Birds And Bees Confuse

BERKELEY, Calif. AP—Where do babies come from? Would you believe "from God's place," a "baby store" or even "a duck?"

Those were some of the answers gleaned from 60 youngsters by a clinical psychologist, Dr. Anne Bernstein, who says those cute analogies dreamed up by parents to satisfy inquisitive children have only confused them about where people really come from.

In her doctoral dissertation at the University of California here, Dr. Bernstein tried to find out exactly what children, aged 3 to 12, know about babies.

Her findings, published in Psychology Today, show that most children had a vague and incorrect understanding of reproduction, most often mixed with ideas that babies are "just made" or come from animals.

Dr. Bernstein blamed parents and their "birds and bees" approach.

"As a result," she said, "parental description of sex and birth often sound like morning rollcall on Noah's ark."

In quizzing the children, Dr. Bernstein found their ideas on human reproduction varied according to age. For instance, most children between ages 3 and 4 thought babies were always alive and were simply brought home by their parents, she said.

Answering the question, "How do people get babies?" one child said: "You go to a baby store and buy one," while another said "from God's place." A third child answered: "It just grows inside mommy's tummy...mommy doesn't have to do anything." Still another said "To get a baby, go to the store and buy a duck."

Children between ages 5 and 6 believed that babies were "manufactured by people as if they were refrigerators, TV sets, or automobiles," Dr. Bernstein said.

One child, with a knack for detail explained: "To get a baby to grow in your tummy, you must make it first. You put some eyes on it, put the head on, and hair, and all curls. You make it with head stuff you find in the store that makes it for you. The mommy and daddy ..then put it in the tummy and then it goes quickly out."

Seven-or 8-year-old children reach a "transitional" level, said Dr. Bernstein. They realize fathers are involved in reproduction, but they don't know how.

Although she recommends dropping the "birds and bees" approach, Dr. Bernstein doesn't favor clinical explanations, either, because children will just process the information "through mental jungle gyms" until they create their own version of creation.

Here is Dr. Bernstein's idea of an ideal "introductory lecture" on the subject:

"Only people can make other people. To make a baby person, you need two grownup people, a woman and a man, to be the baby's mommy and daddy. The mommy and daddy make the baby from an egg in the mommy's body and a sperm in the daddy's body."

While such an explanation will satisfy most young children, she advises parents with more inquisitive children to add that "mommies and daddies have special things in their bodies that they use to make babies." She also suggests a simple explanation of the egg and sperm relationship in reproduction.

Today is Monday, Feb. 16, the 47th day of 1976. There are 319 days left in the year. George Washington's birthday is observed today.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1959, Fidel Castro was sworn in as the Premier of Cuba.

On this date:

In 1804, a force of American servicemen under Lieut. Stephen Decatur slipped into the North African port of Tripooli and burned a U.S. Navy frigate which had been captured by pirates.

In 1846, the first Texas state legislature met in Austin.

In 1871, the Franco-Prussian War ended in a defeat for France.

In 1862, during the Civil War, some 15,000 Confederate troops surrendered at Fort Donelson in Tennessee.

In 1918, the English port of Dover was bombarded by a German submarine during World War I.

In 1967, 13 American helicopters were shot down in fighting over South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: The World Council of Churches urged the U.S to halt bombing in North Vietnam and the North Vietnamese to stop infiltrating South Vietnam.

Five years ago: U.S. Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird predicted difficult days ahead in the South Vietnamese drive to cut Communist supply lines in Laos.

One year ago: U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko opened diplomatic talks in Geneva.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, an American military report to the Continental Congress from Georgia listed the problem of defending a long sea coast full of harbors and inlets, and the difficulty of guarding the southern borders from incursions from Florida.

Ford Opposes Moves To Aid Postal Service

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's budget director told Congress today higher postal rates are inevitable and that it should not give the deficit-ridden Postal Service more of the taxpayers' money.

James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, told the Senate Post Office Committee that the Postal Service should cut more of its costs. He opposed giving the service more subsidies.

As Lynn testified, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar released a statement saying the Postal Service cut 15,000 employes from its payroll last year. Calculating in terms of man-years, Bailar said the reduction saves $200 million.

Committee Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., has proposed doubling the Postal Service's $1.5-billion annual subsidy for three years.

Lynn's position is another indication of increasing tension between the White House and the Postal Service.

President Ford recently said of postal managers, "I just don't accept that they are doing as well as they should be doing. We have to prod them, just like we are prodding New York City, to improve their efficiency, their productivity."

The old Post Office Department for nearly 200 years was one of the most political agencies of government. Presidents named postmasters general, and postal policy traditionally was part of administration policy.

However, since the independent Postal Service was formed in 1971, the postmaster general has not been a presidential appointee and the agency's policies sometimes have differed from those of the administration.

Ford wants to hold down government spending and has cut the budget request for the Postal Service.

This comes at a time when the postal Service desperately needs additional funds. It expects a deficit of about $1.5 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30. That amounts to a loss of nearly 2 cents on each piece of mail delivered.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, testifying in favor of the McGee subsidy proposal, has said that without higher taxpayer subsidies, mail rates would continue their upward spiral.

Changes In FEC Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford urged Congress today to restructure the Federal Election Commission with six members appointed by the President and approved by the Senate.

Ford told reporters at the White House he was sending legislation to Congress providing for such a change. He urged Congress to approve it quickly to avoid erosion of public confidence in the political process and prevent abuses in the coming election.

Unless Congress acts, Ford said, the present election commission "will be stripped of most of its powers" in two weeks. "We must not allow that to happen," the President declared.

He urged Congress to allow all actions taken by the present commission to remain in effect until it a new federal election law can be passed incorporating a change in the commission structure.

The Supreme Court ruled Jan. 30 that the Federal Election Commission as structured under the present federal electionn law is unconstitutional because four of its six members are appointed by Congress.

IN BOSTON SCHOOL RIOT

Brutality Charges Traded

BOSTON (AP) — Antibusing demonstrators and police traded charges of brutality after a riot near South Boston High School that left dozens of persons injured and 13 arrested.

At the height of Sunday's melee, police said a crowd of about 400 antibusing marchers wielded bottles, bricks, clubs and tire irons in an attack on police which was coordinated by citizen band radios. The protestors countered that police tried to break up their march for no reason and charged into them on horseback and motorcycles.

Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia called for a grand jury investigation. He charged that the confrontation, in which at least three police officers were hurt, was a conspiracy by hoodlums to injure police.

The fracas erupted during a "Fathers' March" against busing in South Boston, the site of major disruptions since U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. ordered the city schools desegregated in September 1974.

A spokesman for the antibusing group ROAR, Restore Our Alienated Rights, responded with a statement also calling for a federal investigation.

"We demand that diGrazia be dismissed and the Tactical Patrol Force be disbanded," said Richard Laws. The TPF is a riot control squad.

"We further demand a thorough investigation by the U.S. attorney's office of the TPF for violating the constitutional right of freedom of peaceful assembly by the citizens of Boston."

City Council President Louise Day Hicks, a founder of Boston's antibusing organizations, said, "I can truthfully say if there had been no police in South Boston, there would not have been any of this. It was the first time the men had really banded together in protest of forced busing."

There have been several "Mothers' Marches."

Police said it was the first time tear gas was used to break up a demonstration here. They claimed that demonstrators threw tear gas first, and they said they have video tapes to prove that claim.

