A NEW RULE this summer at all city swimming pools is that children must reach a chin height of 3½ feet to be admitted without an adult. Monica Alvarado, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alvarado, attempts to measure up as acting recreation superintendent Em Carnett watches. (Related Story, Page 3A)

Taxes would rise 30 cents if teacher raises approved

By LUANNA CROW

School taxes would jump more than 30 cents next year if Midland public school teachers are granted a requested 11 per cent pay raise.

The resulting 30.5 cent hike would push the maintenance and operations tax rate to $1.53 per $100 assessment on 75 per cent valuation, a formula 3 cents beyond the limits set by Texas law.

Even without the 11 per cent pay hike, maintenance and operations taxes are expected to rise 14.5 cents.

"Obviously, we can't grant an 11 per cent increase," said board of trustees president Joe Dominey in an interview after Tuesday's board meeting.

However, no action was taken during the meeting, and the matter was shelved pending additional study on the school district's budget for 1976-77. Action also was delayed on salary supplements for coaches and school sponsors as well as a proposal by the Teacher Welfare Committee that the school district pick up the tab on a health insurance policy.

Spokesman for the Teacher Welfare Committee Bob Watkins said it was a "coincidence" the the group asked the district to pay teachers' insurance premiums just two weeks after more than 400 teachers and principals turned out to ask for an 11 per cent across-the-board pay hike.

Trustees already had approved a 3.5 per cent wage increase in their April 6 meeting. Dr. James H. Mailey, superintendent, said the raise is "the identical increment the state uses except ours extends beyond where the state (scale) flattens out."

Last year, teachers were awarded raises averaging about $1,400.

In making their plea for the 11 per cent increase for 1976-77, teachers cited the rising cost of living. They said they didn't know, however, how much more money such an increase would require.

Those figures, prepared by district officials for the Tuesday meeting, show an increase of $1,269,154 (including Social Security) over the $11,145,498 paid in professional salaries this year.

According to Don Furgeson, business manager, an 11 per cent salary hike likely would have to be applied to all employes if it were awarded to teachers and principals. A pay raise for all employes plus $550,227 anticipated as next year's increase in utilities, supplies, equipment, travel and insurance would total $2,066,098.

Although school officials expect local fund revenue next year to reach $16,369,627 — $226,735 over this year — it still leaves the district short $1,839,363. Mailey said the sum would be equivalent to an additional 30.5 cents in taxation.

He told the trustees, too, increased expenses for the 1976-77 school term, including the 3.5 per cent teacher pay raise already approved, probably will require a tax hike of 14.5 cents for operations and maintenance. Debt service also will require a tax hike of 3.5 cents for a total tax rate of $1.605 per $100 assessment on 75 per cent valuation.

If the 3.5 cent debt service hike were attached to the 30.5 cents required for the 11 per cent pay increase, the total tax rate would jump to $1.765.

Boundaries changed

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The Midland school board Thursday changed high school and freshman school attendance zone boundaries to include a six-block area north of Wadley Street in the Lee High School zone and the Skyline Terrace addition in the Midland High School zone.

The dividing line was moved north from Stutz Place to Haynes Drive between Garfield and Lanham. This action moved the 2300 and 2400 blocks of Stutz Place, Auburn Place and Metz Place into the Lee zone. The dividing line was moved west from Midkiff Road to Midland Drive, north to FM 868 and east to Midkiff Road in order to inelude the Skyline Terrace addition in the Midland zone.

The new boundary line is now as follows: "Beginning at the intersection of Wadley and Garfield, proceed north along Garfield to Haynes Drive, west on Haynes Drive to Lanham, north on Lanham to the alley north of Emerson Drive, west along the alley north of Emerson Drive to Ward Street, south on Ward to Haynes Drive, west on Haynes Drive to Midkiff Road, across Midkiff Road continue west along the alley located south of Haynes and south of the cul-de-sacs and its extension to the intersection with Midland Drive, north on Midland Drive to its intersection with Farm Road 868, east on Farm Road 868 to its intersection with Midkiff Road, north on Midkiff Road to the county line."

The boundary lines for Edison Freshman School are the same as for Midland and those for Austin Freshman School are the same as for Lee. The changes made Tuesday will affect students entering freshman schools beginning next year but will not affect students already enrolled in or entering one of the the high schools.

At the board's May 11 meeting residents from the 2300 and 2400 blocks of Metz Place, Auburn Place and Stutz Place requested that their area be moved to the Lee zone. They said they had been led to believe their property was in the Lee zone when they purchased it.

At that meeting, newly elected trustee Ed Runyan moved that the boundary between Garfield Street and Lanham Street be moved north to Haynes to comply with this request. His motion also included a provision to include Skyline Terrace addition in the Midland zone by moving the boundary west on Haynes and its extension to the intersection of the alley west of Boulder Drive, north along that alley to FM 868 and east on FM 868 to Midkiff Road. Tuesday, the board adopted an amendment by trustee Johnny Warren to extend the line further west from Boulder Drive to Midland Drive, north to FM 868 and east to Midkiff Road.

Ford holds on to lead, wins 3 primaries

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

The heaviest presidential primary day in American history is over with President Ford holding off Ronald Reagan on what might have been a big Reagan day and Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter increasing his delegate lead.

There were six primaries on Tuesday, three in Southern or border states and three in the Far West, areas that are the cornerstone of Reagan's Sun Belt strategy.

Ford managed a split in the popular vote, winning as expected in Oregon and beating Reagan by narrow margins in Tennesee and Kentucky. Ford picked up 76 delegates in the six contests, but Reagan's bigger wins in Nevada, Idaho and Arkansas gave him 100 additional delegates, a net gain of 24 delegates on the day.

With Tuesday's contests included, the President still leads, 777 delegates to 644 for Reagan in the race for the GOP presidential nomination.

Carter won Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, but lost Oregon, considered the day's main event, to Sen. Frank Church. Church also won in his home state of Idaho. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. easily captured the Nevada primary.

But Carter, despite the mixed results, won a total of 137 delegates, combining those picked up in primaries with 28 more in district conventions in Missouri and two in an Alabama runoff. That puts the former Georgia governor past the halfway mark with 877 of the 1,505 delegates needed for the Democratic nomination.

Carter picked up an added boost today when Mayor Abraham D. Beame of New York endorsed him for the Democratic nomination.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, who picked up a scattered six delegates Tuesday, remains second with 298.5. There is also a bloc of 399.5 uncommitted votes.

Reagan had predicted he would win at least four of the six and it looked for a while like he might squeeze out a win in Tennessee to make his prediction good. Ford's margin was narrow through much of the evening, and Reagan pulled to within 123 votes with about 50 precincts left to report.

But those precincts were in the Knoxville area, where Ford had done well all night and when they were finally counted, the President had squeezed through to a 1,500-vote victory, although he lost the delegate race 22-21 because of weighting by congressional districts.

Stuart Spencer, Ford's deputy campaign manager, said the (Related Story, Page 3A)

President was happy with the results. "This is the night Reagan had to make a big comeback," Spencer said. "He didn't do it."

Reagan said he was pleased with his wins in Arkansas, Idaho and Nevada. He said of Kentucky and Tennessee, "I feel good doing as well as I did in these border states."

Church called the Oregon and Idaho wins "a quantum leap forward for my campaign." And he added: "The results tonight show people are taking a second look at Jimmy Carter."

But Carter emphasized his delegate harvest and that he has won half the primaries he has entered in May.

Udall, who won only six delegates Tuesday, said he was still in the race. "I won delegates in Arkansas and Kentucky," he said. "Mo Udall is a national candidate."

"Obviously I like to win," said Brown, a winner last week in Maryland, of the results in Oregon, where he was a write-in candidate. "But a write-in requires a commitment far greater than just punching a hole by the candidate's name."

He added: "If tonight means anything, it means the process is continuing to expand and open. The California primary is critical."

Here are the returns from Tuesday's contests:

Oregon

With 100 per cent of the precincts counted:

Ford 146,940 or 52 per cent and 16 delegates.

Reagan 133,198 or 48 per cent and 14 delegates.

Among the Democrats:

Church 143,096 or 35 per cent and 15 delegates.

Carter 113,281 or 28 per cent and 12 delegates.

Brown 86,917 or 22 per cent and 7 delegates.

Tennessee

With 99 per cent of the precincts reporting:

Ford 120,557 or 50 per cent and 21 delegates.

Reagan 118,451 or 49 per cent and 22 delegates.

On the Democratic side:

Carter 256,941 or 78 per cent and 36 delegates.

Wallace 36,397 or 11 per cent and one delegate.

The rest of the vote was split seven ways and nine uncommitted delegates were chosen.

Kentucky

With 99 per cent of the precincts counted:

Ford 67,796 or 51 per cent and 19 delegates.

Reagan 62,269 or 47 per cent and 18 delegates.

The rest were for a minor local

Wall crumbles before citizens' opposition

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Like the walls of Jericho, the wall came tumbling down Tuesday — before it was even constructed.

The Midland City Council, meeting for the third time on the proposed 28-foot high, 320-foot long tennis facility wall in north Midland, heard the developers give up the idea of the structure after area residents continued their protests.

Council unanimously approved the requested zone change to allow development of a planned district south of Cimmaron and east of Garfield.

Residents in the neighborhood had met a number of times with Martin Allday, who presented the request on behalf of the property's owner William Rhoden. Neighbors objected mainly to construction of a tennis facility with its proposed 28-foot-high by 320-foot-long curved wall.

Allday said the landowners had agreed not to construct a tennis facility on the property but would continue with plans to build 10 patio townhouses on the west end of the land, seven inside lots for construction of four to five homes, a common area of ponds and fountains, guard house, and service facility.

He suggested the land upon which the tennis facility would have been built be divided into six lots for construction of townhouses. He noted a possibility exists that one home will be built on the land, rather than townhouses, but the owners wanted the right to construct the townhouses.

Allday said the structures built would be no more than 28 feet, nine inches in height, one-half floor less than that permitted under the single-family zoning originally held by the property. He said the first-floor units would be constructed with common party walls between them, and that the second-floor areas and roofs would have at least 10 feet of open space between them. He said no second-floor area would be wider than the lots to the east.

Another item objected to by neighbors was a proposed storage shed since residents said it would be noisy and unpleasant in appearance. Allday said no structure of this type would be taller than the eight-foot masonry construction-type wall partially surrounding the development.

Residents urged the proposed townhouses not be over 17 feet high, the height of other buildings in the area.

But councilman Charles Tighe and Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said they could not understand further objections to the new proposal. Tighe said this plan would be the best way to develop the property, and Angelo noted the 28-foot six-inches in height is six feet lower than could legally be built without the zone change. Tighe also said the structures would look like a home, not a wall, and that garbage cans and noise were "some of the inconveniences we all must put up with in order to live in a community like this."

Council approved the request and its preliminary plat unanimously, with Councilman Carroll Thomas absent.

