Band seeking 30th- straight 'I' Saturday

The Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band will perform at 7:15 p.m. Saturday at the District I Marching Contest at Bulldog Stadium in Borger.

The band will be seeking its 30th straight first division rating in the district marching contest and the opportunity to advance to the regional contest Nov. 3 in Odessa.

The band has earned a Division I, superior, rating each year, beginning the string in 1961 under Ben Gollehon. The band has earned four Division I under current director James MacLaskey. Randy Vaughn led the band to seven superior ratings, and John Martinez directed the band to four "I's".

The band will perform its "Western Movies" show on which it has been working all year along with the twirlers and drill team. The selections include the themes from Magnificent Seven, Wagon Train, Oklahoma Crude, and other selections. The band, drill team and twirlers have worked since the summer on the various aspects of the show.

The contest begins Saturday morning at 9 a.m. with Pampa Middle School. Class 5A starts at 9:18 a.m., 1A at 10:03 a.m., 2A at 1:30 p.m., 3A at 3:36 p.m. and 4A at 6:30 p.m. General admission to the contest is $2.

Also performing will be the HHS twirlers in solo and ensemble competition. They, too, may earn the right to advance to the state solo and ensemble contest in June if they earn a first division rating in Class I solo or ensemble competition.

Although contest judges do not have to send any bands to the regional contest, they may certify up to two bands to regional. During the past four years, five of the six 4A bands in District I have advanced to the regional marching contest at least once.

The opportunity to advance beyond district competition is fairly new. The state marching contest was started in 1979 with 47 bands competing. By 1983 the contest had grown to 119 bands and two days were required to complete the contest. In 1984, the current district-regional-state format was adopted with seven regional sites across the state.

Over 100,000 students have performed in the state contest, with over $250,000 rebated to participating schools. Over 35,000 persons attend the contest each year, and is one of the largest events of its kind in the United States.

Band ready for competition

The Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band goes through its contest show at last Friday's Hereford-Randall football game at Whiteface Stadium. The band will perform in the district marching contest at 7:15 p.m. Saturday at Borger.

Bush's Gulf decisions due

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush faces several decisions that will affect the size and capabilities of U.S. forces in the Mideast and perhaps signal his intentions in the standoff with Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

At the top of the list is whether to enlarge or shrink the Persian Gulf force, now at 220,000; the subject of talks in Saudi Arabia this week between ground commanders and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Colin Powell. He is due back in Washington tonight.

That decision could affect another issue soon to reach Bush's desk - a Pentagon plan that calls for rotating most troops sent to the Middle East on a six-month basis.

The American buildup hit a symbolic juncture Wednesday with the arrival in Saudi Arabia of the final elements of the 11th Air Defense Brigade from Fort Bliss, Texas. It was the last combat unit scheduled for deployment in the region, Pentagon sources said.

The only remaining troops scheduled to be sent to the area following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait are in support units. They should arrive in the next three weeks, bringing the total deployment to 240,000, said the sources, speaking on the condition of anonymity.

If Powell recommends and Bush approves adding to the force, Pentagon sources said the likely additions would be heavy armor units from the United States, Europe or both. Such orders also would require sending additional support units into the region, the sources said.

"That would ratchet up the pressure on Saddam and give the president the option of surprise if he decided to go on the offensive," one source said. "If a decision has been made to kick him out, then adding to the force first would make it more efficient in terms of loss of life."

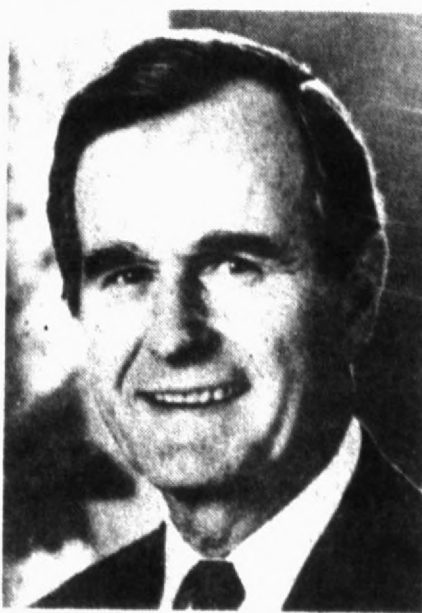

There appears to be little domestic or international support for a unilateral U.S. offensive, however.

Barring some action by Iraq that would bring consensus for an attack, Pentagon sources and military analysts consider it far more likely that Bush will make small changes to the force - perhaps bringing home some units not essential to the defense of Saudi Arabia.

"We would have to double the force there to make an offensive palatable from a military standpoint," said Lawrence J. Korb, a former assistant defense secretary for manpower in the Reagan administration. "I don't think that is very likely."

By bringing some non-essential units home, Bush could "show that we are prepared to stay there for the long haul" as long as he articulated the reasons for the moves, Korb said. The Pentagon sources said draft rotation plans call for six-month rotations for most units, which would mean the first large-scale substitutions occurring in February.

The sequence of the rotations is still under discussion, with an announcement expected within two weeks, this source said.

Early voting set Saturday

If you'd like to vote early for the Nov. 6 general election but can't make it by the county clerk's office during the week, this Saturday was designed for you.

County Clerk David Ruland and his staff will have the office open Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to allow persons an opportunity to vote early for the general election. Ruland will also give away "Vote 90" t-shirts to the first 25 persons who vote Saturday.

The t-shirts have the distinctive "Vote 90" logo, part of the program designed by Texas Secretary of State George Bayoud to encourage voters to participate in elections.

The no-excuses early voting period was begun in 1988 to try to increase participation in elections. Under old rules, only persons who were going to be out of town on election day could cast ballots early. The rules were relaxed in 1988 and persons may now vote early to avoid the usual long lines on election day.

The early voting has been successful in Deaf Smith County, with up to 30 percent of ballots cast in elections coming from the early voting period.

Early voting will continue through Nov. 2.

Budget deal almost done

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional leaders were putting the finishing touches today on a deficit-reduction package of tax increases and spending restraints that apparently has the support of a majority of lawmakers and President Bush.

