David Shepherd, of Aransas Bay Sailboat Rentals, reports that he is going to have some special "midnight cruises" the week of Monday, June 23 through Monday, June 30. He will be piloting a 21-foot sailboat for a two-hour trip in Aransas Bay and will be able to take about four people with him. The vessel is located at the Sandollar Marina; anyone wishing to contact David for further information can reach him at 729-8562. Here, David is preparing the rigging for a shakedown cruise. He took out five guests from Munich, Germany who said they really did like the scenery and people of the Rockport area. They are, from the left, Goschi Ravasz, Ingrid Halank, Ursula Rehm, Wolfram Skowrennek and Brigitte Hellmann.

Reporter From Germany Compares Notes With The Pilot

By Eddie Bradley
Ulrich Schilling, an editor/reporter for a large daily newspaper in Dortmund, Germany, is currently spending some time in Rockport and came by

The Pilot office last week to compare notes. Ulrich and his wife, Kristiane, are in the midst of a month-long tour of the western half of the United States. They flew from Germany to St. Louis, Missouri, where they rented a car and set out for California.

After visiting the west, they have been working their way back to St. Louis. They really liked the Rockport area and decided to spend a few extra days here.

Ulrich began his career as a teacher of politics in what they call grammar school, which is for students from 10 to 20 years of age. He said that there are no real college courses for journalism students in Germany, but that he had written part-time both as a student and as a teacher.

The writing bug finally got the best of him and he quit the teaching job and went with reporting full time. His primary beat is the soccer matches, which are extremely popular there.

His paper is a daily and has a circulation of about one million (which I suppose is slightly larger than The Pilot!). They have many of the high-powered technical innovations that are currently found in large newspapers, but he misses some of the advantages that only smaller papers offer.

For instance, he writes stories on a computer terminal, where all the proof-reading and editing can be done on the spot. Once everyone is satisfied with the way the copy has turned out, he simply pushes a (See NOTES on Page 12)

35 Bypass Bonds To Be Sold

Bids for sale of $400,000 in road bonds -- to pay for construction of the Highway 35 Bypass in Aransas County -- will be opened Monday, July 14, in the County Commissioners' Courtroom.

The bid opening, set for 11 a.m. on that date, was set during a meeting of the county commissioners Wednesday morning, June 25, in the courtroom in the Aransas County Courthouse.

In other action during Wednesday's meeting, the commissioners voted not to change present lot size requirements because of potential health hazards.

Commissioners will set a tax rate on the bonds at the July 14 meeting. Sale of the bonds -- approved by Aransas County voters on February 16 -- is being handled by First Southwest Company.

Sale of the bonds is to pay Aransas County's share of the costs in purchasing right-of-way for a bypass highway through the county. The county pays 10 percent of right-of-way costs with the State Highway Department paying the remaining 90 percent of right-of-way purchase and 100 percent of construction costs.

Commissioners were asked at an earlier meeting to consider changing the minimum lot size requirements for subdivision development. The county presently requires lots to be at least 15,000 square feet if they (See BONDS on Page 12)

I HAVE IN MY TIME LOVED MANY SHIPS, BUT best of all the old ten-knot freighters, above all the Birmingham City. Like Gunga Din, she "wasn't much before/And rather less behind." She was, however, typical of her time, forty years and more ago. In truth she was identical to at least a dozen other ships of her line which were built in 1921 and '22. And she, along with all but one of her sisters, was lost to Nazi U-boats in the first four months after our entry into World War II.

I served in the Birmingham City, happily, for three years under one of the most delightful of shipmasters, Capt. H.G. Eaton of Bangor, Maine. Because of things which I may be about to write I should not mention his name, except that I know he found his way to Fiddler's Green many years ago.

As I have said, the Birmingham City may not have been much to look at, at least not to the landsman with romantic notions. She was buff in the bows and her usually streaked buff-colored stack rose straight from the boat deck. No rakish angle. Usually patches of bleeding rust marred her gray hull. But what should one expect in a ship that seldom knew passages of less than 30 days. Yet aboard, except when she was mobbed by stevedore loading or off-loading her cargoes, the Birmy shown. Her white bulkheads sparkled, handrails to her steel ladders were covered with painted cross-pointed canvas and turksheads. Her teak bridge decks were holy-stoned to the off white than can only come from precious India teak, and perhaps only be appreciated by sailors of a school that no longer exists, except perhaps in a handful of yachtsmen.

THE BIRMINGHAM CITY'S "TRADE" WAS THE Far East. She discharged steel and tobacco in Shanghai, loaded "pines" and sugar in the Hawaiian Islands, copra in Cebu and Zambowango, tin and rubber in Singapore and Penang, tapioca and spices in Sourabaya, brought home exotic animals from Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck. Ports of call, names that were music and some that gonged, Koh Sichang, Hong Kong, Bankok, Songora, Soengie Gerong, Colombo, Karachi. Off beat, she once found herself discharging grain and lumber from the Pacific Coast of the United States in Liverpool when England declared war against Hitler, and once she carried coal to Rio de Janeiro. Months before Pearl Harbor she was loading contraband, of sorts, in Haiphong and Saigon, under the watchful eyes of a Japanese cruiser.

