Heaviest showers of 1985 to date fall Sunday

From Local, Wire Reports

The heaviest shower of 1985 fell in Snyder Sunday night, accompanied by pea-sized hail, thunder and lightning.

The rainstorm Sunday was preceeded by golf-ball sized hail which skirted the northern edges of the city Saturday between 3 and 4 p.m.

Rain and thunderstorms were the rule all weekend for the Scurry County area with several funnels reported Sunday in neighboring Mitchell County.

Up until 6 a.m. Monday, Scurry County was included in a tornado watch which included some 44 Texas counties.

The watch was along a 70-mile path extending from San Angelo and Big Spring to Vernon and Wichita Falls.

The only significant storm-related damage from the weekend here, however, occurred with the Saturday afternoon hail storm.

That storm system never moved further south than approximately 13th St., and residences south of 25th St. received no weekend moisture until Sunday night's cloudburst.

Some .25 of an inch was reported Saturday afternoon north of Camp Springs.

Some damage to vehicles was reported due to Saturday's hail storm. The Sunday night hail was generally small enough that no significant damage was noted in the city.

Snyder's official rain amount from the Sunday night thunderstorm was 1.28 inches, bringing the year's total to 5.28 inches. An average rain yield for Scurry County by the end of April is 5.48 inches.

Snyder's rain total from Sunday was generally the largest noted for the county. Hermleigh reported some 1.20 inches, also accompanied by pea-sized hail.

The Lake J.B. Thomas area apparently received less than 1 inch with no significant runoff reported. The exact figure quoted was 70 of an inch.

Monday morning, several North Texas counties were warned to expect heavy flooding in the aftermath of drenching rains that fell overnight.

Tornadoes touched down Sunday evening along the Throckmorton and Young county line between Olney and Throckmorton, leaving three people dead and at least two people injured.

In addition to the sighting near Colorado City, other tornadoes were reported near Archer City and Iowa Park in North Texas.

Heaviest rainfall was reported at Timpson and Tenaha, nearby towns in Shelby County, about 30 miles northeast of Nacogdoches. The National Weather Service said 4.80 inches of rain fell at Tenaha and 4.62 inches at Timpson, where power lines and numerous trees were reported downed.

More than 3 inches fell this morning in several West Texas towns in the Abilene area, and reports of street flooding were numerous.

The Snyder area forecast for Monday night includes a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Twister kills three

OLNEY, Texas (AP) — A small frame house "exploded" when it took a direct hit from a tornado, and all three people who lived there were killed, a sheriff's officer said.

"This is the worst I've ever seen," Sgt. Joe Hall of the Young County sheriff's department said Sunday night.

"I think this one here just exploded. It just whipped the whole place apart. It wasn't recognizable as a house," Hall said.

The bodies of Arch Curtis, 88, and his wife, Beulah, 85, were found in a field 200 to 300 yards from the house, authorities said. The body of their son, Malcolm Curtis, 64, was found near the house beside a pickup truck.

Trees were split apart, power lines ripped down and barns destroyed as several tornadoes bounced around the area, officials said.

The Curtis family lived at the end of a winding, muddy dirt road about a quarter-mile off Texas Highway 79. The property is right on the Throckmorton-Young County line, about halfway between Olney and Throckmorton, which are 30 miles apart, and about 60 miles southwest of Wichita Falls.

The tornado covered an area about 50 to 100 yards wide, Hall said. Spotters said the tornado traveled about four to five miles, touching down several times.

Several other homes in the area had flooded yards.

The twister that hit the house about 6:20 p.m. Sunday was one of "at least seven" tornadoes that were reported to have touched down in Throckmorton and Young counties late Sunday afternoon, civil defense officials in Throckmorton said.

A house belonging to George H. Roach about six miles due north of the Curtis residence was struck from another tornado from the same storm, officials said.

Roach, 43, and his daughter, Robin, 15, were injured when their pickup truck was hit as they tried to drive home during the storm. Roach was thrown 100 feet from the truck, and the truck was thrown 100 yards, he told authorities.

The Roach residence was destroyed, but Roach's wife took shelter in a hallway and escaped injury.

Senate committee working on budget

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate committee moving toward completion of a two-year state budget of about $36 billion scheduled another session today in hopes of wrapping up final details on the proposal.

The Senate Finance Committee worked Sunday on the spending plan, approving a budget for the Texas Education Agency, which is charged with overseeing the broad educational reforms adopted by the Legislature last summer.

Sen. Grant Jones, committee chairman, said the Senate appropriations bill includes about $36 billion for 1986-87. The House proposal, which is for $36.4 billion, is scheduled for a floor vote Wednesday.

Jones, D-Abilene, said balancing the Senate bill would require a tuition increase and an increase in numerous state fees.

A major difference in the House and Senate bills is that the House proposes raising state employee salaries by 3 percent each year of the biennium if seven fee bills also are passed.

The Senate bill contains no raises for the 180,000 people employed by the state.

"I don't see we've got prospects of passing anything that leaves having enough money to make a significant employee pay raise," Jones said.

Another difference is in kindergarten funding. The Legislative Budget Board staff also told the Senate committee the House bill includes funding for full-day kindergarten. Senators indicated they prefer half-day state funding with the additional money going to the basic pupil allotment.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby attended the 4½-hour committee session as senators questioned new State Education Commissioner William Kirby on how the TEA would spend the money it has requested.

5 arrested following vandalism at car lot

Police jailed five suspects in a felony criminal mischief incident Saturday night involving damage caused to vehicles parked at a local used car lot.

Officers responded to a call from Mrs. H.E. Lewis, who told them that several persons had broken out glass on used cars at Lewis Auto Sales. The business is located at the intersection of 25th St. and Ave. E.

After arriving at the scene — shortly before 1 a.m. Sunday — officers arrested four juveniles and one adult suspect for felony criminal mischief to six vehicles.

The juvenile suspects were released to the custody of their parents later in the morning. The only suspect of legal adult age, 21-year-old Clifford Jennings Redman of 2406 Ave. D — was released after posting a $1,500 bond in connection with the felony charge.

Accident hospitalizes elderly woman driver

An 82-year-old Snyder woman was listed in stable condition Monday morning at Cogdell Memorial Hospital recovering from injuries sustained in a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of U.S. Highway 84 and the Ennis Creek Road Sunday morning.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Lida Christian Rhoades of Rt. 2, Snyder was driving her 1982 Buick across U.S. 84 when it was in collision with a 1983 Ford Bronco driven by James Schooler of Post. The wreck occurred at 10:42 a.m.

Rhoades was taken to the local hospital by Aid Ambulance-Snyder. She was admitted for treatment of bumps and brusies sustained in the mishap.

Highway patrolmen also investigated a major one-vehicle accident near Lake Thomas Sunday afternoon.

According to reports, Rocky Harber of Ira was driving a 1978 Chrysler on a county road around 12:05 p.m. when he apparently

Passenger is treated

Department of Public Safety patrolmen Monday morning were still looking for the driver of a vehicle which apparently overturned here Sunday night, causing injuries to one passenger.

The mishap is thought to have occurred around 9 p.m. Sunday on the Brick Plant Road southeast of Snyder.

A 21-year-old woman, identified a Debra Mann of Rotan, reportedly appeared at the Cogdell emergency room at 9:12

Three treated after College Ave. mishap

Three persons were taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries following a three-vehicle traffic accident at the intersection of College Ave. and 25th St. Saturday afternoon.

Listed as injured in the accident were Simon Castor of 2202 Ave. T; Theresa Braziel of 507 32nd St. and Cynthia Blanton of 510 East Highway.

Castor was the driver of a 1973 Ford which was in collision with a 1974 Oldsmobile driven by Anthony Shane Dawson of 3707 Muriel Dr. and a 1977 Ford driven by Virginia Mae Edwards of 507 32nd St.

