State Official Raps Carter Gas Rationing Plans

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ALTHOUGH the Texas Railroad Commission regulates the oil and gas industry in the state, commission chairman John Poerner said here Thursday the group won't be handling the political hot potato of developing a standby gas rationing plan.

Instead, Gov. Bill Clements will have that responsibility, Poerner said prior to a speech to a Society of Petroleum Engineers meeting.

But whatever plan is developed, Poerner said, "It should be a simple plan that doesn't require a great deal of inspection and enforcement."

He noted that several standby rationing plans have been rejected by Congress, much to the displeasure of President Carter.

Poerner called Carter's rationing plans "clumsy and unworkable." And he said, "They would also create an administrative nightmare and lay the groundwork for more federal bureaucracy which we certainly do not need."

Poerner didn't make any specific recommendations for a Texas gas rationing program, but he did say, "While the odd-even gas plan which has been instituted in a number of California's counties is not perfect, at least there is no bureaucratic red tape which must be met before the plan is workable."

He attributed the gasoline problems in California to the state's rapid population growth rate which he said has outdistanced the gasoline supplies to California.

Motorists who see long lines of cars at the gas pumps become fearful of a gas shortage and get in line to "top off" their already half-full tanks, he said. "And that creates a greater shortage," he added.

Although California motorists have been told not to "top off" half-full tanks, some service station operators have said they will not police the policy by checking motorists' fuel gauges.

Poerner said lobbyists for the tourist industry have persuaded refineries to increase the manufacture of gas to insure gasoline supplies for the summer tourist trade, but he warned, "It will be at the expense of fuel oil for next winter in the northeastern states."

Although he foresees no fuel oil shortages for Texas residents next winter, he did say that unless Carter takes specific steps to insure supplies, "There will be a shortage of fuel for agricultural use next spring."

Carter recently said he would guarantee fuel supplies for agricultural use, but Poerner said the plan could easily bog down in bureaucracy unless Carter watches it carefully.

The federal Natural Gas Policy Act, passed a few months ago, is a "hodgepodge," Poerner said, attributing it to legislators trying to meet too many varied objectives with the act.

"Some legislators wanted to extend price controls to gas which was not yet regulated by the federal government.

"Others wanted phased deregulation," he said. "Everybody seemed to want to increase supplies by providing price incentives, but whether or not that is really happening remains to be seen."

Idle Car Day Plan Viewed By Solons

Alternate Gas Rationing Idea Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal that would require motorists to leave their cars home one day a week gained new support Thursday as a possible successor to President Carter's rejected standby gasoline rationing plan.

The new plan, being drafted by a group of House Democrats active on energy issues, also would tentatively limit gasoline sales nationally to at least $5 per car to keep motorists from "topping off" their tanks.

Under the proposal, car windshields would have to bear stickers displaying a number from one to seven indicating the day of the week the vehicle couldn't be driven. Motorists would pick the day and states would distribute the stickers.

Could Be Arrested

It would be illegal to drive a car on the day of the week indicated by the sticker and motorists doing so could be arrested or ticketed.

The plan would apply nationally.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., the main proponent of the proposal, said the plan can be used to ease gasoline shortages this summer.

It isn't nearly as cumbersome as Carter's defeated standby rationing plan, Moffett said. "The beauty of it is it could fly quickly," he said.

"As we saw last week, if you make it too complicated Congress will do a number on it," Moffett told a reporter.

Give States Option

Moffett also said the plan might give states an option of using their own plans for saving gasoline with conservation targets set for each state. He said states that failed to meet the goals using programs of their own would have no choice but to accept the one-day-per-week driving ban.

The president's domestic adviser, Stuart Eizenstat, met with backers of the proposal Thursday to demonstrate White House interest in the plan and to help with actual drafting.

Backers said the effort also has the blessing of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts and Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas.

And Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., probably the most influential House member on energy issues, told reporters Thursday he thinks the Moffett plan might help ease fuel shortages and appears to have considerable support in Congress.

Opposition Smaller

Dingell, chairman of the House energy and power subcommittee, also said the proposal would not draw the kind of opposition that toppled Carter's coupon-rationing plan.

And he said he favors giving the president the power to deal with gasoline shortages that can't wait for a full-fledged rationing scheme.

"The disaster we have upon us is real, serious and will be of lengthy duration," Dingell said.

Moffett said the plan has gained considerable momentum since he first disclosed it earlier this week.

He proposed the plan after the House last week overwhelmingly turned down President Carter's standby plan for gasoline rationing and Carter challenged Congress to come up with its own rationing plan within 90 days.

Moffett said his plan still isn't in final form and that he and a half dozen other Democratic members of the energy and power subcommittee plan to spend the next few days trying to reduce it to legislative language.

One problem, he conceded, is "how do you make 100 million stickers and get them out?"

He also said the proposal that would keep drivers from buying less than $5 worth of gasoline per car might be modified to take into account the gas tank capacities of different types of vehicles.

In other congressional energy developments Thursday:

— A study released by the New England Congressional Caucus predicted heating oil prices might rise from their current range of 64 to 69 cents to as much as 90 cents next winter.

And, the study said, unless the Carter administration takes steps to increase supplies there even is a "threat of empty heating oil tanks in some New England homes next February and March."

Clamor To Save Houses May Wind Up In Court

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IT WAS Overton South Neighborhood Association 2, First Baptist Church 0, in two decisions Thursday to determine whether the church should use three 13th Street lots for additional parking and whether two houses on those lots deserved protective zoning.

Following a three-hour hearing Thursday night, the Urban Design Commission voted 6-1 to recommend that the two houses, located at 2219 and 2223 13th St., be designated historic or architectural landmarks.

Thursday morning, the Zoning Board of Adjustment voted unanimously against allowing the church to use the lots for parking and church spokesman indicated that decision may be appealed.

Crucial to the Urban Design Commission's decision in favor of the Overton South Neighborhood Association (OSNA) was the decision by two commission members to vote on the issue, in spite of what some would view as a conflict of interest.

Elois Elliott, chairman of the OSNA advisory board, asked to abstain from the discussions and the vote because of her membership in the association and her residence in the affected neighborhood.

However, after commission member Homer Hunt, a member of the First Baptist Church, said he could make an unbiased decision and refused to abstain from the deliberations, Mrs. Elliott decided not to abstain.

Motion To Table Fails

Commission member Ron Beard made a motion that any vote be tabled until just before a moratorium on further dismantling of the homes expires.

Beard said he hoped that would allow the church officials and the neighborhood association to attempt a compromise.

But, that motion failed on a 4-3 vote, with Mrs. Elliott casting the deciding vote. On the final motion to recommend landmark status for the structures, Hunt cast the only dissenting vote.

Commission member Jim Mertes, also a ZBA member, expressed concern that if the houses were designated landmarks, "they could sit there as empty shells and be so vandalized there wouldn't be much to deal with."

That situation could develop because the church owns the land on which the houses sit, although the church has sold one house and is attempting to sell the other.

The house not owned by the church is under contract to be moved off the property within three months, but if the landmark designation is upheld by the Planning and Zoning Commission in July and by the City Council, removal of the house will require Urban Design Commission Approval.

Meeting Hall Jammed

Approximately 50 persons, most of them from Overton South, jammed the city hall EOC, where the meeting was held, to tell commission members the houses should receive protective zoning because of their significance to the rest of the Overton South neighborhood.

The two structures are the "northernmost structures of our neighborhood with the exception of one bungalow," OSNA member Ted Hogan said.

They present the "northern face of the neighborhood to Broadway," Hogan said, and that "face gives Overton South its public image."

Rain Outlook For Region Hiked Today

PORTIONS of the South Plains late Thursday received scattered amounts of precipitation, and forecasters predict a 40 percent chance of rain for the area today.

The threat of scattered showers and thunderstorms continues today as a moist southeasterly flow of air from the Gulf combines with an upper level low pressure system.

Skies will be cloudy and forecasters say the chance of showers for the area will persist through Saturday.

The high today and Saturday will be near 80 and tonight's low near 60. Winds will be southerly at 15 to 25 mph and gusty and wind warnings are in effect for area lakes today.

Across the area Thursday, at 8:30 p.m. isolated thunderstorms with very heavy rain were occurring five miles north of Andrews and 10 miles northwest of Goldsmith. Pea-sized hail was reported on Farm Road 115 south west of Andrews.

Heavy thunderstorms also were indicated over Floyd, Motley and Dawson Counties late Thursday.

At 8:35 p.m., the Department of Public Safety reported that hail covered part of the highway from Floydada to Matador. The National Weather Service also received reports of pea to marble size hail near and in Matador. The storm was moving to the east northeast at about 15 to 20 mph.

Bob Stanley in Matador reported that the city received about 1 1/4 of an inch of rain from Thursday night's storm. "We had lots of thunder and the hail nearly covered the ground," he said.

Forecasters said rainfall amounts would average 1/4 to 1/2 inch from the scattered thunderstorms with a few amounts near two inches in heavier thunderstorms.

Extended outlook for West Texas is calling for a chance of showers and thunderstorms Sunday and becoming partly cloudy to clear Monday and Tuesday.

Old Oil Well Bothers Homeowner

MANNFORD, Okla. (UPI) — In these days of soaring gasoline prices, many people dream about having an oil well on their own property. But for Russ Smith it's just an expensive inconvenience.

There's oil flowing out from underneath Smith's driveway but unfortunately it's not worth trying to recover. Smith should know — he's a senior vice president for a Tulsa oil drilling supply firm.

Smith first noticed the oozing oil about six weeks ago and started to search through city records and abstracts to trace the history of the property and see who owned the mineral rights.

He discovered his house is built on top of an old oil well first worked in 1912 but abandoned 25 years ago.

Veto Override Hits Clements

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Gov. Bill Clements became the first governor since 1941 to see a bill become law over his veto Thursday as senators voted to override his action on a local bill.

The 25-6 Senate vote followed Tuesday's 90-42 House vote to override Clements' veto of a bill exempting Comal County from state hunting and fishing rules.

"There is nothing personal, partisan or vindictive or anything else involved," Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, told colleagues in urging them to override. Snelson was Senate sponsor for the bill by Rep. Bennie Bock, D-New Braunfels.

Clements had objected to allowing individual counties to get out from state regulation and called it "poor management practice."

"Chosen Wrong Issue"

Clements told a news conference later in the day the override was bound to come sometime.

"It was probably coming sooner or later but I think they've chosen the wrong issue," he said. "Apparently this comes under the local privilege situation but I think it is a bad law."

He said he will veto four similar local game bills despite the Legislature's reaction to the Comal County measure.

Gov. W. Lee "Pappy" O'Daniel was the last chief executive to veto a measure in vain.

After the Senate vote, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said legislative pride was involved.

"It's just that the governor vetoed a local bill and that's a very strongly held legislative prerogative," said the Senate's presiding officer.

Hobby For Override

"Had I been a member of the Senate, I would have voted to override," added Hobby, the top-ranking elected Democratic official.

Hobby said the overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature was not trying to send Clements a larger message.

"Of course, it brings the Legislature into conflict with the governor, but that's provided in the constitution," he said. "I don't see it as anything personal. I think it's very much a one-issue thing."

Republican Sen. Bob Price of Pampa cast a vote with the Democratic majority to override. The other three GOP senators — Betty Andujar of Fort Worth, O.H. "Ike" Harris of Dallas and Walter Mengden of Houston — voted against defying Clements.

Snelson read a brief statement and cited the constitutional procedure for overriding a veto before senators voted without debate.

The Uniform Wildlife Regulatory Act specifically allows counties to disagree with statewide rules set annually and lets commissioners courts set local regulations, Snelson explained.

He said 27 counties operate with a "commissioners court clause."

"The function of the clause is to allow the commissioners court to disagree with the commission for one year," he said. The county can either adopt a previous year's game proclamation or operate under general laws, he added.

"Is there any way we can make this vote apply to all the other vetoes?" Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, asked in jest after the tally.

SCHOOL LIQUOR ILLEGAL

Jail Inmate's Death Linked To Head Blow

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PRELIMINARY autopsy results indicate that Jose A. Villarreal, who was found dead in his Lubbock County Jail cell Thursday morning, died from a hemorrhage produced by a blow to his head.

But authorities, who arrested the 52-year-old Lubbock man on suspicion of public intoxication just hours before his death, say they are unsure when he suffered the fatal injury.

Although pathologist John Ray determined that the blow to Villarreal's right temple was the type of injury usually suffered during a fall, he was unable to pinpoint when the blow occurred, according to Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy.

"It (the hemorrhage) was caused by a head injury," LeCroy said. "But Dr. Ray said it was the type of blow ususually found on someone who falls or bumps into something."

Villarreal, whose last known address was 1217 Ave. F, was arrested at 1:15 a.m. Thursday after police found him unconscious in the west parking lot of El Monte Carlo Lounge, 355 Ave. H.

Four hours later jailer Berry Leary delivered a breakfast tray to the inmate and discovered him dead in his bunk in the second-floor "drunk tank," Chief Deputy Albert Smith said.

Although there were five other inmates in the tank, officials say there was no indication of violence inside the cell.

In his report, Cpl. Dan Leming stated that he and Sgts. James Little and Jerry Parker found Villarreal "in a very drunk condition. (Villarreal) had a strong odor of alcohol on his breath."

Leming said they were unable to awaken Villarreal and lifted him into the patrol car. Upon arrival at the jail, the still unconscious Villarreal was carried into the jail by Leming and jail officials.

Police and jail officials again unsuccessfully tried to awaken Villarreal and finally booked him into the jail as "Juan Doe" because they could find no identification on him.

While being carried into the jail, Villarreal's wallet apparently fell out of his

Legislature Passes Gasohol Measure

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The first of two crucial pieces of legislation legalizing the production of gasohol in Texas unanimously passed the Senate Thursday and was sent to Gov. Bill Clements' office.

"We're almost there," declared Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, the bill's sponsor, after witnessing its uncontested passage in the Senate. "It looks like our legislators agree that we have to help ourselves in this fuel crunch, and I'm very glad to see we're willing to do what we can. But we're not through yet."

Kubiak's bill, HB 1803, provides for $15 million in state funds for loans to persons, cooperatives or companies wishing to develop gasohol production facilities. Those loans, to be administered through the Texas Industrial Commission, would be limited to $25,000 per individual and $500,000 per group.

At a recent "Gasohol Day" rally in Austin, Clements proclaimed his strong support for the gasohol legislation, but issued no formal comment Thursday after the bill was delivered to his office.

The second gasohol bill considered crucial to the future of gasohol in the state also made progress Thursday, successfully emerging from the Senate State Affairs Committee.

HB 1986, co-sponsored by Kubiak and Rep. Bill Keese of Somerville, is expected to be voted on by the full Senate sometime next week, according to Chuck Dean, Kubiak's legislative assistant.

In it's basic form, HB 1986 provides for the manufacture of alcohol for use as a motor fuel, but because it has been altered and amended several times, it must be re-approved by the House even if the Senate passes it.

The bill passed the House 126 to 1 its first time through and though the changes have been numerous, observers say none appear particularly troublesome in either house.

As it stands, the bill now allows anyone to apply for alcohol manufacture permits but forbids the production of beverage-quality alcohol.

The bill was passed from the committee Wednesday following an impromptu meeting between representatives of the Amstar Corn Sweetening Plant near Dimmitt, the Midwest Solvents Corp., which has proposed to build a major gasohol plant near Santa Rosa, the Licensed Liquor Distributors, a dozen senators and representatives and House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Hospital District To Drop Homestead From Indigency Guidelines

A Lubbock County Hospital District committee Thursday approved a proposal that would loosen up the district's medical indigency guidelines.

The revision, brought before the community programs and relations committee, will go to the board of managers Monday.

The revision, proposed by Louis Martinez, medical indigency supervisor for the district, would eliminate a homestead in determining the worth of an applicant's real property and one car and the tools of a trade in determining the value of an applicant's personal property.

The present guidelines, which went into effect on Feb. 1 of this year, state that anyone with real property valued at more than $500 is ineligible for indigent care and anyone with personal property valued at more than $500 is ineligible.

Real and personal property under the existing guidelines includes homesteads, automobiles and trade tools as factors in determining an applicant's ability to pay for medical service.

"We were not able to assist many people because of these guidelines," Martinez told the Avalanche-Journal, Thursday.

He noted that someone who owned a home valued at $3,000 could not now qualify for the indigency program.

Martinez said the homesteads, automobiles and trade tools were originally exempted from the guidelines.

The exemptions were eliminated, however, in the newest regulations, issued in February, and said Martinez, "Partially, it was an oversight on my part to let it (the changes) get through. I should have kept on top of it more."

He said the guidelines were adjusted to try to conform with those found in cities equal in size to Lubbock.

'Aiding Suicide' Charges Levied Against Pair

Two Lubbock men who were with another man when he fatally shot himself in the head were named Thursday by police as suspects in an "aiding suicide" offense.

Robert Martinez, 19, of 2618 Duke St., reportedly shot himself in the temple about 2 a.m. Friday while traveling with two men, ages 18 and 19. Martinez died about 6 p.m. Monday after being taken off life-supporting equipment at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

A police report, made available this morning, states the two men in the car with Martinez when he was fatally wounded in the Arnett-Benson area are suspects in aiding in the suicide — a third-degree felony.

The men told police Friday that Martinez had been playing Russian roulette with a .38-caliber pistol in the back seat of the 1971 Pontiac, when the weapon discharged and the bullet passed through the victim's head.

The driver of the car — a relative of the dead man — told police that he drove around about 20 minutes before taking Martinez to the hospital.

However, the report that names Martinez' companions as suspects, states that the threesome were only five minutes away from HSCH when the shooting occurred.

The report adds that the two men in the front seat of the car first told police at the hospital that Martinez was shot by an unknown person or persons.

The two men reportedly were evasive when questioned by police, and did not say Martinez shot himself until the victim's father arrived at the hospital.

Red Attack In Thailand Kills Five Soldiers

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Communist insurgents ambushed a military unit in northeastern Thailand Wednesday, killing five government soldiers, including the son of a division commander, a military spokesman said Thursday.

The spokesman said about 50 rebels opened fire with rockets and light weapons as the troopers were patrolling a road in Don Tarn district of Nakhon Phanom province, 360 miles northeast of Bangkok.

Luke 16:29-31; 17:1-6

29 But Abraham said, 'The Scriptures have warned them again and again. Your brothers can read them any time they want to.'

30 The rich man replied, 'No, Father Abraham, they won't bother to read them. But if someone is sent to them from the dead, then they will turn from their sins.'

31 Then Abraham said, 'If they won't listen to Moses and the prophets, they won't listen even if someone rises from the dead.'"

CHAPTER 17

There will always be temptations to sin," Jesus said one day to His disciples, "but woe to the man who does the tempting.

2, 3 If he were thrown into the sea with a huge rock tied to his neck, he would be far better off than facing the punishment in store for those who harm these little children's souls. I am warning you!

Rebuke your brother if he sins, and forgive him if he is sorry.

4 Even if he wrongs you seven times every day and each time turns again and asks forgiveness, forgive him."

5 One day the apostles said to the Lord, "We need more faith; tell us how to get it."

6 "If your faith were only the size of a mustard seed," Jesus answered, "it would be large enough to uproot that mulberry tree over there and send it hurtling into the sea! Your command would bring immediate results!

Lubbock Man Gets Probated Sentence In Aggravated Robbery

A 19-year-old Lubbock man Thursday was convicted of the Feb. 15 aggravated robbery of a Lubbock meat market and given a 10-year probated sentence.

The 140th District Court jury took two hours to find Ralph Eugene Evans Jr. of 3314 E. Cornell St. guilty and 20 minutes to set his punishment.

Defense attorney Bob Jones of Lubbock had asked probation for Evans who had not been been previously convicted of a felony.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Mark McBride asked a 35-year sentence.

Robert Woodard, a minister at Sunset Church of Christ, testified that Evans had been taking part in Bible classes and would, in his opinion, be a good risk for probation.

McBride asked a stiff sentence as a deterrent to possible future armed robberies in Lubbock County, saying, "We have order in society because of fear of the law."

Evans claimed in testimony Thursday morning that he was not one of the two men who held up Newburn's Meat Market at 215 Quirt Ave. at shotgun-point.

LOWER EXPECTATIONS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alfred Kahn, President Carter's chief inflation adviser, says American consumers must "lower their expectations" if they want to beat inflation. "We're doing this to ourselves," Kahn told a one-day seminar sponsored Wednesday by the White House and the Southern California Association of Governments. Kahn, who is chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, noted the United States consumes more per capita than such prosperous nations as Japan and West Germany.

Now, The Greedy American?

IF ALL THE rhetoric being expended over the current gasoline shortage, and the longer-range energy crisis, could be refined and dispensed as fuel, both problems would be over in a hurry.

It's not that a full discussion of California's long gas lines or ever-increasing fuel costs don't merit full study. The problem is that, as usual, politics and motives become blurred.

GOV. BROWN flew off to Washington at midweek to "personally" call attention of the White House to the growing problem California faces.

It was as though the President and whole nation for that matter were unaware of the West Coast's travel travails. The whole country has been treated to it nightly on television's "As The World Stops," and in the newspapers.

The White House was prepared for Jerry, who it is hinted might oppose Mr. Carter as chief cook and gasoline dispenser come 1980. Not only was Jerry welcomed, but the whole California congressional delegation.

The President used the occasion to announce he was increasing gasoline allocations to California.

THE DAY BEFORE, the President took a swipe at the "Average American" consumer. It was a deserved one, although one could write a book on the background that brought the blast about.

The President compared the nation's energy problem to a cancer and said it was "heartbreaking to see such an issue sapping away the basic strength of our nation."

Mr. Carter chastised "the average American" for not reducing energy consumption, as he said "the corporate world" has done.

He said the energy problem posed "one of the most serious threats to our nation in peacetime that I have seen."

MR. CARTER IS right on all counts. The average American hasn't cut down on gas consumption. In fact, in California, it has increased.

Millions of Americans: 1. Either don't believe there really is a "serious" shortage of gasoline, 2. Think the whole thing is a rip-off by the oil companies and stations to raise prices, or 3. If the doom and gloom forecasts are true, then "I'm going to get mine now..."

In brief, the "me first" syndrome of this generation has come full cycle. The name of the game is a selfish "what's in it for me" stance. Mr. Carter is correct. The Average American doesn't see himself as having a role in the fuel crisis at this point.

Of course, the Carter Administration, as well as the GOP before it, must shoulder most of the blame. Instead of coming up with known solutions, the nation—from the President down—has wasted five years fiddling and faddling.

IT'S STILL not too late. Mr. Carter should call in the top leaders of the oil and distribution industry, convene an expert civilian task force and set about taking whatever steps are needed—however politically unpopular—to meet the challenge.

And the American people must come to the realization that at home—and abroad—they face the gravest threat to their affluent way of life since World War II.

If they opt for leaders who mislead them with promises instead of taking the hard decisions—at home and abroad—which must be made, then they will have no one to blame for themselves when the rationing and higher prices do come.

Auto Tax Stall

LUBBOCK SCHOOL trustees are in character when they say they might not take the wheel tax off the backs of Lubbock car owners unless the Legislature makes it mandatory that they do so.

As passed by the House of Representatives, a bill implementing the misnamed "tax relief" amendment approved by voters last November would prohibit cities and school districts from levying a personal property tax against two vehicles per family.

The Senate version, however, would only permit—not mandate—city councils and school boards to eliminate the car tax. If the Senate version prevails, what would the local taxing authorities do?

Most City Council members told The Avalanche-Journal they'd probably eliminate the tax. They certainly should; it is unevenly administered and was soundly rejected by Lubbock voters in the November referendum.

School trustees, though, hedged. They said they'd have to wait and see whether the state reimburses local school districts for revenues lost through local tax cuts or consider "what would be the result if we lose all that tax money."

The thought of cutting expenses would never occur to the school trustees. After all, if the auto tax money is lost, where would they get the tax funds for sending students on a "field trip" to Europe at a cost to the taxpayers of $1,500 per student?

Bang! We're Dead

THE COUNCIL on Wage and Price Stability is asking Congress to more than triple its budget for the current fiscal year, from $2.21 million to $6.95 million.

Furthermore, the council wants authorization to spend even more—$8.48 million. Still furthermore, the council, in order to convince everyone (else) to hold the line, wants to expand its permanent staff almost six-fold, from 39 to 233 positions.

P.S. The Council on Wage and Price Stability, you'll recall, is the White House agency headed by Alfred E. Kahn to "lead the battle against inflation." Sigh.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Boulder More Of A Risk Than Three Mile Island

WASHINGTON—Now that we have heard from Jane Fonda, Ralph Nader and similar experts on nuclear power, perhaps a little attention might be focused on some spokesmen for the other side.

A few days back, the House Committee on Science and Technology took testimony from a panel of scientists concerning nuclear safety in general and Three Mile Island in particular.

Granted, these people don't have the high level of expertise as Jane and Ralph, but they do have credentials which entitle them to be heard. They are, in alphabetical order:

Dr. Hans Bethe of Cornell, who won the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1967. Dr. Karl Cohen of Stanford, former chief scientist, Nuclear Energy Group, General Electric.

DR. ROBERT Hofstadter of Stanford, who won the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1961. Dr. Behram Kursunoglu of the University of Miami, former coworker with Albert Einstein. Dr. Edward Teller of the Hoover Institution.

Admittedly, that's only three Nobel Prizes among six witnesses—against two Academy Awards for Jane, alone. Still, it's enough to give these scientists at least a fraction of the media play accorded Jane and Ralph.

Certainly what they had to say has the virtue of novelty, since it runs totally counter to the brainless hysteria which is the fashionable attitude on nuclear energy at the moment. A few examples:

"I FULLY predict we shall never have a meltdown (the much dreamed possible outcome at Three Mile Island), except in a computer simulation...The damage to the (Three Mile Island) plant itself was considerable...

"Nevertheless, there was not a meltdown. And Three Mile Island may have proved that meltdowns can't happen. The principal adverse effect on the public is a psychic damage, inflicted by panic-mongers of every stripe" (Cohen).

"I think the Three Mile Island accident is really a positive indication, because in spite of all the mistakes that have been made, and in spite of, also, some perhaps improvable error in the design, nobody was really hurt, and no real injury has been inflicted" (Wigner).

"(At Three Mile Island) people were scaring them to death about explosion, which physically never could have happened because there was no oxygen" (Cohen).

"I WANT TO re-emphasize that there could never be a nuclear explosion at a civilian reactor" (Bethe).

"(We have) zero number of proven cases of damage to the health of any individual due to the nuclear nature of a big reactor, of a big electricity-producing reactor in the Free World...

"Nuclear reactors are not safe, but they are incomparably safer than anything else we happen to have. From health and cleanliness alone we should choose it.

"And the environmentalists, if they mean what they say, should be the first ones to use it...I will say that nuclear reactors will continue much safer than any other source of electricity" (Teller).

"...A COAL-FIRED plant puts out more radioactivity than a nuclear plant, as a rule...I don't understand the people who are so excited about radioactivity that they don't forbid people to live in Boulder (Colo., where) the natural radiation is twice greater than here in Washington" (Wigner).

"Solar energy is...much more expensive, at present, and probably in the near-term also, than nuclear energy by a factor of four...The reason for this is that solar energy requires enormously large areas...

"The factor four applies to solar energy generation on earth. The solar-powered satellite—I would guess the factor is a hundred."

Over to you, Jane and Ralph.

Oil Men Tap Brown

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The appearance of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. before the nation's independent oil drillers typified the unique political style he will use in his campaign against President Carter: horrendously incompetent advance preparations compensated for by a brilliant personal performance.

It was the governor's idea to appear in Reno, Nev., at the annual convention of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA)—the rough-and-ready small oil men scarcely expected to be Jerry-for-President boosters.

IPAA executive vice president Lloyd Unsell accepted Brown's offer, giving him the May 8 luncheon spot.

The weeks passed, however, without Brown confirming the date even after being prodded. Unsell, his patience exhausted, tapped Sec. of Energy James Schlesinger as Brown's substitute and sent the governor a telegram disinviting him from the meeting.

"You have gotten our attention," top Brown aide Gray Davis telephoned Unsell in IPAA's Washington office, reiterating Brown's desire to address the oil men. Unsell agreed, reserving a new time for Brown to speak May 8.

"They were really very cold," reported one onlooker connected with neither the governor nor the IPAA, "but Brown won them over."

What makes this all the more remarkable is that Brown, who usually takes the precise opposite of any Carter position, has been saying that the President waited too late to decontrol oil prices and that decontrol during a supply shortage is unwise.

In Reno, however, Brown gave the impression he favors decontrol without precisely endorsing it. What's more, in private conversations with the oil men, he criticized Carter's excess-profits oil tax as a tax on oil production that will undermine future supply.

Given a choice, there is no doubt that the independent oil men would prefer Jerry Brown over Jimmy Carter by a wide margin.

ONE WEEK after Saudi Arabia's shocking ouster of the CIA station chief in Jeddah, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance threw a new verbal punch at the oil-rich Arab state which angered White House foreign policy aides.

The White House was reeling from the impact of the unprecedented ouster of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) station chief when Vance told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that "clear and sharp differences" were developing between the U.S. and Saudi Arabia.

Taken together, these developments have brought the two old allies to their lowest state ever.

The Saudi government had nothing personally against the CIA's station chief, but a lot against the administration. For one thing, CIA headquarters here infuriated the Saudis by ordering its local operatives to count the number of minority Shiite Moslems with ties to revolutionary Iran.

THE OVERRIDING problem stems from U.S. pressure on the Saudis to get in line behind the U.S. and the new Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Saudi officials feel that because of the grave split on this issue between their country and the U.S., Washington is conducting an undercover campaign depicting a disintegrating Saudi royal family.