Assuming no unexpected hitch, final votes could come Friday in the House and Senate. That would close another chapter in a long-running fight between the executive and legislative branches and remove the major obstacle to adjournment of the 101st Congress.

"Do not despair; the end is in sight," Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., said in pleading with the weary House to pass a stopgap bill extending the government's spending authority through the week.

That bill, which Bush had signaled he would accept, cleared the House on a 385-40 vote and the Senate with no formal vote at all. It averted a partial shutdown of the government and gave Congress three more days to pass the deficit-reduction plan and the 13 regular appropriations bills for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The plan will mean higher taxes on tobacco, alcoholic beverages,

New deficit reduction deal

- Higher premium for Medicare coverage.
- Higher taxes on tobacco, alcoholic beverages, airline tickets, cars, boats, furs and jewelry.
- Top tax rate goes from 28% to 31%.
- Higher-income taxpayers will lose some exemptions and will have lower deductions.
- Capital gains rate: 28%

airline tickets, cars, boats, furs and jewelry. A gasoline tax increase of 5 or 6 cents a gallon is likely and retirees probably will have to pay more for Medicare coverage.

Several changes whose details were still being negotiated will mean higher income taxes on those with higher incomes, especially those above the $100,000-a-year range. But a provision that would have raised taxes on lower- and middle-income Americans by forgoing next year's scheduled inflation adjustment in income taxes was dropped.

Leaders of both parties embraced broad outlines of the deficit-reduction compromise Wednesday after Democrats dropped demands that it include a special surtax on the rich. Bush indicated he was pleased with progress being made, but top lawmakers cautioned they had not agreed on a final product.

The talks have produced preliminary agreement on major tax issues including:

-Raising the top tax rate on the wealthiest people to 31 percent from the present 28 percent. The 33 percent rate paid by upper-middle-income people on some of their earnings would drop to 31 percent.

-Phasing out the $2,050 personal exemptions for single people with taxable incomes over $100,000 and couples above $150,000.

-Permitting writing off only 97 percent of otherwise allowable deductions against any portion of adjusted gross income over $100,000 a year.

-Setting a maximum tax rate of 28 percent on capital gains, which are profits from the sale of investments.

The bill that contains tax increases and restraints on Medicare and other mandatory spending would cut the deficit by about $250 billion over the next five years. Another $250 billion would come principally from scaling back military spending and cutting interest expenses by reducing government borrowing.

Even with that package, government spending is expected to total $1.2 trillion during the 12 months that end next Sept. 30 and the deficit would be a record $250 billion. The bill envisions that today's federal debt of $3 trillion-plus will soar to $5 trillion by the end of the five-year period.

Supreme Court will hear school case

AUSTIN (AP) - Poor school districts and the state said they hope the Texas Supreme Court will decide whether the state's public education finance system is constitutional before the Legislature convenes in January.

The court on Wednesday said it will hear arguments Nov. 28 in the case.

"Hopefully, this will allow us to have a strong Supreme Court opinion in time to make sure that the governor and the Legislature follow the Texas Constitution," said Al Kauffman, attorney with the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

He represents a number of poor school districts that have successfully challenged the finance system.

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter, representing the state, said, "It's probably better for everybody to get a quick resolution."

State District Judge Scott McCown last month ruled the school finance system unconstitutional, saying it doesn't give all schools "substantially equal" access to funds for a similar tax effort.

His decision came despite lawmakers' efforts this summer to reform the school finance system.

Poor school districts opposed the revamped system, calling it no different than the one the Supreme Court declared unconstitutional last year on a 9-0 vote.

McCown ruled in the poor districts' favor, and gave lawmakers another year to devise an equitable system.

But the school districts represented by Kauffman appealed to the Supreme Court because they also wanted the Austin judge to immediately throw out the current system.

The court, noting "probable jurisdiction" in the case, scheduled arguments for next month.

Ron Dusek, spokesman for the attorney general, said the state will appeal McCown's ruling in time for issues it raises to be considered at that hearing.

Texans released from Iraq arrive in NY

NEW YORK (AP) - Five American men, including two Texans, arrived home from Iraq appearing healthy and in good spirits, and hoping for the speedy release of the rest of the hostages.

The men landed at John F. Kennedy International Airport aboard a Royal Jordanian Airlines flight at about 8:10 p.m. Wednesday.

"I'm very elated to be at home," said Lloyd Graham. "The celebration won't start until all our friends and colleagues can come home too."

Graham, 48, of Houston, suffers from arteriosclerosis and has undergone two quadruple bypass surgeries.

Cheryl Graham flew to New York Wednesday from Texas to meet her husband.

"He told me not to spend any money, but money's not important at a time like this," Mrs. Graham said.

Jack Frazier, 53, of Santa Ana, Calif., said he had been doing construction work in Iraq and that Americans being held there by Iraqi authorities moved around "very discreetly." But he said they did go out every day to buy their own food.

He added that leaving his fellow hostages behind "was the hardest thing I've ever done in my life."

The five men had been staying in diplomatic "safe houses" in Iraq arranged by the U.S. Embassy. Frazier said the Iraqis knew where they were.

A man who wouldn't give his name but who was identified by others as Mark Ward of Middletown, N.J., a marine sergeant attached to the U.S. Embassy in Iraq, told reporters: "I'm glad to be home. Morale is great."

Referring to President Bush, he said: "George, keep up the good work. It's great to be back." His family met him at the airport and toasted his arrival with champagne in plastic cups.

Frazier, Graham and Ward, along with the other two, Larry Murray and John Thompson, were allowed to leave either because they or their relatives have medical conditions.

None of them was specific about why they had been released.

Murray's wife, Sandy, who lives in the Houston suburb of Kingwood, said she "talked to him briefly and he seems to be doing very well. He's ready to come home."

She said in telephone conversations with her husband, "he would state that he never felt free to talk."

Mrs. Murray said her husband is "in chronic pain." She did not know his current medical condition, but "as far as I know, it's stable."

The five men were brought out of Iraq along with nine other Americans - mostly ailing or elderly - by seven members of the American-Iraqi Foundation, based in Washington, D.C. The group is made up of U.S. citizens of Iraqi descent.

