Candidates air issues at forumBY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Approximately 60 to 70 people heard local candidates make statements and answer questions at a forum sponsored here Tuesday night by KPAN Radio, The Hereford Brand and Hereford Cablevision.

All candidates in local contested races for the city, school and hospital boards were present except for Tom LeGate, mayoral candidate, who had a previous commitment. His wife presented his statement.

The forum was videotaped and will be rebroadcast on Hereford Cablevision, Channel 3, tonight and Thursday night at 8 p.m. Rex Easterwood, local attorney, served as moderator, and KPAN's Chip Formby and The Brand's John Brooks posed questions for the candidates. KFC provided refreshments, and the HHS Radio-TV class assisted with the program.

Each candidate made an opening statement, then each was asked two questions and had two minutes to respond. Following is a brief report on the statements, which included biographical information, reason for seeking office and some of the concerns of the candidates:

HOSPITAL BOARD

Raymond Schroeder(incumbent)—A school administrator, he has served on the board three years and is the current board chairman. Says job provides lot of headaches, but when you get involved in something you believe in, you want to see it be successful. Dedicated to keeping hospital and help make it successful. Said citizens are important to solving problems by supporting doctors and hospital.

Ralph Detten(incumbent)—A farmer, has served on board four years and is former chairman. First ran because he was concerned citizen and interested in direction hospital was taking. Things have changed much in four years and one of major changes has been the way doctors are recruited. Urges each citizen to become involved in tax hearings on all local taxing entities. Said referrals by local doctors, for whatever reason, has been problem in keeping specialists. Doctor recruitment will be ongoing problem.

Seletta Gholson—She and her husband, Dick, owned and operated Dick's Auto store here for 37 years. They have three daughters. Says the reason she is seeking board position is that she fears we're about to lose our hospital. Will pursue bringing in more family practice doctors, and seek better communication between board and citizens. Thinks we should find out why doctors have been leaving community, then will know more about recruiting new doctors.

Mal Manchec—School administrator for 18 years and feels experience as administrator and sitting in board meetings are qualifications for serving. Has seen changes in school issues and knows that changes are necessary in hospital operation as well. Involved in community through Kiwanis Club, United Way, Crime-stoppers and other organizations, as well as First Baptist Church. Important to remember board is policy-making group and must take positive steps. Thinks we need to recruit doctors who want to live in this part of country.

Dr. Randal Vinther—An internal medicine specialist, he grew up in Elida, N.M., and loves this area and its people. Attended college in Portales, studied medical technology in Albuquerque and worked at St. Joseph's Hospital. After four years, went to medical school, then returned to Portales as medical student. Went to Phoenix, AZ, for internship and residency program and decided to come back where people are concerned and supportive. Seeking office because has seen decline in revenue and utilization of hospital and is concerned about cutbacks. Believes there is breakdown in communications between board and physicians. Thinks hospital provides excellent health care and public needs educating on that fact. As a doctor who was recruited, says money is not all-important factor in attracting doctors. Hospital facility, supportive community and cooperation of other doctors are vital.

MAYOR

Tom LeGate(statement presented by wife, Carol Sue)—A local businessman for 23 years, he is a graduate of Texas Tech University and has done graduate work at West Texas State University. Thinks business experience, including hiring practices, will be help in mayor's position. Served as city commissioner for three terms and as mayor pro-tem for five years. Involved in community through various organizations and committees. He and his wife have two daughters. Members of First United Methodist Church. Says city is making regional study on the landfill problem, and rules and regulations still to come. Thinks EnCore's work will eventually help define city's role in waste management. On economic development, believes citizens have voted to put city in support role. Believes people can alter life by altering their attitudes.

Paul Hamilton—A former city commissioner with three years service, and would like to sit in mayor's seat and continue public service to community. Has been involved in community as volunteer fireman, work with EMS. Says no one is born to be mayor, or any local government position, but must work to serve community. Disappointed that citizens don't get involved and attend city commission meetings for important budget questions—not just when golf course is going to raise fees or garbage rate is increased. Says it will be difficult job to replace Darwin McGill as city manager. Has nothing against McGill, but would like to see someone who more pro-Hereford in position. Recycling issue is new and he is willing to look at anything of benefit to city. Budget for city has been set for coming year, so new mayor or commissioner will be looking ahead to next year.

SCHOOL BOARD

District 3
Raymond Schlabs(incumbent)—A farmer, he has represented District 3 for three years. Family lives about six miles north of Hereford and he and his wife have seven children. Six are graduates of HHS and one is junior at high school. Four children have college degrees. Has served on tax abatement board, vice chairman of Texas Corn Producers, county tax appraisal district board of review, and school equalization board. Believes all children can learn, some faster than others, and although local dropout rate is below state average, thinks one is too many. Says poverty can be overcome through education.

Martha Rincon—A resident of Hereford for 19 years and employed at Deaf Smith General Hospital as certified dietary manager. She and husband, Santos Jr., have three children. Says she knows about lack of education. Was high school dropout and went back to get GED and seeks office because she wants to try help children get education. Believes teachers should teach and students should study and one without the other accomplishes little. Has been active in various community programs and is member of San Jose Catholic Church.

District 4

William Gromowsky—Came to Hereford in 1988 and was raised in Bovina. Married 12 years, three children, and wife, Linda, is teacher at Shirley Elementary. Graduated from West Texas State University with degree in marketing. With three daughters, interested in education of all students. Concerned with morale of teachers, because happy teachers do better job educating children. Also has special interest in programs offered by schools. Thinks teachers need to be accountable and paperwork now involved is necessary evil because of state regulations. Since wife is teacher, do hear first-hand criticisms in system.

Mike Veazey—A Hereford native, went through schools here and HHS graduate. A meter department supervisor for Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative and employed there since 1975. Involved in Kiwanis Club, Key Club, YMCA and First Baptist Church. Believes next few years will be very important for education. Thinks we need to keep working on having more control of schools at local level. Since wife is employed by school district, knew this would be issue and understands people's concern. However, said he and wife don't agree on many issues and that having spouse in system is more of handicap than benefit. Since both candidates have spouses employed by system, doesn't think it is an issue.

District 5

Steve Wright—Employed by First National Bank and has lived here seven years. Has daughter in school and became interested in seeking election after attending a seminar which a teacher asked him to attend. Has been involved in YMCA youth programs and serving on board, active as Cubmaster and assistant Scout leader. Wants to ensure that his district has choice of qualified candidates from which to choose. Very conscious about maintenance of school facilities since he is engineer, and concerned about local control of schools. Says he has been attending school board meetings since April, 1990.

Joe Flood—Born and raised in Hereford and farmed west of town for majority of life. Has been member of family in schools since 1950 and wants to give something back to those who have helped educate his family. Attended West Texas State University after graduating from HHS, then returned in 1974 to start farming. Knows what it takes to run a business and work within a budget. Says he has the common sense and, hopefully, can make decisions to benefit all children. Has four children in school.

Older Hispanics likely poor

WASHINGTON (AP) - Many elderly Hispanics are living on the edge of economic survival, with a healthy and financially secure retirement out of reach, a study says.

The National Council of La Raza, a Hispanic advocacy group, blames language barriers and poor outreach efforts for keeping elderly Latinos from participating in social programs.

While Hispanics are the fastest-growing segment of the nation's elderly population, La Raza says they're also more likely to be poor and ill than the general elderly population and they're less likely to be served by programs such as those provided under the Older Americans Act.

"There is a misconception that because Hispanic families take care of their elderly, older Hispanics have little need for services," said La Raza president Raul Yzaguirre in releasing the study Tuesday.