Against that backdrop, when Vance was asked about U.S.-Saudi relations, he plunged in—making matters worse, not smoothing over the differences. White House aides were flabbergasted.

They tried to explain Vance's criticism as the lawyer-like reaction of a good attorney analyzing a worsening case. Privately, however, they were furious that Vance would pour more oil on the inflamed U.S.-Saudi connection.

The Saudi decision ordering the CIA agent out of the country was the first time ever that a CIA man has been ousted from any country. That reveals the sorry state of relations between the U.S. and its chief foreign oil supplier.

HOWEVER COOL British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's relationship with President Carter may be, she is on excellent terms with one American politician: front-running Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan.

When Reagan visited London last autumn, then prime minister James Callaghan did not have time to see him. That provided a shared experience for Reagan with Thatcher, who was given a similar cold shoulder by Carter when she visited Washington during the summer of 1977.

Reagan and Thatcher did get together for a long chat and hit it off splendidly, finding they agreed on most foreign and domestic questions.

A footnote: Thatcher, who takes the Soviet menace far more seriously than Callaghan, showed her thinking by recommending that Reagan read "The Third World War" by Gen. Sir John Hackett (Macmillan). The book is a scenario for a Soviet attack on the West in 1985.

ANDREW TULLY:

Counting On Aliens

WASHINGTON—More than half of the six million illegal aliens in the United States are Mexicans.

It would not be startling to learn that furtive arrangements have been made in parts of California and Texas permitting these illegals to vote. Politicians have always been able to count.

One of the counters is President Carter. On his recent "non-political" visit to Los Angeles he was the epitome of compassion for Mexican illegals, promising to protect their "basic human rights."

After all, Mexican-Americans make up 16 percent of California votes and they gave Carter overwhelming support in 1976.

HE TOLD the crowd at a Hispanic celebration "I am committed to making sure that all people within our borders, no matter how they may have gotten here, are treated with dignity and justice."

Okay. But as a non-politician I would have added that sneaking is against the law and therefore it is the President's duty to see that the illegals are apprehended and shipped back to their native land.

Carter did acknowledge this responsibility in a letter to our 50 governors, but he urged that the government "deal fairly and humanely with any persons accused of being undocumented workers."

Okay, too. On the other hand, Carter has taken no steps to stop the flow of those aliens—the necessary first step in dealing with the problem.

TODAY IT IS a problem costing the American taxpayer a lot of money. Back in 1977, an Immigration and Naturalization Service study estimated that cost at $13 billion a year; it's probably higher now.

Most of the aliens qualify for Medicaid. Their children attend tax-supported schools. Many are eligible for food stamps and the dole.

But $13 billion a year, or whatever, is a high price to pay for insuring humane treatment of people who broke the law by entering this country.

Moreover, illegal aliens snatch jobs that legally belong to American citizens. If the flow across the Mexican border were cut in half, the unemployment rate would be reduced by one percent.

That would be a significant achievement: ask any of the poor citizens who go jobless because employers can get away with hiring illegals at less than the minimum wage.

NOR ARE ALL the illegal Mexicans lettuce pickers. The Immigration Service is kept busy raiding fancy restaurants in New York, Washington and other big cities where more than one-half of the busboys, dish washers and others in lowly jobs are illegals.

Immigration discovered one alien working as a $30,000-a-year computer specialist in Minnesota.

I can understand Jimmy Carter's almost frantic effort to mend his political fences. But we the citizens would welcome the "basic human right" of relief from the duty of financing this invasion.

Carter's preoccupation with certain ethnic special interests seems to overlook the fact that legal Americans also are permitted to vote.

JAY HARRIS:

And The People...

AS WE HAVE often noted, one of the more rewarding aspects of most journeys one makes around the world is the people you meet.

In that respect, we have been most fortunate. The people we have met, officially and otherwise, and at all levels of the political and economic scale, have been great.

In a place called Umtata, The Transkei, in South Africa, in Jerusalem, a crowded airport in Cairo, a government office in New Delhi and on a six-hour journey in 108-degree heat in rural India, the people stand out in our memory as much as the things we saw.

In brief, there's much to be said for the argument that if the "little" people of the world could find a way, they could work out most problems, including those that lead to wars.

ONE OF THE more fascinating moments of the recent jaunt to India came when we boarded Air India's sparkling 747 "Chandra Gupta" after a stopover and a change of crew in London.

After the usual greeting, in words that fairly crackled with excitement, he said: "We are going to fly to India on a route that will take us over some of Europe's and Asia's most historic and interesting cities..."

Then in staccato-like sentences, he proceeded to tell the 380-plus passengers what they were in for. About half way into the journey, as the huge Boeing plane rushed towards a rendezvous with night, he came on again.

This time, he gave a vivid description of the Dardanelles, Istanbul, even down to a new bridge, "and the Black Sea off to the left..." Later he pointed out Ankara, Teheran, Pakistan and as we approached New Delhi, "a dust and thunderstorm in the area..."

DURING THE latter stages of the flight, we went upstairs and met the man, Capt. M. L. Kalia, a seasoned veteran of 29 years in the air, 23 of them with Air India.

A dashing bachelor with a touch of gray, Capt. Kalia has piloted planes all over the world. And when he is at the controls, he says he likes to give those relying on him to get them "there from here" a commentary on "the fabulous world below..."

"Do you think they like it?" he asked.

While we have read of some soreheads who "want to be left alone" aloft, most persons we discussed the captain's "travelogue" with enjoyed it thoroughly. Incidentally, we had hardly returned home than we got a card from the Captain, mailed from Frankfurt, one of Air India's many ports of call. He had received an outstanding service award from the Airline Pilots Assn., the only Indian to do so.

CAPT. KALIA was just one of dozens with whom we came in contact in the teeming subcontinent, often under conditions which would try man's temper as well as soul.

But, despite occasional heat, tight schedules, jam-packed air terminals and sold-out planes, not once—not a single time—did any person with whom we came in contact lose his or her "cool."

Perhaps we are wrong, but we ascribe the Indians' approach to life to two things—an acceptance of "what is to be will be," and the fact that 650,000,000 people, living so close and under the circumstances they do, have learned to do so mostly without rancor.

This is not to say that the Indian does not have a boiling point or that violence is unknown. The bloody communal clashes, the religious wars, including the conflict between India and Pakistan, even armed robbery and murder are not uncommon in this "melting pot" of so many diverse peoples, beliefs, dreams and nightmares.

But, it is to say that on a one-to-one basis, and as hosts, the Indian is a genteel "fella" indeed.

ALSO ON THIS segment of our flight we met one Lorraine D'Costa, a pretty Air India hostess.

Small, dark-skinned, with striking eyes and teeth, dressed in a colorful saree, she is typical of many women in India who have chosen careers, at least for the moment.

She lives just outside Bombay, where her mother works in a shop. Her father, a former Navy man, is dead, a situation we ran into repeatedly in India, the father dying at an early age.

Women long have played a key role in India's life, other than as mothers to her millions. And during Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's term, women's role, especially as civil servants, increased sharply.

Yet, for all the "liberation" of women in India, their role also often is a subservient one, doing the menial chores, going to the well for water, carrying it home atop their heads in a brass or earthen urn, tending the fields. Some work on the streets and roads in broiling temperatures for a pittance of four rupees a day, the equivalent of about 50 cents!

WE GOT IN the habit of asking the Indian women with whom we came in contact if they subscribed to the widely-held practice of "arranged" marriages.

Most still do. And the "problem" of a family and father with a daughter coming up with today's inflated dowry is causing headaches.

Although it can be "paid in kind," that is with money, gold, jewelry or even household items and a pair of bullocks, the cost of presenting one's daughter to the groom and his family has risen astronomically. Dowries of a few hundred dollars ($1 equals about 8 rupees) to thousands of dollars are not uncommon. We met more than one father who was worried frantic over finding the "right" man and the proper marriage bounty. More and more couples are opting for "love matches," instead of winding up with a "stranger."

Capt. Kalia and Miss D'Costa are only two of the many persons we met. There was a member of the Parsi sect, a most efficient Sikh government official, an Australian family, and our own Gunga Din. More about them later...

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

COMMENTARY ON the age of credit: You're typical, if you walk out of your mortgaged house, step into your time-payment car, and drive down a bonded freeway with a tank full of credit card gasoline to charge something at the store.

The buyers of Bibles are women nine times out of 10.

How does an old oak tree with as many as 700,000 leaves on it manage to keep those leaves out of one another's way so each gets a minimum of shade?

Police Investigate Fatal Shooting, Sexual Abuse

The body of a man who had been dead three days was discovered in his apartment by his girlfriend Thursday, police said.

The dead man, Herman G. Baca, 26, of 2305 5th St. No. 114, had been shot once in the head with a .22-caliber rifle, according to reports.

When police arrived at the apartment, they found Baca lying on his back on the bed. The rifle lay between his arms, facing his head, reports said.

The body was taken to Sanders Funeral Home. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack has not made a ruling in Baca's death.

A 26-year-old woman told police that she woke up naked in a trash dumpster Thursday morning after she was sexually assaulted by another woman about 1:30 a.m.

According to police, the victim had left her apartment early Thursday morning to take out the trash. As she left the trash dumpster and started back to her apartment, she was grabbed by two Mexican-American males, police said.

The woman told police that the two males, both in their early 20s, removed her clothes and held her down as a Mexican-American female, also in her early 20s, sexually assaulted her with an "artificial device," according to reports.

The victim told police she believed she was knocked unconscious and thrown in the trash dumpster, where she woke up about 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

A man who forced his way into a woman's home about 1:30 a.m. Thursday threatened to kill her with a knife, police were told.

However, the woman said that the man, whose age she gave as 33 and whom she said she had been dating, left the residence without seriously injuring her.

The woman, 27 and a nurse, said the man forced his way into her house when she answered the door. He allegedly threw her to the floor, displayed a large pocket knife and threatened to kill her.

The woman said she suffered a minor cut on the leg before her attacker fled, leaving the knife behind. It was turned over to police.

In other activity, four burglary suspects, two men and two juveniles, were taken into custody shortly after 1 a.m. Thursday inside Wright Elementary School, 1302 Adrian St.

Police found the four when they responded to an alarm. The same four also are suspects in a burglary at Alderson Junior High, 219 Walnut Ave., between 11 p.m. Wednesday and 12:15 a.m. Thursday.

At Alderson, 13 hall lockers and five vending machines were broken into, according to reports. Police say entry apparently was made by breaking out a window on the south side of the building.

Reports indicate one of the burglars cut himself while climbing through the broken window because blood was found on a desk near the window and a blood-stained T-shirt was discovered in the hall.

It was not known how much change was taken from the five vending machines, also located in the hall near the cafeteria entrance.

"About six six-packs of beer," was the amount of alcohol a 24-year-old Victoria man reportedly said he drank before being involved in an accident Wednesday afternoon.

Police arrested the man on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. Reports indicate the suspect was traveling the wrong way in the 2300-block of Main Street, which is a one-way street, when his car was in collision with an eastbound vehicle.

After the collision, the man reportedly veered his car into two parked vehicles. No one was injured in the mishap.

Decision Expected In Trial Of Silkwood Death Case

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Jurors in the $11.5 million Karen Silkwood plutonium contamination trial asked the judge Thursday to define physical injury — a question that could indicate they have found in favor of the Silkwood estate and are discussing the amount of a damage award.

At 3:30 p.m. the three-man, three-woman jury sent a message asking: "In instruction No. 18, what does physical injury mean?"

The first question the jury was to answer dealt with whether they accepted Kerr-McGee Corp.'s contention that Miss Silkwood contaminated herself with plutonium. The judge told them that if they accepted that defense, their deliberations were over.

U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis met for 30 minutes in chambers with attorneys to work out his response to the question.

He told the jury, in part, that physical injury can include a "non-visible injury to bone, tissue or cells."

"It has been admitted in this case by both parties and their expert medical witnesses that radiation had occurred to Miss Silkwood from plutonium through the impact of alpha particles in her body," Theis said. "The witnesses, however, disagreed on whether or when physical injury occurred and, if so, its nature and extent."

After receiving the judge's answer, the jurors said they would eat dinner and then continue their deliberations.

"There is no doubt they (jurors) have found liability. They are beyond question one," said Jim Ikard, an attorney for the Silkwood estate.

Larry Ottoway, a Kerr-McGee attorney, said, "It's probably not a question the defendants would like to have heard, but I'm not going to speculate on where they are in their deliberations."

Kerr-McGee claimed Miss Silkwood stole the plutonium and contaminated herself, probably while attempting to spike her urine samples to embarrass the company.

Miss Silkwood, who was 28 at the time, died in a Nov. 13, 1974, car crash a week after she was contaminated.

In his charge to the jury, Theis said jurors could either find Kerr-McGee guilty of negligence and then decide on a dollar award, or find the company "strictly liable" for Miss Silkwood's injuries. A negligence finding would be required if punitive damages — usually higher amounts — were to be awarded.

The judge told jurors they could find Kerr-McGee strictly liable for any injury to Miss Silkwood if they decided three elements were proved: that plutonium escaped from the nuclear fuel plant where she worked; that the plutonium injured Miss Silkwood or her property; and the extent of her injuries.

He told the jury that the only defense against strict liability is if they find Miss Silkwood contaminated herself, either accidentally or intentionally. That is the contention of Kerr-McGee.

The judge said that if the jurors accepted Kerr-McGee's defense, they must return a verdict for Kerr-McGee.

Earlier in the day, Theis urged the jurors to ask questions about the case. He apparently agreed with lawyers for the Kerr-McGee Corp. and the Silkwood estate, who said the jury was one of the quietest they have ever waited out.

"If you have any problems about the law in the case, you may send me a note," Theis told the jurors.

Fewer Open Gas Stations Expected Over Weekend

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association reported Thursday gasoline prices will be higher and fewer service stations will be operating this weekend in Texas.

The second weekly fuel gauge report made by AAA's Texas Division said, however, gasoline supplies continue to be good throughout the state.

The report based on a survey of 290 service stations also indicated a trend toward fewer stations selling gasoline through self-service pumps.

The new survey indicated only 53 percent of the stations were offering self-service sales compared with 63 percent a week ago.

Wayne King, public relations and safety director for the division, said stations closing self-service pumps are in effect raising their prices because full-service pumps bring prices about 3 cents a gallon higher.

The AAA said there was a sharp decline in the number of stations reporting they were out of one or more grades of gasoline.

Only 3 percent were out of regular fuel, compared with 5 percent a week ago. Only 2 percent reported being out of premium, compared with 6 percent. Only 3 percent had depleted unleaded supplies, compared with 9 percent last week.

The new full-service averages were 76.7 cents a gallon for regular, up from 75.7 cents; 82.7 cents for premium, up from 81.5 cents; 80.5 cents for unleaded, up from 79.5 cents; 82.9 cents for premium unleaded, up from 80.8 cents; and 75.9 cents for diesel fuel, up from 73.1 cents.

Self-service averages were 73.6 cents a gallon, up from 72.2 cents a week ago, for regular; 79.4 cents, up from 78.3 cents, for premium; 77.5 cents, up from 76.2 cents, for unleaded; and 80.7 cents, up from 77.9 cents, for premium unleaded.

A Gulf station in El Paso was reported approaching $1 a gallon figures. Its 95.9 cents a gallon price for full-service premium was the highest in the state and was up from last week's 93.9 cents.

An Exxon station in Houston had the lowest price, 67.1 cents for self-service regular.

The number of service stations closing by 8 p.m. on weekdays ranged from a low of 20 percent in the Midland-Odessa area to a high of 92 percent in Corpus Christi.

Those closing by 6 p.m on Saturday ranged from a low of 10 percent in Midland-Odessa to a high of 67 percent in Corpus Christi.

Midland-Odessa also had a low of 40 percent for stations closing all day Sunday, compared with a high of 91 percent in McAllen.

Other closing percentages:

By 8 p.m. weekdays — Austin 67 percent, Beaumont-Port Arthur 57, Dallas 90, El Paso 58, Fort Worth 75, Houston 62, McAllen 82, San Antonio 43, and Waco 53 percent.

By 6 p.m. Saturday — Austin 42 percent, Beaumont-Port Arthur 43, Dallas 45, El Paso 21, Fort Worth 55, Houston 58, McAllen 27, San Antonio 23, and Waco 40 percent.

All day Sunday — Austin 75 percent, Beaumont-Port Arthur 71, Corpus Christi 67, Dallas 87, El Paso 71, Fort Worth 90, Houston 78, San Antonio 71, and Waco 33 percent.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

. My husband and I are in our 50s. We know nothing about the market but decided to try our hand at no-load mutual funds. We invested $2,500 in each of two municipal bond mutual funds. We also bought shares of stock in a well-known company.

The values of our mutual fund shares dropped after we purchased them but have since recovered, somewhat. We have more money to invest but don't want to add to a losing cause or even hold on to a bad one. What do you suggest?

A. For two people who "know nothing about the market," you seem to have invested wisely to date.

The individual stock you named in your letter has a long-term record of steady growth in earnings. Although its market prioe has bounoed up and down over the years, it is now selling where its dividend provides a yield of 7.8 percent. It looks like a good choice for you.

So do those two municipal bond mutual funds — if you are in an income tax bracket of 32 percent or higher. Too many people in lower tax brackets rush — "panic" might he a better word — into investments providing tax-free income, even though they can get more "keeping money" from the higher yields available on investments which pay taxable income.

A municipal bond mutual fund holds many different bonds issued by states and "municipal subdivisions" — cities, towns, school districts and such. Because the interest paid on those bonds is not subject to federal income tax, the fund passes it on to the fund's shareholders in the form of tax-free dividends.

But bond prices — like stock prices — can go up and down. When interest rates go up and newly-issued bonds carry higher rates than bonds already outstanding, the market prices of the older bonds drop.

That causes the value of a mutual fund which holds many older bonds to decline. Because interest rates have skyrocketed over the past year or so, we've seen this happen to many mutual funds holding bonds.

Sooner or later, however, interest rates will come down. When they do, the market values of bonds already issued and outstanding will improve. So will the values of mutual funds holding bonds. My suggestion is to stick with what you have and, with the extra money you now have, add to your present investments.

• • •

Q. About 11 years ago, just before I retired, I bought a $10,000 municipal bond paying 3.8 percent interest. This bond won't mature until July 1, 1988. That's too long for me. It was a bad investment.

I was a factory worker. So, I'm not loaded. I'm living on a pension and Social Security. I could use more income. What can be done in my situation?

A. It's no fun to read you the riot act. But yours is a classic case of the wrong person buying a municipal bond. Your money oould have been working much more productively for you elsewhere.

In your situation, it would make no sense to wait until 1988, when that bond will mature and will be paid off at $10,000. Since you need income, you have to "bite the bullet" by selling that bond at its going market price — a good deal less than $10,000. Then put the money to work at current, taxable interest rates.

• • •

Q. We just received the annual report from a mutual fund in which we have invested. We can't make head nor tails out of it. Can you help us, in knowing what to look for in the report?

A. The thing to zero in on is the change in "net asset value per share" over the 12-month period covered by the report. That tells you whether the value of your shares rose or fell. Everything else in the report is secondary to that.

Although some accounting organizations and other outfits put out booklets on the subject of reading annual reports, there's no really simple primer available. You have to put some time and effort into studying eaoh report — paying particular attention to the financial statements and footnotes and ignoring the colored piotures of officers and directors.

U.S. Basic Money Supply Up $900 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply rose $900 million in the latest reporting week, the Federal Reserve Board said Thursday, but analysts didn't expect the increase to spur further credit tightening in view of the softness in other economic indicators.

The Fed said the basic money supply, M1 — the total of cash in circulation and checking accounts — rose to a seasonally adjusted average of $364.9 billion in the week ended May 9 from $364 billion the previous weeks.

The broader money supply measure, M2 — M1 plus savings accounts in commercial banks — rose $1.8 billion in the week, from $891.7 billion to $893.5 billion.

Analysts have worried in recent weeks that a steady rise in the money supply could trigger further interest rate hikes by the Fed in an attempt to slow the money supply's growth. The Fed tightened credit somewhat last month after a $4.1 billion bulge in M1.

But the money supply dropped $1.9 billion last week, and experts said this week's rise was not very significant in light of that.

David Jones, an analyst at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. Inc., said the figures "suggest that we've at least leveled out since April," and added, "I think the Fed essentially will stay in a holding pattern here." The Fed's Open Market Committee, which will make the decision, meets Tuesday.

Jones added that the Fed might also hold back from raising interest rates because many of the nation's other indicators, such as housing starts and industrial production, have been weakening recently.

"There's a standoff," Jones said. "The Fed will delay any possible tightening actions in view of the softening of the economy," Jones said.

For the latest four weeks, M1 averaged $365.2 billion, a 6.8 percent rate of gain from 13 weeks ago. M2 averaged $892.2 billion in the four weeks, up 7.7 percent from 13 weeks previously.

Other monetary indicators for the week ended Wednesday included:

•Member bank borrowings from the Federal Reserve System averaged $1.6 billion, up from $1.2 billion. The Fed increased its holdings of government securities by $690 million.

•Federal funds, the interest rate on short-term loans of uncommitted reserve funds among banks, averaged 10.25 percent, unchanged from the previous week.

•The three-month Treasury bill rate averaged 9.58 percent, down from 9.65 percent.

•The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported commercial and industrial loans at major New York City banks fell $254 million in the week ended Wednesday, compared with a rise of $243 million a week before and a gain of $42 million a year ago.

•Net borrowed reserves totaled $1.35 billion, up from $1.22 billion a week earlier.

•The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported that the monetary base — the total of member bank reserves held at Federal Reserve banks and cash in bank vaults and in circulation — fell to $145.2 billion from $145.5 billion a week earlier.

Copier Firm Changes Market Aims

NEW YORK (AP) — Xerox Corp. is seeking to recapture the inexpensive end of the copier field, and to do that it is venturing into the land of its foes — Japan.

Xerox Chairman C. Peter McCullough told reporters afer the company's annual meeting Thursday that it will no longer make the same copier in many countries, but will concentrate production.

The first indication of that new policy came with the introduction of Xerox's newest and smallest copier, the 2300. It will be made primarily of parts from Japan, with final assembly at Xerox's main plant in Rochester, N.Y.

In recent years Xerox had been all but driven out of bottom end of the market for plain-paper copiers, largely by imports from Japan that gained a reputation for providing reliable service at lower cost.

"We had a somewhat old product line in the lower end of the market," McCullough told stockholders," adding that Xerox, which was for many years the single dominant company in copiers, sees a "great opportunity" in the bottom end of the field.

The new 2300, unveiled Wednesday, produces ten copies a minute and will lease for as little as $60 a month, well below the least expensive competitor, imported from Japan by Savin Corp.

McCullough refused to estimate how much will be saved by having most of the labor on the 2300 performed in Japan, but said it would be substantial. The machine was largely developed by Fuji-Xerox, Xerox's Japanese affiliate.

But he said that employment in Rochester will remain "stable" and that as part of Xerox's new strategy it will also seek to export copiers built in the United States and in Europe.

Xerox President David T. Kearns said the company's second quarter results so far are "very encouraging" and said "We expect 1979 to continue to be a good year." He said capital spending will climb from $886 million last year to about $1.2 billion this year.

In the first quarter, Xerox reported profits rose 26.7 percent to $133.8 million, or $1.66 a share, from $105.6 million, r $1.31 a share in the same period of 1978. For all of 1978, Xerox earned $476.9 million, or $5.92 a share, up 18 percent from 1977.

Proposal Aims To Curb Illegal Drug Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John J. LaFalce, D-N.Y., saying hundreds of millions of dollars are involved in illegal drug smuggling, is pushing legislation that would help curb the activity.

LaFalce quoted U.S. Customs officials as saying 90 percent of the cash smuggled out of the country represents proceeds from crime. Of that, he said Thursday, 80 percent is related to illegal drug trafficking.

"Even though it's illegal to attempt to commit most other crimes ..., present rulings don't allow for attempted illegal exportation of cash," he said.

Gold Hits Record High For Third Straight Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over rising oil prices helped push gold to a record high for the third consecutive session on European bullion markets Thursday while the U.S. dollar, in demand to pay for oil, rose in New York and abroad.

Gold, which often functions as a hedge in times of uncertainty, closed at $256.875 an ounce in Zurich, Europe's major bullion exchange. That was 25 cents above the previous record Zurich close of $256.625 set Wednesday. Gold had traded as high as $258.625 during the day but fell back before the close.

It was the same story in London, Europe's other major bullion center. Gold closed at a record high of $256.90 an ounce, 65 cents above the previous London closing high, also set Wednesday.

A dealer in one of London's big five bullion houses said the price of gold, traditionally a hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, has not been linked to the ups and downs of the dollar this year.

"Gold has been manipulated for different reasons this year," he said. "It's no longer the dollar's decline that has buoyed it up, it's things like inflation in the United States and the shortage of oil."

The gold boom reversed a major drop in the price of the precious metal a number of weeks ago. In one two-day period last November, it fell $20 an ounce and hit a low of $193.25 in London Nov. 30.

Some London dealers are now predicting that gold could break through $300 by the end of the year.

One dealer noted "there's been serious Arab buying in the last two months" and referred to bullion as now virtually "a liquid currency." The Saudi Arabians were listed as big bullion buyers in advance of further oil price hikes expected this summer.

Market sources noted, too, that the fall-off in the amount of gold being auctioned by the International Monetary Fund has stimulated the price of bullion.

In the New York currency market, dealers described trading volume as "fairly heavy." The dollar made strong gains against most currencies except the Canadian dollar, which rose.

Late rates for the dollar in New York included: 1.9140 West German marks, up from 1.9055 Wednesday; 4.419 French francs, up from 4.399 Wednesday; 1.7345 Swiss francs, up from 1.7275; 217.6 Japanese yen, up from 214.6. The Canadian dollar rose to 86.55 U.S. cents, from 86.45 cents Wednesday. The pound sterling eased to $2.055 from $2.0593.

In London, the pound closed at $2.05805 against $2.0586 Wednesday.

In other markets abroad, late dollar rates were: Paris, 4.4155 French francs, up from 4.4015 Wednesday; Frankfurt, 1.912 marks, up from 1.9063; Zurich, 1.7322 Swiss francs, up from 1.72665; Milan, 851.3 lire, up from 850; Amsterdam, 2.0815 guilders, up from 2.0765; and Tokyo, 215.125 yen, up from 214.925.

The first performance of Gounod's opera "Faust" was given in Paris in 1859.

Record Week Seen For Auto Output

DETROIT (AP) — Auto production this week should be a record for the year, an industry publication reported Thursday.

Car assemblies in U.S. plants were scheduled at 220,466, up 1.2 percent from last week's 217,753 and down 0.2 percent from 220,918 assembled in the same week last year, according to Ward's Automotive Reports.

Last week's production had been the year's record.

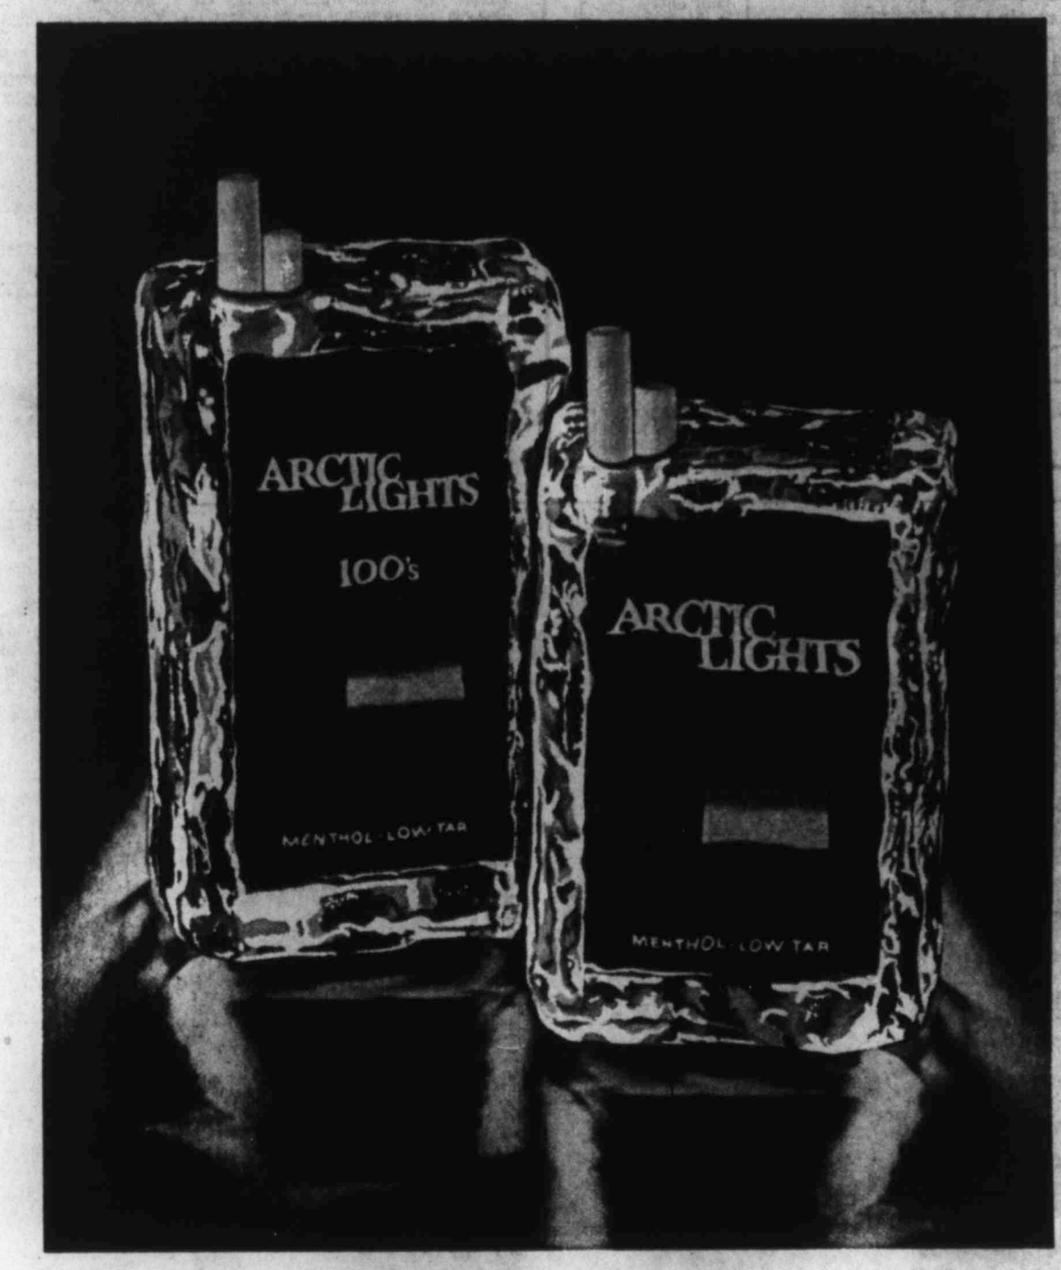

Truck production was put at 79,234, down 1.3 percent from 80,275 last week but 2.1 percent above the 77,605 produced in the same week last year.