Future looks dim for GOP hopefuls

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans are bracing themselves for Election Day losses and conservatives are ready to lay the blame at the feet of President Bush.

With less than two weeks remaining before the polls open, polling data from a wide range of states points to growing support for Democratic candidates.

"A month ago I would have said we were going to win one or two seats in the Senate," said David Keene, a Republican political consultant and conservative activist. "I think now we're going to lose two and it could be more."

Keene also predicted Wednesday that GOP losses in the House "would be a lot worse than anybody thought." And, he said, "it's traceable to one person and that's the president of the United States."

Going into the election, Democrats control the Senate by a margin of 55-45 and the House by 258-176. Republicans had hoped to trim the Senate margin and hold their House losses to fewer than 10 seats.

But the budget negotiations proved a disaster for Republicans. Conservatives rebelled against Bush's decision to drop his hard-line opposition to any tax increases and helped defeat a compromise package worked out between the White House and the congressional leadership.

Then the president appeared unable to make up his mind on whether he would or would not agree to increasing the tax load on the rich.

While all that was happening, the Democrats succeeded in reinforcing a public perception of the Republicans as the party that cared more about the wealthy than the middle class.

In a recent Newsweek poll, 65 percent of the people said they thought Bush was "more concerned about wealthy Americans than he should be."

"In the last 10 days Republicans have taken a nosedive," said Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., who believed the Republicans should hold to a hard line against tax increases.

"It's not possible for the Republican Party to win the public relations battle over fairness," said Weber. "People are inclined to believe that the Republican Party is the party of the rich more than the Democratic Party."

Poll results that have Republicans nervous include these:

-In Oregon, Democrat Harry Lonsdale leads Sen. Mark Hatfield 50

to 44 percent in a survey conducted late last week. A new survey in the governor's race has Democrat Barbara Roberts taking a four-point lead over Republican Dave Frohnmayer. Bidding for a fifth Senate term, Hatfield got 67 percent of the vote six years ago. Lonsdale, a wealthy businessman, began the race as a virtual unknown.

-In Minnesota, a new poll shows Democrat Paul Wellstone pulling to within 3 points of Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, who began the campaign rated one of the safe Republicans.

-Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who was looking like a possible victim of virulent anti-incumbent sentiment, holds a 14-point lead over Republican challenger Jim Rappaport. The race was a dead heat in polls two weeks ago.

-Also in Massachusetts, a new survey puts Democrat John Silber six points ahead of Republican William Weld in the race for governor.

-Democrat Harvey Gantt continues to lead Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in North Carolina. The latest survey put Gantt's lead at eight points.

US & UN rebuke Israel; Shamir refuses appeal

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - For the second time in 10 days, the United States has joined a unanimous Security Council vote rebuking Israel, this time for not cooperating with a U.N. probe into the Temple Mount killings.

Not even a last-ditch personal appeal from President Bush to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir persuaded Israel to change its mind and officially receive the U.N. investigators.

The U.N. resolution, approved 15-0 on Wednesday, is largely symbolic. No sanctions against Israel are expected, said British Ambassador David Hannay, who is president of the council for October.

Israeli security forces trying to quell a riot opened fire and killed 19 Palestinians on Jerusalem's sacred Temple Mount on Oct. 8. Arabs had unleashed a volley of stones on Jews praying below at the Western Wall.

Israel has since seen a spate of Arab-Israeli revenge attacks. In response, Israeli authorities sealed off the occupied territories Wednesday, thus preventing Palestinians from getting to jobs in Israel.

Ten days ago, the United States broke with past practice and joined a 15-0 council vote denouncing Israeli security forces for the shootings on the Temple Mount, in which about 140 Palestinians were wounded.

That resolution asked U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to send a delegation to investigate and submit a report on the killings.

Council members said in a non-binding presidential statement Oct. 12 that the report should recommend how to protect Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel seized in that 1967 Middle East war.

Israel fears that accepting the U.N. mission would be tantamount to accepting world objections to Israel's annexation of predominantly Arab east Jerusalem, which was also captured in the 1967 war.

Perez de Cuellar said last week that if Israel doesn't cooperate with the U.N. investigation, he would have no option but to limit his report to ways of protecting Palestinians.

The resolution approved Wednesday "deplores the refusal of the Israeli government to receive the mission" and "insists" that Israel "permit the mission ... to proceed in keeping with its purpose."

The vote was delayed 24 hours on Tuesday so Bush could contact Shamir, urging him to receive the U.N. mission so the Security Council could resume its series of anti-Iraq resolutions.

The United States had been under intense pressure from Arab and other states not to veto the resolution and risk eroding the fragile coalition arrayed against Iraq, which depends on moderate Arab states such as Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Morocco.

A U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there was a late-night exchange between Bush and Shamir on Tuesday in which the Israeli leader took an uncompromising stance.

U.S. officials said they had been led to expect that Israel would agree to some sort of compromise, and Bush was offended by Shamir's intransigence.

The Israeli government denounced the resolution in advance, said it would not cooperate and called the council hypocritical.

Israel is the largest recipient of U.S. foreign aid, and has in the past relied on the United States to block attempts to condemn its actions in the Security Council.

Pavliceks to celebrate golden anniversary

Jim and Emily Pavlicek will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, Oct. 28, with a mass at St. Anthony's Church followed by a dinner at the Antonian Room.

Jim and Emily Pavlicek were married on Oct. 26, 1940, at Sacred Heart Church in Wichita Falls. They previously resided in Lubbock and have lived in Hereford for 35 years.

Mr. Pavlicek is an industrial sales representative and Mrs. Pavlicek is a homemaker. They are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Hosting the dinner will be the couple's children: Emily Diller of Texline, John Pavlicek of Houston, and Camille Pavlicek Fauser of Kent, Ohio.

The couple have six grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

A strain of carrots with shorter, blunter ends has been developed so that the carrots will not puncture the polyfilm bags in which they're packaged.

Netters head for Region

The Hereford Whiteface tennis team was scheduled to make their fifth straight appearance at the Region I-4A Tournament in Lubbock today, opening the tourney with a 10 a.m. match against District 5-4A runnerup Burk Burnett.

