Reparation Meet Hinges On Costs

Germans Raise Issue After Nations Reach Agreement In Hague Conference On Payment Distribution

(By Associated Press) THE HAGUE, Aug. 28.—The final issue in the reparations conference has come down to the question of costs of the military occupation of the Rhineland. The Germans raised that issue in response to the suggestion of the creditor powers that they contribute to the agreement reached last night between the British and the four other creditors as to distribution of reparations payments. Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann today said he would cooperate in settling the whole problem but that if Germany gives up anything it must get something in exchange. What he wants is the earliest possible evacuation of the Rhineland. The German attitude was made known to the allies this morning when Dr. Stresemann left the city open for discussion. These were held this afternoon and continued well into the evening. The idea of the chief delegates is to leave any unsettled questions, such as the organization of the bank for international settlements, in the hands of experts who will report either to the governments or to a reconvened conference in September or October.

Three Injured As Plane Hits Hall

EUREKA, Utah, Aug. 28.—(P)—While 8,000 persons looked on today, a plane carrying two passengers and the pilot struck the tower of the city hall here and hurtled against the second floor of an adjacent building, injuring the occupants of the plane and a pedestrian. James Fletcher, the pilot, Helen Long, 16, and Kenneth Jones, 19, were in the plane. John Boughan, was hit by the wing of the plane as it whirled downward, but neither were seriously injured. The accident occurred during the celebration of the anniversary of the discovery of ore in this mining community. Fletcher, operating under a private license, had been taking passengers into the air during the festivities. He said he struck unfavorable air currents, losing altitude and made a vain attempt to land over the landing field.

Condemned Man Sings At Trial

EASTLAND, Aug. 28.—(P)—Mumbling a monotonous refrain "Ain't going to sin no more" and "Aye Captain," Henry Helms, condemned "Santa Clause" bank robber, slouched in his chair in district court here today as selection of jurors in his sanity trial went forward. At the day's adjournment, nine jurors had been selected. Helms' father and mother, during a brief court recess, undertook to talk to him but he paid neither of them the slightest attention. Helms was convicted of participation in the robbery of the Cisco First National bank, Dec. 23, 1927, and is under sentence to be electrocuted nine days from now.

Juvenile Endurance Sitters Being Routed From Their Perches By Orders Of Health Authorities

(By Associated Press) ST. LOUIS, Aug. 28.—St. Louis and University City police today began routing juvenile endurance sitters from their perches, on order from health authorities. Health Commissioners Starkloff and Fitzgerald characterized the sitting feat, that served as juvenile emulation of the St. Louis Roblin's sustained flight feat, as a public nuisance and dangerous to the present and future health of participants. Roselle Taylor, 10, who had been on a swing pole since last Friday afternoon, and Edwin Maruska Jr., 13, on a similar perch since Sunday morning, were called down by police. Roselle's mother pleaded that the girl be allowed to remain up until 5 p. m. tomorrow to complete a week aloft. The policeman returned with an insistent sergeant and her mother yielded while the child wept. Maruska's father was "all in favor of endurance sitting for children." "It teaches them patience," he said. The local sitting championship, which has flitted from shoulder to shoulder of late, now belongs to Ernest Stohlmann Jr., 14, of Webster Groves, who completed a week of residence atop a swing pole in his backyard at 10:30 today. Ernest hopes to remain up, Webster Groves police permitting, until Saturday when he will surpass the 11-day "world record" held by a Baltimore youth. His father sleeps on a cot under the swing every night. A pioneer sitter, William St. Clair, 15, who was forced down after 21 hours, with a stomach ache suffered from eating green apples, appeared in the role of impresario today, sponsoring a five-boy contest.

Three Jurors Selected In Murder Hearing Growing Out Of Death Of Police Chief In Strike Riot

(By Associated Press) CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 28.—Three jurors tonight were all that a score of lawyers had agreed upon to hear the evidence about sixteen national textile workers' union members, officials and officials of allied organizations charged with murdering O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia police chief. Eighty-five talesmen were questioned. Out of the last sixty-six, not one could qualify. Two of the first four men examined this morning were accepted and it was not until the nineteenth man was called that a third entered the jury box. It was regarded probable tonight that another special venire would be called tomorrow for Saturday. The jurors already in the box are subject to challenge later by consent of the judge. Today's session climaxed a long fight based on technicalities. The case first was called July 26 at Gastonia, where Aderholt was killed and where a tent colony was maintained by the national textile workers' union and the international workers' relief for strikers from the Lory cotton mill. A change of venue was granted.