Blanton was a passenger in the Castor vehicle while Braziel was a passenger in the Edwards car.

All three of the injured parties were treated and released from the hospital following the 4:42 p.m. accident.

Following his release from the hospital, Castor was placed under arrest for driving while intoxicated and driving with a suspended license.

In Brief

Mistrial

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A government informant, accused of trying to sell his daughter for drugs, was unable to persuade a federal jury of the guilt of four Bandidos motorcycle club members on trial for drug trafficking.

A mistrial was declared when the jury remained deadlocked after three days of deliberating the case against James Lyndon Cheatham, 31; Steven Robert "Boo Boo" Barbour, 39; Patrick "Rawhide" Ledoux, 44, and Karen Brown, 31.

Bell error

AUSTIN (AP) — A Public Utility Commission accountant says his miscalculation gave Southwestern Bell almost $50 million more than it deserved in its last rate case.

Randy Klaus acknowledged the error last week during a commission hearing. The miscalculation came in an estimation of the revenue Bell would earn from intrastate long distance calls.

But Bell attorney Jon Dee Lawrence said today there was no miscalculation and his company has been earning less than the profit authorized by the commission in the decision granting an $817 million rate hike last spring.

"Horse hooey on that," Lawrence said of Klaus' comments about the error.

Trial Tuesday

Jury selection is set to begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday in 132nd District Court for the aggravated assault trial of 29-year-old Juan Martinez Marquez of the Cooper Apartments.

He was indicted by the March grand jury in connection with a shooting incident here Feb. 10. Wounded in the arm and chest during that incident was Jesus Villasana of 2901 Ave. J.

Break-in noted

A possible house burglary was reported to police Saturday evening.

According to reports, Leona Spears of 3108 Ave. L reported the incident around 9:20 p.m. She said she returned home to find the back door of her residence had apparently been kicked open.

As of Monday morning, however, investigators had not determined if anything had been taken from the house.

Tarrant County...

First black mayor is elected

By The Associated Press

Runoff elections Saturday swept two incumbents off the Dallas city council and gave Tarrant County its first black mayor.

One of the losers in the bitter Dallas campaigns was a 65-year-old Dallas councilman who angered minority groups by suggesting that some criminals should be hanged from the county courthouse.

But Jim Hart refused to concede to economics professor Bill Milkie, a political unknown, and said he will ask for a recount if Milkie's 52-vote margin holds up without corrections.

Milkie, who got into the race only days before the filing deadline, said he ran because he was concerned about statements that Hart made in the past year, including Hart's assertion in a letter that illegal aliens "with no moral values" were destroying some Oak Cliff neighborhoods.

Hart, who was seeking a second term, also was quoted extensively when he suggested that some criminals be hanged on the courthouse square and left for several days as a message to others. He also said thieves' fingers should be cut off.

Hart said the statements merely reflected the feelings of his constituency.

Another Dallas City Council incumbent, 29-year-old investor and real estate broker Paul Fielding, also was beaten.

Fielding fared well only in black precincts and garnered only 42 percent of the vote to 58 percent for neighborhood activist Lori Palmer, who trailed in the first election two weeks earlier, but who had the active support of other candidates.

Fielding attributed his defeat to the repercussions of casting controversial council votes in a district almost evenly divided among whites, blacks, and Hispanics, with a large gay population.

Bill Nelson, president of the Dallas Gay Alliance, and Joe May, a Hispanic businessman, not only endorsed Ms. Palmer after they failed to make the runoff, but they gave her their telephone list of supporters.

In the race to succeed defeated mayoral candidate Max Goldblatt on the council, longtime civic leader John Evans, 63, captured 58 percent of the vote to defeat former Dallas County Commissioner Jim Tyson, 64. Evans is a former chairman of the City Plan Commission.

Computer system analyst Don Walker became the first black mayor in Tarrant County history when he got 60 percent of the votes in the southeast Fort Worth suburb of Forest Hill.

The community also was assured of county's first black majority city council, since the results put four blacks on the seven-member council. New members will be sworn in on Tuesday.

"I'm still pinching myself," Walker said Saturday night, an hour after learning of his victory. "I know this probably has historic implications in Tarrant County, but I'm ready to go to work."

Auctions too much for city

DUNCANVILLE, Texas (AP) — One vasectomy auction in this usually peaceful and conservative town was pushing things — but two in less than a month is ridiculous, some citizens say.

"They've gone too far. I really think people look at it and say that's a dumb thing to auction off," said City Councilman Gene Gilmore.

The latest auction — on Saturday — was sponsored by local builders and real estate agents. The vasectomy attracted six bidders and brought in $350, the Dallas Times Herald said.

"They're just trying to gain publicity," Gilmore said. "We can find better ways to promote Duncanville than that."

Builder Jim Sargent, past president of the Duncanville Builders Association, admitted that the vasectomy was included in the auction to "draw a little more attention to our city — a very selfish reason.'

Earth Day observed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 15th anniversary of Earth Day, the celebration credited with launching the modern environmental movement and a decade of legislation, is passing today with practically no notice at all in the nation's capital.

Environmental Action, the group founded by many of the Earth Day organizers of 1970, put out a statement to mark the occasion, will hold a fund-raising party this coming weekend and is publishing a special issue of its magazine.

But calls to the Sierra Club, the Wilderness Society, the National Wildlife Federation, the National Audubon Society and Friends of the Earth all turned up spokesmen who said their organizations had no plans for any celebrations, and knew of none in Washington with the exception of Environmental Action's.

The Energy and Environmental Study Conference, an organization of members of Congress with more than 200 senators and representatives, has scheduled nothing.

Dear Abby

Those Who Don't Pay for Fire Protection Could Get Burned

By Abigail Van Buren

1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: There is absolutely no justification for the actions of the Salem, Ark., volunteer firefighters who stood around and watched a $150,000 home burn down because the owner hadn't paid the $20 annual dues.

I am a volunteer firefighter in Boles, N.M., and I sincerely hope that what happened in Arkansas doesn't reflect on all volunteer firefighters.

The majority of us are hard-working, dedicated people whose only pay is the satisfaction of helping others.

Our priorities are:

1. Rescuing people from burning buildings.
2. Protecting adjoining property from catching fire.
3. Putting the fire out.

Nowhere is there any mention of money. I hope the citizens of Salem, Ark., will do something to correct this problem.

TAMI HARRIS, CAPTAIN,
BOLES ACRES
VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPT.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Please point out the fact that there are three Salems in Arkansas. They are: Salem, Ark., in Fulton County; Salem, Ark., in Pike County; and Salem, Ark., in Saline County.

Abby, please make it clear that the volunteer firemen who refused to fight a fire because the homeowner had not paid his $20 dues were not from Fulton County—they were from Saline County.

I feel that people who would stand by and let a home burn when they could have saved it should not be allowed to be firemen.

DONNA JUSTUS,
NEWPORT, ARK.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am amazed that you would criticize the volunteer firefighters for refusing to risk their lives to save the home of someone who was too cheap to pay $20 a year to protect it.

If you don't carry automobile insurance and are involved in a collision, do you really think you could call an insurance agent and say, "Quick, write me up a policy to cover the wreck I just had!"?

W.W. McCULLOCH,
WENATCHEE, WASH.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: So you think the volunteer firefighters should have saved that $150,000 house even though its owner had not paid his $20 annual dues? Oh sure, just like Blue Cross should pick up your $50,000 hospital bill even though you failed to pay your premiums, and the Los Angeles Police Dept. will respond to a burglary in Santa Monica.

I have no sympathy for a nut who owns a $150,000 home and refuses to pay a measly $20-a-year fee in case he has a fire. He took a gamble and lost!

