RANGERS CALLED IN HASSELL CASE

HUNT TURNS AGAINST HICKMAN

YOUTH TO TAKE STATE CASE IN MURDER TRIAL

WILL TESTIFY FIEND SLAYER SANE IN ALL HIS CAREER, CLAIM

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—William Edward Hickman's confessed "pal" in crime, 16-year old Welby Hunt, probably will be allowed with the prosecution forces in Hickman's trials for the slaying of 12 year old Marian Parker and C. G. Thomas, Rosehill drug store.

This became known last night when it was announced that Hunt would testify against Hickman in the latter's insanity defense to the murders. Hunt's attorney, A. G. Gilmer, said his young client would testify that Hickman was sane and always had been since he embarked on his known career of crime.

One Concession Won
At least one concession has been made by Hunt in his defense against Hickman. He has agreed to testify with Hickman, of the murder of the two youths held up in a store on Christmas eve, 1926.

A series of conferences December 29, District Attorney Forrest announced that Hunt would testify in juvenile court, a point which Gilmer has been contending. Murray said it would be impossible to ask the death penalty in the case of Hunt as he is under 18 years of age. If given a life term, he would have to serve in the penitentiary for the remainder of his life.

(By Associated Press)
PAINEVILLE, Ohio, Jan. 10.—Fear of the electric chair hangs over pretty Velma West as she spends her time nervously in her cell in county jail.

The widow of Thomas Edward West, young nursery man of Perry, Ohio, beaten to death with a hammer last month talks continually of her horror of electrocution and at night she cannot sleep. Sheriff Rasmussen says.

TWO MEN HOLD UP SYLVESTER BANK AT NOON

(By Associated Press)
SYLVESTER, Texas, Jan. 10.—Nearly 100 men in several poses this afternoon were searching for two robbers who held up an official and two customers at the First National bank here about noon and escaped toward Sweetwater, Texas, with $2,500 in cash.

The two men, both of whom were unmasked and armed, entered the bank during the noon hour when V. L. Carruthers, assistant cashier, was waiting upon R. L. McCarty and G. F. Hood, customers. They ordered the three men to throw up their hands and go into the vault. Then they scooped all cash in the vault and fled in an automobile that had been parked at a side entrance to the bank.

The men locked in the vault, called for help by means of a telephone that had recently been installed. Immediately upon their release by Sheriff J. F. Parker, of Fisher county, at Roby, and several posse were organized.

One of the robbers appeared to be about 21 years old and the other about 30. Carruthers said. While they were not violent in any way, they were fired, they threatened death if their orders were not obeyed. Carruthers declared.

The robbers speeded out of town on the road toward Hamlin, Jones county, but late reports indicated they had deviated their course toward Sweetwater, as a speeding automobile was reported on the road toward Sweetwater.

Water Reservoir Is Completed Here

Lacking only the connection with the main line and the completion of a test for leaks, the city's new water stand pipe will be filled and ready for use some time before February 1, it was learned at the city water offices this morning. Workmen have just completed the painting of the inside of the reservoir and are to start on the outside this week.

When filled the tank will add 1,200,000 gallons of water to the city's storage capacity. It rises 144 feet in the air and the ground level is seven feet higher than the city square, giving increased pressure to all parts of the city for fire emergencies.

RUTH RESIGNED TO FATE ASKS FOR SILK ROBE

WARDEN SAYS WISH IS NOT TO BE GRANTED CONDEMNED WOMAN

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Apparently resigned to her death in the electric chair Thursday night, Mrs. Ruth Snyder has told her mother she would like to die in her own black silk gown.

Mrs. Josephine Brown said her daughter had told her she was tired of the coarse, cotton and ginghams clothing she had been forced to wear since her confinement to sing sing prison and would like to wear her silk garments once again if only for her execution.

Wish May Be Denied
Warden Lawes, however, indicated the condemned woman would not be granted her wish. He explained the family would have nothing to say about what she would wear and that probably Mrs. Snyder would don for her execution the same kind of gingham house dress she has been wearing, except that the color would be black.

Mrs. Brown, after a visit to her daughter during which both wept, told the warden her daughter was resigned to death.

"Ruth is blue," she said. "She has given up hope and is preparing for the end. She expects no clemency from the governor."

Henry Judd Gray, her paragoner who also is scheduled to die on Thursday for his part in the murder of the woman's husband, has made final preparations for death.

Gray made a will in which, it is understood, he made his wife, Mrs. Isabelle Gray, and his 10-year-old daughter, Jane, his sole beneficiaries.

Warden Lawes said that both prisoners were bearing up well under the strain. Gray, he said, was perfectly normal, both mentally and physically, and Mrs. Snyder, although highly nervous and incessantly weeping, was normal mentally.

BRUTALITY OF CHILD'S DEATH IS RECOUNTED

LIST OF ARTICLES FOR BURIAL ROBE FOUND ON BABY'S FATHER

(By Associated Press)
WINCHESTER, Ky., Jan. 10.—A scrap of paper which was discovered hidden on the person of Robert H. Pitts, father of 3 year old Mary Magdalene Pitts, whose scorched and burned body was found ten days ago at the Pitts home in Greenup, Ky., listed a number of articles which were to be bought in anticipation of the little girl's death, authorities here declared.

Pitts and his housekeeper, Mrs. Marie Frazier, were held in jail here on charges of slaying the child. They were brought to Winchester to avoid possible mob violence because of the brutality of their alleged crime.