Now that the waistline, after much lowering and raising and medium placing, has found its normal place, we find our skirts, or rather its hemline, quite as elusive. It dips and it flares unevenly, it hangs in points achieved through godets or it is even all around, according to taste in afternoon and evening frocks, though usually in the sports costumes it holds its dignified evenness about three inches below the knee. Never in all the history of clothes, and it is as old as the Bible, has there been such a wide diversity in the treatment of hemlines. They are achieved with much originality, and there is no rule to go by.

The dip may be in the front, at the back, on the side or on both sides, or it may express itself at front, back and sides all at once. A frock of the type with the four dips is shown at the left of the sketch. It is an afternoon model fashioned in printed chiffon. Deep godets give the skirt fullness and the four-pointed hemline. The model features the normal waistline, long hip and a large bertha collar which has become quite a feature of the sleeveless frock for those who do not care to expose the entire arm, during the summer. It is one of the latest styles being carried over into fall frocks, especially for evening wear; for the youthful figure.

A wedding which will be of interest to many people in Lubbock and Slaton is to be that of Dr. Roland Peters, of Lubbock, and Miss Virginia Mae Driver, of Slaton. The nuptial ceremony is to be read at 2 o'clock Sunday morning at the Slaton club by Rev. B. G. Holloway, pastor of the Slaton Baptist church.

Dr. John Dupre and Clarice Phillips, both of whom are associates of Dr. Peters on the Lubbock sanitarium staff, are to be in the wedding party. The bride's attendants are to be the groom's sister, Miss Erika Peters, of this city, and Miss Ada Belle Benton, of Slaton.

Dr. Peters has been serving an internship at the Lubbock sanitarium during the last 15 months. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Rice university at Houston and has his medical degree from the Texas University School of Medicine at Galveston. He is the son of Mrs. O. K. Peters, 307 College avenue.

Miss Driver is a graduate of the Slaton high school and of the Lubbock sanitarium nurses training school.

Miss Erika Peters is to be hostess this evening to members of the Peters-Driver wedding party with a dinner party at the Glorieta.

Finance Plan Is Evolved By Group

Southeast And West Texas Association Formulates Permanent Organization At San Antonio Meeting

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 28. (AP) — Evolving a policy and perfecting a plan of finance were undertaken by the Southeast and West Texas association today following permanent organization.

Mayor W. E. Monteth of Houston and Charles M. Tobin of San Antonio were elected president and secretary, respectively, continuing in the places they had filled since temporary organization at Galveston a number of weeks ago.

Mayor C. M. Chambers of San Antonio, Mayor P. G. Lovenak of Corpus Christi, Judge T. B. Smiley of Karnes City, Judge Lee Wallace of Kerrville and Judge Earl D. Scott of Jourdanton were chosen vice presidents.

The association has dedicated itself to the encouragement of highway construction and will lend its efforts especially to improvement of the Old Spanish Trail from Orange to El Paso.

Non Taxable Land Offer Problem

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 28. (AP) — Small revenue produced by presence of millions of acres of University of Texas non taxable lands in West Texas offers a serious handicap to highway construction in that section, the new Southeast and West Texas association was told today.

Suggestion that the organization take up with the state highway commission the matter of relief in this respect was offered by Judge C. E. Casabier of Fort Stockton, county Judge of Pecos county, W. T. Griffith of El Paso county commissioner, and Tom McClure of Pecos City, Reeves county.

Liberal Attitude Urged

They said the highway commission should be urged to exhibit a liberal attitude in the matter of voting aid for highway construction through that section.

Members of the state highway commission, Governor Moody and all employees of the highway department were elected to honorary membership in the association at the final meeting and a resolution was adopted praising the commissioners and inviting their "understanding and vigorous cooperation."

The policy of the new organization was fixed as the "development of highways in southeast and west Texas through cooperation of the highway commission" and membership fees were fixed at $5 per year. Chambers of commerce and other organizations were urged to subscribe for blocks of memberships.

The next meeting will be held on call of the president, Mayor Walter E. Monteth of Houston.

The demand for high priced American motor cars is increasing in Sweden, says the department of commerce.

"Gotta Do What The Union Says"

CHICAGO, Aug. 28. (AP) — "The Union forever; hurrah, boys, hurrah!" This was James Cummings' argument to Magistrate James Feron in Oak Park.

