Tulsa Has Ample Facilities For Enlightenment Of People

Civic Group Visits Oil Capital

By C. W. RATLIFF
Avalanche Staff Writer

TULSA, Sept. 2. (By Mail)—Tulsa, the oil capital, city of broad streets, fine homes and million-dollar churches, has ample facilities for enlightment and entertainment of its people.

That was the consensus of opinion of Lubbock's civic center committee members this afternoon after they had visited three separate and distinct enterprises in this northeastern Oklahoma metropolis.

For conventions, concerts, political gatherings, road shows and musical comedies, symphonies, lectures and the like, Tulsa has Convention hall, slightly antiquated but still filling the needs of the city after 30 years.

For athletic events, ice shows, automobile and trade shows, 'big name band' dances, ice hockey, wrestling and prize fights Tulsa has the Tulsa Coliseum, which at the time it was biult in 1928 was one of the finest in the nation and is still ranked as the best in the Southwest.

When stock shows, horse shows, rodeos and other similar events are staged, there is Tulsa State Fair pavilion, constructed in 1930 at a cost of approximately $450,000 and modern enough for Tulsa today.

Three Structures Used

In these three structures, two of them owned by the people and the third by an individual, Tulsa can stage, present or play host host to almost any type of entertainment program available to public today. Seating capacities range from 2,858 in Convention hall; 4,397 to 8,000 in Tulsa Coliseum to more than 8,000 in the fair pavilion. And with the exception of the fair pavilion, located just outside the city limits, five miles from the business district, Tulsa crowds don't have to go very far for any type of entertainment they desire.

Convention hall is only six blocks from the heart of the business district, just across the Frisco tracks northwest where parking doesn't present too much of a problem due to the fact that traffic in the area is below normal. The coliseum, on the corner of Elgin between Fifth and Sixth, is less than four blocks from downtown. Here, too, parking congestion is at a minimum due to light traffic in the area because of a dead-end street a block or two away.

Arriving in Tulsa at noon today, we were met at the Mayo hotel by W. R. Wooten, assistant city engineer and neighbor of Henry Frnka, who graciously gave up his Sunday afternoon leisure time to show us about Tulsa.

Unlike Oklahoma City, Tulsa boasts of no magnificent municipal auditorium, but we had not sooner met Rube Leekley, manager of Convention hall, when he began to defend the ancient structure as still suitable for a city comparable to Tulsa and ample for the staging of any time of entertainment. And he soon demonstrated to us that the hall's accoustics were perfect, stepping down to the stage and talking to us in conversational tones while we stood at the back of the 140 by 140 house and heard his distinctly. The hall has no public address system and doesn't need one.

As for size, there have been only a few occasions in the past few years that it has been overflowing, he said. And that's saying a lot when you glance at last year's booking sheet and see that such shows as "Life With Father," "Porgy and Bess," "Sons of Fun," "Kiss and Tell," "Blythe Spirit," "The Student Prince," Veloz and Yolanda, the New York Opera company, the San Francisco Bal-

More Of 'Lost Battalion' Safe; 11 Of 18 Local Men Now Freed

Messages from the War department received here Tuesday brought to a total of eleven the number of "Lost Battalion" prisoners from a camp in Thailand who are known to be safe. Eighteen men from Lubbock were interned at Thailand and two others from Slaton.

Capt. Huddleston W. Wright, commanding officer of Battery F of the 131st Field artillery, one of the three batteries that made up the Second battalion, captured in the fall of Java in late February, 1942, was announced returned to U. S. military control yesterday. Others were Sgt. Don T. Williamson, Sgt. Henry Drake, Pfc Melvin G. Holton and Pfc. Preston E. Stone.

SLATON MEN UNREPORTED

SLATON, Sept. 4.—No report has been received here regarding the safety of Lt. Eldon W. Schmid and T/Sgt. Ellis P. Schmid, both of whom were taken prisoner by the Japanese on Java, and both of whom were in Thailand at last report. Another Slaton prisoner of the Japanese, also taken prisoner in the fall Nof Java, is Pvt. Jack Turner, imprisoned at Fukuoka.

Bubbling over with happiness at the release of her husband, whose general physical condition was described in the telegram as "good," Mrs. Wright said that she had never felt that her husband would not come back, even when after the unit was first known to be prisoners she did not receive a card from him till after all the other families had got theirs. "Our little girl, Lanelle, was so excited when she heard that her dad was released that she came home from school," Mrs. Wright said Lanelle, 11, is in Junior High school and Linda, the Wrights' other child is five.

He is the son of Lubbock County Jailer and Mrs. J. A. Wright.

In National Guard

Capt. Wright had been in the Lubbock National Guard unit since 1926, until the 131st was mobilized four years ago. He was employed at Rix Funeral home.

Mrs. Jewell Williamson of 2016 Ninth, mother of Sgt. Williamson, had a message from the War department that her son was safe, and just a little while later had a call from the Red Cross office for information regarding his family's welfare to be cabled through National Red Cross to her son. The Washington office of the organization explained that no letter had caught up with the released prisoner, and that by request of the War department, they were making an attempt to get information from home for him.

A cable was directed from the Lubbock chapter office to the Washington office and will be delivered to Sgt. Williamson at the hospital in India where he was taken. The National Red Cross reported that his physical condition was "splendid."

Mrs. D. C. Holton said that she and her husband were so impatient to get a wire about their son, Pfc. Holton, that they could barely control themselves when a Western Union boy passed their home at 1708 Sixth. "When the last one came by, we all but chased him down the block. He turned around and came back, and sure enough, the wire was for us and Melvin is safe and his condition is good, although he's hospitalized."

Request Now Cable

National Red Cross headquarters also requested a cable from Pfc. Holton's family, since the wire they sent last week was one that did not reach the men when they were liberated. The Red Cross also informed his parents that Pfc. Holton is in India.

Sgt. Henry Drake, one of two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drake of 2410 Twenty-ninth who was a prisoner of the Japanese, was liberated on Aug. 30, an dis back in military control, his parents were informed. Their younger

Army Sets Up New Plan On Discharges

High Point And Older Men Not To Go Overseas; 1,765,000 Involved

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—The Army gave guarantees tonight to an estimated 665,000 older soldiers and men with high discharge points that they won't go overseas.

And another 1,100,000 eligible for immediate discharge won't go over, or can come home if they already are abroad.

From now on, the Army ordered, no one will be sent abroad who:

No WACs Go Overseas

1. Had 45 or more points as of May 12.
2. Is 37 years old.
3. Is 34 to 36 years old, inclusive, and has a year's military service. In these categories, War department officials said, are about 665,000 men now in the United States.

No WACs will be sent overseas, either.

The War department announced it would begin at once screening men affected by the new order from units scheduled to move to the Pacific. Furthermore the screenings will be revised as soon as a recomputation of discharge points is made. The new computation will take into account service up to Sept. 2, instead of May 12.

Any soldier who is 38 or who has 80 points under the Sept. 2 refiguring can get a discharge now upon application. So can anyone who is 35 or over and who has a minmum of two years' service. Enlisted men in these classifications were estimated at 1,100,000. They are in addition to some 400,000 who qualified for discharge before the point total was cut from 85.

Takes Heed of Complaints

Tonight's order on overseas duty took at least indirect heed of complaints both in Congress and from the Army itself.

Soldiers of several divisions that had served in Europe protested against redeployment to the Pacific. A number of legislators went to bat on that as well as for older soldiers and those with families.

Furthermore, with the idea of stimulating enlistments, releasing draftees as soon as possible and then halting the draft entirely, the House Military committee agreed tentatively today to recommend liberalization of the Army's retirement system. It has some other things in mind, too.

And from now on, there is to be no special Selective Service classification for occupationally deferred war workers. They go in the same category as all other occupationally deferred workers —those whose jobs are "in support of the national health, safety and interest."

Class 2-B Abolished

Technically, class 2-B was abolished, and all those in it go into Class 2-A.

There will be only three exceptions to the 45-point score rule, the Army said. These are enlisted men in civil affairs units scheduled for early departure for the Pacific and enlisted men in headquarters companies of the 8th and 18th corps. It was stated informally that the total of all these men would be less than 1,000.

In answer to questions, War department officials said the 45-point score rule will apply to a man now in the European theater —he won't be sent to the Pacific if he qualifies under that rule.

Protests By Divisions

Asked about "some of the divisions" from which protests against shipment to the Pacific had been voiced, War department officials said:

The 95th division, still in this country, will be screened down under the 45-point rule.

The 86th division is at sea, bound for Pacific duty, and "will continue on the way."

The same situation prevails for the 97th, except for one battalion still in the country. It will be screened.

Overseas Commanders

Overseas theater commanders will be authorized to return to the United States for temporary duty or furlough, a limited number of soldiers who generally are in occupational forces and who will not be eligible for discharge. They will go back to their overseas assignment at the end of their furloughs or temperary duty.

Byrnes Assails Hull Criticism

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes today sharply rapped the Army's Pearl Harbor inquiry board for its criticism of former Secretary Hull as Republicans made ready to reopen the sore subject in Congress.

Byrnes told a news conference the Army board had gone beyond its jurisdiction in criticizing his predecessor's policy-making and execution pior to the Japanese attack of December 7, 1941.

Document Not Ultimatum

The board held that at a time when the Army and Navy were seeking more time to prepare, Hull presented the Japanese with a document which they considered an ultimatum. Hull denied it was an ultimatum.

Meanwhile, Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) and Rep. Harness (R-Ind), not satisfied by President Truman's release last week of the Army and Navy findings, said they would introduce resolutions calling for investigations as soon as possible after Congress reconvenes tomorrow.

So far as he knew, Byrnes said, this was the first time in the history of the United States when a board of Army officers had undertaken to criticize civilian officials of the government.

Would Be Up To Congress

He said he thought any comment on Secretary Hull's conduct of foreign relations should properly be made by Congress.

Secretary Byrnes added that he thought the letter from Hull to War Secretary Stimson, which the State department issued last week, showed the Army board's characterization of Hull's activities as an ultimatum to Japan to be inaccurate.

Furgeson told reporters that "if the American people are going to be blamed, they have a right to trial."

The Army and Navy reports placed varying degrees of responsibility on former Secretary of State Hull; General George C. Marshal, Army chief of staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, former chief of naval operations, and other Army and Navy officers.

General Blame Placed

In disagreeing with some of the findings, President Truman said last week that he felt the country was as much to blame as anyone for the unpreparedness that contributed to the disaster of December 7, 1941.

Ferguson said the American people were not fully informed, so he did not see how they could be blamed.