Articles Are Listed
The list of articles found by J. J. Hammond, assistant jailer at Winchester shortly after Pitts was placed in his custody, listed the following articles: three yards bleached, two yards lace, three yards white veil, three yards pale blue ribbon, white stockings and white slippers, spoon with thread, plain blue hose, three yards to cover casket, eight yards lace, two inches wide; three yards bleached muslin, two boxes carpet tacks, two pounds quilt bottom, candles. "Better kill her now than wait until she is grown—and then she would have to take a gun and blow her brains out."

Pitts has placed full blame for the baby's death on the mistreatment of the child by Mrs. Frazier.

Woman Accuses Pitts
The woman, in turn accused Pitts of the child's death. "I never whipped Mary at all except when I first came there," she said. "Her father whipped her all the time. One time he beat her with six switches tied together. I never put salt and turpentine on her at all. If it was done, he done it."

Explaining the burns, Mrs. Frazier said the child's dress caught fire while she—Mrs. Frazier—was out in the yard with the other children. She denied burning the baby over a red hot stove, as has been charged. Furthermore, she said she had not given the baby poison. "If anybody gave Mary poison, it was him—Pitts," she moaned. "For I know I didn't. Contents of the child's stomach have been tested by state chemists at Greenup and officials believe the child was killed in this manner. The findings have not been made public."

Brutality Charged
Pitts in a statement given to Winchester authorities charged that Mrs. Frazier brutally whipped the child and then rubbed her back with salt and turpentine because the baby had called her vile names. He said the woman had threatened time after time, to kill the child and at one time tortured her by hanging her against the wall of a shed by pulling the rope.

A special grand jury to investigate the charges against the two prisoners will be called at Greenup next Monday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—Arturo M. Elias, Mexican consul-general, today said he would ask the deportation of Jacob Nosovitsky, self styled international spy whose name has been mentioned in connection with the forgery of Mexican documents.

Elias said he paid Nosovitsky $1,200 in the last six months for spurious documents which purported to reveal that officers and Catholics in this country sought to run nuns into Mexico. Elias described Nosovitsky as a "trouble maker," and said he merely gave him the money in an attempt to trap him. Nosovitsky is now living in Brooklyn.

SLAYER TO GET DEATH VERDICT LATER IN DAY

SHERIFF'S PLEA FOR AID BRING ACTION BY RANGER FORCE

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 10.—Guarding against possible outbreaks, two Texas Rangers were to "stand by" with Parmer County officers today when George J. Hassell, who says he killed 13 persons, hears the death sentence again assessed him formally in district court at Farwell.

Adjutant General C. L. Robertson sent the Rangers—Privates Purvis and Moore, stationed at Borger—late last night after the Parmer county sheriff had requested reinforcements.

Hassell was given the death penalty in connection with the slaying of nine members of his family. His case recently was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals and the death mandate sent back to trial court for the setting of another execution date.

Sentence Will Be Passed By Tatum

George Jefferson Hassell, confessed slayer of 13 persons, was to have had the death sentence passed on him shortly after 2 o'clock today by Judge Reese Tatum of the 68th district court at Farwell.

That was the statement made to the Daily Journal over long distance telephone by Judge Tatum just before court was ready to convene.

Pitts and his mother, who made ranger force and sheriff's department of Parmer county on guard against possible violence, Farwell was quiet as the time for passing sentence approached. Judge Tatum stated.

Feeling in Parmer county, however, is known to be bitter against the defendant, who is being sentenced for the slaying of 9 members of his family on a farm near Farwell just before Christmas in 1926.

Judge Homer L. Pharr of the 72nd district court, read the first death sentence on the Plains yesterday afternoon on Crockett. Benton, according to court officials, accepted the sentence in a calm manner, showing no emotion whatsoever throughout the ritual. After being led from the court room, he expressed thanks to all those connected with his trial for the treatment he had received.

He was carried back to the Hale county jail at Plainview where he has been in safe keeping for the past several months. He will be electrocuted in Huntsville on February 10.

Rheumatic Pains Yield to Capudine

Opiates are not necessary and certainly not desirable in the treatment of rheumatism. Capudine relieves the pain quite as effectively and also reduces the congestion and inflammation, thereby assisting in the treatment while it makes the patient comfortable. Best of all, there is no danger of acquiring the drug habit for Capudine contains no opiates. Every year more and more physicians are relying upon Capudine in the treatment of rheumatism. It is the logical agent to control the pain, fever and inflammation. Get a bottle today at your druggist; 60c and 30c sizes. (adv.)

WATCH FOR DATE

The Buckeye Incubator Co., Springfield, Ohio. I have seven incubators—one of them a Buckeye. I like the Buckeye much better than any of the other makes. Mrs. Albert King, Lockney, Texas.

WHY BUCKEYE INCUBATORS HATCH MORE CHICKS

Buckeye incubators give results that cannot be secured with any other incubator. They hatch more chicks. They hatch bigger, stronger, better chicks. They stop the losses. Chicks don't die in the shell. With a Buckeye the hatching of chicks is sure, certain and profitable. And here are a few of the reasons.

Correct, Uniform Heat-Fresh, Moist Air

The Buckeye Hot Water Heating System is the system that insures a perfect balance of temperature, ventilation and moisture. It insures absolutely correct temperature being maintained every minute of the incubation period. It insures the heat being uniform over the entire egg tray. There are no underheated eggs—no overheated eggs. And that's not all. The air in the Buckeye egg chamber is always fresh and pure. It is always moist. It isn't dried out. The Buckeye system retains all the natural moisture in the air.

