UTPB adjunct faculty member suspected of having 'inappropriate relationship' with LHS student

From staff reports

A UTPB adjunct faculty member suspected of having an inappropriate relationship with a student at Lee High School was arrested Thursday in Bexar County, according to a press release from a Midland ISD spokeswoman.

The man identified by both Midland ISD and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin as Nicholas Conn is being held in a Bexar County jail.

Conn, 27, was being held Friday on a $75,000 bond for a second-degree felony charge of improper relationship between an educator and a student as well as a $75,000 bond for second-degree felony charge of sexual assault, according to Bexar County records.

If convicted of a second-degree felony charge, Conn could face up to 20 years imprisonment.

Conn

"UT Permian Basin has been made aware of very troubling criminal charges brought against part-time, adjunct faculty member Nicholas Conn," Communications Manager Tatum Guinn wrote. "None of the current accusations made against Mr. Conn took place on the UTPB campus or involve UTPB students, faculty or staff. However, UTPB takes all such allegations very seriously, and Mr. Conn has been relieved of his teaching and all other duties while a full investigation is conducted."

A warrant for Conn's arrest was issued by the Midland ISD Police Department, according to the release. But because he was not in Midland at the time, the warrant was handed over to the U.S. Marshal's Service office in San Antonio.

Conn, who is not an MISD employee, previously provided private tutoring services for some MISD band students, according to the release.

This relationship was discovered because another student overhead something and alerted campus administration, according to the release.

"We commend our students who brought this to our attention, and as always, we strongly encourage our students to say something anytime they recognize something suspicious or concerning," Lacy Sperry, Midland ISD Executive Director of Communications, said in the release. "The information was taken very seriously and investigated by our Midland ISD Police Department immediately, which led to an arrest."

Conn is listed on the UTPB website as "starting his first season as principal trombonist with the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale and as a member of the Lone Star Brass" in 2016.

Matador Resources confirms record bid

Bloomberg

Matador Resources Co. was the anonymous purchaser of drilling rights in the Permian shale that fetched a record $95,001 per acre. The shares dropped the most in more than a year.

Chief Financial Officer David Lancaster confirmed on Wednesday that the record lease was part of the $387 million the Dallas-based company spent on 8,400 net acres in the Permian's Delaware Basin. The U.S. Bureau of Land Management, which conducted the New Mexico auction last week, had identified the winning bidder as Federal Abstract Co., a firm in Santa Fe that bids on behalf of anonymous investors.

"We're comfortable in what we paid," Lancaster said by telephone late Wednesday. "We feel it's some of the best acreage in New Mexico."

The leases are for a 10-year term and a royalty of 12.5 percent, Lancaster said. That gives operators better terms than Texas properties on the other side of the border, where leases typically last up to five years with about 25 percent royalties.

Midland-Odessa civilian labor force reaches all-time high

From staff reports

The number of people in the Midland-Odessa civilian labor force reached an all-time high mark during the month of July, according to numbers from the Midland Development Corp.

The 247,017 in the labor force was 1,400 more than June 2018 and in excess of 11,000 more than the 235,455 recorded in July 2017. The MDC also reported a new high for the number employed — 240,281. The 6,736 unemployed meant the unemployment rate reached 2.7 percent in the area (down from 2.9 percent in June and 3.6 percent in July 2017).

The story is the same in the Midland metropolitan statistical area, according

Libertarian Senate candidate discloses cannabis investments

By Morgan Lee
Associated Press

Russell Contreras/AP

Former Libertarian presidential candidate Gary Johnson talks to reporters about his decision to join the U.S. Senate race on Aug 16 in New Mexico. Johnson is disclosing his personal financial interests in the cannabis sector.

SANTA FE, N.M. — U.S. Senate candidate Gary Johnson of New Mexico has disclosed personal financial interests in the cannabis sector that include stock holdings, a profit sharing agreement and recent capital gains on investment sales, according to filings reviewed by The Associated Press.

Johnson in Senate filings this week said that he owns stock worth more than $250,000 in the Nevada cannabis company Kush and has a profit sharing agreement as the adviser to the cannabis-sector investment fund CB1 Capital.

The former New Mexico governor and two-time Libertarian candidate for president also reported capital gains of at least $100,000 from stock in the company Cannabis Sativa, where he previously served as CEO.

A longtime advocate for legalizing marijuana, Johnson announced in August his run for Senate on the Libertarian ticket against incumbent Democrat Martin Heinrich, who recently embraced the decriminalization of marijuana at the federal level. The Republican contender, construction contractor Mick Rich, opposes legalization.

Johnson said Friday he sees no conflict of interest between his political advocacy for legalizing marijuana and personal investments in the sector because his political message has not changed in nearly two decades.

"This was a career ending move on my part in 1999," said Johnson of his initial support as governor for legalization when the stance was unpopular. "The last thing that I ever dreamed of happening is that somehow I would make money off this."

New Mexico regulates the production and distribution of medical marijuana for a long list of maladies, but has not legalized recreational use. Federal law still considers marijuana an illegal substance.

Johnson's financial ties to the cannabis industry were outlined in a personal financial disclosure statement required of candidates for Senate.

Johnson also received an advance payment last year on a book deal from Florida-based Creative Management Partners. He has investments and some debt obligations tied to hotels in Tempe, Arizona; Napa, California; Albuquerque and Santa Fe.

Johnson served as CEO of Cannabis Sativa — a holding company for marijuana and hemp ventures — in between campaigns for president in 2012 and 2016.

Kush, a former subsidiary of Cannabis Sativa, is planning an initial public stock offering sometime this fall, Johnson said.

Johnson said he and his daughter are investors in the cannabis-specific hedge fund CB1 Capital, whose chief investment officer, Todd Harrison, is a frequent guest commentator on television finance shows.

The cannabis business and politics are colliding as never before as more states move toward legalization.

Officials shed little light on closure of solar observatory

By Susan Montoya Bryan
Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — An observatory in the mountains of southern New Mexico that is dedicated to unlocking the mysteries of the sun has found itself at the center of a mystery that is creating a buzz here on earth.

The Sunspot Solar Observatory has been closed for more than a week. Authorities remain tightlipped Friday, saying only that an undisclosed security concern was behind the decision to abruptly vacate and lock up the remote facility on Sept 6.

The FBI referred all questions to the group that manages the site, the Association of Universities for Research in Astronomy. Officials there say they're working with authorities.

The association said in an update Friday that it has "decided that the observatory will remain closed until further notice due to an ongoing security concern. The rest of the National Solar Observatory facilities remain open and are operating normally."

The vagueness continued to fuel speculation on social media.

Located atop Sacramento Peak, the observatory was established in 1947. It overlooks the Tularosa Basin — an expanse of desert that includes the city of Alamogordo, Holloman Air Force Base, White Sands Missile Range, White Sands National Monument and the site of the world's first atomic bomb test.

The telescope at Sunspot was originally built by the U.S. Air Force. After several years of operation, it was transferred to the National Solar Observatory, which is part of the National Science Foundation.

New Mexico State University in 2016 launched an initiative funded by the foundation to upgrade and update the facility through the newly formed Sunspot Solar Observatory Consortium.

Sunspot's one-of-a-kind telescope produces some of the sharpest images of the sun available in the world, officials said.

Data from observations done at Sunspot is sent to New Mexico State University servers and can be used by researchers around the world.

Solar physicist R.T. James McAteer, who is based at New Mexico State University, said in an email Friday that it will be up to the astronomy research association to decide when Sunspot reopens.

"We have paused observations, and are taking this opportunity to catch up with the back log of data from previous months," he said.

There are several university employees and association staff who work at the observatory.

Texas cop shot in head, suspect killed during bar robbery

By David Warren
Associated Press

DALLAS — A gun battle between police and group of robbery suspects outside of a Fort Worth bar early Friday left one suspect dead and an undercover officer fighting for his life, authorities said.

The undercover officer, Garrett Hull, was in critical condition at a hospital, Fort Worth police Chief Joel Fitzgerald said at a news conference. The suspect who was killed, Dacion Steptoe, was the one who shot Hull after Steptoe and two accomplices left a bar they had just robbed, the chief said.

The two other suspects were arrested and none of the 10 people who were in the bar were hurt.

During an earlier news conference, Fitzgerald said Hull was part of a team of undercover and uniformed officers that was trailing the suspects and rushed into the bar when officers discovered it was being robbed. But he later clarified that the officers, wary of endangering bystanders, waited for the three suspects outside the bar before they confronted them.

Fellow officers rushed Hull to the hospital in a squad car instead of waiting for an ambulance.

Mayor Betsy Price said Hull was "in the fight of his life."

Fitzgerald said the crew is suspected in 17 robberies in and around Fort Worth in recent months, and that they primarily targeted Latino bars. He said the crew shot someone in the head during a recent robbery and at least one other person had been shot as well. Investigators believe the men focused on the bars under the belief that Latino victims would be less likely to report a robbery to authorities, according to a police spokesman, officer Brad Perez.

The chief didn't release the name of one of the suspects, but he said all three have long criminal records. The surviving suspect police did identify, Samuel Mayfield, was wanted on warrants for theft, assault and drug possession.

"You had robbery suspects who tried to comingle with the crowd," Fitzgerald said, speaking of people inside the bar who ran from the building to flee the gunfire.

He said Hull, who has a wife and two daughters, is well-liked in the department and is a "rock" of the police intelligence unit, which is tasked with gathering information on suspects and contends with violent offenders. Hull, 40, has served 17 years with the department.

"I feel like I stand up here far too often and speak about officers being assaulted and officers doing their job and trying to create a safe sense of community and cooperation and collaboration in the city of Fort Worth and being victims of violent acts," he said at the initial news conference.

Video shows officer who killed being booked into jail

Authorities in North Texas have released a video showing an off-duty white police officer being booked into jail after she was arrested in the slaying of a black neighbor in his apartment.

The video shows Dallas police Officer Amber Guyger in handcuffs and dressed in an orange jail uniform Sunday at the Kaufman County jail. She takes a seat in front of a desk and later leans her head down, bringing her hands to her face.

Guyger has been charged with manslaughter in the Sept. 6 shooting of 26-year-old Botham Jean. Guyger told investigators she mistook his apartment for her own and court documents say she believed she had encountered an intruder.

She has been released on bond.

Texas suspends notary who handled Stormy Daniels agreement

DALLAS — Texas has suspended the notary who handled porn actress Stormy Daniels' hush-money agreement with President Donald Trump, but state officials say the notary's actions have no bearing on the validity of the agreement.

The Dallas Morning News reports that notary Erica Jackson was faulted for not properly witnessing and documenting Daniels' signature on the nondisclosure agreement.

Daniels, whose real name is Stephanie Clifford, has said she had sex once with Trump in 2006 and carried on a platonic relationship with him for about a year. She was paid $130,000 as part of the agreement signed days before the 2016 election.

Jackson's attorney, Craig Watkins, says Jackson did her job properly but that she agreed to the settlement to avoid being part of the "whole circus" involving Trump.

Belgian tourist found dead at White Sands National Monument

WHITE SANDS NATIONAL MONUMENT — New Mexico authorities are investigating the death of a Belgian tourist at White Sands National Monument.

Monument officials said in a statement Thursday the man was found Wednesday unresponsive about a half-mile (less than a kilometer) from the Alkali Flat trailhead.

His name was not made public. Authorities have not determined a cause of death.

The search was prompted by an unattended vehicle in the parking lot as rangers prepared to close the monument for the evening.

The high temperature at White Sands reached 97 degrees Fahrenheit on Wednesday.

There's no shade or water along any of the monument's trails.

Officials say visitors need to be prepared for the desert environment, especially during the summer.

They recommend hikers start early and take plenty of food and water.

ARIES
(March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Fortunately, you don't mind being tossed into the limelight. Your vision and interpretation will be valued. You also delegate well, which you will do when you feel the timing works. You see the benefit of allowing someone else to take the lead. Tonight: Out until the wee hours.

TAURUS
(April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ A loved one goes out of his or her way for you. You clearly see how much you mean to this person; you feel cared about and you enjoy his or her attention. When you detach and eye the big picture, you will understand what is really being offered. Tonight: Follow the music.

GEMINI
(May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Others seek you out. You might feel cared about on a level that you can barely acknowledge. Emotion and intensity could mark your interactions. One person could become unusually controlling; he or she needs your time and attention. Tonight: Spotlight a loved one.

CANCER
(June 21-July 22)
★★★ You might have very little choice but to defer to others. Be gracious, even if one party displays a need for control. You do not need to play into this. You hear a lot of news just by hanging out. Do your best to keep the other party talking. Tonight: Express your feelings.

LEO
(July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ You want your freedom, even if your choice is to be with one special person. You can be charming and fun when you let loose. Your sense of direction will take you down a new path. Others might be reluctant to follow, but eventually some will join you. Tonight: Time for fun!

VIRGO
(Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ You could be overwhelmed by everything that is going on. Stay light and easy with a domestic issue. You might not want to commit to a solution unless one is deemed necessary. Maintain an appropriate stance, yet enjoy a child's naughtiness. Tonight: Let the party continue.

LIBRA
(Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You no longer can hold back from expressing your feelings about a hot-topic issue. Honestly, you do not have the type of control you desire, but you must express your thoughts on the matter in question. Accept an invitation to be spontaneous and free. Tonight: Let the fun begin.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Your words make a difference to those in your immediate circle. You cannot avoid a neighbor who has some news to share with you. You might decide to stay mum about what you hear. Reach out to a relative who is often unavailable. Tonight: Hang out at a favored haunt.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Others can't seem to get enough of you, and as a result they clamor for your attention. Say "no" to someone who attempts to manipulate you purely for his or her own benefit. Use caution with your funds. Count your change with care. Tonight: Don't cocoon at home; head out!

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Keep reaching out to a loved one in order to have a long-overdue conversation. This person will be delighted by your efforts. Maintain a low profile, if possible. You could be happy just watching a ballgame or playing a game of cards. Tonight: Make the most of the evening.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Don't worry about what others think you should do. You might care a little, as some people seem to have good ideas that you hadn't considered. A conversation could be so off the wall that you can barely even respond. Tonight: Allow someone else to take the lead.

PISCES
(Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Emotions run high around you. Whether you know it or not, you might be the most popular person or the one everyone is looking for. You have a way of bringing others together. Friends appreciate your efforts. A project comes to completion. Tonight: Out late.

4 dead as Hurricane Florence drenches the Carolinas

By Jonathan Drew
Associated Press

WILMINGTON, N.C. — Blowing ashore with howling 90 mph winds, Hurricane Florence splintered buildings, trapped hundreds of people and swamped entire communities along the Carolina coast Friday in what could be just the opening act in a watery, two-part, slow-motion disaster. At least four people were killed.

Forecasters warned that drenching rains of anywhere from 1 to 3 1/2 feet as the storm crawls westward across North and South Carolina could trigger epic flooding well inland over the next few days.

As 400-mile-wide Florence pounded away at the coast with torrential downpours and surging seas, rescue crews used boats to reach scores of people besieged by rising waters along a river. More than 60 others had to be rescued as a cinder-block motel collapsed.

Florence flattened trees, crumbled roads and knocked out power to three-quarters of a million homes and businesses, and the assault wasn't anywhere close to being over, with the siege in the Carolinas expected to last all weekend.

"It's an uninvited brute who doesn't want to leave," said North Carolina Gov. Roy Cooper.

The hurricane was "wreaking havoc" and could wipe out entire communities as it makes its "violent grind across our state for days," the governor said. He said parts of North Carolina had seen storm surges — the bulge of seawater pushed ashore by the hurricane — as high as 10 feet.

A mother and baby were killed when a tree fell on a house, according to a tweet from Wilmington police. Also, a 77-year-old man was apparently knocked down by the wind and died after going out to check on his hunting dogs, and a man was electrocuted while trying to connect extension cords in the rain, authorities said.

Shaken after seeing waves crashing on the Neuse River just outside his house in the town of New Bern, restaurant owner and hurricane veteran Tom Ballance wished he had evacuated.

"I feel like the dumbest human being who ever walked the face of the earth," he said.

After reaching a terrifying Category 4 peak of 140 mph earlier in the week, Florence made landfall as a Category 1 hurricane at 7:15 a.m. at Wrightsville Beach, a few miles east of Wilmington and not far from the South Carolina line, coming ashore along a mostly boarded-up, emptied-out stretch of coastline.

By Friday evening, Florence was downgraded to a tropical storm, its winds weakening to 70 mph as it pushed inland. But it was clear that this was really about the water, not the wind.

Florence's forward movement during the day slowed to a crawl — sometimes it was moving no faster than a human can walk — and that enabled it to pile on the rain. The town of Oriental, North Carolina, got more than 20 inches of rain just a few hours into the deluge. Others got well over a foot.

For people living inland in the Carolinas, the moment of maximum peril from flash flooding could arrive days later, because it takes time for rainwater to drain into rivers and for those streams to crest.

Preparing for the worst, about 9,700 National Guard troops and civilians were deployed with high-water vehicles, helicopters and boats that could be used to pluck people from the floodwaters.

Authorities warned, too, of the threat of mudslides and the risk of an environmental disaster from floodwaters washing over industrial waste sites and hog farms.

Florence was seen as a major test for the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which was heavily criticized as slow and unprepared last year for Hurricane Maria in Puerto Rico, where the death toll was put at nearly 3,000.

The National Hurricane Center said Florence will eventually break up over the southern Appalachians and make a right hook to the northeast, its rainy remnants moving into the mid-Atlantic states and New England by the middle of next week.

Meteorologist Ryan Maue of weathermodels.com said Florence could dump a staggering 18 trillion gallons of rain over a week on North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and Maryland. That's enough to fill the Chesapeake Bay or cover the entire state of Texas with nearly 4 inches of water, he calculated.

North Carolina alone is forecast to get 9.6 trillion gallons, enough to cover the Tar Heel state to a depth of about 10 inches.

On Friday, coastal streets in the Carolinas flowed with frothy ocean water, and pieces of torn-apart buildings flew through the air. The few cars out on a main street in Wilmington had to swerve to avoid fallen trees, metal debris and power lines. Traffic lights out of order because of power failures swayed in the gusty wind. Roof shingles were peeled off a hotel.

The Wilmington airport had a wind gust clocked at 105 mph, the highest since Hurricane Helene in 1958. Airlines canceled more than 2,400 flights through Sunday.

In Jacksonville, North Carolina, next to Camp Lejeune, firefighters and police fought wind and rain as they went door-to-door to pull people out of the Triangle Motor Inn after the structure began to crumble and the roof started to collapse.

In New Bern, population 29,000, flooding on the Neuse River trapped about 200 people.

"WE ARE COMING TO GET YOU," the city of New Bern tweeted around 2 a.m. "You may need to move up to the second story, or to your attic, but WE ARE COMING TO GET YOU."

Boat teams rescued residents Sadie Marie Holt, 67, who first tried to row out of her neighborhood during Florence's assault.

