

Three's A Crowd At Feeding Time

Her new triplet calves hurry after "mother" who is unaware of her extraordinary status because of the multiple birth. The mother cow and her calves were on the run after a photographer interrupted the triplets' feeding at the Harold Kruse farm. The calves were only 16 days old when the photo was made.

Triplets For Mom Cow

2 Heifer, Bull Calves 18 Days Old

Harold Kruse has triplets romping around his cattle pen east of Colorado City.

The two heifer calves and bull calf were born 18 days ago--May 26.

Naturally, the farmer-cattlemen is tickled for the extra "cash crop" from the Angus mother cow.

But triplets calves are news themselves--a rarity, indeed.

And, even more noteworthy at the Kruse farm because all three are alive and apparently on the road to a regular calf's life.

The triplets came from one of 13 cows Kruse purchased from Jay Adams. Three of the cows were with calf when the sale was culminated.

"The last one to calve was this one," said Kruse, pointing to the big black mother as the 3 newborns kept under hoof.

"She came up to feed and then went right back so we knew she had calved. But we saw her with only one.

"A few days later we found her with all three."

The cow and calves were with other Kruse cattle on river bottom land. But her status as mother of triplets has brought all four back to the small pasture and lot near the Kruse residence.

The bull calf is the runt of the three, definitely smaller than the heifer calves.

"He seems to stay right between his mother's legs," Kruse smiled.

Somehow, the triplets seemed to be definitely recognized by other cattle.

"We brought 'em up here to feed 'em a little better," Kruse explained. "And, now, the other cattle here seem to be helping 'em."

"Look over there. See that large heifer just hanging around like she's protecting the little ones."

Kruse said he had read of only 2 other triplet cattle births which he can recall of recent vintage. Jay Adams, who sold the mother cow, has checked with numerous cattlemen and a veterinarian--and they all tab the triple birth as extremely rare.

"Especially that all three calves are living," Adams emphasized.

Dr. J. D. Williams is away from his office here on vacation, but his long-time helper said he had seen twins, but never triplets in more than 15 years with the veterinary clinic.

"I guess we ought to give Swan Taylor some credit," said Kruse. "Jay bought the registered bull from him."

Church Marks Move Today

Clergy from a score of West Texas cities will join the congregation of St. James Baptist Church to mark the church's move into a new church home at East 5th and Austin.

A special lunch will be served in Wallace Community Center at 1 p.m. preceding the entering service at the church.

The lunch will aid in the church's immediate campaign for $1,000 to assist in the move.

St. James Baptist, pastored by Rev. Robert Bracy, has been preparing for the move over a period of weeks with renovation of the 5th and Austin building.

"We are cordially inviting our friends to join with us in helping to make this move into a new location a significant achievement for our church," said Rev. Bracy.

Rev. A. L. Davis, moderator of Lovely Sunset District Association and pastor of St. Luke Baptist Church in Lubbock will deliver the entering message at the church.

Heavy Rain Hurts Crops At Landers

Heavy Friday afternoon rains poured 3 more feet of water into Lake Champion but washed and flooded crop land in the Landers area with a heavy damage toll.

Downpours dumped more than 4 inches of rain in some areas--mostly about 7 and eight miles south of Loraine and southeast of Colorado City.

Some hail was reported with damage to crops, even good size feed.

Rainfall here in Colorado City measured an inch, falling heavy and for short duration. The rain moved east and southeast from here.

Flooding fields and pastures, the heavy rain sent water racing down North and South Champion Creeks. Small flow from the runoff continued Saturday morning.

John Martin, new superintendent at Morgan Creek Power Plant, said Lake Champion gained 3 additional feet of water.

ter, adding to the 15 feet which poured into the reservoir two weeks ago.

TESCO had been obtaining water for the lake from agricultural irrigation pumps along the watershed of the two creeks. With the 18 feet of water gained from two rains and the additional daily well pumping, TESCO is pumping water from Lake Champion into Lake Colorado City, which has added nothing more than approximately 3 inches from recent rains.

Herbert Mearse, Loraine's First State Bank president, said rainfall ranged from 2 tenths of an inch to more than 4 inches throughout the Loraine area.

At the Ralph Langford residence 3.5 miles northwest of Loraine there was only a sprinkle. But on acreage farmed by the Langford son-in-law, Billy Cornutt, the rain was 4 inches.