"At least 30 to 40 police were struck with missiles," police spokesman Norman Halliday said.

The march was organized by a group called the South Boston Marshals. The confrontation erupted when the marchers tried to approach the high school and were met by police.

DiGrazia said the attack was coordinated with citizen band radios and said he would seek an investigation by the Federal Communications Commission. He also said he would seek immediate investigations by the Justice Department and a grand jury.

Police, contending the school was not on the authorized parade route, turned the crowd back.

"I see no reason they shouldn't have been allowed to go up to that school," Mrs. Hicks said.

Last fall, Garrity restricted unauthorized persons from getting close to the school.

Senate Panel Is Told Of Medicaid Kickbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small number of medical laboratories are kicking back millions of dollars in Medicaid funds to physicians in at least five states, investigators told a Senate committee today.

The testimony came as the Senate committee on aging began hearings on allegations of fraud and abuse among medical laboratories. Chairman Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, said in an opening statement that a small number of labs control the bulk of Medicaid payments.

Moss said that 17 labs in New York control 70 per cent of that state's Medicaid business, while 12 labs in New Jersey control nearly 60 per cent of Medicaid payments there. In Illinois, 26 labs control over 90 per cent of the Medicaid business, he said.

The investigation also covered California and Pennsylvania.

Moss said a report by the panel's staff "concludes that, at least in the states which came under investigation, kickbacks are widespread among labs specializing in Medicaid business. In fact, it appears to be necessary to give a kickback in order to secure the business of physicians or clinics who specialize in the treatment of welfare patients.".

Frank L. Holstein, executive director of the New Jersey State Commission of Investigation, told the committee: "Shortcomings and loopholes which had developed in the New Jersey Medicaid program presented a virtual open door to those laboratory owners to profiteer at the taxpayers' expense."

Under the Medicaid program, the state and federal governments are paying out a total of about $180.5 million in the current fiscal year to laboratories for analyses of blood and urine and other specimens taken from the aged, poor, blind and disabled.

In addition, Medicare payments for persons 65 years and older account for an additional $32.5 million.

The panel's staff said that of the total payout of $213 million, at least $45 million is "either fradulent or unnecessary."

One account of the opportunity for kickbacks came from Douglas A. Longhini, an investigator for the Better Government Association of Chicago. In his prepared testimony, Longhini said the BGA, the Chicago Tribune and CBS' "60 Minutes" rented a $400-a-month storefront office on Chicago's northeast side last December.

Longhini said a sign placed in the window advertised it as a medical clinic. In addition, he said, he contacted representatives of 15 Chicago-based laboratories and told them he represented two Illinois doctors who were opening the clinic.

Kissinger Off To Latin America

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is beginning an oft-postponed Latin American tour, hoping to reassure cynical southern allies of their importance to the United States.

His first stop comes in Venezuela today, with Peru, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica and Guatemala to follow before he returns home Feb. 24.

"Kissinger needs to establish a more credible posture in Latin America. We don't pay enough attention to their concerns," said one American specialist.

While attempting to sidestep such divisive issues as Cuba and the Panama Canal, Kissinger will try to highlight friendly overtures. For instance, he will report in Caracas on his efforts to remove a congressionally mandated exclusion of Venezuela from trade preferences.

Venezuela and Ecuador were ordered excluded because of their membership in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which cut off oil exports to the United States in 1973.

Since neither Venezuela nor Ecuador participated in the boycott, the exclusion is resented in Latin America.

Discussions of economics and trade, including the question of nationalization of American property, should help create a more trusting relationship, officials hope.

Although the sensitive issues of Cuba and Panama will come up, American officials say Kissinger will do no lecturing, only explaining.

U.S. acceptance of the Organization of American States' decision last year to allow each member to deal with Cuba individually effectively removes a long boycott of the Castro regi,e.

However, Kissinger will explain that any foreseeable improvement in relations between Washington and Havana has been destroyed by Cuba's intervention in Angola.

And Kissinger will tell the Latin Americans that he expects negotiations on a new treaty on the Panama Canal to produce an accord pleasing to all parties.

The secretary is expected to pressure Latin American leaders to reform the OAS, lift some of the restrictions on it and give it more clout.

Tenneco Reports Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Houston-based international conglomerate has voluntarily revealed making payments to politicans in the United States and to individuals in 24 countries.

Tenneco Inc. reported the payments in a report filed over the weekend with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Company officials said the statment was filed voluntarily because of growing concern about such payments made by other companies.

In the United States, the company said, payments went to political candidates, state utility board chairmen and local government officials from 1970 to 1975.

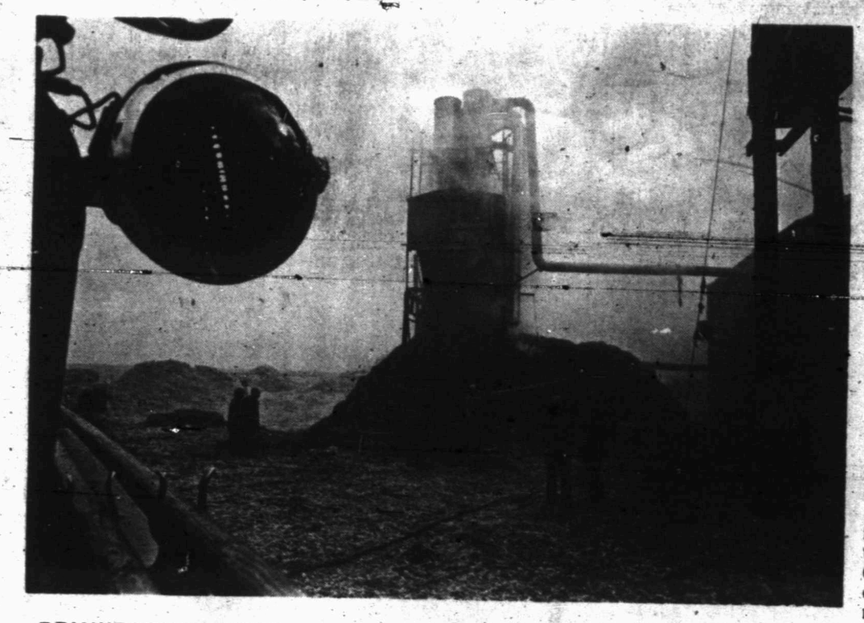
Payments were made by Tenneco or its subsidiaries to public officials or candidates in Louisiana, Florida, Pennsylvania, Texas, Indiana, California, Illinois, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Rhode Island, the company said.

It characterized some of the payments as campaign contributions, but did not describe the nature of others.

Harold Kelley, a former Kentucky Public Service Commission chairman, said he would ask the state attorney general today to investigate the Tenneco report.

Kelley and William Logan, who also served in the post during the period Tenneco said it made cash payments in amounts ranging from $200 to $2,000, both denied receiving money from the firm.

"I would like to know when those payments were supposedly made, who they were paid to and under what circumstances they were paid. Under no circumstances were they paid to me," Kelley said.



DRY WEATHER ROUTINE—Snyder firemen have been kept on the run fighting grass fires and cotton burr fires such as this one Saturday afternoon at the Ira. Gin. A heavy overcast while this one was being extinguished raised hopes for some needed rain, but it never did materialize.

Labor Meeting Marred By Feud

By ROBERT DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A bitter feud among government worker unions marred the opening of the AFL-CIO's winter meeting.

