How's that?

Bike riders

Q. Isn't it against the law for anyone and everyone to be riding on the sidewalk? There's a real problem with that in my neighborhood. What can be done about it?

A. Bicycles and motorized vehicles may not ride on the sidewalk, but must obey all traffic laws, said police Sgt. Lee Everett.

However, skateboards and fast-pedaled scooters are allowed on the sidewalk, he said.

In a residential area, the police can only warn the riders and inform them of the laws, he said. But in a business district, police can give tickets.

"We don't usually give kids tickets, unless they're extremely reckless," he said, then tickets are issued and parents informed.

Snake loses out at hearing

Staff and wire reports
BALLINGER — Residents from this dry section of West Central Texas lined up to attack an environmental report that they claimed shows more concern for the survival of a river snake than for people who need water.

Big Spring City Manager B. Mack Wofford, who along with Mayor Cotton Mize attended the hearing Wednesday night, said it was well attended and conducted in a "straightforward" manner.

The meeting was to gain public comment on a draft environmental impact statement by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on the proposed Stacy Dam and Reservoir. But most comments, Wofford said, concerned the Concho water snake.

After reading the Corp report, Wofford said it seemed incomplete, lacking detail. The Fish and Wildlife Service's Fort Worth office was the only government entity to study the proposed dam's impact on the snake, thus narrowing its scope, he said.

San Angelo City Councilman

Gary Shrum said the report "appears to be biased toward the Concho (water) snake from the beginning."

He was among some 50 residents, cheered on by about 200 others, who spoke at a hearing at the Ballinger High School auditorium.

Because of the degree of citizen concern and input, Wofford said some positives results regarding the dam may develop.

Corps of Engineers Lt. Col. Bob Keenan said the final draft on the environmental impact of the dam must be completed by Nov. 3.

"This is only a draft," Keenan said.

Owen Ivie, a proponent of the dam from the Colorado River Municipal Water District in Big Spring, said the report "failed to recognize the catastrophic consequences to West Texas if... approval of Stacy Dam and Reservoir is denied."

He said failure to build the dam could cost West Texas more than $80 billion by the year 2040.

He said his water district is willing to accommodate environmentalists concerned with the Concho water snake in order to build the dam.

"We are willing and enthusiastic to find all reasonable forms of mitigation that will help to protect the fish and wildlife resources of our area, provided that this does not mean that our people must do without drinking water."

He said that proposed water release schedules to protect downstream wildlife were

President campaigns for Clements

DALLAS (AP) — Electing a Republican as Texas governor this fall is crucial to the GOP's fortunes across the nation, according to the country's top Republican, President Reagan.

"I hope the people of Texas know that by electing Bill Clements they won't only be putting Texas back on the road to economic good times, they'll also be sending a message to the rest of the country, especially to the Democratic Party leaders," Reagan said during a stop in Dallas to campaign for Clements.

Outing Democratic Gov. Mark White in the fall will send the Democratic Party to stop policies of "tax and tax and spend and spend," Reagan said.

Reagan spoke at a GOP rally held at Dallas' Apparel Mart and later was guest of honor at a private luncheon at the Loew's Anatole Hotel. Campaign aides said the Clements campaign made $1 million from the $5,000-a-plate presidential luncheon.

Clements' press secretary, Reggie Bashur, said the Clements campaign will pay the $25,000 estimated cost of flying Reagan to Texas on Air Force One because the president's trip was purely political.

Reagan credited Republican policies for bringing lower taxes, lower inflation and interest rates and creating new jobs. But, he said, Texas is experiencing financial difficulties because of Democratic leadership in Austin.

"I think it's a tragedy that hard times have hit Texas and that unemployment is as high as it is in this great state. I want you all to know that this administration in Washington is aware of Texas problems," he said.

"So let's say something else flat out: One of the most important steps Texans can take towards full economic recovery is to say no to any more years of tax and tax and spend and spend in Austin," he said.

Reagan said his memories of Dallas include the 1976 and 1980 primaries and his nomination here at the National Republican Convention in 1984.

Dog may help fight against drugs

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

To fight the use of illegal drugs, people must eliminate the demand for them, says Dan Brainard, president of Narcotic Consultants Inc. of Spicewood. He aims to do just that.

Brainard was in Big Spring Tuesday to address area school officials on his solution to drug use in schools. He is a former FBI agent, who has been with Narcotics Consultants for 10 years.

The solution focuses on changing youngsters' attitudes about drugs and eliminating peer pressure toward their use, then letting the students get rid of the drugs themselves, he said.

The program uses a dog to sniff out drugs at schools. But instead of a snarling, threatening German shepherd, Brainard uses a friendly, people-loving Labrador retriever, he said.

Brainard stressed the purpose of the program is not to get students in trouble by finding drugs, but to persuade them not to bring drugs to school. Only 30 to 40 percent of the program involves detecting drugs, he said.

"The dogs I use are the most positive, gentle, loving creatures, and that's why it works," Brainard said.

"I got to thinking about the juice that flows between a kid and a dog," he said. "A dog has more credibility with a child than any authoritarian figure (does) because the dog is going to love the kid totally, and there's no restriction on it." Also, he said, the dogs don't lie to children.

"The credibility in this program is everything," he said.

The dog becomes a non-threatening, functioning member of the community, visiting schools, and attending school and community events.

Brainard chooses the dog's handler from the community. Most handlers are housewives with children in school, which adds another non-threatening element, he said.

When the dog does find drugs and the principal confronts the student in question, the student's hostility is circumvented, because "there's no one to get mad at" for informing, he said.

Brainard told about an incident in which drugs were found in a student's car. While the principal was preparing the paper work, the student in question asked if he could go play in the nearby field with the dog.

He told about another situation in which students invited their dog to the senior prom and made him a special canine tuxedo.

School districts contract with the company for a certain number of drug searches per school, which are conducted unannounced.

The dogs can detect virtually all psychoactive chemicals, including alcohol and gunpowder, Brainard said. They also are qualified to

Hawks dive at humans

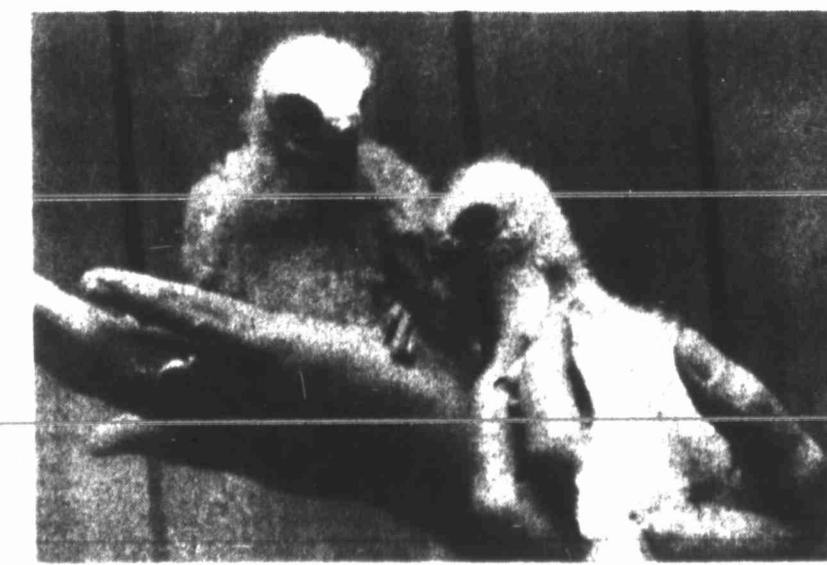

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Don't be surprised if you get dive-bombed by a hawk this month, says bird rehabilitator Bebe McCasland of Big Spring, who works with the Midland Bird Sanctuary.

Mississippi kites, a type of hawk also called the mosquito hawk, have been proliferant this summer because May and June rains have brought more locusts, which they eat, McCasland said.

During this time of year, while their young have no feathers, the hawk parents are very protective. They will dive at anything moving nearby, including people, she said.

The adult birds, with sharp talons and beaks, and a wingspan of nearly 3 feet can be frightening, she said, but they usually only come within about 1½ feet of a person. The birds have a gray body, ash-gray head, black tail and deep red eyes, she said. They winter in Paraguay and Argentina and return here in the summer. Their call is Kee-ee, she said.

Residents of E. 14th Street are quite familiar with the call this year, she said, because a pair of over-aggressive hawk parents have been terrorizing the neighborhood.

The pair had become such a nuisance that the mail carrier had

Reagan may expand 'Star Wars' testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has tentatively decided to propose to the Soviet Union expanded testing of U.S. "Star Wars" technology and to urge deep cutbacks in long-range nuclear missiles, administration officials said today.

Along with the "new approach" on testing, a draft of Reagan's letter to Secretary General Mikhail S. Gorbachev also offers to delay deployment of anti-missile technology in space for five to seven years, the officials said. They stressed the decision was tentative.

Three U.S. envoys sent to consult with allied governments in Western Europe and Asia were due back shortly. The officials, who demanded anonymity, said their reports would have to be weighed before a final decision was made.