CAPT. EATON SPOKE WITH A "DOWN EAST" broad "A." "I cawn't understand why anyone should expect a gentleman to take a 'baath' except in a proper tub." The first words I ever heard from his lips, overheard accidentally. I was fortunate to hear them because the captain whom he relieved, well, didn't care for me. I am sure I should have been fired had he remained. The "Old Man" was addressing the Chief Engineer, and letting him know in what I came to recognize as his polite but positive way, that he wanted the shower out of his bath and a tub installed. It was.

AND NOW IT IS PERHAPS TIME TO TELL YOU why this nautical reminiscing came about. I was sitting on the porch one evening last week, eyeing the moon and calculating when it would next be full, listening to the night sounds. In the background the "just beautiful" music of KTOD -- and then a commercial that carried me back to the memory of a bright Sunday morning many years ago when the Birmingham City was anchored in the harbor at Wilmington, California.

When it comes to things way out and kooky, Southern California is years, nowadays months, ahead of the rest of the country. So way back then, in that anchorage, I was standing, or more truthfully, sitting out my watch in the pilot chair and reading the morning paper which a sailor had brought to me after a peddler had laid alongside in a bum boat. A disciplinarian, yet a reasonable man, Capt. Eaton allowed the watch officer to have a radio on the bridge in that quiet anchorage. The church music on the air didn't enthrall me, it didn't perturb. I less than half listened. Then suddenly a melodious voice. It was a commercial -- for a cemetery. I wish now that I could put it all together, all the subtlety. In my crude way I must tell you that should I have died that day, X Cemetery was ready to stow me away; were I Jewish, in a corner, a recreated Jerusalem, or a Scot, in a wee kirk. You may take it from there. Pick your heritage. Actually, I scarcely heard the spiel. Not Capt. Eaton. A roar over the speaking tube from his cabin to the bridge. "Bridge, Mister, did you hear that?"

"Sir?"
"On the radio. That bloody invitation for us all to be buried today. I tell you Mister, I can't get out of this place fast enough. I wish I could confine all hands aboard once we dock. You, Mister, no swapping watches. I want you alive and aboard when I sail." I was young and had a bit of a reputation for playfulness.

SO BACK TO THE "JUST BEAUTIFUL MUSIC" and the aforementioned commercial. It was that commercial that took me back through the years to that Wilmington anchorage -- an invitation from a Corpus Christi embalmer to hurry up and cash in my chips, making it sound like a rather jolly thing to do. Egad, Southern California arrived in South Texas after 40 years? Kinda cute, I thought. Still a pox on Seaside Memorial Park or whatever it calls itself.--ahab (C.M. Henkel)

Babe's Senate Report

By State Senator A.R. "Babe" Schwartz

Since the Texas Legislature only meets in regular session every other year, many Texans are not aware of the work that must be done in the interim to prepare needed legislation for introduction and passage in the 120 days of the session.

While it may be true that most legislators can wait until the session opens to begin work on bills they plan to introduce, it is almost impossible for a committee chairman to follow that course of action and keep abreast of legislation which the committee will recommend and the proposals of other legislators who have done their homework during the interim.

Without interim studies and reports, adequate research and hearings in various geographical locations to hear input from concerned and informed citizens, a legislator cannot be responsibly informed when the session opens.

It is for these reasons that the Texas Coastal and Marine Council, and the Senate Natural Resources Committee, both of which I chair, have ongoing programs of studies and hearings all during the year between legislative sessions. These committees and staff personnel are continuing their work in the interim with the objective of having intelligently-prepared and vitally-needed legislation to present when the next regular session opens next year.

Several programs of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council are on the agenda for the next council meeting which is scheduled in Port Aransas on June 20. A report will be given on the ongoing Hurricane Awareness Program and the time and place for the next two conferences will be announced.

Improvement of coastal zone building standards is another concern of the council, and a report on legislation required or suggested will be given by Don Ragen, building inspector for Calhoun County. Ragen is working with the Southern Building Code Council and the Texas Coastal and Marine Council on improvements of building codes, particularly for the coastal area, for the protection of property owners and prospective buyers or builders of homes in the coastal zone.

We have invited an official of the National Weather Service to report on possibilities for improvements in their forecasting capabilities and we have urged the weather service to develop better means of spot zone forecasting for earlier warnings on specific area flooding.

The council will also consider existing legislation on state contributions for beach cleaning with a view toward improving the state role.

A special report on a potential contract to provide a Marine Safety Program for Texas Gulf ports through combined state and federal funding will be heard and acted upon.

On June 25, the Senate Natural Resources Committee will meet in the Texas Senate chambers in Austin to work on several important matters. The committee is working on three projects in cooperation with the National Conference on State Legislatures; hydro-electric power, non-nuclear hazardous waste disposal, and energy conservation. Expert personnel from the National Conference will address the committee on these programs with the objective of aiding the committee and staff personnel in drafting legislation needed in these areas of concern.

The Natural Resources Committee will also consider a hazardous waste disposal management system. Twelve states now have perpetual superfunds for hazardous waste disposal. New federal legislation will offer states assistance in development of perpetual care and funding programs for disposal of hazardous and toxic wastes, and the bill which I passed in the Senate last session, if passed in the House next year, would help Texas lead the nation in this program.