Cummings had been peddling bills without a license, which is against Oak Park law. He told the magistrate he distributed bills because "You gotta do what the union says."

"If the union told you to come out here and shoot tomorrow, you do it?" the court demanded.

"I gotta do what the union says," repeated Cummings.

"And I," said the magistrate, "gotta do what the law says. Two dollars and costs."

Demos Mark Time In Tariff Study

Republican Framers Of Bill Make Ready To Put Case Before Public; Deliberations Will Continue

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. (AP) — Democrats of the senate finance committee marked time today in their study of the tariff bill while its republican framers made ready to put their case before the public. First in the form of the text of the measure itself and then, tomorrow or Friday, with the majority report they are preparing to present next Wednesday to the senate.

After two meetings this week, the minority group of committeemen decided to wait until tomorrow to continue their deliberations. They have, thus far, considered only a few amendments, but experts they have employed to assist in the study will be ready to report tomorrow and they are expected to make more progress in that direction thereafter.

Question Unsettled

The question whether a minority report on the bill will be presented to the senate remains to be decided. The decision has been deferred. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, explained, to give the minority group an opportunity first to examine the majority report.

The preliminary democratic attack on the measure, meanwhile, is continuing. Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, in a statement issued by the democratic national committee emphasizing the woman's interests, contends it "strikes viciously" at her household and personal expenditures and should have a particularly adverse effect on 8,500,000 feminine wage earners.

POWER-LIGHT

S E R V I C E

Power—and Light—are two essentials to the growth and development of any city. Providing for them by a Utility, requires a vast amount of machinery plus a competent organization of men. When once this organization is set in motion, it must perform a definite service. It must be so efficiently organized that costs of production are minimized to the lowest, and that the products—Light and Power—are supplied at lowest possible figure to the public. To be a real public service, Power and Light must result from efficient organization.

America's Five Billion Dollar Vacation

Labor Day Ends the Open Season
On Two Weeks With Pay...
This Year the Bills Were So Big
That Statisticians Figure
The World's Most Playful Nation
Now Takes Holidays Twice a Year

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

AMERICA'S $5,000,000,000 vacation is drawing to a close. Of course, there will be hunting trips in the north woods, a few early winter tourists to southern resorts and a goodly number of late vacationists upon the highways until the first snow flurries. But with September 1 the majority of Americans settle down again to the year's routine of sane living, with deflated tires and purses, dust-covered camping paraphernalia and far greater weariness than a whole 11 months of assiduity at the office or shop would entail. But they have had that "change of scenery and action" which puts new vim into their work, new content into their souls and new memories into their hearts. In other words, they once more appreciate home.

Even to the average American, accustomed to reading statistics in millions and billions, $5,000,000,000 must seem a prodigious expenditure in one season by one nation for recreational travel. Small wonder that the world is awed by that nation's prosperity and apparent extravagance!

Statistics provided by the Department of Commerce, the American Automobile Association, and other reliable sources, show that of the $5,000,000,000, more than $3,500,000,000 have been spent by motor tourists alone, approximately $700,000,000 spent abroad and some $400,000,000 by American tourists in Canada, not to mention the "hitch-hikers."

EVERY mode of travel has been employed by these vacationists—everything almost from an airplane to a wheelbarrow—but the great majority, some 45,000,000, have traveled by auto. The nation's motoring army has sprung up with almost the suddenness of the mythical army of Cadmus from the dragons' teeth, with the comparatively recent improvement of the automobile, paved highways and intensified development of motoring services.

The automobile has bridged the distances of the world for the average person, as has no other invention of development in the history of the world. California is now but a few days drive from the Atlantic seaboard, and one may as well take the bee-line of smooth, beckoning concrete highway and see California as to drive in a circle about the old home town for an equal number of days, and get nowhere.

In a nut-shell, the automobile has brought the wonders of the world to everyone's own front door. Yellowstone Park, Pike's Peak, Niagara Falls, Yosemite Valley or the Black Hills are only a few inches from Terre Haute, Indiana—on the motor map!

The motorist's horizon has so broadened that he now travels 234 miles a day as compared with 100 miles a day 10 years ago. Which means that the expenditures of motoring vacationists are no longer confined to any particular sections, but are scattered over all parts of the country.

TRUE, New England, New York, Pennsylvania, the Appalachian Mountains, along the Atlantic Coast, the Ozark Mountains in Missouri, the National parks, the Pacific Coast and the Pacific northwest continue to attract most tourists, but all sections share in their expenditures as the easterners go west and the westerners go east. "Hot dog" stands and barbecues divide the spoils with wayside taverns and tourists' inns, which have sprung up like mushrooms with every new vacation season.