"Yet the reality is that the need for services and programs for the Hispanic elderly is greater than ever. The economic pressures faced by Hispanics of all ages affect the care families can give to their older members. Accessing services and programs which supplement family care ... is critical for Hispanics," Yzaguirre said.

Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, said one problem facing elderly Hispanics is that many in Texas live in rural areas that have limited health care resources. And many others simply cannot afford health care, he said.

"The economics are so vastly different that they have to do without," he said.

According to La Raza, Hispanic elderly are less likely than non-Hispanics to receive Social Security, public or private pensions, or incomes from interest and other assets. As of 1988, only 77 percent of Hispanic elderly received Social Security, compared to 93 percent of whites and 89 percent of blacks.

La Raza said data from the Administration on Aging also indicates that minority participation in Older Americans Act programs declined from 22 percent of clients in 1980 to 16 percent in 1988.

"The principal reason for low participation in social services and entitlement programs appears to be lack of awareness of such programs due to scarce or ineffective publicity or outreach efforts," La Raza said in its report.

The report also found that Hispanic elderly have lower rates of health insurance coverage and suffer disproportionately from illness or disability. And Hispanics are more likely to rely on families or care and assistance than other elderly.

Cinco de Mayo set

The celebration will be held in the area behind Mrs. Abalos' Restaurant, 847 E. First in Hereford, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. ## Paroled killers controversy erupts

AUSTIN (AP) - The controversy over the parole of convicted killers erupted again.

A Senate committee voted Tuesday to subpoena records of a man who one senator said was sentenced to life in prison for killing a police officer in 1980 but has since been paroled.

Meanwhile, another Senate committee recommended the reappointments of two state parole officials who are at the center of the controversy over the release of murderers.

The Nominations panel voted 5-2 in favor of Peggy McAdams and Kenneth Coleman, both of Huntsville, to the Pardons and Paroles Board. Their nominations will next be considered by the full Senate.

In recent weeks, some lawmakers have blasted the two nominees for voting to parole several high-profile killers, but others defended them, saying they simply followed laws passed by the Legislature to relieve prison overcrowding.

Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, and Nominations chairman, voted against Ms. McAdams and Coleman, saying his action was intended to "send a message on what society feels in regards to people who perpetrate violent crimes against society."

But Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said the release policies were not the fault of the parole board members.

He said the board lost its authority and independence when it was merged in 1989 with other state prison agencies into the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

"The Legislature made a tragic mistake in taking away the independence of that board," Brooks said. He said the Texas Department of Criminal Justice directed board members to parole 80 percent of the inmates brought before them.

After the committee vote, Ms. McAdams defended the board's record. "I understand the sentiments of the Legislature. They have passed the laws that I must follow. My job is to be fair and follow the laws. I think we follow the law."

According to lawmakers, 68 death row inmates whose sentences were commuted to life in prison have been paroled since 1971.

The debate over the parole practices continued in the Senate Criminal Justice Committee.

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, said Ronnie Eugene Davis was convicted in 1980 in the fatal shooting of a Terrell police officer. Davis was released May 25, 1990, according to a memo prepared for Lyon.

Lyon, committee chairman, said he wants to "talk to the pardons and paroles people that signed the release" and he hoped they would volunteer to appear before the committee.

Those board members were identified as Ken Casner, who is no longer on the board, and Stinnet Posey.

Davis was arrested again on March 26, 1991, for aggravated sexual assault, but charges were dismissed, according to the memo. Davis' parole, however, was revoked April 5, and he currently is in the Kaufman County jail, Lyon said.

"We're going to make some people tell us why they are letting people that kill policemen out of jail in 10 years," Lyon said.

Pickens doomed himself

TOKYO (AP) - With another cast of characters, Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens' crusade to win a say in the business of a Japanese auto parts maker might have made a difference.

The Texas financier's pleas for greater shareholders' rights and for more open ways of doing business were legitimate, but his own background as a pioneer of hostile takeover tactics in the United States and his swashbuckling media campaign against Japan Inc. doomed his cause, analysts say.

"I know American business leaders have been frustrated, but that doesn't mean Pickens' ways will work here. Japanese companies will spend any amount of money and effort to avoid conflict," says Masatake Takahashi, an analyst of Japan-U.S. affairs.

In an opinion page article for The Washington Post, Pickens declared Sunday that he has "given up hope" of ever gaining a place on Koito's 20-seat board of directors for his 26.4 percent stake in the company.

He said he would sell his 42.4 million shares in Toyota Motors' auto lighting supplier back to Kitaro Watanabe, a Tokyo stock speculator who sold him the shares in 1989.

In a statement released in Tokyo, Koito guardedly said it welcomed the news. After two years of hurling accusations across the Pacific, the confrontation ended with no clear winner.

Koito still contends that Watanabe actually controlled Pickens' shares. It says the Texan was a front for "greenmail" -- an attempt to have Koito buy back shares at above-market prices to avoid a takeover.

The allegation, denied by Pickens, weakened his case as a champion of shareholders' rights.

Pickens charged that he had a genuine interest in Koito and was entitled to board representation as the company's largest stockholder. He claimed that as a subordinate supplier, Koito allowed Toyota to control it.

"I've learned from my experience that Japan's entire economy is rigged," he declared in a letter to The Associated Press on Monday. "The Japanese are doing business with a different set of rules than Americans."

Pickens sought to politicize his struggle by taking his cause to the media and to the U.S. Congress, where he testified that his problems illustrate the barriers Americans face trying to do business in Japan.

His complaints won him international attention, but they handicapped his battle inside Japan.

"He could have developed a successful strategy, but he would have to do it the Japanese way. You can't come in with your boots on, shouting. You need a more low-key approach," says an expert in mergers and acquisitions, who requested anonymity.

"You need to have something to offer the other side as a mutual benefit," he says.

Pickens' demands for more rights as a shareholder illustrate basic differences in the business cultures of the two countries.

Unlike in the United States, where takeovers often mean pink slips, in Japan shareholders' rights are considered less important than the welfare of employees.

"His requests were not unreasonable. Japanese shareholders do have few rights," says James Vestal, an economist at Keio University in Tokyo.

"But the case is colored by the parties involved, and Pickens chose a very difficult target in Toyota. It's hard to find a more conservative company to tangle with," Vestal says.

The strong Japanese emphasis on relationships also worked against Pickens, who challenged the system as an outsider.

"It's very difficult to just come in off the street, with no acquaintances, and expect to get anywhere," says Minoru Taniguchi of Yasuda Trust and Banking Co.'s global strategy group.

"To succeed in Japan, you have to take the time to cultivate a business relationship," Taniguchi says.

Costs too low at NASA

WASHINGTON (AP) - The cost of building a space station and operating it in the next century will exceed NASA's estimate by at least 40 percent, or $34 billion, and even then may not satisfy research requirements, the government's chief auditor said today.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has said the station could be built and ready for permanent occupancy in 1999 for $30 billion and that it could be operated through the year 2027 for an additional $54 billion.

"We believe the $30 billion estimate is an inappropriate figure to use," Comptroller General Charles A. Bowsher said in testimony prepared for a congressional subcommittee.

"What we actually have is at least a $118 billion program - about $40 billion to achieve permanent occupancy and about $78 billion to keep the station operational between 2000 and 2027," said Bowsher, who heads the General Accounting Office.

NASA plans to keep the station operating for 30 years, beginning with periodic astronaut visits in 1997.

A new self-help support group is being formed in Hereford to help persons suffering from anxiety, phobias or depression.

We want to help others who want to lead a happier life. We may not have all of the answers, but at least we can steer people in the right direction and help find the answers."

"The group is for persons of all ages, and no problem is too large or too small. We encourage anyone who may be facing problems to contact us."

