Midlander 'Free at last' from bout with cancer

Ken McHam didn't give up The Quest for life. He never would. He couldn't. He wouldn't.

His bountiful spirits, his inquisitive mind and his powerful will to achieve and to overcome the seemingly impossible wouldn't let him give in and surrender to he force that would kill him

No, McHam was going to be the victor, the conqueror.

He was resolute in his fight to escape a dreadful death that threatened to end his life so soon, so very soon.

No, McHam never gave up. But he died anyway.

He was brilliant, 28, and had a promising career as a writer before him.

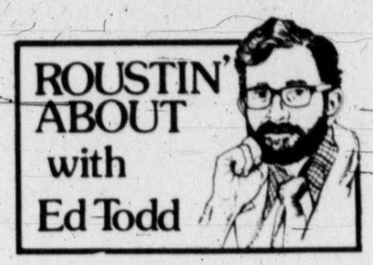

Cancer killed him.

And the preacher at his funeral said McHam, at last, had found freedom.

He even quoted the epitaph on Martin Luther King's tombstone and applied it to his late friend, Kenneth McHam.

"Free at last.
"Free at last.
"Praise God Almighty,
"I'm free at last."

The preacher said McHam had found that certain "freedom" even before death ended his life on earth. It was through the Bible, God and Christianity. Perhaps it was supreme consolation he found on the eve of death.

"Freedom had come and there was nothing to fear," the preacher said. McHam had "joy, peace, grace" — qualities which all of mankind need, the preacher said.

For McHam, it was most natural that he would want to live. His will to survive was powerful.

It was two years ago this month when McHam learned that he had a "highly malignant tumor" of the lower left jaw.

What had started out as an apparent "toothache" he had ignored for awhile would eventually kill him.

But he wasn't convinced that this type of death would claim him. So, he began to research cancer. He wanted to understand something of the disease.

To understand might mean to conquer. Might. It was unlikly, but it might. So many others had lost.

What he found out about cancer was this:

"There is a very good chance that you will die," he wrote in an extensive, probing article for the The Dallas Morning News a little more than two months ago.

"Either you kill the disease or it will kill you," he wrote. "And much more often than not, you will be the victim. You will die of cancer."

McHam, who desperately wanted to live, set out to kill the disease that would weaken his physical being but not his spirits. Before its finale, death would stalk McHam several times and almost score a kill. At times, his spirits were low, almost at the nadir. But his fervor for life and his battle to kill the killer gave him a hope he had faith in. "...My life has been totally consumed by the desperate fight to stay alive by any means possible," he wrote. "It can be no other way with a cancer victim."

He underwent orthodox chemotherapy, treatment by radiation and by the drug Laetrile, and let himself be subjected to

Prison officials not 'criminally responsible' for death of Biko

By JACK FOISIE
The Los Angeles Times

PRETORIA, South Africa — No policeman or other official was responsible for the death of black activist leader Steve Biko, although he died from a brain injury while in police detention, a three-member panel of judge and doctors decided Friday.

Their finding, read by presiding magistrate Marthinus Prins, ended a three-week public inquest that had been widely followed in black communities throughout the nation and the Western world.

The finding was received in silence by the largely black audience in the courtroom. But as they left the building, blacks outside broke into songs of protest chanting "They killed Steve Biko." Police with dogs and riot equipment made no attempt to break up the gathering, which later dispersed quietly.

The formal verdict read: "Mr. Biko's death could be attributed to head injury with extensive brain injuries followed by complications leading to renal (kidney) failure. This was the cause or likely cause or Mr. Biko's death.

"The available evidence does not prove that the death of Mr. Biko was brought about by an act or omission involving an offense by any person."

Only Biko's wife, Ntsiki, was present to hear the decision, which was read in Afrikaans and then in English. Still wearing mourning black — Biko died Sept. 12 — Mrs. Biko said she would not comment on the verdict. She explained that she was already distressed because early Friday morning security police had entered a house in the city of Soweto and arrested — without charge — Steve Biko's brother, Kaya Biko, and Soloman Biko, a cousin.

A police spokesman said the two, along with four other Biko family friends, were being detained for interrogation on matters unrelated to the Biko inquest.

Kaya Biko had attended the inquest almost every day.

Also absent from the court was Alice Biko, Steve's mother, who was slightly injured in an auto accident Thursday, friends said.

One of the family lawyers, Shun Chetty, said it would be unethical to comment on the verdict, but added that a review by the nation's Supreme Court is possible although not likely.

The finding will be routinely reviewed by the attorney general's office and the country's medical association.

Deputy Attorney General, Klaus Von Lieres, who had presented the government's evidence at the inquest, was asked if he thought justice had been done. "There is no positive evidence to the contrary," he replied and would not comment further.

The brevity of the panel's findings stunned observers and there were reports that Prins would expand on his decision in a week's time, either in open court or in writing. But the judgment delivered Friday would stand: that neither police officers who had detained and interrogated Biko, nor the doctors who had treated him after a reported scuffle with interrogators six days before he died, were legally responsible for Biko's death.

Neither Prins nor the two doctors would comment. The doctors are respected medical school professors, Isidor Gordon and Johann Olivier.

On Thursday the Biko's chief attorney Sydney Kentridge had requested a "firm and clear verdict" that there was an assault upon Biko by one or more policemen during interrogation.

Kentridge said the three weeks of testimony had "revealed the dangers to life and liberty involved in the system of holding detainees incommunicado."

Lawyers for the police and the doctors argued that Biko had injured his head in falling while being subdued after he had attacked police.

"SANTA CLAUS" is caught, frisked and arrested Friday by a Kansas City, Mo., police officer after he and another man allegedly assaulted a Salvation Army bell-ringer on a downtown street corner. Eliza Bataresh said the men shoved her away from a corner saying they wanted to collect there. One fled, but "Santa" Robert S. Edell, a 32-year-old Hare Krishna follower, was charged with assault. Briscoe to set out for week-long lobby on energy, hospital plans

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe leaves Sunday for a week-long lobbying attack against President Carter's energy program.

"In the days ahead I will do all I can to assist our Texas representatives in Washington argue our case before the Congress and the Carter administration," he told a news conference Friday.

That might even include a face-to-face conference with Carter.

Briscoe said he understood Congress was near a compromise on the energy legislation and "it is imperative that any compromise between the Senate and House versions of the natural gas bill recognize the severe ecnomic harm to Texas which would result if the Carter administration's plan is adopted."

"If the president has his way, the federal bureaucracy will be able to exercise dictatorial power over the economic future of this state. I am not ready to concede this will happen. We ought to be moving toward deregulation of energy and not toward more regulation and manipulation by Secretary (of Energy) Schlesinger's massive new 10 billion dollar energy bureaucracy."

Briscoe also said he would talk with Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Califano about proposed national hospital standards that Briscoe said could do away with 11,000 hospital beds in Texas.

Califano said Thursday the HEW would ease the proposed guidelines but Briscoe said he had received no such notice.

"Arbitrary forumulas which, in essence, maintain that health care needs are the same in rural areas in Texas as they are in New York are both foolish and unfounded in fact or logic," Briscoe said. "Texans, not Washington bureaucrats, know their health care needs and Washington officials should realize this fact."

He said the proposed guidelines could result in more than 11,000 hospital beds becoming unavailable in Texas "and enforcement of the guidelines could involve withholding Medicare and Medicaid payments from hospitals that fail to comply."

Briscoe also said at the news conference

—That he will talk with Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus about federal-state control of Matagorda Island.

—He will go from Washington to New York to speak Friday, Dec. 9, to the Municipal Forum of New York, a group that rates Texas bonds.

—There is "absolutely no truth" to reports that his own polls show him only two percent ahead of Democratic challenger John Hill. He refused to give poll figures but said "the spread is substantial and it's enough. . . I have never been more optimistic."

Palestinian leaders urge boycott of Egypt

By EDWARD CODY

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The Palestinian leadership, backed by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, is urging an economic boycott of Egypt to retaliate against President Anwar Sadat's drive for peace with Israel, Palestinian sources said Friday.

Yasir Arafat of the Palestine Liberation Organization called on the four-nation Arab "resistance summit" meeting here to form a hardline front against Sadat and his apparent willingness to compromise, a PLO spokesman said.

Palestinian informants said Arafat's PLO had officially decided that an economic boycott was the best response, isolating Sadat from his fellow Arabs. Khadafy already has broken diplomatic relations with Egypt and proclaimed a boycott by Libya against Egypt.

But there was no indication that Syria, Egypt's ally in the 1973 October war, would join in a boycott. And even if it did, the boycott would be only marginally damaging to Sadat's economy.

Egypt's main financial backers are Saudi Arabia and other oil countries on the Persian Gulf. Saudi Arabia, although invited, refused to attend the Tripoli talks, saying it would abstain from any gathering unless it included all Arab nations.

In Egypt, Sadat appeared little concerned about the doings of his Arab critics as he arrived with only routine security to tour new housing in Ismailia on the Suez Canal and to mingle with cheering farmers and Bedouins in the newly built town of Serapium.

In other Mideast developments:

—The Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv announced that Egypt is returning the remains of three Israeli soldiers killed in the 1973 October war. The remains are to be handed over to Israeli military chaplains Monday in a ceremony in the buffer zone policed by United Nations forces in the Sinai peninsula.

The move was seen in Israel as a conciliatory gesture in the wake of Sadat's visit to Jerusalem.

—Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin arrived for an official six-day visit to London, where he is expected to seek Prime Minister James Callaghan's support for the Egyptian-Israeli peace initiatives.

Thailand 'normalizing' relations

By LEWIS M. SIMONS
The Washington Post

BANGKOK — Thailand, which served as the launching pad for much of the U.S. bombing of Vietnam, announced Friday that it was establishing normal relations with the Communist government in Hanoi.

The step, combined with a number of other recent diplomatic developments in Southeast Asia, was a clear indication of newly improved understanding among the three Communist states of Indochina and the five non-Communist members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

The announcement by Foreign Minister Upadit said the agreement with Hanoi was discussed during meetings with Vietnamese representatives at the U.N. General Assembly in September. It was completed by the Thai and Vietnamese ambassadors to Laos.

The agreement to establish diplomatic relations had actually been reached during a meeting of Thai and Vietnamese foreign ministers held in Hanoi in August 1976, but developments were frozen after Thailand's bloody coup d'etat the following month. Friday's announcement finally implements the earlier accord.

Nevertheless, it still could signal a breaktrhough in relations among the Communist and non-Communist nations of Southeast Asia, a relationship that has been strained since the war in Indochina ended more than two years ago.

"We will try to support and revive relations between Thailand and Cambodia and Laos," Upadit said in reply to a question at a news conference.

Thailand and Cambodia do not have diplomatic ties. While Laos and Thailand maintain embassies in each other's capitals, the relationship has frequently been chilly in the last two years.

At independence day celebrations in Vientiane Friday, Laotian Premier Kaysone Phomvihan said his country wanted to improve its relations with Thailand as well as with the United States.

The U.S. embassy has continued to function in Vientiane since the Communist takeover but it is not headed by an ambassador.

Upadit said that Thailand and Vietnam would exchange ambassadors "as soon as possible." He said the move would benefit both countries economically. From Thailand's viewpoint, he noted, talks were expected to begin this month on rights for Thai international flights to pass over Vietnamese territory.

From Hanoi's perspective, the minister said, improved relations would lead to a resumption of U.N.-supported development projects along the Mekong River, which passes through Vietnam and Cambodia and forms part of the border between Thailand and Laos.

Some observers here believe that economic hardships were the paramount factor in Hanoi's decision to implement the diplomatic relationship. Vietnam and Laos have been suffering from severe drought and their rice crops have dropped markedly this year. The Thai crop has also declined, but as a traditional exporter of huge quantitites of rice, Thailand's domestic consumption has not been affected.

Arizona asks Texas' aid with prison system

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas officials, at the request of the state of Arizona, are sending two prison administrators to help Arizona solve problems plaguing its prison system.

Arizona officials sought aid after John Moran was fired recently as director of the state's department of corrections.

Ron Taylor, administrative assistant to the director of the Texas Department of Corrections, and Jack Kyle, assistant director for business at TDC, will go to Arizona Monday.

"At this point we know only superficial things about their problems. There is violence in their instiutions. Their escape rate is high and we know they are under a very severe court order to reduce overcrowding," Taylor said.

Taylor and Kyle will become Arizona employees for 90 days. As of Monday they will be temporarily off the Texas payroll.

Arizona's largest prison facility is at Florence where 2,000 adult offenders are housed. The Texas prison system includes 21,814 inmates in several units.

"We have no intention of creating a Texas Department of Corrections in Arizona," Taylor said. 'We want to help Arizona develop its own plan."

He added that exchange programs between states have been used before.

"There have been times in the past when people from our department have gone to offer aid and advice in other states. And others have come here and helped us with new ideas," he said.

"We like to think we are asked to help because of our reputation. We like to think we have a good system, a safe and humane system that satisfies the public demands," he said.

Doctors try to protect unborn child

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be impossible to save the life of a brain-damaged, comatose woman but her unborn child may have a fighting chance for survival if the mother can be kept alive for two more months, doctors said Friday.

In their first statement on the condition of Rosemarie Maniscalco, 27, officials of Victory Memorial Hospital said tests indicated she had suffered "severe and probably irreversible brain injury."

Their goal, they said, is to save the lives of both Mrs. Maniscalco and the 20-week-old fetus she is carrying, but "saving the mother's life and restoring her to a conscious state may be a forlorn hope."

Doctors have said the fetus would have to grow in the womb for at least 28 weeks in order for the baby to have a chance for survival after delivery.

"The ultimate outcome depends upon the survival of the mother," the hospital said.

Mrs. Maniscalco, 27, has been in a coma since suffering an apparent stroke on Thanksgiving eve. She is being kept alive with a respirator in the intensive care unit of the hospital.

The hospital statement said the fetus in Mrs. Maniscalco's womb is approximately 20 weeks old, not 16 weeks old as previously reported.

"The heartbeat can be heard with certainty," the hospital said.

But the mother is in a severe coma and cannot breathe without mechanical aid.

Her husband, John, said he was told earlier that she suffered "brain death" — that no electrical activity showed in the brain.

But her mother, Marie Catanzaro, said she had been told her daughter's "brain is not dead, it has had extensive damage."

The hospital said Friday: "Both clinically and through laboratory findings, this patient has minimal residual electrical brain activity."

It said doctors face the problems of supporting the mother's life, permitting the child to develop as normally as possible and maintaining the mother's nutrition as closely as possible.

