, however, that the United States had moved closer to war with Red China than since the Korean War ended 18 months ago, and there was the chilling possibility Russia might take sides.

"This is a calculated risk which the United States must take," the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees declared.

Formosa, of course, was the big problem this week in Washington, but there was no lack of others.

Lesser questions swirled around a strong Democratic effort to cancel the Dixon-Yates power contract, a planned restriction in the House against congressional investigations, the matter of raising postal rates, higher pay for congressmen, and the ups and downs of farm prices.

On the political side, Eisenhower had the first of six breakfast meetings with Republican women leaders.

The women came away talking of his running again in 1956 but Mrs. Charles W. Weis, GOP national committeewoman from New York, said: "We were all ladies and we didn't ask him that question."

There was another plaintive cry from a Republican that too many "deserving Democrats" were still in Washington.

James C. Worthy, retiring as assistant secretary of commerce, said the Republicans were "bitterly disappointed" after their 1952 sweep to learn all but 15 per cent of federal jobs had been lodged under civil service.

Remember that knock-down-and-drag-out fight last summer over the Dixon-Yates contract to feed private power into the Tennessee Valley Authority? It was to replace TVA power used in plants of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The controversy flared back with a vengeance this week in a 10-8 vote of the Democratic-controlled Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, telling the AEC to cancel the contract. When the Republicans were in the majority, the vote was 10-8 that this was a fine contract.

In another bygone day of Republican control, GOP leaders said their plans for Congress were to "open each day with a prayer and close it with an investigation."

Now that has been changed, in the House at least. Chairman Smith (D-Va) said the rules committee would look with a jaundiced eye on the more than 80 investigations it has been asked to approve.

Smith said he had Democratic and Republican leadership backing, and his committee was going to "curb this matter of investigations all over creation."

Postmaster General Summerfield, who never gets tired of trying, tried again to get Congress to OK an increase in postal rates. This would cut into the perennial Post Office deficit and permit a pay raise for postal workers, Summerfield said.

He calculated that to raise the postage rate on a first class letter from the present three cents to four cents wouldn't cost the average family more than about 10 cents a month.

Atty. Gen. Brownell had a much easier selling job when he went before a Senate judiciary subcommittee to urge a $12,500-a-year pay raise for members of Congress, and raises ranging from $12,500 to $14,500 for federal judges. Congress is expected to come through and no judge is likely to rule against it.

A report of considerable interest to millions of farmers and thousands of politicans came from the Agriculture Department: Farm product prices increased 2 per cent during the month ended in mid-January.

The level in January — halfway through the Eisenhower administration — was about 9¼ per cent below what it was when the Republicans took over. Farm prices have been doing down generally since their peak four years ago.

One unanimous vote was registered during the week, the 366-0 tally in the House for continuing G.I. schooling rights for men in the armed services on Jan. 31.

Almost as convincing a margin was rolled up in the House vote of 409-3 for Eisenhower's proposed war powers resolution on Formosa. The House voted the authority one day after the President asked for it. The Senate took three more days, but then went along emphatically, 85-3.

Quail Hunters Aid In Bobwhite Program

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Quail hunters are reacting favorably to Dan Lay's recent plea for cooperation to help bobwhites get a new start in Texas, the Game Commission said today.

Lay, wildlife biologist, offered a program of habitat restoration. W. C. Glazener, director of wildlife restoration, said Lay's plan was causing "definite interest" among hunters and landowners.

Students Are Cited For Literary Work

Twenty-six local high school students have recently received recognition in two national creative writing events staged by the National Essay Association and National High School Poetry Association.

Writing their poems and essays in classes here, the students submitted their entries through several teachers. Submitting essay entries for their students were Mrs. Arel Faver, Mrs. Virgil Joines, and Mrs. M. M. O'Rear. Submitting poetry for their students were Mrs. O'Rear and Joe Marshall. Those two also submitted poems they wrote, and the poetry will be published in the National Teachers Anthology.