The proposal for expanded testing is designed to go beyond the laboratory in determining if mobile sensors and chemical lasers capable of tracking and destroying attacking missiles could be effective in a space-based defense system.

This would require a major concession from Gorbachev, who has condemned the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, known popularly as Star Wars, as likely to expand the arms race into a dangerous new sphere.

However, a U.S. pledge to put off deployment of any anti-missile technology for five to seven years amounts to a guarantee the United States would observe the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty at least that long. Either side now can withdraw from the agreement with six months' notice.

Gorbachev, in a letter to Reagan on June 23, urged him to pledge a 15- to 20-year delay in deploying the

NEW YORK — KATHARINE HEPBURN says her formula for a full life is staying busy, and if illness ever stopped her from being productive, she would consider death as a way out.

"I never had any problem finding something to do, and I'm never bored," the 77-year-old actress said in an interview in the Aug. 19 issue of Family Circle.

Hepburn, who has recovered from an auto accident three years ago in which she nearly lost a foot, added: "I don't become down, even when I'm sick. I do feel disgusted when I have to crawl up three flights of stairs — it's not as much fun as running up. But I'm not depressed."

She also said, "I don't believe in shocking people, but if I got sick and was no longer of any use to myself or anyone else, I would find a way of ending it."

LOS ANGELES — Veteran comedian RED SKELTON has been voted the prestigious Governors Award by the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

Academy president Richard Frank, calling Skelton a "national treasure," said Wednesday the award would be presented during the prime-time Emmy telecast on Sept. 21.

The Governors Award is the academy's highest, given for outstanding achievement beyond the scope of an Emmy, and requires a majority vote of the board of governors.

Skelton, 73, appeared on television from 1951 to 1971, bringing with him his repertoire of characters developed on radio. Among them were The Mean Widdle Kid, Clem-Kadiddlehopper, Sheriff Deadeye, Cauliflower McPugg, Bolivar Shagnasty, San Fernando Red and Willie Lump-Lump. His shows were also noted for his pantomimed "Silent Spot."

Previous recipients of the award include Johnny Carson, Alistair Cooke, Walter Cronkite and Bob Hope.

because of their physical prowess. "It is not right to hold up the sports world as Camelot," Cosell said Wednesday. "Professional athletes are not going to be my role model or the role model for my children. Role models must come from inside the family, from educators."

Cosell told the eastern regional conference of the Council on State Governments that he favored mandatory, random drug testing for all professional athletes.

LOS ANGELES — Actress LINDSAY BLOOM, who portrays a secretary on "The New Mike Hammer" television series, is recovering at home after her car was broadsided in a traffic accident, a spokesman said.

Ms. Bloom, who stars as Velda, secretary to the no-nonsense detective played by Stacy Keach, was cut and bruised in the accident but will be able to start work on the series when filming begins Monday, Columbia Pictures Television publicist Welton Smith said Wednesday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Grammy Award-winning singer NAOMI JUDD says winning awards means recognition and that means having to watch how one looks.

"If you're female, you've got to wear your lipstick in public," she said Tuesday.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Motorcycle stuntman EVEL KNEIVEL has pleaded guilty to an amended charge of disorderly conduct stemming from his arrest last month on a charge of soliciting for immoral purposes.

Kneivel, 47, was fined $200 after entering the plea Wednesday. He said after his arrest that he would seek a jury trial to exonerate himself of the charge he solicited an undercover policeman.

Sal Capra, Kneivel's lawyer, said he did not know why Kneivel changed his mind and pleaded guilty to the amended charge. "I think this is the best solution to the problem," Capra said.

City Prosecutor George Sharp confirmed the plea agreement but would not comment further.

Police beat

Car chase nabs juvenile

Police have a male juvenile in custody this morning after a car chase early this morning that led police to Colorado City.

Police Lt. Jerry Edwards said this morning a patrolman attempted to stop a car in which the driver appeared to be intoxicated at 2:37 a.m. on Lamesa Highway near Interstate 20.

Initially the car pulled over when signaled by police. But the car, with three male juvenile passengers, sped away when the patrolman approached it, Edwards said. "The chase was on," he added.

Edwards said somewhere along the interstate the suspect's car attempted to ram the police unit, but the patrol car was undamaged.

The juvenile driver was arrested on suspicion of aggravated assault stemming from his attempt to swerve into the police car, Edwards said.

The chase came to an end when the suspect's car was abandoned near the river in Colorado City, he said.

• Thurman Oil's Fina station at 1100 N. Lamesa Highway reported Wednesday that someone broke into the business between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 5:50 a.m. Wednesday. A glass window and a door to the gas pumps were damaged, according to the complaint.

• Conrad Mezick of 1908 Main St. told police Wednesday afternoon that someone stole his 1975 Mercury from outside his home between 2:30 a.m. and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

• Vertha Mae Williams of 1504 E. Cherokee St. told police Wednesday afternoon that someone entered her residence at various times between June and 4:20 p.m. Wednesday and stole a $400 Kirby vacuum cleaner, a $600 gold and diamond cross, a $10 necklace and an $8 sauce pan.

• Jana Wegner, 24, of Gail Route Box 345 was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Sgt. Ray Meek and Det. Bill Anderson on assault and emergency parole violation warrants.

The warrants were issued after Pam Roberts of 1022 S. Nolan St. reported she had been assaulted Monday by Wegner, said district parole officer David Harman.

Wegner remains in city jail without bond awaiting a parole hearing and trial for assault, Harman said.

She was paroled June 18 after serving five months of a three-year sentence for theft by appropriation, Harman said.

• Carmen Gonzales, 38, of 632 N.W. Third St. was arrested at Comanche Trail Park Wednesday evening on suspicion of criminal trespass. He was transferred to county jail and released on $1,500 bond.

Vandals egg car in Forsan

Terry Sims of P.O. Box 685 in Forsan told sheriff's deputies Wednesday night that vandals egged his car and wrapped toilet paper around it.

The vandalism occurred between 7 and 8:10 p.m., according to the sheriff's report. No damage estimate was given.

• Leroy Garcia of Debra Lane in the Southaven addition off Longshore Road told sheriff's deputies Wednesday night that someone killed his 4-month-old baby goat by shooting it with a pellet gun.

The animal was killed between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m., according to the complaint.

• A Department of Public Safety trooper arrested Donald Keith Hall Jr., 31, of Midland Wednesday night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Woman injured in accident

A 19-year-old Big Spring woman was hurt Wednesday evening in a three-car accident at E. Third and Benton streets.

Tabatha Jones of 406 Valley St. was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital after the parked car she was standing beside was struck by another vehicle and pushed into her.

A witness told police a car driven by 24-year-old Charlie Davis of 423

Hillside Drive slammed into the rear quarter panel of a vehicle driven by Baltus Newton Mosier, 84, of 4105 Wood St. after Mosier ran a stop sign while northbound on Benton Street.

The impact of the collision caused Mosier's car to spin around and strike Jones' car, which was legally parked on Benton, according to the accident report.

Mosier was cited for failure to yield right-of-way.

refused to deliver mail there, and one resident's forehead was grazed by a hawk, she said.

Because of the problem, McCasland and game warden Wayne Armstrong took the two baby birds from the nest and delivered them to the Midland Bird Sanctuary, an unusual measure, she said.

"We hate to take the young from their nest," she said, but in this case it was necessary.

In about three days, the parents should forget about the babies and stop diving at passers-by, she said. McCasland said the hawks are actually a beneficial bird, because they control the locust population.

They also eat grasshoppers, beetles, small snakes, lizards, frogs and even bats. They like to live in elm, mulberry and pecan trees because of the abundance of leaves.

Armstrong has been receiving nearly three calls a day about the hawks, and the police also have been busy, McCasland said.

She stressed that it is a felony to hurt one of the hawks and a crime for laymen to remove the babies from the nest.

Midge Erskine, head of the bird sanctuary, advises using an umbrella to ward off attacks, because the birds are frightened of them.

Another good idea, she said, is to wear a hard hat. She cautioned against looking up when the birds dive.

The protective period will last only about three weeks. Mockingbirds and kingbirds do the same, she said, only people don't mind because they are small.

West Texas is one of the few places hawks nest near people, she said. Trees, where locusts live, exist mainly in residential areas here, she said.

The hawks' natural habitat is the forest, but the birds have moved west with the locusts, she said.

If people are having problems with the hawks, they can call McCasland at 267-6536 or 263-0203, or they can contact Armstrong through the sheriff's office.

Alabama man becomes third fatality in a week

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

A 31-year-old Alabama man was killed Wednesday afternoon when he lost control of his truck on Interstate 20, 5.2 miles west of Big Spring.

It was the third traffic fatality recorded in Howard County this week.

Douglas Alvis Twilley of Cullman, Ala., was pronounced dead at the scene at 4:05 p.m. by Justice of the Peace China Long. Twilley's cousin, Randy Dale Twilley, 33, of Cullman, a passenger in the truck, was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by Lee Ambulance personnel. He was treated and released, an emergency spokeswoman said this morning.