"The wind was so hard, the waters were so hard, that trying to get out we got thrown into trailers. We got thrown into mailboxes, houses, trees," said Holt, who had stayed at home because of a doctor's appointment that was later canceled. She retreated and was eventually rescued by a boat crew.

Street flooding, canceled classes due to Texas coastal rain

By Juan A. Lozano
Associated Press

HOUSTON — A tropical disturbance brought heavy rain Friday to already saturated areas along the Texas Gulf Coast, resulting in street flooding and prompting some schools to cancel classes.

The National Weather Service said the disturbance was expected to make its way inland in South Texas Friday afternoon. Forecasters had worried the system, which had formed in the Gulf about a week ago, could have strengthened into a tropical storm but National Weather Service meteorologist Rob Frye said, "It never could get its act together."

As a precaution, Gov. Greg Abbott issued a disaster declaration for 78 counties that could be impacted. The tropical disturbance was predicted to bring 5 inches or more of rain to some areas that have already been drenched by rain this week.

Rain bands from the disturbance made their way hundreds of miles up the Texas Gulf Coast to Galveston, which had up to 2 feet of water on some roadways on Friday due to heavy rainfall. Galveston officials suspended city bus services and Texas A&M University's campus in the city canceled its classes.

The island city, located about 50 miles southeast of Houston, has had more than 16 inches of rain through the first 13 days of September, breaking a record for this time period that dates back to 1961.

In Corpus Christi, the school district delayed classes for two hours. Neighboring districts in Aransas Pass and Kingsville canceled classes. Farther south in Brownsville, several area school districts planned to send students home early.

Showers were expected to continue through Saturday, according to the National Weather Service.

Ferocious typhoon slams into northeastern Philippines

By Aaron Favila and Joeal Calupitan
Associated Press

TUGUEGARAO, Philippines — Typhoon Mangkhut slammed into the country's northeastern coast early this morning, with witnesses saying the storm's ferocious wind and blinding rain ripped off tin roof sheets and knocked out power at the start of the onslaught.

The typhoon made landfall before dawn in the coastal town of Baggao in Cagayan province on the northern tip of Luzon island, an agricultural region of flood-prone rice plains and mountain provinces often hit by landslides.

More than 5 million people were at risk from the storm, which the Hawaii-based Joint Typhoon Warning Center categorizes as a super typhoon with powerful winds and gusts equivalent to a category 5 Atlantic hurricane.

There were no immediate reports of major damages or casualties in the region, where a massive evacuation from high-risk areas was carried out over two days.

Associated Press journalists in a hotel in Cagayan's capital city of Tuguegarao saw tin roof sheets and other debris hurtle through the air and store signs crash to the ground. Cars shook as wind gusts pummeled a parking lot.

With a huge raincloud band 560 miles wide, combined with seasonal monsoon rains, the typhoon was expected to bring intense rain that could set off landslides and flash floods. Storm warnings have been raised in almost all the provinces across the Luzon, including the capital, Manila, restricting sea and air travel.

Before it hit the island, Mangkhut was tracked late Friday with sustained winds of 127 miles per hour and gusts of up to 158 mph, forecasters said.

Even if the typhoon weakens slightly after slamming ashore, its winds will remain very destructive, government forecaster Rene Paciente said.

"It can lift cars, you can't stand, you can't even crawl against that wind," Paciente told reporters late Friday in Manila.

In Cagayan's capital city of Tuguegarao, residents braced for the typhoon's fury by reinforcing homes and buildings and stocking up on food.

"It was busy earlier in the hardware store and people were buying wood, nails, tin wire, plywood and umbrellas," said Benjamin Banez, who owns a three-story hotel where workers were busy hammering up wooden boards to protect glass panels.

A super typhoon wrought heavy damage to Banez's hotel and the rest of Cagayan in 2016.

Ninia Grace Abedes abandoned her bamboo hut and hauled her four children to a school building serving as an emergency shelter. The 33-year-old laundrywoman said the 2016 typhoon blew away their hut, which they abandoned before the storm hit.

"If we didn't, all of us would be dead," Abedes said.

More than 15,300 people had been evacuated in northern provinces by Friday afternoon, the Office of Civil Defense said.

Concerns over massive storm surges that could be whipped inland by the typhoon's winds prompted wardens to move 143 detainees from a jail in Cagayan's Aparri town to nearby towns, officials said.

The typhoon hit at the start of the rice and corn harvesting season in Cagayan, a major agricultural producer, prompting farmers to scramble to save what they could of their crops, Cagayan Gov. Manuel Mamba said. The threat to agriculture comes as the Philippines tries to cope with rice shortages.

After the Philippines, the Hong Kong Observatory predicts Mangkhut will plow into the Chinese mainland early Monday south of Hong Kong and north of the island province of Hainan. Though it is likely to weaken from a super typhoon to a severe typhoon, it will still pack sustained winds of 109 mph, it said.

Survey shows progress against opioid crisis

By Carla K. Johnson
Associated Press

Figures from a U.S. government survey released Friday show some progress in the fight against the ongoing opioid addiction crisis with fewer people in 2017 using heroin for the first time compared to the previous year.

The number of new users of heroin decreased from 170,000 in 2016 to 81,000 in 2017, a one-year drop that would need to be sustained for years to reduce the number of fatal overdoses, experts said.

Fewer Americans are misusing or addicted to prescription opioid painkillers. And more people are getting treatment for heroin and opioid addiction, the survey found.

The Trump administration said the positive trends show government efforts are working.

Messages are reaching people about the dangers of heroin and the deadly contaminants it often contains on the street, Dr. Elinore McCance-Katz, an administration health official, said in a video presentation released with the figures.

Among the other findings:

■ Marijuana use climbed in all age groups except young teenagers, with 2.5 percent of those 26 and older, or 5.3 million adults, reporting they use marijuana daily or almost daily last year.

■ Methamphetamine and cocaine use climbed in young adults, ages 18 to 25. The uptick may indicate that users are shifting from opioids to other drugs, said Leo Beletsky, a public health policy expert at Northeastern University in Boston.

■ Young adults have increasing rates of serious mental illness, major depression and suicidal thoughts.

■ The number of new heroin users in 2017 — 81,000 — was lower than the numbers in most years from 2009 to 2016. But it was similar to the numbers of new heroin users in 2002 through 2008.

Experts said there's still work to be done before success can be declared.

"Taken together, this does not look like the portrait of a nation with improving mental health and addiction issues," said Brendan Saloner, an addiction researcher at Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. "It's hard to look at this and not think we need to be doing a better job than we're doing now."

Earlier this month, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released preliminary figures that appear to show a leveling off in overdose deaths in late 2017 and the first two months of this year.

Health officials have said it's too soon to say whether the nation's drug crisis has peaked. But in an interview with The Associated Press this week, U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar said several measures of the crisis are improving.

"We are making progress," he said. "We are seeing a flattening of our deaths from overdose."

Man told police a witch promised $10,000 to kill couple. Now he gets life

By Mitch Mitchell
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH — It took a jury less than 30 minutes to sentence Bobby Guillory, 55, to life in prison for his role in the slayings of an Arlington couple targeted in a 2012 murder-for-hire plot.

Guillory and his then-teenage nephew, Willie Guillory, were hired to kill the couple by a purveyor of witchcraft, Dephne Wright, 46, of Houston, evidence showed. Wright was approached by a relative of the victims to remove a curse from the family business, and from there she launched a plan, according to David Alex, Tarrant County prosecutor.

Wright's own business was failing and she owed people money, Bobby Guillory told police.

"Wright was mad at the family because they owed her money and she said I want the money or I want them dead," Alex said during his closing arguments on Thursday.

Guillory told a now retired Arlington detective during a recorded interview the jury heard Wednesday that Wright promised to pay $10,000 for the murders. Guillory said later that the deaths were accidental.

Prosecutors argued that nothing Guillory did on the night of the murders was by accident.

A family member provided a key to the victims' apartment and Wright gave that key to Guillory, according to evidence presented at trial. Insurance beneficiaries inherited more than $1 million after the deaths, Alex said.

Wright sent Guillory and his nephew to kill the husband and wife on June 10, 2012, in their apartment in the 3600 block of Waverly Drive, according to authorities. Willie Guillory was 16 at the time.

Police found the bodies of Long Nguyen, 72, and his wife, Huong Ly, 63, inside their bedroom closet, beaten, bound and gagged with duct tape. Nguyen and Ly suffocated.

"These people died in one of the coldest ways possible; and there are people who are going to pay for that. Today is Bobby Guillory's day," Alex said.

Nguyen was celebrating his birthday on June 10, 2012, with family, and Guillory said all he wanted to do was look around for an hour, find some money and leave. It was rumored that Ly was known to carry as much as $5,000 in her purse and that the family had money hidden throughout the house, Guillory told Arlington Det. Byron Stewart.

A search of the house only yielded only $100, Guillory told Stewart.

But investigators discovered that Guillory purchased a new truck after the murders and also had an unexplained $1,000 deposited into his bank account, Alex said during closing arguments.

The apartment where the bodies were found had marijuana and other drugs strewn about, and a blue bandana tied around a beer bottle had been left on the table.

"It looked like young thugs killed two people and then had a gang party," Alex said.

But the party scene was staged to throw law enforcement off the scent of the true suspects, Alex said.

Prosecutors presented evidence that showed that DNA matched to a cigar wrapper found at the murder scene was traced back to Willie Guillory. After arresting and interviewing Willie Guillory, police arrested Bobby Guillory. After arresting and interviewing Bobby Guillory, police arrested Wright.

Three years after the murders he was accused of took place, Bobby Guillory told police he had injured his neck and was a broken man.

Guillory said he could not hold a job, could not perform sexually and was losing his home.

"I felt less than a man," he said.

Wright was a mystic based in Houston who advertised her talents on the internet as Dmc Spiritual Healing and Guidance, according to authorities.

Guillory, who was married at the time, and Wright had an affair, Guillory said to the investigator.

"Dephne made me feel like she loved me and then she used me," Guillory said. "She set me up."

Ted Cruz and Beto O'Rourke agree to three debates

By Fernando Ramirez
Houston Chronicle

Sen. Ted Cruz and Rep. Beto O'Rourke have agreed to three hour-long debates set to begin this week.

The first debate will occur in Dallas and will be hosted by The Dallas Morning News, Southern Methodist University and KXAS-TV.

The three televised debates are slated for Sept. 21, Sept. 30 and Oct. 16.

The second debate will be held at the University of Houston in a "town hall style" format.

The last debate will take place in San Antonio, although no venue for the event has been revealed.

During the first two debates, the Senate candidates will discuss domestic policy. Both domestic and foreign policy will be addressed in the final debate.

The agreed contests come weeks after both candidates ironed out details about when and what the debates would be about. Last month, O'Rourke rejected a proposal by Cruz claiming his campaign had made an ultimatum about the time, place, moderators and issues.

One of the issues O'Rourke raised against the initially proposed debates was that they all took place on a Friday. The newest wave of agreed upon debates occur on a Friday, Sunday and Tuesday.

The race between Cruz and O'Rourke has tightened to single digits in recent weeks. The latest polls averaged by RealClearPolitics shows Cruz leading O'Rourke by 3.2 percentage points.

Texas board votes to eliminate Hillary Clinton, Helen Keller from history curriculum

By Lauren McGaughy
The Dallas Morning News

AUSTIN — History curriculum in Texas remembers the Alamo, but could soon forget Hillary Clinton and Helen Keller.

As part of an effort to "streamline" the social studies curriculum in Texas, the State Board of Education voted on Friday to change what students in every grade are required to learn in the classroom. They voted to remove several historical figures, including Hillary Clinton and Helen Keller.

The board also voted to add back into the curriculum a reference to the "heroism" of the defenders of the Alamo, which had been recommended for elimination, as well as Moses' influence on the writing of the founding documents, multiple references to "Judeo-Christian" values and a requirement that students explain how the "Arab rejection of the State of Israel has led to ongoing conflict" in the Middle East.

The vote Friday was preliminary. The board, which is elected to represent geographic areas, will take a final vote on these curriculum changes in November and can make further amendments before then.

The Dallas Morning News reached out all 15 members of the State Board of Education for comment about the Clinton and Keller deletions. Barbara Cargill, a Republican from Houston and former board chair, responded, saying, "the recommendation to eliminate Helen Keller and Hillary Clinton was made by (Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills) work groups. However, the board did vote to agree with the work groups' recommendations. In speaking to teachers and testifiers, they did not mention these specific deletions."

High schoolers have been required to learn about Clinton, who was the first woman to win a major political party's presidential nomination, in history class. She was included in the curriculum under a section about citizenship, where students were required to "evaluate the contributions of significant political and social leaders in the United States," including Andrew Carnegie, Thurgood Marshall and Sandra Day O'Connor.

Barry Goldwater was also removed from this teaching requirement. A work groups tasked with the streamlining recommended axing American evangelist and Baptist pastor Billy Graham, but the state board added him back earlier this week.

Third-grade social studies teachers have also been required to educate kids about the life of Keller, who despite being deaf and blind went on to college and a life of activism and authorship. But Keller did not make the work group's cut, and students in other grades aren't required to learn about her life.

Removing figures like these from the curriculum wouldn't mean teachers are forbidden from teaching them, but they will no longer be required to do so.

So why didn't Clinton, Keller and several dozen other historical figures make the cut?

The News spoke with two teachers who sat on a group of volunteers that made these recommendations to the board. Both said the state requires students to learn too many historical figures, so the kids fall back on rote memorization of dates and names instead of real learning.

That 15-member volunteer work group came up with a rubric for grading every historical figure to find of who is "essential" to learn and who wasn't. They asked questions like, Did the person trigger a watershed change? Was the person from an underrepresented group? Will their impact stand the test of time?

Out of 20 points, Keller scored a 7. Out of 21 points, Clinton scored a 5. Eliminating Clinton from the requirements will save teachers 30 minutes of instructional time, the work group estimated, and eliminating Keller will save 40 minutes.

By contrast, local members of the Texas Legislature (who are taught in fourth grade) got a perfect score, as did Barbara Jordan, Sam Houston, Stephen F. Austin and Henry B. Gonzalez.

Today's deal is from a recent match between a team from Sweden and a team from The Netherlands. At the other table, where four hearts was played by North, the contract made routinely after a club lead.

At this table, West was Swedish expert Johan Upmark. Upmark expected South to hold the king of spades for his one no-trump opening. He wanted to get his partner on lead and get a spade led through declarer. East had doubled the four-diamond bid so Upmark decided to play East for the king of diamonds. He underled his ace of diamonds on opening lead? East covered dummy's queen with his king and was surprised to win the trick.

East wanted no time shifting to the eight of spades. South's jack lost to West's queen and Upmark, with nothing better to do, continued with another spade. South ruffed in dummy, led a heart to his ace, and another heart toward the dummy. Upmark won with his king and persevered with a third round of spades. This assured East of a trump trick and the contract was defeated. A lovely defense!

It was good for Upmark that dummy had the singleton queen of diamonds. Had South been able to play low from a doubleton queen in dummy, East might well have played the nine rather than the king and there would have been a different story to tell.

Single mom's frustrations, pain boil to the surface

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: About 20 months ago, after I found out I was pregnant, I was abandoned by the father of my child. My mother had passed away a month before. So I was grieving, shocked to discover I was pregnant and devastated when I was left for another woman. I went through my pregnancy alone, gave birth alone and am now a single mother.

While my child and I are blessed — I have a good job, Momma left me some money that has helped me buy a home, and my friends are supportive — my heart is broken.

My son's father pays child support, but his priority is the woman he left us for. Everyone tells me I need to be the bigger person, accept the situation and give my son a chance to know his father. I understand all of that, but I am so angry. I feel rejected and debased. I cry all the time. I try to keep a positive face for my son, but sometimes I break down. My son's father and his lady make fun of me and flaunt how happy they are together while I am alone raising my child. The woman enjoys pointing out how hard I have it and how alone I am.

My son is my joy and I love him dearly, but why am I not allowed to be angry at his father and that woman? Why must I be the one who accepts the hurt and difficulty, while my son's father and his lady have their cake and eat it, too? I would really appreciate your thoughts. — HURT MOMMA IN THE EAST

DEAR HURT MOMMA: While you have every right to be angry, has it occurred to you that you may not only be grieving for your mother, but possibly be suffering from postpartum depression as well? Discuss this with your doctor and ask to have your hormone levels checked. It might also benefit you to join a grief support group.

Your ex-boyfriend and his "lady" may appear to have their cake and eat it, too, but it's not true. They have each other, and both of them appear to be miserable people. For the sake of yourself and your son, please stop allowing them to make you miserable, too. You have your beautiful child, and endless possibilities lie ahead if you will open yourself to them. If necessary, find a licensed therapist to help you let go of the negative and get your priorities straight again. Once you succeed in doing this, you'll be fine.

DEAR ABBY: We used to display a wide variety of family pictures on our living room walls. Before repainting, we took them down. Because some of them include our children's former and current relationships, we can't decide which ones we can comfortably "redisplay" without offending anybody.

We have remained on good terms with former in-laws and the children from prior relationships, but the "new" and the "old" never speak of each other, much less enjoy seeing pictorial reminders hanging in our home. Some of our grandchildren are blood relatives; others are not. Our children have moved on to other relationships. This is our home, but we don't want to offend any of the people we welcome into it. Any advice? — PICTURING IT IN ARIZONA

DEAR PICTURING IT: You are a sweet and sensitive person. Talk to your children. Ask how they and their children would feel if you "edit" the collection, and which ones they would prefer you retire. And be sure to offer the outtakes to them rather than toss them.

Kavanaugh denies allegation of sexual misconduct

By Lisa Mascaro
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh on Friday denied an allegation of sexual misconduct from when he was in high school, seeking to defuse a potential threat to his confirmation as a handful of key senators remained silent on whether they would vote for him.

In a statement released by the White House, Kavanaugh said: "I categorically and unequivocally deny this allegation. I did not do this back in high school or at any time."

Senate Republicans insist Kavanaugh's confirmation remains on track. But the allegation has inflamed an already intense political battle over President Donald Trump's nominee. It also pushes the #MeToo movement into the court fight, less than two months before congressional elections that have seen a surge of female Democratic candidates.

The New Yorker magazine reported that the alleged incident took place at a party when Kavanaugh, now 53, was attending Georgetown Preparatory School. The woman making the allegation attended a nearby school.

The magazine says the woman sent a letter about the allegation to Democrats. A Democratic aide and another person familiar with the letter confirmed Friday to The Associated Press that the allegation is sexual in nature. Two other people familiar with the matter confirmed it concerned an incident alleged to have occurred in high school. They were not authorized to speak publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity.

The AP has not confirmed the details of the incident alleged in The New Yorker's account.

Rallying to Kavanaugh's defense, 65 women who knew him in high school issued a letter saying Kavanaugh has "always treated women with decency and respect." The letter was circulated by Republicans on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"We are women who have known Brett Kavanaugh for more than 35 years and knew him while he attended high school between 1979 and 1983," wrote the women, who said most of them had attended all-girl high schools in the area. "For the entire time we have known Brett Kavanaugh, he has behaved honorably and treated women with respect."