For the year through Saturday, auto output was set at 3,776,968, down 0.6 percent from the comparable 1978 figure of 3,800,281.

Although plagued by cramps and sunburn, the guys are enthusiastic and hopeful they will raise the hospital.

Minister Criticizes Palestine 22-Point Plan

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A Cabinet committee Thursday approved a 22-point plan for Palestinian autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza, prompting Defense Minister Ezer Weizman to ask to be removed from a team negotiating the plan with Egypt next week, State Radio reported.

The broadcast said the committee voted unanimously to prevent an independent state in the occupied areas and uphold Israel's intention to reassert its claim to both areas after five years.

Weizman, who often has held more dovish views than Prime Minister Menachem Begin during the peace treaty negotiations, was reported to feel the Israeli plan does not provide a basis for substantive talks. The state radio said his request to be released from the six-man team would have to be approved by the Cabinet. He is not on the committee.

The radio reported Weizman and Begin had several sharp exchanges during the meeting and that Weizman said he would vote against the plan in the full Cabinet.

In a point-by-point vote during a seven-hour meeting, the 11 ministers endorsed Begin's conception of Palestinian self-rule promised by the Israel-Egypt peace treaty.

The plan goes to the full Cabinet next Monday and Israeli-Egyptian talks on autonomy begin May 25.

Israel's vision of autonomy is limited self-rule with continued Jewish settlement in the occupied areas — markedly different from Egypt's wish for full self-determination leading to an independent Palestinian state.

Details of the plan will not be released until after the Cabinet considers the proposals. Press reports last week said Begin had prepared a 30-point plan, but there was no explanation for the discrepancy.

From press reports and Begin's previous statements, the plan was known to include:

—Making the Israeli military government the source of the autonomy, with security and public order the responsibility of Israeli forces.

—Keeping state land and water sources under Israeli control.

—Continued Jewish settlement in the territories, with Israeli settlers under Israeli jurisdiction.

The proposals are consistent with Begin's declared intention, already criticized by Egypt, to grant autonomy to the West Bank and Gaza inhabitants, but not to the land itself.

In the West Bank of the Jordan River on Thursday, Israeli authorities closed several shops in the Arab town of Bir Zeit as a collective punishment for a rock throwing incidents this month.

Israeli military courts imposed three-month prison terms and fines of $420 on at least nine Palestinians convicted of throwing stones and raising the banned Palestinian flag during anti-Israeli demonstrations in Bethlehem and in Bir Zeit, 15 miles north of Jerusalem.

Bir Zeit University, considered by Israeli authorities to be a hotbed of Palestinian activity, has been closed since a May 2 anti-government demonstration. Bethlehem's Palestinian university was closed for several days after a similar disturbance.

Egypt, which has been ostracized from the Arab community for its treaty with Israel, received another blow earlier this week when three Arab nations involved with it in an arms-making consortium announced plans to withdraw from the group.

But in Cairo on Thursday, Egyptian Minister of Defense Gen. Kamal Hassan Ali accused Saudi Arabia, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates of "mixing politics in a purely economic venture" and said Egypt will continue to build weapons for Arab countries.

Informed sources who asked not to be identified said a breakup of the Arab Organization for Industrialization could mean $500 million in outstanding contracts might have to be absorbed.

Also in Cairo, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, Butros B. Ghali, met with Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Poyakov to discuss relations between the two nations, strained since 15,000 Soviet military advisers were expelled from Egypt in 1972.

The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, which the Soviets have criticized, also figured in the talks, officials said, but there was no report on the results.

GIRL KILLED BY JAVELIN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A 13-year-old girl died after she was struck in the chest by a javelin during school athletic practice, her mother said Thursday.

Worker Says 'Shudder' Preceded Rig Collapse

GALVESTON (AP) — Lance Densing, a 19-year-old roustabout who was working his first day on an offshore oil rig the day it toppled into the Gulf of Mexico, testified Thursday he felt the platform vibrate and settle several hours before it fell with 34 workmen aboard.

Densing, a sophomore University of Mississippi geophysics student, said he had been working on the rig about three hours when he felt the platform shudder.

"It was a loud noise like the whole rig shifted," the stocky, long-haired youth said. "It was like it happened all around. The noise wasn't in any one place. It sort of shook the whole rig."

Densing was the first witness Thursday as the Coast Guard entered a second day of inquiry into the May 10 accident that left two persons confirmed dead and six others still missing.

Pins holding the rig legs together were inspected and determined to be safe, Densing testified.

Later the same night, when the Atlantic Pacific Marine Corp. rig collapsed, Densing said he was aboard a supply boat moored to the rig.

"I heard a loud pop and I saw the rear support leg on the rig sink into the water," Densing said.

As he watched, Densing said, the portion of the rig supported by that rear leg, the crew living quarters, fell toward the water. When the platform had shifted to a 45-degree angle, it broke completely from the two remaining legs and fell, he said.

"It buoyed up out of the water and then started to sink," he said.

The supply boat Delta Seahorse still was moored to the rig when it collapsed, Densing said. His first reaction was to cut the mooring lines, he said.

"At first we were just thinking of ourselves because we thought we were going down with the rig," Densing said. "But when we got the rope cut, we started doing everything possible to help those in the water."

James W. Sasser, a driller, and Mac Johnson, a rig supervisor, also are scheduled to testify before the Coast Guard panel, chaired by Capt. William E. Whaley.

PEOPLE — PLACES — THINGS

Miss Redgrave Gets Raves

LONDON (AP) — Vanessa Redgrave's radical political views may be unpopular — she polled just 225 votes in the British parliamentary election — but her talent as an actress is another matter.

REDGRAVE

The lanky, 42-year-old star returned to the London stage Wednesday night for the first time in six years as Ellida in Ibsen's "The Lady from the Sea" and drew stunning reviews.

"I have not seen a more exciting performance from a stage actress in these many moons," raved Peter Lewis in the Daily Mail.

"One has to dust down all the critical superlatives," added Michael Billington in the Guardian.

No praise is too extravagant for the Oscar-winning actress, said Michael Coveney of the Financial Times. Her performance "simply must be seen," he said.

The play opened at the Round House, in North London, in a production staged last year by the Royal Exchange Theater in Manchester.

Miss Redgrave, daughter of Sir Michael Redgrave and the sister of comic actress Lynn Redgrave, is a champion of radical causes. She belongs to the Workers Revolutionary Party, which opposes capitalism and the monarchy and wants Britain to pull out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

$5 Shoeshines Sold

NEW YORK (AP) — With a tuxedo, a few grapes and an outrageous premise — selling shoeshines for $5 apiece — art teacher Joseph Skaggs and a handful of his students demonstrated the fine art of the put-on.

Skaggs, dressed in the tuxedo and white gloves, emerged from a black limousine in front of the U.S. Treasury building on Wall Street at noon Wednesday.

He propped a little sign on the sidewalk that said Joseph's Footwear and Grooming.

Then Skaggs squatted over a shoeshine kit and started selling lunchtime strollers a shine for $5.

What's more, in no time there was a line of customers waiting to hand Skaggs a sawbuck for what costs 50 cents at shoeshine stands around the city.

While Skaggs brushed, a young lady assisting him offered manicures at $5 a shot and another young lady popped grapes into customers' mouths.

Skaggs, who teaches at the School of Visual Art, said it was all a put-up job.

"This is an exercise to teach my students how to lose their inhibitions about making a presentation and use the media to deliver a message."

The message in a $5 shoeshine?

"I call it my 'inflation piece,'" said Skaggs.

New Surgeons Hear Alda

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Alda is an actor. Hawkeye Pierce is an Army surgeon. The two of them have some advice for new doctors.

ALAN ALDA

"The head bone is connected to the heart bone — and don't let them come apart," Alda told the graduating class of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons on Wednesday night.

Alda — who plays Dr. Pierce on television's popular "M-A-S-H" — was chosen to speak at commencement by the 139 graduates. He was also made an honorary member of the class.

The 43-year-old actor noted he had few qualifications to speak at a prestigious medical school.

"In the first place, I'm not a great fan of blood," he said. "I don't mind people having it, I just don't enjoy seeing them wear it."

But, he said, he does share some characteristics with physicians. "We both study the human being. And we both try to offer relief — you through medicine and I through laughter.

"And we both charge a lot."

Queen Visiting Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Hundreds of visitors applauded Britain's Queen Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, as they strolled in the famed Tivoli amusement park Thursday on the second day of their state visit to Denmark.

Accompanying the couple were their hosts, Queen Margrethe and Prince Henrik of Denmark. The royal foursome lunched at one of the Tivoli's luxury restaurants.

Earlier the princes had visited the Trade Union Congress near Elsinore while the two queens toured the headquarters of the Danish Agricultural Federation.

The queens also got gifts of $20,000 each from a chemical firm for diabetes research in their respective countries.

Kennedy Candidacy Doubted

NEW YORK (AP) — Patricia Kennedy Lawford says she is convinced that her brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, will not seek the presidency in 1980.

KENNEDY

"No. Of course not," she said Wednesday when asked if she thought her brother would run. "He said it four years ago, and his reasons are the same now."

Kennedy, D-Mass., who has repeatedly insisted he will not run for president, is well ahead of President Carter in the polls for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mrs. Lawford, whose brother John was assassinated while president and brother Robert was slain while running for president, said the job of being president is "very dangerous."

About Kennedy, she said, "He's got a good job where he is now ... I don't want to lose him."

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Frank Sinatra has been invited to the Soviet Union for free chess lessons from world chess champion Anatoly Karpov.

SINATRA

A spokesman for Caesars Palace said Karpov attended a Sinatra performance at the resort earlier this week and asked the singer to come to Moscow for the lessons.

Karpov, 27, a long-time Sinatra fan, presented the entertainer with an elaborate chess set, then proceeded to checkmate him in a quick game.

Bear Ends Up Red-Faced

PHILLIPS, Wis. (AP) — The two frightened foresters were treed for two hours, but it was the black bear that put them there that ended up with a red face.

The 250-pound animal sprayed itself in the face with a paint sprayer the men were using to mark timber.

Roy Gilge and David Bentley of the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources were working in the Flambeau State Forest near here when they noticed the bear splashing in a water hole about 150 feet away from them.

"We didn't think anything of it," said Gilge, who was in only his second day on the job. "We figured when it got our scent it would just leave."

But the bear, instead of retreating, headed toward the two 29-year-old foresters. They scrambled up trees about 40 feet apart from each other.

"At first we thought the bear was scaring us and would go away," said Gilge. "But he kept licking his lips like he was real hungry."

The bear went from one tree to another, growling and grabbing at branches. Then it rummaged through the foresters' backpacks, sprayed itself in the face with the red paint and wandered off.

The men ran to their trucks, about three-quarters of a mile away.

Quick-Shave Artist Leaves Volunteers Unimpressed

LONDON (UPI) — Garry Hatley, the world's fastest barber, beat his own world record for quick-shaves — but this time only by a hair.

Hatley shaved 203 faces in 60 minutes Wednesday, two more than he did for his last performance and 73 more than when he first set the record April 1, 1971.

And he ran out of volunteers.

Assistants drafted a host of young college men, draped them in towels and gave each of them a two-blade safety razor while they waited for Hatley's touch.

Efforts to pluck more volunteers from the streets met with mixed success so some of those already committed to the exercise ended up being shaved as many as seven times.

Brown Tries To 'Curb' Minion

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Mike Curb — already facing a lawsuit filed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. to block a Curb judicial appointment — has started defying Brown on state gasoline regulations.

The latest conflict between the Democratic governor and Republican lieutenant governor involves an executive order signed by Curb while Brown was at a White House meeting Wednesday on the gas shortage.

Curb's order was intended to relax state restrictions on the lead content of gasoline, an action Curb, 34, a former record mogul, said would increase gasoline production 3 percent.

Brown-appointed air quality officials, who have been holding hearings on the lead proposal, disputed whether more gasoline would be produced and cited health and smog problems.

When he returned to California, Brown ridiculed Curb as "a pretender to the role of chief executive" and warned oil companies not to increase the lead in their gasoline because, Brown said, Curb used emergency powers when there was no emergency.

It's not the first conflict between Brown and Curb since California voters forced them into an uneasy partnership last fall, when for the first time in this century they elected a governor and lieutenant governor from different parties.

Citing a disputed section of the state Constitution, Curb claims to have full powers of governor any time Brown steps foot outside the state, something the 41-year-old governor is doing with increasing frequency as he lays the foundation for an expected campaign for the Democratic nomination for president next year.

Oil Industry's Credibility Gap Questioned By House Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidents of two of the largest U.S. oil companies went before Congress Thursday to speak against a proposed tax and got in return a series of lectures on the oil industry's credibility gap.

Meanwhile, top administration economic officials defended President Carter's president's proposed "windfall profits" tax. And they denied claims by some congressional liberals that the tax is too weak.

Jerry McAfee, president of Gulf Oil, and William P. Tavoulareas, president of Mobil Oil, went before separate House committees to criticize the tax proposal.

McAfee, appearing before the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, also said he doubts that any oil company is holding back production to await higher prices. Because inflation makes today's dollar worth more than a dollar five years from now, "the economics of the oil business tells you to produce what you can today," he said.

"Many Americans view the big, rich oil companies as the 'black hats,' siphoning off profits," Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, told McAfee. Pickle, a defender of the industry, made plain that he does not share that view.

Nevertheless, Pickle said, "You have been laying behind the log too many years, speaking out only when defending your profits."

Meanwhile, Tavoulareas told a House Commerce subcommittee the windfall tax would cost the nation needed additional oil production.

But Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., countered by alleging that Mobil had used windfall profits it received from price hikes following the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo to buy the Montgomery Ward department store group and the Container Corp. of America.

"Isn't that the indication you're going to use profits to further expand and diversify into fields that have nothing to do with oil?" Gore asked.

Tavoulareas said that both Montgomery Ward and the container firm are self-sustaining and were not financed by oil revenues.

Mobil is the only major oil company that, while opposing the windfall profits tax, also claims that federal price lids should be retained on some oil — that from already-existing wells — instead of the complete decontrol favored by Carter.

Gore told the oil official, "I find it somewhat refreshing when one of the major multinational oil companies does more than hang its head and say we want more, we want more."

On the same issue, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal testified that Carter's decontrol plan is essential to easing fuel shortages.

"The United States faces a severe energy problem today despite recent corrective measures," he told the Commerce subcommittee on energy and power.

And Blumenthal disputed criticism by some members of Congress that Carter's windfall profits tax — aimed at soaking up some of the profits firms would make from decontrolled oil — was a weak tax.

"Such arguments are without economic foundation," he said. Blumenthal said the tax is carefully balanced to encourage new oil production without letting oil companies get too rich in the process.

And Charles L. Schultze, chairmanof the Council of Economic Advisers, testified: "The windfall profits tax will indeed have a significant bite."

At the Ways and Means hearing, meanwhile, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., told Gulf's McAfee and other industry representatives they should stop carping about the proposed windfall-profits tax and accept the fact that if federal controls are to be removed from oil prices, the industry will have to swallow the tax.

The president's program "gets you to where you want to go (to uncontrolled prices) more rapidly than any other possibility in the political equation," said Ullman, the committee's chairman.

McAfee said the industry is aware of the political realities — that oilmen are not popular at a time of ever-increasing oil prices and a shortage of gasoline. Nevertheless, he added, "We feel it is our duty to ... tell it as we see it."

Ireland Curbs Sales Of Tight Gas Supplies

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Lines at gas stations dwindled across the Irish Republic Thursday in the wake of government orders to curb sales while supplies are short.

The action stopped panic buying by motorists who were besieging gas stations wherever one was open and filling tin cans, milk churns and even barrels with gas. Thousands of workers left their cars at home Thursday, commuting by train and bus.

In Brussels, energy minister Desmond O'Malley appealed to fellow ministers of the nine European Common Market countries to supprt him in seeking increased supplies from oil companies to ease the shortage.

Irish officials say a 20 percent shortfall in supplies is due to the Iranian production cutback, a 12 percent increase in demand this year by the Republic's booming economy and Irish resistance to oil companies' demands to pay more to compensate for higher world oil costs.

O'Malley warned the Irish will soon have to pay more for their oil, which could push gas prices above 1 pound ($2) a gallon.

O'Malley Tuesday imposed a minimum gas purchase of five gallons to stop motorists in Ireland topping up the tanks in their small cars which hold no more than six or seven gallons. He also set a 55-mile-an-hour speed limit on all roads to conserve gas.

Motorists were getting to work hours late with the excuse of searching for gas.

Irish officials said the country's fuel stocks would last 83 days, seven days less than the 90-day stocks required to be held by all Common Market countries.

EEC energy commissioner Guido Brunner indicated the Irish dilemma was due to panic buying and warned Europeans to act "reasonably and sensibly."

Earth Survey Satelllite Launched By Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union Thursday launched a satellite designed to help survey the earth's natural resources, Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said data from the satellite, Cosmos 1099, was being transmitted to the State Research and Production Center for processing and application.

Fuel Supply For Memorial Day Weekend Said Mostly Adequate

By The Associated Press

What's ahead for Memorial Day motorists? The American Automobile Association says gasoline is generally available now in most of the country, although prices are soaring, and an Associated Press spot check shows drivers in all but a few areas should be able to buy enough fuel to get where they're going. Here is a region-by-region look at gasoline supplies and the outlook for the Memorial Day weekend:

NEW ENGLAND

There have been spot shortages and heavy Sunday closings of gasoline stations, but no reports of lines like the ones in California. The AAA estimated that 61 percent of New England service stations would be closed this Sunday, but the percentage varies from state to state. In Connecticut, for example, 71 percent of the stations reported Sunday closings; in Vermont, only 36 percent said they were shutting down.

Maine officials said there has been no panic buying so far, although some station owners predict lines on Memorial Day. Gov. Joseph Brennan has urged conservation, asking motorists to drive 15 miles less than normal each week.

Maurice Langelier, head of the Bay State Gasoline Retailers Association, said Massachusetts has 17½ percent less fuel than it had a year ago.

Michael Klein of the Automobile Club of Hartford, Conn., said he expected tight supplies on Memorial Day because of the combination of "an awful lot of people wanting to travel and the end of the month's allotment." He urged drivers not to panic. "The quickest way to promote long lines is to continually top off," Klein said.

MIDDLE-ATLANTIC

The situation seems to be worst in the Washington, D.C., area where auto club officials said panic buying in past weekends made things seem even worse than they were. Authorities said it was too early to predict what would happen during the holiday weekend, but they said they expected only 10 percent of area service stations to be open this Sunday.

In New York, Gov. Hugh Carey urged people to drive less and nearly half the stations on the New York State Thruway limited sales as "a precautionary measure" to make sure there will be fuel for Memorial Day.

The District of Columbia AAA says the supply picture has been complicated by panic buying. Only about 10 percent of the stations will be open this Sunday. Officials say it is too early to predict the Memorial Day situation.

Service station operators in Pennsylvania, Delaware and Virginia said supplies would be tight over Memorial Day, but they said they do not expect a California-style crunch unless people panic.

SOUTHEAST

No severe problems have been reported or are expectd.

Peter Walley, Mississippi's fuel and energy coordinator, said the gasoline supply is "okay right now," and Maurice Myers of the Georgia Auto Club said there were "spot shortages, but nothing serious" in the rest of the region including Georgia, Florida, the Carolinas, Alabama and Tennessee.

Brian Flattery, director of the North Carolina Energy Division, said service station operators have gradually cut back their operating hours to spread out available supplies.

SOUTHWEST

Many Oklahoma service stations have been closing Sunday, but some independents are staying open. Gasoline is expected to be available in all areas during the holiday weekend.

Frank Henslee, director of the Arkansas Gasoline Retailers Association, said there have been no long lines or panic so far, but added: "We could generate some problems on the Memorial Day weekend coming up if people clog the highways, because we simply don't have the supply we had last year."

CENTRAL

There are scattered reports of dealers running out of fuel in Ohio, but no widespread problems. In Illinois, however, the Gasoline Dealers Association said more than half its members have used up more than half their May allocations, with Memorial Day still to come. Association spokesman Bob Jacobs said people "already (are) hoarding gas."

The Minnesota AAA said there should be enough gasoline to last through Memorial Day. Steve Carlso, a spokesman for the Cornhusker Motor Club of Nebraska, said supplies should be adequate, but tight. "We don't forsee anything happening in Nebraska that is happening in California. Supplies are a little lower and motorists should conserve. But we don't see a major problem," he said.

Elizabeth Lunt, an AAA spokeswoman in Kansas City, said there have been no serious problems so far in Kansas and Missouri. But she added: "The prognosis we're getting is bad news for the holiday weekend. Very bad."

WEST

No severe problems are expected outside of California and, possibly, the Seattle, Wash., area, where 85 percent to 95 percent of the service stations are closed Sundays.

James Manior, manager of the Montana Automobile Association, said, "At last report, stations thought they would get adequate fuel to last through May."

James Hoffman, manager of the Wyoming Automobile Association, said there may be a problem later on because of increased demand and smaller supplies, but there are only spot shortages so far.

In Colorado, about 70 percent of the service stations in the Denver area are closing on Sundays, but two-thirds of the stations in the rest of the state are open.

Shortage Of Gasoline Feared During Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will you face long lines at gasoline stations later this month?

No one can answer that question precisely. Long lines usually develop at the end of the month when gasoline supplies become scarce.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger says he hopes no month will be worse than this one for a gasoline shortage, partly because Iranian crude oil soon should bolster supplies.

Whether you will face shortages later this month will depend in part on how much gasoline is delivered to your state.

Here is a state-by-state breakdown of the amount of gasoline delivered in May 1978, the amount the Department of Energy expects to be delivered to each state in May 1979, and the percentage difference. In every state except Hawaii, the May 1979 anticipated deliveries are less than those of May 1978.

Alabama, 4,418,000 barrels delived in May 1979, 4,036,000 barrels anticipated to be delivered this month, 91 percent; Alaska: 385,000, 384,000, 99.99 percent; Arizona: 2,561,000, 2,300,000, 90 percent; Arkansas: 2,708,000, 2,472,000, 91 percent; California, 24,402,000, 22,783,000, 93 percent; Colorado: 2,922,000, 2,680,000, 92 percent.

Chairman Of Exxon Says Profits 'Not That Great'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The chairman of the Exxon Corp. said Thursday that his company is not profiteering, and that oil industry profits have "not been that great."

Speaking at the annual meeting of shareholders for the nation's second-largest corporation, chairman C.C. Garvin Jr. said Exxon's profits on domestic production have even gone down 5 percent in the first quarter of this year.

"We hope that you will make this clear to your friends and neighbors who are unhappy about the prices they are paying," Garvin said. "Whatever difficulties they may have had in this period weren't the result of profiteering by your company. In fact, the performance of this industry has not been that great."

Garvin said that Exxon has not withheld any supplies during the current gasoline shortage, and said specifically that California was not being singled out to receive less than other states.

"The supplies of gasoline in District 5, which includes California, are equitably allocated by the Department of Energy," Garvin said.

He also said that there is no massive amount of Alaskan oil in California.

"Alaskan oil flows into the total pool of oil," he said. "California has not been entitled to more oil than New Jersey, for example. There is no glut of Alaskan oil — I only wish there was."

Garvin said that he was against an excess profits tax, such as proposed by President Carter, but that if one was enacted by Congress, he hoped it would have a definite termination date.

The chairman also said he had "serious reservations" about the so-called plowback provision, which would force the oil companies to spend increased profits on finding more oil.

He added that net income per share for the company rose nearly 14 percent in 1978, and that dividends were raised for the third consecutive year.

Exxon's total earnings in 1978 were reported at $3.4 billion, an increase of 11.6 percent over 1977. The company's 1978 net income was $2.8 billion, up 13.8 percent over the previous year.

First quarter earnings this year were $955 million, an increase of $260 million over the same period last year. The company revenues were $18.7 billion in the quarter, $3.5 billion more than for the same period last year.

Mobil Quits Baltimore Canyon

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mobil Oil Corp. has become the fifth oil company to give up its search for oil and gas in the Baltimore Canyon Trough off the mid-Atlantic Coast.

The company reported Wednesday that it was abandoning its second well in the New Jersey-Delaware coastal area. That was the 13th dry well reported since the industry began drilling in the area nearly 14 months ago.

Only three drilling rigs remain in the area, although a few more are expected to begin wells on new lease tracts later this summer.

The government has predicted that the drilling area may hold as much as 1.02 billion barrels of oil and 13.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Mobil's dry hole was reported by the semi-submersible rig Western Pacesetter III about 100 miles east of Cape May in a little-explored area of the Baltimore Canyon Trough.

The well, started on Jan. 6, reached a depth of 13,992 feet and was plugged "after tests indicated no significant quantities of hydrocarbons," according to Mobil spokesman James Amanna.

The company's statement was taken in the industry to mean that some small signs of oil or gas were found in the well, which was in 258 feet of water about 10 miles from the edge of the Continental Shelf.

Mobil reported its first dry hole Dec. 27 at a location about 70 miles east of Atlantic City and about 35 miles northwest of its latest dry hole.

Mobil and five partners paid $3.1 million to the federal government in August 1976 for the right to explore the nine-square-mile lease tract.

Mobil owned 25 percent interest in the tract. Other partners are Getty, 23 percnt; Sun, 23 percent, Dimond Shamrock, 14 percent; Amerada Hess, 10 percent, and Marathon, 5 percent.

Only Exxon, Tenneco and Texaco presently have rigs drilling in the Baltimore Canyon Trough. The three are clustered about 100 miles east of this resort, near where Texaco reported a "significant strike" of natural gas last August.

Texaco is drilling its third exploratory well less than three miles from its strike to "confirm" the gas reservoir.

Mobil, Shell, Houston Oil & Minerals, Gulf and Continental have given up on the area.

Panel Predicts Decrease In State's June Oil Production

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission estimated Thursday June oil production in the state will total 2.72 million barrels a day, a decline of 130,163 barrels a day from a year ago.

Seven of 15 major crude oil buyers submitted nominations for less oil in June than this month. Spokesmen said the lower nominations did not represent less demand but merely reflected the amount of oil their companies could obtain from leases.

The commission routinely set the statewide oil allowable at 100 percent for June.

As usual, however, the East Texas Field was restricted to 86 percent production.

Figures released at the statewide hearing also showed a recent decline in crude and petroleum products imports, apparently because of reduced production in Iran.

Commission Chairman John Poerner said oil imports totaled 7,832,000 barrels a day for the four-week average of May 4, a decline of 900,000 barrels per day from Jan. 1.

The decline represents 5 percent of United States demand, Poerner said.

Nominations for Texas crude oil in June totaled 2,758,745 barrels per day, a reduction of 6,172 barrels a day from May.

Here are the purchasers' nominations for June, in barrels per day, with any changes from May in parentheses:

House Hurls Dare On State Bar Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The House hurled a dare at Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday by tentatively approving exactly the kind of State Bar continuation bill he threatened to veto.

House members advanced the bill 118-17 after some lawyer-legislators griped about such things as mandatory membership in the bar and its "silk stocking" leadership.

Final passage, expected today, would return the bill to the Senate for action on changes made by the House.

Clements later told a news conference he thought "the House made a bad mistake ... I am thinking seriously about vetoing it and I still may do it. It will depend on the final actions of the Legislature."

The governor added that "I am not really worried about the State Bar Association."

Amendments that would have made the bill palatable to Clements were resoundingly defeated.

If the bill extending the State Bar's life does not become law, the bar would go out of business as a state agency in 1980. It probably could contine as a voluntary associaion. Some believe the Texas Supreme Court has the power to reestablish it as it now exists, requiring all lawyers to belong and giving it disciplinary power over lawyers.

Clements said he would veto the bill if it did not:

— Put lawyers' $65-a-year bar dues in the state treasury and allow the bar to spend them only as authorized in legislative appropriations.

— Empower the governor to appoint the bar's board of directors, which now is elected by lawyers.

Rep. W.S. Heatly, D-Paducah, failed, 101-39, with an amendment to put the bar's money in the treasury, even after reading Clements' veto threat to the House.

"There has been criticism of the salary of the executive director, his expense accounts in the saloons of Texas, his transportation. It would be well for the Legislature to keep oversight of it as we do with the other licensing agencies," Heatly said.

