on another or other tickets, the voter must vote for each individual candidate by checking the sqare opposite the candidate's name.

The old method of marking ballots, by marking out the names of all candidates excepting the names of those for whom the voter wishes to vote, is still legal; as applied to voting a "straight ticket", such method requires the voter to strike or mark out all tickets except the ticket for which he wishes to vote.

Voters have the privilege, as always, of writing in the name of any candidate they choose for any office on the ballot, by writing in the name of the candidate opposite the title of the office in the "Write-In" column which appears on the ballot; however, if you elect to write in the name of a candidate, you cannot mark your ballot as a "straight ticket", but will have to vote for the individual candidates for all other offices for whom you wish to vote on whichever ticket such candidates may appear.

All Farm Owners May Vote In Weed Control District Election

A new ruling was announced Friday that farmers who live inside Lockney and Floydada and own land in the Weed Control District may vote in the Tuesday election for or against dissolving the district.

As reflected by Notices of Election appearing in both The Hesperian and the Beacon, an election is to be held on November 7, 1978 in each of the election precincts of Floyd County on the issue of dissolution of Floyd County Noxious Weed Control District, the polling places and election judges being those of the General Election to be held on the same day.

The District includes all of Floyd County except lands within the city limits of Lockney and lands within the City of Floydada, and only resident property taxpaying voters of the District are entitled to vote in the election, which means that a person is entitled to vote in the District election if:

1. He is a registered voter.
2. Owns land which appears on the tax roll of the District.

The following letter was mailed to election judge Friday:

To All Judges Of The Floyd County Noxious Weed Control District Election:

You are instructed by the Board of Directors of the District, pursuant to Resolution of the Board here to attached countermanding instruction previously issued, that any registered voter residing in Floyd County, Texas and owning lands which appear upon the District tax roll is entitled to vote in the District election to be held on November 7, 1978, whether he or she resides within the corporate limits of the City of Lockney, Texas or within the corporate limits of the City of Floydada, Texas, or elsewhere in Floyd County, Texas.

As you have been previously advised, the County Tax Collector has placed a red "W" opposite the name of each voter on the Voter Registration Lists who owns land appearing on the tax roll of the District, for your guidance.

Yours very truly,
Kenneth Wofford
Chairman, Board of Directors

Lighthouse Merger With Hall County Electric Completed

The final papers transferring assests of Hall County Electric to Lighthouse Electric Cooperative were signed in Floydada November 2. The merger, which was instigated at the request of Hall County Electric over a year ago, was the first time in Texas that two electric cooperatives had merged. The memberships of each cooperative had voted to merge during the spring this year.

According to Lighthouse Manager Alton Higginbotham, all operations will be handled by Lighthouse Electric Cooperative, which will maintain a district office at Memphis. Four Hall County employees are scheduled to be transferred to Floydada.

Anthony Whitfill is manager of the Memphis office.

In Service Day Changed To School Day

The original school calendar scheduled a teacher's in service day and no school for the students on Friday, December 1. However, since the school system was in holiday in honor of the late superintendent A.E. Baker recently, the day of school will need to be made up.

Superintendent of schools Jerry Cannon pointed out that the ADA record of student attendance is very important. Average daily attendance records affect amount of state aid money paid each school in the state.

"For instance, 60 students absent per day would mean the loss of salaries for three teachers," Cannon said.

Cannon urged all parents to see that their children are in school not only for the student's need to learn and attend classes, but for the financial aid that comes through good average daily attendance.

SCHOOL TAX OFFICE OPEN AT NOON

For the convenience of the tax payer the school's downtown tax office will remain open at noon time during the month of November.

$2000 WORTH OF MARIJUANA...Floyd County Sheriff's Department officers and a narcotics agent from Lubbock confiscated this "haul" at a private home on West Virginia Street in Floydada Friday night and arrested a Floydada man for alleged violation of the state controlled Substance Act. Possession of more than four ounces of marijuana is a third-degree felony in Texas. Almost three pounds of the weed, with an estimated street value of $2000 was taken in the Friday-night action. Charged was Ignacio A. Quintanilla; who is in county jail pending bond set at $30,000. (Staff Photo)

E REPRESENTATIVE

SELECTION has been difficult. Foster Whaley and Bill Hale are both good men to represent us in Austin. Foster has an ag degree and ag vocation background while Bill has a business college degree and business experience.

I feel like I could call either man on the phone when I need something, and my thoughts would be well considered at Austin.

Each of us in Floyd County will have to decide which is more important; party loyalty or community loyalty because both men are well qualified for the job.

I'm going with the hometown man with my vote.

IT ISN'T IMPORTANT that you vote like I do....but it is important that you vote your convictions Tuesday.

This will allow those who favor the same ones I do to remark on the wisdom of my choices, and all those others to comment how wrong I am.

Remember, there is no more brilliant political analyst than the man whose choices agree with yours.

HOW IMPORTANT IS YOUR VOTE? We have only to look back at history to realize just how important one vote really is.

Did you know that Texas was brought into the Union by only ONE VOTE? Or that by ONE VOTE the U.S. Senate ratified the purchase of Alaska from Russia? ONE VOTE in 1776 gave America the English language instead of the German language. By ONE VOTE selective service was saved just three months before Pearl Harbor. ONE VOTE saved Andrew Jackson from impeachment, and ONE VOTE-per-precinct elected John Kennedy over Richard Nixon in 1962. Overseas, ONE VOTE gave Adolph Hitler the leadership of the Nazi Party; and ONE VOTE caused Charles I of England to be executed. November 7 is the day to consider YOUR one vote!

AFTER WATCHING THE Junior Varsity Whirlwinds play Thursday night, I'm already getting excited about next year's Varsity Whirlwinds. We have some big boys....and some mighty good football players coming on up in the system.