The show of support for Kavanaugh was organized by his former law clerks. Three women reached by AP said they were first asked to sign the letter on Thursday.

The swift pushback comes after the Senate Judiciary Committee's top Democrat, Dianne Feinstein of California, notified federal investigators about information she received about the nominee.

Feinstein won't disclose the information publicly, but the FBI confirmed it has included it in Kavanaugh's background file at the committee, now available confidentially to all senators.

Manafort pleads guilty, will cooperate with special counsel

By Eric Tucker, Chad Day and Michael Balsamo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump's former campaign chairman Paul Manafort agreed Friday to cooperate with the special counsel's Trump-Russia investigation as he pleaded guilty to federal crimes and avoided a second trial that could have exposed him to more time in prison.

The deal gives special counsel Robert Mueller a key cooperator who steered the Trump election effort for a pivotal stretch of the 2016 presidential campaign. The result also ensures the investigation will extend far beyond the November congressional elections despite entreaties from the president's lawyers that Mueller bring it to a close.

It is unclear what information Manafort is prepared to offer investigators about the president or that could aid Mueller's investigation into Russian interference in the 2016 election. But his involvement in key episodes under scrutiny, and his leadership of the campaign at a time when prosecutors say Russian intelligence was working to sway the election, may make him an especially valuable witness.

The agreement makes Manafort the latest associate of Trump, a president known to place a premium on loyalty among subordinates, to admit guilt and work with investigators in hopes of leniency.

Manafort had long resisted the idea of cooperating even as prosecutors stacked additional charges against him in Washington and Virginia. Trump had saluted that stance, publicly praising him and suggesting Manafort had been treated worse than gangster Al Capone. Trump's lawyer, Rudy Giuliani, had suggested a pardon might be a possibility after the investigation was concluded.

Then came Friday's extraordinary development when Manafort agreed to provide any information asked of him, testify whenever asked and even work undercover if necessary.

Mueller has already secured cooperation from a former national security adviser who lied to the FBI about discussing sanctions with a Russian ambassador, a campaign aide who broached the idea of a meeting with Russian President Vladimir Putin; and another aide who was indicted alongside Manafort but ultimately turned on him. Trump's former personal lawyer has separately pleaded guilty in New York.

Friday's deal, to charges in Washington tied to Ukrainian political consulting work but unrelated to the campaign, was struck just days before Manafort was to stand trial for a second time.

He was convicted last month of eight financial crimes in a separate trial in Virginia and faces seven to 10 years in prison in that case. The two conspiracy counts he admitted to on Friday carry up to five years, though Manafort's sentence will ultimately depend on his cooperation.

"He wanted to make sure that his family was able to remain safe and live a good life. He's accepted responsibility. This is for conduct that dates back many years and everybody should remember that," Manafort attorney Kevin Downing said outside court.

The agreement doesn't specify what if anything prosecutors hope to receive about Trump, but Manafort could be well-positioned to provide key insight for investigators working to establish whether the campaign coordinated with Russia.

He was among the participants, for instance, in a June 2016 Trump Tower meeting with Russians and Trump's oldest son and son-in-law that was arranged for the campaign to receive derogatory information about Democrat Hillary Clinton. He was also a close business associate of a man who U.S. intelligence believes has ties to Russian intelligence. And while he was working on the campaign, emails show Manafort discussed providing private briefings for a wealthy Russian businessman close to Putin.

White House press secretary Sarah Sanders insisted the Manafort case was unrelated to Trump, and Giuliani said, "Once again an investigation has concluded with a plea having nothing to do with President Trump or the Trump campaign."

It's unclear how the deal might affect any Manafort pursuit of a pardon from Trump, though Giuliani told Politico before the deal that a plea without a cooperation agreement wouldn't foreclose the possibility of a pardon.

Under the terms of the deal, Manafort was allowed to plead guilty to just two counts, though the crimes he admitted largely cover the same conduct alleged in an indictment last year. He abandoned his right to appeal his conviction in Virginia and agreed to forfeit homes in New York, including a condo in Trump Tower.

Franklin out-guns Midland High in 63-42 shootout

By Christopher Hadorn
chadorn@mrt.com

The Midland High football team got caught in a track meet Friday night and it couldn't keep up with El Paso Franklin.

The Cougars racked up 704 total yards to defeat the Bulldogs, 63-42, in a shootout on homecoming at Grande Communications Stadium.

Franklin (1-2) was spearheaded by three magnificent performances, as quarterback Danny Walther completed 19 of 24 passes for 367 yards and four touchdown passes, Taj Crenshaw had 19 rushes for 302 yards and four rushing TDs, and Gabriel Stonewall had six receptions for 231 yards and four TDs.

The Bulldogs (1-2) lit up the scoreboard as well, with 611 total yards of their own.

MHS senior quarterback Suddin Sapien shined by completing 24 of 44 passes for 315 passing yards, had 28 rushes for 186 and accounted for four total touchdowns.

On a designed passing play, Sapien scrambled and scored on a 71-yard run in the fourth quarter.

But MHS couldn't match the Cougars score for score in the second half, as Crenshaw broke away on three fourth-quarter scoring runs to help Franklin out-score the Bulldogs, 28-14, in the final period.

The turning point occurred at the beginning of the fourth quarter when Midland High was trailing 35-28. The Bulldogs went for it on fourth-and-4 at the Cougar 20-yard line and Sapien appeared to have the first down on a 4-yard run, but he coughed up the football before hitting the turf and it was recovered by Franklin at the 14.

One play later, Crenshaw broke loose on a 75-yard TD run to give the Cougars a two-score lead with 10:22 to play.

The Bulldogs moved the ball into the red zone on their next possession, but DQ Harris was stopped for a 1-yard loss on fourth-and-2 from the Franklin 16-yard line. One play following the turnover on downs, Crenshaw found daylight on a 74-yard run to push Franklin to a 49-28 advantage with 6:28 left.

"As the game went on defensively, we couldn't get a stop," MHS head coach Tim Anuszkiewicz said. "Really that's two weeks in a row where we've got to find out what works for us on defense. We've got to make some improvements there. We've got to get better in the secondary. We're giving up too many big plays. Our football team in the fourth quarter today, we just didn't get the best effort that we can give, so we're going to improve that. We're going to get better."

For the third time in three games, MHS couldn't overcome a slow start.

The Bulldogs' offense went three-and-out on all four first quarter possessions

Taylor provides spark in Lee victory over Rams

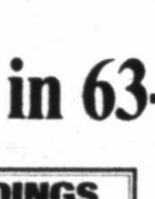
By Jeremy Carranco
MRT Correspondent

EL PASO — Lee jumped out to an early 21-0 lead, setting the tone for a dominating 42-6 drubbing of El Paso Montwood on Friday afternoon at the Socorro Student Activities Complex.

Karl Taylor returned a kick 97 yards for a touchdown right before halftime to cut off any momentum for the Rams heading into the locker room.

Montwood got on the board just once with a 13-yard touchdown pass from Ivan Fernandez, before Taylor's touchdown return with five seconds remaining in the first half for a 28-6 lead at the break.

"When we didn't play well for one series, he gave us back the momentum," Lee head coach Clint Hartman said. "He's one heck of a player and I couldn't be prouder of how he stepped up for us today."



Taylor

Taylor also stopped a chance at any big plays for the Montwood offense with two interceptions, leading a swarming Rebels defensive attack.

"He works even harder than he plays," Hartman said. "It showed out there today in more ways than one."

The Rebels held Montwood to just 21 yards rushing, 111 yards below the Rams average this season. Meanwhile, Lee passed over their season average with 225 yards off 18 attempts in a combined effort from Felix Hinojosa and Michael Serrano.

Hartman

Hinojosa finished the game with 179 yards and two touchdowns while four different runners scored, including two for 70-plus yards from Logan Acosta and Shemar

Midland Christian holds on to beat Wall by one point

By Oscar LeRoy

Midland Christian's Mathew Madison admitted it was a nerve-racking experience watching Wall storm back to cut the lead to one point late in the game on Friday night.

The Hawks pulled to within 35-34 with 2 minutes, 31 seconds remaining on a 23-yard TD pass from Mason Fuchs to the 6-foot-3 Cameron Barnes.

Wall then decided to go for the win with a 2-point conversion attempt.

Fuchs' pass was batted down in front of the Hawks' receiver in the end zone, and the Mustangs held on for the thrilling victory at Gordon Awtry Field to stay unbeaten on the season.

"It was good. We wanted that game," said Madison, who rushed for 107 yards and three touchdowns in the win. "We all pitched in for the

NFL keeps open pipeline for game officials

Referee Shawn Smith, second from right, and members of his crew meet for a conference during an NFL game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cleveland Browns on Sept. 9 in Cleveland. NFL officials come from a pipeline established by the Nleague(that seeks to identify people with the right skill set, temperament and judgment to handle a thankless job week after week.

NEW YORK — One NFL fan is enraged by a penalty flag he sees fly on TV. He turns to the woman next to him and asks, "Where do they get these guys?"

Replay then proves the call was correct, and the fan just shrugs as the woman replies: "Guess they know what they are doing" about the officials.

Those officials come from a pipeline established by the NFL that seeks to identify people with the right skill set, temperament and judgment to handle a thankless job week after week.

Often, the league puts a high premium on experience, even when some officials no longer seem to have the agility to keep up with the incredible speed of the game. Among current referees alone, Walt Coleman is in his 30th year as an NFL official, Walt Anderson has begun his 23rd, and Tony Corrente is in his 24th. Overall, there are 19 officials in the 20th or more season of their NFL career, and another 33 with at least 15 years on the job.

That doesn't mean the older guys can't handle that job. As explained by recently retired referee Gene Steratore, now with CBS as an analyst, "The officials learn from all the time they spend on the field about angles and getting the best view on a play."

He points to the new rule banning any hit initiated with the lowering of the head and use of the helmet, whether by a defender or offensive player. Noting it is a "necessary rule change to protect the safety of the players," Steratore understands there's an adjustment period for those players and the officials before reaching a full understanding of what should draw a flag.

"Sure there's a learning curve for them," he says, "but then a trigger will show right before that contact, and it will become clear if it is a penalty. I think that will come in a fast period of time."

It did. One such penalty was called in Week 1, on Kansas City safety Ron Parker.

The NFL, which has seven new officials this season, has a distinct pipeline for talent. It's not entirely unlike the flow for players in that many referees, umpires, linesman and judges come from the college ranks. But the in-depth process can begin well before the highest-college levels.

"We look at officials at the high school level," says Al Riveron, the NFL's officiating director. "After a few years in high school, they might move to the lower college ranks and then to the Power 5 conferences. We have a staff of 72 scouts and supervisors and our full-time officials who look at you. We first home in on their skills, and we are thinking long term of we have an interest in you. At some point, you could be ready (for the pros)."

To aid in the process, the league created the Officiating Development Program. Candidates must receive medical clearance, pass a background check, take a psychological assessment and complete an in-person interview with a panel of NFL staffers.

If they are accepted into the program, they study position-specific film with veteran NFL officials and current officiating supervisors. They get familiar with NFL rules that often are different from colleges. For example, clock stoppages to move the chains on first downs, or one foot in bounds on receptions.

Then the prospective officials attend an NFL preseason officiating clinic, participate in minicamps and training camps, and some work a NFL preseason game. They could get some experience in the Senior Bowl, East-West Shrine Game or NFLPA bowl game, as well.

When they are assessed for potential employment, the categories are:

—Ready for the highest level. The official gets a spot on an NFL crew when an opening comes.

—Great work, but room to improve. The league likes what it sees in the official, but determines he or she is not quite ready for the NFL. That officials remains in the program.

—Not the right fit. The league does not see this official working in the NFL.

There are 39 officials in the program this year.

The NFL always is looking for outlets through which to develop game officials. The CFL and Arena League have been options, and they could have another when the Alliance of American Footballs starts up the week after the Super Bowl.

"We're keeping a big eye on the Alliance," Riveron says enthusiastically. "The more officials get to see live snaps, the greater that is."

Midlander takes lead in first round of statewide tourney

From staff reports

HOUSTON — Midland's Jay McHugh fired a 4-under-par 68 on a rain-soaked Friday to take the lead in the first round of the 2018 Texas Mid-Amateur Championship at River Oaks Country Club.

McHugh, a 39-year-old Oil Field Salesman, took advantage of playing in the afternoon wave, which largely dodged the steady downpour that lasted throughout the morning. McHugh got off to a fast start with birdies on three of his first six holes. He added an eagle on the par-5 eighth hole and made the turn at 5-under par. McHugh held on with a birdie and two bogeys on the back nine to sign for 68. That gave him a one-shot lead over Robert Mills, of Houston, and Christopher Wheeler, of Addison.

McHugh came into River Oaks riding a hot streak. He won twice in August; both victories came in his native West Texas. McHugh teamed with 2014 Texas Mid-Amateur champion Terence Begnel to win the Lubbock Par Buster Four-Ball Championship in early August. A week later, McHugh chased down Begnel to win the Midland City Championship. Begnel held a five-shot lead going into the final round, but McHugh shot a 12-under 60 to win by three shots.

"I've had some success in the last month," McHugh said. "Terence told me to stay aggressive and not overthink things. I hit driver pretty much everywhere on the front nine."

Round 2 of the championship begins at 8 a.m. Saturday. Following the conclusion of the second round, the field will be cut to the low 54 scores, including ties.

Paisley is a 4-year-old female Boxer Mix that was brought in recently after her previous owner passed away. Paisley will be a loyal and protective friend to her house and owners. Paisley is very friendly with people. She can be playful, or be a couch potato, too. Paisley would probably do best as an only dog in the home. Paisley may do ok with cats as she is non-reactive to cats here and been around them before. Paisley does well with school aged children. She is an obedient dog who loves to please.

and didn't convert its initial first down until the second quarter.

Meanwhile, Franklin took advantage, as Walther connected with Stonewall on two long touchdown passes in the first quarter to give the Cougars a 14-0 lead.

Stonewall gashed the Bulldog defense for big plays, scoring on four separate touchdowns that were all at least 35 yards or more.

"We didn't get any first downs in the first quarter," Anuszkiewicz said. "We're going three-and-out. We're not getting any productivity in the first quarter."

The MHS offense eventually got it going, as the Bulldogs tied the game at 21-all in the third quarter when Randall Blanscett hauled in a 35-yard TD pass from Sapien.

Later in the third quarter, Blanscett scored on a 15-yard reception from Sapien on a fade route, evening the score at 28-all. Blanscett, in his MHS debut, had six catches for 120 yards and two TD catches.

"Randall is a great athlete," Anuszkiewicz said. "He is a great addition to our team right now. He's going to allow us to make some moves where we can get better in some other areas on the field."

The Bulldogs had a balanced attack with 296 yards rushing and 315 yards passing. MHS visits Abilene High at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Shotwell Stadium.

win, it was not just me. We wanted it more. I felt like Coach (Greg McClendon) did a good job of preparing us and we came out with the 'W.'"

Wall coach Houston Guy said there was no doubt about going for two in that situation.

"We said if we score, we're going for two and going for the win," he said. "We didn't feel like we could play with them in overtime. We decided to win it right now and go for it."

Midland Christian dominated the game for three quarters and took advantage of Wall miscues.

MCS (3-0) had a 28-7 lead at the half as quarterback Riggs McDonald had 167 of his 243 yards in the first half.

The Mustangs were still in control with a 35-14 lead after the third quarter when the Hawks made their rally.

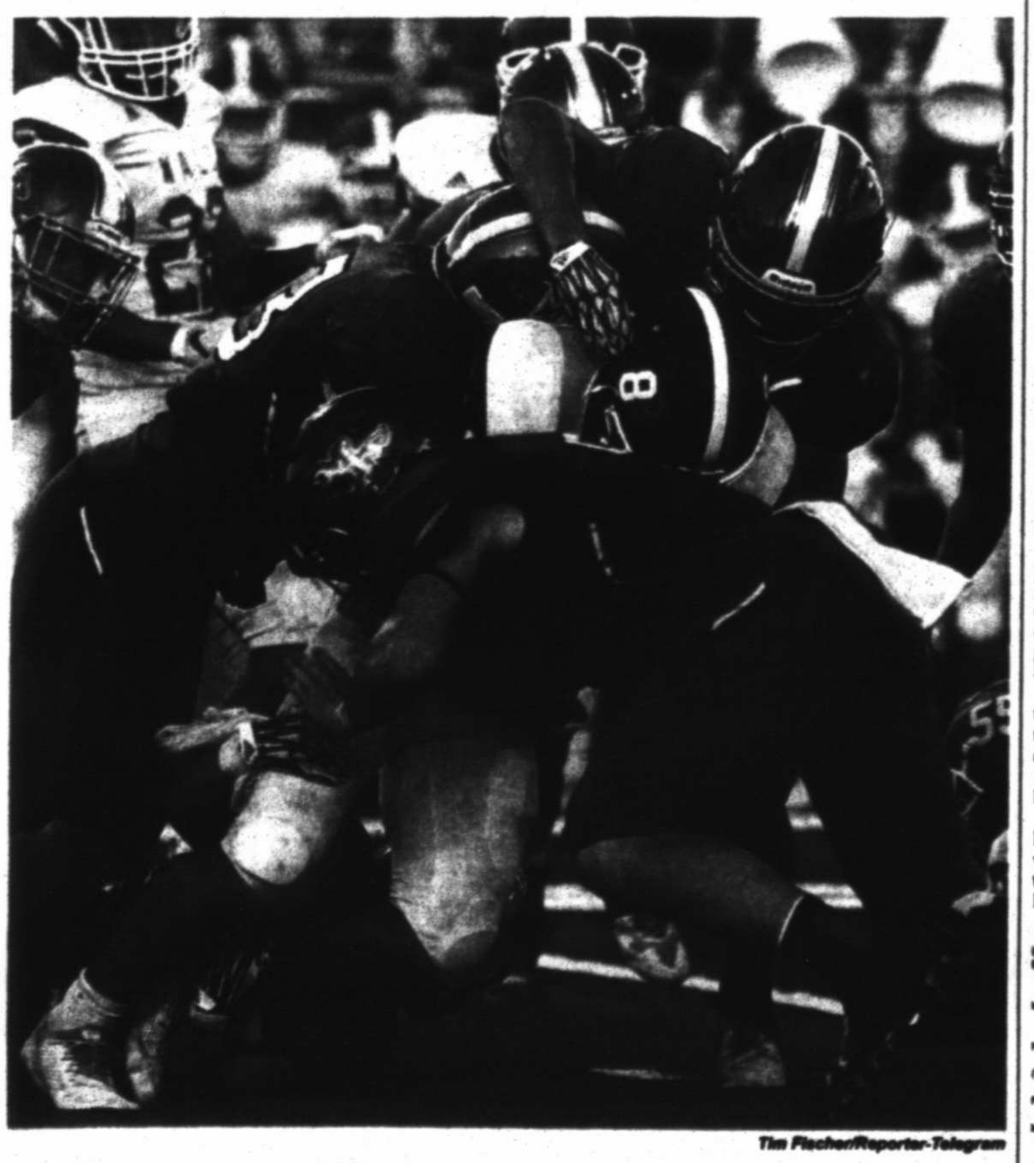
The Hawks (0-2), whose only other loss came against Class 2A No. 2-ranked Mason in Week 1, rode the rushing of Sutton Braden, mixed in with Fuchs' passing. Braden was especially tough as he finished with 218 yards and two touchdowns on 20 carries.