Douglas Twilley was driving an 18-wheel tractor-trailer rig when the accident occurred shortly after 3 p.m.

According to an accident report by Department of Public Safety financed project.

"It is a regional project paid for only by the people who will benefit," he said. "The only federal tax dollars involved are those being spent in an effort to defeat this project."

trooper Glen Redmon, Twilley was traveling toward Big Spring and attempted to pass a Ford pickup.

The rig then "veered off the left side of the road into median," according to the report. It traveled down the median a short distance, and the trailer overturned causing the tractor to overturn.

The victim was ejected from the tractor truck and was pinned underneath the left side of the truck, the report showed.

DPS Sgt. Frank Woodall, who assisted Redmon with the investigation, said Twilley was removed from beneath the truck with the aid of a fork-lift provided by someone at the scene.

Redmon said the accident may have been caused by Twilley being distracted or by his attempt to steer the truck back onto the roadway from the median.

Randy Twilley was asleep in the sleeper section of the truck when the accident occurred, Redmon said.

Weather

Forecast

By The Associated Press
WEST TEXAS — The forecast calls for mostly sunny skies and quite warm days with fair nights through Friday. Isolated thunderstorms are possible late this evening near southwest mountains and in the Panhandle. Highs Friday will be 95 to 100, except near 90 in the mountains and near 104 along the Big Bend of the Rio Grande. Lows tonight will be in the upper 60s to lower 70s.

State

Skies across the state were mostly clear early today with all showers dissipated, the National Weather Service reported. Winds were southerly throughout the state at 5 to 10 mph. Early morning temperatures were mainly in the 70s and 80s. The extremes at 4 a.m. were 62 degrees at Marfa and 81 degrees at Waco.

Drugs

"testify" in court, he said.

In an assembly for students, the handler demonstrates the dog's capabilities in a non-threatening way, emphasizing that the dog is a friend, not an informer.

Students are told of attempts to fool the dog that have not worked in the past, such as hiding drugs in coffee or wax. They are given a time limit to get rid of drugs, and are told how to clean handbags and lockers to get rid of the residue drug smell.

The students learn that it doesn't pay to take a chance on the dog not finding the drugs, he said.

It's not long after that it becomes the "in thing" not to do drugs, instead of to do drugs," he said.

In a program for elementary school children, drugs are only a part of the message, Brainard said. Children also are taught about safety, such as looking both ways before crossing the street and not talking to strangers.

The dog develops a credibility with the children, who learn if the dog thinks drugs are bad, they must really be bad, Brainard said.

"We know we're getting to them because of the letters we get" from the children to the dogs, he said.

Big Spring Superintendent Lynn Hise presented a proposal about the program to the school board Thursday, but said no decision has been made on whether to adopt the program.

School officials will discuss whether funds can be provided for the program when they begin budget workshops Tuesday, he said.

Forsan Superintendent J.L. Poyner said after Brainard's presentation that his district is interested in adopting the program if other districts do so.

The program's cost depends on the number of schools involved, and the number of contracted visits by the dog, Brainard said.

For Big Spring and one other district to contract 45 visits to the district's high school, 27 to the junior high and three to each elementary school, the cost would be $22,050, he said. If any additional districts join, the cost per district decreases.

Four attend training school

Four Big Spring firefighters joined more than 2,200 others from across the state this week to learn the latest in firefighting techniques at the 57th Annual Fireman's Training School at Texas A&M University in College Station.

Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles, Capt. Alex Calvio, Fire Marshal Jim Ryals and fireman Ken Davidson left Monday to attend the week-long session.

Settles, who arrived back in Big Spring Wednesday, instructed a body language as a tool in determining who started a fire.

Ryals is brushing up on the fine points of fire prevention, Fire Chief Carl Horton said.

Calvio and Davidson are seeking certification as instructors, Horton said.

The fireman's training school, begun in 1930, is conducted by the Texas Engineering Extension Service, part of the A&M system, and gives participants intensive hands-on and classroom experience, according to the service.

Judge sentences man to jail

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby sentenced a 22-year-old man to 60 days in county jail after the man admitted violating his probation for a driving while intoxicated conviction.

Robert Carlos Gonzales of 807 W. 18th St. also had his driver's license suspended for six months.

The hearing took place Wednesday afternoon.

ATLANTA — Two men were in custody today and three others were expected to surrender in connection with the illegal sale of two airplanes to Libya, which planned to convert the aircraft into in-flight fuel tankers, authorities said.

U.S. officials will seek to extradite Libyan nationals Abdulrahman M. Badir and Abdulrahman M. Badi from Europe, said Cowen.

Accident has no effects

HARRISBURG, Pa. — The Three Mile Island accident produced no immediate health effects and no long-term health problems are expected because radiation exposures were so small, says a report by the nuclear power plant's operator.

GPU Nuclear Corp. on Wednesday released a 48-page summary of government-sponsored studies into the accident at Unit 2, the worst ever at a U.S. commercial nuclear power plant.

GPU's report said the 8 millirem average radiation exposure to individuals within 10 miles of the plant was less than the 10 millirems one would receive from a chest x-ray. The highest possible exposure, for someone who stood naked at the plant boundary throughout the accident, would have been less than 100 millirems, it said.

Smokers may pay more

WASHINGTON — Smokers could be asked to cough up 50 percent more in federal cigarette taxes as Congress searches for ways to fulfill its deficit-reduction promises.

In an unexpected vote, the Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday approved 11-8 an amendment to raise the tax by 8 cents, to 24 cents a pack. Tobacco supporters marshalled their forces and later won a strong rejection of the plan in a House committee, but the measure could still work its way through Congress and become law.

Bell to cut more jobs

ST. LOUIS — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of St. Louis will cut 1,700 more jobs from its payroll in the next six months, company officials said.

John E. Hayes Jr., executive vice president and chief financial advisor of Southwestern Bell Corp., said the cuts will help the telephone subsidiary meet its goal of reducing employment by 3,300 this year.

Hayes told the New York Society of Financial Analysts Wednesday that the 3,300 jobs being eliminated are spread across the company's five-state territory. The company employs about 65,000 people in Missouri, Texas, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Secretary of State George Shultz, right, had a particularly sharp exchange with Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., left, while Shultz was testifying on South Africa before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Capitol Hill Wednesday. Biden told Shultz that the U.S. policy amounted to a shameful lack of backbone.

Warning

Senate says South Africa sanctions coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is moving ahead with plans to impose sanctions on South Africa, despite warnings by the Reagan administration that such steps would hurt U.S. chances of nudging the white-ruled government toward sharing power with the black majority.

Secretary of State George Shultz carried the administration's case to Capitol Hill on Wednesday, repeating President Reagan's televised plea of a day earlier that Congress shouldn't order sanctions.

But Shultz, appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was told by Democrats and Republicans that the GOP-controlled Senate will likely pass some type of sanctions.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the panel, told reporters after the four-hour meeting that he thinks most of the 100 senators support some kind of sanctions, but there is no agreement yet on what action to take.

The panel is likely to decide within the next several days, Lugar told Shultz.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said "some senators are so angered" by Reagan's defense of his current policy that they wanted to attach sanctions amendments to unrelated legislation required to raise the nation's debt ceiling.

Whatever passes the Senate will have to be reconciled with the action of the Democratic-controlled House, which last month approved a stiff package of sanctions. The House bill was introduced in the Senate on Wednesday by Cranston and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

The measure called for bans on new U.S. investment in South Africa, U.S. bank loans to the South African private sector, the importation of South African uranium, coal and steel, and the import of South African food and agricultural products.

Other steps are the ending of landing rights in the United States for South African aircraft, stopping U.S. consulates from offering services to South African citizens, terminating all U.S. assistance to investment in South Africa and trade there and banning U.S. government contact with South African companies, U.S. aid to the South African energy industry and the promotion of U.S. tourism to South Africa.

Most of the new sanctions could be lifted if South Africa frees black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela. Legislators have been particularly angered by the state of emergency declared by the government of P.W. Botha in support of the national policy of apartheid, the system of rigid segregation which helps the 5 million whites rule 24 million blacks.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, speaking aboard Air Force One as Reagan made a political swing through the South on Wednesday, said the president was not surprised by the criticism of his speech.

Cause of disaster found

MOSCOW (AP) — Badly prepared experiments conducted to see if turbine generators could provide enough electricity to run an atomic power plant in case of an accident caused the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, a Soviet official said today.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov, responding to questions at a news conference, said he could not provide full technical details of the experiments.

He said specifics would be published in a report "hundreds of pages" long, to be presented to the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency by September.

Royal couple on cruise

TERCEIRA, Azores Islands — Complete with videotapes of their wedding, Prince Andrew and his princess boarded the royal yacht Britannia to embark on a five-day honeymoon cruise through this verdant mid-Atlantic island chain.

Breaking free of the strict pre-nuptial timetable that culminated with their marriage Wednesday at London's Westminster Abbey, the 26-year-old newlyweds apparently decided to forgo any schedule during their tour of the nine-island Portuguese archipelago.