The American Automobile Association estimates that at least 33,000,000 motor vacationists have stopped at hotels this year and left in their wake well over $2,500,000,000; while more than 12,000,000 campers, wandering in nomad fashion as touring advantages or fancy lured them, have easily spent more than $1,000,000,000 in every section of the country.

More than 45,000,000 people—well over a third of the nation—have enjoyed a motor trip of from a few days' to several months' duration. Every type of car has provided this means of transportation, from old T-model Ford touring cars, sagging under the weight of luggage, with flopping curtains and trailing pennants, to luxurious palaces on wheels.

But for the most part, the comfortable and attractive models of the new moderate-priced cars have carried this army of motorists over mountains and deserts, over the highways and by-ways, to "see America first"—America, the beautiful.

Time was, and not so long ago, when motor tourists jounced over roads, compared with which the rocky road to Dublin was a roller rink, with three miles of detour to every mile of mapped highway. Drowsy, hidden restaurants had not been roused by barbecue competition and one clambered out at crossroads to search for obscure route signs by the aid of a hand flashlight. Spare tires, demountable rims and powerful electric searchlights maneuvered by the driver, were as unknown as steam heat in an Eskimo's igloo. So improved are touring conditions today that last year the American Automobile Association handled more than 10,000,000 motor tours, and though estimates have not yet been completed for this season, the indications are that these figures will be even greater.

THE trend of the motor tourist business has been steadily away from camp and toward hotels and tourist homes catering to the motorists; for many have come to recognize that the expense is little more, time and energy are thereby conserved and the housewife has had a real vacation from domestic duties while the men of the family were relaxing.

So, through the colonial atmosphere of the New England states, with elm-shaded streets, historical spots, sleepy fishing villages and delightful mountain roads; to blatant Coney Island and pleasuring Atlantic City; through the south of plantation-day picturesqueness and colored-mammy cuisine; the Mississippi country of levees and steamboats; the romantic, broncho-busting west—that was and the glorious, colorful desert stretches and mountain heights with forests of giant trees; to that Pacific Coast where every range of climate and every possible variety of scenery may be had for the asking and a few hours' driving—every year the motorists continue to go, more and more of them!

Next to the United States, Europe is the favorite vacation resort for Americans. There they have spent this year approximately $700,000,000. American motorists in Canada have left behind them about $400,000,000 of United States money, old and new, and the Orient, Africa, Central and South America, Mexico, the Philippines, Bermuda, the Hawaiian Islands and all the out-of-the-way places on the earth have had their quota of American tourists. Scarcely a point in all this little old rotating globe, called the world, but has been visited by some American in quest of pleasure, entertainment, recreation and adventure.

In 1928 there were 189,308 passports issued to those leaving the United States for foreign ports, and statistics promise a greater number in 1929, with the records to June 1 showing an increase of more than 1,000 over the same period of the previous year.

(Copyright, 1929, NEA Magazine—Printed in U. S. A.)

The expenditures of American tourists abroad, as shown by a careful selection and compilation of statistics gleaned from questionnaires sent out by the Department of Commerce, varies from $6,155 for some of the first-class, cabin de luxe and cruising vacationists, to $400 for third-class passengers.

The average expenditure of first-class and cabin de luxe passengers is $1,984.97. The average for cabin and monocoast, $1,171.11; for second-class $982.40; tourist and student passengers $705.63; and for third-class $516.92, with an average expenditure of $700 for all tourists abroad. The increasing popularity of "student" or "tourist" tours is lowering the average expense of touring abroad very considerably.

Each tourist is permitted to bring in for personal use, free of duty, imported articles to the value of $100, above which it is estimated that purchases are made abroad on which the duty ranges from an average of $108.17 for first-class and cabin de luxe passengers, to $5.37 for third-class tourists. Gowns from Paris, mandarin coats from China, gold and silver thread sarongs from Java, prayer rugs from Persia, jewels, antiques, Gobelins tapestries, Venetian glass, Spanish shawls—originals and imitations—few are the tourists who, on their first trip abroad, return home without some memento of their voyage.