County seniors to graduate Thursday

More than 1,000 Midland high school seniors will receive diplomas in graduation exercises Thursday night.

Midland High School and Lee High School will both conduct their exercises in Midland Memorial Stadium, Midland at 6 p.m. and Lee at 9 p.m. Greenwood High School's ceremony will be at 8 p.m. in the school's gymnasium located southeast of Midland.

Approximately 450 Midland High seniors will receive their diplomas from Johnny Warren, vice president of the school board, with assistance from board members David Grimes and James Ramsoure. John Adams will present the valedictory address and David Turner the salutatory.

Jeff Webb, student body president, will give the invocation; Bill Wells, head counselor, will announce awards, scholarships and honors; Audrey L. Gill, principal, will present the class; Dr. Douglas Brown, assistant superintendent of schools, will certify the class; Don McCartney, Midland choir director, will lead the alma mater; Bill O'Neil, president of the senior class, will give the benediction, and the Midland band will play the processional and recessional.

School board president Joe H. Dominey will present diplomas to the approximately 600 Lee graduates. James Michael Berry is Lee valedictorian and Maralee Buttery is salutatorian.

Carl Edward Comstock, student body president, will give the invocation; Eugene Isaacs, guidance director, will announce awards and scholarships; Dr. L. Glenn Neswick, principal, will present the class; Dr. James H. Mailey, school superintendent, will certify the class; Robin Lisa Malone, chaplain of the student body, will give the benediction; and the Lee Band will play the processional and recessional.

Fifteen students will graduate from Greenwood High School. William J. Mewhorter, president of Western State Bank, will speak at the ceremony. Denise Brooks is valedictorian and Rae Garcia, salutatorian. Mel Williams, superintendent of the Greenwood Independent School District, and Bud Lea, school board president, will present the diplomas.

The Rev. Tom Hale, pastor of Greenwood Baptist Church, will present the invocation and benediction. Kim White and Donna Pyle will play organ and piano music.

Man whose suitcase exploded not yet identified

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Security officers said today that the blond European whose suitcase bomb killed him and a woman security guard in Israel's international airport was traveling on a forged Dutch passport and they had not been able to identify him.

Security sources said the man's ticket, found in the wreckage left by the explosion Tuesday, was bought at a small town in Austria near the Hungarian border.

He arrived in Tel Aviv on an Austrian airliner from Vienna, the sources said, and apparently planned to leave his boobytrapped luggage at the airport while he flew on to Tehran, Iran, aboard an Air France plane. He was also ticketed from Tehran to Athens.

A 22-year-old security woman became suspicious of the man, took him into a search area, and ordered him to open the red bag he was carrying. When he did, it exploded, killing them and wounding 10 Israelis in the arrival hall of Ben-Gurion International Airport.

A second suitcase bomb went off half an hour later as police were dragging it from the arrival hall. It caused no damage or casualties. The police blew open a third suitcase with detonators, but it contained only clothes.

In Beirut, the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) claimed it was responsible for the bombings. But its account differed considerably from what happened, and Israeli newspapers blamed the Palestine Liberation Organization.

(A small package exploded in the New Delhi airport early today. The explosion blew out 60 windows in the baggage room but caused no injuries. A spokesman for Japan Air Lines said the package came from Indonesia via Singapore and Bangkok and was addressed to the office of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, in the Indian capital.)

The Tel Aviv bomber's forged passport identified him as Hugo Miller, but officers said that was not his name.

"We have no idea of his real identity or nationality," said one police officer. "It is too early."

Israeli newspapers charged that Austria was responsible for letting the explosive suitcase get aboard the Austrian Airlines plane. Austrian security authorities said the man's baggage was checked and appeared harmless.

The dead woman, one of six sisters, was being given a military funeral today.

One official said she "averted a much greater tragedy" by taking the man from the crowded arrival hall into the special search area.

The explosion shattered the thick glass security shield around the search booth. A security guard who was nearby was critically burned. A girl's hair and clothes caught fire, and a customs man smothered the flames with his body. Glass cut the face of a man in a wheelchair.

Smoke filled the terminal building as hundreds of workers and travelers rushed out. Loudspeakers warned everyone to keep away from the bombed area.

The Palestinian version of the bombing said: "An assault group of PFLP fighters broke in to the airport and managed to explode heavy explosive charges that resulted in great numbers of killed and wounded."

At least, you know it's for good cause

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — If your collection of Conway Twitty's greatest hits never arrived in the mail, chances are it's gone for a good purpose — helping the cash-starved Postal Service solve its debt problems.

The Postal Service is making profits from auctioning off books and records after its new mail sorting machines have ripped them from their wrappers.

Spokesmen for the book and record industries said Tuesday that their merchandise has received unprecedented damage in the mail since the Postal Service began using an automated system for sorting packages.

But in many cases, the book or record isn't damaged. It's simply separated from its packaging — and its address — by the machines, they said. In these cases, postal regulations allow the intact book or record to be auctioned off after a 60-day waiting period.

The book and record industries are pressing for an end to the auctions.

Congressional investigators have criticized some of the devices used to sort packages as "nonsense machines" that cause needless damage.

"When the Postal Service can auction off books that become loose in the mail this gives it an economic reason not to locate the rightful owner," Leo Albert, a spokesman for the book publishing industry, told a House Post Office subcommittee.

The Postal Service has announced a moratorium on auctions of books and records from June 1 to Aug. 31 while it looks for alternatives to the auctions.

A spokesman for the financially troubled Postal Service said no figures are available on the proceeds from postal auctions since the service's billion dollar bulk mail system was completed this year. The mail agency says books and records are its biggest problems in the new system.

Administration cutback plan on food stamps to draw suit

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half the states, 53 labor unions and 22 church groups are joining 73 food-stamp families to sue the Ford administration in an attempt to stop a sharp cutback in the food stamp program.

Ronald Pollack, director of the private non-profit Food Research and Action Center who will argue the case for almost 200 plaintiffs, said the suit will be filed in U.S. District Court today.

According to current Agriculture Department estimates, about 1.66 million families would be eliminated entirely from the food-stamp rolls under new regulations that begin taking effect next Tuesday.

An additional 1.72 million families with incomes just under the official poverty lines would remain in the program but would have to pay more cash for the stamps. Administration officials say the other two million-plus families remaining in the program will see their benefits increase.

The administration predicts the new regulations will save taxpayers $1.2 billion a year when fully effective six months from now. About 18.8 million persons in 5.88 million households now benefit from the 12-year-old program, costing the federal government $5.7 billion a year.

President Ford issued the new rules in February, saying Congress was taking too long to make changes in the food stamp program. Ford and Congress say changes are needed because of public criticism that the program is too expensive, too complicated and filled with loopholes.

The new rules would limit stamps to households with gross incomes that are no more than $100 a month above the nonfarm poverty lines, or $125 above if the family had a member over 65 years old.

For the typical three-person food-stamp family in the continental United States, the new ceiling would be $383 a month plus $100. The present system does not have a gross income ceiling but consists of a net income figure calculated by deducting some expenses.

More than 800 pages of legal briefs and affidavits were compiled in preparation for the suit. Pollack said he hoped for a temporary restraining order against the new rules by Friday.

The plaintiffs charged that the Agriculture Department violated the Constitution, the Food Stamp Act and the Administrative Process Act in drafting the regulations at Ford's orders. The defendants are Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, the Agriculture Department and some food-stamp officials.

The suit claimed that the new rules unconstitutionally discriminate against working families because welfare families are automatically eligible by statute.

Ford would ask Henry Kissinger to stay on job

The Washington Post

SAN JOSE, Calif. — President Ford said Tuesday that if he is elected in November he will ask Henry A. Kissinger to stay on as Secretary of State.

Mr. Ford made the statement during a brief meeting with reporters at the airport here. Earlier, he had declared his strong approval of Kissinger at a question-and-answer question with the Los Angeles Press Club.

In Los Angeles the President also dealt with the politically sensitive issue of school busing and said that some judges had gone "far too far" in issuing busing orders to achieve racial desegregation.

"The net result is that we have torn up a number of communities and it is tragic and sad," the President said.

Mr. Ford said he wouldn't name the judges he had in mind because Attorney General Edward Levi "admonishes me not to do so."

Only Tuesday, however, the President specifically criticized federal judge Charles R. Richey for a court decision aimed at preventing tuna fishermen from using porpoise-killing nets.

In a bid for the votes of a few hundred fishermen the President went aboard the tuna boat Theresa Janene in San Diego harbor and claimed that "the tuna industry will be ended, will be destroyed if the full impact of Judge Richey's decision is carried out."

'Excitement of chase' prompted shooting

FAIRFIELD, Tex. (AP) — Investigators said David Glen Long, 18, told them he shot State Trooper David Brooks Russ because he craved "the excitement of a wild chase in which I could outrun the police."

Russ, 26, was reported in critical but stable condition Tuesday in a Corsicana hospital with a chest wound suffered late the afternoon before. The patrolman was shot after he stopped a car for a traffic violation on Interstate 45 near this North Central Texas town.

Long, a roommate of a Harris County deputy sheriff, remained in jail here Tuesday charged with the shooting. He surrendered Monday night after nearly 100 officers joined in a search for him, employing a helicopter and bloodhounds.

Patrolman Larry McCaig said he took Long into custody without a struggle after spotting the Houston youth near a road in the area of the shooting.

Officers said Long had a .357 magnum pistol in his possession when arrested. A Department of Public Safety spokesman said Russ was shot with a .357 magnum.

Freestone County Atty. Robert Gage said Long told investigators that three weeks ago he moved into a Houston apartment with a deputy named "Quinn." A spokesman for the Harris County sheriff's department identified a Mike Quinn as a deputy assigned to jail duties. Police said they believed the gun they found in Long's possession belonged to the deputy.

Recruiting pressure detailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine recruiters have been pressured into filling their enlistment quotas with unqualified men whose shortcomings quickly make them targets of abuse from boot camp drill instructors, according to testimony before a House subcommittee.

The villain of this scenario, the House panel was told Tuesday, is the concept of an all volunteer military that forces recruiters who must meet quotas to cheat on standards when signing up enlistees.

Marine Commandant Louis H. Wilson and his manpower deputy, Lt. Gen. Robert H. Barrow, were scheduled to testify today before the House military subcommittee conducting the probe.

A former Marine recruiter from Detroit told the panel Tuesday that recruiters cheat and sign up men who do not meet the corps' mental, moral and physical standards in order to get enough volunteers.

And a former recruit told the panel he tried to commit suicide because his learning disability and slowness made drill instructors in San Diego so angry that one threatened to kill him.

The former recruit, Ronald Bannister, 17, of Mill Valley, Calif., said a drill instructor threatened to dump him in San Diego Bay and report him absent without leave. He said drill instructors called him crazy when he was unable to do simple jobs like bringing them coffee.