Peace talks to continue

TEL AVIV, Israel — Prime Minister Shimon Peres and King Hassan II of Morocco today issued a joint statement saying they talked frankly about Middle East peace prospects during their Morocco summit and focused on a 1982 peace plan rejected by Israel.

In a separate statement upon returning to Tel Aviv, Peres acknowledged he and Hassan remain far apart, but said they agreed to stay in contact.

He did not elaborate on how, and neither leader indicated any future meetings were planned.

Howe refused meeting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa's largest trade federation today refused to meet with British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe, saying he was the wrong man to negotiate an end to apartheid.

The British foreign secretary, who arrived Wednesday, has been mandated by the 12-nation Common Market to press for an end to apartheid, South Africa's system of racial segregation under which 5 million whites dominate 24 million voteless blacks.

Country looses aid over insults

Despite American aid and overtures, relations between the United States and the southern African nation of Zimbabwe have been less than cordial since a hostile, Marxist regime took power there in 1980.

The U.S. ambassador, David C. Miller Jr., resigned in April because of blatant anti-Americanism in that country and no replacement has been named.

Things have gone from bad to worse after a calculated Zimbabwean insult to the United States on July 4th. The scene was an Independence Day reception at the U.S. Embassy made notable by the presence of former President Jimmy Carter, his wife, Rosalynn, and daughter, Amy. Such functions at embassies around the world traditionally avoid policy issues in favor of cordial get-togethers.

Foreign Minister Witness Mangwende declined to attend, sending instead a junior official, David Kariamazira, minister of Youth, Sport and Culture, to deliver an incongruous speech in his name. It turned out to be a bitter 25-minute diatribe against U.S. policy in South Africa and an accusation that U.S. war planes deliberately bombed civilian targets in Libya.

This was too much even for Mr. Carter, a long-time friend of Zimbabwe and one who sponsored most of the $370 million in financial assistance provided by Washington since the nation gained complete independence from Britain six years ago. The former president, his family, U.S. diplomats and those from other Western countries walked out after only five minutes of the slanders.

"This was a social affair celebrating the independence of my nation," the former president said at a news conference later. "And the speech made by this minister was entirely inappropriate and an insult to my country and to me personally."

Exactly so.

Quick agreement came from the Reagan administration, which never was a patsy for countries that consistently bite Uncle Sam's generous hand. Washington lost no time in suspending $13.5 million in aid to Zimbabwe this year and will not restore it until the Zimbabwe government retracts its "unacceptable...insult."

Few Americans would argue with that; we certainly agree. U.S. taxpayers, who long since realized their foreign-aid dollars did not buy friends abroad, can take belated satisfaction that anti-Americanism now carries a price for those who indulge in it. The worry is that insults by a foreign minister are required to suspend millions of dollars in U.S. aid to a repressive Marxist government, which should not be receiving it in the first place.

Printers need marketing plan

First-day sales of the federal pornography commission's report were well below first-day sales of the president's budget report, according to the Government Printing Office.

The 2,000-page, $35, two volume report, which called for a crackdown on what it said is an $8-billion-a-year industry, is said to be full of graphic descriptions and testimony.

Now, either Washington is a very strange place in which budget deficits are of more interest than sex, or the GPO has made a serious marketing error. After all, who wants to walk into a government office in broad daylight and buy a dirty book?

Maybe orders would be higher if the GPO placed ads in Playboy and Penthouse offering to sell the report by mail order — wrapped in plain brown paper, of course.

Offices should be convenient for all

To the editor: This week in the Herald there was written that offices of the city now in the Municipal Building might move far out of center of town to what was once Cosden Country Club. The reason for this: Offices must be accessible to handicapped people; an elevator is prohibitively expensive... something like $80,000.00.

This seems a move to make city offices less accessible for all citizens. I do hope the Cosden Country Club idea is dropped for office locations.

It would seem those city offices might occupy some of the now-vacant buildings close to the courthouse. Citizens who have need to visit city offices could soon spend a lot of money traveling those extra miles to the former Country Club. While we're making plans for the revival of Big Spring, make it convenient for all citizens.

The Federal Reserve System certainly knows how to party

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — The old cartoon stereotype of bankers — top-hatted fat men in striped pants, chomping cigars and riding around in long limousines — is being given credibility by the Lucullan tastes of the Federal Reserve System.

Internal Fed documents obtained by our associate Michael Binstein suggest that the central bank could use a few financial watchdogs prowling through its marbled halls. Some august members of the Fed are evidently trying to make Nero look like a skink.

Consider the imperial expenditures made by some of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks across the country during a recent 18-month period. And keep in mind that these extravaganzas were compiled by the Fed's board of governors in Washington — hardly a hostile junkyard dog. Here are the most odoriferous examples of waste:

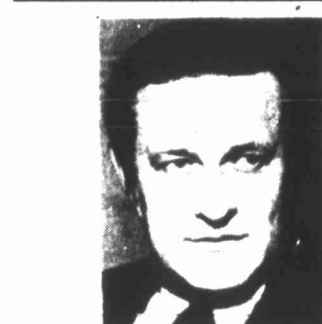

- San Francisco. The regional reserve bank spent an astonishing $45,131 in travel expenses and other costs for various functions honoring the retirement of the bank president. An additional $6,772 was spent for a function jointly honoring the outgoing president and his successor.

- For meetings in Hawaii and Alaska, the San Francisco regional Fed laid out $60,466 for travel and other expenses involved in two meetings of the nine-member board of directors.

- The bill for a single San Francisco directors' meeting and dinner in Laguna Niguel, Calif., was $5,959. (That's for nine board directors, remember.) There was a more modest directors' meeting and dinner in Las Vegas ($1,700) and a mere $375 for boat rental in connection with an "official off-site planning meeting" in Los Angeles, according to the Board of Governors' investigation.

- The Chicago regional board of directors spent $6,618 for a meeting at Calloway Gardens in Pine Mountain, Ga. — far outside the board's territory.

- The Dallas board of directors went even farther afield, spending $16,311 on its nine-member junket to New York City. The tab included a $3,293.88 payment to one of the directors, without a statement of expenses, for the cost of a dinner for 40 people at a club" of which his brother is a member.

- The Cleveland regional board of directors spent $6,609 on a dinner for bank employees and guests.

The Fed's board of governors in Washington is responsible for oversight of the regional banks, and has laid down an official policy of budgetary restraint. But a recent internal Fed memo, outlining the profligate spending by several of the 12 regional banks, acknowledged resistance to economizing out in the boondocks.

"Some reserve banks... have commented that the policy is too restrictive for today's... environment," the memo states. It adds that reviews of reserve bank expenditures by headquarters examiners over the past two years "have resulted in concerns that some reserve banks may either not fully understand or have at times disregarded the policy."

This charitable view of the satraps' extravagance was coupled with a warning that might conceivably give pause to some of the free spenders out in the field. "Inquiries on expenditures continue to demonstrate congressional interest in the efficiency of reserve bank operations."

That may not be enough to cause the regional bankers to choke on their stogies. But it might just lead them to think twice before they book the poshest restaurant in town for their next directors' meeting.

Footnote: The Federal Reserve System is self-supporting; it pays its way from fees charged for its services to the nation's banks. But any surplus must by law be turned over to the Treasury, so indirectly, its extravaganzas are paid for by the taxpayers.

WATCH ON WASTE: Attorneys in the Justice Department's land acquisition section have been keeping bankers' hours, according to a July 2 memo from their assistant chief, Thomas P. Carolan. Some of them arrive an hour late; others leave a half-hour early. "Unfortunately, the result when coupled with extended lunch hours is less than a seven-hour day," Carolan wrote. "It is apparent that a majority of the attorneys in this section are engaging in this practice."

HALL OF HEROES: We salute John Jeffrey McPartlin and his wife, Anne, who quit their jobs and spent three years undercover for the Fish & Wildlife Service, nabbing 50 illegal bird smugglers in a sting project known as "Operation Falcon." McPartlin, former head of the Montana Wildlife Federation, and his wife dealt with crooked bird dealers in the United States, Canada and Europe, posing as bird smugglers themselves. Since the convictions in 1984, the McPartlins have been the target of threats and personal attacks by ruthless poachers by endangered birds of prey.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Critics of the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography claimed all along that the membership was stacked to reach a pre-ordained conclusion. But they could hardly have expected the commission chairman, Henry Hudson, to support their charge so succinctly. Yet that's what he did when he said, "If we relied exclusively on scientific data for every one of our findings, I'm afraid all of our work would be inconclusive." Exactly. Objective data has an irritating way of refusing to confirm preconceptions disguised as "common sense." What Hudson was really saying was, "Don't confuse me with facts."

Genetic research worth the money

By SPENCER SANDOW
The dollars spent on genetic research appear to be paying off. Doctors can now predict whether mothers risk producing children with one of the most common fatal birth defects, and they are on their way to finding cancer's genetic link.

Duchenne muscular dystrophy is an inherited disease that strikes about one of every 5,000 to 8,000 baby boys. It causes abnormal muscle development, causing victims to gradually lose control of their movements.

Victims usually are confined to wheelchairs by age 12 and die in the late teens or early 20s.