Persons interested in learning more about the support group may write to Support Group, PO Box 673NTS, Hereford 79045. All correspondence will be held in strict confidence.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Michael Coats, commander of space shuttle Discovery, couldn't wait to come down to Earth to hear more about Cincinnati Reds pitcher Rob Dibble's angry throw into the stands.

The Reds reliever hurled a baseball into the stands at Riverfront Stadium after a poor outing Sunday in a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The ball hit a first-grade teacher and hurt her elbow.

Discovery lifted off Sunday and is scheduled to return to Earth next Monday.

Coats asked for details on Tuesday. "The message that came up said Rob Dibble for Cincinnati hit a fan. Was he aiming at the fan or aiming at a batter?" Coats asked Mission Control.

"There was no batter in sight," said Kathy Thornton, an astronaut who communicates with the crew from Mission Control.

Smoke-free baby

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Health and Safety Committee is introducing a "Smoke-Free Baby" program at the Deaf Smith General Hospital beginning May 12. The program is designed to increase the awareness of the risks and dangers of passive smoke to babies and children. Bibs that say "I'm a born non-smoker" will be distributed to new parents at Deaf Smith General Hospital. ## Robinson attends spring convention

"Capitol City Celebration" was the theme of the 63rd Spring Convention of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. held recently at the Doubletree Hotel in Austin. Among those attending included Mrs. Jess L. Robinson, a member of Bud to Blossom Garden Club who serves as the District I director. District I includes the Panhandle, South Plains and Permian Basin.

State President Mrs. Ben P. Denman of Dallas presided at the meetings of the executive committee and board of directors with Robinson participating.

At the general assembly, annual reports were given by state officers and committee chairmen. District directors of the 10 districts of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. summarized the accomplishments of 760 garden clubs with more than 19,000 members in the state federation.

Accomplished speakers presented educational programs on horticulture and design following each mealtime meeting. Programs included study of Abstract Design; Bromeliads by A.J. Novak, international bromeliad judge; and Jean Andrews, author artist and gourmet cook on "Peppers, the Domesticated Capsicums." Dr. Jim Johnson, director of the Benz School at Texas A&M University and instructor for Design Seminars at A&M, presented "What's New in Creative Design?" Walter Krause and Henry Holland of Austin presented "Welcome to the Wonderful World of Orchids."

The highlight of the convention was the annual Awards Banquet with Mrs. Kenneth Blaschke, state awards chairman, presenting approximately 1,500 awards and recognitions to state garden clubs, culminating with the coveted "Garden Club of the Year" award. At the Youth Awards luncheon scholarship winners were announced and awards were presented to speech, essay and poster contestants.

A guided tour of the LBJ Library for delegates was very educational. Convention activities were concluded with installation of new officers for 1991-93, with a reception in their honor.

State awards presented to Bud to Blossom Garden Club included Club Program, Gold Club Rating, Yearbook, Club Service Rating and Contributing to Scholarship Fund, World Gardening-World's Children Fund, TGC Endowment Fund, National Land Trust-Wildlife Corridor and President's Book 100 percent.

Smoke-Free Baby program to begin

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Health and Safety Committee, chaired by Sharon Pennington, will introduce the "Smoke-Free Baby" program at Deaf Smith General Hospital beginning on Mother's Day, May 12.

This program is designed to increase the awareness of the risks and dangers of passive smoke to babies and children. Other sponsors include the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center, Texas Tech University School of Medicine Department of Pediatrics and The Circle of Friends, a support group for the Harrington Cancer Center, The American Cancer Society, and the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities.

Passive smoking during childhood has been demonstrated to cause many adverse health effects, including increased respiratory infections and reduced lung function. The majority of smokers begin smoking during adolescence.

Bibs that say "I'm a born non-smoker" and literature will be distributed to new parents at Deaf Smith General Hospital. Amarillo hospitals and other Panhandle hospitals will be participating in this program during the month of May. Bibs and literature have been distributed in area hospitals for several years.

Knowing what employers look for when they read a resume, and which ones are doing the looking, can help you get a new job in less time.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I purchased a beautiful cedar hope chest from an antiques dealer. When I got home I realized that the previous owner of the chest had put mothballs in it. Why, I don't know.

I cannot get this mothball smell out of it. Everything I store in it smells like mothballs.

Can you suggest a way to rid my beautiful cedar chest of this awful smell? — Maureen Gahagan, Baltimore, Md.

A. Place the chest outside in the sun with the lid propped open. Usually the odor will dissipate over a period of time. It may take several days.

If some odor remains, clean the inside with a wood cleaner found in hardware or home-improvement stores.

To restore the cedar aroma, lightly sand the inside of the chest with some fine sandpaper and vacuum up any wood particles.

That's all there is to it! — Heloise

FAST FACTS

Five handy hints for versatile white vinegar:

- Removes hard-water stains.
- Relieves sunburn.
- Sets colors in fabric.
- Removes smoke odor from a room.
- Use to clean automatic-drip coffee pot.

PLASTIC LAUNDRY

DETERGENT CONTAINERS
Dear Heloise: The new plastic liquid laundry detergent containers make neat watering cans for houseplants. — Beverly Peters, Sullivan, Ill.

Just rinse one out and it is ready to use. — Heloise

SEAT BELT

Dear Heloise: When I get in my car I always wear my seat belt. But before I snap the belt in place, I always put it through the handle of my purse.

If anything should happen, my purse stays with me. — R.B.H., Copper Cliff Ontario, Canada

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: Here in New York State where recycling has become a way of life, I have found that manufacturers of cans (soup, cat food, etc.) have produced cans with rounded rims on the can bottoms which makes them quite impossible to remove with any kind of can opener.

This prevents flattening, and unless the labels are removed and cans flattened they will not be accepted for recycling.

Fashion news from Paris

PARIS (AP) - Figure-revealing and youthful, or relaxed, loose and airy, next summer's ready-to-wear offerings from here provide something for everyone looking for a fresh approach to the hot months.

Sometimes tight underpinnings and a loose, floaty topper pair nicely in the same outfit. But there are also more formal moments as well, with beautifully tailored suits or separates.

The younger set will go for the sexier, molded silhouette. It's always evident in clinging, shiny lycra tights, dinky minis and stretch micros - worn with a long blazer or other fancy topper.

Madonna-inspired stretch styles have struck the young and look like lasting "values" for the 1990s. These display lots of skin in décolletés and bare midriffs for summer.

But Paris is still turning out fitted suits or dresses with jackets. Skirts are resolutely short on runways, but on the streets hemlines hover sensibly around the kneecap.

And there's a whole line of looser, fluid dresses and blouson or babydoll-flared toppers to give a boost to both young and older fashion-wise women, even those with problem waists.

Emanuel Ungaro performs a neat trick with his luscious silk print dresses, which turn up either fitted, shirred and short, in sashed shirtwaist versions, or in attractively styled "sack" shapes somewhat emulating the late 1950s.

Another alternative is a tulip-shaped dress, particularly pretty as done by Guy Douvier at Guy Laroche.

Karl Lagerfeld is seemingly on an endless youth kick. His own label collection sparkles with witty ideas, from bicycle tights and little chiffon-pancled skirts to terrific fitted redingote jackets as only he can do them.

This kind of sock-it-to-'em teen-aged chic also turned up in his Chanel collection. Best items from the latest collection here are probably the looser, silky shirtwaist toppers and the piped jackets with a nostalgic hint of good old "Coco."

Claude Montana's glorified A-lines and skimpy 1960s-style dresses are outstanding models for our time without being too "retro." In icy tones of silver-spangled white - with touches of hot summer shades or spring pastels - the shantung, ottoman and other silks are impeccably cut.