Former executive director H.C. Pittman made $54,000 a year, and the bar provided him expense accounts and a Lincoln Continental. But when Tom Hanna of Beaumont replaced him last year, the bar said the salary would be smaller and the fringe benefits less elaborate.

Called Unconstitutional

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, said the Heatly amendment would be an unconstitutional breach of separation of legislative from judicial powers.

At one point, Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, quoted another legislator as saying "watching two lawyers argue a legal question is like watching my wife fight a lion. I don't care who wins."

The House tabled, 112-23, an amendment that would have created a nine-member board of directors for the bar, all appointed by the governor and with four of them non-lawyers.

An amendment by Rep. Fred Head, D-Troup, prohibiting any requirement that attorneys belong to the bar in order to practice law was tabled, 111-25.

Compulsion Attacked

"I belong to the bar association and I will continue to belong to it but I don't think I should have to. ... If you believe in the right-to-work law, you'll vote 'no' on the motion to table," Head said.

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, a lawyer like Heatly and Head, called mandatory dues "homage to silk stocking law firms" that he insisted control the bar.

But Peveto said control of the board is broad-based, with members of its board of directors coming from small firms and one-man law offices across the state as well as from large firms in the big cities.

The bill re-establishing the bar would ratify the bar's control of its $6 million Texas Law Center northwest of the state Capitol. It also would settle, by statute, that the bar could go into debt in its own name — not the state's.

Non-Lawyers On Board

For the first time the bar would be required by law to have non-lawyers on its board of directors — six in addition to the 30 district representatives and the six officers of the bar.

The Texas Supreme Court would pass on the bar's budget, taking ultimate control of finances from the board of directors. The directors would have to hold a public hearing before sending their budget request to the Supreme Court.

House members passed and returned to the Senate for action on changes several other bills resulting from the Sunset process.

They would:

— Merge the Board of Landscape Architects with the State Board of Architectural Examiners.

— Continue the State Board of Barber Examiners.

— Extend the life of the Texas Turnpike Authority.

— Preserve the State Structural Pest Control Board, but connect it administratively to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The House also voted tentative approval to Senate-passed Sunset bills that would:

— Extend the State Board of Public Accountancy.

— Continue the State Board of Morticians but include four non-mortician members on the nine-member board and add numerous consumr protection features to the law governing undertakers.

Overton South Wins Two Rounds In Dispute With Church

the houses were removed," he said.

Although the houses may not be significant architecturally, Hogan said Overton South's diversity of architecture "establishes the architectural character of the neighborhood."

The homes called the White House at 2219 13th St., is the "only Victorian residence in the neighborhood," he said, and the so-called Cox House at 2223 13th St., is important because of its unique stonework.

Residents told commission members the houses are historically significant because of events which occurred. Others added that because Lubbock is a young city, it must preserve what remnants of a heritage remain for future generations, even though structures may not compare to older, more significant monuments in other cities.

Masonry contractor Cecil Schluder, who worked with the stone mason responsible for the Cox House, said he knew of no one who could duplicate the work on the stone house and the craftsmanship would be forever lost if the structure were moved.

Bob Moody, an attorney for the church, said that First Baptist has "more at stake as far as an investment of dollars" in Overton South than anyone else and wants "something that's pretty."

Removal Opposed

Moody said the houses would be moved and restored on other lots in Lubbock, but Overton South residents told him that was like "moving George Washington's house from Mount Vernon."

To that, Moody countered with the example of restoration of ranch and farm homes at the Texas Tech University Ranching Heritage Center.

He also contended that neither of the houses under consideration are particularly significant, architecturally or historically, noting that both structures rated at medium significance in a survey of Lubbock architecture and historic structures.

Moody noted that the church is faced with perpetually maintaining both houses for the public at its own expense.

Hunt urged the commission to "proceed slowly" and likened the dispute between the neighbors and the church to early day Lubbock "cowmen who said it wouldn't do to bring in farmers."

He said both owners who sold their houses to the church "knew when they sold to the church what it would be used for."

The Zoning Board of Adjustment, however, apparently felt the church had adequate parking and had alternatives to tearing down residences for additional space.

Church representatives based their need for the additional parking space on proposed construction of a Family Life Building east of the church sanctuary — plans never revealed until Thursday's meeting.

Court Action Possible

Following the unanimous decision, Moody said it violates constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion and intimated the church may appeal the decision to district court.

He said a Texas Supreme Court decision gives cities the authority to enforce police powers against a church, but not zoning powers.

Reuel Nash, who represented the church at the ZBA meeting, said the church plans to build the Family Life Building on three-fourths of a block on Broadway Avenue, immediately east of the church sanctuary.

The building would be constructed on what is now church parking area and necessitate additional parking to meet city standards requiring the church to provide 600 parking spaces.

Roger Loter, chairman of the Overton South group, said efforts to reach a compromise with the church had failed, including an offer to trade property on Broadway for the 13th Street lots.

OSNA member Larry Glazner, who lives across the alley from the 13th Street lots, said there was no guarantee the Family Life Building ever will be constructed, adding it would be a "tragedy" to tear the houses down for no reason.

Glazner suggested the church consider construction of a parking building, a parking basement or construction of a parking lot west of the church on Broadway.

However, Nash said "economics" have prevented the church from building a parking garage.

Following the decision, church administrator said further negotiations are possible with Overton South on the property, but added, "court action is always a possibility in the future."

Jail Death Linked To Head Blow

pants and was not discovered on the sidewalk outside the jail until after his death.

A waitress at the club told police that Villarreal had entered the club about 10 p.m. Wednesday and demanded a drink, but that she refused to serve him because he appeared drunk. She said he tried to talk to other patrons and "milled around" the nightspot for a while before leaving.

The waitress said when she later went outside the club, she noticed Villarreal lying in the parking lot and told the club manager, who then called police.

Investigation Continues

Detective Capt. Wayne Love said his investigators will continue talking with club employees and patrons who saw Villarreal to try and determine when the man was injured.

Love said, however, it was his understanding that the type of injury Villareal suffered is not immediately fatal and could have occurred before he entered the club.

Officials said both the arrest and jailing procedures used on Villarreal were normal.

Police information officer Bill Morgan said officers use their own discretion when arresting a person on suspicion of public intoxication. Instances in which the suspect is unconscious are not uncommon, he said.

Smith said that jailing procedures also were consistent with jail policy.

"There was only the small bruise on his temple and another found on his right calf during the autopsy," Smith said. "These aren't the type of injuries we usually seek medical attention for."

Gary McGrew, jail administrator, said Villarreal appeared to be in a deep sleep when he was placed in the cell because he was snoring.

No Violence Indicated

Sheriff's deputies said they plan to continue taking statements today from jail personnel and the other "drunk tank" inmates.

Love and Smith said all of their department's reports will be forwarded to LeCroy.

Services for Villarreal are pending with Henderson Funeral Directors.

Now Smith is in the process of redrilling the hole so it can be capped with concrete.

"At first, when I noticed the oil, I was a little excited but I've been around the business long enough to know not to get too optimistic," he said. "Now it's just a hassle having my driveway torn up."

Smith is anxious to have the whole episode over. The oil has ruined much of his lawn.

Typewriter Imports Get Attention Of Treasury

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigation is being launched to determine whether imported portable electric typewriters from Japan are being sold in the United States in violation of anti-dumping trade laws.

Imports of these typewriters last year totaled $55.8 million.

The Treasury Department said Thursday it was acting on a complaint from the SCM Corp. Dumping means imported goods are being sold for less than in the producers' home market.

The Treasury said it expects to have a tentative indication in mid-November whether dumping actually is occurring. If it is, the Treasury could impose a special anti-dumping duty to offset the price difference.

Castro Mexico Visit First In 23 Years

COZUMEL, Mexico (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro, returning to Mexico for the first time since he was an exile 23 years ago, said Thursday he did not come to ask for material goods but to "tighten the bonds of friendship" with this oil-rich nation.

"We do not come to solicit anything material nor to ask for oil or gas ... but to satisfy the desire of greeting you personally and bringing a greeting from the Cuban people," the bearded Cuban leader told President Jose Lopez Portillo as he arrived at this Mexican tourist island in the Caribbean.

It is Castro's first visit to Mexico since he and his guerrilla band launched the Cuban revolution from the nearby Mexican Gulf Coast in 1956.

In a brief arrival speech, Castro told the airport gathering: "I do not need to kiss this land because I have always carried it profoundly in my heart."

The two presidents met for two hours after the arrival ceremonies. A senior Mexican official who asked not to be named said they also would meet today to discuss "the world situation and review the situation in Central America."

Aides said the talks would cover "a wide range of topics." Spokesmen said there was no prepared agenda, but sale of Mexican oil to Cuba and steps to improve the island nation's trade deficit with this country are expected to be among the major items discussed.

Lopez Portillo praised Castro in an airport ceremony, referring to his revolutionary rise to power as a "virtuous challenge." Mexico was the only member of the Organization of American States that refused to sever diplomatic relations with the Havana government after Castro overthrew Cuban Dictator Fulgencio Batista on New Year's Day 1959 and installed a pro-Soviet government.

Latin American countries lifted sanctions four years ago, but the United States still maintains economic restrictions and has no diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Castro is expected to discuss increasing Cuban exports of rum, cigars and nickel to Mexico as part of an attempt to counteract a $20 million trade deficit with its neighbor last year. Besides seeking goods and materials to develop Cuban industries, he also will discuss arrangements to buy Mexican oil, a quest that has brought visits by other world leaders in recent months, including President Carter.

The weather on this island, 16 miles off Mexico's Yucatan peninsula, was clear and humid, with a temperature of about 95 degrees, as Castro rode from the airport to the Hotel Presidente in the center of town.

Hundreds of persons, waiting since early morning, lined the 15-mile road from the airport, shouting "Viva Castro" and "Viva Cuba."

The balmy island, venerated by the Mayan culture as a holy place from 400 B.C. to about A.D. 600, has a full-time population of 20,000 but hosts an average of 900,000 tourists a year.

Armed soldiers lined the road stationed at 50-yard intervals. Castro brought 20 bodyguards with him and the Mexican government deployed more than 200 security agents. It also stationed a dozen naval craft, including four minesweepers, in the Caribbean surrounding the island.

Castro's party included Cuban vice presidents Carlos Rafael Rodriguez and Ramiro Rafael Mendez and other government ministers.

The Cuban president planned to do some skin diving this morning to look at coral formations in the waters around Cozumel. The two leaders were to fly to Tulum by helicopter to tour Mayan archeological ruins, then visit the Xel-Ha lagoon, known for its varied aquatic species.

Chinese View Goals Change In Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chinese leaders are "firm and unshakable in their drive to modernize" China's economy, even though they have cut back on some of their more ambitious goals, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said Thursday.

But Blumenthal said Americans who want to do business with China "must be willing to invest a great deal of time and incur a substantial amount of risk" to earn profits that "will undoubtedly be great."

Blumenthal said the Chinese have made some readjustment in their economic goals in recent weeks, including new emphasis on development of agriculture and light industry. They had earlier indicated they hoped to concentrate their efforts on development of heavy industry.

"It is not really surprising that this kind of readjustment takes place," Blumenthal told the National Council for U.S.-China Trade. "China is embarked on a rapid path of change; adjustments and threats to endurance are inevitable."

Blumenthal recently made a 10-day official visit to China.

He said American businessmen should adopt "a sense of realism and proportion" in their business dealings with the Chinese.

"Obviously profitable business can be done in China and we are eager for it," he said. "But for some time to come business will have to be done under conditions of uncertainty. This is a fact."

He said potential investors will have to make up their own minds whether they think China will be a safe place to invest, or whether today's policies will be reversed later on.

Even though the United States now accounts for only about 6 percent of China's total trade and is behind other nations in promoting trade relations, he said he is confident this share can be increased substantially. Total trade between China and the United States last year was valued at about $1 billion.

Talmadge's Accuser Denounced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge's chief accuser probably took about $13,000 from a secret bank account for his personal use, a government financial expert said Thursday.

The testimony of Lawrence Sullivan before the Senate Ethics Committee leaves at least $21,000 from that account untraced to any individual.

Sullivan testified on the 14th day of committee hearings on five charges of financial misconduct against Talmadge, a Georgia Democrat.

Daniel Minchew, who has acknowledged taking $7,200 from the account for his own use, has alleged that he set up the account on Talmadge's orders and that he funneled cash to the senator.

Talmadge has denied any knowledge of the account and contends Minchew acted alone in setting up the account. He has accused his former top aide of being a "liar, cheat and embezzler."

Sullivan, an accountant and lawyer with the General Accounting Office, the congressional watchdog agency, told the committee he traced $6,600 in funds from the secret account to Minchew's personal account. He said his analysis showed Minchew probably benefited from another $6,355 taken from the account.

Sullivan said he could not rule out the possibility that Minchew took all of the money, considering that a secret cash horde could not be traced.

But he added that "Mr. Minchew wrote a lot of checks to cash" at the time. "This is inconistent with someone who has a cash horde," Sullivan said.

He said Minchew "borrowed a lot of money" and that the former aide maintained a line of credit with his bank to cover times when he might not have enough money in his checking account to cover all checks.

"It would seem to me that if he had cash available, he would not be borrowing money on that basis," the expert said.

of Mobil Oil Co., told a House hearing that a lack of crude oil supplies worldwide and not lack of refining capacity is causing the current lines at service stations in California.

— White House spokesman Jody Powell said the administration expects a 5 percent gasoline shortage this summer. He said some reports of efforts announced Wednesday to try to ease the gasoline shortage in California were overly optimistic.

"I don't want the American people to come away with the idea ... that everything is going to be all right," Powell said. "Nothing we did yesterday addresses the fundamental problem" of continuing vulnerability to interruptions of the oil flow from the Middle East.

Critics Lash Hayakawa Remark

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. S.I. Hayakawa was sharply criticized Thursday by some California officials after he said the poor don't need gasoline because they don't have jobs.

"I am shocked," Mayor Tom Bradley said of Hayakawa's statement Wednesday. "I find it incredible that statement was made by a responsible public official."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the Senate majority whip, said in a telephone interview from Washington, "I find it hard to believe that $2 or $3 per gallon for gas would be of no significance to the poor. Many people need cars to look for jobs, while others need them to drive to the low-paying jobs they hold."

The president of the Japanese-American Citizens League, a national organization headquartered in San Francisco, called Hayakawa "insensitive."

The California Republican reiterated in a statement Thursday that he supports the elimination of gas ceiling prices, which he predicted would result in $2 to $3 per-gallon gasoline prices that could discourage the poor from filling up.

"I have been accused of being indifferent to the poor because I said the poor don't need gasoline," he said. "The genuinely poor don't need it because most of them can't afford to own a car. Many do not have jobs, and few of the employed poor drive to work. They are a very small part of the gasoline problem in California.

"The comfortably rich will continue to be able to buy gasoline even if it continues to go up to $5 a gallon," Hayakawa said.

Tom Hayden, a political activist and head of the Santa Monica-based Campaign for Economic Democracy, said Hayakawa's statement shows he is "hopelessly out of touch with the way of life in California. He reminds me of Marie Antoinette when she told the rebellious French to eat cake."

Clifford Uyeda, president of the Japanese-American Citizens League, compared Hayakawa's energy statements to his arguments against a campaign to win compensation for Japanese-Americans who lost property while they were interred in World War II relocation camps. Hayakawa argued, among other things, that the detention of 110,000 Japanese-Americans was necessary to protect them against wartime hysteria, and provided educational opportunities.

The senator was not held in a relocation center.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is the day to sit back and observe what others are doing and to avoid expressing any critical opinions of those activities which you do not like. By being quiet and getting in tune with those about you, you could make considerable headway.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care you do not annoy others in any way today. Elevate your thoughts to that which is inspiring. Steer clear of arguments in any social contacts you make.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Showing admiration for bigwigs who have done you many favors is wise and staves off any possible misunderstanding. Be more willing to compromise on some bills instead of flatly refusing to pay it and get good results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study well into new situations and don't jump recklessly into anything as yet. Your hunches are not very good now, so don't follow them implicitly — use mature judgment.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listening carefully to advice of closest tie can bring about fine results. Know what your obligations are and how best to handle them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take time to be kind to a partner who is irritated and needs gentle handling. Don't try to deal with anything of a difficult nature today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get right to work on whatever is important and take advice from partners also and this becomes a very productive day. Take time to improve health in some way. Forget the social for now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Finish tasks before going out for recreation. Relax and be more willing to meet expectations of loved ones and increased mutual happiness. Avoid a known troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you are considerate of those who dwell with you, you gain their understanding and affection. Not a good day for entertaining.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your best success today comes from writing, communicating with others on the phone etc. Regular associates will be very willing to cooperate now. Make the most of this.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Perk up your property with needed repairs. Try to please others more. Be objective if you have problems you need to solve.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Sharpen up your appearance so that you can get out socially later and make a fine impression. Plan how to save more money for possible emergencies later on.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to May 20) Go to an expert for the advice you need and then use it wisely. A loved one needs help with some problems, so be sure to help where you can. Show you are devoted and thoughtful.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she wil have different ideas and views from others and should be taught about whatever is standard, which combined with the unusual can make for pioneering that could prove successful throughout the lifetime.

Broken Steam Line Prompts Evacuation

Texas Tech's Thompson Hall was evacuated for nearly an hour Thursday afternoon after a steam pipe in the building's basement ruptured.

Although one man was in the basement when the six-inch pipe burst, no one was injured in the accident.

The pipe that broke carried 90 pounds of steam pressure , said M.S. Buckberry, director of building maintenance and utilities.

"When steam from the fractured line hit the ceiling, it sounded like an explosion," said Buckberry.

Elmer Teal, an employee of the college's maintenance department was working in the tunnel of the basement near the steam pipes.

Buckberry said water and electricity services to the building have been restored and the building will be open today.

Nuclear Panel Balks, Gets Needed Power

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — The presidential commission investigating the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor accident abruptly canceled its hearings Thursday, and its chairman said members might resign if they couldn't hear testimony under oath or subpoena witnesses.

But hours after the commission balked at "roadblocks" stemming from a dispute between the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Justice Department, the Senate unanimously approved a resolution giving the commission what it wanted.

The Senate action came on a voice vote without debate. It still requires approval in the House, which does not meet again until Monday.

The 12-member panel, which President Carter appointed last month to look into America's worst commercial reactor accident, refused to hear from state officials or utility executives until Congress acts to give it those powers.

"The fundamental issue is the commission's need to hear testimony under oath," chairman John Kemeny, president of Dartmouth College, said before the Senate action.

"It is inconceivable to me that we would not have this power by the end of next week. If the powers are not given for an extended period, I would expect the entire commission will have to resign because we won't be able to do our work," he told reporters.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh was to appear before the blue-ribbon panel Thursday, with utility executives and plant operatives due Friday.

But before anyone could be heard, the commission canceled the hearings.

The panel did take its scheduled tour of the crippled power plant. Wisps of steam can still be seen emerging from the massive cooling towers, as engineers allow a natural convection flow of water to cool the reactor, whose core is still 308 degrees at its hottest point, toward an eventual cold shutdown.

The commission also said it would take opinions from area residents on Saturday.

Kemeny said the commission's staff has pushed for congressional action since April 26, a day after the commission was sworn in. But he said, "We've run into a number of roadblocks."

He specifically singled out the Justice Department and the Senate Judiciary Committee, chaired by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as delaying matters and not returning phone calls.

In Washington, a spokesman for Kennedy said the Senate committee had asked Justice to simplify the proposed legislation by removing a provision that would have authorized closed meetings.

After getting no reply from Justice since the request was made last week, Kennedy introduced his own proposal Thursday.

"This gives the commission everything that it wants but it deletes the section on closed meetings," said Tom Southwick, a spokesman for Kennedy.

Under present authority governing the commission, meetings may be closed only by Carter or the head of the General Services Administration. Kennedy felt that authority was enough, Southwick said.

Other commissioners said their credibility would be tainted if they can't take testimony under oath and issue subpoenas.

"If we proceed under those circumstances, we leave ourselves open to charges that we are a pussycat commission," said Carolyn Lewis, a Columbia University journalism professor.

Middletown housewife Anne Trunk added, "We have been lied to. I feel we have to get the truth and the only way to get the truth is to get people to testify under oath."

At the Whie House, presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Carter was informed only Thursday morning of the legal wrangle.

"The president has indicated that he would like to have the dispute resolved expeditiously and get on with it," said Powell.

When pressed about details of the dispute, Powell referred reporters to the staff members involved. "The lawyers are the ones that got us into this. Let them get us out of it." Powell added that he didn't think the dispute would cause the commission's deadline to report to the president by Oct. 25 to be extended. He added:

"Does it ever occur to you that when the American people think that government doesn't work, they may really be on to something?"

In announcing the commission last month, Carter said, "It is essential that we learn the causes of this accident and make sure the safety of our own citizens is never again endangered in this way. ... That task will be one of the most important ever undertaken by a presidential commission."

Industry Pledges To Replace Asbestos Equipped Hair Dryers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under government pressure, the hair dryer industry said Thursday it will offer to modify or replace millions of hair dryers containing asbestos.

The plans presented to the Consumer Product Safety Commission came from the 11 manufacturers and retailers of hair dryers that the agency staff had said presented an unreasonable cancer risk to consumers.

The commission later voted unanimously to accept the plans, a step that eliminates the possibility of commission legal action against the companies.

"There's been such worry on the part of consumers. Our main worry is to alleviate that," commission head Susan King said. She said "a vast number of consumers" have called or written the agency to ask if their hair dryers contain asbestos, which has been found to cause cancer if breathed by humans.

The agency staff has estimated the number of asbestos-containing hand-held hair dryers at 12.5 million.

Commission staffer Catherine Cook said the companies offered the plans in negotiations with federal officials in the hope of ending the controversy over the safety of hair dryers. "It will give them a sense of finality, a sense of certainty," she said.

The commission turned its attention to finding out about asbestos contained in other products used by consumers.

"There may be other household products presenting similar problems," the commission staff said in recommending efforts to find out about them.

A little-noticed consultant's report delivered to the commission last year identified more than 100 types of products that may contain asbestos. "Some of those products are in almost every home in America," Commissoner Sam Zagoria said.

"A housewife wants to know when she uses a pot holder if over the years there will be any asbestos released. Now that the red flag of hair dryers has been so thoroughly waved around, we need to give people a sense of security," Zagoria said.

The commissioners authorized staffers to draw up an "advance notice of proposed rulemaking" that would elicit information on products other than hand-held hair dryers that contain asbestos. The staff also was authorized to write draft orders to manufacturers of asbestos paper asking about known consumer product uses and manufacturers that use the paper.

"Asbestos is a ubiquitous product in the environment and in consumer products," Mrs. King said.

The 11 companies that offered plans to repair or replace and sometimes to offer refunds for consumers who return asbestos-containing hair dryers are Conair Corp.; General Electric Corp.; The Gillette Co.; Hamilton Beach Division of Scovill Manufacturing Co.; J.C. Penney Co., Inc.; Korvettes Inc.; Montgomery Ward & Co.; North American Philips Corp. (Norelco); Schick, Inc.; Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Sunbeam Corp.

All the companies except Korvettes have marketed hair dryers nationally. That chain is limited to some cities, mainly in the East and North Central states.

Mrs. Cook said some of the companies objected to use of the word "recall" to describe the plans to get the asbestos-containing hair dryers out of the hands of consumers.

Industry representatives have said they are not convinced their hair dryers present any health hazard. But, facing threatened legal action by the commission and many concerned customers, they agreed to negotiate with the commission staff over ways of getting the dryers back.

NAACP Asks Companies To Hire Black Youths

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The NAACP announced Thursday it is beginning a nationwide program to get jobs for more than 175,000 black teen-agers.

Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the 1,300 top corporations in the country would be asked to employ one young black for every $10 million in gross revenue or to hire 1 percent of their work force from the ranks of unemployed black youth.

New Pump Station Location Approved

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Construction of a Southwest Lubbock pump station and reservoir cleared another hurdle Thursday when the Zoning Board of Adjustment approved its location north of 82nd Street and west of Memphis Avenue.

In September, the board approved construction of the pump station at approximately 78th Street and Quaker Avenue. But when that land changed ownership the location of the site also had to be changed.

City officials plan an Aug. 21 sale of $8.82 million in bonds to finance, among other things, construction of the reservoir. If the facility is not completed by June 1980, water use may have to be curtailed next summer.

Board members also approved a request by Harold Burkhalter, representing O'Donnell Enterprises Inc., for a variance in the parking requirements for a restaurant at 1702, 1704, 1706 and 1708 19th St.

However, the board suggested Burkhalter attempt to find a new roof design for the Whataburger restaurant that would be more compatible with other downtown structures.

In other action the board:

— Approved the request of O.V. Scott, representing First National Bank, for a variance in the requirements for a sign at a drive-in bank at 10th Street and Avenue Q.

— Approved the request of Larry Elliott, representing Farrar Del Norte, for a variance in the setback requirements at 5713 64th St., but denied the same request for property at 5702 62nd St. and 5701 and 5717 64th St.

— Denied the request of M.L. Collins, representing Double C Inc., for a special exception to allow gas pumps in a general retail (C-2) zone and vary the setback requirements on property at 8210 Hudson Ave.

— Denied the request of Aubrey J. Fouts, representing JHJ & G Inc., for a special exception to allow self-service gasoline pumps in a C-2 zone at 5719 66th St.

— Continued the request of Burl D. Bourns, representing Luther T. Bourns, for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used for a dwelling at 3508 Ave. J.

— Approved the request of Shirley A. Cleveland for a special exception to allow a business in a residence at 2625 E. Auburn St.

— Tabled the request of Doak Enabnit for the Lubbock County Hospital District for a special exception to allow an emergency ambulance station in a mobile home at 5012 50th St.

Plans For Youth Center Approved

Lubbock County Commissioners approved final plans for the newly-named Lubbock County Youth Center after an architect's presentation Thursday.

Commissioners also voted to open construction bids on the center July 3. Projected costs on the facility, which will be located on North University Avenue near Loop 289 and will have a capacity of 36 persons, run to $1,127,463.

Architectural plans and related documents were drawn up at a cost to the county of $40,000. It is estimated the facility will require one year to build.

In other business during their second meeting this week, commissioners approved a request by the state to use state funds for building improvements to the county-owned building located at 800 E. Broadway Ave.

The improvements would allow handicapped persons greater access to the building, commissioners said. The building presently is used by the Texas Department of Human Resources. Commissioners also approved an extension of their use of the building until 1982.

The commission's next meeting will be May 29, when they will give final consideration to a new telephone system for all Lubbock County facilities.

Fleece Award Gets Shorn For Tribute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire has decided against presenting a Golden Fleece of the Month award in May and has chosen instead to present an "Award of Merit" to Percy A. Pierre, an assistant Army secretary.

Proxmire cited Pierre for presenting to Congress "the most readable and honest presentation in my memory on the needs of the U.S. Army."

"Merit awards don't make news ...," said Proxmire, a Wisconsin Democrat. "But it is just as important to praise worthy accomplishments as to criticize waste and inefficiency. Coming from me this award may surprise the Army, but it is well deserved."

Pierre, assistant Army secretary for research, development and acquisition, was praised by Proxmire for submitting a report that was understandable and which admits the Army's failures.

Library Board Members View Features Of Southwest Branch

B / METRO
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Friday, May 18, 1979

Two community meeting rooms, a shallow reading pit in the children's section and substantial natural lighting are highlights of the new southwest branch library plans shown to library board members Thursday.

Project architect Joe McKay of BGR Architects-Engineers presented preliminary plans as well as several revisions for the building to be constructed at Leroy Elmore Park, Quaker Avenue and Loop 289.

According to board chairman Charles Burford, the plans reflect many of the suggestions of the board building committee, which acted as a liaison with McKay. "We've really had a great effect on the ultimate design of the building," he said.

Features of the building include a large community meeting room which could be operated separately from other library areas and used for other than library functions.

The building will also include a smaller community room which would probably be used in conjunction with activities planned for the children's section of the library, said McKay.

A shallow reading pit in the children's section would enable youngsters to read in the sunken area or on the two tiers encircling the shallow area.

McKay said he considered the possiblity of energy conservation when he designed the building so that a enough sunlight would be admitted to illuminate the interior.

He said that several libraries that he and the building committee had toured in Dallas in March had removed about half of the light bulbs in the building to conserve energy, resulting in several dark areas.

McKay's plans call for part of the interior portions of the libray to be constructed in three rows of different heights with windows all along one side of each row. The design "takes advantage of the northeast and north sun," he said.

Other features of the library include a drive-in book drop and a 50-car capacity parking area.

The building will be equipped with furniture from the Godeke branch library, which will be turned into a senior citizens center. McKay said new furniture was not in the budget for the new library, but said the Godeke furniture was "substantial" furniture and made of "good, solid wood."

The project architect noted that the new branch library "sits well with the other buildings, architecturally. The materials are in keeping with that of the surrounding residential houses and other buildings."

The project will be ready for groundbreaking in late summer or early fall, said McKay.

In other library business, Nan Davidson, director of children's services for the library, announced that the library will utilize a state children's summer reading program titled "In Search of Texas Treasures" for six weeks beginning June 4.

Participants will read materials concerning 10 different areas in the state that have been designated as having historical value and record the materials they've read in a reading log.

Also Louise Cummins was reappointed by the board to represent the Lubbock library system on the West Texas Library Systems council.

Improper Driver Inspires Reward

A $1,000 reward is being offered by J & G Waste Systems Inc. of 405 30th St. to any person providing information leading to the conviction of a man who tried to run two J & G trucks off the road Thursday.

