4 MORE FLIERS FORCED DOWN BY HARD LUCK

13 of 17 Who Left El Paso Reach Fort Worth To Spend Night

SHIP CATCHES FIRE

Aviatrice, Trying to Land, Damages Undercarriage Of Her Plane

FORT WORTH, Aug. 22. (UP)—Hard luck continued to follow in the wake of America's daring "lady birds" on today's lap of the women's air derby from California to Cleveland.

Out of the 17 who left El Paso this morning, three were delayed at Pecos and another at Abilene.

Illness, one plane fire, and motor trouble combined to form today's bulk of mishaps as the fliers spanned the Davis mountains and broad prairies of West Texas in their thrilling race for the prize money.

Illness Stops Perry

The latest to report a "jinx" following her course was Margaret Perry of Los Angeles. She became ill after reaching Abilene and decided to remain there for the night. She expected to continue in the race tomorrow.

Previously during the day three other contestants met with mishaps which hampered their progress and forced them to remain behind while their companions sped eagerly forward.

Miss Blanche Noyes of Cleveland was badly burned on the hands while putting out a fire aboard her plane. She was flying at 2,000 feet when she spied a fire among her luggage. A cigaret carelessly thrown into the cockpit of her plane before the takeoff at El Paso was believed responsible for the blaze.

Plane Is Damaged

After throwing the flaming luggage overboard Miss Noyes made a forced landing 10 miles west of Pecos, the first control stop of the day. In landing she damaged the undercarriage of her ship but succeeded in getting to Pecos where she awaited repairs tonight.

Miss Edith Foltz of Portland, Maine, another victim of hard luck, damaged the landing gear of her plane while alighting on the Pecos field and was delayed several hours. Mechanics were set to.

Bonds Would Cost Average Water Consumer 81 Cents

Small Increase in Monthly Rates Would Provide City With Adequate Supply of Pure, Soft Water, Figures Show

The average water consumer in Wichita Falls would pay approximately 81 cents more on his monthly water bill by approving the proposed $1,400,000 bond issue for providing the city with an adequate supply of pure, soft water, according to figures furnished The Record News by George D. Fairtrace Thursday. Water rates would be increased about one-third.

With two possible means of paying out the bonds, either by raising the water rates or by raising the taxes, the former method is the more likely of the two, Mr. Fairtrace said, since all who benefit from the great improvements will share in the paying of the bonds whereas in the case of raising the taxes only the taxpayers will bear the burden.

Rate Raise Preferred

Many large consumers of water are not large property owners and therefore not large taxpayers, he pointed out. In the case of such consumers, they would profit greatly from the improvements in the water system and would be provided with pure, soft water in adequate quantities, thus eliminating the expense of softening or filtering their own water, and at the same time they would pay only a slightly raised rate. On the other hand, large property owners who are not large water users and who would not receive greater benefit from the improved system than the average citizen, would be forced under the property tax to pay an increased tax out of proportion with the benefit they would derive, Mr. Fairtrace stated.

"Many persons live outside the city limits and do not pay taxes to the city," he pointed out, "yet these persons use city water and would find a year-round adequate supply of soft-pure water if the proposed improvements are made. If the taxes were raised to pay out the bonds, these persons would stand none of the burden, but if the water rates were raised, they would share equally with residents inside the city limits."

Taking the average water bill for a residence at $2.38 per month, the present rate for 10,000 gallons, the bill under the revised schedule would be $3.19, indicating an increase of 81 cents per month for the average water user, it was pointed out.

Revenue Must Increase

Finding an average for the commercial user would be more difficult, it was said, but in the case of a 300,000-gallon monthly consumption, which costs $57.48 at the present time, the bill under the new schedule would come to $76.64, or about a $19 increase. With larger water consumption, the proposed rate would increase more rapidly, whereas in the case of a raise in taxes the increase would be regular and at a fixed arithmetical progression, Mr. Fairtrace said.

The tax increase would approximate 20 cents on the $100 valuation, or $2 cents on the $1,000 valuation, he stated. This raise would pro-

WATER MEET

C.-C. Committee to Hear Plan for Avoiding Rate Increase

Members of the water supply committee of the chamber of commerce have been called to meet at the chamber of commerce at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, for further deliberations on the matter of improvement in the present system.

One of the matters to receive consideration in Friday's meeting, it was reported, is a plan outlined by Albert E. Myles, local accountant, under which it is claimed the proposed bond issue could be handled by the city without increasing either the tax or water rate.

The following are members of the water supply committee: Ed Howard, C. H. Clark, Harry J. Awker, P. M. Cordell, A. H. Britain, J. C. Hunt, Dr. Q. B. Lee, and Harry C. Weeks.

Coste Relieves Tension by Doing And Saying Nothing About Flight

LE BOURGET, France, Aug. 22. (AP)—Dieudonne Coste, after two days of saying one thing and doing either another or nothing, tonight took a slightly different tack by saying nothing and doing nothing.

The French aviator, who has had aviation circles in a whirl of excitement by his intimations that he was going to fly to Tokyo, to New York, around the world or simply to a new world straightaway distance record, gave them a rest tonight by taking his airplane back to Villa Coublay air field, from which he could not start to do anything because of its small size.

There were some indications that the air ministry had brought pressure upon him to abandon any plan he may have had to race the Graf Zeppelin. In any case weather conditions appeared unfavorable for a long flight.

EMPRINGHAM RESIGNS FROM HOLY ORDERS

Temperance Leader Says He's 'Lost Faith'—Scores Bishop Manning

CHRISTIANITY "L I E"

Pastor's Stand on Marriage And Divorce Provokes His Ire

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. (AP)—Asserting that Christianity as interpreted by Bishop William T. Manning of the Episcopal diocese of New York was a lie and a curse to humanity, the Rev. James Empringham asked the bishop in an open letter made public today to relieve him of holy orders, which he resigned and renounced.

Doctor Empringham, national secretary of the church temperance society, said he lost his faith 15 years ago and there seemed no probability of his regaining it. Among other things he criticized the bishop for his stand against divorce and remarriage. Doctor Empringham himself was recently divorced and married again.

Manning on Vacation

Copies of the letter were sent to New York from California, where Doctor Empringham said he went to live because of serious heart disease and not, as published statements had charged, to avoid payment of rent on premises rented for his health education society, which was closed by the board of health.

"Specialists advised me that the California climate might prolong my life if I lived on a farm," he wrote. "However I am returning to New York at once to face my defamers, as my conscience is clear."

Bishop Manning was in Maine on a vacation and could not be reached for comment, his office declining to reveal his address.

Denies Apostles' Creed

Doctor Empringham wrote that he first considered resigning from the ministry 15 years ago, when he was rector of St. Paul's church in Syracuse, N. Y., because he had lost faith not only "in the so-called Catholic dogmas" but also in the apostle's creed.

He resigned his pastorate, he continued, and went into temperance work, becoming in time an opponent of prohibition.

"I have been a thorn in the side of yourself and other good men and I think it would be better for me to resign my Christian commission," Doctor Empringham wrote Bishop Manning.

"More than ever I am convinced that Christianity as interpreted by men of your school is not only a preposterous lie, but a hindrance and a curse to humanity and productive of untold misery and immorality, (as for example your unchristian stand against the divorce and remarriage of mismated couples.)

Denies Medical Charges

"There seems no probability of my regaining the faith in the church creed that I lost years ago. Under the circumstances I can be of no use to the church, nor the church to me. I therefore beg that you will take the earliest opportunity of formally and publicly relieving me of the burden of holy orders which I hereby resign and renounce."

Doctor Empringham asserted in the letter that published allegations that he had practiced medicine without a license in his health education society were untrue and fostered by discharged employes.

Wichita Girls Who "Walk Home" File Charges Against Companions on Ride

One Youth Makes Bond of $750, While Officers Seek Other On Gun Carrying Complaint

A youth of 18 was held under a charge of aggravated assault and carrying a pistol and another of about the same age was being sought by county officers after two girls, aged 18 and 20 years, and the man under arrest had made statements to Wayne Somerville, county attorney, late Thursday concerning an automobile ride Wednesday night.

The girls were quoted by the county attorney as accusing the men of having torn most of their clothing from them during a struggle beside the road near Wichita Falls and then of having intimidated them on the ride home by flourishing and firing a pistol.

Bond for the man who was arrested late Thursday by E. S. Richardson, deputy constable, was set at $750, while a complaint against the one now sought also was filed, the county aatorney said.

The young women reported the incident to L. E. Reeves, a special investigator, who in turn directed it to the attention of Mr. Somerville, to whom the statements subsequently were made.

Mr. Somerville quoted the girls as saying that after having met the men through an acquaintance, they agreed to a date Wednesday night. During a ride, according to the statements attributed to them, they repulsed the men after a struggle and were ordered to "walk back." They started to walk, the county attorney quoted them as saying, but the men returned for them. It was on the return ride, according to the girls, that the pistol was displayed and fired, Mr. Somerville said.

The county attorney asserted that a written statement made by the man who was arrested coincided with those made by the girls.

GRAF ZEPPELIN AGAIN HALTED

Down-Hangar Wind Delays Takeoff for U. S.

ASUMIGAURA AIRPORT, Japan, Aug. 23. (Friday) (UP)—The Graf Zeppelin, majestic German air liner, left here this afternoon for America. With Los Angeles as its next scheduled stopping place, the Graf Zeppelin took off at 3:13 p. m. (12:13 a. m. C. S. T.)

KASUMIGAURA, Japan, Aug. 23. (Friday) (AP)—Already delayed more than 24 hours at this stop on its round the world flight, a stiff crosshangar wind this morning kept the Graf Zeppelin in its shed and the passengers returned to Tokyo for further sightseeing until conditions improve.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, in view of the weather conditions set no hour for the next attempt to resume the flight to Los Angeles but arrangements were made so passengers and crew could be assembled on short notice. The ship itself was in perfect readiness for the long transpacific flight.

The giant airship first was balked by a mishap as it was being drawn from its hangar yesterday. A rear motor gondola struck the earth, causing damage which made repairs necessary.

When everything was again in readiness Dr. Eckener found the direction and strength of the wind would make handling of the huge bulk by the ground crew difficult and perhaps precarious.

CLERK FOUND DEAD

DALLAS, Aug. 22. (UP)—H. C. Horton, 28, clerk at the Park hotel here, was found dead in his hotel room here today from gunshot wounds. D. M. Murray, a hotel guest, broke into the room a few minutes after hearing the two shots which took Horton's life.

BLAST STARTS OIL FIRE HERE

Continental Employe Burned Severely by Flames

O. E. Collum, operator at the Continental Oil company refinery on the Burkburnett road, suffered severe burns when oil which he was drawing from a reaction chamber in a tube still exploded and burst into flames late Thursday night. High temperature of the oil was said to have caused the blast.

The explosion threw Mr. Collum back from the cut-off and the flow of oil blazed high into the air, igniting parts of the structure of the tube still. He was unable to reach the cut-off and the flow continued, the flames gaining headway rapidly. Firemen from central station were called, but only the chemicals were effective in fighting the blaze.

Collum was taken to a hospital. Damage to the plant was estimated at $1,500.

Texas Legislative Fee Probers To Open Session in Houston Today

DALLAS, Aug. 22. (UP)—The Texas legislative committee investigating the state fee system left Dallas today for Greenville where it continued its hearing of reports by county officials.

The committee was to leave for Houston tonight. After completing an investigation there it will go to Brownsville.

The last Dallas witness was E. John Baldwin, justice of the peace, who testified he received less than $2,000 in fees in 1926. His compensation came to $6,090, of which $4,250 was straight salary, he said. The remainder was from marriage fees and inquest fees. He said 1926 was an average year.

Baldwin told the committee that he was against the fee system. He much would prefer a straight salary of $5,000, he said.

The committee decided it was not interested in the salaries of constables and F. H. Alexander, county judge, and did not call these officials before it.

Earlier in the day William McCraw, district attorney, staunchly defended the fee system as it is now in operation. Other Dallas county officials were lukewarm in their support of the system.

DECREASE IN TOTAL YIELD IS PREDICTED

Terrell Gauges Output For Texas in 1929 at 4,356,000 Bales

Price Hike Would Mean Gain of More Than $10 Per Bale

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 22 (UP)—A Texas cotton crop of 4,356,000 bales or 62 per cent of average was forecast here today by George B. Terrell, state commissioner of agriculture.

Terrell's estimate shows a drop of more than 400,000 bales since the government figures came out Aug. 1. The state figures were based on condition of the crop as of Aug. 15. Terrell estimated that acreage would remain about the same—18,000,000. The crop would sell at 20 cents or more, he said.

Texas spot cotton is now selling at around 17.50 to 17.75 in interior points, and bringing from 18.25 to 18.40 at Houston and Galveston, the two principal cotton shipping ports. The predicted increase in price, if it should materialize, would mean an increase in value of more than $10 a bale on the average over the present prices.

Greater Losses Seen

Possibility of still greater depreciation in production cast a gloomy hue over the report. Drought during the last 30 days and increased insect damage were given as the two main causes for the loss.

No county will produce as high as 100,000 bales this year, the report said. Last year four counties—Ellis, Williamson, McClennan and Hill—went over this high mark. The cotton is extremely spotted also. In some places good crops were reported with adjacent fields poor.

Some Optimism, However

The advance in price was the one optimistic note in the report.

"The price should advance if supply and demand constitute an important factor," he report said.

