U.S. Asks Immediate Nuclear Test Accord

Mobeetie Native, Two Others Die In Plane Crash

BATESVILLE, Ark. (UPI)—Recovery operations were underway today for the bodies of three Texans who died when their plane exploded and crashed in a swamp 20 miles east of here Monday.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Hollister of Fort Worth and Al W. Dart of Grand Prairie. Hollister was manager of the Grand Prairie Airport.

The single-engine red and white Bellanca was going from Grand Prairie to Louisville, Ky., when it blew up in threatening skies.

The main part of the plane fell in 12 feet of water which is normally swampland, but now is under more water because of the flooding Black River. The body of the plane was 300 yards from the river's main channel.

State police Sgt. Charley Logan went to Black Rock early today for a diver and diving equipment in an effort to recover the bodies from the plane.

Logan led two boatloads of state troopers through flooded bottom land and tangled underbrush of the swamp for three hours Monday night before finding the plane. Trucks and ambulances attempting to help became stuck and officials ruled out the use of amphibious vehicles because of the density of the brush in the swamp.

Albert Wendell Dart, 30, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dart of Panhandle. He was born Dec. 29, 1930, in Mobeetie and moved to Panhandle in 1940. He graduated from Panhandle High School in 1948 and received a degree from North Texas State College in Denton.

Dart, a certified public accountant in Dallas, was also in business with his brother, W. E. Dart Jr., in a television cable franchise in West Texas and New Mexico.

A member of the First Methodist Church in Panhandle, Dart also belonged to the Masonic Lodge in Grand Prairie and the Scottish Rite Temple in Dallas.

Other survivors include his wife, Polly Dart of Grand Prairie; and a nephew, Kenneth Dart of Lubbock.

Funeral arrangements are pending in Grand Prairie.

Sherman, Lubbock Get U.S. Buildings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., Monday announced plans for two federal building projects in Texas, a new post office at Sherman and enlargement of Army reserve training facilities at Lubbock.

The new training facilities will accomodate 400 men. The reserve unit there now has 200 men. It is expected to cost between $100,000 and $150,000.

The contract for the new post office was awarded to Frates-Harris Inc., of Fort Worth. It called for an annual lease payment for 20 years of $34,800.

Veiled Hint Sent Reds As Geneva Talks Begin

GENEVA (UPI) — The three-nation nuclear test ban talks were resumed today with chief American delegate Arthur H. Dean under instructions to bring them to a rapid conclusion.

Dean, sitting in on the 2½-year-old conference for the first time, brought with him a letter from President Kennedy telling him to make certain the talks bear fruit in a reasonably short time.

The letter is addressed to Dean, rather than to the conference. But, it was learned, it was written primarily for the benefit of the Russians. It contains a thinly-veiled hint that Kennedy's patience may rapidly wear thin if the Russians continue their refusal to accept cheat-proof control and inspection of a nuclear test ban.

Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin was in the chair when today's 274th session began. The conference first opened Oct. 31, 1958, and has been recessed a number of times with virtually no progress.

David Ormsby-Gore is the chief British delegate at the current meeting.

As the conference opened Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warmed over an old disarmament proposal in a speech in Central Asia. Khrushchev said Russia would accept any controls the West might propose here provided the West accepts his previously-rejected disarmament plan.

The Soviet Union in the past has said it is willing to accept controls to police a disarmament accord. But is has hedged with conditions that were unacceptable to the West.

The sequence of disarmament moves is held essential by the West. The United States and Britain do not want to abandon their nuclear deterrent right from the start of a disarmament accord. They want it to be done later when the East-West imbalance of conventional weapons and forces has been rectified.

The conference was recessed last December to give Kennedy a chance to work out his own policy and then coordinate it with that of Britain.

Informed sources said Kennedy had charged Dean to make every effort to bring this conference to a rapid and succesful conclusion and to make concessions for agreement as long as they do not jeopardize U.S. security.

Master Plan Engineer Outlines City Growth

Pampa's estimated population in 1980 is 40,000 persons, Charles Spivey, director of planning for a Dallas consulting engineers' firm, told members of the Pampa City Commission today.

Spivey made the first report to the commission on a comprehensive plan for Pampa's growth during the next 20 years.

Report One by Koch & Fowler and Grafe., Inc., of Dallas, relates only to a population and economic base study of the city and its needs in the next two decades.

Pampa's present population, Spivey pointed out, is 24,303, a 46 per cent increase since 1950. More than 52 per cent of that ten-year population increase, Spivey said was due to in-migration. Over 4,000 people moved into Pampa in the last ten years.

Spivey's report shows that Pampa's labor force and employment is up 45 per cent since 1940. From 1956 through 1958 employment was up 18 per cent in manufacturing and increased 7 per cent in other industry, with no change in farm employment.

Pampa's purchasing power and buying income has been higher than the state and national average since 1950. The buying income, the report shows, has increased 97 per cent since 1945 and bank deposits have increased 44 per cent since 1950.

Pampa's trade area, Spivey said, is composed of 19 counties in Texas and Oklahoma. Pampa has 42 per cent of its producing age group in the 20 to 44 years of age category, Spivey said.

Touching on housing, the planning engineer stated that Pampa has 3.08 persons per family compared with 3.6 persons per family for the state and nation.

The engineering firm started its

Lubbock Firm Gets Contracts For Two Bridges

Contracts for the construction of the Duncan St. and Tignor St. bridges and culverts were awarded today by the Pampa City Commission to the R. L. Garrett Contracting Co. of Lubbock for a low bid of $49,034 on both jobs.

The Lubbock contractor's bid was some $9,000 lower than an Amarillo contracting firm, the only other bidder for the jobs.

Garrett, who was present at the city commission meeting in City Hall this forenoon, said he would be able to start work on the two bridges as soon as contracts can be drawn up.

Garrett's bid was accepted by the commission upon the recommendation of Merriman and Barber, Pampa consulting engineers, who made a study of the bids and the city's requirements immediately following the bid opening today.

House May Vote On Minimum Pay Plan This Week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House manager of President Kennedy's minimum wage bill set sights today on action by the end of the week. But he avoided a victory prediction.

Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., said the plan was to start House debate Tuesday on Kennedy's proposal to raise the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour. He said he hoped final action would come Thursday, but it might be delayed until Friday.

Stacked against it is a $1.15 minimum wage proposal advanced by a Republican-southern Democratic coalition. An identical measure last year bumped off a bill similar to Kennedy's request.

Roosevelt noted somewhat ruefully that the House surely would finish with the bill Thursday if it adopted the coalition measure.

As for the administration bill, he said, "we're still facing an uphill fight. I'm not sanguine about it."

Rep. William Ayres, R-Ohio, who with Rep. A. Paul Kitchin, D-N.C., sponsored the coalition measure, already has predicted victory for his bill by at least 25 votes.

Roosevelt's bill would increase the minimum wage from the present $1 an hour to $1.15 four months after enactment of the law and to $1.25 two years later. It would extend new coverage to 4.3 million workers, bringing them to $1.25 an hour and a 40-hour week in four steps.

The Ayres-Kitchin measure would provide $1.15 an hour at the same time as the Roosevelt measure, but go no further. It would extend coverage to 1.4 workers, and provide $1 an hour minimums with no overtime provisions.

Daughter Tells About President Going Barefoot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House, which has extracted promises from the hired help that it won't gossip to outsiders, is having a little trouble with a member of the First Family.

President Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy haven't had any luck, apparently, so they have turned the problem of how to control the 3-year-old daughter, Caroline, over to Press Secretary Pierre Salinger.

Salinger told the National Democratic Club Monday he and Caroline have been discussing the matter. He said he doesn't care for any more performance such as the one a few weeks ago when she announced to reporters that the President was sitting barefooted in his office doing nothing.

UN Supply Ships Dare Congo Unit

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Several ships with supplies for United Nations forces in the Congo were reported approaching the port of Matadi today despite Congolese threats that "blood will flow" if any attempt is made to unload them.

Army commander-in-chief, Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, warned the U.N. command to keep out of the ports of Matadi and Banana, captured by Congolese troops from the U.N. garrisons more than two weeks ago.

"There's no question of U.N. troops ever returning to Matadi and Bana," Mobutu said. "If they try it, blood will flow. Let them send civilians to help receive supplies if they want, but no troops."

Congolese opposition to the United Nations appeared to be stiffening following President Joseph Kasavubu's demand Monday that all U.N. troops get out of the Congo.

Kasavubu said the United Nations had been invited by the Congo to help bring peace, but instead of helping they occupied the country.

The Congolese president was quoted as saying he wanted the United Nations to remain as a civilian operation because the Congo needs technical assistance, food and medical supplies.

Mobutu said he and the army accepted the proposed confederation of Congolese states on the condition that the national army remain under a single command and can send troops to Katanga, which is controlled by President Moise Tshombe.

In another development, an American missionary who arrived here Monday from Kindu Province denied reports that an

Senate Handed Spending Bill

AUSTIN (UPPI) — A $2.49 billion budget — the largest spending program in Texas history — was ready today to be sent to the Senate floor for action.

In the House, opponents of a measure to legalize horse race gambling were poised ready to kill the proposal Rep. V. E. Red Berry of San Antonio says will raise $11 million to help pay for the spending.

Berry said he would again try to postpone his constitutional amendment that would permit voters to decide whether the residens of nine counties could have local option elections to permit parimutuel betting on racing. Opponents were ready to kill the measure with a vote against postponement.

A Senate Finance subcommittee Monday reported out the $2.49 billion spending program that calls for appropriating $44.3 million more over the next two years from the deficit-ridden General Revenue fund.

The Senate Education Committee agreed unanimously Monday night that Texas Teachers should get an $800 yearly pay raise. Sponsor Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris promised the committee he would not try to get the bill passed on the floor until the appropriations measure is acted upon, and the committee voted to recommend its passage.

The pay raise bill would cost Texas $142.7 million in the next two years, and would raise the minimum pay for a teacher with a bachelor's degree to $4,014 a year.

The Senate's $2.49 billion spending ideas compare with a $2.47 billion budget suggested by Gov. Price Daniel and a $2.48 billion budget recommended by the Legislative Budget Board. The House version of state spending is expected later this week.

The measure recommended spending $9.4 million on the state judiciary, $104.8 million on hospitals and special schools, $1.24 billion for administrative agencies, and $1.98 billion on education.