LIKEWISE, the amateur traveler has visited every famous or historical spot of which he has ever heard: the Taj Mahal, the Matterhorn, Lake Geneva, Saint Peter's, Notre Dame, Biarritz, Gibraltar, Morocco. While the seasoned tourist, with the jaded interest of the habitual traveler who, long since, has lost his appetite for historical places, has sojourned in Paris; shopping on the Rue de la Paix or the Rue Castiglione, teaing at the Ritz on the ever-fascinating Place Vendôme, dancing at Acacia's or strolling in the Luxembourg. Or at Nice, lolling on the stretches of golden sand with the azure skies above and the turquoise sea before—across which lies America and home.

Americans crossing the border into Mexico in 1928 spent more than $32,000,000, and in all probability, that much or more has been spent this season. Official statistics compiled at the United States immigration office at San Ysidro show that more than 5,350,000 persons entered Mexico through that border port in 1927, most of them American citizens making brief visits. On Sundays, holidays and special race track days, there are many thousands of American tourists and visitors.

There are no statistics to show what has been spent by vacationists who travel by railroad, for it would be impossible to discriminate between business and vacation tourists, but it is safe to say that it would aggregate more millions. As for vacations by airplane, it is equally safe to conclude that the number of these was comparatively few in this country, with the fare from New York to Los Angeles soaring to the prohibitive sum of $2,000.

Airplane—abroad, however, are becoming increasingly popular, with constantly improved facilities and lower rates. A majority of the Americans who go by steamer to Europe to some traveling by airplane: from London to Paris, Paris to Berlin, Berlin to Vienna—and many see all the European countries by air. Continental Europe's accommodations for this mode of travel are so much further developed than in America. So it is quite probable that in the near future the airplane will further complicate the work of vacation statisticians in America, and its popularity will one day vie with that of the motor car.

When that day comes the amount of territory 1929 vacationists were able to cover in two weeks will appear insignificant. But, meanwhile, Americans can rejoice in vacations of a length that only a few years ago were reserved for the so-called leisure class.

This whole vacation business is just another evidence of America's high standard of living. The fact that vacations cannot be purchased on the installment plan indicates that the vacation-minded public has at least a slight cash balance on hand once a year—at the start of the vacation, if not when its over.

And America is not going to cut her vacation allowance. She will spend her "two weeks with pay" and all the more she can spare from the yearly income—whether she deposits it by budget in a national bank or by dimes and quarters in the old teapot or the top cupboard shelf. Not only will she take a summer vacation, but a winter vacation as well—if managed. She has grown to be a nation of two-vacation families as well as a nation of two-car families.

Cool, woody, northern resorts in summer and tropical climes of languorous breezes, pounding surf and palm trees in winter. That is America—knowing what she wants, and going after it, however she will.

AND the best part of a vacation is—that the most delightful moments of it never end. All the miseries and inconveniences, the catastrophes and worries are soon dismissed and in the long winter evenings that follow one may reminisce with companions upon the pleasant episodes, or sit alone, half-dreaming of blue Italian skies... the thrill of wrestling with a speckled trout... the odor of broiling bacon... the clatter of wooden shoes on cobblestones... the weird howl of prairie coyotes... the vast and tremendously beautiful expanse of heaving sea from a steamship deck—or, one may pore over vacation guides and road maps and memorandum data, the more perfectly to plan next year's vacation!

LOWER TARIFF RATE ON DIAMONDS MEANS MORE PROTECTION—STEWART

BY CHARLES F. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—How much less tariff protection will Uncle Sam have to give to the American diamond trade?

Someone did evolve it, however, for we have had a 10 per cent duty on raw diamonds for a long time.

At that, maybe it is as rational a bit of "indirect protection" as the proposed sky-high import tax on bananas—being designed to force American multi-millionaires to wear home-made paste instead of genuine foreign stones.

By hook and by crook, a certain number of seizures are made, to be sure, but not enough to offset the 20 per cent margin of advantage which contraband importers possess over those who pay tariffs and all.

The traffic's volume is such that straight dealers declare it threatens them with bankruptcy.

Of course, a reduction in the duty to 10 per cent would reduce the smugglers' leeway considerably—and presumably their losses, through seizure, would continue about as frequently as hitherto.

So it is not because they want less protection that American jewelers are begging the senators for only a 10 per cent rate on finished stones and the free admission of the uncut kind.

Incidentally—if the jewelers are correct in their reckoning—all diamonds will then begin paying duty on their arrival here from abroad, and the treasury's receipts from that source will take a big upward jump.

The senate committee members think so well of the jewelers' argument that they will report the tariff bill back to congress amended as requested.

