Radio tower could shut down heliport

Rockport could gain a radio station but lose the G.M. Patillo Heliport if plans for location of the station's antenna and tower aren't changed, according to officials of Aransas County Medical Services Inc.

Application has been filed by Lori Ann Brotman of New Jersey for a permit from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to operate an FM radio station in Rockport.

The application calls for the radio transmitter and antenna to be located 700 feet east of Sparks Colony Road on Enterprise Blvd. — where it could create a "critical obstruction" to helicopter traffic bringing ill or injured persons to Enterprise Medical Clinic, ACMSI officials say.

ACMSI President Richard Beck has sent a letter to William J. Tricarico, secretary of the FCC, protesting the proposed tower location and asking the FCC to consider alternate locations for the structure which is expected to extend some 318 feet above the surrounding area.

Copies of the letter were also mailed to the Federal Aviation Administration, U.S. Congressman Bill Patman, Senator John Tower and Senator Lloyd Bentsen.

The letter, mailed Tuesday afternoon, notes that the heliport has approximately 500 landings and departures per year which makes it "one of the busiest in the Coastal Bend. It is the only medical landing facility in Aransas County . . .

providing an unobstructed 24 hour medical heliport."

The letter also notes that the ACMSI does not oppose the radio station.

"We think the radio station is great," Chief Paramedic Bill Aston said

Wednesday. "We just want them to move the tower."

"This thing is very close," he added. "If it actually were to fall, it would come within two feet, give or take a little, of landing on the helicopter pad."

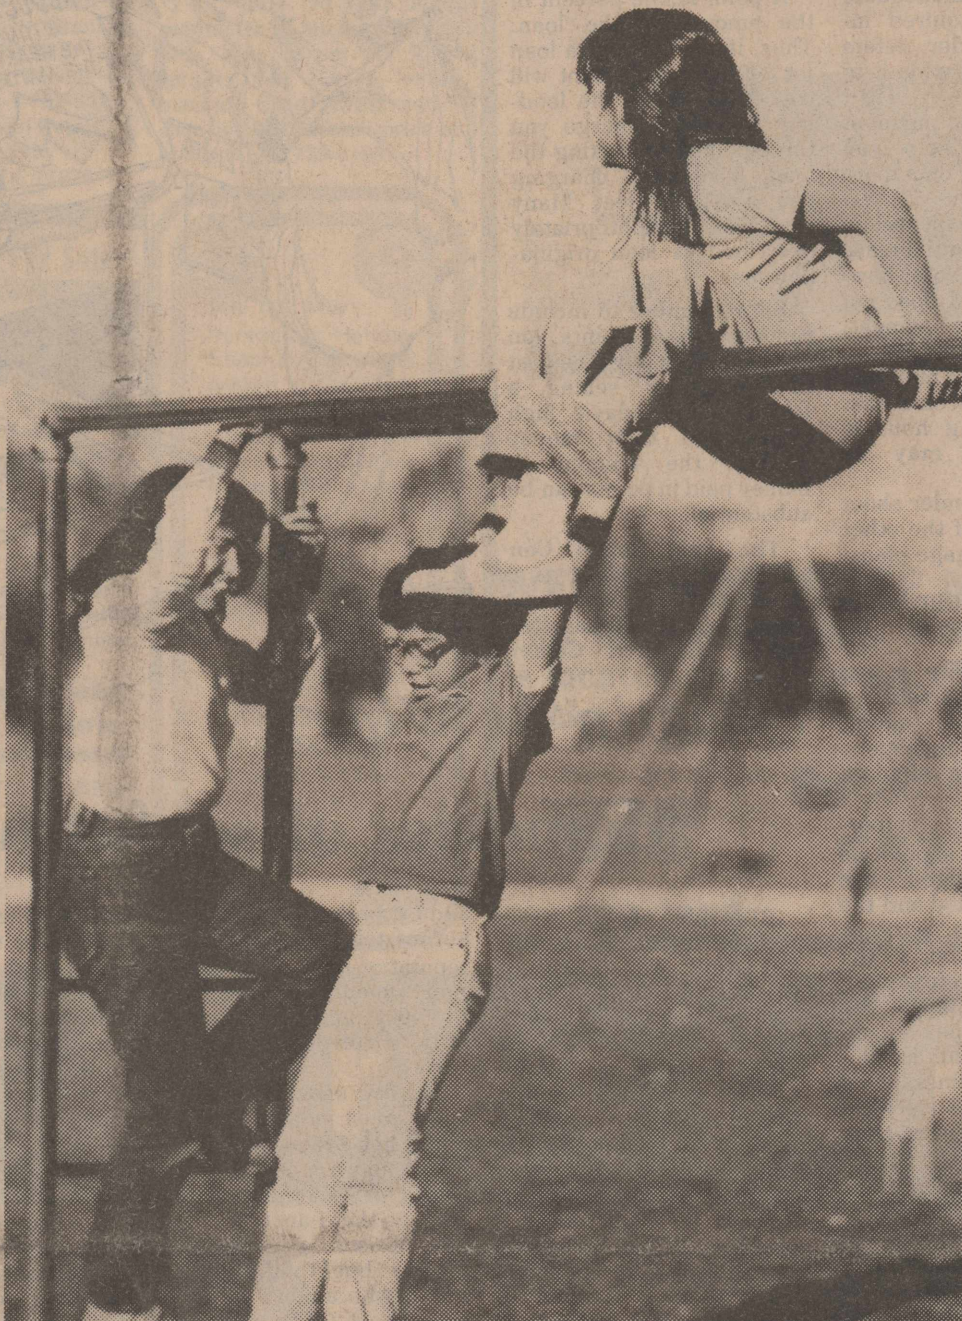

The tower, which will be on the same side of the road as Enterprise Medical Clinic, would be on the southeast side of the heliport — the main approach path of helicopter traffic.

Even if it does not form an actual physical obstruction, it is close enough, Aston said, to be what pilots call a "psychological obstruction" — and it would be more of a problem at night than during the day. "We have a lot of night landings," Aston added.

What concerns ACMSI officials is that, if the tower was constructed on the site as planned and one helicopter company decided the heliport is no longer safe for landings. "The word spreads," Aston said. "Other companies will make it off limits to their pilots and eventually it will be reported to the FAA."

That, he said, could lead to a shutdown of the heliport.

That is what ACMSI officials hope to prevent.

Board to discuss lease validity

By Ted Norman

With discussion from the audience heating the matter up, Kirk Holman requested that the Aransas County Navigation District commissioners not discuss the validity of his lease with the navigation district in an open meeting and the commissioners moved to discuss the matter in a closed special meeting on Monday, Dec. 7, at 6:30 p.m.

The matter of Holman's lease came up as item number five under old business and almost immediately after navigation district chairman Bobby Landrum introduced the subject to the commissioners several members of the audience joined in the discussion of the matter and Holman requested that the commissioners follow the rules of the Texas Open Meeting Act and not discuss the matter in an open meeting.

Commissioner Dave Maguglin suggested (See Lease, Page 12)

Time to celebrate

School's out for the day, the weekend is coming up, the sun is shining . . . For these three youngsters at Rockport Elementary School, that's plenty of reason to enjoy a little recreation before they shoulder the books and head home. From left they're Melissa Benavidez, 10, Teresa Castillo, 10, and Melissa Broinez, 9. The two Melissas are fourth graders and Teresa is in the fifth grade this year.

Area children in Christmas programs

Aransas County's children will be featured in a number of programs in local churches this Christmas season, with special services ranging from songfests to dramatization of the Nativity.

A look at what several area churches will be doing follows:

First United Methodist

Christmas activities are already in progress at Rockport's First United Methodist Church with the observance of Advent Sundays.

Beginning with the Nov. 28 service, one of the families in the church lights a candle on the Advent Wreath during the 10:50 a.m. Sunday morning worship services. This observance will continue through Sunday, Dec. 20.

