Voters set up runoff between Chavez, Griego Simons, Turrentine, Ruland, Latham hold off challenges in primary voting

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Runoffs for two Deaf Smith County Democratic nominations are assured after voting in primary elections Tuesday. County treasurer and Precinct 2 commissioner races will be settled in the April 12 voting.

And, incumbents in four Deaf Smith County offices were Democratic primary winners Tuesday.

The Democratic primary attracted a total of 2,971 voters, including 1,273 who voted prior to election day. The Republican primary drew a total of only 241 voters.

Lengthy ballots in both primaries and manual counting resulted in a long day for election officials. The final tally was reported at 2 a.m. Wednesday.

Returned to office since they will have no opponents in the November general election are County Judge Tom Simons, County Clerk David Ruland and Commissioner Johnny Latham of Precinct 4.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine survived a challenge in the Democratic primary but will have a GOP opponent, Dan Hall, in November.

In a three-way race for Precinct 2 commissioners, Lupe Chavez, incumbent, was the top vote-getter, with 327. Bernardo A. Griego Jr. will be the runoff opponent. He polled 232 votes, and the third candidate, Armando Alaniz received 132 votes.

The runoff winner will face a Republican opponent, Conny Whitehorn, in the general election.

The race for county treasurer, a wide-open position with the announced retirement of Vesta Mae Nunley at the end of the year, ended with Nan Rogers collecting 1,084 votes; Lois Jones, 818, and Joyce Skelton, 772.

Rogers and Jones will meet in the runoff for the post. There is no Republican candidate.

In the justice of the peace race, Turrentine received 1,927 votes to 977 for her opponent, John O. Arsola. County Judge Simons withstood the challenge of Trini Gamez, polling 2,177 votes to 738 for Gamez.

County Clerk Ruland was the winner over Elizabeth Rodriguez. Ruland's total was 2,030 to 842 for Rodriguez.

In the Precinct 4 commissioner race, the incumbent, Latham, with 407 votes, was the winner over Edward Maldonado, 255 votes.

Ruland, the chief voting official in Deaf Smith County, reported an overall "smooth" election. A vote inspector dispatched to Deaf Smith County by the Texas secretary of state's office remained in the county until the vote count was completed, he said.

An unusual incident occurred in one polling place when a "poll watcher" was asked to leave the premises.

Ruland said the election judge had asked the watcher to refrain from talking to voters in the polling place and to stop interrupting election

"By law a poll watcher is not supposed to talk to anyone in the room, either voters or officials, except to call attention to a possible voting violation and must not leave the room without permission of the (See VOTERS, Page 2)

County voters back Bush, Richards in state balloting

Statewide Democratic and Republican candidates drew some support from Deaf Smith County voters in primary elections Tuesday. Incumbent Ann Richards topped her Democratic gubernatorial opponent, Gary Espinosa, with 1,810 votes to 724.

On the Republican ticket, George W. Bush was far and away the leader in the race for governor, polling 231 votes to six for his opponent, Ray Hollis.

U.S. Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison had no problem in Deaf Smith, collecting 208 votes to 27 votes scattered among six challengers.

Hutchison's opponent in the November general election is still undetermined. A runoff, statewide, seems assured between Jim Mattox and Richard Fisher.

In Deaf Smith County, Mattox polled 1,339 votes to 583 for Fisher.

Another contest statewide has Martha Whitehead, appointed to the state treasurer's office after Hutchison was elected to the U.S. Senate, facing Grady Yarborough. Deaf Smith gave Whitehead 1,436 and Yarborough, 793.

Public officials whose districts include Deaf Smith County ran unopposed on the Republican ticket. Congressman Larry Combest of the 19th District received 185 votes.

State Senator Teel Bivins, 31st District, received 207 votes, while State Representative John Smith of the 86th District received 205.

There are no Democratic candidates for the Congressional seat or the state legislative offices.

Mattox, Fisher head for runoff in Democratic race for Senate

By MICHAEL HOLMES

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Democratic Gov. Ann Richards and Republican challenger George W. Bush already are slinging barbs after winning their primaries.

U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, who handily dispatched six Republican challengers, awaits the outcome of an April 12 runoff to determine her Democratic opponent.

She will face either between former attorney general Jim Mattox or former Ross Perot adviser Richard Fisher, who finished one-two in Tuesday's primary.

Meanwhile, U.S. Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, will be looking for work. He was defeated by Houston City Councilwoman Sheila Jackson Lee, who made an issue of his absenteeism and votes against projects considered important to Texas.

There were a few other surprises as Texas held the nation's first major primaries of 1994.

The dean of the Texas House, Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, found himself in a runoff against Lon Burnam. Willis has been in the Legislature for 40 years.

After a mudslinging primary,

Texas Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez is in a runoff against Rene Haas, a former district judge from Corpus Christi.

Neither Richards nor Bush waited to begin their November election battle.

"It's going to be every bit as tough, I think, as it was four years ago," the governor said. "But I believe sincerely that you have got to prove yourself for the people of Texas. ... They had to work for everything they got. None of it has been handed to them on a silver platter."

Richards got 79 percent of the Democratic vote against political novice Gary Espinosa of Palestine.

Bush, eldest son of the former president and managing partner of the Texas Rangers baseball team, had a few words for Richards. "There's no question I'm running against a very popular person, someone whose got some of the funniest one-liners in history. But I think this race is more about the issues," he said.

Bush swamped Abilene demolition contractor Ray Hollis, 93 percent to 7 percent.

Mrs. Hutchison, who was found innocent of state ethics charges last month, received a resounding 85 percent of the Republican vote.

"I am conservative, I'm a reformer. After nine months in Washington, I think there's a lot more to be done," she said.

Mrs. Hutchison had gotten 67 percent of the vote in a June 5 special election over appointed Democratic Sen. Bob Krueger to complete Lloyd Bentsen's term. Bentsen was appointed U.S. Treasury secretary.

Mattox and Fisher said they looked forward to the runoff, which quickly shaped up as a slugfest.

Mattox attacked Fisher's history as an adviser to independent presidential candidate Ross Perot. Fisher attacked Mattox's record as politician who's been running for office since the 1970s.

"I think what we'll probably try to do is explain to the Democrats exactly who Richard Fisher is, explain that he's more of a Republican than a Democrat," Mattox said. "He's not the kind of Democrat that ought to lead the troops into battle."

Fisher, a millionaire Dallas investor who billed himself as the outsider, responded: "The government is stuck in the politics of the 40's, 50's and 60's. That's where Jim Mattox is stuck. ... We're talking about the politics of change. Jim represents the politics of no change."

The third-place finisher, Houston Congressman Mike Andrews, said he wouldn't endorse either candidate.

Aides set for Whitewater testimony

By NANCY BENAC

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - With President Clinton's senior aides preparing to testify about Whitewater under grand jury subpoena, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell today dismissed the idea of separate congressional hearings as nothing more than "a political circus."

Mitchell said that special counsel Robert Fiske, who has subpoenaed 10 administration officials, "is independent, he's a Republican, he was selected at the request of Republicans and it's very clear as he says that you can't have both a congressional investigation and an independent investigation. ..."

However, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., who is pushing for congressional hearings, said today "we are not attempting to impede" the special counsel's investigation.

D'Amato was meeting today with Fiske, who has warned congressional hearings would "pose a severe risk" to his work.

"I think we can minimize those concerns if we don't eliminate them altogether," D'Amato said on CBS. He said one way would be to "not call witnesses before he does, not to grant some of them, or any of them, immunity."

But Mitchell, appearing on NBC, said of the Republican demands: "It's a political circus and all they want to do is to throw up a lot of dust and embarrass the president."

Clinton, meanwhile, is struggling to pull his administration out from under the Whitewater cloud with another broad denial of wrongdoing.

"I am very relaxed about this," Clinton insisted Tuesday as his second news conference in as many days was swallowed up by questions about Whitewater. "I did not do anything wrong. There is nothing here."

His vigorous denials of misconduct notwithstanding, the controversy over Whitewater seemed only to mushroom.

-- The president acknowledged additional "incidental" contacts between Clinton aides and federal regulators about Whitewater, adding to questions about possible White House interference in an independent investigation.

-- Six top White House officials and four current or former Treasury Department officials prepared to testify about Whitewater on Thursday under grand jury subpoena. Among those summoned: outgoing White House counsel Bernard Nussbaum, who resigned over the weekend because of criticism over the way he handled questions about Whitewater.

-- The New York Times reported today that Jeremy Hedges, an employee of the Rose Law Firm in Little Rock, Ark., said he saw Vincent Foster's signature on documents he shredded at the firm.

Foster, the deputy White House counsel who committed suicide in July, worked at the firm with Hillary Rodham Clinton. Rose officials have said the papers were internal documents unrelated to Whitewater.

-- Republicans continued to press for a congressional hearing on the Whitewater matter. They released a list of 40 witnesses they plan to call before a House Banking Committee hearing on March 24, including key Arkansas figures in the case, current and former senior White House aides, officials of the savings and loan cleanup agency and federal prosecutors.

"I know Bill Clinton says that it's not Watergate, but he has said a lot of things in the past that weren't true," former Vice President Dan Quayle told a GOP dinner Tuesday night.

Clinton said the White House would be inclined to cooperate if the hearing does occur.

Trying to polish his administration's image on ethics, Clinton on Tuesday replaced Nussbaum on an interim basis with what he called the "firm, uncompromising and steady hand" of respected Washington lawyer Lloyd Cutler.

And with that, Clinton sought to push the Whitewater affair out the White House gates, casting it as the purview of special counsel Robert Fiske and not something that should "clutter up the public life of this country."

"I'm trying very hard to minimize how much time I have to spend on this," Clinton declared at a news conference in which he coolly fielded question after question about his dealings on Whitewater.

Fiske is probing the failure of Arkansas' Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan Association and whether investors in the Whitewater land venture - including the Clintons - benefited from questionable Madison transactions during the 1980s.

election judge," Ruland explained.

The poll watcher in question went in and out of the room and "roamed" the hallway outside the polls, talking to voters, Ruland said.

About mid-afternoon Tuesday, the poll watcher was asked to leave the building, and did so, Ruland added.

The incident was reported to the vote inspector who spent the day visiting voting sites.

Shortly before the polls closed at 7 p.m., another election judge reported to Ruland that a man whose identification indicated him to be an alien living legally in the U.S., appeared to vote.

The judge followed the "challenge" vote procedure, allowing the man to vote after he signed an affidavit that he is an eligible voter.

The materials related to that incident will be turned over to the Deaf Smith County criminal district attorney's office for investigation, Ruland said. Voting illegally is a misdemeanor offense, he said.

Three incumbents ran unopposed on the Democratic ticket. Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul polled 2,094 votes; 22nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley, 2,132, and District Clerk Lola Payne Veazey, 2,221.

County Judge Simons carried all nine precinct boxes and early voting in his bid for re-election. The big margin was in early voting ballots as Simons collected 984 to 265 for Gamez.

In the contest for county clerk, the incumbent, Ruland, also gained a wide margin in early voting, with 951 votes to 269 for Rodriguez. The challenger narrowly carried two boxes.

Rodriguez received 175 to Ruland's 174 in voting precinct four, located at the Community Center. She polled 194 in precinct two, located at the county courthouse, to 172 for Ruland.

The early vote for Precinct 2 county commissioner gave the incumbent Lupe Chavez 174 votes to 117 for his nearest challenger, Griego. Alaniz polled 35. Chavez added 153 votes Tuesday while Griego picked up 115 and Alaniz, 97.

In the justice of the peace race, Turrentine carried the early vote box by 881 to 377 for Arsola. She also prevailed in the precinct three box at Hereford Junior High by a wide margin, 456 to 76. Arsola carried the courthouse box, 198 to 163, and the Community Center box, 184 to 157.

Results of the primary voting will be canvassed by Democratic and Republican county committees Friday.

Ruland reported that the vote inspector from the Texas secretary of state's office will prepare his report after his return to Austin.

"He said we could get a copy of it in about two weeks," said Ruland.

Commission seeking solution to new law on records charges

By SCOTT ROTHCHILD
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas General Services Commission has been handed a hot potato by state lawmakers.

The commission is considering a proposal that would assess new charges for certain public records requested under the Texas Open Records Act.

The measure originated in a bill passed by the Legislature last year that required the commission to provide guidelines on how state agencies could recover the full cost of providing the public information.

"We obviously have to walk a tight line between what the Legislature has told us to do - to try to implement full-cost recovery - and the other side of the line which is preserving access to the people's information," Commissioner Parker Folsie of Houston said Tuesday.

But the proposal before the commission has been blasted by some state officials and public watchdog groups.

Under the proposal, if a person asks a governmental body for public records that take longer than 15 minutes to find, then that person can be charged personnel costs of $15 per hour and overhead costs equal to 20 percent of the personnel charge.

Currently, under the Texas Open Records Act, a person can be charged if the public record is not "readily available." The act does not define the term, "readily available."

Public watchdog groups say the 15-minute time limit is too short. They want the rule to say that personnel and overhead charges can be assessed if it takes a "substantial amount of time" to find the records.

Attorney General Dan Morales told the commission that the 15-minute rule would invite abuses by agencies that wanted to charge a lot of money to discourage providing public records.

"Today's information technology can, if coupled with good management, produce information at a gallop, while this proposal may well encourage some governmental bodies to produce information at a crawl," he said.

Travis Donoho, an organizer with the Texas State Employees Union, said taxpayers should not be charged for public records to find out how their tax dollars are being spent.

"Nothing could be more essential to the conduct of government than the public's right to know," he said. "Full cost recovery means that the public's right to know can be bought and sold to only those with money to pay for it. It is a profoundly undemocratic principle."

Jim Canady, chairman of the Burnet County Association of Concerned Taxpayers, said the 15-minute proposal would be used as a barrier to open government. "Keep it open so the public can have access to what their pocketbook is paying for," he said.

The rule was also criticized by Common Cause of Texas, Texas Media, the Freedom of Information Foundation, and genealogical societies.

But several officials defended it. John Poulard, executive director of the General Services Commission, said the proposal, one of many regarding access to open records, would not close any records.