The programs and subjects mentioned are not by any means the entire focus of attention of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council or the Senate Natural Resources Committee. There are many other very important ongoing programs and studies, all of which are vital for the eventual preparation of needed legislation.

As a member of the Sunset Commission and the Delivery of Human Services Interim Committee, my work on a variety of legislative issues cannot wait until the legislature is in session; it must be done on a continuing basis, and it is being done in each of these committees in a competent, productive manner.

If you want more information on any of these matters, please write my office at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Dear Editor:
Just read about the Watcher's Problem reported from Pct. 3.

I think the Watcher was on the ball and Judge was wrong. I came from R.C. Mo. and was a Judge for years. There was a lot of Ghost voting done there. A deceased voter's name was still on Books, but another person was voting for them. If the Watcher or Judge had any doubts, they should ask for further identification.

Imagine the embarrassment of the voter if he couldn't produce driver's license, etc. It sure stops a lot of Ghost voting.

Another thing - thanks for the TV log.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

Senator George McGovern (S. Dak.) "... I have long believed that it is in the American interest to have diplomatic and economic relations with Cuba. Our failure to do so has allowed the Soviet Union to develop Cuba into a surrogate for Soviet plans. The current communications and diplomatic confusion over the Cuban refugees points up the weakness of our present policy of turning our backs on Cuba and letting others dominate the scene ...

"A recent writer to the Washington Post would have us believe that I and other Members of Congress who have visited Cuba somehow came away with the belief that Cuba was a democracy and that all was well. That is certainly not the case. It has always seemed to me that many freedom-loving Cubans, given the opportunity, would prefer to leave. The outpouring of refugees from that country gives ample proof that many Cubans albeit a small minority are "voting with their feet" when they have an opportunity to do so ...

"Mr. Castro is a Communist dictator--plain and simple. Though he was a gracious host, I never lost sight of that central fact when I visited Cuba. I do not believe other Members of Congress did either. But as we know from our dealings with the Late Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia, and now with the mainland Chinese, there are degrees of communism that frequently permit us to split some nations away from blindly following the line put forward by Moscow ...

"Mr. Castro is not going away. He cannot be ignored by U. S. policymakers. We need to have a presence in Havana ...

"It is easy to be jingoist and to rattle the sabers in an effort to frighten away the Communist menace, but it is no longer sufficient to "carry a big stick" or to send a battleship to Cuba. It is more difficult to recognize the threat of communism and try to deal with it in a constructive, straight-forward manner.

"It makes no sense for us to trade with Russia and China--the two biggest and most potentially dangerous Communist countries-- and then argue that it is too dangerous for us to trade with a little island like Cuba

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

To most Americans our foreign policy is fuzzy. For example: On November 21, 1979, a mob burned the American embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan, killing two Americans while the Pakistani army looked on. We have not broken off diplomatic relations with the Pakistani. Instead we have offered to furnish $400 million of modern arms for the Pakistani army.

But Senator McGovern has put himself on record as regards to Cuba.

Speaking Out

What do you think is the greatest single problem facing Rockport and how would you correct it?

Vena Wilson, 823 N. Austin. One problem is the intersection at HEB. We need a stop light down there -- I'm always afraid to go across there.

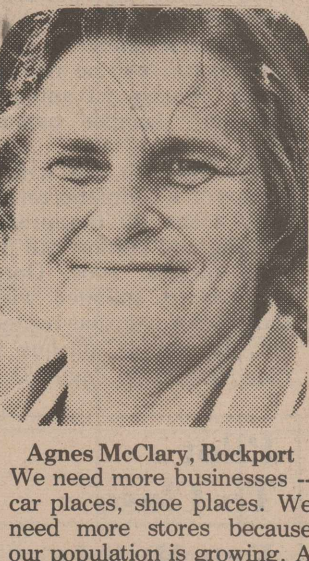

Collins Herron, Rockport. They could do something about the streets. Some of the streets are ugly -- bumpy, potholes. This could be corrected.

Cy Richards, 2013 Baywood. I don't think Rockport has any great problems.

Erica Chupe, Rockport. We need to improve facilities at school -- enlarge them. More subjects should be taught. Better facilities for athletics.

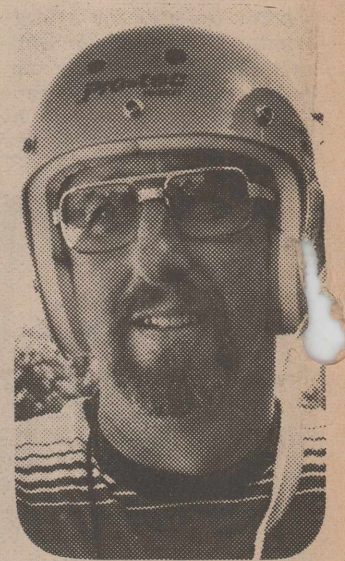

Agnes McClary, Rockport. We need more businesses -- car places, shoe places. We need more stores because our population is growing. A big hospital is what we need. I think too many people are shopping out of town, not trading here. We need more people trading here. You may have to raise some taxes on some of it -- for a hospital you'd have to (raise taxes).