If the volunteer firefighters had fought that fire, nobody in the community would ever pay his dues again. Why should he, if he can get the same service free?

FOR THE VOLUNTEERS

DEAR ABBY: I would like to defend the action of the firefighters. We have a similar situation in Rantoul, Ill. The taxpayers support our volunteer fire department within the city limits. Protection is offered to residents and businesses outside the city limits for a fee of $25 annually.

Most residents pay the fee willingly, but some ignore the bills repeatedly.

I have instructed our chief to respond only to save lives (not property) should we receive a call from anyone who consistently fails to pay.

If people were allowed to pay at the scene of the fire, there would be no incentive to support the department through fees.

The homeowner whose home was burned made his choice long before the fire started.

KATY B. PODAGROSI,
MAYOR, VILLAGE OF RANTOUL, ILL.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: The jerk who refused to pay $20 membership to a rural fire department, then cried because the volunteer firefighters refused to fight the fire, makes me boil. It costs a lot of money to purchase and maintain fire equipment.

I was chairman of a rural fire department that went out of business because there were too many freeloaders. Our nation can't afford freeloaders. If you don't believe it, look at our national debt.

U.S. dismisses peace plan by president of Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Central American peace proposal set forth by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega is being dismissed by the State Department as a meaningless gesture designed to ensure the consolidation of a "Marxist-Leninist order" in that country.

In a statement Sunday night, the department said Ortega's proposal, which includes a call for a conditional cease-fire, was unacceptable because it does not allow for a dialogue with opposition groups.

"Without such a dialogue, such a cease-fire is meaningless and essentially a call on the opposition to surrender," State Department press officer Gilbert Callaway said.

Alfonso Robelo, a former Sandinista loyalist who has since joined the opposition forces, described the initiative in a telephone interview as "old poison in a new bottle."

Ortega's proposal was worked out with two Democratic senators, Tom Harkin of Iowa and John Kerry of Massachusetts, during lengthy meetings late last week in Managua. They presented the offer to members of the Senate Democratic leadership here on Sunday.

Ortega promised a more flexible policy provided the United States ends all forms of support for the Nicaraguan Contra forces.

His proposal added a new dimension to the ongoing congressional debate over renewed U.S. assistance to Nicaragua as deeply divided senators and House members prepared for a Tuesday vote on the issue.

Ortega's offer represented an 11th hour bid to turn congressional sentiment against the administration. The Contras have received no assistance for a year, and the administration has placed the highest priority on reviving it.

The proposal Kerry and Harkin brought back to Washington contained no provision for an internal reconciliation through dialogue but the Nicaraguan leader appeared to hold that option open in an interview Sunday night with NBC News.

"First, the war must be ended against us on the part of the U.S. Then the appropriate conditions will have been created for further steps and dialogue," Ortega said through an interpreter.

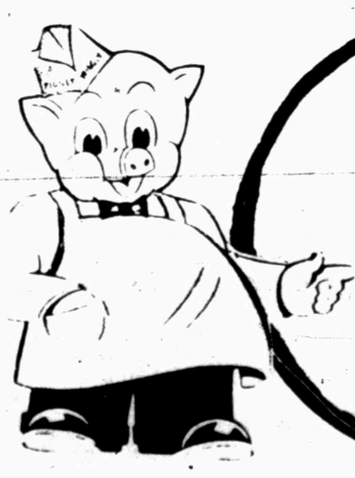

He added that if the United States rejects the cease-fire plan, "then it's quite clear (President) Reagan wants war and not peace."

In the document he turned over to the two senators, Ortega called for a renewal of the U.S.-Nicaraguan dialogue that the Reagan administration suspended last January on grounds that the Sandinista government was not negotiating seriously.

Ray Peveler, chief appraiser for the Scurry County Appraisal District, was named Boss of the Year for 1985 by the Deep Creek Chapter of the American Business Women's Association during their annual Bosses' Night Banquet held April 15 at 7 p.m. in the Willow Park Inn. Mary Hall made the presentation.

Guest speaker for the evening was Dr. James Tulley, dean of Learning Resources and Education at Western Texas College. He graduated from East Texas State University and later received his masters' degree in education from the University of Houston. He earned his Ph.D in education from East Texas State University.

Dr. Tully spoke on "Financial Aid" and discussed the helps available to students including the work program and various grants and scholarships.

Shannon Shane was the vocational speaker for the evening. Her topic evolved around her position with SACROC.

Dorothy Woolsey, president, welcomed the seven bosses, 18 guests and 22 members. She also introduced her board members.

Dr. Robert Hargrove, Boss of the Year for 1984, gave the response.

The tables were covered with white linen cloths and were centered with arrangements of orchids floating in crystal goblets. Fresh greenery accented with dark and light purple ribbon added interest to the tables.

An ace goes to waste

By James Jacoby

Reader Mack Meigs of Baytown, Texas, submitted today's deal. He was apologetic about the bidding. Because North and South were playing negative doubles, North passed the one-heart overcall. He expected his partner to reopen the bidding with a double, and he was going to punish his vulnerable opponent for a rash overcall by exacting a penalty. When South bid one spade, who of us would not now risk trying two clubs with the West cards? But I suppose West felt he had gone far enough when he bid one heart. After asking for aces, North made an assumption that South must hold a heart void to have removed to four spades over three notrump, and so he bid six diamonds.

The defense was as lacking in elegance as the bidding had been. The opening club lead allowed declarer Meigs to quickly shuck his two hearts on the ace and king of clubs. A heart was now ruffed, and a spade led to dummy's queen and the ace from East. A spade was returned. South won the king and West discarded a club. That marked East with all four diamonds to the jack, but he was helpless to take a trick as declarer ruffed spades and hearts back and forth. In fact, on the last spade trumped in dummy, hapless East was underruffing.

The contract might have been beaten had East returned a diamond after winning the spade ace. Declarer would now have to finesse against the spade jack, playing West to have started with a singleton spade as well as a diamond void.

Club scholarship update presented

Delta Kappa Gamma held its regular meeting April 15 at 7 p.m. in the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Virginia Grove, president, presiding.

Program committee members Billie Hartsfield, Dorothy Kayser and Rita Carter presented an update on the past recipients of the Zeta Lambda Grants.

It was announed that a check in the amount of $500 would be presented to SCOOP.

Hostesses for the evening included Delia McPherson, Marge Mathis, Georgene Galloway, Carolyn Derouen, and Emily Hataway.

Shana Hart gives talk to Art Guild

The Art Guild Club held a salad supper last Tuesday evening at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Virginia Grove, president, presiding.

Shana Hart, Snyder's "American Abroad" student, served as the guest speaker. The senior at Snyder High School spent two months last summer in Colatina, Brazil as a foreign exchange student. During her talk she emphasized the friendliness and warmth of her host family and showed slides of them, the town, schools, churches and vacation spots. Hart also showed pictures of various festivals, parades, and clothing fashions.

The hostesses for the evening, Donnie Charm, Verna Lee Roe and Virginia Grove, had decorated each of the tables with spring flowers. A total of 17 members and two guests were present.

Polly Autry gave the invocation and Jean McQuerry led the club in the collect.

Nail spots

White spots on the nails appear for several reasons. The nail substance itself may harden unevenly as it pushes out from under the cuticle. An injury, such as a blow, may cause a white area.

Occasionally, white spots may indicate a fungus infection or other condition causing separation of the nail from its bed.

Most white spots simply grow out with the nail and disappear, but persistent ones should be brought to the attention of your doctor.

PRESENTS CHECK — Monette O'Day (right), treasurer for Delta Kappa Gamma, presented a check in the amount of $500 to Olivia Rogers, (left) executive director of SCOOP.