Coach Luis Zavala said the competition at this year's event should be even stronger than 1989, when the Herd reached the semifinals before falling to eventual champion Big Spring.

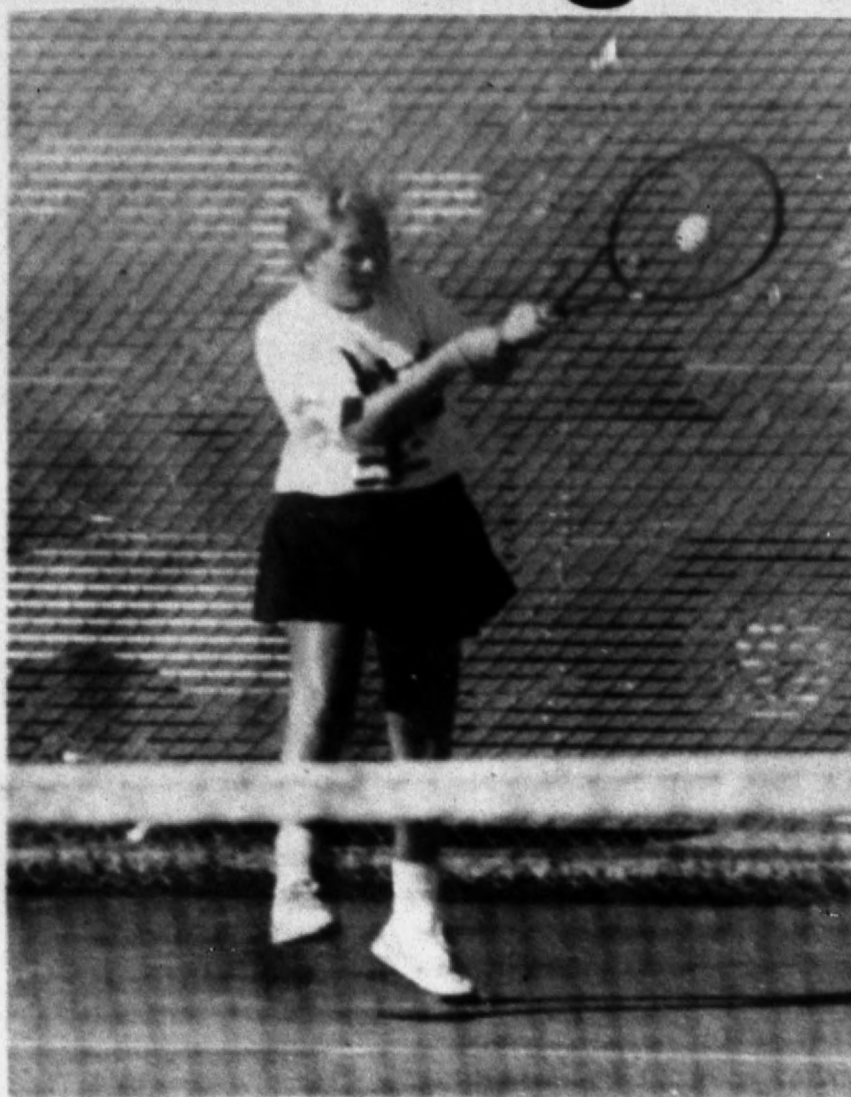

"The competition will probably be even tougher than last year because we have (District 5-4A winner) Wichita Falls High School, which went down from Class 5A," Zavala said. "Wichita Falls has some of the outstanding players in the state. They

Other teams in the field include Lamesa and Snyder from District 2-4A, Brownwood and Granbury from 6-4A, Saginaw Boswell and Fort Worth Arlington Heights from 7-4A and 1-4A runnerup Pampa.

Zavala said he likes the Herd's (9-3 on the season, 5-0 in winning district) chances of coming home with the title despite what the field will offer.

"We should have a very good chance to win because we have seven seniors who have been to regional before," he said. We also have very good depth even though it is inexperienced.

"We have Greg Coplen playing in the fall for the first time and Donny (See NETTERS, Page 5)

Herd facing important test against Dumas

By SAM WALLER
Sports Editor

For the second week in a row the Hereford Whitefaces will take on a winless team known to put the ball in the air when the Herd visits Dumas at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The Herd (2-4-1 overall, 1-0-1 in District 1-4A) will once again be in what Coach Don Cumpston terms a very important game.

"The thing we have to focus in on right now is this is the most important game," Cumpston said. "As you progress into district, each game you win makes the next one a little bit bigger. Over the last two weeks this has become a big game for us."

The Demons (0-7, 0-2) have yet to unleash what was expected to be a high-octane offense keyed by quarterback Samuel Strayhorn, but Cumpston said anything could happen in the game.

"The (Herd) defense has a tremendous challenge this week. Strayhorn is a tremendous quarterback and the secondary will have to play well. And Dumas can also hurt you by running the ball.

"I don't know what to expect, to be honest. In the games we've seen this year they've both passed and ran.

Some games they throw it a bunch and run very little and some games have been about 50-50.

"Last week against Caprock they moved the ball pretty good and they mixed it up. I really don't know what to expect.

"They run the quarterback draw a lot, but they usually line up in a one-back set and turn around and give it to the back."

Cumpston added that the Demons will once again show a wide array of offensive sets with receivers lined up all over the field.

"They'll show us a lot of things," he said. "They'll spread the field and have five receivers or four on one side or with two to each side or just almost anything."

Cumpston said Hereford should be well prepared for the Dumas aerial assault after defending 50 passes in last week's 38-6 win over Canyon Randall.

"I think the Randall game will help immensely against Dumas," he said. "We'll have had two full weeks of working on pass defense and it should help a bunch."

Some things are too good to be true

The best advice that my father ever gave me concerned a used 1956 Ford that I wanted desperately - as only a 14-year-old could want his first car. He refused to allow me to buy that car because he firmly stated that "it was too good to be true." The price was several hundred dollars under market value and my father knew that I would be buying a lemon.

I thought of his sage advice when I first learned of the Big Bass Super Derby on Lake Sam Rayburn. The results of this $500,000 big bass fishing tournament are in and the shocks will ripple through the fishing industry.