Cornutt had completed planting Wednesday and the 4 inches on his leased acreage at his father's place, Willis Cornutt, washed out the planting. He received 3 inches of rain on his C. R. Green acreage 4 miles further east.

Judge To Study

Named For Juvenile Course

County Judge Bill F. Carter has been selected to attend the 1971 Summer College sponsored by National Council of Juvenile Court Judges.

The two-week course will be conducted on University of Nevada, Reno.

Carter was awarded a $200 trainee grant, financed by Max C. Fleishman Foundation, Ford Foundation, American Bar Endowment and Sears Roebuck Foundation.

Commissioners Court voted unanimously to authorize Carter's participation in the school and to pay travel expenses involved.

Carter, who has evidenced special concern for juvenile problems since beginning his county judge term last January, will attend the second of two 2-week terms at University of Nevada.

Both sessions of the college combine new juvenile judges and referees from all across the nation with experienced practitioners. Probation, parole and police officers as well as state youth service personnel are brought to the college to reflect their views and experience.

Balance between rural and metropolitan areas is maintained among participants.

Instructional program of the college is a blend of law-oriented courses and behavior science training problems.

Only six other Texas judges have been graduated from the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges School. They are Alexander Clark, Jay Hall and Norman Prentice of Austin, Jerome Jones of Galveston, Robert L. Lowry of Houston and Henry J. Strass of Abilene.

The school and its sponsoring organization are designed to provide juvenile and family court judges with opportunity to better serve and understand

Review For Series

Mrs. Beeman Fisher, prominent in development of arts and culture in Fort Worth, will be featured Friday in Colorado City's community cultural series.

The former Fort Worth resident, will present 2 book reviews for an insight into literary activities of the U.S. during the 1920 and 1930 decades.

Program is set for 7:30 p.m. Friday in Mitchell County Library under sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce culture development committee, chaired by Miss Gladys Miller.

Following Mrs. Fisher's reviews, the committee will serve refreshments.

Mrs. Fisher, a former resident here and formerly on the faculty of Texas Christian University, is prominent in all of Fort Worth's civic arts programs. She is the wife of Beeman Fisher, former president of Texas Electric Service Company.

She will review Nancy Milford's "Zelda," a story relating to the wife of flamboyant writer F. Scott Fitzgerald, and "You Might As Well Live," John Keats' story of writer Dorothy Parker.

"These two reviews will provide an interesting glimpse into the literary activities of the 20's and 30's," said Mrs. James Kelley, committee publicity chairman, "recalling what he saw during those times and what we have read."

"The two women were contemporaries of these times from different backgrounds--Zelda a belle from the South and sophisticated Dorothy Parker from the North."

Ruth COFFEY'S CONVERSATION CORNER

Biggest laugh of the season came over that traffic jam in Dallas, Thursday. Traffic jams aren't usually funny. This one was.

Computers did it. According to news accounts, Big D's new computerized traffic signal system on North Central Expressway snarled traffic for miles and miles.

Drivers were snarling. Traffic policemen were snarling through loud speakers. Traffic department helicopter pilot cruising overhead was snarling suggestions to the ground force. It was some snarl!

Even funnier was the fact that the brains behind the computer project did not blame the computer. They blamed the people. City traffic engineer for Dallas, a fellow called Jay Tipton, allowed as how some citizen education is needed for the program.

Computers, according to the experts, do not make mistakes. People do. Citizens backed up in crowded rows for ten or twelve blocks blamed the computer and at the afternoon rush hour ignored the whole silly system.

Hooray for people!

PEOPLE in this country had better stop worrying about invasion from Mars and concentrate on the invasion by computers.

Igleharts At Contest

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Iglehart were in Arlington last week end.

They were accompanied by their grandson, Mark Quinney of Abilene, who won third place in Phillip 66 hit, pitch and throw competition in Arlington.

He is son of Mr. and Mrs. James Quinney of Abilene.

Joining them in Arlington were a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cooke of Denton. Before returning home last Sunday they visited Six Flags.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Travis Conaway were her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pennock and children, Jeri and Johnny, of Worland, Wyo.

We have already been invaded, brothers and sisters, infiltrated in every field and on every front. Computers are turning people into numbers, little circles and punched designs on cards ordering curtly "Do not fold, bend, staple or mutilate."

It isn't human. Computers have taken over the whole educational system in the United States. Teachers don't flunk or pass pupils any more. The computer does.

Huge hospitals have started using computers to decide what ails a patient. One computer diagnoses and another computer bills the family.