They also must maintain the arterial blood gases, electrolytes, proteins, minerals, vitamin intake, normal body temperature and normal blood pressure, prevent infection and protect the fetus.

"I want my wife," Mrs. Maniscalco's husband said Thursday night. "If I can't have her, at least I want my son or daughter."

The couple has two daughters, Ann Marie, 8, and Linda, 6.

Ann Marie said she hopes doctors will save her mother, but "if God wants to he'll take my mommy to heaven, and she'll be happy there."

Marine colonel retires after 20 years service

Lt. Col. Janes R. Caton retired Thursday from the U.S. Marine Corps in Midland, only 150 miles from where he started in 1958.

Caton as commissioned a second lieutenent in February 1958 in Abilene. He retired in Midland after 20 years of active service across the country and in the Western Pacific.

Prior to retiring, he was inspector-instructor of the Midland Marine Reserve unit.

Previously, Caton had enlisted in the Marines in 1953, at one time holding the rank of sergeant.

Among his numerous decorations are the Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V," the Naval Unit Citation and the Vietnamese Navy Distinguished Service Order.

Caton received a certificate of retirement at a Marine ceremony this week. Several other presentations were made at the ceremony to members of the inspector-instructor's staff.

At the same ceremony, 1st Sgt. John F. Driggs, with 20 years service, renlisted for another two years.

Hospitalman First Class William D. Mitchell of the U.S. Navy was presented with his second Good Conduct Award, and Sgt. Jimmy R. Webber, a reservist from Odessa, was sworn in to active service for recruiting duty.

An honorable discharge was presented to Staff Sgt. Ronald L. Garrett Sr.

Caton will be replaced as inspector-instructor by Capt. B. W. Woodard.

Midlander's struggle with cancer ended

"Eumetabolic" therapy.

Still, he had relapses.

He stole away to Mexico, where he could obtain Laetrile, a drug that offered him hope for recovery. It lessened the pain, but it was not a cure.

Laetrile or "Vitamin B-17," is derived from apricot kernels and was hailed as a "cancer control" in some quarters. McHam had limited faith in it. The drug offered hope.

The U.S. government, via the Federal Drug Administration (FDA), does not endorse the drug.

However, Texas and some other states have legalized its sale and use.

And McHam was one of the early crusaders who tirelessly worked to get the drug legalized in Texas. He was an aide to State Rep. Senfronia Thompson of Houston who sponsored the bill putting Laetrile above the law in Texas.

McHam testified before committee hearings that the drug was effective in his case and in many cases he had observed in Laetrile clinics in Tijuana, Mexico.

McHam lived and worked in Austin. But he often returned to his hometown, Midland, to be with his family and friends. He had many. They respected his courage, his optimism, his certainty that he would be cured of this dreaded disease. He would kill it. To think otherwise would favor cancer in the kill-or-be-killed death struggle.

Cancer, McHam wrote, is the "most malicious and most-fearful disease of our civilization."

He was determined to expunge it from his mortal being.

His condition was not really improving. He appeared emasculated. The left side of his face was terribly swollen. He worn a bandage to hide the cancerous wound.

Only recently, McHam flew to Hannover, Germany, where he sought "Eumetabolic" therapy.

In that therapy, McHam found "the greatest hope" few lucky ones who kill this disease before it returns them the favor."

staying in Austin as a wire service writer covering the Texas Legislature. Failing that, he planned on landing a job as a writer for a metropolitan daily, such as the Dallas News.

This man, the willful Ken McHam, probably could have mustered it, too. Either job. His background looked impressive. He was city editor of The Daily Texan at the University of Texas at Austin and was vice president of the UT student body. He was gradudted from UT in 1974.

Meanwhile, while he was still waiting for the final cure of the dreaded disease called cancer, McHam would continue free-lance writing in Austin.

He was preparing articles for magazines, such as for Texas Monthly.

And many times when he returned to Midland, he would gather material For a crusade of his: the preservation and restoration of the old (1929) Yucca Theatre in downtown Midland. He felt the old elegant movie house was of historical importance.

If possible, he would save the Yucca.

"And if I have to come back (from Austin) to rabble-rouse every weekend, I'll do it," McHam said in one of his last visits to Midland.

McHam had dropped by The Reporter-Telegram a couple of times visit this columnist and to share his ideas, his aspirations, his hopes. Ol' Roustin' About is grateful and endeared to his courageous man he would call his friend.

And it was earlier this year when McHam, then in Austin, and former Reporter-Telegram writer Judy Johnston Ewald communicated by letter and telephone for one of the earlier articles on the controversial drug Laetrile. The story, which featured McHam, appeared on page one of this newspaper.

McHam was a determined fighter. And he would, and did, take a chance — if that's what you call experimenting. He was looking for a cure.

"Like other cancer patients in similar situations, I hereby knock on any wood I can find," McHam wrote. "And like every other cancer patient I have met, each in his own way — I pray."

He died Wednesday afternoon, on his last visit to Midland, at his family's home. Two days later, he was buried in a wood coffin. add 11

The cancer killed him. But he fought and never gave up. And his quest, The Quest for life, continues.

So long, Ken.

Gas pricing issue comes before panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate energy conference committee started debating the hotly disputed issue of natural gas pricing Friday with neither side showing much inclination to compromise.

Conferees must reconcile the House bill containing President Carter's proposal for continued price controls at higher levels with a Senate measure deregulating newly discovered gas.

Rep. Harley M. Staggers, D-W. Va., the conference chairman, said he believed an agreement could be reached. But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the top Senate negotiator, cited a "strong possibility we could end up with no natural gas bill at all."

In opening speeches, conference members talked in general terms of the importance of reaching an accord. But none voiced any ready willingness to make concessions needed to break the apparent deadlock.

Efforts at producing a compromise national energy bill have bogged down because of wide differences between the House and Senate on natural gas and on the related issue of Carter's proposed crude oil tax, passed by the House but rejected by the Senate.

It'll be great in outdoors

Warm afternoons and cool nights should continue through Sunday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The weatherman predicted fair skies through Sunday. The low temperature tonight should be near 40 degrees, and the high Sunday is expected to be in the upper 70s. Winds should be westerly at 10 to 15 mph.

Skies were partly cloudy Friday in Midland. Andrews reported overcast skies, and Big Lake had partly cloudy skies. Lamesa, Big Lake, and Big Spring and Andrews reported 6 strong winds. Skies were clear in the other area towns.

The high temperature Friday was 74 degrees, and the low was 30 degrees.

Hitler invaded Japan?

DARMSTADT, West Germany (AP) — Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler came to Germany from Italy, invaded Japan and died before World War II began, according to school compositions of some teen-age U.S. military dependents living in Germany.

"Some of the American teenagers displayed confusion in their compositions about nearly every aspect of Hitler," the U.S. armed forces newspaper Stars and Stripes reported. The Darmstadt-based daily checked through papers written by American junior high and high school students in Hanau, east of Frankfurt, and in West Berlin.

"They were confused about his politics, when he lived and even about his nationality," Stars and Stripes reported.

The paper gave these excerpts from compositions written by the students, children of U.S. military personnel stationed in Germany:

"Hitler was some nut that came to ... Germany. I think he came from Italy (That's what I heard at least.)"

"During the war he invaded Japan."

"He lived I guess somewhere between 1860-1920. This was just before World War I."

"Hitler to me was a good man and he tried to do everthing he could for this place ..."

The Stars and Stripes added that "one student thought Hitler built the Berlin wall, several thought East Berlin was his domain during his years of power and many thought he was a Communist."

The paper quoted Allen Dale Olson, spokesman for the U.S. overseas dependents school system, as explaining that American schools in Germany do not offer basic or special German history courses.

Nonetheless, the Stars and Stripes said students were not completely ignorant of the Austrian-born dictator, who lived from 1889 to 1945 and, like the Japanese, fought the Allies in World War II.

"More than half of the 150 compositions show a general sort of piecemeal knowledge that covers such things as he started World War II, he had large numbers of Jews murdered and he was a madman leader of Germany who sought to conquer the world by invading other countries — which may be more than most German-teen-agers know," the paper said.

Earlier this year, North German teacher Dieter Bossmann of Flensburg made a similar survey of compositions by about 2,000 German students.

Bossmann, 33, found such observations as "Hitler was our old Fuehrer. He did not allow young people to wear their hair long," or "Hitler was strict with his people and everybody had respect for him ...The neighbors still wish sometimes that he was back again."

Water district sells $37 million in bonds

BIG SPRING — Blyth Eastman Dillon and Co. of New York City bought $37,155,000 of Series 1977 Colorado River Municipal Water District revenue refunding bonds Thursday at a net effective interest rate of 4.97 percent, P. C. Harbour, president of the district said Friday.

The issue carries with it a $554,724 discount.

Proceeds of the bond sale will go to retire approximately $35 million in outstanding revenue bonds and to fund a reserve account of $4,650,000, Harbour said.

The district will use $4,083,000 of its present balances in various accounts to fund the retirement of bonds which will mature between now and July 1, 1981, but which are not subject to prior call.

An escrow account of $29 million in United States government securities will be established to make the payment of other present bonds as they become due or callable, according to Harbour. The water district will be released from the orginal trust indenture of 1951 and its subsequent amendments.

Harbour said this would give the district considerably more latitude in its future financing. One effect is to soften debt service coverage requirements.

The resolution authorizing the transaction also sets up a Contingency and Improvement Fund, funded with the district's available moneys. Expenditures may be made from this account for almost any purpose, Harbour said.

The refunding resolution maintains the right of the district to issue parity bonds, as is anticipated if the Stacy-Leaday reservoir project, for which the district has applied, materializes, according to Harbour.

Frank Medanich of Dallas, of the First Southwest Corp., spearheaded the refunding issue as fiscal agent of the district. Blyth Eastman Dillon Co. served as underwriters. The company has underwritten every issue of the district since its original bonds over a quarter of a century ago, and aggregating more than $61 million.

Harbour said the refunding issue could result in an additional savings up to $1.8 million over the life of the issue, ending in 1996.

In other business, the district board approved an adjustment in water billings to Texas Electric Service Co. because of construction problems which reduced the company's demands below contract quantities. Sun Oil Co. was granted easement across district lands for an electric power line.

General Manager O.H. Ivie told the board that the Texas Department of Water Resources has not set a hearing date for the district's Stacy reservoir application and that it may be February or March before the hearing is held.

He also reported that a proposed contract with Texas Utilities Servies Inc. contracting for water from thee new reservoir to supply a proposed major coal-fired electric generating plant should be received within a week.

Dummy's trumps assure control

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you have four trumps in the dummy as well as four in your own hand, you can often keep control with either hand. If you run out of trumps in your own hand, you can often keep enough trumps in dummy to draw trumps of otherwise control the play.

South takes the ace of hearts and begins the clubs by finessing the queen around to East's king. It usually pays to develop the side suit first when there are holes in both the principal suits.

South ruffs the heart return and leads a club to the ace in order to try a trump finesse. West wins and leads another heart, forcing South to ruff with the jack. Now South's only trump is the ace, and his knees would be knocking with fright except for the fact that dummy still has three trumps.

DRAWS MORE TRUMPS

South draws another round of trumps with the ace. When the suit breaks normally, this leaves one trump out. South has no trumps left, but dummy sitll has two trumps.

Declarer begins to run the clubs, discarding diamonds from the dummy. The opponent with the last trump may ruff whenever he likes, but the defenders get only two trumps and one club. South can later regain the lead with the king of diamonds to discard more diamonds from the dummy on the good clubs.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: SKQ5; H10762; DQ93; C853. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart. This is a ghastly suit, but you must choose an evil response in any case. A response of 1 NT to one club should show about 8 to 10 points in high cards. Something can be said for a response of one diamond, but bidding a three-card suit often leads to confusion and should therefore be avoided.

Unusual Silver Jubilee stamps issued by Kenya

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

One of the most unusual sets of stamps commemorating the Silver Jubilee of Queen Elizabeth II this year has been issued by Kenya. It was during Elizabeth's visit to Kenya as Princess 25 years ago that her father, King George VI, died in his sleep. She came to Kenya as a Princess and left as a Queen. There are four stamps in the new set.

The lowest value stamp shows Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh walking through the garden at Sagana Lodge, a royal wedding gift from the people of Kenya.

Another stamp depicts "Treetops" observation post in Kenya's Aberdare Forest where on the night of Feb. 5, 1952, Princess Elizabeth learned she had become a Queen.

The third adhesive features Queen Elizabeth and Kenya President Jomo Kenyatta (during her 1972 visit) with the flag and symbol of crossed spears. The fourth has the Queen and President Kenyatta during an auto tour of Kenya in 1972.

Here's a checklist of U.S. stamps issued in 1977 and their first day sites:

Jan. 3 — Washington stamp at Princeton, N.J.; March 11 — $1 booklet at New York City; March 23 — Sound Recording commemorative at Washington, D.C.; April 7 — Gold envelope at Augusta, Ga.; April 13 — Indian Pottery at Santa Fe, N.M.; May 20 — Transatlantic Flight of Lindbergh at Garden City, N.Y.; May 22 — Colorado commemorative at Denver, Colo.

June 3 — 2.1-cent envelope at Houston, Tex.; June 9 — Butterflies at Indianapolis Ind.; June 13 — Lafayette at Charleston, S.C.; July 4 — Skilled Hands at Cincinnati, Ohio; July 20 — 9-cent postal card at Galveston, Tex.; Aug. 4 — Peace Bridge at Buffalo, N.Y.; Aug. 8 — Battle at Oriskany at Herkimer, N.Y.; Sept. 9 — First civilian settlement at San Jose, Calif.; Sept. 30 — Articles of Confederation at York, Pa.; Oct. 6 — Talking Pictures at Hollywood, Calif.; Oct. 7 — Saratoga at Schuylerville, N.Y.

Carter's 'enemies'

The Tulsa, Okla., World, in commenting editorially recently on the fact that President Carter has declared war against the sinister oil companies, which he claims "want it all" in the struggle over a national energy policy, asks:

"Who are those enemies, against whom the President has aligned himself to fight for the 'people?'"

"For starters," the editorial continues, "take a look at who owns the six largest oil companies in the United States; Exxon, Gulf Oil, Mobil, Standard Oil of California, Standard Oil of Indiana, and Texaco.

"They are owned directly and indirectly by 14 million shareholders, 91 colleges and universities, mutual insurance companies and more than a thousand charitable and educational institutions, according to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"This fact — that the oil industry is owned by people, not some theoretical oil baron — is conveniently overlooked by Carter and those who would make the industry the scapegoat in the present energy mess."