A number of students' poetry was accepted for publishing in the annual anthology of high school poetry, "Young America Sings," published by separate units from 38 different states. Those students in Mrs. O'Rear's classes whose entries were accepted were Henry Beckett, Clare Smith, Fred Williams, Sarah Jean Clark, Robert Mayse, Thomas Rigsby, Harriet Redwine, Norma Jean Edelman, William Brownfield, Bruce Evans, Tommy Hensley, and Martha Robbins. Marshall's entries accepted were written by Wynell Sapp, Shirley Watson, Lois Jean Drake, Ramona Thomas, and David Hale.

Entries of Miss Smith, Miss Sapp and Beckett received special mention, and their poems will be published in a national anthology.

Essays accepted from the Snyder students will be published in the annual "Young America Speaks," anthology, made up of manuscripts by students all over the nation.

Accepted manuscripts submitted by Mrs. Faver were written by Beverly Scott and Shelby Smith. Those from Mrs. Joines' class were by Steve Blair, Johnny Roberts, and Eleanor Browning. From Mrs. O'Rear's class were accepted entries by Thomas Rigsby, Beta McPherson, Clare Smith, and Jan Stacy.

Miss Storm Is Cause Of Big Storm

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Stripper Tempest Storm was whisked here in a flame red Cadillac convertible and borne away in the arms of a heavyweight boxer late yesterday.

Both the burlesque queen and the normally sedate University of Colorado were slightly the worse for wear after her 30-minute visit.

University officials, who didn't like the idea of Miss Storm's visit in the first place, counted up $500 damage to buildings along her whirlwind path. The whole Colorado Legislature arrived 15 minutes later to inspect school conditions. By then, however, all was quiet.

The shapely burlesque performer doffed a mink coat, breathed deeply and breezed through a door with the crowd close behind her black-sweatered, green-skirted figure.

In the rush that followed her through a lounge and cafeteria, three doors were sprung, tables were overturned, chairs were splintered and dishes and glasses shattered.

Things got a bit rough at the library, where an ogling crowd of male students surrounded Miss Storm.

Perspiring and disheveled, she was swept aloft by Barry F. Deetz, 22-year-old graduate student and heavyweight boxer. He dashed for her car, but tripped—or was tripped. Both tumbled to the sidewalk.

Miss Storm, apparently unhurt, made it the rest of the way unaided.

And in all the furor, no one thought to ask her impressions of what Tempest said was her first visit to "a real campus."

Party Line Gabber Gets Put In Jail

RHINEBECK, N.Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—A woman who reportedly refused to get off a party line in an emergency was arrested today under a state law which went into effect only four months ago.

Mrs. Mary L. Kayes, 43, was charged with a misdemeanor for allegedly refusing to hang up and let fire warden Donald Townsend report a grass fire which subsequently destroyed a barn. She was released in $500 bail with no date set for trial.

Just Coincidence

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Heiress Barbara Hutton and contractor Hal B. Hayes admit they have booked passage on the same airliner for Hawaii on Monday. But they insist it's just a coincidence.

Good friends, they deny rumors of an engagement.

Miss Hutton, still married to her estranted fifth husband, Porfiro Rubrisoa, said she is going to the islands for a month's vacation. Hayes, wealthy Los Angeles builder, says his trip is strictly for business reasons.

Business Is Still Seeing Move Upward

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—Business—in the doldrums just a year ago—continued its upward surge this week with undiminished vigor.

As far as the over-all economy is concerned, warlike rumblings from the Formosa Strait apparently had little impact.

The auto industry was winding up its biggest production month in more than four years and its biggest January on record.

Steel production bounded ahead to 84 per cent of capacity, highest since 1953. Retail shoppers continued to spend freely; department store sales for January were running 10 per cent higher than a year ago. On the construction front, heavy engineering contract awards were a whopping 69 per cent ahead of January 1954.

Latest corporate developments indicated that Big Business has been doing very well.

Directors of U.S. Steel Corp. increased the dividend and proposed a two-for-one split of the common stock. General Motors reported a rise of 35 per cent in annual earnings. Some segments of industry reported less favorable results. International Harvester Co. earnings for fiscal 1954 were barely more than half the year-ago total; J. I. Case, another farm equipment maker, finished half a million dollars in the red.