President Jerry Wurf of the American Federation of State, County and Muncipal Employes (AFSCME) withdrew his union from the AFL-CIO's year-old Public Employes Department, denouncing it as "a waste of time and money."

Wurf, whose union was the department's largest affiliate, charged Sunday that the department has not had impact on any legislation crucial to public employes.

"In reaching this decision," he said, "we have been influenced by what we perceive as the domination of the department by private sector unions, the lack of leadership and the department's inability to develop and carry out a coherent program."

In another development as the AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting opened today, construction union leaders said they have dropped plans to campaign against President Ford in the primaries and will urge their members to concentrate their political efforts in behalf of Democratic candidates.

"We don't see any announced candidates in the Republican Party that would be good for the working man," President Robert A. Georgine of the federation's Building and Construction Trades Department told a news conference.

Building Trades, which backed then-President Richard Nixon in 1972, declared last month that it would actively campaign against Ford after he vetoed legislation that would have expanded union picketing rights at construction sites.

But the union chiefs apparently concluded that an anti-Ford campaign would aid his Republican challenger, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, whom the unions also oppose.

The public employes dispute was triggered by Wurf's refusal to pay his union's full dues to the department, but the roots of it went much deeper.

Wurf, one of the few executive council members who often openly disagrees with President George Meany, originally opposed creation of a public employes department. Insiders said he did not want a rival to the Coalition of American Public Employes, an independent group composed of Wurf's union and several non-AFL-CIO organizations.

The dispute does not affect AFSCME affiliation with the parent AFL-CIO, to which it continues to pay its full dues.

Congo Chief In Kinshasa

By The Associated Press

Congo President Marien Ngouabi is in Kinshasa reportedly to act as an intermediary between President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire and Agostinho Neto, head of the victorious Soviet-backed faction in the Angolan civil war.

Zaire has long supported the two pro-Western factions in the neighboring southwest African country. But Mobutu recently indicated he was willing to consider an accomodation with the MPLA (Popular Movement), which has conquered most of Angola. The Congo supports the MPLA.

Mobutu wants assurances the MPLA will not try to take Matadi, Zaire's only Atlantic port, or otherwise threaten his territory. He also would like to resume shipment of Zaire's copper on the Benguela railroad across Angola to the Atlantic. The copper shipments have been interrupted since October.

MPLA forces, spearheaded by thousands of Cuban troops, completed capture of the railroad last week. The MPLA government in Luanda, the Angolan capital, said it expects to restore service on the railroad soon.

China continued to blast Soviet support of the MPLA. The official Peking People's Daily warned Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev "and his ilk" of becoming unduly elated. It said Angola belongs to its people, a truth which will eventually be made apparent to the Soviets by the Angolans themselves.

Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua told a visiting delegation from Zaire that the Angolan and African people will "surely be able to oust all outside interference." Sources in Tokyo said the Zaireans and the Chinese are expected to sign an aid agreement, but they doubted it would include military aid.

Plane Crash Fatal To Four

HOUSTON (AP) — Four Harris County residents were killed Sunday night in the crash of a private plane in a rice field near Mont Belvieu in Chambers County about 25 miles east of Houston.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the plane crashed while on a flight from De Ridder, La., to Baytown, about 10 miles southwest of the crash site.

The dead were identified as Jeannene Jenkins Glass, 30, and Robert Prentiss Glass, 29, both of Pasadena, and Renora Jenkins Carlton, 37, and Sammy Morris Carlton, 32, both of Houston.

The plane was owned by the Humphrey Airport at Baytown, where a spokesman said it had been leased for a private flight.

The plane crashed about a mile south of Farm Road 565.

John Not Candidate But...

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally says he is not a candidate for the presidency but does not rule out the possibility that under certain circumstances he would seek the office.

Connally, a one-time Democrat turned Republican, said on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" program aired Sunday that in order for him to consider running for the GOP presidential nomination, "President Ford would have to voluntarily or—and I hope this doesn't happen—involuntarily be...removed from consideration."

He said the President "is going to have a difficult time in the primaries" and former Gov. Ronald Reagan, Ford's only challenger for the nomination, may win the New Hampshire and Florida primaries.

Connally, acquitted of bribery after being indicted on a charge of accepting money from milk producers for influencing a milk price decision, said the incident should not harm his political career.

"I think everyone...assumes it's going to be a liability...which simply means in one sense that an acquittal in this country is meaningless. You know, I guess if you get indicted you might as well go on and get convicted because even if you get acquitted everybody thinks politically you're dead."

Connally said he had never been asked by former President Richard Nixon to accept the vice presidential spot after Spiro Agnew resigned that post.

He said he received a call from a Nixon aide and was told he was being considered, but "I told him that I thought he ought not to consider me, that I thought he ought to name Congressman Ford."

Ford, then House minority leader, was named to the vice presidency by Nixon and assumed the presidency when Nixon resigned over the Watergate scandal.

Connally, a staunch defender of Nixon, said he speaks with the ex-president by telephone "every two or three weeks" and that he is convinced that Nixon is finished with political life.

He said disclosure of tape recorded conversations in the Oval Office which eventually led to Nixon's downfall was a serious mistake.

"I never believed that the President of the United States was directly involved in it (Watergate)," Connally said.

"...I just couldn't believe it. Not because I have such total and overwhelming confidence in Richard Nixon, because it never made sense to me then, it does not make sense to me now that knowing that those tapes existed that those tapes would have ever survived. I had always assumed that, indeed, if anything like that existed on those tapes they should have been burned. And I advocated that they be destroyed."

He said as soon as the first subpoena for the tapes was issued, he advised Nixon to burn the remaining tapes.

"I said, 'I'd have a bonfire in the Rose Garden and invite in all the press and television and say, "Here they are. They're consigned to a funeral pyre."' That was precisely my recomendation...but it was never done," Connally said.

The oldest map known is a clay tablet found in Iraq. Made about 2300 B.C., it probably shows a man's estate in a valley, according to the World Book Encyclopedia.

New Fighting Erupts In The Spanish Sahara

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The Moroccan government has reported new fighting between Algerian and Moroccan troops in the Spanish Sahara, but the Algerian government denied today that its army was involved.

The Moroccan government announced Sunday that regular Algerian troops using heavy Soviet-made equipment recaptured the Amghala oasis from Moroccan forces on Saturday. An article in the Algerian government newspaper El Moudjahid implied that pro-Algerian guerrillas of the Polisario Front drove the Moroccan troops out of Amghala.

"This false accusation will fool no one," said the Algerian statement. "In truth, it is not new for the fighters of the Polisario Front to inflict bitter defeats on Moroccan and Mauritanian troops."

King Hassan II said there were "dozens" of Moroccan casualties in the attack on the desert outpost 175 miles southwest of the Algerian border.

Hassan sent a telegram to Algeria's President Houari Boumedienne warning against further Algerian military action in the territory, which Spain has agreed to turn over to Morocco and Mauritania on Feb. 29 despite Algerian protests.

The king called on Boumedienne to "either fight a legally declared war or establish an internationally guaranteed peace." He said the Algerian army had repeatedly violated Boumedienne's assurances to him that "no Algerian soldier and no Algerian weapon" would ever be deployed against Moroccan forces in the Spanish Sahara.

Hassan said the Moroccan garrison at Amghala "was treacherously attacked" by Algerian units "in numbers clearly designed for an annihilation mission."

He appealed to Boumedienne to "avoid another tragedy" like the brief but bloody border war the two Arab neighbors fought in 1963.

