Suspects wanted in $100 million pot harvest

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Two area sheriffs who recently helped destroy thousands of marijuana plants in their counties said Tuesday that the weed has been growing wild for years on area ranches and creek beds.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan and Wheeler County Sheriff Lonnie Miller recently participated in raids that authorities say resulted in the confiscation of more than 200,000 marijuana plants, some up to 12 feet tall.

Authorities valued the crops at more than $100 million.

In Gray County, marijuana has been scattered up and down Sweetwater Creek east of Lefors since the 1960s, Jordan said. He said that since early July, the Sheriff's Department had been watching the crop along the creek, where the bulk of the plants were destroyed in the recent raid.

Jordan said he and his deputies were "there in groups," setting up roadblocks and no trespassing signs.

The sheriff disputed federal agents' estimates that placed the value of the marijuana found in the raid east of Lefors earlier this month at more than $100 million.

Jordan said the department has made one arrest and still hopes to make four or five more in connection with the field. The rancher on whose property the illegal crop was located — whom Jordan refused to identify — is not among the suspects, he said.

The sheriff said all suspects are from the Lefors and McLean areas.

Kimberly Morris, 19, of McLean, was arrested Sept. 10, county jail records indicate, on a charge of possessing about 11 ounces of marijuana that sheriff's deputies believe came from the Gray County patch. Jordan said the department is currently awaiting laboratory tests on the contraband before turning information over to a grand jury.

Morris currently is free on $10,000 bond. Pampa police, who later became involved in a separate investigation of the field, arrested Tommy Frank Ramey, 25, of Pampa, on Sept. 29, on a charge of possessing more than 10 pounds of marijuana, also believed to have come from the field east of Lefors. Ramey told police that people from as far away as Dallas had gathered marijuana from the field.

No other arrests have been made. Joe Bob Williams, head of the Texas Department of Public Safety Narcotics Division in Amarillo, which participated in the bust, said his department does not plan any arrests in connection with the Gray County field.

In Wheeler County, Miller said no arrests have

Some of the huge marijuana plants from the field east of Lefors remain stowed in the Police Department's evidence room.

Board to hear public comment

Citizens attending Pampa Independent School Board meetings will now have an opportunity to make unscheduled presentations to the board following action by trustees on a series of policy changes Tuesday night.

Under the new policy, approved on second and final reading Tuesday, the board will allocate 15 minutes at the start of each meeting "to hear citizen communications not on the agenda." The first five citizens who sign up as they arrive will be able to speak to the board for three minutes each, the policy states.

Trustees may extend the time allotted to individuals making unscheduled presentations.

Other routine policy changes approved Tuesday deal with the teachers' career ladder and school-sponsored student trips.

In other action, the board approved paper bids from Tri-City Office Supply of Pampa, the low-bidder at $1.92 per ream of 8 1/2 by 11-inch paper and $2.44 per ream of 8 1/2 by 14-inch paper. Bids also were received from Carpenter Paper Co., with which the district has done business for the past two years, and Xerox, both of Amarillo.

OPEC expects $3 oil increase

GENEVA (AP)—The OPEC oil cartel ended the longest meeting in its history before dawn today with an agreement to limit production until Dec. 31 — a move that its members predict will raise oil prices about $3 a barrel.

The agreement capped 17 days of debate within the fractious 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the once-mighty cartel that set prices in the 1970s but later became embroiled in a production war that glutted world markets and drove prices down.

Rilwanu Lukman, OPEC's president and the oil minister of Nigeria, told an early morning news conference that he expected the accord to raise oil prices by about $3 from the current range of $14 to $17 a barrel.

Private analysts, however, said they did not expect the short-term OPEC agreement to have a significant effect on oil prices the next two months.

"In a matter of weeks it won't do anything for the market," said Conrad Gerber, an analyst with the Geneva-based consulting firm of Gencor Services. He said he expected prices to hold at about $15 a barrel through the end of the year.

Lukman said OPEC would work toward assembling a permanent set of oil production quotas instead of seeking another extension of its temporary arrangement.

Saudi Arabia had entered the Geneva talks, which began Oct. 6, with a demand that the oil ministers work out a new and "scientific" basis for dividing OPEC production among the member countries.

For nearly two weeks the ministers and their aides debated various formulas for permanent quotas. Last Friday they abandoned the effort and began an intense round of secretive negotiations to modify the temporary accord they had fashioned last August.

The August accord, which took effect Sept. 1 and expires Oct. 31, helped boost oil prices from summertime lows of less than $10 a barrel.

The main stumbling block to agreement on extension of a modified version of the August deal was Kuwait's demand that it be given a bigger share of overall OPEC production.

Late Tuesday night the oil ministers reached agreement on a Kuwaiti quota increase, but it took several more hours for them to iron out the details of other quotas.

In the end, all members except

Pampa retail sales reflect increase in August report

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

August retail sales in Pampa increased from the same month last year, but yearly sales to date are still down more than 10 percent from 1985, based on sales tax collections.

According to the monthly report from State Comptroller Bob Bullock, Pampa received a check this month for $101,382, representing 1 percent of about $10.14 million in August retail sales and services subject to the city sales tax.

In August 1985 the city recorded about $9.8 million in sales, receiving an October 1985 check from the state for $98,041.

October checks represent taxes collected on sales made in August and reported to the State Comptroller by Sept. 20, Bullock noted.

Total 1986 payments to date from sales tax collections are $1,178,622, representing retail sales in Pampa of about $117.9 million for the 10-month period from November 1985 to August.

Sales tax collections in Pampa are down 10.34 percent from the same 1984-1985 period when the city received payments totaling $1,314,535, representing $131.6 million in sales.

The figures indicate some rebound from July sales when the city's yearly totals were down 11.11 percent from the previous year period.

Bullock sent checks this month totaling $55.4 million in local sales tax to the 1,033 cities levying the 1 percent city tax.

Statewide, the 1986 payments to date were down 0.6 percent compared to payments to date last October. The decrease in checks is a continuing reflection of the downturn in the Texas economy, Bullock said.

Elsewhere in Gray County, Lefors continued to remain ahead of last year though its percentage has dropped. Bullock sent the city no check this month; in October 1985 Lefors had a payment of $743.

The city's yearly payments to date stand at $5,388, still an increase of 30.94 percent over last year's comparable period payments of $4,115. In the September

Issues stay below surface in Pampa town hall meeting

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

They came together in the same room, district and county candidates, Democrats and Republicans, men and women, for a "town hall meeting" Tuesday night in Pampa.

And with the 18 candidates having time for only short, brief speeches and responses to a few questions, one left wondering what the big issues were, or whether there were any major issues in the county and district contests.

The main themes seemed to be how long the candidates had lived in Pampa and-or Gray County, how many family members there were, how much experience they had brought or could bring to the position, how well they could serve the public, and how the candidates either wanted to keep their positions or move into a new elective office.

Several excused themselves for not being public speakers but said that did not take away from their qualifications for the elected offices they were seeking.

Sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Legislative Affairs Committee, the meeting in the Austin Elementary School gymnasium drew about 100 people. But by the time one counted the candidates, their spouses or other family members, campaign and party workers, one felt there wasn't much of "the public" in attendance to hear the candidates.

Still, there was something one did notice: except for the county judge post and the justice of the peace Precinct 4 job, every position fields a contested race, either from another party or from a potential write-in candidate.

Of the 18 candidates who showed up, only one — Gray County Judge Karl Kennedy, a Republican — was unopposed. Precinct 4 Justice of the Peace

R.C. Parker of McLean, a Democrat, also unopposed, did not come to the meeting.

Of the remaining 17 who did come, eight are Democrats, seven are Republicans and two are write-in candidates.

Apparently the two-party system has finally reached the local level in strength.

There were some expressions of differences or matters bordering on being issues.

County Clerk Wanda Carter, a Democrat, said her job has given her an opportunity to work with people who sometimes are in most stressful and unsettled times. She said she had to show understanding, compassion and trust.

"It is a marvelous system that we have," Carter said. When all are doing their jobs, the system works well; when one is not, things may not go so well, she noted.

In the question period, Carter said her future goals are to bring the office more into the computer age to improve the accuracy and efficiency of the operations. She mentioned microfilming of records and computer indexing as major goals now under way.

Her Republican opponent, Carol Peet, said, "Experience is a very vital resource ... but there always comes a time for change." She said if one looks for the symptoms, "when unrest and murmurings arise," one can anticipate a need for a change. She said she believes the evidence shows there are symptoms requiring a change.

In the question period, Peet said she has sensed in the general public "a lack of confidence in the public service they would receive" in the county clerk's office.

In the county commission races, incumbents Ronnie Rice and Ted Simmons justified during the

Fire report

been made — and none are planned — in connection with six marijuana patches scattered throughout that county. Wheeler County and DPS officers confiscated about 17,000 plants from the six sites, most on farmland, Miller said.

He said most of the marijuana seized was of low quality and added he could not place a street value on it. He called it "more junk than anything else."

"If a person got a high, it'd be more of a psychological high than anything else," Miller said. "But there are some people that gather it. They probably mix it with their high-grade so they'll get more bucks."

Jordan and Miller offered different theories as to how the illegal weed came to emerge from the ground.

Jordan recalled that deep snow in 1963 exhausted the Panhandle's supply of hay and necessitated a hay lift from surrounding states to feed hungry cattle. He speculated that marijuana seeds may have been mixed in with the hay and added that he began noticing sprinklings of marijuana in the area about three years later.

The sheriff also said seeds could have been carried by migratory birds.

Miller said he believes much of the marijuana in Wheeler County may have been cultivated by those who rented homes from area farmers during the oil boom and later left the area. In a way, he said, "this is kind of the aftereffects of the boom."

He described the plants as hearty and extremely difficult to get rid of. Wheeler County officials have been spraying, cutting and pulling marijuana plants for two years and yet it keeps returning, he said.

"We have pulled it up in the spring and pulled it up in the fall, and it still comes up," Miller said.

cluded from the new, interim arrangement, Lukman said.

The quotas for Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates will be unchanged because they donated to Kuwait and Qatar the extra production they were OPEC's total production, excluding Iraq, is to be limited to 14.96 million barrels a day for November and 15.04 million barrels daily for December.

Saudi Arabia, Iraq and the United Arab Emirates were given higher quotas. Kuwait's increase was by far the largest, although it was smaller than it had demanded.

Iraq, which was not part of the August accord, also was ex-

Couple commit suicide

FORT WORTH (AP) — John and Mercedes Lunsford, just weeks shy of their 50th wedding anniversary, decided they couldn't live without the other.

So they died together. The Lunsfords were discovered Tuesday morning in their garage with their car engine running. The Tarrant County Medical examiner's office ruled the deaths a double suicide.

Friends said Mrs. Lunsford, 71, was distraught over her husband's failing health.

Lunsford, 76, a retired Linotype operator, was a devout union man and devoted to his wife. He had a history of heart ailments, said Max Falkowitz, president of Fort Worth Typographical Union Local 198.

Mrs. Lunsford told a neighbor, Margaret Henslee, that her husband recently learned that he had gallstones. But she said that his doctor was reluctant to operate because of the heart condition.

"She had told me two or three weeks ago that he had gallstones and that he was giving up," Ms. Henslee said, and "that she couldn't see life without him. I had no idea that anything would happen."

A note was taped to the iron grate on the front porch of their home of 38 years in east Fort Worth. "We want to ask one favor of you," the Lunsfords wrote to neighbor John Hotchkiss, who picked up their morning newspaper. "Would you call the police? We can't take it anymore. Thank you for being a good neighbor."

Daughter Donna Hart of Arlington confirmed her father's condition.

"Yes, he had been in ill health," she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "Yes, he had gallstones and heart problems and had become depressed."

Dr. Hugh Lamensdorf, president of the Tarrant County Medical Society, said he finds it difficult to believe that a doctor told a patient that he could not have surgery for gallstones.

"Either the patient misunderstood the physician or the neighbors misunderstood the patient," Lamensdorf said.