The editorial goes on to state that the stockholders are not likely to be swayed by the President's charges of profiteering by their companies, whose return on the sales dollar is less than other comparable manufacturing firms, according to the President's own Federal Energy Administration.

"Exxon's return on the sales dollar in the big year of 1973, for example, was 6.7 cents; 5.1 cents in 1974; 3.6 cents in 1975 and 3.4 cents in 1976," the World editorial continued.

"The President's attack on the oil industry has no doubt had a direct effect on the value of the stocks owned by millions of Americans. This, remember, from an Administration that is puzzled about why the nation's stock market is at the lowest level in many years.

"It might be that the President has reached too far in declaring war on oil. Stockholders in auto companies, utilities, steel companies, chemicals, plastics or any other business should be asking themselves if the President will see fit to declare war on them next.

"It appears that the President is saying to the stockholders of not only oil companies but all companies, "I have met the enemy and it is you.'"

This has been said in various ways and on various occasions in the past, but the World editorial wraps it up in an exceptionally fine, factual, clearly, understandable package.

Individual stockholders and the business world at large certainly should take steps to defend themselves in every way possible in the war aimed directly at them.

How about this one?

One of the strangest thefts ever occurred recently at Denver, Colo. Perhaps you read about it.

A man reportedly reached into a woman's mouth and stole her false teeth in a quest for gold. This is one for the books.

A 60-year old woman told police she was walking to a corner mail box when "a guy jumped me, reached in my mouth and pulled out my lower dentures."

The victim, who was knocked to the ground in the incident, said the assailant stood in front of her, looking at her teeth, for about a minute.

"There ain't no gold here, so here's your teeth," she quoted him as saying before handing them back to her.

And then something else noteworthy happened. Neighbors who heard the woman's calls for help, responded promptly and effectively. They caught the teeth-grabber and held him until police arrived. This was something in itself, in a time when all too many persons refuse to become involved in such incidents. Many of them just stand back and watch, refusing even to call the police.

The man, at last account, was being held for investigation of assault and theft. It was reported that he was very upset. We can imagine the victim also was somewhat upset.

CHARLEY REESE:

'Just get your fingers out of the public purse'

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Let me give you a tip. Call up the sponsoring agency for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds and get a list of all the non-profit private agencies they have funded. Chances are you'll find some of them are political.

These CETA funds are supposed to be used to solve the unemployment problem. Originally, they were given to government agencies to hire additional people. Recently, the law was changed so that they can now go to non-profit organizations engaged in public service.

I discovered that in Gainesville, Fla., about $29,000 had been given to an organization called Women Unlimited, Inc., a feminist outfit. The money was for salaries for someone to run their newspaper, Womanews; their book store; and the organization itself.

It's hard for me to see much public service involved in publishing a newspaper which touts the ERA amendment, lesbianism, and abortion-on-demand, but if women wish to pursue those goals, it's fine with me. Only they should do it with their own money.

The CETA rules say that organizations must not be engaged in political activity yet the brochure of Women Unlimited states:

"Inherent in the purpose of Women Unlimited is a political consciousness, direction, and activism (emphasis is mine) which joins the larger women's rights movement to eliminate oppression of women."

The same brochure in listing its services and programs states:

"3. Task forces for such areas as job discrimination and politics."

In the March 1977 issue of Womanews in an article written by a Jan Hahn, a Women Unlimited official is quoted as saying, "We found ourselves so totally immersed in the continual chore of money raising that we felt we hadn't been able to accomplish all that we said we would: CR groups and political action in particular."

Yet, when the chairman of the Florida Conservative Union complained to a congressman about their grant, the ladies claimed they were not political and began to scream that the radical right was after them.

Goose feathers. Just get your fingers out of the public purse — unless, of course, you want CETA funds to staff the Florida Conservative Union, the Young Americans for Freedom and the Young Democrats.

I mentioned Jan Hahn as the author of the article in Womanews because at the same time she was listed on the masthead of the paper, she was and is the paid coordinator of the CETA Advisory Council which processed the grant.

She says, naturally, she didn't vote on the grant, but she has certainly demonstrated a huge sympathy for the organization as well as her membership.

If CETA funds are going to politically-oriented outfits in Gainesville, Fla., you can bet they are ending up funding similar organizations in other communities.

Actually, it's nothing new for the federal government to fund organizations which are blatantly attempting to accomplish political goals. Some of the so-called arts grants have been to individuals whose works are clearly political as well as lousy art. And many of the tax-funded lawyers, ostensibly to help the poor, have tried to accomplish with lawsuits political objectives.

This seems another of those issues that all fair-minded individuals could agree on regardless of whether we're conservative or liberal, Republican or Democrat or whatever. Let's keep the taxpayers money out of the hands of people seeking to effect political changes.

The tax bucks come from all Americans of all persuasions and nobody should be forced to fund a cause with which they disagree. Furthermore, there are plenty of people who need jobs and plenty of jobs that need doing without deflecting tax dollars to hire editors for propaganda sheets.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Radiation scandal said looming

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON—In a deadly attempt at censorship, the federal government has systematically suppressed disagreeable news about the danger of radiation from nuclear power plants. It almost looks as if the federal authorities are more anxious to protect the nuclear industry than the public health.

They have hushed up evidence, for example, that low levels of radiation may cause cancer. The risk exists, according to suppressed studies, at radiation levels that government agencies now accept as safe. Here are some case histories we have uncovered:

CASE HISTORY NO. 1 — World-renowned Dr. Karl Z. Morgan, director of health physics at the Oak Ridge, Tenn. nuclear works for 30 years, conducted research into the possible health hazards of certain plutonium breeder reactors. He finally became convinced that the technology was not sufficiently safe.

In 1971, he prepared his findings for delivery at a symposium in Nuremberg, West Germany. Enroute, he stopped off in Switzerland for a brief vacation. He found an urgent message at the Zurich airport as he was about to board the plane for Nuremberg. American officials, he was told, were searching for him frantically.

Dr. Morgan immediately put through a call to the deputy director of the Oak Ridge laboratories. The distinguished researcher was informed that his paper, which had previously been approved, was no longer suitable for presentation.

Copies of the report had also been sent ahead to Nuremberg. The Oak Ridge officials asked the West Germans to destroy the 200 copies. These were replaced with 200 copies of an edited version, with all references to the fast breeder reactor deleted. Dr. Morgan, celebrated as the "father of health physics," is now at the Georgia Institute of Technology.

CASE HISTORY NO. 2 — Back in 1963, the Atomic Energy Commission sought to refute reports that low-level radiation could cause cancer and leukemia. Two government scientists, Drs. John Gofman and Arthur Tamplin of the Lawrence Lab in Livermore, Calif., were assigned to the project.

They readied a report in 1969 warning that for every unit increase of radiation, there would be 20 times the incidence of cancer. This was far above what the authorities had anticipated.

Lawrence Lab officials moved immediately to censor the report. Twelve of Tamplin's staff researchers were removed from his jurisdiction. Later, after six years of research, Dr. Gofman was given a choice: either he must terminate his project, or the commission would cut the lab's funds by a quarter of a million dollars. That ended the research.

Dr. Gofman is now conducting independent research at Berkeley. He has re-analyzed his data and concluded that he underestimated the cancer risk of low-level radiation. Dr. Tamplin is affiliated with the Natural Resources Defense Council.

CASE HISTORY NO. 3 — Dr. Irwin Bross, working under a research grant from the National Cancer Institute, reached conclusions similar to those of Gofman and Tamplin. Among the offspring of parents previously exposed to X-rays, Dr. Bross found a small percentage show genetic damage.

In the summer of 1976, he presented his findings to reviewers at the National Cancer Institute. He immediately came under intense fire, and his grant from the government to continue his research was not renewed. He also found it impossible to publish his conclusions in government journals.

Finally, the Journal of the American Medical Association published a small part of Bross' findings. He is continuing his research, meanwhile, at the Roswell Park Memorial Cancer Institute in Buffalo, N.Y.

CASE HISTORY NO. 4 — Dr. Thomas F. Mencuso of the University of Pittsburgh spent a decade developing data, which linked low-level radiation exposure to cancer among workers at the Hanford Atomic Works in Washington state.

But earlier, when the results appeared negative, he came under pressure from the Energy Research and Development Administration to publish his findings prematurely. Dr. Mancuso resisted the pressure and went on to produce results the government didn't like.

In 1974, ERDA's Dr. James Liverman suddenly decided to terminate the project at Pittsburgh and transfer it to the Oak Ridge associated universities. The move was made, it was explained, because of Mancuso's "imminent retirement" although he was only 62 and wouldn't retire at the earliest for three more years.

Dr. Mancuso submitted his data to Dr. Alice Stewart and biostatistician George Kneale of Oxford University for an independent analysis. Bolstered by their support, he appealed to Liverman to allow him to conclude the project. The appeal was ignored.

The transfer of the project to the government's facility at Oak Ridge, in the words of one scientist, was tantamount to "hiring a fox to guard some chickens." Dr. Mancuso added, in his own final report that the decision was not "in the best interests of science."

In all these studies, cancer danger was found in radiation dosages far below dosages the government allows.

INSIDE REPORT:

Major new centralization of power back in D. C.

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — While the public is not fully aware of it, federal bureaucrats are confounding President Carter's campaign promise of close-to-the-people government by transferring authority from the field back to Washington in a major new centralization of power.

That unannounced process is far advanced in the Departments of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and, less clearly, Labor. Judging from his campaign emphasizing his non-Washington base and extolling government closer to the people, voters expected that one distinctive Carter label on the federal leviathan would be less, not more, centralization.

This represents neither broken promises nor changed prineiples by the President. Rather, ensnarled in the details of office, Mr. Carter simply has not come to grips with what his administration should stand for. While nobody doubted, for better or for worse, the direction of Richard M. Nixon's presidency after ten months, the Carter presidency has neither set nor sought a theme.

The Washington bureaucrats have leaped, to fill this void with a vengeance, tightening federal regulation and devising new plans for federal direction of the nation's affairs. That concentrate all power in Washington is most significant, considering the lingering belief of long-time Carterites that regionalizing power still ought to be a dominant Carter theme. A glance at what is happening at Labor, HUD, and HEW:

Labor: All regional directors have been eliminated, bringing field offices directly under Washington supervision. Department officials say the regional directors never had much power in the first place so the change does not mean much, but White House staffers say centralization is undeniable.

HUD: There is no argument about more centralization here. Not only have the number of field offices been reduced but their authority has been sharply cut back. "The feeling is we had to return the full decision-making to Washington," one high official in HUD told us.

removed program responsibilities from regional directors, returning them to Washington. Like labor, HEW's field offices will be directly supervised by Washington instead of regional offices. Office of Education employees in the field are being brought back to Washington. HEW spokesmen say Secretary Joseph Califano wants "central responsibility."

Joe Califano leads the vanguard of bureaucrats triumphant in the first year of the Carter administration. Reluctantly selected for his post by Mr. Carter at the urging of Washington insiders (headed by Vice President Mondale), Washington insider Califano has emerged as a cabinet star in the president's opinion (but not in the opinion of his White House staff).

That is remarkable in view of Califano's personification of more spending, more regulation and more centralization. It is explained by other administration officials not as a conversion in Mr. Carter's philosophy but as his turning in relief to one member of a generally undistinguished cabinet who has his work completed on time and his department under control.

Califano's triumph as a master bureaucrat is not isolated. Officials who believe in more, not less, government dominate the administration. Many are graduates of protection, but more reflect the achetylpal bureaucrat prefacing Ralph Nader by centuries. In the words of one relatiyely conservative cabinet member: "This administration is filled with people who like to regulate other people."

For example, HUD is proposing a plan (largely devised by Assistant Secertary Robert Emtry, former Baltimore city housing commissioner) that would require suburbs to put in public housing cluster programs or lose federal money. Such social engineering can stir up political dogs that Mr. Carter might prefer to keep sleeping.

That is why friends of the President, motivated only by his political welfare, wish that Mr. Carter would consider at greater length whether he should not fulfill his promises explicit and implicit, of decentralization, deregulation and a less intrusive role for government.

But most of the bureaucrats are pushing for still more government in 1978, to satisfy the left as well as themselves. Moreover, even if the President belatedly puts his mind to it, it is too late in the day to unscramble the eggs of greater centeralization and regulation. The cost may be not only the loss of a distinctive Carter theme but a big-government thrust that is beginning to run strongly against mass opinion.

Snack Shack coffee sippers running city

By JULES LOH

HARRISON, Ark. (AP) — Washington has its cocktail parties, New York its three martini lunches, but in smalltown America it is at the morning coffee session that the moving and shaking is done.

Across the land, doctors, lawyers and merchant chiefs leave their offices at an appointed hour, gather at an appointed place, listen to the latest gossip and the latest jokes, rehash the latest athletic events and business deals and discuss the ones upcoming, and return to their daily toil reassured that their town and, if not, at least they are in the know.

"We're going to get a new principal soon," a teacher at the Harrison High School confided. "The selection will be influenced, if not actually made, at the back table at the Snack Shack."

In Harrison, the appointed place is the Snack Shack — 10 is the appointed hour.

It is not the only coffee spot in town, of course. City and federal employees tend to gather at the Holiday Inn, retailers and advertising folk at the Calico Kitchen in the mall, another group at the Ramada, stability still reigns in another at the bus station.

But the oldest established permanent floating coffee group in Harrison, and the most prestigious, is the one at the Snack Shack.

"We've been meeting every morning since the mid-'50s, since coffee was a nickel," said Jim Tilley, a banker. "Same people. The Snack Shack is the third place we've met. We've outlasted the first two, they're both long gone.

"We're just old friends who like to visit and insult one another and tell tall tales. It's a social thing."

Yes, but take a look at who the socializers are.

