During inmate riot...

Stab wounds ruled as cause of death

According to the preliminary autopsy report, stab wounds to the upper body were the immediate cause of death of the Wallace Unit prisoner who died in last week's disturbance.

Rene Guerra, 23, of Abilene, died during what's believed to be an organized gang related attack at the prison June 25. Five inmates were injured when a Hispanic gang made a surprise attack on other Hispanic inmates, believed to be members of a rival gang, in three areas of the prison unit.

Guerra, who had been at the unit three months, was beaten, stabbed and received severe blows to his head during the attack.

The preliminary autopsy report from the Southwest Forensic Institute in Dallas indicates that the inmate died from the stabs to the trunk of his body rather than the blows to the head, Mitchell County Sheriff Patrick Toombs said.

The Sheriff's Department is continuing to investigate, interviewing staff and prisoners regarding the incident, and compiling information from investigations conducted by prison officials and the Texas Rangers, to present to the grand jury.

Results of the investigation will be presented to the Mitchell County Grand Jury July 20 if all the reports, including further autopsy reports, are received by that time, Sheriff Toombs said.

Unit lockdown eased after investigation

The Wallace Unit continued to be in lockdown this week following a gang related disturbance in which one inmate died and five were injured.

Assistant Warden Jackie Edwards explained that the purpose of a lockdown is to quell some type of disturbance.

The full unit lockdown last week has been changed to a partial unit lockdown this week involving 90 prisoners, "who are believed to be affiliated with certain groups," said Edwards.

There are several types of lockdowns which are standard procedures in Texas prisons, he explained: system-wide lockdowns, unit lockdowns and partial lockdowns. Serious distrurbances such as last week's suspected planned gang related attacks, which occurred in three different areas of the prison at the same time, resulted in a lockdown of the entire unit.

"The purpose is to evaluate, do interviews and weed out those involved," he said.

"It's not punishment but a management tool," Edwards explained.

Even if there are no problems, Texas prison system policy requires units to have a lockdown at least once a year for a "shakedown" search for contraband items, which also gives guards an opportunity to verify property ownership on personal items such as radios and coffee pots.

During a lockdown, there is very minimal movement among the inmates. There is no school, no work program, no recreation and no eating in the dining hall.

Prisoners are required to stay in their cells except for those needing emergency medical treatment and the trustees needed to maintain necessary prison activities such as meals, laundry and taking care of trash.

Sack meals are prepared in the kitchen and taken to the cells.

In the initial stage of a lockdown, such as the current one,

Hayride to feature good country music

...Don Walser to perform here

Real country—genuine, traditional Texas honky-tonk style country, complete with yodeling—will be heard in Colorado City this Friday, July 7, with the appearance of Don Walser at the old Palace Theater.

Walser's performance begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Palace, now called the C-City Hayride, in downtown Colorado City.

Walser also lived in Snyder for many years.

His debut Watermelon album, Rolling Stone From Texas, has been described as pure Texas country, genuine country and western music as it was and always should be.

Walser, who is 61, "casts an unmistakable spell, his voice a hurling wind of pioneer passion blowing over the West Texas plains

Rains are plentiful ... now farmers need hot weather

Mark this year on your calendar.

There's been plenty of rain in Mitchell County! says County Agent Joe Raff.

"We just need a lot of hot, dry weather for awhile," Raff said recently about the cotton crop.

Everything is in, he reported, even though some farmers planted three times because of the frequent rains this year.

"The majority of the crop looks good," he said, even though the county is behind on heat units needed to make a crop.

Raff also said that boll weevils were low this year. He's been checking the 24 boll weevil traps weekly that he has spread around the county.

"I haven't seen many boll

A SOVIET DESIGNED PLANE WINS THE MOST UNUSUAL PLANE AWARD AT THIS YEAR'S FOURTH OF JULY FLY-IN. Pilot Randy Long of Coleman holds the trophy he received for the YAK 18A, a military trainer for Soviet pilots.

Annual Fly-In sets new attendance record

The 33rd Annual Fly-In, a Fourth of July tradition here, set attendance records this year. More than a hundred pilots flew in for the event as well as many visitors. The exact number of visitors is hard to determine, said Fly-In Chairman J. O. Dockery, but 577 people bought breakfasts and regular attenders of the event agreed that they had never seen so many people or such long lines waiting for breakfast.

Nancy Robinson Masters, an aviation writer from Abilene, has been the emcee for the fly-in for the past several years. A crowd favorite, she's written five books, including her latest, The Fabulous Flying Flag Farm, a children's book about the Pledge of Allegiance.

With flags blowing in the wind, patriotic music coming from the loudspeakers, airplanes lining the Colorado City airport and Mitchell County residents and visitors chatting over a typical American breakfast, Masters said there's nowhere else she'd rather be than Colorado City on the Fourth of July.

"This is the real America," she said.

With such a large attendance, this year's fly-in lasted longer than previous years when the event ended by mid-morning. The presentation of awards this year began after 10 a.m.

A Colorado City youth, Brady Robinette, 17, won the award for the youngest pilot.

Street lighting test underway

A test of street lighting is underway by the City of Colorado City and TU Electric and the city is looking for citizen input during the testing phase, said Police Chief David Montgomery.

The city will be disconnecting 75 street lights from now until the end of the year to test the city's lighting needs.

By eliminating unnecessary lights, the city could reduce the yearly street lighting electric bill by as much as $16,000.

Chief Montgomery and TU Electric Representative Judy Stewart began an initial review of street lighting June 27 at 2nd Street, Hickory Street and east of Hickory Street.

The test involves temporarily disconnecting wires to street light poles at the following locations:

Loraine citizens support outreach clinic

Loraine citizens are supporting a proposal to place a Mitchell County Hospital outreach clinic in their town.

"We'll even provide them with a building," said Loraine grocery store owner T. J. Green.

Petitions with 217 signatures in favor of a clinic in Loraine were presented to the Hospital Board at their regular June meeting.

Petition forms appeared throughout Loraine—at the grocery store, restaurant, senior citizen center, nursing home and city hall—following the board's May meeting when board members discussed a proposal to place a clinic in Loraine.

Since that meeting board members said they have received numerous phone calls on the proposal. Board President Fred Thompson said he had received 30 phone calls in the last month from Loraine residents who want a clinic. Thompson polled the callers, asking them where they were currently receiving medical care and 22 of the 30 reported they were using Sweetwater physicians.

Dr. Dee Roach, chief of staff, told board members he was in support of an outreach clinic and

Burger King plans to open September 1

The new Burger King in Colorado City plans to open the first of September, announced Burger King spokesman Ron English last week.