Dr. Basheer Ahmed, a Fort Worth psychiatrist, said the Lunsfords may have suffered from "giving up syndrome."

"In this case, there was a long marriage and dependency... This woman... apparently saw (her husband)... dying and helpless, and her life lost meaning because she (perceived) she couldn't survive without him," Ahmed said.

question period their decisions earlier this year to switch from the Democratic Party to Republican Party.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Rice said he won't switch parties again. He said he has "never been a really stout party man," feeling he has served his constituents in a bipartisan manner.

He said he had switched at the encouragement of a number of friends. Rice said there hadn't been a Democratic presidential candidate in years that he could support, adding they all had been too liberal.

Precinct 4 Commissioner Simmons said he had been upset by Democratic leaders at the state level, most of whom have been saying they want to strip powers from the county commissioners courts and turn them over to the state.

Simmons said Republicans want to bring more power back to the people at local levels, and he supported that concept.

Rice's opponent, Democrat Jim Greene, and Simmons' opponents, Democrat Tony Smitherman and write-in candidate Buddy Epperson, stressed their desires to serve the public and do a good job.

In the Precinct 1 Justice of the Peace race, Republican Bob Muns stressed his past experience in law enforcement with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and police. He said he has a fondness for law enforcement and wants to "get back in touch" with it.

His Democrat opponent, Pat Steel, said that as a housewife who had raised five children and worked at a number of jobs, she has had experience "from the bottom" by working hard.

In the Precinct 2 justice of the peace race, write-in candidate Margie Prestidge noted she has had previous experience in that position, with more than 300 hours of training courses.

Her Democrat opponent, Wayne Roberts, who has had security guard experience, said he enjoys working with children, adults and "coloreds." He said he had had good relationships as a security guard at functions involving Mexicans and "they had always asked me back."

Roberts said he feels he has a lot to contribute to Pampa and the county.

Other candidates mentioned their experience, training, education and desire to serve the public. W.A. Morgan, who chaired the town hall meeting, said it was important for voters to be informed.

"If you don't know who you're voting for, the best thing to do is stay home," he advised.

Morgan said he appreciated the lack of mudslinging during the meeting. Referring to all the candidates, he said he feels they all showed they want to serve the public.

Other candidates at the meeting included district clerk candidates Mary Clark, Democratic incumbent, and Vickie Walls, Republican; county treasurer hopefuls Scott Hahn, Republican, and Lodema Mitchell, Democrat; and county surveyor opponents Gene Barber, Democratic incumbent, and Lynn Bezner, Republican.

Clements: White damaged economy

AUSTIN (AP)—Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements says the new taxes enacted during Democratic Gov. Mark White's term have seriously damaged the Texas economy.

But Clements stopped short Tuesday of pledging to roll back any of the White-approved tax hikes.

"Whether we can in fact roll back taxes from where they are, or the fees that have been established under Mark White's governorship, I don't really know," Clements said.

Clements, seeking to regain the job White ousted him from in 1982, said repealing the tax increases is "a question we'll have to explore."

Clements said that as governor he would examine the entire state tax structure to see if it should be overhauled to keep up with a changing economy.

"If we can roll back some of these more significant taxes that have been increased under Mark White, I would certainly be willing to take a hard look at that. But the whole (tax) restructuring process has to be revenue-neutral. We are not going, overall, to increase taxes in the state of Texas while I'm governor during this next legislative session."

In 1984, White signed a $4.8 billion sales and fuel tax increase to fund school reforms and highway improvements. Last month, he OK'd temporary increases in the sales tax—raising it from 4½ cents to 5½—and gasoline tax to help overcome a $2.8 billion state budget deficit.

In a speech to officials of the Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts, Clements said those tax increases had made Texas less appealing to businesses. That means fewer new jobs being created, he said.

"It has been impossible for business in Texas—to think about moving to Texas—to know what it would confront. Time and time again, Mark White insisted that he would not raise taxes. Then he increased state spending and taxes."

The Republican said state spending under White has raged out of control, calling the swelling budget a major factor in the state's economic bust.

"If taxes are falling—and believed to be falling—the economy will grow," he said.

Clements said Massachusetts learned that lesson several years ago and began to cut taxes.

"That state's economy has begun to grow again. Surely, what Massachusetts can do, Texas can also do and do better," he said. "All it takes is credible and capable leadership. And that requires the retirement of Mark White and the elimination of his ever-increasing spending and taxes."

In other political news Tuesday:

•The Texas Young Democrats said they plan a two-week blitz on behalf of White, because the governor has worked on behalf of higher education.

"We ... endorse Gov. White's superior record on higher education and officially oppose and condemn Mr. Bill Clements' negligent record," the group said in a statement.

•Public television station KERA said it has cancelled Thursday's gubernatorial debate. A statement issued by the Dallas area station cited Clements' decision not to participate and an impasse with White on a format for a one-made broadcast.

About 75 people gathered on the steps of the State Capitol in Austin Tuesday in support of Rev. W.N. Otwell.

Man gets 50 years in child abuse case

HOUSTON (AP)—A man was sentenced to spend 50 years in prison after being convicted of forcing ground pepper down the throat of his girlfriend's 2-year-old son, who later died.

Raymond Edward Coffey, 26, also was fined $10,000 Tuesday by a jury who deliberated about four hours, court clerk John Washington said.

The same jury on Monday convicted Coffey in the May 7 death of Christopher Kalmbach.

Assistant District Attorney Chuck Rosenthal said the case was one of the worst episodes of child abuse he has ever seen. Pictures of the child introduced in the trial showed severe bruises all over the boy's body, as well as scalds and cigarette burns on his arms. Rosenthal said Coffey deserved life in prison.

But Coffey's defense attorney, Wayne Hill, argued for probation, saying the facts of the case did not warrant a long prison term. He asked for 10 years probation or at the most 10 years in prison.

Hill said it was the boy's mother, Patty Kalmbach, and not his client who force-fed the pepper.

Ms. Kalmbach, 21, refused to testify in Coffey's two-day trial despite an offer of immunity. She is facing a charge of murder by omission.

Changing river course sparks land dispute

BYERS, Texas (AP)—The changing course of the Red River has triggered a dispute in which Texans in five counties could lose thousands of acres of land.

A U.S. District Court ruling in Oklahoma City that said that just because the river shifted northward, it doesn't mean the Texas boundary followed actually started the dispute.

Several Texas families in Clay County last year lost 5,800 acres to Oklahomans who sued in court to regain property they said rightfully belonged to the northern state.

Area residents now wonder where Oklahoma stops and Texas begins. An estimated 46,000 acres are at stake. "It's a very big mess," said rancher Tom Henderson, who lost a third of his land to Oklahoma neighbors Corky Hooper and Darrell Currington. "We sure got a lot of trouble and a lot of hard feelings between neighbors."

Texas landowners want the state to survey the 440-mile river border to define the state border. Texas officials say they will pay for the survey only if the federal government gives the state oil leasing rights to part of the riverbed.

"If the state were to lease those riverbeds for oil and gas exploration, then we'd very much have a vested interest" in surveying the border, said Dan Miller, counsel for the Texas General Land Office.

The survey would cost about $5 million, Miller said.

The confusion stems from a 1923 court fight between Texas and Oklahoma over rights to the then-massive oil reserves in the bed of the river near Burkburnett.

The U.S. Supreme Court gave Oklahoma the breadth of the river, except between Waurika, Okla., and the Texas Panhandle. Along that 110-mile stretch, which encompasses the area now in dispute, the court stopped Oklahoma in midstream, making the south half of the riverbed federal land.

In that ruling, the river's south bank became the Texas border.

The federal court in Oklahoma City ruled that as the river shifted northward, the border set in 1923 did not change.

Doodle Zachry, who runs the Byers cotton gin, stands to lose nearly 1,600 acres that his family has owned for 60 years. The man who is suing for the property, Johnny Wilcoxson, claims the land is part of his Oklahoma ranch.

The families had been friends for generations before the suit was filed.

"Tensions are running pretty high," Zachry said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Public broadcasting subject to controls

The important question isn't whether "The Africans," a recent nine-part series on the Public Broadcasting System, is an anti-Western diatribe or a disparagement of African countries that may fan racist fires. The important question is why U.S. taxpayers are forced to pay for television programming that raises such questions.

An even more fundamental question is why taxpayers are forced to pay for any television programming other than what they might choose to pay for through cable or pay-TV channels? What is government doing in the television programming business at all?

"The Africans" is only the latest incident in an ongoing controversy over the content of tax-supported television that is sure to continue until "public" television is finally privatized completely. Written and narrated by Nigerian scholar Ali Mazrui, the series focuses on Africa's tripartite heritage — indigenous, Moslem and Western — and is said to be pretty rough on the Western component. Mazrui says it is not anti-Western but pro-African. A Los Angeles group called the Coalition Against Black Exploitation, however, complains that the program exposes too many of Africa's faults and may feed racism.

Well, when you're dealing with controversial topics, you can't please all the people all the time — all the more reason not to operate with the peoples' money, extracted from them by force.

Those who complain about this program — and about other PBS programming — have every right to complain (even if their complaints are silly) so long as PBS relies on tax money for any part of its operating funds. To take a person's — any person's — money by force and use it to propagate opinions with which he disagrees is still, in Thomas Jefferson's words, "sinful and tyrannical."

"The Africans" may well be interesting and worthwhile television, however controversial. There is no excuse, however, to force U.S. taxpayers to pay for its production costs.

So long as PBS remains a public ward it will face the kind of threat now posed by 55 members of Congress, who are demanding a full content analysis of all public TV programming — with an eye toward exercising more direct political control. Direct political control would make for terrible programming in the long run, but those who feed at the public trough — whatever the theoretical institutional safeguards — are asking for it.

"Your wife called and said you should get your tail home and help with the housework."

Flying the coop leaves empty nest

By DONALD KAUL

Autumn is a poignant time for some, a time of loneliness and separation. It is a time when the younger children of the family flutter off to school and the older ones to college, leaving behind them huge gaps of silence.

And when the last one goes off to college, the silence can be deafening. The phone stops ringing, the stereo stops playing obnoxious music and nobody with a funny haircut shows up at the front door anymore.

Yes, autumn is a poignant time for some — particularly those who are not playing with a full deck.

I never understood the so-called "empty nest syndrome," that feeling of abject loneliness that afflicts certain parents when their elder children leave home. The kid can be an apprentice ax-murderer, but when he takes off, his parents look at each other with tear-filled eyes and say: "The place won't be the same without him."

Personally, I always looked forward to the time when my children would leave home, largely because I knew the place wouldn't be the same without them. Even when they were fairly small I used to give them tips on running away, but they never took them.

Not that I didn't like them, you understand. They were fine children. I would have matched them against any kids you'd care to name, excepting of course those few who showed a talent for making money rather than spending it. The problems was, well, they were kids.

What adult in his or her right mind, given a choice, would choose to live in the close company of teen-agers? It's like being occupied by a foreign army. They go days without saying anything intelligible, they take over your favorite part of the house, and they break things.

My son, now grown and working in New York, was something of a genius at that part of being a teen-ager — breaking things. He could break an anvil, provided it was your favorite anvil. And he did it effortlessly, without a trace of surliness or anger. Things just broke in his hand; or foot.

I remember one time I bought a Styrofoam beer cooler, brought it home and set it down on the floor in the basement. I was straightening up from doing so when he came tumbling downstairs with a "Hi, Dad, what's up?" and stuck his foot through the cooler. That was perhaps his quickest performance but by no means his grandest. There were the three cars.

My eldest daughter, also grown and working in New York, was better at the taking-over part of being a teen-ager. Books, magazines, umbrellas, sweaters, record players, bathtubs — she'd take them over and make them hers.

She could go into the bathroom for a bath and stay there three days. Generally on the second day my wife would pound on the door until she got a response.

"Please let me alone, I'm taking a bath." That was the response.

"I know, dear," my wife would say, "but your father and I are afraid you'll soften to death."