Impotence and medication

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 57. My wife and I have been married for 21 years and our sex life was fantastic until 18 months ago, when I became impotent. Neither of us is happy about this. My wife is resigned to the fact that because of my blood-pressure medicine, we can do nothing about it. However, our love for each other remains strong.

I've been on hydrochlorothiazide, Catapres and Hydralazine for four years. About a year ago, another doctor put me on Inderal instead of Catapres. Both medicines keep my blood pressure under control, but my sex life is dead.

The first doctor told me that my choice was sex or blood-pressure control. The second doctor seems to ignore the problem. Is my love life gone forever or do I have alternatives?

DEAR READER — You could certainly try some other treatment. You shouldn't accept this situation, but should make some effort to solve the problem. If you have any excess fat, the loss of body fat and improved exercise tolerance from walking might make it possible for you to use less medicine. Less medicine often means a return to normal sexual functioning. That should stimulate you to lose weight if you can. Many patients with high blood pressure who lose their excess fat can decrease their medicines or may not need them at all.

You also can try other medicines. Procardia normally is used to relieve angina and is a calcium blocker, but it can produce a mild decrease in blood pressure. Minipress, which rarely causes impotence, also could be tried. In your situation, different medicines can be tried with the hope of finding one that will control your pressure and not cause impotence. If your doctor will not work with you on this, you should get another doctor. You may not be able to solve the problem, but without an effort, your love life will indeed be gone forever.

I'm sending you The Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure, which tells how to adjust one's lifestyle to help control blood pressure. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I'd much rather see a person develop normal pressure from weight control and lifestyle than to see him take medicines.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You have stressed the fact that people need calcium. What about people like me who have had surgery for diverticulosis? "Don't eat dairy products," the doctors tell me, "and get lots of exercise to keep the body and bones limber." However, with a ruptured disk, a pinched nerve, a slight case of scoliosis and arthritis, it's rather difficult to exercise.

I'm 44 and do not pamper myself as far as my back is concerned. Is there a good exercise program that would help?

DEAR READER — I am not sure why you had surgery for diverticulosis (pockets of the colon) or what kind of surgery you had. Only the few patients with certain complications from diverticulosis require surgery. In addition, there is no reason why someone with diverticulosis, or even a complication from diverticulosis, cannot use milk products. If you have been told this, it must be because you have another problem, such as lactose intolerance. You need calcium and individualized exercises for your problems. I suggest that you seek help from a physical therapist.

Helicopter torches used in clean-up

JASPER, Texas (AP) — Helicopters that drop "bombs" on East Texas forests can clear away undergrowth and improve the harvest of timber more efficiently than the usual foot soldiers, foresters say.

According to industry officials, helicopters have become an integral part of the timber business, saving time, labor and money.

Club seeks to halt timber cutting

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A Sierra Club official in Louisiana said he disagrees with the Texas chapter's demands that timber cutting to alleviate the pine beetle problem be halted in the state's wilderness areas.

Dr. Pat Sewell, former chairman of Louisiana's state Sierra club, said the U.S. Forest's program of cutting trees Louisiana wilderness helped slow the spread of pine beetle.

"The question was, do we let the beetles kill the trees, or remove them?" Sewell, of Shreveport, asked. "In my opinion, the outcome would have been the same."

The Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund, on behalf of the Sierra Club, Wilderness Society and Texas Committee on Natural Resources, asked a federal judge in Tyler to halt beetle control cutting in the five East Texas wilderness areas. A hearing has not been scheduled.

The request for a preliminary injunction contends that the forest service cutting program violates the federal Wilderness Act, the Endangered Species Act and the National Environmental Policy Act.

Sewell, a physician, told the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal that he agreed cutting was necessary for Lousiana's woods after an inspection of the state's 8,700-acre, pine-dominated Kisatchie Hills Wilderness.

"As we walked through the forest, the beetles lit all over our clothes," Sewell said. "One of our wilderness advocates in our group was opposed (to control cuts) at first, but after he saw the situation, he agreed it was the best thing to do.

But Sewell, who represents Louisiana on the national council of the Sierra Club, said he can't speak for what is best for Texas because "Texas may be a totally different deal."

"Perhaps if we had a larger wilderness and the beetles weren't on the border, threatening private and other national forest lands, my position might be different," said.

Bruce Jewell, forest service spokesman at the regional headquarters in Auanta, said Sewell's position pleases him because it shows "there is another side to this issue."

"The forest service isn't going to begin a beetle control operation in a wilderness, or anywhere in the national forests unless our experts say that spot represents a hazard," Jewell said.

However, Ned Fritz, chairman of the Texas Committee on Natural Resources, said, "No one has the right to give up more than 1,000 acres of wilderness for the next 50 years or more merely to prove they're responsible."

Fritz and other conservationists fighting to stop beetle cuts on the 34,800 wilderness acres in East Texas argue that control cutting doesn't work and does more damage than beetles.

Your Birthday

April 23, 1985

In the year ahead you will make several important and advantageous changes in your basic lifestyle. Each will be triggered by an event you won't control.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Financial conditions could be a trifle tricky for you today. If you make gains, be extra careful not to do something foolish and have them slip through your fingers. Looking for romance? The Matchmaker wheel can help you select the right person for you. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to be as self-reliant as possible today. People you're counting on may let you down through no fault of their own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to keep your priorities in order today. If you devote too much time to frivolous activities, you might never get around to your duties.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When socializing with friends today, keep one eye on the clock. Although they'll enjoy your companionship, you must still be careful not to wear out your welcome.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In important career matters today, don't take anything for granted. If you get careless, something you think you've tied down could suddenly dissolve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Luck will attend you today in most of your involvements but this does not mean you should push it to the limits. Use your common sense as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll get a lot of mileage today out of funds spent on things beneficial to your family. This won't be true for money spent in fulfilling self-desires.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your initial judgment will be surprisingly accurate today. When you get over-analytical, you'll be indecisive and impede your own progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things that you take a personal hand in managing should work out profitably for you today. Operations you delegate to others might end up in the red.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't let yourself be jockeyed into supporting a new acquaintance instead of standing by an old friend today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Focus your attention now on situations that have the promise of an immediate return. Don't dilute your efforts by trying to live in both today and tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your judgment regarding proposals presented to you by others may not be up to par today. Don't make any instant commitments; instead, request time for additional study.

Bagworms attack foilage of trees

By DEANNA MYERS
County Entomologist

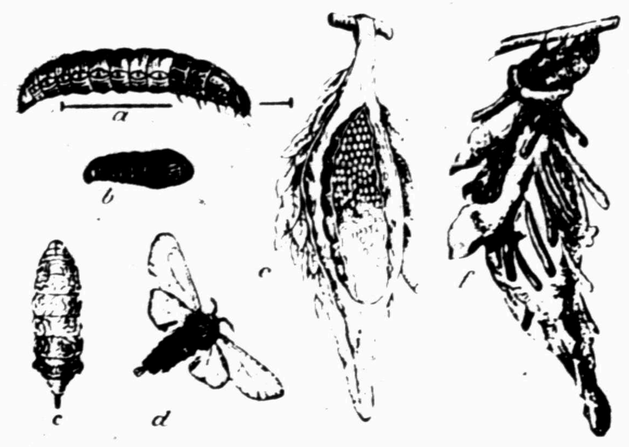

The foilage of many trees and shrubs are attacked by the bagworm. Among the plants attacked are willow, cedar, white pine, box elder, locust, sycamore, maple, wild cherry, sumac, persimmon, arborvitae, and other ornamental conifers. Live oak, salt cedar and many fruit, nut and ornamental plants may also be attacked. Bagworms can completely defoliate trees and shrubs.