The business will be one of the first combo units Burger King has established in West Texas, combining a service station, McCormick Oil owned by Mike Dennis in Snyder, with the fast food building.

The restaurant will offer a full menu and will feature hand dipped Blue Bell ice cream.

English said 18 people will be employed at the restaurant here. Applications will be accepted the middle of August.

Burger King, the second largest burger chain in the world, has over 10,000 restaurants.

Plans for the local business include community involvement, English said. Known as good citizens, the company's policy is to take an active role in the communities they serve. In Abilene, Burger Kings participate in the Adopt-A-School program, offering rewards and incentives for good grades in school.

Southwest Builders in Big Spring is currently constructing the 440 square foot building at I-20 and Hwy. 208.

Local artist Leola Anderson was asked recently to paint a portrait for the "Patron of the Arts" benefit dinner for the Art Institue of the Permian Basin.

Artists from around West Texas were asked to finish a piece of art while guests mingled and watched before the black tie dinner.

Leola had the honor of being asked to paint the portrait of the night's honoree, 82-year-old philanthropist Don Williams.

An auction was held following the dinner to raise funds for the institute. Leola's painting was bought by a local supporter and presented to Mr. Williams.

The event was held at the Odessa Country Club.

Charles said that Saturday night's crowd was the largest crowd to attend a High Plains Junior Rodeo this year.

Jessie Mae Merket hosted the June meeting of the Susan Everman Baptist Women's Group of the First Baptist Church.

Billie Margaret Harrison, group leader, conducted the meeting. Earline Sellier led the calendar of prayer for missionaries with birthdays on this day, using cut-out praying hands with missionaries' names on them.

The program topic was "Co-laborers with God," and was introduced by a video. Marge Sullivan directed the program, saying that "Co-laborers Belonging to God" was more accurate.

Jean Hardee told of the history of the early Baptist churches, Mary Lloyd spoke about the growth of missions' beliefs and Betsy Aycock described working with other evangelical churches and Marge Sullivan concluded the program by describing the cooperative missions outreach of a group of different evangelical churches in southern California.

Members present were Mary Lloyd, Marge Sullivan, Jean Hardee, J. Mae Dunn, Frances Cooper, Margaret Bodine, Catharine Morris, Billie Margaret Harrison, Doris Carter, Earline Sellier, Betsy Lee Aycock and the hostess, Jessie Mae Merket.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (SWBT) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to offer a new service called Prepaid Calling Card (PCC) Service. A PCC would offer the customer the ability to place local and long distance (intraLATA, interLATA and international) calls from any telephone without the use of coins, credit cards, conventional calling cards, or operator assistance. A PCC would have a pre-established value, paid for in advance, that would decrease in value as calls were completed. This service would be similar to SWBT's current Calling Card Service in that SWBT would carry the local and intraLATA calls originating in its region. InterLATA and international calls would be carried by the Interexchange Carrier selected by the customer. Prepaid Calling Cards would be sold in varying denominations, such as $10.00, $20.00 and $50.00. The rate for local and intraLATA calls would be $0.40 per minute for all times of day. The rates for interLATA and international calls would be determined by the Interexchange Carrier that handles the call. First year revenues from PCC are estimated to be approximately $11 million. SWBT proposes that this application become effective on August 7, 1995.

Persons who wish to comment on this application should notify the Commission by July 28, 1995. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or you may call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf. COOK'S CORNER

Hill developed the recipe to spice-up her weekday menu with an unusual and convenient dish. Mexican Beef Soup in Tortilla Bowls can be prepared in 25 minutes. The recipe combines lean ground beef with beef consomme, sliced onion, corn, diced tomatoes with green chilies, Mexican seasonings and fresh cilantro.

In an original twist, the recipe calls for pressing flour tortillas into soup bowls and crisping them before ladling in the soup. Cooks without tortillas can use corn chips to line the soup bowls.

Hill is no stranger to winning ways with beef. At the most recent National Beef Cook-Off, in 1993, she took third place with a recipe for ginger-spiced Calypso Steak that can be prepared in 25 minutes also. Hill was a finalist in the 1990 National Beef Cook-Off.

Fifteen finalists from 15 different states will compete in the cook-off to be held Sept. 22-23 in Little Rock. Recipes will be judged by prominent food professionals for taste, ease of preparation and family appeal.

The next National Beef Cook-Off will take place in 1997 in Tampa, Fla. For rules, write to National Beef Cook-Off Entry Information, 444 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60611.

MEXICAN BEEF SOUP IN TORTILLA BOWLS

1 1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
1 lg. onion, cut lengthwise in half and cut crosswise into thin slices
1 T. ground cumin
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 cans (10 1/2 oz. each) beef consomme
1 can whole kernel corn, drained
1 can diced tomatoes with green chilies, undrained
1 cup water

6 med. (8") flour tortillas
2 T. chopped fresh cilantro

Heat Dutch oven or large saucepan over medium heat until hot. Add ground beef and onion; brown 4 to 5 minutes, breaking beef up into 3/4 inch crumbles. Pour off drippings. Season beef with cumin and pepper. Stir consomme, corn, tomatoes and water into beef. Bring to a boil; reduce heat to low. Simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes. Meanwhile gently press tortillas into 6 individual microwave-safe (2 cup) bowls. Microwave, 3 bowls at a time, on HIGH 5 to 6 minutes or until tortillas are slightly crisp, rotating and rearranging cups halfway. Stir chopped cilantro into soup; spoon soup into tortilla bowls. Garnish with cilantro sprigs, if desired; serve immediately. Makes 6 servings. Cook's tip: Tortilla chips may be substituted for tortilla bowls. Spoon soup into 4 individual soup bowls; serve with tortilla chips.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

By Jim Baum

Playing football at Colorado High and later at Texas A&M taught Warren E. (Red) Church to contend with some tough situations. But nothing he had experienced growing up in Colorado City compared with being shot at by Germans.

As a bombardier-gunner on a flying fortress, Church was accustomed to seeing enemy planes close in on his squadron of B-17s. There was also the problem of German flak exploding close to the plane, rocking it at times with near misses. And there were times when the German gunners didn't miss.

Take, for example, the mission in December 1942 when Church's plane, "Special Delivery," was on a bombing mission over Tunis. All of a sudden an 88mm shell ripped through the wing between the two motors and then exploded 75 feet away.

The ship was later able to land, "coming in on a wing and a prayer," Church noted, but the craft had to be junked. Shortly thereafter, "Special Delivery Number 2" became the crew's plane. That particular flying fortress would be credited with downing eight enemy planes and would end up making more than 70 bombing runs. Warren made 50 combat flights himself.