An improved outlook for the oil industry was reflected in higher dividends voted by Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) and Phillips Petroleum Co. Demands for petroleum products in the United States in recent weeks has been running about 5½ per cent hgher than a year ago, chiefly because of colder weather and increased consumption of fuel oil. Meanwhile the volume of crude oil pumped out of U.S. fields continues to set records.

Flames Eat Bridge After Truck Crash

MARIETTA, Okla., Jan. 29 (AP)—A 160-foot U.S. 77 bridge near the Texas border burned early today after a truck hauling 4,080 gallons of gasoline crashed into the structure and went up in flames.

The driver, Marvin Carr of Dallas, escaped with only minor injuries after sidewiping a bannister last night.

The steel and concrete structure crumpled into Hickory Creek and was still burning shortly before noon.

Traffic on the busy north-south artery was rerouted through Lake Murray State Park. The Highway Department said the bridge was a total loss and would require several weeks or months to replace.

Carr said he hit the bridge after being blinded by the headlights of a truck. Carr works for the Kemp Petroleum Co. of Dallas.

VOL. 5, No. 235 SNYDER, TEXAS, SUNDAY, JANUARY 30, 1955 SECTION B

Home on The Range

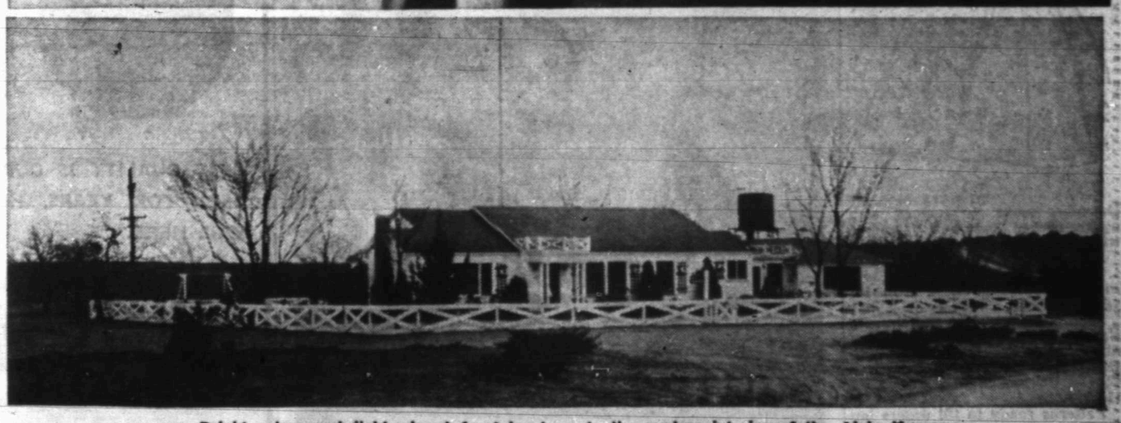
The fact that a home on the range can be as comfortable and attractive as it is practical is proved by many ranch homes in this vicinity. The Wilson Connells are among the ranch families whose ranch house comes under this classification. A large, glassed-in living room has recently been added to the house. Part of an old flagstone porch was retained for a step-up area in the new room, and an old cistern on the porch was also incorporated in the modern design. The yard fence and its posts are painted barn red to match the house trim. (Lee Watson photographs)

Probably one of the oldest ranch homes in this area still inhabited is that of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Spires, located about 25 miles north of Snyder in Kent County. Now completely modernized, only the high ceilings and narrow fireplaces reveal the age of the original portion of the house. Mrs. Spires and the couple's daughters, Susan and Cindy, are shown above in the pine-paneled living room which was added to the house.

In one of two large living rooms in the Weldon Johnson ranch home 15 miles northeast of Snyder, Mrs. Weldon Johnson is shown serving coffee to the couple's son Sidney Wallace, while Mr. Johnson sits near one of two fire places in the home. The small exterior view shows the old Mexican house of native stone which has been completely remodeled in French provincial style. With eight rooms and two baths, the house centers around a 33-foot long living kitchen.