In the costume vein, Christian Lacroix has turned up some dillies, mixing vibrant colors and exuberant arabesque decor with his usual abandon. With Pucci print-inspired duster coats and body stockings, he performs a balancing act between vulgarity and originality.

More conservative dressers have already snatched up striking spring cruise wear from his Faubourg Saint-Honore shop.

One terrific idea is a loose, unlined gabardine wool long jacket with gold-pearl buttons and welt seaming - in chartreuse, royal blue, ice-cream pink or off-white. It's an elegant way to cover up a multitude of sins around the hips.

Mariner-inspired looks are another easy clue to spring-summer dressing, Paris style. Everyone from Guy Douvier at Guy Laroche to Saint Laurent showed variations on the high-seas themes of red-white-navy with stripes, pea jackets, long pants or short skirts and a few middy blouses.

Wild-animal prints keep on hitting the Paris runways, and accordingly turn up in the shops (though fashion mavens have been yawning at so many spots, season after season).

Signed Jean-Louis Scherrer, the wildlife looks still have enormous class: they come in mousselines (chiffons) or wispy crepe-de-chines and go well with the current fad for safari styles.

Pants in all cuts and some new fabrics range from "hot" (very short, very tight) down to regular straight trousers, through clam-diggers or bicycle tights. The tights are the favorite "new" look, sometimes worn as leggings with stirrup loops like leotards.

Yves Saint Laurent has laid out a show of billowing Turkish or harem pants outfits for summer evenings, the dozens of combinations looking either garish or gorgeous, depending on your accessories. It is a truly Scheherazade show of baubles and beads, plus lots of skin in elaborate costumes for dancing girls fit for a pasha's passion.

Givenchy has also put out silky big bloomers, though his presentation was more sedate.

Since we've seen just about every style re-cycled in the last 10 years, the newest fashion stories are turning up in fabrics: now it's shiny-cling lycra spandex.

"These tights and stretch minis are easy dressing for the young - call them the 'jeans of the 90s,'" says fashion journalist Carol Mongo, who also teaches at the Parsons School of Design, Paris branch.

She claims that even fuller-figured women feel comfortable when they've eased into slick lycra tights or leggings. "They make you feel firm," she says.

Other textures and fabrics for next spring are softer and lighter than ever. There is concentration on lightweight gabardines or cashmere blends for suits or coats. More good bets are pure cotton poplin or gabardine, pique, shantung, and some funny touches of raffia for the beach. Chiffon, cotton voile, organza and gaze are the feathery-light options for evening.

In color, think of navy, white and acidic shades. Those plus the ever-popular pastels will hold sway this coming summer. Many flowers (mainly large-size) sprig the spring dresses of Paris designers.

All pinks and reds from rose-petal to siren crimson are striking favorites, along with shades of purple and royal or deep turquoise blues.

But there's also a big sweep in desert shades, from sandy beige to caramel and terra cotta, with some iridescence in lightweight spring taffetas to add zing to summer wardrobes.

Car care hints

Motorists wanting to enjoy carefree driving and good mileage this summer should heed some simple advice from leading car maintenance experts.

First, check under the hood to see if cold temperatures have caused hoses and belts to become cracked and crumbly. Even if they look all right, it's best to change them every three years.

Next, make sure your radiator and the overflow tank next to it are filled with a fresh 50/50 mixture of water and antifreeze coolant.

Oil should be changed every three to four months, regardless of how far you have driven the car. In warmer weather heavier weight oil is recommended for extra engine protection and lubrication.

Winter also puts a particularly heavy load on a car's electrical system, so the battery and alternator should be tested, especially if they are more than two years old.

Finally, remember that warmer temperatures expand the air inside your tires. Overinflated tires wear unevenly and can be a hazard.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Aunt Lil" was operated on for cancer in March 1990. She and "Uncle Jack" moved into our house so Mom could give Aunt Lil proper care. We all adored her. I gladly gave up my bedroom for Aunt Lil. My brother gave up his room for Uncle Jack. Mom fixed up make-shift bedrooms for us in the basement.

Aunt Lil died in October. Here it is, spring of 1991, and Uncle Jack is still living here even though his house is only 20 minutes away. He is out almost every night. When he comes in at about 11:00 p.m., he honks his horn so Dad can move his car and let him park in our one-car garage.

I've been doing Uncle Jack's laundry. I also cook for him. But when he thought I had used his toothpaste, he hid it.

I think Uncle Jack has been taking advantage of us and that he should go home. My parents are very good-hearted, but when is enough enough? -- Tennessee Complaint

DEAR TENNESSEE: You don't say if Uncle Jack help out with expenses, but any guy who hides his toothpaste is not likely to be a big contributor.

Please show this column to your parents and tell them that I agree with you that Uncle Jack should move back home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a mother of two small children. I have a job outside my home. All of this keeps me extremely busy. I have never had the time or felt a real desire to write to you before today.

An outraged reader recently wrote to you about global warming and the so-called "greenhouse effect." Please read the enclosed story from the San Bernardino County Sun, Calif.

"University researchers will strap gas-measuring equipment to cows to find out how bovine belching might be contributing to the greenhouse effect. Washington State University researchers will get $70,000 a year for three years from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to determine how much methane cows and other cud-chewing animals make when they belch."

I never would have believed it if someone just told me about this. It sounds like some of the sensational garbage that you might see in a supermarket tabloid.

Ann, please tell me this isn't true. I hate to think our Environmental Protection Agency is throwing away money on such an absurd research project. If they would like some suggestions for their $70,000, I'd like to remind them of the homeless and hungry people in our country. -- Redlands, Calif.

DEAR RED: We spoke with Al Ruddy, associate director of News and Information Services at Washington State University. He said, "The news story is true. Although this might seem like a foolish, expenditure, it's not. Here's why:

"There are two primary gases involved in the greenhouse effect -- carbon dioxide and methane. Methane traps radiation in the earth's atmosphere, and its production is increasing about one percent every year. The three primary sources of methane are wetlands, rice fields and cattle. Cows belch four to six times a minute, and produce about 15 percent of all our methane. If man wishes to use natural gas as a source of fuel, it will necessitate releasing more methane into the atmosphere. Before we can safely do that, we must find out how much methane is produced already."

Clear? Well, I hope so because Al Ruddy did his darndest to simplify it for me.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.45.)

Herd closes season with close loss

David vs. Goliath

Hereford first baseman Matt Bromlow dwarfs shortstop Rene Cano as Cano makes a throw to first in Tuesday's season finale at Randall. Hereford lost to the Raiders 7-6.

The Hereford High School baseball team lost the final game of 1991 Tuesday in heartbreaking fashion--on a bases-loaded single with the score tied in the bottom of the seventh inning.

After the Herd fought back to tie the game with two runs in the top of the seventh, Randall's Jon Mark Tipps delivered a soft liner up the middle with no outs in the bottom of the inning, plating Mark Elder to make the score 7-6. Randall finished 17-7 overall, but at 5-5 in district needed to scratch to hold on to fourth place.

The Herd finished a disappointing season at 3-7 and 6-20.

"The season could have been over a long time ago," Coach T.R. Sartor, "but the kids played hard all the way through."

A strong wind blew out to right field through most of Tuesday's game at Randall, causing problems for all fielders. The teams combined for five doubles, and most of those were direct results of the wind. In fact, most of the runs were a direct result of the wind.

"It was an error type of day," Sartor said. "To Randall's credit we made them field the ball, and they did."

Hereford scored first--in the top of the first. With two outs, George Jowell bounced a single up the middle. Courtesy runner Richard Sanderson stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Max Mungia's double over the right fielder's head.