Next Saturday, Dec. 12, the church will have its annual tree and sanctuary decorating, a family-oriented event, and at the 6:30 p.m. services on Sunday, Dec. 20, children in the Sunday School will present the Christmas drama, "Unto Bethlehem." Refreshments will be served.

At 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 23, members will meet at the church for the All-church Christmas carolling which will take them to the homes of shut-ins in the community. The carolling will be followed by hot chocolate at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Adams.

On Dec. 24, Christmas Eve, activities will climax in the Christmas Eve Communion and Service of Lights at the church at 5:30 p.m.

First Presbyterian

Season activities begin this Sunday, Dec. 6, at First Presbyterian Church with the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services.

On Sunday, Dec. 13, the 8:30 a.m. services will feature a Songfest of Christmas carols led by Choir Director David Tiner. In the 11 a.m. services, the adult choir will present "A Christmas Concert," a cantata featuring what church pastor, the Rev. John Bradshaw, calls "uniquely American music that was sung before 1810."

On Dec. 20 during the 11 a.m. services, the children's and adult choir will combine in a special presentation. Rev. Bradshaw said he will also deliver a special sermon that Sunday on the family relations within the Holy Family.

Christmas Eve will see a Candlelight Service starting at 6 p.m. with the upper elementary, junior high and senior high school Sunday School students sharing leadership.

First Baptist

Christmas programs will start Sunday, Dec. 13, with a special program by the children as part of the 7 p.m. worship service. The following Sunday, Dec. 20, the choir will present a program of Christmas music during the 7 p.m. service.

Sacred Heart Catholic

Some 50 fifth grade children will present a Nativity tableau, "A Love Story," in two performances on Dec. 16 and 19.

Including youngsters from other churches, the nondenominational cast of choir and actors will present the tableau at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 16, in the Parish Hall.

The performance will be repeated Dec. 19 following the 6 p.m. Mass in the church.

Peace Lutheran

Special services at Peace Lutheran Church will start at 7 p.m. Christmas Eve with a program by the children. This will be followed by the Matins Service at 9:45 a.m. Christmas Day.

St. Peter's Episcopal

St. Peter's Episcopal Church will present a Christmas pageant during the 10:30 a.m. worship services Sunday, Dec. 20.

On Christmas Eve, Holy Communion will be received in services at 7:30 p.m. and repeated at 11 p.m. The second service will be preceded by a Congregational carol service at 10:40 p.m.

Another Christmas service will begin at 10:30 a.m. on Christmas Day.

Santa's mailbox in service at Pilot

Santa Claus has asked the Rockport Pilot to help him again this year in learning what the boys and girls of Aransas County want for Christmas.

We've put up the special mailbox to Santa Claus in the Pilot office so you can get your letter to Santa in time for the big day. To make sure your letter gets to Santa, just mail it to: Santa Claus, The Rockport Pilot, 1002 Wharf

St., Rockport, TX 78382. Or bring it to the Pilot office.

We'll forward your letters to Santa at the North Pole. We will also keep a copy of each letter so that we can print them all in a later edition of the Pilot.

The Rockport Pilot — and Santa Claus — look forward to hearing from all of you real soon.

Toys for Kids campaign is running out of time

By Pat Blair

The 1981 Toys for Kids campaign is facing a deadline: they need new toys, money and Gold Stamps — within the next two weeks.

"We have collected a lot," says Jo Lee McConnell, in charge of publicity for the Toys for Kids organization, "but we need more. We don't have enough for 300 children."

That 300 number is the number of Aransas County youngsters, all under 12 years of age, expected to qualify as recipients of the Toys for Kids program. Now in its seventh year, the Lions' Club-sponsored program provides toys for families that do not have the money to buy toys for their children.

Parents in families selected through the local Department of Human Resources are invited to come "shop" for toys for their children on a designated day. Each family is allocated a certain number of toys per child and there is no charge.

As one example of why Toys for Kids still needs money, stamps and more toys, Mrs. McConnell cited how one $500 donation was spent. "We bought Hot Wheels sets with it," she said, adding, "$500 only buys 21 Hot Wheels."

The Rockport Pilot will be a collection point for people who wish to donate toys to the campaign. The Toys for Kids organization asks that only new toys be donated because of the expense involved in repairing used items. ["It costs more to repair a used toy than it does to buy a new one," Mrs. McConnell said]

Toys for Kids also asks that any donated toys not be wrapped. "We just have to unwrap them," Mrs. McConnell explained.

Any cash donated to the organization may either be placed in the jugs on the counters of Winn's and Super D or — if the amount is large — may be given to Johnny Jackson who is now in charge of the annual campaign. Anyone who wishes to donate a large amount to the campaign is asked to contact Jackson at his residence, 729-6974.

Stamps may be placed in the collection boxes in H.E.B. or the newest box at the Circle K in Fulton.

So far, Mrs. McConnell added, some $150 has been collected in cash from jugs and more than 900 stamp books have been filled. "The stamps have bought the bulk of the toys we will distribute this year," she added, "but we still need more stamps."

Distribution date for this year's campaign is Saturday, Dec. 19, and "we would love to have everything in by Dec. 15," she continued. This is especially true of cash or stamps.

"We want to thank people for their support so far," she said. "We have got a lot of toys."

"We just need more."

Winter is best time to buy a house in Texas

When is the best time to buy a home in Texas? After examining 500,000 transactions over the past seven years, researchers have determined the best time to buy is during the winter months.

The first quarter of the year — Jan., Feb. and Mar. — is the best buyer's market. First-quarter buyers seem able to negotiate a lower price, perhaps because they are dealing with anxious sellers.

However, even though first quarter prices are lower for that particular year, they are still higher than were prices in the last quarter of the previous year. In other words, you may save money by buying in the first quarter rather than in the second or third, but you will pay more by waiting from one year to the next.

This means that if you have to sell a home in order to buy another, you may come out ahead in buying but lose in selling.

Tax break for the elderly

Now that your kids have grown and moved away, does the home that once seemed so crowded now seem too big? If you are 55 or older, it may be possible to sell your house and not pay taxes on the sale.

Federal law allows persons 55 or over to get as much as a $125,000 tax exemption from the gain on the sale of a personal residence sold after July 20, 1981. Prior to that date, the limit was $100,000. There is a requirement that you have lived in the house at least three of the five years before the sale.

The Homestead Act prohibits Texans from placing additional debt against their home to raise money. Therefore, selling a home and using the tax exemption may allow you to have the best of two worlds — a home more fitting your needs and extra cash. Ask your tax consultant if you qualify for this important exemption.

Check out a gpm

If you expect your income to rise predictably in the next few years but cannot quite afford the full monthly payment to buy a house today, you may want to look into a graduated payment mortgage (GPM).

With a GPM, your payments in the early years of the loan will be inadequate to cover the required interest. The lender defers this interest and adds it to the principal.

A graduated payment mortgage may help you qualify for a loan on a more expensive home. It will reduce housing expenses in the early years but increase payments later. Note, however, that a GPM does not reduce the down payment, the amount of interest or the principal. You may find later that your income does not match rising housing expenses and may be forced to sell.

Talk to your lender about a GPM or one of the other alternative mortgage plans.

Hints to help your home sell

Whether you are selling your home yourself or working with an agent, here are some suggestions to help your home sell more quickly.

Curb appeal is important. The lawn should be mowed and edged, the flowerbeds weeded and the lot free of debris. Scrub or paint the front door so the home looks more inviting.

Windows should be cleaned and drapes should be open to create an impression of airiness and light. If prospects are looking at night, be sure plenty of lights are on.

Rooms should not be crowded with furniture — give potential buyers the opportunity to imagine how their furnishings would fit in. Remember, buyers are distracted by television, stereos and noisy children. Give the would-be purchaser a quiet atmosphere in which to view your home.