Hopefully the JV, Freshmen, seventh and eighth Breezers set the pattern for Friday night because they all beat Abernathy teams Thursday night. The Freshmen won 18-8, the JV 28-6 and I haven't heard from the Breezer coaches about their games....I know they won, though.

BOBBY GILLILAND is one of the mechants featured on the football contest page today. Bobby looks pretty natural in the helmet because I can remember when he was a bruising tackler for the Whirlwinds.

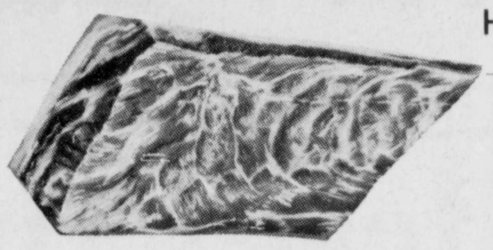

Sure wish we had ole Bobby on the team this year....he's getting big enough to make an impression on any opponent we might have.

OUR THANKS TO John Farris for putting the "where to vote" map together for the convenience of the voter.

Miss Kim Spencer, Danny Lambert Say Vows In Aiken Baptist Church

A Lockney couple, Miss Kimberly Dyann Spencer and Mr. Danny Joe Lambert pledged wedding vows Saturday afternoon in a double-ring ceremony in First Baptist Church of Aiken.

Church pastor Rev. Bill Sessom directed the 2 o'clock exchange of marriage promises as the wedding party stood in the church altar area. In the background was a centered candelabra entwined with yellow and white silk daisies, baby's breath and greenery. On either side were greenery and baby's breath-decorated candelabra accented with yellow checked ribbon. Lighting the candles were Misses Mona Henderson and Lori Johnston of Weatherford, Oklahoma.

Ushers Rick Miller of Weatherford, Oklahoma, brother-in-law of the bride, and Billy Sessom escorted guests down aisles marked with yellow and white pew bows. Guests' names were secured in the bride's book by Miss Jan Glasscock of Dallas. The registration table was covered with a long white cloth. An arrangement of yellow and white silk daisies graced the table.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. C.L. Record, organist, and Mrs. Mike Mathis, pianist. Mrs. Ricky Mosley and Van Bradley were soloists, and also sang a duet.

Seated in places of honor at the wedding were parents of the bride and groom: Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. O.W. Lambert. After the ceremony, a daisy was given to Mrs. Spencer and one to Mrs. Lambert by Miss Shea Jackson, who also distributed rice bags at the reception.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Rick Miller, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were another sister, Miss Sharon Spencer, Miss Paula Ellison and Miss Sheila Hrbacek. All of the bride's attendants wore dresses of yellow and white checked gingham fashioned with full, gathered skirts, low rounded necklines, and long sleeves gathered on cuffs. The bodice, sleeves and cuffs were tucked. Self tie belts completed the costumes. Each wore in her hair a silk daisy decorated comb. They carried bouquets of silk daisies and baby's breath tied with yellow streamers.

Miss Jeri Ann Lambert, the groom's cousin, was flower girl and Michael Isom was ring bearer.

Best man was the groom's cousin, Dickie Lambert. Chris Reecer of Plainview and Jerry Miller served as groomsmen.

Mr. Spencer presented his daughter for marriage. Her gown of white organza featured a French Chantilly lace bodice that was sprinkled with pearls. Full bishop sleeves with lace-trimmed cuffs were dotted with pearls. The A-line skirt was edged with a wide French Chantilly flounce ruffle that extended into a chapel train. Her lace-trimmed veil of bridal illusion was attached to a lace caplet.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of yellow and white daisies and yellow sweetheart roses sprinkled with tulle, baby's breath, and tiny yellow ribbon streamers tied with love knots. The going-away corsage was taken from the center of the bouquet.

The traditional "something old" was a handkerchief belonging to her mater-thing new" was an opal and emerald ring, a gift of the groom; "something borrowed" was diamond earrings from her sister, and "something blue" was her garter. In her shoes were pennies minted in the birthyears of the bride and groom.

A reception in the Aiken church fellowship hall followed the wedding. Assistants were Mrs. David McCoy, and Misses Karen McCarter, Kay Tannahill, Valerie Isom and Joy Elam.

The refreshment table was covered in white peau de soie with illusion swags and drapes tied with yellow satin bows. Yellow and white silk daisies arranged with an antique candelabra in an antique crystal vase formed the centerpiece. Silver serving pieces and a crystal punch set completed the table decor.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lambert were graduates from Lockney High School. He farms north of Lockney and she is employed at First National Bank.

The rehearsal dinner was held in the church fellowship hall. The meal was catered by Smokey's of Plainview.

Though we willing to bestow ste on almost any ure with raisins, onions and spices, the Indians see mango as a primary ingredient in the dish. No mango, no chutney. They also insist on preparing their chutney fresh, al dente, for each meal.

Cultures vary, and what we share with each other we often adapt to suit our own tastes and needs. Here then is a delicious can-ahead update we Americans love.

PEAR OR PEACH CHUTNEY

4 quarts finely chopped, peeled peaches or pears
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup chopped onions
2-3 cups brown sugar
1/4 cup mustard seed
2 tablespoons ground ginger
2 teaspoons salt
1 clove garlic, minced
1 hot red pepper
5 cups vinegar

Combine all ingredients and cook slowly until thick, about 40 minutes. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Pour, boiling hot, into hot pint jars, leaving 1/4-inch head space. Adjust caps. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Yield: about 7 pints. Note: for a milder chutney, remove seed from hot pepper. Use rubber gloves to prevent burning hands.

Jay Dycus draws a bead on the sun every day

By PEGGY McCRACKEN
Special Correspondent

PECOS — Jay Dycus scales a ladder to the roof of Security State Bank in Pecos every day to get a bead on the sun.

The sun's not hard to find in Pecos, and its rays may give new life to the dying farming industry in the area.