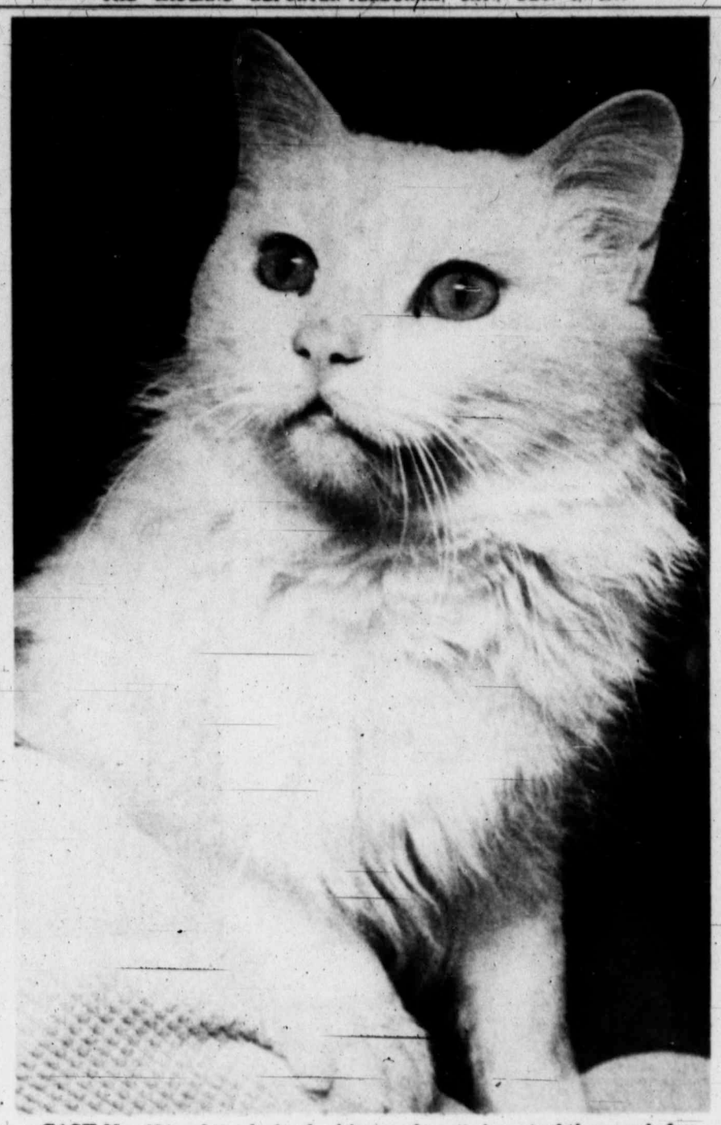

Regulars include members of the school board, the local Civil Service Commission, the president of the Community College, the editor of the paper, the head of the Parks Commission, the executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, the mayor on occasion, the congressman when he's in town, the district attorney, the stock broker, the fire chief, and, if the high school team won its most recent game, the coach.

"Power structure?" Bevan Dunlap laughed. "No, liars' club is more like it.

"In fact," said Dunlap, who is the Chamber of Commerce executive and resident wit, "if b.s. were music, this group would be the Norman Luboff Choir."

They are, indeed, a relaxed group, and the Snack Shack is a relaxed place for any group to gather, or any choir.

It is a block off the courthouse square, a linoleum and formica haven presided over by Irene Starkey, who calls everybody honey. She charges 30 cents for coffee, refills free, as many as you want, and always has a fresh batch ready at 10.

Trial telegrapher recalls Mencken

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The young telegrapher who transmitted reporter H.L. Mencken's words from the Scopes trial half a century ago in Dayton had a difficult job.

"He was very difficult to deal with," Howard Hale, 74, said of Mencken in an interview. "Whether you were sending stories for the New York Times or the Manchester Guardian, he demanded that his words be sent out first.

"And he woke me up at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning several times when he had an idea he wanted to send out."

In 1925, Mencken was a Baltimore Sun reporter and Hale was a Western Union telegrapher. Together they witnessed the clash between Clarence Darrow and William Jennings Bryan over a Tennessee law which forbade teaching in public schools any theory of creation except that found in the Bible.

"He was merciless with the jury and judge," Hale says. "William Jennings Bryan Jr. came over one morning and told Darrow that his party had all brought their legal dictionaries. And Mencken asked if they'd brought one for the judge."

Dayton was awash with reporters for the trial, and a pool of 30 telegraphers transmitted 150,000 to 200,000 words a day through 60 circuits on a line north to Cincinnati and south to Chattanooga.

Hale had equipment which allowed him to send from the press pit in the main courtroom of the Rhea County Courthouse, and he says he believes Mencken selected him as his telegrapher for that reason.

During the 11-day trial, he developed great respect for Mencken.

"I never heard him ask another newsman anything," Hale says. "He was just too proud to accept information he hadn't dug out personally."

Mencken went on to edit "The American Mercury" and write enough reviews and essays to fill six volumes titled "Prejudices." When he died in 1956, he was a leading authority on language, having written "The American Language."

Hale was with Western Union until the mid-1930s when he became a salesman.

Mattox suggests Wade

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox has recommended his former boss, Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade, to succeed Clarence Kelley as FBI director.

In a Thursday letter to Attorney General Griffin Bell the freshman congressman cited Wade as a "man of perfection."

The endorsement came three days after U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson, President Carter's top choice, withdrew his name from nomination. Johnson cited health reasons for his decision.

Mattox worked for three years as an assistant prosecutor under Wade.

HOUSE OF GOODNESS

Sunday Psalms 67:1-17
Monday Psalms 68:1-35
Tuesday Deuteronomy 28:1-14
Wednesday Psalms 107:1-22
Thursday Psalms 100:1-5
Friday Isaiah 12:1-6
Saturday Isaiah 42:1-16

Who would doubt that there is much evil in the world today?

Wherever man lives, his hatred and cruelty can frustrate all hopes for a better way of life.

But man's gross impulses must be restrained. His energies can be harnessed for constructive goals.

The Church, a powerful force for good, labors to redeem men and to make a better world.

Today the Church needs you – and you need the Church.

Male dominance rooted in history

By JOHN DART
The Los Angeles Times

CLAREMONT, Calif. — Why has Christianity been predominantly male-oriented, both in its theology and leadership?

A woman scholar believes it was partly a second century reaction to Gnostic Christians, who included feminine imagery in their sacred texts and involved women in religious rites.

Elaine Pagels, chairperson of the religion department at Barnard College, Columbia University, presented her thesis — part of a planned book — in a recent lecture at the School of Theology at Claremont.

RELIGION

Besides describing female emanations from God, some Gnostic Christians claimed that Jesus considered the Holy Spirit to be feminine, his "true Mother." And in many Gnostic writings Mary Magdalene and other women followers participate in some prominent dialogue with Jesus.

Women sometimes served as deacons or evangelists in the early Christian circles, Pagels said, but by AD 200 the church father Tertullian expressed outrage at the audacious women priests among Gnostic Christians:

"They have no modesty; they are bold enough to teach, to engage in argument, to enact exorcisms, to undertake cures, and, it may be, even to baptize."

Not noted so much for feminist research, Pagels has been primarily recognized for historical studies in Christianity and Gnosticism, a field invigorated in recent decades by the discovery of Gnostic manuscripts in upper Egypt. The more than 50 texts will be published fully in English for the first time by the end of 1977.

Branded as heretics by what came to be orthodox Christianity, Gnostics (from the Greek, "gnosis," knowledge) considered themselves bearers of secret traditions from Jesus.

Their beliefs varied greatly, but generally they pointed to a God of light above the ignorant Creator God while acknowledging Jesus as their Savior and the son of that true God.

The Gnostic manuscripts from Egypt revealed "gospels," "secret books," "Apocalypses" and other texts ranging from tales of mythical powers in the heavens to near-orthodox Christian treatises.

Some New Testament scholars have said the pressure of the many Gnostic speculations and theologizing prodded the church to form creeds, give increased authority to bishops and agree more or less by AD 200 on the books to be included in a New Testament.

Pagels is suggesting Christianity was shaped more than previously thought by reactions to Gnostic thought and practice.

In another Claremont lecture, she said the second century emphasis by the church (and its Apostles Creed) on Jesus' suffering and death was probably promoted not only by the facts but also by the zeal for martyrdom by leaders in Christian orthodoxy.

Church fathers Ignatius, Irenaeus and Tertullian praised martyrdom as a way to imitate the passion of Christ, she said. Ignatius, bishop of Antioch, accepted his death sentence circa AD 107 with joy.

The Gnostic manuscripts found near Nag Hammadi, Egypt, after World War II show that some Gnostic Christians believe that Jesus' followers must suffer as he did. Many other Gnostics believe Jesus was a divine being who could not suffer and therefore Christians who willfully anticipated persecution were "empty martyrs."

Among a third category of Gnostics, Pagels said, there were those who maintained that as much as Jesus was human he suffered, as much as he was divine he did not. That middle position in theology was reflected in everyday life — the Gnostic Christian Heracleon said that since the believer does not share Jesus' divine nature the believer does not necessarily have to share in martyrdom.

It was Pagels' contention that the pictures of Jesus in the sacred text of both orthodox Christians and Gnostics often matched their practical attitudes.

Fledgling Christianity, in making a radical break from Judaism by claiming the Messiah had arrived, may have afforded certain equality to women believers in the early decades. But Pagels said the churches "apparently followed Jewish precedent" as the second century progressed.

By AD 200, the majority of Christian communities endorsed as authentic a letter by Paul to Timothy which advises that women "learn in silence with full submissiveness." Many scholars question whether Paul really wrote that letter, however.

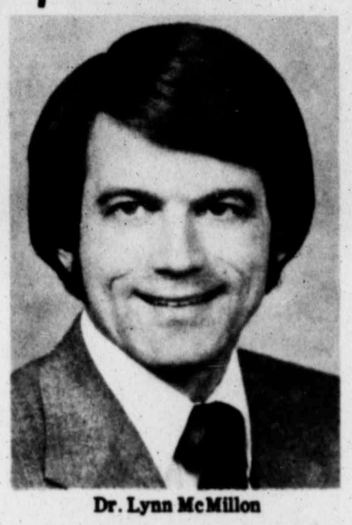

Pagels said she is a historian, not a minister or theologian.

"I can't claim to offer either practical advice or feminist theology," she said.

But she said that while some Gnostic writings were obviously removed from Christian beliefs, some shared many basic assumptions and tradition, such as The Gospel of Thomas, The Gospel of Truth and The Gospel of Phillip — all written around AD 100 to 150.

One striking difference between the Gnostic Christian writings and those of the New Testament, Pagels said, Is that the former "abound in feminine symbolism that is applied, in particular, to God."

Increase in job-holders has minimal effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans holding jobs rose by the biggest margin in 17 years last month but the increase had little effect on the nation's stubborn unemployment rate.

The Labor Department said Friday that the jobless rate in November was 6.9 percent, down slightly from October's 7 percent level but still within the narrow range of 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent where it has hovered since April.

In contrast, the total employment jumped by 950,000 to 92.2 million and the proportion of the population with jobs rose to an all-time high of 57.8 percent last month.

The increase was the largest in any month since April of 1960, when total employment rose by 1.3 million.

While it would appear that a large increase in employment would result in a sharp drop in unemployment, the figures show that people are being added to the labor force at a faster rate than jobs are being created by the economy.

The labor force includes people with jobs and those looking for work.

In November, the government said 900,000 more Americans went looking for work, raising the total labor force to 99 million. The total without jobs declined by only about 50,000 to 6.8 million.

After the figures were released, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell acknowledged that the Carter administration probably would not reach its goal of reducing unemployment to 6.5 per cent by year end.

"It's not likely to be there," Powell said, referring to the jobless rate.

Carter has indicated the stagnant unemployment rate will be a key factor when he decides whether to recommend tax cuts designed to stimulate the economy.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the big increase in employment last month "may have been somewhat exaggerated by measurement problems."

But he told the Congressional Joint Economic Committee that the increase over the past 12 months — 3.9 million — "has been very impressive."

Labor Department analysts also said the big rise could be due in part to earlier-than-usual hiring of temporary store employees for the holiday shopping season.

The job figures are based on a nationwide survey of 47,000 households taken each month by the Census Bureau. A less comprehensive but more accurate measure is the Labor Department's monthly survey of business establishments, which showed that non-farm payroll employment rose by 310,000 in November to 83.2 million.

Highway funds sought by panel

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Representatives from eight states agreed Friday to seek priority highway funding from Congress to upgrade 5,200 miles of major highway routes to interstate standards.

But the group, which backs the funding for 11 designated routes, was warned by a staff aide of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, that obtaining the funds would be no easy chore.

"You're probably going to face quite a bit of difficulty with a proposal like this simply because the revenue is not there," said the aide, Mike Naeve.

Although the group wants special funding for 5,200 miles of primary routes in 18 states, it plans to ask Congress for a limitation of 12,000 miles in its proposal.

Naeve said he was told by a Department of Transportation official that it would cost an estimated $21.8 billion for 12,000 miles of such upgrading.

The 11 routes included in the group's proposal are: Brunswick, Ga., to Kansas City; Kansas City to Chicago; Amarillo to Las Cruces, N.M.; Tulsa to Ponca City, Okla.; Cove Fort, Utah, to Carson City, Nev.; Kansas City to Baton Rouge, La.; Waterloo, Iowa, to Rockford, Ill.; Lubbock, Texas, to I-10, Texas; Salina, Kan., to Watertown, S.D.; Wichita to Tucumcari, N.M., and Davenport, Iowa to La Crosse, Wis.

Texan recommended for FBI directorship

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade said Friday he appreciated being recommended by a Dallas congressman to replace Clarence Kelley as director of the FBI "but I don't think there's a possibility it will be offered to me."

"I'm happy here and don't think I would take it if it were offered," Wade said.

In a Thursday letter to Attorney General Griffin Bell, U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, recommended Wade, his former boss, for the top post in the nation's police force. "Henry Wade is probably the most well known district attorney in the United States," Mattox wrote. The endorsement came three days after Carter's first choice, U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson, withdrew his name because of health reasons.

Kelley will step down in February.

Appointee suggested for Justice position

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Griffin B. Bell has recommended the appointment of Assistant Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti to the No. 2 post in the Justice Department, the Los Angeles Times learned Friday.

The appointment, recommended to President Carter at a White House meeting, would make Civiletti, 42, the front-runner to succeed Bell if the attorney general leaves before Carter's first term ends, as is widely expected.

Civiletti would replace Deputy Attorney General Peter F. Flaherty, who has said he is resigning to explore running for governor of Pennsylvania.

Panthers, Plainsmen wage grid war today

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

ODESSA — Odessa Permian's unbeaten Panthers seek a semifinal berth today when they face the Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen in a Class AAAA quarterfinal football playoff in W.T. Barrett Stadium.

Kickoff is set for 2 p.m. with a crowd of more than 15,000 expected.

The game could be called the West Texas AAAA championship and it is the third time the two have met in the state playoffs since 1965.

Permian beat the Plainsmen, 29-12 in Lubbock in the quarterfinals in Jones Stadium on the way to its first state championship in 1965 and then again in 1972 at Jones Stadium by a 28-0 count.

That too, was a spring board for Mojo to win state in 1972. In that particular game, Monterey was 13-0 going into the game with Dan Irons on that Monterey team. Irons was a tight end in the game which was played on a Friday night in 14-degree weather. Irons has since become All-America at Texas Tech as on offensive tackle.

