Hoover Issues Plea To Loose Hoarded Funds

Sudden Call For Conference Of Civil Leaders Announced Wednesday; Meeting Carded Saturday Morning

Expansion Is Seen

Chief Executive Says Return Of Unproductive Dollars To Commerce Will Mean A Huge Credit Expansion

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Seeking to tap a supply of hoarded dollars estimated at $1,300,000,000.President Hoover late today issued a sudden call for a national conference of civil leaders to help unloose this huge pile of unproductive money.

The chief executive's announcement—setting the meeting time at 10 o'clock Saturday morning—spoke of the creation of a "national organization" to divert hidden sums "into the channels of economic life."

Is First Objective

Leaders here hailed the move as the first major objective by the administration against hoarded funds. The president himself, analyzing in trse phrase what he considers the evils of the practice, indicated a belief that return of the hidden $1,300,000,000 to commerce might mean a credit expansion of as much as $10,000,000,000. He said:

"Every dollar hoarded means a destruction of from five to ten dollars of credit. Credit is the blood stream of our economic life. Restriction or destruction of credit cripples the revival and expansion of agriculture, industry and employment."

Holds Conferences

Mr. Hoover launched his anti-hoarding attack after a day of frequent conferences with leaders of his $2,000,000,000 reconstruction corporation. Into his office at one time he drew Charles G. Dawes, president of the organization, Eugene Meyer, chairman of its board, Undersecretary Mills and Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker and prominent Democrat.

In view of the president's inten-

Alienists Battle In Murder Trial

COURTHOUSE, PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 3. (AP)—Psychiatric diagnosis and the hypothetical laws of heredity met in head-on collision today as Winnie Ruth Judd's counsel invaded the realm of science in their effort to prove her insane, and save her from the rope.

Paul Schenck, defense counsel, invoked the Mendelian theory of heredity in seeking to establish, through an insanity-streaked family tree, that the slight, blue eyed woman could not have retained ability to recognize the gravity of murder.

Dr. Paul Bowers, Los Angeles, state psychiatrist, under cross-examination, despite admissions of the possible application of the 19th century monk' hypothesis, declared again at the end of a long, intricate technicality studded quizzing:

"She is sane."

Cisco Officials Pay Visit Here; Inspections Are Made

The mayor and four officials of Cisco were in Lubbock Wednesday "to learn how a city could operate on so small a tax." The Cisco rate is $2.50 per $100, the maximum permitted, as compared with a 50 cent rate here.

Mayor J. T. Berry headed the party, other members of which were Commissioners George D. Fee, J. T. Elliott and Joe Clements and J. G. Reagan, superintendent of the Cisco water department. Commissioner Clements is a brother of Mayor J. J. Clements of this city. The group inspected the city's light and water plants. Previously they had visited Seymour and Vernon. They spent last night here and were to leave early today for Cisco.

Air Equipment Is Rushed Out

(By The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3.—Chinese soldiers and engineers worked feverishly tonight attempting to assemble the Chinese air force equipment which was still in the packing cases in which it was delivered from England 12 years ago.

In 1920 the government ordered 130 airplanes fitted with powerful motors. The planes were shipped to be assembled in China but because of disorganization of government no one would take the responsibility of putting them together and they were never unpacked.

They are considerably out of date now but may still be made airworthy and the planes are capable of high speed.

Cotton Picker Facing Charge For Ax Attack

Waives Examining Trial Late Wednesday And Does Not Ask For Bail; Refuses To Sign Alleged Statement

(Special To The Avalanche)

LEVELLAND, Feb. 3.—E. R. Neagle, 37, transient cotton picker, charged with murder in the ax slaying of B. F. Driggars, 74, waived examining trial this afternoon and did not ask for bond, said Weldon Johnson, county attorney.

Driggars, his skull cracked by a blow from the blunt end of an axhead, died at West Texas hospital at Lubbock at about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning without regaining consciousness.

Services Not Arranged

Funeral services for the victim, struck at the farm of his son-in-law, P. S. McGuire two miles northwest of Whitharral about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, had not been arranged late today by the Bynum-Morgan funeral home of Lubbock.

A statement allegedly was made by Neagle to Johnson this afternoon but the county attorney said Neagle had declined to sign it. A district court grand jury will meet here March 21 and evidence in the case will be presented to the body, it was said. A self-defense plea is expected, Johnson said.

Differences Cited

The complaint charging Neagle with murder was filed by Johnson in Justice George P. Smith's court here this afternoon. Differences over possession of the three-room house on the farm recently purchased by McGuire are believed to have resulted in the attack on the aged man. Driggars and McGuire went to the farm home about ten days ago preparatory to moving their families from Wilson, Okla.

Mr. Driggars is survived by two daughters, Mrs. McGuire, who has been staying in Norman, Okla., where her children have been attending the University of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Alva Leopard, who was to have made her home at the farm.

Mellon Admits That Post Had Been Offered But Decision To Accept Came Only After Careful Consideration

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Febr. 3.—After 11 years as secretary of the treasury under three presidents, Andrew W. Mellon is to hand over his portfolio to Under-Secretary Ogden L. Mills and become ambassador to the court of St. James.

President Hoover announced tonight the veteran cabinet officer who has guided the nation's financial policies since the beginning of the Harding administration has expressed his willingness to serve in the foreign field.

Succeeds Dawes

He succeeds Charles Gates Dawes, who resigned last month to become president of the reconstruction corporation.

For almost two weeks Mr. Mellon, who is nearly 77, has been considering undertaking the nation's most important diplomatic post.

The president said:

"The critical situation facing all countries in their international relations, the manifold economic and other problems demanding wise solution in our national interests calls for experience and judgment of the highest order. The importance to our country of the sound determination of these world-wide difficulties need no emphasis.

Confirmation Predicted

"I have decided therefore to call upon one of our wisest and most experienced public servants to accept a position which will enable him after many years of distinguished public service at home to render equal service to his country in the foreign field.

"I have asked Mr. Mellon to undertake the ambassadorship to Great Britain. I am happy to say he has now expressed his willingness to serve."

Senate confirmation for Mr. Mellon in his London post and for Mr. Mills, a former New York representative in the house, already has been freely predicted in the senate.

Both nominations are expected to go to the capitol together.

Mr. Mills has been one of the keymen of the administration since its formation, and particularly during the last year when economic prob-

Unidentified Victim Burned To Death And Another Said Missing As Flames Destroy Evangelistic Temple

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Feb. 3.—At least one life was lost today in a fire that swept the evangelistic temple of Raymond T. Richey. Two persons were reported unaccounted for tonight.

The damage, said the Rev. H. L. Houghton, a member of Richey's staff, approximated $250,000. The cause of the fire was not officially determined.

Body Unidentified

All efforts at identification of the body of a woman recovered from the ashes beneath the tabernacle's third floor "prayer tower" had been fruitless tonight. Mrs. A. Rayburn, one of four women in the "prayer tower" shortly before the outbreak of the fire, was reported missing by her son, Charles A. Rayburn. The son and other relatives viewed the body, but had not been able to tell whether it was that of Mrs. Rayburn.

In addition to Mrs. Rayburn, a Mrs. Rusk was said by Fire Chief Fred Siebert to be missing.

British Vessel Located After Hope Almost Abandoned; Is Resting Far At Bottom Of English Channel

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The admiralty announced tonight the British submarine M-2, missing since it dived a week ago yesterday with 61 men aboard, had been located at the bottom of the English Channel nearly six miles off Portland bill.

The vessel, virtually given up as lost after a desperate search for days failed to show a trace of it, was located by the destroyer Torrid with powerful apparatus which detected tell-tale sounds.

Reports received here indicated the sunken ship was located some time after 10:30 o'clock tonight at a spot 5.8 miles west of Portland bill, rocky promontory off which it went down in the treacherous tides of Dead Man's bay.

Sounds Are Registered

The spot is near the place where two flags in a canvas bag were picked up earlier in the search and where the captain of a coast-wire vessel reported he had seen a submarine dive stern first.

Special finding apparatus on the Torrid during the day registered sounds indicating a newly sunk submarine was in the depths. The minesweepers Pangborne and Duncon caught the vessel in their draglines.

Divers descended, but they were unable to reach bottom owing to the strong tide.

Allred, directing appearance of officials next Monday, and commanding them to bring certain correspondence.

Agonizing Series Of Tremors Leaves Hardly A Building Untouched; Property Loss Slowly Mounting

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 3. (AP) — Santiago virtually was a deserted city tonight in consequence of a series of disastrous earthquake shocks which left eight known dead and created damage officially estimated in excess of $10,000,000 Mayor Desidiero Arnaz was authority for the death list and be estimated at least 300 had been injured. Governor Jose Varselo of Oriente province set the damage figure and his estimate was termed conservative by other officials.

As tiny groups of residents, still stunned from the panic of the early morning, discussed the disaster in hushed tones, Harry F. Guggenheim, United States ambassador to Cuba, arrived by airplane to promise assistance to the stricken city.

Hospitals continued their care of the wounded while about 75 per cent of the 130,000 population streamed into the outlying country away from stricken homes.

In the harbor floated the United States destroyer Hopkins, with navy doctors, medical corps men and surgical supplies. Off-shore was the U. S. S. cruiser Augusta, ready to lend aid, which so far was not needed because of excellent relief organizations within the town.

Flee To Safety

In the first confusion, as all of the able 130,000 residents fled to open spaces, newspapermen and other eye-witnesses estimated the death toll at from 500 to 1,500. All of those figures were found to be an exaggeration, as dawn and a measure of calm came to the city.

Even before the last of the series of nine shocks had left their jarring imprint, the military had assumed control. Soldiers superintended the removal of the more seriously injured to hospitals, and help came by plane from the United States fleet at Guantanamo.