Mothers in question are not harmed by the gene, but there is a 50 percent chance they will pass it to their baby boys. They also can pass the gene to their daughters, but the girls will grow up to be carriers of the disease instead of victims.

Until recently, there was no way to accurately say whether mothers carried the gene that causes the illness.

Now, laboratory tests are helping women learn the odds of whether they will have fatally diseased sons, the Associated Press recently reported.

The new test is one on a quickly growing list of advances in doctors' ability to spot the seeds of genetically controlled illness before birth. Tests can now reveal more than a dozen such diseases, and experts believe they will be able to find many more in the future.

One of them is retinoblastoma, a rare eye cancer that strikes young children. With the test for retinoblastoma, experts believe they can find the key to detect other, more common kinds of cancer.

And if doctors can find what exactly causes cancer, perhaps they can develop a cure, or even a means of preventing the disease.

Perhaps cancer, to my children, will be like polio or smallpox are to those of my generation — almost unknown diseases.

Think of a world without cancer, without birth defects. For my children, perhaps, or my grandchildren, such a world is in sight.

In 1847, Mormon leader Brigham Young and his followers arrived at Great Salt Lake in Utah.

In 1862, the eighth president of the United States, Martin Van Buren, died.

In 1866, Tennessee became the first state to be readmitted to the Union after seceding during the Civil War.

In 1929, President Herbert Hoover proclaimed the Kellogg-Briand Pact, which renounced war as an instrument of foreign policy.

In 1937, the state of Alabama dropped charges against five black men accused of raping two white women in the Scottsboro Case.

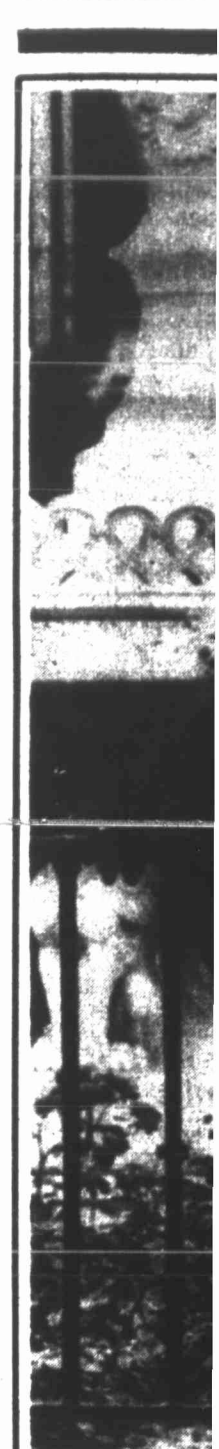

In 1946, the United States detonated an atomic bomb at Bikini Atoll in the Pacific in the first underwater test of the device.

In 1969, the Apollo XI astronauts, two of whom had been the first men to set foot on the moon, splashed down safely in the Pacific.

Today's birthdays: Broadway producer Alexander Cohen is 66. Former U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., is 66. Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., is 64. Comedian Ruth Buzzi is 50. Actor Chris Sarandon is 44. Actor Robert Hays is 39. Actress Lynda Carter is 35.

Neighbor can't turn back on the back-to-nature habits of family

DEAR ABBY: We live in a highly desirable section of town. A few years ago when our neighbor's little boy was 3, I observed his father teaching him to relieve himself off the side of their house! He's 7 now, and he's still urinating outside whenever he feels like it. (In the winter it's freezing cold here, but that doesn't seem to matter.)

We have a daughter (now 8) who has been taught to come into the house to use the bathroom. She knows that urinating outside in public is nasty, unsanitary and ill-mannered.

These same neighbors have a 4-year-old girl who is following in her big brother's footsteps. Our son, just turned 33, sees these kids pottying in the yard, and now he's doing it.

I realize that the neighbors have a right to do whatever they want on their own property, but it's setting a terrible example for our children. The neighbors across the street are also upset about this because their children play over here. What can we do? Please don't mention our town or name, as this family is pretty good at throwing eggs, too.

APPALLED IN THE MIDWEST DEAR APPALLED: First, speak to the offending neighbors and explain the unhygienic aspects of using the yard as a toilet. Advise them that the department of public health disapproves of this practice, and you will report them to the authorities if they do not clean up their act. Then have no hesitation to make an official complaint if necessary.

DEAR ABBY: Remember me? I'm "Katherine in Georgetown, Texas." I wrote to you last September saying that I wanted to donate my organs after death but couldn't get any witnesses to sign the consent form. Members of my family refused to sign it, fearing soem doctor might get "scalpel happy" and remove the organs they need before I'm dead. I took the form to church five Sundays in a row but couldn't get anybody to sign it. (They said I might need all my parts at the Resurrection.) Even my own husband wouldn't sign it!

Well, Abby, you printed my letter, explaining that my husband needed to understand that willing one's organs after death in order to improve the quality of life for the living is one of the most generous acts a person can perform. And the possibility that some "scalpel-happy" surgeon might remove one of my organs before I was dead was impossible because a patient must be pronounced dead by two doctors before a death certificate is signed. And as for "needing" all my organs for the Resurrection, should a person return to live again in the body of his previous life, the good Lord could be trusted to miraculously replace the missing parts.

To make a long story short, when my family saw your explanation in the paper, they not only offered to witness my donor form, they became donors themselves!

And listen to this, Abby. Last week I had major surgery, and when I gave my doctor my donor card to clip to my chart, he asked me what it was. He said he had never seen one before! So please print this and tell everybody who has a donor card to inform their doctors now, in case one day they'll need emergency surgery and are in no condition to let the doctor know. Thank you.

KATHERINE IN GEORGETOWN, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: May I suggest a more appropriate reply to the question, "I'll bet you don't remember me, do you?" How about, "You win!"

STAN HAUXHURST,
CORONA DEL MAR, CALIF.
DEAR STAN: Beautiful. You win!

DEAR READERS: I believe the following inspirational message from The Wall Street Journal is worth passing along:

ONCE AN ACORN
"Sometimes to make it big, you first have to make it small. Conrad Hilton started out sweeping floors in a dusty New Mexico hotel. He cleaned up as owner of a famous hotel chain. John Paul Getty started with a $500 oil lease in Oklahoma and became one of America's richest men. David Packard baked the paint onto his first product in a kitchen oven. Forty-five years later, he was running a $4.7 billion company. There are anonymous men and women starting small today whose names will be household words in 20 years. Will one of those names be yours? Get started!"

HARRY J. GRAY,
CHAIRMAN AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER,
UNITED TECHNOLOGIES

One can adapt to low blood oxygen

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would like to know about hypoxia. What is it and is it permanent or temporary? I was told this after lung function testing. Can one learn to live with hypoxia? I used to walk a lot for exercise, but now my legs give out on me. — Mrs. B.K.Z.

Hypoxia is low level of oxygen in the blood. It is a natural consequence of lung disease, such as emphysema. Very simply, oxygen from the air cannot get into the lungs and to your body tissue well. I must tell you that once the lung damage has been done, it cannot be repaired, and you will have to learn to live with your resulting hypoxia.

But I don't want to leave you hanging from that limb. Certainly, you can improve yourself even though the condition is chronic. Because the blood is not carrying sufficient oxygen to your muscles (as in the legs), slight exercise may make them complain in pain or fatigue. Within your limits of exercise you can train the muscles to work better, even in this bad situation.

Here's one approach. Walk until your legs tire. Don't try to overdo this retraining business. The next day walk the same path and to the same point. You may be able to walk just a bit farther. Try it. Gradually, you will find your capability improving — not by too much, perhaps, but enough to show you improvement. Your muscles will be adapting to the poor blood supply, learning to make do with less. When I said you should not get overambitious in such a program, I meant just that. I don't want you writing me next time from a hospital bed. In fact, at your age (which you tell me is 70) I would like to see you do this in a fashion approved for you by your doctor.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I wonder if you'll answer this rather silly question. When is an illness "serious" and when is one "trivial." I have a gall bladder situation that may require surgery. After telling my sister-in-law about it, she dismissed it all as "trivial." How do you judge if an illness is serious? — Mrs. L.W.

One person's triviality is another's serious business. For many people, a trivial illness is something that happens to somebody else. For themselves, a summer cold is a crisis. Here's a measuring stick for yours or anyone else's illness. If it might result in death, or if it might cause permanent disability, or if it might alter the state of health to affect the course of the person's life, then it might justly be adjudged serious.

People can get along quite nicely without a gall bladder, and perhaps that is your sister-in-law's measuring stick of triviality. Nevertheless, I wouldn't describe an illness that calls for removal of any body organ trivial. So I'm with you. If you want to read up a little on the subject, see the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Other readers may write me for a copy. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A lot of people I know are seriously doubting the need today for measles vaccinations for children. If it were stopped, couldn't we stop the expense and stress and use the dollars to address other medical needs? — Mrs. S.O.

Yes, we could save a lot of healthcare dollars by stopping the measles protection programs. But in the bargain we might be inviting loss of a long battle that today is all but won. Prior to use of the vaccine in the mid-'60s there were on average about 500,000 measles cases a year in the U.S. alone. For 1985, that number was only 2,704. And a good many of those cases needn't have occurred had the youngsters been vaccinated. The same applies to other illnesses for which we have proven protections, like polio.