Patented All-Metal Thermostat

The greatest contribution to artificial incubation is the patented Buckeye All-Metal Thermostat. It prevents that harmful fluctuation in temperature that kills the chicks in the shell. It gives absolute control of the temperature in the egg chamber regardless of changes in outside temperature. It insures the maintaining of the necessary temperature in the egg chamber at all times. This wonderful Thermostat is all-metal. It doesn't go wrong; it doesn't wear out; it is always sure and reliable. Simply set the regulator when the hatch is started and you seldom need to touch it until the next hatch.

Buckeye "Standard" Incubators

California Redwood is used exclusively in the outside walls. The top and sides are two pieces of seasoned lumber with corrugated insulation between. The oil lamp and lamp support are patented. They meet the requirements of the Insurance Underwriters' Laboratories. This insures an incubator that is absolutely fireproof.

GUARANTEE: Buckeye incubators are guaranteed. Any incubator or part thereof that does not fulfill our guarantee will be replaced any time within 40 days.

CHANGE OF PACE BALL ESSENTIAL IN BIG LEAGUES, EVANS SAYS

URLERS MUST HAVE IT, SAYS DIAMOND SAGE

DECEPTION NOW MEANS MORE THAN FAST OR CURVE BALL

BY BILLY EVANS

Pitching in the major leagues is a science.

At present there is a hysteria over a change of pace ball among pitchers and managers.

When a scout speaks glowingly of some rookie he has seen in the bushes, the first question the manager of his club is sure to ask him is:

"Has he a good change of pace?" Most fans have a mistaken idea of what a change of pace ball really is. Many think of it as simply a slow ball. It is all of that and some more.

A pitcher is born with a change of pace. It is an acquired art, can be taught to a pitcher's repertoire through the medium of much work plus a keen mind and a lot of courage.

A change of pace is most effective when used in a pinch. In other words, with a couple of runners on the sacks or better yet the bases filled, and the count three and two on the batter; that is the time to use the change of pace ball if properly controlled.

In using the change of pace, the pitcher does the very thing the batters imply, shifts or rates his speed, using exactly the same motion he does in throwing the fast ball or curve, only much slower.

The ability to do that very thing is what makes the change of pace ball valuable. If the pitcher must shift his pitching style in order to adjust to his change of pace, he immediately loses 50 per cent of his effectiveness through tipping off his intent.

A change of pace is a sure ball. When the batter feels the situation is too tense for the pitcher to gamble and that is reasonable for him to expect the same, then it is that the change of pace completely upsets the batter.

In such a crisis, I have seen some of the greatest batters in the history of the game stand as if transfixed while they watched the floating ball, a perfect strike, and hear the umpire call them out, with as much as even lifting their shoulders.

I came into the American League 22 years ago, the fast ball high and usually on the inside of the batter's head.

When the fast ball, pitched high, had been used for perhaps 10 years, I began to get my entry into the game. Then came the era of the spitball.

When I learned, for the first time, to be real effective it was by using a spitball, preferably a high one. Unquestioned, the spitball changed the style of pitching from the high to the low ball.

The spitball, by the way, was a new runner to an era of trick deliveries. These trick deliveries soon were barred from the game.

When the spitball was introduced, the batters came back to the knuckle ball, an old delivery, that carries with it the same deception as the spitball.

However, the lively ball without question has revolutionized the style of pitching as did the spitball. No longer has a pitcher who depends exclusively on a fast ball, a chance to get by in the majors.

He must be able to slow up, use a change of pace.

What the change of pace is all about, what will be next?

GREEN PLEASED WITH OFFER FOR LINCOLN'S CLUB

GREEN, principal owner of the Lincoln club, has accepted the offer of the Western league baseball club from his trip to Pueblo, Colo., that city offered him an excellent proposition that he would not turn it down and as a result he is ready to remove the Lincoln club to that place provided the Western league clubs are willing.