Santiago was asleep when the first tremor shook the city shortly after midnight. This shock was fol-

Charge That Liquor Permits Are Bootlegged Made And Denied; Witnesses Differ On Measure

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A statement that "well over 90 per cent" of the liquor prescriptions issued by doctors are "bootlegging prescription" was made before a senate committee today by one member of the medical profession and denied by another.

Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, head of the surgical department of Rush Medical college of the University of Chicago, and former president of the American Medical association, made the assertion while testifying against a bill to legalize four per cent beer.

Statement Challenged

His statement was challenged later by a witness who favored the bill, Dr. William F. Lorenz, director of the psychiatric institute of the University of Wisconsin.

"A large number of doctors have not been able to resist the temptation of selling those prescriptions," Dr. Bevan said. "Some selling the whole quota of 400 pints a year."

Washington Is Worried With Jap Rejection

Administration Fears Forces Will Get Beyond Control In China And Prove A Menace To All Foreigners

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Continued fighting at Shanghai today caused great apprehension in official Washington, which hoped the peace plan submitted to Japan and China might silence the naval gunfire and land batteries which keep the Chinese metropolis in turmoil.

China's unqualified acceptance of the American-British peace proposal was a foregone conclusion. Messages from Tokyo announcing the Japanese cannot accept the fifth provision of the plan, which stipulates that "all outstanding controversies between the two nations" be settled by negotiations, were a disappointment to the state department and the White House.

Officials Worried

The administration makes no effort to conceal its worry lest the thousands of armed men both within and without the international settlement get beyond control, and is making every effort to speed up the peace negotiations through Ambassador Forbes at Tokyo and Nelson T. Johnson, the American minister to China, who has gone to Nanking from Peiping.

Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, today promised 100 per cent naval and military cooperation" in preserving the neutrality and safety of the international settlement.

He made this pledge in a radio message to Admiral Taylor, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, directing him in his conference with neutral naval and military authorities to assure the latter of the United States' full cooperation.

Confidence Expressed

Pratt also sent a message to Admiral Taylor, expressing full confidence that the latter and Admiral Nomura, who is to take command of Japan's fleet in Chinese waters, will evolve a "happy solution" which will guarantee the neutrality and safety of the international settlement.

Representative McFadden, Republican member from Pennsylvania, who has been caustic in his criticism of President Hoover, made an appeal in the house today to get the $600,000,000 warship construction bill out of the pigeonhole.

"To withhold this bill from immediate consideration is a most foolhardy action," he said.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 4. (Thursday)—Japanese and Chinese guns broke out again in battle today at Shanghai and the forts of Woosung.

Field pieces and machine guns roared and rattled at the city's outskirts, while the cannons of Japanese warships boomed in the distance.

Hostilities were renewed after a fierce battle that raged all yesterday both here and at Woosung, where the Chinese forts stand guardian over the mouth of the Whangpoo river 16 miles down from Shanghai.

Marines Landed

A force of 326 United States marines, headed by eight officers, was landed from the cruiser Houston, which arrived yesterday, and took up posts in the international settlement to protect American lives and property.

A battle of words between Chinese and Japanese authorities as to the outcome of the fighting at Woosung, ran parallel with the firing.

Chinese exultingly announced that the guns of the forts had sent a Japanese destroyer to the bottom and disabled two others. They also said that a Japanese airplane had been shot down and the pilot killed.

Losses Are Denied

Japanese naval officials denied there had been any Japanese losses and entered their own claims of victory by asserting that projectiles from their destroyers and bombs from their airplanes had turned the fortress into mass of scrap iron.

The firing today, distinctly audible in the northern sections of Shanghai, was believed to extend along the Shanghai-Woosung railway. The major of operations had been transferred from the native city of Chapei, were numerous fires reddened the city.

A big Japanese lumber mill was ablaze on the western boundary of the international settlement.

Gunfire Is Heard

In Hongkew, where Japanese machine guns raked streets and houses yesterday, in a search for Chinese snipers, the situation was comparatively quiet. But riflefire and the rattle of an occasional machine-gun could be heard as the bluejackets continued their hunt for

Rose Allen Declares Brother Threatened To Blow Off Fiance's Head And Told Her To Go If She Didn't Like It

(By The Associated Press)

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 3. Uneasily biting her thin, pale lips, black-garbed Rose Allen told a jury today that her older brother, Eddie, threatened to slay Francis A. Donaldson, third, her fiance.

She said the threat was made a few hours before the killing occurred in the marble foyer of the Allen's fashionable apartment last November.

Rose gave, too, a version of a conversation she had with her brother regarding Donaldson the day of the shooting.

"He told me that Francis was not to come into the apartment again," she testified under the questioning of District Attorney Stewart Nase. "He said I could meet him downstairs in the lobby but he was not to come upstairs. If he did he would blow his head off, he said.

"'From now on I'm running things around here and if you don't like it, you can get out,' he said.

"I told him I didn't like it and I was going to get out and I asked him who he thought he was, that he was running things around here and he said he thought he was God, right at that moment."

The Woman's Angle

As Seen by Bob McCall, Avalanche-Journal reporter, in the absence of Miss Blanche E. Bean, Woman's Editor.

WRITE it for the average woman. News editors and advertising managers advise it. Members of the women's staffs are supposed to know how to do it. The news roustabout, beginning his third version of The Woman's Angle, however, is a temporary recruit from a news beat, and he can't help but reflect that a net of intangible and seemingly conflicting theories make it a complicated task. Women are interested in gowns, and perfumes, and flowers, and children, and . . . men. So, if they find this column unable to recognize the woman's view, they might philosophize charitably that the writer is near par, accentuating man's inability to know what interests them.

THE LINDBERGH BABY is known internationally. To most men, he was Colonel Lindbergh's son. To most women, he was Ann Morrow Lindbergh's child. The focus of publicity, in type and in pictures, may affect Charles Augustus junior adversely. It began early, however, and he probably will outgrow it. Walter Winchell, or his "secretary," reports in his column that the February World's Work lists among the 22 greatest news scoops of all time the forecast of the Lindbergh heir by an "audacious columnist gossip." Winchell was that columnist, and his paper, the New York Daily Mirror, followed it with a news story giving the approximate date the flying pair's first-born was expected. The little son across the street is just as precious to his mother as junior is to Ann Lindbergh. Both tots, the roustabout hopes, will learn of a family honor to hold high, to fire the heart in stress as does a flag rippling over a fort, to give life's eternal conflict a significance as does a crest on a shield.

"BRIDGE playing is essentially degrading . . . it erects preposterous heroes . . . some people consider a skilled bridge player more important than they would Beethoven." Henry L. Mencken said that. Unable to see anything "degrading" about bridge, this writer, nevertheless, is about as interested in it as "American Mercury" Henry. The roustabout went to a bridge party recently. He was made to feel at ease and he enjoyed himself, but he didn't play bridge. He asked a woman what "no trump" was and she couldn't tell him, though she'd just declared something about one. When the roustabout stole second base on the back lot, or a neighbor kid tagged him hard in the ribs, he could have explained what happened. He could even tell you why he was permitted to jump a man on a checker board. Cards are very attractive playthings.

SOME intelligent, happy persons play bridge. It's a great excuse for a get-together. Some even seem to consider it an end in itself. But, all this "socially undeveloped" wag knows about it is that Lenz and Culbertson and some other fellows played it for days, and reporters peeked through little holes at the mighty on the other side of the wall, and Mrs. Culbertson just gave up everything—her part in a major league birdge jag—so she could be with her children on Christmas. Anything that'll produce a sacrifice like that must be worthwhile.

Illness Grips Entire Family

Mysterious Malady Is Feared After Death Strikes Three; Scientific Tests Fail To Disclose Cause

MOUNT VERNON, O., Feb. 3. (AP)—Fear that the mysterious illness which has killed three young brothers may strike again in the same family gripped surviving members of the household today.

The third death occurred late yesterday while the state health department was still pursuing its scientific efforts to identify and combat the puzzling, fatal malady.

Marion Paazig, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Paazig, was the last to die. His brother, Stanley, 9, died January 24, and eight-year-old Raymond died Sunday.

Three other brothers and the parents survive. They have shown no symptoms of the illness but Mr. and Mrs. Paazig recalled that Marion and Raymond were not sick when Stanley died, and that Marion was not taken ill until several hours after Raymond.

Chemists of the health department spent 24 hours making tests of the young victim's blood without finding a trace of poison. Yet, the belief persisted that some kind of poisoning, accidentally acquired, was the cause of the deaths.

The illness was accompanied by a high fever, followed by a breakdown of the blood. Death was preceded by a period of coma.

Flying Fireman Bucks A Strong Wind In Tests

Despite a stiff wind and sandstorm, Cecil Casey Wednesday qualified as Lubbock's only flying fireman. Casey is assistant chief of the local fire department.

The fireman yesterday passed tests given by R. W. Delany, department of commerce inspector, and received a private pilot's license. Casey has eleven hours and 38 minutes solo on his card, making his first flight alone after three hours and 15 minutes training.

At about 9:30 Wednesday morning he went up in an OX5 Eaglerock for 80 minutes of take-offs, turns, figure-eights, spirals and spot landings. Ground wind velocity was about 25 miles an hour and it was estimated by W. C. Breedlove, airport manager, that the velocity was ten miles greater aloft.

The test included six landings and take-offs, three shallow figure-eight, three vertical figure-eights, three complete turns and a spiral landing from 2,000 feet.

"Casey put the ship through the tests in mighty good form," said Breedlove. "The wind and sand was bad, even for a veteran."