Commissioner Robert Davis of Dallas questioned whether a "substantial amount of time" criteria couldn't be abused as much as the 15-minute limit. He said some agencies might decide that five minutes is a substantial amount of time.

Annette Cavazos-Hewgley, an assistant to the chief legal counsel at the Texas Education Agency, said a 15-minute limit was needed because much of her time is spent responding to open records requests. But she conceded that, "there is very, very little that we can get and produce in 15 minutes."

Revamped jobless program sent to Congress by Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton, focusing on jobs in advance of an international conference on unemployment, is presenting Congress with a plan for revamping assistance programs for jobless Americans.

Clinton scheduled a news conference today to unveil a program to provide extended jobless benefits for displaced workers learning new skills. It also would combine all state and federal unemployment programs into one-stop career centers, where those looking for work can apply for benefits, receive counseling and sign up for training.

The president presents his Reemployment Act to Congress as he prepares to open an international jobs conference next Monday in Detroit.

Aides sought Tuesday to lower expectations that the two-day meeting will produce any dramatic solutions to the problem of chronically high unemployment around the world.

Robert Rubin, director of the president's National Economic Council, said the meeting will not produce "a communique or events or initiatives."

"This is not a meeting that is going to announce some grand global initiative," said Treasury Undersecretary Lawrence Summers, who briefed reporters along with Rubin.

Conference participants will include top economic officials from the world's seven richest industrial countries - the United States, Japan, Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy - plus representatives from the 12-nation European Union.

Clinton first proposed the conference last July at the annual seven-nation economic summit in Tokyo.

On the domestic front, Clinton will ask Congress to spend $13 billion over five years on a program that would allow community colleges and other local groups to compete with government-run programs for federal dollars to retrain dislocated workers.

It would permit those entering training programs lasting more than the 26 weeks to receive extended unemployment compensation benefits.

The program would include money for competitive seed grants to help states set up the counseling and placement centers.

It also would encourage employers to reduce worker hours across the board rather than laying off employees. For instance, a company with 1,000 employees might cut the hours of all its workers by 10 hours a week rather than laying off 250 workers.

Directors re-elected

Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative Inc. re-elected three directors at their annual membership meeting held Tuesday in the Bull Barn. They are, from left, Clark Andrews, elected to the board in 1976; Donald Wright, elected in 1981; and Clarence Martin, elected in 1982.

Wednesday's law enforcement activity reports contained the following incident reports:

HEREFORD POLICE

--An assault was reported in the 100 block of Northwest Drive.

--A case of disorderly conduct occurred in the 700 block of La Plata Drive.

--A runaway was reported in the 700 block of La Plata Drive.

DSEC hosts membership at meeting

Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative held its annual membership meeting on Tuesday and some 500 people braved snowy conditions to attend the session in the Bull Barn.

A highlight of the session was the awarding of $1,539,800 in capital credits from 1978 and 1979 which were returned to members.

Also during the session, Clark Andrews, Clarence Martin and Donald Wright were re-elected to the board of directors.

In addition, members heard entertainment from the Chuck Wagon Gang and a business meeting featured remarks by general manager Steve Louder.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS

"Greg" and I are both 40. We've been living together for almost a year and plan to marry next summer. Neither of us wants children.

Greg's profession is saturated with qualified people who can't find jobs. I know, however, that he is not particularly motivated or ambitious. He spends his days running errands, working out at the gym, visiting friends and occasionally sending out a resume or going on an interview.

Although he has earned a few thousand dollars this year, I am skeptical about Greg's career future. He is not exactly a go-getter. He is, however, very attractive, intelligent, charming, affable, humorous, loving, thoughtful and a great bed partner (faithful, too). He doesn't drink or do drugs, is supportive of me and my career, and shares in the cooking and cleaning.

I work 50 to 60 hours each week and earn $65,000 a year. I pay the rent, utilities, food, clothing, insurance, entertainment, automobile and medical expenses. I also give Greg an allowance for personal items.

We get along well, are great friends and are quite happy with each other. BUT—I find myself dwelling on the fact that Greg will always be an economic liability. We are not stressed for money, but I certainly had more of it and less financial anxiety when I was single.

Is Greg a lazy parasite, exchanging sex and emotional security for an easy life? Should I give him the boot and look for someone who can support me if I choose not to work? Or is this faithful, loving, thoughtful, sober, supportive, attractive man a catch I should reel in?—Growing Uneasy in L.A.

DEAR L.A.: The fact that you are asking ME whether Greg is a "lazy parasite, exchanging sex and emotional security for an easy life" suggests that you suspect he might be.

Has it ever occurred to you that you are an "enabler?" You've made Greg so comfortable for so long that he sees no reason to try to support himself. Now that marriage is a possibility, you should insist that Greg get some kind of job—even part-time—as a matter of self-respect.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading your column on "Dysfunctional Mother in Vancouver" and the chorus of her supporters, I as a member of the so-called "Me generation," feel compelled to respond.

My parents raised, loved and educated six children. Some of us phone regularly. Others do not. Some of us enjoy their company and share our lives with them. Others lean on them for emotional and financial support. Some of us have solid, happy lives. Others have made rotten choices and are paying for it.

I can assure you, however, that NONE of us has ever heard our parents mention their "sacrifices," "hardships" or how "ungrateful" we are or how much "hell" we put them through.

Our parents do not remind us that it is payback time. Payback is giving our children the same sense of security and feeling of independence that they gave us.—Lil in New Haven, Conn.

DEAR LIL: What a thoughtful response. Not surprising, considering you were brought up by such sensible parents. The real test is, what will YOUR children say about you? Gem of the Day: If at first you don't succeed, you'll get a lot of free advice from folks who didn't succeed either.

Forget to save some of your favorite Ann Landers columns? "Nuggets and Doozies" is the answer. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Ruthie Aguilar feted with bridal shower

Ruthie Aguilar, March 26 bride-elect of Ken Courville, was honored with a bridal shower Feb. 26 in the E.B. Black House.

Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Sara Gallagher, and her grandmother, Hattie Gallagher. Malena and Cynthia Aguilar served refreshments of finger sandwiches, thumb print cookies, mints, nuts, lime punch and coffee.

The refreshment table was covered with a white crocheted lace cloth and decorated with a silk bouquet of white lilies, tulips and teal foliage. Also, enhancing the table were light teal votive candles, a silver punch bowl and tray, and a silver coffee service.

The honoree was presented with a KitchenAid blender and mixer by the hostesses: Virginia Artho, Janie Banner, Judy Cloud, Betty Jean Gallagher, Mary Gallagher, Judy Kreighsauer, Cathy Revell, Pat Simmacher, Vickie Valdez, Kimberly Wright and Carmen Flood.

Miss Aguilar and Courville will be united in marriage in St. Ann's Catholic Church in Houston.

NEW YORK (AP) — Garrison Keillor may as well have named his best seller "The Book of Guy."

Keillor said one reason he wrote an entire book about men is that they have a unique ability to be lonely. "You can write about men as loners," said Keillor, a radio host and author of "The Book of Guy," a collection of stories.

"I don't think you can write believably about women as lonely characters," the 51-year-old storyteller from Anoka, Minn., said in an interview Monday. "Women live in a constant conversation with the world around them."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Chris Hillman went from the Byrds to the Flying Burritos and landed in the Desert Rose Band.