THE WINNER of today's Permian-Monterey confrontation, will square off with either Highland Park or Plano next week in the semifinals.

Last year, Monterey went all the way to the semifinals before being whipped by Temple, 35-0, and that was the last loss for Coach James Odom's Plainsmen.

The Plainsmen are led by 6-3, 210-pound quarterback Ron Reeves and he's a great one. He's the one that makes the offense click and his statistics attest to that. The gifted senior has rushed for 1,003 yards and scored 130 points in 12 games as the Hub City team brings an 11-0-1 mark into the game. That tie was with Wichita Falls Rider in the second game of the season, 14-14.

MONTEREY HAS some more talent to go with Reeves in the backfield in fullback Bobby McDaniel, an 185-pound senior who has rushed for 456 yards on the year and Joel Gage, 160-pound junior who has 188 yards.

Jeff Harp, a 165-pound senior has gained 496 yards for the Plainsmen on the year as the Lubbock power has rushed for a total of 2,642 yards in 12 games.

Reeves can also throw the ball with 61 completions in 153 attempts for 978 yards and eight touchdowns. He has been intercepted five times.

Monterey's defense is tough too and it has pounced on 31 fumbles in 12 games while Permian has recovered 13 enemy fumbles.

The Plainsmen have picked off 16 passes and Permian 19 on the year.

Eric Voyles, a 165-pound senior, is the top pass receiver for Monterey with 25 receptions for 443 yards and five touchdowns. Next comes Dudley McMinn, a 175-pound senior with 11 for 167 yards and one TD, but he missed five games during the middle of the season with an injury.

COACH JOHN WILKINS of the Panthers feels like today's game will be the toughest of the season for his state-ranked Black Cats.

"They (Monterey) play solid defense and Reeves is great in running the option or throwing the ball," said Wilkins.

Odom, meanwhile, is high on Permian, but states, "They (Permian) are not unbeatable." He quickly added that his team would have to play better than it has against Amarillo Tascosa and El Paso Bel Air in the first two playoff games. Monterey blanked Tascosa, 7-0, and took a 36-25 victory over Bel Air last Thursday, so it has had more time to get ready for Mojo.

Permian whipped Denton, 26-0 and Arlington Lamar, 35-7 and has been ranked high in the state throughout the season.

MONTEREY WILL outweigh the Panthers by quite a big margin in the forward wall and the reason being a pair of 240-pounders in Scott Alford and George Morris.

Permian's Wing-T attack is led by a host of good backs in Vic Vines, Barry Babcock, Greg Lambert, Alan Swann, Mark Graves and John Murey.

Babcock missed the Lamar game, but will be back today to alternate with Lambert at the tailback slot. Vines will call the signals with Graves and Swann switching at the fullback position.

Babcock has rushed for 633 yards and scored 11 touchdowns while Lambert has 597 yards and eight touchdowns, but that came in seven games while Babcock played in 11 games.

Swann is next with 508 yards while Graves has 422, Vines 346 and Murey a total of 304 yards.

Mojo's potent attack has ground out 3,092 yards and the airways for an additional 792 for a total of 4,884 yards on the year.

Brian Vickers and Murey are the top pass catchers with 10 catches for 261 yards and 11 for 154, respectively. Murey has latched on to five for 118 yards.

MOJO'S DEFENSE is led by Tommy Sager, Brian Harris, Vickers, Huey Chancellor, David Clyburn, Raymond Stanley, Tim Hayes and Byron Taylor.

Both have played one common opponent —Midland with Monterey winning, 19-0 and Permian by a 24-6 count. It could be that close today with lots at stake.

"We will have to defense the option and play our usually tough defense in order to win," said Wilkins.

Defense has been the name of the game for Mojo in giving up just 93 first downs in 11 games along with 944 yards on the ground and 793 through the airways.

Permian has outscored its opponents, 339-64 while Monterey has given up 79 points while scoring 322.

Coach Sloan will 'sink or swim'

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Coach Steve Sloan said Friday he had decided to give up a long-term contract and successful team at Texas Tech because he wanted to "sink or swim" in trying to rebuild Mississippi's football fortunes.

Sloan said after Ole Miss' formal announcement of his hiring that chief among the factors that went into his decision was that "I felt in my heart it was the best thing to do."

"YOU'VE GOT to go by the dictates of your heart," he told cheering students and Ole Miss supporters at a pep rally-news conference. "When you make a decision, never look back. Set up your goals and then proceed."

"My feeling is I'd like to sink or swim here," he said.

Sloan, 33, receives a fouryear contract that he said would include an annual salary of $40,000 to $45,000, but benefits and television proceeds reportedly will bring the total package to $75,000 to $100,000.

He succeeds Ken Cooper, who resigned Wednesday under alumni pressure after a four year record of 19-25, including 5-6 in the just completed season.

IN CONSTRAST to Thursday when Sloan choked up and could not complete reading his statement of resignation, Sloan handled Friday's first meeting with Ole Miss backers with humorous comments that kept the throng gathered in the Ole Miss athletic dormitory's cafeteria laughing and cheering.

At Texas Tech, Sloan's teams were 23-11 in three seasons and the Red Raiders landed a spot in the Tangerine Bowl with a 7-4 record this year. He coached two years at Vanderbilt, compiling a 12-9-2 record.

He leaves a 10-year contract at Texas Tech with an option to become athletic director at the school.

Retiring Athletic Director John H. Vaught said Sloan was "the most brilliant young coach in America."

VAUGHT NOTED that Sloan had "moved around a great deal in his short career," and added: "He told me he never felt he could tell a recruit 'I'll be with you the next four years. Now, I feel deeply down in my heart I can tell the recruit I'm going to be with you in the next four years.'"

Sloan has been mentioned prominently as the successor to Alabama's Bear Bryant but said Bryant's announcement that he will not retire until he sets a collegiate coaching record did not figure in the decision to move to Ole Miss.

"I've got to make a decision on my life and he's got to make a decision on his life, and they're both not intertwined," said the former Alabama All-American.

"I pledge to you I'll do everything possible in my power to put the University of Mississippi football program back on top," Sloan said.

He said he had "every confidence in myself and the coaches" who will work with him.

SLOAN WAS asked if the Mississippi job would be his most challenging and replied: "No, I don't think so. But this one will be very challenging."

He said in response to a question about whether he had been contacted about the Missouri coaching vacancy: "Yes, I was contacted by several schools this year. I just had a good feeling about Ole Miss all along."

Sloan said he had no idea about the Mississippi football players that will return next season and said his first priority would be recruiting, sandwiching it around Texas Tech's preparations for the Tangerine Bowl against Florida State.

With him at the news conference were four of his Texas Tech assistants, John Cropp, Tommy Limbaugh, Romeo Grennel and Mike Pope. Sloan said each had been offered a position at Ole Miss and "They've got a decision to make, but they're interested enough to come here and recruit."

He said his Texas Tech team had run a split-back veer offense but that he will have to consider Ole Miss' personnel before deciding on an offense for the Rebels.

No room at inn for Huskies' team

SEATTLE (AP) — University of Washington football players will hang their helmets at a Newport Beach, Calif., hotel for two weeks prior to the Huskies' appearance in the Rose Bowl Jan. 2.

Mike Lude, Washington athletic director, said the Marriott Inn was selected Thursday as the team's home away from home.4

The Huskies will work out at Orange Coast Community College "about 15 minutes from the motel," Lude said.

Heisman favorite is Tyler Rose

NEW YORK (AP) — In a nationally televised setting somewhat reminiscent of the Miss America Pageant, Mr. College Football America — alias the 1977 Heisman Trophy winner — will be announced Thursday night with running back Earl Campbell of Texas the favorite.

Campbell, a bruising 220-pounder who led the nation in rushing with 1,744 yards and paced the Texas Longhorns to an 11-0 regular-season record and the No.1 national ranking, is expected to face his toughest competition from another running back, Terry Miller of Oklahoma State, a two-time Associated Press All-American who finished fourth in last year's Heisman voting.

Miller, the top returning vote getter, had another great season, finishing third nationally with 1,680 yards and becoming the career rushing king in the Big Eight Conference. But Oklahoma State slipped to a 4-7 record and Miller's exploits were overshadowed by Campbell and Texas' unexpected success.

Last year's Heisman winner, Tony Dorsett of Pitt, has gone on to the professional ranks with the Dallas Cowboys.

The Downtown Athletic Club, sponsor of the Heisman Trophy, has changed its format, not only selling the television rights to CBS-TV (Thursday, Dec. 8, 10 p.m., EST), but also creating six new awards to be presented annually in conjunction with the Heisman Trophy, which the D.A.C. says is emblematic of the nation's outstanding player.

Over the years, the Heisman Trophy has come to be considered college football's top individual award.

This year's Heisman presentation will be televised live from the Grand Ballroom of the New York Hilton Hotel.

The new Downtown Athletic Club Trophy will be awarded in three offensive and three defensive categories — offensive back, offensive end, offensive lineman, defensive lineman, linebacker and defensive back.

Voting for the new awards will be done by the approximately 1,050 members of the media who vote for the Heisman Trophy.

"The Downtown Athletic Club feels there are players who deserve recognition for the emceptional skills they display on the football field," says Ronald G. Cobleigh, president of the club. "We feel the creation of the six new awards will, in their own way, have the same prestige connected with them as does the Heisman award."

During the past year, the Heisman Memorial Trophy Committee reviewed voting procedures and restructured the number of electors in each region.

Rebels bombard Antelopes, 99-44

By BOB DILLON

It was strictly no contest.

Robert E. Lee's Rebels gunned down the outclassed Class AA Abernathy Antelopes, 99-44, in the Lee Gymnasium Friday night as 12 players were in the scoring column for Coach Paul Stueckler's crew.

The Rebels now own a 6-1 record on the season going into their next game which will be a tough one with the Hobbs, N.M. Eagles in Hobbs Tuesday.

Stueckler played everybody and the game was never in doubt as the Rebs took a 29-4 first period lead. It was 54-11 at halftime and after the end of three periods, it stood 80-27 in favor of the Tall City team.

Ernest Merritt, a 6-1 junior, dumped in 22 points to pave the way with 16 of those coming in the second half. Next came Mitch Rad with 16 and Dave Stueckler with 11. Rad is a 6-0 senior and Stueckler is a 6-2 senior.

LEE HIT 40 field goals and 19 of 24 free tosses during the rout.

Abernathy came into the game sporting a 3-1 record against AA and Class A schools and was just too short and outmanned.

Mike Richard, 5-11 senior guard gave fans what was to come in the first period when he alone, came up with six steals as the Antelopes could not get the ball down court against the Rebel press.

Nine Rebs scored in the opening period and nobody was in the double figures at intermission for Lee.

Dean McGuire, 6-2 senior post man for Abernathy, flipped in 16 points with eight of those coming in the final eight minutes of action.

He was the only Antelope to get into the double figures as they were dropping to a 3-2 record on the season.

Abernathy hit 13 field goals and 18 of 26 charity tosses.

THE VISITORS did come back somewhat in the second half, scoring 16 points in the third period and 17 in the final quarter.

Lee held on to leads as high as 62 points in the second half and the fans were shouting for 100 points, but fell one point short.

Merritt hit a pair of free tosses with eight seconds left in the game, but Lee was unable to get the ball back and the final score was 99-44.

Following Tuesday's game with Hobbs in the New Mexico city, Lee travels to the state capitol for a two-day tourney in Austin, Dec. 9-10 and then plays Class AAA Sweetwater in Sweetwater, Dec. 13 before entering the tough San Antonio Invitational in the Alamo City, Dec. 15-17.

In the preliminary game, the Lee sophomores pulled out a narrow 59-58 victory over the Abernathy junior varsity with Benny Brazzel scoring 10 points for the winners.

Lee's junior varaity was facing Lubbock Coronado in the Snyder JV Tourney Friday night.

Brazzel scored the basket that pulled the Lee sophs to within one point and the winning basket in the final eight seconds.

HOBBS, N.M. — The powerful Hobbs, N.M., Eagles stormed past the Midland Bulldogs, 103-59, Friday night in a non-district basketball game in Tasker Arena.

Seattle bombs Celts in NBA game, 111-89

BOSTON (AP) — Guard Gus Williams collected 16 of his 23 points in the second period Friday night, sparking the Seattle SuperSonics to a 111-89 victory over the Boston Celtics Friday night in a National Basketball Association game.

Williams' backcourt partner Dennis Johnson had 24 as the SuperSonics posted their second victory in a row under new Coach Len Wilkens, who was moved from Seattle player personnel director when Bob Hopkins was fired this week.

Brownwood takes big win

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Nathan Allen hurled two first half touchdown passes and Doug Hurt galloped for two second half touchdowns Friday night to spark third-ranked Brownwood to a 42-20 Class 3A semifinal football victory over Saginaw Boswell.

The victory was the 13th straight without a loss for the perennially powerful Lions, who will advance to meet either Dickinson or Silsbee in next week's championship game.

Texas Tech runs to win

Aggies shoot for records

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M junior fullback George Woodard could become the Aggies all-time leading ground gainer and barefoot Tony Franklin needs just four points to become the school's top scorer, Saturday in a Southwest Conference finale against Houston.

The Aggies, who will play Southern California in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 31, have already clinched at least a tie for third place behind Arkansas and Texas.

Houston, four-point underdogs, could tie the Aggies for third with a victory in the nationally televised (3:05 p.m.) contest.

A&M is 7-3 overall and 5-2 in league play while Houston is 6-4 and 4-3.

Woodard, the 266-pound fullback in the Aggies' Wishbone-T formation, needs just 40 yards rushing to catch Bubba Bean's record of 2,846 yards. Only 10 more carries will also make Woodard the busiest rusher in SWC history. He has carried the ball 596 times.

The record is 605 carries by Southern Methodist's Wayne Morris, now a bright new star in the National Football League.

Kicker Franklin has 221 career points just behind Joel Hunt's 224 total established 1925-27.

A crowd in excess of 50,000 was expected for the game.

Aggie Coach Emory Bellard figures both teams will be playing emotional football even though only pride is at stake.

"We lost a game that was very meaningful to us and lost it in convincing style," said Bellard of last week's 57-28 defeat at the hands of top-rated Texas. "That is not something that makes you jump with joy.

"But we're not going to roll over and play dead. We've got to have an inspirational performance."

Houston has been a rapidly improving team under the leadership of quarterback Delrick Brown after starter Danny Davis suffered a separated shoulder.

"Delrick Brown is quick as a cat and throws effectively," says Bellard.

Aggie defensive end Phil Bennett says the A&M offense has been carrying its share of the load but that the defense needs to get better.

