EUROPEAN WAR LOOMS CLOSER DAILY

Observers Agree That Situation Becomes More Serious

With Great Britain backing Ethiopia, and a group of the minor powers standing behind England; France outspoken in behalf of Italy, and with a similar backing of small nations; troops being mobilized in half a dozen countries; naval powers shifting their battle craft to the scene of possible operations; and American war correspondents already on the scene of action, it looks to official observers that another war is about to break in Europe.

A group of smaller nations, led by the Netherlands and Belgium, supported Great Britain today in their opposition to the Italian military conquest of Ethiopia. Representatives of the minor powers told the League of Nations that they decried an armed invasion of the black republic, and wanted maintenance of non-aggression principles.

Favorable reports on negotiations to swerve Italy from its course were noticeably lacking, and Mussolini seems determined to carry out his campaign.

Military preparations in the Mediterranean area are continuing with intensified activity. Great Britain has ordered three more battalions of soldiers to Malta, and Italy has sent 5,900 troops from Naples with sailing orders to East Africa.

Emperor Selassie today expressed the gratitude of his country for the British stand in backing the League covenant opposing aggression.

Germany to Lose Tariff Trade Pacts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—It was learned today that Germany, on October 15, would lose all United States tariff reductions in reciprocal trade pacts, because of asserted persistent and flagrant discrimination against American imports there.

The termination of the trade benefits is attributed to the State Department, and is interpreted by many observers as instituting a new American foreign trade policy.

It was learned that Secretary Hull had notified German Ambassador Luther that all German imports into the United States, after October 15, must pay the highest prevailing duty rates.

Portugal, Denmark and Italy have been "on warning" for the same reason since July.

Reynolds Brings Bailey Co. Corn

C. A. Reynolds, local insurance dealer, returning from his farm near Muleshoe in Bailey County, has brought a load of corn for Hall County corn raisers to shoot at. Every ear of corn brought in by Mr. Reynolds rivals the large one brought in by Lee Thornton yesterday in size and weight.

Mr. Reynolds states that there is an abundance of all farm produce in Bailey County but says that all of the produce is selling for an extremely low market price.

COME FOR MAN

Sheriff Wheeler of Abilene was here last night, to take B. P. Emmons, arrested by local officers on an Abilene indictment, back for trial.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. L. Dowell, who underwent an operation at the Boaz Hospital last week, is reported much better. She was dismissed from the hospital yesterday and taken to her home, four miles south of the city.

Shelter Belt Takes Form

Evidence that the shelter belt, the government's vast tree planting project from Texas to Canada, may be practicable in combating dust storms is given by this picture, taken in the "dust bowl." The photo shows a row of locusts now standing eight feet high as compared to 12 to 18 inches last April. The ample space left for growth is shown by the wide "aisle" between the tree rows.

Cyclone Fans See Squad In Action

Practice Tilt With Lakeview

Memphians viewed their first football encounter of the season last night under the floodlights at the new Cyclone Stadium at 8 o'clock when Coach Chesty Walker's eleven met the Lakeview High School aggregation under the tutorage of Coach Bob Clark in a tough scrimmage session.

The play last night was not a regular football game, but merely a practice session for both teams. Despite the fact that the game has not been advertised, a fairly large crowd of Lakeview and Memphis fans were on hand to witness the proceedings.

Memphis' Cyclone clicked nicely at times last night, but part of the time they played ragged football. The scrimmage session left the fans wondering as much as ever over the brand of football the Cyclone would play this year. Memphis' foes this year should be much stiffer than the "C" class team that was scrimmaged last night.

The ball was put in play on the 50 yard line with Memphis on the offense. "Goggles" Powers went through the right side of his line on the first play for 10 yards, and on the second down of the contest, Deason streaked through left tackle and side-stepped his way up the field for a touchdown. No attempt was made to convert the extra point.

Both Deason and Powers looked good on the offense by ripping off long runs of 40 yards or more on two or three occasions. Adcock and Walker took passes handily and covered their flats on defense well. Ray Childress, substitute quarterback, also broke loose for long runs.