Now the songwriter wants to try something different.

The six-member country rock band he founded eight years ago broke up last month. Hillman said Monday that after touring for 30 years, he wanted to focus on songwriting and other career interests.

The Desert Rose Band's No. 1 country hits included "One Step Forward," "She Don't Love Nobody" and "Summer Wind."

West Africa is subject of garden club program

Betty Wollé presented an informative program on West Africa for members of the Garden Beautiful Club when the group met Friday in the home of Louise Axe. Leona Andrews served as co-hostess.

Wollé spent one year teaching music and English at Milton Margo Teachers College. She told of the various culture differences and showed pictures of the schools, homes and villages. She also exhibited material made from the cotton trees of that country.

The speaker said that due to the humid and hot weather year-round, there are many different kinds of grasses which grow in the area including elephant grass which grows very tall. She said the rain fall is around 200 inches a year.

The meeting was called to order by President Vada Axe and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Helen Spinks and approved by those present. Dorothy Noland presented the treasurer's report.

The next meeting is planned April 1 in the home of Helen Spinks with Louise Axe presenting the program.

Refreshments of lemon bars, salmon loaf, cookies, fresh fruit plate, an assortment of mints and nuts, hot coffee and hot apple cider were served to Vada Axe, Marguerite Cole, Margaret Young, Nadine Hill, Audine Dettman, Doris Bryant, Dorothy Noland, Helen Spinks and Jennie Dowell.

The first practical synthetic fiber was patented in 1884 by French inventor Hilaire Chardonnet.

Spurs take division lead from Rockets

By The Associated Press

The San Antonio Spurs backed up their boasts.

The Spurs won their third straight and 17th of 20 on Tuesday night, beating the Houston Rockets 115-99 to take over first place in the Midwest Division.

The game featured four technical fouls, two on Dennis Rodman, which resulted in his ejection, and some trash talk.

"There was a lot of taunting during the game. It was an emotional game," Spurs coach John Lucas said. "I told our guys to stay focused. But you've got to be a little cocky ... to be good."

Players for both teams often work out together during the summer at Houston playgrounds.

"When you have as many players on both teams who have played for each other, I guess that's to be expected," David Robinson said. "There was a lot of trash talking going on all through the game on both sides."

The Spurs had four players with at least 20 points. J.R. Reid led San Antonio with a season-high 24, Willie Anderson scored 22 and Vinny Del Negro and Robinson each had 21.

"This was a very good win for us," Lucas said. "We came out very, very focused and did what we had to do to win. It was a solid game for us."

Reid had a big game despite being matched with Hakeem Olajuwon. Olajuwon had 28 points and 11 rebounds.

"It wasn't really any big thing to play against Hakeem," Reid said. "I wasn't surprised when he told me. I just wanted to go out and have a solid game."

"They were doubling David and when they do that, it leaves somebody open," Reid said. "That guy tonight usually was me. I just went out and buried those shots like it was practice."

Vernon Maxwell, with 12 points, was the only other Houston player in double figures. The Rockets shot just 43 percent and missed their first 12 3-pointers.

"Defensively is where they really hurt us," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "They got some real good cuts to the baskets and it opened up their game."

Rodman had 14 rebounds, six points and six assists before he was ejected with 10:58 remaining. It was his fourth ejection this season.

"Rodman was a big factor," Tomjanovich said. "He was diving after loose balls, setting picks, making some passes, just being involved in the game."

San Antonio hit 54 percent of its shots in the first half, taking a 60-50 lead.

"I just don't think we matched their intensity from the start," Tomjanovich said. "I thought we were lucky to be down just 10 at the half. They were killing us on the board and beating us to loose balls."

San Antonio outrebounded Houston, 52-38, even though Rodman played only 22 minutes.

"I thought we played a very intense game in the second half against Orlando and just picked it up tonight even more," Robinson said. "This was one of our most intense games of the year."

Tomjanovich, a former teammate of Lucas when they played on the Rockets, was disappointed in his team's effort.

"I just can't remember a time where I felt we had the game in control and were doing what we wanted to do," Tomjanovich said. "We just didn't match their intensity tonight."

Cavaliers 103, Kings 82

The Cavs tied a team record with their 11th consecutive victory Tuesday night.

Cleveland, which has played most of its winning streak without big men Brad Daugherty and Larry Nance because of injuries, also was missing point guard Mark Price against the Kings, whose road record of 4-25 is the worst in the NBA.

Terrell Brandon started for Price, and ended up two rebounds short of a triple-double. He had 18 points, 10 assists and a career-high eight rebounds without committing a turnover. John Williams, filling in for Daugherty, also scored 18 points.

Mitch Richmond and Wayman Tisdale led the Kings with 16 points each despite miserable shooting. Richmond was 7-for-22, Tisdale 8-for-21.

Jazz 100, Timberwolves 86

The Jazz matched a franchise mark - set by New Orleans in 1977-78 - with their 10th straight win.

Utah's Karl Malone finished with 30 points and 11 rebounds while playing center in place of Felton Spencer.

SuperSonics 113, Warriors 98

Seattle improved its road record to 24-3 with its sixth consecutive victory as Shawn Kemp took advantage of Chris Webber's absence with 24 points on 11-for-13 shooting and 14 rebounds against Golden State.

Kendall Gill scored 23 points and Detlef Schrempf had 19 points and 12 rebounds for the Sonics.

Bulls 116, Hawks 95

Chicago snapped its five-game losing streak and ended Atlanta's six-game winning streak as Scottie Pippen had 39 points, 10 assists and nine steals.

The Bulls pulled away with the help of 11 3-point goals in 17 attempts and three runs of 13 or more consecutive points.

Pippen, who made four of five 3-pointers, scored 14 points in the fourth quarter, when Chicago broke open a close game with a 13-0 run.

Clippers 116, Mavericks 110

Ron Harper scored 36 points and Dominique Wilkins 34.

Wilkins scored the first four points of a 10-0 run that enabled the Clippers to snap a five-game road losing streak. His two free throws with 1:41 left snapped a 102-102 tie, then made it 106-102 with a rebound basket.

Jim Jackson had 31 points for the Mavericks.

Magic 95, Nuggets 88

Shaquille O'Neal had 29 points and 16 rebounds and Orlando got an unexpected lift from his backup, Tree Rollins.

Rollins scored eight fourth-quarter points and Dennis Scott finished with 17 for the Magic, who outscored the Nuggets 12-4 down the stretch.

Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf scored 22 points for visiting Denver.

Hornets 97, Suns 89

Alonzo Mourning returned from a 15-game absence and had 24 points and 15 rebounds, helping Charlotte snap an eight-game losing streak.

Without Mourning, out with a torn calf muscle, the Hornets went 1-14.

Herd's baseball game canceled

The baseball games originally scheduled for Tuesday--a varsity game at Palo Duro and a junior varsity game here--were canceled, but not because of snow.

The games were canceled one or two weeks ago, boys' athletic director Danny Haney said, when it was discovered the games would conflict with TAAS testing.

Haney informed the Brand of this Wednesday.

The YMCA is a great place to go for any kid.