Guy said after not executing very well in the first half, he said his kids battled in the second half.

"I told the team that we're not going to make adjustments at halftime, we're going to grow up," he said. "We felt like this was a team we should be playing with. We played a lot better in the second half. I thought the defense played lights out and offense was able to put some points on the board."

On the other side of the field, the Mustangs got a gutsy performance for Madison, a junior who had to step up for the injured Ben Gibbs.

"He did a nice job of running and gave us a huge lift on offense, while carrying a heavy load on defense. My hat's off to him, for sure," said McClendon about Madison.



Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Christian defenders combine to stop Wall's Sutton Braden on Friday at Gordon Awtry Field.

McClendon said he was proud of the way his team fought but wished his team could have put the game away sooner.

"We did a great job in the first half offensively and defensively, but Wall is a good football team and has a great coaching staff," McClendon said. "I did not think we did a very good job of executing in the second half. Some of it was mistakes, some of it was self-inflicted. I didn't do a very good job of coaching in the second half and I'll get better. It's not like we didn't know (Wall) could do that. The kids made plays at the end."

Davis in the third quarter.

Josh Traylor totaled 75 yards for Lee (2-1), including the first score of the game that opened the flood gates. Sheldon Bass finished with 26 yards and a touchdown.

"We preached our running game last week and I think we executed it the best today," Hartman said after the win. "We have fighters but we're still looking to improve next week."

Hartman encouraged his team to improve its running attack this past week. The Rebels responded with 234 yards on the ground, 60 yards above their average.

"That's how you respond to a hard week of practice," Hartman said. "We've set challenges for our guys, one being the running game and another being Rebels the rest of the way."

The win gives the Rebels their third straight over the Rams, moving to 3-1 against Montwood and 14-5 against teams from El Paso all-time.

Midland Lee will host El Paso Eastwood (1-2) next week while Montwood travels to take on Odessa High.

YANKEES 11, BLUE JAYS 0

NEW YORK — Aaron Judge returned to the Yankees for the first time since his right wrist was broken seven weeks ago, taking over in right field for the final two innings of New York's 11-0 romp over the Toronto Blue Jays on Friday night.

Judge had not played since July 26, when he was hit by a pitch from Kansas City's Jakob Junis. The Yankees say for now Judge will be limited to defense and pinch running, but they hope he will become a regular at some point in the regular season's final two weeks.

He was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 40,138 when he ran onto the field for the start of the eighth and another a minute later when he was introduced by public address announcer Paul Olden. Judge ran to the base of the right-field wall after his warmup tosses — just in front of the Judge's Chambers. He handed the ball to a woman in the first row who passed it to a widely smiling girl next to her. Before the ninth, Judge tossed his warmup ball into the upper deck.

Toronto did not hit any balls to Judge.

Masahiro Tanaka (12-5), bidding to start a likely wild-card game against Oakland on Oct. 3, extended his scoreless streak to 20 innings and won his third straight start. Dominating with a sharp splitter, Tanaka struck out eight in six innings and allowed four hits. Luis Cessa got his second save in New York's largest shutout win margin since a 15-0 victory over the Mets on June 14, 2009.

New York improved to 13-4 against Toronto this season. Starting their final homestand, the Yankees remained 1½ games ahead of the Athletics for home field in the wild-card game.

Judge, the reigning AL Rookie of the Year, is hitting .285 with 26 home runs and 61 RBIs. New York originally projected he would sidelined by the injury for three weeks, but pain lingered and he missed 45 games.

"It's about hopefully getting him enough at-bats to where he can kind of knock off some of that rust, and hopefully that timing comes back sooner rather than later and he gets in a comfortable place as we head into the final week and into October," Yankees manager Aaron Boone said before the game.

Luke Voit hit a two-run double that capped a five-run first inning against Marco Estrada (7-12), who tied a career worst by allowing eight runs and lasted just 2 2/3 innings.

Andrew McCutchen hit his third home run since the Yankees acquired him from San Francisco on Aug. 31 for outfield depth while Judge remains out. McCutchen doubled leading off the first and scored New York's first run and also singled and walked twice. To make room for Judge, he shifted to left for the first time since 2009 at Triple-A.

ATHLETICS 2, RAYS 1 (10 INNINGS)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Khris Davis led off the 10th inning with his major league-leading 42nd homer, and the Oakland Athletics beat the Tampa Bay Rays 2-1 on Friday night.

Oakland extended its lead for the second AL wild card to nine games over the surprising Rays. Tampa Bay has 16 games left.

The A's remained 1½ games behind the New York Yankees for the first wild card. The Yankees beat Toronto 11-0.

Davis' drive to center off Jaime Schultz (2-1) was his 40th this season as a designated hitter. He joins David Ortiz has the only DHs to have 40 or more homers.

Oakland had just three hits against nine Tampa Bay pitchers.

Blake Treinen (7-2) went two scoreless innings for the win.

Matt Chapman doubled for the first A's hit with one out in the fourth and scored on Matt Olson's single.

Tampa Bay tied it later in the fourth when Tommy Pham extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a pop-fly double into shallow center field and crossed the plate on Joey Wendle's base hit.

Oakland reliever Shawn Kelley worked out of a second-and-third, no-out jam in the sixth.

Athletics starter Edwin Jackson allowed one run and four hits in five innings.

Reliever Diego Castillo opened the game for the Rays and struck out four over two perfect innings.

Sergio Romo retired all three batters in the ninth in his second appearance for the Rays since Aug. 25. He recorded a two-out save on Sept. 4 at Toronto.

TIGERS 5, INDIANS 4

CLEVELAND — Andrew Miller gave up two RBI doubles in the seventh inning as Cleveland's march to the AL Central title was slowed by the Detroit Tigers, who beat the Indians 5-4 on Friday night to end a 10-game losing streak at Progressive Field.

Miller, making his third appearance since coming off the disabled list, relieved Adam Cimber (0-2) in the seventh, but couldn't stop the Tigers from snapping a 2-2 tie.

Jeimer Candelario, who homered in the first, doubled home one run and Victor Martinez also doubled off Miller, a former All-Star who has been on the DL three times and has not been as dominant.

The Indians entered with a 15-game lead and magic number of two to win their third straight division title and secure a postseason berth that has been a foregone conclusion for months.

Any celebrating remains on hold for at least another day.

Cleveland scored twice in the ninth to cut it to 5-4 against closer Shane Greene, who finally retired Francisco Lindor on a fly to right with the tying run at second.

Josh Donaldson homered and went 2 for 4 in his home debut for Cleveland, and Edwin Encarnacion connected for his 31st homer.

Drew VerHagen (3-2) got two outs in the sixth and Greene worked a shaky ninth for his 29th save.

Tigers starter Matthew Boyd held the Indians to just one hit until the sixth, when former Toronto teammates Encarnacion and Donaldson tied it with consecutive homers.

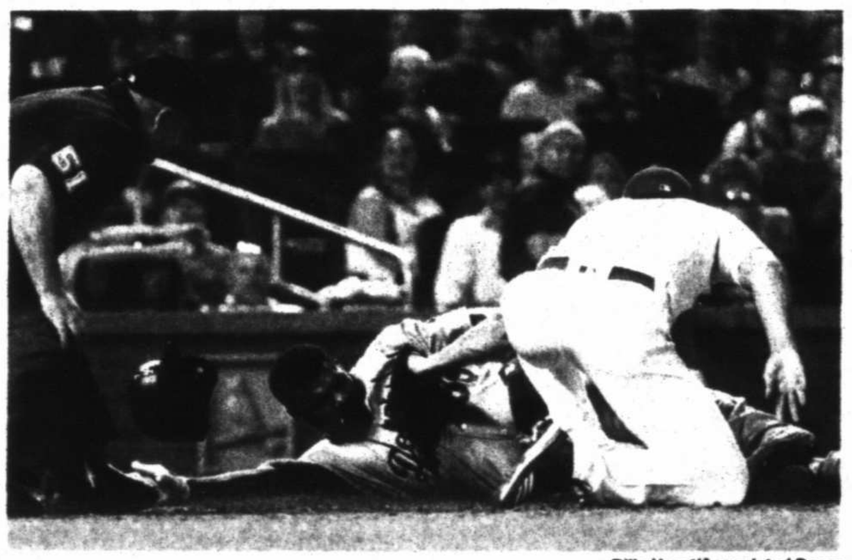
First, Encarnacion hit a towering shot into the left-field seats.

After returning to the dugout following his "walking the parrot" home run ritual, Encarnacion had just peeled off his batting gloves when Donaldson got the green light on a 3-0 pitch and lifted it over the wall for his first hit in eight at-bats with the Indians.

The moment was one Cleveland fans are hoping to see again in October from Donaldson, who was acquired from the Blue Jays on Aug. 31.

Josh Tomlin made his first start for the Indians since May 21, but was in trouble right away as Candelario connected for a 422-foot homer on the game's third pitch.

It was the 23rd homer allowed by Tomlin in just 55 2/3 innings. Tomlin's habit of giving up homers was one of the reasons he was dropped from the rotation earlier this season, and perhaps why his career could be coming to a close.



Billy Hurst/Associated Press

Los Angeles Dodgers' Yasiel Puig, center, is tagged out at the plate by St. Louis Cardinals relief pitcher Dakota Hudson, as he attempted to score on a passed ball during the seventh inning Friday in St. Louis.

WHITE SOX 8, ORIOLES 6

BALTIMORE — James Shields picked up his first road victory since opening day and the Chicago White Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-6 on a soggy Friday night.

Ryan Cordell earned his first career hit with a homer in the eighth that provided a key insurance run. Omar Narvaez and Avisail Garcia also homered for the White Sox, who won for just the second time in nine games.

Shields (7-16) leads the majors in losses but was sharp against Baltimore. He allowed two runs and four hits with five strikeouts and one walk over six innings. Shields had gone winless in his 12 previous road appearances.

Chicago left-hander Aaron Bummer started the seventh and loaded the bases. Ian Hamilton entered with one out and allowed a two-run single to pinch-hitter Cörban Joseph that pulled Baltimore to within 7-4. A fielding error by second baseman Yoan Moncada let another run to score before Adam Jones hit a sacrifice fly.

Jace Fry contained the Orioles down with a scoreless eighth, setting up Nate Jones to pick up his fifth save.

Luis Ortiz (0-1), obtained in the Jonathan Schoop trade with Milwaukee on July 31, made his first major league start for Baltimore and threw 1 2/3 innings before leaving with an apparent leg injury. He allowed three runs (one earned) and four hits with a walk.

Trey Mancini hit a pair of homers for the Orioles and has 23 on the season.

Chicago got on the board in the first on a two-out, RBI single by Daniel Palka.

A triple by Nicky Delmonico and an infield single by Moncada increased the lead to 3-0 and Ortiz left a batter later. Moncada finsihed with three hits.

Mancini hit a solo shot in the second off Shields, who has allowed 31 homers on the season, second in the majors behind the Orioles' Dylan Bundy.

Narvaez answered in third with a two-run shot off Jimmy Yacabonis. Mancini hit another solo homer in the fourth that pulled Baltimore to within 5-2.

Yacabonis allowed a two-run shot to Garcia in the fifth and exited two batters later.

Miami manager Don Mattingly had catcher Bryan Holaday to pitch the ninth. Holaday gave up a two-run shot to Walding, who recorded his first career hit after going 0 for 14 with 10 strikeouts.

CUBS 3, REDS 2

CHICAGO — Ian Happ hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning, Jorge De La Rosa worked a shaky ninth for his first career save and the Chicago Cubs beat the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 on Friday night.

De La Rosa surrendered a one-out double to Curt Casali and walked Billy Hamilton with two down before Scott Schebler flied out to center. It was the first save opportunity for Chicago since Pedro Strop strained his left hamstring trying to beat out a double-play grounder during Thursday's 4-3 victory at Washington, shelving the key reliever for the rest of the regular season.

Strop had been subbing for injured closer Brandon Morrow, who is on the disabled list with a right arm injury.

Ben Zobrist had three hits for NL Central-leading Chicago, which entered with a 1 1/2-game advantage over second-place Milwaukee. After Cole Hamels allowed two runs over 6 2/3 innings, Dillon Maples (1-0) got the final out of the seventh for his first career win.

DODGERS 3, CARDINALS 0

ST. LOUIS — Rookie Walker Buehler allowed two hits in eight innings, Yasiel Puig homered twice and the Los Angeles Dodgers drew even with the St. Louis Cardinals in the NL wild-card race with a 3-0 victory on Friday night.

Buehler (7-5) pitched beyond the seventh inning for the first time and earned his first victory since Aug. 17. He retired the first 13 batters before Paul DeJong singled to left field. Harrison Bader singled later in the fifth for the Cardinals' only other hit.

Buehler struck out nine and walked two. In two career starts against St. Louis, he has not allowed a run and has 18 strikeouts in 15 innings.

The Dodgers and Cardinals are tied for the second NL wild-card position, four games behind Milwaukee for the top spot. Los Angeles entered 1½ games behind first-place Colorado in the NL West.

Puig homered in the second off Jack Flaherty (8-7) and connected again in the ninth off Tyler Webb. It was his second multi-homer game of the season.

In the seventh, Cody Bellinger scored on a passed ball by Yadier Molina.

Kenley Jansen hit Yairo Munoz with a pitch to open the ninth but retired the next three batters to finish the two-hitter, earning his 35th save in 39 opportunities.

Flaherty worked six innings, allowing one run on four hits with two walks and eight strikeouts. He has 168 strikeouts this season, the fourth-best total for a rookie in franchise history.

National League

PHILLIES 14, MARLINS 2

PHILADELPHIA — Aaron Altherr homered twice and drove in five runs, helping the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Miami Marlins 14-2 on Friday night.

Roman Quinn, Rhys Hoskins and Mitch Walding also connected for the Phillies, who snapped a five-game losing streak. Zach Eflin (10-7) pitched 6 1/3 innings of one-run ball.

J.T. Realmuto homered for Miami, which dropped its fourth straight. Wei-Yin Chen (6-11) was tagged for five runs and seven hits in four innings.

The 27-year-old Altherr was expected to be a regular contributor for Philadelphia after he had 19 homers and 65 RBIs in 107 games last season. But the outfielder struggled with his swing all spring and was sent down to Triple-A Lehigh Valley on July 22 after hitting just .171 with four homers.

Altherr connected for a two-run shot in the second for his first homer since he was recalled on Sept. 2. Quinn, returning to the lineup for the first time in nine days, added a two-out drive for a 3-0 lead.

The speedy Quinn, who had been sidelined by a small fracture in his right foot, used his legs to help the Phillies tack on two more runs in the fourth. With the bases loaded and one out, Quinn hit a routine grounder to second, but the Marlins couldn't turn the double play.

Chen struck out four and walked two in another slugging performance on the road. The left-hander is 5-3 with a 1.77 ERA in 12 home starts, but just 1-8 with a 9.29 ERA in 12 road starts.

Eflin permitted five hits and walked one in his first win since Aug. 16. The right-hander was 0-3 with an 8.64 ERA in his last four appearances.

Interleague

METS 8, RED SOX 0

BOSTON — Noah Syndergaard pitched seven innings of three-hit ball and the New York Mets hit four homers on Friday night to cool off the Red Sox 8-0 and snap Boston's four-game winning streak.

The Red Sox, who lead the majors with 101 victories, had their lead over the New York Yankees in the AL East reduced to 9½ games. The only team in baseball to have already secured a playoff berth, Boston's magic number to clinch its third straight division title remained at six.

Syndergaard (12-3) struck out six and walked three to lead the Mets to their fourth straight victory and sixth win in their last seven games. Jay Bruce hit a three-run homer in the third, Austin Jackson hit a two-run shot in the eighth, and Jeff McNeil and Amed Rosario had solo shots for New York.

The Red Sox only got one baserunner to third, in the third inning when Ian Kinsler singled and stole second, then Jackie Bradley Jr. walked and they pulled off an uncontested double steal. But Syndergaard struck out No. 9 hitter Blake Swihart to end the threat.

Bruce also had a run-scoring double in the first against Red Sox emergency starter William Cuevas, who was making his first major league start because Hector Velazquez got sick. Cuevas (0-1) allowed back-to-back doubles to Michael Conforto and Bruce in the first, and then left after giving up Rosario's leadoff single in the third.

Robby Scott hit Conforto with one out and then gave up Bruce's homer to right. McNeil made it 5-0 in the fourth and Jackson cleared the Green Monster and the billboards above it to give the Mets a 7-0 lead. One out later, Rosario also put one over the left-field wall to make it 8-0 and chase Tyler Thornburg.

Hamilton predicting 3-way fight for pole at Singapore GP

By Jerome Pugmire
Associated Press

SINGAPORE — Formula One championship leader Lewis Hamilton is predicting a three-way fight for pole position at the Singapore Grand Prix.

The Mercedes driver was just .011 seconds behind Kimi Raikkonen's Ferrari in Friday's second practice session under floodlights, with Red Bull drivers Max Verstappen and Daniel Ricciardo behind them in third and fourth.

Sebastian Vettel's practice session ended early after he clipped a wall and damaged the right rear of his Ferrari, but Hamilton thinks Ferrari may have been holding something back in terms of speed and expects them to be at their competitive best on today.

"We were close to the Ferraris, but we will only find out tomorrow how quick they really are," said Hamilton, who has an F1-record 78 pole positions. "We will see how it goes, but it's looking like it might be a three-way fight between Ferrari, Red Bull and us."

Verstappen was not so sure, even though the sinewy and tight-twisting 3.1-mile Marina Bay track suits Red Bull well because it limits the superior speed Ferrari and Mercedes normally enjoy over other teams.

"I don't think we have the pace to fight for pole," the Dutch driver said. "Some hard work tonight should put us in a good position with ability to attack."

Ferrari driver Kimi Raikkonen of Finland leaves the pit during second practice at the Marina Bay City Circuit ahead of the Singapore Formula One Grand Prix on Friday in Singapore.

Although the second session started in the evening, there was no breeze at all and stifling heat and humidity were relentlessly intense.

"It is crazy hot in the cockpit. You're sweating even before you get into the car," Hamilton said. "In the second (practice), I think I lost almost two kilos, so I will lose even more on Sunday (for the race)."

His teammate, the Finn Valtteri Bottas, described it another way.

"It's especially tough around this track," he said. "It's a bit like doing exercise in a cockpit that's 60 degrees (Celsius, 120 Fahrenheit.)"