This is the third of a series of articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein on poisonous gases and their effect on the human body.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In order to understand how poisonous gases affect human beings and to know how to treat victims, it is necessary to have the fundamental understanding of the mechanism of breathing that has been given in the previous article and to know something about the way in which poisonous gases differ from the ordinary air and from oxygen.

When the gas is taken into the body it may be absorbed by the blood and cause changes in the blood that are most always permanent.

Some of the tissues are more affected by gases than are others. It has been estimated that during rest 80 per cent of the blood passes through 20 per cent of the tissues in each round of the circulation and that the remaining 80 per cent of the tissues receive only 20 per cent of the blood.

The amount of blood that goes to the brain, the organs of the body and the glands is larger; the amount that goes to the muscles, the bones, and the feet is small. There is no doubt that for this reason the brain is more seriously affected early by small doses of poisonous gas than are other tissues of the body.

With these points in mind, the gases that affect the human being may be divided into various types. First are those that cause a lack of oxygen in the body and which produce death by asphyxiating the human being. Some gases prevent oxygen from getting into the lungs. Other asphyxiating gases act on the blood to keep it from carrying oxygen or on the tissues of the body to keep it from using oxygen.

A second group of gases are called irritating gases. They burn or otherwise injure the surface tissues of the lungs, causing inflammation and in that way preventing absorption of oxygen and producing death.

Anniversary Notes

MELBOURNE FOUNDED On Aug. 28, 1838, British settlers founded Melbourne, Australia, which is today the capital of the state of Victoria.

The city was first given the native name of Dootigoola, but was afterward changed to Melbourne in honor of Viscount Melbourne, premier of Great Britain. In 1841 the population had leaped to 11,000 and scarcely more than a decade later the discovery of the Ballarat gold field brought such an influx of adventurers that the town increased rapidly in size and had a population of 100,000 in 1842.

Today it has the largest population of any Australian city (about 743,000 in 1919) and occupies a high rank among British overseas ports. Melbourne is an important manufacturing town and commercial center. Almost the entire commerce of the state is carried on there, the chief exports being wool, hides, cattle, gold, silver and sheep.

The SAVING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED MOLLY BURNHAM, who has written two sensational crime novels, is writing a book called "Ashes of Desire."

There are three men who complicate things—JACK WELLS, her first sweetheart, who is in Italy, now with a made-to-order millionaire. MRS. BULWER-EATON is the old lady's name, and Jack, who is an architect, is in her employ. Molly resents the situation furiously, but there is nothing she can do about it.

There is one man who makes love casually. Red has an invalid mother, and has promised her that he will never marry during her lifetime.

This third is BOB NEWTON, his Rita's father, who has asked Molly to marry him. Molly has no regard for him, but she lives in mortal terror of losing Rita whom she loves above all reason.

She is working now on her book, which is rather autobiographical. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XI

There is a story about the younger Dumas, and how he shut himself up in a garret, and wrote a book in six days at all. Victor Hugo, it is said, has done something of the same sort. And there is a lesser novelist who took a vow neither to shave nor to bathe until he completed his book.

The chances are, however, that—she scarcely slept until "Ashes of Desire" was completed.

Once, when she was a reporter, she interviewed Miss Amy Lowell, the poetess. Miss Lowell did all her work at night, writing in bed, propped up by 16 feather pillows, and each in his separate set. She drew the curtains against the sunlight, and tacked black cloth over the mirrors. Because the creative fire, she said, burned more brightly at night-time, or under artificial light.

"Try it, my dear," she advised. "And never forget that genius is nine-tenths sweat. You've got to sweat for success."

Molly had remembered like Miss Lowell, she turned night into day, working while others slept. She plugged her telephone bell, and told Mary she was at home to no one.

She grew pale and thin. And her eyes took on a peculiar green light, and looked huge, and a trifle wild. She drank quarts of black coffee, and cared nothing for substantial food.

She withheld herself from even Rita, vowing that nothing should interfere with the completion of her greatest work. Once when Red Flynn came—and refused to leave until he had seen her—she begged him not to be disappointed in her when her book proved unpopular.

"Oh, it will be popular all right," he assured her. "Everything you do is a wow."

"But this is different," she explained. "Ashes of Desire" will never be popular. I don't want it to be. I want just to speak simply, truly, to the few who will understand. I never want again what the world means when it says success."

Red stared at her, uncomprehending. "What?" he asked indignantly. "It means in selling books?" "It means in life," she insisted. "I am trying now to be true to the real things."