We do
what's easier said than done.

Language may be the easiest, but it is not the only way to communicate. For instance, saying that we care is easy. Showing it takes true caring. The families who come to us have different backgrounds, customs, cultures, and religions. We show them we care by following their every instruction and preference when planning the funeral service.

Local shriners place second at nationals

The Suez Motor Patrol consisting of Big Spring Shrine Suez Temple members won second place in the Division 8 Shrine Motor Patrol competition at The Coliseum in Los Angeles.

Col. Joe Matthews of the motor patrol said about 6,000 Shriner members from across the country participated in the July 3 competition.

Howard Walker and Coleman Nalls of Big Spring placed second in obstacle course competition, Matthews said.

Other members of the Big Spring patrol are Arvin Henry, Robert D. Miller, Bud Summers, Roger Blossom, Richard Knous, Charlie Lewis and Gordon Myrick.

The motor patrol competition required Shriners to ride 950cc to 1200cc motorcycles through precision drill formations at 35 miles per hour, Matthews said.

The motor patrol won first place in state competition in Houston last month before entering the national contest, Matthews said.

"We usually start practicing in April or May for the state competition that is normally held during the first part of June," Matthews said.

He said each motor patrol member purchases his own bike.

The 10-member motor patrol will participate next summer in state competition in Austin and national competition in Las Vegas, Matthews said.

Two local grads win NAACP competition

Kim Anding and Chandra D. Wrightsil, both graduates of Big Spring High School, were winners of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People ACT-SO competition.

The two competed against local youth in the categories of vocal music and public speaking, said coordinator Jesse Jones.

Jones said the program was implemented to encourage young people to develop vocational skills and to provide positive cultural experiences for them. Next year, he said, the event will be expanded to five categories and will be open to all high school students.

Each winner will receive $100 cash. Both Anding and Wrightsil said they plan to use the money to further their education at Howard College this fall.

Weekend fundraisers to benefit MDA

A car wash and hair cut-a-thon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

The car wash will take place at Town & Country No. 102, 1101 Lamesa Highway, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Saturday. Vehicles will be washed for $5 each.

The cut-a-thon will be conducted at the Beauty Center, 1705 Scurry St., Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. All haircuts are $5.

Proceeds from both events will go to the MDA.

Animal shelter, circus to be discussed

The Big Spring Humane Society will meet at 7 tonight at the Howard County Library.

The agenda includes introducing Travis Brackeen, coordinator for development of property for the new animal shelter.

Plans also will be discussed regarding the Humane Society circus scheduled for February at the Municipal Auditorium.

Abuse and neglect chairmen Garner Thixton and Morris Molpus will discuss current problems of abandoned animals.

Paw print stationary may be purchased from society members at Big Spring Mall Sunday for $2.50 a package.

futuristic technology now being researched in American laboratories.

Reagan has said the controversial program would shield the United States from nuclear attack.

Critics contend it would not work, is extremely costly and would spur the Soviets to develop more accurate weapons to pierce U.S. defenses.

Presidential advisers split on delaying deployment, with the Pentagon arguing against any delay.

Officials said the objections were that a U.S. concession would encourage the Soviets to demand more and that budget-cutters in Congress would make heavier slices in Reagan's $5.4 billion request for Star Wars.

The three U.S. envoys, Edward Rowley, Paul H. Nitze and H. Allen Holmes are due home shortly. Rowley went to Asia, and Nitze and Holmes to Western Europe on their consultations.

After they report, Reagan will respond to Gorbachev, probably next week.

In the area of offensive weapons, the officials said, Reagan intends to urge Gorbachev to accelerate the negotiations on cutbacks when Geneva talks resume in September.

The president will make the point that even though both leaders prefer cutbacks of at least 50 percent in long-range bombers, missiles and submarines, fewer reductions would be preferable to no agreement at all.

Bates keeps battling

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Bill Bates hurtles his body into a pileup during a scrimmage and Dr. Walter Knight just shakes his head on the sidelines.

"He told me he'd take it easy today because of his pulled hamstring," said Knight, a Dallas Cowboys physician. "I don't guess he ever takes it easy, does he?"

Bates is particularly driven during this Cowboys training camp because starting strong safety Dexter Clinkscale is apparently thinking about retirement.

He sees it as his big chance, although it really won't change the way he plays — all out all of the time.

"Whether Dexter comes to camp or not I'm concentrating on playing my best," said Bates. "His absence means I'm going to get a lot more playing time, a lot more repetitions out there."

Bates was asked if he was risking early season burnout with his aggressive play in practice.

"I only know one speed and that's all out at all times," Bates said. "I just want to make the point I can."

Bates is faster this season thanks to off-season training that lowered his time in the 40-yard dash from 4.7 to 4.58.

"You run on this machine that makes you run faster than you can," said Bates. "It trains your muscles to accept a faster pace. It makes you feel faster and helps your confidence."

Bates, signed as a free agent in 1983, intercepted four passes in 1985 and was the leading tackler among non-starters.

"Bill Bates will hit anybody," said Coach Tom Landry. "He could be our starting strong safety. He just needs to control his impulses enough to keep everything under control in order for him to be a real solid player."

Landry said he likes the fact Bates is a competitor.

"He's the type of player you need on the field," Landry said.

Bates returned punts part of the time last year, but that's not expected to be a part of his chores this season.

"I'll return punts and play on the special teams, or anything else it takes to win," Bates said.

Dallas Cowboys safety Bill Bates (40) watches for a pass during a workout at the Cowboys training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif. Bates will be vying for a starting position this year.

Former assistant coach Gene Stallings, now the head coach of the St. Louis Cardinals, used to be amazed by Bates.

"You can go to a game and not know anything about football and still see Bill Bates," Stallings said.

"He'll trap somebody, make a tackle on a kickoff or knock somebody down."

Bates admitted he needed to ease off more in training camp.

"I need to not kill myself because I've been hurt every year," Bates said. "I need to start playing smart."

With that, Bates went back into practice and tackled a running back during a warmup drill when there wasn't supposed to be any contact.

Locals eliminated from tourney play

LUBBOCK — The Big Spring 14-15 Senior League All-Stars saw a superb comeback fall short as they dropped a 12-11 decision to the Lubbock Dixie All-Stars in sub-sectional tournament play at Dixie Park.

The loss eliminated Big Spring from the tournament. Dixie advances to the sectional tournament in Abilene which begins Friday.

Lubbock jumped out to a 4-0 first inning lead, chasing starter Chris Crownover from the game. Sammy Carrillo came in and pitched the next five innings and Mark Hernandez, who took the loss, pitched the seventh inning. Juan Hagen came in and pitched to the last batter of the game, after Dixie loaded up the bases. Perry Rickel's single scored the winning runs.

Trailing 10-3 going into the seventh and final inning, Big Spring rallied for eight runs to take an 11-10 lead.

Brad Roberts, who had doubled earlier, sacrificed bunted, which led to two runs. Jason Phillips cleared the bases with a double and Covington drove in two runs with a single. Bobby Chrane also had a single in the inning.

In the bottom of the seventh, Hernandez retired Mark Richards and Rene Esquivel. Then Brad Williams singled and Gary Henry and Roger Mackey walked, setting the stage for Rickel's game winning hit.

Big Leaguers fall to Abilene
ABILENE — The Big Spring 16-18 Big League All-Stars dropped a 11-6 decision to Abilene in sub-sectional play last night.

Abilene jumped out to a 2-0 first inning lead off losing pitcher Aaron Allen. Allen gave up one single and walked five in the inning. Brian Mayfield relieved Allen in the fourth. Mike Dodd and Mike Rittenberry finished the game for Big Spring.

Abilene led 11-2 going into the last inning. Big Spring rallied for four runs, but it was too little, too late. John Reece was the winning pitcher for Abilene. Bill Dellinger led Abilene with three singles and a home run. Dodd paced Big Spring with three singles.

The loss eliminates Big Spring from tournament play.

Former Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims talks with reporters Wednesday as he announced his retirement from professional football after five seasons with the Detroit Lions.

Crying time over for Lions' Sims

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims regrets there are some marks he will never be able to make on the football field, but he says he's finished mourning over his injury-shortened career.

"I feel I still had a little more running to do here," the former All-Pro running back said Wednesday as he announced his retirement from the Detroit Lions. "I wanted to play at least until I was 32 or 33. I didn't get a chance to continue."

Sims, 30, abandoned his attempt to come back from knee surgery after failing a pre-season physical with the Lions.

It was an unemotional end for Sims, who didn't mention the word "retire" to reporters at the Lions training camp at Oakland University.

"I've already been through all the crying," Sims said. "If you'd have got to me in '85, you might have seen some of that."

Sims, the 1978 Heisman winner from Oklahoma, who was Detroit's No. 1 draft pick in 1980, said he first thought about retiring at the beginning of last season.

"I might have pushed myself too hard to come back during rehabilitation and set myself back a couple of times," he said.