The heat may have affected concentration, as Hamilton stalled his Mercedes early in the second session after misjudging the entry into a turn.

The British driver drove solidly after that, with Verstappen half a second behind and Ricciardo not too far back.

Vettel, meanwhile, trailed nearly two seconds behind Raikkonen in ninth, but on slower tires than his teammate.

The German driver could not get onto the quicker tires after his incident forced him back to the garage, although the extent of the damage was not immediately clear.

It was hardly ideal preparation for Vettel, who has looked out of form in recent races.

He is second in the overall standings and trails Hamilton by 30 points with six races remaining after Singapore.

Both drivers are aiming for a fifth F1 title.

Earlier, Ricciardo was quickest in the first practice ahead of Verstappen, with Vettel third and Raikkonen fourth.

In the first session, Hamilton had a scary moment when his front wheels locked and he momentarily veered off the track.

Also, Sauber driver Charles Leclerc, who is replacing Raikkonen at Ferrari next year, mangled his front right suspension after clipping the barriers.

There is a final practice today before qualifying at 9 p.m. local time.

Gennady Golovkin listens during a news conference Wednesday in Las Vegas. Golovkin is scheduled to fight Canelo Alvarez in a title bout Saturday in Las Vegas. BELOW: Canelo Alvarez poses.

Golovkin, Alvarez meet with bad intentions

By Tim Dahlberg
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Canelo Alvarez has gone to bed the last few months thinking about how he's going to knock out Gennady Golovkin in their middleweight title rematch.

To wake up Sunday morning as the 160-pound champion, though, he'll have to take some chances he didn't in his first fight with Golovkin a year ago. And that could be a real problem against a fearsome puncher who has knocked out 34 fighters in his 39 professional fights.

"I know it's going to be a tough fight," Alvarez said. "But I'm going in there to knock him out."

Alvarez and Golovkin get another chance to settle what they couldn't last September when they meet in a rematch of their first fight, which ended in a draw. They do so today on the Las Vegas Strip not as the gentleman fighters they portrayed themselves to be then, but as bitter rivals who legitimately seem to dislike each other.

That showed at Friday's weigh-in, when the two fighters had to be separated in their only face-to-face appearance before the fight. Golovkin weighed 159.6 pounds and Alvarez weighed 159.4.

A positive test by Alvarez for clenbuterol forced the rematch to be postponed from May. At the same time it produced some hard feelings between the two fighters over Alvarez's contention that it was caused by eating contaminated meat in his native Mexico.

Whether that translates into a more entertaining fight remains to be seen. But both fighters seem determined not to let it be decided by the ringside judges.

"It's a real fight," Golovkin said this week. "Like a real war."

Golovkin (38-0-1, 34 knockouts) is a slight favorite in the rematch, much as he was in the first fight. Many at ringside thought he won that bout, but Alvarez pulled off a draw by winning the late rounds as the 36-year-old Golovkin seemed to fade.

The fight wasn't the "big drama show" that Triple G likes to talk about, with neither fighter down and neither fighter really hurt. But it was a tough, competitive matchup that delivered in other ways even without a winner at the end.

"I had a great experience from the first fight," Golovkin said. "It's a little bit different this time, but I believe it will be a big fight for the fans."

Alvarez (49-1-2, 34 knockouts) believes that, too, but sees a different result. It's one he's envisioned nightly in bed as he goes over scenarios that will help him win.

"Every night in my bed before I go to sleep I visualize what I need to do to get the knockout," Alvarez said through an interpreter. "I know it's going to be a tough fight."

The fight, which carries a pay-per-view price tag of $84.95, is big for the careers of both men. But Alvarez may have more at stake than Golovkin, the puncher from Kazakhstan who has held pieces of the middleweight title for eight years.

The most popular fighter in his native Mexico, Alvarez has taken a hit from some of his rabid fans both for testing positive and for not fighting more aggressively. He can only talk about the doping that got him suspended for six months by Nevada boxing authorities, but he can do something in the ring to alter the perception that his style is too conservative.

Golovkin trainer Abel Sanchez hopes he does just that.

"He's promised the fans he's going to knock him out but in order to do that you have to be in range and then it gets dangerous," Sanchez said. "In order to win a fight you have to want to win a fight."

Golovkin has — mostly through his trainer — tried to goad Alvarez into taking more chances in the rematch, claiming the Mexican star ran in the first fight. A more stationary Alvarez, of course, would make him easier to hit, but Alvarez is more comfortable as a boxer and counter puncher and used those skills to his advantage in the first fight.

The first fight delivered not only in the ring but at the cash register, with a $27 million gate and 1.3 million pay-per-view buys. The rematch is sold out, but a lackluster promotion might make it more difficult to sell as many pay-per-views as the two fighters did when they first met.

NASCAR champion Truex needs sponsor to keep team intact

Martin Truex Jr. watches times during qualifications for a NASCAR Cup Series race at Michigan International Speedway on Aug. 10 in Brooklyn, Mich.

BRISTOL, Tenn. — NASCAR champion Martin Truex Jr. needs sponsorship to stay with his championship-winning race team.

Truex is locked in a fierce battle with former champions Kyle Busch and Kevin Harvick in his push to defend last year's Cup Series title. His Furniture Row Racing team is in the mix even though the future of the No. 78 team is in flux.

Furniture Row is seeking a primary sponsor for next year, and does not have contracts with Truex or manufacturer Toyota. He said he hopes to have a better idea on what his future holds in the next few weeks.

"Right now, we need sponsorship. That's as simple as it gets," Truex said Friday. "Is there a 50 percent chance we get that in the next couple of weeks? Or is there a 100 percent chance? Or is there 2 percent? I don't know. I can tell you that everything really is based upon that."

Colorado-based Furniture Row for years was sponsored by team owner Barney Visser, who with Truex was finally able to sell inventory and bring funding to the car. The team had a breakout 2017 season and won the Cup title, but 5-Hour Energy is leaving at the end of the season and Visser doesn't want to return to funding the operation out of pocket.

Truex won a career-best eight races last year and his first Cup title. He's got four wins this year and is considered part of the dominant "Big 3" along with Busch and Harvick.

Now his name is suddenly mentioned as a potential replacement for Kurt Busch at Stewart-Haas Racing, where he would be Harvick's teammate, or a myriad of other possibilities. He's heard all the rumors, as has his race team, and they are trying to focus on defending their title.

"We always feel like that at the end of the day, if we do our jobs and we do them well and we're winning races, that's our best opportunity to keep things going the way they are," Truex said. "The commitments people made to us are through the end of the season and so no matter what happens, this is a professional sport and we need to hold up our end of the deal and the guys all understand that. We're going to fight as hard as we can no matter what next year looks like — fight as hard as we can throughout the season and try to repeat what we did last year."

Anchor who called Trump a white supremacist leaving ESPN

Jemele Hill attends ESPN: The Party 2017 on Feb. 3, 2017, in Houston. The outspoken ESPN personality has announced she is leaving the company.

BRISTOL, Conn. — Outspoken ESPN personality Jemele Hill announced Friday that she is leaving the company after 12 years as a commentator, anchor, reporter and writer.

Hill attracted attention last year and was briefly suspended for opinionated messages on social media, including a tweet that referenced President Donald Trump as a "white supremacist who has largely surrounded himself w/ other white supremacists."

She also targeted Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones after he stated that players who disrespect the flag would not play for his team. Her suspension came after she tweeted that fans who disagree with Jones should target the team's advertisers and not buy the team's merchandise.

Hill posted on social media that Friday would be her last day at ESPN.

"This was the place where I became the best version of myself, both personally and professionally," she wrote. "However, the time has come for me to begin a new chapter in my life."

Hill became a rising star at ESPN while hosting the opinion-based talk show "His & Hers" with Michael Smith.

Smith and Hill were later tapped to host a personality-driven 6 p.m. edition of the network's signature "SportsCenter" program.

She left that role in January and went to work primarily for The Undefeated, a company website that concentrates on issues of sports, race and culture.

Connor Schell, ESPN's executive vice president for content, issued a statement praising Hill as "an exceptionally talented writer, storyteller host and commentator whose unique voice has made ESPN's many platforms better over the last 12 years."

"As she moves forward into the next phase of her career, with the desire to produce content outside of sports, we wish her the best and thank her for her work," he said.

Hill has not announced her post-ESPN plans.

TCU head coach Gary Patterson stands with his team before playing Southern University in an NCAA football game Sept. 1 in Fort Worth. No. 15 TCU gets another chance for the Big 12 against No. 4 Ohio State. The Horned Frogs and Buckeyes will play tonight in Arlington.

No 4 Ohio State's last game minus Meyer a test vs No 15 TCU

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Ohio State has made it through two games fine without Urban Meyer. Now the No. 4 Buckeyes face their toughest test on the last Saturday before their suspended coach can return to the sideline.

No. 15 TCU (2-0) hasn't faced a disruptive defensive front like Ohio State. But the Buckeyes (2-0), with their very accurate new starting quarterback Dwayne Haskins, also haven't been challenged the way they will be by coach Gary Patterson's 4-2-5 defense.

"They have all the answers. Any time a defense has been together that long, they have seen so many different things come their way," Buckeyes acting head coach Ryan Day said. "They make quick adjustments. They know exactly how you're trying to attack them."

Four seasons after Ohio State jumped over Big 12 co-champions TCU and Baylor for the fourth and final spot in the inaugural College Football Playoff, the Horned Frogs get their shot against the Buckeyes in the same stadium where Meyer led them to a national title.

There has been a building buzz around the TCU campus, only about 20 minutes from AT&T Stadium, but the Frogs don't need this as any kind of measuring stick.

TCU and Ohio State are among only five teams (Alabama, Clemson and Oklahoma are the others) who have finished in the Top 10 in the final AP poll at least three times in the past four years. The Frogs played in the Big 12 championship game last season.

"Everybody that you know of that's come from this program has put TCU where we are, and I don't think any specific game will let you know that we deserve to be at a certain place," senior center Niko Small said. "I think we've already put the tradition in and everybody knows that TCU is going to play hard regardless of who we're playing."

Meyer will wrap up his three-game suspension for mismanaging domestic-abuse allegations and other misconduct by former assistant Zach Smith, though the head coach has been able to take part in Ohio State practices since after the season opener.

Another person who will be nowhere nearby Saturday night is Gordon Gee, the man who gets a lot of credit for this Top 25 matchup coming together.

Gee's "Little Sisters of the Poor" remark as Ohio State's president nearly eight years ago came before the Frogs finished their undefeated 2010 season with a Rose Bowl victory, and before they were in the Big 12. When the athletic directors from TCU and Ohio State were at the same meeting in early 2011, they went from chatting to deciding to play each other in the future.

"I was privileged to serve as president of The Ohio State University for 14 years and I love the Buckeyes! I am also now privileged to be in the Big 12 and serve as chairman of the conference, and I have great admiration for TCU and its football program," said Gee, now president at West Virginia. "In deference to both teams, I will be watching the WVU women's soccer game on Saturday."

Some other things to know when Ohio State plays TCU for the first time since 1973, and first time ever away from Columbus, Ohio:

Disruptive Bosa

As expected, Ohio State's All-American defensive end Nick Bosa has been hard to stop. He already has five tackles for loss and three sacks among his nine tackles in two games. Defensive coordinator Greg Schiano said Bosa is "playing at a very high level" even while teams use multiple players to try to slow him down. "We are going to have to be aware of that because I think it will get more and more creative every week because he is such a special player," Schiano said.

Special scores

TCU has had punt returns for touchdowns in its past three games, by three different players. The Horned Frogs are the only FBS school since 1996 to do that. KaVontae Turpin had a 78-yard punt return for a TD last week against SMU. Turpin's four career punt returns for a TD are a school record, as are his five special teams touchdowns.

Containing Robinson

Containing TCUs dual-threat quarterback Shawn Robinson will be a different challenge for Ohio State. The sophomore passed for 146 yards, a touchdown and an interception, and also rushed for 67 yards and another score in TCU's 42-12 rain-soaked win over SMU. Schiano said a running quarterback "changes all the math" because a defender has to account for him at all times.

Back to Jerry world

Both teams played at AT&T Stadium last December: TCU lost to Oklahoma in the Big 12 title game, and Ohio State beat USC 24-7 in the Cotton Bowl. The Buckeyes' only other game there was that CFP tile game in January 2015. TCU is 2-2 in the home stadium of the NFL's Dallas Cowboys.

Texas, USC in early-season fight for survival

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — A Southern California-Texas rematch was supposed to be an early-season blockbuster. With both programs struggling, it feels more like a fight for survival, and the pressure is mounting to find a win to keep their seasons from spinning off course.

The No. 22 Trojans (1-1) and Longhorns (1-1) meet tonight with both teams facing questions about their quarterbacks and how nervous fans would react will react to another loss.

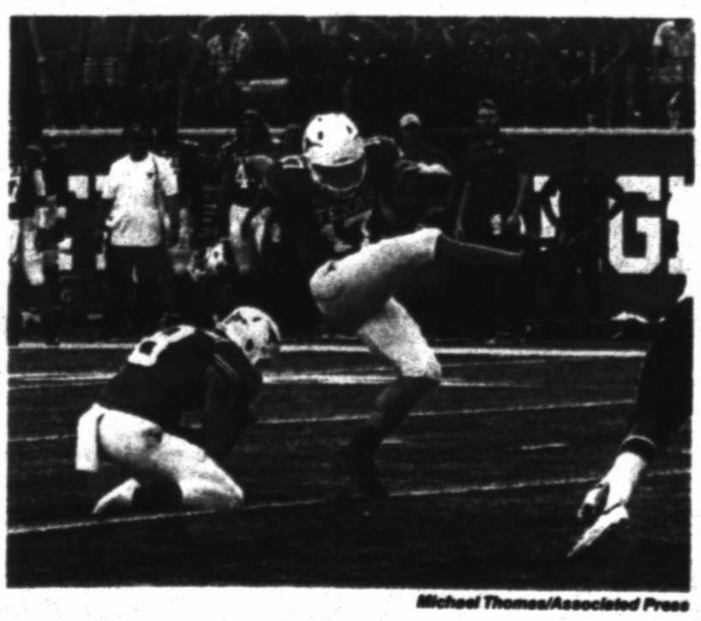
There's little question about the talent in the Trojans' J.T. Daniels, USC's first true freshman starting quarterback in a decade. It's more about how he handles the team in another pressure cooker in front of a loud crowd that will likely approach 100,000.

Daniels won his debut against UNLV but the offense struggled badly and managed just a field goal in a loss last week at Stanford. Now he faces a Texas defense that harassed and hurried Sam Darnold for most of four quarters last season before the Trojans won in double overtime.

"You just keep playing football," Daniels said. "Just because it hasn't gone good to that point doesn't mean it can't go good at any point. It takes one big play and the whole momentum shifts."

Count Texas defensive coordinator Todd Orlando among those impressed by what he's seen of Daniels so far.

"Some of the balls that he throws are better than Sam Darnold did," Orlando said. "I mean, he throws a ball and it's got a tail of smoke coming off of it. He's going to be a special, special player."



Michael Thomas/Associated Press

Texas freshman kicker Cameron Dicker (17) kicks his first extra point as a Longhorn during the first half of an NCAA game against Tulsa on Sept. 8 in Austin.

At Texas, the problem has been cleaning up a pattern of mistakes by quarterback Sam Ehlinger — mostly turnovers — that have been costly.

Ehlinger's turnover issues started against USC last season when he had two, including a fumble in the second overtime that doomed the Longhorns in a 27-24 loss, and it would prove to be a season-long problem.

He worked to clean up the mistakes in the offseason, then threw two

Texas Tech expects to be tested by Oliver, Houston

It's always refreshing to hear some honesty at a press conference.

When Texas Tech junior defensive tackle Broderick Washington Jr. was asked earlier in the week if his team learned anything from the 77-0 blowout win over Lamar, he said what many others were probably thinking as well.

"Honestly, I feel like they shouldn't have been on the schedule," he said.

Washington added: "I would have preferred to play two (tough) teams first, actually three, honestly, and then go into conference at least having a good sense of where we are as a team and knowing the things we need to work on."

Texas Tech (1-1) should definitely get a tougher test today as Houston (2-0) and one of the best defensive linemen in the nation, Ed Oliver, come to Jones AT&T Stadium at 3:15 p.m. today. The game will be televised on Fox.

Texas Tech coach Kliff Kingsbury said that the Cougars' overall talent is what sticks out for him.

"Offensively, defensively, very skilled players, very athletic, flashing all over the screen against a Power Five team, so yeah, lots of

Coach emphasizes consistency in UTPB's home opener

■ Falcons host No. 7 Midwestern State

By Jaydon Hart
MRT Correspondent

Fifteen points, that's what separates the UTPB football team from starting its season undefeated.

Slow starts and big second halves have been the story so far for UTPB football in year three of the program. Last week, the Falcons trailed opponent Northern Michigan 17-3 entering halftime, but outscored NMU 19-10, with the comeback effort falling short 27-22.

Entering week three, the Falcons (0-2) can't afford another slow start and will have to put their losses in the rearview, as No. 7 ranked Midwestern State comes to Odessa's Ratliff Stadium at 6 p.m. today.

"The biggest emphasis this week has just been on consistency and paying attention to the little things and the details," head coach Justin Carrigan said about preparing for MSU. "That's what the difference has been for us. That's what's kept us from not winning games, is not being consistent enough, especially on offense."

The Mustangs (2-0) are arguably one of the best teams in Division II football this season. Last week, MSU upset No. 2 ranked West Florida, storming back in the second half to win, 38-17. They are seventh in the nation and first in the LSC with 539 offensive yards per game and hold the same position in points per game with 46.5.

"They play with great consistency, they're able to continue drives, extend drives, hit big plays, hold teams' offense to minimal yardage and minimal points, Carrigan said.

"It's the execution of assignment. They are very assignment sound in all phases of the game, offense, defense, and special teams and they look like a championship program."

This game will feature two of the best players in Division II football this season, who both are only sophomores.

On offense, Layton Rabb the Mustangs' quarterback was named the 2018 LSC Offensive Player of the Year in the preseason and has backed it up. He has already been named LSC Offensive Player of the Week twice this season so far, currently leads the conference with 607 passing yards and leads the nation with eight touchdown passes.

On the other side of the ball the Falcons have a weapon of their own. John O'Kelly, a Groesbeck High alum, has played lights out in the first two games this season. The reigning LSC Freshman of the Year and Falcons' linebacker is leading the nation with six sacks and 8.5 tackles for a loss.

In the past two seasons the reigning LSC champs have dominated UTPB, holding them to only 13 total points, but this will be the first time the two teams will play at Ratliff Stadium. With MSU coming off a big win the Falcons could get overlooked and the team could pull off a big upset in their first game in front of the home crowd.

"Most of it just boils down to how we play, and consistency is a big factor of that, when you're playing a top ranked team," Carrigan said.

"You've got to take advantage of all of your opportunities and that comes with being consistent, to have a chance of winning this ball game. In this game, for four quarters were going to have to be consistent on both sides of the ball and locked in to our assignment and attention to detail."