There was no comment from Algiers, and no independent confirmation of the Moroccan report.

Moroccan troops started replacing Spanish troops in the Spanish Sahara in November. They occupied Amghala, a strategically located oasis settlement of about 100 persons, on Jan. 29 after a three-day battle against a force of Algerian troops and guerrillas of the Algerian-sponsored Polisario Front, which has been fighting for independence.

At that time, Morocco reported capturing 101 Algerian troops and large quantities of equipment.

Algeria said its troops had been escorting a convoy taking food and medical supplies to refugees fleeing from Moroccan rule. Later it issued a statement backing the guerrillas of the Polisario Front and warning of "the risks of a new and generalized military confrontation" between Algeria and Morocco.

Morocco's military commander in the territory announced last week that his forces had taken every remaining Algerian-Polisario stronghold in the past two weeks.

Iran Lowers Crude Oil Price

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran announced today it has lowered the price of its heavy crude oil by 9½ cents a barrel.

Iran had been selling its heavy crude for $11.50 per barrel.

The cut was made because several other Persian Gulf producers have lowered the price of their oil below that set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), the cartel to which they all belong.

Iran's failure to find buyers for its export goal of 6 million barrels per day has resulted in $3 billion a year less oil revenue than anticipated and a deficit of $2.4 billion in the national budget of $45 billion.

Church Is Heldup

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — A shotgun-waving robber and two confederates interrupted the service Sunday night and robbed members of the Pecan Grove Baptist Church.

Sheriff's deputies said the pastor, the Rev. Bruce Hibbitt, was preaching to 23 people in his congregation when the masked bandits burst into the sanctuary.

The holdup men fled with an undetermined amount of money.

The church is less than two miles outside Sherman in North Texas.

At 7:47 a.m. Saturday John Lock, 1901 Coleman, Apt. 3, reported that the CB radio had been taken from his pickup.

University Song Nonsexist

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania State University has a new, "nonsexist" version of its 75-year-old Alma Mater.

Recognizing that there are thousands of faithful students and alumnae who never "stood at boyhood's gate" and at no time were "molded into men," the university has revised the song.

The "boyhood's gate" mentioned in the song — "When we stood at boyhood's gate, shapeless in the hands of fate" — has been forever locked, replaced by the more equitable "childhood's gate."

And no longer will sons — and daughters — of Alma Mater proclaim in song: "Thou didst mold us, dear old State, into men, into men."

The words have been changed to read: "Thou didst mold us, dear old State, dear old State, dear old State."

The changes were approved by Dr. John W. Oswald, president of the university.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "No matter what system you play there are going to be occasions when you just don't have a proper bid."

Jim: "Even when you have an obvious bid, it doesn't mean that you will get the best result from your action."

Oswald: "South has 14 high-card points, made up of aces and kings. His hand clearly calls for an opening bid, but he is too weak for one notrump and has no biddable suit. He opens one diamond. North bids rather unscientifically to six diamonds."

Jim? "The contract wraps up. South draws trumps with three leads, cashes dummy's king and queen of hearts, enters his hand with the ace of spades, discards one of dummy's clubs on the ace of hearts and winds up with twelve easy tricks."

Oswald: "I have to admit that I constructed the North, East and West hands. A club lead beats six diamonds if North plays the hand and six notrump is beaten by perfect defense so South's doubtful diamond opening is a real winner."

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know what we do as dealer with:
♠ A K 2 ♥ A 5 4 3 ♦ 7 6 3 2 ♣ K 2.

We have attempted to answer this question with today's article. One diamond won't often work out as well as it does this time, but year in and year out it will give the best results.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—More than 2 million Texans are enrolled today in credit union plans for saving and borrowing.

Currently, there are 903 federal credit unions operating in Texas, as well as 514 statechartered C.U.'s, and memberships in the latter swelled last year from 856,579 to more than 1 million.

Some of the larger state-chartered associations can boast thousands of members and many millions of dollars in deposits, but Texas Credit Union Commissioner J.P. (Pete) Parsons tells us that "every state credit union started with a handful of people and a pocketful of money."

It's easy to apply for a state charter if you have a proposal from seven people with a "Definable community of interest" who can convince the commissioner that their plan for a credit union meets the criteria for "reasonable anticipation of success." A $50 investigation fee is charged, and if approval follows, there is a $25 charter fee.

The range of "community of interest" is reflected in existing associations of state, municipal, and county employes; teachers; farmers; church members; optometrists; petrochemical workers; fraternal organizations, railroad employes, and hospital staffs—to name a few.

Although state-chartered credit unions have been operating under close state supervision for more than 26 years, under stringent regulations about the relationship of loans to deposits, many Texans were shocked in 1973 when the Amarillo Air Force Base Credit Union suffered severe problems from managerial irregularities.

Our Attorney General's Insurance, Banking & Securities Division, as legal counsel to the Texas Credit Union Department, joined Amarillo District Attorney Tom Curtis in an investigation which led to several grand jury indictments.

We concluded that case successfully late in 1975, recovering $750,000 on the fidelity bond, without any loss to Amarillo A.F.B. Credit Union depositors.

The Amarillo episode led to legislation, however, which will benefit all state-chartered credit unions. With the help of Governor Briscoe, Amarillo legislators and the Credit Union Department, we effected amendments to the Texas act which gave the state agency additional muscle for averting potential disasters.

Lawyers in our office have worked closely with Commissioner Parsons to implement the 1973 law, and state C.U. stability in the year 1975 proved the efficacy of the strengthening amendments.

The Legislature also authorized the Texas Credit Union Commission to issue regulations requiring all credit unions in Texas to protect their members with "share and deposit insurance." The share insurance, covering up to $40,000 per individual account, is almost identical to that offered by banks and savings & loan associations.

So far, 124 of the 514 state-chartered unions have opted for federal insurance coverage; another 286 have established the new state program, and the other 104 C.U.'s must be in the program by July 1, or face possible suspension.

The "self-help" concept and low loan interest rates of credit unions make them attractive to many Texas consumers seeking an alternative for saving and borrowing.

Easter Seal Appeal Opens On March 1

The 1976 Easter Seal Appeal will officially open in Scurry County on Monday, March 1, according to Cecil J. Boren Snyder who serves as Easter Seal Representative for the county. Easter Seal Appeal letters will arrive at homes in the county beginning March 1.

The Easter Seal Representative is the person to contact to request services from the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas. These services include physical and occupational therapy, speech and hearing programs and special information services to help solve the many problems faced by the families of handicapped children and adults.

Last year 10,768 handicapped people received help from the Texas Easter Seal Society and its statewide network of treatment centers and local volunteer programs. With the costs of providing expert professional care rising, more money than ever will be needed to assist more disabled Texans and remain ahead of inflation.

More Tip-offs on Spouse Slip-ups

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, received an anonymous telephone call concerning my husband. It went something like this:

The phone rang in my office in our small-town, weekly newspaper, and the woman who called asked my identity and then said:

"Is your daughter home?"

"Which one?" I asked. "I have three."

"The one who's a nurse!"

"A nurse? Why do you ask?"

"Well, I just saw your husband drive by Mt. Pleasant and Roosevelt, and he had a young woman dressed in white with him!"

I laughed (I couldn't help it), then she banged down the receiver.

The small cafe next to us had only two girls working there (in midafternoon), and one of them had caught her hand in a mixer. The other girl asked if one of us would please drive the injured girl to the emergency hospital, and it was easier for my husband to get away than it was for me, so he drove her there.