Rep. Sparkman (D-Ala) said that any investigation by the House Military committee probably would wind up with a majority report by the Democrats and a minority report by the Republicans. And thus the question of blame or lack of blame for the success of the Japanese attack might be right back where it started.

Hite Back In U. S., Goes To Hospital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP)—Lt. Robert L. Hite of Earth, Tex., one of the fliers who took part in the Doolittle bombing of Tokyo, stepped on United States soil today for the first time in 41 months.

He was with two other Doolittle fliers—Lt. Chase J. Nielsen of Hyrum, Utah, and S.Sgt Jacob D. DeShazer of Salem, Ore. The three were rescued two weeks ago from a Japanese prison camp near Peiping, and were flown here from Karachi, India.

After a brief session with reporters and photographers they were taken to Walter Reed hospital for a physical checkup.

Army Not For Women

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

HONOLULU.—Now that the war's over, woman's place most definitely—put that chair down now, sweetheart, and let me finish my sentence — most definitely is not in the Army.

Furthermore, women's duties now should be of a family and not of a military nature.

Please understand that the foregoing opinions do not necessarily represent the view of this writer.

Rather they represent the majority response when a bunch of WACs stationed at nearby Hickam Field were asked their opinion of a bill being discussed in Washington which would set up the WAC as part of the regular peacetime Army.

In a word (or rather six words which still is far under par for any woman's last word course) the war-weary WACs said of their own organization:

"Disband it— as soon as practicable."

Specifically it was Sgt. Lee Corrallo, Lockport, N. Y., teletypist, who bravely voiced that ancient anti-suffragette phrase about woman's place. Still undaunted, she swallowed twice and added that crack about woman's duties being of a family nature now.

"Anything for our country in an emergency but not after the emergency is over," said Pfc. Roberta Key, Rogers, Okla., a supply clerk, adding stalwartly: "We gals wanta get married and the Army's no place for that in peace-

Liberation Of POW Shows Sharp Spurt

By SPENCER DAVIS

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 4—The total of Allied prisoners liberated from camps on Japan's main Honshu island reached 2,289 today with the arrival here of 850 by train, plane and water.

Meanwhile General MacArthur gave the Japanese specific instructions on camps not yet freed. He told the Nipponese to turn the camps over to the highest ranking officer held in each and gave the latter authority to demand needed food supplies and medical care.

Familiar Pattern

The stories of the liberated prisoners followed a familiar pattern — beatings by Japanese guards and general malnutrition.

Among those liberated today were 589 Americans, British and Dutch. They arrived by train from the two camps in the Ashio area, 90 miles west of Yokohama. The British, totaling 200, were placed aboard British ships on Tokyo bay.

A sharp increase in prisoner arrivals here was announced for the next two days when 2,147 will come by train from the Niigata area and 488 from Kobe.

Cmdr. Harold Stassen, aide to Admiral Halsey, arranged for the Niigata releases during a two-day trip into Honshu's interior.

Many Enroute Home

Meanwhile many liberated American prisoners of war, who told of bestial treatment at the hands of the Japanese were enroute to the United States by plane.

Prisoners just freed after long captivity related stories of starvation and torture to Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commanding Eighth Army occupation forces.

At Guam, Associated Press correspondent Robert Myers said the first liberated naval and Marine prisoners were bound for America in transport planes. They will stop at Honolulu and then continue on to San Francisco.

General Eichelberger and two officers of the general headquarters war crimes branch interviewed prisoners aboard the hospital ship Benevolence, and more Japanese names were added to the war criminals list.

Generals Also Abused

Even generals were "knocked and kicked around," said Col. Standley Livingston James of San Antonio, Tex.

James, communications officer of the Philippine department when he was captured on Bataan April 9, 1942, had attended West Point two classes ahead of Eichelberger.

"I wouldn't have known him!" Eichelberger exclaimed.

You had to stand rigidly at attention with your hands at your side while they beat you,' James said.

Hundreds of Allied prisoners were to be evacuated from Hamamatsu, 120 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Medical officers said 80 percent of the 2,000 prisoners already examined here were in "serious" condition.

Airplane Priorities Will Be Abolished

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP)—Priorities for travel on commercial airlines in this country will be abolished October 15, the War department announced today.

Beginning September 15, the volume of priorities will be reduced from 100,000 a month to 15,000 or less. This cut will be achieved by abolishing priorities for military and naval personnel in certain categories, and by "stringent screening" of both military and civilian applications for priorities.

During the September 15-October 15 period a single class of priority wil lbe substituted for the existing four classes.

The department also announced that priority controls on civil airline service to South America, Central America and Alaska will be abolished on October 15. Priorities, however, will be retained for the present on civil transatlantic and transpacific airline services.

Japs Are Ordered To Speed Up Activities

Nips Say Tokyo Entry Set Friday; MacArthur Tightens Instructions

YOKOHAMA, Wednesday, Sept. 5. (AP)—The U. S. First (dismounted) Cavalry division will occupy Tokyo Saturday, General Mac Arthur's headquarters announced today. Maj. Gen. William C. Chase's units, which were the first to reenter Manila during MacArthur's reinvasion of the Philippines, presently are stationed between Yokohama and Tokyo.

It is believed General MacArthur will move his headquarters into Tokyo about the same time, but there have been no annouced plans for the formal triumphant entry.

(By The Associated Press)

YOKOHAMA, Wednesday, Sept. 5—Japan moved today toward speedy and complete demobilization of her armed forces under a blunt "step on it" order from General MacArthur, supreme Allied commander.

In his General Order No. 2 the Allied commander in chief yesterday directed the commanding general of the First Japanese Army, in the Tokyo area, to report to Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the U. S. Eighth Army, for instructions covering the entry of American troops into Tokyo.

Tokyo Sets Time As Friday

The Tokyo radio earlier had broadcast a Japanese communique saying an initial occupation force of 3,350 men would enter the capital Friday.

Eichelberger immediately summoned Field Marshal Sugiyama, former chief of the Japanese general Army staff and military adviser to Emperor Hirohito, to Eighth Army headquarters to hear American terms for entering Tokyo.

Eighth Army headquarters said the famed First Cavalry division, first to enter Manila, would be the first American outfit to enter Tokyo. The date was not disclosed.

Maj. Neil Stewart, of Woodvine, Ga., said the U. S. 27th division, which helped conquer Okinawa, would start moving into the Yokohama-Tokyo area tomorrow. It will share occupation duties with the 11th Airborne and First Cavalry divisions, already here.

Better Step On It, Togo

Japanese Army and Navy commanders were ordered to get in touch promptly with the various American generals and admirals who have been charged with control of land and sea areas of Nippon and Korea, to receive their instructions.

The new directive dealt with labor supply, supervision of the Japanese merchant fleet, cable facilities and radio broadcast regulations, and care of Allied military personnel and civilians still in Nipponese prison camps.

In his lengthy directive of 12 typewritten pages, MacArthur specified the requirements designed to speed prompt installation of American occupation armies in the Japanese home islands, in the Ryukyus to the south of Nippon and in Korea. The Korean

Jap War Lords Not Half Licked

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 4 — Japan's war lords "are not half licked yet" and are going to "take a lot more killing in the future," Vice Adm. John Sidney McCain, colorful commander of the famous Task Force 38, said today.

"I don't like the look in their eyes," the peppery, explosive exponent of the Navy's fast striking carriers told reporters as he recalled witnessing the surrender ceremony aboard the USS Missouri in Tokyo bay.

Just Measuring Us

"Listen, baby," he barked when asked why. "They were just measuring us—just like you measure a man when you're going to hit him the next minute. They don't know they're licked yet. They don't know we are better men than they are."

Gesturing with one hand while rolling cigarets with the other, McCain said he approved Admiral Halsey's expressed desire to kick the Japanese generals in the face —except "it wasn't in the face I thought about kicking them."

The surrender ceremony he termed "quite a pageant—and anything you say about it will be right. It had color, drama, everything."

He said no movie actor could have played the part of General MacArthur better than the general himself played it.

"He was just right, a rough, tough guy and that's what the job needed and still needs."

He said MacArthur saw to it that the Japanese generals received "no courtesies whatever" other than bare essentials while aboard the Missouri and that they were not spoken to when they came aboard until time to sign. When that was done they were told to leave, and they left.

McCain said he wasn't too worried about the atom bomb changing future military methods too drastically.

His Postwar Plans

In that connection, the tough admiral, who took over Task Force 38 last spring and with it destroyed 6,000 Japanese planes and sank 2,000,000 tons of Japanese shipping, had his own idea about postwar plans for his part of the Navy.

The man whose unhappy duty it was to remove the last of the 6-inch guns from Guam in 1938 after the Washington disarmament conference, McCain now would like to "have enough fast carriers to patrol the mid-Pacific."

"You give me them and let me run them and they can have their atom bombs."

She learned last week that her husband, Sgt. Gene D. Hirohito Opens Session Of Diet

By RUSSELL BRINES

TOKYO, Sept. 4. (AP)—Emperor Hirohito personally opened the extraordinary session of the Japanese Diet today and called upon his people to "win the confidence of the world, establish firmly a peaceful state and contribute to the progress of mankind."

He commanded that reports be made tomorrow by state ministers on the causes of defeat, and unusually frank speeches were expected.

The emperor read an Imperial rescript rapidly, and the House of Peers then adopted a resolution expressing determination to rebuild the nation.

Over 400 Peers Attend

More than 400 peers attended the brief sessino, and later some 466 members were present at the convening of the House of Representatives.

Hirohito was driven in a maroon colored sadan to the Diet building, Asia's most beautiful legislative structure which strangely escaped damage from severe bombings.

"It is our desire," the rescript said, "that our people will surmount the manifold hardships and trials attending the termination of the war and make manifest the innate glory of Japan's national policy. . ."

Sharp Tojo Criticism

Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki, a member of the peers and premier in the middle 30's and long the target of certain fanatic elements, sharply criticized the former Tojo government during the brief session.

He said that at the beginning of the war "the Japanese government cheated us because it told us we had more strength than we actually had."

One Aged Jap Observer Says Nips Must Forget Theory On Divinity

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4 — Comes now one Japanese who says the atomic bomb was necessary to pound some sense into Japanese heads.

Yukio Ozaki is 88 years old, so he can say this. Assassins hesitate to kill him because he is so old and because they don't want to make a martyr out of him

Out of an estimated 74,000,000 Japanese, he is the only one since Japan's surrender to say anything that makes very solid sense to Western ears. This is what he said yesterday in Tokyo:

". . . In Japan, a complete overhauling of education is necessary to pound into the people's heads the law of humanity, the difference between right and wrong. This path of right should be taught to all races of the earth. There is talk of the atom bomb having terminated the war, and that its use will be stopped. But unless the root of war is wiped out, it is useless. The atomic bomb was necessary to revert the people's existence to the path of righteousness."

