N. CAROLINAN NAMED TO SUPREME COURT

Beneficial Rains Drench North Texas Counties

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

J. B. Fitts, Wichita county highway officer, warns owners of livestock against letting animals run at large on the highways. He says that such animals will be impounded.

It is a dangerous practice—dangerous to the livestock and dangerous to those who drive on the highways. Cattle have been killed and travelers injured through this practice. There is no telling what a cow will take a notion to do before an approaching automobile, but it's almost certain they will do the unexpected whatever that may be.

There was a time when the owners of livestock sued the owner of the automobile when animals were injured by being hit by a car. Now any suit for damages is more likely to be instituted by the owner of the automobile. But regardless of any action for damages the owner of livestock cannot well afford to run the risk of his stock being killed by letting them run at large on the highways.

Dispatches tell of new cases of "jake" paralysis in Kansas and Kentucky. It is now believed that the paralysis is caused by the use of an alcohol made from vapors that are a product of the distillation of petroleum. This alcohol is not so deadly as wood alcohol but when imbibed in any quantity is almost certain to cause paralysis. There has not been time to tell whether this paralysis will be permanent, but even as a temporary disability it is serious.

Wide publicity has been given the "jake" paralysis cases as they have developed in Oklahoma, Tennessee, Kansas and Kentucky but there are still men who will take the chance of drinking jamacai ginger concoctions. Paralysis evidently holds no terrors against such a thirst.

Talker can understand an Oklahoman or a Kansan drinking "jake" but even after 10 years of Volstead he had expected something better from a Kentuckian.

Credit men and women of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma will meet in Wichita Falls on April 7 to discuss the problems of credit. Some folks think of these credit organizations as existing for the purpose of keeping them from buying on credit. The proper way to look at them is that they exist for the purpose of permitting merchants and others to extend credit—extending it, of course, only to those whose credit warrants such a transaction.

These credit men and women have an important place in business and a heavy responsibility, responsibility not only to the businesses they represent but to the public with which they deal.

It was just 20 years ago that the first high school track meet ever held in Northwest Texas was held at Iowa Park. Up to that time baseball games and football contests and an occasional tennis match were the only interscholastic contests between schools and these were few and far between. Today there is hardly a county in Texas which does not have its interscholastic league organization and track meets and all kinds of athletic events as well as contests in public speaking and many other contests of physical and mental training and prowess.

Twenty years and more ago our schools were more or less aloof and apart. Today there is a fine spirit of friendly rivalry, school spirit, cooperation and a desire to excel to which these interscholastic meets must be given much credit. They are training our school children to strive for individual excellence while at the same time training them in association for cooperative and group action. One of the most important things in modern life is to learn to adjust one's self to contact with his fellowman. We can't live without it. These school and interscholastic meets are the best kind of training for this.

Up at the municipal auditorium yesterday Talker found Miss Neely, welfare secretary and Mrs. McHam in charge of the family relief disturbed over a rumor that was in circulation to the effect that persons given cards for presentation to contractors and others employing men were expected to pay a fee of one dollar. Of course there is no such fee. Contractors on several jobs, one of them being at the Wichita Mill and Elevator company, have been giving preference where possible to men who bring cards from the family relief association. This is done to give preference to Wichita Falls citizens needing employment the most. There is no fee whatever connected with it. Of course, the contractors are unable to employ all who apply.

But the rumor of a fee has gotten pretty well circulated and quite naturally it distresses those who are making a sincere effort to do what they can to help those who are unemployed and in distress. But it frequently happens that folks we are trying to help are suspicious and ready to believe any rumor that floats.

There were 853 persons in Wichita county when the 1920 census was taken who could neither read nor write, 533 of these lived in Wichita Falls. Many of these could be taught to read and write thereby improving their own status, becoming more valuable to the community and making a better showing for the city and county when the 1930 census is taken. Even if it will be too late to get credit in the 1930 census, Talker, for the sake of those who are illiterate, would like to see a movement started to get them out of that class wherever they desire it and are capable of receiving instruction.

FARMING LANDS PUT IN SHAPE FOR PLANTING

Heavy Fall Reported for Most Sectors While Mercury Rises

GRAINS AIDED MOST

Expected Cold Wave Fails To Develop and Fruit Is Undamaged

Instead of the destructive blizzard predicted Thursday for the first day of spring, Northwest Texas below the Panhandle and parts of Southern Oklahoma Friday enjoyed slow, beneficial rains accompanied by only moderate drops in temperatures which were already on the rize again before the day was over. Possible slight injuries to fruit crops to the North were discounted by the almost universal aid to grains and plowed lands, bringing the promise of excellent underground conditions for the season's planting.

In Texas, most of the rain fell to the south, east, and west of Wichita Falls, clear skies being reported above Quanah. Only a light shower fell here. Everywhere the mercury was rising Friday night, bringing a definite establishment of warmer weather for the section.

Young County Soaked

Heavy rains fell at Graham, with showers all over Young county. The general downpour reached Seymour, and extended as far west as Stamford. Showers were reported at Bellevue and all along the Denver road to Fort Worth. Nocona, St. Jo. and Gainesville benefited by the rains.

At Wellington, Texas, and Altus, Okla., some fear was expressed for the safety of the fruit crop, but temperatures were rising late Friday, with the indication of clear, warmer weather Saturday.

All threat of damaging cold was believed removed from the immediate Wichita Falls vicinity and truck farmers and fruit growers

Famous Artist Admits Affair With Squaw But Denies Slaying His Wife

LILA JIMERSON

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(Copyright, 1930, by International New Service)

BUFFALO, N. Y. March 21.—"I had an affair with Lila Jimerson. I'll admit that. But love her? No, there never was any real love between us."

Henri Marchand, internationally famous artist and sculptor, sat in cell number two in the Erie county jail here today and made these statements to this correspondent in an exclusive interview. He was speaking of his paramour, Miss Jimerson, the Indian maid on trial for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, who was hammered to death in her home less than three weeks ago.

Lila is accused of having influenced Nancy Bowen, an aged Seneca Indian woman, to commit the crime. Lila and Nancy had communed with the "spirits" together through the agency of an oulja board. "Ma" Bowen is in custody and will be tried later for first degree murder.

While the distinguished artist, Marchand, bemoaned his plight in jail where he is being held as a material witness, Lila sat in a white man's courtroom across the street listening to attorneys select the jury.

"I feel this disgrace keenly," said Marchand, as he paced back and forth in his cell. "It is an awful price to pay for one's achievement. I had to go out to the reservation and live with those Indians—be

TWO ARRESTS CLARIFY 'FIRE PLOT'

WEEKS NAMED BAR PRESIDENT

Dallas Attorney Principal Speaker at Banquet

W. F. Weeks was elected to be president of the Wichita County Bar association at the annual banquet Friday night at the Wichita club. J. B. Carrigan was chosen as vice president and O. E. Nelson, secretary and treasurer.

C. M. Smithdeal of Dallas, principal speaker on the evening's program said that the law profession has almost ceased to do its duty as an instrument of justice and has put fidelity to clients ahead of fidelity to the court and truth. Laymen are losing confidence in it as such and unless a return to the old conception of the lawyer's office as a public office of justice is made, the profession is doomed, the Dallas attorney said.

Judge Smithdeal contended that the lawyer owes a duty to the public that the ordinary business man and merchant does not because he has the means of justice in his hand and must be a public servant, in the rendering of that justice.

Judge Smithdeal deemed the present age to be "palpitating syncopated and machine-like rush forward." It is responsible for selfishness that has grown into the profession and the ideal lawyer he said, is the one who can hold himself against the rush and look back to the old order that held the respect of the laymen.

A. H. Britain presented a possible solution to the problem in an outline of the Texas Civil Judicial council that has been organized in the state. He named as its purpose the attempt to reduce litigation and make for a better judiciary within

Officials Let Capone Go His Way

CHICAGO, March 21. (US)—"Scarface Al" Capone was at liberty tonight after evidently the sincerest efforts to get himself arrested.

The hue and cry that went up after the Chicago gang chieftain's release from the penitentiary at Gratersford, Pa., last Monday had died down to an inaudible whisper when Capone presented himself at police headquarters this afternoon.

Before the day was over it became positively embarrassing for the officials who had been uttering threats of what they were going to do if they once could get their hands on Capone.

The police department did not want him.

The genial gangster accommodatingly got into a car with Deputy Police Commissioner John P. Stege and drove to the office of United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson who was reputed to have a contempt citation to serve.

Mr. Johnson was not there. His first assistant was not there. A second assistant ventured:

"You might come back some other day, Mr. Capone."

A trip to the state's attorneys' office was equally bootless. Neither States Attorney John A. Swanson nor his first assistant was there.

"Have you got anything against me?" Capone inquired of the most official looking person he could locate.

"Well—no. But we might suggest

Suspect Denies Talk With Hammer Victim

FORT WORTH, March 21. (AP)—After surrendering to the sheriff's department today, a suspect in the hammer murder of Mrs. Pearl Voss, denied reports of a woman witness that he had been seen in company with Mrs. Voss 15 or 20 minutes before the slaying last Saturday night.

The man admitted he was standing on a street talking with another woman, but said he was not with Mrs. Voss. The suspect came to the sheriff's office with the brother of another man who is sought for questioning. Both were reported to have been with Mrs. Voss.

Cotton Growers Delay Action on Farm Bill

GALVESTON, March 21. (AP)—The Texas Cotton association's expected condemnation of the federal farm aid bill has been delayed at least one day. In the opening session on the 19th annual convention of the organization here today, President J. K. Dorrance of Houston postponed action on the matter until Saturday's final session. He named a committee to consider suggestions of delegates.

Dentist Falls to Death While Feeding Pigeons

CHICAGO, March 21. (UP)—A noon hour custom of feeding pigeons on the fire escape outside his office window was blamed today for the death plunge of Dr. Rudolph H. Bloese, prominent dentist.

Doctor Bloese went out on the fire escape with a handful of crumbs. In kneeling to feed the fluttering birds he apparently lost his balance and plunged down three stories to his death in an alley below.

BLACKMAIL AND FORGERY SEEN

Charge Against Man Called 'Dead Issue'

FAIRFIELD, Texas, March 21. (AP)—Two persons from the home town of Miss Wilma Jones, who told of an alleged attempt to burn her to death Wednesday night, were arrested tonight and authorities said charges of blackmail and forgery would be filed against them tomorrow. Miss Jones was awaiting trial here for forgery when the alleged attempt at burning occurred.

Meanwhile it was learned from an officer who refused to allow the use of his name that the assault to murder charge in connection with the alleged attempt, filed against G. S. Moore, was "a dead issue." Those were the officer's words. He would not amplify this statement except to declare that the $1,000 bond required of Moore at a habeas corpus hearing the day after the burning was on the arson charge alone.

Miss Jones was alleged to have forged Moore's name to checks, with which she paid bills for an operation.

The two arrested, mother and son, were taken into custody when it was learned that they had made statements to several persons in Buffalo, their home town, that they "participated" in the money from the checks.

Whereabouts of the victim, Miss Wilma Jones, 23, Buffalo, Texas, was a secret, officers declaring they

CHIEF SHARES REACH HIGHEST MARK OF YEAR

Exchange Registers Largest Volume of Sales Since Last December

CREDIT TIGHTENED

Call Rate Reaction Causes Some Issues to Close At Losses

NEW YORK, March 21. (AP)—The bull movement on the stock market became increasingly violent today and scores of leading shares rose $1 to $8 to new high levels for the year, although an abrupt tightening of call money gave a momentary advantage to the bears around midday, and a sprinkling of issues closed lower.

Trading quickened to a hectic pace comparable to bearish markets of last year. Sales were 4,629,290 shares, the largest turnover since December, and the ticker ran for 40 minutes after the closing gong.

Call money renewed at 3 per cent as compared to yesterday's first 2 per cent renewal rate in nearly six years. Money became scarcer as the day advanced. The rate was jacked up to 4 per cent, then to 4½. The market's previous advance this week had been largely based upon cheap money, and the sudden scarcity caused sharp unsettlement for a time.

The runup in the money rate appeared to be largely due to the withdrawal of credit put into the market incident to the quarterly treasury financing and income tax collections. Domestic and foreign lenders have found the recent low rates unsatisfactory, and when about $100,000,000 in loans was called, replacement funds were not forthcoming at the low rates.

United States Steel and American Telephone each sold up more than $4 a share to new peak prices since the autumn crash, and Standard Oil of New Jersey rose $2.62 to a new high level for the year.

Scar Holds Attention In McKenzie Hearing

SAN ANTONIO, March 21. (AP)—A jagged scar a little more than two inches long and a quarter of an inch deep on the back of John (Pete) McKenzie's head will either send him to the electric chair or back to the hospital for the insane from which he came.

In the sanity hearing before Judge W. W. McCrory for the condemned slayer of Sam Street, chief of San Antonio detectives, the scar has been the center of every hypothesis offered by both state and defense. The case will go to the jury some time Saturday.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21. (UP)—Mrs. Opal Chapman was granted the custody of her 2-year-old son, Johnnie, by the state supreme court late today. She posted $500 bond to insure her presence when the case comes up for the final decision in 10 days.

The boy was recently awarded to the grandparents in district court, the mother appealing the verdict. The grandparents live in Hardeman county, Texas.

New Justice

JOHN J. PARKER

JOHN J. PARKER SELECTED FOR SANFORD SEAT

Southern Republican Chief Rewarded for Swinging State to Hoover

APPROVAL LIKELY

Senate Expected to Vote Favorably Without Much Debate

By THOMAS L. STOKES
WASHINGTON, March 21. (UP)—President Hoover picked from the South today a leading North Carolina Republican and federal judge, John Johnston Parker of the fourth circuit court, for the vacancy on the supreme court created by the death of Justice Edward Terry Sanford, who was from the neighboring state of Tennessee.

The president thus rewarded the South, which contributed four states to his huge electoral total, with a place on the highest tribunal. That section clamored in vain for a cabinet berth. North Carolina was one of four southern states carried by Mr. Hoover.

"Baby" of Court

The appointment of Parker, who at 44 is one of the youngest judges ever to be named to the court, retains for the South the two representatives it had when Sanford died. Associate Justice James Clark McReynolds is from Tennessee.

The president sent the nomination late today to the senate, where it is expected to encounter no such opposition as that which was aroused at the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice, though the senate judiciary committee, to which it was referred, will give Parker's record a careful scrutiny.

Republican Leader

The committee will find, among surface matters, Parker has long been prominent in Republican politics in North Carolina. He ran for governor in 1920. Like some other members of the supreme court, he served here for a time in 1923 and 1924, as a special assistant to the attorney-general.

He was a member of the Republican national committee in 1924 and a delegate-at-large that year to

TARIFF ON OIL DOWNED AGAIN

Senate Tries to Complete Bill Saturday

WASHINGTON, March 21. (AP)—A final drive to pass the tariff bill Saturday was promised tonight by senate leaders after attempts by both Democrats and Republicans to keep the senate in session tonight until the measure was disposed of had failed.