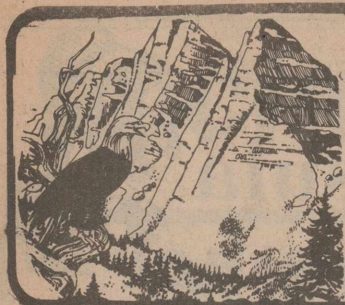

Marie Stallings, 1413 West Terrace. The traffic problem. We need the bypass terribly.

Joe Davis, Rockport. Getting tourists down here due to the energy situation. There's not much we can do except keep up a good relationship with the tourists we have down here.

Rev. John Bradshaw, Rockport. To adequately anticipate growth within the next 20 years and deal creatively with it, in terms of education, industry and business and in social terms.

Nature Trails

Did you ever hear of a "glass snake" or a "joint snake," strange creatures that break into several pieces when struck with a stick or hoe and then, when left for dead, rejoin themselves and crawl off? Those stories are rather exaggerated, but the animal on which they are based is quite common here in the Rockport area. A more accurate name is "glass lizard," because the creature is really not a snake but a lizard without legs.

If you get close, you can see the glass lizard has eyelids which allow it to blink and small external ear openings behind the eyes. All snakes lack both eyelids and ear openings.

The glass lizard does have a long snake-like body and it moves with snake-like undulations. About two-thirds to three-fourths of the lizard's length is comprised of tail, whereas a snake's length is mostly body with a relatively short tail.

It is the long tail of the glass lizard which breaks in one or more pieces when the animal is struck or grabbed. This is a protective mechanism, as many a predator has been distracted by a wiggling tail section while the lizard's body makes an escape.

The broken tail sections cannot reunite of course, but the lizard soon grows a new tail. The new or regenerated section is often sharply pointed and is of a different color from the remaining original tail section.

This hard-pointed, regenerated tail has resulted in another name some call the animal, which is "horn snake." Some people claim the hard point is a stinger. The animal's tail is so fragile that it is rare to find a specimen with an entire original tail.

The glass lizard is light brown with dark brown or black longitudinal stripes. Maximum length is about 42 inches but most are much smaller. The lizard is covered with scales reinforced by bony plates in the skin which gives the animal a rather hard surface.

The resulting stiffening of the body is compensated for by a flexible groove or fold along each side of the body which allows for expansion to accommodate a large meal or eggs in the case of females.

Glass lizards can be encountered almost anywhere, but are much more common in weedy or grassy lots and brushy areas. They prefer sandy soil and they often burrow to make their escape.

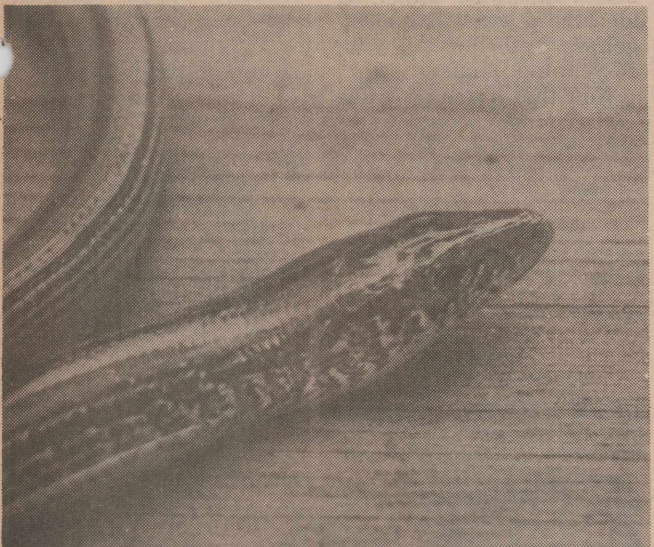

Glass lizards feed mainly on insects but also take spiders, snails and small snakes and lizards.

So if you see a glass lizard, don't try to see how many pieces it will break into if you hit it. They are perfectly harmless and are another ally in our battle with the bugs.

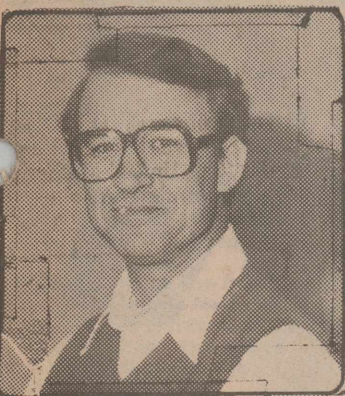

THIS IS NO SNAKE

The "glass snake" is actually a legless lizard. It has a small body and a long tail, giving a snake-like appearance. This specimen is regenerating the tip of its tail.

HEAD OF "GLASS SNAKE"

A close look at the "glass snake's" head reveals movable eyelids and ear openings, which show that the "snake" is really a lizard.

A Problem That Will Keep You Up Nights

By Eddie Bradley
Anybody out there have insomnia? You know what that is; it's a disease in which your eyes and body ache from tiredness and you can't keep from constantly yawning, so you stay up all night trying to figure out what is wrong!

Actually, my trusty encyclopedia tells me that insomnia is not really a disease or a sickness, it is instead, a symptom that may result from any number of causes such as physical ones like indigestion and psychological ones like fears or worries.

Whatever the root problem might be, the immediate challenge is to get some sleep. At this point I may be of help to you, since many of the things you may be tempted to try have already been tested and rejected by yours truly for a variety of reasons.