Dycus focuses a tracking pyroheliometer on the sun to measure the amount of direct sunlight that could be collected in solar cells.

And those solar cells can be used to power an electric irrigation engine, pumping about 800 gallons of water per minute from a depth of 540 feet.

Such a well can cost a farmer up to $16,000 in electric bills in one year. And that's where Dycus comes in.

When energy costs skyrocketed in 1975 (natural gas from 36 cents to $2.87 in 1978) Dycus began looking for an alternate energy source.

With his experience in agriculture loans, Dycus knew that when the average-sized farm in the Trans-Pecos area stopped producing, an over half-a-million-dollar investment would lie idle.

After writing letters, making telephone calls and contacting everyone he knew in the energy business, Dycus hit paydirt at his alma mater, Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Tech was looking for a place to experiment with a photovoltaic concentrator, a big name for converting sunlight to electricity.

The United States Department of Energy (DOE) funded Tech's proposal to design such a system for the Pecos area. Honeywell, Inc. has worked with Tech on the deisgn, costing $420,000.

If DOE likes the design, it will spend $2.5 million to build the system on the Garvin Passmore farm near Hoban, about 20 miles southwest of Pecos. Tech would operate the well for two years to learn if solar energy can be made economically feasible for irrigation in semi-arid areas.

The Trans-Pecos was chosen because it gets little rain — less than five inches last year and three and one-half inches so far this year — and the sun shines nearly every day.

When the sun isn't shining, the well will be powered by conventional electricity from the local power company, Community Public Service (CPS).

The two systems will be connected in such a way that at night or on cloudy days, the utility will supply power to the pump. If the solar cells should generate more electricty than is needed to run the 200-horsepower pump engine, power will be fed into the utility grid.

"Somebody's toaster in Pecos will be running off our solar energy," Tech project manager William Marcy said.

Marcy and his co-worker, Richard Dudek, were in Pecos last week to visit the wellsite. They met with the Downtown Lions Club and presented the plan, then answered questions about its possiblities and the problems involved.

"It won't be cheap energy," Marcy said. "At this time, electrical solar power systems cost about $10 per watt of capacity."

He expects this cost to be reduced when private industry develops commercial markets and production facilities.

"There is no question about the operational feasibility of the photovoltaic concentrator system," Marcy said. "The questions lie in the practical aspects of installation and the operation and ways of reducing associated costs."

The system designed by Honeywell and Tech researchers would have 144 trough concentrators, each with 160 square feet of reflector area. The trough concentrates sunlight on two strings of solar cells in the center, increasing the generating capacity of each silicon cell 40 times.

Collector troughs are mounted on one axis that rotates to follow the sun fr east to west during the day, and anot that slants the module as the seas change the angle of the sun's rays.

One of the biggest problems Ma foresees is keeping the solar cells c since they lose efficiency if they get hot. A radiator-type water cooling syst was chosen, but since water from the w is 85 degrees, a method is needed to c the water itself.

Keeping both the water and reflect clean is another problem. A crop-dus plane spraying nearby could du chemicals on the collectors that would corrosive if not washed off immediate And the powdery dust that is easily kic up by wind or a pa vehicle can settle on system, blocking the rays.

"We will probably turn upside down at night," M said, "and maybe the du fall off.

"Hail is another prob Marcy said. "A bad hail could really do a lot of da to our solar cells. We n computer that can s hailstorm coming and them upside down quickly

Computers will operat system once it's installe manual controls can be u override the computer system is to be located miles from the Texas A& periment Station, and th gies will be acting as a m hen for the collectors.

Marcy believes the co tion phase of the project a good chance of being f by DOE. "Of the 17 fund design, this is the only o ing run by a university, ly one of this size and Texas and the only agri project," Marcy said.

Drought Causes Honey Reduction

AUSTIN--The Texas honey industry is feeling the effects of this year's widespread drought, and production from commercial apiaries is expected to drop by 22 per cent, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

With 16,000 fewer bee colonies this year than in 1977, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service predicts honey production will be down to less than five million pounds, compared to 6.36 million pounds last year.

"Texas ranked third in the nation in number of bee colonies in 1977," commented Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, "but dry weather, plus heavy flooding whe rains did come, caused apiaries to move to favorable out-of- locations.

"We hope this temporary move," Brown said, "and that the weather improves next year to help the industry gain strength in the state."

Throughout the rest of the U. S., production is expected to increase 4 per cent above last year, up to almost 150 million po

JV Defeats Abernathy

Jeff Rainey and Michael Self enjoyed a good night in the touchdown department as each made a couple of TD's here Thursday night in the Junior Varsity's 28-6 win over Abernathy.

Michael made a couple of good runs that wound up on paydirt in the first half. Jeff crashed through the middle to tack on two extra points and the Whirlwinds led 14-0 at halftime.

In the third quarter Jeff scored on a 15 yard run and quarterback Moody Younger blasted through center for the two extra points. The Whirlwinds led 22-0.

Abernathy finally got on the scoreboard with six points at the last of the third quarter. In the fourth quarter again Rainey scored for the Whirlwinds from about a yard out.

Coach Coward said the overall defensive team held Abernathy to very little yardage throughout the contest. The offensive team amassed 176 yards rushing, Moody was 3 for 6 and 49 yards in the passing department. Michael was 1 of 2 for 50 yards via in the air. The JV's made 12 first downs. They are now 6-1 and play Tulia there Thursday night.

NEW AND REVIEWS

Take It From Here by Glee Yoder is an exciting book of activities for children in church school, home, or school. Not only does the author tell how to do things, but she also tells why. For example, using things like spools, bolts, shells, seedpods, and cardboard tubes, she describes ways of experimenting with touching and feeling to enrich the experience of children. Whatever the theme, the author suggests ways of building an experience using color, listening, acting, seeing, putting word together. "Bring The Outdoors In" is one of the activities and it tells how to make an instant American Bonsai.