WASHINGTON, March 21. (AP)—The second spring season rolled around today and the tariff bill still was before congress. Senate leaders announced they would try to get the bill passed and returned to the house tomorrow. It was admittedly doubtful this could be accomplished.

The proposed oil tariff came up for the fifth time and was knocked down for the fifth time. The vote was 38 to 37, the closest the duty advocates ever came to winning.

The peak of the debate concerned the oil tariff. Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, before the vote questioned the propriety of senators reoffering duty proposals that had been rejected so many times. After the roll call he asked the chair if the oil tariff could be brought up again and inquired:

"Must senators hold themselves at arms length as if we were in a house of thieves."

Vice President Curtis ruled the amendment could be reoffered if in changed form, but admonished the fiery Arizonian for the language he used.

"I thank the chair and announce that we all will be on guard," Ashurst replied and sat down.

While he did not question the good faith of those advocating an oil duty the Arizonian asserted it was "extremely bad taste and bad

Bear Caught After Scaring Residents

Residents in the vicinity of the city zoo were aroused by the report of a bear being at large, late Friday evening. Police went in search of the animal after being notified that he had actually been seen somewhere on Fifth street. He was found and replaced in his cage after some searching.

The only one seriously scared was a lad whom police warned to look out for "a big black bear" when he went home. His voice trailed off in the distance as he hollered, "Why didn't you tell me. Wha-a-a-" He had entirely disappeared before police could catch him to reassure him that there was really no great danger, they said.

Hambone's Meditations

Right of Angler to Take Fish From Private Pools at Stake in Case Here

The first opportunity to test the constitutionality of the opinion issued Thursday by the state game department prohibiting taking of bass or crappie out of private as well as public water during March and April will be given in the near future as a result of the filing of a complaint Friday against J. R. Jones, charging him with having taken a bass less than 11 inches in length from the Guthrie tank near R. M. A.

The complaint alleges Jones caught the bass Friday in violation of the law quoted Thursday by E. A. Preskitt, deputy game warden stationed at Lake Wichita, who issued a warning to anglers that the state game department had interpreted the law to include all privately owner waters as well as public waters in that portion of the law specifying "the fresh waters of this state."

The charge against Jones is the first of its kind to have been filed this season, according to Wayne Somerville, county attorney. Trial of the case, officials said, will test both the constitutionality of including private waters in the game law and that of the length limit law, which sets a minimum of 11 inches for bass.

It was pointed out the Guthrie tank is not filled by public waters of the state, either by overflow or direct drainage, and that it was privately constructed, owned and stocked. Jones said Friday he would contend a man has as much right to catch fish in private tanks at any time of the year as he has to kill his own cattle when he so desires.

The opinion issued by the state game department said: "It would be only necessary for the prosecution to prove that the fish came from the fresh waters of this state, and it is our opinion that if the defendant failed to show that bass or crappie which were in his possession in this state actually came from waters without this state that he should stand convicted."

Irene Schroeder Voted Death In Electric Chair for Slaying Cop

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 21. (AP)—Death in the electric chair was the verdict returned by a jury here tonight in the case of Irene Schroeder, 21, tried for the slaying of Highway Patrolman Bready Paul.

The jury's decision was first degree murder, without mercy, which automatically carries the death penalty. The verdict was returned at 9:25 o'clock after the jury had retired at 6:44 p. m.

Mrs. Schroeder never flinched as the verdict was brought in. She did not even turn pale. Members of her family sobbed.

Among the spectators in the crowded courtroom many could be seen with handkerchiefs to their eyes. The blonde defendant sneered as she was led from the courtroom.

Mrs. Schroeder, known as the "blonde trigger woman," was brought here for trial after being captured with two men companions following a terrific gun battle in the mountains of Arizona.

Hoover Names N. Carolina Republican

Cleveland convention which nominated Calvin Coolidge for the presidency. Coolidge appointed him in 1925 as a circut judge, the post he has held since.

Parker is a member of the American Bar association and was endorsed by the associate justiceship widely by lawyers as well as other members of the judiciary. He is a trustee of the University of North Carolina and graduated from that university with honors, being elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He is an Episcopalian and a Mason.

Leanings Unknown

Parker was born at Monroe, N. C. He married Marie B. Maffit of Wilmington, N. C., in 1910. They have three children, one son and two daughters.

With what group Parker will be aligned on the supreme bench—the conservative element or the liberal minority headed by Oliver Wendell Holmes—is not known. He is not definitly connected with any corporation practice, which was the argument raised against Hughes, as far as senatorial observers know.

While Parker's views are not known here, he was not among the outstanding men of progressive stamp who were urged by liberals for the post.

President Hoover was besieged by the South for the place and some Democrats were urged for the appointment.

Senate leaders indicated there will be no serious opposition to the confirmation of Judge Parker, such as that which swept over the senate recently in the case of Chief Justice Hughes. The insurgents expressed themselves as satisfied with the "liberality" of his views.

Norris, Borah Comment

The comment of Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee, who led the insurrection against Mr. Hughes was typical. He said:

"What I know of Judge Parker is all favorable."

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, said:

"All I know about Parker is very favorable."

Norris said the usual procedure will be followed. A judiciary subcommittee will be appointed next Monday to consider the nomination. Unless protests are made necessitating hearings, the nomination will be reported to the senate for action the following Monday.

Judge Refuses Woman's Petition for Fourth Divorce

Because he thought "the law had been pretty good" to her already, Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court Friday refused to grant a woman what would have been her fourth divorce.

The woman, Judge Martin said, has been granted three divorces previously, two from one man and one from another "between times."

Bristow's Son To Mazatlan

Bandit Emissary Expected In Tepic

EL PASO, March 21. (AP)—Impatient at the delay in negotiations with Mexican bandits who hold his father, J. E. Bristow, captive near Tepic, Nayarit, Mexico, Gordon Obie Bristow of San Angelo left tonight for Nogales, Ariz., where he will enter Mexico en route to Mazatlan.

He had not decided, when he left whether he would go from Nogales by plane or train, his decision still depending upon the result of negotiations being carried on by the Mexican and American governments for the elder Bristow's release.

No word was received here today from Earl Eaton, vice consul, who went to Tepic to investigate, but unofficial reports here said that an emissary from the bandit gang was expected at Tepic momentarily.

C. C. McDonald, in an eulogy on the late Chief Justice Taft, said that he will be remembered as the most beloved man in the White House since the civil war.

Taft was the greatest man ever admitted to the bar and in every case in which state and federal powers clashed he upheld the central government, McDonald stated.

Retiring officers of the bar are Tarlton Marrow, president, J. B. Hatchet, vice president and W. S. Bass, secretary and treasurer.

Bratton Talks At Episcopal Mission

"There is no force in life stronger than public opinion," said the Rt. Rev. Theodore D. Bratton, bishop of Mississippi, to a large congregation Friday night, during the mission services which he is conducting at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

"It is public opinion that when in Rome do as the Romans do. Should we do only as they do, never giving a thought for the betterment of Rome? Let us try to live up to public opinions, and still try to do good wherever we are.

"We've got to go forward or backward, there is no such thing as standing still. Once after a sermon a man came to me and said, 'Your sermon makes me wish that I was back in the church.' When I questioned him, he said that he was a young lawyer and he felt that he should spend his Sundays studying and making notes so that he might provide clothes, food and an education for his children. In doing that he was letting their souls wander away, standing still, until he could take them back into the church."

"We get out of life just what we put into it, and when we face our maker we will get just interest."

There will be no services Saturday night but Sunday morning the regular services will be held at 10 o'clock.

practice, after we have settled the matter, to jump it up again when senators have gone home to sick beds when they believe it is settled."

He referred to the reoffering last night by Senator Pine, Republican, Oklahoma, of his amendment for a rate of 40 cents a barrel on crude oil and 20 per cent ad valorem on petroleum by-products, which was defeated Wednesday night by 32 to 28 and again last night without a roll call.

The same amendment was the one rejected by a single vote today, while Senator Thomas, Oklahoma, previously had lost two tries at $1 a barrel and 50 per cent.

To compensate manufacturers using long staple cotton for increased costs due to the tariff of seven cents a pound, recently voted on this product, the senate tonight approved a duty of 10 cents a pound on all products made from cotton of a staple of 1⅛ inches and over.

The cotton textile rate went through without a word of debate.

Without a record vote, a proposal of Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, for a duty of 4 cents a pound on short staple cotton was rejected.

The 10 cents a pound duty on products made from long staple cotton would be in addition to the duty provided in the bill on such products.

Artist Denies Part in Murder

one of them—in order to make a success of my career, and this has been the result.

Marchand is 52, gray-haired and distinguished looking. He was born on Aug. 23, 1877, the son of a noted French inventor and a countess. He achieved fame in Paris as a sculptor, having won numerous medals, including the Grand Prix.

Lila was his model. She posed for him on a reservation 30 miles from Buffalo. She is 36 years old. The artist's wife, who was brutally beaten to death, was 50 and, like her husband, an artist of high caliber.

"It was my wife, not Lila, whom I loved," said Marchand. "For 32 years my wife and I lived together. I have been interested to some extent with other women, I will admit, but always I went back to my little wife. She was not only my wife—she was my pal.

"I cannot conceive how anyone could entertain the suspicion that I could be in any way connected with the death of my wife. Why, she was so dear to me; it is unbelievable that I would want the slightest harm to befall her. She was so sweet. She was a little thing. She weighed only 90 pounds.

"I am a greatly wronged man. Certainly I had nothing whatever to do with my wife's death."

Asked if it were not a fact that he was the author of several "My dear Lila" letters, Marchand frankly admitted he was and quickly made this explanation:

"Lila was a consumptive, one of her lungs were gone. She knew she never would get well. She used to say she did not care whether she lived or died. I urged her to go to the doctor and told her if she could not afford to pay him I would. When I wrote those letters I was merely trying to cheer her up."

In one of the letters, Marchand wrote to Lila:

"I would be a fool if I did not have realized long ago that you were a very rare and exceptional type of Indian girl. This is not flattery and I mean every word I say. On the other hand, it may sound conceited on my part to say that you would have to go quite far to find another man who would appreciate you better or more than I do or could understand you better."

Marchand also wrote that "the main fact is that we understand each other and we are not children any more."

"Do you love Lila?" Marchand was asked by the writer.

His lip curled.

"Love her?" he replied. "Bah! There never was any real love between us. My wife was my only love. Maybe that was one reason for the crime. I don't know but maybe Lila realized that the only woman in the world I could ever love was my wife. After a man lives with a woman for 32 years it is even more than love. There comes a perfect understanding."

Marchand was informed that Lila had said he "dominated" her. This he denied by implication, asking: "If I did dominate her would she have been going into the forest and practiced witchcraft? I never was superstitious and never had anything to do with witchcraft. I don't believe in it."

"Lila was just a good friend," was the way the noted artist explained his romance with the Indian girl. He said he could not deny he had an "affair" with her, that he took her on sunset drives through the woods of the reservation in his automobile. He was painting and sculptoring Indian scenes at the time and had a cabin within a stone's throw of Lila's home.

The artist constantly reverted to his dead wife. He told how he had raised five children, three boys and two girls, and asked:

"If I was not innocent would my children be coming to me now and asking me to bear up in my trouble?"

"When I get out of this trouble," he declared, "I'll go back to my art. I've got to. I must work in order to forget. I'm going to lavish all I have left on my son, Henri Jr., who is now 12 years old.

"I shall always miss my wife. She was my best critic. Always when I finished a piece of work, whether it was for the museum in Buffalo, or Albany, or Springfield, Ill., she would criticize it, and she was quite capable of doing so. To me her criticism was priceless."

"I have only one thought at present and that is to clear myself," Marchand declared. "At first I wanted to kill myself. I know the defense at the trial is going to try and blacken my character but I am prepared.

"I will be glad to take the witness stand. I am a victim of circumstances and if it were not for my children, who believe in me, I would find it very hard indeed to bear up. But I am going through with it now."

POWDER BLAST FATAL TO TRIO

Army Officer and Two Civilians Killed in Arsenal

DOVER, N. J., March 21. (UP)—A mixing machine containing a small amount of smokeless powder exploded in one of the central buildings of the United States army's Picatinny arsenals today, taking the lives of an army officer and two civilians.

Capt. J. B. Fidlar, 38, graduate of Ames college, Iowa, was one of the victims. The others were Frank Stevens Jr. and Stephen Deevey, both of Wharton, N. J., and both employed at the arsenal.

Three men were injured but will recover. They are Edward Goldsworth, George F. Gordon and P. I. Kasske, all of Wharton. They are in the Dover general hospital.

Seven men were gathered about the machine, observing an experiment on a new process for mixing gunpowder, when the blast came. Capt. J. A. Rogers of the ordnance department, was knocked down but was not injured.

The explosion occurred a short distance from the navy arsenal, which adjoins the army's, where in July, 1926, 20 lives were lost in a terrific explosion.

Fireproof construction of the building in which the mixing plant is located and the absence of any considerable quantity of explosives in the room prevented a worse disaster.

Captain Fidlar served with the field artillery during the world war. He was attached to the ordnance department and is survived by his widow.

Stevens was operating the machine when the explosion occurred, it was said. Deevey was an engineer.

a cut downward in the murders around here."

"Murders? Why, I'm the most peaceable gent you ever saw," exclaimed Capone. "Murders? Why, I never bother anybody."

Capone had a few unpleasant moments in his series of calls when Deputy Police Commissioner Stege warned him that if he stayed in Chicago, detective squads would annoy him with repeated arrests.

"What I want you to do is to get out of town and stay out," said Stege. "I'll have my men arrest you every time you appear on the streets as long as you stay here."

"Will you?" asked Thomas D. Nash, Capone's attorney who accompanied him. "If you do we will file civil suit and stop you."

"I'm going to live in Chicago and attend to my business," said Capone. "I'm coming back here after I make a short trip to Miami."

"How did you get in town after leaving the penitentiary without being identified along the way?" Capone was asked.

"I drove in. I made a lot of stalls. I made reservations on the Broadway Limited. I hired an airplane. All that sort of thing. Then I bunked overnight in Philadelphia and started out by automobile the next day. I got in Chicago yesterday. I've been at a friend's house."

PANHANDLE OIL HEARING HELD

Commission to Rule on State Proration Soon

PAMPA, Texas, March 21. (AP)—The state railroad commission was expected to rule within three weeks on whether evidence taken at a hearing today was sufficient to warrant the state taking over the pro-ration of production in flush oil pools of the Texas Panhandle.

Commissioner C. V. Terrell adjourned the hearing held by himself and R. D. Parker, chief supervisor of the state oil and gas division.

Chief witnesses on the side of state supervision heard late today were Jack Davis, scout for the Humble company, and E. V. Foran, petroleum engineer of Wichita Falls.

Davis said it would be necessary to store oil in wasteful earthen storage unless production was curbed, and Foran testified that there was underground waste which the state ought to prevent.

Independent operators, joined by Gulf and Magnolia, offered witnesses whose testimony tended to show no waste existed, and that therefore the state had no jurisdiction. Both sides admit there is no physical waste above ground now.