What's in a point

When you borrow money to buy a house, one of the most confusing items you may deal with is called a point. You may find that in order to obtain a loan, you will have to agree not only to principal and interest payments but to payment of several points at the time the loan is granted.

A point is one percent of the amount of the loan. Thus, if you take out a loan for $40,000, each point will cost $400. When the lending institution charge you three points for making the loan, it really is charging you a $1,200 fee. Many such fees are appropriately described as loan origination fees.

So, remember to include the number of points you have to pay in with the cost of buying or selling a house. With today's high prices and tight money market, the amount of money paid in points can be substantial.

Memories of seafaring Christmases

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, THIS SCRIBE IS A RE-SPECTOR OF PEOPLE. For example, I don't think my county commissioner who lives not far from me would be anything but indignant were I to offer him $10, even $100 to repair my driveway. By the same token I don't believe that National Security Advisor Richard V. Allen tucked a piddling $1,000 into his safe for future personal use. Allen is a man of considerable personal wealth. I am reminded of the frame up on John Connally, charged with accepting $10,000 from a dairy union, or whatever. $10,000 is $10,000 to me and I'd prefer not to lose it but certainly not risk my reputation on it. Ditto Allen and Connally on $1,000 and $10,000, both in a considerably different category from me.

Ah, but enough of politics. I must indulge seafaring a non-seafaring friend mentioned a week ago, at least for another week. Scrooge that I am the Yuletide season is not my favorite, but I think of a late friend who almost wrote a book about Christmases at sea. His accounts, William McFee, appeared for nearly a year in the Atlantic Monthly, 30, 40 years ago.

Health Advice

Arthritis

Rheumatoid arthritis makes life miserable for many people. Coping with the disease, particularly when the pain is severe, requires considerable effort, plus an understanding of the problems associated with it.

Some confusion about arthritis may arise occasionally between doctors and their patients because of different uses of the term. A physician knows that the "arth" part of the word means joint. "Itis" means inflamed. Soreness in the muscles and ligaments has nothing to do with arthritis, as some people believe.

Rheumatoid arthritis usually strikes between the ages of 20 and 40. The Texas Medical Association estimates that more than 5 million Americans suffer varying degrees of discomfort from the disease. Two-thirds of its victims are women. Unfortunately, most of them are at an age when they usually are most involved with their families and careers.

Currently, no known cure exists. Controlling rheumatoid arthritis involves proper medication, diet and exercise.

It is an unpredictable ailment. One day, for no apparent reason, it may seem to have gone away only to reappear with all of its painful effects, a day, a month or later.

If you have rheumatoid arthritis, pay attention to your body. Pain and fatigue should be taken seriously.

Dr. Lucas is medical director of National Heritage Insurance Co. of Austin. National Heritage is a subsidiary of Electronic Data Systems Corp. of Dallas. EDS underwrites and administers the Texas Medicaid Program.

Poll shows

Americans like their clean air

Americans appreciate their clean air and, according to opinion polls, they also favor the Clean Air Act, which has helped improve air quality since enactment in 1970.

What Americans do not know is the price they pay for clean air over and above the legitimate costs: needlessly higher consumer prices, lost industrial facilities and jobs, higher bills for gasoline and heating fuels and, surprise of surprises, dirtier air than otherwise would be the case.

The nation is committed to spending a staggering $400 billion — equal to more than a third of our $1 trillion federal debt — in fighting air pollution through the mid-1980's. In the vast regulatory system used to control sources of pollution, waste and bungling delays can quickly run into millions, even hundreds of millions of dollars.

While hardly typical, it is well worth noting as symptomatic that in enforcing the Act the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) actually has impeded progress toward cleaner air. Cases have been documented revealing that plans to install new facilities designed to reduce pollutants actually have been treated as "new" sources of pollution subject to impediments of the regulatory permit process.

Documentation is part of an intensive new study made for the Business Roundtable, an organization of chief executive officers of major U.S. companies, performed by an independent consulting firm.

Environmental Research & Technology, Inc., of Concord, Mass., studied data on the experiences of 92 companies caught up in the throes of environmental regulation. Based on its review of the case histories, the firm concluded that "several billions of dollars could be saved by a more efficient Clean Air Act without sacrificing air quality gains."

As part of its 450-page analysis, the consulting firm pinpointed several cases specifically illustrating how "planned reductions in air emissions were delayed by the Clean Air Act review process."

CASE A: In 1979 a textile manufacturer received a state permit to install a new fabric-coating line as part of expansion. EPA later rejected the state's plan to comply with federal ozone standards and imposed a construction ban. Actually, the company had spent $500,000 to develop a new system designed to recapture pollutants before they escaped into the air and thus reduce emissions by 91 tons per year. Regulatory delays and expense cost the company an estimated $1.5 million. Eventually, the project received a go-head.

The 92 case histories — most of them more protracted, costly and complex than the two cases cited here — are described by the consultants as only "the tip of the iceberg." General findings included:

— Virtually every problem adds needlessly to burdens of consumers and the economy, typically from lost production or inefficient production due to delays. — Environmental factors frequently are the most uncertain in the planning of new or expanded industrial facilities.

— Despite demands for huge amounts of data, no mechanism exists for expediting EPA reviews of voluminous permit applications.

In the forefront of current efforts to amend the Act — to make it more effective and less expensive, without weakening it — is the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which has studied the Act's impact on the nation's regional and local economies all through the 1970's.

In recent Congressional testimony, the Chamber called for elimination of construction bans currently in effect, stating: "... the construction ban is counterproductive when it prohibits modernization of facilities that would reduce net emission in the area. Consequently, more than 67 million people live in nonattainment areas where permit restrictions, or construction bans, apply. People living in areas where the construction ban has been imposed depend on industries in those areas to remain modern and competitive. The nation cannot afford to have such an important portion of our industrial base become uncompetitive."

The Act, toughed up with amendments in 1977, is a live issue before Congress. On Sept. 30, Congress faced the task of reauthorizing the Act but chose instead to extend its life on an emergency basis, as it did with numerous other programs. But sooner or later it must face up to the overwhelming need and evidence in support of constructive amendments. It's no longer a debate over clean air versus dirty air. We do learn from experience, don't we?

"Low Down" Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

Representative Steven Symms (Idaho) "... Unless we act, our Nation will continue to suffer a Postal Service characterized by increased postal rates, inflexible arrangements, and no competing alternatives."

"We may alter the arrangements to which we are accustomed, and to that end, I am introducing the Private Mail Carriage Act of 1981 (S. 1801)."

"The key to increased efficiency and lower cost in the delivery of mail is not in a Government — sustained monopoly, but in the competition of private enterprise. This bill permits the carrier, for compensation, and ends the monopoly held by the U.S. Postal Service over first-class mail ..."

The law presently allows private companies to deliver packages and parcels. This is an area in which even though the U.S. Postal Service is subsidized, it loses money.

"I want to make it clear that this bill does not call for abolition of the U.S. Postal Service, and nothing in it precludes the U.S. Postal Service from continuing to carry mail. The bill simply repeals the private express statutes and ends the Government monopoly on first class mail delivery ..."

"At present, this bill is cosponsored by the Senator from Wyoming (Mr. Simpson) and the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. Helms) and (also) the Senator from Florida, (Mrs. Hawkins) ..."

Representative William (Bill) Clay (Missouri) "... Does the experience of the 10 years since enactment of the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 suggest a need for new legislation to meet the present and future postal needs of the American people?"

"These are among the questions that the Subcommittee on Postal Operations and Services, which I am privileged to chair, and the Subcommittee on Postal Personnel and Modernization, chaired by our distinguished colleague Hon. Mickey Leland (Tex.) will seek to answer during comprehensive joint public hearings that will begin December 1 and continue into the second session of the 97th Congress ..."

"If justified by the results of these hearings and our study, we anticipate the introduction of comprehensive postal reform legislation early next year ..."