He Whacks Politicians

Ozaki, stepping off the train at Tokyo where he had come to attend the 88th extraordinary session of the Diet, then took a crack at Japanese politicians, calling them stooges of the administration who allowed even their own political parties to be formed by government order.

This veteran of the Japanese parliament, a member of the lower house since 1890, said this "could never be called constitutional government."

Ozaki is thus the first of Japan's nearly extinct species, the liberal statesman, to regain his speech. The rest, generally speaking, have said what they thought they were expected to say.

Assassins respect not only his 88 years but they fear the long-smothered support which rests behind him. In Japan, one does not get reelected to the Diet for 55 years, especially if one has a wife who is half Japanese, half British, unless one has strong popular support.

Must Speak Carefully

If he condemns the rest of the world along with Japan he may not be too far off the beam at that, and besides he has to say things in such a way that Japanese editors won't throw what he says into the wastebasket lest printing it seal their own doom

The important thing is that he includes with the rest of the world in his attack on international moral delinquency. He does not set the Japanese race apart, on a divine pedestal, and feel publicly sorry for it because it has been spanked for being naughty.

But there are apparently 73,999,999 other Japanese who don't seem to think they've done anything wrong, because they still believe they're something pretty special.

Johnson Grass Fight Is Cited

A section of land four miles east of Lubbock on the Idalou highway has been cited by H. P. Read, special assistant to the county agent, as a fine example of what can be done with badly infested Johnson grass areas.

A. F. Lee owns three-fourths of the section and George Butler owns the other quarter-section. Lee resides at 410 Ave. F and Butler is owner of the Butler Lumber company here. When the two men took over the section last year it was almost solid in Johnson grass.

Lee's tenants, E. E. Mullins and a Mr. Howe, have eliminated about 65 percent of the grass, and still have all but 60 acres in row crops.

30 Acres For Grazing

Howe has fenced 30 acres for grazing purposes.

Lee has listed and relisted five times and plans to plow up to the first freeze with big sweeps, or perhaps sow to wheat. Howe plowed before planting and after listing. (He listed eight times with big sweeps.) He cultivated closely, plowing with regulation cultivators. After this the field was well hoed.

Howe says that the grass will be under control, and with moisture he will make a fair grain crop.

Butler used intensive cultivation as a means to combat the grass. Some of his quarter-section he has seeded and some is cultivated. Read said that Butler was anxious to plow in August but that rains interferred the day he was to begin.

Heavy Use of One-Way

Mullins plowed eight times with one-ways before planting grain. He reports the grass was weakened to the point of easy cultivation.

All four were bothered by seed grass, Read said, but found it easy to control while they were working the old roots.

Lee has sprayed around his stack lot using kerosene and fuel oil. He thinks two more applications will kill 90 percent of the grass. All of the men figure on plowing what is not seeded up to the first freeze, or if it rains enough to provide sufficient moisture they plan to sow to wheat and grazing through the spring, followed by summer plowing.

Crippled Children's Clinic Set Today

Two orthopedic specialists will be at the Boys' club beginning at 8 o'clock this morning to give free examination, diagnosis and recommendation of treatment to crippled children in the district with any type of bone, muscle or joint defect.

Dr. Walter G. Stuck of San Antonio and Dr. Chas. F. Clayton of Fort Worth, well known specialists in orthopedics, will donate their services. Publicity has been issued by the Lubbock Crippled Children's council, clinic sponsors for the past weeks in an attempt to bring every child who needs attention to the clinic.

May Register Today

Children may be registered this morning at the Boys' club when it first opens, although appointments were to have been made before the clinic opened to speed examinations. J. E. Maisen, secretary of the Lubbock council, pointed out that such defects as cleft palate and harelip were also considered under the head of bone, muscle and joint defects and that those children, as well as others with worse physical disabilities were eligible for examinations.

Two dressing rooms will be available for preparing the children for examinations which will be conducted in private booths that have been provided especially for the clinic. Nurses aides will be furnished by the Junior Welfare league and two Lubbock doctors, Dr. Pauline Miller and Dr. Martin H. Benson, will assist the two out-of-town specialists.

Pre-clinic appointments had been made for examination of 75 children and at least 25 more are expected to register when the clinic opens.

Transportation for children who live in or near Lubbock will be furnished if parents will call the Boys' club, 5021, after the clinic opens at 8 a. m.

Insects Infest Crops In Area

A number of calls recorded by Jason O. Gordon, Lubbock county agent, indicate that many cotton insects are infesting local crops and that the cotton boll-worm is one of the worst this year.

This worm is said to be one of the most destructive insect enemies of cotton, ranking second only to the boll-weevil.

Gordon has issued information concerning the control of this and the cotton leaf worm, which may develop in the coming weeks. He urges farmers to keep a careful check on the insects molesting their crops and to report the various types as they appear.

Color Markings Stressed

Gordon stressed the color markings of the boll-worm, mistaken many times for the pink worm. When full grown the worm is from an inch to an inch and a-half in length and varies in color and markings. Almost every gradation occurs from a pale green through a pinkish or brown color to almost black.

The county agent said they are small when first hatched and often go unnoticed until plant injury become severe. They are to be found on cotton from the time the squares are formed but their principal injury is noticeable late in the summer or fall, after the bolls have grown to normal size.

The adult worm is a brownish yellow moth, usually flying at dusk and after dark, feeding upon the nector of flowers. Principal food plants are cotton, corn tomatoes and many garden crops, Gordon said.

Early Dusting Needed

As the eggs are left by adult worms in corn silks, preferably, examination should be made when the silks begin to dry, points should be located for flea hoppers and boll weevils, and 100 consecutive plant terminals examined.

No time should be lost in applying dust if very many eggs or young worms are found, Gordon said. Eight to 10 pounds of calcium arsenate or lead arsenate dust should be applied per acre and repeat applications made every five days as long as eggs and young worms are prevalent.

Gordon added that calcium arsenate dust for control or check of the cotton leaf worm was advisable now. This dust will also aid in control of the boll-worm, he said.

Three Ships, Small Landing Field All That Remain Of Big Kure Base

By JAMES McGLINCY
United Press Staff Writer

KURE NAVAL BASE, Japan, Sept. 4.—The once-mighty battleship Haruna lay drunkenly listing in the fog out in the bay. A dozen ancient destroyers were tied up at the docks. Three ships and a small rough flying field were all that remained today of Japan's greatest naval base.

From the shore the Haruna was only a dim outline in the haze, but it could be seen the battleship that took her first beating from Colin Kelly carried a heavy list to port and was useless.

"Short" Landing Made

Our Flying Fortress, the headliner, came in to Kure's 2,600-foot fighter strip—far shorter than the safety margin—so low over the water that our wheels touched as soon as we were over land. The plane bounced high once, then skidded across the rough field, while Capt. Mark Magnang, the pilot, put on all brakes.

We pulled up only 50 feet short of a wide ditch.

At naval headquarters here Vice Admiral Masao Kanazawa was asked if this was Japan's greatest naval base.

"It was," he said with a heavy but humorouless laugh. The accent was on the past tense.

"It is all finished now," Kanazawa said. "It's good. Now we can all play tennis."

Kanazawa was Japan's navy spokesman until 1939. Later he was naval attache to the Nanking puppet government.

Kure itself resembled Yokohama with a mile or two of completely bombed out areas. But wooden houses, camouflaged to look like bombed out areas, had been begun on the ruins, instead of tin shacks as at Yokohama and Tokyo.

The Japanese brought out folding chairs and served us tea on the portico of a bomber out building.

Drove To Hiroshima

Afterwards we drove to Hiroshima 12 miles away. The driver of our sedan turned out to be a Kamikaze kid, bouncing against airplane engines stacked on the side of the road and completely wrecking the car. No one was hurt seriously.

Coming back I rode in a bus with our plane crew. An exurberant Japanese sailor whistled Dixie and The Stein Song. He even harmonized with Joe McCarthy of Yank Magazine on "Old Black Joe."

Last night at the field, the Japanese cooked for us and brought out Japanese wrisky ,which tastes something like Scotch, and Japanese beer, which tastes a bit like American beer. Then we settled down to work on "Old Black Joe." The sailor provided the sake. He wore his defeat well.

Story Of Beating In Orhphans' Home Being Investigated

TIPTON, Okla., Sept. 4 (U.P.)—Officials of the Tipton orphans' home expected today to make a report on their investigation of a reported statement by a runaway boy that he had been beaten in the home.

R. E. Chitwood, veteran superintendent of the Church of Christ-supported institution, said he hoped to make public the report of Marlin Carruth, home representative, who went to Childress, Tex., yesterday to investigate the boy's story.

But the superintendent said late yesterday, that so far as he knew there was "absolutely nothing to it."

At Oklahoma City, Mrs. Mabel Bassett, state commissioner of charities and corrections, expected to receive a report from a Childress doctor who was said to have made an examination of the runaway boy, Donald Hardgrove.

Mrs. Bassett talked by telephone with a Childress Red Cross official and said the latter told her that she had seen whipping marks on the child's back and legs.

Chitwood described the Hardgrove boy as "a bad boy" who had run away from the home three or four times. The boy left the home last week and went to Childress. He now is reported with relatives at Anton, Tex.

Chitwood revealed that he had asked recently to be relieved of his duties as superintendent after suffering a heart attack. He said the board of trustees was now looking for a successor.

Schools Show Heavy Increase

A total of 7,295 students attended the first day of classroom work in the Lubbock schools Tuesday as compared to 6,558 at the same time last year, R. W. Matthews, superintendent announced. Enrollment is expected to pick up at least 10 percent during the week, the superintendent estimated.

Only two schools, Hunt and K. Carter, in the entire system registered less students than at the same time last year. Greatest enrollment increase was noted in Junior High school and McWhorter school.

Sen. Ferguson Urges Pearl Harbor Probe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mich), demanding a congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster, said today that "if the American people are going to be blamed, they have a right to trial."

Last week, in commenting on official Army and Navy findings as the causes of the debacle, President Truman said he felt the country was as much to blame as anyone.

Varying degrees of responsibility were placed on Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, former chief of naval operations; former Secretary of State Hull and others in the different and conflicting official reports.

Democratic And Republican Voters Agree

Bi-Partisan Supreme Court Desired By U. S. Majority

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCTON, N. J.—If President Truman could consult with the American people on general principles to be followed in making appointments to the Supreme court of the United States, he would find that for one thing the people believe that appointment to the nation's highest court ought to be bi-partisan in nature—that is, they should be divided about equally between Republicans and Democrats.