The independents who testified included Harry McGee, Ed R. Mayer, W. H. Holmes, and W. D. McIntyre of Amarillo and Mel Davis of Pampa. Five hundred persons heard the testimony and lawyers for both sides participated.

Joe Danciger of Fort Worth voiced the opposition of the independents when he said he did not know of any physical waste in the field and then attacked the "faithlessness" of the major companies in failing to abide by the old proration agreement. He feared proration would nullify benefits of the pipe line regulation law recently passed by the legislature.

Fairfield Girl Held in Hiding

had taken her to a place where she would be safe from further attack and where she could receive needed medical attention.

The first indication of progress made in the investigation came from W. V. Geppert, county attorney, who admitted officers had under consideration three theories.

"If one of these is established, there will be a special grand jury term," he said. "Otherwise," he added, "the regular grand jury will handle the case next month."

Ranger Sergeant J. B. Wheatley and Ranger B. M. Gault, ordered here by Gov. Dan Moody upon request of Sheriff K. J. H. Eubanks, arrived last night and examined the hotel room where Miss Jones was found bound to a burning bed.

The woman was reported to have clung to the story told shortly after the burning episode.

G. S. Moore, Oakwood, Texas, business man, charged with assault to murder and arson, claimed he had been framed by persons who wanted to extract money from him. He has a wife and a child.

Miss Jones had been lodged in jail here Saturday on a charge of forging Moore's name to a $250 check, which she claimed was used to pay for an operation she had undergone several months ago. She said she had known moore for several years, and that she had signed his name to other checks and he had not objected.

The rangers questioned Miss Jones and all those who might know something of the affair.

Admitting that some progress had been made, Geppert said he hoped to see the investigation ended this week, adding that all theories, including that of self-imposed bonds, were being investigated.

Moore today declared that he scarcely knew the girl whom he accused of forging his name to checks, with which she paid for an operation in a Teague hospital.

Whirring Band Saw Frees Frog From Giant Elm Trunk

WEST HELENA, Ark., March 21.

Fifty rings of wood
Wound around a frog
Tell how long it stood
Imprisoned in a log.

A big elm tree was brought to mill here today. As it started through a whirring band saw, out jumped a tree toad.

Around a hole which had been its prison were 50 rings. Mill men counted a ring a year and concluded the frog had been there a half century.

They said it probably crawled into the tree when it was young and nature started a sealing process that made a prisoner of the toad.

W. C. Chavey, a sawyer, found the frog. Another slice of the saw would have been fatal to it.

A. D. Adams, an official of the mill, said he would present the toad and a section of the log to the Phillips county museum.

Choice of Great Ideals Is Cause Of Greatness, Says Dr. Goodrich

"The cause of greatness in every life is the choice of great ideals," Dr. Robert E. Goodrich told a large assembly at the First Methodist church Friday night in a sermon on "How to Achieve Greatness of Character." Doctor Goodrich, pastor of the First Methodist church of Shreveport, La., is in Wichita Falls to assist Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the church here, in a two-weeks revival which will reach its midpoint Sunday.

His sermon Friday night was taken from Psalms 16:8: "I have set the Lord always before me: because He is at my right hand, I shall not be moved."

"No great character or life is ever an accident," Doctor Goodrich said. "It is the working out of the great laws of cause and effect. Circumstances may be thrust upon us but they cannot make us great. The saying supposed to have been written by Shakespeare, 'Some men are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them,' is only one-third true, in that some men achieve greatness.

"Great ideals are as necessary in the greatness of life as a blueprint is necessary to the building of a great temple like this in which we worship."

Doctor McKenney announced Friday night there would be no services Saturday at the church but Doctor Goodrich will preach at the regular Sunday worship and through the following week.

DOHENY JURY TO GET CASE

Judge to Deliver Charge Early Today

WASHINGTON, March 21. (AP)—The charge that Edward L. Doheny bribed a cabinet officer to obtain oil leases will be given into the hands of a jury of nine men and three women tomorrow.

Two days of arguments by counsel ended tonight. Judge William Hitz of the District of Columbus supreme court deferred until tomorrow the delivery of instructions to the jury.

The last two days the multimillionaire has sat in court and heard himself alternately condemned as a man who paid $100,000 to Albert B. Fall to influence him to award Doheny's company a lease to the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, and praised as a blameless man who loaned the money to an old friend in need.

The arguments ended in an impassioned appeal by Frank J. Hogan, of defense counsel, that his client be acquitted, and a calm recital by Owen J. Roberts, special government prosecutor, of the federal evidence.

Roberts told the jury the evidence in the case "makes out beyond doubt" that Doheny had given Fall the money with intent that the secretary of the interior should be influenced by it to award his company leases.

PASTOR RAPS POMP WORSHIP

Churches Stress Ceremony Too Much, He Says

"We are given too much to the worship of pomp and glory. We are worshiping ceremony instead of God," Rev. C. W. Thomas pastor, told an assembly at the Grant Street Methodist church Friday night in one of his sermons in connection with the revival services now being conducted at the church.

"Nineteen hundred years ago Paul wrote to the Galatians what might now be written to the churches of Wichita Falls. 'Be not deceived. God is not mocked.' The devil wants us to be respectable. He wants nice clean sign boards—just leave God out. That is his first approach. So we have many of his servants in our churches. They attend but are not interested in what happens. As we sow so shall we reap. If we sow chaff, so shall our harvest be."

Special music was provided Friday night by a choir of more than 100 juniors of the church. Interest was reported to be growing rapidly in the revival services and a large congregation was present Friday night.

At the Sunday school services beginning at 9:45 o'clock Sunday morning, the Rev. Mr. Thomas will conduct a special service. His sermon for the morning worship will be "The Forks of the Road." He will speak Sunday night on the subject, "The Last Chance."

WE DON'T SUGGEST ICE WATER, BUT . . .

—it's entirely true that you can use White King in cool or lukewarm water and still get quick, rich suds—thorough cleansing. Never again need you irritate the skin of tender hands with scalding water.

White King Granulated Soap is light, and fine, and surpassingly pure. That's the reason: It dissolves instantly, does its work quickly, and then swiftly rinses away. It can't injure anything that water won't injure—you will find that it leaves lingerie soft and smooth, heavy woolens fluffy.

Because White King is condensed, a little goes a long, long way. A teaspoonful for the wash basin, a cupful for the washing machine. You won't need more. Sold by your grocer.

SPRING FEVER JUST LAZINESS

Medics Deprecate So-Called Sickness

By HENRY MINOTT

BOSTON, March 21 (UP)—Spring fever commands about as much respect from the medical profession as does the Jew's harp in the world of music.

Seeing the sources of that funny feeling one experiences on the heels of winter, an inquiring reporter, on this first day of spring, held consultation with a medical school professor, a psychologist, and an old family doctor.,

The consensus seemed to be that in the history of medicine, spring fever would find its place somewhere between hay fever and fallen arches, in the event that it received any attention at all.

"I think spring fever is purely psychological," said Dr. Reginald Fitz, associate professor of medicine at Harvard Medical school. "It's just man's reaction to the workings of nature. When the sap begins to run and the grass starts getting green, man just naturally gets lax and lazy. I don't think there are any physical changes to account for the condition. Spring fever is simply a convenient name for a certain type of laziness."

Blames Psychology

Professor Wayland F. Vaughan of the psychology department of Boston university thought spring fever could be traced to psychology, but he guesses physical condition also might have something to do with it.

"You realize suddenly that winter is over; that there will be no more coal or snow to shovel; that you can shove the cough syrup way back on the shelf; that your winter wraps can go to the moth balls," he observed, "that's enough to give anybody spring fever."

Dr. Melvin T. Stone, who has been practicing medicine more than a half century in the little village of Troy, N. H., was asked what sort of treatment he had found effective in spring fever cases. There was nothing psychological about his answer. Figuratively speaking he reached for a prescription blank and wrote:

"A generous dose of sulphur and molasses."

Pride of German Fleet Promises New Speed Mark for Ships

The Europa, giant sister ship of the record holding Bremen.

BERLIN, March 21. (INS)—Tearing through the green foam of the Atlantic at a clip which promises a new record crossing of the ocean, the new 50,000-ton North German Lloyd liner had covered approximately 530 miles at noon (ship time) today. The Europa crossed the 500-mile mark when she was 19 hours out from Cherbourg. It was understood the vessel was meeting with strong headwinds and heavy weather. The mileage covered thus far indicates an average speed in excess of 27 knots. If this speed is maintained, the Europa should easily beat the present crossing record, now held by her sister-ship, the Bremen. On her first day out from Cherbourg on July 18, 1929 the Bremen covered only 288 miles. This was due to the fact she encountered heavy storms and a danse fog.

Former Banker's Hobby of Pulling Women's Teeth Gets Him in Jail

ST. LOUIS, March 21. (INS)—An elderly man who says he is a former bank official of Springfield, Mo., and who claims that his hobby is dentistry is being held here today following charges of a local young woman that he pulled three of her teeth two years ago after offering to clean them free of charge.

The man gave his name as William Bentley, 60, of Springfield.

The young woman is Mrs. Mildred Ranking, 27.

A warrant charging practice of dentistry without a license was issued.

Mrs. Rankin said that after she had been introduced to Bentley two years ago that he complimented her on her teeth saying "what marvelous teeth you have. Let me clean them for you. I won't charge you anything. I am an experienced dentist."

Mrs. Rankin said she consented but that instead of cleaning her teeth he pulled three of them before she was aware of his intentions she said.

Mrs. Rankin declares that she had not seen Bentley again until two days ago, when she encountered him on the street.

Rankin was seized. A kit of dentist's tools and several teeth which Bentley says were taken from the mouths of three Joplin, Mo., women were found in Bentley's hotel room, authorities declare.

Escaped Convict Leaves Pal's Body at Farm House After Pair Shoot Guards

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 21. (AP)—Four hours after Thomas Barnes and Lee Hudgens shot and wounded two guards and escaped from Speigner prison early today, Barnes' body was left by Hudgens at the home of H. C. Swaringen here.

A bullet had pierced Barnes' heart, but the manner in which he was shot was a mystery to officers. Swaringen said that after dumping the body on the floor in the kitchen, Hudgens drove off in an automobile without explanation. Fearing Hudgens was armed, Swaringen said he made no effort to molest him. Hudgens' family resides but a block from Swaringen.

The pistol with which Barnes shot B. F. Baltzer and J. D. Richardson, guards at the prison, was believed to be in possession of Hudgens, together with a quantity of ammunition.

Reports reaching the county jail here were that Barnes had engaged county officers, headed by Sheriff John L. Scogin, in a pistol battle.

South Plains Expands Its Poultry Interests

Special to The Record News

LUBBOCK, Texas, March 21.—The installation of brooding plants in connection with hatcheries on the South Plains is one of the outstanding developments this spring in the poultry raising industry in this section, J. R. Newman of Lubbock, secretary-treasurer of the South Plains Hatchery association, said today upon his return from a trip over the territory.

This increase in brooding facilities comes from a greater demand from the poultry raisers of the section for chicks that are a few weeks old, over the demand for day old chicks.

WOMAN FACES ARSON CHARGE

Ten Persons Escape From Rooming House Fire

HOUSTON, March 21. (AP)—A charge of arson was filed against Mrs. Nell Stout, 31, today after a fire a few houts earlier in which some 10 persons were routed when a hole was burned in the side of a combination cafe and rooming house. Mrs. Stout was held in jail.

The cafe where the fire started was operated by Dan Kliesing. Mrs. Kliesing said Mrs. Stout and a sailor entered the Kliesing cafe between 9 and 10 o'clock last night and raised a disturbance. Police were called and the Kliesings filed charges of intoxication and disturbing the peace against Mrs. Stout.

"Mrs. Stout threatened to return and burn down the cafe," Mrs. Kliesing told a reporter. "Early this morning we were asleep in the living quarters above the cafe when we were awakened by a shout of 'fire' down in the street. Eight roomers and my husband and myself rushed down."

Slaying of Bride Halts Honeymoon

SHREVEPORT, La., March 21. (UP)—Tragedy supplanted the anticipated honeymoon of Roy L. Delatte and his bride of a day, both 21 years old.

Delatte persistently repeated his original statement that his wife shot herself while they were celebrating the nuptials with a drinking party. He said he was in an adjoining room giving his sister-in-law a drink, an allegation which the relative denied.

NORMAN, Okla., March 21. (UP)—Thousands of students, alumni and teachers of Oklahoma university paid their last tribute today to their beloved dean—Dr. James Shannon Buchanan.

Funeral services for Buchanan, university vice president who died early yesterday of heart disease, were conducted today from the university auditorium. Dr. W. B. Bizzell, university, read the funeral service.

Active pallbearers were Dr. E. E. Dale, Emil R. Kraettli, Dr. Gayfree Ellison, H. L. Muldrow, Dr. D. W. Griffin and Dr. S. W. Reaves, all of Norman.

The body of the man who served as president of the university through two of its most perilous years lay in state today from 10:30 to 12 o'clock.

Junior and senior students of the university R. O. T. C. stood guard over the casket and formed an escort when the funeral procession moved toward the cemetery.

The flag in front of the administration building flew at half mast in memory of the man who had played such an important role in building the school from a single building to the large and modern institution of today.

All classes were dismissed.

Buchanan had been in ill health for about two years and two weeks ago his condition became critical when he suffered another severe attack.

The pioneer educator, who was 65, is survived by his widow, two sons, William Buchanan, student in the university, and James Buchanan, Barnsdall, Okla., and one daughter, Mrs. Frances Toombs, Chicago.

Buchanan joined the history department faculty of the university in 1895 after being an instructor for a brief period in Central State Teachers' college, Edmond.

He served as acting president of the University about two years, until Dr. W. B. Bizzell was named to succeed Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, who resigned. He was then made vice president.

Mrs. Dawson Explains Proper Methods Of Preparing Chicken for Cooking

Recipes Given for Stuffing, Dressing, Giblet Gravy and for Attractive Garnishes

By MRS. ARCH DAWSON, B. S., M. A.
Written Especially for The Record News Food Page

In spite of the fact that a chicken, as purchased on foot, is about three-fourths waste, it is universally popular and in many homes it appears Sunday after Sunday as the piece de re'sistance. The muscle of chicken contains little fat and the fat that exists is in layers directly under the skin and around the intestines. The fibers of the muscles are short. Chicken is easily digested due to the above reasons. The white meat contains less fat than the dark, hence it is more easily digested. The word "chicken" is applied to birds of all ages, but on the market they are listed with their weight as follows:

Fowl—Dry picked, 3 to 4 pounds; dry picked, milk fed, 4 to 6 pounds.
Cocks—Dry picked, 4 to 6 pounds.
Capons—4 to 8 pounds.
Roasting chickens—Milk fed, 3 to 5 pounds; corn fed, 3 to 5 pounds.
Fryers—2½ to 3½ pounds.
Broilers—Squab chickens, ¾ to 1¼ pounds; milk fed, 1½ to 2 pounds.