What did that woman expect to gain except to make me unhappy?

I'm glad I laughed. It must have taken the wind out of her sails.

RUTH IN IOWA

DEAR RUTH: I happen to agree with you. But read on for a letter from someone who disagrees with both of us.

DEAR ABBY: When I read your advice to the woman who had received an anonymous call telling her that her husband was having an affair, I became furious. You told that woman that the caller was probably a miserable person trying to make others miserable, and the wife should forget about the call!

Well, Abby, let me tell my story: I, too, was married to a fine, professional man for a number of years. I, too, received an anonymous phone call telling me that my husband was having an affair with his secretary. I, too, was dumbfounded. However, instead of forgetting it, I did my own investigating and discovered that my husband was in fact dating his secretary—and had been for some time.

In my opinion, the person who informed me was not a "miserable person" trying to make me miserable. She was simply a friend who was trying to tip me off.

I think it is absolutely disgusting that the wife is always the last to know about her husband's extracurricular activities. I'd rather be miserable knowing the truth about my husband than live in "ignorant bliss" with a man who makes a mockery out of his marriage vows.

THROWING THE BUM OUT

DEAR ABBY: My 86-year-old mother always starts up an argument with me whenever we have company. I am a nervous person and flare up quickly, and before you know it, there is a big battle raging.

This happened again over the holidays, and my married children who were visiting me at the time packed up their kids and put their luggage in the car, and it was "Adios, Amigos!"

This was very humiliating to me, Abby. It's happened before, but I can't seem to prevent it. Don't tell me to lock Grandma in her room or send her down the basement. She won't go.

WIDOW IN INDIANA

DEAR WIDOW: Has it ever occurred to you that your elderly mother may be emotionally or mentally unstable? It takes two to battle. Whether your mother is right or wrong, to keep the peace, keep quiet, and you'll have your problem solved.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Enrollment In Medicare Open

People who didn't sign up for Medicare medical insurance when they first became eligible or who have cancelled the protection once can enroll now through March 31 at any social security office, according to Don Minyard, Social Security Branch Manager in Big Spring.

Medicare medical insurance is offered automatically to people who reach 65 and are eligible for social security benefits, and to disabled people under 65 who have been entitled to monthly social security disability benefits for 24 consecutive months or more. Nine out of 10 people eligible are enrolled in the program, according to Minyard.

"But some people decline the protection when they're first eligible," he said. "And some sign up once and cancel later. They can enroll in the first three months of any year."

The medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses and is the voluntary part of Medicare, funded by individual premiums and Federal general revenues. The basic premium is $6.70 a month through June 1976. It will be increased to $7.20 for the 12-month period starting in July 1976.

"People who decline Medicare medical insurance and delay signing up for more than a year pay a higher premium," Minyard noted. "People who sign up and cancel later can re-enroll only once."

The medical insurance supplements Medicare hospital insurance. Hospital insurance is funded by social security contributions from workers, employers, and self-employed people.

"People 65 and over who are not eligible for social security benefits can apply at any social security office and get medicare hospital insurance by paying a premium," Minyard said. "The basic premium is $40 a month through June 1976. It will be increased to $45 a month for the period July 1976 through June 1977. People who buy hospital insurance must also sign up for the medical insurance," he said.

People who have worked long enough under Social Security can get Medicare hospital and medical insurance for themselves and their family if they have permanent kidney failure.

Medicare is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Big Spring Social Security office is at 501 Main. The phone number is 267-5226.

Cold Front Hits Texas

By The Associated Press

Another cold front invaded Texas today without offering much prospect for change in the state's weather pattern.

Its forward edge in early morning stretched along a line from Amarillo in the Panhandle southward past Midland in West Texas, and there were no big changes in temperatures.

About all the new frontal zone did was serve as a sort of fence between two kinds of weather—cool, dry air and clear skies across West Texas in its wake and warm, damp air with cloudy to partly cloudy skies farther east in Central and East Texas.

Unfortunately, forecasters saw little prospect for moisture across the drought-ridden state. They predicted occasional thundershowers in North Central Texas by evening.

Temperatures near dawn were mild, ranging from 35 degrees at Dalhart and 38 at Amarillo in the Panhandle up to 70 at Cotulla and Victoria, 71 at Corpus Christi and 72 at McAllen in the extreme south.

Sunday afternoon's top marks reached into the 80s at nearly a dozen points, going as high as 82 at Alice and Corpus Christi.

George Halted Doctors' Efforts

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — George Washington, exhausted from illness and medical treatment, asked his doctors to cease their efforts and let him die. They did, says Dr. F. Marc LaForce.

They did not resort to the one radical procedure available which might have prolonged his life, because it had never been tried in the United States, LaForce said.

LaForce, chief of medical service at Veterans Administration Hospital, Denver, notes that the first president's behavior is not particularly unusual.

He said in a telephone interview that patients "sort of know" when they are going to die and say to their physicians, "Please, don't."

He said that in Washington's case, his three doctors "were willing to let go because they had nothing else to offer."

One of the doctors, Elisha Dick, suggested a tracheotomy — surgical creation of a hole in the windpipe to make breathing easier.

This is the one procedure which might have prolonged Washington's life, LaForce said, because medical records indicate he had a severe upper respiratory obstruction.

But it had never before been done in the United States and was considered such a radical procedure that the two other physicians rejected the suggestion, LaForce said.

Washington had been blistered and bled, accepted medical procedures for his time, and was no doubt severely weakened by the treatment, he said.

Finally, after a fourth bleeding without improvement in his condition, Washington said, "I feel myself going. I thank you for your attention. You had better not take any more trouble about me but let me go off quietly; I cannot last long."

Around midnight Dec. 14, 1799, he died, at age 67, 48 hours after becoming ill with a sore throat.

LaForce, whose hobby is history, recounted Washington's fatal illness in a paper presented in Tucson, Ariz., to the American Medical Women's Association.

Pilot Rescued 36 Hours After Crash

CONROE, Tex. (AP) — William Travis Rains was in the intensive care unit of a hospital with multiple injuries today but he would be the first to say he is lucky to be alive.

Rescuers found Rains, 38, of Pasadena Sunday 36 hours after his light plane crashed near here.

Despite head injuries, a broken ankle and cuts and bruises, Rains managed to crawl 75 feet away from the wrecked plane to a dirt road.

Johnny Staggs, a Texas Department of Public Safety officer, said Rains, an employe of Charter Oil Co. of Houston, was returning from Dallas Friday morning when the single engine plane he was piloting stalled and crashed into a clump of trees about five miles northwest of the Montgomery County airport.

Civil Air Patrol planes spotted the wreckage about noon Sunday and rescuers reached Rains a short time later.

"I'm so glad to see you, I could kiss you," Staggs said Rains told him and the other rescuers who first reached the injured pilot.

Staggs said Rains then asked for a drink of water. He had had nothing to eat or drink.

"He was conscious and sitting up against a bank where the road had washed out when we found him," Staggs said. "He seemed in pretty good spirits. He told us he had crawled from the plane after the crash but had not moved from there."

Staggs said Rains had taken his shirt off after the crash to stop the bleeding from a large gash on his forehead. That left him only his trousers and shoes to protect him from the chilly night.

Rains told Staggs he "couldn't walk." "My leg just wouldn't hold up," he told the officer.

Staggs said there was "nothing left of the plane."