Bright colors and light-colored furntuire keynote the modern interior of the Alvin Koonsman home about 20 miles northeast of Snyder. Mrs. Koonsman is shown seated on the sectional divan in the living room, which gains an illusion of greater size from a large mirror framing the fireplace. The house has a picturesque approach over a rocky creek bed, and the white siding stands out vividly against a low hill at the back.

american designer pattern

Clothes by Jo Copeland have several special qualities, all summed up in figure flattering femininity. This year-round basic dress cut on princess lines has only fourteen pieces in the pattern, is easy to make, but still has detail that lifts it above the usual and gives it a definite couturier look. Seemingly, the shoulder straps are cut in one with the side gores and they are up to a point just under the bust when they are released and faced, making an effective soft bosom line. It is a dress that can be worn to parties made up in party fabrics such as peau de soie, taffeta, brocaded silks. Combined with a jacket (a white pique bolero is one idea) it makes a perfect day long dress for town. Other suitable fabrics are: novelty cottons, shantung, pique, linen or faille. Miss Copeland likes the skirt to take advantage of its full cut and suggests wearing petticoats. This pattern is cut to designer measurements, not standard pattern measurements.

Scurry County holds the unusual and distinguished record of being the first county west of Fort Worth to install the county-wide seventh grade examinations, which were started here by County Supt. A. A. Bullock, to us the best superintendent either in Texas or the U.S.A, so far as that matters. . . Our hats are off to Pat Bullock, Snyder needs a lot of chaps just like him in word and deed.

He has always contended that the oil pool lying under Scurry County would be found west of Snyder, and oil scouts now coming here seem to confirm that statement.

After completing some business at his office, he went down to get his car and be on his way elsewhere, but said car was not there. He immediately notified the sheriff's office, and the telephones started ringing to nearby towns, with the result that later in the afternoon the car was found at Big Spring parked in the center of the city. Mr. Lee had the car returned to him Sunday morning with no apparent consequences aside from a few extra miles on his tires.

Next Monday will be a real red letter day in the history of the Snyder schools when the new cafeteria will be open to the school children at 12 o'clock. Following this opening, at 5 o'clock, Snyder citizens who come will enjoy a real cowboy supper at regular rates, and the town should swamp the Parent - Teacher Association, who have made this great improvement possible. It takes the women of Snyder to do things, and it's surely a sad commentary that the men of the town are not equally as full of pep.

Helps For Homemakers

Send your questions to "Helps for Homemakers," Snyder Daily News, or call 3-5486.

Regional dishes! Every section of America boasts of its own traditional recipes and there is good reason to be proud of and interested in them. Now comes a recipe about that specialty of Pennsylvanian Dutch kitchens — Shoofly Pie.

This pie is really fun. To make it, roll out a pastry crust and pour a mixture of molasses, water and baking soda into it. Then sprinkle a crumbly mixture of flour, sugar, spices, salt and butter over the liquid. A strange combination to put in the oven and except to come out an edible pie! But it does with a flaky bottom crust, then a brown custardy layer and a cake-like top. Fascinating to make, sweet and rich to eat.

SHOOFLY PIE
1½ cups slifted flour
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1-3 cup butter or margarine
¾ cup dark molasses
¾ cup water
½ teaspoon baking soda
One unbaked pastry shell

Sift together the flour, sugar, salt, nutmeg and cinnamon. Add butter; cut in with two knives or pastry blender until fat is entirely worked into flour mixture. Stir molasses, water and baking soda together well. Pour molasses mixture into unbaked pastry shell; spoon crumbs all over top of liquid. Bake in a moderate (375 degrees) oven 35 minutes. Serve warm with Lemon Sauce.

LEMON SAUCE
2 tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup butter or margarine

Stir cornstarch, sugar and salt together thoroughly in saucepan. Add lemon rind. Gradually stir in boiling water until smooth. Cook and stir constantly over moderate heat until boiling, thickened and clear. Remove from heat; stir in lemon juice and butter. Serve warm over portions of Shoofly Pie. Makes 2¼ cups.

Costs Of Treating Polio Cases Represents Substantial Sum

How much would it cost you to have polio? That's a question no one can answer. The physical cost, of course, cannot be figured in dollars and cents, but the financial cost alone would be shocking to the average person yet unfamiliar with such.

Officials of the Scurry-Borden County chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis believe the public should consider the financial cost of polio cases from this area, keeping the cost in mind as the annual March of Dimes drive begins within the next few days.