Roast Chicken

Dress, clean, stuff and truss a chicken. Place on its back on rack in a dripping pan, rub entire surface with salt and spread breast and legs with three tablespoons butter rubbed until creamy and mixed with two tablespoons flour. (Breast may be covered with thin slices of bacon). Dredge bottom of pan with flour. Place in a hot oven or one that registers 450 degrees F., and when flour is brown reduce the heat to 350 degrees F. Put in the pan a bit of bayleaf, three small sliced onions, a sprig of parsley, three stalks celery, and one-fourth cup butter which has been melted in one and one-half cups boiling water. Baste every 10 minutes until chicken is cooked if an uncovered roaster is used. During cooking turn chicken frequently, having the breast up at the last. If a thick crust is desired, dredge chicken with flour two or three times during cooking. If a glazed surface is preferred, spread bird with butter, omitting flour, and do not dredge during baking. When breast meat is tender, the chicken is sufficiently cooked. A four-pound chicken requires about one and one-half hours.

Place chicken on its back. Cross the legs and put a skewer between the leg bones and the second joint, through body and joint on the other side. Lay the wings flat and put another skewer through them to hold them down. Then take a long piece of string; tie the ends of the legs together and wind string around and fasten them to the tail. Then wind the ends of the string fastened to the tail around the ends of the skewer beneath the legs. Cross the strings over the back, and wind them around the ends of the skewer through the wings; tie the strings together at the back. If trussed in this manner, there is no string across the breast of the chicken. Remove skewers and strings before serving.

While the chicken is roasting, cook giblets, neck and tips of wings in enough cold water to cover. (These may be cooked in the oven.) At the same time the chicken fat may be tried out in a small pan in the oven for use after straining.

Stuffing No. 1

Melt ¾ cups butter or chicken fat in 3 cups scalded milk and pour over 2 cups soft bread crumbs mixed with 2 cups corn bread crumbs. Add 2 slightly beaten eggs and season with 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper and 2 teaspoons poultry seasoning or sage.

Dressing No. 2

One cup chopped cooked meat (chicken, veal, ham or tongue), 3 cups bread crumbs, chopped parsley, 1 chopped onion (small), salt, pepper, celery salt to taste.

Mix well and moisten the whole with good stock. Mushrooms sauted and chopped improves any stuffing.

Giblet Gravy

Pour off the liquid in the roasting pan. From the liquid skim off 4 tablespoons fat and return it to the pan and brown it with 4 tablespoons flour. Add 2 cups stock in which the giblets, neck and tips of wings have been cooked. Chop giblets and add to the gravy and cook five minutes. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Chicken Hyeres (One-Dish Course)

On rounds of hot buttered toast place two thin slices of crisp bacon, crosswise. Arrange on each a neat serving of fried, broiled or cooked chicken, and add thin slices of small tomatoes dipped in French dressing. Garnish with rounds of fried hominy and little piles of asparagus over which has been poured melted butter or mock Hollandaise sauce. Rounds of the fried hominy are very nice when substituted for the toast.

Attractive Garnishes for Chicken

Watercress with French dressing.
Golden brown potato balls.
Buttered, seasoned rice, dry and fluffy.
Saute'ed rings of pineapple.
Baked bananas with butter and lemon juice.
Saute'ed mushroom caps.
Oysters wrapped in bacon, saute'ed.
Celery heart and radish roses.
Triangles of thin fried, seasoned hominy.
Small savory corn fritters.
Sauted fingers of sweet potatoes.
Broiled tomatoes, with watercress.

Sunday Menu

Breakfast—Orange juice, raisin bran, cream, sugar, codfish souffle, popovers, butter, marmalade, coffee, milk.

Dinner

Grapefruit cocktail, statler capon, dressing, gravy, mint glazed carrots and peas, cranberry relish, grape jelly, Parker house rolls, butter, cider salad, high cream pie, coffee.

Supper

Creamed minced ham with mushrooms on toast or chicken al a king, buttered toast, spiced figs, stuffed celery, fruit salad, sunshine cake, cocoa or milk.

RECIPES
Codfish Souffle

One quart milk.
One teaspoon salt.
Three eggs.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One cup rice.
One cup shredded codfish.
One tablespoon butter.

Steam well washed rice in salted milk in a double boiler until tender, about 50 minutes, uncovering toward the last. Stir the carefully shredded fish, butter and beaten egg yolks into the hot rice, then cool and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees F. for 20 minutes. Codfish souffle may be served at lunch.

Statler Capon
(A hen might be used)

Roast a capon as suggested for chicken, and when almost done cut boiled ham in one-fourth inch thick kite-shaped pieces, and put in the pan with the chicken until heated through. Melt three tablespoons butter, add two tablespoons flour and stir until smooth; add liquid strained from roasting pan after removing most of the fat, with enough top milk to make one and one-half cups. Stir until sauce boils. Season to taste with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Just before serving add two beaten egg yolks. Carve the capon, put a slice of white meat and a slice of dark meat on each slice of ham and gravy over the chicken. Garnish the platter with the ham slices, parsley, and thin slices of unpeeled small oranges, with a cube of grape jelly on each.

Minted Carrots and Peas

Four cups diced carrots.
One-half cup butter.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One No. 2 can peas.
One tablespoon mint sauce.

Cook carrots in a small amount of boiling salted water 15 minutes and drain. Put in a sauce pan with butter and sugar. Cook until soft and glazed. Add mint sauce. Heat peas thoroughly and season with salt. Drain the liquid from the peas and turn on a very hot serving dish. Surround with carrots. Pour glazing liquid left from the carrots over the peas.

Mint Sauce

Add one tablespoon of powdered sugar to one-half cup mild vinegar. Heat slightly. Pour over one-fourth cup finely chopped mint leaves. Let stand about 30 minutes before using.

Cider Salad

One-fourth cup gelatin.
One-fourth cup cold water
One pint cider or ginger ale.
One-half cup lemon juice.
One-fourth cup sugar
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Three-fourths cup grapes, halved.
Three-fourths cup celery.
Three-fourths cup apples cut in cubes.
One-fourth cup Canton ginger.
One-half cup shredded pineapple.

Soften gelatin in the cold water and dissolve over hot water. Stirring rapidly pour the gelatin into

Office of

Bert Bean Coffee Co.

A Personal Letter from B. J. Bean

Wichita Falls, Texas, March 20, 1930

To the People of Wichita Falls and Surrounding Trade Territory

Dear Friends:

I came to Wichita Falls on June 12, 1884. On Sept. 28, 1889, My Father, O. W. Bean, and Myself opened a Grocery Store on Ohio avenue. At that time the coffee principally used in Texas was Rio, and as both My Father and Myself were lovers of good coffees We were not satisfied with the coffees We were selling. After making many experiments with the various brands of roasted coffees then on the market We decided to try to roast something better, and bought a Coffee Roaster which used Gasoline for fuel and was turned by My own strong right arm, as there was no other power available. Our coffee business increased immensely and as soon as Natural Gas was piped into Wichita Falls I went East and bought a Modern Gas Roaster and installed it in my Grocery Store at 608 Ohio avenue. In a few Years the Coffee business overshadowed the Grocery business and I moved to 824 Indiana avenue and opened the BERT BEAN COFFEE HOUSE, where I sold coffee and kindred lines at both wholesale and retail. In 1919 I built a modern fireproof plant at the corner of Sixth and Ohio and installed the most modern roasting and grinding machinery obtainable and since that time have kept it strictly up to date.

In all this time I have had only one object in mind, to produce the very best product possible and sell it in a territory that I could serve best.

There are in the World only so many different coffees, and as coffee is a commodity like wheat, corn, cotton, etc., they are available to everyone alike. I have made during all these years an intensive study of the coffee business, have visited the coffee growing countries and feel quite sure that I can, and do, produce as good a product as is possible, and if I were to be offered a Thousand Dollars for a pound of coffee I could not produce a better article than My "WHO CAN BEAT IT." You know of course that the sooner coffee is made after roasting the better it is, and the only way to have it fresh is from the roaster—all claims of vacuum packing notwithstanding. If Vacuum packed coffee is fresh coffee then a cold storage egg is a fresh egg. Now in so much as I am in a position to serve You better and as Mine is a Home institution and all My labor are Home owners and taxpayers, I do not think I am unreasonable in asking You to buy My product. I am selling many of the very best class of Hotels and Restaurants in Texas and Oklahoma and receive much praise for My product. I have sold Season after Season the largest Carnival Companies that travel the Southwest, shipping them in the States of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and California. If its good enough for them why not for You? I wish that next time You buy coffee You would try a pound of "WHO CAN BEAT IT." Its IN, OF and FOR WICHITA FALLS.

Yours for a more prosperous City,

B. J. BEAN.

Floral Heights Methodist Class Has Spring Party

Mrs. J. O. Presley's home was spring incarnate Friday afternoon when the Wesley Girls' class of Floral Heights Methodist church were entertained in their regular monthly business and social meeting with Mesdames W. L. DeValon, Curt Buddrus, A. W. Simmons, B. A. Minter and W. L. Stuckler associate hostesses with Mrs. Presley. Lilacs perfumed the air, and snapdragons, geraniums and ferns emphasized the spring color motif.

Mrs. Frank Elkins presided in an interesting business session. Mrs. C. M. Simpson offered the prayer and after stated business, Mrs Elkins' resignation was accepted as she is soon moving to Cleburne. Mrs. Ross Corlett was unanimously elected to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Elkins. Interesting reports were given by the following officers: Mrs. Earl Stuckey, vice president; Mrs. W. J. Stuckler, second vice president and Mrs. C. J. Green, treasurer. Mrs. J. O. Presley reported 149 visits made, $7.50 groceries to a worthy family and $5 in clothing to needy children. The committee reported that Mrs. C. M. Simpson is newly appointed assistant teacher. New group leaders named were Mesdames W. H. Costley, Van McPhail and J. W. Ford.

Mrs. C. M. Simpson made a beautiful talk on "Our Blessings" and Mrs. W. J. Stuckler had charge of the social hour in which a spring contest afforded much pleasure. Mrs. C. M. Simpson proved to be the best informed in the names of birds.

Jack Ernest of KGKO played Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." "Spring Time in Texas" and "Blue Ridge Mountain Home." Two lovely readings, "Bread and Jam" and "The Doctor," were given by Ruth Nathalee Stuckey.

Mrs. P. B. Cox announced that a great philosopher was present, after which Mrs. M. T. Clements, dressed as Aunt Het, and with all Aunt Het's humor and homely philosophy, gave all the merriment possible to the party.

A lovely spring refreshment plate was served to Mesdames C. M. Simpson, P. B. Cox, J. W. Ely, Alex Fisher, C. M. Goodwin, Craig Gardner, E. M. Crump, C. W. Poll, R. G. Cocanower, M. T. Clements, John Dobbs, W. W. Riley, O. M. Pierce, Ross Corlett, Annie Bowman, C. C. Piper, J. W. Ford, E. K. Kiddy, Perry Wright, D. M. Puckett, F. F. Thompson, Van McPhail, Earl Stuckey, C. J. Green, A. J. Newby, S. E. Trevathan, O. F. Marchman, R. L. Dillard, Paul Jett, R. J. Claypool and Charles Crowell.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

"He's it, we, them, those, they, how and us." Now that is the English used by the younger generation of the high school set. We heard it applied to a young gentleman who is soon to take part in a play.

We wonder if he knows it and feels slightly conceited about it. A boy of whom the girls think all these pronouns must have some conceit.

And if he continues to be all the same pronouns, he will make some poor girl a terrible husband. She will of necessity be a woman to fetch and carry.

Emerson's rule "What you are stands over you the while and thunders so I cannot tell what you say," does not apply to this specie of the male.

More to the point is the remark of Elsie McCormick, a New York World columnist, who says, "It may as well be admitted that the disease of the endocrine glands called genius, simply does not appear among women as frequently as it does among men. If one can find consolation in the thought, neither does idiocy."

Being a woman, we naturally take the part of the woman. Yet, in this time, there is so little difference in the way in which men and women are regarded.

Which makes us think of the coming census. We read that among the new questions to be asked is, "Do you really work?"

It all depends. Barrie says that nothing is really work unless you would rather be doing something else.

A trouble we can't explain to the census taker is that we may adore part of a work and not enjoy another part.

But what's the use of a woman trying to explain anything to the world?

Reading a review of the Maurois biography of Byron, we have a feeling that even back in that dark age of womanhood, (when she could do nothing but adore and be adored or vice versa), women got the heavy end of it.

Maurois distinctly states that the echo of Byron's escapades with women that comes so clearly down through the ages, were more the women's fault than Byron's.

But one thing is sure; he never ran away from the fair sex.

And another thing is certain now; many of those ladies who would supposedly have died of love of the beautiful poet, lived pleasant lives years after his death.

They did not have many features of social entertainment in those days in which men did not take part. Even "Kensington Teas" were not unknown to the stronger sex.

But in this century, a group of women alone can really have a great time, even if a male they know is "it, we, them, those, they, how and us."

Dorothy Advises Bored Couple To 'Break' for Time

Shall the Engaged Couple Who Are Already "Talked Out" Marry?—The Wife Who Must Choose Between Her Husband and Her Children; Husband-Snatcher.

Dear Miss Dix—We are a young couple contemplating entering the happy (?) estate of matrimony. We have been keeping company for two years. Now this is our problem: There are times when everything goes along smoothly and there isn't a cloud on our horizon; then the very next time we meet we haven't a thing to say to each other and we are wondering if this is a sign that we are becoming bored with each other. We are very much in love, so it is hard to understand how we can spend an entire evening without being able to think of a single subject to talk about. What do you think is the trouble?

—LILLIAN AND VAL.

Answer—You are fed up with each other. You have talked out. You are in the position of a married couple who have told each other everything they think and think they think; who have heard all of each other's stories and adventures and reminiscences until they know them by heart, and who are silent when they are together simply because they have nothing left to say.

What you need is to break away for a while and see something of other people. Get some fresh interests. Have some different experiences. Then when you meet of an evening you will have plenty to talk about.

I think that the greatest mistake that any man or woman can make, whether they are sweethearts or whether they are married, is to segregate themselves from the world and have no society but each other's.

If they do they are bound to bore each other to tears and to get on each other's nerves. We have to have other people and other interests to give the variety without which life is insupportable. We can no more stand an uninterrupted diet of a person's society than we can eat the same food day after day. We would turn in disgust from the most cleverly arranged menu, prepared by the finest chef, if we had it three days in succession, and we would weary of the society of the wittiest and most intelligent man or woman if we were marooned on a desert island and had nobody else to talk to.

Every young couple start out with the idiotic ambition of being all in all to each other. That is an impossibility. No human being can supply all of our spiritual and intellectual needs. A man may adore his wife and she may be sympathetic, understanding, kind and intelligent, but besides her he wants the companionship of other women at times, and particularly he wants men with whom he can talk men talk.

And no matter how much a woman loves her husband, nor what an oracle she esteems him, she wants women friends to whom she can tell the things a woman never says to a man, and who will take the same sort of heart interest in godets and pleats and the length of skirts that she takes.