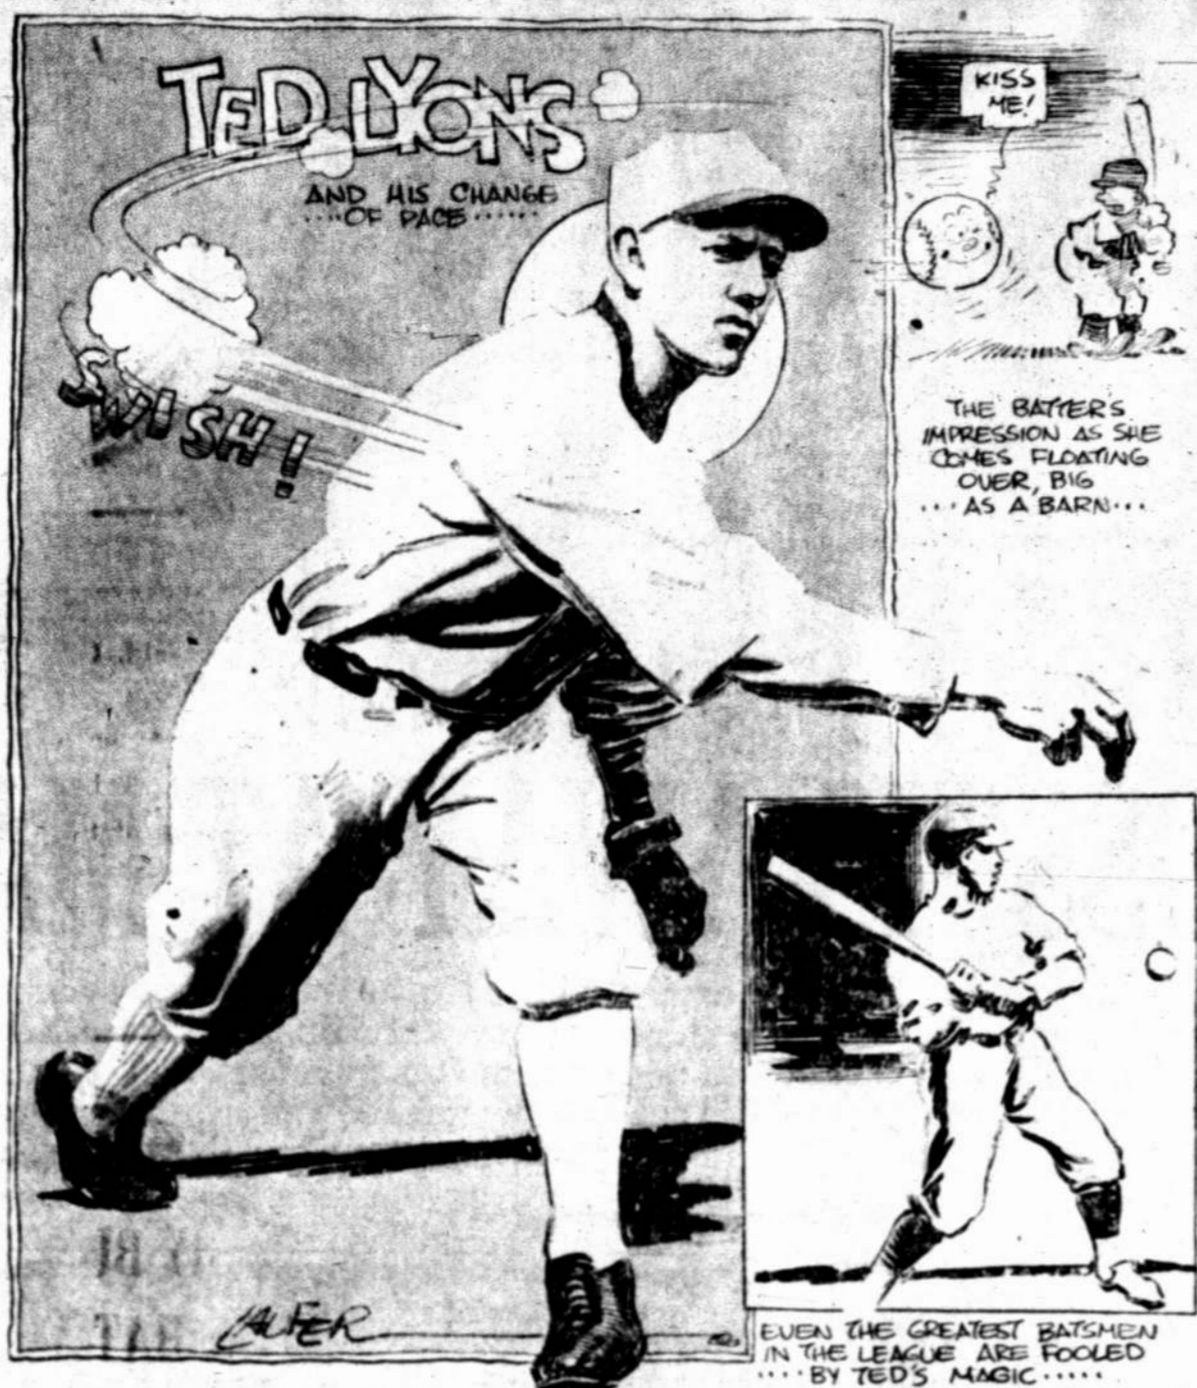

"I found a fan's association organized, a willingness to build a new park and an offer of $12,000 to $15,000 with which to buy a ball club," said Green.

MORIARTY, IN WINTER SHUFFLE, ADDS TO OUTFIELD STRENGTH IN EFFORT TO AID PITCHERS; GOOD MACHINE OFFERED

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—George Moriarty, former major league umpire, ball player and now manager of the Detroit Tigers, shuffled the cards during the winter big league holidays and dealt the St. Louis Browns a pair of aces. He has yet to prove to critical Detroit fans the wisdom of the play which sent two favorites, Lu Blue, first baseman, and Heinie Manush, outfielder, to the Browns, that he might strengthen an outfield to support his pitchers.

But with the acquisition of Harry Rice in the trade that sent Blue and Manush to the Browns he has created an outfield that will both hit and field. He is certain Rice will hit better than 300, lead the majors in stealing bases, and speed up the outfield. Throughout the playing season, of 1927 there were rumors of complaints from Tiger pitchers that they were not receiving the proper support needed in the far corners. With Rice, Harry Heilmann, leading batter of the majors and Bob "Rhino" Fothergill, Moriarty believes he can present a trio of hitters that will cause opposing pitchers untold agony.

The winter shuffle also sent away Johnny Bassler, veteran catcher and a favorite of the pitching staff, "Rip" Collins, and Donald Hankins. In return the Tigers received Elam Vangilder, veteran pitcher of the Browns, Red Hargrave, former catcher of the Toronto club of the International league and "Chick" Gallows, late erratic shortstop of the Philadelphia Athletics. Gallows is slated for a shortstop position in the event little Jack Tavener is less out of the game with an injured hand that obstinately refuses to heal.

Warner At Hot Corner—At third base Warner is left to carry the burden assisted by the versatile Marty McManus, the Tigers' utility man of the infield.

Johnny Neun, who succeeded Lu Blue at first base last season is considered one of the most successful base pilferers in the American league. A large part of Moriarty's strategy has been centered upon the ability of his men to steal bases. Even the lumbering Heilmann proved proficient at the art for a time last year. With Neun, Rice, Charley Gehring and Tavener—if he plays—Detroit anticipates a season punctuated with daring dashes around the base lines reminiscent of the balmy days of Ty Cobb.