It is easy to see how the promoters of the tournament deserve the wrath and anger that will surely be heaped upon them. They join a list that includes U.S. Open and World Series of Bass Fishing by writing a hot check as prize money. Shame on 'em!

It is more difficult to understand how nearly 3,000 fishermen paid several hundred dollars each in entry fees in the dream of winning the grand prize of $500,000. As my father said, "it's too good to be true." The payback was not based on number of entries. Let me repeat that vital piece of information. THE PAYBACK WAS NOT BASED ON NUMBER OF ENTRIES. They just made up number and prize money and waited for fishermen to send them the money.

Next time you dream of riches and fame on the fishing tournament trail make sure that the prize money is real. The best guarantee is "based on the number of entries" and not on the fantasy numbers of the promoter. the payback based on the number of fishermen may not rival some pie in the sky number of the hustlers, but you can depend on the winner really receiving the prize money.

Every successful angler is by nature an eternal optimist, braving wind, rain, heat and cold in order to pursue the invisible prey. The pessimist quit the fishing game early. It is the optimist that keep on dreaming of more and bigger fish.

Saturday will be the Sixth and last Fun Tournament on Lake Meredith for the 1990 schedule. The entry fee is only and the winner will receive $500 (all together now) BASED ON 100 ENTRIES. Now is the time to catch some trophy smallmouths. Registration starts at noon at Cedar Canyon. Fishing is from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Two weeks until quail season. Last call on a quick visit to the skeet range. A little practice will help put more birds on the griddle. Good luck and good hunting.

Herd favored to beat the devil out of Dumas by 20

The Hereford Whiteface football team will be looking to start a football-volleyball sweep of the Dumas Demons Friday when the two teams meet in a District 1-4A matchup at Dumas before the Herd.

The Harris Rating System has installed Hereford as a 20-point favorite to beat the devil out of the Demons on the gridiron in a prelude to Saturday's district playoff between the Lady Whitefaces and the Demonettes.

The Herd (2-4-1 overall, 1-0-1 in district) enters the game off a 38-6 Homecoming pasting of Canyon Randall that saw Hereford's highest offensive output of the season. The Whitefaces slipped down a notch to No. 68 in the Class 4A Harris rankings, but added one point to their power rating for a 173.

The winless Demons (0-7, 0-1) are coming off a disappointing 31-20 loss to Amarillo Caprock after leading the Longhorns 20-9 into the fourth quarter.

The loss, which ended an offensive slump for the Demons after totaling 21 points in the previous five games, left Dumas ranked at No. 140 for the second week in a row while adding a rating point to 154.

DISTRICT 1-4A GAMES

Who'da thunk it?

The Caprock Longhorns are all alone in first place with a 2-0 mark after opening the season 0-5 against non-district opponents.

Following the 'Horns in second place are Hereford and Pampa, both 1-0-1, with Borger third at 1-1 and Dumas and Randall on bottom at 0-2.

The Longhorns may not get to enjoy that winning feeling much longer, however, as they visit Borger on Friday before facing the Herd and Pampa the next two weeks.

In Friday's other district matchup, the Harvesters pay a visit to Randall.

Caprock (2-5, 2-0) at Borger (3-4, 1-1): The winner of this game stays alive in the playoff chase while the loser, especially if it's Borger, can pretty much be counted out as both must still face Hereford before things are over.

The Longhorns rallied for 22 points in the fourth quarter last week to pull out the win over Dumas. The victory left Caprock completely unchanged in Harris' eyes as the team remains at No. 117 with a rating of 161 for the second straight week.

Borger went into Pampa and played well for a half before losing 29-14. The loss knocked the Bulldogs down four spots to No. 99 and cost them a rating point to 165.

Harris picks the 'Dogs to tip the 'Horns by six points.

Pampa (3-2-1, 1-0-1) at Randall (0-7, 0-2): The Harvesters stayed in the thick of the 1-4A race with last week's win over Borger. The district's highest rated team comes in this week having moved up six places to No. 46 and added a rating point to 177.

The Raiders filled the air with passes against the Herd, but forget to catch very many as Randall's quarterback combo finished 17 of 50. The loss left Randall one spot and one point lower at No. 155 and 145.

The Harvesters are 29-point favorites to reap the win.

scheme, Cumpton said, will be more use of man-to-man coverage.

"We'll mix it up a little more this week," he said. "We didn't feel like we got the pressure we needed last week, so we'll go with a little more man-to-man in the secondary and bring some different stunts to create more pressure. I think we can stay with their receivers well enough to do that."

To get that pressure, though, the Herd front will have to get around an offensive line that outweighs on average about 35 pounds. The Dumas line is anchored by 330-pound tackle Santo Greenwood.

"They average about 248 pounds in the offensive line," Cumpton said. "They are the biggest line we've played. We'll have to be quicker because on that kind of a deal you have to take advantage of what you can do. We're not going to gain 30-40 pounds a man before then, so we'll have to use our quickness."

Cumpton said the Herd attack, which piled up a season high 454 yards against Randall, will continue to feature a few new wrinkles.

"The kids have done a good job with the misdirection offense the last couple of weeks," he said. "And we'll do some of the other stuff we've been doing. We're going to try to keep them off balance as much as we can."

"The offense has made a lot of difference the last few games. We've put some points on the board and executed well, and for most of the game last week we didn't turn the ball over. That's encouraging because turnovers have been our Achilles heel all season."

INJURY REPORT: OL Brady Wilson (knee) is available after missing four games. Reserves RB Larry Brown (finger) and WR Todd Selmon (knee) are out. Kicker Jesus Gonzales suffered a bruised left quadriceps muscle recovering a PAT snap, but is expected to play.

The Whiteface Booster Club will give the team a sendoff at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the corner of 16th Street and U.S. Highway 385. All Herd fans are invite to show their support with signs and banners.

Headed for a head-on

Hereford Whiteface linebacker Oscar Garcia readies to lower the boom on a Canyon Randall ball carrier during last week's 38-6 win over the Raiders. The Herd hits the road Friday for a 7:30 p.m. contest against District 1-4A opponent Dumas.