Laurie Green weds James Court

Laurie L. Green and James L. Court, both of Rockport, were united in matrimony Nov. 8 in Poudre Canyon, Colorado.

The bride is the daughter of Wilma L. Hess of Greeley, Colorado and Richard E. Green of Fort Collins, Colorado. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Court, Jr. of Rockport. Both are employed by C and C Welding.

The semi-traditional ceremony was performed in The Chapel in the Hills, with the Rev. Thomas Nadelin, pastor of the United Campus Ministry in Fort Collins, Colorado officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory colored full length gown with a train. The bodice was taffeta with a French lace overlay, and trimmed in seed pearls. Complimenting the gown were sleevelets matching the overlay.

The veil was tulle trimmed in lace to match the dress and was made by the bride. A crown of sweet heart roses was on top of the veil.

The bridal bouquet was a loose arrangement of peach Betina roses, yellow Gerber daisies and peach, fading to yellow, mums with a Betina rose cascade.

Matron of honor was Terry Washington, sister of the bride, from Rockport.

Bridesmaid was Sandy Court, sister-in-law of the groom, from Rockport.

Best man was Royce Court, brother of the groom, from Rockport. Groomsmen were Linny Landrum from Austin and Jerry West from Lockhart, friends of the groom.

The matron of honor and bridesmaid wore floor length sundresses of solid peach crepe knit with sheer capes. The maid of honor's cape was yellow with peach flowers and the bridesmaid's was peach with yellow flowers. The attendant's flowers were an arrangement of peach Betina roses, yellow Gerber daisies and yellow pixie carnations. Both wore contrasting flower crowns with sweetheart roses.

The church altar was decorated with aspen leaves and pine boughs.

Steve and Denise Hess, cousins of the bride, were soloists for the ceremony. They sang "The Wedding Song" as a duet and she sang "The Rose" as a solo.

He sang "A Time For Us" as a solo.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Poudre Park Community Building, attended by 75 guests. Cake, hors d'oeuvres, punch and coffee were served.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado Springs and Carlsbad Caverns, the couple will make their home in Rockport.

The bride wore a formal gown of champagne satin and lace. Her veil, with chapel length train, was made by her grandmother.

Bon appetit

by Ann Thomas

Before we get started on this week's collection of apple recipes, I'd like to make a few personal comments on the Christmas Bazaar held recently by the ACMSI Women's Committee. It was my first, but not my last! With daughter, Debra, and daughter-in-law to be, Cecile, in tow, off I went to one of the most delightful few hours we've spent in a long time.

These wonderful ladies had something for everyone, and when shopping was completed there was Granny's Kitchen where we ate lunch and some of the most delicious Praline Cake we have ever tasted. I managed to find out that Mary Hansen baked it. And in the Country Kitchen there were so many things to tempt the taste buds, but I selected Brazos Berry Jelly made by Mary B. Burke. Wonderful!

Why am I telling you this? Because I wanted to tell my readers that as a newcomer to Rockport I find it very commendable that there is an organization to do what these ladies do, and that the townspeople are so supportive. My hat is off to all of you! And maybe a few of those same ladies will share some of their great recipes with us! By the way, if you missed any of these gastronomical delights you can go by the workshop in Encina Plaza and probably find them and others not mentioned. With Christmas on its way you could pick up some nice gifts.

Okay, now for the apple recipes I promised you.

Welcome to Bon Appetit. I hope it will be as enjoyable for my readers as it is for me. The recipes in this issue and all ensuing ones are collected throughout the years and are a product of my favorite hobby.

The plan is to furnish my readers with recipes which are pertinent to an upcoming celebration, and holiday.

Since apples are in season and are "A good buy", let's get on with a few delicious ways to prepare them.

Fried Apples and Sausage
12 to 16 pork link sausages
1 large onion, chopped fine
6 to 8 tart cooking apples, cored and sliced
6 to 8 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter

Prick the sausages and brown well on both sides. Set aside on a paper towel while preparing the apples. Put four tablespoons sausage drippings into a cooking-serving dish. Sauté the onion until tender. Add the apples. Cover and cook on low heat until the apples begin to steam. Uncover and sprinkle with sugar and dot with butter. Cook until almost dry, then add the sausages and reheated. Serve with a hot breakfast bread.

This apple pie recipe will win raves from all who are fortunate enough to get a slice of it:

Bourbon Apple Pie
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
6 to 7 cups peeled, cored, pippen or green apples, sliced ¼ inch thick
2 tablespoons bourbon
½ cup toasted pecans or walnuts
2 cup raisins, plumped in bourbon
Dough for 9-inch two-crust pie
2 teaspoons Apricot Glaze
1 tablespoon butter
Milk
Sugar

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. Combine sugar, flour, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. Mix apples and bourbon. Add sugar mixture, nuts and raisins to apples. Mix thoroughly. Line a greased nine-inch pie plate with half the pastry. Paint bottom with Apricot Glaze. Heap apple mixture in pastry. Dot with butter. Roll remaining pastry, place on top of apples and flute the edges. Cut vents to allow steam to escape. Brush top crust with milk and dust with sugar. Bake in lower third of oven 50-60 minutes.

Apricot Glaze
1 11 ounce jar apricot preserves
4 tablespoons apricot brandy or orange liqueur

In a blender or food processor, combine the preserves and liqueur, and puree until liquified. Store the glaze in the refrigerator.

Too often those of you who use microwave ovens are forgotten. Not so today. Try your hand at this quickly prepared cake.

Winesap Apple Cake
2 cups apples, pared and diced
1 ¼ cups sugar
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter
1 egg
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 ¼ cups flour
¾ cups heavy cream

Arrange apples evenly in bottom of eight-inch square glass baking dish. Combine ¼ cup sugar, spices; blend and sprinkle over apples. Combine butter, one cup sugar, and egg; cream until well blended and fluffy. Add milk and combined baking powder and flour alternately to creamed mixture, beating well after each addition. Spread the batter over the apples. Bake, uncovered, in microwave oven 10 to 12 minutes or until apples are tender, turning pan twice during baking. Let stand 10 minutes, then serve with cream. Makes six servings.

This next recipe won a blue ribbon in a California county fair.

Apple Cheese Bread
½ cup soft shortening
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 ½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons milk
¾ cup rolled oats, uncooked
1 cup finely chopped raw apple
¾ cup coarsely grated cheese
½ cup chopped nutmeats

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Beat shortening until creamy. Gradually add sugar. Add eggs; beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Add to egg mixture with milk and stir only until blended. Add oats, apple, cheese and nutmeats all at once. Stir lightly. Batter will be very stiff. Place in greased pound loaf pan. Bake about 50 minutes. Guess that about wraps it up for this week. See you next week...and "Bon Appetit!"

Worship in Church This Week

The SNOWMAN

Maggie and June worked all morning making their snowman. He got so big that they had to fetch a stool and stand on tiptoe to make his arms and to cinder-button him. The mailman helped put on his head.

When they napped that afternoon, the sun shone hot and bright, and the south wind blew. When they woke, their snowy pal had dwindled and his cinder face cried dirty streaks. Sadly they turned away.

Sometimes life is like that snowman — grand and glittering with all the things we have. Then the hot winds of disaster blow, and their importance vanishes and we are left with emptiness.

What makes life meaningful? If possessions can't make us happy, what can?

Our churches have the answer. Through worship and prayer they teach us to find the joys of spirit.

The Shepherd's Staff

By Barrett Renfro, Pastor
First United Methodist Church

I have just read "The Greatest Miracle In The World" by Og Mandino. It is the story of the author and his friend, Simon. The book is short, about a hundred pages, easy to read and understand. I like books like that where the author says what he wants to say in an interesting manner. The author has no axe to grind, no hidden motive, he just tells his story and leaves it with you. The story is quite good.