The fireman, married and a member of the deaprtment nearly six years, flies "for the kick I get out of it." He hopes to obtain a limited commercial license after he has had 50 hours solo and a transport license after 200 hours. Under the private license, he is permitted to fly anywhere and carry passengers, provided no charge is made. Ben Branson instructed Casey.

Rough Series Anticipated As Cameron Aggies Arrive

Matadors Face Sooner Cagers Tonight At 8

They Play It Rough And Tough In Oklahoma, As Matadors Found Last Week; Seek Bit Of Revenge Tonight

A basketball game that is expected to draw out the manhood of every man who ventures out on the floor, the referee not excepted, is scheduled for tonight at the Texas Tech gymnasium. It starts at 8 o'clock and ends whenever the contestants have all been fouled out of the game or at the conclusion of the regular 40-minute playing time, plus ten minutes for intermission during which drinks will not be served in the dressing rooms.

The Cameron Aggies of Lawton, Oklahoma, are the opponents for the scarlet clad Matadors tonight and tomorrow night, provided enough players are left to conclude the series tomorrow night.

Both Teams Tough

From information gathered here, the Aggies are tough babies when it comes to playing basketball this winter, and from knowledge gained from watching the Matadors play, the Bullfighters can be just as tough if not tougher.

As usual, the ostensible purpose of the players on the floor tonight is to put the iron hoop around the ball in such a way that the result will mean two points, or one point, as the circumstances may be, added to the score of the side justified. But it is probable that fans may read between the figures and see visible efforts being made by the contestants to annihilate each other.

Split Last Week

The Matadors were in the Aggies' back yard last week and they will tell you that the series played there hardly could have been rougher if earth tremors had rocked the state of Oklahoma or if Governor Bill Murray had tossed cockleburrs on the court. The Matadors helped make it rough. All the credit can't go to the Aggies. The result of the series was a victory and a defeat for each team.

They say that a guy by the name of Ben Gower, lanky center on the Aggie team, is quite a bird at the game. And Eskew, we gather, is something of a goal-shooting fool. Howard Counts, it appears, is another member of the Aggie lineup who knows his goals, and Jim Howell still another. The name of the fifth member of the quintet eludes the writer's memory just now.

There is no way of telling who Coach Morgan will send into the game until the boys take off their sweat suits. More than likely it will be a bunch who didn't get to make the trip over Texas and Oklahoma. It may begin with Moody and Darr at forwards, Robinson at center and Thomas and Hill at guards. But the bigger and older boys will get their chance to snatch at some sweet or otherwise revenge. Hodges and Crews, Fisher and Crites, Tadlock and Dunn and Hill will go in at one time or another, or they may start.

Buffaloes Beat Simmons, 57-40

ABILENE, Feb. 3. (AP)—Field goals sipped through the baskets at the rate of one a minute here tonight as the West Texas Teachers of Canyon, perennial title holders of the T. I. A. A., defeated the Simmons Cowboys, thrice champions of the Texas Conference, 57 to 40. The two championship organizations will renew their struggle here tomorrow night and in Canyon Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Simmons took control of the situation early and stayed in charge through the first half, which ended with the Cowboys in front by 25 to 21. The giant pedagogues returned to the fray in the second round with new tricks, and their passing and dribbling maneuvered the ball into position to baffle the Cowboy defense. Before Simmons could scratch in the last period, the Buffaloes had scored 17 points, and they tabbed 25 while the Cowboys were getting a lone field goal.

"I am just going to look the situation over and see what it is," Bell said. "I am perfectly satisfied and happy here and do not contemplate any change. I have talked the situation over with A. & M. officials and they understand the matter."

Seven Slingers Came To Dodgers And Cards With 126 Wins Between 'Em

MATTINGLY

MUNGO

By CLAIRE BURCKY
NEA Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Training camp rosters of the world champion Cardinals and Brooklyn's nameless National League entry reveal that seven right-handed rookie pitchers coming into Mr. Heydler's circuit this season won 126 games and lost 42 at the labors in 1931.

By dividing some of these numbers by some other figures, you run smack into the conclusion that this kind of pitching is 75 per cent efficient—not as good as Lefty Grove's 1931 record, but a whole lot better than Hallahan's or Derringer's or Grimes'.

For the present, mere mention of their names—Dizzy Dean, Tex Carlton and Ray Starr of the Cardinals, and Earl Mattingly, John Krider, Van Lingle Mungo and Joe Gallivan of the Brooklyns—plus a few pertinent facts presented informally, will have to suffice.

QUITE a lot has been written and said about Dizzy Dean, most of it spiced with generous quotes from the Dizzy one. But with all of his boasts, one would have been forced to recognize his achievements in the fast Class A Texas League last season. He pitched 26 victories and lost only 10 games in Houston's drive to the championship. He earned the chance to show his stuff in big league company.

Carleton was Dean's teammate, greatly overshadowed by Dizzy's color. He's a 26-year-old Texan, a right-hander with seven years' experience. He won 20 and lost seven games without showing Dean's effectiveness, but they say he proved much steadier than Dizzy. Shrewd judges admired his nerve under fire.

Starr stepped in from a mediocre flinger in semi-pro baseball to a Class AA Star — beg pardon! — of bright major league possibilities. He won 20 and lost seven on the Rochester farm. He pitched three double headers and earned decisions in five of the six games.

THE four Brooklyn youngsters look like oil on troubled waters to Max Carey, new Flatbush skipper. Their combined efforts gave Hartford 60 wins in 78 games in the Class A Eastern League.

Mattingly won 18 and lost two in three months' work. He's 26 and from Maryland. Name one southpaw pitcher and a husky first baseman now playing for the Athletics who came from that state? They're good, too.

Mungo hasn't reached the voting age but he's quite grown up at six feet two and 195 pounds. He won 14 and lost five and looked so good to Uncle Robbie that he was allowed to clinch the pennant for Hartford on a Saturday and to blank the Braves for Brooklyn on the following Monday.

Krider, 23 years old, won 14 and lost four, pitching eight shutouts. Gallivan, a year older and the favorite discovery of Brooklyn's star ivory judge, Nap Rucker, won 14 and lost seven.

"Leaping Lena" Levy Cards Match For Brother King Livinsky, Jack Dempsey

CHICAGO, Feb. 3. (AP)—Chicago stadium promoters today finally arranged a match between Jack Dempsey and King Levinsky, Chicago's fighting fish peddler for Feb. 18 but they had a tough battle on their hands.

"Leaping Lena" Levy, sister and manager of the celebrated Kingfish, stuck by her guns with roars of defiance all day until Matchmaker Nate Lewis finally hiked his ofer from $5,000 to upwards of $7,500 as the Levinsky share of the purse. Then, after accepting she predicted that the Kingfish would go Luis Firpo one better by knocking the ex-heavyweight champion out of the ring and out of the building.

The match although listed for but four rounds, is considered the most important of Dempsey's comeback campaign.

Rugged, strong and able to stand severe punishment while dealing out roundhouse smashes that a Missouri mule would be proud of, Levinsky has clubbed out decisions over some or the best heavyweights of the country, including Tommy Loughran and Paulino Uzudun. Max Baer, however, conquered him last week.

AIR MAIL TORPEDO

BERLIN—A Berlin inventor has perfected an aerial torpedo in which to transport mail. It runs on an overhead cable, and is supported on the bottom by a leg which rests on a wheel and cable. Propellers at the front and rear of the torpedo furnish the power. With such a system a letter can be transported across Germany in 40 minutes, it is said.

Major League Managers "Pass Resolution" That Athletics And Cards Are Still Strong; Veteran Winners Favored

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The rarest specimen in the baseball world right now is the manager who thinks he has a club capable of beating the St. Louis Cardinals or Philadelphia Athletics to the wire next September.

Two days of attendance at the annual midwinter meeting of the major leagues here this week failed to uncover one pilot or club owner willing to make the usual seasonal prediction that:

"Yep, boys, we'll take them this year. We've got a great team — great pitching, great batting, great fielding. They (the Cards or Athletics, as the case may be) are bound to slip. They can't hold that pace always, and we're going to be right here to take their place."

Convinced Last Year

The ease with which Gabby Street's Cards and Connie Mack's elephants swept the boards again last season apparently was a powerful convincer. Their closest rivals, the Giants and the Cubs, the Yankees and the Senators, have bolstered desperately during the winter in an effort to match the strength of the pacesetters. They hope they have succeeded, but they don't know. It's a tough situation.

The consensus is that the Athletics, standing pat and again depending on their "big three"—Grove, Walberg and Earnshaw—to pitch them to a pennant, will be just as strong. The Cardinals, despite the loss of Burleigh Grimes from their mound staff, are expected to be even better. Their three young pitchers, Dizzy Dean, Ray Starr and Tex Carleton, have the rest of the league worried.

Frank Frisch, veteran second baseman of the champions, had this to say about Dean today.

"From what I saw of him last year, Dean's going to make us a great pitcher. He's got everything, and he's a smart hombre out there on the mound."

Pairings Are Made In Ralls Tourney

Olen Perryman of Ralls will referee the games, on a two division court in City auditorium, and manage the tourney. Miss Clara White is coach of the Ralls sextet.

The tourney will get underway at 8 o'clock Friday morning and consolation play at 7:30 o'clock that night.

M., vs. Ropesville; 3:30 p. m.—Lorenzo vs. Ralls; 4:30 p. m.—Fairview vs. Hale Center; 5:30 p. m.—winners of the first two pairings.

Jockey Risks Chance For Win To Save Life Of Mate In Spill At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 3. (AP)—One jockey sacrificed his chance to win to save the life of another after a spill in the second race at the fair grounds here yesterday.

Jockey J. O'Malley and Jockey E. James had their horses out in front of a field of twelve when James' Kitty Wilkins went down. James grabbed at the mane of O'Malley's mount, Sunny Port, but was slipping under the flying hoofs.