The first thing that comes to mind is the good old glass of milk at bedtime, which seems to work pretty well, unless you get to thinking about dissolved fats and cholesterol in the bloodstream, which seems to counteract the good effects.

Some people swear by exercise right before going to bed as an aid to sleep, but it just doesn't seem to work. And the smell of liniment keeps everyone else up with you!

Reading and working crossword puzzles are both effective, but have their own problems. If you like to read scary stories like I do, and if you have a fertile imagination, like I must have, then you are just naturally going to hear and even see some very weird things when the lights are out...but you ain't going to sleep.

The puzzles are much better. They seem to slow you down and make your mind focus on something relatively simple, like a ten-letter word for sleep. You can't figure it out, of course, and gradually your...mind...begins...to slow...down...and your...eyes...close... "Somnolence," your subconscious whispers.

"Of course," you say as your eyes fly open and you grab for the pencil. Then, knowing the rest of the puzzle will be a snap, you get up and take it to the kitchen, where a sandwich and iced tea go down real good.

Actually, getting to sleep is not my real problem. It is just that sometimes I wake up way too early. The real trouble is simply that there isn't much to do at that time. We don't have chickens to go out and wake up, the papers aren't on the stands yet, there's no television, and it is too dark to mow the yard.

Sometimes, in desperation, I take my guitar outside and play and yodel to my heart's content. Yes, you are right, I have very understanding neighbors.

My encyclopedia also said of insomnia that it may "be a symptom of any one of a number of mental illnesses," but if you think I'm going to pursue that idea, you're crazy!

Mark Allan Strand, 58, of 203 Pintail Lane was ticketed for failure to control speed to avoid an accident following a collision at the intersection of Bronte and James Wednesday, June 25.

The accident occurred about 5:45 p.m. when Strand's pickup, northbound on Bronte, was in collision

Fernandez was arrested about 12:55 a.m. in the parking lot of HEB on Austin Street.

FAMILIARITY

We attended the wedding of a friend recently in a neighboring city. When we first entered the church everything seemed strange, the hymnals, the words of the service, until we heard that familiar phrase, "Our Father Which Art in Heaven." Suddenly it was as if a door had been opened to us.

With the others in the congregation, with the beautiful young bride and her new husband, we repeated those words which, over the years, have given hope to men and women in all kinds of churches all over the world; and we realized that despite the surface differences we are, all of us, actually one community.

God's House has many different entrances, but they are all equally available, to be passed through and shared with Him by everyone.

Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassy ranch takes a look at TV commercials this week.

Dear editor:

Since one of the qualifications for speaking out on a subject is a basic ignorance of it, I feel qualified to talk about a new Canadian law I read about last night and to warn against its spread to the United States.

The law bans TV commercials aimed at children 13 or younger.

If it spreads to this country, the television industry will go broke. Ninety percent of its commercials, as best I can judge, are aimed at 13-year-olds or younger.

For instance, for over a year now an ex-movie star has been straightening out nervous people who drink too much coffee of the wrong brand.

When they switch to his they settle down to shooting better golf, practicing better law, etc. I had no idea there were that many golfers and lawyers with 13-year-old minds.

Now that brand of coffee is not to be confused with the brand that's grown on a mountain and picked one bean at a time, hauled down by a donkey and shipped to every grocery store in the United States. I've never understood how that donkey could make that many trips. Maybe a 13-year-old could explain it to me.

Now I won't go into the mental age of soap commercials, detergents, floor waxes, baby diapers or cars some ex-football player told you to buy.

I feel sure no Congressman will read this letter when it appears in The Rockport Pilot and it's a good thing, because if one did and thereafter got a bill passed banning TV commercials aimed at 13-year-old minds or younger, sooner or later the bill would be expanded to include TV programs of the same mental caliber, and then what would we have left?

What's on for tonight? Somebody has misplaced my TV guide.

Yours faithfully,

JUNIOR CRABBER

Mike Murphree, age 11, and his family recently came down from Mesquite to spend some time in the Goose Island State Park. Here Mike shows off some of the crabs he hauled in while fishing. The biggest one came in on a hook-and-line, the others were netted. The fish is a croaker. [Pilot Photo By Eddie Bradley]

Nursing Home News

A Father's Day surprise started the week for residents of the Aransas Pass Nursing and Convalescent Center when the Ingleside Rebekahs Lodge #96 brought gifts to all the fathers Sunday, June 15.

On Monday afternoon, John Blair, Altie Albers, Fannie Brunson, Bob Stewart and Johnny Townsend put on a Blue Grass Music program for the residents.

Regular visitors Sandra Lee and Rose Hernandez came to see residents Tuesday, and Delma Rogers came Wednesday morning to visit and help write letters.

Friday was another busy day for residents, with morning painting classes -- under direction of Lyla Olive, Frankie Edwards and granddaughter Lea -- followed by a visit from the Rockport AARP Chapter who led an old-fashioned Sing-along.

On Saturday, June 21, Father James Hamilton gave Holy Communion to all Catholic residents.

The Rev. Al Bankert led Sunday morning worship services June 22, and on Sunday afternoon, members from the Ingleside First Christian Church held their monthly "Sing-in" at the Center.

Residents enjoyed reality orientation and exercise courses every morning at the Center, and stereo music and tapes helped enliven the morning and afternoon coffee and social hours.