She shared her record collection with us, I'll give her that. She was always putting a record on the player and saying: "Listen to this. What do you think of it?"

I would respond with something like: "Poor devil. It sounds like a horrible way to die. What was his crime?" But it didn't discourage her. She kept right on playing her records, loud enough to blow out your sinuses.

So I took it quite in stride when our children, one by one, went off to college. I never felt so much we were losing a child as gaining increased access to the refrigerator. Nor was I upset when we sent our youngest and cheeriest, Rachel, to college two years ago. She is the one who asked for a surgically implanted telephone last Christmas.

But this year we took Rachel to St. Andrews University in Scotland for her junior year abroad. And on the flight back home it occurred to my wife and me that Scotland is a long way away and that there will be no weekend trips home, not many telephone calls and precious little contact. And our other two are busy with their lives in New York.

And that our nest is truly, at long last, empty. We shared a long sigh.

Young friends, people in their 30s, sometimes ask us whether, if we had it to do over again, we'd have children. I always say, "If you have to ask, you can't afford it."

That's a flip answer, of course. You have children and attempt to shape their lives to your desires and find that they've shaped yours to their needs. They've filled in the cracks with laughter and pain and anxiety and love and formed your lives in ways you would not have predicted nor dared contemplate.

It's a good and natural thing when they fly off, and the freedom they leave behind is extraordinary. But do it again? Yes. Hell yes.

The transformation of Ethel

Let me be discrete when I introduce you to the lady I'm going to call Ethel. She lives in a very small, very Southern town — wife of one of the town's rather successful retailers.

With patience you will eventually understand my vagueness. What I'm about to relate could be most upsetting to Ethel's very small, very Southern town.

The placid life of Ethel and her family is interrupted once each year when her husband's industry holds its annual convention.

A retailer even in a very small town — especially in a small town — must keep abreast of what's new — so for him the annual convention and trade show is a necessary appearance.

And all the others bring their wives, so Ethel is expected.

Ethel, unathletic, with a limited budget for personal shopping, and unaccustomed to socializing goes through the motions of these annual outings quietly — almost unnoticed.

Until this year. This year she was noticed. This year's convention was at a most elegant resort hotel. I was there. I did not meet Ethel. She is so utterly "unobtrusive," rather quickly "forgettable."

Perhaps you've seen her somewhere; perhaps with another name.

She sits slumped forward, her hands clasped in her lap.

Her shoulders droop when she stands making her rather plain dress plainer.

On the second morning of the convention Ethel dutifully attended a special function for the wives.

It was called a "Make-Over."

A grooming consultant from Chanel selects a lady from the audience and in an hour there on stage "makes her over."

This morning her indicated choice was Ethel. Ethel demurred shyly, but the beautician insisted.

Perhaps her expert eye saw possibilities in the straight, black hair and ivory skin.

Anyway, urged by those seated near, Ethel reluctantly trudged onto the stage.

She was seated in a chair faced away from the spectators and the "make-over" began.

With a running commentary the beauty expert referred to eye make-up, accents, highlighting cheekbones, coiffing hair and so on.

Well, at the climax of the hour Ethel was turned to face the assembled. There was a unanimous gasp of amazement — then spontaneous applause which would not stop.

Ethel — oh-so-plain Ethel — was beautiful!

The superficial cosmetics had released from somewhere behind Ethel's eyes an exciting lady!

The transformation was spectacular!

Then Ethel was shown herself in a full-length mirror.

She smiled an all-out, eyes-sparkling, full-lips smile.

Those present were still applauding; some on their feet applauding.

And Ethel was standing straight — her shoulders back — she had never appeared so tall. And she was radiant! Those lovely eyes. That beaming full-face confident smile!

The ladies of the convention talked of little else the rest of the day.

They could hardly wait for the social event that was planned for the evening. The transformed Ethel was certain to be the belle of the ball.

Her husband ordered her to take the make-up off!

Her husband, after a single glance, ordered her to get rid of those colored lips — wash off the make-up, comb her hair straight — as he said, "lady-like" again.

Ethel was present for the rest of the convention. You might not have noticed her, but she was there, dutifully attending the meetings, seated toward the back.

Sitting with her shoulders slumped forward, her eyes downcast, her hands folded in her lap.

Part-time jobs trap women in lower pay

By Rusty Brown

Is part-time work really a good deal for women? With children or elderly parents to care for and a house to run, working 20 hours a week seems to make sense. Yet, economically and in other ways, it often doesn't. Here's why.

First off, part-time jobs — when you add dressing and driving time — can eat up most of the hours in a day anyhow.

Secondly, the pay is seldom half of a full-time salary — and raises are also seldom.

Third, part-time workers usually get no benefits. It is rare that a company provides hospitalization, paid vacations, sick leave or pension perks to part-time employees.

Fourth, in cost of clothes, gas, lunches and day care, a part-time job is often as expensive as working full time.

Fifth, while a part-time job sometimes converts to full time, most offer no future. Employers don't consider part-timers workers as having the same drive and ambition as full-time staffers. They are hardly ever included in staff meetings or given an opportunity to have their say on policy decisions.

Despite all these disadvantages, millions of women are drawn into the part-time trap because it is the only way they can work at all. If a woman wants to be home for her children at 3:30 p.m. or if she doesn't want to get on the superwoman merry-go-round, a part-time job looks ideal on the surface. But the surface often wears thin.

One woman, 38, told me how she's been taken advantage of on part-time bookkeeping jobs. She doesn't want to work full time just now because of responsibilities to elderly parents and because she's taking courses for a bachelor's degree. Presently, she works part time for several clients. There's no continuity to her jobs and certainly no benefits.

One client, a non-profit agency, agreed to pay her $6.50 an hour, but when the grant money ran low, the director found someone to replace her at $4 an hour and asked her to train the new clerk. Some months later, the trainee quit, the books were in a mess, and the agency enticed her back. Yet, whenever the bottom line looks wobbly — and she's the first to know — the director warns he'll have to find someone less expensive.

It is a paradox that women face this continual dilemma between full-time work and full-time responsibilities at home. Part-time employment, while seeming to be a workable solution, only widens the gap between men's and women's pay. It perpetuates the devaluation of women's work and women's worth. But I can't come up with any alternative solution.

And isn't it ironic that we do it to ourselves because we care more about our families than a job.

Reagan signs landmark tax overhaul bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who campaigned against the present income tax code as a source of ridicule and resentment, is signing into law a landmark overhaul that slashes rates, curtails deductions and cuts taxes for most Americans.

Reagan invited congressional leaders to the White House today to witness the signing of a bill that was at least five years in the making and one for which both political parties are eager to claim credit two weeks before the congressional elections.

The bill makes the most sweeping changes in federal tax law in at least 32 years. Its chief authors, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., say it is the broadest overhaul since the income tax was enacted in 1913.

Most of the changes go into effect next Jan. 1, although it will take as long as five years for some of them to be felt. In 1988, when most changes will be effective, an estimated 76.3 million couples and individuals will get tax cuts averaging $801 (about $400 for a $30,000-a-year taxpayer) and 20.4 million will face tax increases averaging $1,742 (a bit less than $400 at the $30,000 level).

The new law will remove from the income-tax rolls about 6 million of the working poor. It will shift about $120 billion in taxes from individuals to corporations over the next five years, reversing a decade-old trend. It will require wealthy investors and profitable companies to pay a share of tax regardless of their deductions. And it will close off some tax-shelter arrangements designed more to avoid taxes than to turn a profit.

On Jan. 1, the present system of 15 individual tax rates (14 for couples) will be compressed into five; the top rate of 50 percent will drop to 38.5 percent. A year later the permanent rates will become effective — a bottom rate of 15 percent (which about three-quarters of Americans will pay), 28 percent and 33 percent.

Because of Congress' rush to pass the bill, it contains several hundred typing errors, some of which could delay construction projects in as many as 38 states. Those mistakes are expected to be corrected retroactively early next year.

Reagan is not the first president to call for major changes in the tax laws. President Carter labeled the present law a disgrace but was unable to get Congress to move.

After Congress enacted Reagan's huge tax cut in 1981, several lawmakers, led by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., began pushing for a nearly top-to-bottom overhaul.

Reagan jumped aboard the movement during his 1984 re-election campaign and made tax revision a major element of his State of the Union message in 1985.

On May 29, 1985, he forwarded to Congress a plan that "we can be proud of, a proposal that will help fulfill America's commitment to fairness, hope and opportunity for all its citizens."

Although Congress made hundreds of changes along the way, it built the new law around that proposal, producing a package of lower rates, a broader tax base and a system aimed at reducing the role of taxes play in the decisions of investors and businesses.

Key elements of tax overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are key elements of the compromise tax-overhaul bill that President Reagan is signing into law today:

INDIVIDUALS

TAX CUTS: Most taxpayers will get a tax cut averaging 6.1 percent, starting gradually in 1987 and fully in effect for 1988. More than 20 million couples and individuals will pay more, including one-fourth of those with income between $30,000 and $40,000. More than 6 million lower-income working couples and individuals now on the tax rolls will pay no tax.

RATES: In 1987, rates will range from 11 percent of taxable income to 38.5 percent (down from present 50 percent top). Starting in 1988, three-quarters of taxpayers will pay only a new bottom rate of 15 percent. Thus, a single person could have taxable income (after deductions and exemption) of up to $17,850 taxed at 15 percent; for a couple, up to $29,750 would be taxed at 15 percent.

A 28 percent rate would trigger above those levels. Couples whose taxable income exceeds $71,900 and singles above $43,150 will pay 33 percent on part of their income.

EXEMPTIONS: Now $1,080 per taxpayer, spouse and dependent, this will rise to $1,900 in 1987, $1,950 in 1988 and $2,000 in 1990; afterward, it will be adjusted each year for inflation. Singles with taxable income above $89,560 and couples above $149,250 will get gradually less exemption as earnings rise. Blind and elderly lose their extra exemptions.

STANDARD DEDUCTIONS: In 1988, couples get $5,000, singles $3,000 and heads of household $4,400; annual inflation adjustments will follow. Blind or elderly get $600 extra per spouse if married and $750 if single.

DEDUCTIONS: Kills deductions for state and local sales taxes; consumer interest, such as credit cards and car loans, and the special writeoff for two-earner couples. Severely restricts deductions for medical expenses and such miscellaneous expenses as union dues. Eliminates charitable deduction for non-itemizers.

RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS: Keeps present law for workers not covered by company pensions and for those who are covered but whose income is $25,000 or less for singles and $40,000 or less for couples. Some IRA deduction would be permitted.

TAX SHELTERS: Investments geared to saving taxes rather than making profits would be in trouble. Except for some investments in oil and gas, most passive investment losses — generated by big depreciation deductions — could not be used to shield wages from taxation. Real estate investments are a big target but low-income housing gets a special preference.

CAPITAL GAINS: Taxed as ordinary income effective next Jan. 1.

SIMPLIFICATION: Not much except for those who will become tax-exempt and as many as 13 million who will lose such a big part of their deductions that they no longer find it profitable to itemize. Capital-gains change will cut complexity but other new provisions will replace it.

BUSINESSES

TAX INCREASES: Taxes on corporations will rise by $120.4 billion over five years. Hardest hit: profitable companies now escaping taxes because of large legal deductions; they will be subject to stiffened minimum tax of 20 percent. Some special breaks for specific industries, including oil and gas, timber and banking are pared.

TAX RATES: Top corporate rate of 46 percent will drop to 34 percent. Small businesses will pay as little as 15 percent.

MEALS, ENTERTAINMENT: Only 80 percent deductible, down from 100 percent.

INVESTMENTS: Credit for investment repealed. Depreciation similar to present law but less generous for buildings and more beneficial for most equipment.

General provisions

Standard deductions: Increased in two stages. For 1987, $2,540 (single), $3,760 (couples), $1,880 (married, filing separately), $2,540 (head of household); in 1988, $3,000 (single), $5,000 (couples), $2,500 (married, filing separately), $4,400 (head of household). Extra $750 (single) or $600 (married) for blind and elderly.