A book for the very young child about life and death is entitled The End Beginning, written by Margaret Herder. This is a good book to read to young children when a family member or close friend has died. It will answer some of the questions about death from the Christian perspective.

For the young person or young at heart, Billie Pate's poetry entitled Touch Life is a special treat. This small paperback is full of sensitive photographs and interesting graphics that enhance the poetry.

Have you ever wanted to be a writer? Robert J. Hastings has written a manual for beginning writers en titled How I Write. In his introduction he says "Even if you think you couldn't write a postcard home from Siberia, let yourself go and read my little manual for the pure fun of it." And it is fun! He begins by telling how he began to write then gives what he has called "Hastings' Laws". Law #4: Start Where Your Readers Are, Too (or, some sixth graders live on islands) and Law #6: Come Out from Behind That Stained Glass Window (or, How to hide God with gobbledygook) are an example of Hastings' Laws.

Dear Friends:

I have been asked many times, "How can Cal Farley's Boys Ranch take a troubled, mixed-up boy and make a well-adjusted, responsible citizen out of him?"

I wish you could have heard twelve of our former boys give their own answer to that question. Each year before graduation, directors of the Boys Ranch Alumni Association are invited to have lunch with the Ranch Executive Committee. All Ranch directors serve without any pay, so this time with the alumni is always "payday" for us.

These men told us why they came to the Ranch, how long they lived there, what the Ranch did for them, as well as offererd suggestions for the betterment of the boys we are now raising. When I asked one thirty-year-old what the Ranch did for him, he was quick to reply, "Everything." They all agreed that the day-to-day living, constant supervision, the busy program, the love and affectionate--but firm discipline, and everything else put together, made them what they are today.

In this group was a salesman, plumber, electrician, fireman, rancher, college student, deputy sheriff, administrator for another home for children, nurseryman, restaurant manager, and a dorm dad of the Ranch. The boys who knew Mr. Farley can see that his philosophy still guides the staff and directors in the tremendous job of providing a home and future for the nearly 400 boys of today who range in age from five through nineteen years.

They, too, need the same stable home and guidance as the former Ranchers. I hope you will be a friend of our boys and will share with them by helping provide for their daily needs and their futures. Inflation continues to make our costs climb just as it does in your own home. We wish you and your family a Merry Christmas and hope the New Year will bring you much happiness. Come by for a visit with us anytime you can.

Sincerely yours,
Cal Farley's Boys Ranch

GRASS TETANY CAN KILL CATTLE--Lush forage this time of year can be a "death trap" for cattle, warns a forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The problem, particularly afflicting cows in late pregnancy or early lactation, is known as grass tetany or grass staggers. It is caused by a deficiency of magnesium in the animal's diet and is most prevalent in early spring and late fall when forage is often lush but low in magnesium. Grass tetany is most often a problem when cows are on a strict grass diet. It can be avoided by feeding a magnesium supplement and providing legumes for grazing.

ATTENTION
FLOYD COUNTY LAND OWNERS
TWO REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR THE DISSOLUTION OF THE FLOYD COUNTY WEED CONTROL DISTRICT:
1. Over 90% of the budget is used for salaries.
2. For the very small acreage treated by the district it is costing approximately $28 per acre for application only. Chemical cost is added to this and paid for by land owner.

"TODAY"

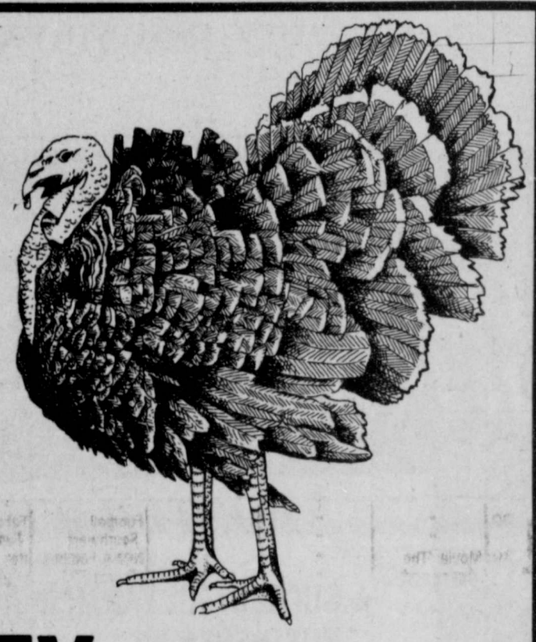

My life is a gift of God, given not in years, but a day at a time. Today is the day the Lord has made for me and He planned it to be the most important day of my life.

Yesterday is gone, never to return. I must not worry about it but leave it in the hands of God. Tomorrow and all that it holds is God's secret and its coming is not assured.

Only today is mine. Each day arranged by God, with infinite wisdom and goodness is His gift, His act of love for me. In thanksgiving, I will offer Him every day the gift of myself--my prayers, work, joys and sufferings.

"To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you lived. This is to have succeeded."

Texas Department of Agriculture
Reagan V. Brown, Commissioner

STEPS TO DEREGULATE livestock markets which have been taken recently will help cut some of the costly, unneeded federal regulations placed upon the agricultural industry, notes Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Earlier this year, Brown told officials of the Packers and Stockyards Administration that free competition among Texas livestock markets was adequate to keep rates for services in balance. These rates have been controlled since 1921, when the Packers and Stockyards Act was passed.

"Our support for the deregulation of the rate system came after realizing that the number of livestock auctions in the U. S. has grown from about 70 when the act was first passed and competition was non-existent, to over 2,000 markets in the country today," Brown said.

Livestock producers still will be able to file complaints with the U. S. Department of Agriculture if they feel rates are unfair, he noted.

Post Election White House Decision To Vex Cattlemen

WACO, TX--Observers in Washington feel a delay is being orchestrated to avoid a pocket veto of major cattle legislation prior to the November 7 election to avoid increasing political wrath among the agriculture community.