O'Malley reached down and seized James by the slack of his breeches, pulling him up out of the path of the running horses. Jockey W. Robertson was thrown by Lady Bienville in the confusion but he landed clear.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, owners of James' horse, thanked O'Malley personally at the club house for "saving the life" of James.

Illinois House Passes Bill Legalizing 15-Round Fights

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3. (AP)—A bill legalizing 15 rounds for world heavyweight championship fights in Illinois was passed tonight by the house of representatives. The bill now will be returned to the senate for concurrence in amendments.

The bill, which previously had passed the senate, restricts 15 round contests to heavyweight championships only. Other title contests in lighter divisions, are limited to the 10 rounds specified in the present law.

Small Village Pays Big For Winter Games

Governor Roosevelt To Open Third Series Today; United States Hockey Team Meets Canadian Team Today

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 3. — Strutting proudly about in a perfect setting of ice and snow, the citizens of Lake Placid made final reparations tonight for the big event of their lives—the third Winter Olympic games opening tomorrow.

For almost two solid years the village of 3,500 inhabitants, wholeheartedly seeking the title of the nation's winter sports capitol, has been investing to the extent of $1,500,000 in the game.

Shortly after 10 a. m. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, surrounded by the high amateur sports officials of the United States, Canada and European nations, will open the games officially from his place of honor in the outdoor Olympic Stadium.

A half hour later the first three heats of the 500 meters races will be staged, followed at 11 a. m. with a hockey game between the United States and Canada. In the afternoon at 2:15 o'clock opening heats of the 5,000 meters races will be staged. Half an hour later Germany and Poland, only other two hockey teams in the competition, will clash in the open air stadium. Curling exhibitions later in the afternoon and in the arena in the evening complete the opening day program.

Restoration

If any major league manager can make a first class ball player out of Eddie Ferrell, it is the manager he will have this year—Marse Joe McCarthy. Farrell left the Giants in 1927 in a trade. He was hitting .387 then, and was full of ambition. After that Eddie seemed to lose his spirit, even though the Giants took him back in 1929. He was beaned that year by one of Dazzy Vance's fast ones, and became plate-skittish. He went to the Cards, then to the Cubs. Joe McCarthy was manager of the Cubs when Eddie came, and Marse Joe sent him to Los Angeles with the admonition that he was going to watch him and root for him. Eddie hit .326 for the Angles last year—and McCarty brought him back.

Marse Joe and Hack

It was Marse Joe who brought Hack Wilson back, Hack had been sent to Toledo by the Giants and the Cubs got him by draft. McCarthy had just the encouraging way with a man that Hack needed. The lowest Hack ever hit for Marse Joe was .313, in five years at Chicago.

Reunion at Brooklyn

When Hack Wilson puts on a nice, fresh Brooklyn uniform in the sweet springtime at Clearwater, Fla., he will meet an old friend. The friend is Casey Stengel, coach. Casey was with the Giants back in 1923 when Hack was just breaking in. That was the year when Casey smacked a couple of home runs in the world series to win the only two games the Giants could take from the Yanks. Hack hit .200 that year, but he only played in three games.

Well, after McGraw had struggled along with Hack for two years, with Hack hitting .295 and .239, he sent the little laborer to Toledo. Meanwhile, Stengel had drifted from New York to Boston to Toledo, where he had been named manager and had set up a dignified haven for has-been major league athletes.

Under Stengel, Hack went like wildfire. Coming to Toledo in midsummer, he started hitting every thing that the pitchers threw. At the close of the season his average was .343, and he was drafted by the Cubs.

Now Hack is down again. He needs a little mental health treatment, and the mantal health treatments furnished by Dr. Stengel are famous. Casey, in fact, won a pennant for Toledo and a "little world series" by kidding former big shots into the belief they were just in Toledo for a short vacation and were going back to the majors next year. Hack is the kind of chap who needs some of that sort of kidding to play his best. He will be among friends in Brooklyn and—don't worry—he'll be back.

Every town on the Santa Fe over the South Plains will be visited the last week in March and the first week in April by the annual Santa Fe-A. and M. College Farm and Home Special, an announcement received here from J. D. Tinsley, Amarillo, agricultural agent, states.

Lubbock will be a night stop, Tuesday, March 29, according to the preliminary schedule issued by the college. Amherst, Levelland, Crosbyton, Hale Center, Plainview and Slaton probably will be night stops.

Thirty-three stops are to be made in this territory.

Exhibits Included

Nine cars will comprise the train. There will be livestock of all kinds, exhibits and displays on the train, with cars for lectures in inclement weather.

Specialists from Texas A. and M. will be on the train to talk and explain the exhibits. J. Frank Jarrell, Topeka, Kas., is in general charge of the train, with Mr. Tinsley handling the tour of the Panhandle and Santa Fe and L. F. Dinan, Galveston, agricultural agent of the G. C. and S. F. assisting.

Approval of the plan was made by F. G. Pettibone, vice-president and general manager of the G. C. and S. F. and President T. O. Walton and Director O. B. Martin of the extension service.

Programs Carded

Programs of two and three hours will be held in each town. The train will be open for inspection, with lectures by experts on the several subjects of exhibits. An electrically controlled voice amplifier is to be used at open air meetings, when weather conditions permit.

The train starts from Navasota February 15 and closes at Snyder, April 6. Other trains have been run in 1923, 1924 and 1926. There will be 147 stops this year in 45 days. The last train made 117 stops in 36 days, and was visited by 110,000 people.

A beef cattle, sheep and goat exhibit will be shown by the college. There will be two Hereford cows with heifer calves, Rambouillet ewes, Angora goats, hogs and dairy cattle.

Cattle Featured

In the exhibit car will be exhibits featuring beef cattle on stock farm basis, showing farmstead, fields and permanent pastures, equipment, etc., and placards featuring such factors as good breeding, permanent pastures, creep feeding, marketing grain through beef cattle, use of temporary pastures or grazing, minerals, trench silos and utilization of waste products.

How War Affects Map Of Far East

This map shows the theater of war in the Far East, shaded portions indicating territory occupied by Japanese forces in Manchuria and in and around Shanghai, foremost port of China. Railroads controlled by Russia, Japan and China are shown. Control of the railroads is an important factor in the situation to facilitate rapid troop transportation. Japan became angered when Soviet Russia refused to transport Japanese troops to Harbin over the Chinese Eastern railroad, jointly owned by Russia and China.

Pender Talks On Sino-Jap Affair

H. C. Pender, Texas Technological college professor of government, Wednesday told members of the Rotary club that about the only solutions to the Sino-Japanese struggle rest in either the adoption of a mandate of Manchuria or a stronger government in China, the recognition of treaty rights and the protection of foreigners. R. C. Smith directed the program.

"Manchuria is the focal point of at least three powers, Japan, China and Russia," Mr. Pender pointed out as he reviewed the background of the present outbreak between the Chinese and the Japs. "The pro Chinese influence there especially in the government has been the cause of the trouble. Manchuria, a country more productive than any other area of Europe or Asia, has been developed by the Japanese extensively and now they consider it essential to the empire's livelihood."

Cites Japanese Contentions

Mr. Pender cited the lack of a centralized government in China, which has given Japan an opportunity she desires in Manchuria. She bases her military occupation of portions of Chinese territory on the fact that China has failed to occupy and properly govern them, he said. The failure of China to recognize treaty rights granted in these areas has also been a Japanese contention in their occupation.

"There are a number of issues involved in the situation but they can be summed up in these few points: the validity of treaties which China says were granted through coercion, the question of a centralized and effective Chinese government; the railroads and their operation; order, the protection of foreigners in China and the ultimate ownership of Manchuria," he concluded.

Reviewing the development of communication service and the telephone, R. B. Fairly gave a classification talk on telephone service.

Gust Kallas was received into the club as a new member, Charles A. Guy inducting him into the organization.

Maury Hopkins and Tom S. Shelton of Plainview, Mayor Caleb Simmons of Sweetwater, Dr. Marvin Overton of Slaton and Merle Autrey of Amherst were out of town guests at the luncheon.

Recruiting Offices Of State Are Being Rushed By Applicants; All Normal Quotas Being Filled

DALLAS, Feb. 3. (AP) — Warlike reports from the far east and the possibility that the United States might become involved have started echoes of the "fighting spirit" in Texas, reports from various cities of the state revealed today, although none of the branches of military service was accepting more than its normal quota.

The naval recruiting office at Houston had received 300 applications for enlistment. At Austin the army recruiting office had received 50 applications for enlistment in the last two weeks and 200 since Dec. 19.

An average of 10 applications daily were being received by the army recruiting office at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, as compared to a normal average of five.

The army recruiting officer at Galveston said several dozen persons had made inquiries for enlistment during the last few days but he was unable to accept anyone because his quota was filled.

Two national guard units at Brownwood were at full strength but a large number of applications for membership had been received within the last two or three days.

At Fort Worth, more than 100 men and women applied at army, navy and Red Cross headquarters for permission to enlist, should this country become involved in the Asiatic conflict.

Net salmon fishing on the coasts of the Dundee district, Scotland, this year experienced the most successful season in 50 years.

Drive On Dogs Is To Get Underway

The city sanitary department has opened its drive on unlicensed dogs and the first group of animals, taken Tuesday, will be shot at the pound east of the city near the disposal plant Friday. Dogs are held 72 hours before execution.

First two days of the drive against the untagged pets resulted in capture of about 40, Dr. R. J. Aiken said. Three men are employed by the department for this work, Aiken said.

Persons who wish to receive their dogs may get them at the pound. A dog tax of $1 is charged. The animal also must have been vaccinated for rabies before the license is issued.