Exemptions: For most taxpayers, raised to $1,900 (1987), $1,950 (1988), $2,000 (1989); indexed to inflation from 1990 on. Reduced for high-income taxpayers. Extra exemptions for the blind, elderly eliminated.

Two-earner couple deduction repealed.

ted pension-eligible workers with incomes above those levels but would end at $35,000 for singles and $50,000 for couples. Even those not qualified for a deductible IRA could deposit up to $2,000 a year and the interest could build up tax-free until withdrawn.

TAX SHELTERS: Investments geared to saving taxes rather than making profits would be in trouble. Except for some investments in oil and gas, most passive investment losses — generated by big depreciation deductions — could not be used to shield wages from taxation. Real estate investments are a big target but low-income housing gets a special preference.

CAPITAL GAINS: Taxed as ordinary income effective next Jan. 1.

SIMPLIFICATION: Not much except for those who will become tax-exempt and as many as 13 million who will lose such a big part of their deductions that they no longer find it profitable to itemize. Capital-gains change will cut complexity but other new provisions will replace it.

BUSINESSES

TAX INCREASES: Taxes on corporations will rise by $120.4 billion over five years. Hardest hit: profitable companies now escaping taxes because of large legal deductions; they will be subject to stiffened minimum tax of 20 percent. Some special breaks for specific industries, including oil and gas, timber and banking are pared.

TAX RATES: Top corporate rate of 46 percent will drop to 34 percent. Small businesses will pay as little as 15 percent.

MEALS, ENTERTAINMENT: Only 80 percent deductible, down from 100 percent.

INVESTMENTS: Credit for investment repealed. Depreciation similar to present law but less generous for buildings and more beneficial for most equipment.

President Reagan welcomes West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl during a Tuesday ceremony at the White House.

West Germany's Kohl believes that Reagan can reach fair arms accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, concerned that any U.S.-Soviet arms pact take the NATO allies' security into account, says he is confident President Reagan will pursue an equitable accord.

"I have no reason to be afraid of anything," the West German leader told reporters during an Oval Office session Tuesday with Reagan.

Kohl was keeping up his round of Washington appointments today including a meeting with Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III and lunch with Vice President George Bush.

Reagan and Kohl's hour-long private discussions centered on the Reykjavik summit session between the president and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, which failed to produce an arms control breakthrough.

The West German leader told Reagan he had done the right thing by meeting with Gorbachev and that "it will be a good thing to build on what was achieved there," said a U.S. official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The official said that while Kohl urged that "everything continues to need to be discussed within the alliance," he also offered "encouragement" to the president to continue the pursuit of arms reductions begun in Reykjavik.

West German sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Kohl also told Reagan that cuts of more than 50 percent in long-range nuclear arms would endanger Western Europe unless agreement also was reached to reduce conventional forces.

Japan airline to buy U.S. jumbo jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — All Nippon Airways, Japan's largest domestic airline, will buy 11 Boeing 747 jumbo jets for $1.56 billion to expand its international routes, including planned increased service to the United States.

Executives of All Nippon and the Boeing Co. announced the purchase at a Washington news conference Tuesday, saying the new aircraft are to be delivered between next July and late 1992.

Akio Kondo, deputy president and chief operating officer for the airline, said it will decide later whether to buy the 200-series jumbo jet or the more technologically advanced 400 series, which is still under development.

The Boeing 747-400, which relies heavily on computers and is scheduled to come off the assembly line in late 1988, is expected to be certified for a two-member crew. Three crew members are required on all other Boeing 747s, including the 200 series aircraft.

U.S. seeks conciliation after expelling diplomats

WASHINGTON (AP) — After expelling 55 Soviet diplomats, the Reagan administration is assuring Moscow it plans to go ahead with the attempt to reduce nuclear weapons that began at the Iceland summit.

The two sides are in the midst of negotiations in Geneva on weapons cutbacks, and Secretary of State George Shultz is due to resume the summit discussion on arms and human rights with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in Vienna on Nov. 6.

A new U.S. package of proposals to reduce offensive weapons is nearly ready for submission to the Soviets, but is being reviewed by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger before it is presented to President Reagan for final clearance, a U.S. official, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said Tuesday.

Of the 55 Soviets ordered to leave their Embassy in Washington and consulate in San Francisco, five were declared "persona non grata" by the State Department in retaliation for the ordered expulsion last weekend of five U.S. diplomats from Moscow.

The 50 other Soviets, also given until Nov. 1 to depart, were ordered home to bring the Embassy and consulate "to parity" with the American diplomatic complement in Moscow and Leningrad.

Reagan, at a state dinner in honor of West German chancellor Helmut Kohl Tuesday evening, said the expulsions were ordered because "we feel that they were connected with intelligence operations — the KGB."

"Besides," added Reagan, "they had more than we did and we just leveled it out."

He referred to the fact that the Soviets have more diplomats in the United States than there are American diplomats in the Soviet Union.

Asked whether he believed the incident might damage chances for arms control agreements, Reagan said that "there is no way of knowing that now — but I have to believe that it is as important to them as it is to us."

State Department spokesman Charles Redman announced the massive expulsion with "regrets," but said it was forced on the administration by the Soviet Union.

"We remain committed to pursuing the dialogue stemming from the Reykjavik meeting in all areas of our relationship," Redman said.

Hasenfus says he's a mercenary and guilty

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Accused rebel arms supplier Eugene Hasenfus, on trial before a Nicaraguan People's Tribunal, said he is a mercenary and guilty as charged. But the American's lawyer planned to seek an extension of today's deadline for entering a plea.

Defense attorney Enrique Sotelo Borgen said Tuesday that his only contact with his client was a 10-minute discussion Monday night in the tribunal's offices, and that he needs more time to prepare a defense. The two spoke through an interpreter, Sotelo Borgen said.

"I cannot say categorically if I will declare him totally innocent," the attorney said. "Obviously there was a violation of Nicaraguan air space, which is a crime."

The 45-year-old Hasenfus, of Marinette, Wis., was charged Monday with terrorism and violating Nicaraguan security.

He was captured in southern Nicaragua Oct. 6 after Sandinista soldiers shot down a transport plane flying supplies to the U.S.-backed Contra rebels. His three fellow crewmen, including two Americans, died in the crash.

Hasenfus said in an interview with a U.S. network it "would have been better if I hadn't made it out of that plane. Dead people don't talk."

"I'm guilty of everything they've charged. It's there," he said in the interview broadcast Tuesday on NBC Nightly News. "How can I say I wasn't carrying small arms and munitions to their resistance?"

Hasenfus said he was working "for a paycheck. And it's an established fact already. If I'm considered a mercenary or a soldier of fortune, that's it then."

The charges against Hasenfus are contained in a 14-page document that is primarily an indictment of a half century of U.S. policy toward Nicaragua, including the Reagan administration's support for the Contras.

At the United Nations in New York, Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto lashed out at the Reagan administration for practicing "the law of the jungle."

But he said Hasenfus, because he is being tried in Nicaragua, "can expect ... Sandinista justice, which is always merciful."

NBC interviewed Hasenfus at a maximum security prison in the village of Tipitapa, about 15 miles east of Managua, NBC producer Elena Caldera said.

In the interview, Hasenfus said he had signed a full confession and was told even before the trial that he would be convicted. The Justice Ministry has recommended the maximum 30-year prison sentence.

NBC said Hasenfus was sure he was working for the CIA, and that he felt abandoned by the U.S. government.

"All I hear is negative reports saying that they don't know me, that they don't know what's happening here. Somebody does," he said.

In statements to reporters, Hasenfus has said CIA employees organized the supply flights to the Contras. The U.S. government has denied involvement.

Asked in the interview if he had anything to tell his family, Hasenfus said, "I love them and hope to be back with them soon."

Hasenfus' wife, Sally, flew to Managua from Wisconsin and the two were allowed a five-minute meeting after Monday's court session, Sotelo Borgen said. He said both wept.

Kidnapped Lebanese professor reported freed by terrorists

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Christian professor at the American University of Beirut, kidnapped more than five months ago, has been freed, university authorities said today.

The report of the release of Nabil Matar, 36, came the day after an underground organization said it kidnapped Edward Austin Tracy, one of a handful of Americans left in Moslem west Beirut.

University spokesman Radwan Mawlawi said Matar, an associate professor of cultural studies, was freed Tuesday night in west Beirut and was in "fairly good shape."

"He's back home with his wife," Mawlawi said. But he offered no explanation as to why Matar was freed.

Matar, a Lebanese citizen, was kidnapped May 7 as he walked from his home in Moslem west Beirut's Ras Beirut residential district to the nearby campus.

A group calling itself the Independent Movement for Freeing Civil War Kidnap Victims claimed responsibility for the abduction in a statement May 18.

The group said Matar's abduction was part of its campaign to force the government of President Amin Gemayel, a Christian, to determine the fate of about 2,200 missing Moslems allegedly held by Christian militias.

A handwritten statement in Arabic signed by the Revolutionary Justice Organization and delivered Tuesday to the office of a Western news agency said the group had abducted the 55-year-old Tracy, of Rutland Vt.

Hostage relatives urge editors to pressure government

CINCINNATI (AP) — U.S. newspaper editors should pressure the Reagan administration to step up efforts to free Americans held hostage in Lebanon, relatives of the hostages told a national conference of editors.

Peggy Say, sister of hostage Terry Anderson, and Eric Jacobsen, son of hostage David Jacobsen, made emotional appeals Tuesday at a panel discussion with editors attending the 52nd annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors.

Anderson, an Associated Press correspondent, and David Jacobsen, administrator of American University Hospital in Beirut, have been held captive since 1985 by Moslem extremists in Beirut.

Mrs. Say and Jacobsen said President Reagan's policy of "quiet diplomacy" is not working to win the freedom of Anderson, David Jacobsen and at least four other Americans held by terrorists in Lebanon. They said the administration declines to tell the relatives what is being done to win hostages' freedom.

The speakers asked the APME editors, who are attending from newspapers nationwide, to urge the Reagan administration to negotiate directly with the hostage-takers in hopes of resolving the imprisonment.

"You know how to make Terry Anderson an issue. He should be an issue. He was there for you. You should be there for him," Mrs. Say said. "How long are you going to sit back and let him suffer while you let your government pursue quiet diplomacy?"

Newspaper editors pledged to ask for an immediate White House response on what is being done to free the hostages.

Jacobsen and Mrs. Say said Reagan has worked harder to free others taken captive in foreign lands, including Moscow-based American journalist Nicholas Daniloff, who was allowed to leave the Soviet Union on Sept. 30 after Soviet authorities had detained him for a month on charges he was spying. The Soviets agreed to release him in exchange for the release of Soviet U.N. employee Gennadiy Zakharov, accused by U.S. officials of spying.

Reagan wrote a letter to Soviet leader Mikhail

Gorbachev in Daniloff's behalf, but has been unwilling to approach Syrian President Hafez Assad, who might be helpful in gaining freedom of the U.S. hostages, Jacobsen said.

Mrs. Say said she had urged her brother to leave Lebanon a week before his abduction in March 1985, but he declined so he could carry on his work as chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press.

The Rev. Lawrence M. Jenco, 51, a Roman Catholic priest from Joliet, Ill., who was released July 26 by Moslem terrorists in Beirut after nearly 19 months in captivity, appeared with Mrs. Say and Jacobsen on a panel at the convention.

Jenco said he and the other hostages had discussed their concern about whether enough was being done to obtain their release. Jenco's captors said he was freed because he was in failing health.

Jacobsen, of Huntington Beach, Calif., urged the editors to demand an accounting of the Reagan administration's efforts to get the Beirut hostages freed.

"That's all we're asking. Make them prove that they're doing what they say they're doing," he said. "Make them realize that it's not enough to say, 'We're doing all we can.'"

Robert Rhodes, vice president and program chairman of APME, said the association sent an invitation Tuesday to have a White House representative address the group before its four-day convention ends Friday, on what the administration is doing to win the hostages' release. Laurence O'Donnell, an associate editor of The Wall Street Journal, suggested that action.