"I was very lucky," he says quietly today.

His parents, Joe and Atta Church, had moved to Mitchell County from Snyder when the little redheaded Warren was just six years old. When he graduated from Colorado High in 1934 Red was a strapping six-foot three, 200 pounds and captain of the Wolves football team his senior year. He went on to play football at A&M.

Church remembers his high school coach Jim Cantrell as "kinda tough, but he was good. He always wanted us to work harder." The hard work provided good training for later when lives hung in the balance. The diary Church kept during his service career brings events vividly to life.

On a bombing run February 4, 1943: "Jumped by a lot of fighters over target. Lt. Broderick and a new crew were shot down. Several bailed out and were machine gunned by fighters."

February 9, 1943: "Went to Sousse with 1,000 pound bombs. Hit docks and shipping. Good bit of flak. We got a big hole through bombbay doors when they were opened."

Almost every day, weather permitting, the Special delivery Number 2 was on missions.

February 12, 1943: "I have 22 missions. May get to go home for awhile after I get about 30. Boy, that will be wonderful."

For the next several days, the bombing missions were made in cloudy, wet weather. "Dropped bombs, but didn't see the results," Church noted in his diary on February 16. On the 17th and 18th, "bad weather." Finally, on February 20, the Special Delivery was airborne again. "On mission to Gabes Airdrome. Cloudy over target so returned without dropping bombs."

By the end of February, Church had already flown 25 missions and was the recipient of the Distinguished Flying Cross. The excitement of his military career was a far cry from his growing up days in Mitchell County. Back then, a little trip to a watermelon patch gave the redhead and his friends a buzz. But now, these forays were life and death missions.

Church remembers one time as a boy he and some cohorts raided a watermelon field south of Colorado City. His friends were on their horses while Church was riding a donkey.

"We saw the people at the house and they got in their car and started our way," he told us. "We [the boys] took off toward home.

Unfortunately, between "home" and the watermelon field was the Colorado River.

"It was about 150 feet wide and ankle-to-knee deep back then," Church recalls. The boys on horseback made a clean getaway.

"That dad-gum donkey stopped right out in the water to get a drink. I couldn't get him to move," Church laughed.

Finally, the donkey got his fill, then trotted off before his pursuers caught up with them.

March 2, 1943: "Went on a mission to La Goulette Harbor at Tunis. Fighters jumped us before bombing run. I had my best chance to down a ME 109G, but my gun jammed. I could have reached out and slapped two of them as they came by the nose of our ship."

By mid-March, Church and his buddies had earned a breather. He noted on March 17 through 31, "We arrived at Algiers and the rest camp was a resort hotel on a cliff overlooking the Mediterranean Sea. It was a pretty place, good food, bed and bath with hot water. We also went swimming and saw several shows. I saw General Dwight D. Eisenhower in Algiers when we left."

The recreation in World War II was far removed from what Church was used to as a boy growing up in Colorado City. "Wasn't too much to do back then," he said. "We either were at the Colorado River swimming or trying to ride calves, horses or mules. Anything that would buck."

By early April he was back in the air again and the Special Delivery Number 2 was on target. Church did note in his diary on April 2 and 3, "My wedding anniversary. I can't realize I have been married one year."

April 4, 1943: "The Special Delivery Number 2 was on a flight to hit an airdrome near Naples. "There were about 90 planes on the field," Church wrote. "We did good bombing and I'm sure we got 30 or 40 of them. Flak started hitting us as I closed the bombbay doors. It was intense and accurate. We got 10 holes in the plane. One piece of flak nearly cut the parachute straps off the shoulder of the waist gunner, but didn't hit him. Another landed right behind "Shot" [Lt. Raymond A. Shotsinger] and I. The trip was seven and a half hours long. Our plane will be out two days to be patched up."

On April 6, during another mission, "fighters hit us about 30 seconds before bombs away. 20mm cannon shells hit us in several places. An explosive 20mm hit in the nose with Shotsinger and I just missed Shot. We were very lucky."

A week later, luck ran out for Shotsinger. "April 12, 1943: A day I will long remember. We were to fly in another plane as ours was still being repaired. We were shot with flak and Lt. R.A. Shotsinger was hit in the head with a piece of flak. I don't think he knew what hit him as it was so sudden. He died within about 10 minutes. I did all I could for him, but it was no use. He was one of my best friends and the best all 'round man I ever had the privilege to know."

April 13, 1943: "All our crew and several others sent to the funeral at Constantine. He was buried in a nice cemetery and had flowers on his grave."

The missions for Church continued throughout April and May of 1943. Then, May 30, he finished his 49th mission. One more and he would be rotated back to the states.

May 31, 1943: Hang on. On a mission east of Naples, German fighters (210s) "started attacking us at the coast." The Special Delivery Number 2 evaded the attackers and Church wrote about the return trip, after he had dropped the craft's bombs.

"We flew along about 300 feet above the water and between Sardina and Sicily some enemy fighters intercepted us. I was in the co-pilot's seat at the time. Everyone started shooting and I went down in the nose to my gun in nothing flat. We kept the fighters off us. We got back okay but [it] was very exciting for my last mission."

The Ft. Worth Star Telegram later ran a story on Church and his 50 missions. During a leave back in Colorado City, to visit his parents, the former Colorado City football star was quoted as saying, "Don't let anybody fool you. You don't ever get over being a little scared when flak comes at you and 40 German fighters attack your squadron."

Warren (Red) Church is now 81 years old. He's in good health and lives in Sherman, Texas. His hair is "about half grey and has lost its red tint," he told us. "But it still covers my head."

Six months ago he had all his teeth pulled and he says he lost weight down to 190 pounds. But I'm back at 200, which is what I weighed when I finished high school."

The Fourth of July means a lot to retired Lt. Col. Warren Church. He says he still gets a thrill when he hears patriotic music. "People don't realize how lucky we [Americans] are," he stated.

We are lucky. Lucky to have men like Warren Church and millions of others who have served their country in the armed forces. He says he still comes back through Colorado City occasionally. Next time, stop in, Colonel. We'll open a watermelon and you won't have to ride a donkey to get it.

Dog shows to be held in Big Spring this weekend

The Concho and Big Spring Kennel Clubs will present their summer dog shows July 8 and 9 at San Angelo's Coliseum. Admission is free. Judging will begin at 8 a.m. both days.