Garner's Chances Improve

DAY BY DAY the name of John Garner is on the lips of more men in connection with the coming national political campaign and with the Democratic nomination for President. And day by day, through his masterful handling of his party's strength in Congress this Texan, who holds next to the President the most important public post in the nation, is proving his caliber.

Latest to comment upon the Garner chances for the nomination is the Texas Editorial Digest, which is a resume of editorial opinion in Texas and which engages in comment of its own. Like The Morning Avalanche, which perceived the rapidly growing Garner boom a month ago, The Digest believes the Texan an outstanding Presidential possibility.

Under the caption "Garner's Chances Are Good," The Digest remarks:

"Interest in the state-wide Garner-For-President rally, to be held in San Antonio on Washington's birthday anniversary, is increasing daily, and with each new appointment of a Texan to some important government position. But all the talk of Garner for President is not local or state-wide, however; politicians in other sections of the country are showing an interest in developments of the Garner boom which should encourage friends of the Speaker who are active in his behalf.

"Jed Adams, of Dallas, Democratic National committeeman, after a visit to Washington where he conferred with party leaders, was quoted as saying that Garner stood a good chance of being 'swept into the White House' by a nation-wide mass movement.

"There are some political 'experts' who say Garner cannot secure the Democratic nomination and is 'not unmindful of the fact,' and therefore is not contemplating a change in office soon, but is more deeply interested in making good on the job he now holds. However, they do say it would be good strategy for the Texas delegation to back Garner to the exclusion of all other candidates for the nomination. Furthermore, they predict that should Garner's popularity continue he might be in a position to name the nominee.

"But the success of the Speaker of the House in conducting the affairs of his office and in maintaining harmony in the ranks of his party organization, adds to his popularity as a leader, the type of which is sorely needed at the present time. It has been estimated that 65 per cent of the population of the United States lives in the Mississippi valley. There is a growing feeling that this 65 per cent of population will forget party lines and elect to the Presidency a man more typical of that section than of Wall Street. In that event, John Garner is the outstanding man for the job."

We hope and believe that the Texas delegation to the national convention will go to Chicago voting first, last and all the time for John Garner, of Uvalde county.

Whether he is nominated or not—and who can tell at this writing what will happen?—the skeptics of today are going to be surprised in the national political strength of this rugged Texan.

WATCH OLD MAN FLU

Old Man Flu, one of humanity's most dangerous enemies, is lurking in the byways of Lubbock and most of the state and his threat is not to be denied. While the wave of the illness as reported here has not yet reached the stage of a serious epidemic, it behooves citizens to exact more than usual caution in caring for their bodies.

Doctors advise particular care of the mouth and throat and attention to elimination of bodily poisons. For those who would seriously endeavor to combat the disease, physicians advise the drinking of plenty of water; drinking of a half-teaspoon of baking soda in a glass of water thrice daily and keeping away from persons known or suspected of suffering from influenza.

February's tricky weather—springlike one day and frigid the next—lends itself admirably to the flu germ and it is feared that the disease will get a stronger hold here if precautions are not taken.

Don't take a chance with Old Man Flu. He slips up on you when you're not looking and while he's usually whipped in the end his attacks can be serious or fatal!

Gandhi says a character analyst is lacking in a sense of humor. Taking this consideration with another, laughing up his sleeve would seem quite out of the question.

Practical Health Problems

HERE'S HOW TO AVOID COLDS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of five articles on prevention and treatment of the common cold. Since colds are prevalent at this time of the year, the information in these articles is particularly valuable.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

IT is extremely difficult to prove any facts concerning the building of resistance against colds because of the tremendous incidence of the condition and because the factors involved in the lives of all civilized human beings are so numerous.

Dr. Campbell B. Howard, who has recently surveyed the subject, feels that the common impression that chilling, dampness and fatigue are predisposing factors to colds is supported by a considerable amount of good scientific evidence. The manner in which chilling and dampness induces a cold is through the disturbance of the heat regulating mechanism brought about by sudden evaporation of moisture from the surface of the body. This causes a strain on the heat producing mechanism to keep the temperature up to normal.

When individuals are exposed to drafts from an electric fan, there is chilling of the surface of the body and a change in the circulation of the membranes of the nose and throat.

Numerous investigators have made a search for the germ cause of the common cold. Unfortunately, no single organism has yet been absolutely incriminated, so that it is difficult to take specific preventive measures.

In a review of the ways in which one may do his best to prevent frequent colds, Dr. Howard lists as items of importance: (1) Private dwellings should be heated to 68 or 70 degrees, and large halls to 60 or 65 degrees Fahrenheit as a maximum. (2) The air in the home, the office, or the hall should have a sufficient amount of moisture in it. Moisture can be obtained either by devices associated with the furnace, or by special electric devices that have been developed for moistening the air. (3) The clothing worn in winter must be planned according to the life of the individual. If he must be outdoors briefly and indoors for long periods of time, a heavy coat may be worn outdoors and the clothing indoors should be planned according to the temperature of the room in which the person works. Modern transportation methods make it possible to dispense entirely with heavy underwear and to wear the same weight underwear all year round.

Advocate Mail By Bus

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—At first gradually, more recently with accelerated rapidity, Uncle Sam's postal service has deteriorated to such an extent in the last three years that a congressional investigation finally has begun the task of trying to fix responsibility for the decline.

Clyde Kelly

The inquisitorial resolution, introduced by Senator Kenneth McKellar, senior Democratic member of the senate committee on postoffices, professes especial interest in the subject of subsidies for ocean and air mail-carrying. However, inasmuch as one of the prime objects of the Tennessee senator's quest is to learn whether or not the disorganization of the service by rail is due to neglect of the older method of the mail's transmission in favor of aviation, and encouragement of overseas shipping companies, the whole question automatically will be opened up in the course of the "probe."

Meantime Congressman Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania, a veteran Republican member of the house of representatives' postoffice committee, is pushing a bill to improve the mail situation by conscripting facilities of the big bus companies to supplement the railroads.

ACCORDING to Congressman Kelly, one of the best informed men in the country on mail problems and author of the recent book, "United States Postal Policy."

"The postoffice department is not altogether to blame.

"On account of the progressive abandonment, by the railroads, of more and more trains the department confronts conditions which, under existing laws, it is unable to overcome.

"The companies insist that passenger traffic has fallen off until these trains no longer are profitable to run. The mails alone are insufficient to pay for their operation. The postoffice department does not want them discontinued. It simply is not consulted."

"BUS TRANSPORTATION is available," continued the congressman, "but government regulations require competition in the letting of contracts, irresponsible bidders generally make the lowest offers and then prove unable to furnish the necessary guarantees, indefinitely blocking the autobus solution of the difficulty.

"To break this deadlock, the bill I have pending makes it compulsory for bus lines—meaning the reliable ones—to accept whatever mail may be tendered to them by the government, to provide facilities for handling it in transit, as on railway mail cars, and to do so at rates fixed by the interstate commerce commission. Briefly, they are placed upon the same mail-carrying basis as the railroads."

Incidentally, Senator James Couzens of Michigan is the author of a bill in the upper house of congress to bring the bus companies under jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. The bill by Representative Kelly differs from it in dealing with the bus companies solely as potential mail carriers.

SENATOR McKELLAR, while hesitant to say much just now, with his investigation in its incipiency, concerning the postoffice department's financial support of shipping and aviation interests, has attacked it bitterly hitherto. The senator says that aid is at the expense of the remainder of the postal service.

Representative Kelly does not consider that such aid, in itself, necessarily has been improper.

"It has given us, for example," he says, "our merchant marine, which could not have been built up otherwise. But certainly," he adds, "it should not have been reckoned as a postoffice expense, to go into the total included in the departmental deficit."

Through the Pennsylvania's influence the law has in fact, been changed in this respect; the controverted items will not again appear as postal expenses at the end of the current fiscal year.

CONGRESSMAN KELLY is not, indeed, afraid of a postal deficit, if one is unavoidable, and is entirely out of sympathy with the desire of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown for higher rates, with a view of getting "out of the red" if possible.

"Though it is true," he admits, "that the postoffice has been hard hit by the depression, an advance in rates is absolutely the wrong way of attempting to mend matters.

"It was tried in 1925, when the charge on picture post cards was increased from one to two cents, upon the assurance of postoffice officials that $10,000,000 would thus be added to revenues in the first year. Instead they slumped $6,000,000. Since then the old rate has been restored and receipts from it are gradually mounting again.

"The postoffice department never was intended to be a money making institution.

"Its mission is to supply the country with a public service, of enormous value, and, as such, is well worth all it has cost. If, without suffering as a service, it can be made to pay its own way, well and good, but that distinctly is a second consideration."

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY McBRIDE, 19-year-old typist in a New York office, marries JIM WALLACE the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, ANNE TROWBRIDGE. Gypsy has been jilted by ALAN CROSBY, back from a year and a half in Paris, and Wallace's fiance has broken their engagement. There is no romance in the union. Both seek to spite the person they care most for. Wallace is a young lawyer. They go to his home in Forest City where his relatives are antagonistic to Gypsy and snub her.

A letter comes from Alan Crosby but after much indecision Gypsy sends it back unopened. Later the marriage of MARCIA LORING, Wallace's former fiancee, to BROCK PHILLIPS, wealthy New Yorker, is announced in a newspaper.

Jim undertakes the defense of NINA ROBERTS, accused of murdering her employer. The case is sensational with circumstancial evidence strongly against the girl. Gypsy becomes deeply interested in the murder case. She goes to see Nina and the girl gives her a letter to be mailed in case she is convicted. MRS. FOWLER, wife of the dead man, is called as a witness and faints on the stand.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

It was Mrs. Fowler who had dropped back, apparently lifeless in her seat. There was a great buzz of excitement. Court attendants rushed forward. From somewhere a doctor appeared. Presently the woman's eyes opened and she raised her head. She was able to rise with assistance and the doctor and another man helped her from the room. The physician returned and announced that Mrs. Fowler was under severe strain and could not be questioned further.