NETTERS

Perales and Jamie Reinauer are also sophomores. Bri Reinauer is a freshman and has never been there before.

In doubles, Robbins and Coplen teamed for a 6-5 overall mark and were 4-1 in district. Other doubles teams included Cortez and Sellers (6-1, 4-0), Kapka and Perales (9-3, 5-0) and Sellers and Flood (1-3, 1-0).

Zavala said the Herd girls could be the ones to carry the load in the two-day event, while the boys will be expected to hold their own.

"Our girls are very strong," he said. "I think they are as good or better than anyone else who will be there. And the boys are very balanced. We are very even form top to bottom on the boys."

Pacing the girls will be senior Brenna Reinauer and Gina Alley at Nos. 1 and 2 in singles and the No. 1 doubles pair. Reinauer fashioned a 7-4 singles mark on the season and was 4-1 in district play with four 6-0, 6-0 victories. Alley turned in a 9-2 season record and was 5-0 in district. The duo was 7-3 overall in doubles and undefeated in five district matches.

Also on tap for the girls will be Trisha Munoz (5-1 on the year in singles, 2-0 in 1-4A), Robyn Sublett (6-5, 3-2), Trisha Teel (7-3, 4-1) and Bri Reinauer (10-2, 5-0). The top alternate for the girls has been Emily Fuston (6-0, 3-0).

Rangers to build new stadium near old park

ARLINGTON (AP) - The Texas Rangers hope they'll have a team to match their showpiece new home three or four years from now.

The Rangers announced on Wednesday they are staying in their own backyard, Arlington, to build a new ballpark in a $165 million agreement that locks them in this city midway between Dallas and Fort Worth for the next 40 years.

"It's going to be something special," said Rangers general manager Tom Grieve. "We're not going to take a vacation on the field until its built, but by the time you move into a new park you better bring the fans a winner."

Manager Bobby Valentine, who has a restaurant nearby, said, "This is great. We're making a big commitment to Arlington. Now we've got to bring them a big winner."

The announcement of the new park near the current Arlington Stadium ends speculation that the team would move to downtown Dallas.

It will cost Rangers fans an extra $1 per ticket to help retire the bond debt.

The team unveiled the model for a new open-air ballpark that team spokesman Tom Schieffer said he hoped would be ready by opening day in 1994.

The city must pass a one-half cent sales tax issue on Jan. 12 for construction to begin.

The Rangers, who moved to Arlington from Washington in 1972, had hoped to begin play in a new stadium by summer 1993. But Schieffer said opening day of 1994 is a more likely target date.

The baseball-only stadium would have natural grass and be built on what is now a parking lot about one-quarter mile southeast of Arlington Stadium. It would seat approximately 45,000 to 50,000. The Rangers drew over 2 million fans this year for the second straight season. The current capacity is 43,508.

Rangers officials say a new stadium is needed because the current stadium, originally built as a minor-league park, can't generate enough revenue. Several sites had been studied, including one in downtown Dallas and one near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Under the agreement, the city would create a financing authority that would issue up to $135 million worth of 30-year bonds. The Rangers would agree to rent and maintain the stadium for about $5 million a year and would agree to raise as much as $30 million through the lease of luxury boxes and seat options.

Once the debt is retired, the Rangers would have the option to buy the complex for $60 million - provided they agree to remain in Arlington for an additional 10 years.

The Rangers will donate 75 acres for the new ballpark, with 7.5 acres coming from the city and the stadium authority acquiring the remaining 95 acres.

Schieffer said the project includes a road called "Nolan Ryan Expressway."

Plans also call for a park and a Little League field that would be an exact replica of the new stadium.

"We wanted to build a park which would be the envy of the whole country," Schieffer said. "And we wanted it to be a part of the community and not just something to be used on game day. We wanted to create something for families, which is why we are going to have picnic tables, jogging paths, and restaurants and shops."

"Of course, we have the dream that some day a kid who plays in the Little League park will play in the World Series in Arlington Stadium."

Arlington Mayor Richard Greene said, "The last time Arlington had a day like this was some 20 years ago when the Washington franchise was moved to Arlington. Now, you'll be able to put Arlington with the same sentence with Anaheim, Calif., and Orlando, Fla."

Greene had lobbied to keep the Rangers in Arlington, where a stretch of Interstate 30 provides some of the state's biggest tourist attractions, including Arlington Stadium, the Wet 'N Wild water park and Six Flags over Texas, an amusement park.

Schieffer said new roads would be built and "access to Arlington Stadium will be better than any park in America."

Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis was on hand to talk about a highway plan that would help traffic access to the new ballpark.

Tarrant County has agreed to contribute $500,000 a year for five years for road improvements.

George W. Bush, the Rangers managing partner, said, "This is an historic day for the Texas Rangers. And we're very pleased that we'll be able to start a new era in a new stadium."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My partner and I made a formal commitment five years ago. Although our union is not recognized legally, the wedding ceremony was deeply spiritual. All our friends and family members shared in our happiness. We are gay.

"Denny" and I are invited everywhere as a couple. Everyone thinks of us that way. The problem we have been struggling with came to a head a few weeks ago at the wedding of Denny's brother.

Denny is a great dancer. He never sits out a number. The women love to dance with him, which means I am left alone a lot. At his brother's wedding I insisted that Denny dance with me, and he finally did. No one reacted, at least we didn't notice any stares.

We enjoy dancing together but we don't want to make others uncomfortable. Do you think it's OK? We need an outside opinion.—Jerry in D.C.

mother-in-law should throw out all the old photos of her son and his first wife. I would agree with you that the wife was childish for making such an issue of it, but I was surprised that you didn't remark on the insensitivity of the mother-in-law for keeping a picture of her son's first wedding hanging in the recreation room.

I am reminded of when I first met my own mother-in-law. I was nervous about it since I knew that "Joe" was the apple of her eye and I was afraid she wouldn't think any woman was good enough for him. Much to my relief, she turned out to be wonderfully warm, kind and accepting of me.