The winter trades brought little improvement in the pitching staff. Owen Carroll of Holy Cross and "Josh" Billings and Rufus Smith of Brown university are young pitchers who have done well. Kenneth Holloway, Lil Stoner, Sam Gibson and Earl Whitehill are the veterans, with Elam Vangilder and George Smith ready for relief roles with a number of youngsters up from the minors.

Des Moines To Get Ex-Giant Fielder

BUDDING REVOLT IN DRAFT PLANS AGAIN SET BACK

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Another budding revolt over the baseball draft methods of the major leagues has been scotched, with the minor leagues again acknowledging that the majors hold the whip hand in the baseball player market.

Delegates representing the 24 organized minor leagues voted yesterday to rescind their Dallas resolution and permit the draft situation to run along just as it has for the past seven years, and as it will continue during the incumbency of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, under the terms of their new resolution.

Big Minors Win Fight
The five big minors, International, Pacific Coast and Three Eye leagues, and American and Southwestern associations, won their fight with the backing of the major leagues—to continue the modified draft. No player, under this modification, can be drafted from the big five clubs unless he came down from a major league club.

The minors also rescinded another attempt to hamper the majors in their draft methods, by changing a rule which would have allowed the minors to keep a "farmed out" player for a year before his recall.

BARBER ESCAPE

the dry corn stalks of an old field near the camp. In the stillness of the night every step of the horse crushing the corn stalks sounded like a pistol shot.

"My idea was to get that horse as soon as we finished with the guards," Barber's account said.

Pedro Signals Ready
About 11 o'clock he asked Pedro by signal whether he was ready. Pedro signalled "yes."

They took the cognac bottle and some large stones. With these they pounded in the heads of the four guards, beating them to death.

Barber and Pedro rushed to the corral and jumped on the horse's bare back. As they spurred him on, shots rang out from the other bandits. The captives were pursued, but were not wounded.

The horse blundered and stumbled. Then the riders discovered that he was blind. For several hours they rode him, until he tumbled into a ravine and died. They then continued their way afoot.

Suffering With Eye
Barber was suffering from an injured eye received previously when thrown from a horse while being moved from one camp of the bandits to another. The fleeing men ran most of the night. Sometimes when exhaustion overwhelmed them they stopped for breath.

At daylight Sunday they reached a little Indian village. They were treated kindly and after a rest started afoot again for Cuernavaca. They arrived there Sunday afternoon and tried to telephone Mexico City but failed. Then Barber and Pedro got an automobile and completed their trip, arriving in Mexico City Sunday night.

Barber may not be able to leave his bed for at least a week. He will probably require medical attention much longer.

McCandless Hurt By Gasoline Stove

James H. McCandless, 615 Avenue B, who was burned about the face and hands late Sunday, was not a victim of a gas stove, as originally reported to the Morning Avalanche, but instead was burned when the gasoline stove which he was attempting to light exploded, it was announced today.

Mr. McCandless, who was treated at the West Texas hospital, was reported today as being in an improved condition. He was not seriously burned.

Trash Fire Does Little Damage Here

Fire Chief W. E. Twitty demonstrated his ability to lend the trucks of the department on a call shortly before one o'clock today when a run was made to 2012 Ave. K. Burning trash, endangering a residence, caused the alarm.

Chief Twitty, in his new special car, brought numbers of spectators out with his rapid drive down Texas Avenue.

It is revealed that DAVID was the agitator for the opening show he takes Tony along.

CHAPTER XXVII
The surprising showmen of the day
are awakening to the possibilities of the American Indian as a drawing card, especially in the east.
The red man was a rarity and curiosity.

The Healy and Bigelow company,
New Haven and New York, decided to test the box office value of the Indian and augment their already rather elaborate medicine show with a wild west act. Pawnee Bill was commissioned to gather together a large company of Indians and fetch them to Philadelphia.
When he arrived in the Pennsylvania metropolis Tony Harrison was with him.

Titus Moore at first had been doubtful about it, but a few words from Craig had converted him.

"All of a sudden he swung right in line with the idea," Tony informed Pawnee Bill. "I don't know how he came over him to make him change his mind."

The other smiled. He could explain it very easily, he was thinking but he chose not to.

Titus's chief regret at leaving the show arose with the necessity of going with Cherokee, his horse, son of Black Diamond and Tony was a beautiful, spirited thing and the boy was his slave. Titus told himself had to promise to look after him.

"Don't you worry, Tony. I'm as proud of him as you are. The first time he personally scalp."

Bill's recommendation gained for Tony a job as cowboy on the wild west show. The boy is the best horseman in the outfit and he could handle a rope as well as most of them. As for Tony's horse, the long haired Indian interpreter was quite the most picturesque figure, red or white, with the show. He and Tony roamed together and wherever they walked the streets of Philadelphia stopped to gaze after the shouldered figure with the mane and the wide hat.

"What showmanship!" he invaded the youth, when questioned as to whether it was not embarrassing to be the subject of so much curiosity. "I don't mind it and it increases my value to the show."

He had in mind, he said, going into the business for himself some day. "I'm studying costs and trying to work for other people long. If they can make money
I ought to be able to make myself if I keep my eyes open."

That evening Pawnee Bill was not to be found when Tony looked for him. He was in the parlor. He was waiting for it was their custom to go to a restaurant for something to eat and then walk together through Philadelphia before going to bed.