So my advice to every young couple is not to try to make life a duet but a chorus. When you are courting don't spend all of your time in what the French call the solitude a deux, asking each other 'oose ducky daddle is 'oo, and how much does 'oo love 'oose booful boy or girl. Because if you do you will soon find that you are putting mighty little feeling into your love-

Gypsy Lore Makes Unusual Program For Travel Club

Mrs. W. W. Fraser was leader of the Travel club Friday morning in a delightful program on Scandinavia. As much of the subject matter was on gypsies, reading matter used was gypsy poetry and "The Story of the Gypsies," by Conrad Bercovici.

Mrs. Fraser in a paper on "Cartoons and Cartoonists," traced the history of cartoons from their origin in Holland and told their history in America. In Scandinavia, she said, cartoons are used more than in America and are more risque.

Mrs. John Thomas, speaking of Scandinavian gypsies and gypsy legends, told the stories given by the Rumanian, Konrad Bercovici, who had a gypsy nurse and whose parents allowed him, at the age of 12, to go on a tour with the gypsies.

Mrs. E. T. Duff talked on "Gypsy Poetry and Musicians Inspired by Their Music," quoting in the course of her talk, many beautiful gypsy verses.

An interesting paper comparing Scandinavians with Asiatics of today, written by Mrs. John Bonner, was read by Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin.

Members present were Mesdames T. M. Conrey, C. H. Clark, E. T. Duff, Arch Dawson, W. W. Fraser, Henry C. Fulcher, Ola G. Hamlin, Will McKemie, Homer Lee, John M. Martin, Ben G. Oneal, G. L. Shapard, John Thomas and one new member, who was voted in at the last meeting and present Friday for the first time, Mrs. C. A. Spragins.

Bridge Shower Friday Honors Recent Bride

A pretty week-end event was the miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. O. C. Moody Jr., on McGregor street Friday afternoon by Miss Bernice Taylor and Mrs. Virginia Holstead, who honored Mrs. George T. Putty Jr., a recent bride who was Miss Pauline Nichols before her marriage.

The home was beautiful with spring flowers, a motif of green and white being carried out in the decorations and in the refreshment plate. Tallies and score cards emphasized the spring coloring.

Mrs. Putty received many beautiful gifts. In the games, Mrs. Joe Lund was winner of high score and was presented with a handsome gift and Miss Bernice Taylor received second.

At the close of the games, a delicious refreshment plate was served to the honoree, Mrs. Putty and Mesdames Roberta Palmer, Grace Bentley, Ross Holstead, Joe Lund, Ula Lee Pendleton, Virginia Wheeler, Vera Metzger and Misses Estelle Holstead, Bernice Taylor, Thelma Scott, Cleo Barber and Catherine Myers.

EVIDENCE is fast accumulating to sustain the theory that Columbus discovered a senior, instead of a junior continent, when he bungled across the Atlantic and patronizingly called this a new world.

COURT CANDIDATE

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21. (UP)—Charles B. Wilson Jr., Pawhuska, has announced he is Democratic candidate for nomination for justice of the Oklahoma supreme court from the sixth judicial district. The district is composed of [illegible], Washington, Osage, Pawnee, [illegible], Payne and Kay counties.

"Chaplin to Make Silent Movies." Headline. How about Cal Coolidge for the board of directors?

Free Service From Washington

THE primary function of a daily newspaper is to provide for its readers the news of the day, a record of events the world over.

From the first principle, the daily press has grown and added various secondary functions, two of which are almost as necessary as its news service. These are to educate and to entertain.

In announcing the establishment of a free information bureau at Washington, under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin, The Record News opens a new door to its readers. Lying behind the news of today is the news of yesterday, and the day before, and of all previous days since the history of man began. Back of every news item is a question, or a hundred questions. The new Information Bureau, located at the national capital, is established to provide the readers of this newspaper with an answer to these questions behind the news, to open for them a door to the warehouse of facts where the knowledge of the past is stored.

The usefulness of this service will reveal itself from day to day both in material published in the paper and in the employment of the Information Bureau by readers who want questions answered and who find value in the maps and educational booklets distributed through the bureau. That it also has a great deal of entertainment value will become evident to those who read the "Answers to Questions" column and the articles which Mr. Haskin will contribute from Washington.

One other phase of this Information Bureau service is worth attention. While it is conducted by this newspaper for the use of the readers of the paper, it is located at Washington because it can there make use of the hundreds of facilities maintained by the federal government for the benefit of every citizen. Mr. Haskin and his assistants can answer all your questions, not out of their own opinion, but because they can consult such sources of knowledge as the great library of congress, or the many bureaus of the department of agriculture, or the extensive files of the bureau of the census, or the scientific data of the bureau of standards, or any one of hundreds of other public institutions maintained for the American people.

This service will bring the federal government closer to the people of our own city and state. Our new bureau at Washington should be a sort of public chamber of commerce for information and educational transactions between our readers and their government. It should develop a fuller comprehension of the scope and value of the federal government in its service to its owners and stockholders, the citizens of the United States.

With such hope of service the Information Bureau is thrown open to the readers of The Record News. The use which they make of it and the value they find in its free services will demonstrate whether it fulfills the promise with which its establishment has been undertaken.

Suburban Landscaping

A PROMINENT VISITOR from Europe recently remarked his astonishment at the promiscuous scattering of trash, junk and other refuse upon streets and highways in this country. This bit of careless untidiness, he said, was something which he could not understand about systematic, efficient America.

Wichita Falls did not need the timely speech of a European visitor to remind her of such a fact. The highways and other roads leading into this city bear frank and abundant testimony to the truth of the guest's observation. Satisfactory explanations of why our roadways and vacant lots are so littered with discarded matter are not as easily assembled as are evidences of our carelessness. Everything from obsolete motor cars to old safety razor blades line the roads near our cities in rusty and battered ensemble. Not often in low areas, where some filling-in service may eventually be rendered with the aid of our faithful wind, but on banks and hillsides which might otherwise assume a respectable appearance.

Perhaps we are so little removed, in point of time, from the pioneer era that complete prodigality of space is still quite natural in our behavior. Certain it is that almost any community in the country would afford suitable places for deposits of waste; or it could be destroyed. Rural sections adjacent to cities are not the only territories affected; some astute observer remarked that what New York had for dinner could be determined accurately by strolling about the parks and reading from the boxes, papers, scraps, etc., dropped casually and at will throughout the area.

Before a local club Wednesday a speaker said, "When creation was completed, God wrote His signature thereon in terms of beauty." Our visitor reminds us of the many blots which we smear daily upon that page.

A Hard Fight Well Fought

OKLAHOMA'S able senators, Elmer Thomas, Democrat, and W. B. Pine, Republican, thrice carried their fight for a tariff on petroleum and gasoline to the floor of the senate and thrice did they meet defeat. The big companies who produce oil in South America to be refined and marketed in the United States are in the saddle, but it isn't hard to imagine they are yearning to tighten the cinch a notch or two this morning in view of their one-vote victory over the small operators on the third tariff vote.

The Record News believes independent oil men are almost universally in favor of protection for petroleum. This paper knows there are many small producers who will not publicly announce their desire for a tariff but the most casual observer can determine the trend of sentiment.

The tariff fight undoubtedly is not over. When it is considered that the task appeared absolutely hopeless when Wirt Franklin led a delegation to the capital a few weeks ago to demand a "square deal for the little man" it would seem now that the tariff advocates can only be cheered by the results obtained by Mr. Franklin and the able senators from Oklahoma.

Unexpected obstacles were met, but one by one they were overcome until now victory for the tariff advocates seems only a matter of time. Some of the most determined opposition to the tariff reacted in favor of the protectionists, notably the Wall Street Journal's editorial warning small producers that their one hope of salvation was to bargain with big corporations for disposal of their holdings and "daring" legislators to oppose the will of the trusts.

WALTER WINCHELL
On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Why Columners Gray Young

Speaking as we were yesterday about the most fascinating part of doing a column (because it isn't routine work and you never know from where your next department is coming), last sundown proved to be the most interesting in our journalistic career. A renowned actress, f'instance, telephoned that she would enjoy having a chat about matters in general—business matters, of course—and she inferred that some of the blind paragraphs that have appeared here annoyed her. As a matter of reportorial fact, whenever we had her in mind her name always accompanied the article, but she was pleasant about it all, anyway.

The incident reminded us of a most amusing experience. Several months ago we prepared a yarn about Fannie Brice, long before she was wedded to Billy Rose, whose songs you've gone ca-razee about. The story didn't mention Fannie's name, but it dealt with her youthful blues-shooer, an effeminate lad, whom Miss Brice hired at a goodly wage just to keep her from being bored. In fact, Fannie wouldn't accept invitations to parties unless they also invited the chap who was an extraordinary entertainer and who could keep her merry when the parties lagged. It was also asserted that Fannie preferred him as escort because he could be depended upon not to paw her in taxicabs.

Well, what happened? Miss Brice never mentioned our paragraph nor did she complain to anyone about it. We merely identified the woman in the story by calling her a former Ziegfeld feature. The result of which was that Marilyn Miller and Edna Leedom haven't been friendly to us since.

After the actress called we were visited by Ted Healy and his booking agent, Mr. Healy coming to complain about a recent paragraph which was aimed at 700 vaudeville pirates. "You assume," we said to Ted, with whom we played on the same program 15 years ago, "that you were the one for whom it was intended?" Healy said that he couldn't believe we meant him, except for the fact that the paragraph stated the "material thief" got a wage of $5,500 weekly and got his material by thefting it from the other capable comedians who were beaten up if they complained. As a coincidence it appears Healy's weekly wage is $5,500. He vigorously denied, however, he was a gag gonof. And he hoped that something would be said here to that effect. Then we discussed numerous other vaudeville names who have been charged with joke-burglary, and from previous chatter with Ted about contemporaries who have stolen stuff from him and elevated themselves in vaudeville, he was convinced that the poke was not aimed at him.

But as a parting shot, Healy quipped: "Gee, I can't imagine why a guy like you should take a rap at actors for swiping. I was always under the impression that we thieves should stick together!"

And the Healy incident recalls a similar bout. Ever so long ago we complained about some of the Broadway show exploiters who were putting over spurious stories on newspapers. We told how they were using Park Row's "most gullible reporter" for their contact and that so long as we could expose things we would continue to do so for "the good of the craft."

That blind paragraph aroused a reporter, who immediately brought suit for slander, demanding $10,000 damages. The reporter "assumed" that he was Park Row's "most gullible reporter." Of course, the suit was dropped shortly after, but it spoiled our record for not having a libel or slander suit in our entire career, which is difficult to believe, we know, but it is so. It is safer, it appears, to publish names.

Then there was the time Billy Glason, a vaudeville favorite, called everyone's attention to the fact that some obscure rival had charged him with gag-burglary. Glason paid Variety $400 for a back page advertisement in which he denied the charge. "What's this thing about you stealing stuff?" we asked Glason when we met him.

"Can you imagine a bum like that accusing me of stealing?" almost wept Glason, "didn't you see his letter to the Variety editor last week?"

"No, I didn't know anything about it," we answered, "not until you called my attention to it with your page ad."

Among other things that have us stumped is—what if you do take those chain-letters seriously, and you forward nine copies to nine different people as the chain-letter demands? If you do so the first time, will hard luck pursue you if you ignore the thousands of others that come to your desk from absolute strangers and pests? For five years they have clogged up our waste basket, but now the fiends would have you believe that Lindbergh, Hoover, George B. Shaw and other famous people are complying with the "warning." At any rate we continue to wicker them, but we are getting apprehensive, really. Twice in the last two days we narrowly escaped injury, once when two cabs, in trying to get our fare, crowded each other onto the sidewalk, and again when we recently printed that "Most left-handed people are a little crazy."

A dozen readers wrote to the editor saying they wouldn't read the paper any more and several of them said they were so insulted that they would even matters in person. The line, of course, is an old myth, just as it is believed by some dopes that Chinese put mice in chop suey.

But more amusing is that we are a southpaw, and a little goofy.

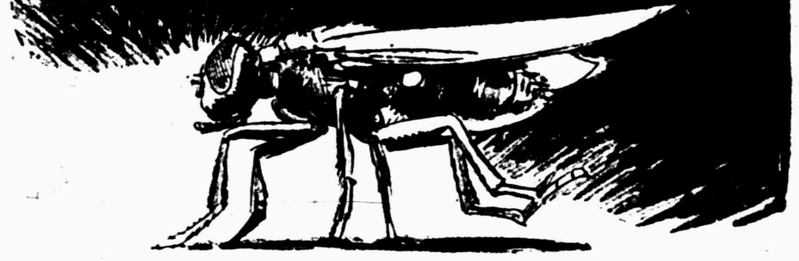

"Dear sap," writes an indignant Detroit reader. "Your idea of things you never knew till now is going to do some horrible damage some day. You stated recently that cigaret ashes and ginger ale will make a so-called potent drink and my girl and me nearly choked trying it. I hope you drop dead!"

The Girl With The Red Hair by Rob Eden

Can't you see how silly it would be to fall in love?

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Pretty Gay Terris agrees to marry her employer, Frank Patterson, whom she does not love, in return for a loan of $5,000 to send her sick mother to Arizona. One day she receives a card from a Paul Ladishaw, requesting to see her. He introduces her to Fania Crandall, prominent society woman, who resembles Gay. After due consideration, Gay accepts Mrs. Crandall's offer of $200 to represent her at the Van Schyler mask ball. Andy Grant, whom Gay met through an office companion, Nita Rollins, tells her he is going to the affair as press representative. At the ball she dances with Mark Loring, whom she casually met on another occasion and was attracted to, but is unable to reveal her identity because of her promise to keep silent. Returning to Mrs. Crandall's, her suspicion is aroused when she discovers a complete costume on Mrs. Crandall's bed which she remembers seeing at the ball. A valuable necklace is stolen at the masquerade and Andy Grant interviews all the prominent guests.

CHAPTER XV

"I tell you I don't like this at all!" Paul Ladishaw was indignant. He and Mrs. Crandall were talking very quietly in the latter's sitting room. "There was no need to get the girl mixed up in this in the first place. We could have managed without her!" His dark eyes flashed with anger, and his hand shook as he gripped the arms of his chair.

"How, pray? You must believe in miracles, Paul. Please don't be absurd," Fania leaned back, plainly exasperated. "The girl is all right—"

"How do you know? What proof have you?"

"Foolish—I can at least read human nature. She's all right, I say. High principled. She didn't suspect a thing."

"Don't be too sure of that."

"I've never failed before, have I, Paul, when I've picked someone? I'm not going to fail now. The girl's all right, do forget her. Or—" Fania scrutinized him more closely, and smiled, "or—do you like her a little too well?"

"You know I don't—but she's a sweet child. Just a child, Fania—"

"Since when are you worrying about morals?"

Paul seemed confused, and subsided in silence. His eyes still remained angry. Fania rose and patted him on the arm. "Don't, Paul. Can't you see how silly it would be to fall in love with her? Or won't you see it? How many times have I told you that you must not mix business with pleasure. Business first, then pleasure. But never together. You'll never learn the first rules of the game."