Captain Bub McAbee, center, and Winifred Swift, guard, showed up well in the line. The two men were in on almost half of the tackles. Cotton Melton and Garvis Davis showed that the first strings ends were going to have to look to their laurels or find themselves pushed off the first team by figuring prominently in the defensive play. "Red" Moore starred for Lakeview.

The local players proved themselves wide-awake last night by recovering all but one of the dozen or more fumbles.

The starting line-ups were:

THREE YOUTHS SENTENCED BY COURT

Suspended Sentence Granted One of Defendants

Three youths who pleaded guilty yesterday in District Court, were sentenced by Judge Fires, one being granted a suspended sentence.

Cremmit Roberts, charged with two counts, robbery and forgery, was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary on each charge, to be served consecutively.

Fred Greathouse, charged with the theft of Henderson Smith's car recently, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, the limit in such a case.

Cecil Page, charged with the theft of three chickens, was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary and his sentence suspended by the judge, due to his youth. The record showed that he had a previous chicken theft charge against him, but as it was a juvenile offense, this was not held against him.

On appointment by Judge Fires, the three defendants were represented by Attorney William J. Bragg.

Improving Lobby Of Pounds Hotel

Redecorating and Install New Floor

The Pounds Hotel is undergoing modernization work this week which will give it one of the most attractive lobbies of any hotel in this section of the state.

The keystone of the alterations is the installation of a new terrazzo flooring. Workmen from Amarillo are here now, installing the floor. It will be in attractive designs and colors. This type of floor has become standard in practically all public buildings, where beauty must be combined with practicability, being durable and sanitary.

When the new floor is completed, the entire lobby is to be redecorated and modernized.

With the remodeling, redecorating and refurbishing which was done by Mr. Pounds several months back, the new lobby will distinctly place the Pounds among the best hotels of West Texas.

Torch Singer Dead Home of Millionaire

DOWNINGTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—Evelyn Hoey, 25, blond torch singer famous on Broadway and in London and Paris, was found today, shot to death in the farm home of Henry Rogers, Jr., 29, son of the late Standard Oil multimillionaire.

Young Rogers was brought here, on a technical charge of suspicion of murder. The police said Rogers had been drinking, and that the tragedy followed a party. The girl's death was first reported as a suicide.

Rogers said that, following an argument, the girl went upstairs alone, that they heard a shot and when they ran upstairs, found her lying on the floor.

The bullet which killed the singer entered the left side of her head, passing through and embedding itself in the wall.

Frank Catano, Rogers' chauffeur, who reported the death, said that Rogers had told him he was on the first floor at the time of the shooting.

William J. Kelly, a New Jersey married man, is being held as a material witness.

Miss Hoey had been a guest in the Rogers home for the past week.

A cash premium of $18, together with a number of articles of merchandise, donated by local business men, was given W. B. McQueen yesterday for the first bale of cotton of the season, ginned the day before.

EXPRESS AGENTS MEETING AT CHILDRESS

Local Agent Attends District Meeting Last Night

B. B. McMillan, local railway express agent attended a meeting of the Red River Valley League of Railway Express Agents last night at 8 o'clock in Childress. The meeting was held in a special railroad coach on a siding at the Fort Worth and Denver station.

Approximately 30 men from points along the line from Amarillo to Wichita Falls were present. Morris Higley, publisher of the Childress Index delivered the address of welcome. An address to the group on "The Service of the Express Company From the Standpoint of a Business Man," was given by C. E. Johnson of Childress.

Officials of the organization are F. H. Graves, president; C. C. Lewis, Childress, vice-president, and J. L. Winston, Quanah, secretary.

LEAVES FOR HOME

Hugh Nelson left yesterday for his home in San Marcos after a visit with his sister, Mrs. T. E. Wilton and his mother, at Newlin. He spent a time yesterday visiting with C. H. Webster, who attended Goodnight College together some 30 years ago. Mr. Nelson is instructor in the Sam Houston Normal at San Marcos.