That represents a total of $106.5 million in new spending from all funds during the next two years. The subcommittee estimated it would take $77 million a year in new taxes to support the bill, not considering a teachers' pay raise and a medical plan for the aged.

Principal In Spy Trial Seeks To Clear Others

LONDON (UPI)—Gordon Arnold Lonsdale rose in the prisoners' dock at the Old Bailey today and attempted to clear two of his co-defendants of charges that they were spies for Russia.

In a nine-minute statement he said he had imposed upon the friendship of Peter John Kroger and his wife, Helen, by installing a powerful radio under the kitchen of their suburban cottage. Prosecution testimony indicated the radio could transmit 240 words a minute to Moscow.

On trial with Lonsdale and the Krogers on charges of breaching the official secrets act are Henry F. Houghton, 55, and his fiancee, Miss. Ethel Elizabeth Gee, 46. They were employes at Britain's big naval base at Portland and have admitted they stole secret documents there and turned them over to Lonsdale.

After Lensdale finished, Kroger also stood in the dock and made a statement, including the fact that he and his wife were married in the United States in 1935.

Counsel for Lonsdale and the Krogers did not intend to offer any evidence. Houghton and Miss Gee already have testified, and Britain's biggest espionage trial since Klaus Fuchs was convicted in 1950 of passing atomic secrets to Russia was speeding toward a climax.

Lonsdale is the mystery man of this trial. He contends he is a business man who helps run a lock manufacturing concern. To Houghton and Miss Gee he was "Commander Alex Johnson," assistant naval attache at the American embassy here. The prosecution contends he is a Russian and a professional spy.

When he took the blame today, he did it solely in behalf of the Krogers, and made no attempt to help Houghton and Miss Gee.

The prosecution offered evidence that the cottage the Krogers occupied in suburban Ruislip was filled from cellar to attic with articles useful to anybody practicing international espionage. Lonsdale said today that all of them belonged to him.

High Court Will Decide Sit-in Cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sit-in demonstrators, whose movement has spread throughout the South, have cleared their first hurdle in the Supreme Court.

The court agreed Monday to hear its first case on this subject. It accepted for review the appeals of 16 Negro students at Southern University convicted in Baton Rouge, La., of disturbing the peace.

The forthcoming decision could govern cases of other demonstrators in Jacksonville, Fla., Atlanta, Ga., Greensboro, N.C., Lynchburg, Va., or other cities. On the other hand, the court may not rule in any such sweeping fashion.

In any event, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, lunch counter operators and others interested in the Baton Rouge case will have a long wait. The case probably will not be argued until next fall, with a decision coming weeks or months later.

Two Men Viewed As GOP Leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. William E. Miller of New York and Ray C. Bliss, Ohio Republican chairman, were viewed today as the strongest candidates for the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, chairman since April 11, 1959, announced Monday he had notified the committee he would call a meeting about June 1 to receive his resignation and elect a successor.

Miller is chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Defense Of Oil Trade Needed, Wilson Asserts

Texas Attorney General Will Wilson, candidate for the U.S. Senate, in Pampa today in the interest of his campaign, declared the oil industry was being subjected to a triple attack.

Assaults on the industry are being made by the coal interests, by attacks on the depletion allowance and by imports, the attorney general said.

The general flew into Pampa from Borger. He was greeted at a reception in the Cibola room of Coronado Inn. Tom Braly, Gray county chairman of the Committee-For-Wilson club, and Mrs. W. D. Kelly, co-chairman, were in charge of the reception. Wilson was also scheduled to tour the downtown areas in quest of votes for the senatorial toga.

With reference to the oil industry, Wilson said it was being subjected to the most severe attacks ever experienced.

"Right now," he declared, "there are only about 200 rigs running in the entire Permian Basin. Normally there would be between 400 and 600. Every time a rig shuts down, 142 people are thrown out of work."

Outlining the attacks on the industry, he said:

"The attacks are coming from different directions. First, there are the efforts by the coal people who seek to take away the markets under the so-called national fuels act. I'm opposed to that.

"Second, there is the attack on the depletion allowance. We've got to keep the depletion allowance to keep money flowing in Texas.

"Third, the import situation. We have to get a better balance of imports so as not to injure our domestic markets.

"I'm offering as a man who understands and can present the problems of the oil industry."

Wilson was once a roughneck, including work in the Panpa area; has a degree in geology from Oklahoma university, was for six years on the state Supreme Court bench during which oil and gas problems were handled, and for six years

He's Handsome, Gable's Widow Says Of Her Baby

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Clark Gable's widow awoke briefly last night to inspect her new son and exclaimed: "He looks just like pa!"

Mrs. Kay Gable, 43, who earlier in the day had given birth to the 8-pound boy, inspected him from her hospital bed while a nurse held the black-haired tot.

"His ears are of an average size," said a doctor. "Otherwise he has a definite resemblance to his father."

Mrs. Gable was expected to give the boy a name today. He was the only child of the famed, big-eared Clark Gable who died Nov. 16 in the same hospital, Hollywood Presbyterian.

Gable said before his death he did not want a son to be named Clark Gable Jr., fearing the famous name would be a handicap.

"Oh, he's so beautiful with that black, curly hair and that peaches and cream skin," said Mrs. Gable's friend, Mrs. Ray Hommes.

"She checked all his little toes and hands and fingers — he's an absolute delight to every one," said Mrs. Hommes who took a room near Mrs. Gable's in the hospital to keep her company.

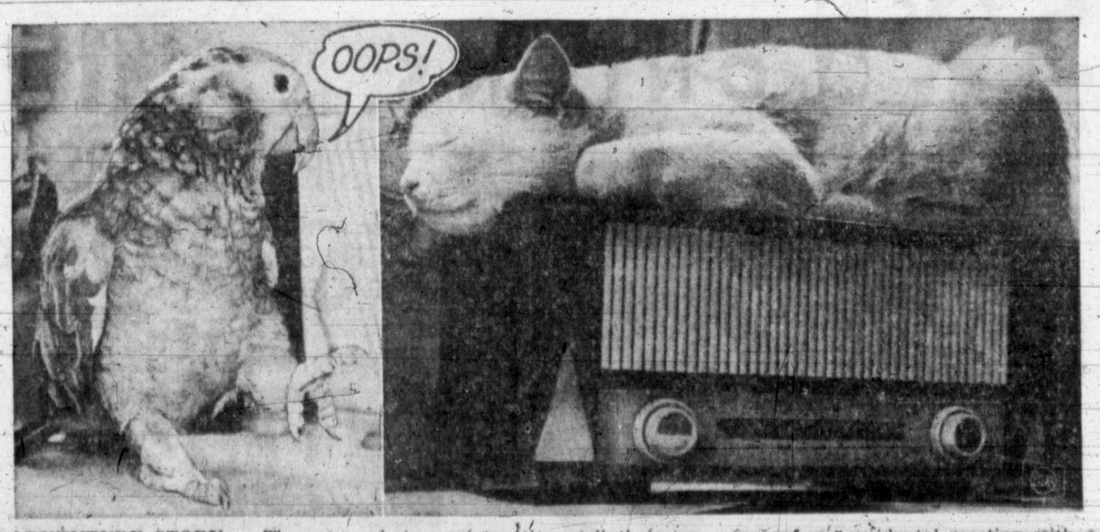

"Kay was able to look at him for about five minutes before she went back to sleep," said Mrs. Hommes. "She was very drowsy from the effects of sedatives and the spinal anesthetic."

Birth was by Caesarean section during which Mrs. Gable was able to watch. She was reported as saying when the boy was delivered:

"What a handsome boy. Just what Clark wanted."

Dr. Richard Clark described both Mrs. Gable's and the boy's conditions as good.

Sunny Weather Reigns In State; Snow Is Hailed

By United Press International

Sunny skies sent temperatures climbing over Texas today, the first full day of spring, while stockmen and ranchers in the northwest hailed winter's final onslaught as a "million-dollar" windfall.

The warmer weather was expected to clear the last of the snow out of the Panhandle and South Plains today. It piled up as much as a foot in some places over the weekend.

At daybreak today, skies were clear over the entire state with temperatures ranging between 31 degrees at Dalhart and Junction and 52 at Galveston.

For the most part, readings were generally chilly despite the clear skies, and a low pressure trough over the Panhandle was expected to increase surface winds over North Central and West Texas during the day. No rainfall was reported during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m.

Cattlemen said the heavy snow in the Panhandle-South Plains region was really a blessing in disguise.

While some cattlemen felt a pinch because of extra feeding while the snow covered the rangelands, they admitted it would assure lush pasturelands later.

Don D. Cowan of Panhandle said another advantage of the snow in normally-arid Northwest Texas was that it would help kill greenbugs which have been showing up in some young wheat, particularly in Gray, Armstrong and Carson counties.

"It's the best thing that could have happened," Cowan, agricultural agent for Carson County, said. "Some of the fields may still need spraying for greenbugs, but this is expected to reduce the bug population quite a bit."

Some scattered showers were forecast for the Panhandle for tonight and Wednesday, and in Southeastern Texas Wednesday.

Congo Issue Before UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was expected today to launch a new attack on United Nations policy in the Congo which many U.N. delegates feared would further hamstring efforts to resolve the crisis in the African republic.

Gromyko was listed as the first speaker before the General Assembly, meeting at Russian insistence to debate the Congo situation. The only other delegations to express a desire to speak today, were Brazil and Communist Czechoslovakia.

Most delegations outside the Soviet bloc have been reluctant to stir up the Congo issue until recent developments in the turbulent African nations have been clarified.

Girl Cage Star Not 8.2 Tall— Just Mere 6.10

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Charity Hospital said today it was not responsible for stories about a teen-age girl who was supposedly eight feet two inches tall.

Turned out the girl actually is only six-foot-ten.

It started when Delores Hullard, 14, a star forward on a Negro girl's basketball team, was sent to the hospital for treatment for a minor knee injury she received in a game.

Reporters talked to the girl and stated she was being examined by doctors at the hospital because she was so tall, perhaps the tallest girl in medical history.

"How tall are you, Delores," newsmen asked.

"Eight two," she replied. Kerne pointed out that newsmen got the information from the girl herself.

Instead of eight feet, two inches, Kerne said, an official measurement indicated that what the girl meant by "eight two" was 82 inches, or six feet, ten inches.