A spokesman for the company said a Mexican-American man driving a 1977 or 1978 blue Ford Thunderbird with dealer tags ran a J&G truck into a pole on Texas Avenue about 4 a.m. Thursday. The driver was not injured, but in swerving to miss the car the truck received about $3,500 in damage.

Another driver said he barely avoided being run off South Quirt Avenue about 2:30 p.m. Thursday by a car matching the description of the previous auto.

City police and Lubboock county sheriff's deputies are investigating the incidents, but the spokesman said the reward was being offered because, "We just don't want any of our people to get hurt or killed by this guy. We don't know what he's trying to do."

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I think I've finally figured out why an increasing number of graduates do not want to show up for graduation ceremonies.

It has nothing to do with apathy, rebellion against tradition, or an insensitivity to what parents want.

What it does have to do with is that many graduates are ashamed to have their real names revealed. As the wife of an educator, I've seen my share of graduations. It is always the same. At some point, the principal will pick up a diploma and announce into the microphone, "VERNON VALENTINE TURK." A hush will fall over the auditorium as the graduates look at one another, not daring to believe they're sitting next to a Vernon Valentine.

Finally, a macho senior with thighs the size of pier pilings, a tattoo on his tongue, who wears his letter sweater to bed, will lumber across the stage to claim his distinction. No matter what he has accomplished as "Stud Turk," it has all gone down the drain in that one Vernon-Valentine moment.

After the laughter has subsided, some of the more compassionate graduates will actually walk up to him (or her) and say something awkward like "I didn't know. I really admire you."

Parents get carried away with names at birth. Most of them never think they're going to hear them over a loud speaker in an auditorium. Some of them say, "If you don't like your name, go with a nickname." This sometimes puts a child in a real decision-making position. Does she want to be called her real name, "Beulah," or go with "Fats?" Does he want to be called by his given name, "Edsel," or ride with "His Accidency?" No matter what, the jig is up at graduation.

At my graduation, I sat next to my good friend, Mary Van Dyke Jones. Thinking her name was too long for a diploma, she substituted initials for Van Dyke. She shouldn't have done that.

A few people manage to survive their names. Imagine if you will a graduation exercise where the principal calls out Marion Michael Morrison and John Wayne ambles across the stage, or Vincent Damon Furnier is called and rock star Alice Cooper stands up.

If you still dread graduation this year, imagine what it will be like when Cher's daughter, Chastity Bono, or David Bowie's son, Zowie Bowie, walks across the stage.

And be strong!

INSIDE PLUMS

You can't tell a fresh plum's insides by its outsides. The Red Beaut — the earliest plum to arrive in the markets — is bright red on the outside and yellow fleshed on the inside. The Santa Rosa is crimson on the exterior and yellow on the interior. There are red-fleshed yellow plums and blue plums with green insides. The best way to tell is to take a big, juicy bite!

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I have been a flight attendant with a major airline for the past ten years. My flying partners and I have taken a lot of abuse from passengers and we are now fed up. May we enlighten your readers by quoting the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Aviation Administration Regulations?

(a) No person may drink alcoholic beverages aboard an aircraft unless they are served by aircraft personel. (In other words, you can't bring your own bottle.)

(b) No passenger should be served any alcoholic beverages if that person appears to be intoxicated.

(c) No person should be permitted to board any aircraft if that person appears to be intoxicated.

Ann, I am writing to you on behalf of many of us who have had it with obnoxious, drunken passengers. They not only give us a hard time but they make it impossible for the other passengers to enjoy their flight.

91.8 PROHIBITION AGAINST INTERFERENCE WITH CREW MEMBERS

(a) No person may assault, threaten, intimidate, or interfere with a crew member in the performance of his or her duties aboard an aircraft being operated in air commerce.

Passengers who do not comply with regulations may be fined up to $1,000. — Sally Starstream

Dear Sally: As a frequent passenger, I hope all airline personnel will have the courage to enforce these regulations. Thanks for writing.

• • •

Dear Ann: I know you were trying to do the president and Mrs. Carter a favor when you suggested that people not ask them to send cards to relatives who were celebrating anniversaries and birthdays under 100 — but you goofed.

The following aqpeared in the National Retired Teachers Assn. news bulletin: "The White House will send a birthday card to anyone 80 or over, and an anniversary card to a couple celebrating a 50th anniversary or higher. Send requests at least one month before the event to Greetings Office, Office of the President, The White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20500."— Scout In Kalamazoo

Dear Scout: When the Carters first went to the White House, requests for birthday and anniversary greetings were answered with a form letter that read in part: "It is necessary to limit presidential greetings to citizens of 100 years or more..." The policy was changed and they didn't let me know.

Result: Egg on the face!

South explained his pass at two spades had been made because he just felt unlucky. Actually, he would only be able to make nine tricks if West held both the queen of diamonds and king of clubs. As both those nice cards were held by East, South was sure of 11 tricks if he played carefully.

The game was match point duplicate and West made one of those back in doubles. He just didn't want to let his opponents play at two spades. East bid his clubs and South accepted the push and bid three spades.

When this bid came around to East, he committed the unpardonable sin of punishing his partner for being aggressive. He doubled three spades!

East should have been delighted with the three-spade contract. If he could beat it one trick he would get a very good score because his partner's double had pushed South too high.

Of course, South made those easy 11 tricks for plus 1130 and a top score instead of a bad score for missing a game.

Camera Steadiness Must For Sharp Pictures

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

(I've moved to Florida. To help during the transition period, my guest columnist this week is Alex Siodmak. Here's Siodmak:)

As any photo enthusiast knows, camera steadiness is a must to get sharp pictures. Sure, today's higher-speed films allow for faster shutter speeds, but there are many situations where a camera support is essential. This is especially the case indoors (museums, churches, homes, etc) where the lighting is not good at all. Flash would destroy the mood of the room — and is frequently prohibited. That leaves the available light, and often it is inadequate. Any exposure slower than 1-30 second requires some kind of a support for the camera.

While tripods have their place, most photographers don't care to carry them along, due to their bulk. But there are very convenient alternatives, easy to stash in a gadget bag. Luckily, there are any number of devices that will do the work of a tripod, but are merely a fraction of that size.

One of the simplest — and least costly — solutions to keeping the camera from shaking is a C-clamp device which has a screw that fits the camera's tripod socket. This screw is part of a ball-swivel that can be tightened at any angle to level the camera. The C-clamp can be atached to a door, chair, railing or anything that can fit into the 1-inch opening of the clamp. An improved version of this type of clamp is the 2001 clamp-tripod. It has a 1½"-inch opening and three small legs hidden in its handle. By unscrewing a cap on the bottom, the legs come out and turn the clamp into a miniature tripod that will support cameras up to 2½-inch-square format. Weighing under six ounces, and measuring 4½ inches, it is a most convenient accessory to have around. And it may easily spell the difference between having a sharp picture or one that will have to be discarded.

Suppose you'd like to photograph the interior of a cathedral, which may be 200 feet long. That requires a great depth of field which, in turn, necessitates a long exposure. Hand holding the camera is out. But the clamp-pod will come to the rescue nicely, and permit an exposure of one full second or even more. Most clamp-pods are equipped with felt or rubber cushions to protect the finish of whatever it is attached to at the moment.

There are other supports for use under various conditions where camera steadiness counts. One such is Spiratone's Handipod; a 6-inch column with the conventional ball-swivel on top, and tripod legs concealed inside. The Handipod is great for supporting the camera when using the delayed-action release so that you can get into the picture yourself. And what if there are no chairs, railings or other bases onto which to place a clamp-pod? This column-like pod may be held tightly against a wall to assure camera steadiness. Exposures up to one full second may be made in this fashion.

A somewhat larger clamp is Bogen's Super Clamp. Its jaw will open up to two inches and is designed to grip columns (such as the ones that hold up parking meters, playground swings, ets.) as well as chairs, tables or anything else less than two inches wide.

A handle tightens or loosens the jaw with one easy turn. The Super Clamp is of heavier construction. It will support larger camers, such as a 4x5, or movie camers. Super Clamp consists of two parts. A choice of camera platforms is available, depending on need.

Even though a clamp is employed, it is strongly advisable to use a cable release. That will eliminate the possibility of any camera shake.

If none of the devices described above are available, there is still one (or rather two) that everybody carries along at all times: one's own arms. Seated in a chair, elbows placed on the armrests, hold the camera firmly against the chin, take a deep breath, hold it in and squeeze the shutter gently.

Should the chair have no armrests, reverse it and rest the camera on the chair back while sqeezing the shutter. When standing, try to lean on a wall, elbows pressed tightly against the body. Take a deep breath, squeeze the shutter. Exposures as slow as ½-second can be accomplished with a little practice.

Number Of Glazier's Points Not Specific

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — We have an old vacation house which has been empty for several months. During that period the panes in many of the windows were broken by rock throwers. I now have the enormous task of replacing them. I did a couple of windows a few years ago and know pretty much what to do, but I am a little fuzzy about the glazier's points that hold the glass in place. How many of them should be used? And am I right in assuming they are put into place before the putty is applied to the window channel?

A. — There is no prescribed number of glazier's points that should be used. Even if there were, the number would have to be changed for windows of different sizes. Place the points into the frame about 3 or 4 inches apart. There is no need to measure, since it makes no difference if they are not precisely the same distance apart. Of course, the points go into the frame before the glazing compound or putty is applied. If done the other way around, it would be difficult to place them properly. Incidentally, some glazier's points come with a special small tool that makes it easy to insert them.

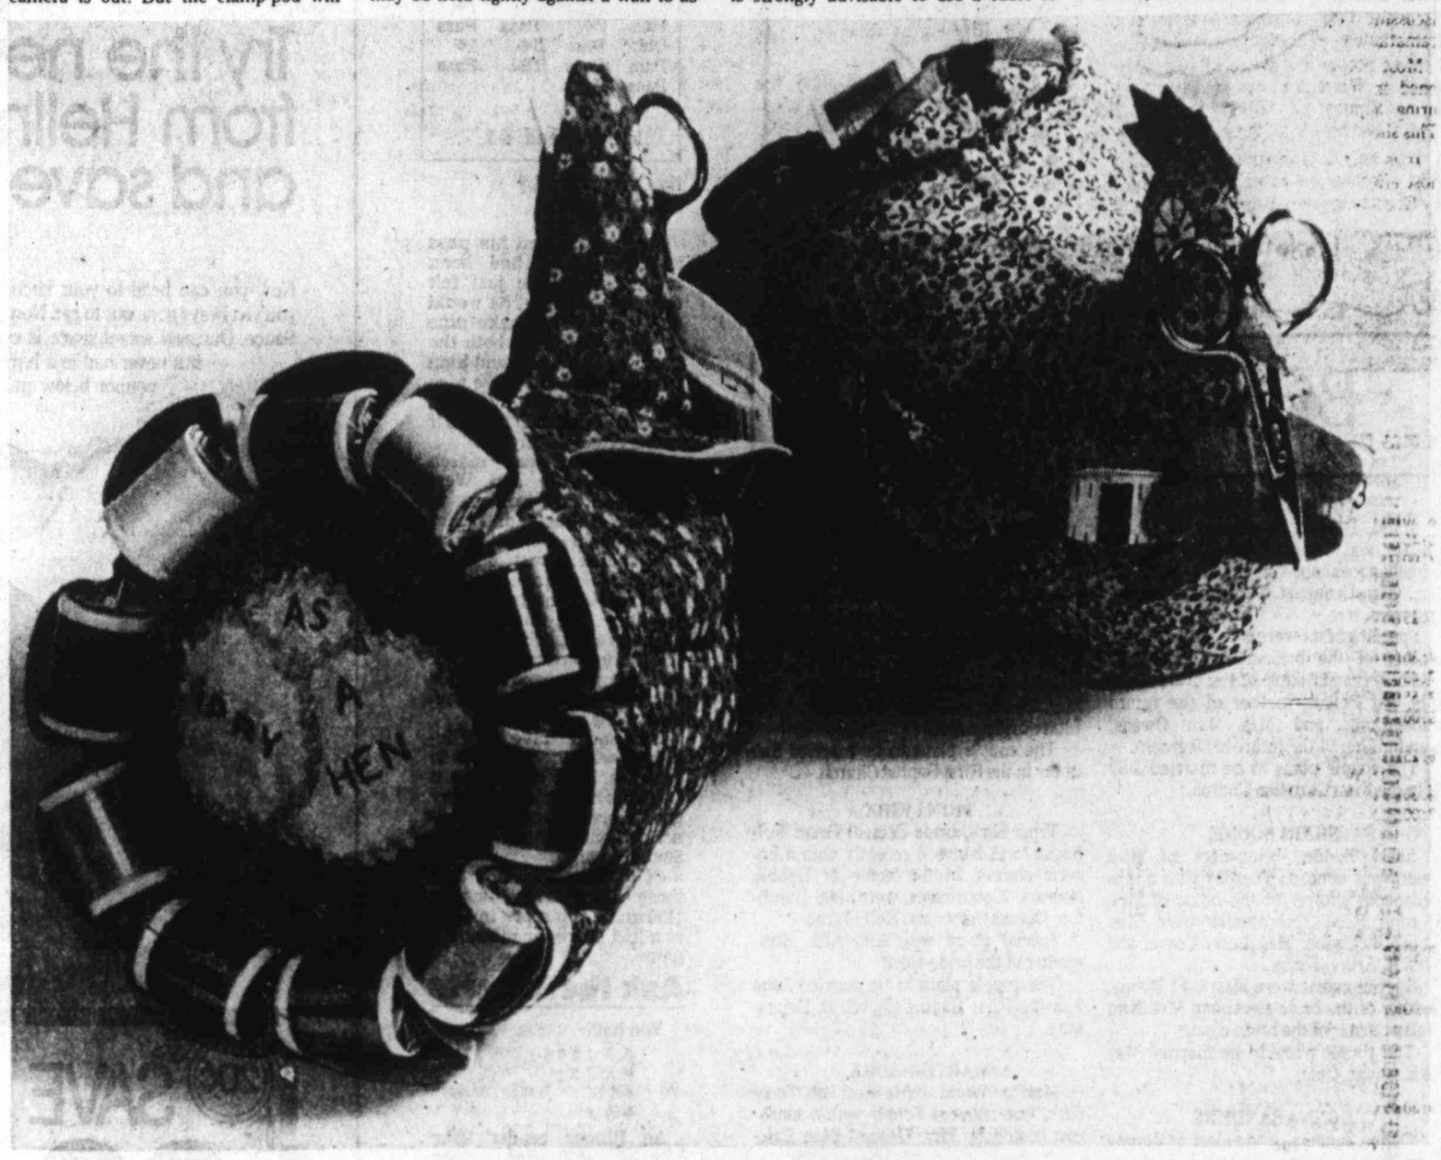

Q. — We recently bought a large piece of property and intend to move into the house soon. There are a lot of trees on the land and I expect to need a chain saw. I used one many years ago, but it was nothing like the ones they sell these days. I would like your advice on whether it is better to get one powered by gasoline or one that runs by electricity.

A. — Neither is better for all jobs. Each has a different purpose. You'll have to decide on the one that best fits your needs. Or, if you can afford it, you can buy two. More gasoline-powered chain saws are sold because you can carry them anywhere you choose and do your cutting. With an electric saw, you can use it only as far as the extension cord will take you. Generally, the saws powered by gasoline handle heavier work. They are more expensive and are noisier. Since chain saws have improved considerably in recent years and you haven't handled one for a long time, be sure you read the instructions very carefully so that you can get the full benefit of the improvements, especially the extra safety features.

Q. — I often see denatured alcohol recommended to get dirt and grime from an old piece of furniture, but just as often I see turpentine or mineral spirits recommended. Is there any difference?

A. — They are both solvents. Denatured alcohol will clean furniture on which varnish, lacquer or paint has been used, with little danger of softening or otherwise disturbing the finish, although it should be used sparingly. But turpentine is recommended for cleaning a shellac finish because denatured alcohol might soften it.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Stuffed Animal Carries Sewing Notions

Take any scrap of material around the house — perhaps cut a scrap from a pair of old jeans or any worn out piece of clothing. On a separate piece of paper, draw the pattern of whatever you'd like a beast of burden to be — this beast is going to carry the burden of your scissors, tape measure, threads, buttons and safety pins and serve as a pin cushion, as well.

Trace the pattern on the material (be sure to make two sides because you're going to stuff this animal) and stitch it together — leaving a small opening for the stuffing. Cut several different widths of strips of materials to serve as pockets for the various paraphernalia, stitch the pockets on, stuff the object, stitch it shut and you've got a handy holder for your sewing notions. Give it an extra added touch by embroidering a bit here and there — whatever your imagination dictates.

Easier said than done? Then order the Spry As A Hen Pincushion Sewing Kit. The kit comes complete with everything needed to complete the project — even the polyester fiberfil is included. The kit includes calico print fabric, felt, edging, trim, elastic, embroidery floss, polyester fiberfil stuffing, full size pattern, and easy-to-follow instructions. The finished hen measures an approximate 9 inches.

Compound Patches Gypsum Board

By The Associated Press

For many years now, gypsum board has been used widely, although not exclusively, in place of plaster walls in new and remodeled homes. Sometimes loosely called wallboard or plasterboard, gypsum board actually is made like a sandwich, with layers of heavy-duty paper on both sides of a gypsum filling.

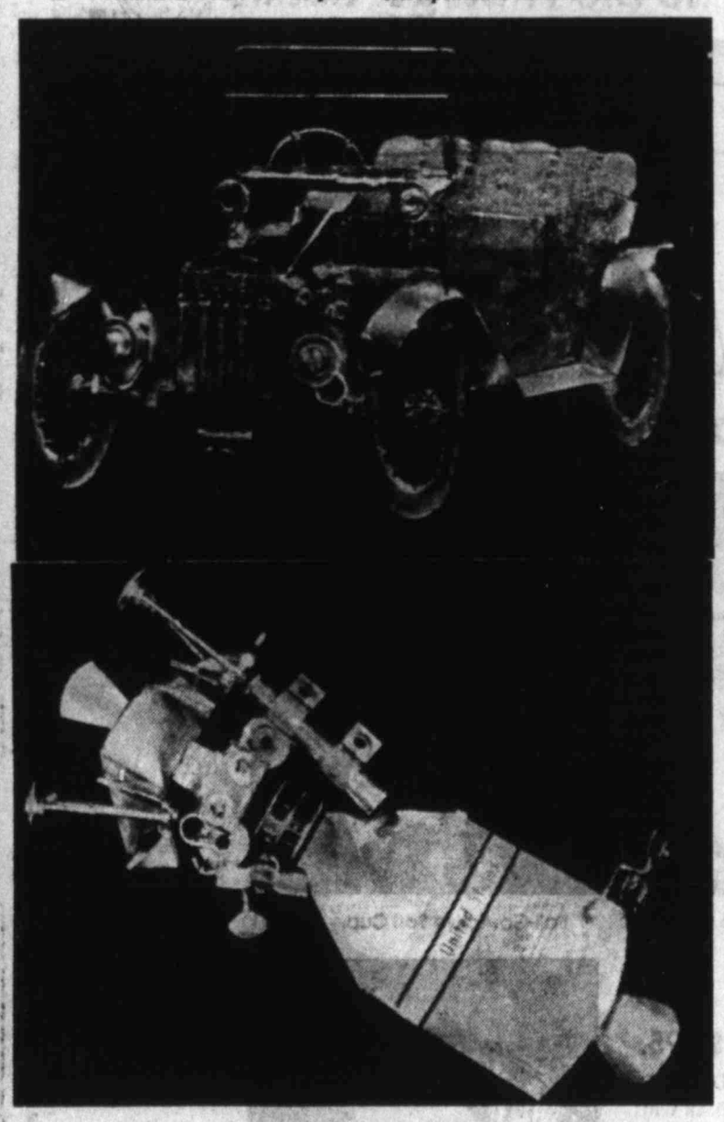

Like plaster, gypsum board requires patching from time to time — and mostly for the same reason: Because it has been damaged by house settlement, stud and joint contraction and expansion, water leaks and abuse.

Ordinary patching plaster may be used for a tiny hole in gypsum board, but what is called joint compound does a better job for all other repairs. This applies to other holes of varying sizes, separated seams, dents, bumps and imperfections caused by popping nails.

The repair that perhaps causes the most trouble is one which calls for the use of a piece of scrap gypsum board as the patch. When this patch is necessary — which it is for all damaged areas other than the aforementioned tiny openings — the old gypsum board should be cut with a keyhole saw. Cut out a piece larger and more regularly shaped than the damaged spot. It might be, for instance, a piece 6 inches square. Then cut from the scrap board an identical piece that fits snugly into the opening. Try it first for a good fit, but don't leave it there yet.

Apply joint compound generously to the edges of the opening in the wall. Place a screw partly into the center of the patch, leaving enough of the screw protruding so that you can hold it with your fingers. Set the patch in place and carefully withdraw the screw. When the joint compound has dried completely, sand lightly until everything is smooth. If necessary, apply a bit more compound to fill any gaps.

When the damaged area is very large, a piece of backup material may be required. It can be another piece of gypsum board, plywood or almost anything else that can be cut larger than the section to be replaced. The simplest way to handle this backup material is to drill a hole in the center of it so that you can insert a finger in it. Apply compound around the borders of the backup board, which is then inserted into the opening at an angle so that it will go in easily. With a finger in the drilled hole, pull the board towards you and hold it there while you drive in a couple of screws around the borders. The combination of the screws and the compound will hold the backup board securely.

Layering Technique Creates Art

Love art, but can't draw or paint? Here's your chance to shine. With a handful of easy-to-find hardware items (screws, washers, cotter pins, etc.) and some pieces of copper, brass or aluminum sheeting, you can create elegant 3-dimensional wall art. The secret is a layering technique...hardware items are glued to a felt backing and successive layers are glued on top.

Full-size placemrnt patterns and full-color pictures make construction of these five projects easy. An antique plane is captured in mid-flight; the pair of "horseless carraiges" or the antique train can be the conversation piece of any decor. And to please the modern adventurer, a space module is suspended in orbit. Such pictures would run up quite a price in any specialty shop, but with these step-by-step instructions you'll easily create yor own inexpensive hardware sculpture.

Miniseries Stays True To Watergate Events

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Blind Ambition," based on John Dean's account of the Watergate scandal, is a miniseries that is at once marvelous and frightening.

Powered by superb writing, direction and acting, "Blind Ambition" carries a hard edge of reality that makes it snap and crackle with excitement. The first two-hour segment airs on CBS (Channel 13 in Lubbock) on Sunday, with subsequent chapters Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

It is one thing to read about this or that dirty trick, or to see the hearings on television. To see the conspirators actually sitting there in the White House or the attorney general's office, casually discussing illegal activities — albeit in a dramatization — is positively chilling.

Most people are aware of what happened in Watergate, but as Dean said during filming of "Blind Ambition," "This shows how it got there."

It is only a dramatization, but it's a most effective one as written by Stanley R. Greenberg and directed by George Schaefer. The first two hours were seen in preview.

Martin Sheen doesn't really look like John Dean, who calls himself the linchpin of the Watergate cover-up, but he plays the part with such force, drive and intensity, that he quickly becomes Dean.

Theresa Russell looks more like Dean's wife, Maureen, and she, too, is most persuasive as she wrestles with the woman's private demons during Dean's womanizing before their marriage and the pressures of Watergate. The Deans' own personal story is woven into Watergate, because they were inseparable and each affected the other.

Greenberg has become one of television's leading practitioners of docudrama, with such previous efforts as "Pueblo," "The Missiles of October," and "The Silence."

He spent two years adapting the eight-hour screenplay from Dean's book, "Blind Ambition," Mrs. Dean's book, "Mo," extensive interviews with the Deans, the White House tapes and the files of Sen. Sam Ervin's Watergate committee and the House Judiciary Committee that considered President Nixon's impeachment.

Six words in the first hour of the second chapter were censored by CBS. The words, which occur in a brief scene in the White House Oval Office, were, said the network, "blasphemous and offensive to a large segment of the audience."

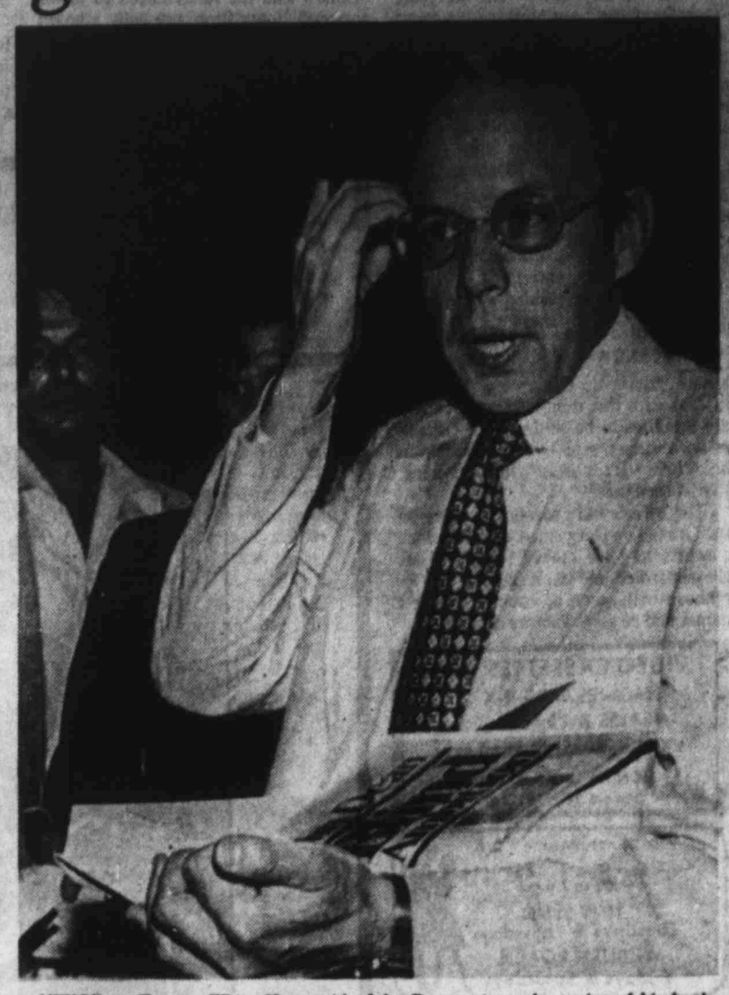

"I'm astonished," said Greenberg. "I would say this does more damage to the reputation of the network than to the drama. As I understand it, they're censoring the dramatization of the White House tapes. We dramatized them accurately — every grunt, every hesitation, every cough. The words they are excising are not my words, not the actors' words, but the words said by the president and his advisers."

Greenberg said Dean had no script control, but was very helpful in checking for accuracy. "After I finished the first draft we went over it page by page, speech by speech," he said. "Then I annotated the script, noting where every single line of dialogue came from. Any time we made a change we consulted with Dean.

"This should be seen in the context of John Dean not trying to hide anything. It should be seen in its entirety. You will come away feeling here are two people who have bared themselves to the American public as no one has ever done before.

"They came out as they were, not perfect. Heaven knows, they made mistakes. John has called himself the linchpin of the conspiracy. 'Mo' has recalled many things about her personal life, many of which are unpleasant. But I think you will know them and like them."

He said he did not think the miniseries in any way whitewashes Dean or minimizes his role in the conspiracy. "Remember," Greenberg said, "it was John Dean who took on the president. It was John Dean who blew the whistle before anybody knew there were the tapes to back up his testimony."

AUTHOR — Former White House aide John Dean autographs copies of his book, "Blind Ambition," after a screening of a TV mini-series of the same name. The book is based on his account of the Watergate scandal. (AP Laserphoto)

Minnie Pearl Addresses House Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a dose of country wit and an ear-shattering "howwwwww-deeeee!" Minnie Pearl pleaded with Congress Thursday to keep the radio voice of the Grand Ole Opry as loud as her own.

And though she claimed some nervousness and declared "I don't know what's cookin', she hardly could have found a friendlier forum than the House communications subcommittee for her claim that WSM radio's coast-to-coast, border-to-border signal is vital to rural America.

The Nashville, Tenn., outlet, which broadcasts Grand Ole Opry performances every Friday and Saturday night, is one of 25 powerful American radio stations which enjoy exclusive, or "clear-channel" rights to their frequencies.

Proposals circulating at the Federal Communications Commission and in Congress would reduce those clear-channel privileges somewhat, in order to open up the airwaves at night to hundreds of local stations which now are limited to sunrise-to-sunset programming.

With one down-home Tennessee congressman, Albert Gore Jr., temporarily chairing the panel, and another, William H. Boner, at her side, "cousin Minnie" was accorded a welcome fit for a star.

Gore, the only member of the subcommittee who attended the session, repeatedly declared what a "great honor" it was for the panel to be blessed with her presence. When she finished speaking, he commended her for "a great statement" and asked almost no questions except to request a rendition of her famous greeting.

"In traveling the country for the last 27 years, I know that so many of our friends are interested in keeping our clear-channel status," she said. "I know how much it means, what a great service this does for entertainment. ... They depend upon it in the rural areas for weather and news, too."

After her statement, Gore recessed the committee — meaning himself — so he could have his picture taken with the witness and Boner.

USO Honors Lady Bird Johnson

NEW YORK (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson, widow of former President Lyndon Johnson, was honored Thursday as USO's Woman of the Year for "her work on numerous environmental projects, and her many other civic and business achievements."

At a luncheon at the Plaza Hotel, the former first lady was greeted by past award recipients, including Lillian Gish and Helen Hayes.

Also on hand were Gen. William Westmoreland and USO Chairman Paul Screvane.

At a pre-luncheon reception, Mrs. Johnson said she was "very greatly honored" to receive the award, traditionally given to first ladies for "their contributions to the well-being and morale of the nation's armed forces."