A well-known elder statesman, invited to address a prominent women's club on the Chinese situation, carefully boned up on the subject and prepared a brilliant paper. Upon meeting the chairwoman, he inquired how the club had come to require a talk on China. "Oh," the lady explained sweetly, "we're having a chow-mein luncheon, and wanted something to preserve the spirit of the occasion."

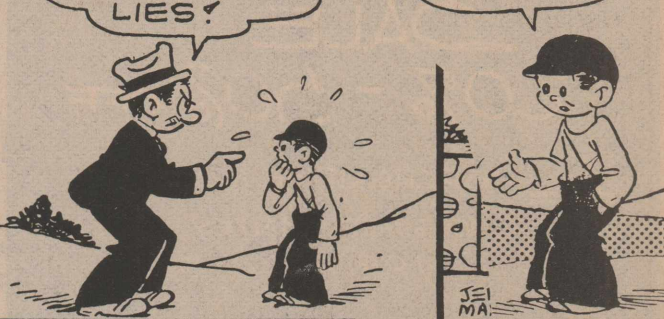

"I see here," said the husband, glancing up from his newspaper, "that The Ford Foundation just gave away $20,000,000!" "Really?" gasped his wife. "What was the question?"

My neighbor's three-year-old daughter loves dogs. One day while she was playing in front of her home she saw a huge boxer down the street and ran toward him, shouting, "Hi, doggie! Hi, doggie!" The dog bounded to her, stopping just when they were nose to nose. She gazed up at him a moment with a puzzled expression, then breathed, "Hi, horsey!"

Olympic Hushpuppies Take Prize

LUFKIN -- Nearly 4,000 East Texas residents gathered in the piney woods of Lufkin recently to celebrate the Ninth Annual Southern Hushpuppy Olympics.

At stake was $1,000 grand prize and the distinction of being crowned "The South's Greatest Hushpuppy Cook."

Competition in the 1980 Olympics was fierce with 20 Texas cooks, including four past champions, competing for the crown.

This year's Olympics was won by Dallas architect and gourmet cook, Parker Folse, who received his fourth gold medal since the competition began in 1972.

Folse, who also won first place in 1975, 1976 and 1979, outscored his challengers, including second place winner Bill Lawhorn of Dallas, and two-time winner Cecil Davis of Wichita Falls, who came in third.

Folse, whose recipe includes shrimp, crabmeat and crayfish, admitted after the judging that he didn't change the recipe that won him the 1979 championship.

But he did disclose the "secret ingredient" that helped him win in 1979 and 1980 -- he just didn't tell anyone about it. "I used a heaping teaspoon of Imperial Sugar. The sugar makes the hushpuppies take on a golden color. I've used Imperial Sugar in my hushpuppy recipe for nine years," the four-time Grand Champion said softly, "but I've never revealed it. I guess it's time I did."

And in doing so, Folse revealed his entire 1980 prize-winning hushpuppy recipe:

Parker Folse's Olympic Hushpuppies
 1/2 cup flour
 1/2 cup corn meal
 1 heaping teaspoon Imperial Sugar
 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
 1/2 teaspoon creole seasoning or chili powder
 1 heaping tablespoon chopped parsley
 1 heaping tablespoon chopped green onion
 1 heaping tablespoon chopped pimento
 1 heaping tablespoon chopped boiled shrimp

1 heaping tablespoon chopped lump crabmeat
 1 heaping tablespoon chopped fresh cooked crayfish tails
 1 egg
 1/2 cup milk

Stir all ingredients together in a bowl adding enough milk to moisten batter. Place in pastry bag fitted with a large star-shaped tip and then swirl batter onto 365-degree cooking oil. Turn hushpuppies once and cook until golden color. Remove, drain and salt to taste. The recipe, which can be doubled, makes 12 large hushpuppies.

Parker Folse's recipe has come a long way since this traditional culinary art became part of the culture and heritage of the Southern United States. Hushpuppy cooking is colorful and falls in the same class as chili making.

Here is a breed of people, most of whom reside in areas around Southern lakes, who practice hushpuppy cooking with the same devotion that a West Texan cooks chili or a Mexican-American cooks tamales.

Some cooks, particularly those who specialize in fish, take great pride in their ability to make a tasty hushpuppy.

Many, including Parker Folse, have their own special recipe and secret ingredient and talk enthusiastically of the qualities of their prize hushpuppies.

The word hushpuppy itself is colorful. It conjures nostalgic visions of a Southern meal, a hunter's cookout, and the aroma of frying catfish over a lakeside fire.

According to legend -- and there seems to be more than just a few versions of the legend -- the hushpuppy got its name in the early 1800s when Southern hunters huddled around campfires tossed leftover corn patties to their hungry, howling, restless dogs saying, "Hush, puppy!"

SWEET SECRET

Parker Folse, winner of the ninth annual Southern Hushpuppy Olympics in Lufkin, disclosed the "secret ingredient" of his hushpuppy recipe that helped him win the title for the fourth time--Imperial Sugar. [Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition]

By Jean Glowka

Q. Certain vitamin measurements get me confused. Are there 1,000 milligrams in a grain? And, while we're at it, what is a minim?