In fact, it is a story of the incarnation. What I like to call a radical incarnation of God into the affairs of persons. The book would be worth reading during this Advent and Christmas season. It corrects the notion that God was incarnate in Jesus and then left us on our own. The books opens the possibility that God's incarnation in human affairs did not stop 2,000 years ago, but continues to this moment.

The book reminds me of Leo Tolstoy's story about the cobbler who dreamed he would meet Jesus. The next day a child needing a coat, a woman needing food, an old man came to his shop. That night he remembered a passage from the Bible, "as you have done it to the least of these my brethren, you have done it to me".

Could these people who had come to his shop been contemporary incarnations of the Lord? The two disciples on the Road to Emmaus did not know they were talking to Jesus. They thought they walked with a stranger! The disciples at the Sea of Tiberias did not know it was Jesus on the beach. They thought it was a stranger! In both instances the "stranger" turned out to be Jesus. These were all radical incarnations.

Well, Mandino's book is about a radical incarnation. It's also about the way we have of ourselves, our self-image. For so long the church has engaged in a "worm" theology; we are all no good and not worth anything. We have forgotten that the passage says "love your neighbor as yourself". It says we should love ourselves. Paul says, "Don't think more highly of yourself than you ought to think".

It does not say we shouldn't think highly of ourselves. For a long time, the marriage encounter movement has been teaching, "God does not make junk". The Mandino book encourages us to have a good, high self image.

I had better not write any more, or I will give the whole story away and I would like for you to have the experience for yourself. If you read "The Greatest Miracle In The World" by Og Mandino, let me know what you think.

Schools gear up for holidays

The 12 days of Christmas aren't quite here yet, but the month of December is a busy and festive one for the Aransas County schools. From the elementary level to the high school, holiday activities dominate the school calendar.

Undoubtedly the busiest group of students this Christmas is the Rockport-Fulton High School Choir, under the direction of Martha Luigi. The choir, in addition to school work and the continuing endeavor of fundraising for the Vienna trip, is visiting all the elementary schools for choral programs as well as performing for several local civic groups, including the AARP chapter.

The choir will perform at Live Oak Elementary on Thursday, Dec. 17. The Fulton Elementary concert will be held the same day, as will the performance at Rockport Elementary.

Live Oak Elementary school has on the holiday agenda a special musical program by the school's fourth graders, at the PTO meeting of Dec. 7. Class parties will begin at 1 p.m. on Dec. 18 at Live Oak and school will be out at 2:30 p.m.

Fulton Elementary will have a Christmas program on Dec. 18 at 10 a.m. The Fulton fifth grade choir will put on a special performance at First National Bank at 10:30 a.m. Dec. 16. Class parties at Fulton, held on the last day of school, Dec. 18, will commence at 1 p.m. and St. Nick is expected to drop by to every class during the afternoon. School will be out at 2:30 p.m.

A Christmas program will be held at Rockport Elementary on Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium, featuring Christmas music performed by students.

Junior high and high school students will attend a special joint concert in the high school auditorium, with high school and junior high band and choir students both performing, on Dec. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Tiller works wonders in garden

For years, man has been breaking the ground for planting by various methods. In ancient times, they used the limbs of trees, pulled or pushed by man, to break the ground.

Then evolved the plow on a wheel and then pulled by a horse.

In more recent times, the tiller has come on the scene. Recently, I have received a large number of questions about tillers. Therefore, I have decided to devote this column to discussing tillers.

Tillers vary in price from the low hundreds to in excess of one thousand dollars. The optional accessories available, vary as great. The size of the tiller that you need, will vary as to the size of the job you have. One of the most asked questions is which is the best, the front or rear tines for tillers? The tillers with the rear tines will always run smoother than the front tine tillers. In fact, you can operate a rear tine tiller with one hand; whereas, the front tines will shake and vibrate the operator.

Another question that is often asked, is whether a belt driven tiller or a worm-gear tiller is best? There is no question that a worm-gear is best. There will be no problem with belts slipping. Another item that is of importance, is the location of the controls.

They should be located where the operator can get to them easily and be able to shut the tiller off in an emergency. You must look at the safety features of the tiller before you make your purchase because you could be very seriously hurt with a tiller if you could not shut it off quickly and if the tiller did not have the various safety features such as covers, etc.

There are many options that are available for tillers, such as dozer blades, bumpers, hill furrowers, row markers, as well as electric starters. There are many tillers that are being manufactured in small machine shops at very cheap prices by eliminating many safety features and that will perform one function and at only one depth.

Your Garden Editor, Ted Brice, recommends the rear tine tiller with all the safety features. In surveying the tillers that are on the market today, I have found very few that are a truly a safe machine. The Troy Built Tiller Company has supplied your Garden Editor with a quantity of "The Joy Gardening" book. If you would like one of these books and additional information on tillers, write Ted Brice, your Garden Editor, in care of this newspaper.

Good gardening until next week from your Garden Editor, Ted Brice.

R.F. responds to student career needs

During the week of December 7, all seniors at Rockport-Fulton High School will have an opportunity to participate in a career guidance and educational planning program, the ACT Career Planning Program.

This program is designed to help young adults make better decisions about their educational and career plans. Grover Watkins, counselor at Rockport-Fulton High School points out that national studies reflect that twelfth grade students classify "help with career planning" as one of their most important needs. Yet, in many school settings this need, currently, is not being addressed, says Watkins. It is in response to this need that Rockport-Fulton High School institute the opportunity to participate in the Career Planning Program.

Participating students complete the Career Planning Program assessment instrument which measures the students' career related interests, experiences, abilities, and plans. The information is developed into a report for each student to help them relate this information about themselves to career options and the world of work. The reports will be reviewed with students in group and individual counseling sessions following the administration of the program. Watkins stated that the Career Planning Program is more than an assessment experience, but rather a first step, or foundation for the start of each student's journey.

About 65 percent of last year's seniors at Rockport-Fulton High School said they were planning further education after high school, said Watkins. Fifteen percent were planning toward a technical/vocational program, and 50 percent were aiming for four years or more of college attendance. "The aim of the school's guidance program is to assist all of these students, regardless of their objectives, with the process of learning about and exploring career opportunities," said Chester Barre, principal at Rockport-Fulton High School.

by Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the college of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University.

Dear Dr. Lutz, I have always wanted to be a veterinarian. Because I am a female, I didn't think I would have a chance of being accepted until I read your article that appeared about 2 weeks ago.

My concern is that after graduation from high school with fairly good grades, I attended Del Mar College and received an Associate Degree, then joined the Navy for a three year commitment. I am now 25 years old. Am I too old to think about a career in veterinary medicine?

Signed,
Karen

Dear Karen, In the 1981 Veterinary College entering class, the average age was 23. The oldest student accepted was 32 years of age.

At the pound

This two-month-old puppy is now up for adoption at Rockport's city pound, says Animal Control Officer Dick MacMurchy. She's mixed-shepherd, friendly and playful and could make a good pet for an older child. Anyone interested in adopting her should contact MacMurchy, no earlier than Monday, at the pound, 729-0730, the police department, 729-0240, and through Rockport City Hall, 729-2213.

Pirates stage comeback to defeat the Greyhounds

After starting off like a house-on-fire in the first quarter, the Rockport-Fulton Pirates had their flames dampened for a quarter and a half before they caught fire again and demolished Taft 57-45.

The Pirates jumped ahead in the contest midway through the first quarter before taking what seemed to be a commanding lead of 17-11 after a quarter. Micheal Simmons and James Walls combined to pump in 12 points and Rory Morgan hit five in the first period.

kept inching closer and lulled

Lady Pirates lose to Tuloso-Midway 67-33

Although the Lady Pirates of Rockport-Fulton got even scoring last Tuesday night, the point total was not near enough to challenge the powerful Cherokees of Tuloso-Midway, as the Indians beat the Ladies 67-33.

With superior height advantage, the Cherokees broke away from the young Lady Pirates in the opening period by a 16-6 margin.