Rhodes said a tape of the panel discussion was being sent back to Washington on Tuesday with Michael Putzel, AP's White House correspondent, who had addressed the APME earlier Tuesday.

Rhodes, executive editor of the Corpus Christi (Texas) Caller-Times, said he expected the tape to be delivered Wednesday morning to White House spokesman Larry Speakes. Rhodes said he hoped to announce Wednesday whether the White House would accept the invitation.

Novelist puts action, romance into history

By MARY LOU FULTON
Associated Press Writer

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)— Author Douglas C. Jones adds a pinch of romance and a smidgen of action to history. A historical novelist, Jones, 62, inserts fictional characters into a generally accurate portrayal of a period in history.

"History turns a lot of people off," he said. "Unfortunately, a lot of people had a bad experience in high school. But the average person on the street will read more when there's some romance and action and character development. Good historical novelists teach more history than historians do."

Jones is best known for his 1976 book, "The Court Martial of George Armstrong Custer," which hypothesized Custer survived the Battle of Little Big Horn. The book, his first historical novel, detailed a trial in which Custer, his fellow officers and subordinates testified about Custer's judgment. The novel was made into a Hallmark Hall of Fame television movie in 1977.

Since then, he has written about one book a year

— works in the late 1970s focused on adventures of American Indians and later novels concentrated on 19th-century Arkansas families.

Some find fault with works that mix history and fiction, but Jones doesn't think he's deceiving anyone.

"If you're really interested after you read my book about Custer, then you've got to go to the library and read some real history on it," he said. Jones' roots are in the places and people he writes about. A native of the northwestern Arkansas town of Winslow near Fayetteville, he returned home to write after a career that took him from the Army to academia. This time, he says he's back for good.

He spent 27 years in the military, retiring in 1968 as a lieutenant colonel. Part of his tour of duty was spent as a Pentagon press officer, and during that time, the Army sent him to the University of Wisconsin to do graduate work in mass communications. He earned his master's degree in 1962, and was an instructor there from 1968 to 1974 in the School of Journalism and Mass Communications.

He says it's possible to teach basic writing structure, but not talent.

New law will cause huge market in bogus documents

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)— Applications for amnesty by Mexican aliens living in the United States will not be taken until six months after the new immigration bill becomes law, a federal official said.

"I need to be emphatic that we'll not be receiving applications tomorrow," said Richard Casillas, a spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in San Antonio. "We need to educate employers and train personnel first. But we also need to emphasize that no one should be afraid to come forward. We won't be making arrests even if in the process of checking some applicant's background we discover a criminal wanted elsewhere."

Casillas said the city will need a "supermarket-sized facility" to process people seeking amnesty under the new law.

The immigration service will also open processing centers in Corpus Christi, Laredo and Austin, Casillas said.

An estimated 2.5 million to 5 million people could qualify for amnesty, but Casillas said he did not know how many in South

Texas would take advantage of the program.

Officials say they expect a huge market in bogus documents to emerge to help people living illegally in the United States take advantage of the immigration bill passed Friday by Congress.

Fake documents are already being tailored to the requirements in the legislation. The documents include fake rent receipts, utility bills, income tax forms, driver's licenses and birth certificates.

The immigration bill would offer amnesty to millions of immigrants who arrived illegally if they can prove they lived in the United States since 1982, except for "brief, casual and innocent absences."

The White House says President Reagan is expected to sign the legislation.

In the past, fake documents could make someone appear to be a legal resident. But the new measure will probably create more demand because aliens could use the documents to become legal residents and eventually, citizenship.

Videotaping West Texas storyteller's folk tales

By PAUL F. POWER JR.
Odessa American

CRANE, Texas (AP) — A video camera is capturing tales of a Western storyteller so future generations can relive the history.

The stories of Crane resident Paul Patterson, 77, have culminated in several books, but his longtime buddy, Doug Crane, 64, now is capturing the folklore on videotape for the first time.

"I worked with him since 1945," Crane says, recalling their teaching days at Crane High School. "We used to go to football games together, and he would keep us in stitches."

"So, now we're going into the backyard — we have cactus out there and a wagon — and we've been getting him to relax and tell us about the early days."

Patterson's tales are not the usual on-the-way-to-the-game small talk. He has written "Texas Tales" (1967), "Sam McGoo and Texas Too" (1947), articles for the Texas Folklife Society yearbook and a 1977 play detailing Crane's history.

For the last 10 years he has been entertaining each summer at the annual Folklife Festival in San Antonio, billing himself as the "Tall Tale Teller." He has spun yarns at folk festivals in Jonesboro, Tenn., and has flown to Australia to get story material.

Where fact ends and fiction begins with Patterson sometimes is difficult to tell; his voice shifts in the finest storytelling tradition. His punch lines are delivered with experience.

"I got my first ranching job when I was 17," Patterson says, a cowboy hat atop his head. "I got thrown off my horse every day for 30 days. But then I started to learn."

Then he pauses like Bob Newhart. "After a while, I was good enough that I could land on my feet."

Patterson was born on a ranch near Seminole. He graduated from Sul Ross State University in 1935, supporting himself by cooking in a boarding house and earning money in a pool hall.

He started teaching in Marfa in the 1930s and went on to log more than 40 years teaching school in Sanderson, Sierra Blanca and Upland, a town east of Crane that no longer exists, and in Crane, about 35 miles south of Odessa.

He married Marjorie Mixon, a fellow teacher, in 1939. They had to keep the marriage a secret because the school in Sanderson did not allow teachers to be married to each other.

After marrying, he served 3½ years in Africa and Italy during World War II with the U.S. Air Force.

The Patterson family arrived in West Texas after Patterson's grandfather, Billy Patterson, drove a wagon to Texas from Macon, Ga., in 1886 after the Civil War. After 90 days, the elder Patterson arrived in the Dallas area and was offered 20 acres for his wagon team. He turned the deal down and pressed on to West Texas.

"There were a lot of nesters who came out this way," Patterson says. "They came out here to dryland farm and couldn't do it. They went broke."

The Patterson family stayed, though. Patterson's father, J.D. Patterson, was a county jailer in Upton County and was a county judge from 1921 to 1928.

How lonesome did it get on the range? Patterson says he can recall cowboys who managed livestock and sometimes were stationed by themselves at the edge of a ranch and saw no one for eight months straight. The human contact was limited to the delivery of chuck, but sometimes, supplies would arrive when the cowboy was out on the range.

Lack of human contact "leaves its mark on you," he says.

"They still have a law on the books in Wyoming that says that it is against the law for a shepherd to stay by himself," Patterson says, balancing between fact and fancy. "They ought to have a law that says it's against the law to spend any time with a shepherd."

"In the early 1900s," he says, "It was still a simple thing to be country people. My brother and I walked seven and a half or eight miles to Rankin once to get what we thought was an ice cream comb, spelled C-O-M-B.

"We didn't know what that was, but we bought (the ice cream) at Bill Nix's combination store. "When we were through, we threw the cones away. We didn't know we were supposed to eat them."

Following his 1977 retirement, he spent two summers in Australia "just to see how lonesome they are there."

"It all started when I went Down Under ... under the pretext of gathering cowboy data. In truth, I was down there to brag on me and Texas and laugh and scorn them piddlin' properties them Aussies try to palm off as ranches."

Patterson had been prepared to boast that he had helped move 500 head of horses 250 miles and had tended to as many as 22,000 sheep on a 230-square-mile ranch in Upton and Crockett counties. He learned from a tour guide, however, that some Australian ranches encompass 2,000 square miles.

"As unobtrusively as possible," Patterson recalls, "I tiptoed back to my seat, laid my pearl-gray Stetson up in the rack, eased my pants down over my two-tone Texas boots and passed the word around that I was just puttin' the chap on."

Instead of boasting about Texas' size, he told them he was from Rhode Island.

Texas 'state pie' winner named at Dallas fair

In a demonstration of pie baking skills and state pride, 36 Texans entered home-baked "My Favorite Texas Pies" in the American Pie Celebration at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas, Oct. 4.

Lynn Redden of Midlothian won first prize and the opportunity to submit her pie as "The Texas Pie" in a national contest to find "THE American Pie."

The celebration took place at fairs in each state this summer and fall to select 50 "State Pies." "My Favorite Texas Pie" was selected as the Texas state pie when food editors were asked to vote for pies best representing their home states. This open category allowed contestants to bake and enter the pies of their choice in honor of Texas' Sesquicentennial anniversary.

As first prize winner, Redden has been awarded an expense-paid trip to Nashville to enter the national competition for selection of "THE American Pie." Judging of the national finals will take place Nov. 6 at a gala party for the winners.

Redden, a pre-school teacher, is married and has two daughters. As a hobby, she and her husband raise exotic game animals including a Sicilian donkey, a South American ostrich and emus on their rural dairy farm.

In honor of the state's 150th anniversary, Redden incorporated several Texas ingredients and products into her winning recipe.

"I used Texas pecans, sugar from the Lower Rio Grande Valley, salt from the coastal area of the state and milk from our own dairy farm," she said.

Inez Galloway and Donna Hill, both of Dallas, were named second and third prize winners respectively.

Following is the winning "My Favorite Texas Pie" recipe:

THE PRIDE OF TEXAS PIE Crust: (Use 10-inch pie plate)
 1½ c. all-purpose flour
 2-3rd c. pecans, ground
 1 T. salt
 2-3rd c. shortening
 4 to 5 T. milk

Cream cheese layer:
 6 oz. cream cheese, softened
 1-3rd c. sugar
 1 egg

Filling:
 1 c. sugar
 ¼ c. all-purpose flour
 ½ t. nutmeg
 1 t. cinnamon
 1-16th t. salt
 2-3rd c. pecans, chopped
 6 c. apples, pared and thinly sliced
 2 T. butter

Crunchy Pecan Glaze:
 ½ c. brown sugar, firmly packed
 2-3rd c. pecans, whole
 4 T. light cream
 Preheat oven to 425 degrees. For crust, combine flour, pecans and salt in mixing bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until mixture is uniform. Sprinkle with milk, 1 tablespoon at a time; toss lightly with fork. When all milk has been added, work dough into firm ball. Divide dough into two parts.

On lightly floured surface, roll bottom crust into circle one inch larger than inverted 10-inch pie plate. Gently lift dough onto plate. Trim edge even with plate.

For cream cheese layer, beat together cream cheese, sugar and egg in mixing bowl. Spoon mixture into unbaked pie shell. Refrigerate while preparing filling.

For filling, combine sugar, flour, nutmeg, cinnamon, salt and pecans in mixing bowl. Stir in apple slices and mix well until all slices are coated. Gently spoon onto cream cheese layer in unbaked pie shell. Dot with butter.

Roll top crust into 12-inch circle. Place over filling and trim ½ inch beyond edge of pie plate. Fold top edge under bottom crust; flute edge. Bake in 425 degree oven for 40 to 50 minutes.

For crunchy pecan glaze, combine brown sugar, pecans and light cream in small saucepan. Cook over high heat for approximately 10 minutes or until mixture reaches soft ball stage. Drizzle glaze over hot pie and cool at room temperature for approximately one hour before serving.

Crunchy Grecian Dip offers imaginative blend.

Fruits are perfect for feta cheese

Feta is fast on its way to becoming an American cheese. Originally produced in Greece, the tangy cheese was difficult to find in the U.S. until recently. Ten years ago, the Churny Company Inc. of Weyauwega, Wis., began to make and distribute feta here. They brought in Greek cheesemakers to help produce authentic feta with one variation — Churny feta is made with cow's milk instead of sheep's or goat's milk.

The salad craze brought feta into a lot of homes for the first time, since it is a key ingredient in the popular Greek Salad. Feta is also perfectly complemented by fruits, especially citrus, melon, apples and pears. The tangy, salty flavor of the cheese provides a counterpoint to the sweetness of these fruits. A quick dessert or snack idea is to arrange cubes or slices of feta with pieces of fruit on a tray, or to alternate the cheese cubes with pieces of fruit on skewers.