A street seller saw him waiting and called to him. "You're just too late," he laughed. "I saw Pawnee Bill walkin' off with a pretty gal."
"You're sure? He didn't say anything to me about having a date."
"I saw him with my own eyes."
Tony laughed and walked off and completely forgot about it. Later that evening Pawnee Bill explained.
"I met a nice little girl, Tony. A little beauty. She came to the show with some friends and somehow got to talking and I took her home. I guess I made a fool of myself, didn't I?"

"Why, her mother and father were in the parlor and talked to me. I didn't know what to talk about. They're Quaker people. I was sort of sedate, and they kept looking at me as if I was a
curiosity."

"Tony laughed. "I thought you didn't mind that sort of thing."
"I don't, as a rule, but this was kind of different. Besides, I forgot myself and spit on the floor and the old man sort of raised his eyebrows at me. Of course, he hastened to add before Tony could speak, "I know it isn't right to spit on people's floors in a nice house like that,
but I got fussed and there wasn't any cuspidor around and so I let it go without thinking."
"That's sure too bad," Tony complimented. "I'll just bet you haven't got the nerve to go back again."
"Is that so?" the other retorted bravely. "Well she's coming to the show again tomorrow night and I'm liking home with her again. What you think of that?"

"I'm not saying a word. My advice to you, is to sit near a window."
The girl's name, he developed, was Mary Emma Manning. "She's just but pretty as a picture. Black hair and brown eyes and—"

"Sure, I know. Well, give me an invitation to the wedding." He grinned, and ducked quickly to avoid one of Pawnee Bill's boots.

From the door he called back. "If she's got a good looking sister you might take me along with you. I'm getting right starved for romance myself," and gathered from Pawnee Bill's report that he would find a welcome in a hotter climate.

His own thoughts later that night were not so facetious. He couldn't help thinking of Rita wondering how she looked, what sort of men she was meeting. Of course, this was nothing more than a brief insultation of Pawnee Bill's. A pretty girl, probably stage struck—a few weeks from now and both would have forgotten it.

Rita, though, was more than that.
It was not easy to forget her down on the Bar K when every week brought one of her letters to her father. He thought of something Titus Moore had said when he had returned the previous winter from his visit in Virginia. "You'd hardly know her, Tony; she's not a little girl any more."

Very likely not, he told himself.
Rita was 17 and he had not seen her for two years. His mind grasped eagerly the thought of taking the train to Washington, only a few hours from Philadelphia, and calling on her at her school. But it was summer, he recollected, and the school would be closed; she would not be there.

The next day he got a letter from Joe Craig. Rita had arrived at the ranch to spend her vacation.

"Her mother's with her," Craig wrote, "and Rita seemed right put out when she learned you had left.
She told me to send her regards.
She's sure pretty, Tony, and she's fell in love with Cherokee."

The information made him very unhappy and restless. Not to be present when Rita got her first glimpse of Cherokee, not to be there to ask her to ride him and to ride beside her along some of the familiar trails...

They left Philadelphia not long afterward and toured through the east. Tony was surprised to learn that Pawnee Bill was exchanging letters with little Mary Manning—or May, as he called her. He twitted him about it, but Pawnee Bill no longer could be embarrassed.

"I expect I'll marry her if I ever get the nerve to ask her," he invaded the youth calmly. "And providing, of course, she'll have me.
She's the only girl I ever met that I'd want to marry."

Tony with great difficulty overcame a sudden temptation to blurt out his own hopeless story to his friend.

The show closed before the summer's end and they traveled together as far as Wellington. There Pawnee Bill left him, promising him
the opportunity of another tour in the fall.

"Probably along the west coast,
Buffalo Bill's got a show called the Flying Dutchman, with Jules Keene playing the lead. He thinks he'll want me to bring him some Indians again, and it'll be a nice trip for you. Take care of yourself."

At Caldwell Tony was met by Joe Craig, who had brought another horse with him. "Cherokee being king of young, I didn't bring him along. Tony. He's not strong enough yet for heavy duty. You'll be just in time to see Rita before she goes back just got a few days more to stay. Tell me about yourself. What kind of a time did you have? Reckon you'd go into the show business?"

"I don't know. It's all right, but it's kind of uncertain. You clean up in one town and don't make experiences in another. What's Rita like? Does she still ride around and get in everybody's way?" He was masking his interest behind a tone of indifference.

Craig shoved back his hat and scratched his head and said, "Yes,
she still runs things; in that respect she hasn't changed much."

"Does she talk the same?"

"Craig regarded him with an amused stare. "Well, she's picked up a Virginia accent, I guess you'd call it. Sort of soft and lassy-like.
And she don't say 'ain't' any more.
What else do you want to know?"

Tony reddened furiously. "Nothing, I reckon. I—I was just figuring that two years might make a powerful change in a girl and I was curious."

His heart kept pounding against his ribs as they rode along. What would she be like? Would she be the old, carefree, impudent Rita,
the Rita that used to issue commands like an imperious little queen? Or would she be another person—reserved, dignified, conscious of her place and of his?

(To be Continued)

Rita Moore has changed, Tony learns, and it adds nothing to his peace of mind.

Thought For Today
Prove all things; hold fast to that which is good.—1 Thess. 5:21.

Conviction is the conscience of the mind.—Chamfort.

A Killer?
Statistics have announced that during the year 1928 there will be 23,500 people killed in traffic accidents. More than 700,000 will be injured.

Sooner or later we are going to realize that our traffic problems is something that must be tackled in a big way. Twenty-three thousand deaths in one year. As many lives as were lost in the battle of Gettysburg.

When we are going to wake up and do something about it? All of these deaths, of course, will be accidental. Barring some that will be caused by drunken or mentally deficient drivers.

The speeder will cause some of the trouble. The man who is in such a hurry to get wherever he is going that he forgets that pedestrians, little children especially, can suddenly appear on a highway without warning.