A. There are 1,000 milligrams in a GRAM. There are about 65 milligrams in one GRAIN.

A minim is about one DROP.

Q. I'm not really sick, but I don't feel too great most of the time. I have a lot of colds, headaches, menstrual cramps--minor stuff like that. I'm tired a lot, my nerves are shot and my mind seems a little fuzzy at times.

The worst thing is that my hair, skin and nails are a mess, and I need to shed about 15 pounds. Well, every body has their little problems. Nothing to worry about, but I know some "health food nuts" who DON'T seem to have these problems -- at least not very often or very bad.

But they go to all kinds of trouble mixing yukky protein drinks and swallowing a lot of vitamin pills. I want to look and feel terrific without all that trouble.

Isn't there a vitamin

Transportation is provided for a variety of services by the Council on Aging, according to the following schedule:

Healthful Hints

capsule that I can take just once a day that will take care of ALL my needs?

A. I'm sorry to say that it isn't possible to get all the nutrients we need in one vitamin capsule. The body requires 10 amino acids from complete proteins, linoleic acid from oils, and more than fifteen vitamins and fifteen minerals, preferably at the same time to build and maintain good health.

Due to overprocessing and overrefining of most of the foods available to us -- not to mention poor food preparation in the home -- many, many nutrients that we assume we are getting from foods simply aren't there. Thus, nutritionists feel that we should supplement our diets with vitamins, minerals, etc.

If you follow your "health food nut" friends' example for a while, you might be amazed and delighted with the results and feel that the extra trouble was worth it.

Until next week, Folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Ever Try To Wash A Chandelier?

COLLEGE STATION--In spite of gloom on the economic horizon, we "have come a long way" -- and here's a bright tidbit to prove it.

It started with a question -- "How do you wash a crystal chandelier?"

Someone really asked Dr. Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist that question.

Mrs. Berry, on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, decided to share her answer with the public because it says something.

Our level of living today in "mainstream America" IS better, since many of us will read this story with personal interest -- to find out how to wash OUR crystal chandelier.

Here are her instructions. Remember, the whole thing will be easier if you do it step-by-step:

1. Remove light bulbs. Wash, rinse and put them aside.
2. Lay a folded towel on the bottom of a sink or dishpan. Half fill it with warm sudsy water.

3. Pad another large pan with towel. Fill it with clean water for rinsing. Add some ammonia for sparkle.

4. Remove crystal "drops" and saucers from the chandelier a few at a time. Wipe the frame or "arm" of the fixture with a cloth wrung out of suds.

5. Wash the pieces in the sudsy water. Rinse in clean water. Wipe them dry with a lintless cloth.

6. Replace the drops. If the pins or wires look weak or rusty, change them.

7. Repeat the process until the entire chandelier is clean.

Hopefully, you'll now have a clean, bright chandelier -- and an outlook on today's lifestyle to go with it.

At least, all this should add new meaning to our chandeliers as conversation pieces.

Athletic Facilities Open To Public During The Summer

The high school athletic facilities are being opened for public use during the summer, and many people are taking advantage of it.

Coach Brian Connolly says that the weight room, gym and track are being used by boy and girl athletes, non-athletic students and area citizens.

He reported that about 30-35 people were utilizing the weights and that a larger number was taking advantage of the gym for basketball and other activities.

Both facilities will be open to the public until about the first week in August, when the football program will begin gearing up.

The weight room is open Monday through Friday. On Wednesdays, the time is from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. The other days it is available from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The gym is open on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

team members Mark Dennis, Robert Chavas, Jerry Longino, Russell Lee, Bobby Simmons, Tim Deason and Chuck Ponton, and Assistant Coach Jay Longino. Team mother was Mrs. Andy Huffmeyer. Sponsor of the Indians was First National Bank.

Rockport Takes Track Honors

Lots of folks endured the heat in Rockport this past Saturday to participate in, work in, or just watch the Summer Program Track Meet.

It was the last meet before the qualifying one to be held in Portland this coming Saturday.

Many area schools fared well in the meet, with Gregory-Portland and Alice leading the way in the running events in the older divisions.

But Rockport-Fulton controlled the weight events in field events competition.

Bubba Scott was a double winner, taking the shot put and the discus competition. Scott tossed the shot 51'2 3/4" and hurled the discus 144 feet, 2 inches.

Rockport also placed in shot put, with Jeb Beall in second, Mac Schmidt third and Joe Barrera fourth. Behind Scott in the discus was Schmidt in third with Barrera again taking fourth.

Also in the older division, Mike Zlock was a second place winner in the high jump.

The team of Zlock, Richard Blair, Ernie Lara and Clyde Barre took first in the Mile Relay.

The 15- and 16-year-old ribbon winners for Rockport were Mike Arthur who won the discus and placed fourth in the shot put, Mike Simmons and Zack Green finishing 1-2 in the 100 meter dash, Ernie Lara fourth in the 200 meters and Aaron Commander taking fifth place in the high jump. David Ramirez showed up in time to enter the 1600 meter run and take second.

In the 13-14 division, Joe Cantu won the long jump with a leap of 15 feet, 6 1/2 inches.

The Rockport 400 Meter

Relay team finished third in that event. Cantu came back to take fourth in the 200 meter dash, Brian King was sixth in the 400 and Ricky Cantu was sixth in the 200 meters.