So points out the National Farmers Union over speculation that President Carter will veto a bill by Senator Lloyd Bentson which makes major changes in a law addressing cattle imports.

The bill, passed by the Senate earlier and okayed by the house in its last minute flurry, amends the 1964 Meat Import Act. The new law would reverse current import quota formulas so that more imported beef would be allowed into the U.S. when domestic production drops, but be reduced when domestic cattle prices plummet like they did five years ago.

"The President is getting bad advice if he thinks this would be inflationary," said Jay Naman of Waco, President of the Texas Farmers Union. "On the contrary, when U.S. supplies are tight, import quotas would expand which should buffer retail prices. This bill is designed to help cattlemen by cutting cheap, low quality imports during surplus conditions when producer prices collapse," Naman said.

The countercyclical formula would amend the existing method of allowing more imported beef into the country when the domestic market is glutted and herds are being reduced. The original bill went further to restrict Presidential power to raise import quotas by allowing such action only under conditions spelled out by the National Emergency Act of 1976. The final version passed the House, however, after the executive restraint was watered down.

President Carter brought about the wrath of cattle producers and farm organizations in late Spring when he expanded beef import quotas by 200 million additional pounds.

"The veto of this legislation on the eve of a general election would obviously open the wound with both cattle producers and campaigning Democrats in farm states," said Naman. "For that reason we feel he (Carter) has asked leaders in Congress not send the bill over for signature until the election has passed. We then expect a pocket veto. But I assure you it will not be a quiet one in the agriculture community."

The Beef Import Stabilization Bill passed the House by a vote of 289 to 66 on October 10. It has since been stacked along with over 200 other last minute bills passed and awaiting signature or veto. Political observers feel that several of the bills are being held up from even reaching the President's desk to avoid any further pre-election disturbances. It is also widely held that Carter's advisors oppose the Bentsen Bill, especially since it addresses, even mildly, the President's authority to open up import quotas.

Naman additionally pointed out that the bill restricts changes in import quotas in either direction to 10% per year. He further noted that the import formula does not include live cattle brought across borders to be slaughtered in the U.S.

"Enough has already been compromised in the Congress to weaken this bill," concluded the Farmers Union leader. "If Carter vetoes it, this will only worsen the President's image among farmers and ranchers in Texas.

The Floyd Philosopher

MAY SEE INFLATION AS REVERSE COMPETITION

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm examines one aspect of inflation this week.

Dear editor:

It may not be the most important one but I think I can point out at least one cause of inflation. I call it "Reverse Competition."

Here's why it works. A restaurant raises the price of a cup of coffee from 10 cents to 15 cents. Now under ordinary competition the restaurant owner across the street would "Ah-hah, I'm gonna keep my price at 10 cents and capture most of the coffee drinkers,"

It hasn't worked that way. What he says now is, "I'll show him. He can't get ahead of me. I'll raise my price to 20 cents a cup."

Before it's over with a cup of coffee rises to 25 cents or 30 cents or on up to 50 cents or more in some places.

This is what I call Revenue Competition. people just shrug and keep on drinking coffee, because then they need it more that ever.