Terrell pointed out that the strike in the English cotton mills has been first settled and that consumption next year should equal that of the year just closed.

The estimated yields for various parts of the state are as follows:

Eastern district, 49 counties, 805,000.
Northern district, 22 counties 520,000.
Western district, 44 counties, 380,000.
Central district, 44 counties, 1,281,000.
Southwestern district, 37 counties, 490,000.
Northwestern district, 58 counties, 880,000.

MILL OWNERS UPHELD IN DENYING PAY INCREASE

The reduction is to operate from the pay day of the week ending Sept. 14, in the court's recommendations.

Man and Woman Held, Liquor Seized in Raid

A man and a woman were held at the city jail and several pints of whisky and two cases of empty pint bottles were seized following a raid on a residence in the 2100 block on Avenue J about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The raid was made by City Detectives A. L. Stubblefield, C. W. Jensen and Fred Fountain and Motorcycle Officers J. H. Pogue and John Lowry. The place had been watched for some time, officers said, and investigation into the activities of the persons arrested had been made prior to the raid. "The Sargon treatment built up my whole system and I feel better and stronger than I've felt in years.

"My health had been going back on me for three years, mainly from a bad case of stomach trouble. I couldn't eat a meal that didn't make me suffer from dyspepsia and indigestion pains. Even the lightest foods soured on my stomach, and brought sharp pains that almost took my breath. I was bothered all the time by constipation and biliousness and was always having headaches.

"I have used two bottles of Sargon now and am keeping up the treatment. Almost as soon as I started it the pains in my stomach disappeared and I never have indigestion. I can eat anything I want and never have those headaches any more. The Sargon Soft Mass Pills completely rid me of constipation and biliousness without the slightest upsetting. # 'Jinx' Hovers Over Air Derby Fliers work at once putting her ship in condition and she took off again at 5:49 p. m.

Smashes at Pecos

But the jinx had not finished yet. Mrs. Florence Barnes of San Marino, Calif., was chosen as the next victim. She attempted a down-wind landing at Pecos and smashed three wings and a wheel. Mrs. Barnes ordered new parts from Wichita so she might continue the race in the morning.

Aside from the mishaps, the sensational flying of Miss Amelia Earhart featured today's race. She was believed to have set a new flying record between El Paso and the Midland control points, covering the 250-mile lap in 2 hours and 28 minutes. As result of her speedy flying, she was believed to have displaced Mrs. Louise Thaden of Pittsburgh for first place in elapsed time.

The rivalry which has sprung up between Miss Earhart and Mrs. Thaden was resumed on the lap from Midland to Fort Worth with the result that Mrs. Thaden set her plane down at Meacham field here four minutes ahead of the transatlantic flier.

Thaden in Lead

Mrs. Thaden arrived here at 5:34 and Miss Earhart at 5:38. Both fliers remarked that the trip from Midland was choppy and Miss Earhart declared her ship "rode like a canoe."

Other arrivals were as follows: Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, 5:38; Ruth Nichols, New York, 5:39; Phoebe Omlie, Memphis, 5:50; Ruth Elder, Hollywood, Calif., 5:51; May Haizlip, Kansas City, 5:52; Mrs. Edith Miller, New Zealand, 6:06; Neva Paris, Great Neck, L. I., 6:06; Vera Dawn Walker, Los Angeles, 6:16; Thea Rasche, Germany, 6:17; Opal Kunz, New York, 6:18; Mary Von Mack, Detroit, 6:20.

As soon as the fliers alighted from their planes they were rushed away in automobiles to their hotels for a good night's rest preparatory to leaving early tomorrow for Wichita, Kan., the overnight stop.

vide the necessary $105,000 annually to pay off the bonds in 40 years.

"Of course, this is figuring on a straight-line basis of paying the regular amount each year," Mr. Fairtrace said. "The probable course of action would be to pay varying amounts each year, with probably larger sums toward the termination of the 40-year period."

In reference to a plan suggested by several citizens which would provide for a $550,000 bond issue to be paid out from the receipts of the water department, Mr. Fairtrace stated that such a course would be practically impossible due to the fact that the water department does not have sufficient revenue at the end of each year to pay for making such improvements even with a $550,000 bond issue. The department "came out in the red" at the end of 1928, he pointed out, showing a loss of several thousand dollars.

"At the time the present sewage disposal plant was installed," Mr. Fairtrace said, "the sewer tax was replaced by using the revenues from the water department to operate and maintain the plant. There is no sewer tax in Wichita Falls at the present time. To add the burden of paying out a $550,000 bond issue to the revenues of the water department would be an impossibility. There is absolutely no profit in the department."

FLYING CLUB PLANS DRAWN

Fees and Membership Decided at Meeting

Membership limits, initiation and membership fees, and per hour flying instruction charges for the flying club now being organized by Paul Hines under the auspices of the Junior chamber of commerce were named Thursday night by the aviation committee of that organization.

Forty active members and 35 associate members can be accommodated in the club, according to plans adopted by the committee. It was decided that the initiation fee will be $40, and that monthly dues will be $10 per member. Associate memberships will be $15 each.

Active members of the organization may purchase flying time, with a competent instructor, at the rate of $6 per hour, it was announced, until he receives his license as a qualified private flier. Thereafter the charge for further instruction in the air will be based upon cost of operation, the committee said.

The purpose of the flying club, as presented to the Junior chamber of commerce directors last week and approved by that body, is to provide at a minimum cost thorough aeronautic training for the young business men of this community, and generally to stimulate interest and participation in commercial aviation.

The initiation membership fees are to be used to provide training ships and field accommodations, according to the plan being followed, while the per hour charge for flying time will provide the services of an instructor, and operating expenses.

All persons interested in the organization of the flying club are asked to meet on the third floor of the Staley building next Monday night, Aug. 25, at 7:30 o'clock, when further preparations for launching the project will be made. Those present at Thursday night's meeting were Paul Hines, Jerry Vinson, John Barnard, Jimmy Ryan, Paul Harding, S. M. Gose and Fulcher Armstrong.

Indigestion Stopped Quickly by Stomach Antiseptic

What is commonly known as indigestion is a fermented condition of the stomach which keeps the undigested food sour, creating acids and poisons. Fermentation is the worst obstacle in the way of overcoming stomach disorders.

GORDON'S—an internal antiseptic, gets immediately at the cause by stopping fermentation—soothing and healing the inflamed and irritated membrane lining—driving out the acids and poisons. It strengthens weak or disordered stomachs.

Surprising results may be expected in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, excess acid, gas, bloating heartburn, sour stomach and that "tired feeling."

Get a bottle of this famous remedy today from your druggist. Costs less than three cents a dose. —Adv.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are overstimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

YOU'LL hear Al Jolson doing his newest numbers. You'll laugh at him, you'll cry with him. For he gives everything he's got to introduce the NEW Brunswick Radio.

And it's worthy of his greatest effort—a beautiful instrument—a remarkable value—but more, the NEW Brunswick is the first and only radio that completely fills the function of a radio—and that is to receive programs with "Studio Quality" Radio Reception.

This simply means that through the NEW Brunswick you hear programs just as if you were listening to them in the Broadcasting Station and not through a radio. There is no loss of quality.

The Proof

Great critics attested to this fact at 12:11 midnight, May 4th last, in New York City, when, using the facilities of Station WABC, Brunswick made the most sensational and dramatic test for Tone and Reception ever conceived.

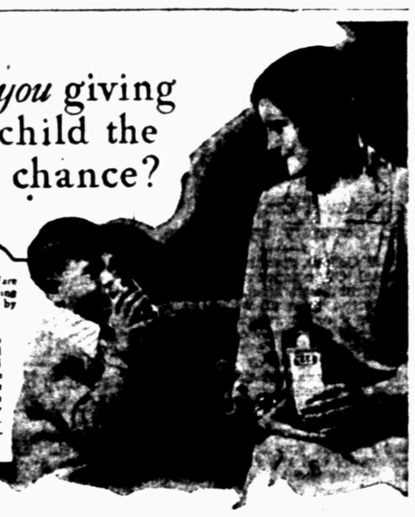

Every Brunswick dealer will and can re-create this test for you in his own store. # Are you giving your child the right chance?

The physical welfare of the child is being given much attention by school authorities.

Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to nervousness and a run-down condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red-blood-cells

DO you not marvel when thinking of the inward physical workings of your child—bone, flesh, muscle and brain growing each day—building onward toward manhood or womanhood?

Rich, red blood builds and sustains

Of course it is the blood stream which carries the millions of tiny red-cells to all parts of the body. And it is the healthy, rich, red-blood-cells that does this building, warding off disease and making for strong and healthy bodies.

When a child's appetite wanes or he loses weight, the complexion becomes sallow or pimples and boils appear—then you instantly know that the inward mechanism is not working properly—that a good blood tonic is required.

S.S.S. builds sturdy health

In such cases S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It is made from fresh vegetable drugs—therefore will not harm the most delicate system. It improves the appetite and restores the red-blood-cells to normal; lost weight is regained; skin eruptions clear up and color returns to the cheeks.

Give your child the right chance to develop. You will not regret it in later years.

For more than 100 years, S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

BARTON COMES BACK HOME

Caricaturist Fails at Being Frenchman

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. (UP)—Ralph Barton, the caricaturist—no kin to Bruce—was back in town today, breathing in good old 100 per cent American fresh air and explaining to friends how come he changed his mind about turning into a 100 per cent Frenchman.

That was Mr. Barton's idea the last time he sailed for France. It was last March.

"You see these shoes?" he asked at the pier, going out. "You see this dust on them? Well, there'll never be anything but French dust on these shoes from now on. America is becoming less liveable every day. Everything in the United States is striving against peace and civilized contentment. Henceforth I live in Paris. You are now looking right straight at a potential Frenchman."

Attracts Attention

This was the substance of Mr. Barton's speech as the boat sailed. Since he was born in Kansas City and one of his great-grandfathers was a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, his farewell address attracted attention. Even some of Mr. Barton's warmest admirers, who include Charlie Chaplin and almost everybody who saw the illustrations in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," felt that his sentiments were less than patriotic.

Tidying himself again today after struggling for several hours yesterday to set foot again on Manhattan island from the S. S. Ile de France, the artist ate crow handsomely.

"New York is a crazy city," said the expatriate, "and America is a madhouse. That's why I came back. I feel that I belong here."

Mr. Barton paused, took a good long swig of hydrant water from the catskills, and continued:

"For the last four years, I've lived in France, particularly in Paris and Cannes. I came to America sporadically, but only for week-ends, now I'm back to stay.

Likes to Work Here

"Europe is a great place. It's in my blood and I love it. I'll always go back for visits and when I retire—" Mr. Barton said with dignity—"I'll probably go back for good.

"But while I work, I want to stay here. I found myself slipping, losing contact with my public. As an artist, I must comment on modern times and by that I mean things in America. I can only do that if I live here, much as I love Europe."

Mr. Barton was asked what he thought of Frank Ward O'Malley, equally famed Broadwayite, who declared in articles and interviews a few days ago that he, O'Malley, could no longer stand America and that he, O'Malley, was closing up the little place in New Jersey to reside in Europe until his bones dropped apart or his brain was ready for vivisectionists.

"He'll Be Back"

Mr. Barton gave a sort of sad snort.

"He'll be back," said Mr. Barton. "I should say within three years, especially if he keeps on working. I know just how he feels. I once felt the same way myself. But now I know the answer. I have lived three years in Paris and I know. One is neither fish nor fowl. I have decided it is better to be a canary New Yorker than a savant or the triumph of the boulevards."

Mr. Barton, whose drawings of professional reformers with warts on their noses have brought cheer to countless firesides, then went out to search for subjects among the new crop of fanatics. He narrowly missed being run down by a party of middle western school teachers in a sightseeing bus but he smiled sweetly at them. They reminded him of Paris.

FIRST FAIR AT RULE PLANNED

Dates for Event Set as Sept. 19-21

Special to The Record News

RULE, Texas, Aug. 22.—Rule will have its first community fair Sept. 19 to 21. Plans are under way to make this community fair a success. Various committees have been appointed and are working on the various premiums to be awarded on farm exhibits, poultry, livestock and various other premiums that will be awarded.

Livestock, poultry and swine will receive prominent attention. The dry weather will cut down the farm exhibits to a certain extent, but notwithstanding this fact a fine exhibit is anticipated.

The all-American shows have been secured for the week of the fair, and will furnish amusement during this event. This big show will start on the 16th and will run until the 21st.

Places for exhibits are being arranged by the fair committee, as well as places for the livestock, poultry and swine.

The Rule community is going in for diversification more than ever, and the town has seen the need for a community fair. Poultry raising has been going on in this community for several years, and the creamery business has been fostered for several years.

RIVERSIDE FIRST LINE TIRES

Don't pay more for any other tire ....unless more miles are guaranteed!

[See our prices and guarantees below]

Buy Your Tires on a Guaranteed Mileage Basis

Save $2 to $15 per Tire

ALL tires look good . . . when they're new. And they are good. But the big question that concerns the buyer is—"How Good?"

To that question . . . names, claims, differences in price, do not offer the final answer.

So far as we know, there is only one thing that does answer the question: a definite, specific GUARANTEE of the minimum mileage your tire will deliver. . . .

That is the basis—and the ONLY basis—on which automobile tires are sold by Montgomery Ward & Co.