During only five months of 1954, the local chapter spent $20,100.50 on polio patients from these two counties who contracted the disease during that calendar year. The December bills were not included in this figure, many not having been received, and the first case did not occur until June 27.

In addition to this amount, more than $7,000 was spent in the same 11 months on carry-over cases of victims who contracted the disease before 1954 but who are still far from recovery.

Of the $20,100, Hendrick Memorial Hospital at Abilene was paid $11,563, the Gonzales Warm Springs hospital was paid $7,593, and $944 went for braces, orthopedic treatment and supplies, and special equipment and doctor and nurse bills not otherwise tallied as hospital expense.

These figures also do not include some few bills, one for more than $900, paid to other and smaller hospitals and clinics.

Fourteen persons contracted polio in Scurry County during 1954. One died about the time his case was diagnosed. The others and the dates they became ill are Lois Pinkerton, July 11; Glenda Faye Langley, July 1; Delwyn Keith Davis of Knapp, July 8; Fred J. Wilkinson, July 1; Lillie Mae Sneed, 1800 Avenue Q, Aug. 1; John Thomas Finnerty, route 1; Aug. 9; Alfred Rosas, Arah route, Sept. 5; Michael Beckham, June 27; Eddie Burdett Brown, 2909 Twenty-eighth Street, Aug. 3; Edward Dale Beckham, July 5; Lewis Ray Langley, July 8; Ula Mae Herrington, Oct. 10; and Harold J. Pitts, Oct. 29.

Two of these patients had insurance policies covering most of their hospital expense. Three others had very mild cases. Excluding the expenses of these and three others, whose bills were not complete, the total expense of the remaining five patients from June 27 through November was $18,424.65.

The average expense per child of these five children during these five months was $3,684.93. That is an average of $736.98 per child per month, and none of them has yet recovered from the effects of polio.

One little girl, Lois Pinkerton, had hospital bills at Abilene totaling $2,288.50 through November. She did not become ill until July 11. Her Gonzales bills through November totaled $1,775. In addition to these, $101 was spent for braces and orthopedic expense. The total for her in the four and a half months was $4,164.50.

Bills for Glenda Faye Langley, who became ill July 1, totaled $5,010.90 through November. There was a clinic bill of $364 for special treatment, a bill of $17 for equipment, an Abilene hospital bill of $2,320, and a Gonzales bill of $2,309.90.

Fred J. Wilkinson became ill at the same time. His bill at Hendrick totaled $1,100, the one at Gonzales came to $1,118.75, an orthopedic bill was $29, and a special doctor bill was $179, making a total of $2,426.75.

Michael Beckham had bills totaling $3,325.50 from June 27 through November, of which $912 was at Hendrick, $2,387.50 at Gonzales, and $26 orthopedic equipment.

Eddie Burdett Brown's bills came to $3,497 during four months. He became ill with polio on Aug. 3. There is no Gonzales bill to date on this patient. The Hendrick bill was $3,389. The rest was for special equipment and expense at a Houston hospital.

The local NFIP chapter spent all its funds last year, then spent an additional $14,000 from the national fund, and still owes $8,000 on these cases. A special emergency drive was even held, but this could not make all ends meet.

A meeting is to be held at 7:30 o'clock next Tuesday night in the junior high school cafeteria for all persons inetrested in working in the annual March of Dimes drive.

Authentic provincial design gives a graceful appearance to the bench pictured above. You'll find it fits into any interior decoration theme, and, because you can make it yourself, the cost will be very low. Order the pattern, No. 139, from Bill Baker, Snyder Daily News, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles 53, Calif., enclosing with the order your check or money order for $1. You might also like to order pattern No. 128, a provncial drop-leaf table, and No. 133, a provincial coffee table. The patterns include an instruction sheet, a guide for the purchase of materials—everything you'll need whether you are a novice or an experienced woodworker.

Texas Business Has New Record High

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Christmas inspired more Texas retail buying last month than ever before and helped boost the state's 1954 overall business to an alltime record, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said today.

Director John Stockton said Texas total business activity for the year was 3 per cent better than in 1953 and 159 per cent better than in the 1947-49 period.