Wilson said that all programs of practical research for the farmers must "be backed-up with an effective program of Agricultural Extension.

Research is only valuable — and offers solutions to some of our pressing problems — when it can be presented to the farmers and ranchers in a way which will allow them to use the research, Wilson said. "For this reason, I support the Agricultural Extension Service as the most practical means of informing the farmers and ranchers of new developments."

The attorney general also said he favored a cost depletion allowance for water on irrigated farms, an increased quota for Texas sugar beets to be processed by U. S. sugar refineries, and a continued program of development for all natural resources and waterways.

Wilson flew from Pampa to Hereford and on to Amarillo where he will appear on a televised press conference with Panhandle newsmen tonight.

President Tells Solons Spending To Upset Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy told congressional leaders today that a forthcoming request for defense spending will throw his new budget out of balance.

The President said he would send to Congress Friday a balanced budget. But he said he would submit a special defense budget next week calling for greater funds, which would put the government in the red for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Kennedy discussed spending at his regular weekly meeting with the Democratic legislative chiefs. He also advised them that he will propose a tighter concentration of the foreign aid program which one leader said would reduce the waste and duplication.

Speaker Sam Rayburn told reporters after the meeting that the House is "going to pass something" to increase the federal minimum wage.

However, Rayburn said there is "quite a controversy" over whether the boost will be from $1 an hour to $1.25, as Kennedy has proposed, and he said the vote could go either way.

Master planning of Pampa in January of this year.

"This first report," Spivey said, "is more or less an inventory of the economic base and a projection of population growth into 1980 for the planning of outlying districts and the major thoroughfares and highways in and out of the city with top consideration to industrial and non - residential areas.

"We are making a land use survey and analysis of every lot in the city and the expected Pampa area in 1980."

Today's commission meeting was attended by the members of the Chamber of Commerce Highway Committee and representatives of the State Highway Department.

Coordination among city, state and county highway planners needed to carry out the overall highway plan for Pampa, Spivey said.

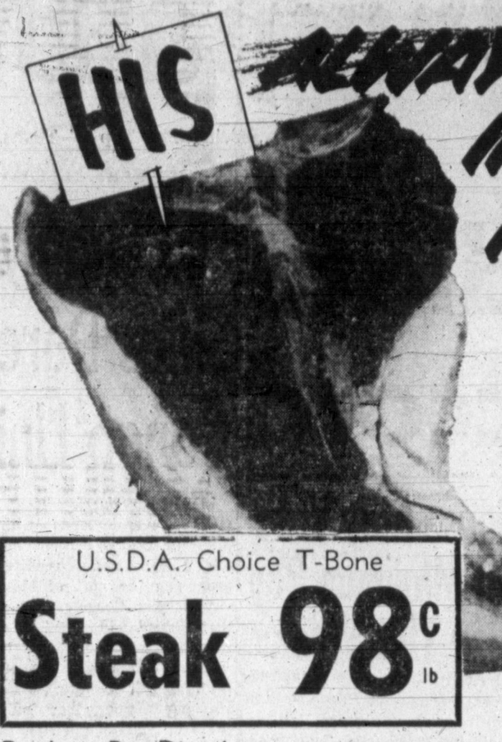

The planning engineer said today's report is only the first of ten to be made to city officials and the city commission.

Subsequent reports, Spivey said, will include land use and study plan, quality of housing, major thoroughfare plan, central business district plan, community facilities plan, capital improvement program, zoning plan, subdivision rules and regulations and a final report with a general sumation of the Pampa Master Plan.

Waco Policeman Shoots, Wounds Another Officer

WACO (UPI)—A policeman, who once suffered a brain injury and has dizzy spells, shot and seriously wounded another Waco patrolman Monday night while two other officers looked on.

Patrolman Hobart W. Howell, 48, went to investigate a disturbance call at the home of T. J. Richey, police said. Richey, also a policeman, was injured in an automobile accident about eight months ago and has been on sick leave since then.

Richey's son, David, 15, said his father had fired two shots into the air inside the house and he wanted help. Howell arrived at the home, followed a few minutes later by Police Sgt. J. D. Farley and Patrolman Virgil Ring.

The three officers went inside the house. Richey was sitting on the floor with a 38-caliber pistol. Farley asked Richey to hand over the pistol. Richey wouldn't.

All of a sudden Richey whipped the gun towards Howell and fired, police said. Howell was hit in the lower abdomen. The bullet pierced the spleen and lower intestines.

"I'm sorry, I'm sorry," Farley said Richey shouted after pulling the trigger.

Wanted Man Unwittedly Freed By Abilene Police

ABILENE (UPI)—Abilene police disclosed Monday night they had one of the nation's 10 most wanted criminals in jail without knowing it, and let him slip through their fingers.

But there wasn't too much to be embarassed about. He'd already done it twice before, once at Oklahoma City and another time at Tulsa.

"He gave us the name Gus Anderson," Capt. Floyd Isbell said. "He was in jail as a drunk, and when he paid his fine, we let him go. It wasn't until later when the FBI was making a routine check of fingerprints that it was discovered who he was."

The prisoner was Kenneth Eugene Cindle, 48, wanted on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for armed robbery at Wichita, Kan.

Cindle, from Hannah, Okla., was identified as one of two gunmen who walked into a Wichita restaurant on Oct. 12, 1959 with a sawed-off shotgun and fled with $236.

The gunman, with two fingers amputated, was put on the FBI's top 10 list on May 10, 1960.

"In view of his past record of crimes and violence, he should be considered armed and very dangerous," the FBI said.

Capt. Isbell said Cindle had been working as a cook in Abilene, but he has apparently fled the area now.

The FBI said that several days after the Wichita holdup Cindle was arrested by police in Tulsa for failing to register with them as an ex-convict, and was released before they learned he was wanted in Kansas.

Women's Jewish Council Opposes School Aid Plan

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The National Council of Jewish Women (NCJW) declared Monday night government aid to private schools "would undermine the very foundation of public education in the United States."

In a statement adopted at its five-day biennial convention, the NCJW urged Americans to rally to the support of the public schools, "the pride of our country."

The group said the public schools face the strongest challenge in 150 years, and declared proposals for federal aid to religious schools are based on the same reasoning as governmental aid to parents who do not wish to send their children to desegregated schools.

"There is no difference in these twin approaches," the NCJW said. "The public educational system has always been based on the concept that the state must provide for the education of children in government - sponsored schools, open to all."

Dear Abby...

Arguing Religion Is Socially Taboo!!

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have some friends (a married couple, our age) who invite us over for an evening and, as soon as we arrive, they will get out the Bible and start a fight. If it weren't for their forever trying to get us to change our religion to theirs, they would be the grandest people alive.

It so happens we are satisfied with our religion, and have no desire to change it. We enjoy a lively discussion of the various religious faiths, but they tell us our religion is full of contradictions and is based on myths, fables and superstitions. My husband says to ignore it, but I think our friendship should terminate. What do you think?

NOT READY FOR A CHANGE

DEAR NOT READY: Leave this couple alone for a "cooling off" period. If they sincerely miss your company they will ask, "What's the matter?" Then give it to them with both Testaments.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me in simple terms WHY, in most states, they use the father's name and the mother's MAIDEN name on a baby's birth certificate? There is nothing on it to indicate whether the parents are married. I don't get it.

SHOWING MY IGNORANCE

DEAR SHOWING: Since, in most states, ALL birth certificates show only the father's name and the mother's maiden name, those born illegitimately are protected against the humiliation of having the fact revealed on their birth certificates. Also, to state that the mother is "Mary Smith" and the father is "John Smith," does not adequately identify the mother. (John Smith may have had two wives named Mary.) To state that "Mary Jones" IS the mother and "John Smith" IS the father, more clearly identifies the mother.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's cousin is being married. He asked my husband to be best man. He also asked our 6-year-old daughter to be the flower girl. My husband said only those in the wedding party were invited to the dinner. That leaves me and the other five children out. When I asked him where we were supposed to eat, he said we should stay home. He is 26 and I am 25 and I think I have done my share of staying home since my marriage. My children are 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6. What is the solution?

LEFT OUT

DEAR LEFT: Your children aged 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 do not belong at a wedding dinner, so get a sitter and go with your husband. As the wife of the best man, and mother of the flower girl, I am sure you will be welcome.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FED-UP WIFE": If you are wise, you will encourage him to tell you his troubles. I know a man whose wife wouldn't listen to him, and 20 years later he had to pay someone $50 an hour to listen to his confessions.

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

RUTH MILLETT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Most full-time housewives today seem to share one bad fault. They constantly low-rate themselves.

Maybe it is because as wives and mothers they have come in for so much criticism in the last few years that they have so little confidence in their ability.

Maybe it is because they have used that phrase "just a housewife" so long that they have come to feel their job is no more important than the phrase makes it seem.

Maybe hearing all the time what an easy life they have makes them feel guilty for not accomplishing more than they do. . .however busy they seem to stay.

Maybe it is because combining a job and homemaking has become so common that full-time homemakers have become shy about giving themselves credit for doing just one job well.

More than likely it is a combination of all of these things that accounts for the full-time homemaker's obvious lack of satisfaction with the job she is doing.

The truth is that most full-time homemakers today deserve to be proud of themselves for the job they are doing.

Day in and day out they make more important decisions, handle more emergencies, turn out more work, and come more nearly being indispensable than any other group of women.

But instead of thinking of themselves as being important and of accomplishing important things they call themselves "just housewives". . .and constantly low-rate themselves.

What started me thinking about this was hearing a housewife the other day say without any false modesty "I'm so proud of myself." She had tackled and finished a hard job and she was so pleased with herself she didn't care who knew it. The pride in her voice had a cheerful, happy ring and suddenly I realized what was a rare thing it has become to hear a housewife give herself a well deserved pat on the back.

Pride in being a homemaker is one way to have a happy husband. For others, read Ruth Millett's booklet, "How to Have a Happy Husband." Just send 25 cents to Ruth Millett Reader Service, c-o (Pampa Daily News), P.O. Box 489, Dept. A Radio City Station, New York 19, N.Y.

University Group Reports Reading Poorly Taught In Nation's Schools

United Press International

Reading IS being taught poorly in many American schools. But the problem can't be solved by a return to the phonetic method of instruction.