"It made me feel very put down, like dirt," Bannister testified. "It was not my fault I could not bring the coffee back. It was not my fault because the mess hall was closed and the dishes and everything were put away."

Bannister's uncle, Preston Bannister, said he asked the subcommittee to let his nephew testify because the young man's case was similar to that of Lynn E. McClure, a mentally deficient recruit whose death in a mock bayonet exercise at the San Diego Marine Training Center touched off the probe.

Former Marine recruiter Kenneth Taylor said, "I would have signed Bannister up in a minute and I would have signed McClure up in a flash." Taylor said he bent rules to sign up unfit recruits and that he "maneuvered" police records.

Lebanese death toll jumps by 44

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Police today reported at least 44 more persons killed and 77 wounded during another night of fighting in Beirut and eastern and northern Lebanon.

There were heavy artillery duels between the Christian and Moslem sectors of Beirut.

Raymond Edde, the unsuccessful leftist-backed Christian candidate in the recent presidential election, was recovering from a foot wound suffered in an attempt by Christian foes to assassinate him Tuesday.

Edde, 63-year-old leader of the moderate National Bloc party, was attacked by militiamen who fired more than 100 machine-gun bullets into his limousine at a roadblock near Byblos, Edde's hometown 20 miles north of Beirut.

Edde said his assailants were from Pierre Gemayel's right-wing Phalangist party. Gemayel denied the charge and denounced the attackers.

Phalangists and supporters of Edde battled in Byblos Monday, and at least 18 persons were killed. Edde and Gemayel held a reconciliation session sponsored by Christian Patriarch Antonios Khreish earlier Tuesday before the attack on Edde.

A spokesman at the American University Hospital in Beirut said Edde was "in no danger and recovering without complications." A bullet fractured his right foot, the spokesman said.

Syrian spokesmen said President-elect Elias Sarkis has received assurance from President Suleiman Franjieh that he is willing to resign whenever Sarkis asks him to.

The two Christian leaders met for five hours on Tuesday. The Syrian state radio said Franjieh told Sarkis: "I feel now that I can pass on the reins of power to you whenever you want after the success of your peacemaking effort."

Franjieh's resignation has been a major leftist condition to negotiation of a political settlement. His term expires in September.

Beirut newspapers reported Tuesday that Sarkis had won tentative agreement from Moslem and Christian leaders to declare an armistice and meet in a roundtable peace conference shortly after he takes office.

Violent weather front gradually moves

By The Asociated Press

Tornadoes, boiling thunderstorms—often laced with riddling hail—and flooding rains kept a broad expanse of Texas as target today, with the savage weather gradually shifting southward.

It was a continuing siege by the elements which ravaged Graham in North Central Texas with winds up to 110 miles per hour Tuesday, inflicting property losses estimated up to $15 million but few injuries.

More than a dozen tornadoes whirled across one part of the state or another, also causing damage in a number of places.

At the same time the marathon rains, falling on already saturated soil at many points, posed threats of flash flooding, mostly in low afeas. Official forecasters kept a flash flood watch in force today for the central and east parts of North Texas, generally east of a line linking Gainesville, Mineral Wells and Lampasas.

Rainfall amounts before the added downpours during the night ranged up to an unofficial 10 inches outside Mineral Wells in the north central part of the state.

Hail accumulated more than a foot deep in Mineral Wells, where it shattered windows at the Palo Pinto General Hospital and two convalescent homes. Occupants were moved into hallways for protection from the falling chunks of ice.

As late as 5:15 a.m. today Navy observers spotted a funnel cloud four miles northwest of the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, but it apparently caused no harm.

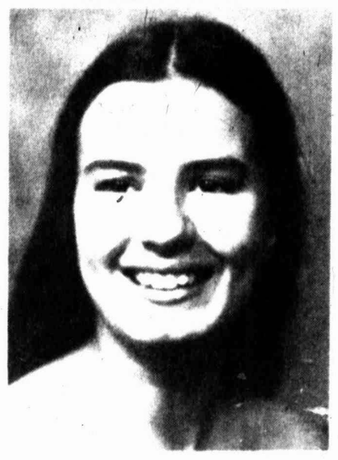
Sheriff's officers reported another twister spun harmlessly across the countryside 13 miles northwest of Hondo in Southwest Texas shortly before 1 a.m.

Capping a series of other tornado and severe thunderstorm alerts, the National Weather Service kept 51 counties aeross the south part of the state under a tornado watch until 8 a.m. today. It covered a 140-mile-wide belt centering on a line from 30 miles west-northwest of Laredo on the Mexican border eastward to 50 miles southeast of College Station.

A rash of twisters whipped through the area around Abilene in West Central Texas— three around Hamby and others at Elmdale, Clyde, Baird and Ft. Phantom Hill Lake. Two others swung near Crowell, which is west of Wichita Falls, and hail the size of baseballs battered Seymour and Olney in the same vicinity.

State police placed damage at $700,000 in an area north of Abilene, where Hamby suffered worst. There was damage to 26 houses and three mobile homes at Hamby, and a driving education trailer and demonstrator was wrecked at Baird. A small factory at neighboring Clyde also suffered damage.

Farther west in West Texas, winds estimated at 85 to 100 m.p.h. destroyed four trailer homes and toppled a radio transmitting tower. Four persons were treated for injuries and dismissed.



ANN SHAUNESSY, daughter of Mrs. Dena Shaunessy of 2801 Gulf St. has been named recipient of a $500 scholarship sponsored by the Lee High School chapter of National Honor Society. Miss Shaunessy, a Lee senior, plans to attend St. Edwards University in Austin.

Swimming pools open Saturday

Midlanders who seek "fun in the sun" will have a golden opportunity Saturday when four of the city's public swimming pools officially open for the season.

Alamo, Ulmer, Washington and Hogan pools will all have qualified lifeguards on duty during pool hours.

Alamo Pool at 900 N. Midland Dr. will be open from 2-7 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday through Sunday, and 2-5 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. Family swims will be available each Tuesday and Thursday from 5-8 p.m.

Ulmer Pool, 2800 W. Kentucky, will have its hours from 1-6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1-7 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Washington Pool, located at 1601 E. Indiana, will be open from 1-7 p.m. Monday through Sunday, and Hogan Pool on E. Wadley will have the same hours of operation.

Acting city recreation superintendent Em Carnett said a new rule to be observed this year in all four pools will be that children must reach a chin height of three and one-half feet to be admitted without an adult.

Instructors at all pools are Red Cross certified Water Safety Instructors, and all lifeguards are certified advanced lifesavers. Lessons will begin June 7 at all pools.

Halff Pool, at 100 E. New Jersey, has been closed for the summer due to repairs.

United Methodists name new ministers

GLORIETA, N. M. — Pastoral appointments within the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church were announced here Tuesday night.

The annual conference meeting of the Northwest Texas unit of the United Methodist denomination opened Tuesday morning at the Glorieta Baptist Conference Center. The Northwest Texas conclave is being held jointly with the New Mexico Area Conference of the denomination, both of which have Dr. Alsie H. Carleton as presiding bishop. Dr. Carleton is presiding at sessions of the joint gathering.

Pastors of most churches within the Big Spring District of the Northwest Texas Conference, which includes units in Midland, Stanton, Andrews, Garden City, Snyder and Big Spring, among others, were returned to their present posts for another year.

The Rev. Wilbart Bledsoe, pastor of Midland's Hollowell United Methodist Church, has been given disability leave and the Hollowell pulpit will be supplied. The Ackerly Methodist Church has a new lay pastor, Ray Forbes, who replaces William Gaede after a year's service there. The Seminole pastorate will be filled by the Rev. William Rives of Clarendon, replacing the Rev. Henry Salley who goes to Paducah-Dumont.

First United Methodist churches of Midland and Lamesa will receive new associate pastors.

The Midland church will have two associates, Bill Weir and Jerry Wyett, both from Perkins School of Theology of Southern Methodist University, in replacement of the Rev. J. B. Stewart who is retiring. Mr. Stewart has been associate minister at Midland for the last four years.

Lamesa's First Church will have an associate minister for the first time. He is the Rev. W. L. Armstrong Jr., heretofore a United Methodist missionary assigned to the denomination's Board of Global Ministries.

Dr. J. Walter Browers, superintendent of the Big Spring District of the denomination, has been reappointed to a second year in that post. Ministers of Midland churches being returned for another year include Dr. Charles Lutrick, First Church; the Rev. Roy Havens, Asbury; the Rev. William Wilkinson, St. Luke's with the Rev. Curtis Cadenhead as associate; the Rev. Caleb Hildebrand, St. Mark's; the Rev. Thomas Nelson, St. Paul Church. At Andrews, the Rev. Keith Wiseman will again serve as pastor of Means Memorial United Methodist and Hazel House will fill the pulpit at Wesley Church. Pastors of Lamesa's two United Methodist units being returned for another year are the Rev. Alvis Cooley at First Church and the Rev. W. O. Rucker Jr. at Northridge. The Rev. Davis Edens will be in his second term as pastor of Stanton's United Methodist Church and Fred Witta will serve at Garden City. Big Spring's First Church will have the Rev. William Fleming as pastor for the second year, and Wesley Church of that city will again be served by the Rev. Jene C. Greer. The third Methodist unit in Big Spring, North Birdwell Church, will be supplied. Coahoma-Westbrook will be served by the Rev. Homer Salley. Colorado City's First Church will again be pastored by the Rev. Robert Ford, and the St. Luke-Dorn churches there will be served by Loren Gardner. Snyder's First UMC will be served by the Rev. David Robertson for the second year and the Trinity-Dunn units will have the Rev. James Terry, serving his fifth year. Union-Ira churches of the Snyder area will be served by the Rev. Wayland Dowden.

In addition to the Big Spring District, the Northwest Texas Methodist Conference also includes the Lubbock, Abilene, Amarillo, Pampa, Plainview and Seymour districts. Former Midland pastors Dr. W. A. Appling, Dr. J. Weldon Butler and the Rev. O. A. McBrayer serve as superintendents of the Pampa, Amarillo and Lubbock districts respectively.

Aborigine appointed

Agence France Presse

CANBERRA — An aborigine, Sir Douglas Nicholls, 69, has been appointed governor of South Australia, it was announced Tuesday.

This is the highest post ever achieved by a member of the black race which alone occupied Australia until less than 200 years ago.

The appointment to the largely ceremonial post was announced by the acting premier of South Australia, Desmond Corcoran.

Although not an aboriginal rights activist, Sir Douglas was honored because of his efforts over many years in the social welfare field on behalf of aborigines.

Angola media nationalized

Agence France-Presse

LUANDA — The Angolan government will nationalize the country's radio, television and newspapers, it was announced in a statement issued after a cabinet meeting.

The main newspapers to be taken over are the "Journal de Angola" and the "Diario de Luanda."