And for those special occasions, Crunchy Grecian Dip provides an attractive and imaginative accompaniment for apple and pear wedges. This distinctive dip combines, sour cream, walnuts, raisins, feta and allspice. It takes only minutes to make, so it's great for last minute entertaining.

Additional ideas for using feta with favorite American foods are available in a free recipe brochure. To obtain a copy, send name and address to Feta Cheese

Recipes, P.O. Box 810, South Holland, Ill., 60473.

CRUNCHY GRECIAN DIP
 1 c. (6 oz.) crumbled feta cheese
 1 c. sour cream
 ½ c. chopped nuts
 1-3rd c. milk
 ¼ c. raisins
 ¼ t. ground allspice
 Combine all ingredients; mix well. Serve with apple and pear slices. Makes two cups.

Nutritious soup and sandwich can be made ahead.

Luncheon choices packed with nutrition and flavor

Nutritious and delicious need not be at the opposite ends of the dietary scale. With a bit of planning, they can both come together. This is especially true at lunchtime, which so often consists of hurry-up junk food choices.

For a lunch eaten at home or carried, consider this creamy golden carrot soup. It combines carrots rich in vitamin A with milk, an excellent source of calcium, riboflavin and protein. It's then carefully seasoned with onion, bay leaf, chicken bouillon and nutmeg.

The sandwich spread blends peanut butter, a plant-based protein, with Cheddar cheese, an animal-based one, together, the two make a high-quality protein sandwich which is also delicious. Sour cream adds tang while holding the mixture together. Orange juice and peel along with a handful of raisins contribute a pleasing contrast in flavor.

No time for all this? Both soup and sandwiches can be made ahead at your leisure and frozen. All that's required is that they be thawed, the soup heated and a curly lettuce leaf slipped into the sandwich just before eating.

CREAM OF CARROT SOUP
 6 servings
 1 lb. carrots, pared and thinly sliced
 ½ c. chopped onion
 1 bay leaf
 1½ c. water
 1 T. instant chicken bouillon

¼ c. (½ stick) butter
 ¼ c. all-purpose flour
 Dash pepper
 ½ t. nutmeg
 2½ c. milk
 Chopped parsley

Place carrots, onion, bay leaf, water and chicken bouillon in a three-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil; cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until tender. Meanwhile, melt butter in a two-quart saucepan. Blend in flour, pepper and nutmeg. Cook, stirring constantly, until roux bubbles for two minutes. Remove from heat; gradually stir in milk. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly; boil and stir one minute.

Remove bay leaf from carrot mixture; pour mixture with cooking liquid into blender or food processor and process just until coarsely chopped. It may be necessary to process a portion at a time. (Or press through coarse sieve.) Combine carrot mixture and cream sauce; heat just to boiling. Garnish with chopped parsley.

CHEESY PEANUT SPREAD
 6 servings
 2 c. (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
 ½ c. chunk-style peanut butter
 ½ c. dairy sour cream
 1 t. grated orange peel
 2 T. orange juice
 ¼ c. raisins
 Combine ingredients; stir to blend thoroughly. Use 1-3rd cup spread per sandwich. Excellent on wheat or rye bread.

St. Vincent's to sponsor 1986 Halloween carnival

Area children will be treated to an early chance to try out their costumes when St. Vincent's Catholic School, 2300 N. Hobart, hosts its annual Halloween Carnival Sunday from noon until 6 p.m. in the school gym.

Sponsored by the St. Vincent's Home and School Association, the carnival will feature games, food, give-aways and a costume contest.

Frank Keim Council of the Knights of Columbus will prepare and serve a Polish sausage dinner with beans, cole slaw and tea or coffee from noon until 6 p.m. in the cafeteria. Cost of the dinner is $3.75 per plate. Desserts, sausage-on-a-stick and nachos will be sold separately.

Halloween costumes are to be judged by age groups at 2 p.m. Any child in costume is eligible to enter.

Booths will include a lollipop pull, fish pond, ball throw, spinning wheel, duck pond, jewelry engraving, dart throw, clown toss, putt-putt golf and a cake-walk, said Marsha Barrett, association president.

A country store will feature homebaked goods, crafts and plants. The Catholic Youth Organization is to sponsor a ring bottle toss, ice cream sale and a traditional haunted house.

Parents of students, staff members and parishioners will conduct the games and booths. A concession stand manned by the school's teachers offers soft drinks, candy and popcorn. Several video games are featured in the arcade.

Other highlights of the day will include cash give-aways at 6 p.m. and a handmade crocheted afghan provided by the Women's Council to be given away.

A contest was held recently among St. Vincent's students to create advertising posters for the carnival.

First, second and third place winners, by grade, include:

First grade — Scott Rose, Jason Cirone and Micah Nolte; second — Fabian Silva, Amy Raney and Isaiah Nolte; third — Edward Munoz, Nicole Conner and Mashonda King; fourth — Alicia Nicholas, Mindy White and Juan Campos; and fifth — Brooke Parks, Alexix Liatis and Catarina Campos.

Carnival chairman is Darlene Nolte. Kitchen chairman is Jane White. Home and School officers in addition to Mrs. Barrett include Jim Presley, vice president; Teresa Campos, secretary; and Rudy Munoz, treasurer.

Proceeds from the carnival help Home and School meet its financial pledge to the support of the school, Mrs. Barrett said.

'Architects as Artists' topic of exhibit

AMARILLO — Amarillo College will sponsor an art exhibit, "Architects as Artists," for the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects Oct. 27-Nov. 21 in the Amarillo College Lynn Learning Center-Library, Washington Street Campus.

The exhibit will feature works of fine art by several local members of the AIA chapter as well as that of their associates and family members. The show is also open to local, non-member architect entrants. Approximately 100 pieces will form the exhibition including renditions in watercolor, oil, sculpture, and pencil drawing.

The purpose of the exhibition, according to show coordinator and Amarillo College instructor Brent Flenniken, is to introduce the considerable talent of local architects to the community as artists in their own right.

"Architects are usually viewed in their cultural and creative aspects for building design, but their abilities can be shown in creative fine arts as well," said Flenniken.

A few of the local artists exhibiting in the show include Jim Doche of Wilson, Doche, Inc., Don Dickerson of Hannon, Daniel & Dickerson, Earl Pargee of Hucker & Pargee Associates.

Dan Patterson, AIA committee member in charge of the exhibit and AIA president-elect, states, "There are many ways to reach the public to inform them about art and architecture. We hope that an exhibit of this type will reach the public as well as local architects who might consider joining the Institute. We want to make people aware that architects have a sense of art for all purposes and not just toward designing a particular structure."

The AIA will actively participate in Amarillo's centennial celebration next spring with another art exhibit, this one of historical significance and coordinated through the Amarillo Art Center, according to Flenniken.

Officers of the local AIA chapter include Kent Pargee of Hucker & Pargee Associates, president; Dan Patterson of Wilson, Doche, Inc., president-elect; and Roland Brown of Ward, Brown & Associates, secretary. Further information regarding the fall exhibit is available by calling the college at 371-5200 or Dan Patterson at 373-3542.

This is the last word on Lassie

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the questions about Lassie, I am writing to set your readers straight, as the information you received from the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences was not totally accurate.

I am Bob Weatherwax, son of Rudd Weatherwax (now deceased), who owned and trained the original Lassie. I am also a trainer and worked on the Lassie series for more than 10 years. I now have the seventh-generation Lassie and will possibly be doing a new Lassie series for TV next year.

Although there have been seven Lassies since 1942 (all males), there was only one Lassie at a time. While shooting, we used a stand-in and stunt double, but to say that there were "many" dogs portraying Lassie at the same time would be like saying there were many actors portraying Tony Curtis in the same movie.

As for Lassie being a mixed breed, anyone who watched "Lassie Come Home" on TV recently could see that Lassie was obviously a pure-bred collie. The dog was given to my father in lieu of payment for boarding and training, but Dad never received the papers. Although Lassie was bred to AKC collies, it was not important that Lassie have pedigree papers because my father never showed Lassie in AKC dog shows, nor did he sell the puppies.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

I hope this clarifies the misconceptions about Lassie.

BOB WEATHERWAX, CANYON COUNTRY, CALIF.

DEAR BOB: It does, indeed, and thank you for writing.

DEAR ABBY: My mother had me while she was married to her first husband. They were divorced when I was 5. My mother remarried and her new husband adopted me. This man is the only father I have ever known and I love him very much. My mom told me she would answer any questions I had about my natural father. I've never had any.

Now that I am 17, my paternal grandparents, aunts and cousins have started coming into the place I work and telling me that they are my "family." Abby, these people are strangers to me. I have a family that I love and am very happy with. I just want to be left alone. How do

I get them to understand this? I asked my mom to call them and ask them to please leave me alone. She did. She also told them that I was happy, and if I wanted to see them or call them, I could. My mother was told, "You don't know how she feels about us, but in a few months, when she is 18, her real father will look her up and then she can do what she wants to do about him and his family."

Abby, I can do what I want to do right now, and my mom and dad do know how I feel. They know I am happy with the family I have, and want to be left alone.

Now I dread the thought of turning 18. I don't want to have these people bothering me. I hope they are happy, but I have a life of my own and all the family I want or need. How do I get them to leave me alone?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Since you and your parents have both made it clear to the family of your biological father that you want to be left alone, their constant "bothering" you is harassment in legal terms. If it persists, a lawyer should be consulted.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell us where to find the names of our elected representatives? I am sure there must be others like me who would write to them if they knew who they were, and where to write.

Please do not use my name, as for 59 years I have succeeded in keeping from the public what a dummy I am for not knowing who my congressman is.

CLIFTON SPRINGS, N.Y.

DEAR C.S.: To find the elected representative for your area, consult the white pages of your telephone book. Look under "Federal Information" or "Government Offices — United States." Or call your local registrar of voters. P.S. You are no dummy. Dummies do not ask questions.

(To get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

When the 1957 football season ended, both the Pampa and Borger school boards determined a coaching change was necessary. Interest in the two jobs, schools known for their brilliant basketball programs guided by Clifton McNeely and Tex Hanna respectively, was minimal. But one of those who knocked on the door of PISD Supt. Knox Kinard was a tall, angular, dark haired young man fresh off four years of coaching success (32-12-2) at Littlefield, where the previous decade had produced a 26-73-1 record of football futility.

Gene Mayfield felt he was ready for a bigger school job, and it would be great to be in the hometown of his wife, the former Mary Jean Hoover. After explaining his thoughts about the conduct of the program he would run, Mayfield was rejected by Kinard, the school head expressing the opinion that Mayfield's demands would be severely injurious to the basketball program which was winning state crowns. Undaunted, the former Little All-American quarterback from West Texas State, climbed in his car, drove the 28 miles to Borger, made the same pitch, and was quickly hired by Supt. A. T. Little. The next 13 years are Texas schoolboy football legend, seven seasons at Borger and six more at Odessa Permian. The record shows four trips to the state finals, one state title, Texas High School coach of the year, twice head coach of the North team in the THSCA All-Star game, the only coach ever so honored, winning both games, president of that organization. Reluctantly, Mayfield answered the call of his alma mater in February 1971, responding to the request of the chairman of the WTSU Board of Regents, Cloyce Box. Mayfield understudied Box as a college quarterback in 1948, following a military stint in Korea. He had originally enrolled at the Canyon school in 1945, and played end following his high school playing days in six-man competition at Quitaque, a little school which also produced former PHS coach Tom Tipps. Box went on to play for the Detroit Lions, Mayfield directing the Buffs for Frank Kimbrough in 1949 and 1950, a season which concluded with a 14-13 Sun Bowl victory over Cincinnati U. as the result of a 69-yard Mayfield-to-Bill Cross TD pass. Despite his success as a passer in college (he still ranks in the top 10 in virtually every passing-related category at WT) he has almost totally eliminated that component from his weekly game plan.