For some kids, it's the only great place to go.

The truth is, because of family problems or low incomes, a lot of kids can't afford the opportunities to go places and be with adults who can give them the caring attention they need.

That's why the YMCA is so important. We give kids the positive experiences they need to grow up prepared for happy and productive lives. But we always run out of money before we run out of kids.

Support the place that supports kids and families. The YMCA

Ragin' Cajuns earn NCAA berth

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) - Southwestern Louisiana waited until the third game to finally beat Western Kentucky. And now it's the Hilltoppers who have to wait.

The Ragin' Cajuns earned their sixth trip to the NCAA tournament Tuesday, defeating Western Kentucky 78-72 in the Sun Belt Conference championship game.

"We knew it would not be easy," said Southwestern Louisiana coach Marty Fletcher, whose club lost 91-87 and 78-62 to the Hilltoppers during the regular season. "We were able to come up with some fortunate plays this time. When you're playing a team as good as Western, you have to make big plays."

Western Kentucky, which had outscored the Ragin' Cajuns by a wide margin in its two victories, held only a 34-32 edge Tuesday night.

"Coach told me to be a lot more physical than I had been," said Southwestern Louisiana center Bryan Collins, who had nine rebounds. "So I did that tonight. Without the rebounds, I don't think we could have won."

Western Kentucky must now wait until Sunday for the NCAA selection committee to decide if its 20-10 record is worth an invitation to the 64-team tournament.

"We did what the selection committee said you had to do," coach Ralph Willard said. "We played at Indiana, North Carolina, Louisville and Alabama-Birmingham. We had opportunities to win all those games. Then we won 13 of our last 16 and eight in a row. I think that qualifies us."

Wisconsin-Green Bay qualified for the NCAA tournament with a 61-56 victory over Illinois-Chicago in the Mid-Continent Conference finals.

No Top 25 teams played Tuesday night.

Southwestern Louisiana (22-7) also handled Western Kentucky's pressure defense for the most part, turning the ball over only 12 times.

And Southwestern Louisiana's Byron Starks, besides leading his team with 23 points, played an important role in holding Western Kentucky's Chris Robinson to only five points on 2-for-8 shooting.

Each team hit a tournament-record 10 3-pointers, with Southwestern Louisiana attempting 25 and Western Kentucky shooting 24.

Kevin Willard, the coach's son, topped Western Kentucky with 18 points.

Mid-Continent Conference Wisconsin-Green Bay 61, Illinois-Chicago 56

Logan Vander Velden hit a three-point play with 12.2 seconds left as Wisconsin-Green Bay (26-6) earned a trip to the NCAA tournament.

Vander Velden, who scored 12 points in the final 4:36, took a pass and drove the middle for his basket and then converted the free throw.

UIC's Kenny Williams - who managed only 12 points, 10 under his average - missed a 3-pointer for a tie. Green Bay's Gary Grzesek then hit two free throws with 3.4 seconds remaining.

Sherell Ford, named the tournament MVP, led UIC (20-9) with 27 points.

Jeff Nordgaard led Green Bay with 22.

Texas' Tyler leads AP All-SWC team

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Guard B.J. Tyler, who made four 3-point shots per game and averaged 23 points, has been selected The Associated Press Southwest Conference Player of the Year.

Tyler, who led No. 25 Texas to the regular-season Southwest Conference title, also led All-SWC balloting by conference coaches.

The Port Arthur senior, who transferred from DePaul, also averaged six assists and three steals per game.

Austin senior Albert Burditt joined Tyler on the first team. He averaged 15 points and eight rebounds per game to give the Longhorns and strong inside presence to go with Tyler's outside shooting.

Texas Tech's Jason Sasser, who averaged 20 points and nine rebounds for the Red Raiders, also made the first team.

Junior Kurt Thomas of Texas Christian averaged 21 points and 10 rebounds to make the first team, and there was a tie between Texas A&M teammates for the fifth spot.

Joe Wilbert had 15 points and six rebounds per game for the Aggies, and senior guard David Edwards averaged 12 points, five rebounds and seven assists.

Texas A&M's Tony Barone, whose Aggies faded at the end of the regular season with three straight losses but tied Texas Tech for second place, beat out Penders and Tech's James Dickey for SWC Coach of the Year honors.

Rice's Torrey Andrews who averaged 21 points to lead the second team. He was joined by Mark Davis of Texas Tech, Jerome Lambert of Baylor, Aundre Branch of Baylor, and ties between Terrence Rencher of Texas, James Gatewood of SMU and Anthony Goldwire of Houston.

Davis, who averaged 18 points and eight rebounds per game, was named the SWC Newcomer of the Year.

Canseco starting to resemble old self

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) - Jose Canseco felt pain and embarrassment last season. Now he wants to feel good.

"He told me on the bench the other day 'I'm feeling so good it's scary,'" Texas manager Kevin Kennedy said. "I told him I speak of him in the same terms. I'm really proud of what he's doing and what he's done this winter."

"He's having fun with his teammates. I'm happy to see that. He's talking on the bench. He knows he can hit all pitches again."

He underwent season-ending elbow surgery last July 9 to repair an injury from his May 29 pitching performance against the Boston Red Sox. Canseco, who had been practicing a fastball and knuckle ball, hurt his elbow on the second of 33 pitches.

The embarrassment came three days later when Carlos Martinez hit a fly ball to Canseco in right field, and Canseco allowed it to bounce off his head and over the fence at Cleveland Stadium.

Canseco spent the winter rehabilitating at his home in Miami, rather than in Texas. He worked with two personal coaches on his entire body, not just his elbow.

"I learned some techniques about running, distributing my weight more evenly," he said. "I just wanted to better myself in each and every area. I didn't want to leave any area untouched."

Canseco has missed 145 games and played 179 over the past two years.

It was just a few years ago when he looked like a sure Hall of Famer. He won the American League Rookie of the Year award in 1986 after hitting 33 homers and driving in 117 runs.

He hit 31 homers with 113 RBIs the following year, then became the first player ever to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases. He was voted the AL's MVP after hitting a league-leading 44 homers, driving in 124 runs and swiping 40 bases in 56 tries.

Canseco missed the first half of the 1989 season with a fractured left hand but hit 37 homers in 1990 and tied for the league lead with 44 homers and 122 RBIs in 1991.

By 1992, Oakland manager Tony La Russa accused him of lacking dedication, and Canseco was called back from the on-deck circle during a game on Aug. 31, 1992, and traded to Texas.

These days, his goals are more modest.

"If I can get 500-600 at-bats, that'll be my goal, that and playing every day," Canseco said. "The DH role, it's going to help me a lot, taking stress off my back, knees and legs. I won't have to be moving too quick."

Although Canseco will start the season as the Rangers designated hitter, he wants to return to his days as an all-around player.

"I'm making the best of it right now, but if I could be 100 percent healthy, sure I'd like to go back to playing right field," he said. "But that can't be accomplished right now."

He was 5-for-16 (.313) in Texas' first four games this spring, with two homers and three RBIs. Rangers coach Jackie Moore, an Oakland coach in 1986, knew all he needed to know last November, after watching Canseco work out.

"Now that," Moore said, "was Jose Canseco."