"Dog shows are a good place to learn more about breeds you might want to own, and to meet responsible breeders," said BSKC breeder referral co-chairman Carole Owen.

"Pet buyers can help prevent disposable dogs by learning about a breed's temperament, trainability, grooming and health problems before buying a dog," she said.

The shows will feature almost 1,000 dogs from about 100 of the American Kennel Club's 137 recognized breeds. AKC-licensed judges from Texas, California, Florida, Missouri and New Mexico will officiate.

The Concho Kennel Club's annual all-breed conformation and obedience match will begin at 7 p.m. July 8 at the San Angelo Coliseum. Pre-entries cost $4 per dog and close July 5. On-site entries cost $6 per dog and can be made from 1-5 p.m. July 8. For match information, contact chairman Robert Theis (915) 653-8945.

"A match is a good place for novice owners and dogs to learn how to show," Owen said. "AKC-registered dogs three months or older are eligible to enter, and beginners are welcome."

For information on the Concho Kennel Club's July 8 show, contact show chairman Alvin New (915) 653-3487.

For information on the Big Spring Kennel Club's July 9 show, contact show chairman Susan Roeber (915) 683-9199 or Carole Owen (915) 263-3404.

Members of the outreach clinic board committee plan to meet with the Loraine City Council to discuss the proposal, review options for the clinic site, such as the Johnson building or a mobil unit, and bring the results of the negotiations back to the hospital board for review.

The city of Loraine has suggested the Johnson Building as a possible site for the clinic. The building, which was used as a medical clinic in the past, has been donated to the city.

The next meeting of the Loraine City Council is scheduled for Thursday, July 13.

FLY-IN

The award for the longest distance flown to the event went to Louis Latham of Hobbs, N.M.

A 1941 Vultee BT 13 won the award for the oldest aircraft and was piloted by Allen Bennett, Commander of the Confederate Air Force. Members of the organization brought seven planes to the event. The 53-year-old Vultee, a military basic trainer, is scheduled to fly across the nation later this year to participate in the Freedom Flight America commemorating World War II.

A YAK 18A, flown by Randy Long of Gouldbusk in Coleman County, won the award for the most unusual aircraft. Long said the 1967 model Soviet designed plane was built in China. Used as a military trainer for Soviet fighter pilots, the plane was retired in 1987.

The YAK is only the third one to be brought to this country, he said. In presenting the awards, Masters noted the significance of the Soviet plane, once used to fight its enemies, winning a top award at a fourth of July celebration.

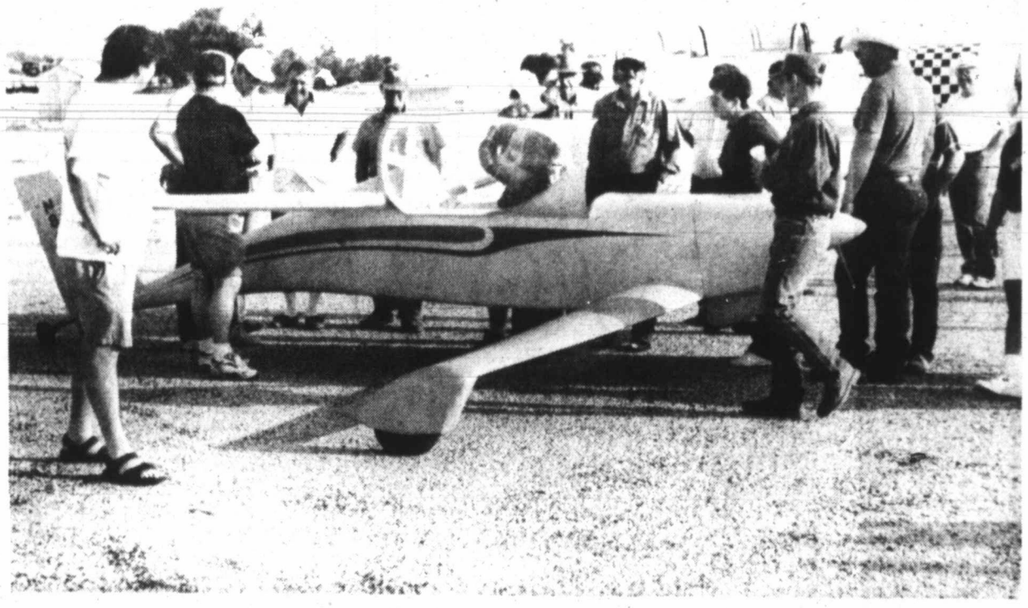

"That's what freedom is all about," she said.

DPS training school applications sought

The Texas Department of Public Safety is accepting applications for October 1995 and February 1996 recruit training schools.

In-state applications will be accepted until August 25.

For full information about application requirements, interested persons may call regional recruiters at DPS offices in Midland (915) 697-2211 or Lubbock (806) 747-4491. Applications are available at all DPS offices.

Rodeo was big success

The High Plains Junior Rodeo, held here last Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, was a big success, event organizers said.

Over $5,000 was raised with the proceeds to be split between the two sponsors for the event, the DARE program and the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, said Officer Charles Rice, rodeo coordinator.

The rodeo was the first junior rodeo to be held here since 1990.

Attendance was good for each performance and stands were packed Saturday with an estimated 600-800 people attending the final night.

Margaret Ann Jameson of Mitchell County won the Best All-Around competitor award. The local teenager received a belt buckle donated by Red Barn Barbecue and the Wallace Unit Prison field bosses. The buckle was made by prisoner labor.

Leon Chelf of Baird won the drawing for the 1995 Ford Ranger. Baird, the father of Billie Brookover, was not present for the drawing Saturday evening but plans to visit this week and complete arrangements to pick up the truck.

A YOUNG RODEO PARTICIPANT competes in the barrel racing contest Friday, June 30 at the D.A.R.E./Chamber of Commerce-sponsored High Plains Junior Rodeo. This was the first time the rodeo was held in Colorado City since 1990.

Locals place in rodeo

Several Mitchell County participants placed in the High Plains Junior Rodeo. The rodeo, sponsored by D.A.R.E. and the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, was held in Colorado City June 29 through July 1.

Morgan Bassham won first place in 13-19 saddle/bareback.

John Erwin and Jeremy Munoz placed second in 16-19 team roping.

Joe Ross Jameson placed second in 13-15 tie down and fourth in 13-15 team roping.

Margaret Jameson won first place in 9-12 goat tying, seventh in 9-12 barrels and third in 9-12 breakaway. She also won Mitchell County All-Around.

of his youth," wrote a music critic for the Dallas Morning News.