After the initial quarter, the Cherokees just kept adding to their lead.

At the end of the game, Lee Anna Cassell and Helen Jenkins were the high scorers for the Pirates with eight points each. Diana Herman added seven points, Maggie Kiker six, and Mona Cowen four.

Lady Pirate JV lose

Completely shut out in the opening period, the Lady Pirate JV fell behind 15-0, and from then on they could never get close to the Cherokees in the 61-28 loss in Tuloso-Midway Tuesday night.

It was the second period before the Lady Pirates ever on the scoreboard, and they found themselves with an unclimbable mountain in front of them as they trailed at the half 29-8. Tuloso kept adding to their margin as the game progressed.

Scoring the points for the Lady Pirates once they started hitting the basket was top scorer Michelle Willis with 12 points, followed by Missy Krosgaard with 6 and Jodi Welsh with 7.

Pirate freshmen wipe out Taft

After three minutes of the game had gone by, the Rockport-Fulton Freshmen decided to quit fooling with Taft and really opened up. Coach Ronnie Ormand's troops blitzed their way to a 27-2 first quarter lead, and when the coach made changes from the bench, it was not evident as the bench strength of the Pirates played the rest of the way in the runaway.

Trinelle Walls used his outside shot to hit for ten in the opening period as the Pirates were building their big lead. By the half with the subs playing, the Pirates had run the score to 41-10. By the game's end, Rockport had neared the 70-point mark while keeping the Hounds under 30 points.

Louis Solis, Frank Canchola and Ronnie Wagoner each scored 12 points in the contest. The Pirates are 3-0 at this point, excluding a B-Team loss to Port Lavaca.

Cherokee freshmen dominate Lady Pirates

Tuloso's Freshmen Cherokees jumped all over the Lady Pirate Freshmen in the first few minutes of the game, established a big lead, and then poured in the points their way to the 73-10 assault on Rockport.

The first quarter set the pace for the game as the Cherokees got 23 big points in the opening eight minutes while holding Rockport-Fulton to only four. Since the Lady Pirates could find the net only once in the second quarter, the score was a lopsided 36-6 at halftime, and things kept going in the same fashion for the remainder of the game.

Top scorer for the Freshmen was Tron Ngo with four. Also scoring for the Pirates were Sylvia Ayala, Kelly Fotik, and Johnie Jordan.

Area fishing report

Key Allegro — Until the weather hit fishing in the flats was very good and many anglers could be seen trying their luck around the Key Allegro bridge. Lots of trout and reds were landed with most of them biting on gold spoons, 729-2761.

Kleine's Rattlesnake Point — Mr. Ellis caught a bunch of reds and trout and the winter Texans staying at the camp landed some very nice reds weighing in all 11½ pounds. Thursday he got several reds and two very large trout. Plenty of dead bait available, 729-2892.

Copano Causeway — Several days ago there was a big flounder run at the pier and Wednesday night a big drum run with some weighing in at 40 pounds delighted fishermen. The drum were biting on shrimp. Some bait is available, 729-8633.

St. Charles Bay — Floundering has dropped off because of the murky water but the reds are running and fishing is good in the area, dead bait is plentiful, 729-2053.

Sea Gun — Lots of trout, some flounder, drum and sheepshead being caught.

the Pirates asleep. Eventually the Pirates found themselves falling behind, and before the half came to a close, the Pirates appeared to forget the fundamentals of basketball and become spectators going through the motions. Taft took the lead by the half and held a comfortable margin of 30-22. Taft's lead increased to 37-22 before the Pirates began to make a move. With 3:45 remaining in the third period, a series of events began to take place which would change the outcome of the game. James Walls made a pair of quick steals, Dennis Hull intercepted two passes, and the Pirates turned all four turnovers into baskets. Slowly the Pirates trimmed the lead.

In the Pirate rush in the final three minutes, Tim Redden began to find the range from outside, and the Pirates picked up four fast-break baskets. When the quarter had elapsed, Rockport had outscored the Greyhounds 18-8, taking a two point lead of 40-38.

The fourth period belonged to the Pirates. Taft's big man fouled out with just seconds gone in the final period, and with his departure, the Pirates rebounders began to take control of the game. Simmons snared eight rebounds in the final half. Redden scored twelve of his fourteen points when the Pirates began to roll.

Simmons led the Pirates for the game with 18 points on the way to the 57-45 win for the Pirates. Walls, who had a much better floor game in the second half, picked up a dozen points for the night.

Rockport soccer fans treated to change of pace

By Terry Cody

Rockport soccer fans were treated to a little change of pace when two local teams from the Youth Soccer League joined forces to play a special challenge game with a team from Flour Bluff.

At the final whistle Flour Bluff had a commanding 5-0 victory over Rockport and the Rockport players had a little more soccer experience under their belts.

The Sting and the Hornets were the only teams playing in the Junior High Division in Rockport this season and welcomed the chance to play against the opponents from Flour

Bluff.

Rockport coach Irene Anderson only had a couple of weeks to mold a team out of players who had played against each other all season and get them used to playing 11-man soccer on a regulation field instead of 7-man soccer on a much smaller field.

From the opening whistle it was apparent that Flour Bluff had the edge in both physical size and teamwork but the Rockport team relied on a lot of enthusiasm and a "Frustrating type of defense" (to quote a Flour Bluff player) to keep them in the game.

Most of the first half was spent in the Rockport end of the field as Flour Bluff repeatedly attacked the Rockport goal only to have their scoring threat ended by an errant pass or a fine play by the Rockport defenders.

Rockport's offensive attack during the first half was led by Susan Kanzenbach, Laurie Atkinson and Orlando Zapata but the tough Flour Bluff defense was always ready to meet the challenge.

Rockport's goalkeeper Jeff Groseclose made several outstanding saves on hard shots during the game and quickly earned the respect of the powerful Flour Bluff forwards.

At halftime Flour Bluff had a 2-0 lead on a couple of excellent shots by Mauricio Del Valle and Jason Anderson.

Rockport's coach started almost a complete new team during the second half and they played a more physical game that resembled the Flour Bluff type of soccer.

Lalo Hernandez, Ross Roberts, Christ Smartt and Jeremy Arnold put lots of pressure on the Flour Bluff defenders but failed to get the ball past the Flour Bluff goalkeeper.

Flour Bluff's players responded to the new challenge and seemed to enjoy the slight change of pace. Craig Day fired two shots past the Rockport defense and Donnell Hosey added another fine goal to complete the Flour Bluff scoring.

The visiting team from Flour Bluff plays in the Oso League of the Coastal Bend Soccer Association and brought a little different style of soccer to Rockport's Memorial Park.

After the game Rockport's players felt they learned a great deal from their first game and are looking forward to a rematch in Flour Bluff in the near future.

A few hints on Yellow Breeches Creek

BOILING SPRINGS, Pa. — When I'd checked into my room at the inn, I'd discovered that the threading of the crank handle on the window was stripped. There was no way I could open that window and I certainly did not want to have to sleep in air conditioning in the pleasant Pennsylvania countryside.

The maintenance man quickly showed up and I suggested putting a crank onto the other window if he couldn't repair the first one. Since the second window had no screen he said that that would not work, either; there were still mosquitoes around and they were distinctly antagonistic.

While I was waiting for him to make my room habitable I managed to pick up a few hints on the Yellow Breeches Creek, which flowed temptingly within view of the window that didn't want to work. While there were mosquitoes around (and I'd want to work. While there were mosquitoes around (and I'd certainly try a fly of the same name when I finally managed to get to the water) the most productive flies seemed to be almost any pattern so long as it was something in green.

Even though I was delayed in getting into the stream, at least the delay saw to it that I had a window I could use and information that was clearly useful. As a matter of fact, I got into the top end of the pool behind the small dam just at the start of the late afternoon Major Solunar Period.