The names RIVERSIDE and WARDWEAR are as good as any other tire names. But we do not advance names as the reason why you should buy from Ward's. Our tires are built by nationally-known manufacturers—of the finest materials and by the most modern methods . . . yet that is not the chief reason why millions of motorists are today riding on RIVERSIDES. We also claim that these tires represent more value per dollar than any other tires built . . . yet similar claims are offered on behalf of other brands.

None of these things decides the question of QUALITY . . . So—we offer you Ward's three guarantees . . . 30,000 miles unconditionally on the Super Service RIVERSIDE; 16,000 miles on the First-Quality RIVERSIDE; 10,000 miles on the WARDWEAR . . . as instant indicators of the tire quality you can count on when you buy from Ward's.

—And Ward's prices clinch the argument with a SAVING of $2 to $15 on every tire!

Visit our store today—examine these tires for yourself. Remember: the proof of any advertisement is the performance of the product—and RIVERSIDE performance is definitely guaranteed! That's why we say: Do not pay more for any other tire . . . unless more miles are guaranteed.

They haven't any troubles.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Twice in one day we have run across criticism of Americans and we take it to heart. We do not like anyone but ourselves to criticize Americans.

One American lady who writes professionally in foreign lands, says that Americans alone among the nations, have little feeling of home.

It is not lack of feeling for home that causes so many Americans to move from place to place; it is often the necessity of a machine age. Families are not permanently place if they are connected with an industry that has branches in all parts of the country.

Even in this day of psychological thought, when men and women are searching for a similar plane of existence, life isn't all mental nor physical. There's an abiding spirit in the heart that makes "no place like home."

Not many forget the place of their birth and first youthful days. Should the family pass and the old homestead fall into other hands and one go back years after to look upon it, it seems to have shrunk. That is a sad truth, that older eyes cannot see the magnitude of what youth looked upon.

We went once with a party to see again the plantation on which they had grown up. They told us of the big house, the circle of slave quarters back of it, the great forest trees. And nothing was left. Nothing of the buildings; nothing but the great oak trees. One little stack of bricks showed where the great chimney had been. It was like visiting a grave and a sadness hung over us all the day.

One of the dearest memories we have is of our grandmother's old fashioned garden. The overhanging eaves of that big old house cradled many generations and it has always had, to us, a motherly air.

Then Irwin Edman's latest books discuss the American inability to enjoy leisure.

We believe that is a line that has been handed out until people take it for a fact. Americans can enjoy leisure just as much as any other race.

If Mr. Edman had been in this part of the country this year and known of the groups who went fishing, he could not write that.

Herbert Hoover said recently, "If 10 per cent of the people, on the basis of licenses alone, are interested in fishing, there must be something in it."

Fishing is a sport that enables man and woman to enjoy leisure. It is not all fighting to land a fish. But that is something that makes one doubly able to rest. The fisherman gets nearer to nature than anyone. And nature is rest.

We would not mention fishing as the only way of taking one's leisure. In summer, just the green woods above us, give us rest. And in winter, an easy chair, an open fire and a book. Not to mention the talk of congenial friends.

Speaking of that, we are glad that all conversationalists are not departed. It is a joy to meet people who realize the time has come "to talk of many things." People who enjoy music and books and travel and haven't that one track mind that can only discuss one line of business, one phase of life—it may be bridge—or gossip.

Those people are like hens with one chick. They believe the world's interest is absorbed in that chick. Hens and women are a great deal alike sometimes. One can't blame mothers for thinking there's no baby like her one, or two, or three, but the rest of the world sometimes thinks of something else.

Dix Tells Why Women Can Never Understand Men

"The Fundamental Reason That no Woman Can Ever Understand a Man Is That a Man's Nature Is Simple, While a Woman's Is the Most Complicated Thing on Earth"

The complaint of every disgruntled husband is that his wife doesn't understand him. The wail of every unhappy wife is that her husband doesn't understand her, and both men and women go through the world on a still hunt for some affinity who will understand them.

Of course, men and women don't understand each other. They never have understood each other. They never will. It is an utter impossibility. They can't understand each other because God made them different and gave them different points of view. Because their training and development has been along different lines, and it is because each sex is a riddle that keeps the other sex guessing that men and women are perpetually interesting to each other.

The thing that intrigues a man about a woman is the uncertainty as to which way the cat is going to jump and he marries her to find out. The thing that makes a man fascinating to a woman is his being a cross word puzzle that she can spend her life in working out if she marries him and with no assurance of ever getting the right answer.

The fundamental reason that no woman can ever understand a man is that a man's nature is simple, while a woman's is the most complicated thing on earth. A man does the thing he wants to do just because he wants to do it and without any other reason whatsoever for doing it and that is a baffling mystery that no woman can comprehend, because when she does a thing there are a million secret reasons for her action.

A man eats because he is hungry and he chooses the kind of food he relishes. He buys a new suit because he needs it or because it happens to strike his fancy. He goes to see the kind of plays he likes and reads the books he loves and so far as possible he does the things that he enjoys doing. But when a woman eats she is considering the cost of the dish and counting her calories and wondering if she hadn't better spend the money on a chiffon handkerchief instead of on lobster mayonnaise and trying to estimate how fattening it is.

When she buys a new dress she doesn't go into a shop and take the first thing that is offered her because it suits her and is what she needs and is the right price. She looks at the frocks in half a dozen other stores and decides on the one she buys at last because she thinks it will put out the eye of her rival or she buys something she doesn't want because it has been marked down from $50 to $49.75.

She reads books she loathes and that make her feel that she needs to have her mind run through the laundry after she has finished them because the women in her set are reading them. She goes to plays that bore her to tears because she wants to be thought highbrow. She wears shoes that torture her and clothes that make her risk death from exposure because they are the style and she would rather be in her coffin than be out of fashion.

A woman seldom does anything just purely and simply because she wants to do that particular thing. She does things or refrains from doing them because of what people will say, because she wants to be smart, because she wants to be seen in the right places and walk under the right awnings, because she is a social climber and wants a hand up from some woman above her, because she wants to be elected grand lady patriarch of her lodge, or president of the Browning club.

It is because a woman has so many reasons for doing the thing she does that she can never understand that a man acts mainly on impulse. So she goes probing and probing into his hidden motive and when she doesn't find it she concludes that he is deep and inscrutable and superhumanly clever. It is like the old story of the diplomat with whose subtlety nobody could cope and whose secret was that he was always perfectly truthful and frank.

The thing that men never can understand about women is why they put such stress upon little things and particularly why their happiness depends upon the small amenities in domestic life. They can't understand why a wife has to be constantly assured that her husband still loves her when every day of his life he is proving his devotion to her by acts that speak louder than words.

They can't understand why the woman whose husband has just given her a thousand-dollar coat and a diamond ring considers herself neglected and ill-used if he forgets to bring her a 50-cent bunch of flowers on her birthday or the anniversary of their marriage, nor can they comprehend why an otherwise sane woman wants her husband to lie to her and tell her that she is more beautiful at 50 than she was at 20.

No man worries about the state of his wife's affection for him as long as she is giving a good performance of wife and mother, because it doesn't occur to him that she is going to change and prefer some little cake-eater to him. Nor, as long as he is nailed to his own fireside, does he see any reason why he should go about proclaiming that he still loves his wife any more than he should continually announce that he is an honest man.

Yet because women can't understand why their husbands won't feed them on the soft talk they crave and men can't understand why women crave for that particular form of goo, innumerable women go through life hungering and thirsting for the angels' food they never get.

Nor can a woman ever understand a man's moral values, nor how he can be both false and true. She cannot understand that he has the urge to sidestep now and then, just as a little boy has to play hookey from school without ever having any idea of not coming back to mother when it is over.

She cannot understand that he can enjoy a flirtation with a pretty woman because it flatters his vanity and gives him a thrill of adventure and still have his wife enshrined on a pedestal in his heart far above all other women. For when a woman is faithless to her husband it is because she has ceased to care for him and because she has cut away from her every ideal of purity and goodness.

And no more can men understand why women cry when they are happy; why they pinch nickels and throw away dollars; why they are afraid of a mouse and will beard a lion in his den; why they put words above deeds; why they suspect a dumb husband and will believe anything a glib talker tells them.

No, men and women will never understand each other, but they will keep on trying to solve the mystery as long as time lasts.

Miss Raborn Writes of Her Tour of Europe

Mrs. J. W. Combs of Wichita Falls has received an interesting letter from Miss Mamie Raborn, who after a trip through England, France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and Germany has settled down in Cambridge, where in training college on Woolaston road, she is spending the time until she starts for America.

One little glimpse she give of Edinburgh is unusual. She writes. "That's (Edinburgh) the coldest place I ever saw not to be covered in ice, though the crazy flowers are blooming right along; lovely easter lilies, waist high to me; hydrangeas, carnations, daisies, phlox and many lovely English flowers we do not have at home."

Miss Raborn has visited all the points of special historic interest in England. She concedes Paris to be fascinating, loves Switzerland and says that all the Americans she has met abroad love Italians and especially Romans. She wrote that the pope received her in state—only there were about 400 others in the party.

Leaving the Peace palace at The Hague, she met a tall, good-looking elderly man and they smiled at one another. She said, "You look like Mr. Charles Evans Hughes, from America," and he said he was and they shook hands.

Miss Raborn's Rhine boat trip was of peculiar interest and directly after, she met a German judge, going from Cologne to Berlin, with whom she had an animated discussion of the German school system, the growth of socialism since the war, the Communistic movement in Russia and the explanation of American prices since the war. Rather, she said, she "listened." She speaks of Germany as a marvelously well industrialized nation, the people fine looking, busy and well fed.

She expects to arrive home about Sept. 7.

CORRUPTED U.S. COMMISSIONERS ARE MENACE TO PROHIBITION

BOOTLEGGER'S BUREAU BARED

Willebrandt Urges Higher Standards of Office

THE INSIDE OF PROHIBITION
XIX—Human Nature at Its Worst

(Copyright, 1929, by Current News Features, Inc. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world).

(In this article Mrs. Willebrandt shows how corrupted U. S. commissioners can defeat prohibition and reveals the internal working of a huge "Bootlegger's Intelligence Bureau" operated with connivance of government employes and agents).

A friend of mine once remarked to me that his objection to prohibition and prohibition enforcement was that they showed "human nature at its worst."

Mrs. Willebrandt

I do not deny that the attempted enforcement of the prohibition law has resulted in revealing the dishonesty, greed, ruthlessness, and corruption of many men. But, on the other hand, I know of many other laws in the enforcement of which, or lack of enforcement, human nature has not been shown up to any better advantage. I recall instances of collusion with state and federal officials whereby dishonest bankers and so-called investment firms were enabled to defraud and virtually rob thousands of people, including widows and orphans. I know of cases where food inspectors have been bribed, failed to perform their duty, and permitted the people who paid their salaries to be poisoned with contaminated food. The prohibition law has not made human nature any worse; it has revealed its defects. It has made us know we must elevate the standards of public office.

I have given some facts about the human flaws I discovered in district attorneys' offices in the course of almost eight years' supervision of prohibition prosecutions.

But district attorneys are not the only officers of the law who can nullify and have nullified the effect of good work on the part of prohibition agents. All down the enforcement line, from top to bottom, there is plenty of room for human nature to display itself at its worst.

The Power of the Commissioner

Near the middle of the line is the United States commissioner. His duty is similar to that of a justice of the peace or magistrate in cases under state law. After arrest a bootlegger is taken before a United States commissioner for a preliminary hearing. Before arrest, it is the duty of commissioners to issue warrants for offenders, upon submission to them of proper evidence, and also to issue search warrants. The commissioner hears the government's evidence, or enough of it to convince him that there is sufficient cause to warrant holding the prisoner for the action of the federal grand jury.

The commissioner, then, is the first officer in the line of effective law enforcement. He can help or he can hinder the administration of justice. His compensation is on a fee basis, and under the law, he can only receive a fee in one case per day. In other words, if he hears 10 cases in one day, he only receives a fee in one of those cases. The result is that some United States commissioners are in no hurry to hear the cases. They have, in some instances, refused to hold more than one hearing a day, even though there were a dozen or more cases ready to be heard and that could have been heard, with prohibition agents waiting to tell their stories, and meanwhile leaving their districts unguarded. The agents would have to come back day after day, before they could present their cases, simply to enable the commissioner to earn more fees!

Another Trick to Beat the Law

I have in mind another type of commissioner, who by granting continuance after continuance, sometimes as many as a dozen in a single case, reduced the effectiveness of the prohibition force. Other commissioners have refused to hold bootleggers for the action of the grand jury cases of direct proof by the agent of a violation of the law, on the excuse that the commissioner did not believe the officers. In other words, the commissioner practically tried the prohibition agent for perjury instead of letting the evidence against the prisoner be presented to the grand jury so that they might determine whether or not the man arrested should be indicted and held for trial by another jury.

The facts about a United States commissioner in a notoriously "wet" city will give an idea of the weakness of the judicial machinery in some places.

About a year ago, under-cover agents, acting under instructions of a prohibition administrator, were investigating certain night clubs and other suspected establishments. They were sitting in one of the places, with a bottle of wine which they had purchased adorning the top of their table. A waiter came up to them and whispered to one of the agents, "You'd better be careful with that bottle of wine, because one of the men at the next table is a commissioner."

The agents promptly removed the bottle, whereupon the waiter smiled and said he was only joking, as the commissioner was "O. K." and was in the place often. The agents then observed that the commissioner and the man with him ordered and consumed several drinks which had the appearance of whisky. The agent then asked the waiter if the man referred to was a city commissioner and the waiter said, "No, he is a government commissioner, that's Mr. X."