I will never forget the evening when she pulled out some family albums to show me Joe's childhood pictures. As we were flipping the pages she came across a picture of Joe and his first wife. Immediately she took it out and said, "This doesn't belong in here anymore," and ripped it in half!

I can't tell you how much that gesture meant to me. Needless to say, I feel very lucky to have such a terrific mother-in-law.—Anchorage

DEAR JERRY: In Eastern European countries men traditionally dance together. Nobody thinks it's strange. If you and Denny want to dance together in the company of family and friends who are aware of and accept your relationship, I see nothing wrong with it. I assume, of course, that you mean conventional dancing—no Lambada, no cheek to cheek and no slow dancing with erotic overtones.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing about the woman who felt her

DEAR ANCHORAGE: I don't want to take anything away from your lovely mother-in-law, but a lot depends on how she felt about Joe's first wife. I'll bet she likes you much better.

I see nothing wrong with hanging a wedding picture of a son and an ex-daughter-in-law amidst a collection of family photos. After all, the first wedding was part of the family history and, as such, it has a legitimate place on the wall.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a call girl, which is not quite the same as a prostitute. I enjoy my freedom, make very good money and have met some interesting men. But I am now ready for a meaningful relationship.

Do you think a high-class gentleman could handle my "other life" or should I keep quiet about it? I trust your judgment.—Nameless in Sacramento

DEAR SAC: Use your head, girl. If you try to conceal your past, you will live in fear of running into a former client who will spill the beans. Tell him.

Is that Ann Landers column you clipped years ago yellow with age? For a copy of her most frequently requested poems and essays, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.87.)

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Happy Halloween! I know you're busy trying to figure out what to do with all that trick-or-treat candy you're going to be swamped with, but it's also time to talk turkey. Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey.

Again this year, as they have in the past, our friends at the Butterball Turkey Talk-Line will be available to answer your questions on any and all turkey preparation problems, from buying to thawing, cooking and serving. They even offer recipes, serving tips and hints for leftovers.

Call them on their toll-free number 1-800-323-4848 Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. (CST) from now until December 21, and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the weekend before Thanksgiving. Yes, they'll be available Thanksgiving Day, from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The staff of 44 nutritionists and home economists are specially trained in turkey matters and have answered over 1 million calls in the nine years the hotline has been operating. So don't feel your questions are for the birds, and don't give up on having the perfect Thanksgiving feast just because you're not sure of a thing or two. Give the Turkey Talk-Line a call and get cooking! —Heloise

GRAVY SERVER
Dear Heloise: While preparing dinner for a large family gathering of over 20 people, my son made what I thought was an excellent suggestion: Put the gravy in a large tea pot.

It was marvelous! We had plenty of gravy to go around without constant refills and it stayed warm with the tea cozy on the pot. —Dorothy Hames, Ontario, Canada

STUCK CAKE
Q. I have trouble with cake layers sticking to the pan if I let them sit until they're completely cooled. I hate for them to come out in pieces. Is there anything I can do when this happens? —Joy Speer, Boca Raton, Fla.

A. Put the layer into a warm oven again briefly. Remove the bottom of the pan is warmed, then from the oven and turn the layer out immediately onto a cooling rack. The shortening used to grease the pan will be softened and release the cake. —Heloise

SOUP STOCK
Dear Heloise: I make soup stock without salt, just lots of herbs for seasoning. I freeze part of it in an ice-cube tray, then store the cubes in a self-sealing plastic bag in the freezer.

Whenever I want to season a dish, I just add a cube of stock instead of salt.

—Mary MacDonald, San Anselmo, Calif.

KEEPING CANDY

Dear Readers: One last note on Halloween, since many of you have asked. Yes, you can store candy. It keeps almost indefinitely if stored in a cool, dry place, preferably in a sealed container so it won't attract pests. Soft candy bars and chocolate can also be frozen. So you can safely hide some of the trick-or-treat loot for your family to enjoy later. —Heloise

NEW YORK (AP) — What has kept Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward married for 32 years? Eternal love? Undying affection?

Try sheer luck. The Newmans, breaking a policy of not talking about their marriage, told Parade magazine they don't know why they've stayed together.

"Our marriage hasn't been a bed of roses," Newman said in the magazine's Oct. 28 issue. "Sometimes you get terminally irritated, and at one point I just packed up and left."

Asked why she thought their marriage had lasted, Woodward said: "I have no idea. Absolutely not one single idea on the subject. Probably sheer luck."

And what about the time Newman packed up and left?

"I was gone about 15 minutes," Newman said. "And I stopped and thought to myself, 'What the hell am I doing? I have no place to go!' And I turned around and came right back. Joanne's right. She said it. What we've got is sheer luck!"

Positive role models needed

Who are the heroes for young students in the 1990s?

Positive role models—people who set a good example part of the education process in the nation's school systems. More and more, students are responding to role models. They prove that dreams can become reality if students think, plan and act according to their ultimate career goals.

Former National Football League star Alan C. Page has made it his personal mission to serve as a role model to fourth graders in urban districts across the country. His visits to schools are sponsored by Eastman Kodak Company.

Page, now an assistant attorney general for the State of Minnesota, travels to classrooms to speak directly with students about how education—not athletics—can be the key to their future. "I want to get the message across to students that no matter what they want to do later in life, it's essential that they master the basic skills of reading, writing and math," he said.

He speaks from personal experience: As a defensive lineman with the Minnesota Vikings and the Chicago Bears for 15 years, he also completed law school.

"Without an education, my life would have been a dead-end after the NFL," Page said. "I'm living proof that education is the only sure way to a bright future, even for the very, very few who are lucky enough to make it in professional sports."

"Students need to understand that if they turn off to learning now, they'll be playing catch-up for years to come," Page concluded. "But if they go to class, pay attention and do their homework, they'll have the greatest privilege anyone can have: They'll be able to make choices about their future."

Kodak and Page, with the Council of the Great City Schools, also sponsor The Kodak/Alan Page Challenge in the Great Cities, an essay contest for fourth graders in 44 of the nation's largest school districts.

"The Challenge helps us reach thousands of students at a critical age," said Kay R. Whitmore, Kodak's

Natural gas is clean

Natural gas, coal and oil account for nearly 90 percent of U.S. energy use. Natural gas is the cleanest of the three.