She could not be questioned on the following day either. Bennet, the state's attorney, announced that the health of his witness did not permit her to appear.

At home that evening Jim Wallace said to Gypsy, "What do you think of that woman? I wish I could be sure she doesn't know something she's hiding."

He was standing by the living room table filling his pipe with tobacco. Gypsy, looking childish in a yellow crepe frock made with short sleeves, sat with her feet tucked under her at one end of the davenport. The fox terrier's nose rested in the crook of her elbow.

"Do you mean Mrs. Fowler?" the girl asked.

Jim dropped into the heavy upholstered chair that was his favorite. As he held a flame to the pipe he nodded.

"I couldn't understand why she fainted," Gypsy admitted. "I mean unless she wanted to get out of answering any more questions. Isn't there some way you can insist on getting her there again?"

"Yes, there is—if it will do any good! In the meantime Bennet's reading those damned letters and bringing in witnesses who saw Nina and Fowler having dinner together. Say, did youy notice the way he read those letters? Made them sound twice as incriminating as they are. I'd get Mrs. Fowler down there in a minute if I thought I had the right hunch. I can't get over feeling that she knews something. But what?"

Gypsy leaned her head back and studied the opposite wall between narrowed lids.

"Doesn't Nina have any suggestion?" she asked.

"Nina said she'd never seen the woman but twice before. Said Fowler didn't like to have his wife come to the office. She'd heard him talk to her over the telephone, though, and says sometimes they quarreled."

"Where was Mrs. Fowler when the shooting took place?"

"You heard her say she was home, didn't you?"

"But Jim—then she hasn't any better alibi than Nina!"

"Except that Nina was in the same building and Mrs. Fowler was clear across town. Besides, there's no motive for the woman to kill her husband."

"How do you know that? There might have been 50 reasons! Jim, how long would it take for a person in a car to get from Fowler's office out to his home?"

Jim considered. "Oh, I should say off-hand about 20 minutes."

"But then she could have done it! She could have—don't you see! Suppose Mrs. Fowler came to the office after Nina left. Maybe they had a quarrel or a struggle and she fired the gun. She could have run down stairs—the building has two stairways you know—and got into a car and been home by the time the police telephoned at 6:30!"

Jim had been listening thoughtfully. Now he shook his head. "It won't work," he said. "You haven't any more case against her than any other person in town who happened to be alone at 6 o'clock that evening. No, I've got to fight the thing out as suicide. People don't get in and out of public buildings without someone seeing them. There were half a dozen witnesses in court today who swore that no one came in or went out of that building who hasn't an air-tight alibi. It must have been suicide!"

There the discussion ended for the evening.

Gypsy awoke next morning with a headache. She sneezed half a dozen times while she was dressing and when she came to the breakfast

Santa Fe Employe Answers Recent Letter Of Local Man

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Since the first letter written on this subject and supporting the side of the trucks and buses exceeded in length the rules of this department, the answer, supporting the railroads, is permitted to likewise exceed the limit of 1,000 words. Other correspondents desiring to comment, one way or another, will please limit letters to 1,000 words to insure their publication. First letter on this subject was written by Welton Winn, retired farmer residing in Lubbock. The following comment is written by a veteran employe of the Santa Fe system, Avery Turner, who resides in Amarillo).

SUPPORTS RAILROADS

Editor, The Avalanche: The Lubbock Avalanche of January 14th printed a letter to the Editor supporting the buses and trucks and stating that "they should be given full sway over the roads to haul passengers and freights as cheap as they can." Evidently this writer at Lubbock has not attempted to drive his auto over any paved road into Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco, Temple, Houston or any cotton market recently, or he would see that the conditions he proposes already exist absolutely. The trucks certainly swayed; some were loaded with bales of cotton piled high on badly worn Ford axles, loaded to three times their safe capacity, and often pulling a loosely coupled trailer, also piled high with cotton bales, averaging 800 pounds each. At times there would be hundreds of cars on every mile of highway for a long distance, all running forty or fifty miles per hour and not one car in ten was supplied with proper brakes for safe operation. Cases occurred when bales fell off in the night and collided with private autos at meeting points and destroyed cars and passengers.

In other words they "hogged" the roads and made them unsafe for use by the people, whose taxes built them. They killed many people and conditions became unbearable until the legislature and the railroad commission took up the question of regulation by H. B. 335 and 336 and enforced safety rules.

The cotton trucks and other trucks all over the state damaged hard surfaced roads frightfully. This has cost tax payers more money than the trucks have earned and the citizens along the highway protested strenuously, demanding safety and economy, now have secured closer inspection, limits in weight, size, length, speed, etc., with proper operating rules and regulations generally.

The railroads pay from fifty to five hundred dollars a mile highway taxes a year for cost and maintenance for these trucks that generally do not pay one dollar tax on the trucks, claiming the license is enough.

The trucks pay no school taxes, very little city tax, if any, while the railroads are taxed to the limit and this past year have been the main support of many schools for first three months of this year.

This Lubbock writer harks back to the crimes of the land grants, three generations ago, but he does not specify any crime, gives no facts or figures.

It is true enough that grants were made that never should have been given and that the state should have been more strict, but no one would buy the land at $1.25 per acre for cash, it was sold on easy terms, but the buyer had to survey it himself, organize expensive survey parties and fight Indians in many instances so that by the time the railroads were able to sell these lands the profit was very small, but the real value of the grants was their security, permitting the railroads to borrow money for construction.

However, so far as I can learn, every railroad owning grants became bankrupt.

It should be remembered that although these early railroads were often built very cheaply they would not have been built for years later without aid of the grants.

The Capitol at Austin cost the state 3,125,000 acres of land, based on a value of $1.00 per acre and I well remember hearing prominent state officials claim they made a very shrewd bargain and bested the Capitol Syndicate.

Mr. Jim Hogg made good political propaganda of the grants years after they were closed out, but at best the railroads only got some credit, enabling them to build a few more miles and the condition of the railroads today tied down by strict regulation, rigidly supervised by the Interstate Commerce Commission taxed to the limit, competing with the airways, highways and waterways that have not been regulated, not taxed so you could notice it, but actually subsidized or aided by federal, state and local governments.

Federal aid for highways, state aid also, and county bond issues, a big postal operation deficit annually, requiring a 50 per cent increase in postage, canalizing the Mississippi, Illinois and Missouri rivers, especially the latter, Kansas City to St. Louis. The operation of the freight barge lines by the war department, St. Paul to New Orleans and the Warrior River Barge line at a time for instance when the Illinois Central road must pass dividends after a straight record of twenty-seven years, paying regularly every year.

However, the subsidy granted the trucks and buses for the free use of highways that cost from ten to fifty thousand dollars a mile is really the support of the bus and truck, but has cost the jobs of half a million railroad employes and increased the tax payers' burden in Texas over an hundred per cent since the trucks and buses have been taking away the earnings of the railroads.

Regarding the I. C. C. regulation of construction of new lines, this is required by the transportation act to protect investment, but not intended to level or equalize investments in railroads.

Perhaps few people would take the Lubbock's writer's letter serious but as it has been printed it should be explained that it is sorry encouragement to help climb out of our present depression.

ble her eyes were smarting.

"Catching cold, aren't you?" Jim ked.

"I don't think so. I think I've ready caught it." A loud "katchoo" ctuated the sentence.

Jim put down his coffee cup. ake my advice," he said, "and home today. Go back to bed have Matilda bring you some- ng hot to drink. That's the only to break up a cold."

"Oh, but Jim I hate to miss the ial!"

"Never mind about the trial. One mber of the family'll be on the there. Now I want you to do I tell you, Gypsy. Spring colds dangerous—"

She was about to protest but an- her attack of sneezing interrupt- . "All right," the girl agreed eekly. Privately she decided she ust look as miserable as she was eling.

After he had gone Gypsy went to e kitchen to talk over the day's dering and menus with Matilda. was Cora's day to do the ironing. psy gave Matilda instructions to charge of the household. Then went upstairs to her room.

Her head was hot and throbbing. e consulted the medicine cabinet d found the remedy that was ually most effective. Then she dressed, took a hot bath and got o bed.

The covers felt soft and warm. ypsy closed her eyes and pulled e blankets more closely about her. most immediately she fell asleep. hen she awoke she had vague emories of a dream in which she d been floating on a cloud that ked like the pink comforter. e had encountered a traffic offi- who in reality was Bennet, the e's attorney. Bennet had ar- ed her and taken her to jail re a woman in a long black veil d up and exclaimed, "You did You know you did it!"

Gypsy blinked her eyes and prop- herself up on one elbow. Ac- ding to the clock on the bedside e it was 2:30. She could hardly lieve she had slept so long. Sleep- she fell back against the pillows.

The jolt renewed the pains in head. She closed her eyes again she did not sleep. A little r when Matilda came into the m on tiptoe the girl looked up smiled.

"I had a long nap," she an- nced. "Is everything going all nt down stairs, Matilda?"

"Yes, ma'am. I finished my bak- and Cora s nearly through with roning. I've a cup of hot broth ing in the kitchen for you. Will have it now?"

Gypsy's throat was parched. hat would be fine," she agreed, d will you get me a glass of d water?"

Matilda returned with the tum- r. While Gypsy was drinking it cook rearranged the shades at windows to keep out the after- n sunlight. Then she went down- rs.

t 10 minutes she was back with a y. There was a steaming bowl beef broth cooked with vege- les and rice. Under a china cov- was a plate of golden buttered st and beside it a pot of tea.