Bagworms build a spindle-shaped silk case with bits of foilage attached to live in. They look so much like part of the tree that they may go unnoticed until extensive damage has occurred. The worm emerges part-way from the bag to feed and enlarge it. A full grown larvae may have a bag that is 1 ¾ to 2 inches long and up to ½ inch wide.

The adult female resembles a maggot, with no functional eyes, legs or antennae. Its body is soft-yellowish white and almost naked. The adult male looks like a small moth. It has clear wings with a span of about one inch, feathery antennae and is sooty black in color. The female lays eggs in the fall. She then drops from the bag leaving the eggs behind. The eggs hatch in the spring.

You may be able to defend your plant from damage by this pest if you hand pick the bags from the plants. Be sure to pick all the bags off the tree and then smash or burn them. If only thrown on the ground the eggs will still hatch and the small larvae will crawl back to the trees.

If there are too many bags or the tree is too large for this technique then infested trees can be sprayed. Bagworm control is difficult and not as effective as larvae mature. Apply insecticides soon after bagworm eggs hatch or while the larvae are small and actively feeding. In general insecticides applied in April, May or June should be effective. However, treatments will be most effective if the individual plants are watched for when the larvae appear. Insecticides which can be used against the larvae are those containing carbaryl (Sevin R), diazinon, accephate (Orthene R), Bacillus Thuringiensis, and malathion. Be sure to use spray equipment that provides complete coverage of all foliage.

The bag worm. a. larva; b. pupa; c. adult female; d. adult male; e. bag containing eggs; f. bag containing larva. (USDA)

Hedrick, Minemier champs...

Rain-swept Pumpjack ends

Weather took its toll on the annual Pumpjack Invitational Partnership held over the weekend here, causing Saturday's rounds in the Third, Fourth and Fifth flights to be rained out.

Despite the weather problems, which included strong winds, 62 teams competed in the two-day event. The Championship, First and Second flights were completed early Saturday, before the rain and winds struck.

Snyder's Dave Minemier teamed with Charlie Hedrick of Fort Worth to win the Championship Flight with rounds of 64 and 66 for a total 130.

Teams played a scramble on Saturday and a low-ball Sunday.

Second place went to Larry Anderson and Dallas' Don Copeland, who shot a 62 and a 69 for a 131. Third were Mark Hargrove and Randy Weaver who shot back-to-back 66s for a 132.

Mark Dake and Todd Line won the First Flight with a 66-72 for a 138. Second were Jimmy Wilson of Midland and Robert Sterling with a 139. Shooting a 140 for third were Lanny Wadleigh and Pete Greene. They tied with Alton Patterson and Johnny Powell, then won on the first hole of a playoff.

Second Flight champions were Donny Newman and Glenn Patterson, who shot a 68 and a 75 for a 143. Ewell Mackey and Dutch Stehley were second with a 145, followed by Ricky Williams and Midland's Fred Williams, with a 146.

Players competing in the Third, Fourth and Fifth flights played a scramble on the front nine holes and a low ball on the back nine Sunday.

John Lacik and Will Evans won the Third Flight with a 34-39 for a 73. Second were Ray Littlefield and Rolan Wallace from Crane with a 75. David Sharrock and Cary Coffee placed third with a 76.

Fourth Flight winners were Danny Brumley and Wichita Falls' Keith Pistocco, who shot a 40 and a 38 for a 78. Bill Durham of Houston and Sterling Parker placed second with an 80, defeating Dalton Walton and Paul Thompson on the first hole of a playoff.

Fifth Flight winners were Tommy Williams and Archie Boudreau who put together a pair of 40s for an 80 total. Travis Hatter and Ted Crenwelge were second with an 83, followed by Jerry Rose and Roy Rogers with an 84.

WTC stands out at Hobbs rodeo

HOBBS, N.M. -- Western Texas College men racked up big points in the steer wrestling, bull riding and saddle bronc riding to win the New Mexico Junior College NIRA Rodeo with 365 points here Sunday afternoon.

The solid showing should vault Western's second place standing in the Southwest Region to a more comfortable cushion over challengers Tarleton, which had 215 points, and Eastern which did not point at the four-day rodeo.

Western's bid was highlighted with 135 points in the steer wrestling. Donnie Yorks, who won the long-go with a 6.1, added an 8.6 in Sunday's finals to grab the average with a total 14.7. Glenn Jordan went into the finals with an eighth-place time of 11.9 but flashed a 7.5 Sunday to place second in the short-go. His total of 19.4 was third in the average. And teammate Gary Rowe, third in the long-go, finished fourth in the average with a 22.3.

Western picked up 105 points in both the saddle bronc and bulls. Bliss Mayhan took second in the short-go and second in the average with a 134. Van Hale went into the short-go tied for second place with 71 points. He took a no-time Sunday, but his long-go points were valuable.

Hale came back to win Sunday's short-go in the bull riding. He had been fourth in the long-go with a 72 and Sunday's 74 gave him second in the average with a 146.

Tobin Tate no-timed in the finals of the bull riding, but took points on his long-go ride of 72, which was second. WTC also collected points from Gregg Rhodes, who scored a 69 in the finals for fourth place. His two-ride total of 137 was fifth, and out of the average.

Western also polled 20 points in the barebacks with Bliss Mayhan's 72, which tied for second place in the long-go.

Other WTC performers did well, though they were not on the designated 6-man Westerner team and therefore not able to contribute to the team point total.

Don Eddleman won the average in the calf roping with a 19.2. He had a 10.6 in the long-go and an 8-6 in the short-go, both of which were second place runs.

Mike Carillo won the long-go in bareback but took a no-time in the finals.

Sul Ross State University took second place in the rodeo with 225 points. Tarleton's 215 was next, followed by 180 from host NMJC.

Sul Ross won the women's division with 300 points. Tarleton copped 205 and Vernon Regional Junior College picked up 160. Western got 30. The ladies picked up their points in the breakaway roping. Canita Cass was clocked at 3.1 to take third place in the finals. She was fourth in the average.

Greathouse also qualifies...

Freeman stars at 2-4A meet

They aren't having any trouble filling up scrapbooks at the Freeman household, this track season. Saturday's District 2-4A Track and Field Meet is proof of that.

Senior all-around athlete Kyle Freeman won the discus with a meet-record toss of 163-feet, 7-inches and the shot put with a school record of 57-feet, 9-inches. He also placed third in the 100 meters.

His efforts in the shot and discus qualify him into the May 1-2 Region I Track and Field Meet in Brownwood.

Joining him will be another senior, Willie Greathouse. Greathouse took second place in the long jump with a leap of 21-5½.

"What can you say about Kyle that hasn't already been said," grinned Coach Kevin Wiseman. "He just keeps getting better and better. Willie was a surprise. He had a sore knee before the meet and we were just hoping he would get us some points. Now he's going to regionals. And he beat some tough competition in those two guys from Monahans (Jim Hines and Anthony Scurlark, who were third and fourth respectively)."

To no one's surprise, Monahans won the team title. The Loboes won five events - including both relays - and took five second places.

Monahans polled 155 points while Lamesa grabbed second place with 76, Fort Stockton third with 75, and Andrews fourth with 68. Sweetwater was next with 65, followed by Snyder with 50, Lake View with 20 and Pecos with 18.

In other Snyder individual efforts, Mike McWilliams cleared 6-2 to take fourth in the high jump; Craig Watkins was sixth in the 300 intermediate hurdles with a 42.47; Tommy Holladay was sixth in the 200 with a 23.82 and Chris Garrett was sixth in the high jump with a 5-8. Snyder's relay teams both took fifth place finishes; the 400 squad with a 44.18 and the 1600 team with a 3:37.08.

"I think we did just about as well as we could, considering everything, grades, injuries and all," said Wiseman. "Craig Watkins did a fine job in the intermediate hurdles. He made the top 10 (Snyder track top 10) and he's just a freshman. I thought Tommy Holladay gave a gutsy performance in the 200 and the relays."