Langston dances around Brewers

By The Associated Press

Mark Langston is practicing getting out of trouble.

The left-hander allowed four hits in three innings but just one run Tuesday as the California Angels lost to the Milwaukee Brewers 11-4 at Chandler, Ariz. He escaped two jams, including a bases-loaded situation in the third.

"It was a good thing, getting in those situations and having to struggle a little bit to get out of it," Langston said. "It gets the juices flowing a little bit. I knew I had to make my pitches, so I was a lot more focused then than I was the other times."

Tom Brunansky hit a three-run homer to lead Milwaukee's 14-hit attack. John Farrell was tagged for five hits, two walks and seven runs in 2 1-3 innings.

"Not good, to say the least," Farrell said. "I felt today was a chance to maybe move ahead of the pack a little bit. It wasn't a step in the direction I want. Next time out, I've got to get back to basics, throw strikes and put people away."

In other games, Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 14-13 in 10 innings, the Chicago White Sox beat Minnesota 3-1, the New York Mets beat a Florida split squad 5-0, a Kansas City split squad beat the other Marlins squad 4-3, Cleveland routed the other Royals squad 15-4, Houston beat Atlanta 7-4, Detroit beat Texas 6-5, the New York Yankees beat Los Angeles 3-2 in 12 innings, Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 4-3, Boston beat Montreal 8-5, Toronto beat Baltimore 7-4, Seattle beat Colorado 5-2, San Francisco beat San Diego 9-3 and the Chicago Cubs beat Oakland 4-2.

At Clearwater, Fla., pinch-hitter Adam Hyzdu homered in the 10th inning as Cincinnati won after taking a 13-11 lead after three.

White Sox 3, Twins 1

At Sarasota, Fla., Scott Sanderson pitched two innings of two-hit relief in his first appearance for Chicago.

Michael Jordan went 0-for-2 and is 0-for-10 in four spring games. He almost got his first hit on a close play at first in the eighth inning, but was called out by umpire Matt Winans.

Astros 7, Braves 4

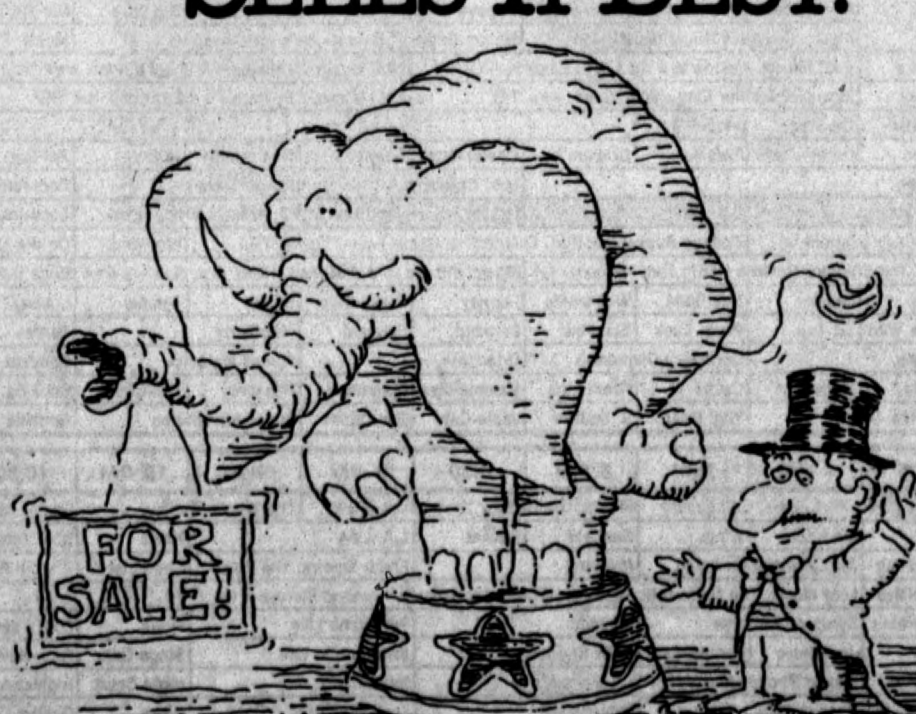

At West Palm Beach, Fla., Tony Tarasco, trying to become Atlanta's starting left fielder in place of the injured Ron Gant, hit a three-run homer and singled.

Tigers 6, Rangers 5

At Port Charlotte, Fla., Shawn Hare blooped a two-run single and scored in a four-run seventh.

Aggie baseball coach faces enviable problems

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — A month into the college baseball season, Texas A&M coach Mark Johnson wonders who are his best three outfielders and he's not sure about three-fourths of his infield either.

Other coaches wish for Johnson's problems. Unlike coaches forced to slap together a lineup and hope a few guys can hold it together, he picks his starters from a roster that is among the deepest in the country.

So, even without a set starting eight and a rotation still being spun together, the Aggies are the team to beat heading into the Southwest Conference season.

Longtime rival Texas will be as tough as usual, and Rice and Texas Tech are viable contenders for the third-to-last SWC race among these seven teams.

A&M is coming off its first College World Series trip since 1964. Two of last year's starting pitchers were first-round picks and four other players signed big league contracts. But All-America pitcher Trey Moore is back. So is batting star Lee Fedora and clutch-hitting Rob Harris. Newcomer Chad Allen has played more like a senior than a freshman.

Still, Johnson grapples with where to put them all.

"We've had just about a different lineup each game," Johnson said. "I'm not disappointed with any of our players. We just need to figure out starters at catcher, first base, second base and third base. I've also got about four outfielders who can play."

Harris, a shortstop, is about the only lock. Fedora will start somewhere, either at third base or the outfield. Allen will pitch and play some outfield.

Moore, a lefty, and right-hander Chris Clemons are the aces of a staff that will improve dramatically when sophomore John Codrington and junior transfer Justin Atchley fully recover from arm injuries.

The Longhorns hope to take advantage of A&M's early season confusion and get an early jump on the conference race with their new lineup that now relies on Stephen Larkin instead of Brooks Kieschnick. Freshman Wylie Campbell has become a gem with a knack for getting on base and Larkin, the younger brother of Cincinnati Reds All-Star Barry Larkin, is doing a good job driving in runners.

Ryan Kjos, Jay Vaughn, J.D. Smart and Clint Koppe anchor a pitching staff trying to overcome the loss of Kieschnick, the former All-America pitcher and designated hitter drafted in the first round by the Chicago Cubs.

But Cliff Gustafson always seems to find a way to win no matter whom he has to replace. That's why he entered a weekend series against Oklahoma only 19 victories away from breaking Rod Dedeaux's record of 1,332 victories.

Another coach etched in the record books is Wayne Graham, who carved his niche while at San Jacinto Junior College.

Graham came to Rice in 1992 after winning five juco titles in six seasons, 1985-90. His San Jac teams won conference crowns all 11 years he was there because of his philosophy of having an all-around solid team with a strong desire to win.

He sees a lot of those same traits in this year's Owls, which could vie for the school's first SWC title.

Rice is solid at all positions and has a star in the middle of their lineup with sophomore Jose Cruz Jr. The rotation is pretty much set and the bullpen is solid.