Hank Snow Works To Build Anti-Child Abuse Organization

NASHVILLE (AP) — All the years Hank Snow has been plucking his guitar and singing country tunes, he's retained a painful memory of his days as an abused child.

HANK SNOW

It's been about a year since an organization Snow founded to help fight child abuse was chartered. But he has discovered that, like making it big in entertainment, making headway takes time.

"I thought that we could just go ahead and set up our own organization to deal with this thing direct. But there are legalities to be settled," the Canadian-born singer said by telephone from his office. "It's not an overnight thing, I've learned that."

The 64-year-old crooner, a fixture on the Grand Ole Opry since 1950, has done concerts to raise money for his cause. He performed one last August at the Opryhouse with some of country's biggest names and he plans another Aug. 30.

Snow said the funds raised go to his non-profit foundation, presently a board of directors without a staff.

These days, he said, the foundation is working with existing agencies — especially the state Department of Human Services — to improve citizen reporting of child abuse.

Snow said he hopes that some day his foundation will conduct training courses for law enforcement officers and the public in more effective ways to detect child beaters.

And there's his grandest dream — construction of a children's rescue mission and training center. Snow envisions it as a place to house abused children, perhaps only temporarily, who a judge has ordered removed from their homes.

But no one yet knows where the center would be located and Snow and a foundation official say considerable funds are needed to build it.

Snow, from Brooklyn, Nova Scotia, left home at 12 and spent four years at sea. Fresh on his mind, he said, were the abuses of a cruel stepfather.

"You never forget. It leaves scars," he said. "It's just fortunate that I didn't become an abusive parent myself, because that's the way it runs. Abused children become abusive parents."

Snow said he took up his cause after hearing reports of two abused Nashville children.

Long-Delayed Computer Date Leads To Marriage For Actress

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mimi Kennedy, the green-eyed actress who plays Victoria, the straight-laced older sister in "Stockard Channing in Just Friends," is a married woman thanks to a computer.

She was a coed at Smith College in 1966 when, for a lark, she placed her name with a computer dating service. Her husband-to-be, Larry Dilg, was an undergraduate at Amherst. He also filled out a data form.

A few weeks later each of them was apprised by mail that they were perfect computer match mates.

According to Mimi, Larry checked her picture in the Smith College yearbook and liked her looks, "but he found out I was a Catholic and probably wouldn't be a very exciting weekend date. So he didn't look me up in person."

Almost eight years later, in 1974, Mimi and Larry were introduced by mutual friends in an 8th Avenue saloon in New York. Larry, an actor-musician, had filed away Mimi's name and the computer data in his own memory bank.

"I thought he was darling the moment I saw him," Mimi says. "He had a great smile. We started dating and finally decided to get married, which is very old-fashioned, I suppose."

The wedding took place a year ago in Mimi's native Rochester, N.Y.

After a honeymoon in France, the newlyweds moved to a two-bedroom Santa Monica apartment last January. They've furnished it sparsely with second-hand bargains picked up at estate sales. The decor is best described as a combination of antique and art deco.

A prized possession is an oil painting done by Mimi's cousin which hangs in a prominent place in the living room. There's also a Chagal print purchased in Paris.

They have a pet cat named Agita, which Mimi says is Italian for indigestion. They brought Agita to California from New York in an expensive foreign sedan which they drove west for a car dealer.

Mimi is more modest about her acting credentials than her domestic talents. She says she's an old-fashioned girl who can sew and cook with the best of them. Larry is a vegetarian. More often than not dinners consist of vegetables sauted in sesame oil.

The menu is more challenging, and doubtless more interesting, when Mimi entertains at home, which she does often. She is a whiz at homemade donuts.

The Southern California roller skating craze has become an obsession with the young couple who spend their weekends rolling around bike paths. The beach is only a 10-minute walk from home. The Dilgs spend sunny days lying on the sand and doing gymnastics.

Both Larry and Mimi take singing lessons and frequently accompany their rock records with family duets. Mimi writes comedy material in her spare time and half-heartedly delivers her routines at amateur nights in local clubs.

She entertains the hope that her new CBS series will last longer than her first stab at TV, "3 Girls 3," which was canceled almost before it began.

'Dreamer' Gives Nation's Bowlers Reason To Go To Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bowlers of America, here at last is a movie that is right up your alley.

It's called "Dreamer," and it's all about — bowling. That's right. Not basketball, football, boxing, ice hockey or another of the more violent sports, but good old (7,000 years) bowling. Stone Age idlers occupied their time rolling stones at pointed rocks or sheep joints, but until 1979 no one ever produced a movie about bowling.

The 20th Century-Fox release will not make the world forget "Rocky," but it's likely to find favor among the estimated 50 million people who frequent bowling alleys every week. The film's star, Tim Matheson, got some indication on a recent tour.

"I traveled in the Midwest, which is where I think the picture will probably do the best business," remarked the clean-cut actor. "Bowling means a great deal to people there. Then I went to Tucson, where I spoke to 3,500 women bowlers. You'd think I was some kind of messiah. They are so dedicated to bowling that they think it's wonderful someone would make a movie about it."

Matheson plays Harold "Dreamer" Nuttingham, so nicknamed because he can think about little else but making it in the bigtime bowling league. Susan Blakely is his girlfriend who can't understand his obsession, and Jack Warden is his coach, who can. There's conflict, sort of, between these two elements of his life.

You might wonder how director Noel Nosseck evokes drama out of a large heavy ball rolling at 10 maple pins. The drama may be scant, but a sense of excitement does develop in the climactic match between Dreamer and champ Johnny Watkin, played by real-life bowling Hall of Famer Dick Weber.

Matheson had some preparation for his role, but not much. His introduction to show business came during his youth when he spent time with his mother (his parents were divorced) in Yuma, Ariz. He learned dramatics from the best possible teachers: The pro wrestlers who performed in the town. The boy sold popcorn in the arena and also watched the bowlers in the nearby alleys.

During junior high school in Burbank, he bowled in a league. "Dreamer" required him to learn skills in a hurry, and his teacher was Richard Weber Jr., who drilled Matheson on technique eight hours a day on the location in Alton, Ill. The actor's thumb became raw, just as it does in the movie.

Young Weber's instruction appears to have succeeded. Matheson seems the total pro in "Dreamer," and he bragged about his prowess:

"During one scene, I rolled three straight strikes, delivering dialogue in-between. That was better than what I did in 'Divorce, American Style' (in which he played the oldest son of Dick Van Dyke and Debbie Reynolds). It took me 17 takes to get one strike."

The flowering of Tim Matheson's career comes at age 31. He seems much younger in person and on the screen, and in "National Lampoon's Animal House" he was a convincing collegiate. The surprise comedy hit of 1978 provided the boost for his fortunes, and he almost didn't make the team.

"When I met John Landis, the director, he thought I looked like a surfer or a cowboy," said Matheson. But Landis was won over, and Matheson provided the needed note of sanity among the weirdos of the college fraternity.

Tim Matheson's career dates back to the Robert Young TV series "Window on Main Street." He has played everything from "Leave It to Beaver" to "Romeo and Juliet" at the Old Globe in San Diego. During the last seasons of "The Virginian" and "Bonanza," he was injected in an effort at rejuvenation. Neither attempt succeeded, nor did a 1976 NBC series, "The Quest."

But he has survived on his acting skill and Waspish handsomeness. Coming up: Disney's "The Apple Dumpling Gang Rides Again" and "1941" — if Steven Spielberg ever finishes shooting it.

DREAMER — Tim Matheson, star of the new 20th-Century Fox film "Dreamer," concentrates on a shot in the film, the first to emphasize a sport 20 million Americans practice — bowling. Matheson, as Harold Nuttingham, is nicknamed "Dreamer" in the film because he can think of little but making it big time as a professional bowler. (AP Laserphoto)

Culture Vultures To Get All-Night Shakespeare

BOSTON (AP) — Movie theaters have put on all-night horror shows and there have been overnight dance contests. Now the Boston Shakespeare Company is putting on a marathon presentation of the bard.

"All Night Bard," as the company is calling the performance of three Shakespearean plays, is to begin at 8 p.m. Saturday and run to about 5:30 a.m. Sunday. It will end with a champagne breakfast for cast, crew and the all-night faithful in the audience at Horticultural Hall.

All 25 actors and actresses in the repertory company will have parts in each of the three plays. "Romeo and Juliet" will be performed first, followed by "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" and "Twelfth Night."

"All the actors are pretty excited at the challenge to do three plays in one night," said one of the performers, Paul Dunn. "Not that you'd want it as a steady diet."

Grey Johnson, a company spokesman, said tickets had been sold for all but 20 of the theater's 320 seats by Thursday. Tickets cost $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50 — the regular price for one play.

The all-night session is the focal point of the company's Spring Shakespeare Festival, a "gift to Boston audiences," that began May 12 and continues through Jun 9.

The festival marks the company's first year in Horticultural Hall, where a banquet hall has been converted into a theater, and is "something we wanted to do as a kind of 'thank you' for support," Johnson said.

One of the actors suggested an all-night Shakespeare festival, and "as soon as it was suggested, we thought it really was right because it says a lot about us, because we're really a company that does a lot," he said.

Johnson said the performances were arranged "to pace the audience as well as ourselves."

"We thought we would put the tragedy first and get all the tears out of the way early. 'The Two Gentlemen of Verona' is very airy.

"We saved 'Twelfth Night' for last because it's a show that starts in mourning and ends in a huge celebration of life, which we figure we will need about 5:30," he said.

Each play runs from 2½ to 3 hours, and Johnson said at least 45 minutes will be needed between them to change costumes and sets.

"We will have some entertainment in the lobby" between plays, he said. "The audience who want to stay in here and sleep, that's fine — during intermission."

UNMANNED TELLERS

AUSTIN (AP) — Banks could locate unmanned teller stations throughout a city under a House bill passed Thurday by the Senate. One facility could serve several banks, said Sen. O.H. "Ike' Harris, R-Dallas. Senators sent the House-passed bill to the governor on voice vote.

Alternatives For State's Elderly Studied

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Many elderly nursing home patients could be cared for better and with less expense to the state if there were home and outpatient alternatives open to them, according to a joint study recently performed by members of the Texas Senate, House of Representatives and Department of Human Resources.

The study indicates Lubbock County presently has a population of 15,700 who are over 65 — 7.3 percent of the total county population.

Of that number, 437 are "community care clients," cared for by chore and homemaking services, Meals on Wheels and foster homes at a cost to the state of $603,000, the study shows.

Nursing home patients cared for by the state number 824. Their care costs $3 million, according to Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder, who was in Lubbock Thursday to publicize the results of the study.

The home care group is "happier," according to Ezzell, "because they feel like they are in a comfortable situation in surroundings they are familiar with. They have a stronger feeling of security."

Insuring the "most appropriate" care of Texas' more than 1.2 million elderly (persons 65 or older), is the thrust of three bills now pending in the Legislature.

State-funded alternatives to full-time nursing home care now being considered include:

•An "adult day care" bill, which would allocate care centers $1.3 million over two years to provide adult day care centers for elderly who need some full-time supervision and medical care, but do not require full-time medical attention.

•A "respite care" bill aimed at providing temporary emergency care for elderly persons who normally are cared for by another elderly person, such as a daughter or sister. The study found that when the younger caretaker is ill, the older person often has no alternative other than to enter a nursing home. The bill would provide $1.9 million for such temporary care.

•A "medically needy" bill aimed at caring for the "near poor," who normally do not receive state health care funds, but would need them in case of a major illness.

The bills are at various stages of consideration in the Texas Senate and House of Representatives.

The committee also heard testimony in seven public hearings across Texas last year which indicated many aged are placed in nursing homes when they do not need to be, either because no other option was available, or they did not know of any other option.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I've written before and hoped you'd get around to giving me answers about eosinophilic fascitis. I guess it must be new. My son's was diagnosed a year ago. He has severe hand swelling and is on Prednisone. I'd like it described in plain language. Does it only affect hands? Is there a cure? What's the cause? — Mrs. B.M.

Sorry for the delay.

I try to field questions about more common ailments. This one is "new" only in the sense that it was recently described by doctors treating similar problems. You won't find it in the usual lay medical books. Only a few cases have been confirmed, but I'll tell you what I know.

Eosinophils are certain body cells (which we can, and are able to identify) with a substance called "eosin." Fascia is special tissue found around muscles and body organs. With eosinophilic fascitis there are more of the telltale cells in the blood than normal, and there is thickening and hardening of the fascia tissue. We don't know why this occurs. Patients experience pain from heavy activity, like prolonged lifting or jogging. Skin becomes thickened in the extremities — arms, hands, legs, elbows, etc. Organs can be affected. A few cases identified to date have been in patients being treated for scleroderma or other muscle ailments.

The good news is that cortisone-like medicine (as your son's Prednisone) appears to give effective relief of symptoms. Generally, the same treatment used in arthritis control seems effective. Aspirin alone, along with rest and physical therapy, has been effective. There's not enough experience with eosinophilic fascitis to tell, but from what information we have the long-term outlook seems good, especially if organs are not affected.

Your son's sharp-eyed physician is to be complimented on diagnosing this.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Very often when I urinate I get a strong medical-smelling odor. Do you know of any cause for this? I am 62 and in good health. When I had my last physical examination, I forgot to mention this to my doctor. I would like some answers. — Mrs. A.D.

You don't mention any particular odor, but I assume you mean a strong ammonia smell. This can be caused by a high intake of concentrated protein food, like meat. Combined with a low liquid intake, this can cause a strong odor in urine, especially if it stands any length of time. Foods like asparagus can also cause it, as can heavy doses of B vitamins. The vitamins would also cause a darker colored urine. Various medicines can create the odor. There's a long list of them.

No cause for concern if any of these factors are involved. Next time you see your doctor, arm yourself with a checklist of questions to ask. Time in the waiting room would not be wasted if folks did this.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 13 years old and I have white specks on my fingernails. Do you have any idea what causes this and if there is anything I can do about it? — Miss J.W.

As nails grow outward to the tip of the finger, the newest growth appears as a white band at the base. As the nail grows further outward it hardens and the whiteness disappears (almost always, anyway). Any injury, even a very minor bump, that occurs in the growing portion results in a white spot later on in the hardened nail.

The white spots in rare cases indicate an infection, but in general are harmless. They do not tell the number of sweethearts you have, the times you have fibbed (each speck representing a white lie) or how rich you will be. They require no treatment and disappear as new nails grow out.

• • •

No. You get it by ingesting the tiny eggs — hand to mouth being the commonest route.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: How can you answer questions on such a wide assortment of medical problems? — H.S.

Two secrets: access to a splendid medical library and to wonderful consultants. I fill in in-between.

• • •

Of all the problems pediatricians encounter in children, pinworm is the most common. To learn about the newest treatments, write to Dr. Ruble for the booklet, "The Commonest Pest — Pinworm," P.O. Boix 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

REBELS BURIED

SHILOH NATIONAL MILITARY PARK, Tenn. (AP) — More than a century after falling in the Battle of Shiloh, the remains of two unidentified Confederate soldiers will be buried with military honors. National Park Service officials said the soldiers will be buried June 2 next to one of five mass-burial trenches for Confederate dead on the grounds of Shiloh National Military Park. Civil War buff Tom Sprowl of Jackson, Tenn., found the remins in 1977 in a shallow grave just outside the park.

Adventure Seekers' Dreams Realized

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Outdoor Editor

Now you can rappel down a cliff, raft wild waters, learn to fly a balloon, take a course in wilderness survival, dig for artifacts with an archaeological team, stand within yards of a gorilla in the jungles of Africa, feel the spray of a whale, meet primitive people in distant lands and experience countless more adventures.

The day when adventure was only available to a fortunate few that were wealthy and enjoyed unlimited free time is in the past. Now the average person can spend the annual vacation in any number of adventures that will contribute to a memorable experience — the trip of a lifetime.

Discovery

Reliable guides, experienced leaders, economical jet fares and far flung trip organizers have brought adventure within the reach of just about every person that has ever yearned for the unusual vacation.

The search for adventure can begin with a Lubbock contact. Rain & Wind & Fire, operating out of Lubbock, maintains a high adventure wilderness school in New Mexico. R &W&F specializes in offering individuals, groups and families a variety of high adventure programs. The programs include wilderness camping, backpacking, mountaineering and survival. Summertime programs range from a three day mountain trek for $59 to a 10-day expedition for $264. This writer found the three day outing that included professional backpacking instruction, patient guides, great meals and beautiful scenery to be an unbelievable bargain.

A brochure and itinerary are available by writing to Richard Rice, Rain & Wind & Fire, P.O. Box 6441, Lubbock 79413, or by phoning 795-0142.

Rafting remote rivers to see unspoiled country and shooting rapids to experience nature's power is the quest of Far Flung Adventures based in Terlingua. The company that specializes in putting people and rivers together has just started trips through the Taos Box Canyon in New Mexico. Already the trips for the remainder of May and most of June have been booked to capacity.

Steve Harris with Far Flung Adventures said the river through Box Canyon is excellent this year because of the recent winter's heavy snowfall.

Several one day and two day floats are still available from June 24 through July 9. One day trips cost $45 per person; two day trips are priced at $85. The river firm also conducts trips down the Rio Grande through the canyons of Big Bend National Park.

All trips are by oar powered rafts; believe me, it's the only way to go. I found the rafters to be informed naturalists and great cooks. The food is always ample and delicious. More information is available from Far Flung Adventures, Box 31, Terlingua, TX 79852, or by phoning (915) 371-2489.

For the person that has admired the beauty of ballooning from afar, The Balloon Ranch can now put you in the basket and provide professional instruction. You can even buy a balloon from the ranch and receive a week's stay free of charge. Also, the ranch has a rock climbing school. Write to The Balloon Ranch, Star Route, Box 41, Del Norte, CO 81132, for more information.

Natural history expeditions all over the Southwest via airplane, jeep, and raft are conducted by Southwest Safaris. Because many of the expeditions are only four days in length, it's easy to enjoy a safari during a week's vacation. There are also one, two and six day safaris. Write to Southwest Safaris, P.O. Box 945, Santa Fe, NM 87501, for more information.

The American Wilderness Alliance, a national conservation organization, conducts year-round wilderness trips throughout North America and Hawaii. The Alliance directs its activities toward the protection of wild areas. The adventures are ideal for families as well as the single traveler and include several education courses for academic credit. A free brochure may be obtained from the Alliance, 4260 E. Evans Ave., Suite 8, Denver CO 80222.

Adventures International can take you to San Ignacio Lagoon off the coast of Baja, Mexico, to see the California gray whales up close. In fact, some participants in small rubber boats have actually touched the gentle giants.

Walking safaris in Africa to see and photograph the rare mountain gorilla and canoe trips through the Congo for unforgettable encounters with a world many people never see are also conducted by the expedition firm.

The California based trip organizer specializes in unusual adventure to wild places for people of all abilities. I've traveled with Adventures International and have found the leaders knowledgeable and reliable. Every adventurer should be on their mailing list. For more information, write: Adventures International, 4421 Albert Street, Oakland, CA 94619.

A unique, American-style safari developed by Nature Expeditions International highlights NEI's expedition program. Expeditions to the canyonlands of Bryce and Zion depart September and October. For addtiional information, contact NEI, 599 College Avenue, Palo Alto,CA 94306.

Ocean oriented adventurers will find a unique vacation experience sailing on a Maine windjammer. While not luxury cruises, the experience is unbeatable for those with a spirit of adventure and a love for the Maine Coast. For bruchures, write the Maine Windjammer Association, Box 317, Rockport, ME 04856.

Membership in the National Wildlife Federation and the Sierra Club will interest adventurers as both organizations sponsor year-around outings. Write to National Wildlife Federation, 1412-16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036,and/or Sierra Club, 530 Bush Street, San Francisco, CA 94108, for membership details.

Specific publications for adventurers include Adventure Travel Magazine. I can't praise the magazine enough. Recent issues have included accounts of a wild rafting trip down Virginia's James River, backpacking in Haiti, helicopter skiing in the Tetons, and biking across America. From quick outings to long expeditions, there's something for everyone and every pocketbook.

The same association also publishes a 600-page Worldwide Adventure TravelGuide priced at $9.95. The book is divided into types of trips, and the trips are listed by state and country. An index lists adventure trip organizers. The paperback guide should be on every adventurer's book shelf. The information packed book is distributed by Random House.

Fishing and hunting enthusiasts will appreciate Outdoor Adventures, a travel guide from Braniff International's Outdoor Council. The guide also describes vacation destinations for photographers and naturalists from Alaska to the Galapagos Islands. The guide is available from Braniff Outdoor Council, P.O. Box 6147, Room W-315, Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, TX 75261. Include $1 to cover postage and handling. Locally the publication is available free of charge at Farmer's Exchange and Sportsman Supply.

Finally, for the adventurer who wants to find a place to camp, hike and fish right here in Texas, be sure to get a copy of the Camper's Guide to Texas Parks, Lakes, and Forests. The soft cover book by Mildred Little is available through book stores or directly from Pacesetter Press, Box 2608, Houston, TX 77001, for $5.95.

Campers Guide to Texas Parks..... contains area maps informing the reader where to go and how to get there. Information about smaller, lesser known parks and campsites is also included. The contents cover woodland trails and canoeable rivers, checklist of camping equipment and supplies.

The search for adventure goes on near and far — more than two million persons took part in major adventure trips last year. Selecting the right adventure may be an adventure in itself.

WET AND WONDERFUL — River rafting is now worldwide. From Texas to Africa and from Mexico to Yugoslavia, rafting trips are available from one day excursions to month long expeditions. Many raft trips reach into areas inaccessible by automobile.

GET A HORSE — Vacationers on horseback pause at a stream in Yellowstone National Park. Horseback and horse-packing trips are available for the novice and the experienced rider. Some trail operators maintain a string of horses for persons new to the saddle.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

House Okays Regional Water Import Plan

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House members have given final approval to legislation by Rep. Bob Simpson of Amarillo creating the Ogallala Water Import Authority for the High Plains area of West Texas.

During the debate which led to tentative approval of the bill, controversy centered on the proposed authority's power to condemn land for water importation projects, with Simpson being forced to accept an amendment limiting the condemnation power to areas within the district's boundaries.

However, on third and final reading, concern shifted to which counties would actually be included.

Simpson offered an amendment exempting Midland, Glasscock and Borden counties, in addition to Garza, Dickens and Crosby counties, which were already excluded from the district.

However, Rep. Jay Gibson of Odessa offered an amendment establishing an annexation and deannexation procedure for the district.

With that amendment adopted, Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland, who had requested that Midland, Glasscock and Borden counties be taken out, changed his mind and asked that Midland and Glasscock be put back in.

The legislation created a legal entity with broad powers to make an imported water supply available within its boundaries.

Simpson told House members there was not yet a definite water import plan, but Arkansas River water imported through Oklahoma was a possibility.

House and Senate spending bill negotiators made deals today that will give state prison guards a pay raise of about 20 percent, but took away $6 million from a proposed new West Texas prison unit.

Otherwise the general appropriations conference committee generally gave the Texas Department of Corrections what it asked in differences between the House and Senate bills.

By taking the Senate verson, the committee agreed to pay raises of about 20 percent for correctional or security officers. There was testimony that annual turnover in such employees is as high as 85 percent. The House had recommended increases that ounted to about 36 percent.

"I think an almost 40 percent jump is way out of line in relation to other state employees," said Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

"But salaries for these guards has been way out of line for a long time," said Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan. "I'd like to get them in line with highway patrolmen."

The committee also took the Senate version that provides $4.4 million more than the House to provide more equipment and operating expenses to increase production of agriculture products by the prison system.

The conferees agreed to take the Senate bill on plans to build additional cells at six prison units. The House version provided additional cells at five units only, but would have been $6 million cheaper.

Rep. Al Brown, D-San Antonio, has been around long enough to know state college presidents have enormous influence with his fellow legislators.

Representatives approved the measure (SJR7), 101-36, and returned it to the Senate for approval or disapproval of changes made during five hours of House debate.

It's those changes that worry Brown.

"If all these amendments stay in SJR7, in my humble opinion, this whole deal could be blown," Brown said solemnly near the end of the debate.

Heartline

EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio, 54381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

Heartline: I am 62 and retired from the Air Force. My son was also in the Air Force. We are both Vietnam veterans, but he was injured in combat and lost an arm. I have heard that the VA has come up with a new conseling program designed to help young vets make the proper choice in choosing a job or getting the right education. Is this true? — H.W.

Invitations to use free Veterans Administration educational and vocational counseling are being mailed to more than one million eligible Vietnam-Era veterans, according to VA chief Max Cleland.

The invitation takes the form of a new brochure and application which describes available counseling and enables the veteran to arrange an interview.

"VA counselors can help veterans make informed career, job or school choices and plans," Cleland said. "More importantly, these professionals can help the veteran solve problems associated with choosing and achieving his goals."

All VA offices have been stocked with the brochures, and supplies have been distributed to veterans' service organizations.

These special efforts to encourage veterans to ask for counseling are a compound of "Operation Boost," VA's national awareness program to alert Vietnam-Era veterans to unused G-I Bill education and training benefits.

In general, veterans have 10 years from their date to discharge to use G-I Bill education and training benefits, including this special counseling.

Veterans do not have to apply for training, however, to receive counseling.

VA counselors will help veterans identify their interests and best abilities and select and make plans for suitable career goals. Counselors will provide specific information based on their knowledge of available training programs, employment opportunities and financial aid or other resources.

The new brochure and full information on VA's vocational-educational counseling program can be obtained from the nearest VA office or from national veterans' organizations.

HEARTLINE: I am walking with an artificial limb which Medicare helped me purchase two years ago. A week ago, I had to have it repaired, which cost me $72. I would like to know if Medicare will help me pay for the repair charges. — Y.R.

Yes. Medicare will pay 80 percent of the reasonable charges for the repair of an artificial limb, after you have met your $60 deductible under Part "B" of Medicare. For more information on services covered under Medicare, we have a booklet that is in easy-to-understand, question-and-answer form which contains up-to-date information. To order, send $1.75 to Medicare Guidebook, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: I am really having a problem with my prescription drug bottles. The pharmacist puts those child-proof caps on pills, not realizing that they are often "adult-proof" to those of us who have arthritis or little strength. Because of arthritis in my hands and fingers, I find it difficult, and at times impossible, to get the cap off. I even had to smash one bottle with a hammer. Is there any way I can get the old-fashioned caps on any pills. — I.L.

The Poison Prevention Packaging Act of 1970 has made this type of child-proof kind cap the kind required by law. It has been responsible for preventing many children from consuming medicines that are harmful to them. However, you should request that your pharmacist use the other type of lid. You may be required to sign a release form so that this may be done.

Proud Green Berets Performed Variety Of War, Peace Roles

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

They were called "the killers" in Vietnam, but the Green Berets did other things:

Returned to the Philippines to purify water and rebuild bridges and villages ravaged by floodwaters.

And sobbed in frustrated rage when the Viet Cong ambushed war orphans the special forces team was protecting.

Today "the killers" are using their special skills — from engineering to medical to demolition — to upgrade country schools and better the lot of handicapped youngsters near their home base in North Carolina.

The green beret was presented to the group by President John F. Kennedy as a "badge of courage."

That badge will be one of the proudest items SFC Class Wayne Arnold will carry into his retirement in July.

Arnold, who will make Lubbock his home, moved from the special forces into recruiting when an arm, ripped apart by gunfire in Vietnam, gave out once too often for dependability.

Arnold recalled his years with the Green Berets while visitors strolled past Armed Forces Week exhibits at the South Plains Mall.

"Others have wanted to wear the beret, but we who wear it wear it with honor and with distinction. We wouldn't disgrace it. A lot of good men died for it."

Arnold intends to make sure his children and their children know the tradition behind the badge emblem with crossed arrows and knife with a motto in French, "De Opresso Liber."

Liberating the oppressed was an advisory role when Arnold went to Vietnam in 1965 "to train others and keep a low profile."

HOW ABOUT ME? — Michael Echols, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Echols of Lubbock, stops "driving" an Army jeep long enough to admire the decorations worn by Sgt. First Class Wayne Arnold, a former Green Beret now attached the the U.S. Army Recruiting Station at Lubbock. The jeep, complete with its mounted weapon, is part of the all-service displays at the South Plains Mall in observance of Armed Forces Week. (Staff Photo)

While advisers only, the teams worked in camps established in the jungle, an idea adapted from the British system in Malaysia.

"We'd go out and recruit people ready to fight Communists, bring them in and train them for combat."

Village chiefs and mountain leaders screened all applicants, but now and then the opposition slipped in for training and then used that knowledge to aid Communist ambushes.

Instruction began with basic training and went as complicated as the weaponry — WW II vintage — that small-statured peoples (Vietnamese, Korean and Thai) could handle.

One company used "nothing but kids with families killed" to work around the camp.

"We'd give them a place to call home and the right to fight back. They were 15 and 16 years old. We gave them food and clothing but kept them off patrol until they were old enough."

A Green Beret team consisted of 12 enlisted men, two trained to each of five specific specialities and cross trained in the other fields — weapons, medical, communication, intelligence and operations. There were two officers.

Arnold was an engineer and weapons expert. His cross-training in medicine came in handy for midwife duties with the medical corpsman in emergencies.

The team taught jungle and guerilla warfare to the Thai border patrol and instructed Koreans, Vietnamese and Thai forces how to jump with the special terrain parachute for landing anywhere without previous knowledge of the countryside.

"The Chinese have a saying for it, that the whole world is a drop zone with that chute. Nobody picks a zone in advance, they just fly in and jump."

After a tour of readying local groups for combat, the Green Berets would reverse and go civic, changing from a combat role to helping after a natural disaster.