"I'd put our offense up against any in the nation," says Bennett.

The Aggies go into the game ranked 17th in the nation.

Redskins sign Kiick to fill backfield void

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins, their offensive backfield depleted by injuries, have signed veteran running back Jim Kiick.

Kiick, 31, starred for the Miami Dolphins alongside Larry Csonka several years ago. But he has done little of note since jumping to the World Football League in 1974.

He was released by the Denver Broncos three different times this season, twice being reclaimed. He carried the ball only once for one yard and caught two passes for 14 yards. On Nov. 8 came his final release.

Redskins Coach George Allen called the 5-foot-11, 205-pound Kiick, who has a career rushing average of 3.8 yards per carry for six National Football League seasons and is also a fine pass receiver, "the best back available. We needed another running back badly."

Starting fullback Clarence Harmon is limping on a sprained ankle and reserve Eddie Moss has a calf injury. Former starter John Riggins is still recuperating from torn knee ligaments and not ready for action.

Kiick, who was signed Thursday, takes the roster spot of defensive end Dennis Johnson, who has been placed on injured reserve.

Bullpups whip Abilene Cooper

SNYDER — The Midland High Bullpups downed Abilene Cooper here Friday night, 49-42 in the opening round of the Snyder Invitational Junior Varsity Basketball Tournament.

The Pack, champions in this tournament a year ago, will meet the winner of Friday night's Lubbock Monterey San Angelo clash in Saturday's semifinals. Tip-off is 12:30 p.m.

Chuck Wilson and John Leede paced the Midland scoring attack with 16 and 10 points respectively, while Joe Gotcher tossed in eight.

Pancho Carter injured

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — U.S. Auto Club driver Duane "Pancho" Carter was critically injured Friday when his race car slammed into a guard rail at an estimated 160 miles an hour and burst into flames at Phoenix International Raceway.

The 27-year-old Carter, of Brownsburg, Ind., underwent more than four hours of surgery for internal injuries and fractures but was not burned, according to a spokesman for the Fletcher Racing Team.

Carter was testing the Lightning-Cosworth car for the Fletcher team when the vehicle swerved suddenly on the track's front straightaway.

The Indianapolis-type car was destroyed.

"The skid marks show the car veering to the right, then a jerk to the left. It looked like he locked the brakes up and then the car smashed the inside guard rail hust after it passed the corner coming out of turn four," said Dennis Wood, PIR general manager.

"He was conscious the entire time but was in a lot of pain," Wood said of efforts to rescue Carter from the burning car. "His firesuit did its job and he wasn't burned."

Doctors said Carter broke a leg, both arms, wrists and hands, and suffered fractures on both sides of his pelvis. They said the only apparent internal injury was to his bladder, causing some internal bleeding.

"He had put around 50 laps in the car after he started running at 10 a.m.," said Bob Fletcher, owner of the car. "The car had felt good to him. But we didn't have the cockpit fitted to him yet since he's much stockier than Bobby is."

Cowboys' 'if' is the best if

By The Associated Press

If you like to fool around with ifs, there are all sorts of possible combinations available in the National Football League this weekend as the division races head into their final three games.

The "iffiest" contest on the schedule is Oakland's match at Los Angeles with a number of possibilities depending on the outcome.

If the Rams beat the Raiders and if Atlanta loses to New England, Los Angeles wraps up a fifth consecutive National Conference West championship.

On the other hand, if Oakland wins and if New England loses to Atlanta and if Miami loses to Baltimore, the Raiders would be assured of at least the American Conference wild card playoff berth.

Then there's always the Monday night Baltimore-Miami battle to think about. If the Colts win and New England loses to Atlanta, Baltimore clinches the AFC East. If that happens and if Oakland also wins on Sunday, the Dolphins can forget about the playoffs.

But if the Dolphins win, the AFC East race would be tied going into the final two weeks of the season.

A similiar situation exists in the NFC Central, where Minnesota is nursing a one-game edge over Chicago. The Vikings host San Francisco Sunday while the Bears visit winless Tampa Bay.

And Pittsburgh holds a onegame lead over the three other teams, Houston, Cleveland and Cincinnati, in the AFC Central. If Seattle upsets the Steelers Sunday and the other three teams win — Cleveland at San Diego, Houston against Denver and Cincinnati at Kansas City — it would mean a four-way tie at the top.

The other if is Dallas, which can nail down the NFC East championship by beating Philadelphia. The Cowboys already have clinched no worse than the NFC wild card berth.

In Sunday's other games, Detroit plays at Green Bay, St. Louis visits the New York Giants, the New York Jets are at New Orleans and Washington plays at Buffalo.

Because of the relatively short 14-game season, the NFL always faces the possibility of division ties. The crowded calendar does not allow room for extra playoff games to break those deadlocks, so the league lives with a complicated formula that eventually delivers a winner.

The eight criteria to snap ties begin with won-lost records, first in head-to-head meetings, then within the division and then within the conference, provided the tied teams have played the same number of intra-conference games. The fourth rule, which could apply in projected Chicago-Minnesota and Oakland-Denver ties, is point differential in head-tohead games. If it comes to that, the Vikings and Broncos have the edges, Minnesota by three points in its two games against the Bears and Denver by 13 in its two games against the Raiders.

Average point differentials would be applied to games within the division, games within the conference and finally the whole schedule. The eighth and final tie-break solution is a coin flip.

Lee, MHS girls win

CLEBURNE — The Robert E. Lee girls and Midland High girls posted victories Friday night in the Cleburne Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Lee ripped Waxahachie, 65-37, to move into today's finals at 7 p.m. against Arlington High.

Midland took a 60-42 triumph over Fort Worth Castleberry and will face Cleburne for consolation honors today at 1 p.m.

Patty Adams flipped in 21 points for Lee while teammate Schilla McCalister added 14. Dee Poole and Debra Kittle chipped in with 12 each for Lee.

Beth Thomason led the MHS attack with 22 points and Karen Cook had 16.

Cotton Bowl is nervous

By The Associated Press

It would, at first blush, appear to be a "nothing" game — but it means everything to a lot of guys in Dallas.

It's Saturday night's matchup between the fifth-ranked Fighting Irish of Notre Dame and the underdog host University of Miami. And the prospect of a victory by the Hurricanes has the Cotton Bowl crowd slightly nervous at best. After all, bringing Notre Dame in to play top-ranked Texas in Dallas on Jan. 2 wouldn't exactly have the aura of a titanic struggle if the Irish take it on the chin from a 24-point underdog.

In Saturday's other major action it's 16th-ranked San Diego State at San Jose State, Bluebonnet Bowl-bound No.17 Texas A&M vs. visiting Houston, Tangerine Bowl-bound No. 19 Florida State at Florida and Arizona at Hawaii.

"Miami has played extremely well at times against the best competition in the nation," Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine says. "Their defensive line is about as good as we've seen. That's been their strong point in most ball games."

But what about the Cotton Bowl, coach? How do the Irish shape up for that? "We haven't discussed the bowl game...It's much more important now to win our last game and the players are mature enough to realize the importance of preparing for the final game," Devine stressed.

"You never really know what to expect from an underdog, especially in the last game of the season. It still holds true that the underdog has everything to gain and nothing to lose and that puts the burden on the favorite."

San Diego State's Aztecs take a 9-1 record into their game against San Jose State — but have nothing to look forward to after it. They received no bowl bids, even though they walloped bowl-bound Florida State 41-16 two weeks ago.

Last August, defending Southwest Conference co-champion Houston and talent-rich Texas A&M agreed to a shifting of their game back to Saturday since it figured the nationally televised game would decide the SWC title.

Texas ruined all that by crushing the Aggies 57-28 last week to win the title and the Cotton Bowl berth. Thus, about the only interesting sidelight to the game will be George Woodard's performance. The A&M junior needs 40 yards rushing to pass Bubba Bean's 2,846 career yards at the school.

In Saturday's other games, Winston-Salem State and South Carolina State meet in the Gold Bowl at Richmond, Va.; Wabach and Widener play for the NCAA Division III championship game at Phenix City, Ala.; the Division II semifinals will be played between Lehigh and UC-Davis at Davis, Calif., and North Dakota State and Jacksonville State at Anniston, Ala.; the NAIA Division I semifinals will be played between Wisconsin-Steves Point and Abilene Christian at Abilene, Tex., and Kearney, Neb., State vs. Southwestern Oklahoma at Weathersford, Okla., and Westminster, Pa., and California Lutheran play for the NAIA Division II title game at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Rookies stun golf field

LARGO, Fla. (AP)— Fresh faced rookies Nancy Lopez and Curtis Strange combined for a 65 that pulled them to within three strokes of the uncompleted leaders, Jerry Pate and Hollis Stacy, in Friday's rain-delayed and darkness-halted second round of the $200,000 Mixed Team Golf Championship.

Pate and Stacy were among the 16 teams stranded by darkness on the water-logged, 7,015 yard, par 72 North Course at the Bardmoor Country Club. They marked their position on the course and will complete second round play Saturday morning with third-round play scheduled Saturday afternoon.

With one hole to go the front-running Pate and Stacy were 13 under par.

"We're gonna birdie that hole," Stacy said.

They had a first-round 61 and established a six-shot lead through the first round, but couldn't retain that margin on the slow, wet greens.

"Very trying conditions," Stacy said. "It was just a day where you try to hang in there."

Lopez, a 20-year-old who holed four putts in the 20-25 foot range, and the 22-year-old Strange were 10 under par with a 36-hole total of 134.

"We've made a good combination," said Strange, who, like Nancy, turned pro and joined the tour in the middle of the summer. "Nancy's driving it good, I'm ironing it good and she's putting just great. It's a good combo."

The unusual format for this unique event—the only one of the year in which men and women pros play together—has each member of the team driving on each hole. The man plays his second shot on the woman's ball, and vice versa. Then they pick the one they want and play alternate shots on the same ball for the remainder of the hole.

Veteran Tommy Bolt and Jo Ann Prentice were third at 136 after a second consecutive 68.

Chi Chi Rodriguez and Jo Ann Washam, who won under a slightly different format at Doral in the inaugural Mixed Team event a year ago, were next at 138 after a 68 in the chilly, cloudy, occasionally drizzly weather.

The Palmers, Arnold and Sandra, also were stranded on the course and were 6 under par with one hole to play.

Heavy morning showers, which dumped more than an inch of rain on the course, delayed the start of the day's play for two hours and left the course a wet, soggy, puddled quagmire.

Pate, a two-time winner this year despite missing most of the summer with an injury, and Stacy, the current women's Open champ, bogeyed two of their first three holes and had to work hard to get it back to two under par for the day when play was halted.

William and Mary may drop football program

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — A faculty-student athletic policy committee at the College of William and Mary has recommended immediate discontinuance of the college's varsity football program.

In a preliminary report to the board of visitors, the committee said the football program will have a deficit of $320,000 by 1982 at its present level of competition.

The committee said it favored continuing a full, collegiate basketball program but regarded the dropping of football as the only feasible way to solve the college's athletic financial problems.

The report came only three years after the board of visitors voted to continue a subsidized football program, provided it could become financially sulf-sufficient by 1979.

Despite 7-4 and 6-5 records in football the past two years, the program has continued in the red.

William & Mary President Thomas Graves emphasized that "this is only a preliminary report."

Graves said the board of visitors will meet Dec. 8-10 to study alternative ways to resolve the financial problems.

"The board of visitors will make a decision (as to the future of the football program) near the end of February," the W&M president said.

Graves also indicated William and Mary would have NCAA Division I football — or nothing. He said the college is not interested in Division II or Division III.

"If we have football, we'll have the best program possible and one that is compatible with our education mission," he said. "We're dedicated to excellence in our whole range of academics and athletics."

The faculty-student committee outlined six ways to eliminate the financial deficit in sports, but said elimination of football was the only feasible method.

Football represents 57 per. cent of the men's athletic budget at William and Mary.

Members of the William and Mary athletic department fumed privately over the committee report, but neither Athletic Director Ben Carnevale nor football Coach Jim Root would comment.

Fighter draws suspension

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Mexican Alfonso Zamora, who took a count of 10 on the seat of his pants against an opponent he allegedly had under contract, was suspended indefinitely Friday by the California Athletic Commission.

Zamora unsuccessfully tried to defend his World Boxing Association 118-pound crown against 10-1 underdog Jorge Lujan of Panama. When a right to the face put him down in the 10th, he made no visible effort to get up from the neutral corner.

Bob Turley, executive officer of the ruling California boxing group, said the Zamora suspension came because the fighter from Mexico City had executed two contracts with Lujan even before the title fight at the Los Angeles Sports Arena on Nov. 19.

The first agreement, said Turley, would have Lujan fighting next for a promoter approved by Zamora and receiving $40,000. The alternate agreement would have Lujan getting $50,000 for fighting Zamora in a promotion by a person selected by the Mexican 23-year-old.

In neither situation was the site announced but was assumed to be in Mexico City.

Turley sid that Pancho Rosales, advisor to Zamora, brought copies of the pre-fight agreements to the athletic commission following the bout.

"If he had brought them before, we would not have permitted the fight to have taken place," Turley said. "Entering into an agreement of this nature is not in the best interests of boxing and is totally unacceptable to the California Commission."

Lujan, who has a 21-1-1 record, downed the champion after commanding the fight from the early rounds. The challenger earned just $12,500 for this fight with the champ getting $40,000.

Zamora came into the ring with a 28-1 record, having knocked out all of his victims. His only loss was to WBC kingpin Carlos Zarate in a non-title fight.

The question appears to be whether he did his best in the Lujan fight, and the commission will have to determine that.

Turley said he had sent the suspension notice to Jose Suliaman, president of the World Boxing Council and Dr. Elias Cordova, who heads the committee on ratings.

Bulldogs, Rebels eye cross country chase

LUBBOCK—Midland High and Midland Lee both have a lot at stake here today in the Regional AAAA Cross Country meet at McKenzie Park.

The Midland High Bulldogs, who lost the District 5-4A cross country meet by one point to San Angelo two weeks ago, will try to make amends here today, but tough teams from El Paso will give the Bulldogs problems.

The Midland Lee girls, who won the 5-4A meet on their first try as a team, will be seeing their first regional action.

The top three teams and top 10 individuals in each division will earn a trip to Georgetown next Saturday for the state AAAA run.

Midland High won the Texas Tech Invitational cross country meet earlier this year on the same course.

"In fact, we have never lost a meet on this course," Midland High coach Ed Nixon said this week. "I hope that is a good omen, but the competition will be tough. Of course, San Angelo has a good team, but El Paso has three teams in Riverside, Austin and Burges that will have fine runners."