The statement also announced that a national oil company called "Sonangol" will be formed. Premier Lopo de Nascimento already announced on May 1st after visiting the oil-rich enclave of Cabinda that Angola would have its own nationalized enterprise to deal with its oil policy.

The cabinet also decided that Angolans will vote on June 27, for the first time since independence, to elect members of local people's councils.

Special constabulary returning in Ulster

Agence France-Presse

BELFAST — The Ulster Special Constabulary — the Protestant "B Specials" much hated by the Catholic minority and disbanded in 1969 by the British government — is to be resurrected within two days.

The province's spiral of violences was given another potential twist Tuesday when the organization's spokesman announced that unarmed patrols of "B Specials" would be formed "for the protection of all the inhabitants of Northern Ireland."

The move comes 24 hours after Protestant loyalist leaders the Rev. Ian Paisley Baird said measures would be taken to protect loyalist areas.

The spokesman said the patrols would be both overt and covert and "where possible" would work in harmony with the official Royal Ulster Constabulary (RUC).

He justified reforming the militia by the recent wave of violence which has cost nine lives in the past nine days in Ulster. Two RUC men were badly wounded in two ambushes in County Armagh during the past two days.

Rain, high winds whip Permian Basin area

A brief thunderstorm Tuesday afternoon dropped more than .14 inch of rain on Midland, with peak wind gusts recorded at 56 m.p.h., a National Weather Service spokesman said. Other areas of the Permian Basin received rain and were whipped by strong winds, but no wind damage was reported.

This morning dawned sunny in Andrews, Lamesa, Stanton, Crane, Rankin, McCamey, Big Lake and Midland, although morning temperatures were cool. A few light clouds dotted the sky in Crane. No wind was reported in the area towns.

Tonight should be cool again, with the low expected to dip into the upper 50s, the weatherman said. Thursday's temperatures also should be cooler, as the high is expected to climb only into the upper 70s.

Winds tonight should blow from the northwest at 10-15 m.p.h., the weatherman said.

Pickett ruling appeal upheld

AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld a ruling by District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett that Midland bondsmen Odell Walker and his brother Thomas had insufficient securities to back a $40,000 bail bond on Juan Geras "Johnny" Zarate, 20.

The appellate court's decision came in its dismissal of an appeal of Pickett's ruling. That appeal had been made by Odessa attorney H. Thomas Hirsch in behalf of the Walker brothers.

Last Dec. 22, Judge Pickett ordered the Walker brothers off Zarate's bail bail and suggested that the defendant, charged with possession of marijuana, seek another bondsman or bonding company.

Pickett had ruled that the Walker brothers' assets were insufficient to back the $40,000 bond on Zarate.

His ruling came after open-court arguments between Hirsch and Midland County Dist. Atty. Jim Mashburn, who contended that the Walker brothers did not have enough collateral to validly underwrite the $40,000 bond.

Zarate is free under another $40,000 bond while his case is pending trial in state court in Midland.

Paintings exhibited

Marilyn Todd, Midland College art faculty member Tuesday night exhibited some of her oils and watercolor painting during a discussion of artistic techniques for the Evening Lions Club.

Mrs. Todd's Western style works often feature horses and ranches. Also displayed for the meeting were some of her etchings.

Tarzan woman reports assault

STANTON — A Tarzan woman told Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders she was assaulted Tuesday afternoon by a man when she stopped at the intersection of FM 1212 and Texas 349, a sheriff's office spokesman said.

Etta Dean Long, 38, told sheriff's deputies she stopped for a stop sign at the intersection 7½ miles north of Midland in Martin County when a man reached into her car and tried to pull her out.

She struggled with the man, tearing the right sleeve off his shirt, and he scratched her left arm, the spokesman said. Mrs. Long then stepped on the gas pedal and left, spinning the man around.

Mrs. Long told deputies that she had seen no one when she stopped at the stop sign. She said there was another man, but he did not attack her.

The incident first was reported to the Midland Police Department, who turned it over to the Midland County Sheriff's Office. The case then was given to Martin County law enforcement officials.

the debt service tax rate, it holds the maintenance and operations rate at $1.50, a boundary that would be broken by a 30.5 cent tax boost. Mailey said, however, the assessment rate could be changed although such a change also would involve Midland College which utilizes the same taxing district.

If the board chooses to retain the 3.5 per cent increase for teachers, the additional $463,834 required for that increase plus the anticipated $835,540 hike in district expenditures will push the tax rate for maintenance and operations to $1.370 under the present formula. The net increase would be $868,674 for those expenditures.

In other salary-related matters, trustees viewed a recommended schedule of salary supplements for school sponsors and athletic coaches which totals $65,000 more than in the current school term. One hundred forty-two sponsors and coaches would receive a total of $183,300 under the plan.

George Leonberger, student council advisor at Edison Freshman School, told trustees the $400 he currently receives is adequate and the recommended $600 is too much. Conversely, he said the proposed change of $500 to $1,000 for debate and forensics sponsors is inadequate.

Leonberger also objected to the open salaries listed for head high school football coaches, observing that a football coach makes "$10,000 more than a K-1 (kindergarten-first grade) teacher."

According to Furgeson, the average teacher salary currently is $12,560. With the 3.5 per cent increase for next year, the minimum a teacher can make will be $9,450 and the maximum pay, without supplements for merit or additional responsibility, is $15,495.

Lee High School football coach Jim Acree's salary was raised this spring to $20,300 while Midland High School coach Jerry Hopkins was hired this spring at a salary of $22,000. Neither coach teaches any classes, according to Mailey, and the bulk of their salaries comes from local funds.

"I don't believe they're worth that much," Leonberger said, noting the disparity between the salaries of coaches and regular classroom teachers creates "internal problems."

Trustee Johnny Warren pointed out the salaries could, perhaps, be justified because the tenure of a coach is uncertain and because athletics is a revenue-producing facet of the school district. "It's the only one that shows a possible or a potential profit," he said, adding he doesn't feel it is "fair to the school and the children not to be competitive."

Leonberger questioned whether all athletic expenses are taken into consideration when figuring the cost of the athletic program.

The school district's budget for 1975-76 shows an estimated income of $85,300 for all athletic activities (not just football). Despite the income, however, the program demands $115,211 in expenditures excluding coaching salaries and maintenance and operation of the stadium.

Furgeson said athletic program income "offsets about half the expenses for equipment, supplies, travel and insurance."

James Ramsoure, board of trustees secretary, said he has discovered resentment on the part of classroom teachers because of the football coaches' higher salaries and their freedom from classroom responsibility.

Warren, however, countered that such coaches as John Reddell who coached at Midland High this year exert a "positive influence" on the school and its students.

Leonberger followed Warren's observation by proposing that the district "do elementary teachers the same way" by compensating them also for their positive influence.

In still a third teacher-related matter covered in the Tuesday meeting, educators presented the Teacher Welfare Committee's request that the district assume the cost of employee health insurance.

Watkins, spokesman for the group, said premiums would be lower if all the district employes participated in the plan but the only viable way to include them all would require the system to take over the entire cost. The proposed plan, which includes dental as well as basic health coverage, would cost approximately $337,680 for 12 months if applied district-wide.

Mailey said he has received information from the Texas Association of School Boards indicating such an insurance policy is equivalent to $300 to $320 in salary.

Watkins said only 43.6 per cent of the school district's employes participate in the present group insurance plan, paid for entirely by the employes at a cost of $17.64 monthly for the employe only. Cost of family coverage is graduated.

The teacher spokesman said the current plan is inadequate but improving coverage would involve a large rise in premiums.

Schools dismiss for summertime

The lazy days of summer vacation begin this week for students in all of Midland's public and private schools.

Thursday is the last day of school for youngsters in the Midland Independent School District, Greenwood Independent School District and Hillander, Trinity and St. Ann's private schools.

Classes ended today for Midland Christian School.

The board affirmed that the change includes the 21 Wadley and Chapparal apartments in the Midland zone.

During discussion on the motion, board president Joe Dominey said the original intent of the board in making the January 1975 zone change in which the six-block area in question was moved to the Midland zone was to include only unoccupied areas.

Since, in fact, some of the area was occupied at that time he recommended accepting the proposed changes.

Grimes expressed concern about setting precedents in boundary changes. "We have a history of when a problem arises on boundaries, we change the boundaries," he said.

He said he believes the community favors equal high schools. "I really believe our duty is to the community," he said.

Several board members expressed concern that equality in enrollment be achieved between the two high schools. Runyan said he expected a net increase for Midland with the new changes, since he believes there will be more houses in Skyline Terrace than in the six-block area moved to the Lee zone.

Warren said he would vote for the motion only if he believed Skyline Terrace provided more potential for growth. He said he wanted the board to agree to acquire more unoccupied areas for the Midland zone if this boundary adjustment does not equalize enrollments at the two schools. The board agreed that it was within its jurisdiction to consider boundaries every year.

Grimes requested that the willingness of the board to readjust boundaries to equalize enrollment be included in the district's policy manual.

The board members agreed this change should not be construed as setting a precedent for further changes simply on the demand of groups of individuals.

Trustee Don Sparks said the reason for this change was the poor way in which the plan was presented and the confusion resulting. He suggested an effort to fully publicize this change.

Attorney Pat Baskin spoke against moving any area out of the Midland zone. "We're saying 'Let's trade warm students for raw acreage,'" Baskin said he believes that additions will be necessary to equalize enrollments. "We're not in any serious danger of catching up within the next few years," he quipped.

Baskin said by going 20 miles it is possible to see what happens when no effort is made to keep schools equal. He said we must equalize the schools now and keep them equal because if we wait it will be too late and they will never be equal again. "If I sound frantic it's because I am," he said.

Following the boundary action, the board heard and denied two transfer requests. After one of the denials Sparks said, "This board is inconsistent in the way it handles transfer requests." He urged members to be consistent in their voting.

Trustees also met in executive session Tuesday to discuss strategy on the pending integration suit with their attorneys.

The contract to air condition three kitchens was awarded to Anthony Mechanical with a bid of $41,107 and a completion time of 120 days. Other bidders were Fitzgerald Weather Mart at $56,400 and 120 days and Permian Air Conditioning at $49,981 and 130 days. Original estimates last summer for the job were for $56,000.

In other action the board:

—Approved a contract with the city of Midland for joint ownership and operation of tennis court facilities at Midland and Lee High Schools.

—Heard a report on law-focused education and drug education and crime prevention programs.

—Awarded contracts for stage curtains at Lee High School and drafting tables for Alamo Junior High School. Bids were received for both the preferred and an alternate fabric for the stage curtains, but the board chose to award the contract for the preferred fabric. The contract was awarded to National Stage Equipment of Waco with a bid of $3,440. Its bid for the alternate fabric was $2,794.

Other bidders were Mid-Continent Stage Equipment of Ardmore, Okla., with a bid of $5,919 for the preferred fabric and $5,079 for the alternate fabric and Texas Scenic Company of San Antonio, bidding $5,849 for the preferred fabric and $4,967 for the alternate fabric.