GALLUP

This finding was made in nation-wide questioning of the rank and file of the nation's voters by field reporters for the Institute. They asked:

"The President fills all vacancies on the Supreme court. Do you think he should appoint about the same number of Democrats and Republicans, or should he appoint only members of his own political party?"

The replies:

Should appoint about same number of dems. and Reps.	56%
Should appoint only members of his own party	9
Should make appointments only on basis of fitness, non-partisan	19
No opinion	16

While theoretically the Supreme court is above politics, actually, political considerations have always played a part in appointments. The extent to which politics may figure was dramatically evidence in 1937 when the late Mr. Roosevelt introduced his plan to enlarge the Supreme court. This plan, polls by the Institute at the time showed, was opposed by the majority of the American people.

The belief that appointments to the Supreme court should include about as many of one party as the other is held by a majority of both Democrats and Republicans, although as might be expected, sentiment runs more strongly in favor of the proposal among Republicans. (The present make-up of the court is seven Democrats, one Republican, one vacancy.)

The vote on the question among Democrats and Republicans is as follows:

	Rep. Voters	Dem. Voters
Should appoint about same number dems. and reps.	64%	82%
Should appoint only members of his own party	8	18
Should make appointments only on basis of fitness, non-partisan	20	10
No opinion	11	17

The Supreme court normally consists of nine members, one Chief justice and eight Associate justices. At the present time the sole Republican member of the Supreme court is Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone, who was first appointed to the Supreme court in 1925, by Calvin Coolidge. The present vacancy results from the retirement in July of Justice Owen J. Roberts, a Republican.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

WOMEN who are up in the air always harping about something seldom have angelic dispositions.

FACIAL FUNGI

THE moustache which sprouted on faces on all fronts during the late global conflict is here to stay unless American women say "No" in a big way, according to those who have been doing research on the hirsute horticulture. We suppose that knowledge will help you decide on an appropriate Christmas gift for your Johnnie. How about a moustache cup?

John R. Johnson is the only Lubbockite we think of at present who donned a moustache along with his civvies but a number of men still in service adopted the fad. Many of the officers and men grew the lip adornments to break the monotony of military life; others on bets; some because they thought it enhanced their looks.

LT. JOE BOB FOSTER was terribly disturbed to discover a picture taken in jest at Harlingen Army Air field found its way to Lubbock (thanks to the public relations office) and into the Avalanche-Journal. His moustache was something of the French horn variety, we believe. It has long since been shaved off.

A number of fellows sent home pictures of themselves with their glorious handlebars and asked "Shall we shave before we come home?" So far as we know, to a woman, the return answer was "Yes, by all means!"

It's said to take from two weeks to two months to grow a moustache. And one must not neglect it for a single day if he wants it to appear crisp and zippy. And those in the know maintain no matter how hard it is to raise, no misery can compare with having to cut it off. What makes a man wear that adornment anyway? Is it because he thinks it lifts him above the average? We wonder.

GOING, GOING, GONE

SPEAKING of hairy adornments, the problem of becoming bald is one that has faced many a young man serving in the tropics. One young man stationed in the Canal zone wrote: "I don't care how long they keep me down here; just so I still have my hair when I go back home." This attitude was not widely shared, we feel sure, but it indicates the store a man sets by his hair when he is faced with the peril of premature baldness.

One of our brothers, stationed in Galapagos said the fellows there have hundreds of bottles containing scientifically blended solutions that they dash on their thinning locks to preserve and prevent their departure.

Just why the tropics should affect ones thatch so adversely has never been properly explained. A theory is advanced that constantly wearing of a cap, as prescribed by military regulation and custom, generates an excessive amount of warmth when the hot sunrays beat down on it. This causes the hair to "rot" or something equally curious.

It is also said that improper shampooing, including the harsh, irritating soaps and the use of cold water for rinsing, is one of the reasons why so many men find areas of bare skin pushing up through their locks.

WILL IT BE REPEATED?

WE chatted briefly with Mrs. Huddleston Wright Tuesday afternoon not long after she received the telegram telling of the safety of her husband, Capt. Wright, and she said something that impressed us so much we thought about it at intervals throughout the afternoon.

After telling her how glad we are to learn "Hud" is alive and in good health, after all these years of silence, we said, "It was a rather awful price to pay for victory wasn't it? All those weary months in a Jap prison camp and we don't know what those membars of the 'Lost Battalion' went through."

"Yes, it was terrible for Hud I am sure," Mrs. Wright agreed. "But I have been wondering if this war really will be the last one. Will people of the whole world learn how to live together? Will they forget their bickering ways and turn from narrow and selfish lives? It will take a long time for us to learn this new way of life. It should start with little children who cannot even play together without fussing and wanting to fight."

WHEN Mrs. Wright said she believed from the first day that her husband would come home some day, she convinced us. In 1943 we went with a photographer to take Christmas pictures of her and the two little daughters. There was a tree and gifts and Mrs. Wright with a sweet smile said they hoped Capt. Wright would be with them the next Christmas. Well, of course he wasn't but this year, somewhat delayed, Hud will be home. And for one, the Woman's Angle wishes for him a White Christmas, one that is merry and bright and everything good.

Jap Surrender Promises A Final End To China's Internal Strife

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press Staff Writer

Japan's surrender promises a final end of the internal war in China which has been in progress, off and on, since 1927.

The Kuomintang or central government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and the Communist group of Gen. Mao Tse-Tung have gotten together under circumstances which are really favorable for the first time in 18 years. It is the only time that Chiang and Mao have met in that period, during which other Kuomingtang-Communist parleys failed.

The picture has changed now. The danger from without has been removed with the defeat of Japan. China has been given the signal by the United States, Russia and Great Britain to go ahead and assume her place among the leading powers of the earth.

National Unity Necessary

Both Chiang and Mao probably have been given to understand that achieving such a place will not be possible unless national unity is found. Every development at the current Chungking conference indicates they fully appreciate the fact.

It is fairly apparent that in this matter, benevolent pressure has been applied by the outside powers to both factions in China. United States policy has been based consistently on the territorial integrity of China and the necessity of a strong central government, based on the recognized Chungking regime.

Soviet Russia, whose position on both matters was somewhat in doubt, cleared away the cobwebs beyond equivocation in the 30-year Chinese-Soviet treaty of friendship and alliance. Under it, Russia recognized Chinese territorial sovereignty to a far greater extent than had been expected, especially with regard to Manchuria.

Russia Pledges Support

In addition, Russia pledged her entire material and moral support to the Chungking government. By so doing, Moscow clearly put it up to the Chinese communists—who had not in any event been receiving Russian material support—to get together with Chungking and share in the new international order. At the same time, Moscow may have implied to the Kuomintang that it would welcome any measures to meet the communists half-way and reach a solution welcome to all.

The United States also appears to have applied friendly pressure to both sides. Chiang's several invitations to Mao to come to Chungking, the third and last of which was accepted, were not only approved by the United States but possibly inspired. When Ambassador Patrick Hurley flew to Yenan to bring Mao back to Chungking, the role being played by the United States was obvious.

Knotty Problems Remain

The international spadework having been done, it is now up to the two Chinese factions, and dispatches from Chungking look propitious. It certainly will not be all clear sailing, for some knotty problems remain to be solved and some widely differing viewpoints to be reconciled. Chiang's victory day message to the Chinese people, however, touched on several of these problems in a conciliatory way.

Among the top problems are disposition of the Chinese Communist armies; calling of a national assembly to adopt a democratic constitution, and immediate participation of the Communists in a coalition government.

Chiang insisted logically that there can be no private army within a unified nation, nor any armed forces maintained by a political party. At the same time, he promised that if the Communist armed forces merged into the national army they would be given equal treatment without discrimination. Most significantly, he said lands would be allotted to soldiers, which fits in with the Communist policy of Agrarian redistribution.

Chiang implied that the national assembly called by the Kuomingtang for Nov. 12 would be postponed, as desired by the Communists. The latter have objected that the assembly would be unrepresentative, since its delegates were elected nearly 10 years ago.

Chiang said he is ready to consult with all leaders of the nation before the assembly is called, to consider a "reasonable increase" in the number of delegates, and to "seek a rational settlement of all related problems."

Chiang pledged full legal recognition of all political parties but side-stepped the question of forming a coalition government, including the Communists, before the assembly meets However, that might come under the head of "related problems" to be discussed forthwith.

The Sports Eye

By Mack Turner

ATTENTION Levelland and Lamesa.

The Sports Eye gets a letter from Coach Gano Tubbs from Levelland that his football team is looking for an opponent for Sept. 14. We get a telephone call from our "Private Eye" (Bill Warren) at Lamesa, stating that Lamesa needs a game for Sept. 14. We suggest that Levelland and Lamesa get together for that date.

The only drawback to this is, both schools wanted this date for a "home" game. Maybe they could split the difference, and play somewhere, slightly southeast of Brownfield at a spot halfway between the two.

But, for the benefit of any schools interested, here are two open dates that need to be filled. Another date that we have been asked for help on is Oct. 26 with Morton.

If interested in playing Levelland, contact Coach Gano Tubbs. If you want to play Lamesa, get in touch with H. S. Fitzgerald at the school there. Time is short, so hurry. If you want the late October date with Morton the man to contact is Carl Macon, superintendent at Morton.

It seem that Morton and Levelland didn't have dates for the dates in question. Lamesa was coasting along with Tahoka on its schedule for Sept. 14 under a verbal agreement that had been carried through by Supt. W. T. Hanes and Coach Leo Jackson, and hadn't thought to check the matter.

Hanes and Jackson moved on to Cameron, Texas, and the new bosses at Tahoka signed papers with the Big Spring Steers for this opening date. The addition of such teams as Andrews, Sundown, Post and Slaton to the conference schedule in District 6-A cut greatly into the number of practice games allowed a team, and cut out several standby dates.

If any of these dates are filled, we hope schools involved will let us know.

WORD has just been received from the campus of Texas university that Lubbock has added another name to the mighty Texas Longhorns, and that Jim "Pinkey" Lowrey, half pint fullback of the Westerners last season, has been included on the "squad of 40" that will make up the Varsity at Texas.

A lot of praise has been showered on Lowrey's showing, but it was track that provided the big reason for Jim picking Texas U. In a letter from Jim, he says it feels funny to be "scrimmaging against such "little boys" as Harlin Wetz, 300 pounds, Captain Plyler, 255 pounds, and Hubert Bechtol, 200 pounds.

THE Lubbock Cowhands and the Amarillo Yannigans will get together on the football field this season, it was announced last night by E. J. "Pinkey" Lowrey, athletic director of Lubbock schools.

The dates for the game will be announced later this week, Lowrey said. Word has been sent back to Coach Howard "Bull" Lynch of the acceptance of the dates, and the final Cowhands schedules will be announced Sunday.