Freeman's throw of 57-9 in the shot was his best this season by two feet.

"I wasn't really that pumped up when I started but then the Sanford guy (Lin Sanford) from Monahans threw a 55 and I knew I was going to have to have a good throw. I haven't had that much competition this year except at the Texas Relays and I feel like I do better under pressure," said Freeman.

Despite advancing on in the discus and shot, Freeman would have liked to made it in the 100 as well.

"I felt like I should have gotten second. I leaned a little too far (at the tape) and he got past me," said Freeman, referring to Lamesa's Gerry Woodberry, who took second by only eight-one hundredths of a second, 11.21 to an 11.29.

Dana Amos of Monahans won the event with an 11.11.

In other results, Monahans' Jimmy Hines, son of former olympian Jim Hines, won the 400 meters in 48.28 and Lamesa's Keith Bryant won both the 110 high hurdles and the 300 intermediates.

Tiger 9-men vie Tuesday

Snyder's Tigers are scheduled to resume District 2-4A baseball here Friday against Lamesa.

The game is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. start at Moffett Field.

Snyder goes into the game with a 15-5 season record. The Tigers are 4-2 in district play.

Lamesa is 7-11 and 2-4. The Golden Tornadoes dropped a first-round district game to Snyder 8-7 in 12 innings.

Big day for SHS's Thompson...

Snyder girls send 5 to region

Take a track meet like the District 2-4A finals and you'd expect to see some personal best records set. You'd expect a district record, too. You'd expect to see an underdog triumph over a champion, and you'd expect to see someone in the relays take the baton and come from behind to help lead her team to a regional qualifying spot.

But you might not expect to see one individual do all of those things. Snyder's Karlene Thompson did all that here Saturday - and more.

The junior cinder-star was one of five Tiger athletes to qualify for the May 1-2 Region I Track and Field Meet in Brownwood. She qualified in every event she entered - the triple jump, long jump, 200 meters, 800 relay and 1600 relay. To say it was a good day for her, well...

"I'm more pleased than I've ever been," said Thompson, after the day-long meet concluded about 9:30 in the evening. "I'm happy," she said emphatically.

Qualifying along with Thompson were relay runners Donna Anderson, Kim Koening and Katrina Reed, and 110 meter hurdler Tonya Holladay.

The feat of qualifying five girls to region isn't unusual. But considering that Holladay, Koening and Reed are sophomores, and Anderson and Thompson are juniors, it is something special.

Holladay set a school record of 15.3 in the preliminaries of the hurdles, then ran into a stiff wind in the evening to win the event with a 16.42.

Thompson jumped a career best 18-1 to win the long jump, then lept 38-feet to set a meet-record in winning the triple jump. She aided Snyder to a second-place clocking of 1:46.06 in the 800 meters before upsetting 1984 champion Deborah McCain in the 200 meters with a 25.97. She finished the meet by coming from behind in the 1600 relay to give Snyder a second-place, 4:19.85.

The long jump of 18-plus was special.

"In three years that was my best," said Thompson, who admits she doesn't particularly like the event. "I never really work on it much at practice. I always work on the triple jump."

But the sweetwest victory of all was in the 200 where she edged Sweetwater's McCain by six-one hundredths of a second with a 25.97. She trailed McCain most of the way but caught her with about 30 meters to go.

"I've been wanting to beat her so bad," said Thompson, who has only been running the 200 for three weeks now. "I didn't really think I beat her at first. I wasn't sure. I thought I got second place. I didn't know I'd really won until later."

The day was not without disappointment for the Lady Tigers, who failed to qualify in the 400 meter relay and were favored in the 1600 but took second after getting off to a sluggish start. There had been hopes of qualifying in the 100 meters as well. Anderson gave it a good shot, but placed third with a 13.05. Yolanda Rivers was sixth with a 13.21.

Depth in some areas, like the 200 meters, helped the Tiger point total. Reed was third in the event with a 27.17 and Rivers placed fourth with a 28.08. Anderson also placed fourth in the discus. Hope Hernandez was fifth in the discus, Greta Baez sixth in the 1600 meters and Stephanie McKnight sixth in the triple jump.

One of Snyder's best efforts was a third place finish in the 800 meters by Stephanie Warren.

"That was a real nice surprise," said Coach Patty Grimmett of the freshman's effort. "She just ran great. I'm real proud of her."

"I want to every girl on our team to know that I am proud of them and I appreciate their hard work and their effort. They are all part of our team," added the coach.

Sweetwater won the meet with 169 points. Snyder took second with 111, followed by Monahans with 67.

In addition to Snyder's Thompson, Rachael Mulanax of Sweetwater was another three-event individual winner. She won the high jump with a leap of 5-3, the 3200 meters in 12:06.03 and the 1600 meters in 5:40.75. Sweetwater won seven events overall, including all three relays.

Since four of the five Snyder qualifiers - all but Holladay - are in both the 800 and 1600 relays, those will be a prime target to work on during the next two weeks. Trimming off seconds in the 1600 should not be difficult. Snyder has run a 4:13 this season.

"We didn't run our best but we'll have another chance at region. I know the girls are looking foward to the chance to run it again," said Grimmett.

Sarney to carry out old policies

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Vice President Jose Sarney promised a mourning nation today that he would carry out the policies of Tancredo Neves, who died before ever taking office as Brazil's first elected president in 21 years.

Neves, 75, died Sunday night of severe heart and lung complications, after a 39-day struggle through seven operations that began hours before he was to have been inaugurated.

Sarney, 54, a compromise candidate who had previously been allied with the nation's military party, was to be declared president at a special meeting of Congress today. He has been acting president since March 15, when everyone in the new civilian government took office except Neves, who underwent emergency surgery for an intestinal infection on the night of March 14.

"Our program is Tancredo Neves' program," Sarney said in a breaking voice on national radio and television early this morning.

The government decreed eight days of mourning and declared today a national holiday.

Neves' body will be on public view throughout the day in the capital, Brasilia, officials said. On Tuesday, foreign dignitaries will pay their respects, and military honors are scheduled.

Government spokesman Antonio Britto announced Neves' death on television at 10:23 p.m. (8:23 p.m. EST) Sunday at the Heart Insitute of the Clinical Hospital in Sao Paulo.

About 300 Brazilians, many weeping and some screaming, gathered outside the hospital. The crowd sang the national anthem. Police took away some who were hysterical.

"In the past 50 years, the public life of Tancredo Neves was an integral part of the hopes and ideals of Brazilians: Union, democracy, social justice and liberty. From now on, Brazil will have to attain those ideals without the leader it has just lost," Britto said.

Dr. Warren Myron Zapol, a physician from Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston specializing in lung illnesses and intensive care, said Saturday that Neves was suffering from fibrosis, a hardening of the air sacs in his lungs, because of high doses of oxygen being pumped into his lungs. Neves also was hooked up to an artificial kidney machine.

At Zapol's recommendation, doctors made a last-ditch effort to save Neves by lowering his body temperature Sunday to 86.9 degrees to reduce his need for oxygen. Normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees.

In Washington, the State Department said in a statement: "We are greatly saddened by his untimely and tragic demise. Our deepest condolences are offered to the family of the president-elect and to the people of Brazil."

Neves, whose political career spanned a half-century, was highly popular, but Sarney has many enemies.

The armed forces, which stepped down voluntarily after their regime had become highly unpopular, have pledged to follow the constitution and support Sarney as legal head of state.

Until mid-1984, Sarney headed the military-backed Social Democratic Party, acting as the leading voice and defender of the policies handed down by the military regimes that had ruled since a 1964 coup.