On Top at 3 A. M.

A little later, the agents made application to Commissioner X for a search warrant with the purpose of raiding a place that had been raided 13 times previously and yet never padlocked. The commissioner issued the search warrant, but when the raid was made, the place was found closed and some of its fixtures had been removed. There was every evidence of a "tip off" of the raid. A week later the place was again in full operation, with liquor being sold almost openly. Five more raids on the same place were made in the next month and a half, and then the place was closed. But when agents were sent there again to ascertain whether it had reopened, they were handed a card directing them to another address and were told that they could get anything they wanted there. Accordingly, they raided the new place and arrested the two men in charge.

The police blotter shows that these two men were released at 3 o'clock in the morning on a bond approved by Commissioner X. One of the men so released, stated to a prohibition agent that Commissioner X had personally appeared in police headquarters and signed his bail bond. If Commissioner X had a telephone, it was not listed in the telephone directory. Apparently, however, the bootleggers had no difficulty in locating Commissioner X at 3 o'clock in the morning; and evidently he was quite willing to oblige them by leaving his bed to release them on bond so that they might not be inconvenienced by a few hours in jail!

Only the other day I received the following report from an outstanding attorney who had been trying some cases in one of the southern districts of the United States:

"There is another bad situation here. The commissioner advises a little clique of attorneys when search warrants in liquor cases are issued, and they in turn warn the offender, so that the raiders find only soft drinks and church music. It is common talk that the commissioner gets $50 to $75 per month from each speakeasy and the disturbing thing about it is that the federal judge, the United States attorney and his assistants are all very friendly with the commissioner and others with him. With about six investigators for a few weeks and a grand jury I am sure the facts could be brought to light and this situation cleaned up."

The commissioner is appointed by the judges. There is no check on his movements or any way for the department of justice to remove him. One present defect in law enforcement is that judges do not take seriously enough their responsibility for appointing commissioners. I know several judges whose own record is clean and fine but who nevertheless allow commissioners to serve in their districts who are in league with lawbreakers.

How About Juries?

Of course, the character of the juries selected to try prohibition cases is important. In a report made to the attorney general this year, I said: "In almost every district where prohibition is presenting a real problem, juries could be much improved."

About five years ago I looked into this situation at Pittsburgh, where results had been unsatisfactory, and found that for years the practice had been for the clerk of the U. S. court to accept lists of names handed to him by various attorneys. This, of course, resulted in the attorneys who defended crimes before the United States court, being the most active to hand the clerk names of "candidates" for jury service. The situation was called to the attention of the presiding judge, then Judge Thompson. The result was a correction of the situation, with the cooperation of the court.

Almost all of the United States judges are men of high character, determined to preside fairly and justly in the cases that are tried before them, even though their own opinion may be that prohibition is wrong in principle. A few judges, however, have been guilty of conduct that obstructed the proper administration of justice. I have in mind judges who adopted a consistently unfriendly attitude in commenting to the jury on the weight to be given the evidence of prohibition agents; judges who have received gifts of liquor and have even kept and consumed liquor in their court chambers; and judges who have gone so far as to publicly denounce the prohibition law and all those who were attempting to enforce it.

In some districts the work of efficient and honest prohibition has been hampered by unfriendly United States marshals. There have been "leaks" of liquor from marshals' offices and there have been important cases in which marshals and their deputies apparently have gone to sleep while juries were being "approached" on behalf of bootlegger defendants.

Bootleggers' Information Bureau

Competent and honest prohibition administrators have often had to contend with treachery within their own organizations. I was called upon to assist, a year or two ago, one of the best of the prohibition administrators. He found that within his district there had been organized, under the guise of certain real estate companies, what really amounted to a "Bootleggers' Intelligence Bureau."

At the head of this bureau was a man who was intimately acquainted with the heads of breweries, distilleries, and owners of alcohol permits. He maintained offices under different names, in two states, and had several telephones with unlisted numbers. Through a system of espionage, he kept in touch with the movements and contemplated movements of the prohibition administrator's force, and promptly passed on the information to his clients who were violating the law. He not only had his men watching or "spotting" the prohibition agents and other enforcement officers, but he even had access to the files of the administrator.

He employed three former prohibition agents on a straight salary to act as spotters. They stationed themselves without and about the prohibition department offices and kept check on the coming and going of the prohibition agents known to them. Then they telephoned the information to the main office of the "bureau." Confidential information of contemplated raids and investigations was also procured direct from prohibition agents and other government employes, who would phone the office of the bureau as soon as they learned of the government's plans.

Hundred Dollar Bribes

The manner of corrupting government officials, used by this liquor and bribery ring, ranged all the way from painting glowing pictures of powerful political influence to be used in behalf of the "bribees," and general friendliness and good fellowship, to outright bribery. In some instances there were payments of money to prohibition agents, as high as $100 per week. Then there were instances of the sale of radio sets and other merchandise, at half price or less, to people "on the inside" who could give information to the "bureau" of activities of the prohibition administrator's force.

The head of the bootleggers' bureau maintained a charge account with a theater ticket agency, with instructions to the agency to issue to his "friends" any tickets they desired, such tickets to be charged to his account. I secured photostatic copies of the original ledger cards to the accounts of the head of the bureau with the theater agency, showing the issuance of theater tickets to prohibition agents. On at least five different occasions tickets were issued to the woman secretary to two United States comfissioners who, of course, had first-hand information as to the filing of all affidavits for search warrants, and the preparation and issuance of warrants. Of course, this secretary had every opportunity to "tip off" those against whom the warrants were issued.

Tickets were also issued on various occasions to two deputy United States marshals, and on three different occasions to one of the assistant United States attorneys in charge of prosecution of prohibition violators.

Trusted Employe Goes Wrong

The same investigation disclosed that not only did the bureau maintained by the bootleggers and distilleries employ three former agents to act as spotters, but actually employed nine of the prohibition agents in the administration's own office! Six of these agents were promptly discharged, three others were suspended pending further investigation.

One of the agents who was discharged, upon discovery, had been a very trusted employe, working directly under the head of the legal department of the prohibition administrator's office. A check of this agent's outgoing long distance telephone calls revealed that he had been calling the confidential phone number of the bootleggers' bureau frequently during several months previous. When a raid was made on the bureau's office, it was found deserted, but in it was found a postal card directed to the head of the bureau and signed with the code number of one of the prohibition agents. Long distance telephone records checked by our investigators showed that the bureau had called practically every brewery town in the state.

The prohibition administrator was anxious to prosecute the members of his force who had been unfaithful to their trust. It was quite apparent, however, that prosecution could not be carried out successfully until there was a reorganization of the district attorney's office—because the investigation revealed that three of the district attorney's own assistants were closely linked with the liquor and bribery gang. Such are the difficulties of prohibition enforcement in some places!

As long as human nature is what it is, there will be cases of betrayal of public trust by officers of the government, county, state and federal. But if proper care is exercised in the selection of men for the prohibition service, and for enforcing the laws in the courts, prohibition will reveal no more human weakness than any other law. It is politics and political influence, rather than the prohibition law, that have revealed "human nature at its worst."

(In her next article Mrs. Willebrandt will state the outlook for prohibition as she sees it.)

MAYAN TRIBES START REVOLT

Chewing Gum Producers in Earnest This Time

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Aug. 21. (UP)—Mayan tribes of the Yucatan peninsula—remnants of the oldest civilization in America—have revolted again over conditions under which they produce chicle for the gum chewing modern civilization to the north.

Scattered from their beautiful cities by the Spanish conquistadors these Indian tribes have been forced to labor in camps in the territory of Quitana Roo.

Serious Revolt

Periodically they have proudly rebelled at the conditions under which they toil, but the present uprising is the first in years to require more than a handful of troops to quell.

So serious does the government regard the outbreak that it has sent 350 soldiers from Vera Cruz aboard the steamship Anahuac to handle the rebellion.

Prof. Moises Seanz, under secretary of education, also prepared to go to Quintana Roo to investigate causes of the revolt with a view to preventing future outbreaks.

The Mexican government is anxious to appear friendly to the Mayas, the puzzle of whose origin has occupied scientists and scholars for many generations.

Centuries before Columbus discovered America, the Mayas had built tremendous cities in the Yucatan peninsula—one of which, Chichen Itza, is being excavated by the Carnegie institution of Washington, D. C., in cooperation with the Mexican government.

Temples Unearthed

Temples and handball courts have been unearthed, together with a gigantic well, into which virgins were thrown in sacrificial ceremonies.

The Mayas, though their civilization surpassed that of the moderns in many ways, never passed the stone age in their hey-dey. They did not use domestic animals or know the use of the wheel, although they had highly developed agriculture, architecture and astronomy.

The Aztecs and invading Spaniards scattered them with great slaughter. The Mayas became like "lost" tribes trying to find means of subsistence. Some of them took to the chicle regions, others hired out as farm laborers, still others have drifted about the country, working in mines and doing odd jobs for Mexican employers.

The Once Over

SEA CHANTIES FOR STOCK PLAYERS AT SEA

(With the Usual Apologies)

I must go down to the seas again,
to the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a smart ship where the stock quotations fly,
And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the green seas roaring
And a gray mist on the sea's face, and the market soaring.

II

I must go down to seas again, for the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clean call that cannot be denied,
And all I ask is a bullish day with the blue chips flying—
And the flung spray and the blown spume and the Morgans buying

III

I must go down to the seas again,
to the vagabond gipsy life
Where the bulls play and the bears play and the wind's like a whetted knife.
And all I ask is an inside tip from a passenger imposing
And a good rise and a sweet gain at market's closing.

A tip sheet and a flowing sea,
A board that follows fast,
And give the white and speeding ship
The "high" and "low" and "last."
There's tempest in the horned moon
And lightning in it, too;
But what care I if I can get
My market orders through?

A life on the ocean wave,
A home in the rolling deep
Where the touring gamblers roar
Of the stocks that they should keep;
Like an eagle caged I pine
On this dull and chaining shore
Oh, give me the flashing brine—
And a tip from a stevedore!

Sailor take care, sailor beware,
Many poor sheep lose their shirts on the deep
So bewa-a-are! Be-e-e wa-a-a-re!

Equality on the Road

A VACATION motor trip through the American countryside leads to a number of interesting conclusions—among them the thought that the rich man's advantage over the poor man is growing smaller every year.

Fifteen years ago, cross-country motoring was a recreation confined largely to the well-to-do. It took a fairly expensive car to stand up under the daily grind of long distance driving. Traveling expenses were heavy. If the poor man tried such a trip he had to put up with many kinds of discomforts, strain his financial power to the limits and miss many of the spots to which the rich man's car carried him.

Today there are millions of tourists on the summer roads. Automobiles of every price and model, bearing the license tags of every state in the Union, whirl by in a dizzying procession. There are old cars, new cars, cheap cars, expensive cars, fast cars, slow cars—all spinning over the roads, bearing their owners in pursuit of one of the finest forms of recreation available.

Among this army of autos, the cars of the poor man far outnumber the cars of the rich man. Rich man and poor man, in fact, are equals on the open road. The poor man can go anywhere the rich man can go, and can enjoy anything the rich man can enjoy.

The same good roads are available to each. The same scenery is open to each. The man who paid $800 for his car can go just as far and just as fast as the man whose car cost $5,000. He can enjoy precisely the same sights and sensations. It is only in the unimportant trimmings of the trip that he is outclassed.

The rich man, for instance, rides in slightly greater comfort. He stops at expensive hotels, while the poor man pays a dollar for a room in a private home—or, perhaps, pitches his tent on some free camping ground. The rich man, perhaps, eats better food along the way and buys more souvenirs and keepsakes in the towns he visits. Otherwise the two fare exactly alike.

There is a new sort of equality to all of this. The fabled democracy of America is being made more real by it. No longer are the beauties of mountains, seashore and upland lakes reserved for the enjoyment of the well-to-do. Any man with a 3-year-old flivver and a few spare dollars can have his fill of them.

This is the thing that the automobile makers have done for us. The huge, sprawling factories of Detroit, Flint, Pontiac and Toledo are playing a vital part in a new development in American life. They are opening for the average man the gateway to a freer, wider existence—and, in the doing of it, breaking down the old distinction between rich and poor.

Regulating the Collegians

IN ADOPTING new and more stringent regulations for fraternities and sororities at the University of Texas, this newspaper does not see that the board of regents of that school can materially improve the situation there, or more easily meet the problems which inevitably arise in the handling of four or five thousand young men and women.

Students will band together in groups, cliques, clans, boarding houses, halls, sororities, fraternities, clubs or what not regardless of faculty wishes or regents' edicts. For them to do so is as natural as for fish to swim and birds of a feather to flock together. The Record News believes the common mistake of faculties and governing boards is in not recognizing this natural bent, and making the most of the situation by utilizing it to the best advantage of school and student. It seems much better that these group activities of students should be out in the open rather than secret, and that accredited and fairly reliable organizations should be striving for worth while goals rather than trying to adhere to some such silly rule as that the number of men invited to a dance by a group of girls "cannot exceed twice the number of hostesses." Likewise, it seems poor policy to place the entire fraternity and sorority system on "probation" for four years when this system, with all its imperfections, is to be preferred to a system of local cliques and groups subject to no national fraternal regulation and guided by no other than the passing ideals and desires of the moment.