"The crash tore the whole front end off," Staggs said. "He was thrown from the plane through the windshield."

Rains told Staggs he was trying to land at Conroe because fog had reduced visibility at Houston airports.

The crash site "was pretty deserted", Staggs said, "and we had to carry him in the back of a pickup truck for about a half mile because the ambulance could not get that far in."

Conoco Grants To 20 Colleges

HOUSTON—Twenty Texas colleges and universities will receive a total of $127,100 from Continental Oil Company's record 1976-77 aid to education program, it was announced by Tom W. Sigler, senior vice president and coordinator of North American activities. This total is $13,250 higher than the company's contribution to Texas schools last year.

The awards include grants, scholarships and fellowships.

Grants totaling $100,500 go to Baylor College of Medicine, Hardin-Simmons University, University of Houston, LeTourneau College, Prairie View A & M College, Rice University, St. Thomas University, South Texas College of Law, Southern Methodist University, Sul Ross College, Texas A & I University, Texas A & M University, Texas Southern University, Texas State Technical Institute, Texas Tech University, and the University of Texas—including U of T at Dallas and Permian Basin.

The following colleges will receive a total of $18,600 in scholarships for outstanding undergraduate students: University of Houston, Lamar University, North Harris County College, Rice University, Southern Methodist University, Texas A & M University, and the University of Texas.

Two fellowships totaling $8,000 will be awarded to Texas A & M University and the University of Texas.

Recipients of scholarships and fellowships are selected by the colleges.

One hundred and forty-eight colleges, universities and educational institutions will share in this year's budget of $1.2 million, the largest in the company's history. Conoco has contributed a total of more than $8.7 million to support higher education since the company program began in 1956.

Among special funds provided this year are $35,000 in scholarships for outstanding students employed by the company during the summer months.

Fifteen percent of the grants, fellowships and scholarships are designated for minority colleges, programs and students.

Conoco also sponsors a college scholarship program for children of employees and has a corporate aluminus plan under which the company matches any contribution up to $1,000 a year made by an employee to the college of his choice.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Author-illustrator Don Freeman has designed a new seal for the Society of Children's Book Writers annual book award, The Golden Kite.

Freeman's design depicts a child standing on a hill flying a kite. It will be embossed on gold foil for each year's winning book and on silver foil for the honor books.

JOINS PALMER BANK—Richard A. Sterling, a native of Ira, has been named cashier of Commercial State Bank of Palmer. A graduate of Texas Tech, Sterling was formerly manager of the Federal Land Bank Association at Shamrock, and most recently served as a credit analyst for the Federal Land Bank of Houston.

Fanne's Arkansas Trip Is Success

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Fanne Foxe ended her first excursion into Rep. Wilbur Mills' home district Sunday night, and her local promoter claimed the gig at this city's only striptease club was a success.

"Most people were pleasantly surprised by her hard work and talent," said Bob Troutt, manager of the Gaslight Speakeasy. "We had only a few threats, and the two off-duty plain clothes police officers had nothing to do all week but watch."

Troutt said he received one threatening letter. "It was childish and stupid and nothing came of it," he said.

He added that he also received two phone calls complaining about Miss Foxe's appearance in Little Rock.

"Both came from women supporters of Mills who had never seen her act," Troutt said.

Troutt denied allegations that he brought Miss Foxe to Arkansas to embarrass Mills, who is pondering a decision to seek re-election.

"I'm just trying to get people into my club," he said. "Mills could have done himself some good by sending her a dozen roses and wishing her good luck as an old friend. But he ignored her."

Miss Foxe, who turned 40 Saturday, says she is no longer a stripper. She now labels herself an "entertainer," "an actress" and "a performer."

"We're not very good yet — I'm no good with the comedy and I don't have a singing voice," Miss Foxe said. "But we think we'll get better."

Troutt said only one of the estimated 2,000 customers who paid $3 apiece to see the "Argentine firecracker" complained that she didn't strip.

"Hell, with the see-through clothes she wears you can see about all you want," Troutt said. "I think a woman of 40 looks better with some clothes on."

Miss Foxe said she was a bit aprehensive about coming to Arkansas. Last fall she cancelled a Little Rock visit to promote her book about her relationship with Mills because of what her agent termed "threats on her life."

"At first I was a little worried," Miss Foxe said. "But I've been treated very well. I don't think anything could happen to me here that couldn't happen in any other place like this."

The Gaslight Club is located in the basement of a downtown hotel that has been abandoned for two years. Her unpainted dressing room was dimly lit, and furnished with only two folding chairs and a metal bed. She shared the dressing room with her two male dancing companions.

Speculation about homogenized milk

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am enclosing an article from the National Enquirer pointing out the danger of drinking homogenized milk. According to the article, "the fat in milk contains a substance called xanthine oxidase, an enzyme. This enzyme will attack the heart and its arteries if it enters the bloodstream and it is able to get into the blood from homogenized milk." Since then I've been worried about drinking homogenized milk. Is it really dangerous? Is it really a good idea to boil the milk before drinking it to kill the xanthine oxidase? I would be very much interested in your opinion.

DEAR READER—This idea has been publicized through the efforts of Dr. Kurt A. Oster and is about as you relate it. Dr. Oster thinks that heart disease first became a problem about the time that homogenized milk came on the market. He claims that homogenizing the milk breaks down the fat molecules into small particles (which is true) and makes it easier then for the enzyme, which is attached to fat globules, to be absorbed through the intestinal wall.

Dr. Edwin L. Bierman of the University of Washington in Seattle and Dr. Robert E. Shank of Washington University in St. Louis, recently reviewed this theory in an editorial for the Journal of the American Medical Assn. and they point out several important facts that the Oster theory ignores.

The truth is that the increase in heart and vascular disease had already begun well before homogenized milk was widely used. Moreover, the incidence has declined recently although the use of homogenized milk has not.

Still more important, enzymes are proteins and the acid and pepsin material in the stomach breaks down proteins as the first stage of digestion. Presumably the Oster enzyme is not immune to normal digestion and would no longer be an enzyme after passing through the stomach.

There is no satisfactory proof the enzyme would be absorbed through the intestine into the blood stream if it escaped the digestive process of the stomach. Small protein molecules with molecular weights of less than 80,000 can be absorbed but the Oster enzyme has a molecular weight of 300,000. Neither Drs. Bierman nor Shank think any of the research Oster has advanced to support the idea that it is absorbed permits any such conclusion at all.

Finally, there is no proof that the enzyme in question really does decrease the normal protective mechanisms within arteries and permit atherosclerosis to occur, leading to heart and vascular disease.

Drs. Bierman and Shank pretty well sum up the attitude of knowledgeable scientists with this statement in their editorial. "The conclusion seems warranted that a hypothesis has been stated and restated by a single protagonist (Oster). It remains tenuous and implausible and requires support from critically designed experiments. At this time it is far from an established fact that the drinking of homogenized milk contributes to mortality from coronary artery disease through the intestinal absorption of bovine xanthine oxidase. To advise the public to avoid homogenized milk or to boil milk for this purpose, on the basis of the meager published evidence, is unwarranted and unjustified." Fluorocarbons May Be Banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fluorocarbons, which are used as propellants in spray cans, may be banned by the federal government because they might lead to an increase in skin cancer, says the head of the Food and Drug Administration.