"I think we're just evolving in every direction," he said. "Talentwise, I'd say we match up well with anyone else in the conference."

Tech is coming off a school-record 43-win season powered by SWC newcomer of the year Clint Bryant in the outfield and pitcher Jason Whittle, who struck out 16 New Mexico State batters recently.

The Red Raiders got off to a slow start at 1-4, then went on a 10-game winning streak that should give them plenty of momentum heading into the league's opener March 11 against Texas Christian.

TCU has marquee names in pitchers Reid Ryan and Tim Grieve (their fathers are Nolan Ryan and Texas Rangers general manager Tom Grieve) and the offense has been explosive at times with 22 homers in 16 games.

Still, TCU has about as much of a chance to win the SWC race as Baylor or Houston; which is to say not much.

Baylor should be competitive behind pitchers Aaron Lineaweaver and Brent Bearden. The Bears have added a unique dimension with speedster Ben Bronson in the outfield, who had 10 steals in his first 13 attempts.

Coach Mickey Sullivan has all of his Bears running. Matt Trozzo, who hit .409 in his first 13 games, had eight steals and Mike Bohny had seven.

At Houston, Ricky Freeman and Shane Buteaux lead the hitting attack and Matt Beech is the top pitcher. Buteaux also has three saves.

Couples withdraws; Daly returns

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Fred Couples made a departure just as John Daly made his return.

A letter from Couples to Honda Classic officials announcing his withdrawal was delivered Tuesday about the same time Daly was holding a news conference prior to his return from a three-month suspension.

"After injuring my back on Sunday, I am not feeling 100 percent and I think it is best at this point if I concentrate on rehabilitating my injury and seeking further treatment," Couples' letter said.

Daly, on the other hand, said his feelings were very, very positive after sitting out a suspension that began Nov. 7 and will end with the Thursday start of this $1.1 million tournament at Weston Hills.

"Maybe I'm wrong, but I have the feeling I'll have a good week, maybe even win. I think it could happen," Daly said.

"I feel like it's a whole new year. Everything is positive. I want to get on with my career, get on with a new life. It feels good."

The young man who once moaned "my life is like a soap opera," said he will attempt to recapture the joy and enthusiasm of his rookie season in a drive toward newly set goals.

Those goals include the Masters and $1 million in earnings this year.

Daly was suspended by PGA Tour commissioner Deane Beman in Hawaii last year after the troubled player failed to complete competition in a pro-am round. It followed two similar incidents earlier in the year.

The commissioner's action was both justified and "a blessing," Daly said.

"I needed the time off. I was playing bad and I was just going through the motions. I needed a break. And I wouldn't have taken it if I hadn't been suspended," he said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 35 years old and had a hysterectomy when I was 28 years old because of endometriosis. A few years later, I had to start taking Lopressor, 50 mg, for my heart. I've never had any kind of heart test except for an EKG. My family doctor said that I might have to take these pills for the rest of my life.

I also take 1.25 mg Premarin for my hormone replacement. I read that women who have their ovaries removed early in life have a surgical menopause and have a greatly increased risk of developing heart disease. Why is this? Should I see a heart specialist or just leave this up to my doctor? My heart sometimes has an extra beat, and I have a tight feeling in my chest with shortness of breath.

DEAR READER: It is true that the women who have had their ovaries removed early, as in your case, are at an increased risk of early heart attacks. Remember that women who go through a natural menopause later in life also start having an increased risk of heart attacks. By age 65, their rate is the same as seen in men. Why? Because estrogen favorably influences estrogen levels. Estrogen increases the amount of high density lipoproteins (HDL) — the fatty-cholesterol particles that remove cholesterol from deposits in the walls of the arteries. It also lowers total cholesterol. There is increasing evidence that estrogen replacement, even after a natural menopause, helps to protect women against having heart attacks.

Your family doctor already knows more about you than you think. The Premarin is estrogen and replaces your estrogen deficiency. A blood test should have told him if your cholesterol levels are good or not. And the electrocardiogram helps to determine if you have any heart enlargement. I would presume he has also had a chest X-ray to see the size of your heart.

You need a better understanding of the menopause, so I'm sending you a free copy of my new Special Report 151, Menopause and Hormones. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/151, River-ton, NJ 08077-5537.

I don't have enough information to comment on your other symptoms, but they may be related to anxiety. You must have high blood pressure because Lopressor is medicine given for that purpose.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 19-year-old female and have been dieting for about three years. I also exercise regularly and have lost 40 pounds. My main concern is that my hair has gotten thinner since I started my diet. I try my best to eat balanced low-fat meals. I just recently started taking vitamin E and drinking an herb tea. Will that help? If not, what will?

DEAR READER: When the cause of hair loss is not evident, it is a good idea to see a dermatologist. While I can't tell you what has caused your hair loss, there is a good possibility that you have tried to get too thin. An inadequate intake of quality protein — and calories, so the protein can be used by your body instead of being used for energy — will cause hair loss. It is temporary, and after good nutrition is reestablished, the hair loss is usually corrected. A lot of young women who go on diets that are too strict have such a problem.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I first saw a urologist 12 years ago for an infection of my prostate, which cleared with antibiotic medication. At my first visit, he massaged my prostate. He does it rather roughly. I sure feels sore for quite a while after each massage. He has continued the massage annually when I have a checkup. The urine sample before the massage is see-through clear and a semen sample after massage is normal.

He has given me every test there is, including three PSA blood tests and as many ultrasound tests. Every test has been as normal as could be. The only thing he could be dissatisfied with is the frequency in urination.

I would like to know if such massaging could be harmful to some other parts of the system. Is it needed and why? I am in my mid 70s and healthy.

DEAR READER: A thorough digital examination of the prostate through the rectum is certainly indicated. But there could be much disagreement about the need for a massage. Years ago, prostate massage was commonly recommended. Today, it is used more to obtain secretions for testing rather than as therapy. In fact, massaging an acutely inflamed prostate can be very painful and perhaps make matters worse.

Volunteers needed to work with victims of violence

Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence of Hereford is sponsoring training classes for people who wish to volunteer to work with victims of rape or domestic violence.

"This is a more demanding type of volunteer work than many people are used to," Pat Michael, advisory board president, said. "However, those volunteers who have worked with our group feel that their time is well spent, and that they are rendering a great service to women in need."

Anyone interested in training as a volunteer should call the office at 364-7822 so that a time can be set for the classes to begin. Volunteers will receive 30 hours of training.

Volunteers will be trained to provide crises intervention, supply victims with legal information, help with the filing of charges, and provide shelter when needed. "All our volunteers must fill out an application," Michael said. "We check each volunteer's references carefully, because we only want people who can insure that confidentiality is kept in all matters."

Volunteers carry pages and are on call from 5-8 p.m. through the week and 24 hours on weekend. Volunteers work in rotating shifts with other volunteers.

Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence of Hereford is an outreach program of Family Support Services in Amarillo. Anyone who is interested in working as a volunteer should call 364-7822 for more information.

Flame Fellowship meeting scheduled Thursday night

Joan Hill of Clovis, N.M. will be the guest speaker during the Hereford Flame Fellowship meeting planned to begin at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Hereford Community Center. The public is invited to attend.