Some segments registered declines. Despite retail buying producing a record Christmas business, total purchases for the year lagged 2 per cent behind 1953.

Installment credit in November reached the highest level in 20 months, it was reported.

20,000 Farmers Obtain FHA Loans

Almost 20,000 Texas farmers and ranchers who were unable to get financial assistance from banks and other private credit sources obtained financial aid from the federal Farmers Home Administration last year.

To these people, more than $46 million was loaned, says state FHA director Walter T. McKay. Nationally, FHA loaned more than $292,452,800. Texas borrowers paid off FHA loans totaling $36,539,147 during the year.

McKay called this a remarkable achievement in view of the drought which plagued the state, referring to the repayment on loans. "It shows the resourcefulness and character of those families who have received financial assistance from FHA." One of the major federal programs set up was to provide relief for farmers and ranchers in drought disaster areas.

In the emergency loan program resulting from the drought, 13,739 Texas farm families borrowed $25,442,174 from FHA during the year and repaid $19,481,219 of that. Also, 1,393 livestock producers have been advanced loans totaling $15,742,620 since the emergency livestock program began in August, 1953, and more than $5 million was repaid despite the drought.

In addition to emergency and special livestock loans, the FHA lends money in its regular programs to farmers operating family-type farms for operating expenses, equipment and livestock purchases, development of soil and water resources, and farm purchases, farm enlargements from appropriated funds, giving special preference to veterans. Insured mortgage loans were made to all eligible farmers and from insured mortgage funds.

Joe Box, county FHA supervisor, said the local office at 2505 Avenue R is taking applications for these loans now and processing them as rapidly as possible. County committeemen are Martin S. Murphy, Rea Falls, and Buford Browning.

The state director said a procedure was worked out in a meeting of senators Price Daniel and Lyndon Johnson and representatives George Mahon, J. T. Rutherford, W. R. Poage, and O. C. Fisher and members of the national FHA staff whereby the rancher obtaining an emergency livestock loan would be permitted to retain a percentage of his ewe lambs or heifer calves. This depends upon the nature of operations. Replacements of cull breeding animals are made so the herd will be maintained in proper level, safeguarding the security interest of the first lien holder.

They will be printed subject to the publisher's discretion, based on whether the material contained is libelous or the language offensive. Letters should not exceed 300 words.)

To the Daily News:

I am writing you in regard to Mr. E. W. "Red" Green, a most upstanding citizen and a true asset to the community.

I had the good fortune to meet Mr. Green when I passed through there with my wife and four children, under very unfavorable circumstances. I arrived there out of funds and, while waiting for a money order, had to stay overnight in the car. Mr. Green found out about us from his partner of the highway patrol and came out to see about us that night and again the next morning.

At this time he found out what the situation was and took us to his home for breakfast. He also had my car taken to a garage as it was frozen up, this being the latter part of December.

While we were waiting for that, he very generously went to the trouble and expense of buying all of the children heavier clothing.

I think this is the consummate in human courtesy and kindness, and I want again to show my most gracious appreciation and gratitude.

Thanking you very kindly, I remain

Questions About Formosa And Danger Of War Are Discussed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP) — President Eisenhower's request to Congress for authority to use American armed forces in the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores Islands has raised more questions than have so far been officially answered.

Here, however, are the principal inquiries arising out of the Eisenhower move and answers based on information from official sources or from known facts:

How close are we to war with Red China?

The danger of a clash between American and Chinese armed forces is the greatest that it has been since the Korean War ended. Whether a clash develops will depend primarily on the reaction of the Red Chinese and how directly they move against American forces deployed in the area.

What is the likelihood that we will bomb the Chinese mainland?

Under the resolution pending in Congress the President would have authority to bomb Red Chinese targets to the extent that he considered necessary to the defense of Formosa. Practically, administration officials interpret this to mean that if he found evidence of a buildup of Communist forces opposite Formosa for the evident purpose of invading the island he could order bombing attacks to disperse those forces.

Where and how can Communist China hit back?

The Chinese would have several possibilities. They could strike at American naval forces in the Formosa Strait, at naval forces employed in evacuating the Tachen Islands 200 miles north of Formosa, and at Formosa itself. In addition they could conceivably stir up new trouble in Korea or in Southeast Asia in the hope of diverting and dividing American strength.