I'll be seeing you.

Spur Bulldogs Open With Three Veterans

SPUR, Sept. 4—Although school will not start until next Monday, Coach Jack Christian has the Spur Bulldogs on the practice field, shaping up the plans for the coming season of play with a team that will boast of only three lettermen.

The heavy loss of the Bulldogs through graduation and calls into the armed service was reflected in the squad that the popular mentor opened camp with Sept. 1, and has settled much of the optimistic talk of a fourth straight district flag for the Bulldogs.

Only three veterans of last year's championship club will be on hand when the Bulldogs open the season four days after the opening game.

Jarrold McAteer, jr., Dean Wright and Dewey Watson will be the three returning lettermen.

Wild antelope in large numbers still roam in northeastern Montana.

Dizzy Trout Blanks Yanks In Crucial Series Opener

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Dizzy Trout spiked the New York Yankees flag hopes today with a 10 to 0 shutout of the helpless bombers as Detroit hiked its league lead to two and a half games over the idle Washington Senators.

The contest opened a seven game series in Yankee Stadium that may break open the tight American League race or so muddle the chase that the pennant winner won't be determined until the final days of the campaign.

Joe McCarthy's men never were in the ball game today after the Bengals started to cuff Al Gettel for their first score in the second frame, routing the rookies right-hander with a 15-hit attack in five and two-thirds frames.

Both Hank Greenberg and Doc Cramer pounded two-run homers to help the invaders open their final 20-game Eastern jaunt with an easy triumph. Eddie Mayo and Jimmy Outlaw each chipped in with three hits while Oscar Grimes with a trio of blows was the only consistent Trout menace.

It was Trout's 14th victory, Gettel's sixth setback and the 12th time the Yanks have been whitewashed this season.

The only encouraging factor to the Yanks was the relief appearance of Paul Schreiber, the 43-year-old batting practice thrower.

Although Schreiber has been with the Yanks for nine years and formerly pitched for the Giants and Dodgers in the mid 1920's he never had thrown a ball for the Bombers in a regular game. Only a few days ago was he placed on the active list.

The tall, thin right hander "nothing balled" the leaders crazy, allowing no hits in the 3 1-3 frames chore, stopping the rioting Tigers dead in their tracks.

Lefty Sollis Slated To Be Coach At Post

Lefty Sollis, who did a lot of fancy stepping in the backfields of the Texas Tech Red Raiders back in the early 30's, and more recently in the backfield of Lubbock Army Air field will step in as coach of the Post Antelopes, it was announced at Post this week.

Sollis is still "Army property" and with the physical fitness department at LAAF, but expects his discharge within the "next few days." Sollis was elected to the post at Post last week, and started off the football practice Saturday, at the same time starting a 15-day furlough from the Army.

Prospects are high at Post this season, playing the second year after a war-time layoff, and many of last year's veterans are back.

Voters in Texas are not required to pay a poll tax after they reach the age of 60.

Dallas Open Is Next Big Event

DALLAS, Sept. 4 (AP)—Dallas golf fans were breaking out in a fever of anticipation today over what looms as a Texas duel for the Dallas $10,000 Open over the tight country club par 36-36—72 course starting Thursday.

You might call it the "sugar game" of the series since the Lone Star Starters expected to lead the way each has won the open tournament here once. Ben Hogan, who triumphed yesterday in the Nashville Open, took first money in 1943 when it was known as the Texas Victory Open. Byron Nelson, the links capitalist who used to be a caddy with Hogan at Fort Worth, won last year.

But this will be the first time both have been in the same tounament.

A field of around 125 will tee off Thursday in the first 18 holes. This includes some 70 or 75 top amateurs who were selected through qualifying rounds held by cities over the Southwest.

The professional touring brigade was moving into Dallas today from Nashville with Slammin' Sammy Snead one of the first to arrive.

Others to compete for the war bond prizes—$2,000 (maturity value) for first place—include Jimmy Thomson, Johnny Bulla, Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Tony Penna, Herman Barron, Vic Ghezzi and Leonard Dodson. Lanky Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans amateur who upset the pro stars by coming in first in the Memphis, Open, heads the simon-pures.

There will be 18 holes Friday after which the field will be cut to 60 low scorers and ties for the final 36 Saturday and Sunday.

Red Raiders Start Hard Work, Dillon Shifted To Quarter

With the date for the opening game fast approaching, Coach Dell Morgan started seeking a combination that would prove satisfactory, and the start of hard work found a shift being experimented with that may provide that passing spark that was so much in need last year.

Jack "Spider" Dillon, letterman end, has been shifted to quarterback by Coach Morgan, and has been showing much promise as a passer off the tricky T formation.

With 76 candidates on hand, and four more due before the weekend, the Red Raiders continue their two lengthy practice sessions a day, with Morgan far from satisfied with the results.

Little weight has appeared so far and efforts are being made to gather in another big man or two from the sparse ranks of recent high school graduates who had not intended to enroll in college.

Walt Schlinkman, the Dumas near All-American, is due in camp today or tomorrow. He has been working out for six weeks or more and is expected to be in shape to step right into scrimmage, particularly since his workout in Chicago prior to the all-star game of last week. Morgan said he also expects a transfer or so to report by Saturday, but he declined to indicate who these men might be.

Yesterday's sessions saw alleged passers attempting to connect with some heaves, but no one on the squad showed much sign of having talent in this department even though one freshman opening day lamented: "Half the guys out here are halfbacks, and they're all passers. How much chance have I got?"

Pass receivers also appeared to be on the scarce side of the ledger and most of the too few passes within receiving distance were dropped.

Morgan indicated he will indulge in give-and-take scrimmage today or tomorrow in further effort to see if talent which has not appeared may be uncovered under pressure.

R. W. Moyers, Lubbock lineman, is rated head-and-shoulders above any other freshman and is looked on as a star of the season, provided the Army doesn't take him. He is scheduled for another physical examination Sept. 29.

Arkansas Grid Star Breaks Collar Bone

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 4 (AP)—Halfback Frank Schumchyk, hard-running letterman, suffered a broken collar bone in scrimmage at the University of Arkansas today and may be lost to the Razorbacks for much of the season.

He was injured as he crashed into a defensive back at the end of a long gain.

Bucs Tie Cards In Hectic Tilt

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates came up off the floor today to gain an 8 to 8 tie in 12 innings with the St. Louis Cardinals in one of the wierdest National League games played here this season.

The Cardinals had a six-run lead going into the sixth inning, but the Pirates rallied for five runs to pull within one of a tie. From that point on, both Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pirates and Billy Southworth of the Cards paraded relief pitchers and pinch batters into the three-hour and 16-minute the game with with almost monotonous regularity. When hostilities ended at 5:16 p. m., by agreement to allow the Pirates to catch a train, Frisch had inserted 20 players into the game, Southworth 16.

Eleven pitchers took turns on the mound, six for Pittsburgh, five for St. Louis.

Play was stopped in the last half of the 12th inning after one pitch.

Since the clubs are not scheduled to play each other again this season, the game probably will not be concluded and thus will not figure in the standings of either.

Point Plans Of Army Explained

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP) — Here is how the points are scored for discharge from the Army:

Service credit — one point for each month of Army service since September 16, 1940, the date when Selective Service became effective.

Overseas credit — the same.

Combat credit — five points for the first and each additional award for the following decorations received since September 16, 1940:

Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldier's Medal, Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal, Purple Heart and Bronze service stars for battle participation; Navy decoration to Army personnel as follows:

Navy Cross, Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Silver Star Medal, Distinguished Flying Cross, Navy and Marine Corps Medal, Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal and Purple Heart.

Parenthood credit — 12 points for each child under 18 years up to a limit of three children.

Campaigns Officially Defined

The campaigns for which the battle participation stars are awarded are officially defined in a long list issued by the War department, covering every theater since Pearl Harbor. The latest addition of the list was issued on June 6, but will be revised later to include campaigns since that date. The June 6 list included the following campaigns:

Philippine islands; Burma; Central Pacific; East Indies; India-Burma; Air offensive against Japan; Aleutian islands; China; Papua; Guadalcanal, New Guinea; northern Solomons; the eastern mandated islands; Bismarck archipelago; western Pacific; the Ryukyus (which include Okinawa); Egypt-Libyia; European air offensive; Algeira-French Morocco; Tunisia; Sicily Naples - Foggia; Rome-Arno; Normandy; northern France; southern France; Rhineland; Ardennes; north Apennines; central Europe; Po valley.

In addition to the formal listing of these battles and campaigns, provision has been made to give battle credit for anti-submarine operations; ground combat or air combat against the enemy in areas and at times not covered in the formal list. The War department expected to designate these actions later.

son, Pvt. Teddy Drake, is a prisoner in Fukuoka, Japan. Both were in the 131st and were taken prisoner at Java.

"We were nearly overcome when we got the message. It was getting awfully hard to take not hearing when so many were getting telegrams that their boys were safe," Mrs. Drake said. "We had been waiting several days and it looked like we just weren't ever going to hear—but we still weren't even about to give up hope."

Both In High School

Both of the Drake boys were in the National Guard unit while in high school, and the unit was mobilized before either of them had time to graduate. Henry is now 24 and Teddy is 22.

"We were looking for a message, so we weren't much surprised, but words can't express how we actually felt when we knew he was safe," Pfc. Stone's sister, Mrs W. L. McDaniel of 501 Ave D, said. "I am going to do everything I can to persuade my father to go to California to meet Preston, and if he can't go, I will. My father is past 70, and doesn't know whether he could make the trip or not."

Was Trucker Here

Before entering the service, Pfc. Stone was a trucker here.

FIVE WICHITA FALLS MEN ARE LIBERATED

WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 4 (AP) —Major Winthrop H. Rogers, operations officer of the famed 131st Field Artillery, Texas' Lost Battalion, has been liberated from the Japanese, according to word received here today.

Four other men from Wichita Falls also were freed.

Major Rogers was commander of the headquarters battery of the National Guard unit when it was mobilized here in 1940.

The other four men liberated included: Capt. Clark Taylor; Sgt. Keith F. Naylor; Cpl. Avon L. Scarbrough and Pvt. K. O. Thompson.

time."

Sgt. Opal Stanton, San Francisco, who has been overseas 12 of her 22 months in Army service, was practical. "If the Army needs female help let it hire girls as civilians," she said.

Here and there a few WACs indicated some favor toward a peacetime women's corps, but Cpl. Vasilike Schinas, a medical miss from Washington, D. C., pertly pushed the needle all the way in and then wobbled it around.

"Women," she said, "just cannot be militarized no matter how you look at it. Women insist on thinking for themselves in peacetime or wartime. That makes them of little use to the Army."