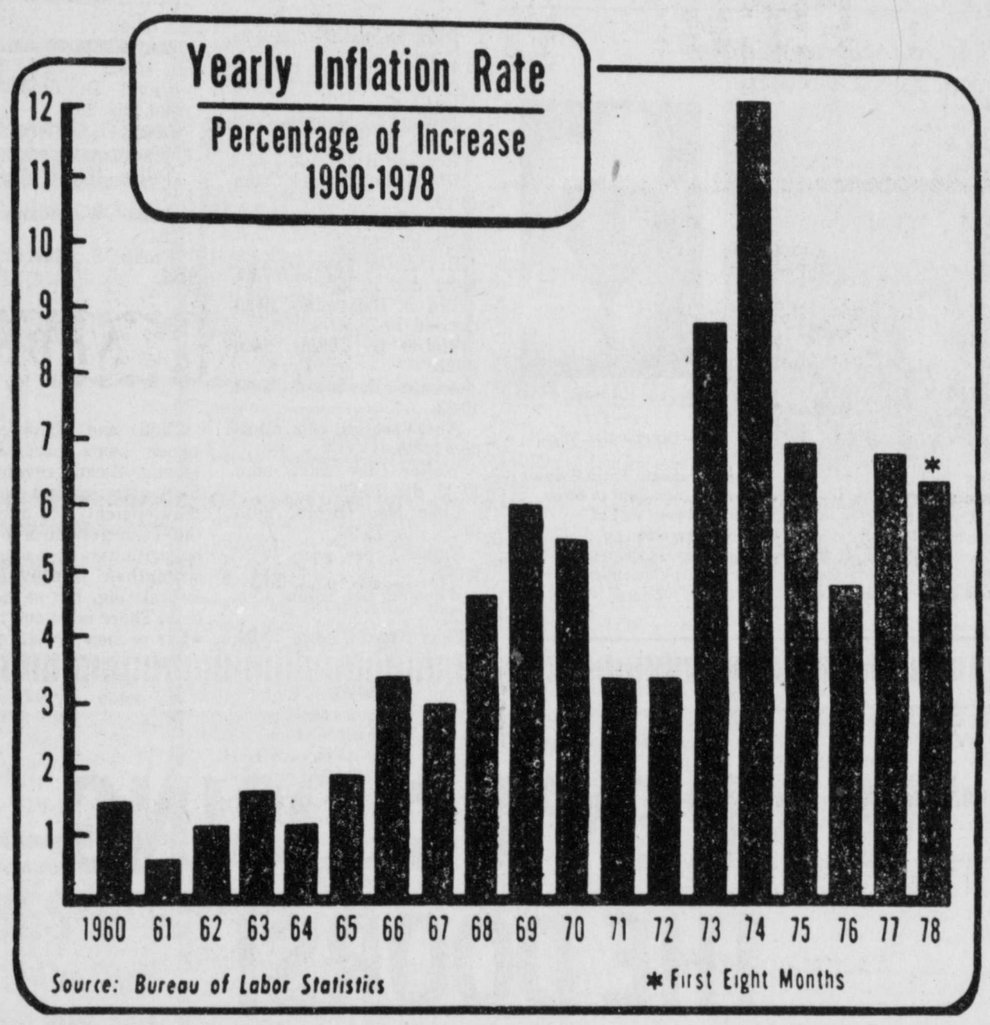

And it doesn't work just with cups of coffee, hamburgers and things like that. Just last week a big New York city bank raised its prime interest rate from 9 and ¾ percent to 10 percent. A nearby bank said "We'll show them," and raised its rate to 10 and ¼ percent. People shrug and keep on borrowing money, because they need it more than ever.

And when the idea trickles down to garage mechanics, barbers, plumbers, contractors, beauty operators, grocery stores, in fact to nearly everybody except farmers and ranchers who can't seem to get the hang of it, you can see that competition has made a U-turn from who can charge the least to who can charge the most.

And the man who doesn't join the movement gets left by the wayside, unless he can get a government job.

I hope the guidelines being established by President Carter to stop this trend don't suffer the same thing that happened in that marathon race in New York the other day. The promoters had painted a blue stripe down the streets to mark the 10-mile course for the runners, but the night before the race some prankster rubbed out the stripe at one point and painted a new one curving off in the wrong direction. The President had better assign somebody to check up on the sale of blue paint.

Yours faithfully
J.A.

Sheep Numbers Up in Feedlots

Texas drylot sheep feeders reported 89,000 head of sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter as of Oct. 1, an increase of 25 per cent over last year, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has noted.

"The 89,000 head represented an 11-per-cent rise over September, with placements during that month totaling 46,000 head," he stated.

Sheep and lambs marketed for slaughter during September numbered 37,000, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Member Canadian Parliament To Address Texas Wheat Growers

The Honorable Hazen Argue, Member of the Canadian Parliament, only hours after being re-elected Chairman of the Senate Agriculture Commitee yesterday in Ottawa, notified the Texas Wheat Producers Association that he is accepting the wheat farmers invitation to address their annual meeting and to jointly explore ways to strengthen world wheat prices to profitable levels in both countries, according to Bill Nelson, TWPA Executive Vice President. The session is scheduled November 30 in the auditorium of the Vernon Regional Junior College.

Senator Argue, a wheat farmer himself, like the other 102 members of the Candadian Senate, is appointed to his seat in Parliament for life by the Governor-General with advise of the Prime Minister but is subject to election to his Ag. Committee post each legislative session.

"This session with Senator Argue of Canada is part of our already established and continuing dialogue with producers and government officials in other wheat producing countries which hopefully will lead to a 'coalition of efforts' to adopt and administer similar wheat policy objectives in the producing countries", according to Otis Harman, Tulia, President of the Amarillo based Texas Wheat Producers Association. "By this we hope to prevent one country from expanding acres while another is cutting them; one country from reducing reserve stocks while another is building them. Senator Argue led a Canadian delegation of legislators recently to Washington for joint meeting of leaders of the U.S. Senate and House Ag Committees and producers exploring similar objectives", Harman said.

Despite "spotty" early prospects for the newly planted 1979 wheat crop in various areas of the state, producers, spurred by recent three years highs in wheat prices, are expected to turn out in record number for the Canadian's address and others dealing with production and marketing research, market development and legislation as well as to set producer policies for the coming year.

Argue will address the annual convention of the Oklahoma Wheat Growers Association meeting in Oklahoma City December 1 after his Texas session.

Foster Whaley-wants to serve public

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is one in a series of interviews by Carla Baranauckas with candidates running in the Nov. 7 election.

Foster Whaley, Democratic candidate for State representative from the 66th Legislative District, has two reasons for running for the state legislature.

"All my life I wanted to serve in the Legislature," Whaley said. "This is the first time I could do it without inconveniencing my family and the first time I could afford it.

"The second reason is I came to the Panhandle in 1949 with a tin suitcase and about enough money to last me 30 days. The Panhandle of Texas has been good to me and I'd like to return some of it."

How does Whaley feel he can serve the Panhandle?

"I feel like I have the exact background necessary for the three main interest group in the district," he said. "I was born and reared in the oil patch which gives me a basic knowledge of the oil business. I have been in the chemical and fertilizer business and served on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce which gives me a knowledge of the industrial and agricultural community."

Whaley also worked 27½ years in the extension service and has been a farmer and rancher, he said.

"This gives me a basic background to serve an area who's agriculture amounts to $250 million a year," Whaley said.

Whaley points to the fact he is a conservative Democrat as one of his strong points.

"The House of Representatives in Austin is run by conservative Democrats," he said. "I can help keep Texas among the lowest in per capita taxes, help keep the right to work law and keep Texas without a state income or corporate tax. With my background I can be especially helpful in writing legislation that will limit spending."

If the Tax Relief Amendment passes, which is on the ballot this fall, Whaley says he can be "instrumental" in putting that law into effect.

Growth within the state of Texas would determine what increases could be made in spending, according to the amendment. Whaley says he can be helpful in determining by law just how much the state has grown.

In the area of education Whaley said he thinks expenditures should be looked upon as investments.

"The investment will come back many times multiplied," he said.

"I feel salaries of teachers should be competitive with other states and competitive with industry so good teachers will remain in the classroom," he said.

"We can't afford anything but the best without waste," Whaley said. "A lot of fat can be cut out of the schools. I get that idea from people in schools."

The Whaley campaign has been funded totally with money from the Panhandle area, although not all the money came from the 66th Legislative District, Whaley said.