That is the conclusion of a Harvard University study group which has just completed a year-long investigation of the nation's number one educational dilemma.

The Harvard group was headed by Dr. Mary C. Austin, president of the International Reading Association, and its study was financed by a Carnegie Corp. grant. The findings and recommendations were published Sunday in a paperback volume entitled "The Torch Lighters" (available at $1 per copy from Harvard University Press, Cambridge 38, Mass.).

Unlike some professional educators, who have tried to pooh-pooh the reading crisis in U.S. schools, Dr. Austin and her colleagues readily acknowledge that millions of children are not learning to read.

But they say it is the quality of teaching — not the method of teaching—that is to blame.

To improve the situation, they call for better screening of college students preparing for teaching careers, more emphasis on training future teachers specifically in reading instruction, and a thorough overhaul of the "practice teaching" system under which a student teacher gets actual classroom experience before graduation.

As Dean Francis Keppel of Harvard's Graduate School of Education notes in a foreword to the report, this is hardly a "dramatic" prescription. "But," Dr. Keppel adds "it has the great advantage of being sensible."

In recent years, many critics of U.S. education have argued that reading problems would disappear quickly if schools would abandon "modern" teaching methods and go back to the time-honored phonetic approach, based on the sounds of the letters of the alphabet.

The Harvard group rejects this argument. It is convinced that reading is best taught by modern methods, which rely primarily on visual clues to word recognition, with some supplementary use of phonetic analysis.

Radio Liberty Reaches Millions In USSR Despite Jamming Attempts

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch on Radio Liberty was written for UPI by J. Spencer Gray, editor and publisher of The Herald of Westchester, White Plains, N.Y., following an on-the-spot inspection.)

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Through the long hours of the night I watched the "couriers of democracy" relentlessly carrying on their tasks.

They are the newscasters, the special guests from a wide array of professions, the writers and the technicians who comprise Task Force Radio Liberty — as vital a force as any which fights for the West in the Cold War.

Twenty-four hours a day Radio Liberty is on the air, broadcasting to untold millions within the Soviet Union — the only contact for most Russians with the world of truth and fact.

From London, Paris, New Delhi, Rome, Tokyo, New York, Hong Kong and major news centers, the uncensored stories of international developments in all areas are beamed to every part of the Soviet Union.

Angered and embittered at the success of Radio Liberty in reaching within their borders, Soviet bosses have ordered their technicians to step up their efforts to jam the broadcasts from the West.

But technology and the laws of physics are on the side of the West, and despite the best efforts of the frustrated Communists, the truth gets through.

Is Radio Liberty worth the vast effort contributed by thousands of dedicated fighters for democracy?

There is clear evidence that Radio Liberty's audience has been increasing steadily ever since this privately - financed undertaking was launched March 1, 1953.

Letters spirited out of the Soviet Union under hazardous circumstances attest to the crucial role being played by the remarkable radio network.

I did not appreciate what a fabulous undertaking Radio Liberty really is until I spent several days observing its operations—from subsurface library to control tower top — at the Radio Liberty nerve-center, housed in an old airport building on the outskirts of Munich.

I watched with amazement as a long succession of specially trained technicians, researchers and broadcasters, as well as leaders in the worlds of statesmanship, scholarship and culture, worked at the controls and took their places before the Radio Liberty microphones in Munich to carefully direct the messages through the Iron Curtain into every section of the Soviet Union.

Radio Liberty broadcasts world news 332 times daily, with never a sign-off period, in 17 different languages, ranging from Byelorussian to Ukrainian to the non-Slavic languages, and on 19 different frequencies.

In addition, Radio Liberty gives persons of many professions and points of view an opportunity to make their views known inside the Soviet Union through interviews, talks, and discussion programs.

The words and voices of statesmen, labor leaders, writers, scientists and artists are regularly broadcast by Radio Liberty as part of its presentation of life outside the Soviet Union.

Among the guests have been Raymond Aron, Pearl Buck, the late Albert Camus, Roger Duchet, Hugh Gaitskel, Herbert Hoover, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Gregor Piatigorsky, Eleanor Roosevelt, Igor Sikorsky and Stephen Spender.

Interview subjects carried by Radio Liberty have ranged from entertainers Louis Armstrong and Yul Brynner, to pianist Van Cliburn, to American Sen. Hiram Fong of Hawaii, to philosopher Jacques Maritain.

Each of those interviewed has had an important purpose to serve: By bringing their thoughts and opinions to Radio Liberty listeners — many of whom are opinion - makers within the Soviet Union, they have helped maintain a free flow of information and ideas into the Communist nation.

No party or government is represented by Radio Liberty.

It does not urge its listeners to any course of disobedience or violence.

It merely suggests alternative ways of life and institutions which exist in other nations within the framework of democracy.

From its transmitters in Europe and on Formosa, Radio Liberty broadcasts a total of 252 hours daily.

No other radio network outside the USSR reaches all the major peoples of the Soviet Union in their own languages.

Moreover, Radio Liberty speaks with an authentic voice. Half of its broadcasting staff is made up of men and women who have themselves fled Soviet oppression. They understand conditions within the Communist police state, they know the fears and aspirations of their fellow countrymen.

Besides Soviet emigre writers, poets, economists, historians, scientists and former military personnel, the Radio Liberty staff includes people of 19 nationalities from all over the world.

The emigre staff is a veritable "Who's Who" of former Soviet officials, professional men and cultural leaders — Razhden Arsenidze, former minister of justice in Georgia; Ivan Bahrianyi, Ukrainian author; George Denicke, formerly a professor at the University of Moscow; Prof. George V. Stackleberg, a leading orientalist; Boris Zaitseff, former chairman of the Union of Moscow Writers; and Veli Zunnun, former news director for Tashkent Radio.

The Soviet government has about five times as many jamming stations on Radio Liberty frequencies as Radio Liberty has transmitters to send out its programs.

But jamming is largely overcome by directional aerials, plus the fact the characteristics of shortwave propagation make it impossible to drown out freedom's voice completely. In fact, the reception in most areas to which Radio Liberty broadcasts is good.

Numerous prominent Americans are among those who lend financial and other support to Radio Liberty.

The American Committee for Liberation, (ACL), which sponsors Radio Liberty, is headed by Howland H. Sargeant, former U.S. assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

Trustees of the ACL include Reginald T. Townsend; Mrs. Oscar Ahlgren, former president of the American Federation of Women's Clubs; H. J. Heinz II; "The Russian Revolution;" J. Peter Grace Jr.; Henry V. Poor; Dr. John W. Studebacker; former Gov. Charles Edison of New Jersey; Alen Grover, vice president of Time, Inc., and Whitney N. Seymor, president of the American Bar Association.

NOSE FOR NEWS—National Aeronautics and Space Administration pilot Neil Armstrong shows the new "hot nose" developed for the X-15 research rocket plane. It replaces the needle nose used in earlier flights and aids the pilot during critical phases of faster-than-sound flight. The "hot nose" senses the X-15's angle of attack as it leaves and enters the heavy part of the atmosphere where intense frictional heat can build up.

Specialist Offers Tips On Making Profit In Quick Sale Of Home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Planning to sell your house?

Some specific tips on how to go about it to obtain a fair profit and a fairly quick sale are offered by an expert, West Gatwood, housing specialist for Allied Chemical Corporation's Barrett Division.

"People, especially homebuyers," Gatewood says, "seem to be suspicious by nature, so it is worthwhile for a seller to correct minor deficiencies before putting his house on the market.

He suggests:

—Check all doors for loose knobs peeling or blistered, scrape it and touch it up. A suspicious prospect can see one bad area and base his whole impression on that. If a repainting is in order, having it done may help sell the house at a fair price.

Keep lawn cut and raked to improve general appearance of property.

Check all doors for loose knobs and squeaky hinges. Check plumbing for leaky faucets, and take care of minor repairs such as cracked window panes because a prospective buyer often magnifies theses small defects.

—Repair loose or creaking steps. They discourage a prospective buyer.

—Check the condition of the roof. Have any leaks repaired. If the roof is in really poor condition, it might prove worthwhile to have it resurfaced.

—Plumbing, heating and electrical systems should be inspected and in good order. Minor, easily corrected defects here may cast doubt on the entire system.

Have all vital facts and figures about the house readily available. Know the age of the house, exact taxes, property boundaries, fuel costs, assessments, date of major replacement or repairs, a list of equipment which will go with the house.

—Have, too, a list of the home's "hidden pluses" such as insulation, brass or copper water pipes, adequate electrical current, abundant storage, play space, availability of shopping centers, schools, public transportation and recreation areas.

—Sellers usually don't have to concern themselves too much with interior decoration such as wallpaper and color combinations because, of course, these are a matter of personal taste. However, they should be in good repair and the house generally should have a well - kept appearance which indicates its owners are people who "care."

—Keep in mind that kitchen areas are of particular interest to women and if yours is a bit dingy, due for a new face, a fresh coat of point might be a good idea. Ample lighting facilities and an adequate number of electrical outlets for appliances can help make a sale.

—If a house has a fireplace, utilize its cheery effect on a chilly day. In warm weather, make use of an inviting patio or garden. Capitalize on any of the other good features that enhance the comfort and livability of the home.

A final word of advice from Gatewood. In showing the house, allow the prospective buyers the privacy of discussion. Don't follow on their heels every minute.

Church Has Animated TV Series To Explain God To The Children

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new king of religious television program — aimed at children who've never been to Sunday school — is being launched in major cities across the nation.

The program, entitled "Davey and Goliath," was professionally produced in Hollywood, with the United Lutheran Church picking up the tab. The first 13 programs of a planned 26-week series already have been released, and the second 13 programs now are in production. Ultimately, they will be shown over more than 200 television stations.

Network TV officials are highly enthusiastic about the 15-minute color-animated programs. Edward L. Stanley of NBC said they are "the only religious films for young people that come anywhere near their objective."

The objective of the "Davey and Goliath" series is to show boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 10 "what God is like."

Richard T. Sutcliffe, associate director of the United Lutheran Press, Radio and Television Department, said the series is intended primarily for the millions of children who don't go to Sunday school and who never hear God's name spoken except in basphemy.

"We have taken various facets of God and tried to dramatize each in a way that children can understand," Sutcliffe explained "for instance, our series included episodes which emphazise the God who cares, the dependable God, the forgiving God, and the God who provides."