Now take it easy, general, take it easy. That's not my idea. That's just what the woman said.

Congratulations To:

let company, Dunninger and Richard Bonell, the waltz king, played in the hall during the year.

Hall Is A Tradition

The hall, of course, after being remodeled only once since it was built in 1915 doesn't provide all that Tulsa would desire now, but it has an atmosphere of tradition about it that keeps Tulsans going there for its fine tentertainment. A huge console organ is operated from beneath the stage, one of the few slanting stages in America. Pipes for old gaslights in the dressing rooms harks back to days of old.

A total of 130 performances were staged in the hall last year and Leekley was preparing for the opening of the season this year as he busied himself with cleaning the house for the opening events of the Jewish New Year.

We left the hall and drove over to the coliseum where we met genial Eddie Quigley, manager, who has been at the place since it opened. We made a tour of the giant plant and heard Quigley tell how it was built by W. R. Whiteside 17 years ago at a cost of $830,000; how it had gone through litigation and is now owned by Sam Avey.

Quigley told us about the events staged there; how it was filled to the brim with wrestling fans every Monday night for the past 14 years and how its hockey made Tulsa "the best town in the league." We heard him tell how he staged skating matinees for the youngsters when the coliseum was opened and how, now, the children of those youngsters were coming there after school during the winter months for "the most healthful of all sports"—ice skating.

Events Every Night

We heard him tell how the coliseum opened each Oct. 1 and stayed open through April 1 without there being a single night when some sort of event wasn't going on.

He took us down into the basement, below the floor and showed us the $60,000 Sterling-Springfield refrigerator plant which makes the ice for the ice shows and hockey games. We learned that it costs about $1,000 a month to operate the refrigerator plant alone, and that operation costs of the plant averages about $4,000 a month during the season.

The building is 300 by 160 feet, a block long and a half block wide.

We then drove down South Boston avenue, which is dominated by the $1,500,000 Boston Avenue Methodist church, one of the most magnificent church structures architecturally in America and on out to the fair grounds where we saw the pavilion. It's arena is said to be larger than that of Madison Square Garden and a spectator can see as good from one seat as another.

It's high arched ceiling of steel girders is almost high enough to permit a footbal game to be played there. Beneath the seats and running completely around the structure inside is enough room to house all the livestock that is entered in any year at the Panhandle-South Plains fair.

Has Varied Uses

It's arena dirt floor is now covered by a portable maple floor and a score or more of Tulsa youngsters were whirring around on roller skaes this afternoon, the building now being under lease to a roller skate concessionaire.

Owned by Tulsa county, the building is under supervision of the county commissioners' court and shows are staged in conjunction with the fair organization.

Talking briefly about Tulsa's post-war planning with Wooten, we learned that Tulsa taxpayers had voted a $4,000,000 bond issue for needed civic improvements on Dec. 2, 1941, seven days before Pearl Harbor and these improvement plans, dormant during the war, have been combined with other which will call for the voting of an additional $10,000,000 in bonds sometime in October.

Do Things In Big Way

They do big things in a big way here.

Hurriedly bidding our Tulsa friends goodbye we, set out for Little Rock, where on tomorrow morning we will visit the beautiful Joseph Taylor Robinson auditorium, built in memory of the late beloved Arkansas senator.

From there we'll go to Memphis, Tenn., where we will confer with C. A. McElravy, secretary of the national association of auditorium and coliseum managers, and view the Memphis auditorium.

occupation will be south of the 38th parallel, the Russians being in control of the area to the north.

The commanding general of the First Japanese Army will report in person to General Eichelberger for instructions dealing with the Eighth Army zone. This area embraces all of northern Honshu and also Hokkaido island.

The commanding general of the Japanese Second Army must report by radio, and promptly, to Gen. Walter Krueger, commander of the U. S. Sixth Army, who will have control of the occupation area in southern Honshu and Shikoku and Kyushu islands.

Lt. Gen. John Hodge, commander of the 24th Army corps, was designated as the American commander to whom the Japanese commander in Korea must report.

The Japanese imperial headquarters also was ordered to put its naval commanders at the disposal of Admiral Halsey, U. S. Third Fleet; Raymond A. Spruance, Fifth Fleet, and Thomas C. Kinkaid, Seventh Fleet. The three American admirals are MacArthur's naval representatives.

Ships Also Involved

MacArthur informed the Japanese that all their merchant vessels over 100 tons would be subject to occupation authorities' supervision.

The Allied commander ordered the imperial government to provide in each of the major occupied areas "labor in quantity and with training and skills" at time and places he will designate.

Crews for the repair of roads, railroads and docks, and labor for the construction of housing for the occupation forces, also must be supplied.

The Nipponese general headquarters must provide MacArthur without delay the designation and cdoe name of each Army division, independent brigade and regiment, and also designations of naval units. In addition, the Japanese must disclose the specific location of each headquarters, the commanders name and home base, and actual strength of forces.

Armaments will be turned over directly to the Sixth, Eighth and 10th Army commanders and to the 24th corps commander, on their order.

The imperial headquarters, besides ordering demobilization of Nipponese forces speedily and in an orderly fashion, must maintain all records and archives until they are taken over by occupation forces.

Other instructions included the following:

Steps must be taken to mark all minefields, mines and other obstacles to land, sea or air movements. They shall be made safe and removed as soon as possible.

Cable and radio broadcasting facilities be maintained intact and continued in operation and that voice broadcasts for public information in languages foreign to Japanese be discontinued immediately.

War Prisoner Camps

Names and locations of war prisoner camps and the total number of prisoners and civilian internees shall be furnished to the supreme commander within 48 hours.

Commanders of Japanese prison camps are to turn over complete control to the senior prisoner of war or internee present, together with rations equivalent to the best available locally to the Army or civilians.

The best medical care, adequate shelter, clothing and bathing facilities also shall be made available.

Lists showing complete names, ranks, nationalities, next of kin, home addresses, age, sex and physical condition also are to be provided. Places of burial of deceased also must be given.

The Japanese government also must be prepared to furnish all office buildings, hospitals, living quarters, warehouse and storage shops, transportation and communication installations required, with specific needs to be submitted later. This was in anticipation of the entry into Tokyo.

MANY LEADERS DECLINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—The stock market was a two-way thoroughfare today with assorted rails, utilities and industrials progressing moderately while many leaders drifted into minus territory.

Gains of fractions to two points or so were plentiful at the close but declines of as much were widespread. Transfers totaled 1,070,000 shares compared with 1,110,000 last Friday.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was unchanged at 67.6.

In front were Pullman, Radio Corp., at highs for the year or longer; Pepsi Cola, American Telephone, Southern Pacific, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, and Glenn Martin.

Losers included Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, Graham-Paige, Texas Co., U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Boeing, American Can, Du Pont, Westinghouse and Eastman Kodak.

Bonds were uneven.

Grain..

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 4. (AP)—Trading interest lagged in the grain futures market today. Traders could find little incentive to go in either direction, with the exception of the rye pit, where short covering in the September contract lifted the price as much as 2 cents above Saturday's close at one time. Later profit cashing shrunk the advance.

At the close wheat was ⅛ to ⅝ lower than Saturday's close, September $1.63. Corn was ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, December $1.14⅛. Oats were ¼ higher to ⅛ lower, September 58-58⅛. Rye was ⅝ higher to 1¼ lower, September $1.48⅛-?. Barley was ¼ higher to ⅛ lower, September $1.06⅛.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Cotton futures were steady to firm during most of today's session with buying interest created by reports of crop damage and news that Spain was in the market for cotton. Extreme gains of about 50 cents a bale, however, were not maintained at the final, as profit taking and hedging in late trading found buyers reserved. Final quotations were off 5 cents a bale to 35 cents higher.

Mills were buyers of nearby positions at the start and this demand continued throughout most of the morning dealings. It was reported that Spain was in the market seeking approximately 30,000 bales of United States, Mexican and Brazilian cotton. Most of the staple however, is expected to be bought in the United States as Mexican supplies were said to be low.

Advices from the cotton belt stated that weevil infestation was spreading particularly in Texas and Oklahoma with other sections of the main producing areas reporting recent adverse weather has materially affected prospects.

Storm Warnings Up In Southern Florida

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 4. (AP)—Squally gales with winds up to 50 miles an hour developed in the low pressure through overlying south Florida and surrounding water areas late today and the weather bureau ordered small craft warning hoisted from Cape Hatteras through the Florida keys to Tampa.

An advisory timed 4 p. m. said the slight tropical disturbance was located midway between Key West and Fort Myers and was moving northward about 18 miles an hour.

"Winds and squalls up to 30 miles an hour have occurred outward 150 mile seast of the general area, but winds near and west of the area are not strong," the federal storm warning service reported.

"The disturbance will pass inland near Fort Myers early tonight without gaining much force. However, since a rather large area of low presure attends the disturbance, there may be regeneration in the Atlantic off the northeast Florida coast Wednesday."

About Job Seniority

It Is Veteran Vs. Unionist

IS a war veteran entitled to his old job back, if the job is held by a non-veteran union worker who has seniority over that of the veteran?

This question, which has been a source of growing conflict between returning veterans and union organizations, was thrust into the national spotlight recently when a Brooklyn judge ruled in favor of a veteran. Particularly distributed by the ruling, labor organizations are pressing Congress for new action clarifying the Selective Service law, under which the judge ruled.

Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo of the Brooklyn Federal court was the jurist who made the much-debated ruling.

He held that:

"Congress intended that during the one-year period of re-employment the veteran is entitled to work on any day there is work to be given, and no non-veteran shall do that work when any such work can be done by a veteran."

The law simply says a World War II veteran is entitled to his old job, if he asks for it within 90 days. But it does not say who should be laid off when an employer starts cutting his force. This was the point on which Judge Abruzzo ruled.

As a result of the Brooklyn jurist's decision that a veteran has what labor would describe as "super-seniority," labor unions, veterans' organizations, and even the United States Chamber of Commerce have joined in asking Congress to rephrase the law so that its meaning is clear to all.

This is a law that needs clarifying—just as the GI Bill of Rights, intended to aid the veteran in getting a fresh start in civilian life with an adequate loan, needs modification to make it workable. There is no sense in making laws that won't work.

During the war, trade union membership rose from 3,000,000 to slightly more than 5,000,000—then declined to 3,750,000.

The unions came through the war with few restrictions on them. The so-called Anti-Strike bill was enacted but, as the records show, it did not prevent nor even hamper strikes.

Many veterans are returning from service disgusted and disillusioned with union leadership and union rules. They will fight any attempt to keep them from their old jobs by union rules, and the veterans of this nation will in time become stronger politically than the unions, which have in recent years dominated the national political picture.