"I'm not falling in love with her—"

"Yet you want her protected, this child, this Gay Terris. You don't want her mixed up in this! What's that if it isn't love?"

"She's different, Fania. Clean, lovely—"

"This girl—there's nothing to worry about for her, Paul. The sooner you see it, the better. If she keeps quiet, everything will be fine. And she will, I think, if I know my types. I'm having her watched now. It won't do any harm. Yes, if she keeps quiet, she'll be fine—" Fania repeated her words to emphasize them. She was going to add a few more to make the sentence more positive, but something in Paul's eyes held her back. Well, if he wanted to be humored she would humor him. Paul was a valuable ally. She couldn't afford to antagonize him. But the remainder of the sentence she finished silently, herself. "If the girl talks—well, I'll fix her."

They plunged into a business discussion after that. By dinner time Paul was himself again, for which Fania was thankful. He had left, and she was dressing to go out when her maid brought in a card. Fania looked at it for some time. "Andrew Grant," and in one corner in smaller type, "reported for the New York Herald." Before she gave the maid directions for showing him in, she carefully fluffed out her hair.

Grant found her sitting down smoking a cigaret, a magazine in her hands.

"I can't imagine what you've come to see me about," she began when she was seated."

"I'm investigating the jewel robbery that occurred at the Van Schyler's last night, and I've got the job of seeing personally all the guests if it takes me a week. Getting statements from them—and so on."

"I read in the paper that the police were going to question us!" Fania laughed. "And I've been wondering what they would ask!"

"They are—eventually, I guess. You were at the party last night, Mrs. Crandall. I noticed your costume—"

"You were there?"

"Yes, I was there—covering the ball, and writing a Sunday feature story about it. But I didn't come here about that. I came here to find out why you left the party so early? The others, at least many of the others, stayed until 5 this morning. I was one of those who stayed."

"Why—" Fania seemed genuinely amazed, "how do you know I left early?"

"I got it from one of the servants—he described to me every person who left early. As near as he could remember you left at 12."

"You're a bright boy. I did leave early. I had a wretched headache, and the party was such a bore. These big parties are. Did you have a good time last night?"

"Well, it was all new to me, and I was very busy, of course."

"Oh—then you can't understand my being bored?"

"Perhaps I can. Other people left early, too. They must have gone for the same reason."

"Many other people?" Fania flicked her ashes on the rug as she spoke.

"Quite a few." He was looking at her hair. How like Gay's it was. Except that it was duller, not so beautiful. Short, curly, red hair.

Fania lifted a white hand to it. She had seen Andy's glance. "Did you see me at the ball last evening? I think you said you did."

"Yes, I did. I didn't know your name, but quickly found out who you were."

"Why?"

"On account of your hair, I guess. It reminded me of someone I know—"

Fania lighted another cigaret, slowly, very slowly. Her hand was steady as she did it, but her brain was moving quickly. Could it be that this Grant man knew Gay Terris? That she hadn't chosen wisely after all? It was too improbable—. First the other man, this morning. Mark Loring. That had been his name. Mark Loring. His card was on the table now. Loring hadn't told her the name of the girl he had mistaken her for. She hadn't asked him.

"Heavens!" Fania smiled, and crossed her knees. "Don't tell me that somebody else has hair as red as mine!"

"Very much like yours."

"Who is she?" Fania pretended to be very curious.

"Her name is Gay Terris."

Fania was a good actress. She did not betray herself. "And you thought she might be there?"

"Oh, no, she wasn't there. But your hair—well, you see, it reminded me of her—"

"I see," Mrs. Crandall nodded wisely. "Was there anything else you wanted? I have visitors coming in a very few minutes."

"Only one other question. Did you see anything suspicious last evening?"

"Nothing, Mr. Grant. But then I left so early. I suppose the real revelry came later. The party was very tame when I left. Boring."

"You didn't notice a woman in a Spanish costume who left at about the same time you did, did you?"

"No—I don't remember. Why?"

"Nothing, except that Mrs. Van Schyler can't figure out who she was."

"Mrs. Van Schyler has a marvelous memory to remember her at all, it seems to me. With all her guests. Why, the place was packed! Sheep. You could not move!"

"There was a servant who remembered the woman and called Mrs. Van Schyler's attention to her. The servant said the woman talked rather brokenly. With Spanish idioms. Mrs. Van Schyler can remember no Spanish guest."

"Will the guest list be printed?"

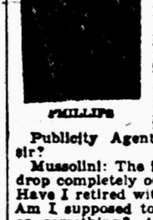

"Tomorrow, I think. I'm sorry I intruded, Mrs. Crandall, but I had to. It was nice of you to see me." Grant felt more awkward than ever in Mrs. Crandall's sitting room. The woman leaning back so indolently in her chair bothered him, and women usually didn't. She was so sure of herself. So much a woman of the world. He knew who she was, of course. He had made a business of finding out before his call.

An English woman. Highly connected in European society. She had been in New York about six months, having sublet this house where she was now living. New York society had accepted her gratefully, like

Mr. Mussolini Comes Back

Publicity Agent (appearing in response to an imperious summons): You sent for me, sir?

Mussolini: I'll say I sent for you! Where have you been for the past six or eight weeks?

Publicity Agent (a little embarrassed): I've been right around the palace, sir.

Mussolini: I thought of course you were in Tibet or Afghanistan or some place. Now just what's the idea?

Publicity Agent: Idea of what, sir?

Mussolini: The idea of letting me drop completely out of the picture? Have I retired without knowing it? Am I supposed to be playing dee i or something? Am I dictator of Italy, or just a couple of other fellows.

Publicity Agent: I guess you're dictator, all right.

Mussolini: Well, are you keeping it a secret? Can't we let somebody else in on it?

Publicity Agent: Sir, I - - -

Mussolini (hotly): I haven't had a good first page newspaper notice in three months. I understand in America my name hasn't been mentioned since Christmas. People everywhere are asking whatever became of me.

Publicity Agent: I was quite busy with the royal wedding, sir.

Mussolini: So I noticed. It was all right to make a big fuss over the happy couple, but it doesn't have to go on forever, does it? By standing aside for them I didn't give you the idea I never wanted to be heard from again, did I?

Publicity Agent: Indeed not.

Mussolini: And when interest in the wedding died down did you start boosting me again? You did not. All the notices have been going to the pope. Now get this straight . . .

Publicity Agent: Yes, sir.

Mussolini: I've got to be put back in the news again. I want first page stories again, and pictures and everything.

Publicity Agent: Of course, sir. What shall I say about you?

Mussolini: Say anything, but get me over in the manner to which I have become accustomed. You understand?

Publicity Agent: Yes, sir.

Mussolini: All right, get busy.

(The publicity man stands as if puzzled by something).

Mussolini: Well, what are you waiting for?

Publicity Agent: I just can't think of your name, sir.

Mussolini: Benito.

Publicity Agent: Oh, I remember your first name. I can't just think of the last one.

(Mussolini whips out a pistol and slays him).

Women in Business Get Blame for Unemployment

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21. (UP—The woman who has abandoned home life for the professions was blamed today for the cause of "millions of young men walking the streets in search of employment."

John Brown, president of the John Brown schools at Siloam Springs, Ark., said that the cause of the present unemployment crisis may be laid at the door of the educational system dominated by a group that believe woman has the same place in the business world as men. Brown is touring the country in an effort to substantiate his theory by observation. His statement was made at a civic club address.

"Young women of today who have had the advantages of higher education not only shirk the responsibility of making a home but frankly confess their distaste for the very thought of it," Brown said.

Old Bridge Contract Ruled Unauthorized

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21. (AP)—An opinion that the legislature of Chickasaw Indian nation was without authority to grant exclusive rights to the operation of a toll bridge over Red river in 1876 was delivered today by J. Berry King, attorney general, to Lew Wentz, chairman of the Oklahoma highway commission.

Wentz asked for the opinion, expressing belief that the act of the Indian legislature would be used in an effort to block construction of a free bridge across Red river between Durant, Okla., and Denison, Texas.

The act granted B. F. Colbert, citizen of the Chickasaw nation, exclusive bridge rights for five miles along Red river.

making, and that kind of conversation gets as nauseating as living on chocolate creams.

Go around with your crowd. Dance with other girls and boys. Go to places with other people. And when you are married don't give up all your old friends. Keep as many contacts as you can. Belong to clubs, and when you take your vacations don't always go off together. A little separation would save many a divorce, and particularly should a woman make it a point always to have some interest outside her home. A man's business breaks the monotony of domestic life for him, and that gives him something new to think about and talk about, but the domestic woman is bound to be sunk, and gets as dull as dish water unless she gets out of her house and hunts up subjects for conversation.

But you are right in thinking that for an engaged couple not to be able to talk to each other is a serious matter. There is no other thing that is more necessary in marriage than that a husband and wife should be able to entertain each other and have plenty to talk about.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have three sons aged 14, 13 and 10. Their father, a professional man, is home but to sleep. Takes one dinner weekly with the family on Sunday. Never has time to engage in any games or talk to his children as a father should to cultivate the pal spirit that should exist between a dad and his boys. Many evenings I accompany him to various functions.

The boys are left to pursue their studies, listen to the radio, have some neighbor's boys come in, or retire. This has been the routine since they were babies. Now the two older boys show signs of peevishness when I leave them evenings with their nurse. What shall I do? Shall I send them off to boarding school? —MRS. R. H.

Answer—If you are not going to give your children any of your personal attention and your society of evenings, they will certainly be better off at a boarding school than they are left alone with a servant.

Opinions vary as to the advisability of sending young boys off to boarding school. Many advocate it, and undoubtedly it is the best thing to do in cases where there is dissension in the home and where the atmosphere is one of strife and quarreling. Also it is the best thing to do when the mother is weak and spoils the children and they get none of the discipline they should have, but neither of these arguments applies to your case.

For my part I have always felt that I would prefer to keep my children with me when they were young rather than send them off to boarding school, because, in the first place I should want to be the one who was the dominant influence in shaping their characters at the formative time of their lives. I would feel that my love and my interest in them would make me take a lot more trouble with them than any teacher would.

And secondly, I should want to enjoy them for a while, for heaven knows we have our children a short enough time as it is. So soon they are gone from us about the business of life, and if we do not have them when they are little we do not have them at all.

After all, your problem, as I see it, is whether you shall stay at home of an evening with your children, or gad around with your husband, and that is not so simple as it seems, because the wife who lets a brilliant and sought-after husband leave her behind is surely the way for him to find another playmate. So inasmuch as you are like the millionairess who, when somebody asked her how she could leave her little baby to go off to Europe with her husband, replied: "I can hire a perfectly safe woman to take care of my baby, but I can't hire a perfectly safe woman to take care of my husband," so perhaps sending the boys off to school is the wiser choice for you.

But what a mistake your husband is making when he sacrifices his children and his home for his career. He is throwing away the substance of happiness and grasping at a shadow, and some day he would give all of his fame and all of his money just to be friends with his boys. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am in love with a married man who loves me and doesn't care for his wife, but he has a little girl whom he is crazy about. Should I write to his wife and ask her to be a good sport and give her husband and girl up so I can marry him? If she loves him she ought to be willing to do this to make him happy. I think if she has a spark of real womanhood in her she will give him up to me when I love him so much.

—TROUBLED.

Answer—Would you give him up to her? Don't you think that you are asking much of a wife to expect her to hand over not only her husband but her child to you? "Do unto others as you would be done by" is a good motto even in husband-snatching.

—DOROTHY DIX.

WATER SUPPLY CONTRACTS LET

Frederick Will Double Production

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., March 21.—At a meeting of the city council five contracts were awarded for the construction of additions to the water and sewer lines, bonds for which were voted about the first of the year in the sums of $25,000 and $15,000, respectively. Layne & Western Co., of Kansas City, were awarded the contract for sinking from two to four wells or a sufficient number to get approximately 800 gallons of water a minute. Upon completion the system will double the city's water supply.

The wells will be dug on the Jack Ray farm, two and one-half miles west and one mile south of Frederick. Tests will be made there this week and drilling will start soon thereafter. The wells are to be 60 feet deep and the inside screen drain is to be 18 inches.

Contract was let to Fairbanks-Morse of Kansas City for a 1,000-gallon service pump to be installed in the water and light plant. This will give Frederick a battery of three service pumps, the others being 750-gallon and 625-gallon, a total of 2,375 gallons.

The U. S. Pipe and Foundry company of Dallas was given contract to furnish pipe and fittings. The Georgiac Supply company of Oklahoma City was given contract to furnish vitrified pipe. The Morrison Supply company of Wichita Falls was given contract to furnish valves and valve boxes.

Contract for sewage pump will be awarded later. All bids for fire hydrants were rejected.

Work on the above projects will be rushed so that there will be no danger of a water shortage the coming summer.

Be sure and use the roasted nut butter, thinned with a little sweet cream. Place the other half of the pear over the half containing the dressing, cut side down, forming a whole pear. A clove may be used to represent the stem, and a further decorative effect may be given by adding a touch of red coloring with the fingertip to the outside of the top pear, blending it in well.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Large Heart

Question—J. W. asks: "Is there any help or cure for a person having a heart twice its natural size? This man is about 47 years old and has had its since about the age of 1 year."

Answer—There is no particular harm in a man having a large heart. Those who exercise vigorously when young, either through athletics or by hard work, will usually develop a heart larger than what is called normal. The heart sometimes grows larger because of trouble with the heart valves. This is what is called a compensating growth, and the heart will reduce some in size if the valvular trouble is cured.

Bean Sprouts

Question—W. C. H. writes: "Please tell me whether bean sprouts such as you see for sale at Japanese vegetable stands are a healthful food. I find them gas producers."

Answer—Bean sprouts are a wholesome vegetable and are not usually gas producing unless combined with garlic or onions.

Ultra Violet

Question—L. M. writes: "Please comment on the following statement: Ten minutes at noon in early springtime, the sun's ultra violet rays are equally effective on the human body as eight to 10 hours of the penetrating ultar violet rays used by a physician."

Answer—The statement which you inquire about is not correct, as a 10 to 15 minute treatment with the ultra violet light can produce an amount of sunburn which could only come from being exposed to the sun for two or three hours.

TED GULLIC MAY BE RETURNED TO SPUDDERS THIS SEASON

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

How Sad!

Sophia Blotts while young was always
Tooling with the curlers
But despite her fixing this and that
And wearing out the mirrors
She landed not a single swain.
No runs, no hits, no errors.

The announcement Friday by President William E. Huff that he intends to open negotiations for the return here of Ted Gullic, provided our own outfield material proved insufficient, was news to the majority of the fans, but was more or less taken for granted in higher baseball circles. The big news in the president's announcement had to be read between the lines—the news, in short, that the club was not going to return Gullic to the fold in case Jack Kloza showed up strong enough to fill the bill.

All of which is very cheerful inasmuch as it indicates that we have material down at the lot of an exceptionally high grade. When the president of the ball club intends to open only tentative negotiations for a man like Ted Gullic, believing that Kloza has a chance of doing as well as the Browns' high-caliber outfielder, it speaks well indeed for Kloza. Further, it reflects the strength of all the outfield candidates. These facts should put to an end the pessimistic rumors current that the Spudders, though they have a new infield that "might be acceptable," are weak in other departments including the outfield.