The first U.S. use of gas was to light the streets of Baltimore in 1816. Today, because of increased concern about the environment, natural gas is being used to help clean up the nation's air. For example, a growing number of trucks, buses and fleet vehicles are running on natural gas because it is cleaner than gasoline or diesel fuel.

Natural gas is delivered to more than 174 million American consumers through a 1.2 million mile network of underground pipe.

Natural gas supplies 37 percent of the energy U.S. industry uses. A total of 150 natural gas pipeline companies and more than 1,200 as distribution companies provide natural gas service to all 50 states. Natural gas heats 56 percent of American households.

The American Gas Association reports that natural gas use increased 17 percent between 1986-89 and that the nation has huge supplies to serve consumers far into the future.

If everybody knew about the stamped envelopes at the post office, more people would buy them.

Tasty Halloween treat

To make this happy face pizza, all you need are half a toasted English muffin, Ragu Pizza Quick sauce, a slice of mozzarella cheese and some vegetables from the refrigerator. To turn the pizza into a jack-o-lantern cut triangles of black olives (or deep green peppers) to make the eyes. The smile is a thin slice of red pepper; the nose is a triangle of carrot or pepperoni. Cut an inch wide strip of green pepper for the stem.

Summoning sandman sometimes difficult

Occasionally everyone has a fitful night's sleep. While such bouts of insomnia can be frustrating and exhausting, usually a long, hard slumber the next night is all it takes to restore normal energy and spirit.

Some people, however, suffer from chronic insomnia-trouble falling asleep or staying asleep night after night. Such prolonged periods of sleeplessness are usually not harmful to a person's health by themselves, but they can be the sign of an underlying illness or psychological problem.

Disorders of the heart, lungs, kidneys, and digestive system can interfere with normal sleep, as can nutritional or hormonal problems. In women, the hormonal changes that occur prior to a menstrual period and a menopause can cause periods of insomnia.

Sleeping difficulty may also be induced by anxiety, tension and depression. The best way to restore normal sleep patterns in these cases is to identify and treat the underlying problem. A doctor may recommend counseling or prescribe certain drugs for disruptive psychological problems.

If you suffer from insomnia unrelated to a serious medical disorder, there are some things you can do to help relieve sleeplessness. For one, make sure you are relaxed before bedtime. To keep your mind and body at ease, avoid making big decisions or engaging in vigorous exercise before going to bed. If you feel tense or wound up, take a warm bath or do some light reading until drowsiness occurs. Regular exercise during the day or in the early evening will help tire your body and increase sleepiness.

It is also wise to avoid caffeine, tea, cola and other stimulants for at least two or three hours before bed, and avoid eating a big meal immediately before going to bed, as digestion can interfere with sleep. Also, don't rely on alcohol or tranquilizers to help you sleep because they may disrupt normal sleep patterns, especially if used chronically.

Finally, if you find yourself tossing and turning, don't fight it. Get out of bed until you are tired. Try not to nap during the day to increase the desire to sleep at night.

People vary in the amount of sleep they need each night. While you may require a solid eight hours of rest, another family member may feel completely refreshed after only five or six. The important thing is not how long you sleep, but how rested you feel the next day.

Yearly events planned

The American Heart Association of the Deaf Smith County Chapter met Tuesday at the Caison House to make plans for promoting the work of the Heart Association.

The members, under the direction of Margaret Perez, made plans for the Oct. 30, Health Fair. Other plans made were for the Turkey Walk scheduled for Nov. 3 and the Neighbor to Neighbor campaign on Feb. 17.

The American Heart Association is dedicated to the prevention of death and disability from cardiovascular disease, including heart attack and stroke.

If there are those desiring to serve on the association they are asked to contact chairman, Margaret Perez at 364-1351.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I had a Pap test done and it came back abnormal, mild dysplasia, a sexually transmitted disease. I am 32 years old, have two children and have been married since I was 16. I have had only one sexual partner.

The first treatment after two biopsies was cryosurgery, freezing of certain sections of the cervix. Another Pap test came back mild dysplasia. Then still another Pap test and biopsy which came back mild dysplasia, human papilloma virus. I was told this virus could lead to cervical cancer. Laser surgery was suggested, which I had two months ago.

How did I get this? My doctor says physicians are not sure how it starts, but that it can be transmitted. My husband has also seen a doctor and traces were found. He has also been treated. Can you give any other information on this subject?

DEAR READER: Current thinking is that most cervical cancer is a sexually transmitted disease and the culprit is a virus called the human papilloma virus (HPV). This virus does cause warts which are also known as condyloma. They are commonly transmitted sexually. This type of wart likes a warm, moist environment, and just as you never know how a person gets warts of the hands, you can't be sure how these warts develop. But once they develop, they can be transmitted through sexual contact.

The other point is that they can exist for years without a person knowing he or she has them. They may be relatively unapparent in the male unless special examination techniques are used to see them. Every male sex partner of a woman who has cervical dysplasia (CIN 1, 2 or 3) should be examined for unapparent warts. When found they should be treated, and many feel that the couple should use condoms until both have no evidence of wart infection for at least a year.

It is generally accepted to follow women who have mild dysplasia with conservative treatment as you are receiving. But if it is more advanced, CIN 3, then the treatment of choice is a hysterectomy unless a woman still plans on having children. You have probably had a conization, and it is highly satisfactory if all the margins of the area removed are free of cell changes.

Cancer, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/108, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My 27-year-old granddaughter hasn't had but one two-day menstrual period in 11 months. She is very pretty, is 5 feet 3 inches and weighs 115 pounds and has been married for two years.

She has always used birth-control pills as instructed by her doctor. She and her husband are both into physical fitness and have a room filled with gym equipment. I've told her it just isn't normal not to have a period.

DEAR READER: It is not clear whether she is now taking oral contraceptives, but I take it she is. The menstrual flow is considerably reduced in many women taking some birth-control pills. Even so, I would expect her to have a scant flow during the days she is off the estrogen phase of the cycle.

It costs $40,000 to train a single police officer.