Is there anything else that I get you, ma'am?"

Nothing more," Gypsy said. "I n't know I was hungry but this ks delicious. Oh—I would like other handkerchief."

While she finished the broth and nk her tea Matilda chattered ut affairs in the kitchen. Sam Cora had bought a radio. Har- had come up from Miss Wal- 's to borrow the vacuum cleaner. rolls had been slow rising but were in the oven now.

Are you feeling better now?" Matilda asked as she took the y.

Gypsy stifled a sneeze. "Buch bet- " she said. "Has anyone tele- ned?"

No, ma'am."

Mr. Wallace didn't send any ssage?"

Matilda said he had not. She de- ted a moment later, closing the r after her.

Gypsy stayed in bed drowsing un- 5:30. Her head no longer ached though her throat was fever- she felt much better than in the rning. She dressed in warm thing and spent a painstaking hour before the dressing table ng to cover up with rouge and der the marks of illness.

Downstairs the front door slam- and she knew that Jim was e. A moment later she heard footsteps on the stairs. Gypsy ed and left the room. He was way up the flight when she hed the head of the stairs.

"Gypsy—do you think you should up?"

"Oh, yes. I'm practically well . Did anything happen today?" ile she was speaking she knew something had gone wrong. 's face was worn and gloomy. had looked tired for days but was worse.

"What is it, Jim?" she asked kly.

"Come on downstairs," was all answered. When they reached living room he pulled a chair ard for her. Gypsy sat down. paced acoss the room and then ng around. He drew a deep th.

"Well," he said shortly, "it's all now! They've licked me."

"But you can't mean that! Tell what happened."

"It's over,' Jim repeated. "I'm you weren't there to hear it. r Bennet's performance today uldn't be surprised if she gets the chair."

"Oh, Jim—no!'

"He had three witnesses" Jim went on, "technical experts — who testified that it couldn't have been suicide. Tough birds to cross-question. Of course Parker was there and he insists Fowler fired the gun. It's give-and-take as far as the evidence goes but the high sounding titles these imported experts have impressed the jury. I watched them and I'm sure of it."

"Oh, but Nina—'

Jim turned and walked toward the window. When he spoke again his voice sounded strange. "She'll have to pay for it, I guess," he said "whether she did it or not."

He sank into a chair. Neither of them spoke for a long interval. Then Gypsy asked, "How much longer will the trial last?"

"Can't tell if Bennet has anything more up his sleeve or not. I haven t. It will probably go to the jury tomorrow."

Dinner was a somber meal. Jim's shoulders seemed heavy with the consciousness of defeat. He said little. Gypsy had forgotten her aching throat but she could not wipe from memory the vision of Nina Roberts' frightened face. She thought of the letter locked away upstairs—the letter to Nina's sweetheart. Would she have to send it?

Jim pushed away his chair after "Think I'll go to the library," he said. "You don t mind?"

The girl shook her head. After he had gone she sat for a while and then went into the living room. There were newspapers on the table with sensational headlines. Gypsy barely glanced at them and climbed the stairs to her room.

She changed her dress for a quilted, lemon-colored bathrobe. Then for a long time she sat and stared at the floor. At last she turned down the covers and slipped into bed.

Next morning Gypsy announced that though her cold was better she thought it would be unwise to visit the courtroom. Jim looked relieved.

"Sensible idea," he said. "No use taking risks."

She stood beside him in the hall while he jjammed on his hat.

"Jim," Gypsy said in a low voice, "I do hope things will go better today."

"Hope so. If there s a verdict I'll telephone."

"Yes, do."

Twenty minutes later she was in a taxicab driving east. The cab halted before a low brick bungalow and Gypsy stepped to the sidewalk.

"Wait for me," she told the cab driver.

"B. C." Relieves Head Cold Pains In Three Minutes

A simple head cold often produces intense suffering from headache, neuralgia, etc., and you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "B.C.", a reliable, pleasant acting remedy.

"B.C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time.

"B.C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, reducing fever, and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B.C." wherever drugs are sold in 10c and 25c packages. (Adv.)

Cotton Cotton Market Is More Active — Livestock Steers, Yearlings Are About Steady — Grain Wheat Prices Get Backbone

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 3. (AP)—The cotton market was slightly more active today and prices ruled steady although within narrow ranges. There was an absence of the selling pressure of yesterday, stocks were steadier and there was also more or less trade buying and price fixing. After opening 1 to 3 points up prices advanced to levels 4 to 6 points above the previous close but lost some of this gain during the afternoon. The market closed steady showing net advances for the day of 3 to 5 points.

March closed 6.56, or 4 points net higher for the day, May at 6.72, up 3 points net and July at 6.82, also up 3 points net.

tion of setting up a definite organization to release hoarded funds, there was some speculation that Taylor might be intimately connected with it. Mr. Hoover gave no hint of this, however, or of what form the machine would assume.

Prediction Issued

Meanwhile, the directors of the reconstruction corporation met in their own headquarters. From them issued the prediction that loan-making would be in full swing by next week-end.

The senate, too, lent a hand. It confirmed the nomination of Wilson McCarthy, Salt Lake City banker, lawyer and stockman. He was named by the president as the third Democratic and seventh and last director of the organization.

The cooperation of the corporation in the president's anti-hoarding move was assured. The six directors now active issued a statement following that from the White House saying "every patriotic citizen should enlist in this effort, dedicated as it is to the public good and his country's cause."

The cathedral of Santiago, one of the showplaces of this historical airport, and several of the important structures in the business district were damaged, some of them seriously.

United States Ambassador Harry Guggenheim, who left Havana today to survey the situation, arrived tonight.

Mr. Mellon's familiarity with reparations, war debts and other aspects of international economic relations with which he must deal, figured importantly in the decision to ask him to go to London.

Stocks Lead Hum-Drum Existence To Absorb Slack During The Last Hour

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. (AP)—Stocks led a hum-drum existence today. In the last hour the market absorbed the slack of an earlier decline and prices closed a little higher, but the spread between highs and lows was narrow, and volume evaporated to 808,170 shares.

General Motors' dividend meeting, late in the day, caused some hesitation among professionals who invariably mark time while an event of financial importance is pending. War news had no hold on the speculative imagination, although uncertainties surrounding current far eastern affairs undoubtedly contributed to the somnolence. Japanese bonds rallied.

Sports On Firmer Footing As Gardner Promises Prospective Buyers Strong Club In 1932

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 3. (AP)—Future of the Shreveport baseball club of the Texas League was on a firmer footing tonight after a meeting between league representatives and O. L. Biedenharn, principal owner, at which plans for sale of the franchise were mapped out.

John Willis, Frankie Whited and Ward Delaney, business men of Shreveport, agreed to meet with Biedenharn Friday to draw up plans for an option on the purchase of the club that will hold through the 1932 season.

The option will give the three the right to purchase the team in October, or pay 6 per cent interest on the price now set for the transfer. No figures were announced.

Alvin Gardner, president of the league, announced the Texas League was prepared to put a strong club on the field for the men who take over the franchise.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 3. (AP)—Considering the 25 to 50 or more declines enforced previously this week, fed steers and yearlings on the day's trade held about steady at most centers. Most medium to short fed kinds were of quality to sell at 4.00@6.50 with a few loads of mostly good kinds at 7.00@8.00. Chicago realized the day's top of 9.00 on a consignment of long yearling steers. Offerings of stock cattle were comparatively scarce with values steady to easier. Most stockers and feeders sell at 4.00@5.50 with fleshy feeders up to 6.00. Accumulated receipts for the week at eleven markets numbered 113,200, compared with 104,227 last week.

An uneven trade prevailed on hogs with values covering both extremes, ranging from 5 to 25 lower. Several centers noted greater declines on the close than were effected at the opening. Chicago and St. Louis shared the day's top of 4.10.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 3. (AP) — Renewal of anxiety over far east belligerence together with sudden development of below zero temperatures threatening widespread crop damage put backbone into wheat prices today.

Estimates that 1,300,000 bushels were also of Canadian wheat had been bought for shipment overseas were also a strengthening influence. Confidence of speculative purchasers of wheat was shaken at times, however, by assertions of a British trade authority that the United States would provide 50,000,000 bushels less of world import requirements this season than had heretofore been expected.

Wheat closed nervous, 1-4 to 3-8 above yesterday's finish, corn 1-4 to 5-8 down, oats unchanged to 1-8 off and provisions at 5 to 7 cents decline.

Hostilities

sharpshooters.

Japanese naval forces along the Whangpoo river between Shanghai and Woosung were believed to have started shelling Chinese positions along the railway, running parallel to the river as far as the forts.

Official reports that 120 Japanese airplanes were concentrated on aircraft carriers lying off the Saddle islands and Hangchow bay heightened apprehension of further bombardment from the air.

Chinese bankers and businessmen decided to reopen banks and all stores essential to the community's welfare in an effort to revive Shanghai's paralyzed business, at least 75 per cent of which has been at a standstill.

Take Up Positions

The United States marine reinforcements were landed at the bund in the international settlement and rushed in motor trucks to the Japanese cotton mill area within the American sector of the settlement. There they replaced Japanese forces, who left to take up new stands while the Americans consolidated their positions along Soochow creek, facing barricades on the opposite bank.

In the rival claims of victory, Teng Chen-Chuan, Woosung commander, said the Japanese warship went down after Chinese gunners had scored three direct hits. But Japanese naval authorities declared every bottom was safe and accounted for.

Commander Teng averred the damage done by the Japanese was less impressive. One of the Chinese guns, he said, was put out of commission. From other sources it was learned the Chinese suffered 30 casualties at Woosung. Latest reports were they still held the forts and were preparing to defend them against another attack today.