Mayfield always demanded the dual role of athletic director-football coach absolute authority at each coaching job, which was his downfall at the college level. The collegiate AD post demanded too much time from his coaching responsibilities. For the first time, success eluded him. After six seasons and a lackluster 24-39-

2 record, the balance of his contract was bought up, and in 1977, for the first time since the mid-30s, the football season arrived without Gene Mayfield involved.

He worked in private business until the call came from Leveland, and he signed a three-year contract on Jan. 26, 1982 to assume the dual job there, inheriting a football team which had gone 0-10 the year previous. Today, at age 58, he has finished 4½ seasons with the Lobos, and has a 16-29-2 record as he brings his squad to Pampa Friday night. He has made Pampa pay for rejecting his bid for the head job in 1957. He owns an overall 8-2-1 record against the Harvesters (the two losses while on his current post) and has lost just once at Harvester Park.

So, we look at what might have been. In the 17½ high school seasons since Kinard told him "no", Mayfield's schoolboy teams have won 140 games, lost 52, tied 6, and a .707 winning percentage. During that same period, Pampa under 10 different coaches, has gone 45-129-3, a .254 winning percentage. Mayfield's teams have played in 22 post-season games, with the honors already noted; Pampa has played in one, a 1971 loss to Hereford. The success of Mayfield-directed football programs goes beyond the 100-yard stripes. It has always been reflected in the spirit and morale of the schools and towns that have been the recipients, an enthusiasm that still exists at Permian and Borger Highs today.

Could he have done the same thing had he been accepted for the PHS post in 1957? Quite probably the answer is yes, but possibly at the cost of a then-successful basketball program. The football-basketball fight got so intense during the Borger years that Hanna, a longtime permanent fixture there, carried it into his talks to civic clubs, and eventually it led to the demise of his program and Hanna moving into administration.

Overall, counting his four years as head coach at Littlefield, following a brief apprenticeship as an assistant there, Mayfield enters Friday night's contest with a schoolboy coaching record of 172 wins, 64 losses and 8 ties in 244 games spread over 21½ seasons, a .705 winning percentage. He is a devotee of the wishbone offense, and probably no one in the state knows it any better. It is exiting to watch him pacing the sideline during a game, clipboard stuck in the waistline of his coaching pants, knowing full-well exactly what he wants his athletes to do, totally organized.

I've watched him doing it for 30 years, and the thrill of his intensity and dedication always excites me. Unfortunately, the final score has rarely been as satisfying...unless you were from Borger, Odessa or Leveland. You've gotta wonder "what if....."

NBA plans expansion

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The National Basketball Association has decided to expand from its present 23 franchises, but when and where won't be known for another six months.

The league's Board of Governors voted unanimously Tuesday "to add at least one team and no more than three, between 1988-89 and 1990-91." NBA Commissioner David Stern announced.

A five-member expansion committee will decide on the sites and timetable for expansion and make their announcement April 20 in New York, according to Stern.

The NBA last added a team in 1980, when Dallas was granted a franchise.

"The NBA has reached a point in strength where the next logical step for us is to expand," Stern said. "The collective force of the presentations given by six cities here this week put away any doubts that we should not be moving aggressively forward."

Representatives of six candidates — Toronto; Minneapolis; Miami, Fla.; Orlando, Fla.; Orange County, Calif.; and Charlotte, N.C. — all delivered 30-minute presentations to the board Monday.

Stern said the expansion committee "will meet with each of the six applicants again and with any more that come forward."

Lewis Schaffel, a former general manager of the New Jersey Nets who is representing the Miami group, said he believes the league may decide to expand sooner than 1990.

"If they say there is expansion by 1988, everybody will be happy," Schaffel said.

"I think that it's possible," Stern said when asked about the 1988 timetable. "We're really looking for an orderly program for expansion. We have six first-class cities to choose from so far."

Named as chairman of the expansion committee was Richard Bloch, who is president of the Phoenix Suns. Stern said the other committee members will be William Davidson of the Detroit Pistons, Herb Simon of the Indiana Pacers, Norm Sonju of the Dallas Mavericks and Charlie Thomas of the Houston Rockets.

Miami, Orlando and Minneapolis reportedly are the front-runners in the race.

Pampa rodeo results

Pampa competed in a Tri-State High School Rodeo last weekend in River Road.

The Pampa girls finished with 19 points. Amy Cockrell placed third in barrels (18.410), fourth in poles (20.730), and fourth in breakaway roping. Cydney Morris was seventh in barrels with a time of 19.784. Leslie Leggett was eighth in poles (22.003) and Keziah Rucker was ninth in barrels (19.798).

The Pampa team goes to the Director's Rodeo this weekend in Canadian. It will be the last rodeo until mid-March.

Mets bounce back with 7-1 romp

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The real New York Mets finally showed up for the World Series.

"We had something to prove to ourselves, to the Boston Red Sox and the rest of baseball," Lenny Dykstra said. "We didn't win 108 games for nothing."

In Game 3 Tuesday night, the Mets demonstrated how they did it. Dykstra homered on the game's third pitch, sending New York to a 7-1 romp and its first victory after two humbling losses at home.

"Our backs weren't against the wall, but we were getting very close," said Bob Ojeda, who limited his ex-teammates to one run on five hits in seven innings. Ojeda prevented the Mets from falling into a 3-0 hole, a predicament no team has ever been able to overcome in the World Series.

Ojeda outpitched Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, who had said during a Monday workout that he would "master" the Mets.

"I definitely read it," Dykstra said after going 4-for-5. "I think the only one who got mastered tonight was him."

"They got me tonight," Boyd admitted.

The Mets, batting .190 in the postseason entering the game, had canceled a planned workout on Monday. Maybe the extra rest helped. They scored four times in the first inning — aided by a blown Boston run-down. That was one more run than they scored in the first two games combined. They finished with 13 hits, also one more than Games 1 and 2 together.

"The big key was to start out strong offensively," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said. "We hadn't been getting any hits in the first three innings. Just a base hit would have sufficed."

Instead, Dykstra lifted a 1-1 pitch into the right-field seats. This time, there was no wild welcoming party at home plate and there was no big celebration in the dugout — something the Mets reveled in after regular-season home runs.

"We woke ourselves up a bit," Dykstra said.

If the first Series leadoff homer since Davey Lopes in 1978 was the wakeup, then the Mets went to work.

Gary Carter lined a RBI double and, after Boston blew a rundown with a pair of misplays which allowed two Mets to escape on the bases, designated-hitter Danny Heep singled in two more runs. It was the first game for the DH in this Series, and Heep made it worthwhile to the National League champions.

Carter added a two-run single in the seventh and Ray Knight doubled home a run in the eighth.

That was more than enough for Ojeda. His off-speed pitches kept the Red Sox off-balance all night and belied the reputation that he did not feel comfortable at Fenway Park.

"He was a little off, a little on," said Bill Buckner, hitless in three at-bats against Ojeda. "He doesn't blow you away, but he gets you out."

The Mets now hope Ron Darling can do the same tonight in Game 4. Darling, who lost the opener despite allowing only three hits and an unearned run in seven innings, will oppose Al Nipper.

Nipper, 10-12 with a 5.38 earned run average, has not pitched since Oct. 4 in the final week of the regular season.

After Dykstra homered Tuesday night, Wally Backman singled sharply to right and took third on another single by Keith Hernandez.

Boston Manager John McNamara went to the mound at that point.

"(Catcher) Richie Gedman said he was getting too much of the plate," McNamara said.

The Mets were getting a lot of the ball, and McNamara's visit didn't stop that.

Carter found the gap in left-center for an RBI double, putting runners at second and third, and Boyd temporarily eased the tension by striking out Darryl Strawberry, his fifth whiff in his first seven Series at-bats.

Knight then followed with a hard grounder to third baseman Wade Boggs, whose quick throw to the plate froze Hernandez halfway home. But in the most fundamental of all fielding plays — the rundown — the Red Sox fell apart.

Hernandez scrambled back toward third base, eluding the tag of Boggs, who cut off Gedman's throw halfway down the line. Boggs whirled and threw late to shortstop Spike Owen, who was covering the bag, but Boston still had Carter trapped between second and third.

Owen ran Carter back to second, glancing at Hernandez the whole time, and when he finally tossed to second, Carter was back easily and Knight was on first.

"He (Owen) had both of them hung up," McNamara after watching his usually reliable shortstop make another fielding blunder in the postseason.

Boyd, known to be excitable, slammed his hands together behind the mound before facing Heep, whose single up the middle drove home two runs.

"They didn't hit the ball really hard, but they hit good pitches," Boyd said.

Boyd went on to retire the next 11 batters and 17 of 18, but by then it was too late.

Ojeda, the first pitcher to ever start a World Series game against the team he played for the preceding year, only struggled in the third, when Dave Henderson singled and scored on Marty Barrett's single.

"He was changing speeds a lot, in and out. He pitched instead of threw," Henderson said.

Ojeda became the first left-hander to beat the Red Sox in a World Series game at Fenway Park since 1918, the last year Boston won the championship. He left after the seventh, and Roger McDowell retired the final six Boston batters.

Ojeda shuts down Red Sox.

Frustrations continue for Harvesters

By L.D. STRATE

It was a tough enough loss for Pampa High last Saturday night against Lubbock Dunbar without any additional burdens.

But, that's not the case for PHS head coach John Kendall and his staff. Besides losing 13 junior varsity and varsity players to grades, starting fullback Rodney Kelly suffered a dislocated shoulder in the 20-7 loss to Dunbar and will miss the remainder of the season. Add to the injury list split end Billy Butler and safety Tommy Cathey. Butler, who caught three passes for 29 yards against Dunbar, is on crutches after sustaining a bruise on his knee in the second quarter of that game. He's a doubtful starter for Friday night's District 1-4A clash with Levelland, but Cathey is expected to play after cutting his hand in practice.

"Tommy apparently caught his hand on a helmet, but he should be able to play Friday night," Kendall added.

Kelly carried the ball only twice for six yards against Dunbar when he went down under a hard tackle.

"Rodney was seeing a specialist Tuesday, but he's going to be out for the season," Kendall added.

Reserve fullback Brad Sokolosky, a junior, filled in for the injured Kelly and finished with 39 yards rushing.

"I thought Brad did pretty good, considering he had to go both ways and he's not used to it," Kendall said. Sokolosky also started at linebacker.

Kelly entered the Lubbock game with 301 yards rushing and had caught three passes for 47 yards. In two games, Kelly was Pampa's top rusher.

With Kelly out earlier in the first quarter, the Harvesters had to depend on senior tailback Mark Williams to carry most the backfield load. And, carry it, he did. The 175-pound senior rushed for a grand total of 231 yards on 37 carries and scored Pampa's lone touchdown on a 5-yard run in the first quarter.

"Mark had a super game," Kendall said. "He got us inside or close to their 20-yard line several times, but we just couldn't take advantage of it."

However, it was the another Williams (Cedrick) playing for the other team, who ended up

Rodney Kelly....out for season doing the most damage.

Dustin Miller's 43-yard punt had put Dunbar in the hole on the Panther 5-yard line with 5:02 to go and the score tied at 7-all. But on the first play from scrimmage, Williams, Dunbar's sophomore halfback, found a big opening in the line and scampered 95 yards for the score. It was the last thing Kendall and his coaching staff had expected.

"It was a counteraction play which we were stopping all night long. We just missed the play. We had a letdown when we should have stopped them there," Kendall added.

Williams had rushed for only 16 yards on five carries before making his game-winning run.

Pampa's defense had pretty much shut down Dunbar through the first three quarters. Dunbar had 202 total yards, but 115 of those came in the final five minutes.

Pampa finished with 294 yards and had penetrated Dunbar's 15 twice without scoring. Pampa could have had a quick 14-0 lead early in the second quarter after Shawn Greene had blocked a Dunbar punt and recovered the bouncing ball on the Panther 16. The blocked punt had come right after Williams (Mark) had tied the score with a 5-yard TD run and the Pampa defense had forced Dunbar into a punting situation.