The road hog will cause others—the driver who wants to stick in the middle of the road, the driver who makes it a point of honor not to give an inch more space to the other motorist than he has to.

The "take a chance" idiot will cause many more—the driver who flips by another car on the wrong side and trusts to luck that the other driver won't happen to pull over towards the curb until he gets by.

The slow-poke, who usually thinks he is a very careful driver will be responsible for quite a few. This driver you know, plods along in the middle of the street at 20 miles an hour, forcing other cars into the wrong traffic lanes when they pass him.

The "in-and-out" driver—the driver who weaves a cork screw track through heavy traffic, looking his horns and screeching fenders as he goes—will have plenty to answer for, too.

And last but not least, there is the man who loses his temper, which is apt to include any of us. When another car spurs by you and cuts in pretty close in front of you, you get sore, don't you? You have an impulse to beat ahead and get in close to it to get even don't you? Well, don't do it. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred, it would be all right, but the hundredth time might cause a wreck that would take several lives. You can't afford to lose your temper in an automobile.

Our traffic toll is a national shame. Sooner or later we must devise some system of traffic control far better than we now have. In the meantime, it is up to each individual driver to handle his car always, so that there is no chance of his hitting any person or automobile.

The Guzzler Pays
A great many people died in various American cities during the Christmas season from the effects of liquor they had drunk.

But before you hold up your hands in horror over the evils of "poson" booze that prohibition drinkers encounter, consider this fact: Hospital physicians at New York, where 16 men died and a number more were seriously ill, said that the cause, in most cases, was not "poson" booze, but the fact that the men had simply drunk too much.

A long time ago it was remarked that nothing can save a fool from his folly. It is still true. Nothing can.

If a man will guzzle without restraint he must pay the penalty for it, even if he drinks the "poson" liquor that ever was distilled.

The first newspaper was published in England in 1588.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says:
That Girl on Broadway says there are two ways for a girl to be unpopular: wearing a long face or a long skirt.

Charles Smith, a Lansing, Ohio, youth, has appeared before the courts asking that his name be legally changed from Smith to Burdette, his mother's maiden name. The boy's father, so the petition to the court read, has refused to help the lad secure an education and for some time has refused to speak to his son. That's real tragedy.

The Plainsman can read of murders, suicides—of wholesale slaughter, even—and be little moved. But when he reads of an incurable breach between father and son he can't pass over the matter without some thought and sorrow.

Between every father and son there should be the strongest of bonds. The right kind of a father will stand as a haven in time of trouble for his son. His personality will be that of the rock of Gibraltar, standing firm against the storm.

The saddest of news should be guided over precipitous trails by a father whose knowledge enables him to choose the right path. There is nothing so essential to a boy, mother's love, and her infinite care notwithstanding.

Charles Smith and his father have both missed what should have been the biggest thing in their lives. It is a shame. The Plainsman knows nothing of the difficulties between this father and his son, Charles Smith, who have been sadly lacking in many ways. Yet regardless of the kind of a son Charles Smith has been his father has most likely been more lacking in his parental duties than the son has in his duties toward his father.

The Plainsman can't help but regret that Lubbock has outgrown these Chamber of Commerce dinners—these annual events where civic leaders meet about the banquet board with their ladies to discuss past and future progress. Sometimes it seems like our Chamber of Commerce and our Board of City Development, in the hustle and bustle has lost the personal touch. The evolution of our Chamber of Commerce from a village Commercial club of a dozen years ago is one of the things we have had to pay for.

Lubbock's wonderful growth from a small town to a budding young city. From the standpoint of expansion the price has been none too great. But from a fellowship point of view it seems sometimes to have been rather costly.

Members of the Women's Home Demonstration club of the New Hope community will honor Miss Flossie Wilke of that community Friday night. A reception will be tendered this young lady who has won a scholarship by the record she has made in Four-H club work. She deserves the honor and the New Hope ladies should be commended for preparing for this event which will be remembered by her as one of the high spots in her life.

The nation needs more girls of the type of Eloise Wilke. It needs more girls who can and will do things of a practical nature. Next fall, from the record she has made in county club work, The Plainsman predicts that she will hear more of Eloise Wilke during her college career and Texas Tech should be proud of the matriculation of a young lady who has such a record of doing things.

At bridge he trumped his partner's bid and then broke loose. Although he played the seven spot, he really played the deuce.

Young Hickman was a model Sunday School boy, according to dispatches. Which probably will bring a remembrance of the overwhelming logic that all model Sunday School boys are bad at heart.

Reactionary Democrats Hold Balance Of Power In The Senate Says Senator Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—"I, said Senator Henrik Shipstead, the handsome young giant from Minnesota, am not the balance of power in this Senate."

Shipstead was staying late in his office, as some senators sometimes do, on an evening shortly before the death of Jones of New Mexico. Although a Farmer-Labor party man, he had supplied the one vote which enabled the Republicans to organize the upper house for there were then 47 Democrats, 46 Republicans, Shipstead and Vice-President Dawes. The death of Jones left 46 Democrats.

"Neither, Shipstead continued, does the independent group of Republican senators hold the balance of power."

"The balance of power is held by the reactionary Democrats who are willing to vote with the reactionary Republicans when large business interests say the word. In this Senate party labels mean nothing. There is a direct line of cleavage here between the reactionaries and the progressives. Just look at the vote on the Walsh resolution to investigate the electric power trust."

Some others would say that the cleavage was between the conservative and radicals and they would not admit that there was an electric power trust. But Shipstead was saying, in effect, what most of the intelligent senators here say so far as concerns the present political lineup. The trouble is, of course, that the ordinary Republican or Democratic senator can't publicly admit that party lines don't mean anything. Shipstead, being independent of both big parties, can say what he likes.