"How do you tell a kid that God cares for him? We use a series of parables — a device Jesus used in order to speak to all depths of understanding."

The main characters are Davey, a small boy, and his oversized dog, Goliath. They are involved in a series of adventures such as might happen to real children — for example, getting lost in a cave because they disobeyed instructions to stay away from it.

Davey and Goliath are animated wire-and-rubber figures about seven inches high. The series was shot by animator Art Clokey in Hollywood, at a cost of more than $400,000.

Woldt Sees White After Snow Invades

Sports bits from here and there while wondering why Pampa High doesn't have a hockey team to play on the days when the baseball team is snowed out . . .

If the bad weather continues, Coach Deck Woldt may send his Harvester baseballers into District 3-4A play — which begins a week from today — with the least game experience in a long time.

Today's game in Elk City, in all probability, will be called off due to similar snowy conditions there. If so, that will make four games in less than a week that have been weathered out.

Woldt, who had hoped to see all his pitchers in action by today, now faces the grim possibility that none will be fully tested by March 28 when the Harvesters open 3-4A play against Amarillo's Sandies in Amarillo.

The most any hurler on the six-man Pampa staff has worked is three innings; and that is certainly no indication that a hurler could go the whole seven.

"This is really disgusting," Woldt said yesterday as he discussed the snowy plight of affairs. "It may be Thursday before the field dries out, which will give us less than five days to get ready for Amarillo."

Pampa has games scheduled with Hereford Friday and Dumas in a doubleheader Saturday, and Woldt can only hope that he can play at least these three before the run for the roses begins.

The plight of canceled games is not unfamiliar to this section of Texas. The whole weekend slate was wiped out from Plainview north, with Lubbock Monterey the only team playing last weekend. Borger, which was scheduled to open Friday, still has yet to throw its first game ball.

There seems to be no easy solution to the weathered-out games, although most coaches agree that trying to play baseball games in March is about as simple as trying to get toothpaste back in the tube.

The only solution Woldt sees is setting up the schedule later, possibly beginning in early May and playing through June. This, of course, would create problems of another order, such as eligibility—players would have graduated from high school by the time the season really got underway; another problem would be the over-lapping into the junior baseball programs (American Legion, etc.) in various towns; and the fact that many boys work during the summer.

Woldt feels the answer to the last problem would be the playing of night games in the month of June, thus allowing the boy to work during the day and play at night.

However, it is almost impossible to change the present setup, like it or not, because the state playoffs are set up for the first weekend in June, and the whole state is not going to change its plans just so the Panhandle area can play a few more games.

Until the weather does clear up—along with the field—Woldt plans to work his Harvesters out in the high school gym, although the limited confines will permit throwing only. It is not particularly the idyllic setup, but then, it's better than nothing.

Terry Culley, Harvester basket ball coach, and his wife motored to Lawrence, Kan., over the weekend to watch the NCAA regionals where two Pampa boys were playing.

The pair, Bobby Gindorf of Texas Tech and Bill Brown of the University of Houston, played against each other in the consolation game (Tech won, 69-67). In conversation after the game, Culley learned that Mack Layne, another former Harvester, is now at Houston after transferring from ACC and would become eligible at mid-term next year.

Culley and wife also attended church at Olympia, Kan., 20 miles out of Kansas City, Sunday morning. The pastorship of the church belongs to Jimmy Bond, the ex-Pampa great who is to be the principal speaker here tonight at the annual basketball banquet.

Culley ran into Bond at the regional tournament when — in the midst of 18,000 people — Bond happened to sit within a popcorn box throw of the Culleys. Culley said Bond was really looking forward to speaking at tonight's fete and would arrive by plane in Amarillo late this afternoon.

Braves Plug Infield Gaps, Find Bigger One In Outfield

(EDITORS NOTE: This is the second of 18 dispatches on the 1961 prospects of the major league teams).

By LEO H. PETTERSEN

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI)—The Milwaukee Braves have solved the problem which cost them the National League pennant last year and in so doing have created another problem which may cost them the pennant this year.

They have, it appears, robbed Peter to pay Paul.

Because manager Charley Dressen and general manager Johnny McHale blamed their second place finish of 1960 on defensive and offensive weaknesses at second base and short, they went out and cornered the market for those positions. But to do it they had to give up one of the top center fielders in the game, Billy Bruton, and two second line pitchers with starting potentialities, Joey Jay and Juan Pizarro.

Dressen points out they would not have made the deals if they were not convinced they could plug the outfield and pitching gaps. He professes not to be worried, claiming that any club which beats the Braves will win the pennant. He doesn't think that is going to happen, though.

McHale, on the other hand, frankly admits that he is "worried about our pitching situation." He feels he can remedy the situation, if necessary, by putting some of his extra second basemen and shortstops on the market.

Except for two outfielders and some second line and relief pitching spots the Braves are all set.

The infield will have big Joe Adcock at first base; Frank Bolling, the ex-Tiger at second; Roy McMillan, the ex-Red, at short, and the hard-hitting Eddie Mathews at third.

Bolling and McMillan were the key players in the deals the Braves made to solve their infield problems.

They did not stop there, however. They also picked up second basemen Billy Martin from the Reds and shortstop Andre Rodgers from the Giants. Also available are three holdovers — shortstop Johnny Logan and second basemen Mel Roach and Felix Mantilla.

Mantilla also can play the outfield and is one of the leading candidates for Bruton's old center field post.

Hank Aaron, always a good bet to win the batting, home run and runs batting in championship, is the only outfield certainty. He can play right or center, but prefers right. However, he will be shifted to center if none of the flock of candidates Dressen has for that berth makes the grade.

Right now the leading candidate is Mack Jones, who is not even on the roster. He hit .309 at Louisville last season and Dressen says he can do the job with his glove. It's a question of whether major league pitching may be too good for him.

Al Spangler, another good glove man with a .267 batting average with the Braves last season; John Demerit, the bonus outfielder who can get 'em in the field but is light with the bat as his .270 average at Louisville last season testifies, and Mantilla are the other candidates.

If Aaron stays in right, that would leave Wes Covington, who slumped to a .249 average last year, and Lee Maye, who batted .337 at Louisville and .301 with the Braves at the tail-end of the season, for left field.

Dressen also is giving Roach a chance at an outfield berth. The quantity is there, but whether there is quality outside of Aaron remains to be seen.

The seemingly ageless Warren Spahn, who will be 40 in April, again will anchor the pitching staff, with Lew Burdette, also getting along in years, and Bob Buhl the other hurlers sure of starting jobs.

Spahn, who needs only a dozen victories to reach the 300 game winning circle, won 21 games last season — the 11th time he has won 20 or more games in a season.

Burdette, who will be 35 in November, won 19 and Buhl 16.

Carlton Willey (6-7) probably will be the fourth regular starter. Two rookies, Ken MacKenzie, 8-5 at Louisville, and Don Nottebart, 13-5 with Louisville, are also candidates for starting roles. So is Charles Hendley, a 16-game winner at Louisville who isn't on the Braves roster but will be moved up if he continues to show as well as he has thus far this spring.

Dayton, Temple Battle In NIT

Fliers Seek First Title In Tourney

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Dayton, with a "bridesmaid but never a bride" reputation in the National Invitation Tournament, starts its annual drive for the elusive championship tonight against upset-minded Temple.

Niagara meets Providence in the other half of the quarter-final double-header at Madison Square Garden, regarded as a tossup. St. Louis and Holy Cross advanced into the semifinals on Saturday and await the outcome of tonight's contests.

The Dayton - Temple survivor plays the Billikens and the Niagara-Providence winner takes on the Crusaders on Thursday.

Both Tom Blackburn of Dayton and Taps Gallagher of Niagara, coaches of the remaining seeded teams, are worried over injuries to key players. The Flyers, five times a runnerup in the NIT, may be without the services of Bill Cramsey, who suffered a hairline fracture of the right elbow about three weeks ago.

One of Gallagher's jumping jacks, 6-4 Joe Maddrey, may be out of action because of knee and shoulder injuries.

MILLIONS TUNE IN

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Broadcasting Company's radio presentation of the Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title bout March 13 was heard by 62½ million people, according to an estimate made Monday by ABC vice president Robert R. Pauley. Pauley said the only larger audiences were for some of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's World War II speeches.

Present, Past To Be Honored

Cage Banquet Unfurls Tonight

Both the present and past will be honored at 7:30 p.m. tonight when the annual Harvester basketball banquet unfolds at the Coronado Inn's Starlight Room.

The present honorees are members of the 1960-61 Harvester basketball team which posted an 11-6 mark this season and finished in a tie for sixth place with a 4-10 record.

The past will be taken care of by Jimmy Bond, who led Pampa to its first two state titles in 1953 and 1954, and other members of those two squads.

Bond, now studying for his doctor of divinity degree in Kansas City, Mo., still holds most of the Harvester scoring records. A high school All-American in 1954, Bond was also one of the few cagers to make all-district three times and all-state twice.

Other highlights of the night will include the presentation of the "Hustling Harvester" award and the crowning of the 1960-61 basketball sweetheart.

Approximately 275 are expected for the banquet, sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce sports committee.

Paul Gallemore, chairman of the committee, will be master of ceremonies for the fete. Dr. E. Douglas Carver of the First Baptist Church will give the invocation.

Dinner music will be provided by Maxine Milliron. Joe Fischer will introduce the guests and Coach Terry Culley will introduce his players and the other coaches and will also present the "Hustling Harvester" award.

Joe Whitten, director of music at the First Baptist Church will provide special entertainment and Mrs. Mabel Torvie will direct the crowning of the basketball queen.

Warren Hasse will introduce Bond and the program will be concluded by the school song led by the PHS cheerleaders.

Some Tip

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, golf's 1960 all-time top money winner, tipped his caddie $1,500 after winning the 1960 U.S. Open at the Cherry Hills Country Club.

PHS Game Canceled

Pampa's Harvesters are still waiting to play their second game of the year today after today's scheduled game in Elk City was canceled due to wet grounds.

Coach Deck Woldt said that the game might be rescheduled tomorrow or Thursday should ground conditions clear up. Pampa already has games scheduled Friday and Saturday with Hereford and Dumas.

The Harvesters open District 3-4A play Tuesday in Amarillo.