"My philosophy is right - not taking down state special interest group lobby money," Whaley said. "I don't want to be obligated to people down state. This would bother my conscience."

Contributions have been turned down from lobby groups from outside the Panhandle area, Whaley said. The amount of the returned donations was at least equal to the amount of loans the campaign has taken from banks and Whaley, he said.

Whaley said he believes Texas state government has been good, and he wants to work to maintain it at its present level. However, two areas in which he would like to see changes are the number of laws which are written and the amount of contact the representative has with his constitutency.

"Too many laws are restricting the lives of good citizens," he said. "It makes for bad citizens when you restrict them."

As an example he mentioned the scattered expiration dates for license plates.

"Now with the inspection sticker, you have two things to think about," he said. "If you have three vehicles, you have six things to think about. A good citizens can easily end up paying a $30 fine if he forgets. I'm not opposed to the scattered license plates, but at least let the person choose the month in which the plates expire."

Concerning keeping in touch with constituents, Whaley said he thinks open public hearings should be held on new laws. He also said when the legislature is not in session he plans to travel the 10 - county area with his wife.

"We're going to do it because we're going to enjoy doing it," he said.

NEWS 'N' NOTES

(by Sharon Hillis)

Chill and distance between some parents and teenagers can prevent both from experiencing personal development. Not only does the teenager miss out on opportunities to mature and strengthen healthy habits for relating, but so do parents. There is no one reason why, or how, relationships between parents and teenagers become strained. Teenage behavior often receives the blame.

However, parents may need to take a long, hard, honest, look at their own feelings toward teenagers. Evaluation of the feeling parents have toward their teenagers, awareness of these feeling and determination to maintain a close relationship in spite of these feelings are important.

Often, parents are reminded of their own teenage years, the risks they took and the confusion they felt. This anxiety about their own past can break down the faith and trust they have in their children.

Parents may also feel resentment toward teenagers. This resentment may come out in comments about the way the teenagers wear their clothes, the friends they keep, how they wear their hair, their choices of movies, or their attitude about life.

Usually, the anger and resentment which parents feel toward their children is covered or hidden, but not always. In addition to anxiety and resentment, parents are often afraid that their children will not measure up to their expectations. This fear can lead to parents refusing to allow the teenager to do things his own way, thus, preventing the youngster from making mistakes--and learning from these mistakes.

Allowing children to seek and discover their own answers to what is best for them is a real and necessary step toward maturity. Parents can view this experience as a tremendous opportunity for furthering their own personal development as well. As the teenager moves toward independence, the parent is able to pursue other interests. This is an excellent time for parents to establish deeper commitments to others--especially to each other.

It is also important for parents to look at their actions. Some questions parents might ask themselves to gain insight into their actions include:

-Are we making time to do what they enjoy doing?
-Do we provide a willing ear whenever our teenager wants to talk?
-Do we tell them we are proud of them?
-Do we say we are sorry or that we made a mistake when we have goofed?
-Are we telling them and showing them that we trust them?
-Do we let our teenagers know that we think they are special?

"Characters must be kept bright as well as clean."
Lord Chesterfield

A caravan of Krueger supporters began a three-day tour of Panhandle and South Plains rural communities on behalf of Democratic U.S. Senate Candidate Bob Krueger in Lubbock, October 31.

The group, including representatives of the Mexican American Rural Coalition and Krueger aides, visited 45 towns during the campaign swing through the area, "meeting and talking with these rural folks and letting them know Bob Krueger has their interests at heart and will represent all Texans in the U.S. Senate, not just the major population centers," said group spokesman Arnold Garcia of Dilley, Texas.

"For 17 years, many citizens, particularly the elderly and minorities, have been ignored by the incumbent Republican Senator, but Bob Krueger has proven to be sensitive to the needs of these groups and ru Texans," he added.

"The 1980's are going be interesting times for people of Texas and nation, and we Texans serve better represent than that provided by Tower," said Garcia. "Krueger is a new, fr face--a spokesman, not jus politician--a voice, not jus vote."

He stated, "I'm delighted to have been involved in the introduction of hybrid sunflowers in the South. CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of saying thank you to the many who have been so kind and thoughtful during Ted's week in the hospital and especially since his sudden death.

Dr. Jordan and Dr. Ochoa and all the nurses and staff at Caprock Hospital couldn't have been more helpful and attentive. It was a great comfort to us to know that he was being cared for so well.

The memorial service brought by Dr. Bradley was just the type Ted would have appreciated.

The music by Christy and Bill was so well done. The entire service was a great help to the family as well as all the friends and other loved ones present.

To each and every one of you who have called, visited, brought and prepared food, sent cards, sent flowers and memorial gifts, and most of all who have prayed, we as a family wish to say thank you from the bottom of our hearts. With our friends' help and God's sustaining grace, these last few days have been made more bearable. Thank you and may God's grace by with you.

The Family of Ted Bell

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

The cotton industry October 6 lost a Senate-passed delay in the enforcement of oppressive, ill-advised cotton dust regulations by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. In its place the industry was tossed a substitute bone of doubtful value in the form of language directing the Secretary of Labor and OSHA to conduct a study of the dust standards.

The loss and bone-tossing came as the Senate-House Conference Committee sought to iron out differences in the Senate and House versions of the Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill. The Senate bill carried an amendment which would have denied funds for implementation of the dust standards until May 1, 1979. The House bill contained no restrictions related to cotton dust.

House conferees, lobbied heavily on one side by the cotton industry and Cotton Belt congressmen and on the other by the Administration and labor representatives, stood firm against the delay. And after an intense debate, including a filibuster which forced a two-hour recess in the Committee, the Senate gave in.