He's been playing music since his teens when he shared bills with fellow West Texan Buddy Holly and his repertoire includes thousands of classic country songs he's learned over the years.

Working for the National Guard and later as a state auditor, he continued playing music by night, whenever and wherever he could, he said. In 1961 Walser recorded a few 45s while based in Big Spring. After relocating to Austin in the late `80s, he cut three independent cassette releases and a CD. He and his Pure Texas band have become a part of the Austin country scene, attracting a cult following and rave reviews for his preservation of classic country.

LOCKDOWN

While some inmates might complain that they weren't involved in the recent disturbance involving rival Hispanic gangs, Edwards said most of them take lockdowns in stride, especially those who have been in the prison system for awhile and know that it's standard practice.

Regular duties are assigned to the guards although the restricted prisoner movement changes their normal routine somewhat and, at times, guards have to pick up some functions normally done by inmates.

The initial full unit lockdown changed to a partial lockdown following an evaluation of the situation by prison administrators at the end of last week.

City and county officials, dependant on inmate labor for many current civic projects such as cleanup before events and renovations on the ag barn, said they felt the impact of the lockdown.

"We wanted to get the work crews back out as soon as possible," said Edwards.

A crew worked at the airport Friday to help prepare for the July 4th Fly-In.

"This is only a test," emphasized Chief Montgomery. "We're in the process of determining what is needed."

"Just because a street light is turned off, doesn't mean that a final decision has been made."

Citizen input is important in this test, he said. Feedback can help the city determine where they need to turn back on existing lights, where they need to upgrade lights to more powerful receptacles and where eliminating lights might create dark areas that are unsafe.

Feed Store changes owners

"Everything will be the same. You won't even be able to tell it's changed hands," said Rusty Fleming, the new owner/manager of the Feed Store B-B-Q restaurant.

Fleming and the former owner, Mike Holloway, planned a smooth transition from one owner to the next. For the past few weeks, Fleming, formerly of Carlsbad, N.M., has been working with the owner to learn the operation of the business Holloway "built from scratch."

"There's no reason to change," said Fleming, noting the successful business's procedures for quality control to ensure consistently good food and service.

Holloway and his wife Sharon, who began the business at the Ft. Wood Complex a year ago, will be moving to Custer, S.D. to join an outfitting business geared for the tourist trade.

"It's something I've always wanted to do," said Holloway.

Jail overcrowding comes to end

More than 18,000 new inmates are entering Texas state prisons this summer as completion of Texas' $1.5 billion prison expansion program hits full stride.

The prisoners will be moved from county jails to 13 new state facilities operated by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ), ending years of overcrowding in county lockups costing the state more than $650 million.

These units, plus another facility opening in August, will give TDCJ a total of 104 units with capacity to house 133,000 regular prison inmates and state jail confinees, by far the largest prison system in the free world.

"Finally, thanks to the vision of the legislature and the taxpayers who approved the prison construction bonds, Texas is ahead of the curve," James A. Collins, executive director of TDCJ said. "And the citizens of Texas can be proud that TDCJ accomplished this massive building program on time and within budget."

The June and July openings involve massive logistical operations for TDCJ in moving inmates, staff and supplies.

More than 400 tractor trailer loads of supplies, from food to furniture, must be delivered to the new units by TDCJ's 160-truck fleet from agency warehouses and factories around the state (mattresses alone will fill 60 trailers coming out of TDCJ's mattress factories in Huntsville and Lamesa).

More than 4,900 personnel, including 3,400 security officers, must be put in place to staff the units opening this summer. Among the prison security forces, officials hope for a mix of half experienced staff transferred from other units and half new staff who have been through one of the agency's three training academies.

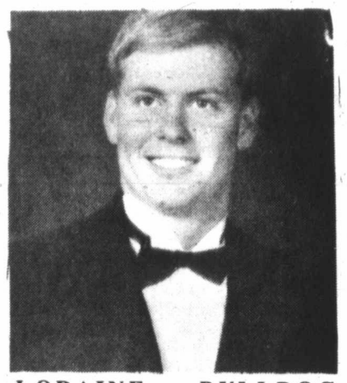

Then come the prisoners themselves in a series of moves totaling 500 busloads hauled by the prison system's 100 "chain buses."

The inmates will be marshaled by county sheriffs at strategic sites around the state. From those points the inmates will be bused to one of five prison units equipped to do intensive diagnostic, testing and classification of each prisoner. Diagnostic units are located in Abilene, Tennesse Colony, Beeville and two in Huntsville.

In the diagnostic centers, each inmate is tested extensively to determine propensity for violent behavior, likelihood as an escape risk, educational level and special needs. The diagnostic process determines the inmate's prison security level and ultimate unit assignment.

After the summer move-ins, TDCJ gets a breather before moving into the final units of the expansion program. Construction will be completed on another 14 units throughout the latter part of this year and early 1996, but opening of those units is being delayed.

TDCJ officials say that addition of those final 14 units—giving the system total capacity of 146,000—would actually create temporary excess capacity in late '95 and early '96. In light of that, TDCJ agreed to a legislative request to delay those openings and save $52 million from TDCJ's '96-'97 budget.

LORAINE BULLDOG CRAIG FINLEY was named District 7A MVP, the Lubbock Avalanche All South Plains Class 1-3A and All State Pitcher. Only 28 of 1,800-2,000 players were named. A 1995 graduate of Loraine High School, Finley plans to play college baseball.

LORAINE BULLDOG CORY WOODDELL was named to the first team in District 7A baseball and All State Outfielder. A senior, he received pre-season football honors by being mentioned in Tommy Wells' 6-Man Football, the nation's only publication dedicated to 6-man football.

Turnrow meeting set for July 17

By Joe Raff, CEA-AG

There will be a turnrow meeting on July 17 starting at 1 p.m. at Carl Guelker's farm on the corner of I-20 and FM 280. The participants will compare differences in the 2 x 2 and 6 x 1 planting pattern.

Then we will evaluate the cotton variety test plot of Brooks Wallace located on West I-20. The plot consists of 14 different varieties of cotton.

At both stops the participants will also learn how to plant map cotton. Plant mapping has served as a valuable tool for local growers. Through the process, a grower can estimate yield and when to apply various growth regulators and harvest aids.

At the conclusion of the meeting, each participant will receive two CEUs.

Hope to see you there!

Wetlands conservation program now available to landowners

Texas landowners will be able to enroll eligible acreage into USDA's third Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP) signup until June 30, 1995.

Landowners may offer their land for the program at their USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) office. The program restores and conserves former wetlands through the purchase of easements from landowners.