Where Long Lies In State

In the $5,000,000 capitol at Baton Rouge, shown above, one of the monuments of Senator Huey P. Long's reign in Louisiana, his body will lie in state before it is borne to its last resting place. It was in the first floor corridor of the beautiful edifice that Senator Long's assassin fired the fatal bullet.

County Products Being Assembled

Hall County will have at the Tri-State Fair, at Amarillo next week, one of the most attractive exhibits which it has ever displayed at any exposition.

County Agent James A. Jackson, Charlie Williams, and other assistants have been busy the past several days, assembling the farm products for the Amarillo showing, preparing them for exhibition and getting them in shape to send to the fair.

Tomorrow Mr. Jackson and Mr. Williams will take the exhibit to Amarillo and arrange it in the Hall County booth, ready for the opening of the fair Saturday morning.

Featured in the exhibit will be cotton and feed, and such cotton and feed has not been seen in this county for a number of years. Cotton stalks that look like young trees and are loaded with bolls, corn that resembles the famous product of Iowa, maize, kaffir, feterita and other feeds with plump, well developed heads.

Other farm products which will be displayed include sweet clover, alfalfa and other hay crops. Fruits and vegetables will be represented with peaches, grapes, plums, watermelons, squash, okra, beans and many others.

One feature which will catch the eye are several stalks of cotton from which all the leaves have been removed, showing to best advantage the dozens of well developed bolls. They look more like bunches of grapes than stalks of cotton.

Among the vegetables are a number of okra plants with pods almost a foot long, yet tender.

The fruit exhibits, while few in number, make up by their splendid quality. The grapes look like they were grown on the Pacific coast, instead of in Hall County, which has never claimed to be a fruit country.

There is no doubt that when the crowds at the Tri-State Fair see the Hall County exhibit, they are going to think that the accounts of the growth here have been greatly exaggerated.

To Bury Long This Afternoon

BATON ROUGE, Sept. 12.—Leaders and thousands of Huey Long followers planned to bury their idol here this afternoon, and then determine whether his assassination was the result of a conspiracy. Rev. Gerald Smith has been chosen to deliver the funeral oration. Louisiana state officials closed as the funeral hour approached. A simple ritual is planned for Long.

The Louisiana political front is upset. The strategy of both supporters and opponents of Long's regime is undivided, but a strong fight is forecast. One source indicated that Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, might be asked by the Share the Wealth groups to run for the Presidency next year.

Joseph Byrns, speaker of the House, has been asked to urge a Congressional investigation into the assassination. The district attorney here has promised a full inquiry.

The thrice-announced but postponed inquest into the death of Doctor Carl Weiss, Jr., slayer of Long, will be resumed Monday. The names of witnesses called have not been revealed.

BACK TO COLLEGE

C. W. Crawford, Jr., left this morning for Lubbock, where he will attend Texas Tech again this term. C. W. plays trombone in the Tech band, and will again be one of the organization. Herman Crawford took him to Lubbock, returning this afternoon.

The BLUE DOOR

Rachel Mack © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
RUTH WOODSON, 19 years old, an orphan, takes a bus for the mid-west to find a job. Unable to pay her fare, she is put off the bus in a small town, just as a storm is breaking. Ruth seeks shelter in an old stone house with a blue door, and faints from hunger as PENNY, the old housekeeper, opens the door.

Ruth is carried upstairs by the old woman and a young man named JOHN McNEILL. The old woman mistakes Ruth for ELAINE CHALMERS, whose grandfather built the house. Elaine, meanwhile, at Graycastle College, vows in a sorority meeting to win the love of her first sweetheart, John McNeill.

Ruth resolves to quit the old house next day, but when John McNeill invites himself to dinner she decides to put off her departure.

Though "almost engaged" to an Annapolis man, to a famous orchestra leader, and to the wealthy TEDDY VAN HARRINGTON, Elaine decides to capture another heart. She writes John McNeill, telling him she plans to visit Worthville and hopes to renew their friendship. Lacking a stamp the letter lies on her desk unmail-ed.