The Raiders quickly tied the score at 1-1, when Elder drew a walk off Hereford starter Amado Lopez, stole second and scored on Danny Barrett's double over center fielder Chad Brummett's head.

After a perfect second inning by both pitchers--Corey McAllister went the distance for the Raiders--both teams scored in the third, and Hereford led 3-2.

Matt Bromlow led off Hereford's half of the inning with a double and scored on Jowell's single. Jowell went to second on the right fielder's error. Sanderson courtesy-ran for Jowell, went to third on a balk and scored on Lopez' grounder to second.

Randall scored one after Lopez walked the first two batters of the inning and they were sacrificed to third and second. An infield single scored one run, but the Herd avoided further damage when a squeeze play blew up on the Raiders. The bunt was missed and catcher Jowell tagged the runner out easily.

The Raiders made up for that in the fourth by scoring three runs to take a 5-3 lead. Tipps scored on a single by Chris Comer, who later scored on a single by Ladd. Between those runs, McAllister stole home on a double steal.

Both teams scored once in the sixth. With two outs, Sammy Casarez, who had relieved Lopez on the mound, drew a walk. Courtesy runner Jason Tatarevich scored from first on Richard Rodriguez' double over the right fielder's head.

McAllister doubled to lead off the Raiders' half of the sixth, but seemed stranded when Casarez struck out two batters and got the third to pop up foul up the first base line. However, the wind caught the ball and fooled first baseman Bromlow. The ball fell off the tip of Bromlow's glove and into fair territory. He picked it up and, instead of tagging the runner or throwing to first to end the inning, threw to the plate too late to get McAllister. Casarez struck out the next batter for the third out.

The Herd needed two runs to tie the score in the top of the seventh, and they got them. After Bromlow was robbed of a single by Elder, the Randall shortstop, Roy Cantu walked and went to second on a wild pickoff throw. Lopez, who stayed in the game to play short, was hit by a pitch and went to first. Next, Max Mungia blooped a single in front of the right fielder, allowing Cantu to score and Lopez to go to third. A moment later, McAllister uncorked a wild pitch and Lopez slid home for the tying run.

At least one Raider kept his composure. Elder led off the bottom of the seventh with a beauty of a bunt for a hit. Jon Ostrowski walked, and Barrett hit a hard grounder to third which Rene Cano bobbled, and everyone was safe. That set up Tipps' single, which went just over Casarez' glove and between Lopez and second baseman Max Mungia.

The loss was the last game for Hereford seniors Bromlow, Cantu, Jowell, Lopez, Brummett, Ralph Martinez, Max Mungia and Louis Mungia, all of whom were in the starting lineup.

In other District 1-4A action, Pampa won 5-3 Tuesday at Borger to wrap up the title and the top spot in the state playoffs. It was the first outright title for the Harvesters, who finished at 8-2, 20-3 overall.

Borger's loss drops the Bulldogs to 6-4 and into a tie for second with Dumas, which beat Caprock 8-7 in eight innings. Borger and Dumas will play this week for the second playoff spot.

Randall finished in fourth and Hereford was fifth. Caprock finished last at 2-8.

Rockets knocked out

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

With Scottie Pippen doing an impression of Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson looking more like the all-time scoring leader than the all-time assist leader, the New York Knicks and Houston Rockets are out of the NBA playoffs.

"On the road, you have to take it to the basket, and I wanted to do that and break down their defense," Pippen said after the Bulls completed a three-game sweep of the Knicks with a 103-94 victory Tuesday night. "Michael had some opportunities to do the same thing, but he elected to shoot jumpers."

Pippen made five layups and five dunks to account for all but one of his 21 points. Jordan had nine baskets on jumpers, four on layups and one dunk to finish with 33 points.

Meanwhile, Johnson scored 38 points in the Los Angeles Lakers' 94-90 victory that completed a 3-0 sweep of the Rockets.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia completed a sweep of Milwaukee with a 121-100 victory. Detroit took a 2-1 lead in its best-of-5 series with a 103-91 victory over Atlanta. Seattle avoided a sweep by beating Portland 102-99 and Utah took a 2-1 lead by winning 107-98 over Phoenix.

"I was taking what they gave me while Scottie was going hard to the basket," Jordan said. "I used to be able to do that, but I guess I'm getting a little old for that."

Jordan's only dunk of the game belied that tongue-in-cheek statement. His second-quarter change-of-direction move fooled three Knicks before he drove the baseline for a slam.

After Jordan made a rebound basket, the Bulls' next eight baskets were layups and dunks, keying a 20-9 run that closed the gap to 54-53 at halftime.

Chicago, which has 10 consecutive victories over New York and seven straight this season, advanced to the second round of the Eastern Conference playoffs against Philadelphia.

Jordan scored 14 points during a 29-11 second-half spurt that carried the Bulls. Chicago extended its margin to 86-71 with 10:04 left on a jumper and free throw by Jordan.

The Bulls advanced to the second round of the Eastern Conference playoffs against Philadelphia.

Kiki Vandeweghe and Patrick Ewing scored 20 points each for the Knicks.

Lakers 94, Rockets 90

In Houston, Byron Scott's jumper made it 92-90 with 16.9 seconds to play, and Johnson had 24 of his points in the second half.

The Rockets called a timeout after Scott's 18-footer from the baseline and missed a chance when they could not get the ball inbounded, and it went over to the Lakers. Hakeem Olajuwon missed a 3-point attempt with 8.6 seconds to go.

Olajuwon had 21 points and 17 rebounds, and Otis Thorpe added 21 points. James Worthy scored 22 points for the Lakers.

76ers 121, Bucks 100

Charles Barkley, leaping off a left knee encased in a brace, had 30 points and 12 rebounds for Philadelphia.

In addition to Barkley, who has worn the brace since spraining his knee, Hersey Hawkins scored 26 points, Armon Gilliam 18 and Ron Anderson 16 in the 76ers' first sweep of a playoff series since facing Milwaukee in 1985.

Alvin Robertson led visiting Milwaukee with 26 points.

Pistons 103, Hawks 91

Joe Dumars and Isiah Thomas sparked Detroit's comeback from a 17-point second-quarter deficit.

The Hawks led 46-29 on a pair of free throws by Dominique Wilkins--his first points of the game--with 5:30 left in the first half.

Thomas finished with 19 points and 13 assists and Vinnie Johnson scored 13 of his 17 points in the second quarter. Kevin Willis led the Hawks with 24 points, while Wilkins had 18.

SuperSonics 102, Trail Blazers 99

In Seattle, Sedale Threatt sank a 3-point shot with four seconds left as Seattle beat Portland, precluding a sweep by the Trail Blazers.

Threatt, who led the SuperSonics with 29 points, put his team ahead 100-99 after Kevin Duckworth had given the Trail Blazers a 99-97 lead on an offensive rebound lay-in with 21.7 seconds to go.

Clyde Drexler led Portland with 23 points.

Jazz 107, Suns 98

Blue Edwards had 14 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as Utah pushed visiting Phoenix to the brink of elimination.

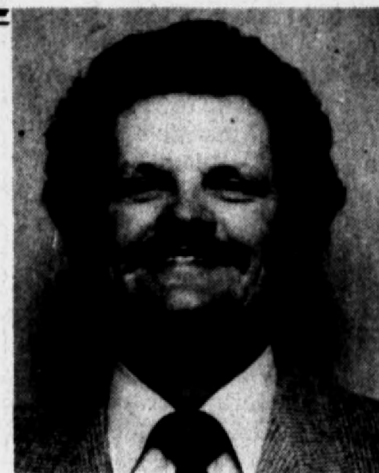

Karl Malone had 32 points for the Jazz. John Stockton added 18 points and 12 assists, and reserve center Mike Brown had 15 points and 11 rebounds for Utah.