Big business started it all, along with utility companies and every federal agency. Some computer somewhere, one that doesn't even know your name, knows more about your business than you do.

COMPUTERS decide what you owe for everything from natural gas to income tax. Computers do not make mistakes, so the master minds declare, People do. But did you ever try to argue with a computer?

Guess computers are a great help in this complicated life and in their place. Trouble is they don't know their place, can't be kept in their place, and are taking over all over the place.

So for no reason that makes too much sense this reader laughed and laughed just reading how people in Dallas defied the computer. They didn't go when the thing said go, they didn't stop when the thing said stop. Nobody went anywhere much until some people called policemen unsnarled the snarl.

THERE'S a bit of the rebel in everybody. More in some of us than in others.

Among things that bring out the rebel in yours truly are computers. . . zip codes. . . computers. . . all-number dialing. . . computers.

Shudder to think that computers are running and maybe ruining this country. It doeth the heart to learn that the computer in Dallas flunked itself.

Hooray for people! If it weren't for people every computer in the United States would fast be out of a job. . .

Maella Sue Crosthwait Is Bride of Charles Atchley

Miss Maella Sue Crosthwait of Garland Saturday evening became the bride of Charles Atchley of Bryan in First Baptist Church of Olney.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert L. Crosthwait of 540 Hickory Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Atchley of Hereford are parents of the bridegroom.

Glenn A. Crosthwait, brother of the bride, read double ring vows in the late afternoon ceremony.

Mrs. Lloyd Crosthwait of Garland, sister-in-law of the bride, sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee", "I Love Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer". Organist was Mrs. A. D. Myers of Olney.

A white kneeling bench centering the church altar was flanked on either side by candelabra and standing baskets of greenery.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a gown of white imported French mystique over taffeta styled with an empire waist and high neckline.

Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the matron of honor, were Mrs. Arnold Powell of Hereford, groom's sister, and Mrs. Richard Stephenson of Garland.

They carried nosegays of yellow daisies surrounded by white daisies.

A crop on the Willis Cornutt farm that had been watered and planted earlier was beat "pretty hard" by hail.

"The new planting can't make a crop after this," said Mrs. Billy Cornutt. "We have two lakes (on the Willis Cornutt acreage) and they are under water."

At the Billy Cornutt residence, 2.5 miles south of Lorraine, the rain gauge measured 1.3 inches.

Witt Holman lost planted cotton on his Landers farm and may save some of his crop in the Lowe community. His rain was reported at 3.6 inches.

Rain varied from 3 to 2 inches on Sidney Compton land in the Landers area. The heavy downpour broke terraces and caused heavy wash of soil.

"We had just completed planting about 140 acres of cotton," said Compton. "Some feed is still under water today."

Charles Finley, Alfred Hackfeld and A. K. Sheffield also had damage. The rainstorm measured 4 inches-plus at the Sheffield place and hail fell. Good size maize was beat by the hail.

Finley had cut bermuda in a water way and approximately 1,000 bales of bermuda hay on the ground was washed away.

Westward the rain lightened. Dennis Fortenberry received 1.3 inch of rain. However, it fell hard on just planted cotton and the amount of damage was undetermined Saturday morning.

Also in the Payne area, the Preston Grady farm received less than an inch.

Candy Stripers Begin Program

Approximately 30 homemaking students this summer are taking part in Candy Striper program at Root Memorial Hospital and Root Valley Fair Lodge.

The project is one of several community activities offered students in the summer homemaking phase.

Mrs. Caddo Matthews, student director, describes the program as a "challenging and rewarding experience for girls who feel that they really want to be of help to other people."

"Students can gain much in character and personality development by accepting the responsibilities of a volunteer as they gain in understanding of themselves and others," Mrs. Matthews said.

"They are expected to be loyal and dependable - willing to learn and accept supervision and be a real team member."

Candy Stripers will work 20-30 hours depending on time available to students. Records, kept on each participant, are made available when girls seek employment in the future.

Registering for the program were Connie Shaw, Dianne Graham, Delilah Hull, Jan Lindsey, Petra Straub, Cheryl Hayes, Sue Long, Sherry Christian, Betsy Mann.

Denise Harris, Seleana Bagwell, Martha Sparks, Rhonda Bearden.

Also, Becky Hardegree, Jana Owens, Dixie Edge, Zinda Snowden, Anita Brooks, Donna Reeves and Sue Edwards.