TECH

depth, lots of really good players on that football team."

So in other words, this is definitely not a two-win FCS team like Lamar was.

Where does Texas Tech stack up is anyone's guess at this point.

The Red Raiders didn't look good in the season-opening loss to Ole Miss, but they also did what they needed to do against an inferior opponent like Lamar last week.

This week will be a good measuring stick if indeed the Red Raiders have improved from a year ago. Oliver provides enough of a test for just anybody in the country and he is a sure first-round pick in April's NFL Draft. How the veteran Texas Tech offensive line protects true freshman quarterback Alan Bowman will be key.

"I don't think you can simulate what he brings," Kingsbury said. "His motor is unlike any player I've ever seen, the way he plays that hard every snap, every play, chasing the football, relentless. So you've got to give him a lot of credit. It's impressive to watch."

Texas Tech will get its points but Houston quarterback D'Eriq King and the Cougars might be a little too tough to stop for the Red Raider defense. My pick: Houston 45, Texas Tech 35.

Here are my Big 12 power rankings

1. Oklahoma (2-0) – Kyler Murray and the Sooners took care of UCLA last week, 49-21, and now look to start Big 12 play with a bang when they travel to Iowa State at 11 a.m.

2. West Virginia (2-0) – The Mountaineers rolled past Youngstown State, 52-17, and now look to go to 3-0 when they travel to face North Carolina State at 3:30 p.m.

3. Oklahoma State (2-0) – The Cowboys have yet to be tested after thrashing South Alabama, 55-13. They should be tested today when Boise State comes to Stillwater for a 2:30 p.m. ESPN game.

4. TCU (2-0) – SMU was no match for TCU last week and the Horned Frogs walked away with a 42-12 victory. The No. 15-ranked Frogs can make a lot of noise today if they can knock off No. 4 Ohio State at home in a 7 p.m. game to be televised on ABC.

5. Texas (1-1) – The Longhorns have yet to look like the formidable team a lot people thought they were going to be, especially after a lackluster 28-21 home win over Tulsa. Now they host a USC team at 7 p.m. on Fox and any comparisons to their epic 2005 national championship matchup are just plain silly at this point.

6. Iowa State (0-1) – The Cyclones finally got to play a game but too bad its offense was missing in a 13-3 loss to Iowa. Now they have to play the high-powered Sooners.

7. Texas Tech (1-1) – The Red Raiders took out their season-opening loss frustrations against Lamar but there are still a lot questions about how much this team has improved.

8. Kansas State (1-1) – The Wildcats look to bounce back from a 31-10 loss to Mississippi State with a home win against U.T.-San Antonio at 3 p.m.

9. Baylor (2-0) – The Bears are still undefeated after a 37-20 victory over UTSA, but may be in for their toughest test yet when they host a 2-0 Duke team at 2:30 p.m.

10. Kansas (1-1) – The Jayhawks got to celebrate a 31-7 win over Central Michigan last week, so maybe there is a little bit of hope after all.

TEXAS

fourth-quarter interceptions in a season-opening loss to Maryland. He had a second-half fumble against Tulsa in a game Texas led 21-0 and held on to win 28-21. Ehlinger had a stellar fourth quarter against Tulsa, directing a time-chewing drive to the Longhorns' final touchdown.

Second-year Texas coach Tom Herman saw a huge victory slip away in overtime in Southern California last season. He's now 8-7 after 15 games, and Longhorns fans are getting antsy for a big turnaround at a program that hasn't contended for the Big 12 title since 2013.

Another 1-2 start with a team he promised is better than last season could be ugly in Austin.

"I love our fans," Herman said. "Mack Brown told me when I got the job that this can be the greatest job in America because there's tens of millions of people that care very passionately about what happens with their Longhorn football team."

Some things to watch when the Trojans and Longhorns play:

Testing the safeties

Injuries and attrition have depleted the USC secondary, most notably at safety. Texas will try to exploit that with deep routes to Collin Johnson, Lil'Jordan Humphrey and speedy Devin Duvernay. Johnson had a career game against USC last season with 191 yards receiving. Humphrey has a 40-yard touchdown this season and Duvernay has a 39-yarder.

"I'm expecting speed, I'm expecting size, I'm expecting a bunch of guys that are athletes out there," Trojans defensive back C.J. Pollard said. "And they like to go deep, so we're going to have to match their speed."

Chasing Daniels

A Texas pass rush that was supposed to be a strength is yet to appear. Senior ends Breckyn Hager and Charles Omenihu don't have a sack or a quarterback hurry in the first two games. If USC can quickly read Texas blitzes and the Longhorns can't pressure Daniels from the edge, the freshman could have a big night.

Daniels' hand

Daniels sat out a series against Stanford after bruising his throwing hand in the first quarter when he hit another player's helmet. USC coach Clay Helton said all seemed OK by midweek. "I didn't see any hesitation, didn't see any wincing," Helton said.

Missing Big Foot

Texas clearly misses the booming, coffin-corner kicks of former punter Michael Dickson, who is now in the NFL. His cousin, Ryan Bujcevski, has struggled a bit as his replacement. The Longhorns defense realizes what a luxury it had last season when teams were often pinned inside their own 10. Texas also gave up a blocked punt last week against Tulsa.

Field goals

USC's Chase McGrath kicked the game-winning field goal in the second overtime to beat Texas last season. He's already made six of seven attempts this season, with a long kick of 47 yards, and accounted for the only points against Stanford. Field goals were an adventure for Texas last season and freshman Cameron Dicker hasn't attempted one yet.

There's a little bit of everything in

Resident urges council to reconsider tax increase; council approves budget

By Tori Aldana
valdana@hearstnp.com

A public hearing on the 2019 tax rate was held at City Council's regular meeting Tuesday. One resident voiced his concerns with the tax increase.

"I just ask that the council look a little bit deep into the rate structure and see if they can't give a little bit back to the residents that pay," Larry Robinson said.

"Odessa is typically a rolling economy … a lot of the money dissipates to outside cities and different areas of the country and it's not applied here, so we need to find some way to spread that tax burden more evenly," he said.

District 1 Councilman Malcolm Hamilton said he agreed with Robinson.

"I appreciate you standing up, saying that. I've been saying that all along, but it doesn't seem like people are on that same page," Hamilton said.

"What I think is not being factored in, as the gentleman pointed out, we have a rolling economy, which means there is a lot of inflation — hyperinflation and people gouging — and I think that is a trickle-down effect to every citizen here," he said.

The council voted 4-1 to ratify the property tax revenue increase reflected in the fiscal year 2019

ECISD teacher shortage creates need for 76 class-size waivers

■ ECISD trustees discuss virtual teachers

By Tori Aldana
valdana@hearstnp.com

With 145 elementary teacher openings, local schools are facing crowded classes and 76 Ector County ISD classrooms exceed capacity.

Texas requires all kindergarten through fourth-grade classes maintain a 22-to-1 student-to-teacher ratio. 76 classrooms in 18 elementary schools exceed this ratio and must apply for a waiver from the state.

At an ECISD board work study Tuesday, trustees learned schools are looking to hire new teachers, if available, or find long-term substitutes. The district has also posted job openings for 16 contingency aides.

There are an additional 101 teacher vacancies at the secondary level, causing the district to look at other options. At the meeting, trustees delayed a vote on an agreement with Proximity Learning to provide online teachers for some courses. Executive Director of Human Resources Gregory Nelson told trustees this would be one part of a multi-faceted approach to filling these vacancies.

City raises more than $52M in sales tax revenue

■ Odessa collects $1 million more than Midland

191 News

The city of Odessa topped $52 million in sales tax collected during the 2017-18 fiscal year.

The amount surpassed what was budgeted by more than $21 million and was greater than the amount collected in 2016-17 by more than $16 million (or by more than 45 percent).

Odessa's $52.239 million also was greater than the $51.117 million reported by the city of Midland earlier this week. In September, the state Comptroller's Office reported $4.551 million went to the city and $1.137 million went to the Odessa Development Corp. The city's take was a 34.62 percent greater than September 2017.

The collection also marked the 20th straight month the city has reported year-over-year growth.

Sales tax revenue is generated by sales tax income from two months before collection; September's collection is based on July's sales.

Report: MOTRAN leveraging program with ODC, MDC provides dividends to residents

191 News

Last month, the Texas Transportation Commission approved revisions to the 10-year, Unified Transportation Plan (UTP). Key additions approved in the UTP for Midland and Odessa included:

Odessa

- Improvements (lighting and signals) at the intersection of Loop 338 and 52nd/56th streets *
- Signals at Yukon and West Loop 338
- Construction of a new interchange/overpass at SH 302 and West 8th Street *
- Construction of a new overpass at Yukon and SH 191
- Construction of a new interchange/overpass at Faudree Road and BI-20 *

Midland

- Construction of a new overpass/interchange at Loop 250 and CR 1140 *
- Construction of a new overpass at I-20 and Midkiff Road *
- Funding for additional improvements along SH 349/FM 1788 from I-20 to SH 191

Projects above noted with an asterisk were part of local leveraging efforts by the Midland and Odessa Development corporations, as part of a plan developed by MOTRAN to attract additional state resources for transportation infrastructure improvements in the Midland-Odessa area.

"We had discussions with our board about the ability to utilize some local dollars to leverage additional state funding for critical projects in the area," MOTRAN President James Beauchamp wrote. "We began laying out the model and having some initial discussions, but it wasn't until a meeting with the Midland Development Corp. and MDC Chairman Brent Hilliard that the program really took off."

Beauchamp said that "having that initial buy-in and funding source to leverage these projects was critical."

The Midland Development Corp. voted to leverage up to $15 million over the next decade, and soon afterward, the Odessa Development Corp. leveraged $15 million. The commitment of those funds gave the Texas Department of Transportation the justification to begin advancing development and planning of projects that otherwise would not have occurred.

Since 2017, roughly half of the initial $30 million in local leverage funds have been fully committed. Those commitments have helped bring about an additional $121.2 million in state funding for Midland-Odessa roadway infrastructure. To put that in perspective, the Midland-Odessa area was programmed to receive only about $173 million in funding for new projects during the 10-year 2017-2026 Unified Transportation Plan.

"That's a 70 percent increase," Beauchamp wrote. "With the sort of growth we have seen in the region and particularly Midland and Odessa, I don't know that we will catch up with our growing needs anytime soon, but without the support of MDC and ODC, and in particular, Brent Hilliard and Odessa Mayor David Turner, I can tell you we would be a lot further behind."

Since 2017, MOTRAN has helped lead the way in bringing a total of more than $181 million to the central Permian Basin. "Leveraging works," Beauchamp wrote. "As we look at over $15 million in funding for improvements directly from sand mining companies that are coming to the area, I think our leveraging model has been very appealing and has spanned both public and private entities that want to see projects get done and sooner rather than later."

In the Midland-Odessa area, leveraged projects are allowing for upgrades to Loop 338 in Odessa to facilitate truck traffic around the city and the expansion of Yukon Road across town to provide relief from congestion on 42nd Street. In Midland, leveraged projects have accelerated the completion of Loop 250 by nearly 20 years.

From staff reports

Odessan dies in 2-vehicle wreck near Fort Stockton

A 26-year-old Odessa man died Thursday afternoon in a two-vehicle wreck in Pecos County, according to a press release from the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Andres Borjon was driving a Ford-450 northbound on State Highway 18, about 10 miles north of Fort Stockton. A 39-year-old Midland man driving a Volvo truck tractor towing a semi-trailer also was northbound on SH 18. The truck tractor driver slowed down to make a left turn, and Borjon's pickup hit the trailer, according to the press release.

Borjon died at the scene. The Midland man was not injured, according to the release.

Committee provides opportunity for 25 Hispanic students

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin received a gift Tuesday from the Mexican American Scholarship Committee. The donation will allow for 25 UTPB students to attend college.

MASC has provided assistance to the Hispanic community since 1972. It was founded by Odessa businessman Ben Mancha and began awarding scholarships in the fall of 1973 to coincide with the opening of UTPB.

The scholarships are awarded in the fall and spring semesters.

Midland-Odessa civilian labor force reaches all-time high

The number of people in the Midland-Odessa civilian labor force reached an all-time high mark during the month of July, according to numbers from the Midland Development Corp.

The 247,017 in the labor force was 1,400 more than June 2018 and in excess of 11,000 more than the 235,455 recorded in July 2017. The MDC also reported a new high for the number employed — 240,281. The 6,736 unemployed meant the unemployment rate reached 2.7 percent in the area (down from 2.9 percent in June and 3.6 percent in July 2017).

Wrongful death lawsuit filed by families of two men killed in fiery I-20 crash

A wrongful death lawsuit has been filed by the families of two men killed in the July 18 fiery crash on Interstate 20 in Ector County.

The families of Kewalkumar Vyas and Ivan Dominguez-Jaimes filed the lawsuit against Weatherford US, LP and its driver, Samie Lee Whittington, according to a release from the law office of Kevin Glasheen of Glasheen, Valles & Inderman, which is representing the family of Vyas. The family of Jaimes is represented by The Curtis Law Group.

Dominguez-Jaimes was driving a Nissan Sentra sedan, and Vyas was a passenger in the Nissan, according to the release. Moments before the crash, the Nissan and several other vehicles had slowed down for roadway construction. Whittington was driving a Dodge Ram 3500 truck towing a 20,000-pound piece of oilfield equipment when he slammed into the back of the Nissan at a high rate of speed. The Dodge hit the Nissan so hard that it came to rest on top of the Nissan after pushing it into the guardrail. The violent collision caused both the Nissan and the Dodge to catch fire, ultimately killing both Vyas and Dominguez-Jaimes.

The Dodge was owned by Weatherford US, LP, and Whittington was an employee of Weatherford, the release states. Whittington was cited for failing to control his speed.

The attorneys of Glasheen, Valles & Inderman conducted a post-crash vehicle inspection of the Dodge, including a data download of the airbag control module. The inspection, according to the press release, revealed that the Dodge drive did not brake until approximately one second before impact.

"The last-second braking we found is consistent with the type of distracted driving we, unfortunately, see more and more of nowadays," attorney Kevin Glasheen said. "Through this lawsuit, we will discover why Weatherford's driver was not paying attention to the vehicles slowing in front of him."

Reports: Odessans may see break in price of gas

A shot may finally have been fired in the battle against the high price of gas in Odessa.

According to TexasGasPrices.com, a store in Odessa is offering gas below $2.70 a gallon. This will be welcome news for Odessa drivers, who have been paying the second highest average in the state for some time, according to AAA Texas.

The price of $2.68 for regular unleaded at H-E-B at West University Boulevard and Loop 338 is 11 cents lower than the second cheapest price found in the city, according to TexasGasPrices.com.

AAA Texas reported this week that the average price in Odessa fell 2 cents to $2.97 a gallon. Midland drivers again faced the highest prices in the state — $3.04 a gallon. The average price in Texas was $2.61 and the lowest price of any larger metropolitan area could be found in Lubbock — $2.52.

Distributors have told the Reporter-Telegram there are many complexities in the fuel business that impact pricing. They pointed to the high cost of transportation from Gulf Coast refineries and Midland's distance from pipelines. There are also issues with the high cost of living, at least in Midland and Odessa, where rents are climbing at rates incomparable around the nation. There's also the supply-and-demand factor. There is a great demand in Midland and Odessa relative to the amount of supply.

AAA Texas reports gas prices could see bigger drops if inventories increase and demand decreases, which market analysts anticipate will occur in the coming weeks.

"While demand for gasoline remains strong, the switchover to winter-blend gasoline is fast approaching by the end of this week into next," said Daniel Armbruster, AAA Texas/AAA New Mexico spokesman. "This should cause gas prices to decrease, in Texas and the southern region of the United States, over the coming days."

Across the region, larger cities resemble Lubbock more than Odessa with an average price of $2.54 reported in San Angelo, $2.56 reported in Amarillo, $2.57 in Wichita Falls, $2.64 in El Paso and $2.70 in Abilene.

Gas price report

Cheapest gas: $2.80 (Sam's Club, Tradewinds/SH 191)

Cheapest gas (non-membership club): $2.87 (Murphy USA, Briarwood/Midland Drive)

Cheapest prices in West Texas: Lubbock $2.41, Amarillo $2.43, San Angelo $2.43 El Paso $2.44, Abilene $2.59, Odessa $2.67, Midland $2.80

Permian High School band students practice Thursday morning before school starts.

BAND

PHS director: Band is 'more than just marching'

By Jacy Lewis
jacy.lewis@hearstnp.com

Permian High School band director Jeff Whitetaker said homecoming is a performance the band gets excited for, but the band is focused on the big goals — marching competitions later in the season.

"If we are meeting our goals towards that project (competitions) then our half time for homecoming should be something alumni enjoy," Whitetaker said.

Whitetaker, who has been director for seven years, said this year the band is performing a more advanced show.

"It's much more complex than what we have tried before," he said. "We have a lot more elements and visuals that we are trying to incorporate to get a modern, competitive look."

The band has started working on part three of the four sections in the show. He said there are more techniques than what the band has done in the past.

"It has become way more than just marching," Whitetaker said. "There are a lot of visual moves and terminology from the dance world that we have to incorporate into what we want to do."

He credits the middle schools in Odessa with preparing students for high school marching band by teaching incoming freshmen fundamentals in playing.

The band is currently holding auditions for the many features in the show. Whitetaker said there is a lot of talent in the band that he wants to showcase.

A professor from West Texas A&M, B.J Brooks, is the visual composer and assists the Permian marching band.

Whitetaker said he continues to work closely with Permian band instructors to change and modify the show.

"Instead of focusing on one big thing, there will be something happening every 15 to 30 seconds," Whitetaker said.

Students started band practice July 30. Whitetaker said they continue to work hard, and he estimates they put in more hours than any other students on campus.

"It's stunning to me how much dedication these kids have," Whitetaker said. "When you have that type of dedication from a group of kids, you know there are good things."

Permian homecoming mums' tradition evolves

By Jacy Lewis
jacy.lewis@hearstnp.com

With Permian homecoming only a week away, flower shops in Odessa have started to create mums and garters.

JoAnn Carrasco started making mums about 25 years ago when her daughter and nieces were in school. She has been doing it professionally at JoAnn's on 5th, 610 W 5th St., for four years. JoAnn said trends change over the years but the sense of school pride in mums and garters remains the same.

"This is maybe the second biggest game in Odessa," Carrasco said. "We have always looked forward to it because you get to show off these big flowered mums — the bigger the better here in Texas. It's about being proud of wearing your school colors."

Each shop adds something special to their mums, usually at the request of the client. This year, JoAnn's has added foam footballs with the players' numbers on the mums. Carrasco said some Permian girls like to add a little bit of pink to their mums.

Jodie Gonzales and Jenna Jarvis work at Arlene's Flowers 2745 N. Farm-to-Market Road 1936.

Gonzales has been creating mums and garters for about 30 years and Jarvis has been creating them for about six years.