Tom Chambers had 26 points and Dan Majerle 19 for the Suns, who face elimination Thursday night in Game 4 at the Salt Palace.

Quintana's 3-run homer lifts Red Sox

By The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox found power from an unexpected source, and it boosted them into first place in the American League East.

"I never try to hit the ball like that," Carlos Quintana said after his three-run homer led the Red Sox to a 7-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins Tuesday night.

The home run, a two-out, three-run shot in the eighth inning, was the first since last July 30 and only the eighth in 654 career at-bats for Quintana.

Quintana's rare homer was timely for the Red Sox, who took over first place in the AL East from Toronto by a half-game following the Blue Jays' 8-5 loss to Texas.

In other AL games, it was Oakland 7, New York 3; Seattle 6, Baltimore

3; Milwaukee 8, Chicago 2; Detroit 13, Kansas City 7, and California 6, Cleveland 5 in 11 innings.

With two on and two out in the eighth inning in the Metrodome and Boston losing by a run, Red Sox manager Joe Morgan almost used Steve Lyons to pinch-hit for Quintana. But Morgan decided by intuition to go with Quintana.

The blast off Steve Bedrosian (2-1) ended Minnesota's five-game winning streak.

Rangers 8, Blue Jays 5
Ruben Sierra hit two homers, including a three-run seventh-inning shot to break a 4-4 tie.

Sierra, who had a two-run homer in the first, drove in five runs to tie a career high. With two out in the seventh, Sierra ripped a 2-1 pitch off

Blue Jays' reliever Jim Acker (0-1) into the right field stands at Arlington Stadium.

Sierra's fourth homer of the season made a winner of reliever Rich Gossage (2-0).
Athletics 7, Yankees 3

Jose Canseco hit a two-run homer and Mark McGuire a two-run double.

Oakland's Rickey Henderson failed to steal a base and remained tied with Lou Brock for the career stolen base record. Playing in his first game since tying Brock's record of 938 career steals, Henderson went 1-for-4 with a single before Willie Wilson replaced him in the eighth inning.

Bob Welch (3-1) settled down after a shaky start to hold New York to five hits and two runs in eight innings to gain the victory.

Mariners 6, Orioles 3

Dave Valle hit his second homer in two days and the Mariners scored three unearned runs.

Erik Hanson (2-1) gave up six hits, walked four and hit a batter in 5 1-3 innings. Russ Swan pitched the final 3 2-3 innings to get his second save. Jeff Ballard (2-2) was the loser.

Brewers 8, White Sox 2
Dante Bichette and Franklin Stubbs homered and Jim Gantner had four hits as Milwaukee beat Chicago. Billy Spiers added three hits to the 13-hit Milwaukee attack in support of Chris Bosio (3-2).

Bosio was in trouble in each of the first four innings and gave up a sacrifice fly to Matt Merullo in the third. Bosio lasted five innings, giving up five hits.

Alex Fernandez (2-2) was the loser.

Tigers 13, Royals 7

Rob Deer hit a grand slam in the fourth and Lou Whitaker a tie-breaking solo shot in the eighth.

Whitaker hit a 1-1 pitch from reliever Jeff Montgomery (1-1) for his fourth home run. Then, with one out, Mickey Tettleton doubled, Deer reached on an infield single and Mark Salas singled to right. But Danny Tartabull misplayed the ball as both runners scored to give the Tigers a 9-6 lead.

Detroit added four more runs in the ninth.

Brian McRae, who had an inside-the-park homer in the fourth, hit a sacrifice fly to cap a three-run rally that tied it 6-6 for the Royals in the seventh.

The victory went to Al Leiter (1-1), who got one out.

Angels 6, Indians 5, 11 innings

Junior Felix keyed a two-run 11th inning with his first home run of the season and Jack Howell capped the rally with a run-scoring single.

The victory went to reliever Bryan Harvey (1-0), who surrendered an unearned run in the top of the 11th when he balked home Chris James.

Indians ace reliever Doug Jones (0-2) blew a chance for his sixth save after giving up a one-out homer to Felix. He then surrendered consecutive singles to Dick Schofield, Luis Polonia and Howell, who was batting for Luis Sojo.

Fog shortens Mets' 6-3 win

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

A lot of people think the New York Mets have been playing in a fog for a few years. This time, there was no doubt.

Shea Stadium became so shrouded Tuesday night that the game was called because of fog in the bottom of the seventh inning, giving the Mets a 6-3 victory over San Diego.

"Ever go swimming?" Mets left fielder Kevin McReynolds asked after the game. "Ever close your eyes underwater? That's what it was like."

The game was stopped in the sixth inning by fog for 1 hour, 38 minutes with Dwight Gooden and the Mets ahead 4-2. Shortly after play returned, so did the fog, and the game was called at 12:19 a.m. after a 47-minute wait.

In other games, Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh 4-3, Montreal edged Los Angeles 1-0, Philadelphia stopped San Francisco 11-9, Chicago clubbed Houston 10-3 and St. Louis defeated Atlanta 5-3.

Only once before had a game at Shea Stadium been stopped because of fog. On May 25, 1979, the Mets and Pittsburgh were tied at 3 in the 11th when the mist became too much and the game was declared a tie and replayed a month later.

This time, Gooden hit an RBI single and Howard Johnson homered early off Derek Lilliquist (0-1). Gooden (3-1) gave up a home run to Benito Santiago in the fifth inning and left after the sixth, finished by the fog.

The Padres scored once in the seventh off relievers Pete Schourek and Alejandro Pena, who got his first save.

Reds 4, Pirates 3

Hal Morris and Mariano Duncan homered off slumping Cy Young winner Doug Drabek.

Tom Browning (3-1) gave up four hits, including home runs by Andy Van Slyke and Jose Lind, in 7 2-3 innings. Rob Dibble struck out all four batters he faced for his fifth save.

Drabek (1-4) gave up four runs on eight hits and two walks in 6 2-3 innings.

Expos 1, Dodgers 0

Delino DeShields' leadoff homer in the bottom of the ninth inning broke up a pitching duel between Dennis Martinez and Mike Morgan in Montreal.

Morgan (2-2) had a one-hitter until DeShields hit his first home run of the season on the first pitch.

Martinez (3-2) pitched a four-hitter. He escaped his biggest jam by getting Darryl Strawberry on a grounder to end the eighth with runners on first and third.

Cubs 10, Astros 5

Hector Villeneuve homered, doubled, singled and drove in a career-high four runs.

Villeneuve, who came off the disabled list three days ago, hit his first home run of the season, a three-run shot in the third off Mark Portugal (2-1).

Gary Scott hit his first major league home run in the eighth for the Cubs. Karl Rhodes hit his first homer for Houston.

Mike Bielecki (4-1) gave up six hits in six innings.

Phillies 11, Giants 9

John Kruk homered and tied Mike Schmidt's team record with 20 RBIs in April.

The Phillies were losing 9-3 when Dale Murphy and Ricky Jordan hit consecutive home runs in the fifth inning off Bud Black. Kruk hit a three-run homer and Charlie Hayes' two-run homer off Jeff Brantley (0-1) capped a six-run rally in the sixth.

Matt Williams and Dave Anderson hit two-run homers in the fourth for San Francisco. Joe Boever (1-1) was the winner and Mitch Williams got his fifth save.

Cardinals 5, Braves 3

Pinch hitter Milt Thompson's two-run single broke a seventh-inning tie.

Thompson's two-out single came against Charlie Leibrandt (2-2) with runners on second and third.

Jose DeLeon failed to win for the 21st time in 23 starts. Reliever Cris Carpenter (2-1) got the victory and Lee Smith pitched the ninth for his eighth save in eight tries.