When Penny turns over to Ruth a box of lovely clothes, sent by the Chalmers family for a rummage sale, the girl resolves to wear them, "letting charity fall where it will." She has promised John to go for a ride with him that evening.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII
Ruth spent the day entertaining Penny. That is to say, she listened to Penny and she talked to Penny. She was well-rewarded. There was the knowledge that she had made the lonely, half-blind old woman happy, and there was the useful information she gleaned in regard to Elaine's family.

Elaine's father, she learned from Penny's rambling tales, was an admirable young man who was killed in the World War. (Ruth thought "At least Elaine Chalmers and I have that in common—our brave fathers whom we can't remember.") Elaine's mother, "Miss Gwen," eventually married a second time. The man was an old suitor, Higate Deal, of Wall Street fame.

In speaking of Deal, Penny hinted dark things. "He's ruined your grandpa's railroad. Now that he's got hold of it they don't pay the stockholders around here like they used to. I hear reports—" She stopped, as if afraid she had said too much.

Ruth, in turn, invented interesting accounts of Elaine's life in the east. "I was at wonderful houseparties last summer, Penny—" and she told glamorous details without a twinge of conscience. She knew that she was feeding Penny's starved imagination and making her temporarily happy. What else was there to offer for birthday diversion?

"I won a swimming event at Newport, Penny!" "At Saratoga one time I was skiing and took an awful tumble. The young man who picked me up afterward proposed to me, but mother and Mr. Deal didn't approve, so nothing came of it."

"Maybe he didn't have enough money," remarked Penny with a faint snort. Any mention of Higate Deal seemed to throw her into a suppressed rage.

Ruth led her to talk of "Grandfather Hunter," the old railroad king. "There was a man for you!" Penny declared. "Six-foot-two. White hair piled on his head like a corn shock. A nose like an eagle's beak. He spoiled his children—your mother and Uncle Duncan—something awful, but he never spoiled himself. He let 'em go east to school and do as they pleased. But he always said the state of Ohio was good enough for him. Folks around here still talk about Si Hunter. If they knew you was in town, his only grandchild, they'd likely write a piece about you in the paper."

"Penny," exclaimed Ruth in real panic, "if anything like that happens I'll leave town! I—I hate publicity!" she made Penny take a solemn oath that she would tell no one of her presence.

"I wouldn't anyway," Penny explained. "I keep to myself. People cry. There's lots of things I'd die before I'd tell 'em!" She peered around her defiantly, as if holding the whole town at bay.

"Yes, Penny," said Ruth soothingly, and patted her arm. "Would you mind if I'd go for a ride with John McNeill before supper? He asked me this morning."

Penny relaxed. "Do go, Miss Elaine. It'll do you good. Only be sure to put on that warmer suit. It's turned chilly with the rain."

Ruth and John McNeill were both 10 minutes early for their appointment. Ruth answered the door when he rang and said, "I meant to keep you waiting. This childish eagerness of mine is going to ruin you."

"I'm easily spoiled," John replied as he helped her into the low-swung roaster which was parked before the porch.

"For instance, that kiss preceding. Couldn't we do it—once, say every time we meet?"

"Why should we?" Ruth asked in a cool, aloof voice.

"Why?" repeated John McNeill slowly, starting his car and pondering the question. "I was hoping you'd just want to, Elaine. The way I do, my mistake—"

He swung the car out of the circling driveway onto the street, and immediately assumed a more impersonal attitude. "You said the country, I believe. Well, we're on the edge of town now. You're about to see something very choice in rustic scenery."

Ruth said, "I suppose you'll tell me this is the garden spot of the world—finest soil, finest crops, finest climate, finest everything?" (Her heart was saying, "Little fool, you chilled him by your priggishness! Why shouldn't you kiss when you meet? Aren't you supposed to be lifelong friends?")

"I could tell you plenty about this town," replied John. "Only I'm afraid it might sound presumptuous to an easterner."

"We New Yorkers do feel superior," Ruth agreed. (She was thinking, "Dear Lord in heaven, what have I to feel superior about? I, a tramp. A nobody. A piece of driftwood!")