The error of college faculties and boards in attempting too stringent regulations of student life is the same that we find out of college in the efforts of blue nose societies to regulate every pastime and pursuit which does not fall within the limited bounds of their knowledge and approval. In or out of college, the results of this over-supervision will be much the same—the development of a type of citizen too spineless to fight for his human rights, and too weak to adhere to the arbitrary standards of gum-shoe regulators.

Wildcat Hopes for the County

NEWS that the county has given a lease on 120 acres of its land at the county farm as a part of a wildcat oil test is pleasurable hot weather reading for taxpayers even in this sophisticated oil territory. Wichitans know too much of the oil industry to pin great hopes on the outcome of the test in that area, yet they also know too much to assume that no wildcat ever hits. We know they do.

Probably little Lady Luck is simply tickling the taxpayers in the ribs to make them forget some of the inequalities in taxation which drain this county each year of far more than its proportionate share of the state burden. A producing oil well or two on county property would be a nice present for the taxpayers, and part compensation (not entire) for paying more to the state for our property than do other counties. It is too early and too hot to wonder what the county would do with its royalty money if it secured any. Sufficient for the present is the hope that taxation inequalities eventually will be removed in whole or in part, if not by the state's action, then perhaps through a wildcat oil test.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N INC, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, and through her Chatty gets a position as switchboard operator in the Van Nuys bond house. There she meets and falls in love with David Jordan, handsome young bond salesman.

Chatty's busy tongue creates havoc in the office. Agnes Herford, Mr. Van Nuys secretary, leaves on account of Chatty's gossip. David Jordan knows that Chatty is responsible, and drops her. Chatty begins to go with a new salesman, Bryant Dunning, who says he is married but has left his wife. Chatty's friends are Billie Langenau, a file clerk, and Winnie Talcott, Mr. Van Nuys new secretary. After some lively parties Chatty makes up her mind to quit going with Bryant.

The next day David Jordan brings a girl to the office, and Chatty, in a rage of jealousy, makes another date with Bryant. But she does not love Bryant, and determines not to have any more dates with him. After an argument with her mother about Bryant, Chatty goes across the hall to see Billie.

Now Go on With the Story

"No, I said nothing against any one. I don't like some of them very well, though—"

"You mean Winine! Winnie is as good as Billie is any day, and a much better sport!" flamed Chat, then wondered why she had said it. Why did she do so many things she didn't want to do? Why was it harder every time to refuse Bryant when she knew she didn't love him? How could she say that Winnie was as good as Billie when she knew—none better—that Billie was head and shoulders above Winnie in everything that was fine and decent and womanly and sweet?

Her mother sighed again, and said nothing.

"Aw, she's just a flat tire!" put in Pud, who had crept into the room unseen. "I mean your Winnie! Without her booze she wouldn't be bright enough to see to find an electric light!"

"You keep out of this—you—you bootlegger!" cried Chatty, in rage.

"Ain't a booze hound, anyhow!" retorted Pud. "Like your Winnie!"

"Children, children!" cautioned Chatty's mother. But Chatty didn't hear. She flung out of the apartment and across the hall into Billie's, with rage and shame in her heart.

And her pleasure in an opportunity to talk was spoiled.

CHAPTER XXXIII

"I'm glad to see you!" cried Billie, as Chat flung into the pleasant home with the pretty things which she so admired.

"I'm glad to be here—but I feel like something the cat dragged in!" Chatty's slang was the talk of the "Famous Four" as well as what she heard from Pud.

"Well, that's too bad!" comforted Billie.

She led the way into the comfortable sitting room and buried herself in her sewing. How to start to tell Chatty what she felt must be said?

Chatty gave her an opening in her next words.

"It's that confounded office," she burst out. "I feel as if I was sitting on a powder mine. And it used to be so pleasant, too."

"Yes, it did," agreed Billie. "Have you any idea what has made the change?"

Chatty looked up, frowning. What had Billie on her mind?

"We haven't had any changes, that I know of, except Agnes being fired and Bryant coming with us—"

Billy didn't answer. She didn't even look up, but continued to ply her needle.

"Have we?" demanded Chatty.

"Yes, dear, we have." Billie put down her sewing and looked at her friend.

"I like you a lot, Chatty," she began. "I love you so much I—I have to say something you won't like. Please bear with me—." Her fine eyes filled with tears.

"Why, Billie! What's on your mind besides your hair?" demanded Chatty.

"You are!" returned Billie. "See here, Chatty—the trouble with the office is—too much gossip. Too many tales going around. Too many people interested in too many people's private business. Too much scandal—"

"What's that got to do with me?" Chatty rose. Her eyes flashed. Was there no peace in the world? The office, home, now her friend—were they all against her?

"You have lots to do with it, dear!" Billy stretched forth a hand pleadingly. "Chatty, dear, since you've been on the phone we—we hear too much! You don't mean any harm, I know. But look what harm talk can do—think of Agnes! Oh, I'm not supposed to know anything, and I don't, really, but I am sure someone talked to Mrs. Van, and that is why poor Agnes had to leave—and for no reason, really. And—and I'm terribly afraid, Chatty, that you are talking too much—"

Chatty stood a moment, trying to control her temper. Then she flashed out with a sentence she didn't know was in her mind:

"I'd rather talk scandal than be scandal!" she declaimed. "And I am not a married woman running around with a man! I am not—"

"Oh, Chatty!" Billie's voice was heart broken at this reference to George Mayhew. "You don't know how harmless that is—"

"And I don't talk!" stormed Chatty, and really believing it. "The truth never hurt anyone, and I never tell anything but the truth—I don't, I don't—"

A sudden rush of tears drowned her voice. They were all against her. Her mother, Pud, Dave Jordan, who hated her, and now Billie—it wasn't fair! It wasn't—

Without another word she rushed from the apartment, banged the door behind her—and then wondered what she could do next! Not home—with more reproaches! She ran down the steps and out into the street. She would take a walk, and cool off and dry her eyes—

But fate disposed of her evening otherwise. As she crossed the curb a familiar car drew up, and a familiar voice spoke from the darkness."

"What luck! Chatty, darlin'. Stop being a torment and a tease, and come on, take a ride, be a little sport again—"

Bryant held the car door open, invitingly.

Memories rushed through Chatty's mind; a drink of something cold that made you feel all warm inside; lights and music and noise and excitement at the roadhouse; the feminine peace of Bryant's apartment; a strong arm around her, holding her close; lips pressed lovingly to hers—

Behind were a sighing mother with a reproachful face; a mother who was a worry and a torment; a friend who lectured her and called her names and accused her—even to herself Chatty had to exaggerate.

"Why, of course!" she answered Bryant, coolly. "I knew you'd be along just about now!"

"How'd you know?" he demanded. "This is great! Heavens to Betsy, how I've missed you!" He rattled on as he slid into second, and then high, and shot down the street.

"Have you?" Chatty found it pleasant to be missed. She looked at the handsome face so close to hers—too handsome for a man. She examined it deliberately, without the rosy glasses of infatuation. But she found it enormously attractive; a different kind of attraction, and one which made her heart beat faster.

Why should she care? She would only be young once! She had denied him now for some time—she wasn't in love with him, but—"in love with love!" popped into her mind. Nonsense. She was not in love with anyone. Her heart whispered "Dave," and Chatty clamped the lid down tight before his eyes should rise to reproach her.

"Take me somewhere and feed me a shot in the arm!" demanded Chatty, Winnie's slang for a drink. "Then," very deliberately: "I think I'd like to be kissed and to go dance. And—"

Warm, soft lips shut off the rest of the speech. Chatty returned his kiss, but not eagerly.

"That's enough! I said a kiss, not a whole love scene!" Her smile took the sting out of the words. "Then—then—Oh, I know! I want to learn to drive the car!"

"Atta girl!" Drink, dance, eat, kiss, drive car! Your order shall be obeyed!"

Chatty recovered her spirits. After all, why shouldn't she have a good time? She felt armed and safe now she knew she was no longer in love with this man. But she liked him—Oh, yes, she liked him. She assured herself that she did.

And she wanted excitement. Gaiety. Drink. Dance. Laughter. Drive the car! That was life! That was excitement. What a moron she had been! She'd plan another party with Winnie tomorrow.

"Hurry up to that drink, can't you?" she demanded. "Step on it!"

Bryant "stepped on it!" He drove recklessly, heedlessly, one arm around the girl, risking an accident every five minutes to kiss Chatty.

But Chatty had no desire to die on the road in an accident.

"Whoa!" she chided at the fifth kiss, when only a quick swerve saved them from the ditch of the road on which they flew to the renamed Lolypop Inn. "Cut the mush, Bryant, dear, until we're had the orange juice!"

"Pretty good!" laughed Bryant. "Fruit does come before mush, doesn't it? Only kissing you isn't mush!"

"No? What is it?"

"It's—it's temptation!" answered Bryant. And at the passion in his voice Chatty stirred uneasily.

But before this conversation could continue, the lights of the inn flashed into sight, and Chatty was all excitement again at the thought of the drink. She didn't like drink, but she wanted its effects. It kept her from thinking. It made the lights brighter and Bryant handsomer, and her feet lighter, and her heart to leap—

Bryant found a table and disappeared, to return shortly with a bottle. Chatty could hardly wait until the set-ups came. She watched Bryant pour without anxiety, save that he make it strong enough.

Then she drank. Almost immediately the world turned rosy. She leaned over to Bryant. She was so handsome. "You can have that other kiss, now. Oh, look, look!" she interrupted herself.

Bryant looked. In the far corner of the room, side face to them, sat Mr. Van Nuys. A potted palm hid the girl with whom he sat at the table from view; all except a gold slipper and a red dress.

But Chatty knew the dress and the slipped. "Winnie!" she whispered to Bryant, "My sainted stars—the big boss no sooner gets rid of one secretary he beaus around than he grabs off another and takes her out! What larks!"

She rose, beckoning to Bryant. "Bring the hootch and come on. I don't want them to see us! But, oh boy, what a nice little story!"

She cuddled Bryant's arm as they left the inn for the automobile.

ALL THIS
STARCHY FOOD DIGESTANT
ANTI-ACID
MEAT AND MILK DIGESTANT
IN ONE STOMACH REMEDY

You can treat your stomach troubles in a new and better way with this new discovery—ACIDINE—almost magical in its action.

INDIGESTION AND ITS RESULTS, SOUR STOMACH, GAS, BILIOUSNESS, COLDS, SICK HEADACHE, ACIDOSIS, ACID RHEUMATISM fall easy victims to the greatest advance in the treatment of these troubles ever made.

ACIDINE contains the most effective known starch digestant called "Japtase." It liquifies potatoes, bread, rice, cereals and other starchy foods so that instead of remaining in a semi-solid, fermenting, solid mass, these foods pass out of the stomach in a sweet, liquid condition with other foods. THIS STARCH DIGESTANT WILL DIGEST 500 TIMES ITS WEIGHT OF STARCH FOODS AND IS HARMLESS. YOU CAN FIND IT IN NO OTHER MEDICINE.

ACIDINE is guaranteed to relieve YOUR troubles. If it doesn't, any druggist will return your money. Your druggist has it, or write Health Laboratories, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—There are, even in this day of fabulous royalties and sales of motion picture rights, writers who are not wealthy. Of several such that I know, one recently became a father and all his friends showered the young son with gifts—appropriate clothing, silver spoons, mugs and what-not.

"But the best present of all," the writer told me, "is one good old George X sent. George gave my young hopeful two $20 gold pieces, and my wife and I have been instructed not to start the child's bank account with them. Instead, we must, each morning, hold the coins close to the baby's eyes and clink them together.

"As he grows up he will realize what real money is and he will be trained to grab for it whenever he sees it."

Meet Bill

One of the most remarkable men of the stage is Bill Robinson, the colored tap dancer. Bill is pretty generally recognized as the greatest of them all, and he is at the peak of his career. Slim, agile, energetic and possessed of iron endurance, he looks about half his fifty-odd years of age. One of his favorite stunts is to take a 25-yard handicap and run 100-yard dashes with crack college sprinters. Bill wins most of these races—and he runs backward! He is forever teaching young dancers both white and colored his famous stairs dance. So many are now doing that step with or without apologies to Bill that Bill now announces to his audiences:

"I will now give my imitation of Bill Robinson on the stairs."

He is, like all colored and most white stage folk, superstitious. His morning routine is most interesting. When he leaves his Harlem home each forenoon, I am told, he glances at the first person he meets on the street. If that person is as dark as he is, or darker, he backtracks into the house, drinks a cup of black coffee, and starts out again. He keeps this up until the first passersby has a lighter complexion than his own.

The Jam

Pitchmen, those artful gentlemen who sell imitation pearl necklaces, whoopee dogs, dancing dolls and two-bit fountain pens from sidewalks, or more important items like health books and pocket gymnasium equipment from rented stores, are somewhat worried over the bad reputation they are getting in some cities. Some localities, in fact, now exclude them, and others tax them unmercifully for licenses and permits.

The jam, they tell me, is what gets the profession in bad. The jam, it is explained, is a process whereby a 10-cent customer is teased into becoming a sucker for a dollar or more. It is the old-something-for-nothing game.

To work the jam, a pitchman starts by ballyhooing some article costing, say, five or 10 cents. It is, for instance, a magazine pencil. It is a great value, the pitchman expounds, but, to show his heart is in the right place, those who don't think it is so good can step up and get their money back, and keep the pencil too. There is, of course, a rush of customers. The pitchman genially refunds the nickels or dimes.

Then he starts selling an article costing a quarter. Again he offers to refund the money. The customer thinks they have run into a human but demented gold mine.