The WRP provides a unique opportunity for farmers to retire marginal agricultural lands and reap the benefits of having wetlands on their property. WRP obtains conservation easements from participating landowners and provides cost-share payments for wetland restoration.

Lands eligible for WRP include restorable wetland areas that have been used intensively for cropping and forage production. Adjacent land necessary to protect the restored wetland will also be included.

Limited areas of natural wetland, plus non-wetland areas that buffer the wetland from disturbance or to establish reasonable field boundaries, will be included.

NRCS and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) will determine eligibility of both land and landowners during the signup. Landowners sign an "intention" to enroll their land in WRP.

After the signup period, environmental benefits and cost estimates of each intention will be compiled and ranked. Intentions that provide the most environmental benefits at the least cost will be selected.

The NRCS and FWS jointly help landowners develop plans. Each plan describes intentions and objectives as to restoration, acceptable practices during and after the restoration, landowner requirements and other details.

After completion and approval of the plan by the agencies and the landowner, the landowner decides whether or not to participate in WRP.

The program allows for permanent or 30-year easements, but priority will be given to permanent easements. By restoring and conserving the wetlands on these easements, the wetland values and function are preserved for future generations while maintaining the land in private ownership.

"WRP provides an excellent financial incentive to retire marginal cropland while retaining some agricultural use," said Gary Valentine, biologist for the NRCS in Temple, Texas. "There is also public benefit in improved water quality, floodwater control and wildlife habitat."

Anyone interested in the WRP program should contact their local NRCS office.

OIL & GAS NEWS

SDX Resources, Inc. of Midland has revealed plans to drill a total of three wells in Mitchell County's Turner Gregory Field, six miles west of Westbrook. All three carry permit for 4,000-ft. tests of the Clear Fork Formation.

Potatoes good source of antioxidants

When it comes to disarming disease causing agents in the body, potatoes pack a punch more powerful than many other vegetables.

New research has found that while vegetables such as bell peppers, onions and carrots remain valuable dietary sources of disease-preventing antioxidants, potatoes rank near the top of that category.

"We were surprised to find that potatoes are second only to broccoli in terms of antioxidant activity," said Dr. Creighton Miller, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station potato breeder. He said people should not only put potatoes on every plate, but should eat them skins and all.

Discovery of the potato's high antioxidant activity is reported in the current issue of the Journal of Food Science.

Miller, Experiment Station food scientist Dr. Luke Howard and graduate student Mohamed Al-Saikhan were screening potatoes, looking especially at the pigments in yellow flesh varieties, when the high antioxidant activity was observed. That led them to compare the potato to several well-known antioxidant-high vegetables.

"This is important because there are so many oxidative activities in the body that contribute to cancer and heart disease," Howard said.

The oxidative activity—from naturally occurring metabolic processes in the body and from exposure to pollution and smoking tobacco—produces free radicals that destroy DNA in the body, thus opening the door for the development of diseases, Howard explained. Antioxidants slam cell doors shut in the face of the harmful free radicals.

"This research shows that in addition to eating lots of broccoli, we should include potatoes in the diet as well," Miller noted.

Lab results indicated that on a scale of 100, broccoli had an antioxidant value of almost 96, potatoes had about 69, carrots had 32, onions had 25 and bell peppers had 15. The greatest concentration of antioxidants in the potato was in the skin, Howard noted.

Preliminary studies by Miller and Howard point to patatin, the major water-soluble protein in potatoes, as being the possible source of the antioxidant activity.

"This shows another health attribute for potatoes," Miller said. "People tend to think of potatoes only as high in starch and carbohydrates."

Indeed, many people don't realize that one potato also contains half of the daily recommended amount of vitamin C and 750 milligrams of potassium, an element linked to the possible prevention of such ailments as stroke, he said. Potatoes also are high in dietary fiber and iron.

Yet even though the excellent nutritional value of potatoes may not be common knowledge, the fleshy tuber already is the fourth most important food crop in the world, only slightly behind rice, wheat and corn. Potatoes are a much-loved food in the United States, where annual per capita consumption is 125 pounds.

That, plus its $2.5 billion value each year for U.S. potato farmers, underscores the importance of the antioxidant research finding.

The researchers plan to examine the effect of cooking on antioxidants as well as the influence of the environment on potato plants in the field, the variability of antioxidants among potato varieties and genetic markers in potato varieties with the highest antioxidant activity. Miller said finding answers to these questions will help breeders develop an even more nutritious and health-promoting potato.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

My husband and I would like to say thank you to a gentleman. We did not get a chance to get his name, but he did a very kind thing.

This man returned an envelope of money to us when he found it in our yard. Instead of keeping it, like almost everyone else in this world probably would have, he found out who it belonged to and returned every bit of it.

Unfortunately, he left too soon for me to catch his name, but to the gentleman that did such a kind and caring act, we thank you very much. Instead of being selfish and greedy, you were considerate enough to think of the other person and we thank you many times over. We need more people like you.

Sincerely,
Caleb and Lisa Johnson

P.S. We would really like to know your name so we can thank you in person.

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this means of thanking all of the people in Westbrook and surrounding areas for the wonderful time they showed all of us "oldies" at the homecoming this year. I know I probably speak for a lot of other people who enjoyed it as much as I did.

It is a pleasure to have been a graduate of 1942 at "dear ole Westbrook."

Thanks again,
Maxine Ellis Hinsley

Wage & Salary Survey covers entire state

The fourth annual Texas Wage & Salary Survey is now underway. The Quorum Group, a Texas-based consulting firm, is collecting pay data through the month of July and the 1995 Survey is scheduled for publication in early October.

"This comprehensive survey covers more than 100 positions which are common to most businesses throughout Texas," stated Gary Gray, managing director of The Quorum Group. "The 1994 Survey had more than 120 participating employers reporting on jobs covering almost 15,000 employees from a diversified group of Texas businesses."

New for 1995, the submission kit has been completely redesigned to facilitate completion of the data. Also, Quorum offers the option of submitting data on a computer diskette.

"The survey positions include hourly maintenance and production, nonexempt office and clerical, first-line supervisors and selected managerial and professional jobs. The survey includes computer programming, engineering, purchasing and other important positions requested by participants.

"Every geographic area of Texas is included and this is the only survey we know of that covers this depth of information for the entire state," continued Gray.

Businesses that participate and submit information in the survey will receive the survey report at a substantially discounted price. "We are trying to make the survey attractive to the widest range of companies so they can and will participate," Gray said.

For information on participating in the 1995 Texas Wage & Salary Survey, contact The Quorum Group at (713) 393-1100 or by FAX at (913) 393-3100.