Jeff Adkins, who was third in the district meet, paces the Bulldog runners. Pat Darden placed eighth while Chuck Stump and Paul Darden finished 10th and 11th respectively. Gene Tuttle and Tom Hunter are the other two regulars, but sophomore Bob Glenn will be moved to the varsity to replace Bart Wolfe, who is sick. Wolfe placed seventh in the district run.

Midland Lee will have two individuals trying to earn a state berth in Steve Hooper and Ricky Parsons. Hooper placed fifth in the 5-4A meet while Parsons was ninth, and that is the reason the two Lee runners advanced to the regionals. Lee, however, can't win the team title.

The Lee girls are new to regional cross country, and no one seems to know just how well they will do here today.

Holly Franz and Shelley Hall pace the Rebels since both were top 10 finishers in the 5-4A meet. Franz and Hall placed sixth and ninth. Jerri Moore and Terry Reyes placed in the top 15. Other Lee girls are Sabrina Hicks, Vanessa Wood and Tanya Phiffer.

Gullikson nabs tennis victory

BOMBAY, India (ap) — Sixth-seeded Tom Gullikson of the United States defeated India's Anand Amritraj 1-6, 7-6, 6- 1 in the quarter-finals of the Indian Grand Prix tennis championship Friday.

Amritraj earlier had upset Tom's top-seeded twin brother, Tim, eliminating him from the tournament.

Record numbers play golf

By REX WORRELL

The weatherman couldn't have been better at arranging golf weather for November. Golfers turned out in record numbers at Hogan Park during the month.

Figures for the month were annual fee players, 1,626; green fee players, 1,798; high school players, 420; and college players, 66; for a total of 3,910. Green fee revenue was $5,938 with school fees of $337.50 for a total revenue of $6,275.50.

In comparsion, November of 1976 produced 1,045 annual fee players, 1,515 green fee players, 312 high school players and three college players for a total of 2,875.

LAST NOVEMBER'S green fee revenue was $3,264.50 while school revenue was $126.30 for a total of $3,390.80. This reflects and increase 1,035 players and $2,884.70 in revenue. The increase in play was a result of the good weather while the increase in revenue was aided by the fee increase of last April and the weather.

George Vannaman and B. C. Vincent witnessed a hole-in-one during November. The ace was recorded by 68-year old Baird Neville. Baird scored the ace on the 170-yard, No. 16 hole at Hogan on Nov. 18. According to reliable witnesses, Baird hit a four wood with a slight pull that nicked a few branches in the willow tree to the left of the green before coming to rest in the hole.

THE HOGAN Park Men's Golf Association has scheduled a Scotch Twosome Tournament for Dec. 17. Entry fee for the event is $5 plus green fee. Deadline for entering is Dec. 15th at 6 p.m. The tournament will be flighted by total handicap of the partners, and partners will be restricted to six strokes difference in handicap. This should be a fun tournament, and all members are encouraged to sign up early.

The annual membership party of the Hogan Park Women's Golf Association will be Thursday from 10 a.m. till noon at 1006 Neely. Guests are invited. Women golfers, who are new in town or who want to join the association, are invited to attend. Annual dues are $10.

THE LADIES conducted a trophy day tournament Thursday. Jet Schultz won the 18-hole flight with a fine net score of 66 while second place went to two-time winner Bernice Cox with a 67. Gene Velten captured third with a 71.

Bernice Webb won the nine-hole trophy with a net 35 while Jeanne Allen's net 38 took second.

Jet Schultz scored the best round of her golfing career in winning the 18-hole flight. Jet had a gross 91, and started out with a birdie four on No. 1 before finishing with a birdie three on No. 18.

ACU Wildcats earn spotlight

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Abilene Christian University has been playing under the shadow of perennial power Texas A&I for the past four years, but the Wildcats of the West Texas school have the spotlight to themselves Saturday.

Abilene Christian Coach Dewitt Jones says all his team needs to keep the standards set by the three straight NAIA national championships won by Texas A&I is five or six 80-yard scoring drives in its battle with Wisconsin-Stevens Point in the semifinal match.

The winner of the battle between the two high-octane offenses goes to the NAIA national championship Dec. 10 in Seattle.

In the other semifinal game, top-ranked Southwest Oklahoma, 10-0, takes on fifth-ranked Kearney State, 8-1-1, Saturday in Weatherford, Okla.

Abilene Christian, which tied A&I and shared the Lone Star championship with the Javelinas, is ranked No. 2 in the NAIA Division 1 ratings. The Wildcats racked up a 9-1-1 record averaging 31.5 points and more than 410 yards per game. They boast the NAIA's third-leading passer and a fleet receiver who has caught 46 passes for 986 yards.

The Pointers, ranked No. 6, and 8-1-1 for the year, are averaging 31 points and more than 350 yards per game. They also have the NAIA's fourth-leading passer, who has compiled more than 10,000 total yards in his career — more than any other college quarterback.

"We are going to have to take the ball and drive 80 yards five or six times early in the game to keep it away from their high-powered offense," said Jones, who is in his first year at Abilene Christian.

Pointers Coach Ron Steiner said he is concerned about Abilene Christian's speed.

"We will have to maintain ball control. We don't have anybody with their speed. We'll just have to stay back and see what happens."

Abilene Christian's sophomore quarterback John Mayes of Fort Worth Texas, has racked up 2,201 yards and passed for 15 touchdowns although he missed three games with a broken thumb.

He returned from the injury in the second quarter of Abile Christian's 10th game, with the Wildcats trailing 20-0 behind Southwest Texas State and passed for 403 yards and three touchdowns. He also scored the winning touchdown in a 36-30 victory.

Speedy Cleotha Montgomery, younger brother of Philadelphia rookie Wilber Montgomery, is Mayes' favorite receiver. He has caught 46 passes for 10 touchdowns.

Woody Hayes placed on probation by Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP) — Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes was placed on probation Friday and publicly reprimanded by Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke for unsportsman-like conduct in taking a swing at a television cameraman.

Hayes struck ABC cameraman Michael Freedman late in the fourth period of Ohio State's 14-6 loss to Michigan Nov. 19. Hayes later publicly and privately apologized to Freedman.

Hayes will have to be on his good behavior for the next year and if he draws another reprimand from the commissioner during that time, he automatically will be suspended from coaching Ohio State for the following two games.

"Based upon my investigation of this matter," Duke said, "I have concluded that Coach Hayes, in striking Mr. Freedman, violated the Big Ten Conference's regulation dealing with sportsman-like conduct.

"In accordance with conference rules, I am issuing this public reprimand, citing his actions as an unfortunate display of unsportsman-like conduct and invoke the conference rule requiring that should Coach Hayes engage in another unsportsman-like act within one year from this date, he will be automatically suspended from coaching the two football games for Ohio State following the second offense."

In reaching his conclusion, Duke said "I have taken into account the fact that the incident...occurred during a game charged with much emotion."

Duke said he had viewed videotapes of the incident and they showed that Freedman was standing between the 33-34-yard lines and within 2 to 4 yards of Hayes. This is in violation of NCAA football rules which restrict cameramen outside the 30-yard lines.

"However," Duke said, "I want to emphasize that these factors...do not excuse the action taken by Coach Hayes."

Hayes has been reprimanded and placed on probation before as have Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan and former Illinois Coach Bob Blackman—all for making public comments about officiating.

Hayes had no comments about the reprimand and probation but Harold Enarson, Ohio State University president, issued a statement in which he said he had reviewed the matter with "Hayes who has expressed regrets both publicly and privately for this incident."

Tarleton fortunes rise

STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP) — At a West Central Texas college where the top sport has traditionally been played on the backs of broncos and bulls, football has made a comeback.

And the gridiron renaissance was keyed by the dropping of athletic scholarships.

After six years of humiliating defeats to members of the tough Lone Star Conference, Tarleton State University dropped out of the league and helped form the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Tarleton's Texans were 7-3 this season and took the league crown.

There are no athletic scholarships in the TIAA.

The championship season brought Texan fans temporarily out of the rodeo arena and to the stadium. School officials say the fans finally had a reason to stay past halftime at the grid games.

"We were spending sizable amounts of good money to get zapped with 1-9 seasons and a loser's outlook," said Tarleton president W.O. Trogdon. "We're spending much less now and enjoying it more. The fun is back in football."

The TIAA just completed its second season and includes Tarleton, Austin College, McMurry College, Trinity University and Sul Ross, another Lone Star dropout.

The rebirth of football at the 3,000 students campus here shows on the roster. The team had 80 players this season — twice as many as in previous years. More than 100 tried out, leaving officials with an equipment shortage.

The non-scholarship program has benefitted from NCAA rules limiting scholarships at major schools, according to Coach Buddy Fornes.

"We've been pleasantly surprised at the caliber of players we signed last spring," Forney, who is also athletic director, said. "The beauty of this program is that if the kids don't make it in athletics they won't be dropping out of school, since they aren't on scholarships in the first place."

Tarleton is still honoring scholarships given before the change.

TIAA officials are considering expanding the conference. Among the schools expressing interest is Mary Hardin-Baylor in Belton, Texas. Long an all-female school Mary HardinBaylor now has 900 men on campus.

Like many colleges, Mary Hardin-Baylor is facing federal guidelines mandating equal athletic opportunity for both sexes. Unlike most schools, however, the men are the minority at Mary Hardin-Baylor. The school is interested in TIAA sports other than football, officials said.

Italy teeters

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Italy's dominance in the Davis Cup teetered Friday as Australians Tony Roche and John Alexander won the first two singles matches.

Roche's victim was 27-year-old Italian No. 1 player, Adriano Panatta, who had improved steadily in a month of practice on the unfamiliar grass courts of the White City stadium center court.

Roche played with no evidence of the elbow injury that took him from tennis in 1974, and won 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Coffee, meat top food cost gainers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Grocery bills at the start of December were almost 10 percent higher than they were in January, but shoppers who have managed to cut coffee purchases have avoided most of the increase, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items on March 1, 1973, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item — chocolate chip cookies — had to be dropped from the list as of the end of November because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

Among the latest findings:

—The marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in every city during the first 11 months of 1977, rising an average of 9 percent. When coffee was removed from the total, however, the average increase was only 3½ percent. Coffee prices generally average about $3.59 a pound, $1 or more above January levels.

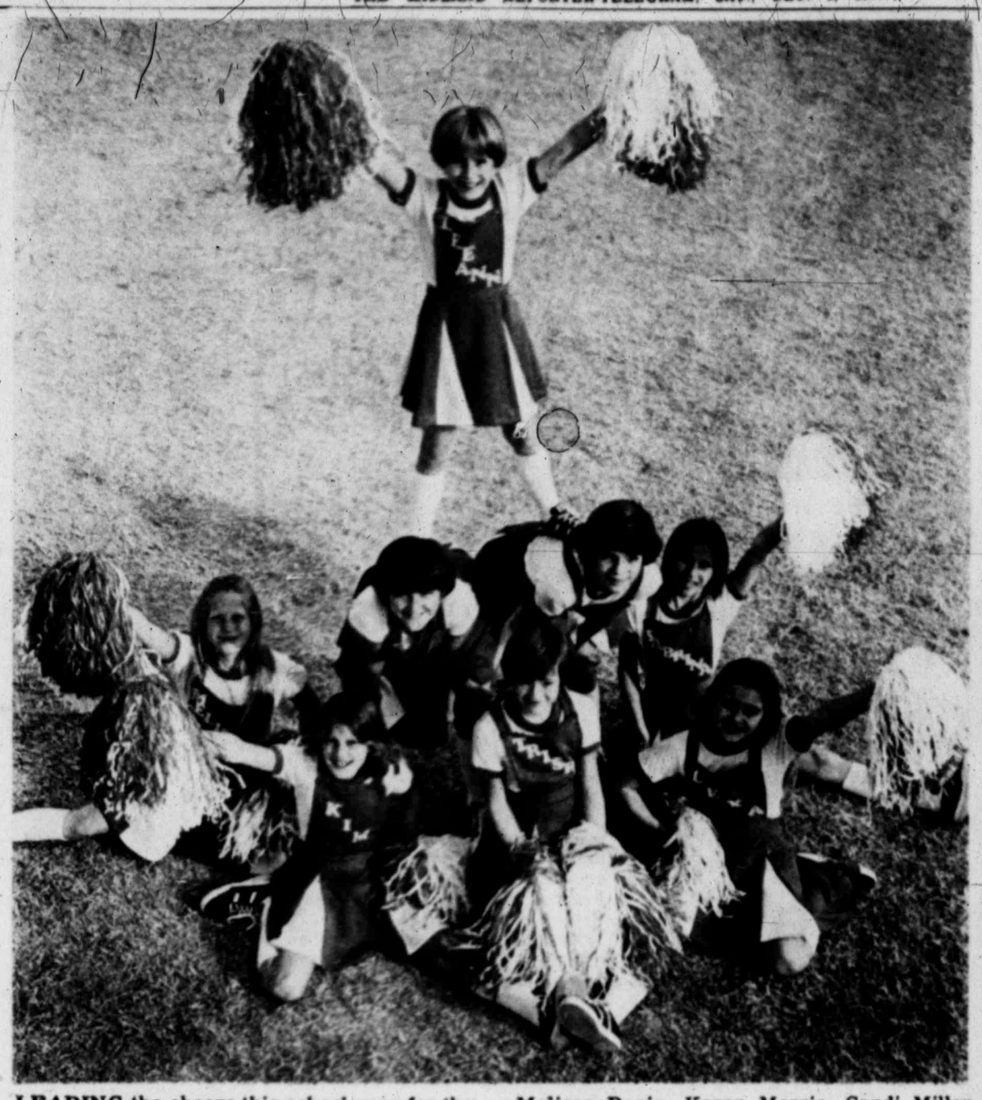

—Prices increased slightly during November. The AP survey showed that the marketbasket bill increased last month at the checklist store in seven cities and decreased in six. The average increase was 2.3 percent and the average drop was 1.8 percent. Overall, the average marketbasket bill at the start of December was fourtenths of 1 percent higher than it was a month earlier. During October, the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores dropped an average of one-tenth of 1 percent.

—Higher prices for meat were responsible for much of the November boost. Meats represent 21 percent of the items in the marketbasket, but accounted for 31 percent of the increases last month. The AP survey showed that the price of a pound of center-cut pork chops increased last month at the checklist store in seven cities; chopped chuck went up in five cities and frankfurters rose in three.

—Breakfast staples also increased during November. The price of frozen orange juice concentrate increased at the checklist store in seven cities and the cost of a dozen eggs went up in eight cities.