As I'd stood on the bank above the water looking into it for likely hiding holes, the trout obligingly started working on the top of the water, dimpling here and there and particularly right THERE where I'd spotted a nice, cozy underwater rock. So far as spotting anything drifting on the water surface it was not my luck to be able to see just what they were rising to. Whatever it was clearly had to be small and just in or below the surface film.

I tied on a small, light, olive-green spent wing without doping it. While it continued to float relatively well, six inches was the closest any trout came to it. It wasn't until it finally got soggy enough to settle well into the film that an eager youngster closed his mouth on it and I was onto my first fish on the Yellow Breeches. Rosa Mae Jones

Curiosity Shop offers charming selection

"The Curiosity Shop" is one of downtown Rockport's newest businesses and within its walls lies a charming assortment of antique glassware, jewelry and other gift items.

The shop, located at 115 Austin, was opened Tuesday, Dec. 1 by Rosa Mae Jones and her husband E.M. Jones. The couple have recently moved to Rockport from Midland where Rosa operated another antiques store, also named "The Curiosity Shop."

The Joneses' store is located in the old "Stuff and Such" building and the couple bought out that store's stock, which is also featured in addition to their collection of glass, jewelry and gifts. Some antique furniture is for sale at the shop also.

Among the decorative and antique glassware assembled by Rosa Mae is a collection of Oriental Satsuma glass, a rare type of antique china.

Gift items offered at

"The Curiosity Shop" include shell crafts, baskets, purses, windchimes - just about everything.

"I love doing this," says Rosa Mae. "I do it for fulfillment, as a hobby. It's wonderful to meet so many people and I enjoy selling and traveling."

She continues, "I'm just a youngster at heart - I love dolls and clowns and animal miniatures of all kinds."

The Joneses seem to love Rockport as much as Rosa

Mae loves antiques. "We've been coming down for six or seven years," says Mr. Jones "and we finally decided to just move here." The couple lives in Harbor Oaks. "We fish a lot and birdwatch, too," says Rosa Mae, "We love outdoor activity."

"Yes," she says, "we kept coming down here to visit until we finally decided that there was no where else for us but here. We love it."

Water board to develop long range solutions

The Texas Water Development Board has authorized the Board staff to undertake a new effort to review and revise the Texas Water Plan and to develop recommendations to be made to the Governor and to the Legislature relating to long-range solutions to Texas' water needs.

The Board and the Texas Department of Water Resources will be aided and advised by Governor Bill Clements' Task Force on Water Resource Use and Conservation.

Our goal is to revise and update the Texas Water Plan in time to present results and recommendations to the next session of the Texas Legislature when it convenes in Jan. of 1983.

The task is an extremely complex one. It involves a very large number of factors including recognition of existing water rights; along with the views and interests of the 1,050 existing water authorities and districts, 786 municipal water systems, approximately 2,500 water supply corporations, nearly 4,000 major industrial water users, tens of thousands of irrigation farmers, several federal and state agencies, public and private research and special interest organizations, and of course the general public.

Specific attention must be given to an extensive list of water-related concerns:

- Water supply
- Water quality protection
- Flood protection
- Water resources research
- Water conservation
- Better use of flood storage in existing and potential reservoirs
- Improved coordination between water districts, river authorities, federal agencies and conservation districts in construction and operation of projects
- Inter-basin transfers of water

- Modifications to Texas water law that may be needed for more efficient management of water resources
- The state's role in financing water projects
- Environmental elements of water resources programs

Cities and towns throughout Texas are struggling with urgent water-related problems which threaten to erupt into a statewide crisis which could threaten our health and prosperity if not addressed on an orderly basis. Data available to the Department shows that the water supply, water treatment, sewage treatment and floor control needs facing us over the next 25 years have a staggering price tag in excess of $50 billion, most of which will have to be paid for by the local utility customers and taxpayers. For example, Texas must develop 36 new reservoirs before the year 2005 — just 24 years from now — to meet the state's projected surface water requirements. Even sooner, by 1986, 500 sewage systems need to be built, and between 1987 and the turn of the century an additional 2200 sewage treatment facilities need to be built all at a cost of $11.5 billion.

Federal funding available in the past will not be available in the future. Thus, it will be necessary for the people of Texas to assume more of the financial responsibility for water, sewer, and flood protection projects.

One of the difficult problems of Texas water planning for the future centers around projected assumptions, and desires about population and economic growth. Rapid growth in recent years and expected future growth are placing severe strains upon municipal water supply and sewer systems. Growth in population and in the associated business, service, and manufacturing sectors has been and is expected to continue to be fundamental to a strong Texas economy that can provide jobs at all skill levels, opportunity for upward mobility of all groups, and a broad and dependable tax base from which education, and public services can be financed through the public sector. A satisfactory supply of suitable quality water is essential to maintain existing levels of the economy and to meet the needs of growth in the future.

Many local and state officials and private sector leaders fully understand these principles of our economy and are working to find solutions to water and other problems of the public and private sectors. However, there are mixed voices regarding policies and programs of water resources development. On the other hand, the Texas Department of Water Resources is urged to adopt and pursue policies to develop water supplies to meet the needs of the future, including growth. On the other hand, the Department is urged to pursue objectives of limited growth, increased conservation (meaning to reduce per capita use of water by people and reduced quantities of water for industry and agriculture), and increased regulation of water use.

In Texas, state water resources agencies historically have been limited in authority to water rights and water quality protection administration, state-wide comprehensive water quality and water development planning, and the administration of a water development loan program for hardship cases. The implementation and operation of water supply and sewage treatment systems is the responsibility of local and regional units of government. Thus, Texans must realize that the Texas water resources program is fragmented and is the subject of heated discussion by many voices holding varied opinions reflecting widely differing objectives. Most Texans know, however, that our state both enjoys and suffers from a very wide diversity of climate — ranging from among the highest annual rainfall in the nation on our eastern border to arid conditions at El Paso, and from a sub-tropical, although semiarid climate in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, to the Panhandle where winters are cold and frozen, and precipitation is light. Obviously, any meaningful state water plan must recognize these realities.

Our population and economy are growing. Without a plan for the future, we cannot avoid a water crisis. The Department has a long-range water planning program in which data and planning methods have been developed to advanced stages. However, the Department does not have all the answers needed to solve the state's long-range water problems. Certainly some of the most important of those missing are the answers to three key questions:

- (1) What do the people of Texas want in the way of a water plan?
- (2) What are they willing to pay?
- (3) How will the cost be financed?

In the months ahead, the Board will schedule both public information/discussion meetings and formal public hearings to address these and other questions of relevance to solving our future water problems as we proceed with our efforts to revise the Texas Water Plan. We welcome the ideas and suggestions of all Texans.

Burning brush at refuge benefits whoopers, deer

Local residents alarmed at the clouds of black smoke on the bayside horizon this past week can rest assured. It was no rampant, out-of-control blaze, as suggested by the amount of smoke, but rather a regular controlled brush burn at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

The Austwell-based refuge is well-known as the winter home for the whooping cranes and serves as a year round habitat for hundreds of other wildlife species as well. It is for the benefit of these animals that the burns are conducted, said refuge spokesman Steve LaBuda.

According to LaBuda, the area of the most recent burn, on Tuesday, Dec. 1, totaled to 3,000 acres of native prairie adjacent to the salt water marshes frequented by the whooping crane flock.

"This area is lined with shinnery oaks, or scrub oaks," said LaBuda, "and the cranes will not forage in an overly brushy place.

"By burning this brush off, we can get the cranes to move onto the site and extend their feeding area," he said. LaBuda explained that the cranes like to feed on the acorns left after such burns and that if such alternative food sources are made available the endangered birds will acclimate more readily to the upland food sources in the case of an oil spill or other threat to their salt water diet. With the acceleration of offshore activity near the refuge, this threat looms over the area now more than ever.