Gradually the pitchman works up to something really expensive—perhaps a gold watch costing a dollar. By inference, but not by direct statement, he leads the crowd to believe that the same old money-back offer holds good. There is a rush to buy the watches—and then, suddenly, the pitchman folds up his tripod and case and silently steals away. The watches, of course, are worthless, and so are the other trinkets he has given away. His margin of profit is enormous.

Chelsea is at last giving way to the march of progress. The Moore Houses, a quaint row of dwellings on West Twenty-third street, are being torn down. On their site will stand an apartment or a hotel, or something equally tall, progressive and efficient.

The Terrace, as the houses were called, was built in 1843, when Chelsea, now a noisy, unlovely section, was a charming suburb of New York. Strangely the houses were then a curiosity, as they have been of recent years. They were city houses then—forerunners of a New York that was to sweep a dozen miles and more northward of them. They sat cheek and jowl in a long row, with deep green yards in front of them. Those same deep green yards, an extravagant waste of real estate, have been a strange note in the modern Chelsea.

The land of the Terrace came to Clement Moore, who wrote "'Twas the Night Before Christmas," from his father, Bishop Benjamin Moore, president of Columbia college. Clement Moore's widow, held the property after her husband's death and executed the leases which have obtained up to the present. Some of the tenants under these leases have refused to give up their diggings—the houses have been mostly rooming houses during this century—and have gone to court about. Hence while most of the dwellings have been wrecked, some are standing whole in the debris, awaiting some complicated and mysterious court ruling.

Buses Bought for Hardeman Pupils

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 22.—Trustees of the Williams consolidated school district have purchased eight motor buses from the Moore-Browne Motor company of Quanah, following inspection trip made to Dallas to the body works and the assembling plant of the motor company.

There are approximately 420 scholastics in the Williams district, which recently consolidated with portions of the Kirkland district. The buses purchased have seating capacity of 40, and will transport the children to and from school.

Delivery of three will be made by Sept. 15, and the balance as rapidly as the specially constructed bodies can be completed.

This district voted to construct a modern, 10-room brick school building, and contract will be let at an early date. The present building will be utilized, with overflow classes in an adjoining farm home.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Varicose Veins

Question—W. H. J. asks: "Is an operation for varicose veins on the leg a serious one?"

Answer—Removal of the enlarged veins is always a dangerous procedure, not so much because of the danger of the operation, itself, but because of the after-effects. It is far better to wear an elastic stocking, to reduce the size of the vein by electrical treatments or the application of ice. The ice should be held against the enlarged vein for three or four minutes at a time and treatment given two or three times daily.

Melba Toast

Question—D. H. asks: "Should Melba toast be buttered?"

Answer—Melba toast should be buttered fresh as it is being eaten By actual experience I have found that there seems to be some interference with the other foods eaten with Melba toast when the butter is allowed to melt on the toast as it is being made. This may sound a little unreasonable, but my advice is to butter each bit as it is taken.

Growth in Head

Question—S. G. writes: "I have a growth in my head which has almost closed the air passage. I have to breathe through my mouth most of the time. And dust causes me to sneeze, my nose to water, and my head to stop up so bad. I will appreciate anything you can advise to get relief."

Answer—Most nasal growths can be cured through dieting. The trouble is generally that the membranes of the nose are inflamed and swollen by the irritations of toxins which are thrown out through the mucous glands. Local treatments to the nose are sometimes helpful, but the systemic cause must be removed if you are to expect a complete and permanent cure.

PAYNE AND TURGEON LEAD SPUDDERS TO VICTORY OVER BUFFS

GEORGE HURLS 23RD WIN, 4-2

Galloways Lengthen Lead To Two and Half Games

Special to The Record News.

HOUSTON, Aug. 22.—The Spudders came out of the doldrums today in a return to form after losing four straight games, and whipped the Houston Buffs in the second game of the series. Led by the great pitching of George Payne and mighty hitting by Pete Turgeon, the Spudders batted hard and fielded perfectly, to take a 4 to 2 decision.

The victory increased the Spudders' lead over the Buffaloes to two and a half games. It was Payne's 23rd win of the season against 10 defeats.

George also was very much in the ball game on the attack, one of his two hits sending home the run in the eighth inning that broke a 2-2 tie, and which eventually proved enough to win.

Turgeon Gets 4 Hits

Turgeon blasted four hits, including a double, and started the run-getting in two innings before the eighth that kept Galloway's gallopers in the ball game. Dick Sullivan whanged two blows. Payne's other knock was good for two bases.

Bud Stapleton, who sustained a chipped bone on his throwing hand in Wednesday's game, courageously insisted on playing today despite his painful injury. Red Bennett, suffering from a twisted knee, will be out of the game several days. Bettencourt played left field today with Hermann going back to third.

Eddie Hock was the only Buff to solve Payne's delivery, the third sacker hammering four hits.

Both Score In First

Turgeon doubled to the left field wall and rode home on Bettencourt's single in the first inning but the Buffs tied the count in their half. Hock singled over short and Moore walked after two were out. Hunt doubled to right, scoring Hock, but Sullivan made a speedy recovery and fine throw to catch Moore also trying to tally.

Turgeon started another Spudder rally in the third when he singled. Fitzgerald was hit by a pitched ball. Sullivan singled to left, scoring Turgeon.

The Buffs again knotted the count in the fifth. Hock singled to center and took second on Cunningham's sacrificial bunt. Moore doubled to left, scoring Hock.

Spuds Win in Eighth

Wichita Falls scored in the eighth with the run that was to prove enough to win. Hermann and Lapan walked and Payne singled to center, scoring the former.

The Spudders added another in the ninth for good measure. Fitzgerald singled but was forced by Bettencourt. Sullivan whanged a hit to center, Bettencourt stopped at second, and Hermann's single scored Bettencourt.

Andy Messenger probably will oppose the Buffs tomorrow in the third and final of the series.

Texans Paired for National Net Play

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 22. (AP)—The breakup of the tennis doubles combination of Berkeley Bell of Dallas, Texas, and Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., was revealed today with the entry of each with other partners for the national doubles play beginning at Chestnut Hill on Monday.

Bell, the intercollegiate champion, was paired with Lewis N. White of Austin, Texas, and Mangin, runnerup for the college singles crown, was entered with Norman F. Farquharson of South Africa.

CUBS TROUNCE PHILLIES, 16-7

Wilson's No. 31 Helps Cop Free-Hitting Affair

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22. (AP)—After enjoying 10 days or more of good pitching, win or lose, the Cubs ran into a free-swinging game here this afternoon as they opened their series against the Phillies, but proved equal to the emergency. The league leaders pounded four Philadelphia pitchers for 21 hits to win by 16 to 7.

Fred Blake gave way under the strain of a five-run Philadelphia rally in the fourth and Mike Cvengros entered the game just in time to get official credit for winning it. Cvengros was blown out of the box in the seventh after he had pitched a home run to Cy Williams and walked two men. Guy Bush finished, giving just one hit over the rest of the route.

Chicago's attack was featured by Hack Wilson's 31st home run. Score:

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

IT WOULD not be surprising if the Dallas Steers win the second half and thus avoid the necessity of engaging in a playoff for the Texas league championship. The Steers are the strongest array in the loop and they now are going at high speed, after a dismal start when the season was divided.

Injuries and illness wrecked the Herd machine in mid-season and Skipper Milt Stock was forced to present a patched-up club that had pitchers and catchers in the infield and outfield and outfielders in the infield. With his full strength available, Stock started herding the Steers toward the top. Their drive was marked by three straight from the Spudders in a series that stopped Wichita Falls cold when it seemed that nine was headed toward the flag. The Mavs are only a few games out of first place now and with a fair break in luck they stand an excellent chance of winning the second half.

ATTENTION is called by a writer for a news association that baseball moguls, acting President W. B. Ruggles of the Texas league and Dallas club owners in particular, were highly pleased with the Herd victories over the Spudders, which the scribe says served to silence the skeptics who held the opinion that the Mavs weren't trying to win the second half. Mention also is made in that scribe's piece that "fans and sports writers of the state have openly accused the Stockmen of a dive."

Well, it's news to me. Or perhaps I am too unsophisticated and out of touch with affairs to be wised up. Anyhow, I have not heard a single fan nor writer say a word about the Steers not trying to win. Nor have I seen any such insinuation in the press.

Fans and sports writers familiar with the situation know that disabilities put the Steers out of the race, temporarily.

Also, those familiar with the situation know that the players would profit nothing except the few days' pay, for participation in a playoff, as all receipts of such affairs go exclusively to the competing clubs and the Texas league. As the players derive all the profits of the first four games from the Dixie series, exclusive of expenses, it is obvious that the Dallas athletes would not permit some other club to win the second half with a chance of getting into the set with the Southern association winners, if they could help it.

And lastly, the general public, I believe, has confidence that baseball is on the level. The Yanks' four straight victories over the Pirates and Cards in successive world series and of our own Spudders' triumph in four games in the 1927 Dixie series would refute any argument that baseball isn't on the up and up.

A WEEK AGO the Spudders were sailing pennantward; now they are fighting desperately, with the odds against them. Two days ago the Cubs were held in the "future books" as even choice to win the world series; now they face a handicap in their own league and with the odds against them if they get into the autumnal classic. Such is the result of slumps and injuries.

When Red Bennett and Bud Stapleton left the game Wednesday at Houston from injuries, with the possibility they will be idle two weeks, two of the most important cogs were removed from the Galloway machine. Those mishaps, coming with the slump of recent days, about wrecked all pennant chances of the Wichita Falls club.

THE CHICAGO Cubs also have lost their first baseman. Charlie Grimm, field captain of the Bruins, playing the greatest game of his career, has a fractured hand and there is grave doubt he will be able to play ball again this year, even in the world series.

This has started as a week of jinxes to ball clubs. The St. Louis Browns, fighting for a first division berth in the American league, have lost the services of their two star outfielders, Heinie Manush and Fred Schulte, as a result of a collision while trying to field a ball Wednesday, and both are lost indifinitely to the Mound City club.

SERIES FEVER GRIPS PHILLY

Quaker Town Makes Preparations for Classic

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22. (UP)—After 14 years, world series fever has the Quaker City under its spell once more and preparations for the 1929 fall classic between the Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago Cubs are proceeding apace.

This city has not seen a world series game since the 1915 series between Pat Moran's Phillies and the Boston Red Sox, and Shibe park with its normal seating capacity of 40,000 will not come anywhere near taking care of the crowds which want to see the 1929 series. Officials of the Philadelphia club are seeking permission from city officials to build additonal bleachers seating about 20,000 over the streets back of the park.

May Use Stadiums

Some agitation has been heard about using the municipal stadium with its seating capacity of 75,000 for the series. But President Thomas S. Shibe has frowned upon the idea. If it were decided to use the stadium here and Soldier's field in Chicago, with its seating capacity of 110,000, the 1929 world series, if it lasts six or seven games, probably would draw close to $2,000,000 and break all previous attendance and gate receipt records.

Under the rotation plan the National league city will get the opening games as the American league had the honor when the Yankees opened at home last year.

Series to Open Oct. 8

The two major league races end on Sunday, Oct. 6, and the world series is tentatively scheduled to open at Wrigley field, Chicago, on Tuesday, Oct. 8. There is not likely to be a Sunday game this year, as Sabbath day baseball is prohibited in Pennsylvania and the jump is too long from Philadelphia to Chicago for an overnight trip.

Discussion of the outcome of a series between the Athletics and Cubs has brought to light the fact that the majority of the members of the Phillies believe the Cubs will win.

Former Big Leaguer Pitches No-Hit Game

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 22. (AP)—Contrary to current arguments that there isn't any pitching these days, Phil Weinert, hefty southpaw of the Memphis Chicks of the Southern association, turned in a no-hit victory against the league-leading Birmingham Barons the other day.

The former major leaguer must have had something on the ball, for he won despite wobbly support. His mates made five errors.

The lone Baron score came as the result of a base on balls and a pair of miscues.

GOLF'S AMATEUR Challengers

GEORGE VOIGT

By BRIAN BELL

NEW YORK.—George Voigt is a golfer of undoubted ability who has threatened repeatedly to win a major championship.

Last year he was the medalist in the amateur with a brilliant 36-hole score of 143, after he had failed to qualify at Minikahda in 1927.

Predictions were freely made that Voigt would move straight into the finals with Bobby Jones, as they were in different brackets. The haven thatched Voigt, however, was defeated in the semi-finals by Phil Perkins, British amateur champion, and it was Perkins, not Voigt, who furnished a Jones holiday in the final.

Voigt has won many lesser titles. He has had a long lease on the north and south amateur title and he is the only amateur to capture the Long Island open.

In 1928 he ran through a long string of invitation tournaments, winning most of them. He was not so good a year later and found it hard to get started this year.

The former Washingtonian, now a New Yorker, is a great iron player with a heavy accent on accuracy. He is not a long player from the tee but normally is a great putter.

The Pebble Beach course where the 1929 championship will be held pays dividends for accuracy and Voigt's enthusiastic supporters declare it is "made for him."

SOONER TAKES SHOOT HONORS

Oklahoma Indian Captures Clay Target Title

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 22. (UP)—An Osage Indian, Guy Payne of Oklahoma City, maintained a score or 199 to win the clay target championship of North America here today in the 30th tournament of the A. T. A.

Steve Crothers of Philadelphia was second and Frank Troeh of Portland, Ore., third after the shoot-off to decide the issue, both having broken 198 in the original shoot. Payne missed his 125th shot.