Alexander Schmidt said in an interview Sunday in U.S. News & World Report, "There is a theory that fluorocarbons may destroy the ozone layer in our atmosphere that filters out ultraviolet light. The fear is that the result may be an increase in skin cancer."

Schmidt said the National Academy of Sciences is studying the available evidence now and expects to produce a report within the year. Then the FDA will make a decision, he said.

"It's a fad and can be dangerous as well as wasteful. For one thing, large doses of vitamins A and D can be toxic and even lethal," he said.

CLAIMS MOSBACHER

Bentsen Pullout Will Aid Ford

HOUSTON (AP) — The finance chairman of the President Ford Committee says the recent decision by U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., to withdraw from active presidential campaigning will attract Democratic votes to Ford.

Robert Mosbacher said supporters of Bentsen, who remains a "favorite son" candidate in Texas, will switch to the GOP because "they see very little chance of a moderate getting the (Democratic) nomination."

"Ford will be able to draw from the middle" better than former California Gov. Ronald Reagan would, he said.

Mosbacher, a Houstonian named head of the Ford Committee's finances in December, said Sunday at a news conference that total money contributions to Ford's 1976 campaign probably will surpass those of Reagan this month.

He said that last count showed Reagan had raised $2.3 million from contributors and Ford $2.2 million.

"Unless Reagan's moving awfully hard and fast, we'll pass him," Mosbacher said.

The chief fund raiser for the President said he hopes Ford will campaign in Texas before the state's May 1 presidential primary but he knows of no plans for such a trip.

"I think he'll continue to travel as little as possible," Mosbacher said.

Mosbacher said the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision striking most of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1974 will change Ford's effort "virtually none."

Since Ford, like all major candidates, has accepted funds for campaigning, he must abide by the $10 million primary election spending limit.

The Court's ruling has paved the way for the independent committee to help without affecting the ceiling but Mosbacher said he is "sorta nervous" about the possibility since any new group's "independence" would surely be scrutinized.

He said he did not think the President would run as an independent if he fails to get the Republican nomination.

Conservatives Now Working For Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservatives who a short while ago were toying with the idea of a third party now are concentrating on winning the Republican nomination for Ronald Reagan.

The former California governor handily won a presidential preference straw poll Sunday at the Conservative Political Action Conference here where conservatives from around the nation met.

Reagan got 268 votes in the balloting, President Ford only got two votes, while 51 votes went to Democratic Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. Libertarian Party candidate Roger MacBride of Virginia came up with 23.

Only persons officiallly registered for the three-day conference were eligible to cast a ballot.

Sentiment at the conference sponsored by the American Conservative Union (ACU) and Young Americans for Freedom (YAF) was that Ford is a fine human being but not of conservative presidential timber.

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, who unsucessfully challenged Richard M. Nixon in the 1972 primaries, said Ford is trying to be a moderate, middle-of-the-roader, like many of his predecessors in the White House.

"It's been a presidential problem," he said. "In Ohio, the only thing we ever found in the middle of the road is yellow stripes and dead skunks."

Buoyed by Reagan's challenge to Ford in the GOP primaries, there was little talk among the conservatives at the meeting of trying to launch a third-party movement for the Californian. At their conference last year, the main topic was whether to lay the groundwork for another party as an alternate to the Ford candidacy.

But John Sears, Reagan's campaign manager, told a reporter before the straw poll that his boss hasn't changed his mind about not accepting a third party nomination.

Meanwhile, there were these political developments:

—Officials of Ford's campaign committee claim his election prospects are improving. They say this is mainly because earlier plans for the Feb. 24 New Hampshire primary and the March 9 Florida primary now are beginning to come to maturity. Ford spent the weekend campaigning in Florida.

—Reagan, also campaigning in Florida, drummed on his campaign theme of government mismanagement and "social tinkering."

—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash, predicted he would win the Massachusetts and New York Democratic presidential primaries, but he conceded the Florida primary to Wallace.

—Time magazine reported that a nationwide poll shows Americans, by a margin of 55 to 31, would prefer to see a Democrat elected president. But the poll also found that Ford was rated as the most acceptable candidate by 58 per cent of the 1,002 persons surveyed.

—In Mississippi's county conventions, the second step in the Democratic delegate-selection process, Wallace held a continuing lead of nearly half the votes from earlier precinct caucuses. The second largest group was uncommitted, while former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Sargent Shriver were running third and fourth, respectively.

Pill Linked To Liver Tumors

CHICAGO (AP) — A Kentucky medical research group reports that oral contraceptives may cause tumors of the liver.

Doctors from the University of Louisville School of Medicine wrote in the Feb. 16 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association that 13 young women developed liver tumors after taking birth control pills. Nine of the tumors were benign, four malignant.

The patients were young, nonalcoholic, generally healthy and free of liver disease, said surgeon E. Truman Mays, M.D.

The exact role of contraceptive pills in liver tumors is unproved, he said, "but a possible link between these pills and hepatic (liver) tumor seems increasingly likely."

However, a study done by the Population Council released over the weekend found that the mortality risk among women who use the pill and other major birth control measures is generally lower than the risk of death from pregnancy itself.

As an exception, the study noted that the risk of death from oral contraceptives is higher than that from pregnancy for women over 40. It recommended alternative methods of birth control for women in the over-40 age bracket.

Course Introduced

WATERLOO, Ont. (AP) — The University of Waterloo will introduce a new co-operative program in honors geography this fall, the university has announced.

Co-op geography students will alternate every four months between campus and jobs in government, public agencies and private locations to work in the area of geography.

South Plains Teams To Face WTC Here Tonight

South Plains College brings its basketball teams to Scurry County Coliseum tonight for conference engagements with Western Texas College teams, and for the women's teams it will be a showdown for the league title.

WTC's Dusters can win the conference crown out-right with a victory tonight. If SPC's women's team should win, the two will be co-champions.

The WTC Westerners and South Plains will tangle in the second game of the doublebill. The women's game is booked for a 6 p.m. tipoff, while the men's game will begin at 8 p.m.

The Westerners, leading the league by a one-game margin at 10-3, can't afford to breathe easy, however. The South Plains quintet is 12-10 for the season and 7-7 in conference play, and on a given night is capable of knocking off anyone in the conference.

The Westerners must win tonight to make certain that they maintain their lead when they go to Roswell on Thursday to face New Mexico Military Institute. NMMI and Amarillo are tied for second place at 10-4.

Coach Sid Simpson's Dusters have just returned from Plainview where they dropped a 74-64 decision Saturday to the Wayland College Queens at the Wayland homecoming. The Dusters made a game of it until the Queens' bench strength began to pay off just before half-time. WTC was playing without its leading scorer and rebounder, Marilyn Payton, who was ill.

However, Theresa Beal of WTC dominated the individual statistics in the game by scoring 26 points and pulling down 12 rebounds. The Dusters led until the Queens tied it at 29-29 with 3:11 left in the first half. Wayland opened up a 63-49 advantage with 6:25 left in the game, but WTC put on a rally that closed the margin to the final 74-64 reading.

"I had to be proud of our team," said Coach Sid Simpson of the Dusters. "We hope to have Payton back tonight, and hopefully nobody else will be out for tonight's game.

The Dusters are now 19-3 for the season. They defeated South Plains by a score of 57-44 earlier in the season at Levelland, and at the time, the Levelland team was undefeated.

The SPC women's team still has lost only three games over the season. Their leading scorer is 5-11 Lesa Risinger.