The contract for the art-drafting desks was awarded to Carter Craft of Plano with a bid of $1,091.25. Other bidders were American Desk Manufacturing Company of Temple, $1,152.30; Conex Sales Company of Lubbock, $1,171.50, and Indeco Sales Company of Lubbock, $1,177.80.

The contract for adjustable stools was awarded to Conex Sales Company for $165.60. Other bidders were American Desk Manufacturing Company, $173.25, Carter Craft, $176.25; Foremost Equipment Company of Temple, $169.50, and Indeco Sales Company, $170.25.

—Approved leaves and resignations.

Dummy's jack of hearts lost the first trick to the king, and back came a heart to dummy's queen.

East covered with the king of spades, and South took the ace. Now West had to make a trump trick in addition to his two aces.

South should lead a low spade from dummy at the third trick. East must play his king just the same, and South wins with the ace. South knocks out the ace of diamonds, draws the rest of the trumps ending in his own hand and runs the rest of the diamonds.

TEN MIGHT WIN

What if East held K-x or K-x-x instead of just the singleton king? Then East would play a low spade on the first round of trumps, and South would win a finesse with the ten. South would get back to dummy with a club and would repeat the trump finesse.

Declarer might have to start the trumps with the queen if dummy had no further entry, but there's no need to waste high cards when you can get back to dummy as often as necessary.

Clerk named for Tarrant

FORT WORTH (AP) — Madrin Huffman has been named Tarrant County clerk in the wake of Ed Loftin's resignation Monday.

Huffman was the choice of County Judge Mike Moncrief and county commissioners.

District Court Judge Charles Murray said Loftin's resignation was a face-saving gesture to avoid a judgment that would have removed him from office.

A jury ruled last week that Loftin was "an habitual drunkard" who was incompetent to hold office.

Dist. Atty. Tim Curry said he planned to dismiss a drunk driving case against Loftin.

"Since he is no longer in office, I believe it proper to drop the drunk driving case which is still pending," Curry said. "We have achieved our primary objective and some people would think we were out for blood if we brought him to trial."

Commissioner Dick Andersen declined to vote to ratify Huffman. He said he was concerned Huffman would carry out a "blood bath" against deputy county clerks who supported Loftin's bid to remain in office. Huffman said Andersen's fears were groundless.

Huffman, who had been Loftin's chief deputy, will serve in the $25,000-a-year job at least until the November general election.

East Germany builds ostentatious palace

By PETER OSNOS
The Washington Post

EAST BERLIN — On the site of an imperial palace in Berlin's center, where kaisers once ruled over a united Germany, the Communists who govern here now have just built a vast and glittering palace of the Republic at a cost according to some estimates of nearly a half billion dollars.

The building, more ostentatious than any in West Berlin, stands as another impressive monument to the divided land that Germany has become, as much a symbol in its way as the Communists' barbed wire and concrete wall that winds through the city.

"That palace," a Western diplomat observed, "is clearly meant to say to the world: East Germany has arrived, finally and forever."

The message was dramatically conveyed recently when the building was inaugurated to house the Ninth Congress of the Socialist Unity Party, as the Communists are called. From the podium on opening day, Party Leader Erich Honecker hailed what is undoubtedly his regime's greatest gain since the last congress in 1971 — achievement of full international recognition for the German Democratic Republic.

"The imperialist blockade imposed on our state has irrevocably ended in failure," he said to resounding applause from the delegates, and the possibility of German reunification is "no longer a question. History has ... passed its judgment."

Fashioned from the Soviet sector of Germany, amidst the ravages of World War II defeat, the GDR was gradually molded in Moscow's image into a formidable industrial and military force, today one of the world's strongest. Yet real acceptance as a nation remained an elusive goal — a hostage primarily to East-West tensions in the cold war years.

Now East Germany has claimed its place.

Since 1971, the number of countries maintaining diplomatic ties with East Berlin has risen from barely 30 to 121, including all the major Western powers. The GDR — along with West Germany — has joined the United Nations. And the boundaries of both countries are embedded in international treaties.

"Under the leadership of the working class," Honecker declared with emotion in his speech, "the people of the German Democratic Republic have, in keeping with the course of history, realized their right to socio-economic, governmental and national self-determination."

To provide the proper setting at this formal assertion of success, for instance, workmen were ordered to labor day and night for months so the palace would be ready, a suitable mecca of marble and glass. It has a hexagonal main auditorium, multiple chandeliered halls, restaurants and facades, in all a structure so grand that it transforms the downtown.

(The enormous expense has given rise to an ironic pun in German that turns the name of the building into "Burden of the Republic.")

Imposing embassies are being readied for the most important recent arrivals — the United States will shortly take over the spacious headquarters of the GDR trade unions — and many higher ranking diplomats have been housed in residences formally used by top East German officials.

With due regard for the subtler symbols of their position, GDR authorities invariably refer to Berlin as "Haupstadt" — the capital — of East Germany rather than by its name. That is now, as it also was before, a technical violation of Allied agreements reached at the end of World War II when the city was placed under joint four-power control.

"Bringing into play all the potential of our republic," Honecker told the party congress, "we shall forge ahead with construction work in the capital city at a still faster pace. We want all citizens of our republic to take justified pride in their country's capital."

What that sort of bravado reflects, said several Western diplomats stationed here, is the GDR's continuing need to reaffirm its identity at every opportunity despite the diplomatic gains of recent years.

"After 25 years of ostracism from so much of the world, they almost can't help going overboard," commented one European.

In practice, however, East Germany's attitude seems to have substantially slowed the improvement of relations with the United States that might have been expected after the establishment of ties in September 1974. Even the presence of a distinguished ambassador, former Kentucky Sen. John Sherman Cooper (who has announced plans to retire) evidently hasn't helped.

A consular agreement, for instance, is stalled, sources said, by East Germany's insistence that the existence of GDR nationality be specified in

Police uncertain of child's status

NEWNAN, Ga. (AP) — Police here say they are not sure now whether 6-year-old Angela Trebbe was kidnaped two weeks ago or merely reclaimed by her legal guardian.

The little girl has been located at the home of an aunt in Garland, Tex., Coweta County investigator Dale Shradlin said Monday. "She's fine," Spradlin said.

It turns out, Spradlin said, that custody of Angela was given to two aunts after the girl's mother was killed last year and her father was charged with the slaying. A Texas judge awarded custody of the child to an aunt in Texas, and a Georgia judge to an aunt who lives near Newnan, Ga.

"Now the juvenile court in Coweta County is contacting the Texas court and the two judges will decide who has custody of the child," Spradlin said. "If we do have jurisdiction, then we'll start back on the criminal investigation."

The child was taken off a county school bus by a woman who said there was a family emergency and driven away in a station wagon with Texas license plates by the woman and a man. Spradlin said he has not identified the couple.

Despite Hays admission, matter not settled yet

By DAVE RILEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following Rep. Wayne Hays' admission that he had a "personal relationship" with a woman employe, the question remaining in dispute is whether she received $14,000 a year at taxpayer expense to be his mistress or whether she was a productive employe of Congress.

The Justice Department is trying to resolve that question and the little-used House ethics committee may make an effort, too.

Hays, in an emotional speech before the full House on Tuesday, admitted he lied when he denied having a relationship with Elizabeth Ray, a shapely clerk on the payroll of his House Administration Committee. But he contended he was telling the truth when he said he did not keep her on the government payroll at $14,000 a year just for her sexual services.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays

FBI agents were reportedly continuing their investigation for the Justice Department of Hays' relationship with Miss Ray as the House ethics committee was receiving strong pressure to open its own probe.

Twenty-eight House members, in a letter to ethics committee chairman John J. Flynt, urged the panel to launch an investigation "in order to guarantee the integrity of the House of Representatives, its members and its committees."

Flynt was campaigning in his home state of Georgia as Hays made his speech admitting his relationship with Miss Ray, but said he was flying to Washington immediately. He said all of the requests for an investigation, including a telephoned request from Hays himself, were "informal," noting his panel could act only on a formal request.

Four of the 28 members who signed the letter asking for the ethics committee investigation also sent a letter to Speaker Carl Albert. Albert and other House leaders were in London to accept a loan of the Magna Carta for the Bicentennial celebration.

In his confession before the crowded House chamber, the 65-year-old Hays denied keeping Miss Ray, 33, on the government payroll as his mistress. He said he lied about his relationship with her because he did not want his new wife to find out about it.

"Six weeks ago, I was married to the woman I love more than any other person or thing in this world.... Prior to this time, and for an extended period of time, I did have a relationship with Elizabeth Ray. I was legally separated and single. It was voluntary on her part and mine," Hays said.

He said he ended the relationship before his remarriage. He was divorced from his first wife in January.

Hays insisted that Miss Ray performed office duties for her pay, despite her contention that she could not type or handle telephones and that she did not do any work for Hays' committee.

Miss Ray, who says she was on the payroll only to be available for sex with Hays, denied Tuesday that her relationship with the congressman ended with his remarriage. She said she had seen him four times since his marriage and that they had been intimate twice.

"I'm not taking anything back. I'm telling the truth," she said.

Meanwhile, the Washington Post said it found that Miss Ray's name was not included on a list of House Administration Committee employes in monthly reports from November 1975 to February 1976. Hayes was required to file the reports under House rules requiring that all committee employes be named.

The report for November 1975, signed by Hays on Dec. 15, does not list Miss Ray's name. Her name does appear on House payroll records.

Failure to list Miss Ray in the committee staff reports for four months had the effect of keeping her employment secret until payroll records were published in the Congressional Record on April 1, the Post quoted a congressional source as saying.

In admitting he lied about his relationship with Miss Ray, Hayes told his colleagues in the House chamber, "I now realize that I committed a grievous error in not presenting all the facts."

But, he said, "I stand by my previous denial of Miss Ray's allegation that she was hired to be my mistress. I further stand by my statement that Miss Ray is a seriously disturbed young lady, and I deeply regret that our relationship, and its termination, has apparently greatly aggravated her emotional and psychological problems."

Hays said that when he decided to marry Patricia Peak, who was in charge of his Ohio office, he told Miss Ray their relationship would have to end and that made her hysterical. He said she threatened suicide and blackmail.

"Only time will tell if Miss Ray has been successful in destroying my career," he said. "I pray to God she has not destroyed my marriage."

Miss Ray first told her story on Sunday in the Washington Post and Hayes immediately lashed out at the newspaper. He denied having any relationship with Miss Ray, said the Post was carrying on a personal vendetta against him and threatened legal action against the paper.

He made no mention in his House speech of his allegations against the Post, which reported that two of its reporters had listened in on a call between Hays and Miss Ray at Miss Ray's request.