—Cookie lovers were out of luck. The 14½-ounce bag of chocolate chip cookies which had been used for the survey has been discontinued by the manufacturer, Nabisco, and has been replaced with a 13ounce bag designed to sell for the same price. The company blamed higher cocoa prices for the change.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

Research reconstructs story of woman revolutionary hero

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — She was dead for 38 years before the world learned of Lydia Darragh, the heroic woman who saved George Washington's revolutionary army 200 years ago this month.

The archives of the University of California at Berkeley show only a few published references to the incident in besieged Philadelphia during the bitter winter of 1777.

But there is enough in the stacks on the American Revolution to reconstruct the startling affair that gave the nation one of its earliest and unlikeliest spies — a delicate, righteous Quaker lady.

Philadelphia was in enemy hands the night of Dec. 2. Washington and his ragged, starving men were shivering at Valley Forge when the Irishborn woman was called before the British officer who had requisitioned her house.

Sternly, the unnamed adjutant general confronted the 48- year-old woman who was known in the community as a skillful nurse wife. But she had another reputation.

Mrs. Darragh was under a cloud in the Society of Friends for her membership in the "Fighting Quakers," a group which rejected the sect's strict requirement of pacifism. In fact, her son Charles was an officer in the revolutionary army and was rebuked for this later.

The adjutant general informed the little woman her family were under orders to retire early that night because he and his staff were to have a council.

Accordingly, she and the family went to bed at 7 o'clock, the archives show. But Mrs. Darragh, her curiosity aroused by the urgency of the general's orders, couldn't sleep. The minutes dragged by. Finally, she slipped downstairs and pressed her ear to the keyhole of the council chamber.

She overheard an order for all British troops to march two nights later and attack Gen. Washington's despairing army. She rushed back to her bedroom, in turmoil over the threat she had overheard.

A militant believer in the American fight for independence, she decided on a desperate course of action. Gen. Washington must learn of the British plan. The morning of Dec. 4 she told her family they needed flour, and with this story she succeeded in getting a pass to go through British lines to Frankford.

Not daring to tell even her husband of her mission, she went to the mill at Frankford, got the flour, then pressed on deep into American-held territory, where she met an officer she happened to know, Lt. Col. Thomas Craig of the Light Horse.

Taking him aside, the woman confided the momentous secret gleaned at the keyhole, after extracting a promise that her identity be kept secret. The startled officer sped off to Washington's freezing encampment and told the commander in chief the British were planning a surprise attack.

That evening, Gen. Sir William Howe marched out of Philadelphia with a strong force to destroy the American revolutionary army.

As reported in the American Quarterly Review of March 1827, from narrative accounts by Mrs. Darragh, a thoroughly confounded adjutant general later confronted her in her house. The woman's blood ran cold with terror, fearing her secret was out.

Said the British general: "... When we arrived near Whitemarsh, we found all their cannons mounted and the troops prepared to receive us. We marched back like a parcel of fools."

Mrs. Darragh waited for the blow to fall, perhaps an order for her execution. As if in response to her unspoken thought, the general earnestly inquired whether any of her family were up the night he and the other officers had their meeting.

Then he added: "I know YOU were asleep, for I knocked at your chamber door ... I am entirely at a loss to imagine who gave Gen. Washington information of our intended attack, unless the walls of the house could speak."

The little Quakeress went back to her kitchen, a tight smile on her lips.

Meany backs Nureyev plea

NEW YORK (AP) — AFLCIO President George Meany has added his support to a bid to get Soviet authorities to permit the family of dancer Rudolf Nureyev to leave the Soviet Union.

Letter sets record

NEW YORK (AP) — A letter Richard Nixon wrote an Army general six years ago fetched $6,250 at an auction at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Charles Hamilton Galleries said it was the most ever paid for a letter by any living person.

Nixon wrote the letter Dec. 14, 1971, to Brig. Gen. Thomas A. Aldrich, then commander of the U.S. Air Force in the Azores, and his wife. Mary Benjamin of Walter R. Benjamin Inc., an autograph dealer in Hunter, N.Y., bought it at the auction Thursday night.

The previous record for a letter by a living person — $3,000 — was paid for a letter written by Jacqueline Kennedy to an Englishman who had sent her a letter asking for money. That letter was sold by Charles Hamilton in 1967.

5 percent price increase likely for both real, artificial trees

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Real or artificial? No matter what kind of a tree you choose for Christmas, you'll pay more than you did last year, and it makes sense to know what to look for.

John Koch, a Birdsboro, Pa., grower and spokesman for the National Christmas Tree Association, said prices paid to the people who raise the trees are about 5 percent or 6 percent higher than they were last year. He said increases at the retail level will vary from area to area.

American Tree & Wreath, the country's biggest manufacturer of artificial trees, said retail prices for its products were about 5 percent above 1976 levels. Marketing head Don Warning also said that buyers are choosing more expensive models, despite price increases.

Koch said there was a possibility of some spot shortages of trees. He said wholesalers bought up all the trees early in the season this year, indicating they expected demand to be bigger than supply. Growers will sell about 27 million live trees this year, Koch said, about the same as last year.

The most popular species are the Scotch pine and the Douglas fir, followed by the Balsam fir. A six-foot Scotch pine sold for about $4.25 to $5.25 at the wholesale level. Freight charges and retailers costs and profits mean consumers will pay at least double this amount and probably more, Koch said.

The first thing to look for when buying a live tree is freshness. Try bending the needles. They should feel rubbery and should not break. The color should be dark green, the tree should have a strong evergreen smell and the butt should be sticky with sap.

To keep the tree fresh, make a new cut at the bottom of the tree — or have the retailer do it for you. This enables the tree to absorb water. Once you get the tree home, put it in a cool place, away from radiators, and give it plenty of water. Check the stand daily to see if it needs refilling. Koch said a tree that has been standing in a lot for some time may absorb as much as three quarts of water a day.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a voluntary grading system for trees and some growers tag their products according to quality. The grades are based on shape, density, freshness and absence of defects. U.S. Premium is the top grade, followed by U.S. No. 1 and U.S. No. 2.

Appearance is also a key factor when it comes to buying an artificial tree. One industry spokesman said realism was the most important consideration. "The better the tree, the faster it sells, the more it looks like a live tree," he said.

Other considerations to keep in mind include ease of assembly, storage and flame resistance. Remember: Just because something is fire resistant, doesn't mean it won't burn at all. Even if the tree is artificial, it should be placed away from heat sources.

Prices generally start at about $10 for a small artificial tree and go to over $100 for larger, fuller varieties. The most popular models generally are six feet tall and can be stored in a carton about the size of a small coffee table. The so-called convenience trees — which you do not have to assemble branch-by-branch — are more expensive.

Warning said his company — which accounts for about 55 percent of the artificial trees sold in the United States every year — estimates that about 23 million artificial trees will be in use this year.

He also said studies indicate that an increasing number of consumers are switching from real to artificial trees. According to Warning, a survey of 23,176 persons who bought artificial trees last year, showed that almost 45 percent had purchased a live tree the year before.

Consumers keep artificial trees an average of six years, although Warning said they can last much longer — "even a lifetime, with proper care."

'High-hazard' dam inspections spurred

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Friday he hopes his stepped up dam inspection program will reach 1,800 high-hazard, non-federal dams within the next 10 months.

Carter, spurred by last month's dam collapse in his home state of Georgia, had announced on Wednesday plans for an intensive inspection program. On Friday the president disclosed further details, saying 1,800 dams have been scheduled for inspection before the current fiscal year ends next Sept. 30, at a cost of $15 million.

The dams targeted for inspection are listed as having a high hazard potential because they are upstream from population centers. Inspectors from the Army Corps of Engineers will try to determine if they also pose special dangers because of structural flaws.

Last month a private dam gave way at Toccoa Falls, Ga., claiming 38 lives. Carter's home town is Plains, Ga. The Toccoa Falls collapse was but the latest in a series of major dam washouts since 1972 that have left 355 persons dead in Idaho, South Dakota and West Virginia.

Declaring he wants to "help prevent further tragedies like that at Toccoa Falls," Carter said in a statement:

"This dam inspection program cannot be a substitute for effective dam safety programs at the state level; it is intended to stimulate the states to action."

Carter had announced earlier that he was launching a fouryear program to inspect all 9,000 non-federal dams in the high-hazard group. But he didn't say how many would be checked the first year. Carter said Friday the cost of the four year program is estimated at $70 million.

According to federal officials, very few high-hazard dams ever have been inspected for safety. They represent nearly 20 percent of the approximately 49,000 dams in the United States, most of which are privately owned.

Carter said the federal inspections "will involve no assumption of federal liability," which will rest with the owners of the dams.

Before the inspections begin, he said, governors will be asked "to take certain steps toward establishing an adequate state program for dam safety." For states that agree, and those already having such programs, Carter promised "priority for federsistancections and technical assistance."

Midlanders aid college fund effort

Several Midlanders are involved in efforts to raise money for the United Negro College Fund from residents of this area.

Wilbur A. Yeager Jr., president of The First National Bank of Midland, and Joe Domjnguez are working to raise advance gifts for the college fund. Yeager also serves as regional developmemt council chairman for the Texas Association of Developing Colleges, the Texas branch of the college fund.

Also participating in the fund raising campaign are Annie Wright, John Striggles, Mamie Williams, Shorty Stokes, Jane Ramsoure, Myrtle Shearod, Larry Gilbert and Walter Nedd.

Annie D. Jones is heading the fund raising campaign's telethon activities for Midland. The telethon, called "Something Special," will be aired from 7 to 10 p.m. today on Channel 2, KMID-TV.

The Midlanders are planning to reach a goal of $25,000 this year. About $18,200 already has been collected. The statewide goal is $1.3 million.

Advertisements reflect police officers' views

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston police, unhappy over the size of a pay hike, plan to use newspaper advertisements to discourage prospective applicants for the city's police academy.

The city council on Wednesday authorized a 9 percent pay increase for the 2,863 policemen. The Police Officers Association originally had asked for a 14.1 percent raise but later cut the request to 10.5 percent.

Detective R. C. Rich, association president, said Friday the group voted to use the newspaper advertisements to express disappointment over the council action.

A letter sent to all member officers said the advertisments will run "on a continning basis pointing out that a career with the Houston Police Department may not be desirable in view of the attitude displayed by Mayor (Fred) Hofheinz and the City Council over the past four years."

Hofheinz voted against the 9 percent increase, having recommended a 7 percent hike on grounds a higher figure could force a property tax increase.

The council vote was taken after Councilman Jim Westmoreland said Mayor-elect Jim McConn had indicated the 9 percent increase could be handled without a tax increase.

Henry Kriegel, city controller, said Thursday granting pay increases amounting to more than $20 million a year makes a tax increase next year a virtual certainty. The council also authorized a 9 percent increase for 2,184 firemen and increases averaging 9 per cent for the 14,500 employes in other city departments.

Kriegel said the only apparent alternative to a tax increase would be a reduction in the number of city employes. He doubted that personnel would be reduced in that many employes are protected by City Civil Service.

Rich said the decision to purchase the advertisements was almost unanimous among about 100 officers attending a Thursday night meeting.

"They expect us to work at less than the cost of living," Rich said of the council's action. "We've tried to convince them but now we want to explain our situation to the public."

Sales prizes presented

The Midland Camp Fire Girl Council recently held an awards program for winners in its annual sale of candy.

The program was held in Jane Long Elementary School, with Bill Graham presenting the awards. He and his wife were chairmen of the sale.

Shannon Casbeer was the top candy sales girl. The top sales group was the Circle of Friendship and Love Adventure Group, with Mrs. Charles Marchant as leader.

Awards were presented to all Blue Birds, Adventure, Discovery and Horizon Groups participating in the sale held in October.

FAA cites terrorist cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing cooperation among terrorist groups thoughout the world poses an increased threat to civil aviation, the Federal Aviation Administration said Friday.

The agency said the cooperation is taking the form of mutual training in terrorist tactics and exchange of sophisticated weapons and financial assistance.

"The result is that small terrorist groups are acquiring the resources to undertake more ambitious operations than they have been able to do in the past," the FAA said. The agency detailed its findings in a report to Congress on the civil aviation security program.

The FAA report said many of these operations could be aimed at aviation, "which long has been a favorite terrorist target because of its high visibility."

It said the terrorist threat to civil aviation is most serious in Europe, the Middle East and South America "where cooperation between the terrorist groups has reached the highest level."

The FAA cited the Oct. 13 hijacking of a West German Lufthansa airliner to Mogadishu, Somalia.

"Three of the hijackers were of Middle Eastern origin while the fourth was European," it said. "They demanded the release of two different terrorist groups being held in West Germany and Turkey."

The pilot of the jetliner was shot to death by the terrorists. But the remaining hostages were rescued and three of the hijackers were killed by a special force of German troops which stormed the plane.

The report said the United States is not immune to terrorist attacks. It noted that the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., office of Mackey Airlines was bombed last May 25, after it said it was considering resuming scheduled flights to Cuba. An organization opposed to Cuban President Fidel Castro took credit for the bombing.

New counselor named by group

Stephen L. Hoyt has been named counselor for Permian Basin Planned Parenthood Inc. and assigned to the Midland clinic-Planned Parenthood clinic at 307 E. Texas Ave., executive director Gloria Feldt said this week.

Hoyt's services include direct counseling on preparation for marriage, relationship conflicts, problem pregnancy, child rearing, family planning and counseling for men. He also will provide counseling training for paraprofessionals and supervise the agency's counseling program in the 17-county area it serves.

He previously was a counselor at the University Counseling Service at Texas Tech University.

Space colonies not likely

HOUSTON (AP) — A scientist says high costs probably will prevent construction of space colonies in the future.

Dr. Jib Fowles, a University of Houston specialist in the future studies, also said a space colony would be anything but the free, utopian society many people wish to imagine.

Fowles added that space life would resemble the "confining, intolerant society contemporary life has evolved away from."

Speaking at an extraterrestrial community design session at the American Anthropological Association convention, Fowles indicated the odds for a space colony ever being built are rather low.

He said cost estimates as high as $100 billion may go even higher.

And, he added, man's limited experience in space has not proved it is physiologically possible for humans to live in space for long periods.

"Space is inhospitable," he said.

Fowles said the Skylab 4 crew that spent 84 days in space kept their good health, generally speaking, but saw their red blood cell mass decline and suffered an alarming drop in their calcium level as well as smaller losses of nitrogen and phosphorous.

"These losses supposedly resulted from the lack of gravity and could be halted through the artificial gravity of larger rotating installations," Fowles said.