"It made you feel good, instead of being called a killer, you were a helper."

From parachuting and demolition, Arnold went to engineering and medical assistance in the Philippines and diving for construction of a deep water pier in the Marshall Islands.

He was training special forces reserves when his arm — "shot up and put back together in Vietnam" — went out again. He came to Lubbock in 1976.

LEPROSY SAID STABILIZED

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — About 3.2 million Indians suffer from leprosy, but incidents of the chronic skin disease are not increasing, Labor Minister Ravindra Varma told Parliament Thursday. Varma said 1.94 million persons receive medical treatment for the disease. India has an estimated population of 634 million.

AUSTIN (AP) — A special, live 60-minute "Governor's Report" with Gov. Bill Clements will be carried by all public television stations in Texas Tuesday.

The show is the premier of a news and public affairs series by the Southwest Texas Public Broadcasting Council.

Bill Anderson, executive producer of news and public affairs of KLRN-KLRU-TV, said the series will be the first time on a regular basis a Texas governor has taken telephone calls from viewers and listeners across the state.

Callers will be able to call Clements collect at 512/474-5071.

The "Governor's Report" will be presented live approximately every third Tuesday of the month at 8 p.m., although the governor's schedule dictates that the June telecast be June 18 at 9 p.m.

Gasoline Grumbles

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Gov. Vic Atiyeh says President Carter's decision to give neighboring California a 100 percent gasoline allocation amounts to a reward for bungling response to the gas shortage.

Atiyeh said Thursday that Carter's act was a "slap in the face" to other governors who have asked their citizens to cut back on driving.

"Oregonians have not panicked, have not lined up at the gas stations and they have responded to the cry to modify their driving habits," the Republican governor said. "Californians have not. ...

"I am disappointed that a poorly managed state response is to be rewarded by the president of the United States by allocating 100 percent of their supply last year while cooperating states retain an allocation between 80-90 percent of last year," he wrote.

Allocation Angers Oregon Governor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's no surprise that fights are breaking out in long lines at California service stations, says a psychologist. He says it's all part of the trend of looking out for No. 1.

"We train our youngsters to get ahead of other people, to win over other people and to climb up over the shoulders of other people, and we teach them that if you don't you're a fool or a weakling," Roderic Gorney, director of UCLA's program on psycho-social adaptation and the future, said in an interview Wednesday.

"The whole trend in this country is to look out for No. 1. So now to ask human beings in a moment of stress to begin acting sociably and to withhold greediness is asking quite a lot," Gorney said.

Gorney said some of the aggression may stem from "a sense of outrage at inequity — people don't feel the shortage is being fairly distributed."

"When a person has been waiting in line for an hour and a half and somebody comes along and puts a sign that says 'last car' on the car in front of him, ... it's hard not to think, 'It's because I'm a woman or a Chicano or because I'm driving an old beat-up car.'"

'Just 1½ Gallons Away From N.Y.'

"A Gallon And A Half From New York City Is As Far As You Need To Go ..."

Stations Have Flag Shortages

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Gas is still reasonably plentiful in Spokane, but service station operators are preparing for shortages by agreeing to use a system of colored flags to signal when they're out of fuel.

One problem: There's a shortage of flags.

"I want to fly flags but can't find them, " says John Paulus, president of the local chapter of the Evergreen Service Station Association.

So far, no one has suggested that merchants display color-code gasoline cans in front of their shops to indicate whether they're out of flags.

All-Night Stations Reducing Hours

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The gas shortage is finally squeezing Denver. Vickers, the last major supplier here to keep its stations open 24 hours a day, has decided to shut down the pumps overnight.

Officials of the Vickers Dividend Oil Co. said Thursday from the firm's headquarters in Wichita, Kan., the decision to close the 30 stations from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. was made by local managers in Denver.

The Kansas spokesman said that although Vickers has had more gas than its Denver competitors recently, those supplies were sharply cut when Vickers stations were the only ones open all night. The stations are open seven days a week.

DOE To Stop Shortfall Estimates

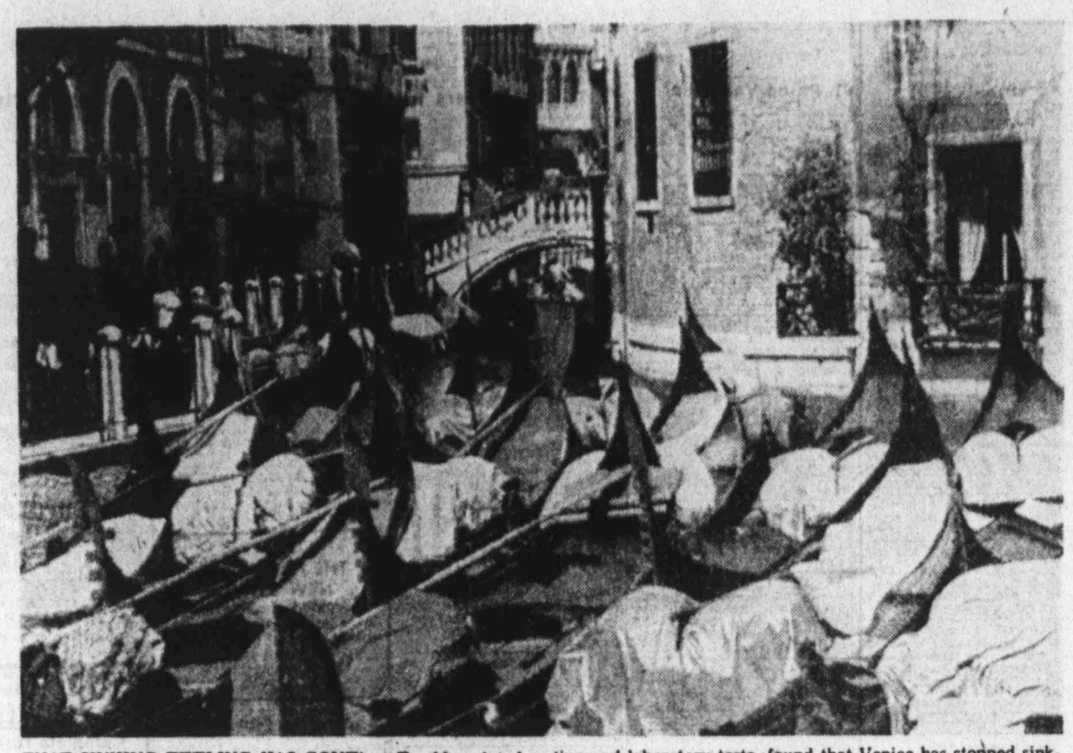

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Federal energy officials say they'll stop predicting gasoline shortfalls until their figures reconcile with those from forecasters in Midwestern states.

Mary O'Halloran, Department of Energy director for Region VII, announced the change Thursday after DOE spokesman Larry Meyer predicted that shortfalls in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska would be more than double what the states were forecasting.

The three states had predicted 10 percent less gasoline would be available this month than in May 1978. Meyer said shortfalls would run about 21.5 percent in Kansas, 23.7 percent in Missouri and 24.7 percent in Nebraska.

"Prediction is a risky business," Miss O'Halloran said. "We're putting a halt on predictions for the coming month. We're going to check and double-check our figures.

"We want to go about this calmly. We don't want a situation where what is happening in California might happen in the Midwest, where the public gets into panic buying because there is a shortage."

'THAT SINKING FEELING HAS GONE' — Freshly-painted gondolas await tourists near St. Mark's Square in Venice, Italy, recently. A team of Italian scientists, after years of observation and laboratory tests, found that Venice has stopped sinking. In fact, the famous lagoon city has actually risen ever so slightly. (AP Laserphoto)

Scientists Elated At Success Of Efforts To Rescue Venice

VENICE (AP) — Venice has stoppd sinking. In fact, the lagoon city famous for its 10,000 paintings, frescoes and sculptures actually has risen ever so slightly.

That's the conclusion of a team of Italian scientists after years of observation and laboratory tests.

The finding, endorsed by the Italian government and laboratories worldwide, is "definitive and final," says Dr. Paolo Gatto, a senior geologist at the state-run National Research Council.

Once considered a doomed victim of industrialization and bureacratic inertia, Venice now appears to be winning the fight against water and pollution that for decades have threatened its very existence.

The air is cleaner. An effort is under way to control high tides and toprocess sewage. Restoration and consolidation of art works, bridges, buildings, and canals is in full swing. Tourism is at an all-time high. People no longer leave for cities inland, and the population is steady at what a city official calls an "optimum" 100,000.

Vitality and optimism prevail in the once "dying" city.

Gatto says measurements over the last seven years at the research council's Laboratory for the Study of the Dynamics of Large Masses show that the water pressure under Venice has built up again and halted the sinking process that has been a main cause of flooding.

Today's FOCUS

They also confirmed that the lowering of the land level had been caused by excessive pumping of water from artesian wells by industry at nearby Marghera. Most of those wells have been capped, and the factories use aqueducts to draw water from the Po River.

Built on the seabed, Venice was a chancy business from its birth 15 centuries ago on a group of 118 tiny islands so soggy that thousands of wooden pilings had to be sunk into the ground to support building foundations.

Most of Venice sits only 27 inches above the water line. It had sunk eight inches since the 1920s. And in 1970 when it was going down at a rate of 0.2 inches a year, experts were predicting that the sea would claim the city in 50 or 60 years unless drastic measures were taken.

The drastic measure that did the trick turned out to be the relatively simple capping of the artesian wells.

The refilling of the underground water table has caused a rebound of about 0.4 inch, but Prof. Alberto A. Tomasin of the University of Venice says no great elevation is likely. "The best we can hope for is perhaps two centimeters (0.8 inch) over the next century," he says.

Another "simple" solution to the city's problems was conversion of heating units to natural gas. That has virtually cleansed the air of sulfuric acid, created by the burning of sulfur-contaminated fuel oil, which eats away at plaster, frescoes, stone and metal.

Elated by their success, the scientists, conservationists and city planners are readying an all-out battle to control high tides, which have become markedly more frequent in recent years.

Twice a day tides from the Adriatic sweep into the lagoon around Venice and batter building foundations. In 1978, high water spilled over St. Mark's Square 241 times as against 28 times in 1919.

Scientists believe that dredging deep navigation channels for supertankers has strengthened the tidal currents which erode the lagoon. Another factor often cited as causing frequent tides is the disappearance of the spongy mudflats of the mainland 2.5 miles away, blocked by the dikes of an abandoned industrial zone.

Late last year a government-appointed commission judging an international competition for regulating high water in the lagoon rejected all six entries — all calling for the erection of some form of dikes at lagoon entrances. Each of the proposals would have taken several years to carry out and cost more than $400 million.

Research council scientists fear that dikes might upset the natural process of washing the city's 177 canals, all 28 miles of them. Venice is working on a costly plan to build a sewage system, but until then, the scientists believe the washing mechanism of the tides — six hours in and six hours out — should not be disturbed.

Prof. Tomasin, urging caution in deciding on a flood plan, asked, "What would have happened if we followed the once prevalent suggestion that we literally lift the whole historic center of Venice by injecting material underneath?

"I am convinced we are on the right track. I just keep my fingers crossed that we don't strike oil in the Venetian lagoon."

Training Due Transfer To Levelland

The contract formerly held by Lubbock-based Llano Estacado for migrant farmworker job training probably will be awarded to a Levelland organization, The Avalanche-Journal has learned.

The South Plains Community Action Association will receive the contract,probably in June, from the Texas Department of Community Affairs, according to L.C. Harris, manpower services director for the association.

The association has served as interim sponsoring agency for the approximately 70 migrants who had been enrolled in the Llano Estacado training program.

Harris said the community affairs agency probably will modify its existing contract with the Levelland organization to include a program aimed specifically at job training for migrant farmworkers.

Such a program, as well as those already operated by the association for a 12-county South Plains region, are federal programs to train the underemployed, unemployed and unemployable. Funding is provided by the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

Harris said his office will not know how much money is involved in the contract or how many clients will be served until Llano Estacado concludes its phaseout.

Maddera said that in the meantime those clients enrolled in Llano Estacado's program are continuing their training with no interruptions and that the association is being reimbursed on a cash basis by the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

The only change, he said, is that the Levelland organization will not enroll any other migrants until it contracts with the community affairs agency to do so.

None of the migrants in the Llano Estacado program resides in Lubbock County, he added.

'The Bird' Is Back But Not Flying Too High

By The Associated Press

The Bird is back but he isn't exactly flying high. Throwing high, yes. Flying high, no.

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych has returned to the regular pitching rotation of the Detroit Tigers and that in itself is good news. There is no pain in the arm that has given him so much anguish for the last two years.

"That's the only thing that is encouraging, so far," said the Bird after a fourth-inning kayo against the New York Yankees the other night. "I'm feeling fine."

But he has not been throwing fine. He has two losses and a no-decision in three starts and his earned run average is an inflated 8.31. "My pitches are too high," he said. "I'm high with everything. It's a mechanical thing. I'm not bending low enough. It has to do with my landing aspect." Twice, between innings in the dugout at Yankee Stadium, Fidrych discussed his motion with Manager Les Moss, who was catcher in his playing days and knows a little bit about the care and feeding of young arms.

"He saw it," Fidrych said of his manager. "I'm standing up. I'm not bending low the way I should."

The Bird practiced his motion, working off nervous energy, trying to regain the form that made him a 19-game winner and the toast of the baseball world in 1976. So far, however, it has escaped him and the inability to recapture the magic has hurt ... almost as badly as his arm did for those two terrible years.

"What's the worst pain you ever had?"

"Well this was worse than a toothache. It's the kind of pain where you can't lift your arm, you can't use a part of your body. It's the kind of pain where you have to open a door with your left hand instead of your right."

He says he no longer feels that pain, but you can still see the memory of it when you talk to him.

"Of course, I've changed," he said. "Every year you do. I've calmed down. I don't goof around the way I did."

He is no longer the free spirit. Two troubled years have left mental scars. He doesn't seem as carefree anymore. "That," offered a veteran Fidrych-watcher, "is because now he has cares."

The new Fidrych refuses to talk to writers on days when he's not pitching. "I feel I need my time for me when I'm not pitching," he said. "Before I was going good. Now I'm only so-so. I've got to get my head together."

Had it not been for some of the veteran players on the Tigers, Fidrych admits he might have given up, surrendered to the pain that throbbed though his arm and shoulder.

"They wouldn't let me quit," he said. "The said, 'You're too young. Don't get down on yourself.' That's what kept me going. Now it'll take a lot to get me out of here. If my arm goes, it goes. Once it's gone, it's gone. As long as the arm doesn't hurt, I'll be out there, pitching."

"He's throwing maybe 85 to 90 percent of his former velocity," Parrish said. "Every once in awhile, he'll really pop one. He's got to pump himself up a little. I think he has to throw more. He hasn't thrown enough to build his arm up."

Can the Bird eventually still be as awesome on the mound as he once was?

"I still feel the enthusiasm," said the pitcher who went from gas station attendant to major league star, virtually overnight. "It feels good to hear the fans. It's good just being out there. My main goal is to play baseball. I don't want any other job." Then he paused and smiled.

Longshot Nabs NIT Advantage

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Leonard Thompson, a husky, journeyman tourist, ripped out a 5-under-par 65 and established the first-round lead Thursday in the $300,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

"Before anyone asks, yes, I think I can win the golf tournament. Otherwise I wouldn't be here," said the 210-pound Thompson, winner of two titles in nine years of PGA tour activity.

"It was just a good, solid round," he said. "Nothing spectacular about it. But it ain't s easy to shoot 65 out there. I didn't have it close to the hole a whole lot of times, but when I did I seemed to make it."

Thompson, winner of more than $59,000 with a series of solid performances this year, held a 1-shot lead over defending champion Lee Trevino and Bruce Lietzke, tied at 66.

Trevino, winner of this tournament two of the last three years, said he had made a technical adjustment in his putting stroke which seemed to help. But the irrepressible Trevino said there was no assurance it would continue.

"It's unbelievable how crazy I am," he said. "I might come out here tomorrow and be putting with a banana."

"Very lucky," said Lietzke, who ook a week off last week. "I was very rusty. It wasn't a good ball-striking round. But I made some long putts. It was far from a picture-perfect round. I guess you can just say I was lucky."

Grier Jones was next with a 67, 3 under par on the tough old Colonial Country Club course, which winds 7,134 yards along the banks of the Trinity River.

CHASING IT IN — With his putter held high, Lee Trevino of Dallas steps toward the cup as his ball drops in for a birdie on the 12th hold of the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament Thursday in Fort Worth. Trevino, the defending champion, finished the first round of the tournament with a four-under-par 66, one stroke behind leader Leonard Thompson. (AP Laserphoto)

Cubs Fall To Phillies

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Schmidt's second home run of the game — a two-out solo blast in the 10th inning — led the Philadelphia Phillies to a wild 23-22 victory over the Chicago Cubs in a long-ball slugfest that tied a major league home run record.

Dave Kingman blasted three homers and knocked in six runs, Bill Buckner had a grand slam homer for the Cubs and knocked in seven runs. There were 11 homers and 50 hits in the game, one shy of the major league mark for hits. Chicago had six homers and Philadelphia five.

The run total by both teams fell four shy of the major league record of 49, ironically set by Philadelphia and Chicago on Aug. 25, 1922. Chicago won that game 26-23.

The St. Louis Cardinals hold the modern National League record for most runs in a game by one team with 28 against Philadelphia on July 6, 1929. The all-time record by a major league team for runs in a game is 36, scored by Chicago against Louisville on June 29, 1897.

The home run binge tied a record held by many teams, most recently the total of 11 made by the Cubs and Cincinnati Reds on July 28, 1977.

Monterey Goes Gunning For Bidistrict Crown

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

At the Monterey fieldhouse Thursday afternoon, booking passage on a flight to El Paso proved to be as easy as the Plainsmen winning the first bidistrict game with the Pampa Harvesters.

Today, the Plainsmen and the Harvesters will conclude their best two-of-three game series at Lowrey Field. A doubleheader is scheduled starting at 2 p.m. If two games are necessary, the deciding game will follow.

Monterey will bring a 1-0 lead into the today's action after winning the opener in Pampa 10-3. The winner of today's series will move on to regional competition against the winner of the El Paso Austin-El Paso Ysleta contest.

Monterey will bring a 25-7 record into the competition, while Pampa sports a 19-6 mark.

"We're not overconfident at all," said Monterey coach Bobby Moegle. "We're just going down to El Paso to scout the series. I'll say this, it's going to be hard for them (Pampa) to win two games here."

But Pampa coach Steve Scott believes the Harvesters are still alive for the bidistrict crown and will pitch Rick Dougherty (8-1) to try and even the series.

"I have a lot of confidence in him," said Scott. " We're going to have to give him more offensive support than we produced in the first game against though."

In 63 innings of work, Dougherty has good control. The Pampa righthander has struckout 67 batters and only walked 27.

"Dougherty has been clocked with a harder fastball than Steve Stout (the pitcher Pampa threw in the first contest)," said Scott. "Rick has been clocked at 88 miles per hour."

The Plainsmen will counter with Steve Coleman (6-1). The Monterey righthander hasn't dominated the hitters as well as Dougherty giving up 41 walks in 51 innings of pitching, but has only allowed 35 hits.

"I really don't know how hard Coleman can throw," said Moegle. "We don't have a pitcher on our staff that throws hard enough to get a reading on the radar gun."

Bevins, who carried a .438 average to plate, put the game out of reach 6-0 when he sent a fastball out of the park for a two-run homer.

"I thought it might have a chance to get out of the park when I hit it," recalled Bevins. "I really wasn't going for a home run. I was down on the count and moved back a little in the box and chocked up on the bat just a bit trying only to make contact."

Bevins is confident that the Plainsmen won't have any trouble hitting Dougherty.

"Watching him taking infield the other day, I was impressed with his arm," said Bevins.

SPECTACULAR BID
...Preakness Hopeful

Bid Tops Small Preakness List

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Bud Delp compared the Preakness to a poker game Friday and said he is confident he has drawn the winning hand — Kentucky Derby winner Spectacular Bid.

Only four oter 3-year-old colts, all of them beaten in the Derby, were entered Thursday for the second race of the Triple Crown, making it the smallest field since Citation beat three rivals in 1948.

Spectacular Bid, winner of 11 straight races, was made the early 1-2 favorite to win the 13-16-mile Preakness Saturday at Pimlico and go into the June 9 Belmont Stakes with a chance of becoming the third Triple Crown winner in three years. But the gray son of Bold Bidder figures to go off at much shorter odds.

"I think all of you are about as confident as I am," Delp told a group of reporters Thursday after Spectacular Bid, with exercise rider R.A. Smith up, blew out three-eighths of a mile in 34 seconds, with a first quarter of 222-5.

"It looks like we got the speed in him if we need it," said Delp. "He's fresh and sharp and ready to roll from the quarter pole. He's better than he was in the Derby."

Spectacular Bid, ridden by Ronnie Franklin, will break from the No.2 post between Flying Paster on the rail and Golden Act. Screen King will leave from the No.4 slot, with Derby runner-up General Assemy on e outside.

The five colts, each carrying 126 pounds, are scheduled to leave the gate. A victory for Spectacular Bid would make the $37,000 yearling purchase of Harry, Theresa and Tom Meyerhoff a millionaire. Spectacular Bid goes into the race with a bankroll of $958,287 and, if all five start, a victory would be worth $165,300 from a purse of $235,300. Second place would be worth $40,000.

The feeling of the other four trainers is that LeRoy Jolley will have jockey Laffit Pincay Jr. send General Assembly to the front. "It was Pincay's option in the Derby. It will be his option again," said Jolley.

Judge Reverses Tark Decision

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A judge's order blocking the suspension of University of Nevada-Las Vegas basketball Coach Jerry Tarkanian for NCAA infractions was reversed Thursday by the state Supreme Court.

The high court held that the NCAA should have been made part of the lower court action, even though Tarkanian, Nevada-Las Vegas and the NCAA preferred otherwise.

"This course did not serve the interest of justice," the Supreme Court said in remanding the action to Clark County District Court Judge James Brennan and ordering the joinder of the NCAA.

Nevada-Las Vegas was placed on two years' probation by the NCAA in 1977 for a long list of bylaw violations. Those violations included an alleged arrangement by Tarkanian to have a Nevada-Las Vegas instructor give a basketball player a passing grade without having to attend classes or do classwork.

The NCAA's infractions committee also alleged Tarkanian tried to block its probe by discouraging witnesses from talking and even trying to get them to lie. Tarkanian has denied the allegations.

Tarkanian was suspended as a result of the investigation. He then won an order from Judge Brennan blocking his suspension.

Nevada-Las Vegas, its NCAA standing at stake, made what was viewed as a half-hearted plea to the Supreme Court to enforce Tarkanian's suspension.

Spurs, Bullets Eye Final Showdown

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Bobby Dandridge said the defending champion Washington Bullets play best when their backs are against the wall. The team is proving that in their best-of-seven series against San Antonio for the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship.

After looking pitiful in the early part of the series, and falling behind 3-1, the Bullets have put together two solid performances and appear to be peaking.

The deciding game of the series will be played tonight on the Bullets' home court at the Capital Centre here.

"We started the playoffs flat, but we've been improving steadily the last two games and, traditionally, when we hit a streak, we stay there a while," said Coach Dick Motta after the Bullets defeated the Spurs 108-100 Wednesday night in San Antonio. "It's something we've given away and had to fight to get it back, but now we seem to playng our game again.

"I feel very encouraged about the seventh game," he said.

Elvin Hayes, who scored 25 points Wednesday, said, "We've come from a deep hole to level ground. We're going home and you couldn't ask for anything more. The Spurs had two chances to put us away and they didn't do it.

"Now it's our chance and we're going to take advantage of it," said Hayes. "We'll be ready Friday. You can look for 1,000 percent effort."

If the Bullets do win, they will be only the third team to come from behind after being down 3-1 to take three games and win a seven-game playoff series. Only Boston in 1968 and Los Angeles in 1970 have done it previously.

"Sure we can win up there," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe.

James Silas, the Spurs' playmaker, said, "We both are good teams. The Spurs are professionals, too. We can't let anything get us down. We've got to pick up and play harder."

That may be difficult.

Not only will the Bullets' cheerleaders be wearing their new "The Fat Lady Will Sing Again" T-shirts but Motta already has predicted that his team won't lose.

"San Antonio knows that," he said.

Cunningham To Return As Sixer Boss

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billy Cunningham, the former National Basketball Association All-Star, said Thursday he will return as coach of the Philadelphia 76ers next season, ending speculation he might retire to tend full time to a bustling business empire.

Cunningham, who along with Wilt Chamberlain was a key member of the 76ers' 1966-67 championship team, was named coach six games into the 1977-78 season, inheriting a spanking new profession after a knee injury ended his playing career.

"There was a question whether he would continue next year," said Harvey Pollack, the team's press services director, explaining a terse, one-sentence statement issued by the club Thursday saying simply that Cunningham would continue his coaching career with the 76ers.

"He needs it like a hole in the head," Pollack said. "He owns a Holiday Inn, one of those racquet clubs in town, a travel agency. He's one of those coaches who's so well-fixed financially, coaching isn't a necessary evil in his life."

Reached at home, the 35-year-old Cunningham, youngest coach in the NBA, said he had wrestled with the decision during a postseason vacation in Florida.

"I just didn't know if I wanted to be away from my family that much," said the 6-foot-7 father of two little girls. "But I really like basketball. I just know that I want to be connected with it."

He said that neither the pressure of the game nor money were factors in his decisin whether to return. He said the possibility of being associated with another NBA champion was.

"Any coach, player, or owner, would love to win one," he said. "I think we became a much improved team near the end of the season. And I think we'll be a better team next season."

The 76ers, under Coach Gene Shue, lost to Portland in the NBA finals in 1977. It was a bitter pill for new owner Fitz Eugene Dixon to swallow, for he had invested a bundle to acquire Julius "Dr. J" Erving in return for a title.

Canadiens Whip NY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens made first-period goals by Steve Shutt and Doug Risebrough stand up Thursday night, to beat the New York Rangers 4-1 and take a 2-1 lead in the National Hockey League's final playoff series.

Mario Tremblay and Jacques Lemaire added third period goals to insure the triumph that brought Montreal within two victories of its 22nd Stanley Cup since 1916. Game 4 in this best-of-seven series is scheduled Saturday night.

Risebrough doubled the advantage at 15:44, taking a pass from Yvon Lambert and snapping a lightning quick 25-foot shot past Davidson's left leg.

The Rangers, meanwhile, were unable to penetrate for close-range scoring chances. The ice was a crowded dance floor and every New York player had a red-shirted Canadien for a partner.

A stoppage in play forced a faceoff in the circle 20 feet to the left of Montreal goalie Ken Dryden. New York's Ron Duguay took a shot off the draw against the Canadiens' Doug Jarvis. The puck was headed wide of the cage until it nicked the skate of Montreal defenseman Serge Savard and skittered past Dryden's right leg.

The Rangers did all they could to try and tie it, but Tremblay tipped in another Lambert pass with 5:12 remaining and Lemaire capped a two-on-one break with a rising 35-footer.

Netters Sign With Texas Tech

From A-J Wire Services

Texas Tech has lined up seven athletes for its women's program, school officials announced, and five have come in tennis where the school is without a coach.

Tech officials reported the signing to letters-of-intent of Regina Revello of Manhasset, N.Y., Leslie Romley from England, Joanie Waltko of Wichita Falls Rider, Katherine Lawson of El Paso Eastwood, and Cathy Stringer of Collinsville, Ill.

The tennis players came despite the recent resignation of coach Donna Stockton Roup. (Tech officials are now looking for a successor.)

Miss Revello participated in the Port Washington Tennis Academy, where Mrs. Roup has worked. Miss Revelo was ranked No. 7 in the East in 18 age group last year.

Miss Romley has participated in the major British junior championships, Mrs. Roup reported.

Miss Waltko won the District 6-AAAA singles championship this year and won the 1978 Cotton Bowl Tennis Tournament. Miss Lawson is ranked No. 6 in the USTA southwest region.

Miss Stringer was ranked No. 3 in doubles in the Missouri Valley region as a 16-year-old, and was a 1978 district singles champion.

Among the swimming recruits, Miss James finished fourth in the 100-yard bastroke in the state meet. She won the regional 100 backstroke three straight years.

Miss Thorpe qualified for both the AAU indoor and outdoor championships, according to Tech coach Anne Goodman. She qualified for the 1976 Olympic Trials and was a high school all-America in 1976. She will swim the freestyle springs and the 100-200 butterfly events.

Tag-Team Match Featured Tonight

Dory Funk Jr. and Brute Bernard will take on James Dillon and Black Jack Mulligan in a tag-team match which headlines the weekly wrestling card at Fair Park Coliseum tonight.

First action gets under way at 8:30 p.m.

In preliminary matches, Akio Sato will wrestle Dennis Stamp, and Ted Heath will meet Alex Perez.

Slow-Pitch Softball Events Slated

At Wolfforth, the Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring a tournament to be held June 22-24.

Sixteen teams will be accepted, and entry fee is $55 and one new softball per game.

Odessa is sponsoring a two-division (B and C class) slow-pitch softball tournament May 25-27, and deadline for entering is next Monday at 5 p.m.

The two top teams in the Class B division will qualify for the U.S. Slo-Pitch Softball world tournament to be held in Pevely, Mo., Aug. 31-Sept. 3. And the top ten teams in the C division will qualify for the state tournament, to be held in Odessa Aug. 17-19.

The first 32 teams registering in each division will be accepted. Entry fee is $65 and the teams will furnish their game balls.