"You look like the devil," he interrupted, scowling at her pale face. "My work is done," she told him gently, "in grief and pain. Yet I must write, or die."

He went away angrily, because he thought she was posing. But worried, also, because she was thin and white. And, since he could do nothing about it, that made him angrier still. Molly watched him from her window drawing his shade aside, and stepped into his old slippers, and slammed the door furiously, and driving away in a clatter of rattling fenders and loose bumpers.

Red. "And used to be Molly's friend. I was sure."

"You don't put 'But I'm looking for the thing to do. I'm looking for the thing to do. I'm looking for the thing to do."

But Red young man her cause decided, after on a shoe anything to string any beginning. That ev

And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame; But each for the joy of working, and each in his separate set. Shall draw the thing as he sees it. For the God of Things as They Are!

Yes, that was it. "And only the Master shall praise us, and only the Master shall blame." . . . It was not with covetousness for the praise of critics that Molly had written "Ashes of Desire."

When Molly's book made its appearance it was demurely bound in white kid and orchid velvet. Before the title page, and at the beginning of each chapter was a gold xignette. And the name was written in letters of gold, as if by hand across the vellum cover. Critics and artists acclaimed the jacket as the most charming in the history of the book business.

The orchid bedroom had become her sitting-room, a formally beautiful room with flowers and books, and gay, blossomed china. The floor was waxed green, and seemed to shimmer. At the windows were green silk glass curtains, and the walls were hung with yellow brocade.

Molly wore a blue-green gown with flowing sleeves, and a train when she talked for her public. She sat in candle light, and poured orange-blossom tea from an old French service. When reporters came, the butler drew a tea-table before the fireplace, and laid it with the clatter of chignon forks, received like a lady in a novel.

One day Red came, and found her pouring her orange-blossom tea, and passing caviar sandwiches. She wore water lilies at her belt, trailing their long stems down the soles of her yellow slippers. And she looked, he thought, like the Lilly Maid in Idyls of the King.

When the others had gone (there were two literary dowagers and a society reporter.) Molly changed her chignon gown for a skirt of plaid stuff and a scarlet blouse. And her feathered slippers for a pair of stubby oxfords.

"We'll go for a walk," she said, "and buy some hot dogs somewhere. If you know how sick to death I am of being rare and delicate."

"You love it," he told her. "You're eating it up." "It's amusing," she admitted. "I know."

"It's a relief, being respectable," she declared. "Mother's coming to visit me, I've been so good. I don't visit my mother will say what she sees my butler. I hope he doesn't frighten her. He is rather imposing you know. I used to be scared of him myself."

"You and your butler!" jeered she. "You know your own mind."

Mr. Hall cleared his throat. "It's beautifully done," he assured her. "But you know your own mind."

Big Spring School Announce Opening

(Special To The Avalanche)
BIG SPRING, AUG. 28.—Big Spring public schools will open on September 3, according to W. C. Blankenship, superintendent, who says the school will open with the largest enrollment in the history of the schools. The faculty will consist of 60 members.

The Big Spring schools have 32 credits of affiliation and are accredited with the Southern association of colleges. The students will not be handicapped for rooms this year, since the additional wing of the high school building was completed during the school session of last year. The high school building now contains 31 class rooms, gymnasium and auditorium. The city also has a junior high school building and three ward schools.

 Red. "And I remember when you used to borrow your lunch money," Molly sighed.

"I was happier then," she murmured.

"Yes, you were," he contradicted. "Don't pull that on me, Molly."

"But I was," she insisted.

"He looked at her sharply.

"By the way, Jack Wells is coming in to New York on the Isle de France tomorrow. Our correspondent in Paris sent us a tip."

Molly bent to tighten her shoe lace.

"Is that so?" she replied politely.

But Red, being an observing young man, was not deceived by her casual manner. Any girl, he decided, could regain her composure, after spending 30 full seconds on a shoe string. There wasn't anything the matter with the shoe string anyhow. It was tied in the beginning.

That evening Molly could not

Mrs. J. W. Townsend, New Hope, Tells How to Raise Foodstuffs For The Year Round On Plains' Soil

South Plains farming land is suitable to practically every kind of garden crop and there is no reason why everyone should not be able to have their own foodstuffs the year round.

The spinach seed are broadcast in August or September and as soon as the plants reach sufficient height are cultivated with a hoe for irrigation.