Mums first started trending in the 1950s when homecoming games became popular, Gonzales said. It was a small token from a boyfriend to a girlfriend to wear during homecoming. The first mums were chrysanthemum flowers with small ribbons tied around them. Using real flowers meant that the mums couldn't be as big or they would fall apart.

Then, designers started using silk flowers in the 1980s to make mums, and things got bigger and flashier, she said. Mum-makers started adding more ribbons, whistles, bells, bubble gum, charms and even lights.

Gonzales said garters start at about $45 and mums start at $75. If customers want bigger mums, it will cost more but the shops will fill to value, Jarvis said.

Gonzales said traditions have changed as far as who gives and receives mums.

Students get mums from their parents or friends. Some parents get mums for their babies. It's not exclusively boyfriends who give them to their girlfriends, Gonzales said.

"They're doing music, so they want music symbols, or soccer or basketball," Carrasco said. "It's not just about football. They can add their personal touch to it."

Jarvis and Gonzales said there are enjoyable parts of making mums and some not enjoyable parts. "I like the craftiness of it," Jarvis said.

"The worst thing is burning your fingers with the glue gun," Gonzales said.

COUNCIL

budget. Hamilton was the sole dissenter.

Hamilton told 191 News via email there are many reasons for his vote against the tax rate.

"My action reflects our cities and regions unique economic cycle(s) and environment that are actually not 'new' yet responded to as if they are. The object of repetition is to get better with each pass or rep, not give a repeat performance," Hamilton wrote.

"It is a matter of placing 'new' wine in old wineskins. Our region is not only unique and different but constantly changing (growing) each economic oil-boom/bust cycle. And as so, after numerous booms and bust why do we continue using the same financial tools and mechanisms to function and operate our city…?"

Hamilton said he fears this tax item will have repeated shortfalls, "similar to the multiple booms of the past-and begin another cycle of property loss among minority, poor, elderly and minimum wage income homes and families.

"We cannot make haste with citizen's tax dollars without giving regard to all citizens' current state and needs," he wrote.

Hamilton, who has been an Odessan since pre-kindergarten, said despite positive things happening in the city, present apparent and critical needs — like infrastructure and water issues — are beyond urgent and not keeping pace with present, incoming and future growth numbers.

"We cannot utilize taxation on the people as a cookie-cutter solution for all of the city's financial panics, especially if we know the predictable, worn-out outcomes. If those past outcomes solved the issues and future needs then, we would not even be having this discussion."

A vote on the tax levy will be 5 p.m. Sept. 24 at a special meeting; then a vote on the rate will take place at the regular meeting at 6 p.m. Sept. 25.

Tax exemptions will still be available, including a homestead exemption for home owners, a senior exemption for those 65 and older, exemptions for disabled veteran and disabled persons and other state-mandated exemptions.

"We've looked in the past and the city of Odessa recognizes a lot more exemptions than some of the other cities do in the area," Interim Assistant City Manager Cindy Muncy said.

The proposed tax rate of $0.476601 per $100 evaluation is lower than last year's rate of $0.493248, but higher than the effective rate of $0.450791. The city proposes to use revenue from the tax rate increase for meeting the 2019 fiscal year budget.

Tori Aldana/191 News

Larry Robinson address City Council at its meeting Tuesday.

With the increase, the total tax revenues for properties on the city's tax roll will increase about 9.62 percent.

Also at the meeting, Mayor David Turner honored fire department personnel, emergency medical technicians and a police officer who participated in Sept. 11 memorial stair climbs in Dallas and Midland. "It was my honor to go (to Dallas) just to represent Odessa and be there and watch these heroes make that climb," said Turner.

In other action, council:

- approved the fiscal year 2019 budget.

Revenues are proposed at a 5.66 percent increase and expenditures at 4.47 percent increase. The budget includes a 3 percent raise for city employees. Hamilton abstained from voting.

- approved an interlocal agreement with the Ector County Elections Administrator for election services to city of Odessa voters in Ector County. Voting machine fees increased from $200 to $225 per machine. The election costs will be shared by the county, Ector County ISD and the city.
- approved the request by PBar Parks Bell and 2012 Cross B for original zoning of special dwelling district on an approximate 92-acre tract and an approximate 14-acre tract and rezone from future development-drill reservation to special dwelling district on an approximately 3-acre tract in Ector and Midland counties near Yukon and Aaron Parker roads. The intended land use is residential.
- approved the request of light investments and others for original zoning of light industrial in the former Odessa Industrial Development Park southeast of the intersection of East Murphy Street and South Meadow Avenue. When the industrial park expired, the city annexed the property, and the request was to allow owners expand operations. Hamilton asked Planning Director Randy Brinlee if adequate street lighting could be added to the area.
- allowed for public input on the creation of Tax Increment Reinvestment Zone. Vanessa Shrauner, development services manager, explained the TIRZ boundary, timeline and how it would help pay for public improvements downtown. A board made up of five to 15 representatives from the taxing entities — in this case the city, county, hospital and Odessa College — would oversee project planning and budgeting. The $119.7 million in taxable value of downtown properties today would be continued throughout 20 years. An estimated $5 million to $25 million could be collected depending on the rate percentage each entity contributes. A public hearing on the TIRZ is planned for the City Council's regular meeting 6 p.m. Sept. 25. The TIRZ may also be adopted by council at the meeting. Resident Craig Stoker spoke in favor of the TIRZ, "I think anything that can promote investment in our downtown area, promote even more public-private partnerships, I think that's a good thing."
- approved the appointment of judges for the general and special election Nov. 6.
- amended Article 12-2 of the city of Odessa Code of Ordinances, entitled "Operation of Vehicles," by amending Section 12-2-3, entitled "Use of continuous two-way left-turn lanes." The ordinance mean residents can travel 200 feet in a left-turn lane before making a left turn. 200 feet is roughly the distance between an alley and an intersection.
- amended Article 12-2 of the city of Odessa Code of Ordinances, entitled "Operation of Vehicles", by amending Section 12-2-7, Entitled "School Zones." The ordinance means school zones and speed limits are effective while beacons are flashing and/or during the posted times. Hamilton asked Traffic Operations Superintendent Hal Feldman to consider the placement of school zones or speed humps near day care centers to ensure child safety. The city does not currently have a speed hump policy.
- appointed Turner to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

BOARD

Board members wanted more time to evaluate the program's potential and talk to other districts already using it. This agreement would provide four teachers for Odessa High, four for Permian High, three for the Alternative Center, four for Bowie Middle School and eight for Wilson & Young Middle School. They would cover more than 120 sections of classes.

Proximity Learning would hire and train teachers. ECISD would provide the technology to stream the lessons to a classroom and hire aides to facilitate and manage the classroom. The teachers would deliver lessons live four times a week, while the fifth day would be led by the school.

The lessons are to be recorded so students may have online access to them at any time. The teachers will be available to the students through email.

ECISD would pay Proximity Learning $59,400 per virtual teacher and pay $17,363 for a classroom aide — a total cost of about $76,763. Additional costs — such as microphones and speakers — would increase costs.

Virtual teachers would be established in classes where students are taught by substitutes or classes are combined. The agreement would allow the district to eliminate online sections as teachers are hired locally.

Trustees agreed the district is facing a desperate lack of teachers and every option should be explored to fill those vacancies. They said this program could be a solution and they want to learn more about it.

In other action, trustees;

- learned that on Tuesday, the six, first-year IR campuses will present their school improvement goals during the regular board meeting at 6 p.m.
- considered a change to Board Policy FNCE Student Conduct: Personal Telecommunications/Electronic Devices. This policy is out of date. It states students/parents will be charged $15 to recover a cellphone taken up at a campus. While there are restrictions for a student's cellphone use during the school day and the device may be taken up, there is no fee required to get it back. This change will eliminate the reference to the charge.
- received applications of five people interested in being appointed to the School Health Advisory Council. There are currently three vacant parent member positions on the committee, and one vacant community member position. The applicants are Aaron Thomas, Amrinder Chahal, Joshua Alaniz, Kelly Dirden, Michelle Smith and Steven Ortiz.
- discussed a credit-by-exam audit process for elementary schools. In elementary, credit-by-exam is most often used for evaluating students entering the district from a home school or non-accredited institution, and placing them in the appropriate grade level. ECISD contracts with Texas Tech University, an approved TEA vendor, for this service. Texas Tech vets the exams to assure they are valid and reliable.

ODC discusses upcoming projects, road work

By Tori Aldana
valdana@hearstnp.com

The Odessa Development Corp. met for its regular meeting Thursday. Here is a rundown of what was discussed:

Contractor reports

- Odessa Chamber of Commerce's Economic Development Department Director Wesley Burnett told the board about upcoming local projects and expansions. There is a possibility for a commuter airline service through Odessa's Schlemeyer Field. Also, a plumbing supply company is looking to build a distribution center on about 10 acres of land that is in Odessa city limits in Midland County.
- Tyler Patton from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin Small Business Development Center gave an update. For the month of August, there were 224 counselling sessions — 96 counseling hours. Two new oilfield service business were started in Odessa, two businesses were expanded and two were purchased. Sixteen full-time jobs were generated — 11 in Odessa — and one part-time job in Odessa. Most of the businesses and jobs are oilfield-related. The SBDC offers seminars and training — such as on worker's compensation and business taxes — and other free and low-cost resources to help local businesses. The board also heard about the Odessa Business Challenge. The challenge will begin Oct. 31 to assist entrepreneurs in expanding an existing business or starting a new one, according to odessabusinesschallenge.com. Judges will pick winners to earn a cash prize for their business.
- Christi Callicoatte, director of account service at CVA Advertising and Marketing, discussed campaigns. Board member Gene Collins proposed a television program, about 10 minutes long, to be aired on local channels to update residents on what's going on with the ODC and economic development in the area.
- Dustin Fawcett, vice president of MOTRAN Alliance Inc., explained Texas Department of Transportation's Unified Transportation Program revisions — which ultimately explain where TxDOT will spend money in Odessa and Midland. $294 million is allotted for the area. ODC and the Midland Development Corp. have put forward $30 million for strategic projects, including State Highway 191, Loop 388 and Interstate 20. $98.9 million will be used to convert I-20 frontage roads to one way and, eventually, make I-20 six lanes. The multiple-decade project has already been moved up, but the six lanes might stretch from Midkiff road in Midland to JBS Parkway in Odessa. Fawcett said it's important that the state knows that MOTRAN understands an increase in fatalities on the roads must mean an increase in funding. Collins was interested in learning more about toll roads in the area to combat heavy traffic on I-20, especially with the possibility of many years of construction.

Odessa Hispanic Chamber of Commerce

The board received a financial report from the Odessa Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. The OHCC will host its annual banquet from 6 to 9 p.m. Oct. 26 at the Elegante Hotel. Medical Center Health System CEO Rick Napper will be the keynote speaker, and Roy Garcia will be honored for excellence in education. The OHCC works closely with the OCC and the Odessa Black Chamber of Commerce. OHCC provides its members with business seminars, networking opportunities and social hours. Funding is membership-based and the OHCC is looking to expand its membership; current membership is about 150 to 200.

OUR VIEW

UTPB again receives good fortune; teacher development should be school's next focus

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin got another shot in the arm last week when it comes to campus building.

The University of Texas regents have OK'd $37 million in total costs and reapproved design plans for a kinesiology building on the Odessa campus.

UTPB leaders celebrated the regents' decision as the new request included 19,000 square feet of additional space, which could allow the university to expand its academic programming.

The expectation is UTPB will see its number of kinesiology students double and the number of athletic training majors triple by 2025.

"So, we want to ramp up our ability to produce those degrees that are in high demand," UTPB President Sandra Woodley said.

As a bonus, Woodley said upgraded facilities could improve recruitment and retention of student athletes and increase a sense of pride in athletic programs.

The original design included spaces for the kinesiology department as well as a weight room, locker rooms, a student athlete lounge, equipment storage center and laundry facilities, according to agenda documents. The expanded project features a 150-seat lecture hall, 12 kinesiology offices, training areas and an athletics office suite. The facility will total more than 63,000 square feet.

The project is expected to break ground this month and is slated for "substantial completion" in May 2020, according to the agenda.

These are good times for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. UT regents approved increases in the project, even as the price per gross square foot ($447) is higher than the median of $365 for other UT System projects.

UTPB is currently building its new engineering building on the Midland campus. Thanks to state Rep. Tom Craddick for his work in getting the funding in a previous legislative session, and also thanks to the Midland Development Corp. for its multi-million-dollar investment. UTPB also has recently made news when it comes to its business school, and the Wagner Noel Performing Arts Center appears to be as busy as ever.

What's the next step? We have an idea. UTPB should increase efforts to educate more future teachers. A university or college in our area should be receptive to the needs of a community, and right now there might not be a greater need than the need for qualified educators.

Between Midland ISD and Ector County ISD, the number of open positions is well over 300. UTPB should be an integral part of those two districts being able to staff its schools.

We expect the school districts will continue to grow, and if those additional students are being educated at UTPB, we wouldn't have to worry as much about recruitment, which we know has been a challenge recently. If local industry works with the school for scholarships and additional funding, a program could be created that means some students who come to UTPB for their education could have part of their college paid for in return for spending time teaching at a regional school district.

Again, we hope UTPB leaders see the need across Midland-Odessa and work to grow even more teachers in our own backyard.

Adjunct faculty member suspected of having 'inappropriate relationship' with student

From staff reports

A UTPB adjunct faculty member suspected of having an inappropriate relationship with a student at Lee High School was arrested Thursday in Bexar County, according to a press release from a Midland ISD spokeswoman. The man identified by both Midland ISD and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin as Nicholas Conn is being held in Bexar County jail.

Conn, 27, was being held Friday on a $75,000 bond for a second-degree felony charge of improper relationship between an educator and a student as well as a $75,000 bond for second-degree felony charge of sexual assault, according to Bexar County records.

If convicted of a second-degree felony charge, Conn could face up to 20 years imprisonment.

"UT Permian Basin has been made aware of very troubling criminal charges brought against part-time, adjunct faculty member Nicholas Conn," Communications Manager Tatum Guinn wrote. "None of the current accusations made against Mr. Conn took place on the UTPB campus or involve UTPB students, faculty or staff. However, UTPB takes all such allegations very seriously, and Mr. Conn has been relieved of his teaching and all other duties while a full investigation is conducted."

A warrant for Conn's arrest was issued by the Midland ISD Police Department, according to the press release. But because he was not in Midland at the time, the warrant was handed over to the U.S. Marshal's Service office in San Antonio.

Conn

Conn, who is not an MISD employee, previously provided private tutoring services for some MISD band students, according to the release.

This relationship was discovered because another student overhead something and alerted campus administration, according to the release.

"We commend our students who brought this to our attention, and as always, we strongly encourage our students to say something anytime they recognize something suspicious or concerning," Midland ISD Executive Director of Communications Lacy Sperry said in the release.

"The information was taken very seriously and investigated by our Midland ISD Police Department immediately, which led to an arrest," she said.

Conn is listed on the UTPB website as "starting his first season as principal trombonist with the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale and as a member of the Lone Star Brass" in 2016.

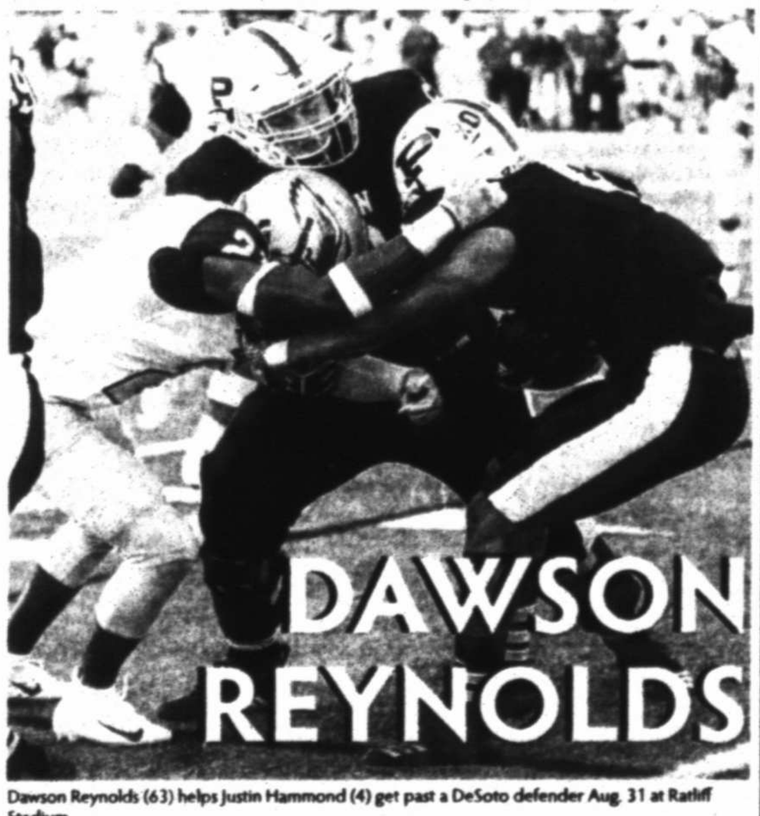
Matt Jones (18) tackles a DeSoto player on Aug. 31 at Ratliff Stadium.

No. 18
Class: Senior
Position: Defensive end
College: Committed to Baylor
Favorite subject: English
Favorite restaurant: PF Chang's. I go every time I go out of town.
Favorite band: Migos
Favorite thing about football: Hitting people as hard as you can.
What does it mean to play for Permian: There is real tradition, and it is fun. ... It is a blessing.
Expectations for this year: To do our best every single game, to focus on the game we have coming up, to get to the playoffs and go from there ... and then get to state.
Most memorable moment playing football: My sophomore year when I got my first interception.
Coach Ellison about Matt Jones: Matt was on our radar early in junior high, and then during his freshman year, he really shined. I remember watching him on Wilkins Field during a freshman game and standing next to coach Washington, our defensive coordinator, saying watch this kid, watch this kid .... He was around the ball all the time as a freshman. That is who he is as a football player. That is his instinct. Now, he has developed into a great football player. He is bigger, stronger, faster, but he still has the mentality to be around the football and play hard. He was born with it.



Dawson Reynolds (63) helps Justin Hammond (4) get past a DeSoto defender Aug. 31 at Ratliff Stadium.

No. 63
Class: Senior
Position: Guard
Favorite subject: Math. Wait, am I allowed to say football? That is my favorite then.
Favorite restaurant: Pappasito's
Favorite singer: Luke Combs
Favorite thing about football: Hitting people
What does it mean to play for Permian: Everything. Everybody around here grew up wanting to play football. This is my life — literally.
Expectations for this year: State
Most memorable moment playing football: Against San Angelo as a junior, I picked up the ball and ran 21 yards.
Coach Ellison about Dawson Reynolds: He is an outstanding person. I have known Dawson since his seventh-grade year, and he is a great kid off the field. Everyone gravitates toward him. He is a great, loving, caring person. Everything you want. ... On the football field, he is extremely aggressive. He loves playing offensive line. He loves to work. He loves to knock people down. He loves the pancakes (a result of a good block). He likes the contact. In every sense, if you had to mold an offensive lineman, it would be Dawson Reynolds.