The probably "acceptable" infield has come in for some mild comment on the part of sports writers over the state, as has our pitching staff, which the majority of the scribes cannot see for the memory of last years duet, Payne and Messenger.

As for the Spudders pining away because they haven't a first baseman as good as Stapleton, this is, we may as well say here and now, the bosh. Irving Burns, in the estimation of Prexy Huff—and, what is equally important, in the eyes of leading baseball fans, is as good an all-round player as Stapleton, with the exception that he shows a slight weakness on the defensive. This weakness, we predict, will soon be wiped out. The one year that Burns, Storti, Levey and Euller spent together at Tulsa developed the foundation for teamwork. This year that teamwork should flower in all its glory. Burns, in addition, is a swatter of repute. Enough has been said of Euller, Storti and Levey. Our infield, far from proving "acceptable," will turn out to be a miracle, we predict.

As for the pitching and catching staffs, certain it is that hurlers Payne and Messenger will be hard to replace, and certain it is that Pete Lapan cannot be replaced. But it is not going too far to say that with Hal Wiltse and Milt Steengrafe and a corps of ambitious assistants like Sy Smith, Eddie Lennon, Russell Cromer, Lester White and a few others around, the hurling department will not lead the team anywhere near the cellar door. The catchers, the Spudder powers admit, will be youngsters relatively inexperienced. But between, Crouch, Bettencourt, Butler, Baxter and Bradbury, something good should develop.

Contrary to previous reports, there probably will be little weeding out of the Spudder squad for the next few weeks, according to Prexy Huff. The reason, which again is rather cheerful, is that there are so many good ball players in the lot that to release them would be foolish. Instead, Prexy Huff is arranging for their sale or release on option to other clubs with which the Spudders have made farm agreements.

There are now slightly over 30 men going through the daily practice grind.

How Odd! Department

Cy Smith has made only one wild pitch in his nine years of playing baseball.

Eddie Lennon and Milt Steengrafe look a good deal alike anyway, but put one of them in the pitcher's box and be derned if you can tell him from the other.

Jack Kloza and Jimme Parker look a good deal alike, too, especially when they are at bat.

Dr. W. R. Thompson made hole No. 15 on the Municipal course in six, and if you don't believe that's good, go try it. Hole 15 is the longest on the course. Par is five.

This Annoys Me

It appears that no matter how fast the West approaches something akin to civilization, the people that infest it continue to labor under a particularly distressing delusion; the delusion, to-wit, that if a man, while speaking to another, does not look his partner in conversation directly in the eye, he is lying, and is a person to be watched.

This delusion may be especially observed where one of the speakers is a total stranger to the community, and, furthermore, is asking a favor. A man in this position who states his problem with eyes averted, or downcast, or akimbo, or whatnot, is not given much consideration, we observe. Especially if his talk is grammatical and intelligent. On the other hand, let some leather-skinned goof approach with the most stupid conversation, but with eyes that resemble a locomotive headlight in steadfastness, and he generally gets anything he wants.

We do not say that a clear eye is not preferable. But we do maintain that it is not everything.

There is today a merchant in Austin who is prosperous. He is an aging man, and has seen much in his life. In the years gone by he had a regular customer in his store whom he hadn't the slightest respect for, simply because his customer couldn't look him straight in the eye. Being a good merchant, however, he didn't tell his customer about it. The merchant had learned this business of judging men by their optics from his environment, which was that of the old West. As the years went on, his customer journeyed to other fields and made a name for himself. But to this day the merchant will tell you, as he told me, that he hasn't any respect for his former customer or his accomplishments because the latter could not "look me in the eye."

The explainer was O. Henry.

SPUDDERS PLAY DALLAS TODAY

Kloza to Be Given Chance Before Huff Closes Deal

The probable return to the Spudder fold of Ted Gullic, gardener extraordinary of the St. Louis Browns who performed here the last three weeks of the 1929 season, was foreseen Friday in the announcement by President William E. Huff that he intends to open negotiations with the Browns soon in order to have a string attached to Gullic "in case we need him."

Kloza May Fill Bill

Gullic will be returned, all other things being equal, only if "the material we have on hand proves insufficient," the president said. He referred in particular to Jack Kloza, the giant right fielder from Wisconsin.

"The club," said President Huff, "wishes to give Kloza every chance in the world to make the grade before wiring for Gullic to come. As matters stand now, Kloza is showing excellent talent, and we may not need Gullic at all. But we will communicate with the Browns soon and make preliminary arrangements to get Gullic here on option in case we should need him."

Gardner Gullic's name went from one end of the state to the other during his brief sojourn in the Texas league last season. He was imported by J. Alvin Gardner, then president of the Wichita Falls club, to strengthen the Spudders for their final dash in the pennant chase.

Team Off for Dallas

President Huff made the announcement just before leaving for Dallas to attend the opening of a series of two exhibition games between the Spudders and the Dallas Steers Saturday and Sunday.

Skipper Carl Williams apparently intends to do his best to win those games, judging from the players he loaded up in a bus for the trip shortly after noon Friday. Hal Wiltse will be the first to toe the rubber, Skipper Williams announced. Other pitchers taken along included Milt Steengrafe, Cy Smith, Jimmy Parker, Chick Galeria, Lester White, Ash Hillin, Russell Cromer, and Eddie Lennon. Jack Crouch, Larry Bettencourt and Art Bradbury will alternate behind the bat. Six infielders, Levey, Storti, Euller, Burns, Allday, and Burrows, were taken along. Fitzgerald, Kloza, Orr and Nebel likely will see duty in the outfield.

Tony Defate, left in charge of what rookies remained here in camp, worked the boys stiffly Friday morning, but inclement weather prevented an afternoon workout.

GULLIC HITS HOMER

FORT PIERCE, Fla., March 21. (UP)—The St. Louis Browns ran riot on the base paths today as they overwhelmed the Milwaukee A. A. club, 22 to 2. The Browns collected 18 hits, including a home run by Gullic, rookie outfielder.

Hall County Ball League Organized

Special to The Record News

MEMPHIS, Texas, March 21.—For the first time in the history of Hall county schools, a baseball league has been organized, including Deep Lake, Brice, Eli, Friendship, Salisbury and Parnell. The schedule has been completed. Eli and Friendship will each play seven games, and the other schools six games during the season, and the winner will be determined on a percentage basis.

Each school has furnished the equipment for their teams. No regular uniforms have been purchased but many of the players have uniforms of their own. The schools furnished the necessary bats, balls and gloves required for the games.

According to County School Superintendent Theodore Swift, the league was formed to develop a better school spirit between the various schools of the county. A number of the smaller rural schools, he pointed out, do not have the chance of winning in athletic events as the larger schools have, and it was deemed wise to get such schools in the league so that the respective teams would be fairly evenly matched. No admission charges are made to any of the ball games.

Contender for Catcher's Berth

If you have been down at the baseball lot looking 'em over you might have seen the young fellow pictured above running around in right field, or even on first base. But it was an accident. Where he belongs is behind the bat, and he's got a pretty good chance to stay there the rest of the season. He is Art Bradbury, and he is offering Larry Bettencourt, Jack Crouch, Baxter and Butler some stiff opposition in the race for a berth with the regulars. He can catch and he can hit. "He has fine poise at bat," said J. Alvin Gardner.

RACER AWAITS BETTER BEACH

Don Anxious to Break World's Record

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 21. (UP)—Kaye Don nursed his bruises today while he waited for a committee of experts to pronounce the beach here in shape for him to take out his big racing car and attempt to break the world speed record of 231.36 miles per hour.

He spent much of the day with his associates ironing out a bit of the disorganization which had caused confusion in his group and mechanics kept busy grooming the car, although Don pronounced it entirely ready for a record run.

Don sustained violent punishment yesterday when he drove his car at 100 miles an hour over a lumpy beach. He rolled back his shirt and showed the United Press correspondent angry looking bruises on his arms and shoulders, his hips and legs are also bruised.

"It was terrific," he said. He admitted once at least he was in danger of being thrown out of the car. Sometimes he was completely out of his seat.

The committee of experts named to pass upon the condition of the beach and advise Don when it is in a condition for an attempt at the record, found the course still out of shape this morning. Another inspection was made tonight.

RUNNERS MAKE GOOD RECORDS

Regulars Take Honors Over Gym Squad

Scenes resembling a big track meet were enacted Friday afternoon when the track squad of the local high school met the gymnasium squad on the high school track in the rear of the school building. Although the records were unofficial, some of the running events yielded some fast time. As was expected, Coach Hill's charges walked off with everything with ease.

Beaty Wins Hurdles

Tom Beaty, Rollin Dixon and Clarence Ashton were the main point getters for the high school squad. Beaty took first place in the javelin throw and high hurdles. Dixon clicked the quatrer-mile off in 58 seconds flat without exerting himself and also took first place in the shot put with a heave of 41 feet 10 inches. Ashton looked good in the dashes with two first places in the 220 and 100 yard dashes. Ed Mulligan, crack miler, led the field to the tape on the mile run.

The high school relay team, composed of Rusk, Dixon, Clayton and Harbs led the gym quintet by half the field and came within two seconds of tying the Fort Worth Fat Stock show record. Earl Harbs led the field on the half-mile run and looked like a serious contender for district honors. Although still unversed in the short turns and fundamentals, the entire squad looked wonderfully promising and may develop into a district champion aggregation, that honor having eluded the grasp of the Coyote teams for the past four years.

Losers Win Jumps

Outclassed in every particular, the gym team made a fighting show and strained every muscle to catch the fleeting high school trotters. Coach C. C. Frazee's athletes were well trained and showed ability to stick it out to the finish. The losers captured two first place places, one in the running broad jump and one in high jump.

Several hundred students and visitors from rival schools were on hand to witness the proceedings. A chilling wind swept over the field and hampered the runners and field event contenders. Many Vernon High school athletes were on the field to get an idea of what the Coyotes have in the way of a track team.

March 21 was originally set for the dual meet which was to be held here with Vernon High school. For some reason the proposed dual meet was postponed and the gym team took the place of the Vernon team.

Mehlhorn Leads Golf Tournament

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 21. (AP)—Bill Mehlhorn, Pensacola, Fla., professional, scored a 34-35—69 today to lead the 64 golfers participating in the $15,000 La Gorce open golf tournament here with a 36 hole total of 140.

Mehlhorn was three strokes ahead of Horton Smith, Cragston, N. Y., and Billie Burke, yesterday's leader, at the conclusion of the second day of play. Tommy Armour, Boca Raton, Fla., was in third place at the halfway mark with 145.

The 69 that he scored today brought Mehlhorn $200 in prize money, $100 for the first day's low score and $100 for the 140 that set him up as medalist in 36 hole play in the tournament.

HARD HITTERS HELP PIRATES

Skull and Bones Crew Has 'Punch at Plate'

(This is one of a series of first-hand Associated Press stories on Major league baseball prospects.)

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—The Pittsburgh Pirates will gamble for the 1930 National league pennant with a "punch at the plate." In the lineup are more potential .300 hitters than usually grace the payrolls of a major circuit club.

The infield appears a "big stick one." Gussie Suhr, recruit first baseman obtained from the San Francisco Seals, who bats from the left side, hit 51 home runs last season and if he clouts out half that many this year, Manager Jewel Ens will be satisfied.

Waners Return

George Grantham, who will hold down second base, last season pounded in 90 runs. Captain Harlod "Pie" Traynor's ability at the plate needs no describing. Dick Bartell, shortstop, lightest hitter among the regular infielders, demonstrated his batting eye has sharpened in the off-season. Ens says his outfield will stack up with any in the league. The famous Waners, Paul and Lloyd, will hold down right and center field, with Adam Comorosky in the left field outpost again. Paul Waner, league leading swatsmith in 1927, is due for a big year, according to Ens. Lloyd, just recovering from an appendicitis operation, is underweight, but expected to be in shape for the opening.

Pitching problems may pop up for the Pirates. There is reason to believe the absence of Burleigh Grimes, right-handed ace, is causing concern. Grimes is holding out for a two-year contract, contrary to the management's policy.

Aside from Grimes, Pittsburgh has a bulky hurling staff led by Ray Kremer and Jess Petty, seasoned campaigners, and Larry French, Henry Meine, Steve Swetonic, Ervin Brame and "Lil" Stoner.

Youngsters Carried

All well experienced, three youngsters, Leon Chagnon, Ralph Erickson and Glenn Spencer, will be carried until the season is at least well under way. Petty and French are the left-handed regulars while Erickson also flings from the port side.

The first string catching job is still one to be decided. Until Al Bool was purchased last winter from Baltimore of the International league, Ralston Hemsley appeared to be the favorite. In the meantime, Charley Hargreaves, one of the club's oldsters, has shown a return to form during the training season so the backstop situation may not be cleared up until the Pirates get on the ground for their opener.

Ens, starting his first full season as pilot, is hopeful, but not overconfident. "All we want is a few breaks," he says. "And fewer injuries, and the Pirates will be up there."

MILK RECEIPTS SHOW GAINS

Good Spring Grazing Aids Dairy Industry

Material increases in milk deliveries to buyers in Wichita Falls have been registered regularly during the past few days, according to information given The Record News Friday. It was estimated that almost 60,000 pounds of whole milk would represent the current daily receipts in the local wholesale market.

The improvement in milk production was attributed to a slight increase in the number of cows being milked, the freshening season having begun some weeks ago, and to improving pastures. Following the recent rains grass has sprung up rapidly. Owners of grazing land and cattle have predicted this week one of the heaviest natural yields of forage in many years due to a better than average supply of moisture from January's snow and ice, and timely rains which fell recently. Ample water for stock also has been more generally available recently.

Grazing herds of cattle in this section will remain intact, with few sales, during the next few months while plentiful grass is converted into extra weight for next fall's market. Among the prominent herds still maintained in this vicinity are those of Dr. A. D. Edwards at Henrietta, John Turbeville, J. Ferguson, Stafford Helms and others in Archer county, Tom Burnett and the Waggoner interests in Wichita and Wilbarger counties.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 21. (AP)—Cotton was higher today with prices making new ground for the present upward movement, on continued covering by trade or speculative shorts and some commission house buying which appeared promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and reiterated rumors that deliveries might be called for on May contracts. May sold up to 15.81 or 24 points net higher, and closed at 15.78 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 6 to 21 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 12 points to a decline of 1 point with most months higher on buying influenced by the comparatively firm showing of Liverpool. Realizing was encountered at about the initial prices, but it was absorbed on slight setbacks and the market soon firmed up again.

The highest prices of the day were reached in the late trading when July sold at 15.88 and the new October contract at 15.50 or about 12 to 25 points net higher. Closing quotations were a few points off from the best under realizing.