If Congress should at this time fail to clarify the law and give veterans the right to their old jobs, you can be sure the veterans themselves will in time change Congress.

A national political struggle between the veterans and organized labor appears to be taking shape in America.

"They Also Serve . . . ."

"EVERY human life has its purpose, and even the most hopeless handicapped can be useful to society."

When Dr. Earl R. Carlson, the nationally famous spastic paralysis specialist, made that philosophical observation in Lubbock last week, he suggested this thought:

Did you ever stop to think of how many great things have been done by handicapped persons?

Charles Proteus Steinmetz, the little hunch-back, became one of the outstanding electrical geniuses of America and had 200 patents in his name when he died at Schenactady, N. Y. in 1923.

Thomas Alva Edison was deaf. Sir Walter Scott and Lord Byron were cripples. Napoleon was an epileptic. Theodore Roosevelt was near-sighted and weakly as a child. The poet Milton and the historian, William Hickling Prescott, whose histories of the "Conquest of Mexico," and 'Conquest of Peru," are still read with interest, were blind. Helen Adams Keller, both deaf and blind, is another example.

These are but a few of the great "crippled and blind" who have played important roles in history.

Dr. Carlson, himself a victim of spastic paralysis at birth, is also a living argument in support of his philosophy—that even the most seriously handicapped can be useful to society.

Despite his affliction, he attended public school and completed his studies at Princeton and Yale. He has made himself a leader in his profession and is rendering a valuable service in aiding the parents of handicapped children to find ways to overcome the affliction.

His conquest of a disability, once considered almost totally disabling, should be an inspiration to every one.

A Californian spent his first old-age pension check in making a down payment on an engagement ring. Man is never too old to yearn.

The dream was a cruel one. One moment Brock held Thayer in his arms; the next she was gone and only laughter came back to him when he called her. It was a nightmare which had tortured him in the early days of hospitalization. It wakened him now and he lay rigid, trying to remember where he was. Then relief flooded over him. It was at that moment, as his muscles tensed for movement, he somehow became aware of the fact that he was alone. He fought back what must surely be gain the dream, struggling toward reality. Slowly, then with desperate intensity, his hand groped. The space beside him was empty.

Something tightened painfully in his chest. Hurt and anger began to boil up inside him. So it was that way, was it? That way. Pity, pity, remorse — something had driven Thayer, and her nearness had betrayed them both Now, while he slept she had fled away. Yes, fled. From the maimed man who was her husband. Brock recoiled from the thought, sick all over. Thayer had tried; he supposed she had honestly tried. . . .

He was very still for a long time, unaware of the moonlight's going, of the small hours creeping on. Very still, staring into space. Once he moved; he clasped his hands together and bent his head upon them, rubbing his forehead back and forth as if to ease an unceasing pain.

He told himself grimly from the depths of his bitterness that she would never have to worry again, and the blackness of before-dawn hid him. He's face it now. Deep down had persisted the hope. . . . Now he knew there was none.

Exhausted, Thayer slept in spite of determination to remain awake. When she opened her eyes it was morning and she rose hurriedly. A glance showed her mother-in-law's door was now closed. Good! Rest was what Mrs. Kittridge needed.

The clock reassured her as she dressed and she took an extra moment to perfect her make-up before she sped down the long stair, straight to Brock's door, and some remote part of her found time to be amused at her haste. She pushed open the door and her eager, "Hello, darling," died on her lips, half spoken. The little room was empty.

Always Brock waited to be called to breakfast. Strange that this morning . . .

Outside the terrace was vacant. Thayer called, "Brock—Brock," but received no answer. She walked slowly around the corner of the house, then stopped short

Across the lawn she saw Brock and his mother. They were talking, the man leaning heavily on his crutches, the woman holding to his arm.

All the eager welcoming died in Thayer. An odd chill roughened her skin.

Mrs. Kittridge smiled as the girl approached. "Isn't it a perfect morning, Thayer?"

Thayer stared. "I—I didn't think you'd be up."

Mrs. Kittridge rounded her eyes innocently. "And why not?"

Thayer groped for words. "I just meant . . ."

Mrs. Kittridge laughed, but her eyes sent sharp warning. She interrupted. "I told Brock the silly thing I did last night."

The man's voice broke in, flat, unemotional. "Yes, Mom said she forgot her key and you were good enough to come downstairs and let her in." To Thayer's ears the emphasis was unmistakable.

"Well," Mrs. Kittridge said, "I must go see about breakfast. Come in right away, won't you?" Thayer watched her cross the grass, her head up. It was as if she said, This I can do for my son; this I will do.

"Brock," said Thayer uncertainly when they were alone, "I went to your room."

"I've been up a good while."

"Brock, I wanted to tell you, to explain . . ."

"What? That last night was a farce? Why explain, Thayer? I know the score. Let's forget it; that's best, isn't it"

She stared incredulously. Then, "I—I was downstairs when your mother came, Brock."

"Let's not go into it, Thayer."

She swallowed before she could speak. "You don't believe me, Brock."

Silence. She repeated, "You don't believe me."

"Does it matter?"

"Then you won't believe either that I went up with your mother because she asked me to?"

"How chummy! I suppose she asked you to stay so she wouldn't be lonesome."

"Why . . ." She stopped, aware of the danger into which her promise had led her. She stared at Brock. She must tell him the truth. It was unfair she should be bound with such a promise, it was too much.

"Look," she said desperately, "your mother . . ."

He cut in sharply. "For God's sake let's not drag on with this. Or bring my mother into it."

Anger swept Thayer. "How can I leave her out of it? Even since you've come back she's tried, consciously or unconsciously to come between us. And she seems to be succeeding pretty well."

His look held scorn. "Can't we accept the blame for our own mistakes, not lay it on someone else?"

"Will you accept the blame for your refusal to fact facts?"

"Just what do you mean by that?"

Suddenly her anger died. Her hands came out in entreaty. "Brock, does last night mean nothing to you?"

He stared at her with the cold eyes of a stranger, and she was too blind with hurt to see how his fingers were clenched on the crutch, or the quiver of an overtensed muscle in his paw. "Yes. Plenty I'd rather forget. How about you?"

STRAUGHAN FREED

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 4 (U.P.) — Lt. Millard A. Straughan, jr., son of Mrs. M. A. Straughan of San Antonio, has been released from a Japanese prisoner of war camp at Hoten Muken in Manchuria, following nearly four years of imprisonment.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

KNOWING Texas only by a few brief visits to Dallas, Austin and San Antonio and what I have seen from the train window, I can't quite understand the tremendous hold that state has upon its people.

True enough, it is a great state from what I have seen, a state of great distances, of wealth, prosperity—and beautiful women.

But, to Texans, Texas is not just a place in which to live; it is a state of mind. Texas, to Texans is pride and independence and self-reliance—and America.

One of these days I am going to accept the invitation of my friend, Charlie Guy, the publisher of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal to spend a vacation in Texas. I would like to be imbued with the Texas type of spirit.

Here are a couple of instances:

A tall fellow hummed "Deep in the Heart of Texas" as he was drawing his last pay check at an aircraft plant in San Diego, California.

At intervals he shouted: "Yes, I'm going home to Texas, Lordy, Lordy."

He liked San Diego, he said. He had been treated well and California was a pretty good sort of a state.

But, he told his fellow workers in the pay line, there was a baby on the way, that's why he wanted to go back to Texas as quickly as possible.

"Have my baby born in California?" he exclaimed, "Why, man, you must be crazy!"

And when the peace news was published, Governor Coke Stevenson said that he had received a telegram from three Texas marines, reading:

"U. S. accepts Jap unconditional surrender. Please advise status of Texas. May we quit, too?"

The governor replied that Texas, which "the United States joined in 1845" would go along with the Commander in Chief and accept Japan's offer.

Texas, as you may remember, was the only state in the Union that was formerly an independent country — and sometimes I wonder whether there is not still a whole lot of that left in the mind of every Texan.

INDEPENDENT, yes. But I have never yet seen a Texan who was not a good American; ready to lay down his life for Texas and its ally, the United States.

Call it what you will—patriotism, civic pride,—or whatever you will, but there, I think, is one of the main reasons for America's greatness.

I do hope, however, that when I go out to visit Charlie Guy in Texas, he won't hold it against me that I live in that little state of Connecticut.

Because, no matter whether you live in Texas or New Jersey or Arkansas or Rhode Island or California, there isn't a one of us who hasn't good reason to thank God on his bended knees that he is privileged to live in America.

It's about time not Texans alone but everybody realizes that.

The National Whirligig

That Labor-Management Confab

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

REPRESENTATIVES of the workingmen and the bosses of industry will enter President Truman's labor-management conference with their fingers crossed.

The heads of both groups had to bow to the President's summons, for an order from him is a command. But they do not anticipate any concrete results.

Labor fears that Mr. Truman will try to impose a diluted form of compulsory arbitration on them.

Although almost every union contract carries a clause providing for compulsory arbitration on minor issues, such as the discharge or demotion of an individual workman, the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the United Mine Workers and the Railway Brotherhoods will never submit fundamental issues to the judgment of a supposedly impartial board named by the President.

CHEERS: Although labor and management have the utmost confidence in President Truman's and Labor Secretary Schwellenbach's good intentions, they do not like the idea of government control of their relations. They want to be free of federal regulation.

They suspect that the forthcoming conference, which will be held under the guidance of the White House, will be a halting step in the direction of dictatorship.

Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was the original sponsor of the labor-management get-together.

TUCKER

His executive committee endorsed the idea, but with not too much enthusiasm. In short, the C of C bosses figured that the young, ebullient and liberal Mr. Johnston should be given a few cheers during the transitional stage. He makes good window dressing.

The National Association of Manufacturers, which comprises the makers of heavy goods, is dead set against any powwow with labor. These industrialists really dominate the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers association.

They couldn't decline to accept the White House invitation for a labor-management talk. But, like the spokesman for "Bill" Green of the AFL, "Phil" Murray for the CIO, George Harrison for the Railway Brotherhoods and John L. Lewis for the UMW, they will make no hard and fast pledges to the White House if they can help it.

Both labor and management want a free market in the postwar world. And they do not intend to be shackled by the federal government, despite their trust in Truman.

FORECAST: This is one of those "now it can be told" stories, inasmuch as our fleet and airborne troops and infantry have occupied both Germany and Japan. It is probably one of the best-kept inside tips which Washington correspondents have held under their hair if any.

When Prime Minister Churchill visited Washington in 1943, about 40 newspapermen gave him an off-the-record luncheon. The British embassy was reluctant to arrange the affair, but "Winnie" liked the idea. He told his official family here that they did not understand public relations, and he took charge.