He and other dissidents quit the Social Democrats to align with Neves' Brazilian Democratic Movement Party, which gave Neves the majority needed for his January victory. In exchange, Sarney was put on the ballot as vice president. Neves and Sarney were chosen by an electoral college.

Many in the Democratic Movement distrust Sarney because of his past loyalties to the military rulers. In 1984, Sarney fought a congressional bill that would have reinstated direct elections.

Crack found in system

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small slice of the Western citrus industry is hoping to harness the Reagan administration's deregulatory philosophy to squeeze out a 50-year-old marketing system, and it has the growers who control the system worried.

The growing controversy is over rules that allow a small board to hold down the amount of oranges and lemons that go into grocery stores each week, and to tell each grower what proportion of that amount he can sell.

The rules are called "marketing orders," and they have been in existence since a 1937 law designed to protect small farmers and ensure an orderly flow of perishable fresh fruit to market at stable prices. There are some 47 separate marketing orders nationwide for fruits, vegetables and nuts, but only 11 of them limit production and sales.

"Our agriculture is working," said Russell Hanlin, president of the Western region's dominant citrus cooperative, Sunkist, at a news conference last week. "This government needs to concentrate on the things that need to be fixed. We're not one of them."

Hanlin said he was concerned that opponents of marketing orders are gaining the upper hand in the lobbying and propaganda war over whether the marketing system should be preserved.

He said small growers, organized into cooperatives like Sunkist, overwhelmingly favor the system because it maintains their prices and preserves stability in the industry.

Removing the marketing orders would cause chaos, he contended, allowing large growers who want them removed to run roughshod over small growers and eventually put them out of business.

Adding to Sunkist's worries is the fact that Agriculture Secretary John Block in January, in a rare move that surprised many growers, lifted the system temporarily for this year's navel orange crop. The move had long been sought by administration officials with a philosophical antipathy for government regulation.

Marketing orders are essentially a form of government-sponsored supply control, a concept the administration vehemently opposes for other farm commodities and which it is trying to eliminate in the 1985 omnibus farm legislation now being developed by Congress.

Block's action came after a freeze in Florida had damaged much of that state's orange crop and consumer prices had begun to rise sharply.

Retired spymaster now writes novels

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Isser Harel, the spymaster who built Israel's secret service into an organization respected for daring and precision, now spends his time pottering among rose bushes and writing thrillers.

The retired chief of the Mossad intelligence service and its longest-reigning head is as nondescript as John Le Carre's fictional British spy chief, George Smiley.

Even though the wizened, 5-foot-2 Harel is the antithesis of the dashing James Bond, the Russian-born Israeli personally took part in many operations.

"It wasn't a desire for adventure that brought me into that business," Harel said during a three-hour interview at his home in suburban Tel Aviv.

"What propelled me all those years was a feeling of a mission, a duty," said Harel, whose caeer began before Israel was founded in 1948.

He said he was convinced that all means were justified to safeguard the Jewish state against the Arab and other enemies who sought to destroy it, but he is proud of what he called "the moral standards" he set in Mossad's early days.

According to newspaper accounts, Harel once fired an operative for using free tickets to take a girl to the movies, tickets that the man was supposed to use to eavesdrop on Soviet agents meeting at the theater.

Harel has been retired for 22 years, but he is almost obsessed with several of his old cases that were never closed, especially that of Nazi arch-criminal Dr. Josef Mengele, who slipped out of Buenos Aires just a few weeks ahead of Harel in 1960.

His best-known caper was the abduction from Argentina of Adolf Eichmann, the officer in charge of Nazi Germany's liquidation of six million Jews.

Harel and his men located Eichmann in Buenos Aires, kidnapped him and flew him to trial in Israel, where he was convicted and hanged in 1962.

It was not the most complicated or dangerous operation he took part in, said Harel, but one of the few that ever became known. By law, even the name of the Mossad chief is kept secret. The Israeli public only discovered Harel's name several years after he resigned.

Harel stepped down in 1963 after a dispute with his patron and then-prime minister David Ben-Gurion. "I was forced to leave. I could not work against my principles," he said.

He won't talk about the exact reason he quit, but newspaper files indicate that he and Ben-Gurion disagreed on how Israel should deal with former Nazi German scientists working in Egypt on rockets and atomic weapons.

Harel advocated all-out war against them and the West German government, while Ben-Gurion insisted the leaders in Bonn were innocent of collusion with what was a private German enterprise.

Harel does not deny that Mossad was responsible for several letter-bombs mailed to the scientists. "The Germans were a threat to Israel," he said with a shrug.

Several years after retiring, he was elected to the Knesset (Parliament). But when his term ran out in 1974 he turned to lecturing, writing — including two thrillers — and indulging his passion for opera and Chinese food.

The only thing he regretted, Harel added, was having to end his search for Mengele when he resigned. "I had invested more efforts in looking for Mengele than I did for Eichmann," said Harel.

The Israeli plane which flew to Buenos Aires to pick up Eichmann brought on Harel's orders, an armed commando unit which was to infiltrate the house of an American family to find out whether its members were "on the level" or were covering for Mengele.

But on the same day, Harel recounted, "we got information that the Americans were bona fide and Mengele had left the city several weeks before."

Fire chief only gave five minutes notice

HOUSTON (AP) — Fire Chief Robert L. Swartout says he quit his job with five minutes notice because he didn't think he owed the city any more than that.

Swartout quit on Friday, April 12, leaving the note on Mayor Kathy Whitmire's desk at 4:25 p.m. It said his resignation was effective at 4:30 p.m. the same day.

City officials tried unsuccessfully over that weekend to find Swartout for an explanation of his resignation, but could not reach him at his Houston apartment.

On the following Monday, Swartout began the 1,500-mile drive back to Seattle, where he had been fire chief before taking the Houston post.

In a copyright story Sunday in the Houston Post, Swartout said he quit after only 3½ months on the job because the city administration did not understand the workings of the department.

"There's so much ill feeling between the administration and the department it amazes me," he said during an interview at his Seattle home.

Mrs. Whitmire said she was surprised by the resignation and that Swartout's departure was "bizarre."

"There are a lot of ways to handle what I did," Swartout said. "If I was going to call her, I would have gone by and talked to her before I left. But I don't think I owe her or the city of Houston anything. They got their dollars' worth out of me while I was there."

Mrs. Whitmire has refused to release the contents of Swartout's letter, but the Post published a copy obtained from the ex-fire chief.

The letter said that during his term as fire chief, Swartout realized "that having a first-class fire department is not a high priority" in the Whitmire administration.

Furthermore, it read, many city administrators "who have an impact on the ability of the fire department to function have very little understanding of fire department operations, even though they feel they are experts in the subject."

Swartout said he disagreed with Mrs. Whitmire's demand that no cadet firefighter classes be held until all uniformed firefighters in the city are removed from desk jobs and replaced by civilians.

Swartout denied allegations that he returned to Seattle because his family was reluctant to move to Houston.

'Ma Bell' workers helping the needy

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — With arthritic legs stretched in front of her, Annie Levias talked of happiness and miraculous visions while Southwestern Bell employees, working outside, repainted her home's flaking white coating.

Just down the street, more telephone employees sawed on the fresh boards of Rita Bean's new porch, while she reclined in a bedroom and spoke of her devotion to God.

Those were two of 18 houses that drew the attention Saturday of 270 Southwestern Bell workers, who donated their day off to help those less fortunate: the elderly living on scant incomes and the handicapped who cannot help themselves.

The volunteers call their program "Christmas in April."

In addition to the telephone employees, members of three churches and workers for an area newspaper also participated.

Richard Wyatt, Jefferson County's "Christmas in April" chairman, said about 16 more groups, representing area businesses, will paint and clean more homes next Saturday.