Liverpool reported Continental and Bombay buying there and a more cheerful tone in the Manchester goods market. Exports today 26,536, making 5,758,324 so far this season. Port receipts 3,653. U. S. port stocks 1,923,793.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 21. (AP)—Cotton showed a general tendency to improve today under a demand promoted by good Liverpool cables and more favorable cotton goods advices. Prices reached the highs of the day in late trading, closing just a few points under the best. May after easing to 15.28, rallied to 15.53 and closed at 15.50, or 25 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net advances of 12 to 25 points.

Liverpool cables were 1 to 4 points better than due and influenced an opening gain here of 10 to 12 points.

In final trading considerable price-fixing developed and values bulged sharply making new highs for the day over $1 a bale above the lows. July advanced to 15.64, or 25 to 26 points up. October did not make a new high. Final prices were 3 to 6 points under the best with old crop positions showing net gains of 25 points against an advance of only 12 points on October.

Temporary Money Tightening Fails To Check Trading as Stocks Rise

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, March 21. (US)—Stocks moved higher, despite tightening in the money market, in the most active trading session of the year today. Realization that money tightening was only temporary, more favorable trade news and evidence of good buying in standard industrials all contributed to sustained confidence that influenced additional public participation and more active pool work. Report that the Sinclair-Barnsdall merger deal was near announcement caused jump in the oils in the afternoon in which Standard shares, Asphalt and others hit new highs. Steel finished with net gain of 4⅛ at 190⅜, a new high for the year. Kennecott gained 2½, Anaconda 2¼, Texas gulf 2⅝, Public Service of New Jersey 1⅝, American Telephone 3½, Warner Brothers 3, and Vanadium 5½. Concentrated bear pressure put National Cash register off 6⅝, Montgomery Ward 1⅝, Johns Manville 1½, and Simmons 16. Call money advanced to 4½ per cent. After renewing at 3 per cent. Turnover reached 4,600,000 shares.

Several automobile companies are expected to announce increase in operating schedules within the next fortnight. In the last week, it is claimed, sales and inquiries have picked up in a manner that appears to warrant a higher rate in production. More active work at leading automobile plants will prove the most constructive development of the year to date. It not alone will solve the unemployment problem at those centers but will further improve business sentiment throughout the country as the slump in the automobile business has been one of the main causes for worry over the last three months. Studies of current condition of the motor companies give reason for belief that at least two and perhaps more will have to revise dividends downward. Such organizations as General Motors, Nash, etc., that have a strong cash position, however, could maintain payment at the existing regular rate, especially if business shows signs of picking up further.

The Danforth crowd again were mentioned throughout the street as doing most of the selling. Gillette, National Cash Register, Simmons and Montgomery Ward were the main targets, it was claimed. Cash Register's report for 1929 was disappointing and its effect was enhanced by rumors that sales now were some 20 per cent under a year ago. Gillette has the competitive problem to solve while Simmons has lost practically all its old friends and until there is indication of better feeling toward it by Cutten et al. it will be a favorite target for the bears. Montgomery Ward is in somewhat similar position to Simmons insofar as withdrawal of market sponsorship is concerned.

Good buying again is reported in American Tobacco. Expectation is voiced that another advance in the wholesale price of cigarets will be announced within a very short time. American Telephone buying was described as coming from important investment trust channels. Split-up talk was in circulation again but it was learned that at least one leading official is against such action so that it may be held off for awhile. General Railway Signal was the subject of special analysis by a leading stock exchange firm that emphasized prospects for larger business particularly for its electrical railway equipment. United Drug-Vick Chemical merger is near, it is rumored. Further quiet accumulation of Rubber preferred is under way.

The tighter money should have been no surprise. It is entirely the result of the mid-March tax and financing payments, as was warned of here early in the week and should last only a few days. With money so cheap as to cause shifting of individual funds from the call loan to the investment markets the local banks have to furnish an increasing amount of stock market credit requirements. With the help of the reserve they can do so without trouble. It is quite evident that the reserve means to continue easing credit for the next several months so that there is nothing to worry about in a momentary flurry in the call rate resulting from a quarterly payment period.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, March 21. (AP)—Wheat was slightly higher on the cash grain market here today, but demand was still draggy. Corn and grain sorghums were in good demand as were cane seed. Oats were fairly well taken. Mills were nominally bidding $1.11@1.12 for No. 1 ordinary hard wheat delivered Texas common points.

Bids and offers on coarse grain basis carloads delivered freight paid to Texas common points:

Corn—No. 2 mixed corn 93½@94½c; No. 2 white or yellow 97½@98½c.

Oats—No. 2 red oats 55@56c; No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 56@58½c.

Barley—No. 2 barley nominally 62@63c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per hundred pounds nominally $1.65@1.70; No. 2 kaffir $1.47@1.50.

Cane Seed—Bulk country run red top per hundred pounds according to type clean cut, Texas origin $4.00@4.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 21. (AP)—Apparent fade out of the Southern hemisphere and a big source of breadstuff supplies for Europe put wheat prices on the upgrade today. It was reported that Argentina has little or no wheat left of good millable quality. Furthermore, Argentine wheat exports this week, and Australian as well, show a huge falling off in volume as compared with a year ago.

After rising to 9c a bushel higher today than last week's bottom level, Chicago wheat futures closed unsettled, ⅝@1⅛c above yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅛@1c down, oats unchanged to ½c off, and provisions 5c@15c advanced.

It was announced that Argentine wheat exports in the last week totaled only 1,487,000 bushels against 8,121,000 bushels at this time last year, and that Australian out shipments for the week were 1,240,000 bushels compared with 3,616,000 bushels a year ago.

Export purchasing of North American wheat today was estimated at 1,000,000 bushels, chiefly Canadian grown, although United States wheat is now closer in line to compete.

Enlarged rural selling of corn to arrive led to a late setback in corn prices. Oats sympathized with corn.

Bebb's carnations—95c.—Adv.

Dr. Cook Cheered By Boys' Society

CHICAGO, March 21. UP)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who won transitory fame in the arctic and paid for a misstep by spending five years in Leavenworth penitentiary, started his "comeback" today with the cheers of 900 boys ringing in his ears.

He was accepted a post as permanent physical director of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic and will direct the organization's summer camp at Burlington, Wis.

Last night the 65-year-old veteran of a stormy life straightened his shoulders and smiled when the 900 boys shouted their confidence in him as he was made a life member of their organization. Only two persons have been so honored in the past, Mrs. Marshall Field and President Roosevelt.

Killing of Deer In Major County Urged

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21. UP)—The next state legislature may pass a local bill authorizing the killing of deer in Major county the attorney general ruled today in an opinion to State Senator Ira Hill, Cherokee.

Hill said many farmers in Major county had reported deer were damaging their crop the animals had become so numerous.

The attorney general called Hill's attention to the fact that if passage of such a bill was consummated at the next legislative session it must be advertised at least four weeks in the county affected.

DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, March 21. (AP)—Cotton goods today were a shade firmer on stronger cotton although spot weaknesses occasioned price irregularity. Print cloths in fair demand. Fine goods in moderate demand. Burlap cables unchanged with spot lightweights at parity with ready shipment, but heavyweights here subject to discounting. Stocks of Burlaps here were increasing. Price cuts in wool goods aided stability. Eastern demand for rayon yarns gained. Spot raw silks quiet and unchanged.

FUNDS PLEDGED FOR CITY GYM

Building Believed Assured Junior C.-C. Told

Definite recommendations looking to the erection of a large athletic building at the corner of Sixth and Broad streets within the near future will be presented to the directors of the Junior chamber of commerce next week by the sports and recreation committee, according to a report given by Frank Haley, chairman, at the weekly membership luncheon held at the Kemp hotel Friday noon.

Work done by the committee on the proposition, Mr. Haley said, had shown that approximately $8,000 could be raised now for the erection of the proposed building by subscription. It was further estimated that at least $4,200 would be realized during the first year of its existence from membership dues from those who would use its facilities, and from other sources incident to the recreational plant.

"According to present plans," Mr. Haley said, "after completion of the building it would be maintained by the city park board. It would supply Wichita Falls an ample gymnasium, one which would be of great value to the people of the city."

Hines Chief Speaker

Harry Hines, vice president and general manager of the Deep Oil Development company, was the principal speaker at Friday's luncheon, addressing his remarks to several visitors from Iowa Park and to members of the Junior chamber of commerce as citizens of a community "which has common problems, common visions, and common purposes."

"In this territory," Mr. Hines said "we have so many opportunities that we often fail to recognize and evaluate them. We have barely scratched our oil reserves. What we need chiefly is a higher degree of prosperity in this district. It can not come if our money interests seek to crawl into their shells. Prosperity grows only in the sunshine of expansion. More work, more faith, more courage to carry on—these are our greatest present needs."

Oneness of purpose and charitable cooperation with every citizen of this community for civic progress was urged by Mr. Hines. "I plead with you," he concluded, "for a higher type of citizenship, one which is based upon a more courageous and idealized plane of thinking."

Commendation of the present effort of the chamber of commerce in Wichita Falls to "resell this community to its own citizens" was expressed by C. C. Hudson, who spoke briefly on behalf of the Iowa Park delegation. Such progress, as has been made in recent years in the Iowa Park district, he said, is due principally to the irrigation system. Greater interest and belief in irrigation would greatly speed such development, Mr. Hudson said.

Civi Improvements

Plans of the civic improvements committee of the organization for sponsoring a flower and shrub planting campaign among school children of the city during the spring months were outlined by Dr. Bailey R. Collins, chairman.

Shadie F. Hale announced that a meeting will be held during the coming week in an effort to complete organization of a drum corps.

A. M. Gant and W. B. Swint were named as team captains for a brief membership drive to begin at once, and which has for its object the addition of 50 memberships to the present enrollment of 309. Plans for the drive were outlined by Paul Hines.

Entertainment following the luncheon Friday noon consisted of numerous selections by Frank Bird and his Bluebirds, staff orchestra of station KGKO, and songs by Misses Loneta Smith and Katherine Keller, accompanied by Miss Lorene Tucker.

MAJESTIC: William Powell, Kay Francis and Regis Toomey in "Street of Chance." All-talking comedy, "Beach Babies." Sound news.

STRAND: "No, No, Nanette," with Alexander Gray, Bernice Claire and Louise Fazenda. Columbia unit, "Springtime." Sound news.

STATE: "The Hottentot," with Edward E. Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller. "King of the Kongo," continued story. Sound news.

GEM: Hoot Gibson in "The Winged Horseman." Fable comedy. Chapter one of "The Final Reckoning."

Having cast aspersions upon the personality of one Alexander Gray Friday morning in heralding the opening of "No, No, Nanette," this department hastens back from the Strand with all possible agility and with glad tidings of this boy; he is himself again. Mr. Gray may have been convalescent from one of the pioneer cases of "ginger-joint" when he made "Sally" with Marilyn Miller; or he and Sally may have quarreled over Joe Brown. Regardless of why he was so senile, in "Sally," his performance in "No, No, Nanette" runs his batting average back up to something like .400.

This Alexander Gray-Bernice Claire-Fazenda-Tashman classic brings Wichita Falls the best musical show produced on the screen here since "Desert Song." Lyrics and choruses are pleasingly tuneful and invigorating; Mr. Gray and Miss Claire contributed numerous beautiful bits of solo and duet work. This soprano has been excelled by only one thus far brought out through the talking-screen—that of Jeanette McDonald. Carlotta King of "Desert Song" had the voice, but that ended the story. Bernice sings with a rich, ringing clarity, and is an excellent tonic for tired eyes. The sets are among the most extravagant constructed for musical comedy, and are enhanced by unusually brilliant imaginative elements. Those who have seen "No, No, Nanette" on the stage will recognize the original background scheme, but will also appreciate the increased scope for scenic effects made possible by techni-color photography.

Lucien Littlefield, flanked by Louise Fazenda and Lillian Tashman, with Bert Roach fluttering about—a comedy quartet in which is amassed a bulk of talent seldom corraled for one picture. Fazenda has never accomplished better characterizations than these recent ones in which she becomes "mother" in the home. The second-screen production of "No, No, Nanette" fulfills the promise made by its brilliant success on the stage, and redeems, for the present at least, the musical-comedy theme of picture making.

Supporting the feature at the Strand is one of the most fantastic cartoons which this surprising field of entertainment has produced. "Springtime," a "silly symphony" in which all the flowers and insects of the early spring perform ingeniously to the strains of Rubinstein's "Spring Song," and other music, is unique. Being unique after the amazing variety of cartooned stories which have appeared in the last two years is the equal of being too warm at the north pole—but this "Springtime" is unique.

Will of Jens Moller Admitted to Probate

The will of the late Jens Moller, prominent Texan who died here several weeks ago, was admitted to probate Friday afternoon by Judge John P. Marrs, judge of the county court. The estate contained in the will amounts to between $35,000 and $40,000, and Jens Moller Jr., and A. V. Moller, sons of the deceased, are named as beneficiaries.

Some time prior to Mr. Moller's death he had placed in trust about $250,000 of his estate for his children. The will covered the remainder of the estate. J. C. Mytinger, Ralph Mathis and A. V. Moller were named executors.

Frank Kell Drives Home Message On Cooperation to West Texas Oil Men

Wichita Capitalist Illustrates Need of Unified Work With Anecdote on Asylum Incident

Special to The Record News.

BIG SPRING, Texas, March 21.—If oil men of this country, including refiners, producers and marketers, would banish the ailments that are depressing the industry, they must cooperate, according to Frank Kell, Wichita Falls capitalist, who spoke before a joint meeting of refinery men and Big Spring business men recently.

Before issuing the cooperation edict, Mr. Kell told a story of an asylum superintendent escorting a governor through the institution. The governor asked the superintendent if he did not fear the inmates would combine and overpower the small number of guards.

"No," replied the asylum superintendent, "I can see you may know politics, governor, but you sure don't know lunatics—they never cooperate."

"The oil man must cease being a lunatic. Cooperation is the only solution to the problems now confronting the industry unless the law of supply and demand is repealed," declared Mr. Kell.

Mr. Kell told the 130 refiners and business men present that deeper drilling in the Wichita Falls area has uncovered new producing horizons and ventured the opinion that the same results will be registered in numerous West Texas fields in time to come.

Among other pertinent statements, Mr. Kell, who is one of the best known capitalists in Texas and the Southwest, declared that more investment money is now available on Wall street than at any time he has experienced since becoming associated with big business interests of the East.

Stanley Cosdon, son of J. S. Cosdon and superintendent of the Cosden Oil company's refinery in Big Spring, told his audience that four refineries in Big Spring and the pipe lines serving the plants have an approximate pay roll of $760,000 per year. He also stated that Cosden's refinery here will be enlarged to nearly double its present capacity of 12,500 barrels daily and that apparently the refining industry in Big Spring is here to stay.

Tax Collector Files Report for February

County tax collections during the month of February amounted to $2,984.69 and state tax collections to $2,823.05, according to the monthly report of Guy C. Raley, county tax collector, as issued Friday by Roy A. Jones, chief deputy.

The February collections, while slightly below those of the same month last year, are about the average for the second month of the year, Mr. Jones said. Large January collections account in part for the smaller collections during the succeeding month, it was pointed out.

State ad valorem taxes totaled $1,266.77 and county ad valorem amounted to $2,387.75.