Miss Eunice Haggard of Winchester, Ky., is the clay target champion of her class, winning that event with 190. Mrs. J. C. Wright was runner-up with 188 while little Jeanett Jay, only 15 years of age, of Waverly, Iowa, was third with 186.

Bob Hardy, 16, Galesburg, Ill., won the junior championship with 99 out of 100 chances.

CORDELL BEATS WELLINGTON IN SECOND OF PLAYOFF, 7 TO 5

M'KENNA HITS CIRCUIT DRIVE

Third Game Carded Friday On Longhorn Field

Special to The Record News

WELLINGTON, Texas, Aug. 22.—Four runs were scored by Cordell today in the third inning, to give the Oklahomans a lead that Wellington could not overcome, and the locals dropped the second straight game of the Texas-Oklahoma playoff. The score was 7 to 5.

McKenna of Wellington started the scoring in the first inning with a home run and after scoring four in the third off Bunte, Cordell tallied two more in the fourth.

Wellington made a bid in the seventh when two walks, a hit batsman and hits by McMahon and McKenna scored four runs, but the rally was nipped and the tallying ended for the day.

The third game of the five-game series will be played here Friday. The teams will play Sunday at Cordell if a fourth game is necessitated.

This committee will comb the country for the best horses and the most skillful riders.

Big Dallas Crowd Sees Boxing Card

Police Make No Effort to Halt Free Show

DALLAS, Aug. 22. (AP)—One of the largest crowds that ever saw a boxing match in Dallas tonight saw Mickey Riley of Dallas outpoint his fellow townsman, Charlie Currens. The men are lightweights.

Larry Meinert, whose proposed bout between Duke Trammell of Fort Worth and Kid Kober of Dallas was halted by authorities Aug. 8, arranged tonight's bouts for the Southland Ice company's employes and their friends. A cordon of police helped keep the crowd in order and no attempt was made to stop the bouts. Four preliminary fights preceded the main go.

No admission was charged for the show.

National Headquarters Of Vets May Be Moved

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Aug. 22. (INS)—National headquarters of the veterans of foreign wars may be moved from Kansas City, Kan., to Washington, D. C., according to information received here today by Capt. R. B. Handy, national adjutant.

Friction between the organization and city officials of Kansas City, Kan., was believed by Handy to be the cause of the proposed transfer. When national headquarters were located here six years ago, Handy said, the city agreed to furnish office facilities rent free. Recently, he said, the city commissioners attempted to collect $3,600 annual rental.

Pawky Peter

The wind was off the lighthouse,
the wind was off the sea;
A weary wind to wrestle with, an
unco weird to dree;
But Pawky Peter Nicoll had the short hole in three.

Up the funnel of the fairway we faced the tempest's roar,
And each with sixes and with sevens diversified his score;
But Pawky Peter Nicoll did the long fifth in four.

Whole sandhills hurtled through the air, the burn was down in spate,
And some were here and some were there and every few were straight,
But Pawky Peter poked his way to the ninth in thirty-eight.

Fairly behind us raged the blast
when once we reached the turn,
And it tempted Pawky Peter's soul
its pawkiness to spurn,
And Pawky Peter pressed and topped—and landed in the burn.

And after several wondrous words,
"Aweel," he said, "it's true
That a heid win' 's a heid win', an'
a man kens what to do;
But, lads, tak' tent o' a follyin'
win'—an' a follyin' fortune, too!"

—H. B., in "Punch."

A Flock of Philosophy

There is a large flock or chunk of philosophy in the last line of the above verses. There are any number, whether it be in sport or in the general run of existence, who can buck a head wind, but who take a flop when a favoring gale arrives.

This is one of the reasons why football coaches preach the doctrine of pessimism to their teams. They like to get over the idea that only a desperate uphill battle will save the day—that each game is a head-wind contest, not one with a following breeze.

Few can travel with a favoring gale. Their feet run out from under them. Too much success, comparatively speaking, has done more damage than the harder road can bring about.

A Sporting Chance

In traveling more than 7,000 miles to compete in the next U. S. amateur golf championship at Pebble Beach Cyril Tolley, British amateur champion, takes a sporting chance that is worth noting. Tolley comes across as the leading amateur representative of British golf. In four or five attempts on this side he has qualified only once. On his arrival at Pebble Beach he will be one of 150 or 160 leading golfers where only 32 can get a shot at match play. Tolley's strongest point is match play. He is a hard, keen, determined fighter in a man-to-man match, much better at this than he is at playing against the par of a course. One or two bad holes may upset his medal round, but in match play he can match these with some brilliant turns.

Outside of four or five leading stars, the odds are about 4 to 1 against any other individual qualifying. Only 20 per cent of the field can survive after the thirty-six hole medal elimination is over. All of which the British champion understood before he started across the Atlantic.

There is this, however, in Tolley's favor. He is more accustomed to seaside links than he is to inland courses. Pebble Beach puts a premium on long hitting, especially those holes that demand stout carries against the wind. None of these carries will bother the British golfer. It might also be remembered that Tolley has been playing far better golf this season than he ever played before. He has curbed his keen desire to hit the ball a mile or two. He has cut down his slugging. Tolley has always been a fine putter, and this means more than a thin bit at either medal or match play golf.

Certainly every one present at Pebble Beach will be pulling hard for the big invader to make the grade and get his shot at match play, where he will be one of the features of the program. Tolley is always worth watching where his long hitting, his hard fighting and his personal magnetism are much above the general average.

There will be other good British and Canadian golfers in this championship with a good chance to qualify, notably Eustace Storey, Ross Somerville and Don Carrick. The international side will be high class in every respect.

It is usually around this time of the year that Babe Ruth decides to step on the gas along the home run speedway, and if he is anywhere near his old finishing stuff, Klein and others will soon begin to inhale a cloud of dust.

There will be any number of claims offered in behalf of some new heavyweight champion, but after looking over the present muddle, it will be at least six months or a year before the unscrambling process will be completed.

In less than 10 days now the first of the football squads will be back at work or play, or whatever you care to call it. And it was only a breath or two ago that violent arguments were still raging as to the rank and standing of the crop of 1928. These arguments will start at any moment now, as the average football debater sees no particular use in delaying his start. They can at least begin claiming until the final scores prove them wrong. And even final scores are often tossed out of the window in the ultimate summing up.

CHINA FEARS RED INVASION

Entire Reserve Force Is Mobilized

SHANGHAI, Aug. 22. (UP)—Chinese authorities moved tonight to move the entire strength of Manchuria against military invasion which officials assert is threatened by Soviet Russia.

Mobilization of the entire reserve forces of the three northwestern provinces—Heilungkiang, Kirin and Fengtien—was ordered by Chang Hsueh-Liang, the youthful war lord of Manchuria and son of the late Chang Tso-Lin.

It was estimated the reserve troops of the provinces will total 120,000 men.

Official advices received at Peking said 50,000 Manchurian troops moved northward from Mukden towards the border this morning.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. (AP)—Early advances in today's cotton market were followed by partial reactions under realizing or liquidation promoted by uncertainty over the weather outlook. Prices steadied up again in the late trading, however, and after selling off from 18.80 to 18.69 December closed at 18.76, on renewed covering accompanied by bullish crop reports from the Southwest.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 11 points in response to relatively firm cables. The initial demand was quite readily supplied by overnight sellings orders and talk of improving prospects for rains in the Southwest. These offerings were absorbed on setbacks of 5 or 6 points, and the market firmed up later in the morning on covering and talk of an improved technical position after the selling of yesterday.

Reports of continued dry hot weather in the Southwest, and reiterated reports of insect damage in some other sections of the belt no doubt contributed to the advance which carried October contracts up to 18.49 and March to 19.00 or about 18 to 20 points net higher.

There were some in the trade who thought that the tropical disturbance which was said to be moving toward the Yucatan channel might work into the gulf and cause rains in droughty sections of Texas and Oklahoma.

As a result of these conflicting views trading became comparatively quiet and after sagging off some 8 or 10 points during the early afternoon, prices firmed up again on renewed covering toward the close. Part of the late buying was attributed to reports that the Texas state commissioner of agriculture estimated the crop of that state at 4,356,000 bales.

Cable advices attributed the advance in Liverpool to covering and continental buying. Exports today 28,790, making 134,198 so far this season. Port receipts today 18,169. U. S. port stocks 527,859.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22. (AP)—Favorable cables and absence of relief in the western drought section influenced cotton prices to slightly higher levels today. Trading was moderate and fluctuations narrow. December advanced to 18.72 but eased off to 18.62 and closed at 18.67, or 11 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net advances of 11 to 13 points.

Liverpool cables were 5 to 7 points better than due. October eventually advanced to 18.45 and January 18.73, or 14 to 16 points above the previous close.

There was some selling and October declined to 18.37, 8 to 10 points below the highs. Covering developed in late trading and part of the loss was recovered. October closing at 18.40 and January 18.72.

Westinghouse and General Electric Feature Quiet, Steady Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. (US)—Westinghouse, with gain of 20 points and General Electric with jump of close to 8, featured a quieter but strong stock market today. Money remained in good supply with the rate easing from 7 to 6 per cent so spasmodic attempts of professional bears to depress the list were without avail. Steel and other Standard Industrials backed and filled in narrow price range but a few specialities moved ahead as a result of individual influence. Bethlehem gained 3⅛, Johns Manville 3¾, Corn Products 3⅞ and Radio 2⅜. Texas Corporation rendered the best performance in the Oil group adding 1⅞ to its advance. Coppers and Rails were dull and a little irregular. Turnover declined to the 3,500,000 share level.

Electric Investors' outstanding performance reflected expectation of special developments soon as a result of the huge appreciation in the value of its holdings. Directors meet tomorrow and important announcement may be made. Buying is reported to be for the strong interests who have been interested in the company since its inception. Classed among the Utilities by reason of Sidney Mitchell's sponsorship the company really is an investment trust with the most carefully selected list of diversified securities. Its last published statement gives reason to believe that profits on securities owned are equivalent to more than 75 per cent of the present market value of the stock for they have held leading place in market dealings recently.

The further increase in car loadings attracted more attention to the rails and it was stated that recently formed investment trusts were picking up both investment rails like Central and the more speculative issues such as New Haven and St. Paul. New Haven's higher dividend is confidently expected for next week. St. Paul with earnings of between $8 and $9 a share for the preferred is in a position to start payments on the senior issue whenever the directors see fit. Alleghany and Pennroad have proved disappointments to many holders but those who are close to the bankers have never lost faith. They expect both these investment trusts to take leading place in the market before the end of the year.

Recent buying of Asphalt is explained by report that plan has prepared for retirement of both bonds and preferred stock. Official announcement is expected soon. Revival of interest in the motor shares attracted attention to the better accessories. Sparks Withington benefited from reports that earnings in July exceeded those for the entire second quarter of last year while inquiries and business booked indicated further gained in coming months. Trico Products was expected to make important announcement soon that would indicate further gain in earnings. Warner bulls voiced expectation that John J. Raskob would be made an official of the new company that would be formed if the proposed merger with the Paramount Famous were carried out.

Increase in loans of $133,000,000 to a new record high of $6,085,000,000 is not as bearish as it might seem on first study. Bankers point out that the Electric Bond & Share, United Corporation stock and also the securities of new investment trusts had to be paid for during the week. Bills bought in the open market increased $14,000,000 but the gain was made almost entirely by reserve banks outside of New York. Allowing for the payments on new security issues it would seem that there was sufficient liquidation of weak accounts to more than offset new buying of stocks during the week reported on. An increase of $133,000,000 in loans during a period when new financing was taken care of should not disturb the banking powers.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. (AP)—Whip-saw action of the wheat market kept traders here continually on edge today, prices making numerous quick changes, but averaging lower as a whole. On extreme dips in price, speculative buying demand for wheat broadened, but when advances ensued selling pressure increased.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ⅛c to 1⅝c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed irregular, ⅛c net lower to 1⅝c advance, oats ⅛c to ⅛c down and provisions varying from 20c setback to a rise of 7½10c.

One of the chief depressing factors in the Chicago wheat market today was a sharper fall of Liverpool quotations than had been looked for. The weakness of values at Liverpool was ascribed largely to liberal shipments from Argentina, 6,595,000 bushels this week compared with 1,380,000 bushels a year ago, whereas Europe today bought only 500,000 bushels from North America. Primary receipts of wheat in the United States today 2,472,000 bushels against 2,051,000 bushels on the corresponding day last year and 3,122,000 bushels a week back.

Unfavorable crop reports from various parts of the corn belt, Nebraska and Kansas in particular, tended to strengthen corn values. Oats were weaker, sympathizing with wheat.

Most of the provision list was higher, responsive to an upturn in the value of hogs.

COLLECTORS OF COINS TO MEET

Real Gold Brick to Be On Display

By W. F. SULLIVAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. (UP)—All you numismatists who have a yen for gathering rare coins and souvenirs should bring your ancient krones, pesos, lires, guines, francs, yens and marks to jingle at the great coin display opening here next Sunday.

You may not have a bank account of seven figures but still you may be the big money man in your class. The numismatists are looking for the champion.

Three years ago, Virgin Brand of New York, with the greatest collection of rare coins ever assembled by one man, passed away. He spent 25 years and a quarter million dollars seeking in all corners of the world for his precious coins.

Equal Never Found

He was the champion and his equal has never been found, officials of the American Numismatic association said today.