Hays' Tuesday speech won mixed reviews. About 25 House members shook his hand after the speech and Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., kissed him. Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., said he thought the speech did Hays some good among his colleagues. "He admitted he had lied on his relationship with the young woman," Anderson said. "But that is not enough. There should be a hearing...."

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill. said "the fundamental question of whether she did any work remains. Their personal relations are not my business or the business of the House."

Rep. William F. Goodling, R-Pa., called on Hays to either exonerate himself completely or resign.

"I, for one, am sick and tired of the kind of political arrogance that allows some elected officials to assume that winning an election gives them the right to do anything they please, regardless of whether it is right legally or morally," Goodling said.

By GEORGE ESPER

FLUSHING, Ohio (AP) — This is a town in eastern Ohio where cows graze in pastures, the local restaurant sells Mail Pouch and Red Man chewing tobaccos and country fresh eggs are 75 cents a dozen.

Flushing, population 1,200, is the home town of Wayne L. Hays, the Democratic congressman who local Mayor Willis Davis says nobody likes but everybody votes for.

Hays' married daughter, Geeta Steiner, 21, is standing on the lawn of her mother's two-story white frame home on tree-lined Wood Street. This is where Geeta grew up in happier times.

There is a nostalgia of the small town here and outwardly Wood Street remains undisturbed by Hays' admission Tuesday that he had a "relationship" with Elizabeth Ray, a 33-year-old staff assistant.

Martha Hays, his former wife of 38 years whom he divorced last January, is upstairs resting as the congressman denies putting Miss Ray on the congressional payroll for sexual favors but says he was legally separated and single at the time of the relationship. He adds that their affair was by mutual consent.

"Only time will tell if Miss Ray has been successful in destroying my career," he says in an emotional speech to the House Tuesday, his most difficult in 27 years in Congress.

"I don't think so," says Geeta on whether it will hurt her father's career. "He was legally separated. He is human like everyone else and I think most people realize this. He didn't hire her for that purpose. He doesn't work that way.

"My mother is fine. She is upstairs relaxing. She has no comment. She feels like I do, complete confidence in Dad."

The relationship with Miss Ray has generated banner headlines in newspapers in Hays' eight-county Ohio district and in neighboring Wheeling, W.Va. Most constituents say his political career might be hurt but not enough to cost him reelection.

"Oh, I don't know," says Mayor Davis, also a Democrat. "Actually, some people don't think too much of it. If they're going to make an example out of Mr. Hays then they should clean all the dirty closets out."

Hays, 65, left the white frame home on Wood Street after divorcing Martha, and was married April 11 to Pat Peak, manager of his office in nearby St. Clairsville. They live on his farm 10 miles south on Ohio 149 when Hays is not in Washington.

On one side of the road is the farm with big red letters on one of the barns: "Red Gate Farms — Tennessee Walking Horses, Angus Cattle."

On the other side of the road is the big red remodeled brick house with four tall white pillars.

Many residents here don't want to discuss the Hays case, and when they do they are reluctant to give their names. One example is a neighbor of Martha Hays, an elderly woman, who says she will vote for the congressman again.

"Wayne Hays did a lot of things for Flushing," the neighbor says. "The new post office. And if somebody needs something, a pension or retirement, he does those things."

Hired hands of Congress pleased at Hays' ordeal

By MARY RUSSELL and LAURENCEE STERN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The proletariat of Congress — the barbers whose tips he eliminated, the elevator operators whose stools he removed, the kitchen help who felt the lash of his anger — were among the chief celebrants Tuesday of the ordeal of Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio).

"It couldn't happen to a nicer guy," muttered a House of Representatives elevator operator as she disgorged a load of passengers in the Capitol. It was a sentiment that echoed, with minor exception, from the sculleries to the floor of the House.

IN THE HOUSE, secretary jokes were the humor of the day. "Have you heard about the congressman who passed out cards to his staff saying 'Hi, My name is -----and I can type 50 words a minute'" one member of the House burbled to a reporter.

The only public sounds of sympathy for Hays came at the height of Tuesday's moral melodrama in the House, when the 65-year-old Ohio Congressman took the floor to deliver his emotional mea culpa.

"No one has ever said that I am also a human being ... capable of emotions and of errors. But I am ... and I have erred," Hays declared. He admitted the nature of the services provided by Elizabeth Ray, the secretary who said Hays paid her $14,000 a year for her sexual favors.

"IT TOOK COURAGE to make that speech," said Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga (D-Hawaii).

"It was a real-life episode," obsereved Rep. Joseph Gaydos (D-Pa.) who serves on Hays' House Administration Committee. "If the circumstances he outlined are true, it will be hard to substantiate the original accusations."

More than two dozen members of the House — Democrats and Republicans — felt differently. They filed a letter with House Ethics Committee chairman John J. Flynt (D-Ga.) asking that he go ahead with an investigation of possible violations of the House code of official conduct.

IN THE PAST when misfortune fell upon a member of the House, such as Wilbur Mills or the late Adam Clayton Powell, there was a clubby reservoir of compassion for the afflicted colleague.

Hays sat as chief magistrate of the congressional trial of flamboyant Harlem Congressman Powell, who also stood accused of using the congressional payroll to employ acquaintances of dubious productivity.

Perhaps there were those in the House Tuesday who remembered the treatment meted out to Powell.

Others, such as Rep. Donald M. Fraser (D-Minn.), remembered the stings inflicted by Hays in his capacity as the Sultan of the voucher. Hays once threatened to hold up the pay voucher of a Fraser aide who lined up witnesses opposing the Ohio congressman's stand on a piece of legislation.

THE HARSHEST REACTION of all came from freshman Rep. Bill Goodling (R-Pa.) who called upon Hays to "remove this cloud from Congress by either exonerating himself of all charges or resigning."

"I, for one, am sick and tired of the kind of political arrogance that allows some elected officials to assume that winning an election gives them the right to do anything they please regardless of whether it is right legally or morally," Goodling declaimed.

THE FLOOR OF THE HOUSE has been a major theater of political drama through the years.

But as Rep. Paul Simon (D-Ill.) observed, with a critic's acuity, "I doubt there's been any occasion when a member disclosed publicly on the floor that he had been keeping a mistress."

With his speech of admission, contradicting his earlier denials that he did have "a relationship" with Elizabeth Ray, the underlying issue in the affair now turns on the question of whether that relationship was conducted on the time and at the expense of the United States taxpayers.

RAY INSISTS that she could not type, not file, not even answer the phone. The burden of truth that now appears to fall on Hays is to demonstrate the falsity of her claims that the only services she performed for him were in the boudoir of her suburban apartment.

As Simons argued, "The fundamental question of whether she did any work remains. Their personal relations are not my business or the business of the House."

The attitude of many of Hays' peers toward his plight was succinctly expressed by Rep. Tom Steed (D-Okla.).

"I'M GLAD IT'S his problem and not mine," Steed reflected.

"No. Then the air conditioning went on the blink." "No wonder they never had any parties. What did everyone do?" "We starved and perspired a lot." "Sounds awful." "Speaking of starving, how's the old diet?" "I'll tell you if you tell me." "125." "Oh, Susan! You've been cheating!" "No I haven't." "Well how can you lose weight if you've been eating?" "How about you?" "I'm not telling." "Come on." "One fxxie five." "What?" "One fxxie five." "Marge, you're mumbling." "One fxxie five." "One forty five?" "Less." "One thirty five?" "See, that's not so bad." "That's terrible." "I know." "What's your excuse?" "A perfectly understandable insecurity resulting from having to adapt to new surroundings." "New surroundings. The only new surroundings you're gonna have to adapt to is the lard surrounding your midsection." "Hey, look. Go easy kid. I don't have you to nag me any more." "Well, it hasn't been easy for me either." "Hey, Fred just walked in. He wants to speak to Jack." "Just a minute... Hey, Jack, you want to talk to Fred?... He'll be here in a second." "Hello?" "Hi, Fred." "Hi Suzie, where's your terrible husband?" "He's coming." "Here..." "Hello Fred?" "Jack old buddy, how are you?" "I hear you're burning up the track at the new job." "It's terrific. I love it." "That's the first time I ever heard you say you liked work." "You know I love work." "Yeah, I know. You can sit and watch it for hours." "Hey, I had an incredible dream last night." "Oh?" "Yeah, I dreamed I went to Coney Island of all places. I went on the chute-the-chute, ate hot dogs and popcorn, and had a ball. It was the greatest dream in the world." "You think that was great. I dreamed I went to a party, and I had a blonde on one arm and a brunette on the other." "Gee, you should have called me. Ha. Ha. Ha." "I did, but Marge said you had gone to Coney Island." "Ha. Ha. Ha. Ha." "Ha. Ha. Ha. Ha." "How's the old ball team?" "We still haven't found your replacement yet." "I told you there's no substitute for excellence." "It's not that, it's just that everyone we talk to refuses to haul water." "Funny. Now that's funny." "Are you playing on a team now?" "No, I just haven't had the time." "Know what you mean." "I think I'm gonna have to bag it until next season. I know some guys at the office have a team and I think I can join it, but right now Marge and I are just too busy getting settled." "Well, don't let the old arm rust up." "No way." "Did I hear Suzie say we're coming up to visit you all?" "I don't know." "Yeah, I think we are." "Great. You'll like it here." "I'm sure we will." "But I'll tell you something though, the people are not as friendly." "Maybe you should start using a mouth wash." "Funny. Hey, you'll never guess what Freddie's doing now." "What's Freddie doing now?" "He and the neighbor's kid are building a car." "Did you say building a car?" "The guy next door has a complete machine shop in his basement. It's unbelievable." "I bet Freddie went bananas." "You're not kidding. Instant friendship." "That's not a friendship. That's a merger." "I think between them, they have enough tools to supply the Army Corps of Engineers." "Terrific." "Yeah, I don't know what's going to happen to that kid, but I hope I'll be around when it does." "Big things." "No doubt about it." "If only his father were as talented." "Easy, elephant ears." "Hey, Suzie wants to talk to Marge somemore. I guess I'll see you when I see you." "Yeah. Take it easy." "Good luck on the new job." "Thanks, bye." "Bye." "Marge?" "Yeah." "Now don't forget the weekend of the 29th. We're looking forward to seeing you and your new house." "We're looking forward to seeing you, too. Bring your diet calendar." "Right." "Wait a minute, Freddie wants to talk to Janey. Is she there?" "I thought he'd never ask. Just see..." "Janey?" "Hi Freddie." "How are you?" "Fine." "You wouldn't believe what I'm doing." "What?" "Building a car." "Building a car?" "From the ground up." "Oh, wow. What kind of car?" "We designed it." "We?" "This guy next door and me. His dad has a complete machine shop in the basement." "Oh, lucky for you." "I know." "Well, what else is new?" "Not much. What's new with you?" "Not much." "We should have the frame ready tomorrow." "Do you miss me?" "Oh, yeah." "Really?" "Yeah." "I miss you." "Well, I guess we better go now, eh?" "If you want to." "Yeah, my Mom wants to talk to your Mom some more." "Okay, Freddie, bye. I..." "What." "Oh, never mind." "Okay, goodbye." "Bye." "Suzie?" "Yeah." "I just realized something." "What." "The weekend of the 29th is taken. Fred tells me we have to go out of town that week. How about the next week?" "Fine with us." "Okay, we'll be expecting you then." "Good." "Take care, Suzie, and thanks for calling." "My pleasure. Take care of yourself. And lose those pounds." "Nag. Nag. Nag." "Goodbye." "Bye."