A glance at the vote, as suggested by Shipstead, is instructive. The vote was on the motion of Senator Moses to refer Tom Walsh's resolution to the Senate's Interstate Commerce Committee.

Advocates of the investigation said this would bury the bill, the committee membership being predominantly conservative. The motion was carried 40 to 36, 13 conservative Democrats voting with 27 Democratic Republicans and 13 progressive Republicans voting with 23 Democratic against it. Ten Democrats and eight Republicans didn't vote and most of them were accused of ducking the issue.

The fate of the Walsh resolution is now uncertain, but his friends contend that the Senate's refusal to authorize the investigation represented the first victory of a power lobby said to be functioning here. The power lobby is dedicated to keeping the government out of the electricity business and to head off any investigation of the huge power industry.

The 13 Democratic senators who voted against Senator Tom Walsh were Bayard, Brown, Edwards, Glass, Hawes, Mayfield, Odette, Overman, Randall, Simmons, Stock, Thomas and Tyson.

Of those who are accused of ducking the vote were presidential candidate Jim Reed, and presidential candidate Curtis. Presidential candidate Willis voted with the majority of the Republicans.

preference, I was told, because of their familiarity with the city. The day, I also was told, was $5 a salary. Which may or may not serve as a sermon to the ambitious young men and women of crossroads points.

This continues to be a tough winter for minor members of the acting profession; and a few major ones. Some 20 were identified during the holiday rush disguised as special clerks in Manhattan post-office substations. They were given

PROTECTS THE GUILTY
Signing of the Walsh bill by President Coolidge which permits the son-in-law of former Secretary of the Interior Fall to testify for the government in the Fall-Sinclair trial without incriminating himself calls attention once again to a detail in our criminal procedure which serves as a shield to the guilty and at the same time does violence to the rights of society.

The case of Everhart is different, of course. Not accused of crime himself, he has refused to testify on the ground that he would incriminate himself. The Walsh bill will prevent him from giving this excuse any longer. It will not, however, affect the underlying situation—the "constitutional immunity" enjoyed by all defendants and all witnesses.

The law excusing a prisoner from testifying, originally, was devised to prevent the possibility of torture being used to extort a confession. It was not so long ago that the rack and whip were considered essential adjuncts of any well-ordered court. But we have progressed a bit since then, albeit, the third degree methods employed in some instances and in some localities have come in for widespread criticism and condemnation. But that is always before trial. No prisoner called into an American court these days, need fear that judge and prosecutor will stop the trial, and bring in the rack or affix the thumb screws to compel him to tell his story.

Of course, we can not abolish the "immunity" guarantee without amending the constitution. But we can modify it to the extent that ends of justice will be served rather than impeded. We can't force a man charged with murder or any other offense to testify, but we can permit the prosecutor to draw for the jury's benefit the logical deduction—that the prisoner is guilty and knows that any story he might tell on the witness stand would make the fact plain.

The present system plays into the hands of the guilty and unscrupulous lawyers. We fail to see how it benefits innocent men who are wrongly accused; such men should be, and usually are, glad to testify. The one man who knows more about the crime than all others is the defendant; and if he does not feel inclined to give the jury the benefit of what he knows, the logical conclusion is that he regards it as inimical to his defense. There is no reason in justice why that fact should not be discussed to the jury. That it is not retards rather than promotes, justice.—Denison Herald.

This thing of law and court procedure is a funny thing, anyway. Evidence is the element which cases should be tried but it seems that the courts are inclined to want to give out just about as little of it as possible. Important information is very often withheld from the jury, and does not give them an opportunity to get all the facts before they are forced to try the case.

FEDERAL CROP PROJECT GOOD FOR CARLSBAD

BIG INCREASE SHOWN IN ACRE RETURN ON 22,783 ACRES

(Special To The Journal) CARLSBAD, N. M., Jan. 10--The annual crop field report for the past year on the government's Carlsbad irrigation project has been completed by L. E. Foster, superintendent, and shows the total value of crops on 22,783 acres at $1,597,890, or an average of $69.30 per acre. The value of crops produced during the year 1927 is only exceeded during the year 1924 when the value was $1,988,546 and $2,239,908, respectively. The Carlsbad project has been operated by the government since 1907, without ever a crop failure, and the total value of crops produced amounts to $17,574,968, compared with the construction cost of $1,448,000.

15,483 Bales of Cotton

The project proper produced 13,403 five hundred pound bales of long staple cotton valued at $1,360,868 or an average of $64.70 per acre and the yield of cotton seed was 5,506 tons, which produced revenue of $159,027 or $6.97 per acre. Private irrigation plants immediately contiguous to the government project, yielded 1,080 bales of cotton valued at $77,022 in addition to the total of the government report. The production of cotton in the Carlsbad district was 16,000 bales. The crop is the largest in point of yield per acre in the history of the local project, having averaged 407.6 pounds per acre, compared with the previous high yield in 1924 of 398 pounds per acre. The per acre value of the cotton and seed crop for 1927 exceeded the previous year by $47.34 per acre. Although all winter work reduced in proportion, all work done by an expert, Graduate U. S. government, All work guaranteed.

Is Very Successful

Carlsbad is the most successful of all the government's irrigation projects in the west. The water users have returned to the United States approximately 42 per cent of the total construction cost, and delinquent installments of both construction and operation and maintenance charges are practically nil. Recent light snow and rain has placed much moisture in the ground and snow on the upper water shed give promise of another favorable crop season for 1928.