AAU Tourney Action Heats

DENVER (UPI) — Five games today wind up the first round of the 54th national AAU basketball tournament, which opened in the Denver Coliseum Monday night with a pair of high-scoring, no-defense contests.

The Stevenson Roofers of Topeka, Kan., led by Big Eight Conference stars Bill Bridges of Kansas University and Cedric Price of Kansas State, beat Old South ern Foods of Jacksonville, Fla., 101-83, and the Cheyenne Merchants defeated the Navy All-Stars, 98-83, in the opening games.

The winners, plus Clarkson Realty of Des Moines, Iowa, advanced to Tuesday's second round. Clarkson won by forfeit because the Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters failed to show up.

The Stevenson Roofers meet the Phillips 66 Oilers of Bartlesville, Okla.; Cheyenne plays the New York Tuck Tapers, and Clarkson Realty will clash with the Akron Goodyears. The Oilers, Tapers and Goodyears are members of the National Basketball League who drew first round byes.

The top-seeded teams of the tournament, the Cleveland Pipers and the Denver D-C truckers, the No. 1 and 2 clubs in the NBL, meet first round winners from today's schedule in the second round.

Bridges and Price scored 34 and 21 points, respectively, in leading the Topeka team past the Jacksonville club. Their showing established the Roofers as a strong "outside" contender for the AAU championship won in 10 of the past 13 seasons by the NBL, formerly the National Industrial Basketball League.

LA Wants Catcher In Return

Yanks Seek Snider To Bolster Bench

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Veteran Duke Snider of the Los Angeles Dodgers is the man the New York Yankees are after to rebuild the bench that was broken up by the player pool for the American League's two new clubs.

A Yankee spokesman has been talking with Dodger general manager Buzzy Bavasi about the 34-year-old outfielder as a follow-up to discussions about Snider which were held during the winter baseball meetings in St. Louis last December.

The Dodgers want catching help in return and the Yanks are well-stocked in that department. Since the inter - league trading period isn't in effect now, any deal between the two clubs would have to be made via the purchase or waiver route.

Bavasi is in no particular hurry to get rid of Snider, who looks in excellent trim at 195 pounds, the lowest he has been in 12 years, and feels he can start 125 to 130 games this year.

"Buzzy never told me definitely that I wouldn't go to another club," said Snider, who tailed off to .243 last season but still managed to hit 14 homers in 101 games. "What he did say at the time I signed my contract was that he would not trade me unless he was certain that it would benefit the ball club."

Snider would just as soon finish his career with the Dodgers, whom he first reported to in 1947.

NY Racing Fans Flood Track As Spring Comes

By United Press International

New York's racing season came with spring Monday and 44,119 horse players sprung for $3,619,031 in wagers at Aqueduct's big opening.

The crowd was the largest in New York for an opener since 1950 and the handle topped last year's opening day record mark by $424,942.

But the majority of the crowd must have went minus a few dollars since only one favorite on the nine race program managed to win — Hildy's Lou in the third.

In the featured $28,300 Swift Stakes for 3-year-olds Merry Ruler grabbed an early lead and held off six challengers in the stretch to win by a neck. Stan The Man, an 18-1 longshot, closed with a rush to earn place money, 2½ lengths in front of the 3-2 favorite, Globemaster.

The time of the six-furlong event was 1:12 3-5. Merry Ruler, a gray colt by Grey Sovereign, paid $9.50 for $2. and earned owner Henry Frelinghuysen $18,525. Roy Gilbert was the winning jockey.

The victory was the second in two starts this year for Merry Ruler, fresh from a triumph at Hialeah Park.

At Gulfstream Park, John Sellers scored with Brookfield Farm's In Thee for a $7.30 payoff in the featured seven-furlong event. Battle Neck ran second, 2½ lengths further back and Little Tytus was third.

Walt Blum shared some of the honors, booting home three winners. The Booklyn-born rider won aboard three long shots—Hash Again, Fundamental and Golden One.

Restless Cloud paid $5.60 in winning the six furlong Prince George's prep at Bowie Race track, defeating Duck Hill by more than a length. Affectionate ran third. Bobby Corle rode the winner.

Road-Jinxed Lakers Meet Hawks In NBA

By United Press International

The Boston Celtics and the St. Louis Hawks—perennial kingpins in their respective divisions of the National Basketball Association—resume defense of their titles tonight.

Boston looks to take a 2-0 advantage over the Syracuse Nationals at Syracuse in the Eastern Division final playoffs while the Hawks and the Los Angeles Lakers begin their Western Division playoff battle. Both series are best-of-seven, with the two winners meeting for the NBA championship, also a best-of-seven series.

The power - packed Celtics, whose second team almost equals their first, won the opening game over the weary Nats, 128-115, only 15 hours after Syracuse eliminated the Philadelphia Warriors, three games to none.

St. Louis, well - rested while waiting for Los Angeles and Detroit to finish their semifinal round, is at home for the first two games against the Lakers. Los Angeles may find the road a disadvantage, having won their three playoff games from the Pistons at home while losing two contests at Detroit.

NHL Teams Eye Stanley

MONTREAL (UPI) — The record-minded Montreal Canadiens, seeking an unparalleled sixth consecutive Stanley Cup championship, tonight open their best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal series against the Chicago Black Hawks.

The Canadiens, their fourth straight league title safely in the trophy case, meet the third-place Black Hawks in the semifinals for the third year in a row.

The oddsmakers are convinced the flying Frenchmen would make it to the finals for the 11th consecutive year. They quoted the Canadiens 1½ goal favorites to win the opening game, 3½ to 1 to win the semifinal series and 2 to 1 choices to win Lord Stanley's battered bowl once again.

'Hat Trick'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper each scored a golfing "hat trick" in 1960 — winning three consecutive tournaments.

Perry Blanks SF On Four Hits

Indians Scalp Giants

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

Managers Jimmy Dykes of the Cleveland Indians and Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees will be plenty happy this year if all their decisions are as simple as finding their opening-day pitchers.

The pennant races don't begin for another four weeks but Dykes can practically name Jimmy Perry today while Houk is leaning strongly toward Jim Coates.

Perry, who won 18 games for the Indians to tie Chuck Estrada for most victories in the AL, turned in six sparkling innings Monday as the Indians scored a 12-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants. Coates, who won his first nine games and finished with a 13-3 record last season, went seven innings in the Yankees' 11-8 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Perry blanked the Giants on four hits and now has allowed them only five hits and no runs in nine innings of exhibition pitching. Woody Held, Tito Francona and rookie Hal Jones hit homers to lead an attack which brought the Indians their fifth win in eight exhibition games. The loss was the sixth in 10 games for the Giants.

Coates held the Dodgers to six hits and three runs during his seven-inning tour as the Yankees snapped a four-game losing streak and scored their second triumph in 10 games. Mickey Mantle led the Yankees' 13-hit attack with a homer, double and single and Hector Lopez and Cletis Boyer had triples. Rookie Willie Davis had a homer and triple for the Dodgers.

Stan Musial showed some of that old form with a single, double and triple and Bill White had two doubles and two singles to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 14-5 rout of the Cincinnati Reds. Ernie Broglio and Ray Sadecki limited the Reds to nine hits, including two triples and a single by Vada Pinson who raised his spring average to .441.

The Baltimore Orioles shaded the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-6, the Boston Red Sox edged out the Los Angeles Angels, 8-7, and the Kansas City A's beat the Washington Senators, 4-3, in Monday's other games.

Pro Stars Spark ABC

DETROIT (UPI) —The Munsingwears of Chicago, considered one of the nation's outstanding teams and boasting such stars as Buddy Bomar, Johnny King, Bill Bunetta and Carmen Salvino, invade the American Bowling Congress tournament tonight.

The Chicago club will be trying to oust the present Classic Division leader, the Continental Plastics of Roseville, Mich., and their 5903 total.

To Study Individualism

The philosophy of individualism, sometimes called the libertarian philosophy, rests upon a chain of conclusions drawn from nature.

Nature provides us with facts which facts are obtained by scientific investigation. The individualist or the libertarian student rests his case upon these facts and upon the inescapable conclusions to be drawn from them.

Here is where the problem arises in trying to convey ideas respecting this philosophy. Many people today do not want to use their minds to arrive at conclusions. Rather, they want others to tell them what to think or what to believe.

We have this experience almost constantly. We are confronted: "Tell us the answer to this problem.' "Give us the conclusion to this line of reasoning." "Tell us what we can DO!"

But conclusions recited by someone else can provide no logical train of thought for the inquirer. The only valid answer to any question which anyone can attain is the answer he THINKS THROUGH FOR HIMSELF. To have someone else do his thinking and his answering for him is the very antithesis of individualism and of liberty expressed.

This is undoubtedly where a number of persons find our philosophy difficult of understanding. They fondly expect us to come forward in such a way as to make everything easy and simple and readily acceptable.

Alas, we cannot.

Even if we could, we must not.

For to do so, if we could, would be to deprive the individual of his own independent exploration, rationale and final conclusion.

Curiously, however, we have had this experience time and again. Individuals who finally grasp that they must do their own thinking and are willing to begin the process, take the ultimate givens resting upon the scientifically acquired knowledge. From there they proceed in the only logically inferential way they can proceed.

And to the growing amazement of themselves, they arrive finally at the same identical position at which others who have preceded them have arrived.

This is the great joy (and problem) of the individualist line of reasoning. By virtue of its practice the individualist receives assurances all along the line of his own thought processes. And when he does arive at conclusions which are identical to those attained by others taking the same route, he finds himself filled with the joy of knowing that there must be great truths within the framework of this philosophy since so many are able independently to come to the same conclusions.

The principal obstacle to the acceptance of the libertarian approach lies in the unwillingness of a person, or perchance his own feelings of doubt respecting his mental ability, to perform the necessary mental functions. Once he has enough confidence to assay the intellectual journey and has overcome his unwillingness to undertake the chore, his rewards are boundless.

Without a doubt, our problem of writing about liberty and about individualism is related to this particular and necessary function of the individual mind of the seeker. Because of the intrinsic nature of the philosophy, certain principles and facts must rest firmly implanted in the mind of the reader before he begins his reading.

These facts and these principles have been enunciated here dozens of times.