A make-up team of Ricky Cantu, King, Mark Garcia and Joe Arjona entered the Mile Relay in the next division up and placed fifth.

David Cantu took top honors winning the 11-12 high jump. Jesse Avila was second in that same event, and James Huff was third. Ben Friebele placed fifth in the long jmp, Mark Garcia was sixth in the 100 meters, and the division's 400 Meter Relay team was sixth.

Rounding out the boys' competition, Johnathan Dickerson placed sixth in the 50-yard dash in the 10 and under group.

Bertha Huff won the 100 meters and placed second in the 50-yard dash to pace the 10 and under girls. The 400 Meter Relay team in that division was fifth and Virginia Dickerson was fifth in the 11-12 girls' 100 meters.

In the top age group for the girls, Rockport-Fulton sported nothing but winners.

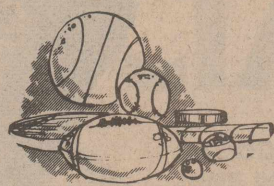

Belinda Cross won the 100 meters and the 200 meters and ran on the winning 600 Meter Relay team.

The 400 Meter Relay team was first, as well. Terri Moore was first in the girls' discus, and Darlene Dilworth was first in the high jump with a leap of five feet.

Coach Ron Richardson expressed his thanks to those who worked to run off the meet, those who worked in the press box and a special thanks to those who gave their time to work in the concession stand.

Top Professional Staff to Help You

TO THE PARAMEDICS, WITH THANKS

Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk, center, presents a framed resolution to Bill Aston, left, head of the Aransas County paramedical team, Tuesday afternoon, June 24, after reading the resolution which expresses official appreciation from the City of Rockport for work done by the paramedics on the new Water Safety Patrol/emergency rescue boat. Looking on is Dr. Jerry Shaw, right, operations manager for the county ambulance service and a former city councilman. The paramedics put in volunteer hours to paint and do repair work on the boat which was donated to the city by attorney S. Reese Rozzell with the understanding that it would be used jointly for the city summer Water Safety patrol and by the paramedics for emergency rescue. [Pilot Photo by Pat Blair]

Such a disturbance is making itself felt right now. Because of limited treatment facilities, San Patricio is having trouble supplying all the water its customers need when they need it.

Officials point out that there is no actual shortage of water. It is there. But San Patricio buys the water raw from Corpus Christi and treats it before reselling -- and the treatment process takes about 24 hours.

The result is that San Patricio can't keep up with the demand from its customers and has been -- and is still -- asking residents in the areas it serves to cut back on the amount of water they use. As of Thursday morning, city officials reported the San Patricio water district was "holding its own" but residents of Aransas County still needed to "keep conserving water."

A more serious threat to the county would be an actual cutback in the water available -- and this is what troubles Mayor Falk and why he attended a meeting of the Texas Water Commission June 18 in Corpus Christi.

The State, Falk says, is trying to take away some of Corpus Christi's water rights. "The farmers and ranchers upriver want more water rights," he said. Corpus Christi is countering with a demand for the full yield of both Wesley Seale and Choke Canyon dams. Falk attended the meeting after seeing population projections drawn up by the Water Commission for the seven counties in the Corpus Christi area.

These figures show a current estimated population of 12,400 for Aransas County today and a projected population of 42,200 for the county by the year 2030 -- 50 years from now.

"I contend they started approximately 4,000 people light," says Falk, who feels the current population of the county is around 16,000 and that it will continue to gain an average of 1000 people a year -- which would place the population of the Live Oak Peninsula at around 66,000 people by the year 2030.

Corpus Christi officials say the Water Commission's estimates of population for Nueces and San Patricio counties also runs light -- by several thousand.

This raises concern because projections for the amount of water an area will need are based, at least in part, on population.

Falk joined with Nueces County officials at the June 18 hearing in presenting evidence of future growth of this area and a growing need for the full water rights.

The Texas Water Commission will consider evidence presented at the hearing and then make a decision -- a process that could take several months. Falk said the water rights question is "one of those things that doesn't mean anything right now -- but it will in a few years."

For Aransas County, sitting at the end of the water line that starts in Corpus Christi, it could mean a lot...

The drawback is that the computer and plant where the layout work is done are located about 15 miles from Ulrich's desk. Any suggestions of ideas he might have about actually putting the story down for reading, must be transmitted by telephone, which can sometimes be frustrating.

He had a real appreciation of our system in which writers, editors, photographers and layout people (who are sometimes all one and the same person) can talk over ideas about how to best get the news across to the readers.

Kristiane, who teaches Russian and German, said that this was their first trip to the United States.

They agreed that our highway system is preferable to theirs because the German roads are so crowded and many cities do not have a loop, so that it is necessary to drive through the middle of most of them.

They reported that the European railway system was a good way to travel, but as with everything else nowadays, it is expensive.

The food here is generally a better value, the couple said. Not better tasting, you just get more for your money. They have eaten in and enjoyed many fast-food places here. These have not yet taken over in Germany, although Ulrich said that they just got a coupe of McDonald's in the area!

They especially liked our breakfasts, which are much larger than the usual piece of toast served in Germany. They have tried most items on the menu, except one, but they promised to give it a try before leaving town.