Dunbar's defenders, however, proved to be tough with their backs to the wall. Dunbar, aided by a 15-yard Pampa penalty, sacked the quarterback twice and forced the Harvesters to give up possession.

Pampa now shares the district cellar with Dumas. Both have 0-4 league marks and are 0-6 in all games. Levelland, Pampa's opponent Friday night, is 1-3-1 in district play and 3-3-1 overall.

Flutie signs with Bears

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka has gone against the odds before, signing players other teams had written off for physical reasons.

Add Doug Flutie to the list. Two of the keys to the Bears' champion defense last year were tackle William "The Refrigerator" Perry, who was labeled by critics as "too fat," and linebacker Mike Singletary, who was tabbed "too small" by some NFL experts.

Ditka took another chance Tuesday when the 5-foot-9 Flutie signed a contract with the Bears for the remainder of the 1986 season and 1987.

Flutie said he was "anxious to get into the National Football League and onto the playing field."

"I share Doug's enthusiasm," Ditka, who saw his team lose its first game of the season last week, said. "It's up to Doug and how much time he puts in. Knowing his background, it will be quicker than he thinks. I think he can do a great job."

Ditka, who influenced Flutie to sign immediately for the rest of this season, has had his problems with the Bears quarterback situation because of injuries to starter Jim McMahon.

Flutie's signing made him eligible to be activated by the Bears on Nov. 4, the day after a Monday night home game against the Los Angeles Rams.

Houston to tackle Hogs in Astrodome

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Cougars had hoped to play a home game on their own campus but they'll have to play the 14th-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks in the Astrodome instead.

The Southwest Conference ended the Cougars' plan to play the Razorbacks at Robertson Stadium Saturday after Arkansas officials appealed to the SWC to move the game back to the Astrodome.

"It's a real disappointment to us," Houston cornerback Johnny Johnson said. "We have the feeling that Robertson is our home stadium. It would have been right there on campus close to the students."

The SWC game was moved from the Astrodome, Houston's home stadium, Oct. 4, to avoid possible conflict with the National League playoff series between the Houston Astros and New York Mets.

But when the Astros were eliminated last week, Arkansas officials appealed to have the game moved back to the Astrodome, citing the "unfair competitive advantage" it would give Houston because of the natural grass floor.

"There is a rule in our sports agreement that says no game can be played in a stadium that is not a team's designated home stadium unless approved by the conference," SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby said.

Jacoby said Arkansas asked for the change on Friday, two days after the Astros were eliminated from the playoffs.

"Until that time, there was no other option," Jacoby said. Houston officials had been busily preparing the 22,000-seat Robertson Stadium on the Houston campus for Saturday's homecoming.

Southern Methodist moved its game with Texas Christian from Texas Stadium to the Cotton Bowl this season but Jacoby said that was not comparable to the Houston situation.

"That had been discussed for more than a year and a half and there were no objections," Jacoby said.

Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield said the Razorbacks had not practiced on grass all season and would be at a disadvantage playing on Robertson's natural turf instead of the artificial surface at the Astrodome.

Lady Harvesters turn back Perryton girls

The Pampa Lady Harvesters took a break from District 1-4A volleyball action to defeat Perryton, 15-3, 11-15, 15-4, Tuesday night at McNeely Fieldhouse.

"It was probably one of the better matches we've played, even though Perryton beat us the second game. We played with intensity all the way through," said Pampa coach Phil Hall.

While Andrea Hopkins and Melinda Jackson were turning in solid performances at the net, Jackie Osby and Stephanie Jeffrey were anchoring Pampa's defense with some sparking, point-saving plays. Lisa Lindsey came through with several service points to help the Lady Harvesters wrap up the third game and the match victory.

"Jeana Macon probably was our most consistent player," said Hall. "She did a nice job all the way through."

Pampa is now 8-2 in district play and owns sole possession of second place behind Levelland after Dumas was upset by Borger last night. The top two district teams at the end of the regular season advance to the post-season playoffs.

"I want to thank the cheerleaders, Harvie the Mascot and the football players for being at the match," Hall said. "It really helps to have their support."

The Lady Harvesters travel to Hereford Saturday afternoon for a 3 p.m. district match.

'Complete quarterback' honored by AP

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

San Antonio Holmes Coach Gary Malesky calls Wilbur Odom the complete quarterback.

"He can throw deep, soft or hard, and he's a pretty good scrambler when he gets caught, so I'd say he's a complete quarterback," Malesky said.

San Antonio MacArthur thought they had solved the Odom riddle last week, taking a 14-6 lead in the first quarter.

But Odom finished the game by completing 22 of 25 passes for 351 yards and four touchdowns in a 61-21 victory to earn a spot on The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

"Really, a couple of those that he missed were near the end of the first half when we were just throwing bombs trying to score before the half," Malesky said.

In six games this season, Odom has hit 84 of 126 passes for 1,516 yards and 21 touchdowns. He's hit 67 per cent of his passes and thrown four interceptions.

"The big difference this season is that his percentage is way up, from last year," Malesky said.

"He's reading defenses and getting the ball to the open man. He seems to be able to get the ball to the receiver in some real adverse conditions with people hanging all over him."

Another quarterback, Mission's Lupe Rodriguez, also had an outstanding passing performance in leading the Eagles to a 41-17 victory over McAllen Memorial.

Rodriguez completed 30 of 44 passes for 337 yards and six touchdowns, four to Nati Valdez, rallying his team from a 17-0 deficit. Rodriguez's touchdown passes went for 2, 13, 20, 18 15 and 14 yards.

Monahans remained unbeaten with a six-touchdown performance by running back Charles Thompson, who gained 255 yards on 20 carries and scored on runs of 2, 69, 5, 3, 52 and 10 yards in a 49-21 victory over San Angelo

Lake View. In other outstanding performances:

— Valley's Kirk Saul completed five touchdown passes in a 60-6 victory over Motley County to give him 33 touchdown passes for the season and six away from the state record of 39. The Patriots have three games remaining this season.

— Ademar Galvan completed 10 of 13 passes for 343 yards and touchdowns of 76, 50, 30 and 46, all to Bobby Tolentino, in a 43-31 victory over previously unbeaten Premont.

— Orangefield's Ken Swenson continues to kick his team to victory. His field goals and extra points have been the difference in his team's four victories this season including last week's 40-yard field goal and extra point in a 10-8 victory over Hampshire-Fannett.

— Waslaco's Matt Thornton scored five touchdowns on runs of 10, 4, 1 and 5 yards and returned a punt 90 yards for another score in a 55-7 victory over Brownsville Pace. He gained 127 yards on 32 carries.

— Crane's Gerald Mitchell rushed 290 yards on 12 carries and scored on runs of 87, 44, 70 and 3 yards in a 52-0 victory over Clint. Mitchell has 604 yards on 27 carries and eight touchdowns in the last two games.

— Bangs quarterback Billy Baker hit 10 of 10 passes for 148 yards and three touchdowns, scored on runs of 1 and 26 yards and intercepted a pass in his team's 52-6 victory over Cross Plains.

— Cayuga's Marvin Jenkins gained a school record 334 yards on 31 carries and scored on runs of 80 and 75 yards in a 30-7 victory over Scurry-Rosser.

— Palestine's Ivory Lee Brown went over the 1,000-yard rushing plateau with 245 yards on 27 carries and touchdown runs of 2, 1 and 79 yards in a 43-12 victory over Carthage.

— Beaumont West Brook defensive back Thomas LeBlanc helped his team score a 47-0 victory over state ranked Port Arthur Jefferson with three interceptions, including one for a 38-yard touchdown run.

— Two touchdown passes by Houston Sterling quarterback Anthony Hemmitt and a blocked field goal attempt by Charles Darden helped Sterling beat defending state champion Houston Yates 22-20, ending the Lions' 22-game winning streak. Darden's blocked field goal came with 1:21 left in the game.

— Hardin's Daniel Marsh rushed 230 yards on 22 carries and scored on runs of 9 and 58 yards to lead his team to a 29-8 victory over Colmesneil.

— Hull-Daisetta's Hillory Broussard had touchdown runs of 4, 37, 21 and 25 yards and gained 149 yards on 20 carries in a 34-6 victory over West Hardin.

— Pottsboro's Johnny Wood kicked field goals of 34, 29 and 39 yards, the final boot with 57 seconds left, to give the Cardinals' a 16-14 victory over defending district champion Howe.

— Bonham's Corey Ransom gained 104 yards and scored two touchdowns, the last one with one second left in the game for a 19-17 upset of Whitesboro. Ransom had scored on two of the three previous plays but the scores were nullified by penalties.

— Bonham quarterback Dale Trompler completed 19 of 30 passes for 275 yards in the victory.

— Saginaw Boswell wide receiver Brian Cope caught seven passes for 106 yards and two touchdowns in a 21-11 victory over Denison.

— Chillicothe's Michael McKnight rushed 329 yards on 29 carries and scored 7 touchdowns in a 60-34 victory over Crowell. McKnight has 1,873 yards and has 33 touchdowns for the season.

— Earl Kauffman kicked two field goals, including a San Antonio city record 58-yarder to help Converse Judson beat San Antonio MacArthur 20-3.

— Jourdan's Justin Peeler scored 22 points in his team's 40-0 victory over Cotulla. Peeler returned interceptions 95 and 50 yards for touchdowns, ran 3 yards for a touchdown, kicked two extra points and ran in a 2-point conversion.

— Kenedy quarterback Gary Gonzalez fueled a 26-21 victory over Floresville with 305 yards of offense and four touchdowns. He rushed 20 times for 104 yards and three touchdowns and hit 14 of 23 passes for 201 yards and a touchdown pass.

— Len Winter had 270 yards rushing, 35 carries and scored 2 touchdowns and Setrick Dickens had 148 yards on 22 carries and scored three times in a Quanah's 42-20 victory over Canadian.

— Tulia's Steven Powell rushed 267 yards on 26 carries and had touchdown runs of 2, 22, 1, 5 and 9 yards in a 54-7 victory over Dimmitt.

Busy start, quiet end for farm legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — After making bold marks on U.S. agriculture policy during its first session, the 99th Congress decided to add a couple of modest fixes this year before calling it quits: a limit on per-farmer subsidies and accounting maneuvers to prop up the Farm Credit System.

The lawmakers, worried by reports that some of the nation's largest farmers are reaping multimillion-dollar subsidy payments under the year-old farm law, placed a new ceiling of $250,000 per farmer on certain kinds of payments.

And concerned about the possibility that the Farm Credit System, the nation's largest agricultural lender, could run out of money next year, Congress allowed the system to make some bookkeeping changes to put off the day of reckoning.

Backers of both moves conceded they were largely cosmetic and were not final solutions for the long-range problems at which they were aimed. Agriculture Department officials were still evaluating the latest legislation, which also included at least a half-dozen other moves fine-tuning the sweeping new farm program passed late in 1985.

"Our attitude was that tacking on amendments ... was not the way to go about revising farm policy," said Robert Thompson, the department's chief economist. "If there are problems we should wait until the 100th Congress and look at them carefully rather than trying to find a quick fix."

The payment limit, the work of Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., became politically irresistible after it became clear that the new farm law would result in record subsidies to some of the nation's largest agribusinesses.

The J.G. Boswell Co., for example, is due to get about $20 million in payments on its California cotton and wheat operations; some dairy producers will receive millions through a subsidized cow slaughter program; and cotton middlemen have received tens of millions of dollars to make it easier to sell their goods at competitive prices overseas.

In all, the cost of the first year of the new farm program is likely to hit $30 billion. By contrast, the payment limit will save the government about $25 million over the next four years, the Agriculture Department estimates.

The Farm Credit System changes pushed through by Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., and Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., are essentially a way of buying time for the system, whose record losses in the last two years have pushed it near disaster.

The new language lets the system's regional banks set their own interest rates without advance clearance from the Farm Credit Administration, the system's federal regulators, in an attempt to remain competitive and retain the soundest customers.

It also allows the banks to write off over 20 years the cost of paying off high-interest bonds that are a major source of loan money.