Permian come back against No. 8 Carroll falls short

By Shawn Smajstria
191 News correspondent

SOUTHLAKE — Permian came to life late, but too late to overcome No. 8 Southlake Carroll in a 24-20 loss in Southlake on Friday night, in a game held up by an 87-minute lightning delay.

The Panthers trailed 10-0 at halftime and by the same score with 8:07 left in the third quarter when the teams were sent to their locker rooms by visible lightning. Following the delay, TJ McDaniel gave Carroll a 17-0 lead on the second of his three rushing touchdowns.

But then Permian went to work. Peyton Powell found Tyler Ramage in the back of the end zone for a 3-yard TD and the Panthers were within 17-7.

After a defensive stop, Permian went into its bag of tricks, using a double pass to cut the Dragons' lead to 17-14. Mason Sellers took a lateral from Powell and found a wide-open Justin Hammond from 34 yards for the score. Momentum was in Mojo's favor.

But two plays later, it was McDaniels again doing the damage for the 3-0 Dragons, this time breaking free from 90 yards to restore the Carroll lead to 10 at 24-14.

Permian (1-2) wasn't finished, though. Powell scored on a 23-yard run with 2:25 remaining. The PAT was blocked to leave the score 24-20.

The Panthers got the ball back with 90 seconds left for one last chance and reached the Carroll 33-yard line with 10 seconds left. But on the final play, Powell was pressured and lost the ball backwards. Carroll recovered to end the contest.

Permian outgained Carroll in the game, 411 yards to 378. Powell finished with 210 yards passing and 65 rushing, throwing for one TD and rushing for another.

Texas and USC in early-season fight for survival

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — A Southern California-Texas rematch was supposed to be an early-season blockbuster. With both programs struggling, it feels more like a fight for survival, and the pressure is mounting to find a win to keep their seasons from spinning off course.

The No. 22 Trojans (1-1) and Longhorns (1-1) meet tonight with both teams facing questions about their quarterbacks and how nervous fans would react will react to another loss.

There's little question about the talent in the Trojans' J.T. Daniels, USC's first true freshman starting quarterback in a decade. It's more about how he handles the team in another pressure cooker in front of a loud crowd that will likely approach 100,000.

Daniels won his debut against UNLV but the offense struggled badly and managed just a field goal in a loss last week at Stanford. Now he faces a Texas defense that harassed and hurried Sam Darnold for most of four quarters last season before the Trojans won in double overtime.

"You just keep playing football," Daniels said. "Just because it hasn't gone good to that point doesn't mean it can't go good at any point. It takes one big play and the whole momentum shifts."

Count Texas defensive coordinator Todd Orlando among those impressed by what he's seen of Daniels so far.

"Some of the balls that he throws are better than Sam Darnold did," Orlando said. "I mean, he throws a ball and it's got a tail of smoke coming off of it. He's going to be a special, special player."

At Texas, the problem has been cleaning up a pattern of mistakes by quarterback Sam Ehlinger — mostly turnovers — that have been costly.

Ehlinger's turnover issues started against USC last season when he had two, including a fumble in the second overtime that doomed the Longhorns in a 27-24 loss, and it would prove to be a season-long problem.

He worked to clean up the mistakes in the offseason, then threw two fourth-quarter interceptions in a season-opening loss to Maryland. He had a second-half fumble against Tulsa in a game Texas led 21-0 and held on to win 28-21. Ehlinger had a stellar fourth quarter against Tulsa, directing a time-chewing drive to the Longhorns' final touchdown.

Cougars coach knows what to expect against Texas Tech

LUBBOCK — Houston coach Major Applewhite knows what to expect against Texas Tech after facing the Red Raiders as a player, assistant coach and a head coach over the past two decades.

"They always score points, have a great tempo, and they take the ball away," said Applewhite, who at Texas was a Big 12 quarterback at the same time as Kliff Kingsbury. "Defensively, they're holding you under 400 yards, and they have nine starters returning on defense. They're a very good football team."

The Red Raiders (1-1) are coming off a 77-0 win over FCS team Lamar, their highest-scoring game in their six seasons with Kingsbury as coach of his alma mater — or as a record-setting quarterback for the Red Raiders from 1999-2002. It was their first shutout since 2006.

Houston (2-0) is scoring at a nice clip itself in Applewhite's second season, with 45 points in each game. The Cougars jumped out to a 38-0 lead last week against Pac-12 team Arizona — and their former coach, Kevin Sumlin — on the way to a 45-18 victory.

"Offensively, defensively, very skilled players, very athletic, flashing all over the screen against a Power Five team," said Kingsbury, 31-34 as Tech's coach.

Cougars junior quarterback D'Eriq King, who was recruited by the Red Raiders and has also been a receiver in college, leads the nation at 31 points responsible for a game. He hasn't been sacked yet. After throwing three touchdowns and running for another in the opener against Rice, he topped that with six more TDs (four passing, two rushing) against Arizona.

Houston also has 6-foor-3, 292-pound defensive lineman Ed Oliver, a junior who has already declared for next spring's NFL draft and has had 1.59 tackles for loss per game in his career.

"I don't think you can simulate what he brings," Kingsbury said. "His motor is unlike any player I've ever seen, the way he plays that hard every snap, every play, chasing the football, relentless. ... It's impressive to watch."

COUGARS OC

Former Baylor offensive coordinator Kendal Briles is in his first season as OC at Houston after one year in that same role for Lane Kiffin at Florida Atlantic.

SOME SENTIMENTALITY

After playing professionally for five years, including time with five NFL teams and year in the CFL, Kingsbury started his coaching career with Sumlin at Houston. After two seasons (2008-09) as offensive quality control coach for the Cougars, he was the quarterbacks coach for two seasons (2010-11), and called plays as co-offensive coordinator.

Staff reports

The last pre-district tune-up was a successful one for the Permian volleyball team.

The Panthers swept Big Spring, 25-11, 25-12, 25-17, Friday at the Permian Field House.

"It was a great game in preparation for district," Permian coach Gillian Herrera said. "We tried a new line up tonight and I felt like it helped speed up the game. We eliminated a lot of our errors so it was a good game for us."

Herrera told 191 News afterward Permian's goals were to take care of the ball, serve tough and be aggressive. Lauren Lucas led Permian with 10 kills and 2.5 blocks, while Chloe Rivera added 28 assists and 11 digs. Rylee day added 15 digs.

"Rylee Day passed very well for us tonight. Chloe (Rivera) she did a great job of getting the ball to Lauren (Lucas)."

Permian has an open date on the schedule Tuesday and will open District 2-6A competition with Midland High at 5 p.m. Friday.

United Way's golf tournament grows to help community

By Jacy Lewis
Jacy.lewis@hearstnp.com

United Way hosted the fifth annual H-E-B Live United Golf Tournament Friday morning at Ratliff Ranch Golf Links.

Veronica Garcia, the campaign director for United Way, said the golf tournament has grown the past five years. It began with six teams. This year the goal was 50 teams; 51 teams participated.

This year, United Way wanted to raise $2.2 million for the Odessa community, she said. United Way helps fund 20 nonprofits in the Odessa area.

Garcia said she has been a recipient in the past of services provided by nonprofits that United Way helps financially and now she "gives back" to the agency.

"My grandparents used to receive Meals on Wheels," Garcia said. "There was a time when our roof was leaking and Christmas in Action came out to replace our entire roof. I know what it is to be a recipient of services and I'm very thankful for that."

Garcia wants people from Odessa to know that when they give to United Way they are making a large impact.

"You can give to United Way but by doing so you're helping 20 local nonprofits at the same time," she said. "We vet the money that we are providing to the agencies. We ensure that your dollar is spent the way you ask."

United Way will be hosting Bubba's Night on Sept. 26. Bubba's 33 in Odessa will donate 10 percent of total food purchases to United Way when shown the Dine to Donate flyer.

U.S. Rep. Beto O'Rourke holds a town hall in Odessa on July 30.

James Durbin/MRT Media Group

U.S. Sen. Ted Cruz speaks at a town hall event Aug. 25 at the South Forty Banquet Hall in Odessa.

ENERGY

Cruz, O'Rourke on energy

Midland Reporter-Telegram

Sen. Ted Cruz and U.S. Rep. Beto O'Rourke were in Midland recently as they campaign for the Nov. 6 election.

The Reporter-Telegram had the opportunity to ask the same three questions related to issues in the oil industry. Here are their responses.

MRT: How do you view the current efforts to update the Endangered Species Act winding their way through Congress?

Ted Cruz: There is a real need to reform the Endangered Species Act, to both allow economic development and oil and gas exploration and to encourage conservation of endangered species. The current law is often abused by environmental activists and overzealous federal regulators to try to shut down exploration and eliminate jobs. That is not the intended purpose of the statute. I strongly support efforts to reform the Endangered Species Act to create real incentives, to save species, to expand populations and at the same time to maximize economic development and the opportunities for energy exploration

Beto O'Rourke: I think there's a way to achieve a balance and ensure that we protect the habitats and the wildlife that help to distinguish Texas and are a part of our heritage. And also making sure that the regulations are common sense, allow for input from local stakeholders — so ranchers, farmers, property owners, public officials from local communities — as well as the federal government. I think it's got to be a collaborative approach. And I just want to make sure that we continue to move forward in that manner.

MRT: How do you view the economic and security importance of energy production for the communities of the Permian Basin, the state and the nation?

Cruz: The Permian Basin is extraordinary; it accounts for almost half the oil production in the lower 48 states. The shale revolution that the Permian Basin is experiencing is transforming the Texas economy, the American economy and rearranging the global geopolitical map. America is becoming an energy exporter and the Permian is front and center in that transformation. In the next five years, output in the Permian alone is expected to more than double, and in order to continue that growth we need federal policies that allow oil and gas to flourish. In my time in the Senate, I have worked to be the leading champion for energy and for oil and gas in the United States Senate.

I have introduced legislation — the American Energy Renaissance Act — that would remove unnecessary regulations, unchain entrepreneurs and wildcatters, and create an environment where the maximum number of jobs will be created. The effects of the historic tax cuts we passed in December and the Trump administration pulling back job-killing regulations have been dramatic. Today, Texas has produced 33 percent more oil than we did in 2016. That is the difference with sound policy. And I would note there is no race in the country where the candidates have a more starkly different record on energy and oil and gas in particular than the U.S. Senate race in Texas. As I said, I have been the leading defender of oil and gas in the Senate. On the other hand, Democratic Congressman Beto O'Rourke has voted repeatedly in support of a carbon tax, has voted in support of a $10 a barrel tax on oil, has strongly supported the Paris Climate agreement, which would have had a devastating impact on the energy industry, has opposed efforts to expedite LNG exporting permits and has supported aggressive federal regulations of fracking that would restrict fracking. Every one of those policies is contrary to the interests of the Permian Basin and is wrong-headed for the people of Texas.

O'Rourke: It's fundamental to our national security and our energy security and our energy independence. I mentioned earlier [during the Midland town hall on Aug. 30] that we're in our 27th year of war in Iraq. We began those wars in 1991, and we've been there every year through six successive presidential administrations. I don't ever want to be dependent on another part of the world again for our energy. I love that Texas has made us independent. And I also am grateful for the jobs and the economic growth that come with that. I want to make sure that we continue to do this in a responsible, safe way that does not jeopardize the environment. … I've been really pleased at the willingness of industry to work on issues like fugitive emissions, which are not only not good for the environment. They're not good for their bottom line in their businesses. I think that natural gas that we use as a cleaner energy source here in this country could be something that replaces coal-fired plants in China, in India — two of the largest economies on the planet that are burning coal and contributing to climate change. I'd much rather they burn natural gas from Texas that's connected to jobs here. It's connected to a much cleaner way to produce energy than coal. I think that's a great job opportunity and an environmentally responsible opportunity. So, this part of Texas is fundamental to our national security.

MRT: Don't tariffs threaten the ability to obtain the steel needed to build pipelines and therefore threaten the nation's ability to achieve energy dominance?

Cruz: Yes. There is a real potential that tariffs or a trade war could impose meaningful damage on the energy industry. I support free trade. I have urged President Trump and the Trump administration repeatedly to use NAFTA renegotiations to expend our access into foreign markets, to expand our access into Mexico and Canada rather than a vehicle to restrict trade and erect barriers to the U.S. markets. In my view, the single greatest opportunity on NAFTA renegotiation is energy and opening up the Mexico energy markets, which would produce thousands of high-paying jobs in Mexico and Texas. When it comes to trade, trade is the single biggest concern I hear from the Texas business community. Texas small business owners are enthusiastic about the positive benefits of the tax cuts that we passed last year, they are enthusiastic about the reduction in job-killing regulations from Washington but very concerned that tariffs in a trade war could hurt Texas. I agree with those concerns, and I have encouraged President Trump not to listen to those voices in his administration urging higher tariffs but rather for the administration to aggressively negotiate for lower tariffs across the board. Because when Texas businesses, when Texas farmers and when Texas ranchers have access to foreign markets we can compete with anyone on a fair and level playing field.

O'Rourke: Tariffs are bad for Texas. They're bad for Texas farmers and growers, producers, manufacturers and exporters. They're also bad for a state that buys more aluminum and steel I believe than any other state in the Union. So our cost for construction, our cost for pipelines, our cost for civic projects, for building has gone through the roof. We were just in Abilene, Texas, and learned that — I think it's a new convention center — the cost for that convention center had gone up 20 percent as their costs for lumber, steel and aluminum have gone up 20 percent. So, I think there is a way to meet the challenge of China manipulating their currency, China dumping steel and aluminum — which they shouldn't be doing. And I'm grateful that the president is trying to stand up against them. But the president's also entered this country into a trade war without going into that war with any allies. We've estranged Canada. We've estranged the European Union. We've estranged our trading partners who could have been our allies against China, and we're trying to go it alone. No state's economy is going to be hit harder than Texas, so we need to help this president and help the country to do the right thing.

Permian oil auction raises close to $1B

By Kevin Crowley and Ryan Collins
Bloomberg

The price to access unexplored shale assets on the New Mexico side of the Permian Basin soared to $95,001 an acre in a federal government auction, a record high for North America's biggest oil field.

Matador Resources Co. CEO David Lancaster confirmed this week that his company was the anonymous purchaser of the drilling rights.

He said the record lease was part of the $387 million the Dallas-based company spent on 8,400 net acres in the Permian's Delaware Basin. The U.S. Bureau of Land Management, which conducted New Mexico auction last week, had identified the winning bidder as Federal Abstract Co., a firm in Santa Fe that bids on behalf of anonymous investors.

"We're comfortable in what we paid," Lancaster said by telephone late Wednesday. "We feel it's some of the best acreage in New Mexico."

The state's previous record was $40,001 an acre set in December, according to a statement Thursday by the U.S. Department of the Interior. Overall, the two-day auction saw bids on 142 parcels of land and raised $972 million, more than the whole of 2017 and double the 2008 record.

Austin-based analyst Scott Hanold, with RBC Capital Markets LLC, had surmised that EOG Resources Inc., Devon Energy Corp., ExxonMobil Corp. and Chevron Corp. were the "logical buyers" of the tracts because they own nearby drilling rights.

The auction provides a rare peek into how oil producers value drilling rights in the Permian, most of which is in Texas, where land and minerals are privately owned. Record prices show that despite a recent slowdown in activity because of pipeline shortages, explorers view the Permian's stacked layers of oil-soaked rock as a unique long-term asset.

"We were expecting high bids, I can't say I was expecting $95,000" an acre, said R.T. Dukes, Lower 48 upstream research director at Wood Mackenzie Ltd. "The Permian is the center of the oil universe when it comes to investment right now and just because of a few pipeline constraints that's not going to change."

The New Mexico auction's high price is "tremendous positive read-through" for Permian oil stocks, which have an average valuation of about $32,000 an acre, according to analysts at Seaport Global Securities LLC.

The $95,001 price tag for the drilling rights is about 16 percent higher than what Concho paid earlier this year for RSP Permian Inc. On the day that deal was announced, the amount generated heartburn for Concho investors, who sent the stock tumbling 10 percent.

The auction was competitive, with multiple rival bidders pushing up the price of the New Mexico acreage, Dukes said.

Experts mull how long shale keeps filling gap

By Jeff Mosier
The Dallas Morning News

The Permian Basin and other U.S. shale plays will continue to steer the global oil industry for years. But experts warned last week that the "new Saudi Arabia" isn't the answer to every oil industry question.

Petroleum experts gathered at the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas to discuss energy's role in the economy and what comes next. The third annual Energy and the Economy conference was co-sponsored with the Kansas City Fed; combined, those two districts account for 50 percent of U.S. oil production.

Panels featured discussions of everything from sanctions on Iran to militants in Nigeria. Discussions and questions, however, continued to circle back around to the oil fields of West Texas and eastern New Mexico, that region's strengths and its limitations.

Finally balanced

There are red flags everywhere in the energy world. Production from former oil powerhouse Venezuela has plummeted. Sanctions on Iran will tighten the world's oil supply. Pipeline constraints in the Permian Basin are squeezing some producers.

Despite those concerns, experts said the oil market has reached a state of equilibrium, after a period of oversupply. But Dallas Fed Chairman Robert Kaplan said there are reasons to be cautious.

"It is also our view that in the next few years, it is very likely that we may well get into a global undersupply situation," he said.

Global demand continues to grow, while oil companies have spent less on "long-life projects," Kaplan said. The industry has instead relied on shale oil, which producers can ramp up and down quickly, to fill the gap.

"A number of you are advising us to be skeptical whether shale production will be sufficient to keep up with the growth in global demand," Kaplan said.

Driving growth

In the short term, the Permian Basin is expected to keep oil prices in check even with its pipeline constraints. Linda Capuano, administrator of the U.S. Energy Information Administration, said prices are expected to hover around $70 next year thanks to production increases in just a few countries.

"We expect almost all the growth in 2019 to come from the United States, Canada and Brazil," she said. "This strong growth in global supply is expected to help moderate pricing."

The EIA forecasts that U.S. crude oil production will grow by 1 million barrels per day next year. Almost 70 percent of that growth is expected to come from the Permian Basin and Eagle Ford.

"Next year, one out of every three barrels of crude oil growth in the world is expected to come from Texas and New Mexico," Capuano said.

Permian math

Mark A. Schwartz, head of scenario planning at S&P Global Platts Analytics, said it's not necessarily pipeline capacity or similar constraints that will force the Permian Basin and other shale plays to plateau.

"It's just the arithmetic," he said.

Shale wells produce most of their oil in the first few years. Schwartz said a 15 percent annual decline rate is typical when averaged over the first five or six years.

U.S. shale oil production hit about 7 million barrels per day this year, which makes that decline substantial.

"We have a million (barrels) a day decline that we have to offset, just to stay in place," Schwartz said. "That number continues to get bigger and bigger."