He talked with the understanding that he could not be quoted but that what he told us could be used for "background" in our newspaper stories. Although the writer has heard him speak at least a half-dozen times, Churchill was never in better mood or style than he was on the aforementioned occasion. He seemed like a prophet of old.

He forecast the time and place of the Americans' "D-day" landings. He predicted that Germany would be defeated some time in 1944, and that the major war criminals of the Reich would disappear or commit suicide.

He told us that once Hitler was liquidated and Russia entered the conflict, Japan would fold up quickly. He almost called the date for a Tokyo surrender. He said that he would be "surprised" if the Nips were still fighting on Labor day 1945.

SOP: Rep. Harold Knutson, top Republican member of the House Ways and Means committee, stole a march on his colleagues with his proposal that individual income taxes for 1946 be cut by 10 to 20 per cent. But the fact is that the Minnesota representative, who is one of the most popular men on Capitol Hill, was selected by both the Democrats and the Republicans to break the glad news.

Congress plans to pass two revenue measures in the next postwar year. The first bill will be a relief proposition drawn along the lines outlined by Mr. Knutson. It will give everybody, high and low, individuals and corporations, a cut of from ten to 20 per cent on wartime payments.

When that measure has been enacted as a sop to the 1946 voters in the Congressional election, the Congress will then overhaul the whole taxation structure in the light of changed domestic and world conditions.

TEXAS

By Gordon Shearer

AUSTIN: The State of Texas would be $255,059,690 richer had the federal government paid the state motor fuel tax on petroleum used during the war period.

That's the calculation made by statisticians in State Comptroller George Sheppard's office. The federal government is exempt from the four-cents a gallon motor fuel tax which civilians pay.

The estimate is made for the period Sept. 1, 1941, to June 1, 1945. Though the dates do not correspond exactly with the declaration of war and subsequent peace, they are representative, statisticians say, of the amount of gasoline which the federal government bought during the actual dates.

Figure experts estimate that during the fiscal year which will end Aug. 31, the state will collect $55,000,000 from moter fuel taxes. Collections for the month of August are expected to soar to $5,500,000.

COMPARISON: These figures compare with $50,709,011 collected during the fiscal year of 1943-44, and $4,567,645 collected during the whole month of August, 1944.

But the current fiscal year is not at the top on the collection list. Uppermost is 1941-42. Then the state realized the tidy sum of $60,798,410 from the motor fuel tax.

With gasoline rationing out the window, the tax figure is expected to mount. It likely won't skyrocket because there are fewer motor fuel users now. But as soon as new cars begin to hit the market, the state will grow richer off gasoline taxes.

Even granted that the national debt may not matter, because we owe it to one another, there are many who seriously doubt that we can become prosperous by borrowing money from one another.

Another thing that puzzles us is where the taxpayer gets all the money the politicians sneak away from him.

"It isn't the clothes or the colors that a woman wears that attracts men—it's the contour," says a Hollywood designer. Well, yes, contour—and content.

"A dancing master who is introducing a new dance in which one step is taken forward and two backward wants suggestions for naming it." Why not call it Civilization?

"A man has applied for divorce because his wife kisses him only when she wants money."—Press report. Well, for goodness sakes, isn't that often enough?

"According to the laws of chance, in order to have twins you would first have to have 87 babies." —Newspaper filler. It's a project that scarcely interests us.

We didn't know there was a shortage of $1,000 bills until we read about it in the papers.

Concerning "Stupid Censorship"

Cunningham Finds Some Stories Butchered

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Thomas L. Stokes, one of The Morning Avalanche's top correspondents in Washington, is enjoying a brief vacation. During his absence, his space will be filled by Bill Cunningham, former Texan and lately a nationally known sports writer, commentator, war correspondent and magazine author; ad by other outstanding writers).

By BILL CUNNINGHAM
Special Correspondent

NEW YORK—You won't find "fungo" in the average dictionary, but you'll see it at any baseball game if you get there early enough. Fungo hitting is the fine art of batting practice flies to a team warming up just before the contest. It looks easy, but's it's an art all its own, but that later is only a passing pronouncement.

It's the unofficial part I'm thinking of as I proceed to report that I'll be rapping fungoes here for a few days, maybe for the rest of the week, before picking up the regulation lumber and endeavoring really to bear down on what I encountered abroad.

I don't mean to imply that I brought back any startling revelations nor that I'm loaded with any "Now It Can Be Told" thrillers, but even writing daily, it was impossible to set down all I saw and heard and cogitated. We were still operating under censorship, supposedly broad censorship, but still censorship.

Blue Pencil Wielded

I haven't had time to go through all I sent, what with trips to the doctor and all, but as nearly as I can see, they cracked down on me twice.

The connection with contemporaneous events was that the Germans didn't seem to be interested in our printing press marks, but were eager to trade anything from Leicas to love for butter, bread, chocolate, or practically anything else to eat. Thus—not the officers—but the conglomeration of foreign free loaders who professed to be newspaper men and women, who by some weird and thoroughly unsanitary arrangement had managed to get themselves accredited as "U. S. War Correspondents" and thus were living high and free at the expense of the U. S. Taxpayers, were racketeering the victuals you were doing without in order that it might go "to our men overseas." I said all that ought to be stopped by Congressional investigation, if necessary. Well, it was stopped—but so was that part of the story.

OFFICIALLY, all censorship went off shortly before I arrived, except for anything concerning secret weapons, the movement of troops in the occupation zones or toward Japan, or anything of a military or naval nature that could possibly give "aid or comfort to the enemy"—meaning by then the Japanese. That left description, and economic and even political comment free, although the French were reported trying to crowd in for supervision of any political copy sent from France, and they seemed about to make it just about the time I left. President Truman's rebuke possibly sprang from part of that, but more of that particular point later.

But, for all this freedom—and it was freedom—you occasionally ran up against something as unexpected as the following: In Frankfurt on Main, the colonel in charge of the German gold and loot we have stored in the cellar rooms of the battered Reichsbank there, told of General Patton's "terror" at finding all that treasure in that salt mine. He said Patton was more frightened of the money than he had been of the entire Germany army and that he called General Eisenhower on the telephone and pleaded for somebody to come and play banker protem. He didn't know much about gold, he said, but it looked as if he'd captured all the gold in the world. He needed his men for fighting, he didn't want such financial responsibility and for God's sake couldn't they send somebody on the hot foot?

I wrote that, and tried to make it humorous, which was the sense of the Colonel's description of the event. He was explaining how General Eisenhower detailed him to go down and take the loot off Patton's hand and how he'd had the responsibility of it since. And I quoted the colonel and had him quoting the famed Two-Gunner, and then went off somewhere for a long ride in a jeep. When I got back the censors had been "looking" all over for me," the sergeant said. The story hadn't been sent. It seemed that there was a regulation to the effect that one musn't quote a general.

I extracted the quotes as delicately as a gentleman lifting a strand of spaghetti from a new red necktie with his wife's eyebrow tweezers. The regulations were thus satisfied and the story moved.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S smack at the French press followed very shortly my report to the effect that there seems to be a definite campaign in the French press to deprive us of any credit for our generosity to the needy of that nation. There have been other echo's of that widely circulated French newspaper lie to the effect that we are burning our surplus food and supplies as we pull out over there. My story how this had all been laid before Ambassador Caffrey. He must have passed it on to the President.

And from Hamburg, and my interview with Max Schmeling, I was able to report how he had petitioned the British to let him go into the schoolbook publishing business. The schools were ready to reopen but there were no books. The Nazi primers had all been destroyed. Now we hear that Schmeling got his wish, and that he'll head the schoolbook business, at least in the British zone.

Nip Says 'Thinking' Japs Knew War Was Lost After Midway Blow

TOKYO, Sept. 4 (AP)—A Japanese newspaperman told the United Press last night that "thinking Japanese" knew the fortunes of war were going against their country after Japan lost the battle of Midway in June, 1942.

He said that the Japanese public did not know the Pearl Harbor attack was a sneak raid and the populace was "shocked and depressed" by the news that war was declared.

Genji Tanaka, newspaperman and chief of the English section of Tokyo's Mainichi, said the news was released to the Japanese public in two announcements.

People Shocked At War

"The first was a statement of the general staff early in the morning that war had been declared against the United States. This shocked and depressed the population because of the great power of the United States and Great Britain," Tanaka said.

"Hours later a broadcast announced a successful attack upon U. S. naval and Army installations at Hawaii. Public reaction was one of relief, although why the attack was not followed by an invasion remains a mystery to this day."

Tanaka said the futile Midway expedition was not directed against Hawaii or southern California, as "Americans seemed to believe," but that "the capture of Midway and the abolishment there of an operational base was the sole objective"

Attacks Slated Later

Tanaka pointed out, "had this been attained, subsequent attacks upon Hawaii, Alaska, and the Pacific coast could have been expected.

"The attack upon Dutch Harbor was purely diversionary and was intended to force the American and Canadian defenders to spread their forces far and thin.

"The more thoughful Japanese felt that while the loss at Midway hurt, it was not necessarily fatal and that the war still might be stalemated with Japan retaining her conquests."

Tanaka said Saipan's loss in June, 1944, thoroughly alarmed Tokyo and "it was a basic, crushing blow of the war, as were the fire raids launched on March 10, which fatally crippled military production in Yokohama, a city of about 1,000,000, practically reduced to ruins in one 30-minute raid."

Stunned By Yokohama Blow

Tanaka said that the Yokohama raid made all Japan conscious of the situation in which the nation found itself.

"It brought the war home to the man in the street—to the common people—who really had not known what was going on," he said.

From then on, the war went swiftly downgrade for Japan.

The loss of Iwo Jima and Okinawa served notice on Japan that she was open to an American invasion thrust.

"Next came the atomic bomb and then Russia's entry into the war," said Tanaka.

After that it was all over. There was no further use to fight.

Preacher Dies After Snake Bite In Rites

CHATTANOOGA, Ten. Sept. 4. (AP)—Lewis E. Ford, 32, lay preacher of the Dolly Pond Church of God, died last night slightly more than an hour after he had been bitten by a rattlesnake he was handling as part of a religious service.

The physician who examined Ford said there was "no question" that the death resulted from the snake bite.

His widow, Mrs. Ressie Ford, said she would request members of the faith to conduct snake handling rites at the funeral services, time for which has not been set.

Snake handling as a part of "faith rites" at the Dolly Pond church, in the northern section of the county, was started during revival services there several weeks ago.

"I may be bitten and I may even die," Ford told a Chattanooga News-Free Press reporter before the meeting. "But if I do it will be because the Lord wants to show unbelievers the snakes are poisonous."