Brand's collection dated back almost to the time of Chalmneser's Persian empire of 800 B. C., in the stone ages, when mints were not turning out coins by the millions daily. The mints that made his rare and precious money passed out of existence many years ago.

His collection is so rare that it is now under constant guard.

There will be approximately 1,200 numismatists here for the annual coin display this year and if their collections can be estimated in advance, a million dollars or more will be under the roof of a loop hotel throughout the exhibit—not counting the actual cash of the guests.

And "suckers" who could save themselves a second financial disaster, those who have bought gold bricks with lead centers, will be interested in another feaure of the display—a real gold brick.

"This brick contains real gold," an official said. "If you have never seen a brick of real gold, you have only to break through a line of policemen and guards at the exhibit to see it."

The association, organized in 1891, is the largest of its kind in the world. Rich, poor and rare personages are represented in the membership who pass their time in tracking down coins of rare and peculiar dates and shapes—the science of numismatology.

Composer To Quit Writing

Mascagni, Faced by Jazz, Gives Up

PARIS, Aug. 22. (INS)—Opera is dead. Long live jazz!

Such is the sardonic salute of Pietro Mascagni, composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and 13 other operas, who is about to give up in despair.

M. Mascagni does not like the new king of music. Jazz is merely an itching for new sensations, he says, and nobody with a heart or brain can bear it.

Opera which appeals to the heart is out-moded, and he, for one, will write no more for the present unsatisfactory, jazz-preferring public.

M. Mascagni made this scornful viewpoint, and in turn, has just been made the recipient of a torrent of abuse from various French composers, musical critics and other authorities who emphatically disagree with him.

M. George Auric and M. Henri Busser, two noted French composers, declare that the public today has sufficient musical taste to applaud the work of real musicians.

But who, they ask with considerable disdain, ever heard the name of any one of Mascagni's operas, barring "Cavalleria Rusticana"?

As for opera in general, they and M. George Ricou, director of the Opera Comique, unite in saying that the perfected radio and phonograph are taking it to the public in their own homes, thus accounting for the falling off in opera house audiences.

These critics thus reply to M. Mascagni:

"Opera dead? By no means! Long live music!"

New courses to be offered by the institution, in addition to the former curriculum, include machine bookkeeping and comptometer operation. Other courses offer training in practically all branches of accounting, stenography, typewriting, arithmetic, clerical work, and office management.

In connection with the reopening, it was announced, 50 new portable typewriters are to be given to the first 50 students enrolling for the combined business course. One complete scholarship also will be given away during the period of registration, it was said.

Cline's Commercial college had been in operation here about five years prior to its destruction early last month in one of the year's most disastrous fires. Prior to that time it had been known as the National School of Business.

REGENTS PLAN NEW BUILDINGS

Noted Architect for U. T. Work to Be Secured

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Aug. 22.—Services of one of the greatest architects in America as consulting engineer for ground and building plan of the university when it starts its construction program of 17 buildings involving approximately $5,500,000, will be sought by the board of regents, Buford T. Jester of Corsicana, regent and chairman of the committee to arrange for construction of the seven boys' dormitories, said Wednesday.

The regents will enter in the new era of building with a vision for 75 years in the future, he indicated, and there will be no piece-meal policy considered in the huge building and expansion program.

One of the present plans of the regents, evolved during their two-day session here, is for a magnificent library, to crown the campus from the vantage point of the "forty acres" now occupied by the main building which held the supreme point for nearly half a century. The building is now totally inadequate for the needs and several portions of it have been condemned. The library now in use, which is of comparatively recent construction, but yet long since outgrown to the expanding needs of the university, could be converted into a museum, Regent Jester said.

Bids are soon to be received for the construction of the outside-financed seven boys' dormitories and central dining plant. This plan of financing was approved by the legislature this year. The financiers have worked out an amortization plan whereby the room rent from the plants will pay for the outlay. The legislature appropriated $150,000 to furnish and equip the dormitories and dining plant.

Final details will be worked out at the next meeting of the regents for the construction of a $950,000 chemistry building, one of the first steps in the new building and expansion era.

First Two Bales of Cotton at Eldorado

Special to The Record News

ELDORADO, Okla., Aug. 22.—L. A. Benton who lives northwest of town on the Gus Skinner farm brought the first bale of cotton to town Tuesday, ginning it at the L. C. Barry gin.

The bale weighed 422 pounds, bringing 20 cents per pound. In addition to this the local commercial club presented Benton with a nice premium to show its appreciation of the first bale.

Ten minutes after Benton brought his bale Will R. Moorehead drove on the scales at the Farmers gin with the second bale.

Since the two bales mentioned above, several others have been brought in and it seems probable that in two weeks the cotton season may be in full swing, in spite of late planting.

Wichita Mail Carrier Talks

J. A. Roe Says Improvement Has Been Wonderful—Gives Orgatone Credit

"Rivaling the tremendous sweep with which it spread over the entire United States, the fame of the celebrated medicine, Orgatone, is growing in West Texas by leaps and bounds since its introduction here a few months ago. Thousands of the best known and most highly respected citizens of this state are now taking Orgatone and testifying daily to the remarkable benefits they are obtaining from its use.

James A. Roe, U. S. mail carrier, residing at 305 Scott, made the following interesting statement regarding the great benefit he received from taking Orgatone:

"For almost 20 years I had been bothered with constipation and biliousness. If I would stoop over I would get so dizzy I would almost fall and had dull throbbing headaches which kept me awake for hours many a night. Nothing I ate agreed with me and I always felt tired, restless and worn out.

"I have now taken six bottles of Orgatone and my improvement has been wonderful. The habitual constipation gradually disappeared, my head cleared up and I don't have those awful headaches or dizzy spells like I did. I can eat anything I want without it hurting me in the least and digest it, too. My nerves are as steady as a clock and when I go to bed at night I rest well and get up in the morning feeling refreshed and ready for a hard day's work on my mail route. I am certainly satisfied over the results Orgatone has had in my case and you can count me among your many boosters, for this meritorious remedy."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy, but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug Store.—Adv.

MAJESTIC: Warner Oland in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu." Jean Arthur, Neil Hamilton and O. P. Heggie in supporting cast. Vaudeville and sound news.

STRAND: Last day of "The Wheel of Life," with Richard Dix. Vitaphone vaudeville acts. Paramount sound news.

OLYMPIC: "Give and Take." Jean Harsholdt, Sam Hardy, George Lewis and Sharon Lynn in a modern caricature. Comedy. Pathe news.

GEM: "The Riding Demon," with Ted Wells. Chapter 7 of "Pirates of Panama." Comedy.

Just why many luminaries from Warsaw to Hollywood have risen up recently in eloquent defense of silent screen drama is seen in some measure at the Olympic theater during the present showing of "Give and Take." Aside from the fact that the production is innocent of even one serious thought, it is made highly enjoyable throught the expression of humor by action rather than amplified speech.

"Give and Take" runs its entire course without once resorting to close-ups. Possibly because none of its faces invited such close examination, but more probably because its director realized the greater appeal of constant action. While it has its full quota of wise-cracking subtitles, well leavened with Yiddish flavor, the picture leans upon the garrulous hands of George Sidney and the expressive face of Jean Hersholt, rather than upon subtitles, for its comedy.

The fact that George Sidney in the titles role made "Busy Izzy" a great show for 15 years, and later played Potash in "Potash and Perlmutter," suggests poignantly the characterization of John Bauer's factory foreman in "Give and Take." Sharon Lynn, who adorns the office of the canning factory as the foreman's daughter, is a native of Weatherford, Texas.

As a result of the talking-picture's rapid conquest of the motion picture field, defenders of art as fostered by the silent screen and those who see unparalleled possibilities in the union of sound and photography have taken their respective cases quickly to the public. Writers of the former class point to the French production of "The Passion of Joan of Arc," recently brought to this country, as a striking illustration of "films whose excellence would be diminished by the addition of any sound whatever." A foremost New York critic declared that in the field of artistic film creations, "Joan of Arc" takes precedence over anything so far produced. It is entirely silent.

In the New York Herald Tribune, Richard Watts Jr., says: "It is certainly not our contention that the audible films can not produce effective, if imitative, drama. When however, their success threatens a purely pictorial form, capable of such mighty works as "The Passion of Joan of Arc," and a charlie Chaplin comedy, in which talk would actually be a tremendous handicap, I can not feel completely friendly toward them."

Writing in the heart of Hollywood for "The Film Spectator," B. G. Barverman warns the makers of motion-pictures against the danger of throwing the baby out with the bath-water. Motion, he says, is a form of art "utterly free of intrusion by the mechanics of any other medium." This writer observes that Charles Chaplin and Doug Fairbanks have held their own in the motion picture world over long periods because they have been true to the nature of their medium, independent of producers who could not understand the art in motion. Preponderance of unnecessary close-ups has killed interest in films so afflicted, according to Mr. Braverman.

But representative of those who see in the sound-picture the possibility of undreamed of spectacles, H. G. Wells extols the wonder of productions which "have no limitations of scene, stage or subject matter. Behind the first cheap triumphs of the film today rises the possibility of a spectacle-music-drama, greater, more beautiful, and intellectually deeper and richer than any artistic form humanity has hitherto achieved."

SIX IDENTIFY ACCUSED MAN

Electran Points to Suspect As Cafe Bandit

Another witness was added late Thursday to the list of five who have declared positively that a suspect brought to the Wichita county jail from Oklahoma Sunday is a man who either participated in July, 1928, in holdups in Wichita county or who occupied the automobile in which the slayer of Charlie McDaniel at Dundee, Archer county, fled from the scene of the shooting, according to information given by Sam B. Spence, district attorney, and W. G. Bralley, sheriff.

R. H. Ray of Electra, last of those to face the suspect, was declared by the district attorney, to have asserted positively that the suspect is the man who held up Roszcelle's lunch stand on the Iowa Park road the night before Mr. McDaniel was slain. Mr. Ray was led to the prisoner's cell Thursday afternoon.

The witness was the second to accuse the suspect of holding up the Roszcelle stand. Mrs. Mabel Groves, who was a companion of Mr. Ray's on the evening of the robbery, identified the man Wednesday, Mr. Spence said.

"He talked to us for 15 minutes or more," the district attorney quoted Mrs. Groves as saying. "He made me spread my hands on the counter, and then made me remove a diamond ring from my finger."

Mr. Ray told the district attorney that the bandit compelled him to turn his pockets inside out. Mr. Ray's loss was only 85 cents, he said.

Mr. Bralley and Mr. Spence expressed uncertainty as to what their next moves in the investigation will be, although they asserted that their efforts are centered on the attempt to establish definitely whether the man who committed the lunch stand holdup was the one who shot Mr. McDaniel during an unsuccessful attempt to rob a bank at Dundee the following day. It is unlikely, Mr. Spence believes, that evidence will be in shape to submit to the grand jury for the August term of the 50th district court at Archer City, which is to take a final adjournment not later than Aug. 31.

One charge of robbery with firearms, naming no specific place, is already pending against the suspect in Wichita county. Further charges will be filed against him, the district attorney said, should he attempt to make bond on the pending charge.

Bryant Questions Scholastic Census Of County in Query to State Board

An inquiry to determine officially whether press dispatches Wednesday night were in error in reporting that the scholastic population of Wichita county decreased nearly 2,500 since last year was addressed by Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools, to the state department of education Thursday afternoon.

The report was contained in the announcement that the state scholastic per capita apportionment for 1929-30 has been set at $17.50. The reports stated that the scholastic population of Wichita county is 14,814.

The official census rolls, which have received the formal approval of the state department, show the population to be 17,511, an increase over the 17,365 of the previous year. Mr. Bryant expressed the conviction that the 14,814 report is an error.

On the basis of what he declares to be the official figures, the county superintendent asserted, Wichita county will receive approximately $46,000 more from the per capita apportionment than last year. The schools of the county will receive $306,441.50 as compared with $260,475 last year, he said.

Tucker School Students On Vaudeville Program

Four students of the Tucker School of Fine Arts starred in the "dance night" program at Bellevue park Wednesday night, contributing much to the success of the program, which was said to have been one of the best of the season.

Phyllis Seeds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seeds, in a special dance number, found especial favor with the audience. Emma Ruth Burnside in a tap dance, Betty Dyal Trotter in a reading and dance, entitled "Tomboy," and Alta Knight with her presentation of the De-Cushville hop, all proved popular artists with the vaudeville audience.

Through an error in the story concerning the program Wednesday night, the impression was given by The Record News that the above students were those of another school which was also represented on the program. The four named, however, were trained by the Tucker school.

Judge Says He Will Still Accept Checks For Aiding Cupid

Checks still are good as the emolument, if any, for performing marriage ceremonies in spite of the fact that the only one ever tendered him for such services proved "hot," according to the declaration of O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace.

Several days ago, he related, he performed his second ceremony since the new marriage license law went into effect last June 13. The groom tendered an out-of-town check for $5. Thursday it came back marked "no account."

The judge estimates he has performed nearly 1,000 ceremonies since he has been justice of the peace.

"I've heard them tell me they would remember me later—and some of them have," he declared. "Some have told me they were broke, and I was glad to serve them. But only one has paid by check, and I guess I'll frame it."

Ban Horse Hearses

PARIS.—The slow moving horse-drawn hearses will be seen no longer on Paris streets. An edict of the municipal council forbids such vehicles, specifying that all hearses be motor driven. The objection to the horse-driven arse was that it delayed traffic too long.