Hansel follows Dansil to Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — From Dansil to Hansel, Frank Brothers leaves nothing to chance.

"I do try to do things to a 'T,'" Brothers said. "But you have to improvise, as well."

On Saturday, Brothers will saddle Hansel as one of the favorites in his second trip to the Kentucky Derby.

Two years ago, he got Dansil to the Derby via a win in the Arkansas Derby. Dansil finished fourth behind Sunday Silence, Easy Goer and Awe Inspiring.

For Hansel, Brothers chose the Jim Beam and Lexington, which was just two weeks before the Derby. Hansel won both, setting a track record in the Jim Beam.

"Whether the Lexington was right for this horse, you never know, but you've got to strive for perfection," Brothers said.

Hansel is one of the Big Four at this Derby. Bettors will chose from among Hansel, Santa Anita Derby runnerup Best Pal, Blue Grass winner Strike the Gold and 2-year-old champion Fly So Free for a favorite. Fly So Free probably would have been the consensus pick if he had not been beaten by Strike the Gold in the Blue Grass on April 13 at Keeneland.

"I haven't lost faith in Fly So Free," Brothers said. "And the California horses (Best Pal and Sea Cadet) will be tough. Strike the Gold beat the champion, and he looks like the 'now' horse. He doesn't have the credentials going back, but he won easily in the Blue Grass."

"I wouldn't trade with any of them."

One of the reasons Brothers chose the Jim Beam and Lexington route to the Derby was location. The Jim Beam was at Turfway Park in Florence, Ky., and the Lexington was at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky., giving Hansel a full month in Kentucky since his loss to Fly So Free in the Florida Derby on March 16.

"We kind of got our cake and ate it, too, as far as our plans went," Brothers said. "Horses do well in Kentucky. They always have. He's been a different horse since he came from Florida with the cool air. It was just a matter of getting himself adjusted."

Hansel worked five-eighths of a mile in 1:00 4-5 on Tuesday under regular rider Jerry Bailey and galloped out six furlongs in 1:15 1-5.

The first quarter was 24 4-5.

"He didn't need to go in 58," Brothers said. "He was off a little quick, but he came back and then picked it up on his own down the lane. He is running back after only 13 days, so you don't need to do much."

Hansel has trained and raced on the diuretic drug Lasix since he bled from the lungs after he finished a badly beaten fifth in the Fountain of Youth at Gulfstream Park Feb. 23.

"It was very little, and I don't think that was the major reason he ran uneven," Brothers said. "But we put him on Lasix. He trained like a horse that was going to run good, but he didn't. I think the heat and the mental part had something to do with it."

A field as large as 16 is expected to be entered on Thursday for the Derby.

Horse racing needs good Derby

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

There are years that you want the Kentucky Derby to be more than just a grand horse race. And this, undoubtedly, is one of them.

The way things have been happening in the racing business of late, encouraging news is harder to come by than a solvent savings and loan. Bad things have been happening to good people and good horses with such regularity that trouble visits the track more frequently than a retiree with a pension check burning a hole in his pocket.

"It's been a helluva stretch, hasn't it?" 78-year-old Charlie Whittingham, the pre-eminent trainer of this time and perhaps any other, said Tuesday over the telephone from his California office.

"We were just talking the other day, and nobody could remember any other time when so many horses got hurt so close to the Derby."

"Then you go back to what happened to the filly (Go for Wand) that had to be destroyed after the Breeder's Cup last fall ... the accident with Bill (Shoemaker) and Laz Barrera's death," he continued, "and this looks like it might turn out to be a busy season for the crepe-hangers."

But thoroughbred racing's problems go well beyond a handful of unfortunate individuals. At tracks across the land, attendance is slipping, betting is down, drug abuse rumors are on the rise and FOR SALE signs hang from the fences of some of the nation's most prestigious horse farms. Indeed, in a recent, wide-ranging assessment of the state of the industry, Sports Illustrated was moved to pose the question: "Can racing survive?"

If ever the thoroughbred game was in need of a brilliant performance to disperse such shadows and such questions, for a time at least, to rekindle the public's imagination and restore the romance of what was once referred to - without irony - as the Sport of Kings, this Derby is it.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read your column every day and I have yet another cholesterol question. It seems that every doctor or lab has a different range of limits for cholesterol. When I had my cholesterol checked six weeks ago, the normal range ended at 200. Now the normal range has been extended to 220. It has been tested at the same place every time. I have my cholesterol checked on a regular basis since I am on Mevacor. I could not seem to bring it down with diet alone. My last results were as follows:

|               | Mine | Normal range  |
|---------------|------|---------------|
| Total         | 250  | 150-220       |
| HDL           | 65   | 24-73         |
| LDL           | 152  | 0-140         |
| Triglycerides | 196  | 50-175        |
| Chol/HDL      | 3.8  | less than 4.5 |
| LDL/HDL       | 2.3  | less than 3.2 |

I thought the higher the HDL the better, even though the total may be on the high side. Is this true? It seems that all anyone looks at is the "total" number and panics if it is above 200. Is there any danger if the HDL goes close to, or beyond the range of 73. Also, what does HDL 3.8 and LDL/HDL 2.3 mean? This is all so confusing. Can you simplify this so I can understand these numbers?

DEAR READER: Yes, it is confusing to most people. Different laboratory methods do result in different levels, and each has its own normal range. Efforts are being made to standardize this, which will help. And a number of investigators feel that levels up to 220 are not bad, particularly if you have a good HDL level, which you do. No, a high HDL is not dangerous and is good. I have explained each of these terms and normal values in Special Report 44, Understanding Cholesterol and Triglycerides, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/44, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

Chol/HDL is simply your total cholesterol divided by your HDL level — in your case 250 divided by 65 equals 3.8. It reflects the point that a high HDL does help offset a high total cholesterol. The LDL/HDL is simply the LDL divided by the HDL level — in your case 152 divided by 65 equals 2.3. It reflects the point that a higher HDL level (good cholesterol) offsets the effects of LDL (bad cholesterol).

In general, your results are rather good because of your high HDL level. But I suspect from your triglyceride level that you may need to lose some weight and improve your exercise level if your health status permits.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to comment about the pain the person suffered around the rectal area, perhaps a spasm of the muscles. At least that is how I describe it. I have this pain perhaps once every six weeks. I discovered, after much misery, the pain will go away if I use a baby enema bulb of very warm water. Two would not hurt anything. Relief is immediate.

Perhaps this would help someone else. I have used this method of relief for six to seven years.

DEAR READER: That is a good suggestion. Painful spasm of the muscles that elevate or support the rectum, the levator ani, and muscles of the coccyx, can cause severe rectal pain. Warm baths and daily massage for the involved muscles is usually recommended. But heat does help relax contracted muscles, and a very warm enema, as you describe, may indeed be helpful for others too. As long as the water is not too hot, it should not be harmful. And a little massage of the muscles around the rectum may be more effective after the small enema as well, if relief is not forthcoming.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Fire shuts Maine nuclear reactor

WISCASSET, Maine (AP) - Anti-nuclear activists accused operators of a nuclear plant crippled by fire of holding back information on the accident and said the blaze shows the danger of operating a 19-year-old reactor.

The president of the Maine Yankee plant countered that the blaze Monday night could just as easily have occurred at a coal- or oil-fired plant. He said the age of the equipment made it no more susceptible to accidents.

No radiation was released, no one was hurt and the reactor shut down automatically after the fire broke out, officials said. The blaze was confined to the non-nuclear portion of the plant.

"I don't want to downgrade the seriousness of the event, but it's not a nuclear event," Maine Yankee President Charles Frizzle said Tuesday. "From my perspective, this should not reflect negatively on the use of nuclear power."