What are Russia's obligations to Red China?

The Soviet Union and Communist China signed a treaty of alliance in February 1950. It is directed against "a repetition of aggression" on the part of Japan or any state "which should unite with Japan, directly or indirectly, in acts of aggression." In event of an attack by Japan or an allied state Russia and Red China bound themselves to each other to "immediately render military and other assistance with all the means at its disposal."

American officials consider the wording of the treaty such that it could cover Russian assistance to Red China in any war in which the Soviets considered it in their vital interest to become involved. Whether that would apply in the case of actions between the United States and Red China in the region of Formosa would obviously depend on the interpretation given the treaty and on the basic interests of Peiping and Moscow.

If Eisenhower rejected a similar policy in the case of Dien Bien Phu in Indochina why has he changed now?

American officials do not consider the problems or the circumstances in the Indochina and the Formosa situations exactly similar. In the case of Indochina, Eisenhower and Dulles determined that the United States would not act with its air and naval forces, if that became necessary, except alongside allies and particularly the British. Britain refused to join the united front while the war was still going on, and other nations were equally cool.

In the case of Formosa the United States has been committed to the defense of the island since June 1950 without any condition respecting allied cooperation.

What do our allies really think of Eisenhower's proposal; and will this proposal increase strains in the free world?

The British government has defended the proposal on the ground that it is a step toward stabilizing the Formosa situation and toward eventual peace. The opposition Labor party has attacked the proposal on the ground that it increases the risk of war.

Basically, Britain and other European nations want the United States to avoid war with Red China. But the British government gives evidence of appreciating the American government view that unless the United States takes a strong position in defense of the Formosa area now, the Red Chinese might mistake inaction for weakness and precipitate a war.

The situation could increase strains between the United States and its allies. But President Eisenhower apparently is relying upon his willingness to negotiate a cease-fire as a proof that the Communists, not the United States, would be responsible for any military action.

Are the Reds deliberately seeking to exploit free world strains?

This may be one of their purposes. Secretary of State Dulles has suggested as much in the past. However, they may have other purposes including a determination to capture as much Nationalist-held territory as possible at whatever price thay may be willing to pay. They may also find internal political advantage in trying to rally the millions they rule against an external enemy.

Why is fresh authorization necessary for the President to act?

The need for the authorization has been challenged by some Democrats in Congress. The administration's answer is that the division of constitutional authority between the President and Congress has never been clearly determined and that the President did not want to take any action which might fall into the shadow area and be subject to criticism. In addition, Eisenhower wanted to demonstrate national solidarity so the Red Chinese would have no doubt of American determination to defend Formosa.

Why did the President propose the resolution at this time?

The Chinese Communists have stepped up both their military preparations opposite Formosa and their propaganda about conquering the island. U.S. officials have assumed that one of their purposes was to probe American intentions. When the Reds captured the island of Yikiangshan last week they showed such striking power, with massive use of artillery and aerial bombing, that the Tachen Islands were deemed to be in immediate danger.

Chiang Kai-shek asked for help. The administration decided that the Tachens were not valuable enough militarily to defend but that the United States should help the generalissimo pull out the division of troops he has there. That meant risking American ships and airplanes in a combat area and raised the question of the President's constitutional authority to act.

Why did not the President publicly draw a precise line either including or excluding Quemoy and Matsu islands?

He considered this with his advisers late last week but found it impossible to do without (1) excluding territories which the Reds could then take without fear of American opposition or (2) including territories to which the United States did not want to bar permanently and publicly committed.

Whether American forces would be used in defense of the Quemoys, the Matsus or any other of the islands close to the Red China coast would depend, according to Eisenhower's message to Congress, on whether he determined at the time that the action was necessary in the defense of Formosa.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles points to the Pescadores Islands on a map in Washington, D.C., as he discusses the Formosa situation with Chairman James P. Richards (D-SC) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. On the map Formosa is called by its old name of Taiwan. Dulles went before the committee as it met to consider a resolution backing up President Eisenhower's request that congress authorize the use of U.S. armed forces if necessary to defend Formosa and the Pescadores against the Chinese Communists.