Sims hadn't played since Oct. 21, 1984, when he damaged ligaments in his right knee in a game at Minnesota.

"I think I'm going out on a good note," Sims said. "I'm fortunate to go out with my health. I wish I could have finished out my contract, but life goes on. I'm moving up to another pedestal."

Joking about the play that ended his career, Sims said, "I'm still looking for the guy who hit me."

"I thought I just strained the knee. I wanted back on the field, but the doctors examined me for 10 minutes and said I'd better not."

In fewer than five seasons, Sims broke 10-Lions' records, including most career rushing yardage.

Lions General Manager Russ Thomas said Sims should be looked upon as one of the all-time greats in Detroit sports.

"I don't think anyone has made a bigger impact on this town in sports than he did," Thomas said. "He was magic. I'm trying to describe the kind of class guy he was, but I'm at a loss for words to do it."

Sims was upbeat. He even joked with Thomas, his former rival in contract negotiations, about the Lions drafting beefier offensive linemen since his injury.

"I see they've finally got a bigger line," Sims said. "It's a couple years too late, Russ."

Sims called his first professional game, against the Los Angeles Rams on Sept. 7, 1980, the highlight of his career. He carried 22 times for 153 yards and a team record-tying three touchdowns.

Sims also said he wished he could have played under Coach Darrell Rogers, who took over for Monte Clark before last season.

"I think I like the way he runs his

Red Sox still sliding

Rangers lose in 10th inning

By The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox continue to slip while Ron Hassey's slide helped the New York Yankees tighten up the American League East.

Hassey, a slow-footed catcher, slid safely into first base for an infield hit with the bases loaded and two outs in the 10th inning Wednesday, giving the Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

The Yankees moved within three games of the AL East-leading Red Sox, who lost 9-2 to Oakland. Boston, which has dropped seven of its past eight games, now holds its slimmest margin since June 9.

In other American League games, California tripped Milwaukee 3-2 in 11 innings, Toronto beat Seattle 6-2, Detroit routed Minnesota 12-2, Kansas City beat Baltimore 7-3 and Cleveland defeated Chicago 7-2.

In the National League, Houston edged Montreal 4-3 in 11 innings, New York got past Cincinnati 3-2, Philadelphia defeated Atlanta 4-2, San Diego downed Chicago 7-5, Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 6-5 and St. Louis stopped San Francisco 4-3.

Willie Randolph hit a pinch-triple with one out in the New York 10th off Charlie Hough, 9-5. Intentional walks to Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield loaded the bases with two outs, and Hassey hit a grounder to the right of first baseman Pete O'Brien.

Texas pitcher Mitch Williams was slow in covering first base, and both O'Brien and Hassey slid into the bag simultaneously. Umpire Rich Garcia called Hassey safe, triggering an argument from the Rangers, who lost their seventh straight game.

"I saw him (O'Brien) starting to go down," Hassey said. "I figured it was going to be close. I figured I was close enough to do it (slide), too. I thought I was safe."

Said O'Brien: "I stopped and saw he (Williams) wasn't coming real well. I figured I take it myself, but you expect your pitcher to be there. You've practiced that play in spring training."

Mattingly hit a solo homer, his 18th, for the Yankees. Texas tied the score in the sixth on Larry Parrish's two-run double off Joe Niekro.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

A's 9, Red Sox 2

Carney Lansford hit a pair of two-run homer and Tony Phillips drove in three runs as Oakland ripped Boston. Lansford went 4-for-5 and sparked a 16-hit attack that carried the A's to their fourth straight victory.

Boston has lost four consecutive games, its longest skid of the season.

Dave Stewart and Jay Howell combined for six-hitter. Stewart, 3-0, allowed five hits, struck out six and walked one in eight innings. Howell allowed one hit in his first appearance since coming off the disabled list on May 26.

Tigers 12, Twins 2

Jack Morris won his fourth straight game and hot-hitting John Grubb had a pinch-hit grand slam as Detroit routed Minnesota.

Morris, 11-6, saw two errors snap his scoreless inning streak at 32 on a unearned run in the first inning. Morris gave up four hits in eight innings.

Grubb, who homered twice against the Twins on Tuesday night, hit a sixth-inning slam off Frank Pastore.

Blue Jays 6, Mariners 2

Jesse Barfield hit his major league-leading 25th home run and Dave Stieb got his first career save as Toronto beat Seattle.

Jim Clancy, 11-5, won his fifth straight decision. He gave up six hits in 7 2-3 innings before Stieb took over and struck out Jim Presley with the bases loaded. Stieb, making his second relief appearance this season and the fourth of his career, pitched a hitless ninth.

Indians 7, White Sox 2

Ken Schrom won his eighth straight decision and Brook Jacoby's two-run single keyed a four-run second inning that carried Cleveland over Chicago.

Schrom, 11-2, pitched a five-hitter. His winning streak is the longest for a Cleveland pitcher since Fritz Peterson won 10 straight in 1975.

Royals 7, Orioles 3

Steve Balboni hit a two-run homer and Willie Wilson had a two-run double during the second inning and Kansas City turned three double plays in the first four innings during its victory over Baltimore.

Angels 3, Brewers 2

Brian Downing led off the bottom of the 10th with a home run that lifted California over Milwaukee. Downing, who had only one extra-base hit in July, hit his 11th home run of the season.

Downing connected off Danny Darwin, 5-6, who gave up only five hits. Kirk McCaskill, 11-6, pitched a six-hitter for his eighth complete game while matching his career high with 12 strikeouts.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

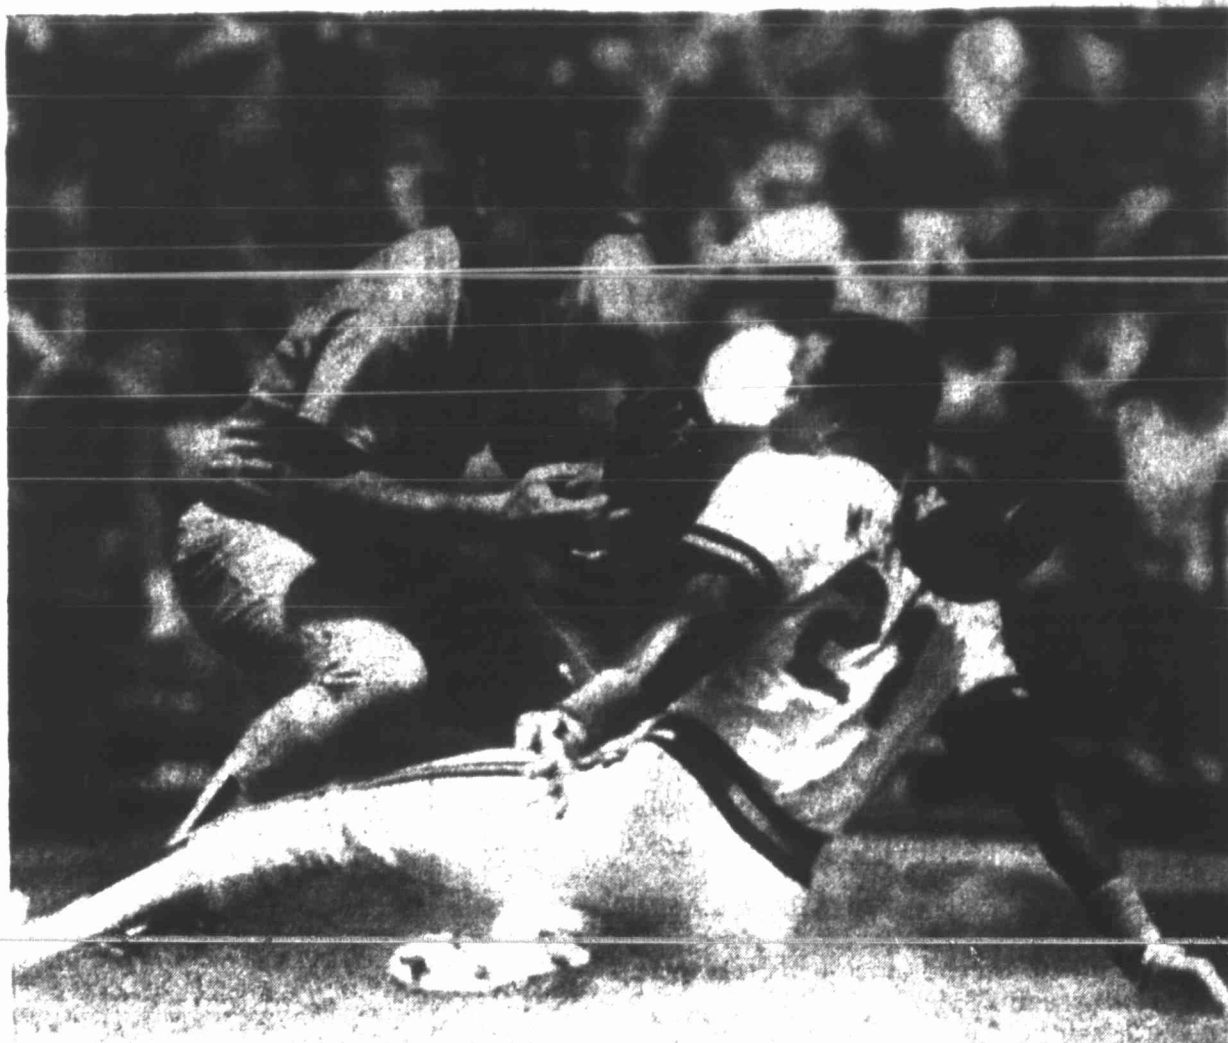

Astros 4, Expos 3

Davey Lopes, playing his first game for Houston, singled home Dickie Thon from second base with two outs in the 11th inning, lifting the Astros over Montreal. Houston won its sixth straight game and the Expos lost their fourth in a row.