Joan, who has been married for 31 years, is the mother of three children, ages 19, 14 and 12. She is a graduate of the Word of Faith Leadership Institute, and for 12 years, she served as a counselor for CBN teaching department in Dallas training telephone counselors.

Joan and her husband pastored a church for three years and they served as missionaries to Mexico for three years.

Joan has appeared on the 700 Club to give her testimony of God's restoring power in the family and she has been employed for four years with KJUN Radio Station in Farwell. She has been a speaker for Christian groups and retreats for 12 years and is a senior at Eastern New Mexico University majoring in special education.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I always used an air freshener in my vacuum cleaner to make a pleasant aroma in the rooms, especially in the winter time when the windows aren't opened as much.

All of a sudden, I can't find these fresheners in any store and I've been looking for a month. Can you tell me what I can use in place of them? — Helen Krause, Webster, N.Y.

You can make your own scented carpet freshener that will then make the bag smell nice. It's easy!

Fill a shaker three-quarters full of baking soda and add cinnamon, powdered cloves or other spices, whatever you prefer. Shake evenly over the carpet, wait a while and vacuum. Every time the vacuum cleaner is used, it will freshen the air until the bag is replaced.

If there is any baking soda mixture left over, place a piece of plastic wrap between the lid and shaker to preserve the smell of the freshener.

This and many other great baking soda hints can be found in my 8-page pamphlet, Heloise's Best Baking Soda Hints. If you'd like a copy, please send $2, along with a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Baking Soda, PO

Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001.

SOCK HINT

Dear Heloise: My husband gets ready and leaves for work while it is still dark, and it is hard for him to tell the difference between navy and black socks in the soft lights of the lamp, so I put a flashlight in his sock drawer. Now he can tell the difference with no trouble. — Dill Tannery, Riverside, Calif.

DESK CLEANER

Dear Heloise: This is for anyone with a roll-top desk. You know how dust collects in the crevices and it is so difficult to remove. Spray the entire lid with a spray wax, then use cotton swabs to dust the crevices (It may take several swabs). Then polish the entire lid with a soft cloth. — Edna Seidel, Glendale, Ariz.

This is a good idea for a once-a-month thorough cleaning to prevent dust buildup in the grooves. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

HEREFORD DAY CARE

Foundation elects officers

The Deaf Smith Health Care Foundation board of directors reelected officers during a monthly meeting Tuesday. The officers, left to right, are Jerry Smith, vice president; Dr. Nadir Khuri, president; Sylvia Khuri, executive director; and Pat McGinty, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Khuri was named executive director, a non-salary position, and directors discussed plans for a fund raiser during the meeting.

Horse lovers: check out the Hereford Riders Club

BY RICK LANNING
Staff Writer

A man, a boy, and a horse. That was the theme of Jack Schaefer's best-selling novel, "Monte Walsh," which was made into a movie starring Lee Marvin. It's also the theme of a struggling group known as the Hereford Riders Club.

The club, according to Travis Shields of Hereford, is looking for more members who enjoy riding and who want to preserve the western way of life.

And for the life of them, Shields along with members Johnny and Dee Anne Trotter, can't understand why interest in the club has fallen off.

"We used to have 100 to 125 members," said Shields, owner of an appliance service. "Now we're down to around 25 families."

"Hereford is cow country. You'd think with so many cattle people out here there would be more support in a club for people who are interested in riding and related activities."

During the winter months, the club cuts back on its activities. But Shields said a Junior Rodeo and a Play Day for young people on horseback will be scheduled in April.

He added, "One of the main ideas behind the club was to promote riding activities for youngsters. Our older members are involved in roping, while the young people do barrel racing and compete in rodeos."

The club has its own arena, bleachers, and clubhouse just past the Bull Barn, he added. Since there is no heat in the clubhouse, members meet the first Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

Shields said he is proud of the efforts club members have made on behalf of young people.

"We've had kids join the club without horses and an older member would loan them a horse," he said.

"There is a lot of good fellowship in this club. Our members range in age from one to a hundred and ten. We won't turn anybody away."

He is especially interested in building up the club's membership because of the loss of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame, which is leaving Hereford to move to another still unannounced city.

For more information on the club and its schedule of upcoming events, call Shields at 364-1678 or 357-9077, or write to the Hereford Riders Club, Box 852, Hereford, Texas 79045.

Major winter storm leaves snow covering, icy roads

By JEAN PAGEL

Associated Press Writer

PAMPA, Texas (AP) - A major late-winter snowstorm moved through Texas early today, leaving behind more than a foot of snow in the Panhandle that closed some schools for a second day and hindered voting.

"This is a major winter storm event with snowfall amounts much higher than over previous years. Snowfall in excess of 15 inches will be possible across many areas before the snow ends," the National Weather Service said in a release late Tuesday.

The snow had ended by morning, but driving conditions remained hazardous. The storm hit on election day, keeping many voters away from the polls as it dumped as much as two inches an hour.

One person was killed in a traffic accident that was attributed to the bad weather conditions in Northwest Texas on Tuesday. An Amarillo man died and three people were injured when a pickup truck and car collided about 6:50 a.m. Tuesday about 18 miles northwest of Amarillo.

Northerly winds of 15 to 25 mph with higher gusts created blowing and drifting snow, making roads hazardous.

The late-winter blizzard hit the Panhandle early Tuesday. Prefaced before dawn by thunder and hail, the storm dumped 10 inches of snow on Dalhart by Tuesday afternoon.

Sections of I-40 east of Amarillo turned to a sheet of ice, the National Weather Service reported. "Whiteout" conditions - zero visibility - blanketed Shamrock, the NWS said.

David Hotz, a weather service forecaster, said 4 inches to 6 inches of snow coated most of the northern Panhandle. Temperatures hovered in the 20s and 30s.

Tuesday's storm arrived two weeks before spring and with sudden fury. Days earlier, temperatures had climbed to near 80 degrees in Amarillo, Hotz said.

The moisture cheered farmers in the Panhandle, where crops in fields were drier than normal.

Texas treasurer's office reports names on unclaimed money list

The Texas Treasurers Office has released its latest Unclaimed Money list, which contains more than 122,000 newly reported names of people, business, organizations and corporations for whom they are holding money.

The office holds $50 or more in cash or shares of stocks, or the contents of abandoned safe deposit boxes.

Those whose names appear on the list are encouraged to call 1-800-654-3463 inside Texas, or (512) 463-3120.

Bilingual operators are on duty. Operators will be available from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. between now and March 25, after which time normal 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. hours resume.

People calling are asked to provide the name exactly as listed and the city or section under which it appeared, then must verify the address and Social Security number.

Those who desire also can write the treasurer's office at: Texas State Treasury, Unclaimed Property Division, P.O. Box 12019, Austin, Texas 78711-2019.

Wool can be bent 20,000 times without breaking.

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Financing, Down Payments, Price negotiations. Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home.

But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent.

An expert agent can coach you smoothly through the entire home buying process. From using the sophisticated multiple listing service to find the home that fits your needs and your budget. To tackling financing options. Setting up and monitoring inspections. Negotiating price. And even maneuvering you through closing.

So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field—a real estate agent.

Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities.

Getting the right coaching now could mean the difference between confusion and closing.