He said the fire probably was caused by a short in the transformer or sparks in the generator that ignited hydrogen gas being used as a coolant. Hydrogen is commonly used to cool large generators, said plant spokesman Duggan Kimball.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokeswoman Diane Screnci said authorities reported "a loud boom" preceded the fire, but she said investigators couldn't say for sure whether there was an explosion.

Maine Yankee officials said the plant could be closed for weeks or months. Central Maine Power Co., the plant's chief customer, said no immediate shortages were expected.

It was the most serious incident at Maine Yankee since the plant opened in 1972, Frizzle said.

Anti-nuclear activists said the fire was more serious than Maine Yankee managers made it out to be and accused the plant's management of being slow to report the damage to the public. The plant is owned by 10 New England utilities, with Central Maine Power owning the largest share.

"I think Maine Yankee should be forced to be more forthcoming," said Tom Coffin, spokesman for the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee. "To hold back information is simply unconscionable."

On Monday night, Maine Yankee officials confirmed there was a fire but gave no indication of its severity and said they could provide no details until Tuesday. The first description of the fire and details of the damage were released by the NRC on Tuesday morning.

"We saw the same thing at Three Mile Island, we saw the same thing at Chernobyl," said Scott Denman, director of the Safe Energy Communication Council, a Washington-based environmental group.

"You've got plants that are aging, you're going to increasingly have these problems," he added.

Frizzle countered that the transformer that may have caused the fire was replaced three years ago.

The fire raged within 200 feet of Maine Yankee's containment building, which houses the nuclear reactor inside a 4-foot-thick walls of concrete and steel, officials said.

The plant was operating normally when the fire broke out about 6:30 p.m., officials said. Plant firefighters initially pumped carbon dioxide into the building to try to put out the blaze but decided to let it burn itself out. It was out shortly after 10 p.m.

Charles Marshall, NRC senior resident inspector at the plant, said the transformer, which holds 20,030 gallons of oil, buckled and spilled 1,700 gallons into the building. About 150 gallons of the oil, which was also used as a coolant, flowed into the Back River, which runs past the plant.

Bush looks at jobs, environment in pact

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is promising to protect U.S. workers and the environment from negative effects of a free trade agreement with Mexico, administration officials say.

The president today planned to announce "complete action plans" dealing with congressional concerns about the impact that removing tariffs with Mexico would have on labor and the environment, one official said.

Bush developed the plan as part of his campaign to persuade Congress to give him a free hand - so-called fast-track authority - to negotiate an amendment-proof trade agreement with Mexico.

Opponents of the fast-track extension, including textile makers, consumer activists, environmentalists, organized labor and some farm groups, contend a free trade agreement could prompt an exodus of jobs to Mexico, where wages are a fraction of U.S. levels.

Critics also claim lax enforcement of environmental regulations south of the Rio Grande would give companies that relocate in Mexico a competitive advantage over those that remain in the United States. Others fear that Mexican produce treated with pesticides that don't meet U.S. standards would enter the country.

Bush's plan, according to officials who spoke Tuesday on condition of anonymity, promises:

-An assistance program that would identify workers who lost their jobs because of the free-trade agreement and give them money for training, relocation and other costs of finding new work.

-Negotiations between the Environmental Protection Agency and its Mexican counterpart on better cooperation in enforcement of environmental protection along the border.

-A full environmental study on the effect of a free trade agreement. It will be concluded in the early stages of the negotiations, which are to be under way in June.

-Appointment of representatives of environmental organizations to advisory committees in the U.S. Trade Representative's office. The committees will advise negotiators on the talks as they progress.

Bush today was addressing the Society of American Business Editors and Writers convention on the trade issue.

The president has acknowledged he faces an uphill battle in Congress, where lawmakers are under pressure from labor and environmental interests about the potential for loss of U.S. jobs to Mexico's cheaper market, and erosion of pollution standards in Mexico.

Unless Congress gives Bush fast-track negotiating authority, guaranteeing there will be no post-negotiation amendments, the lawmakers have the power to change the agreement after the administration and Mexico reach agreement.

The fast-track procedure sends trade agreements to Congress for a yes-or-no vote without amendments. It was last used to negotiate a free trade agreement with Canada that took effect in 1988.

The authority will be renewed automatically on June 1 for two years unless Congress disapproves.

"We're going to win. We're not taking anything for granted," Bush said Tuesday in a photo session with Republican and Democratic lawmakers he called to the White House to discuss prospects for congressional approval.

Rep. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz., said the president had assured the congressional delegation that he would announce today a way to address their worries about environmental protection and labor issues.

New redistricting deal creates minority areas

AUSTIN (AP) - A state Senate subcommittee is considering a congressional redistricting plan aimed at increasing minority representation, but the chairwoman of the panel says minorities will still be under-represented.

The plan unveiled Tuesday would create so-called minority districts in Dallas and Harris counties, and South Texas, including part of Bexar County.

Sen. Eddie Bernice Johnson, however, said minority districts would still fall short of fair representation of minorities based on the state's population of blacks and Hispanics. "There still is not parity," she said.

And one Houston lawmaker had problems with the so-called Hispanic district in Harris County.

State Rep. Roman Martinez, a Democrat, said the proposed district was "totally unacceptable" because the number of Hispanics there is not enough.

He said the district has a population of 47 percent Hispanics. It also has a low voting age population of 42 percent, he said. Traditionally, districts electing minorities generally have 60 percent or more minority population.

"This still needs a lot of work," Martinez said.

Under the plan, the other so-called Hispanic district would be in South Texas, while a Dallas County district would have a majority of black voters, according to Ms. Johnson.

She said the subcommittee will probably present a final draft to the full Senate next week. She said she expected the panel to adopt a proposal similar to the one under consideration.

Texas will gain three more congressional seats because of population increases during the 1980s that boosted the state's total to about 17 million, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Each 10 years, after the census count, legislators are charged with redrawing district lines for the state House and Senate, the U.S. House and the State Board of Education.

Any redistricting plan also must be approved by the U.S. Justice Department under the Voting Rights Act, and when it is all over, the plan can still be challenged in court.

The plan under consideration by the Senate subcommittee would affect nearly all of Texas' congressional districts, Ms. Johnson said.

"Because of the great population shifts and because of the mandate for the minority districts, it was impossible to leave any district intact," she said.

Allow me to introduce myself and my family!

Dear Friends:

In order for you to become better acquainted with your candidate for Mayor, I would like to introduce you to my family. In so doing, hopefully it will become clear as to my interest in continuing to help create a favorable future for Hereford an all of its citizenry.

My wife, Carol Sue, and I have been married for 25 years; we are the proud parents of two daughters. Carol Sue has served on the Chamber board for three years, serves on the Cowgirl Hall of Fame board, and is a member of the Hereford Hustlers. She currently is president of the Hereford Board of Realtors and is active in the First United Methodist Church.

Tiffany Confer, is our 21-year-old daughter who is currently a senior at Texas Tech University. Tiffany is married to Blake Confer, also a senior at Tech. Blake and Tiffany are the parents of the "pride and joy" of both the LeGate and Confer families. Jordan Brooke Confer turned one year old on April 20.

Jennifer, our 17-year-old, will be a senior in Hereford High School. Like her sister, she was born and raised in Hereford. Her interests have included band and drill team and she participates on the HHS varsity tennis team. Jennifer also plans to attend Texas Tech University upon her graduation from high school.

My family would like for me to be mayor. I would like to be your mayor. However, I know that being mayor is not a one-man show. It will take each citizen's support and effort to make our city the place we want it to be or become.

Sincerely,

Tom LeGate