But the reader must retain them in his mind and use them as he continues to pursue truth. Thus, in reading what we write, it is inevitable that the occasional scanner of these columns will feel that he has entered upon the middle of an argument. We cannot begin every day at the same point of beginning.

And the various lines of thought which substantiate and in the end prove the validity of the individualists' position, appear to be a gridwork of crossing and countercrossing chains of conclusions.

Unless one is seriously studying these issues and lines of thought, an isolated item will appear baffling. But we know of no way to make it less baffling and at the same time remain true to the principles we try to make a part of our lives.

Take-The-Wealth Thinking

We are morally certain that one of the principal reasons why people cannot seem to grasp the danger and the evil in socialism relates to their inability or unwillingness to view each act of the socialist process as a separate and distinct act.

Few people view with favor the constant rise in prices and the constant increase in the taxes they pay. But they apparently find it difficult to view these things within the framework of reference that applies.

They look about them and find their government in process of providing schools, roads, sewers, policemen, airports, and hurdreds of other things. They consider that they are better off with these things than without them. It does not occur to them that others than government can provide them.

They simply lump together the taking of taxes with the providing of these various goods or services. Hence, they conclude that the end justifies the means.

If, as is true now, the taking process begins to impair their ability to make both ends meet, they begin to look at government and to complain of the MANNER in which the loot is spent. They do not see it as loot. They see it as the proper payment of money to government in return for which they are getting many things they believe they want.

Thus, when they begin to complain, they complain not against the taking, which is what bothers them, but against the way the money is handled or spent.

"We want efficient government" they cry. "There is too much waste and inefficiency. We want MORE services and MORE things from government. But we want these things without paying any more money."

It is deemed by many that this is the appropriate way to tell the government to reduce taxes. Actually, it falls far short of what is needed.

So long as people are clamoring for more government goods and more government services and more government intervention, the ears of the politicians are wide open and government hastens to do the public bidding.

Thus, when new bond issues are proposed or new services envisaged, the politicians can paint glorious pictures of how fine everything will be if only these things are provided. Millions of people are gullible at this area of their lives.

Such people are guilty of lump thinking. They view the taking and the spending as two parts of the same action. They justify the looting because they feel that the goodies returned make it all worth while.

And when they find that what they are getting back isn't as valuable as what they are paying in, they demand MORE from the government.

If people ever really do get to the place where they wish taxes to be reduced, they are going to have to object to the taxing, not to the way the tax loot is spent. For it is the taxing, which is forceful taking of the wealth and money of others, that is immoral. After the fact of plunder, how the money is spent is a secondary act which has no necessary or precise relationship to the prior action.

Spending money is not immoral. Taking money that does not belong to the taker, even tho it is taken by legal fiat under the duress of taxation, is. Indicative of what we mean is this statement from the December issue of "Nation's Business":

"Individual income tax rates today are roughly as high as they were during World War II. Income taxes on corporations are even higher, except for the excess profits tax. These have not been reduced since the Korean emergency.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — It being no news that Miss Lucille Ball is a wildcat in "Wildcat," her new Broadway musical which she carries all by herself on expert shoulders, let us turn to a young woman who does virtually nothing at all except limp until the final curtain is on its way down—then she dances. Besides that, she has a high school degree in Stable Management. You don't find many girls with one of those these days.

I have to say with what may seem loutish candor that I sat there at Opening Night of "Wildcat" and did not work up any discernible lather over Miss Paula Stewart, except vaguely to think that she was an attractive young blonde in a sea of attractive young blondes and that she had achieved just about as efficient a counterfeit limp as the last one I saw in a summer theater version of "The Glass Menagerie" in a converted wastebasket in Fennel Ida. I knew as sure as shucks she'd get over it before the show ended and, therefore, pretty much put her out of my mind until the intermission, when a shaved gent in sparkling dinner clothes (someone had dropped some sequins on him from an evening wrap) was overheard to say: "Well, she did earn her degree in Stable Management. High school degree, that is."

After that I couldn't take my eyes off Paula Stewart.

We met, later in a shadowed snug operated by an Irish publican and she confessed that stable management was only one of her conquests of learning.

"You have a dossier with you?" I asked.

"No, but I can recite it," she said. "I fly my own plane, decorated my own apartment so well that thus far three professional decorators have stolen my ideas, and I make my own clothes, on a dress-form, adjusted to 36-23-35, in case you are keeping score."

"No, no, I wasn't," I said hastily, "but it's handy information. Now about the plane. . ."

"Little job. Piper. But it's mine and I fly it. About the dress-form. It's easier than fitting things on myself and having suddenly to pin material in an inaccessible location. A girl can dislocate a shoulder or twist a disc trying that, I can sing, as proved in several shows, and I can dance, and what else did you want to know?"

"You wanted to be an actress ever since you were 3 years old and recited "Beowulf" for the Lake Shore High IQ Tots Turnverein."

"I certainly did not," she flared "I wanted to be a doctor. A doctor — not a nurse. Any little girl can hone to be a nurse. Well, what stopped me? Grease- paint. I was in pre-med at Northwestern, determined to be like my father, a Chicago physician and surgeon. I got into the Varsity show and that was that. End of dreams. Beginning of struggle."

"The airplane bit?"

"My father could fly. He had his own plane and nerves of steel. He didn't cry out, protest or yell havoc when his 15-year-old daughter said she would take flying lessons. He just said 'Sure, Paula. Sure.' So I did. I got my pilot's license in the regular way. Do you know any other way?"

Of course, I didn't. There is only one way to learn to fly. You learn to fly.

"Now, Miss Stewart, let us get down to nubs. This thing I overheard about you and stable management. It seems a bizarre accomplishment and I didn't know you could get a degree in it. A degree of hard work and stale odors, maybe, but not a shining intellectual degree. After all, you don't need books to curry a horse. You need a currycomb."

"I was at this private school in Chicago and among the courses was one in stable management. It fascinated me as an idea. Obviously, it fascinates you or you wouldn't pressure the bit. So I took it and learned it and got a document that qualified me to serve as a groom in any livery stable in the Great Lakes area. It's invalid east of Gary, Ind."

"I don't think there are any livery stables east of Gary, Indiana," I said, "so the matter is moot and academic."

"But it's a handy profession to have," he said. "You never know when you'll meet a horse."

I still think she didn't finish her sentence.

"Meanwhile, we've shifted from war uses of these taxes to a larger proportion of welfare uses. While defense spending today is approximately the same as it was seven years ago, all other categories of federal spending programs have nearly doubled. We've switched wartime taxes from wartime uses to welfare-state programs."

As tho that made any difference! It isn't the way the loot is squandered that truly matters, it is the manner and the method of amassing the loot. The socialist dragon must be confronted at its TAKE-THE-WEALTH core. Share-the - wealth which follows, is merely political bribery.

Italian fliers were first to use bombs dropped from planes dropping cans filled with nitroglycerine over Tripoli in 1912.

Allen - Scott Report:

Power Grab for Peace Corps, Other Agencies Seeks 'One Roof' Concentration; Led by '3 B's'

ROBERT S. ALLEN — PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Those headaches predicted for the widely hailed Peace Corps already are beginning to crop up, and surprisingly right inside President Kennedy's inner councils.

It's that old Washington story all over again — bureaucratic empire building.

Even before the Peace Corps proposal has been submitted to Congress and officially authorized, State Department brass hats are busily endeavoring to get it under their control.

Also included in this ambitious power grab are — the Food-for-Peace plan, Export-Import Bank, Development Loan Fund, and the Antarctic Projects Office.

Avowed purpose of this grandiose scheme, according to its State Department champions, is to "concentrate now-independent foreign economic aid and loan agencies under one roof," and thus greatly improve their effectiveness and results by eliminating much confusion and policy clashes."

Spearheading this backstage drive are the "three B's," as they have come to be known in inner circles — Undersecretary Chester Bowles; George Ball, Undersecretary for Economic Affairs; and McGeorge Bundy, special assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

Leading the opposition are R. Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps director and the President's brother-in-law; and George McGovern, Food-for-Peace Administrator and former Representative from South Dakota.

So heated is this row that both sides were summoned to the White House to present their positions before the President himself.

No words were minced in this showdown, particularly by Shriver and McGovern.

They made no bones they consider the State Department group bent on empire building, and bluntly advised the President to beware of it.

After listening closely to the sharp discussion, the President made no decision.

Instead, he said he would confer with each official personally before making up his mind.

That's the way this far-reaching matter now stand.

PULLING NO PUNCHES — Peace Corps Director Shriver, who blocked a State Department attempt to grab his project when it was first launched, waded right in against this latest move.

"The Peace Corps is a shining symbol to our country and the free world," the President's brother-in-law told him, "and the appeal and significance of this symbol is going to be lost if it is submerged in the multitudinous layers of the State Department. And that is exactly what will happen if the Corps is placed under the control of Undersecretary Ball.

"I am not questioning his good intentions or sincerity. I'm sure he means the best. But this program cannot be imaginatively and enthusiastically administered as part of a grandiose government reorganization scheme. It just won't work that way."

Secretary of State Rusk, who also was present, contended the ambitious reorganization plan of the "three B's" is necessary to eliminate chaos and confusion.

"This approach is essential to strengthen the entire administration of our foreign and technical aid programs," Rusk declared. "That is in complete accord with the President's announced policy, and I am strongly convinced all these agencies and projects, old and new, should be centralized in Secretary Ball's office."

Undersecretary Bowles also stressed this point.

"The President made a strong commitment in his campaign," asserted the former Connecticut Governor, "that he would put an end to the confusion and conflicts in our foreign aid activities due to lack of central control. That promise definitely impressed many voters who expect it to be made good.'

"The Peace Corps is not an economic aid program," snapped Shriver. "It's a stirring idea to send hundreds of Americans into undeveloped countries to help them help themselves. That has nothing to do with economic aid. It is one of two programs the President proposed during the campaign that caught the imagination of voters, especially young voters.

"It has also captured the attention of the world. This program is the President's program and it should be administered directly under him. It cannot stand delays in decisions, which is inevitable in the State Department. If this program fails to get off the ground quickly, it will lose momentum. That's what happened to President Eisenhower's Atoms - for - Peace program. That was taken out of the White House and put in the State Department, where it has been dragging its feet ever since."

"I would be the last to do anything to hold back the Peace Corps," protested Ball.