Loraine News

By BESSIE ANN VAUGHN

Greetings from Loraine.

We hope all our friends and neighbors have a safe and happy holiday.

When most of us think of the Fourth of July, we can almost see fireworks and all the small town parades, and how about the picnics with fried chicken and watermelon or homemade ice cream and cake.

Sooner or later, before the day is over, more sobering thoughts come to mind about our independence—and how we got this far. We have so many to thank for clearing the way.

God bless the U.S.A.

Paul and Louise Crenshaw from Ft. Worth came to Loraine Friday the 30th to do some work on Louise's grandfather's cemetery plot. (Mr. Edmunson was her grandfather.)

Louise is the daughter of the late Bruce Hart. While here they visited with other relatives and made a homecoming in Colorado City.

Billie Ruth Abernathy, along with Irma Linda Martinez and children went to Lubbock last week to visit with Billie Ruth's daughter, Judy Brown.

Larry Beights and family, who live in California, came to visit Audrey Beights this week. They plan to stay several days and while in Texas they will go to Lubbock to attend the wedding of a daughter, Kelly Beights, who will wed David Andrews.

Larry is Audrey's son and, of course, Kelly is her granddaughter.

Jack and Mary Love Allbright spent Sunday with Syble Walker, Mary Love's mother, and attended church with her. They later had a nice lunch out with Juanice Butler joining them.

Last Wednesday while Mary Love Allbright was in town she and her mother visited with Patsy Walker and her mother, Elba Mae Evans.

Later in the evening, Charlene Walker and Juanice Butler joined Mary Love and Syble for dinner.

The new Baptist minister and family, Don and Denise Marshall and baby, have moved into the church parsonage and are now official Lorainians.

We want to welcome this nice family to Loraine and hope they will like it here and be happy.

Pat Carter reports that Ralph is slowly making progress after his bypass surgery and they both want to thank the young men who went out and mowed the grass. They really do appreciate the kind deed.

Delmas and Betty Bowlin, along with Lela, went to Del Rio, Texas this week to visit Fred and Barbara Bowlin, along with other relatives, for a get-together.

Amy McKee has a good looking new carport. I believe her son Bob had something to do with it.

Paul Dee and Jeanie Finn, along with children Jerrod and Melissa of Odessa, stopped by Loraine last Friday to take their grandmother, Mama Walker, to lunch.

Paul Dee's parents, Glenn and June Finn of Odessa, accompanied them also.

The party was en route to Cross Plains to attend the wedding of Lacy Finn. Lacy is the granddaughter of the Glenn Finns and the Pete McCollums of Colorado City and also a granddaughter of Dr. Doug Bargo of Rochester, N.Y. The Jack Allbrights also attended the wedding.

Richburg Reunion

The descendants of John and Molly Richburg gathered for their annual reunion June 24, 1995 at the Loraine Senior Citizens Building. The family has not missed a year of getting together since 1958.

Eighty-six people registered for the day, ranging in age from 90 years to one month old. Family came from all over Texas, plus California, new Mexico, Oklahoma and Missouri.

Of the original 16 Richburg children, nine are still living and all were present for the day. They are Lester Richburg of Hart, Homer Richburg of Loraine, J.C. Richburg of Tuscola, Effie Wheeler and Nola Taylor of Loraine, Blanche Pendergrass of Temple City, Calif., Opal Wilson of Chandler, Okla., Marie Adrian of Petersburg and Oma Herm of Ackerly.

The day was spent in visiting, looking at pictures, talking, an auction of handmade items and a round of "The Not-So-Newly-Wed Game." You should have heard those husbands taking the Fifth Amendment!

The reunion for 1996 is schedued for June 29 at the same location.

Recent visitors in the home of Effie Wheeler were her granddaughter and great granddaughter, Jeannine and Heather Ralph of Ray Town, Missouri. Also staying during this time was Billie Richburg of Deming, N.M. All were in town for the Richburg reunion.

Here are more places of business that are continued from last week's Loraine News—

Jeff Parker Cafe; Loraine Furniture and Hardware, owned by J.C. Hall, Jr.; Glen Coon Grocery; Adine Howell Furniture; Loraine Drive Inn Theater; Helen and Margaret Bennett's Beauty Shop; Floyd Griffin's Barber Shop; Wm. Martin's Barber Shop.

Mitchell County Newspaper; J.W. King, Sr.; Askins Dry Goods; Evert Henderson Cafe and Mrs. Armstrong's Millinery Shop (the owner was Gus Armstrong's mother).

With all the coming and going from all the many shops and many people here in Loraine, you can see how much fun it would be to go to town 60 or more years ago and park downtown—just to watch people, see what they wore, etc.!

Kids nowadays would think we were crazy for people watching, but it was better than today's TV.

HALEY GRIFFIN, BRIAN BUTLER AND DARLA MIKLE, sponsored by the Mitchell County Farm Bureau, were among approximately 400 high school juniors and seniors from across the state to attend the Texas Farm Bureau's 33rd annual Citizenship Seminar June 19-23 in San Angelo. The seminar is intended to provide students with a better understanding of their American heritage and the capitalistic free enterprise system, according to David Stubblefield, president of the Mitchell County Farm Bureau. The students were welcomed to the seminar by Dr. James Hindman, president of Angelo State University.

FFA students travel to Russia

A Snyder High School student was one of 110 FFA members selected to travel to the former Soviet Union to participate in leadership, community development and citizenship activities with students there.

Melissa Cole is currently in Kaliningrad, Russia, with a team of 10 FFA members and one advisor. They left June 21 and will stay until July 19.

The 10 FFA teams' plans include an orientation visit to Moscow and three weeks in one of seven selected regions of Russia—Penza, Yakhromsky, Samara, Ryazan, Kaliningrad, Orel and Tver.

Two groups will work in one of the two Ukraine sites, White Church and Crimea, and the tenth team will travel to Moldova, a small republic located between Romania and Ukraine.

Directed by an American agriculture instructor, the teams of FFA members and advisors will share leadership training concepts learned through FFA with Russian students. Participants will live with Russian families for part of their exchange and in dormitories at an agricultural school for the remainder of their stay.

Activities will include a joint community service project and firsthand experience with agricultural systems native to the region.

Later this summer, 100 Russian students will travel with 10 instructors to the United States to reciprocate the exchange. Their activities will include FFA's week-long Washington Leadership Conference.

Funding for this program is provided by the Secondary School Initiative of the Freedom Support Act awarded by the U.S. Information Agency. Each participant paid a reduced program fee.