Team captains interested can contact Billy Feeler at (915) 367-9480 after 6 p.m. or Rod Stewart at (915) 332-7980 after 5 p.m.

Texan Tries Out Of U.S. Team

SNYDER (Special) — Paul Pressey, a 6-4 freshman at Western Texas College, has been selected to try out for the World Games basketball team, WTC coach Nolan Richardson reported.

The camp will be held at Colorado Spring, Colo., beginning Aug. 15.

Pressey, from Richmond, Va., was voted the Region V tournament's most valuable player. He will be tried at guard at the Worl Games camp.

"This is quite an honor for Pressey," said Richardson. "Just to be chosen for the tryouts is something. Only about 20 or so kids from across the country are asked to try out for the team."

Stabler Absent From Raider Camp

OAKLAND— Quarterback Ken Stabler was absent, as expected, when the Oakland Raiders opened a special three-day camp Thursday.

But Coach Tom Flores said that after talking to Stabler's lawyer, Henry Pitts, he was optimistic that the quarterback will join the team for the coming National Football League season.

"I would say that there is some promise that Kenny will return," said Flores.

Borg Drops Out Of Hamburg Tourney

HAMBURG, West Germany — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg dropped out of the $175,000 Hamburg International tennis tournament Thursday with a leg injury, brightening chances of leading Americans Harold Solomon and Eddie Dibbs.

Solomon, the No.2 seed in the week-long tournament, reached the quarter-finals by outlasting John Alexander of Australia 6-4, 4-6, 6-1, while Dibbs, the third seed, beat Romanian Ilie Nastase 6-1, 4-6, 6-1.

Borg, heavily favored for the $24,000 first prize, was leading Eliot Teltscher of the United States 4-1 in their opening set when he slipped on the rain-slick court while chasing the ball.

Snyder, Burk Continue Playoff

BURKBURNETT (Special)— Snyder will try to advance into quarterfinal action today when the Tigers visit Burkburnett for the conclusion of the best two-out-of-three games bidistrict baseball series.

Mitch Mackey (7-3) will be on the mound for Snyder, while the Bulldogs will counter with Smokey Burgess (9-5).

Longshot Wins Feature

RUIDOSO (Special)—Seco Mighty Talk, a 12-1 shot owned by David Cryan and Charles Elk of San Antonio, posted the top qualifying time in Thursday's first round elimination trials for the $525,000 Kansas Quarterhorse Futurity.

The filly sped to a half length win in the fourth of fifteen eliminations trials at 350 yards.

Seco Mighty Talk clocked the distance in 18.29 seconds and automatically advanced in the grand finale scheduled for Sunday June 3. Steve Fuller is the jockey.

Fans who backed her in Thursday's spin collected mutual returns of 27.60, 9.00 and 4.00.

Four other two year olds made Thursday's qualifying.

Return Of Pro Umpires Expected Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — Agreement apparently has been reached on the basic money issues in the contract dispute between the major league umpires and the two leagues, a spokesman for American League President Lee MacPhail confirmed Thursday. The umpires' negotiator Richie Phillips saw Saturday as the target date for the return of the regular umpires.

Both sides, however, insisted that some issues remain to be resolved before the agreement is finalized.

"We have had an agreement on the basic hings, like salary and per diem," said Bob Fishel, assistant to MacPhail, adding, "at least they appeared to have been agreed on, and I think those issues are still resolved ... the basic things like salary, per diem and the like."

Fishel said there were some issues, "such as assignments and the like" that apparently are holding up total agreement.

During a break in negotiations, Phillips said he was optimistic that agreement on the remaining issues will be reached so that the regular officals will be back at work on Saturday.

The Associated Press was told by a source Tuesday there had been a settlement of the dispute that has kept the regular big league umpires on the sidelines since spring training. Both Phillips and Fishel at the time described the report as "premature."

While negotiators continued their work behind closed doors at the AL offices, Fishel said, "We have to have everything tied down exactly before we say we have a contract because they (the umpires) are not going to sign it. If they are not going to sign on each subject, then we don't have a deal."

Asked about "retroactivity," a word heard being shouted from the room where the negotiations were going on, Fishel said, "The retroactivity begins Tuesday when the money was agreed upon."

Told that AL umpire Ron Luciano, president of the umpires association, returned to the negotiations saying "we're miles apart on money," Fishel indicated he thought the statement was a negotiating ploy, and said, "If it is, it won't succeed."

Phillips will meet with all 52 umpires Friday in Philadelphia, and said he hoped to present the final agreement to them.

Fishel was as optimistic as Phillips about resolving the remaining issues by the weekend.

Baseball officials are known to have been embarrassed by the performance of some of the substitute umpires and apparently are anxious to avoid another weekend of major exposure with the college and sandlot officials still officiating the games.

WINGING IT — Jennifer Perdue takes a warmup toss in the discus throw during a recent practice session at Texas Tech. Tech Fems Eye Nationals

By TONY BATT
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

From zip to six.

That's been the story for Texas Tech's women's track and field team this year. After being shut out in attempting to qualify for nationals last year, Tech is sending six women (four of them freshmen) to compete in five events of the National AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) track and field meet on the campus of Michigan State University in East Lansing, Mich. May 24-26.

"I was disappointed that we didn't send anyone to nationals last year," she said. "I guess the difference is mental toughness. The girls are beginning to realize they compete for a large college and they can win. They're beginning to think big."

One of the biggest thinkers has to be freshman Sharon Moultrie, a walk-on from Pampa. After being neglected by college recruiters coming out of high school, Miss Moultrie went on to qualify for nationals by winning the state championship in the long jump last month in Kingsville. Miss Moultrie's leap of 19-8½ surpassed the national qualifying standard of 19-2.

The national standards are set by the AIAW before each season, and the women have to qualify before next Saturday.

Miss Moultrie will also run the third leg of the 440-yard relay team, which qualified with a time of 46.85 at the Tech Invitational Track Meet on April 14. The national standard is 48.0.

Also competing on the sprint relay team is Pam Montgomery, another two-event qualifier. Miss Montgomery, a freshman from Ore City, qualified for the nationals in the 100-meter dash with a time of 11.59 at the Tech Invitational. The national standard is 11.8.

Tech will also be represented in the javelin and the discus. Barbara Bell, a freshman from Albuquerque, N.M. who attends Tech on a basketball scholarship, qualified in the javelin with a toss of 148-5.

In the discus, Jennifer Perdue, a junior from Fritch who transferred from Tarleton State, qualified in the same meet with a throw of 147-10. The national standard for both events is 144 feet.

Miss Little, who is in her second year as Tech's coach after serving seven years in the high school ranks, says the team's improvement this year is making recruiting an easier task.

Tri-Conference Meet Draws Top Tracksters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some of the nation's finest track athletes will compete today in the first meet ever held among three conferences.

The meet will be the final tune up for many for the NCAA championships, May 31-June 2, in Champagne, Ill.

Competing for the Tri-Conference championship will be athletes from the Southwest, Southeastern and Western Athletic conferences.

Texas won the SWC, Auburn the SEC and Texas-El Paso the WAC title. Texas-El Paso also narrowly missed winning the NCAA indoor championship and is one of the favorites for the national outdoor title.

Sixty-four of the 96 athletes competing for points at the Tri-Conference meet have already qualified for the NCAA championships.

Special jersies — orange for the SWC, red for the SEC and green for the WAC — will be worn for the meet.

Two athletes from each of the three conferences will compete for points in each event. There will be other entries, primarily from the SWC.

There also will be an exhibition hammer throw featuring Richard Olsen of Texas-El Paso, second in the United States with a throw of 236-10.

Individual performers include James Mallard of Alabama, who ran a 19.8 in the 200 meters at the SEC meet.

St. Louis Battles Montreal To 2-2 Deadlock

By The Associated Press

Tony Solaita hit a solo home run in the ninth inning, lifting the Montreal Expos to a 2-2 tie with the St. Louis Cardinals in a game suspended after 10 innings by agreement of both baseball clubs Thursday.

Solaita's homer, his first of the season, came off St. Louis right-hander Silvio Martinez, who three innings earlier surrendered the first run scored by Montreal in 28 innings.

In the Expos' sixth, Rodney Scott singled with one out and advanced on an infield out before Gary Carter's single, his second hit, narrowed the margin to 2-1.

The curfew agreed upon was to permit St. Louis to make flight connections. The game wil be resumed prior to a regularly scheduled contest in St. Louis on June 25.

GIANTS 3, ASTROS 0

Ed Halicki hurled a two-hitter and Larry Herndon keyed a three-run seventh inning with an RBI triple as the San Francisco Giants beat the Houston Astros 3-0.

Halicki, 4-3, walked five and did not strike out a batter as the Giants won for the fifth time in their last six games. Halicki allowed only singles by Cesar Cedeno in the fourth inning and Enos Cabell in the ninth.

BRAVES 6, DODGERS 3

Barry Bonnell's two-run homer in the sixth inning led the Atlanta Braves to a 6-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers, giving knuckleailer Phil Niekro his 201st career victory.

Bonnell's homer over the left field fence off reliever Charlie Hough, 0-1, came just after the Dodgers made their first error in 12 games when Bill Russell booted a grounder by Glenn Hubbard.

RED SOX 6, ORIOLES 2

Jim Rice and Butch Hobson drilled early homers and the Boston Red Sox went on to a 6-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Rice belted his sixth homer high into the left field screen at Fenway Park after a two-out walk to Fred Lynn in the first inning. Hobson led off the second with his fourth homer, also a shot into the screen.

PIRATES 6, METS 5

WINS 7, ROYALS 6

Roy Smalley, swinging the hottest bat in the American League, doubled and singled to help unbeaten Jerry Koosman record his seventh victory as the Minnesota Twins edged the Kansas City Royals 7-6.

Every Minnesota batter in the starting lineup hit safely and the Twins, who amassed 14 hits, were aided by three Kansas City errors as they snapped a four-game losing streak.

Mike Proly combined to pitch a two-hitter to lead the Chicago White Sox over the reeling Oakland A's 5-1.

The loss was the A's seventh straight and they have scored only nine runs in the losing streak.

Mart Stages Sharp Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip and glamor issues ranging from American Telephone to Xerox led the way as the stock market staged a sharp rally Thursday.

Analysts said the upsurge drew some impetus from a strong dollar in foreign exchange and hopes that slowing economic activity might lead to an early peak in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 14.47 to 842.95 for its sharpest gain since it climbed 16.54 points on March 27.

Big-name stocks on the active list as of the 4 p.m. close in New York included AT&T, up 1⅛ at 59⅛; Xerox, up 1⅜ at 59⅞; Boeing, ahead 1 at 39¼, and Eastman Kodak, up ½ at 59⅛.

Xerox, which introduced a new copier Wednesday, said Thursday its second-quarter results so far were "very encouraging."

Brokers said tentative evidence lately of a slowing in economic activity — for example, declines in industrial production and housing starts last month — had actually worked in the market's favor.

New York (AP) — Thursda's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

IRRIGATION CHECKUP — Leon New of Lubbock, right, area irrigation specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock, measures the flow of an irrigation well in Bailey County. Observing the test are Royce Turner, grower, and Clarence Christian, irrigation equipment dealer.

Benefit To Farmer Seen Via Water Management

Saving In Irrigation Fuel Major Item

Increasing the efficiency of pumps and careful management of water from the state's 90,000 irrigation wells could save Texas irrigation farmers $100 million annually, says an irrigation specialist here with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

By improving pumping efficiency to attainable levels, farmers could reduce their annual fuel bills by $1,200-$1,500 per well, the specialist said. But he noted that the repairs needed to improve pumping efficiency that amount would cost farmers across the state approximately $350 million.

Ways to combat the skyrocketing costs of pumping irrigation water and at the same time conserve precious fuel and water are being stressed in educational programs being conducted by the Extension Service in 20 West Texas counties. Pump efficiency and water management are the key factors, the extension specialist says.

"Irrigation fuel is the highest single cost in producing crops in highly irrigated West Texas," said Leon New, extension area agricultural engineer-irrigation. He is stationed at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here.

In recent years, the cost of energy to pump irrigation water has increased 400 to 700 percent in most areas of the state, he noted.

"This increase in energy prices has added substantially to annual crop production costs of the irrigation farmer," New said.

In 1973, natural gas to operate a typical irrigation well on the High Plains cost about $835 annually, the extension specialist said. In 1978, the same amount of energy averaged approximately $5,000 annually.

"An average West Texas grower who uses 20 irrigation wells paid about $17,000 annually for natural gas in 1973," New said. "In 1978, his annual fuel cost totaled approximately $92,000."

To offset these increasing fuel costs, New said, irrigation pumps and power units must perform at maximum efficiency and water distribution must be carefully managed to reduce the amount required.

To determine pump efficiency, four measurements are needed. These are water delivery, depth from which water must be lifted, discharge pressure, and fuel use.

"Growers can make these measurements, but often need help to learn the measurement technique and evaluation procedure," New said.

To help them, Extension Service personnel have demonstrated measurement techniques in 20 counties and have conducted training sessions to assist county extension agents. The Extension Service also has developed step-by-step guidelines to help growers make efficiency calculations and identify hourly fuel cost and fuel cost for an acre-inch of water. The guidelines include attainable standards to which a grower can compare his system's overall efficiency and fuel cost.

Demonstrations conducted by the Extension Service and cooperating growers indicate opportunity for significant reductions in energy consumption and pumping costs, New said.

Measurements have been made, New said, on some 100 irrigation pumping installations powered by natural gas, diesel and electricity. In overall efficiency, the systems ranged from a low of 4 percent to a high of 19 percent, with the average efficiency being 11 percent.

ROOF COLLAPSE KILLS BOY

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy was buried in debris and killed when the roof of an abandoned garage where he was playing collapsed, officials said. Julio Losado was playing with three friends Wednesday night in two four-bay brick garage buildings in Hartford's North End when the youngster kicked one of the support beams, causing the roof to collapse, police said. Police said the boy was buried under heavy concrete and brick debris for more than 30 minutes.

Panel Chief To Move Carefully

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The new chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, James M. Stone, intends to move cautiously in the next few months, with the bulk of his time devoted to learning about the internal operations of the agency and the concerns of the commodities industry.

"I don't know how to live up to expectations that I will be a controversial regulator," he said at his first press conference since taking office May 4.

"I am not in a tremendous hurry to change everything. Nothing will happen lightly, without a great deal of staff work and preparation," during his chairmanship, he said.

Stone noted that he took the same cautious approach at the beginning of his term as Massachusetts state insurance commissioner.

But his cautious approach did not mean conservative regulation. He pointed out that he made many controversial decisions. All of which were upheld in the courts.

Although he is reserving judgment on major issues before the agency, Stone indicated he has developed clear ideas about his priorities.

"The CFTC, in general, has been on the right track, making certain that markets do reflect supply and demand," he said.

Considering the tremendous growth of futures trading in the past five years, there would probably have been many more problems without the CFTC, he said.

The agency must also make certain there are not predatory practices aimed toward commodities customers, Stone said.

And, to some extent, the agency must involve itself in structural issues, such as the issue of exchange mergers, he said.

Stone said some economists might say that many exchanges increase competition in the industry and others might believe that a few exchanges would provide greater liquidity for the markets, he said.

"The commission is clearly going to get itself involved in this area," he said.

Stone said he is concerned about the CFTC'S budget, which is about $15.8 million this fiscal year, compared with $69.0 million allocated to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

While he has no plans for immediate major changes in the CFTC, Stone, an economist, would clearly like to beef up the economics department and increase the number of professional staff.

"Our economics staff is simply not big enough nor powerful enough" to produce the same kind of economic analysis as the Federal Reserve Board/Treasury Department study of financial futures," he said.

The agency should avoid taking on the sort of ministerial tasks that might be better performed by a national futures organization, he said. These might include administration of qualifying exams and auditing, he said.

But Stone cautioned, "I would share the worries of the Justice Department if we were to establish a monopolistic industry organization and invest it with public policy powers."

Stone said the national futures organization issue is one he plans to pay attention to quickly.

"It is the nature of regulation, and not where it is done, that is the central question," he said. Government and industry can both function as regulators, but they are designed to do different types, Stone said.

Stone will make his first visit to the floor of the Chicago and New York exchanges in the next two weeks.

Stone said he was "less than pleasantly surprised" about how little hard statistical information is available about the commodity futures industry.

A large data base is expensive to design and build, but he said he hopes to have industry help on this. He emphasized that he likes to have as many facts at hand as possible before making decisions.

Stone said he is concerned about the gap between the official position toward regulation of foreign traders-equal treatment with domestic traders-and the actual treatment.

In some cases foreign traders have been able to withhold information from the government that domestic traders are required to provide, he said.

ATTORNEYS FOR THE GINNING INDUSTRY have requested the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to delay enforcement of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's cotton dust standard pending action on a petition for review.

The motion to stay pending the appeal was made because there was growing doubt the court would render a decision before the Sept. 4 effective date of medical surveillance and respirator requirements in the standard covering cotton gins.

Tony Price, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Ginners Association, says the brief filed by gin attorneys emphasized the impracticality of medical surveillance and contended the burden placed on gins was not justified since OSHA still had not furnished sufficient proof of a health hazard in the gin work place.

BASED ON INFORMATION SUPPLIED BY OSHA attorneys in April, the TCGA contends it is "highly unlikely" that gins could comply with the medical surveillance requirements. Price says OSHA's estimate on the cost also is "extremely understated."

In an April reply filed with the Circuit Court, OSHA attorneys said the standard would require medical opinions on all employes and added that "flying squads" of medical technicians would be needed to administer questionnaire and pulmonary function measurements and collect a medical history on each individual.

"This probably is the most expensive approach to compliance and would require the aquisition of dozens of instrument equipped vans and training of hundreds of bilingual medical personnel for work two to three months of the year," Price says.

THE TCGA HAS CONFERRED WITH MANY medical and para-medical authorities during the past six months in exploring alternatives which might assist gins in complying with the standard, Price says.

"The key is the medical opinion to be obtained on each employee," Price says. "One physician told me that while a doctor might write an opinion based on the pulmonary function measurements and medical history, such information would 'not be worth much' unless he could actually see the individual."

In order to furnish a "meaningful medical surveillance program" for gin employees, Price says, it appears that a physician would have to examine each worker before the employee was assigned to the gin.

"Obviously," Price says, "that cannot be accomplished with present medical facilities in the rural areas of Texas where gins are located."

ALTHOUGH THE COURT HAS BEEN ASKED for expedited hearings in the case, Price says, there is no indication when action will be taken on the motion to stay or when the case finally will be determined.

— The industry is likely to prevail on the merits of its case.

— Implementation of medical surveillance and respirator provisions of the standard — due by Sept. 4 — would cause irreparable harm to the industry.

— A stay of the standard will not harm, and in fact will protect, the public interest.

A BILL TO RAISE THE TARGET PRICES on the 1979 crops of wheat and feed grains was approved Thursday by the House Agriculture Committee, the office of Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock reported.

An amendment offered by Hance was defeated on a vote of 10-5. It would have pegged the loan rate at 70 percent of parity and put the target prices at 80 percent of parity.

The bill as approved would hike the wheat target price to $3.63 per bushel from $3.40 and would up the target to $2.35 per bushel from the current $2.20.

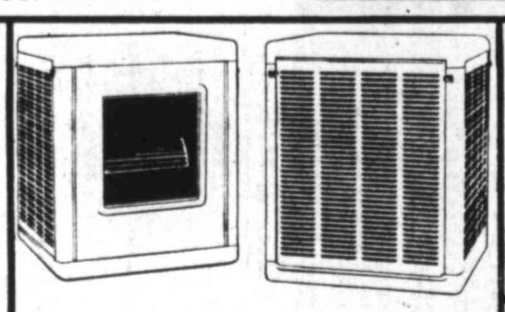

Target prices for grain sorghum and other feed grains would be set in relation to the corn target.

An aide to Hance said the bill is expected to reach the House floor late in June. Cotton would not be affected by this bill.

A measure which would raise the minimum loan floor on cotton to the 1979-crop base rate of 50.23 cents per pound will be considered by the committee next Wednesday. Without a new floor, it is possible the 1980-crop base loan would drop to the present minimum of 48 cents.

Livestock Futures Close Mixed In Wake Of Sharp Downturn

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 65 higher to 22 points lower on 36,736 cars Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. June was up the most with October and December sharing the loss. The market was up 102 to off 32 in erratic trade earlier.

Some selling spilled over from Wednesday's limit declines. However, support was attracted on improved tone to beef at noon as retailers bought actively in preparation for holiday business. There was also technical support in futures after Wednesday's break to the lowest since March.

Wholesale beef was up 1 to off ¾ at 102¾ to 104½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a six-week low. Cash cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $73 per hundredweight, which is the lowest since March at Illinois Direct.

Feeder cattle futures closed 90 higher in May to 82 lower in later months led by August. The latter lost 107 early, while May was up 95 for a time. March fell to a new season's low. Volume was 5,939 lots.

Selling was an extension of limit losses two days in a row and stemmed from weakness in cash feeders this week. The nearby contract rallied with live cattle futures and there was also buying after prices fell to the lowest since February. Some support was also derived from the rebound in carcass beef after sharp declines this week.

There have been 406 deliveries thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady with the best top $96 per hundredweight. The major terminals are expecting about 1,725 head today.

Hog futures closed 20 to 150 lower on 6,902 contracts. June led the decline at the limit loss after July was also down a like amount. The market reacted after April briefly gained 90.

New season's lows were set in October through July to the lowest levels since last July. Heavy hog runs and weakness in cash hogs and most pork products at noon exerted pressure on futures. Slaughter was moderating, but still well above year ago levels.

Wholesale hams were off ½ to up 1 at 69 to 71½ cents a pound, f.o.b. riv er, which is the lowest since April 1978. Cash hogs were off 25 cents to $1.50 with the best top $47 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 318,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 24,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 37 to 192 lower led by July on 7,063 lots. May and July were down 195 and new season's lows were set in 1979 contracts on aggressive local and commission house selling.

Small Grains Field Day Slated

VERNON (Special) — Rolling plains farmers and other interested persons are invited to a small grains field day Tuesday at the Texas A&M University Research Station five miles south of Chillicothe, according to Dr. Wayne G. McCully, resident research director.

The field day will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and will end by noon, according to Dr. Earl Gilmore, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station small grains breeder at the Chillicothe-Vernon Research and Extension Center

Visitors will see research conducted with wheat, barley and oats, Gilmore says. One of the highlights will be the chance to see and learn more about TAM W-105 and 106, two wheat varieties newly released by Texas A&M.

Other features will be a triticale test, a forage test and cropping systems involving small grains, Gilmore says.

The field day is co-sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The public also is invited to a tour of a wild oat control demonstration four miles southwest of the research station at the Marteen Wall farm. The wild oat demonstration will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures fell Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade after the government authorized the sale of more than 400 million bushels of wheat from farmers' storage.

Declines in wheat were cushioned somewhat by buying by commercial users.

The government late Wednesday said farmers could without penalty sell the 405 million bushels of wheat stored under a government loan program. The sales would be voluntary, however. Release of the grain was triggered by an increase in average cash wheat prices at the farm to more than the $3.29-a-bushel trigger price.

Soybean and corn futures rose. The slow rate of farmer sales of corn in the country helped buoy corn futures. Reports of a pickup in soybean oil sales encouraged some buying.

At the close, soybeans were 4½ to 10 cents higher, May $7.23½; wheat was 5 to 6 cents lower, May $3.61; corn was 1¾ to 3 cents higher, May $2.60¼; and oats were 1¾ to 2½ cents higher, May $1.49¼.

West Germans Protest Newsmen's Expulsion

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The West German government protested to the Soviet Embassy Thursday over the expulsion of a television correspondent and a cameraman from the Soviet Union, the foreign ministry said.

State Secretary Guenther Van Well told Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Semyonov the West German government was surprised by the Soviet action and asked that it be rescinded.

Robert Stengl, Moscow-based correspondent of West Germany's ZDF network, and cameraman Herbert Altmann were ordered Wednesday to leave the Soviet Union by the middle of next week. The Soviets accused both Germans of "doing everything to vilify the country" in their film reports. ZDF denied the accusations.

WORKER DIES IN VAT

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — An employee at the Owens-Corning Fiberglas plant died when he fell into a chemical mixing vat during cleaning, the Santa Clara County coroner said. A coroner's deputy said Manuel Bello, 35, of San Jose died Wednesday of chest injuries. A company spokesman said Bello was steam-cleaning the tank while standing on a stairwell and fell into the vat, striking his head on a huge mixing blade. However, Deputy Fire Marshal Dick McGlashan said the workman was inside the vat when it was mistakenly turned on.

Joe Walsh Album Got Chris Rea Started On Career In Rock Music

BUYS RECORD, BECOMES STAR — England's Chris Rea poses by a jukebox in Los Angeles. After buying his first record at age 20, Rea became interested in music, and with his debut album, which has sold more than a half million copies, has become a rock star. He was honored recently with a Grammy nomination for best new artist of 1978. (AP Laserphoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chris Rea grew up in northern England, less than 100 miles from the home of the Beatles, but it took an American rocker named Joe Walsh to get him interested in music at the relatively advanced age of 20.

"I was going out with a guy for a couple of drinks, and he was just getting ready and he just had this album, and he put it on," Rea recalls, a sense of reverence still evident. "And it was the first time ever in me life that I was sort of really aware of music."

The record was one of Walsh's efforts with the James Gang, and the very next day Rea ran to buy it at his local record store.

"That was the first album I'd ever bought," he said. "I played it until I almost wore holes in it. And I just got into it after that, went out and bought a guitar and got started."

From such little acorns do mighty rock careers grow. Today, the friend that played the Walsh album is a bass player in Rea's band. As or Rea himself — well, a debut album that sells half a million copies and earns a Grammy nomination for best new artist of 1978 isn't bad for a late bloomer.

There was certainly little enough in Rea's pre-Walsh past to foretell a musical future. Reared in Cleveland, a British steel town 25 minutes from the Scotland border, he was an avid soccer player and motorbike buff who got booted out of secondary school for "playin' with motorbikes instead of playin' with me pen."

"I used to spend half me time in the car park, just gettin' me bike to go faster and stuff," he says ruefully in his thick Yorkshire accent. "I'm not proud of the fact that I got kicked out."

Between his ignominious departure from acad e and his first record contract a year and a half ago, Rea had plenty of exposure to blue-collardom.

"I used to be a bricklayer," says the compact but husky-looking 27-year-old. "I've had all sorts of different jobs. Me father's from Italian descent and he started a little ice cream shop and I used to work in there. I can tell you everything there is to know about ice cream."

Unlike many rock stars, however, Rea has declined to shuck his past lifestyle as quickly as it takes to put a down payment on a Mercedes.

He still lives in Cleveland, for one thing.

"I wouldn't move," he says. "I don't like London at all. It's too fashionable, too fickle."

The song, about a mythical flash-in-the-pan rock star, is "just a warning to anybody who wants to go into the music business," Rea says. "He (Santini) is what anybody can become if they believe that all they got to do is jump in the back of a limousine and it's all there."

Rea has also kept up his love affair with motorized vehicles of all sorts. His second album, "Deltics," is named after a series of British locomotives modeled after the famous Burlington Zephyrs of America's great diesel age.

"It's one of those English things that we're into — old things, design things with a touch of character about them. They're great big massive locomotives, and they used to haul all the cargo, coal trains and stuff like that, from London up into the north.

"And now, since all the new electric diesels and stuff, they're going to scrap them all. And we all think it's a bit of the shame, all the band."

Circus Musician Likes Challenging Lifestyle

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Greene always thought he'd be a jazz musician. That is, until the circus came to town and he was asked to sit in, play lead trumpet for a few weeks.

KEITH GREENE

He's been doing it for six years. He now also leads the 15-piece band of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. He was on vacation back home in North Carolina when he first joined it.

Before that, Greene, 33, a compact, friendly native of Asheboro, N.C., had studied jazz at the famed Berklee School of Music in Boston, then worked in groups led by Art Mooney and Dixieland pianist Billy Maxted.

"I had no idea I'd ever be playing with the circus," grins the trumpeter, who has turned down offers to join the big bands of such jazz stars as Buddy Rich, Woody Herman and Maynard Ferguson.

"The circus was not what I had in mind for my future at the time. I wanted to play on the big band circuit, and hoped some day I'd have my own band, or work in the studios."

But he found circus work a constant challenge, enjoyed the camaradarie. And he wasn't on "the road," the grueling string of one-nighters and long bus rides that are the lot of big bands.

True, he travels — 29 cities this year. But he doesn't pack and unpack, check in and out of hotels. He lives on the circus train in a large, spacious compartment complete with kitchen.

It's said circus music is the most difficult of all, particularly for trumpeters. You need chops of steel to handle the extremes in range and tempo. You've got to play long, loud and often very high.

"There's nothing to compare with it," agrees Greene, who on "Feelings" soars up to a C above high C, which for lesser trumpeters can cause hernias, or at least a lip blowout.

"This is definitely a musician's job. Youve got to be in shape. We've had ambulances come in, pick up four, five guys, heart attacks and strokes, just from working the job."

His band has five full-time members. He hires 10 more local musicians in the cities the band plays. "It's particularly hard when you're working small towns," he says.

"There, a guy might only work the Elks' Club one Saturday night a month. It (circus music) is hard for them, but I usually tell them, 'Take it easy, take it easy.' If they get tired, I'll help them, play as much of their part as possible."

They play 300 pieces of music per show, backing acts ranging from the Flying Farfans of Chile to Gunther Gebel-Williams' 20-beast animal show. Constant change is the name of the game.

There are show tunes, rock songs, waltzes and marches. Now, Greene is even writing an arrangement of "Give It One," first played by high-note trumpeter Maynard Ferguson.