Thon drew a leadoff walk in the 11th from Tim Burke, 7-3, and was sacrificed to second. With two outs, Lopes, acquired Sunday from the Cubs for Frank DiPino, singled to left.

Mets 3, Reds 2

Rookie Kevin Mitchell hit a

Oakland A's Dwayne Murphy slides safely under Boston Red Sox third baseman Wade Boggs on a triple during third inning action yesterday at the Oakland Coliseum.

two-run homer in the eighth inning, giving New York its second three-game this season in Cincinnati.

Mitchell's seventh home run of the season came off Ron Robinson, 7-1.

The Mets are 11-1 at Riverfront Stadium the last two seasons and won the season series from the Reds 8-4 this year.

Ron Darling, 10-3, pitched eight innings and gave up five hits, including consecutive homers by Eddie Milner and Dave Parker. Roger McDowell worked the ninth for his ninth save.

Cardinals 4, Giants 3

Ozzie Smith's tiebreaking single keyed a three-run sixth inning, giving St. Louis a three-game sweep of San Francisco.

Danny Cox, 4-8, won for the first time at Busch Stadium in 11 starts since Game 3 of the playoffs last season. He gave up six hits in eight-plus innings and Todd Worrell got the final two outs for his 18th save.

Phillies 4, Braves 2
Juan Samuel and Von Hayes homered and rookie Bruce Ruffin pitched a six-hitter as Philadelphia defeated Atlanta.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Phillies while the Braves have lost three in a row and 14 of their last 16 games.

Ruffin, 3-1, pitched his second complete game in six starts.

Dodgers 6, Pirates 5
Ken Landreaux ended an 0-for-14 slump with a two-run homer and Mike Scioscia drove in two runs as Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh.

Orel Hershiser, 9-7, pitched five innings for the victory. Rick Reuschel, 5-12, lost for the eighth time in his last nine decisions.

It is true that for many many years two instruments of religious instruction, very different in their origin, character, tendency and effects, have been used. One made by God, the other made by man. Of these two one has been devised, fitted for its purpose, and transmitted to mankind by an unerring and compassionate God. In this divine instrument there is no mistake, no inconsistency, nothing false, nothing fictitious. In its truth, and nothing but truth, is found. While engaged in searching its divine contents, the honest inquirer is in no danger of embracing error, or of swallowing falsehood. Here no poison is mixed with its spiritual food, nothing which can conduct a soul to hell, while sincerely one is seeking their way to heaven. And this incomparable instrument of religious instruction is none other than the revelation of God, just as it has been arranged and untouched, unaltered, unmixed, and uncorrupted by any debasing intermixture of human conjectures, fictions, or traditions. It is called, "The Bible". You need to read it for yourself, and learn its contents.

Seahawks sign first round pick

By The Associated Press

While Billy Sims announced his retirement, other players took first steps to begin their NFL careers, including top draft choices John L. Williams with Seattle, Markus Koch with Washington and Mark Haight with the New York Jets.

Williams, a fullback, became the fifth first-round selection in the NFL's draft to come to an agreement with their clubs when he signed a four-year deal with the Seahawks.

"I think it's a win-win contract. Both sides are happy," said Seahawks Vice President and General Manager Mike McCormack said.

Williams, 5-11, 225 pounds, was the 15th player taken in the NFL draft in April.

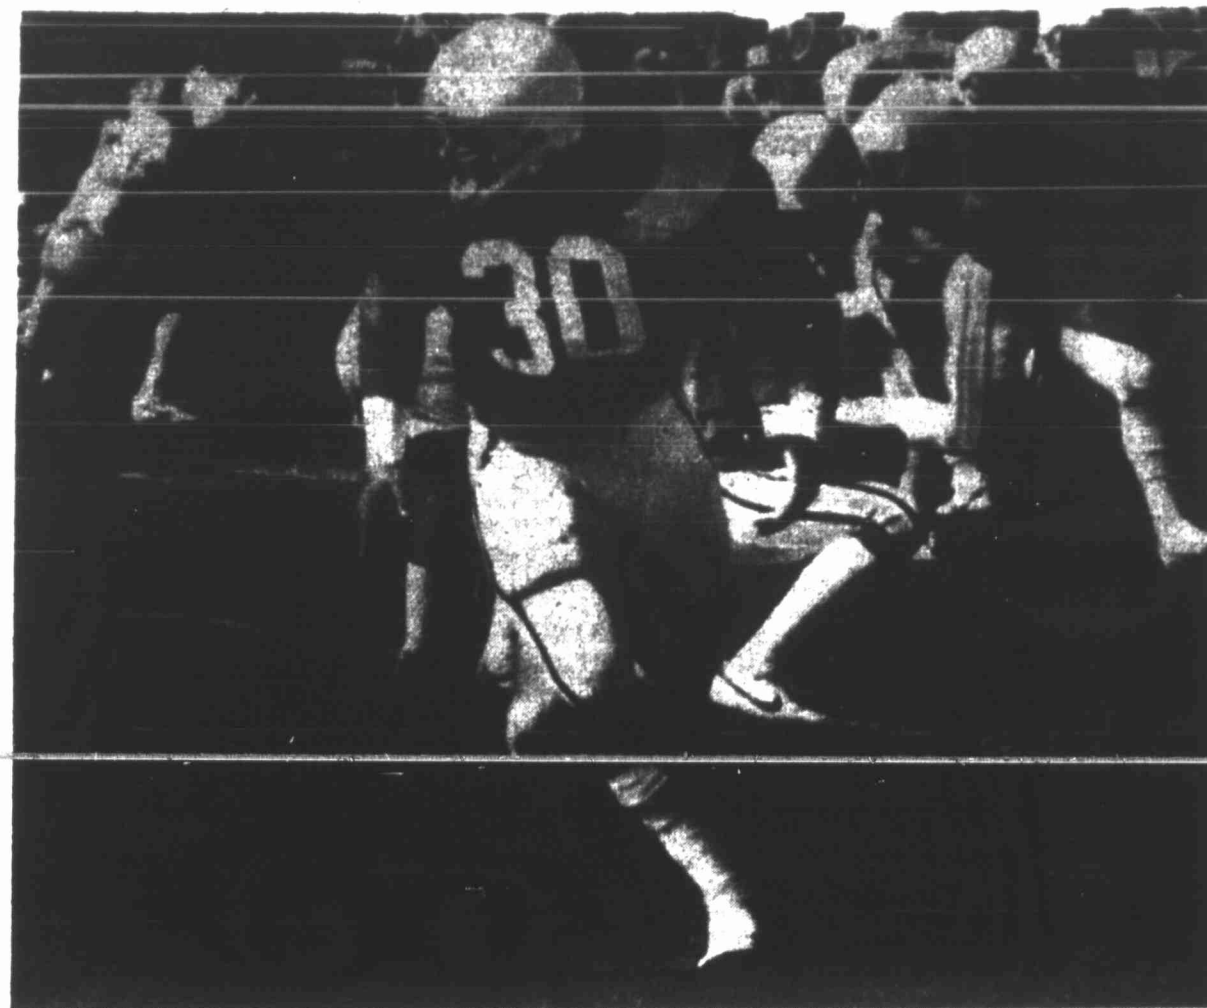

Veteran guards Edwin Bailey and John Borchardt and veteran linebacker Sam Merriman also signed with the club Wednesday, McCormack said.

Koch, a defensive lineman from Boise State, signed a contract worth a reported $700,000 over three years. He has already missed three days of two-a-day practices, but is expected suit up for the first time today.

Haight, the 270-pound tackle from Iowa who was the New York Jets' top draft pick, signed a four-year, $1.3 million contract Wednesday and pronounced himself eager to join the team.

Robbie Bosco, the Green Bay Packers' third-round selection, reportedly also signed a deal.

Elsewhere, running back Earl Campbell signed a contract with the New Orleans Saints to play his ninth NFL season and was expected to arrive with other veterans at preseason camp today, the team announced.

In another development, quarterbacks Bobby Hebert, Richard Todd and Dave Wilson arrived about noon Wednesday — well ahead of the Thursday evening deadline set for veterans. They will practice Thursday morning if their physical examinations are complete, a Saints spokesman said. The Saints also announced that linebacker Al Richardson, a rookie free agent out of Louisiana State, left camp Wednesday.