"That may be your intention," retorted Shriver, "but you will be so busy with the numerous other projects and programs, that you will be unable to give any one of them, and particularly the Peace Corps, the special attention they deserve."

McGeorge Bundy also sought to give assurances the Peace Corps and Food - for - Peace program would not be slighted. But Shriver was unconvinced.

"If these programs remain in the White House," the Chicagoan pointed out, "the credit for them will go directly to the President. It will make him a symbol of peace throughout the world. They will be his programs. But if they are buried in the State Department, then I'm telling you that will be used against him and the programs."

Food - for - Peace Administrator McGovern also laid it bluntly on the line in attacking the State Department's proposed power grab.

"Food is one of the most potent weapons the President has to fight the cold war," declared the South Dakotan. "That is particularly true in Latin America, Africa and Asia. By retaining control of the Food-for-Peace program, the President will be identified with every bushel of grain supplied to hungry people throughout the world.

"The psychological impact of this program will be worth more than all the money we have spent on the Voice of America and other propaganda activities. But if this plan is buried in the State Department, that will probably be the last heard of it. By the time a decision is made, the food won't be needed. It will be too late."

NEW FOREIGN AID SET-UP— President Kennedy will propose several major administrative changes in his forthcoming foreign aid message to Congress. He will recommend that Undersecretary of State George Ball be made head of all foreign economic and technical aid programs, and that assistant directors be appointed for each country where the U.S. has such programs. These assistant directors would function under the U.S. ambassador in these countries and report through him to Ball . . .In his foreign aid message, the President also will ask for authority to make loans up to around $1 billion a year for five years. President Eisenhower, in his final message, asked for $700 million in loan funds for two years. Democratic congressional leaders have told the President he probably won't get more than a three-year program, and perhaps even less.

Secretary Dean Rusk is privately much concerned over a number of forthcoming magazine articles about Francisco Juliao, stormy Brazilian leftist legislator. U. S. publications have sent staffmen and photographers to Brazil to interview Juliao and write profiles of him. Rusk fears these acounts will build up the Brazilian as was done with Fidel Castro when he was opposing the Batista regime . . . Professor Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., special White House assistant, told the President after visiting a number of Latin American countries that the principal Communist infiltration is in the universities. Schlesinger reported leftist student leaders told him the governments in their countries could not or would not do anything significant to improve the lot of the masses, and that Communist rule is inevitable, "as is happening in Cuba."

It's Up To You

Years Of Mistakes Bring Much Dismay

A thoughtful, patriotic American citizen can hardly contemplate the situation in which we find ourselves without deep feelings of chagrin and dismay. Neither does it add to our comfort to remind ourselves that our difficulties stem principally from the mistaken policies of our own government during the past quarter of a century.

As wa have many times said, communism threatens our very existence today only because we not only have tolerated it but helped it to grow strong and to expand. Without reciting again the long list of dismal facts from recognition more than 25 years ago—moral, financial and military help without which communism would long since have collapsed — we have only to remind ourselves that the Communist debauch in Cuba is directly chargeable to the policies pursued by our own government. Top advisers of the President and officials in the State Department with a long record of appeasement and kowtowing to communism are responsible for the ousting of Batista and the triumph of Castro.

With all his faults, it is obvious now —even to the soft-headed appeasers — and always has been to other American citizens, that Batista was infinitely preferable to the Communist savages who were promoted to replace him. Batista's cruelties and tyranny were petty in comparison with Castro's terrorism and totalitarian dictatorship. It was well-known that Castro had been Communist - trained and only the incompetent or the wilful subversive would have backed him against the much - lesser evil — Batista. Nevertheless that is what our government did.

Batista was our friend. He opposed communism. He supported our policies in U.N. But we threw him overboard to make way for a bitter, savage and ruthless tyrant.

Trujillo of the Dominican Republic is a tyrant; but a mild one in comparison with the Castro—Communist — type. Nevertheless we have withdrawn recognition from the Trujillo government, appear to have learned nothing from the Cuban disaster and will probably assist in setting up something similar in Santo Domingo.

We shall never make progress toward winning the cold war until we rout out of Washington the appeasers and subversives who have formulated and carried out the policies that have caused our embarrassment and placed Western civilization in jeopardy.

It ought also to be said that the false statesmen in Washington, and neither party has a monopoly on them, could not have wrought this evil in our midst if they had not found sympathy and backing among our religious, educational, cultural and commercial leadership.

Nothing but a grassroots uprising of patriotic Americans who will demand the ousting of "peace at any price" Communist appeasers from all governmental and other positions of leadership will save us from defeat by an implacable enemy who is determined to destroy us, is playing for "keeps" and whose every move in commerce, cultural relations, Summit Conferences, Camp Davids, diplomatic and commercial exchanges and at U.N. are wilfully designed and doggedly followed for the purpose of destroying Christianity, freedom, self-government and our whole Western way of life.

How To Cut Down Ambassador's Bills

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME, Italy — When I asked my readers for suggestions as to how America's ambassadors could keep up their end of entertaining and yet stay within their budgets, I didn't expect to be swamped with more than 95,000 replies.

It's a good thing I didn't, for I have received only three. But they are good ones and, if our ambassadors will accept them, I feel sure they'll be able to do their share of party and dinner giving in Paris, Rome, London, or anywhere else in the world.

"Why don't our ambassadors," writes Mrs. Benjamin Snoff of Buffalo, "give the sort of dinners where each of the guests brings a dish? This is typically American and would give foreigners a better insight into our country, which is one of the things ambassadors are supposed to do.

"With so many nationalities represented at an Embassy dinner, the food would be wonderful. The French Ambassador's wife could bring a duck with orange sauce, the Indian an unusual curry, the Australian a platter of lamb chops, the English a beef roast, and the Austrian a delicious dessert.

"The American ambassador's wife, with an eye to saving money, could furnish a typically American dish of baked beans surrounded by frankfurters. She would also be responsible for the water on the table and, if she used paper plates and napkins, those, too."

This is a sound idea, and I congratulate Mrs. Snoff. The American Embassy parties would soon become famous and the foreign diplomats would vie with one another to see which one could bring the most lavish and expensive dish. The Russians would cart in hogshead of caviar, and the Japanese oysters complete with pearls.

Mrs. Snoff doesn't mention it, but I see a further saving for the American ambassador in these bring-something dinners. There would always be tons of food left over and the ambassador and his family could make do with it for weeks on end. They might even give parties for less important people and use the leftovers. You know, Congressmen on junkets and the like.

Curtis Curtain of Cedar Rapids sent in a suggestion aimed at making parties less costly for our ambassador.

"When there is to be dancing, an orchestra is always a heavy expense," Mr. Curtain writes. "Even a small combo of a flute, snare drum, and a tuba can run into a couple of hundred bucks a night. I know, because I had to pay for just such a combo when my daughter, Ruth, got married last summer.

"My suggestion is that the ambassador always give a barn dance with only a fiddler for music. And fiddlers come pretty cheap. Nothing like a combo.

"Also, barn dances would save a lot of money on clothes. There would be no need for the ambassador's wife to go Dior or Chamel for a dress for a barn dance. All she would need would be a pair of overalls and a poke bonnet. And there's nothing more becoming to a good-looking woman than a pair of overalls."

The third reply was on a postcard and very brief. It was from Baton Rouge and contained no signature. Just signed "A Friend of America."

The suggestion was that American ambassadors feign illness when abroad and turn down all invitations to parties, dinners, galas, and the like. By doing this they would not only be under no obligation to entertain, but would also have much more time for work.

I give these suggestions to the State Department free of charge.

The Doctor Says:

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN

The eyes and ears of infants may be threatened and their functional capacities imparied or even destroyed by acts of carelessness that many of us commit without realizing the possible consequences of what we are doing.

Transmission of the herpes virus to young babies through kissing has recently been held responsible for an eye infection (viral conjunctivitis) that occasionally results in blindness.

According to Sir Stewart Duke-Elder, a leading English ophthalmologist, newly introduced antibiotics have eliminated most of the bacteria that used to cause infantile conjunctivitis. As a result, the herpes virus, which is resistant to all "miracle drugs," has become increasingly dangerous to the new born who have few protective antibodies with which to fight off a lowly organism that usually can do no more than produce a "cold sore" on the lip of the kisser.

Since baby kissing is an act of affection only to the kisser, it would not seem too unreasonable to request well-wishers to bestow their herpes organisms on the sole of the infant's foot. Particularly if they are suffering from an upper respiratory infection of any kind.

Bottle - feeding infants, while they are lying flat or propped up insufficiently, has been held responsible for ear infections by a group of New Zealand pediatricians. Over a seven-year period, a group of reliable observers has collected a series of 242 babies whose middle ear infections are attributed to the position of the child during feeding (positional otitis media). And, according to this study, both prematurity and nasal obstruction from whatever cause add materially to the risk.

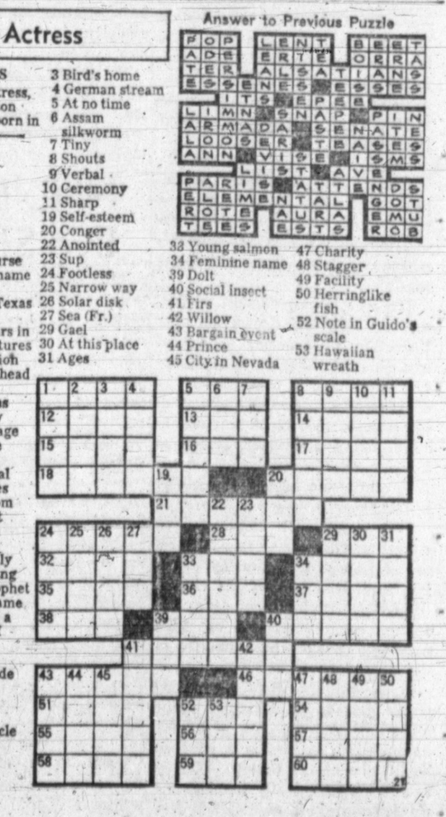

As a natural conclusion to their study, the New Zealand group advises mothers to feed their infants in the upright position until they are at least three months old. And for a longer time if the baby was premature or if it suffers from nasal obstruction.

Since neither of these recommendations requires any great sacrifice on the part of any of us, there seems no valid excuse not to heed them.