No-name foods less expensive

PARIS (AP)—Shoppers using the largest supermarket chain in France find the usual name brands on the shelves, but since April 1 they also have been finding goods in plain, white packages or cans bearing only the name of the product inside—"Coffee," "Spaghetti," "Beans."

According to an official of the chain, the shoppers also are finding that the goods in the white packages — called "free products" — are 7 to 30 per cent cheaper than the name brands on the same shelves.

The new idea of the Carrefour chain, which has 38 giant supermarkets throughout France, has come under sharp attack from competitors, manufacturers, advertisers and consumer organizations.

The plan is similar to what American supermarket chains do in marketing their own brands of foods at prices cheaper than big-name brands. But Carrefour cuts costs even more because packaging and advertising are less expensive.

Carrefour, which had a turnover of $2.2 billion last year, launched the idea in a nationwide blaze of publicity and reported that it increased the number of customers by 9 per cent in its first four weeks.

A clamor of indignation has come from all sides. The scheme "undermines the very basis of the free enterprise system," hundered one leading food processor. "It has done more to pave the way to a socialistic society in France than all the leaders of the Communist party taken together."

The sponsor of the idea, 62-year-old distribution tycoon Marcel Fournier, is one of the pillars of the French capitalist system and the very antithesis of a Communist. His associates say Fournier shrugs off the attacks as a combination of spite and envy.

Competitors have accused Fournier of unfair trading practices. Advertising agencies have denounced the multimillion-dollar publicity campaign for the "free products" as false and misleading. Manufacturers' associations have tried — unsuccessfully — to organize a boycott to cut off Carrefour's sources of supply. Even the consumer organizationa are up in arms, claiming that Carrefour has no proof of its assertion that the nameless products are cheaper and at least as good as nationally advertised brands.

The controversial idea came from Fournier's team of marketing experts headed by Etienne Thil, a former journalist. Only 50 of the 35,000 products sold by the Carrefour chain are affected by the scheme thus far, but Thil says it is so successful that it will undoubtedly be expanded.

A spot check in the chain's 215,000-square-foot supermarket south of Paris showed that nearly every shopper had at least one "free product" in his cart.

Federal Reserve moves to tighten money supply

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve apparently has decided that the recovery is threatening to overheat and thus has moved to tighten the nation's money supply, which it controls.

Its purpose is to keep the easy flow of funds from, in itself, becoming inflationary. But its effect is likely to slow the economy.

This may seem too academic to interest you, but be assured it is not so. It is a pocketbook issue perhaps more important than any other facing Americans.

When the Fed gets tight, and stays that way for many months, it usually means the economy begins to slow, interest rates tend to rise and expansion plans are postponed or abandoned.

For those people contemplating loans for automobiles in this one of the most vigorous automobile sales years ever, it might eventually mean higher monthly payments.

For those who plan to buy houses it means, almost certainly, that the supply of money for mortgages will decline some, and that the cost of available mortgage funds will rise.

For stock market investors it probably means lower prices, although not necessarily. But on Monday, when investors realized that the Fed was indeed tightening up, stock prices took a very sharp drop.

For entrepreneurs with ideas and ambitions and only in need of money to put both into action, tight money is bad news. When money is scarce, it goes to the most creditworthy customers.

For established businessmen it means having to think twice about expanding the existing plant, or adding new equipment or workers. If the economic advance is to be slowed, then everyone's sales will be lessened.

All this is relative, however. The Fed doesn't intentionally aim at pitching the economy into a recession. Its goal in tightening the money supply is to control the advance and avoid the boom-bust cycle.

In keeping demand in line with supply, it reasons, inflation can be controlled and the recovery prolonged. Once demand exceeds supply you get inflation; better to avoid it in the first place, the Fed reasons.

Few economists argue with the notion of prevention being better than correction, but more than a few are now asking questions about the theory's implementation at the present times.

The question that underlies all considerations is whether demand is outpacing the ability of the country to produce, and thus threatening a renewed and destructive inflation. Or could the threats to economic stability — including the threat of inflation — be caused by other factors?

The Fed's Board of Governors, and its Open Market Committee which implements policy, operate with a great deal of independence, even from control by the President. And often it closely guards its reasoning.

It is for this reason primarily that congressmen increasingly are looking into the activities of the Fed.

Lack of housing to get worse, conference told

In the next 30 years, the United Nations says, 3.5 billion more people will need places to live, and that's enough to create 3,500 cities of a million residents each. There are fewer than 300 cities of that size now.

Aware of that, 4,000 delegates from 120 nations meet here for two weeks beginning Sunday in the fifth United Nations conference to be held this decade — the U.N. Conference on Human Settlements, or Habitat.

Delegates, in committee work and plenary sessions, will try to devise ways for coping with the worldwide urban crisis.

Participants in the conference and a parallel gathering — Habitat Forum, opening Thursday for representatives of nongovernmental organizations — face facts, the U.N. says, like these:

—Another 600 million housing units will be needed in the next 30 years, or more than those existing in the entire world today.

—Even now, the World Health Organiztion believes more than a billion people don't have basics, like safe water to drink.

—Cities, towns and villages, especially those in developing countries, already are in crisis, lacking jobs, choked by pollution, crowded, inundated by slums, devoid of good transportation and riddled by crime.

"In the quest for human dignity, shelter ranks with nutrition and health care as an absolute necessity," said Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in outlining goals for the conference.

"Yet no country in the world can claim that it promides adequate shelter to all its people — not those with the richest of technologies, not those with the most temperate of climates."

Postal cutback seen more likely

WASHINGTON (AP)—The prospect of a cutback in mail service appears to be growing as sentiment hardens in Congress against pumping large new federal subsidies into the financially ailing Postal Service.

The latest setback for proponents of the subsidy came Monday when the senior Republican on the House Post Office Committee announced misgivings about the pending legislation. Rep. Ed Derwinski, R-Ill., said he remained unconvinced that taxpayer money should be used to finance mail service.

The Postal Service has indicated that without new funds, service reductions can be expected this summer. Officials say the money is needed to offset the agency's chronic deficit. Eliminating Saturday mail delivery reportedly is the most likely cutback. The Postal Service already is readying the legal work that would ne needed to propose such a cut by midsummer.

Officials of the Postal Service and the agency's supporters in Congress say they are not optimistic about getting the funds needed to avoid service cuts.

"We are still hoping for legislation, but the chances look pretty dim now," one high postal official said. "Meanwhile, there are cutback measures waiting in the wings that aren't going to be popular."

The legislation that the Postal Service wants, authorizing $4.5 billion over a three-year period, is languishing in the Senate Post Office Committee. The panel scheduled action on the bill for earlier this month, then postponed it until June in hopes of obtaining President Ford's agreement on a compromise.

Meetings were held involving officials of the Ford administration and the Postal Service and senior members of the postal committees of Congress. However, the administration has not agreed to any more money, knowledgable sources said.

While the meetings were taking place, supporters of the subsidy received another setback when House-Senate conferees decided against including any additional postal money in the budget target for the next fiscal year.

Texas jobless rate declines

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Unemployment in Texas dipped to 4.8 per cent of the labor force in April, its lowest level in 17 months, the Texas Employment Commission said Tuesday.

"Not since November 1974 has the unemployment rate been below 5 per cent," said TEC chairman Harold Dudley.

Dudley said the decline in joblessness resulted mainly from seasonal factors, with increased construction and agricultural employment contributing to the improvement.

Total employment increased from 5,029,000 in March to 5,062,300 in April, a gain of 32,700 jobs, Dudley said.

The national jobless figure was 7.4 per cent of the labor force in April, he said.

A matter of trust and confidence.

Sheriff Ed Darnell has the respect of all law enforcement agencies and officers, not only in West Texas, but throughout the state and nation. They know they can depend on him to cooperate with them in every way ... that they can trust and depend on him to act quickly and responsibly when he can help. Our Sheriff is personally acquainted with more law enforcement officers than any man in Texas ... and that's important when prompt action and teamwork are needed. Any way you look at it, Ed Darnell is the best Sheriff in Texas. We need him.

Graham storm damage total may hit $15 million

GRAHAM, Tex. (AP) — The roar of chain saws and the clinking of broken glass being swept could be heard today as residents and volunteers pitched in with city workers to clean up this North Central Texas town heavily damaged by a wind and hail storm.

Winds clocked up to 110 miles per hour and golf ball size hail snapped tree limbs and shattered glass throughout this town of 8,000 people Tuesday morning.

Damage estimates range from $12 million to $15 million.

There were no deaths reported, although 15 persons reported to the Graham General Hospital.

"I'm glad there were no more injuries," Mayor E. Bruce Street Jr. said. He sent out the appeal for persons with chain saws to help clear streets and driveways.

One of two persons hospitalized was a workman who broke his arm when he fell from a tree. Johnny Roberts, 32, was helping clear trees and branches from city streets.

One woman eight months pregnant was cut on the arm. She had left her mobile home for a safer place in her neighbor's mobile home which was overturned by high winds. Her home was not damaged.

Large piles of hail remained in the street several hours after the storm had passed, because the building hoasing city equipment was blown down.

Two hangars and at least two airplanes were damaged at the Graham Municipal Airport.

Wichita Falls lawyer Glen Purtle said he was in town to try a case and was sitting in his car in front of the Young County courthouse when the storm hit.

"There was hail, wind and rain all at the same time," he said. He said the hail was so large that its noise drowned out his car radio.

Mrs. Barbara Shoemate, a deputy clerk in the courthouse, said she was in the office of State District Court Judge John Bradshaw when the parts of the roof began to come through the window.

"We tried to get out the door but the wind was so strong we could hardly move," she said.

A large water tank overlooking the downtown area was destroyed although residents said it wes partially damaged and empty from a previous storm.

Winds twisted the light standards at Graham High School stadium and at the Hipp Rodeo Arena north of town.

Gene Henderson, a salesman for the Glass Motor Co. said he was sitting in a new car on the showroom floor listening to the radio.

"The radio said it was going to rain," he said, "but that it wasn't going to be bad. Then the radio just kinda faded out."

About five minutes later the windows started blowing out.

"I got out of that car and ran into the office," Henderson said.

One of the most heavily damaged businesses was the Graham Wholesale Floral Co., where more than 1,000 panes of glass were destroyed when three greenhouses collapsed.