Wyatt said area merchants donated all materials for the program. Carey Mason, a member of the Southwestern Bell planning department and organizer of the phone company employees, said he originally expected only enough workers to repair three homes.

"It was surprisingly easy to get volunteers," Mason said of the turnout that included nearly half of the employees of Southwestern Bell in the county.

"I just talked to a few key individuals, and they just started spreading the word. "I always say there are two things people like to do," Mason said. "They like to help children and they like to help people who can't help themselves."

Last week, program volunteers visited Mrs. Levias, telling her of their Saturday repair plans in time for her 77th birthday Thursday.

"I'm so happy, I don't know what to tell you," Mrs. Levias said in a muffled voice, while outside grinding drills prepared her front door for a new screen. "This has got to be one of the happiest (birthdays) I've had."

A widow and retired housekeeper, Mrs. Levias is a typical Christmas in April recipient.

Decreasing cloudiness and cooler temperatures are expected by Tuesday morning.

The extended forecast for West Texas calls for scattered mainly afternoon and evening showers and a few thunderstorms Wednesday and Thursday. Skies are expected to be partly cloudy through Friday.

Rain totals for other Scurry County locations from Sunday's rain includes: Hermleigh, 1.20; Ira, .40 of an inch; Camp Springs, 1.09 inches; and Dunn, .80 of an inch.

Minor mishaps worked in city

Snyder police investigated three minor traffic mishaps in the city during the weekend.

Involved in the first accident — on the parking lot of Munden's Discount Center at 11 a.m. Saturday — were a 1982 Ford driven by Betty Griffin of 2801 Ave. U and a 1983 Buick driven by Miriam Cochran of Snyder.

Vonnie Everton of 2408 Towle Park Road filed a minor hit-and-run accident report at 2:15 p.m. Saturday.

She told police that her 1981 Oldsmobile had apparently been struck by another vehicle while it was parked at Snyder High School earlier in the afternoon.

The weekend's third mishap was reported at 5:01 p.m. Sunday in the 3900 Block of Ave. V.

Involved in it were a 1977 Chrysler driven by James Earnest Davis of Rt. 2, Snyder and a 1968 Dodge driven by Catarino Guerrero Jr. 106 Milburn Ave.

No injuries were reported after any of the three accidents.

Out-of-towner arrested here

Police arrested a Brownfield woman on four separate drug and alcohol related charges Sunday morning — one a felony-level charge.

Thirty-year-old Diana Lee Caswell was reportedly first noticed sitting in a car on the parking lot of a local private club at 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

After making contact with her, officers arrested her on one felony count of possession of a controlled substance.

Additional misdemeanor counts of public intoxication, possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana in a quantity less than 2 ounces were also filed against her.

She was released from the Scurry County Jail later Sunday after posting a $2,000 bond in connection with the controlled substance charge.

City officers jailed seven other suspects on misdemeanor chages over the weekend.

Four were charged with public intoxication, two with driving while intoxicated and one with disorderly conduct.

One of the PI suspects was also charged with disorderly conduct and possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia.

Kohl rejected appeal

BERGEN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl told concentration camp survivors that Germans must accept "shame" for the Holocaust, but rejected an appeal from Jewish leaders to suggest that President Reagan cancel his visit to a military cemetery.

Kohl spoke Sunday at a Jewish memorial gathering marking the 40th anniversary of the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp's liberation by Allied troops. His speech was broadcast live on West German television.

"Bergen-Belsen ... remains a mark of Cain branded in the minds of our nation, just like Auschwitz and Treblinka, Belzec, and Sobibor, Chelmno and Majdanek, and the many other (Nazi camp) sites testifying to that mania for destruction," Kohl told 5,000 people at the camp site in northern West Germany.

Hundreds of Bergen-Belsen survivors and their families were among those who attended the two-hour ceremony organized by the Central Council of German Jews.

"Reconciliation with the survivors and descendants of the victims is only possible if we accept our history as it really was, if we Germans acknowledge our shame and our historical responsibility, and if we perceive the need to act against any efforts aimed at undermining human freedom and dignity," Kohl said.

World Jewish Congress leaders, in West Germany to attend the service, said later that they met with Kohl to ask that he suggest that Reagan cancel his planned visit to the Bitburg military cemetery.

Among the bodies buried at Bitburg are those of 47 Nazi SS troopers and nearly 2,000 German soldiers.

Quarterly statements indicate less profits

RTERLY FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A slump in the energy industry was a key factor in declining quarterly profits for all but two of Texas' seven largest bank holding companies.

Five of the banking giants reported lower profits in the first quarter of 1985 than the last quarter of 1984. Three of the seven also showed lower earnings for the same periods, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

All six of the bank companies that provided figures for nonperforming loans showed higher levels of bad loans, compared both to the fourth quarter and to the first quarter of 1984, the newspaper reported.

Bad, or non-performing, loans are those on which no payment has been made for at least 90 days.

MCorp of Dallas declined to provide figures for its non-performing loans because of accounting difficulties in the aftermath of its merger with Southwest Bancshares Inc., the Star-Telegram said.

"This just shows that we're in for a tough year for earnings," said Frank Anderson, analyst for Weber Hall Sale & Associates in Dallas.

Several bank chief executives agreed. They issued warnings at their respective shareholder meetings that 1985 shows little potential for earnings growth. They blamed the continuing slump in the energy industry, long the lending bulwark for Texas banks.

Every major Texas bank showed a profit for January through March, the newspaper said. However, there were disappointments.

Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc. of Houston saw its record of consecutive quarterly profit increases snapped at 64.

Fort Worth-bases Texas American Bancshares Inc. was a strong performer in 1984, but reported a 15 percent decline in profits for the first quarter of this year compared to its first quarter last year.

First City Bancorporation of Houston reported earnings of just $7.6 million on nearly $18 billion in total assets.

The lead in non-performing loans belonged to InterFirst Corp. of Dallas with $797 million, down slightly from the $816 million reported a year ago.

Texas Commerce reported non-performing loans of $485 million, compared with $242 million a year ago and $367 million at the end of 1984. RepublicBank Corp. of Dallas showed non-performing loans of $495 million, up sharply from $352 million last year.

"Those non-performing loans are cutting seriously into earnings," Anderson said. "As long as there is no improvement in the non-performing loan level, it will be hard for earnings to improve."

Most of the bank companies reported drops in earnings, citing problems with energy borrowers.

"With the price of oil flat, we're seeing problems developing with some of the better-capitalized creditors in the drilling industry," Anderson said.

Problems in real estate lending haven't materialized yet, bankers said.

The high office building vacancy in Houston and Dallas has prompted some analysts to suggest that the consequences of overbuilding eventually will hit Texas banks in a manner similar to the impact that declining oil prices had on the industry beginning in 1983.

The U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, which examines federally chartered banks, has said the agency is reviewing the real estate portfolios of the larger Texas banks.

Analysts said most of the major banks, while slimming down their energy portfolios over the past two years, have replaced those credits with loans to real estate developers.

Bill seeks to protect children from misstep

DALLAS (AP) — When his 22-month-old son fell into the family swimming pool and suffered permanent brain damage, University Park oilman Jim Francis thought he was alone with his tragedy.

But after spearheading a statewide effort to compile statistics on similar accidents, Francis learned there were hundreds of other families suffering as well.

Each year in Texas, 250 children either die or suffer severe brain damage after falling into neighborhood swimming pools. In an attempt to reduce that toll, two Dallas legislators have introduced bills in Austin to require fences around residential swimming pools.

"Young children are like unguided missiles, zigging and zagging their way to the pools," Francis told The Dallas Morning News. "People put their children in playpens because it keeps them there. We want to make pools secure, like playpens."

The bill is being modified by members of two legislative subcommittees, but in its original form it would require pools at single-family residences and apartments to be surrounded on all sides by fences.