He slowed the car to point out a rambling brick house with an avenue of trees leading to it. He said, "You recall that place of course. The Philippines still live there. Lucy's at Vassar now. I—how you see her sometimes in New York?"

"It's funny," Ruth answered. "I never do. Has she changed much?"

"Not as much as you have," John McNeill said.

He offered her a cigaret which she took, hoping she was not too awkward at catching the light he offered her. Elaine, she felt, would smoke under the circumstances.

He said, looking at her until the match burned his fingers. "You look lovely today. Mind my telling you?"

"Mind? I like it. But we'll have to give credit to my clothes.

I've always liked this suit. It's more flattering than the little rag I arrived in."

"When I first saw you," John remarked, "you were the hippest little piece of wreckage I ever laid eyes on. It was a first-class faint, if I ever saw one."

"What a way to enter your life after an eight year absence!" Ruth mourned. "At my very worst."

"At your very most impressive," he disagreed. "I've met several hundred perfectly turned out girls in my day, and promptly forgot 'em. I never before picked up one that looked like a wet dishrag fallen off the line, and five minutes later, saw her turn into a thing of beauty right under my nose."

"Did you realize who I was?" Ruth asked curiously.

He said, "Until Penny started calling you 'Miss Elaine' it never entered my head that you were anything but a little nobody trying to find a dry spot."

"Oh—" said Ruth. "These elms are gorgeous. Like—like New England, aren't they?"

"Have you forgotten this is the Western Reserve?" John asked. "Your ancestors and mine who helped settle it came from those states. Got their land grants for being good Revolutionary soldiers. They held on to the old New England customs—white frame houses, elm-lined roads, maple sugar groves. All that sort of thing."

"I'd forgotten," Ruth replied.

The car sped through the rain like a smooth, purring animal that delighted to transport them. Darkness had fallen and the headlights outlined a road that was level and faintly curving. Ruth thought, "Heaven must be like this. I'd like to crystallize this hour and keep it always, shining like the headlights and the rain ties on the wet leaves. Only I can't think I want us to hit a tree and crack up and end it all before

RECOVERY

AS an indication that the return of the country to normalcy is well under way, statistics recently released by a private research corporation show that the first seven months of 1935 have shown a healthy gain over the same period in 1934.

This is borne out not only by the fact that the seven months, as a whole, have been better, but also by the fact that each succeeding month betters its twin of last year by a greater percentage than the months preceding it.

The figures accompanying the report are arrived at by a close examination of automobile production, electric power output, retail trade, petroleum production, and other industrial activities.

Charted, the gain is seen to be the greatest in the West Coast states, with California, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, where business is rated as "good."

The southern states, including Texas, and the states in the Great Lakes region show the next greatest improvement, being rated as "better than average."

The balance of the nation, with the exception of several states in the extreme northeast, are rated "average," the exceptions being "below average."

One can talk about better times, and hope for better times, but that means nothing. On the other hand, when cold figures, taken from the leading industrial activities in the nation, are used as a basis for calculation, and they show that times are rapidly becoming normal, there is no denying the fact.

Old man Prosperity is at last coming around the corner.

OUR FAIR
THAT'S the way we feel about the Tri-State Fair, at Amarillo, which opens Saturday, for an eight days showing.

With more attractions than ever before, the exposition this year is going to attract thousands from all over this section of the country.

With the Dallas Fair off the boards this fall, the Tri-State enjoys the distinction of being the largest in the state, and by far the best.

Penn Expecting To Regain Grid Fame

Gridiron Season Beginning Soon

By HENRY SUPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK. — Early-season punts and passes:

Pittsburgh gets the championship for being down the first 1934 gridiron roster. . . . Only two 1934 regulars will report to Jack Sutherland. . . . Bob LaRue, halfback, and Verne Paxter, end. . . . Princeton is erecting temporary stands at Palmer Stadium boosting the seating capacity from 52,000 to 60,000. . . . West Coast agents report California will be the "mystery team" out there with a new coach and a squad of youngsters promising some fireworks. . . .

Southern coaches believe the lateral pass is going to be THE offensive weapon down there this season. . . . Columbia will open practice with practically an all-sophomore squad.