Pageantry Closes Out 12th Winter Olympics

INNSBRUCK (AP) — The 12th Winter Olympic Games passed into history with a show of pageantry in the shadow of the Tyrolean Alps.

"I must now declare the 12th Olympic Winter Games closed," said International Olympic Committee President Lord Killanin of Ireland, ringing down the curtain on this 12-day international celebration of ice and snow and athletic endeavor.

The large Olympic flag which hung over the Ice Stadia was lowered as the international cast of athletes, gathered informally around the hall, looked on Sunday night. It will be raised again in four years at Lake Placid, N.Y.

The only event held on the final day of these Games was the 90-meter ski jump which was won, fittingly, by the host Austrians. The rest of the day was devoted to the closing ceremonies, a figure skating exhibition, the evacuation of athletes and the aftermath of the Saturday night barroom brawl involving some U.S. hockey players.

The brawl cast a shadow over the otherwise successful performance of the U.S. squad here. The United States won 10 medals — including golds by figure skater Dorothy Hamill and speed skaters Sheila Young and Peter Mueller — to finish third in the over-all standings.

That was just two short of the all-time best of 12 won by the American team in 1932 at Lake Placid, an impressive showing for a country that has only one Olympic-size speed skating rink, only one bobsled run and virtually no financial support from the government.

The Soviet Union, with its precision hockey team, powerful speed skaters and virtually tireless cross country skiers, piled up 13 gold medals and 27 total in the 37 events. East Germany was second with seven golds and 19 total.

Unlike the bloody Summer Olympics in Munich four years ago or the confusion that has marked preparations for the Games this summer in Montreal, these Olympics went off smoothly, quietly and with relatively few disputes. That may explain why the brawl involving some U.S. hockey players attracted so much attention. Whatever the reason, it was the subject of discussion throughout Innsbruck Sunday.

Following their crushing 4-1 loss to West Germany, a defeat which cost the U.S. a bronze medal, a dozen or so American hockey players went out on the town Saturday night to drown their sorrows in beer.

There are several versions of how the altercation began. Pat Sullivan, U.S. Olympic counsel, said one of the Americans went into the cellar of a local tavern looking for his parents.

"I don't know what happened," said Sullivan. "The hockey player said 'Someone pushed me and I pushed him back.'"

Words were exchanged. A tray of beer was spilled. "A restaurant bouncer got into the controversy and the American boy was on the floor," said Sullivan. "His friends went to help him."

50-Footer Makes Carner $6,500 Hero

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — JoAnne Carner figured she'd be "either a bum or a hero" when she aimed a risky 50-foot chip shot at the flag in a playoff with Sandra Palmer. She turned out to be a $6,400 hero.

"I always say you are either a bum or a hero on a shot like that," Mrs. Carner said Sunday after knocking in the chip shot for a birdie on the second playoff hole and claiming top money two holes later.

"I had to place it just perfectly," she added. "Luckily, I was a hero."

Mrs. Carner ended the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Orange Blossom Classic on the fourth playoff hole when she tapped in a par putt after rimming the hole on a birdie try. Miss Palmer, who earned $4,750, was short on a long putt for par.

Mrs. Carner sank a 20-foot birdie putt on No. 17 to force the playoff. She ended up regulation play with a one-over-par 73 on the 6,500-yard Seminole Lakes Country Club course to Miss Palmer's 69 for 209.

Third place, worth $3,450, went to Sandra Haynie of Fort Worth, who closed with a 68 and finished a shot behind the leaders.

Jane Blalock finished with 73 for 213 to tie for fourth with Gloria Ehret and Sally Little for $2,241 each. Kathy Whitworth soared to a 76 for 216 and a tie with four others for 10th place, worth $1,125.

Aggies Now Face Endurance Test

By William R. Barnard
AP Sports Writer

Texas A&M has completed its Trial by Fire. Now comes its Trial of Endurance.

Last week, the Aggies tested their closest competitors for the Southwest Conference basketball title and emerged in better position than they started with.

The competition shouldn't be as stiff this week but the maroon-clad Aggies must take the court three times in five days, beginning Tuesday night at Houston's Hofheinz Pavilion. Then it's home Thursday against Texas Christian and a television game Saturday afternoon against Arkansas, who handed A&M one of its two losses in 12 games.

Coach Shelby Metcalf's crew started last week by losing to Southern Methodist, but the Aggies took back the lead Saturday with a 73-64 victory over Texas Tech. Then Baylor helped the A&M cause by stopping SMU 96-86—leaving A&M 10-2, Tech 10-3 and SMU 10-4.

"This has been a rough week, but this makes it worth it," said Matcalf of the victory over the Red Raiders, in which senior Sonny Parker hit 24 points and freshman Karl Godine added 20 on seven of eight field goals in the second half. "If you had told me Tuesday night or Wednesday morning (after the loss to SMU) what was going to happen, it would have been an easier week."

The loss by SMU to Baylor was especially important to A&M because the Aggies now can afford to lose one of its remaining four games and still get a ticket to the conference tournament finals March 6 because of two victories over Texas Tech.

"We've got the momentum now and are ready to go to Houston," Metcalf said.

Tech center Rick Bullock started out like he was planning to score 80 points as he tallied 16 of the Red Raiders' first 20 points and had two quick three-point plays. But he picked up his third foul with eight minutes left in the first half and wasn't a factor after that although he finished with 25 points.

"The momentum changed when Rick Bullock got his third foul of the first half," said Tech's Gerald Myers. "We had to take him out and he really couldn't get aggressive in the second half."

Baylor's victory over SMU, Arkansas' 83-66 triumph over TCU and a surprise 95-86 victory by Texas over Houston served to further muddle the all-important middle of the conference standings.

Snead's Dream Almost Fizzles

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "That," said J.C. Snead, "was the longest 24 hours I've ever spent.

"I played that round all night long. I thought I'd never get to sleep. Then when I woke up, I thought I'd already won the golf tournament.

"It was kind of a disappointment when I realized I had to go out and play it again."

And the big, rangy, drawling nephew of Sam Snead almost let it get away. He watched a commanding five-shot lead dwindle, diminish and all but disappear in the face of a charge by veteran Don Bies.

"I was just trying to hang on," Snead said. "I didn't think I was choking, but I guess I did, because I hit some shots out there I wouldn't normally hit."

Then he paused and let a big, broad smile brighten his face.

"But I won. That's what counts. I won it."

Snead, who led or shared the lead through all 72 holes, had to birdie the final hole to do it. He won the Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament for the second consecutive year with a final round of par 72 on the 7,047-yard South course at the Torrey Pines Country Club and a 272 total, 16 under par.

Bies, who started the bright, sunny final day six shots back, closed to within one with a last round 67 and 273.

Mike Morley, Australian Bruce Crampton and 46-year-old Don January were next at 275. Morley had a 69, Crampton 68 and January 70. Bud Allin was alone at 276 after a closing 68.

Miller Barber, seeking to become only the 10th man to reach $1 million in career winnings, fell just $889 short after his 72 had left him in a tie for 15th place at 279.

2 Aggies Ineligible

DALLAS (AP) — Texas A&M basketball starters Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams have been declared ineligible for the remainder of the Southwest Conference season, league officials said today.

Dr. Kenneth Harrick of Texas Christian University and president of the SWC, said the action followed a meeting Sunday in Dallas of conference officials.

Texas A&M is in first place in the conference race with a 10-2 record.

Both Godine and Williams are freshman and both played high school ball at Houston Kashmere.