Neely receives master's degree, plans to study for doctorate

Staci Dunn Neeley

Staci Dunn Neeley, daughter of Skeet and Shirley Dunn of Colorado City and the 1988 salutatorian of Snyder High School, received a master of arts degree in English from Angelo State University (ASU) in May.

While enrolled as a Carr Scholar in ASU's graduate program, she was a graduate assistant and later a teaching assistant. She independently taught developmental writing and freshman composition courses, some of which were entirely computer-based.

Neeley was invited by the Conference of College Teachers of English to present scholarly writings at both the 1994 and 1995 conferences, held at Sam Houston State University and Baylor University, respectively.

She also presented a chapter of her master's thesis at the Conference on Christianity and Literature at Oklahoma Christian University in Oklahoma City.

One of her literary essays was published in the 1994-1995 Oasis, ASU's literary magazine. The essay won first place in the Division I Literary Magazine Essay competition held by the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association on April 8 in Dallas.

After a trip to England, Neeley will apply to several doctoral programs and pursue her Ph.D. to become a full professor of English.

She lives with her husband, Brandon Neeley, in San Angelo.

Rogers graduates from Hardin-Simmons Univ.

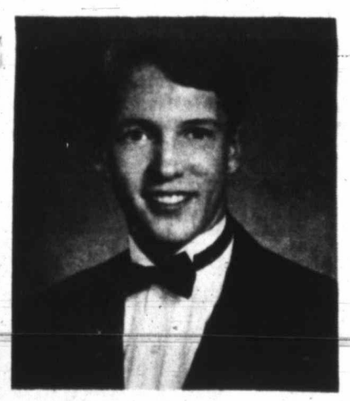

Staci Rogers of Colorado City received a bachelor's degree in behavorial science in the May commencement exercises at Abilene's Hardin-Simmons University (HSU).

Graduates were encouraged by Dr. Lanny Hall, president, to make their decisions carefully. "We learn from the past. Those things that we experience shape our future," Hall said.

HSU, founded in 1891, is affiliated with the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Fall registrations begins on Friday, August 25 and classes start on Monday, August 28.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR AND CITIZENS OF MITCHELL COUNTY:

Like many of you, we are sitting here with our mouths open after reading the article about the hospital administrator's leave of absence, because of the issue of the contract negotiation.

Why is there even an issue? Action speaks louder than words and Wendell Alford is responsible for many positive things that have happened to the hospital.

Just in case you didn't know or maybe forgot, five years ago before he came, the hospital was in terrible financial trouble. We had only one doctor. Most of us went home two extra days aweek, because there were no patients in the hospital. We had two ambulances one of which was always broken down. The hospital was struggling to keep the doors open. Our salaries were far less than any neighboring hospital, causing unbelievable turnover.

Today, we are finally in the black. We have four excellent doctors and a physician's assistant. We have three surgeons who schedule surgeries here that were once done at other hospitals. We have specialty doctors who are routinely here for appointments. A pharmacist would have to be hired (Wendell is a pharmacist and has always overseen the pharmacy). We have a home health agency that is one of the top agencies in the state. We have three ambulances and our salaries are very competitive with other hospitals. We have a rural clinic where anyone can be treated. We have equipment and personnel for mammography screening. We have physical therapists here for outpatient treatments three times a week. We have a health center that anyone in the community can use. Our patient census is nearly tripled what it was five years ago. We can't forget the hospital personnel at the prison. We have new and updated equipment in our X-ray department, lab, surgery, pharmacy, central supply, ambulance service and nursing service.

We could go on and on, but we really think you've seen these improvements without us telling you. Maybe even you or your family has been affected and benefited from them. We know there are a few (a very few) who do not agree with Mr. Alford, but anybody in an authoritative position knows you cannot please everybody and there will always be those who look for the negative, even if the positive outweighs it.

We have several new board members who are very intelligent and responsible men. All of us know that, because we elected them. So, what is the problem? We have a very good administrator who has proved time and time again that the well-being of this hospital is his primary goal and has turned around the situation of our hospital. So what's the problem?

The employees know the facts, the board members know the facts and now you know the facts. This community needs this hospital, because time can mean the difference between life and death.

All we are asking is for you to look where the hospital was five years ago, where it is now, and where we are going in the next five years if our administration changes.

There were several more names that are not listed on this petition, but are on a petition being presented to the board. These people were unavailable to sign this petition because of days off and vacations.

Boll weevil count is down from last year

By Joe Raff, CEA-AG

I was out looking at the cotton on the 27th (after the rain) and most of it looked good. There are some spots that had some skips, but overall the crop looks good this year. Hopefully we will get some hot weather and catch up on our heat units. Later in July we will be able to tell more about the crop from our plant mapping data.

Myself and Karralee have been trapping boll weevils since May this year. I expected weevils but was pleasantly surprised that we have not seen a third of the weevils compared to last year.

If you remember the first week of June of last year, we had an average of 150-200 weevils per trap. This year we only counted an average of 20 the first week of June, and later weeks are considerably less.

Like most of you, I thought due to the late rains and regrowth that we saw last year, we were going to have trouble this year. But, according to Dr. Fuchs, since we had such a hot, dry summer the weevils that went into hibernation early apparently didn't survive the winter.

However, if we get some weevils later in the year, here are some recommendations that you can use:

First, check 100 plants in your field. Make sure the 100 plants are representative of the whole field. If you find two or more weevils on the 100 plants you have reached the threshold to spray.

Guthion, Vydate and Thiodan are all good insecticides to use in controlling weevils. Dr. Fuchs said that Guthion may work the best for controlling weevil populations. But if you have both flea hoppers and weevils you may want to spray Vydate. Also, Thiodan (Phaser) will not damage your beneficials compared to Guthion or Vydate.

If you have any questions call the office at 728-3111.

Taxpayer assistance seminar scheduled

A free taxpayers' assistance seminar is set for Thursday, July 13 at 1290 S. Willis, Suite 202, Abilene from 3-4:30 p.m.

"At the comptroller's office, we understand that state tax issues can sometimes become very complex and confusing," State Comptroller John Sharp said.

"It's important that taxpayers have a full understanding of state taxes. This seminar has been designed just for that," he said.

Bob Jones and Mike Brady from the Comptroller's field office will be on hand to meet with citizens and discuss any questions pertaining to state taxes.

Taxpayers who cannot attend the seminar may call the comptroller's toll-free hotline at 1-800-252-5555 for additional assistance.

For more information about the Abilene seminar, call the Abilene field office at (915) 695-4323.