Coach Gar Davidson of Army won't designate his assistants as line coach, end coach, etc. . . . they are all going to be assistant coaches. . . . "We will continue to hold group drills on fundamentals," he says, "with the coaches having about the same duties as last year. . . . We are going to work as three or four separate coaching organizations."

Knox Seeks Pushover
Jack MacDonald, former New York University star, will coach the Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., pro team this year. . . . Pete Reynolds, coach of Knox College, is looking for a team which Old Siwash can beat on opening day in order to end its losing streak.

Art Kahler, former assistant to Tuss McLaughry at Brown, will head Dickinson College this year. . . . Stanley (Toots) Kasper, St. Mary's star of eight years ago, is now a lieutenant in the navy flying crops at San Francisco. . . . Toby Hunt, Gael tackle four years ago, is at Pensacola, Fla., schooling for a commission and wings.

Navy's middies will see all five games played away from home. . . . Yale, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Army at Philadelphia, and Notre Dame at Baltimore. . . . Manhattan College of New York will have co-captains for the first time in history. . . . John (Red) Welch, backfield star, and Jerry Buckley, tackle, will share the post.

Duke More Optimistic
Wallace Wade down at Duke thinks his team this year will be a little better balanced than the 1934 team which was weak defensively. . . . Amos Alonzo Stagg, Jr., is coaching Susquehanna this year. . . . Reports from the West Coast have it that Fresno State College is going to be a factor this season. . . . The little school down in the San Joaquin Valley plays Santa Clara and there might be an upset.

Coast fans still remember what Nevada did to St. Mary's last year, and are ready for the worst. . . . Andy Kerr of Colgate gets too year's first crying towel honors. . . . looking over his schedule which includes Iowa, Holy Cross, Tulane, Syracuse and Brown, Andy said: "It's a tough assignment—meeting these teams."

GAME AT CHILDRESS

The first football game of the season in this section will be played tonight by the Childress Bobcats and the Chillicothe Eagles under the floodlights at Childress.

Several Memphis people have announced their intentions of viewing the game.

Hardin-Simmons Prospects Good

ABILENE, Sept. 12.—Hardin-Simmons university football players, more than fifty strong, reported for the first drill of the season Tuesday morning and went right to work in preparation for their opening game with Texas Tech in Abilene the night of Sept. 20.

Head Coach Frank Kimbrough and his chief assistant, T. W. Harrison, sent their charges through brief warm-up exercises in the morning and got down to serious blocking and tackling drills in the afternoon. Skull practice was held in the evening.

The Cowboys will practice twice daily for the next two weeks and should be in excellent condition for the homecoming tilt with the Matadors. Reserved seat tickets for the fray have already been placed on sale and indications point to a capacity crowd.

Leading the large squad of gridiron hopefuls was Captain Henry Milby, halfback, who is already being touted for all Texas conference honors. Although the Ranchers will not be in the running for the conference flag they will meet St. Edwards, Trinity, and Howard Payne, members of the organization.

Fans got their first look at what may be the starting backfield when Milby, Pete Tyler, Paul White, and Ed Cherry running together took part in a short signal practice. Tyler was an all-conference selection last year as a sophomore. White was out most of the last season with a broken arm but seems to be in great shape this year. Cherry, probably one of the greatest backs in the state, followed Kimbrough to Hardin-Simmons from Amarillo Junior college where he gained all-star honors.

One Eyed Cow Reads Democrat

Even the one-eyed cows read the Democrat nowadays.

Mr. Hagemeyer, of the City Dairy, lost a one-eyed cow a few days ago. Search all through the pasture at the dairy failed to locate her. Then he ran an ad in the Democrat and the cow came home.

Mr. Conway, our advertising manager, has it figured out about this way:

The cow became tired of her labors in helping furnish the city with milk, and decided to take a rest, hiding out from the boys when they came to look for her. Later, seeing the ad in the Democrat, she felt remorseful and perhaps figured she was throwing her boss down, so she came home.

When even the one-eyed cows read the want-ads—that's getting results.