Chinese refugees seeking haven within the Shanghai international settlement taxed its capacity. It was estimated the refugee population was close to 1,000,000.

All during yesterday Japanese nationals poured out of Shanghai. Three liners took away full loads of them, and those who could not crowd aboard were told transportation would be provided today.

In Shanghai the guns started booming Wednesday afternoon and soon numerous Japanese planes were circling over the Chinese lines, dropping bombs that ignited new fires in Chapei.

Stars Of Hollywood Become Color Conscious

Following the dictates of a screen color expert, who decides what the stars are to wear in making colored pictures, most of Hollywood's leading lights have become intensely color conscious lately. Mary Pickford has been seen wearing a great deal of red. Jean Harlow, the platinum blond, is preferring black these days. Norma Shearer has been choosing cool greens, Dolores Del Rio is appearing in blacks and whites, and Gloria Swanson, before her departure on her European honeymoon, showed a decided preference for Chinese red. According to Mrs. Natalie Kalmus, the color expert, every person has a color which vibrates best with his or her personality.

GRAVITY ALTIMETER

BERLIN—Of valuable assistance to pilots will be a new gravity controlled altimeter recently demonstrated at the Templehof airdrome here. The instrument indicates the height of a plane from the ground, instead of above sea level, and will enable pilots to reckon more accurately their altitude above dangerous obstacles in the dark and fog. It was invented by an Austrian, Hans von Braun, and is operated by air pressure.

Bailey Schools Get State Help

(By Staff Correspondent)

MULESHOE, Feb. 3.—At least 50 per cent of the schools of Bailey county will have eight months of school work or better in the opinion of J. E. Adams, county superintendent of schools.

"There are 13 schools in the county, including Muleshoe," he said. "At least 50 per cent will have the equal of eight months of class work or better.

"We got state aid for teachers' salaries for 12 out of the 13 schools in the county. That will help us a great deal."

Attendance has been good the past scholastic year, Mr. Adams added. While a majority of the schools were closed for cotton picking, pupils attended when the schools were going better than they usually do when some are open and some closed.

Bailey county has 1,534 scholastics. The present situation indicates a gain next year.

Eleven out of the 13 school districts have brick buildings. Only three districts do not have a teacherage.

Postal Receipts At Sudan In 1931 Considerably Less

By Staff Correspondent

SUDAN, Feb. 6. Postal receipts for Sudan during 1931 were between $250 and $300 less than the previous year, but enough to cause a reduction of $100 a year in the salary of the postmaster.

The 1930 receipts were more than $6,000 while the 1931 receipts were enough less to bring the figure below that amount and thus cause a reduction. The total was just under $5,200.

December's business was approximately $700. At the beginning of the month the year was nearly $1,000 behind and Postmaster L. E. Slate said he did not think that would exceed $6,000.

Present indications are that the 1932 business will gain back all that has been lost and then some. Receipts have constantly increased for the past five or six years.

WRIT IS DENIED

KENNETT, Mo., Feb. 3. News Events In Texas Start Year 1932 At Lively Clip And Things Have Just Now Begun To Happen

BY ROBERT WEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

History, marching across the front page, has started the year 1932 in Texas at a lively tempo and still things are happening.

Governor R. S. Sterling, in January, indicated he might lift martial law rule of the East Texas oil fields soon and had not denied he would run for re-election this year.

Texas cities and the state highway department were discovered planning construction projects during the year that would cost more than $70,000,000, for many of which funds already were available.

Records Broken

Records for poll tax payments were broken in many counties, as the deadline for payment was reached on January 31, indicating, tax collectors declared, that voters certainly were not becoming apathetic to politics and the conduct of government.

As the merits of Governor Sterling's martial law regime in the East Texas oil field were being argued January 6, before a three-judge federal court at Houston, Circuit Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson declared from the bench: "It (martial law)) was nothing other than a subterfuge, a pretext, to limit the production of oil." Counsel of the state, in the injunction suit brought by Eugene Constantin and J. E. Wrather, had argued that the oil production orgy caused threatened "riot and insurrection."

Tornadoes Strike

Tornadoes killed two persons and wounded 17 on January 11, near Eagle Lake and Waller, and on January 12, Robert J. McMillan, Republican, of San Antonio was nominated for appointment as federal judge of the western district of Texas, to succeed his former law partner, judge Duval West, retired.

District Judge W. F. Robertson, at Austin on January 15, held that the state highway commission did not have the right to "sign away $200,000 of the state's money to pacify somebody" and denied the suit of the Red River Bridge company for $165,000, allegedly due it because of the early completion of a free bridge between Denison and Durant which paralleled the company's toll structure.

Jed Adams, Democratic national committee man, returned to Dallas on January 14 from the Jackson Day dinner at Washington and declared John N. Garner of Uvalde, Texas, speaker of the house, was the "man of the hour" as a presidential candidate.

First Test Stated

The first test of the new Texas compulsory cotton acreage limitation law began January 20 at Franklin, when T. L. Tyson, Robertson county attorney, sought an injunction to prevent Fred L. Smith, Calvert farmer, from planting 1,300 acres to cotton this year.

A jury decided at Houston, On January 21, that the state automobile license law was discriminatory, in a suit brought by Harris county commissioners to test the law's apportionment of license fees collected, as between the various counties and the state.

Heavy rains sent the Trinity river out of bounds and flooded the costly industrial district reclamation project at Dallas, on January 22.

On January 29, Democratic leaders assembled for a state-wide "victory dinner" cheered when General M. M. Crane spoke of "that cavalier of the chapparal, John N. Garner."

Contract Is Signed For Handling Of Tomatoes; Acreage Is Being Secured

MULESHOE, Feb. 3. — Contract has been signed with H. E. Davidson, of Jacksonville, for the handling of the distribution and sale of 150 acres of tomatoes, to be grown on the irrigated sections of the Blackwater valley during the coming season.

Between 75 and 100 acres already has been secured and the additional acreage is expected to be secured shortly. Thirty-six farmers have agreed to plant between two and three acres each.

Mr. Davidson, who was here to discuss plans with the Kiwanis club and local citizens stated that a production of from six to eight tons, or 12,000 to 16,000 pounds per acre, could be grown. Local men state that previous production in the valley indicates the average will be better than 15,000 to 20,000 pounds.

The Muleshoe Kiwanis club voted to give prizes amounting to $50 for the best acreages; the first prize to be $25, with second and third prizes of $15 and $10, respectively, for the three best crops.

Last year when plans for a tomato canning factory were begun, a Lubbock wholesale house offered to handle 20 car loads of tomatoes from the local plant.

A revival program for this plant is underway. The committee, Neal Rockey, R. L. Brown and Dr. A. R. Matthews, is making plans to interest a canner in the project. A canning factory to handle tomatoes and other crops, would employ 100 to 125 persons during the season. Local men have raised a fund for the starting of a factory and a site is assured. Also there would be plenty of acreage available, if the factory is secured.

Social Functions Again Are Opened

LARAMIE, Wyo., Feb. 3 (AP)—The University of Wyoming's social functions, suspended more than a month following a student strike will be resumed under rules and regulations to be drawn by school officials and student leaders.

A ban on social activities was lifted at a meeting of faculty and students last night.

Students refused to attend classes after President A. G. Crane at a school dance admonished several couples to conduct themselves with greater propriety and his language was characterized by leaders of the strike as casting reflection on the character of the students.

The "strike" was of short duration.

Sino-Japanese Battlefield Brought Closer Home Along Atlantic Coast

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. (AP)—The international significance of the bloody Sino-Japanese duel for control of Shanghai, greatest seaport in the far east, is often dimmed by distance.

But if one were to think of the eastern coast of China as the Atlantic coast from the border of Maine to the tip of Florida, he would discover that an inland port roughly represented by Baltimore, Md., had been invaded by a foreign foe and a sixth of the city had been riddled by shell and flame.

Applying the yardstick of population, a bustling manufacturing city the size of Detroit has some 5,000 unwelcome bluejackets within her gates. Barricades of barbed wire and sandbags have been thrown up—along Woodward avenue so to speak—and national guards are patrolling the Highland Park plant of the Fort Motor company.

To achieve a centralized view of the desolation in the native city of Chapei one might imagine the great "Chinatown" area of San Francisco in ashes, hundreds of Chinese dead or wounded and thousands more swarming along the embarcadero into Market street.

A territory as large as Lansing, Mich., has been laid waste. As many people as live in Atlanta, Ga., have no where to lay their heads.

When shells fell in the Whangpoo river off the bund of the international settlement — relatively speaking—they were churning up the waters of the Mississippi at the foot of Canal street, in New Orleans.

If Nanking, the capital, is menaced by warships in the Yangtze and a landing party at her door—remembering the relative location of Baltimore—then a geographical projection upon the United States would find Washington crouching under the guns of a battle fleet lying in the Potomac. But the Chinese government since has decamped to a northwest which might be represented by Milwaukee.

New Texas Oil Field Now Believed Found At Marlin

DALLAS, Feb. 3. (AP)—Discovery of a new well in Central Texas, believed to have tapped a new oil pool, a three-mile extension of the East Texas field and the possibility that martial law enforcement of proration in the East Texas field may be lifted soon have given the oil industry an uncertain outlook in Texas.

On Jan. 31, C. C. Curtis of Marlin, drilling a well for the Dixieland Oil syndicate on the J. Lee Davis tract 14 miles northwest of Marlin, unexpectedly encountered oil at 1,006 feet, two feet in the Georgetown lime. The well was estimated as good for 1,000 to 3,000 barrels daily, 35 gravity oil.

Scouts and major company representatives flocked to the new site to investigate reports that the new well had tapped the "mother pool" of a shallow field in the vicinity which had been producing oil nearly ten years.

Plants are capable of defensive action.