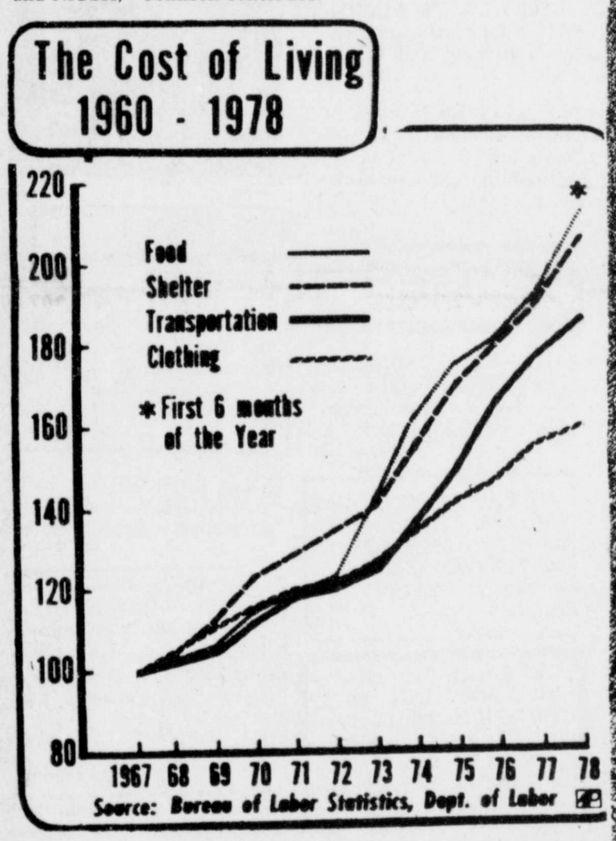

To avoid total defeat, proponents of the delay called for and got an amendment directing the Secretary of Labor and OSHA to conduct a study "which reviews the technical standards . . . in an effort to develop viable alternatives which are less costly and more technologically feasible." Also, the Committee report says the study should review the inflationary impact of the standards and the effect of the standards on the ability of the U.S. cotton and textile industries to compete with foreign industries. Results of the study are to be submitted to the appropriate committees of Congress by March 1 of next year.

"An open-minded effort, uninfluenced by political considerations, to discover more reasonable and less costly alternatives would no doubt be of great benefit," says Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock.

The Labor Department's set-in-concrete attitude since the beginning of cotton dust developments, Johnson continues, gives little reason to believe the study will be useful to any faction except OSHA, the Labor Department and cotton dust crusaders.

However, he points out, the conferees also directed the Secretary of Labor to work with the National Academy of Sciences and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health in conducting the study.

"And if there is any room for optimism concerning results of the study, it must come from confidence in the objectivity of NAS and NIOSH," Johnson concludes.

FOOD IS STILL A GOOD DEAL IN AMERICA, especially when compared to other countries, notes Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

"Citizens in the U. S. spend an average of just 18.5 per cent of their disposable incomes on food, contrasted by 30 per cent in England and Japan, 55 per cent in Russia and almost 85 per cent in some parts of Asia," he pointed out.

TO KEEP WARMEST THIS WINTER, choose garments that are thick but not heavy, or select those that can be worn loosely in layers that trap insulating air next to the body, advises Becky Culp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

An "Early Blur Situation" Kills Hunters

LUBBOCK--The lack of adequate identification or "early blur" prior to the shooter pulling the trigger can tempt the hunter into believing that he actually sees a deer, when in reality, it may be another hunter.

Recent studies by the U.S. military, various universities and clothing industries show that the best defense for a hunter, whether after deer or other game, is to wear outer clothing made from hunter blaze orange.

The hunter, hiker, angler, or trapper who wears clothing of a color that merges into the brush and tree shadows or who is clad in garments of gray or brown is continually giving off deer clues.

These clues such as movement, noise or odor are used by deer hunters as well as the deer to spot or identify an animal or man.

It is apparent from accident reports received and studied by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department hunter safety experts that "hunter judgement" accounts for a large percent of the accidents each year. Of the 36 hunting accidents reported to P&WD since Jan. 1, 1978, 13 have been classified as "hunter judgement" such as victim moved into line of fire; victim covered by shooter swinging on game; victim out of sight of shooter; or victim mistaken for game.

But, many shooting accidents occur when experienced hunters, who do not drink and, are adept at identifying game, shoot another hunter or person.

The human mind can be convinced that a deer is standing in the brush if the conditions such as shadows, light, sound or movement are inadequate for the hunter to identify the target.

This "early blur" condition can be corrected if the person in question is wearing outer clothing with a luminance factor not less than 40 percent, a dominant wave length between 595 and 605 nanometers and an excitation purity not less than 85 percent. This recommended color specifies the daylight flourscent orange or hunter blaze orange which is required on the P&WD wildlife public hunting areas during the deer season and should be on the hunters list of required equipment.

Nature does not produce any object, plant or animal life with these color variations. Many hunters have not gone to the hunter blaze orange for fear of scaring the deer away, but tests have shown that deer do not distinguish different colors, only shades of gray.

Most experienced deer hunters realize that movement scares deer and, therefore, the majority of the succesfull deer hunters are stationary or hidden when they bag their deer.

The P&WD suggest that all hunters, experienced and beginners, take a little more time in identifying their target before pulling the trigger, even if it might mean letting a buck deer slip away in the brush.

A member of the British Parliament once told his 13 year old son on his first hunt "All the pheasants ever bred won't repay for one man dead," and this remark should apply for all wildlife whether in Texas or other states.

WASHINGTON, D.C.--THE ACTION OF THE CONGRESS is sending the proposal to grant the District of Columbia the right to have two U.S. Senators and at least one Representative, should be the beginning of a battle rather than the end of it.

DURING THE CONSIDERATION OF THIS AMENDMENT to the Constitution, there was a zealous lobby working in its behalf and almost no developed opposition to it. It is hoped that a more persistent effort will be made before three-fourths of the State Legislatures ratify the Amendment.