LaBuda said the whoopers and other animals will begin foraging on the burn site almost immediately, eating acorns and small insects and lizards left exposed in the area.

He explained that other species profit from prescribed burns as much as the cranes. Deer, which browse on forbs, or broadleafed weeds, receive much more nutrients from plants springing up fresh after a burn. So do geese, which eat smaller grasses. "The vegetation is higher in protein when it's fresh," said LaBuda. "The incidence of pregnancy and double and triple fawning in deer is much higher in areas with prescribed burns and the fawns born are much stronger."

LaBuda stressed that no animals are destroyed in the carefully controlled burns. "Some of the technicians on hand for this one reported seeing deer and javelinas moving about quite casually in between burning area," said LaBuda. "It's quite logical, in light of the fact that in the history of this area, fire is a natural part of the ecosystem."

According to the refuge spokesman, in the past, before development of the area, lightning would spark fires in inaccessible grasslands, leaving millions of acres to burn out of control for days.

LaBuda offered a historical insight on the regular burning of range land, saying, "The Indians are well known for burning an area in order to attract deer to it. They knew that deer and other species would come and graze in a freshly burned area where the grass was emerald green and they would cultivate the animals to improve their hunting. In a way, they were practicing wildlife management, though they weren't thinking in terms of management, but rather in terms of their tummies."

LaBuda said that crews of seven or eight refuge employees control the burn carefully with bulldozers and fire hoses, all the time communicating with each other and headquarters by radio.

He added that several more burns are planned for the next few weeks. "We look for dry, low humidity weather, usually right after a dry norther," he said. "We wait for that north northwest wind to die down enough so that we have a controllable situation before we burn."

Holman to offer to 'take care' of Fulton's new public pier

FULTON — Kirk Holman plans to "approach" Fulton's City Council Tuesday night with an offer to pay the light bills and take care of Fulton's new public fishing pier.

Holman, a member of the Aransas County Navigation District, asked to be on next Tuesday's, Dec. 8, council meeting in a letter to the city presented during the council's Dec. 1 workshop meeting.

The letter did not go into details on the request. Holman announced his plans when contacted Wednesday.

Also requesting to appear on Tuesday's agenda were Jack and Catherine Bohn who, in a letter to the council, indicated they want to discuss a bait stand. Council members speculated the request might be in reference to a bait stand on the public pier but the Pilot was unable to contact the Bohns.

In another item relating to the pier, council members next Tuesday will receive recommendations from the judges appointed to select the winner in the city's contest to name the new facility.

Also scheduled on the agenda is a request by the Fulton Cemetery Association for a $300 per year donation from the city to help maintain the Fulton Cemetery.

Alderman Elgin Dietz said he didn't think it was legal for the city to make such a donation, adding, "I think we ought to talk to our lawyer about it." But he also suggested that the item be included on Tuesday's agenda. The legalities of such a request were to be checked during the interim.

Council members decided not to include on Tuesday's agenda a letter from Rockport Cable TV notifying subscribers of a $2 increase in cable rates.

The decision was based on the facts that the city cannot take any action on the rate request — scheduled to take effect after the first of the year — and that cable subscribers have already been notified of the increase in letters sent out by the company with its bills.

Lease

gested the matter be taken to the district court, saying, "In my opinion that is what a court is for, I think we need a decision."

Mrs. Dreiss joined the discussion from the audience saying, "I think you should contact the attorney general's office."

Holman leaned across the table and asked Dreiss, "Why can't you do something?" Then he requested the discussion be continued in a closed special meeting according to the Texas Open Meeting Act. The commissioners agreed.

The commissioners also moved to table several items for discussion in a workshop meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 15. Among these items was the subject of maintaining the lights at the entrance to Little Bay between Rockport Beach and Key Allegro.

In his report to the commissioners, harbor master Bernie DeForest informed the commissioner that the United States Coast Guard explained to him that the navigation district was fully responsible for the maintenance of the lights at Legget Light entrance.

Navigation District chairman Landrum suggested that the commissioners approach the canal owners of Key Allegro in an effort to get them to share in the maintenance of the navigation lights.

The commissioners then heard discussion on the matter of navigation district property for lease on Market Street and east of Water Street. Mr. Sorenson registered a complaint that he thought the owners of the Rod and Reel Motel planned to lease the property and use the area for a parking lot. Sorenson said he was also against a proposed pier being built on the leased land.

Commissioner McKnight made a motion to put the lease out in two partials for 20 years with the price renegotiable every fifth year. Maguglin made a second to the motion and it was approved.

In a discussion on the status on the request by Rockport Sail Club to lease bottom land between lots number 55 and number 1-A on Key Allegro Island Estate for the purpose of constructing ships Navigation district counselor Reese Rozzell referred to a copy of a letter from Mr. Martin who is representing nearby land owners.

Rozzell said he received the letter about 4 p.m. Tuesday and needed more time to review the letter before giving the board advice.

Commissioner Dominguez made a motion to table the matter for a workshop session. The motion was approved.

The commissioners approved a permit request to use the Art Festival site by the Henneke Roller rink during the months of Dec. 1981 through Feb. 1982. The commissioners made a motion to charge $200 for the lease and require a refundable $200 deposit. The motion was approved.

The commissioners approved a motion on phase II, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Fund agreement under the Beach Improvement Project.

They also approved a request by Mr. Ed Brennan to furnish a list of the monthly bills along with the district's agenda.

One of the most controversial issues on the agenda was the discussion on the conditions to be set for re-leasing Cove Harbor lots number 94 and 95 with the lease scheduled to terminate January 31, 1981.

The holder of the lease, Mrs. Rosemary Wolbrecht was told by the board that the lease would be put out for public bid and if she wished to bid on the lease she could. She has held the present lease for 20 years and owns a house in Cove Harbor attached to the two lots.

Wolbrecht told the board that the house was rented and that she and her husband just finished making improvements to the property. Commissioner Holman ask her, "Why did you spend all this money on this house and make all these improvements knowing you had one year left on your lease?" Wolbrecht said she had never been refused renewal of the lease before.

Antiques and collectibles bring $325,000

HOUSTON — More than 200 rare antiques and collectibles brought a total of $325,000.00 at the Texana Auction of the Decade at the Inn on the Park Nov. 6 and 7. The auction, sponsored by and benefiting the Texas State Historical Association, was the first of its kind ever held in the history of Texas.

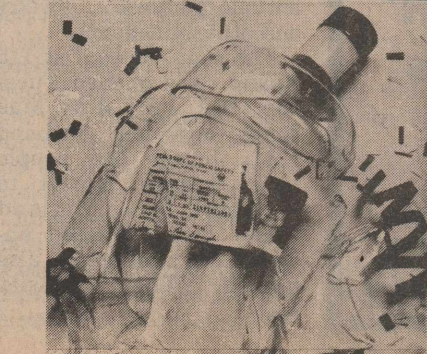

A crowd of some 800 Texana collectors from around the state gathered over the two-day period, which included a by-invitation-only gala black-tie reception, dinner and auction for 500 Friday night, and an all-day public auction Saturday.

The top-selling item at the sale — including art, Texas primitive furniture, maps, books, documents and manuscripts, specialty items and excursions — was an oil painting entitled "Fourth of July," painted by Ancel Nunn of Palestine.

It went to J.M. Copeland, also of Palestine, for $15,000. Second highest piece was Robert Pummill's oil "Turning the Lead Steer," at a price of $12,000 to Albany rancher Clifton Caldwell; and running a close third was "Mountain Country," an oil by renowned artist Robert Wood, purchased for $11,500 by Bruce Cameron of Houston.

One of the most coveted specialty items was the Texas Star, an 1836 medal issued by the Mexican government following the Texas campaign. It sold for $8,500 to a private collector. In another close competition, Jack Josey of Houston was the lucky bidder at $4,100 for the famed letter written by General William Barret Travis from the Alamo to Governor Henry Smith asking for reinforcements.