While Mrs. Townsend grows ample spinach for her family, she has never tried to sell her products. She finds they can be used fresh in the winter months and canned in the spring.

Diversification Program Planned In Lynn And Dawson Counties By C.-C.

(Special To The Avalanche) O'DONNELL, Aug. 28.—The greatest program of diversification that has ever been witnessed in this section is being planned by Lynn and Dawson counties. With the cotton crop out short on account of the dry weather the chambers of commerce of O'Donnell, Lamesa and Tahoka have on a program that is covering the two counties like a blanket.

People in general are realizing the value of, and are turning to diversification, as never before. The chief project of the diversification program is that of dairying and while it was started some time ago it is now reaching proportions worthy of the state in general. With the $350,000 powdered milk plant being built at Lamesa and the cooling station which will be built at Tahoka when the plant is ready to consume large quantities of milk, the cow finance plan which will accompany them, and the truck lines which will reach every part of the two counties, this section will become one of the greatest dairying centers in the whole southwest within a very short time.

Have Farm Agents. Each of the counties have a farm agent, a home demonstration agent and Lynn county has three vocational agriculture men while Lamesa has one. Lamesa, Tahoka and O'Donnell, which is built on the county line, between the two counties, all maintain active chambers of commerce with exceptionally large budgets compared with the size of the towns and all are cooperating in the diversification drive especially the dairy project. This makes a combined force of three chambers of commerce secretaries, two county farm agents, two home demonstration agents, and four vocational agriculture men at work besides the many committees of business men, farmers and individuals who are helping in the campaign. Eight Coast Guardsmen And Customs Inspectors Held At Bay By Woman

DETROIT, Aug. 28. (P)—Eight coast guardsmen and customs border patrol inspectors based on a raiding down a cargo of liquor which two of them believed they saw in the Detroit river yesterday were held at bay by the wife of a Grosse Pointe druggist from 3:30 until 10:30 p. m., when they gave up the siege of the house.

Mrs. Marshall J. Morrish met the inspectors with a revolver and refused to admit them. Mrs. Morrish asked the officers if they had a search warrant. She said they admitted they had none.

Threatens To Shoot. "Well, until you get one I'll shoot the first one of you who tries to come into my house," was the ultimatum Mrs. Morrish says she served on the officers.

The siege finally was called off by Walter S. Petty, acting collector of customs, following a hurried conference with Thomas E. Brennan, deputy prohibition commissioner. The customs inspector said Morrish has been an object of suspicion for some time.

Value Cannot Be Over Estimated, Plainview Man

Plainview Blacksmith Says, "Orgatone Has Relieved Me. Of My Worries And I Am Happy Again"

"I can't praise this new medicine Orgatone too highly for all it has done for me," said R. L. Bayler, of rural route 3 Plainview, Texas, while talking with the Orgatone representative.

"For about six years, I have been in a bad run-down condition, and suffered from stomach troubles. I was in a wretched state, and gas formed on my stomach. I would feel as if I was just going to burst. I would be so bloated up. I was troubled with my kidneys and had pains in my back, which was very weak. My nerves were completely shattered and I just couldn't sleep at all, and was very restless and worn-out. Every night I rolled and tumbled, and would have just given anything to go to sleep and really rest. I had a bad case of constipation, and in fact, my general condition was just run down and I was tired, and did not have any energy and felt no-account all the time.

"Orgatone was recommended so highly by the people here of Plainview I decided to try it. I have just taken one bottle, and want to tell everybody that my worries are over, and I am well and happy again. It is the finest medicine I have ever taken or heard of. I feel better than I have in the past six years, and all of my troubles are gone. I actually know if I hadn't gotten hold of the right medicine I would have died, for I was on my way to the grave, and no one, or any kind of medicine helped me. I think Orgatone really saved my life, and I would like for every one suffering as I did to try it, and then see for themselves.

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bit treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowen's Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

Expensive Drink Stephenville Is Spending Much

(Special To The Avalanche) STEPHENVILLE, Aug. 28. Twenty-five thousand dollars for a drink!

That is the sum the town of Stephenville has spent on its water system since the first of the year.

Most of this expenditure has been in the form of extensions and reserving old lines. Some mains have been taken up and replaced with larger ones. Servicing more than 1,000 patrons and adding new customers with almost daily regularity, it has been necessary for the water department to spend substantial sums in keeping the system up to a point of taking care of the demands.

In a single season banana trees grow from 30 to 40 feet in height.