Almost a third of the plants were destroyed. Thirty employes managed to make it to a vault and were not injured by flying glass.

A&M regents approve operating budgets

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M University System regents have approved 1976-77 operating budgets totaling $286,688,616, an increase of $23.6 million over the current funding level.

Regents attributed most of the increase to large enrollment gains and expanded research activities. The action came Tuesday.

Effective Sept. 1, budgets for the system's separate units will be: Texas A&M, $161,834,431; Prairie View A&M, $25,140,899; Tarleton State, $7,851,222; Moddy College of Marine Sciences and Maritime Resources, $2,549,381; Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, $26,813,975; Texas Agricultural Extension Service, $32,790,715; Texas Engineering Experiment Station (including TTI), $15,140,513; Texas Engineering Extension Service, $4,328,312; Texas Forest Service, $6,162,835; Rodent and Predatory Animal Control Service, $1,197,952, and system offices and departments, $2,878,381.

Separate state agency budgets administerd by the regents include $1,203,220 for the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory and $85,000 for the Texas Petroleum Research Committee.

The board named Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel as director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Pfannstiel had been associate director.

Pfannstiel succeeds Dr. O H. Kunkel, Texas A&M dean of agriculture who had been acting director since February.

Regents also approved building contracts totaling $2,127,315 for construction projects at College Station, Stephenville and Conroe.

Jones & Williams Construction Co. of Waco was awarded a $1,019,500 contract to convert an obsolete dormitory at Texas A&M into an office and classroom building.

Other Texas A&M awards were $437,380 to Jordan & Woods of College Station to build three new greenhouses and a supporting office and laboratory facility and $83,685 to R.B. Butler Inc. of Bryan to repair a fuel storage tank.

Ed A. Wilson Inc. of Fort Worth received a $511,850 contract to renovate Tarleton State's science building and Trans-Am Construction Co. of Navasota was given a $74,900 contract to build a district headquarters facility at Conroe for the Texas Forest Service.

In other business, regents approved establishment here of the Public Works Resource Center to serve as a state clearinghouse for new urban-related technology.

James R. Bradley, director of the Texas Engineering Extension Service under which the center will be operated, said the facility will be "a focal point where public works technology may be collected and disseminated on an organized basis."

A system-wide student accident and health insurance program was authorized through a policy offered by Keystone Life Insurance Co. of Carrollton. The firm was the low bidder on a proposal drawn up by a committee comprised of students from Texas A&M, Prairie View A&M and Tarleton.

Room and board rates at Prairie View A&M were increased a total of $50 per semester to offset higher costs for labor and supplies.

Kennedy dad of year

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Fathers Day Committee has awarded Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts a "Father of the Year" award.

Kennedy, who was named national Father of the Year on Tuesday, is the third Kennedy brother to receive that honor. The late President John F. Kennedy and the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy won in 1962 and 1960 respectively.

This year's other six father award recipients were New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, Olympic track gold medalist Jesse Owens, Hughes Rudd of CBS News, NBC Science reporter Dr. Frank Field, American Basketball Association Commissioner Dave DeBusschere, Broadway actor and singer John Cullum and entertainer Ray Heatherton.

Bing Crosby out of hospital

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bing Crosby has been released from Riverside Hospital where doctors removed a piece of food that became lodged in the singer's throat.

Hospital officials said Crosby, who was released Tuesday after an overnight stay, had been dining with friends Monday night when the food became stuck in his throat. He was initially treated by a doctor in his party and then taken to the hospital by car.

The 72-year-old singer was given a general anesthetic and the food removed from his esophagus with forceps, the hospital said.

Here's a way for aging woman to beat the clock

Copley News Service

Nor is the 45th. Or the 50th.

In fact there just isn't any point, according to Gloria Heidi, at which a woman need relegate herself to conservative clothes, sensible shoes and no-nonsense haircuts.

Heidi, a former fashion model, teacher of modeling, fashion and beauty, and author of the book, "Winning the Age Game" (Doubleday), has a strong message for women of the middle years.

Mature is not synonymous with matronly, she says.

And fashion flair and feminine appeal are not the exclusive domain of the very young.

She proves both those points in lectures and demonstrations. Using two professional models of "that certain age" — a term Heidi prefers to middle-aged or past 40 — she shows how relatively simple, inexpensive and minor changes in clothing and accessories can pare years off the appearance.

First she calls out a model dressed in a classic, safe style of the middle-aged matron. The basic look hasn't changed in probably 20 years.

It starts with a tailored suit. In this case a pantsuit in beige. It was accessorized with a white turban to match the plain white blouse, a pair of very basic beige pumps, a double strand of nondescript beads and a proper "Mamma bag" handbag.

And it loudly proclaimed its wearer as past 40.

It was too timid, Heidi explained. It lacked any touch of the new look, lacked color and expressed nothing in the way of individual personality.

In her effort to be appropriately dressed for her age, the woman who selects such a safe ensemble loses out on all the fun of the fashion game, Heidi said, and does herself a disservice in the process.

At the other extreme is the mature woman who signs herself up for full membership in the youth cult, desperately seeking to re-create the look portrayed in the slicker fashion magazines with no regard to her own sense of the ridiculous.

To illustrate that, Heidi called back the same model, this time garbed in boldly printed, wide-legged pants, which were cropped off abruptly at mid-calf. With them she wore a shoulder-baring peasant blouse, ropes of ethnic jewelry and an embroidered fanny wrapper scarf.

Again, even considering the model's obvious attributes, the costume didn't work. In fact, it looked ludicrous.

Although Heidi stresses the importance of not dressing too old for one's years, she used this example to illustrate the equal importance of realizing that there are some looks that are, without question, too young for the mature woman.

So what is a woman of that certain age to wear if she chooses to look neither matronly or moronic?

Again the model appeared.

This time the look was smashing.

She wore a man-tailored, black pantsuit, which could have been much too severe, had it not been so tastefully accessorized with a black-on-white printed shirt, fluffy red, black and white printed kerchief at the throat and an enormous fake white flower on the lapel.

It was the look Heidi calls "ageless."

It is.

Mrs. Grant installed president

Mrs. Dan Cotten was hostess for a recent business meeting of Beta Eta Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, with Mrs. S. L. Davis serving as co-hostess.

Mrs. Jerry Newnham was received into the chapter by transfer of membership from a Hobbs, N.M. chapter.

It was announced that chapter member, Mrs. Reggie Medley, was recently elected president of District VIII and members decided to host the leadership seminar for the new president during September.

New officers were installed by retiring president, Mrs. Davis, who followed the theme, "Time," which will be used by Mrs. Clarence Grant during her term as president.

Other officers include Mrs. Medley, vice president; Mrs. Don Robinson, recording secretary; Mrs. Campanella, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Frank Felts, treasurer.

NEEDLEPLAY

DEAR ERICA: I want to begin a tapestry that is 30 by 40 inches. What is a good size canvas mesh to use? Should I use the long and short stitch you showed on your TV show? Is it possible to stitch other stitches on top of ones already there? If I sound slightly confused, it's because I am. . .—Annette Foerster, East Newport, N.Y.

DEAR ANNETTE: A No. 12 mesh (12 threads to the inch) is ideal for making a needlepoint "tapestry" with two threads of Persian wool for the stitching. First, you need inspiration; books, postcards from museum collections, print collections from public libraries are all sources you can use. Take the design to your local newspaper office, or look in the yellow pages under "Blueprint" and have the design photostatically enlarged to the size you want.

Pay special attention to the close-up photos of details of tapestries because they show how the long, vertical lines of shading blend.

Blending hues to give dramatic shading effects is achieved by staggering the lengths of your stitches (yes— —the long and short stitch) in one color and letting another color (or shade of the same color) come to meet them in varying lengths, too. That way they "interlock" for subtle shading.

"THINKING" with ODOM

PHILIPPIANS 4:8

Sometimes people cite Matthew 7:1 when others find occasion to criticize them for their religious practices. The passage reads thusly: "Judge not that ye be not judged." Their conclusion is that if you find fault with another's belief and practice you are judging and will therefore be condemned. Such an idea of that passage is certainly not compatible with the teachings of the rest of the New Testament.

For instance in Matthew 7 we have a record of 14 verses where our Lord rebuked and condemned others for their religious practices. I wonder if the Lord was "judging" these folks? In the first epistle to the Corinthians the apostle Paul spent chapter after chapter cutting and condemning these members of the Lord's church for their ungodly practices. I wonder if we are to include that he was "judging" them and falls under the condemnation pronounced in Matthew 7:1?

Lest someone might reply, "But that was Christ and not you, to the Corinthians he was an inspired apostle and not you." In another passage I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine (2 Tim. 4:1,2). If the apostle was to observe the word REPROVE [illegible] to it in the years the word means [illegible] Matthew 7:1 when [illegible]

[illegible] Matthew 7:1 we take it to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE WINE DRINKER

Age improves Cabernet Sauvignon

By TOM GABLE
Copley News Service

The Cabernet Sauvignon is the fine red wine grape of the Bordeaux area of France, the Napa Valley of California, the Yakima Valley of Washington and emerging areas in Australia, Chile, and other parts of the world.

Wines made from this black grape can be long-lived but are often hard and astringent when young. However, as the tannins soften with time, the good Cabernet Sauvignon wines round off and become balanced, complex and elegant. The greatest wines from this grape improve with 30, 40 and more years of bottle age.

There are several levels of Cabernet Sauvignon wines generally available throughout the world.

At the top are the best of Bordeaux: Chateaus Mouton Rothschild, Latour, Lafite Rothschild, Margaux, La Mission Haut Brion, and Haut Brion. Their prices range from $15 to $45 a bottle for the recent vintage of 1970. Each has its own style, built on the solid base of Cabernet Sauvignon grapes, although this grape name doesn't appear on the labels.

In California, the best Cabernet Sauvignons come from Heitz Cellars, Beaulieu Vineyards, Spring Mountain Winery, Freemark Abbey, and Ridge. The name of the grape is prominently featured on their labels. The wines, as with the best from France, have clearly distinguishable Cabernet character in the aroma and flavor but have been given other dimensions because of microclimates, soil differences and wine-making techniques.

The 1970 vintage is the best in many years and prices of these top wines range from $7.50 a bottle to $30.

There are perhaps 50 or more wines at the next level of quality, which is also the next lower level of prices.

Some of the more familiar and available wines from French chateaus include Pape Clement, Lascombes, Palmer, Leoville-Barton, Leoville-Lascases, Cos d'Estournel, Ducru-Beaucaillou and Gruaud-Larose. Prices range from $8 to $12, and can go higher, depending upon local and regional laws and merchant mark-up policies.

California Cabernet Sauvignon wines in the $6 to $8 range in broader distribution would include:

Robert Mondavi, Oakville, Inglenook Cask Selections, Sterling, Mayacamas, Louis Martini Special Selections and Charles Krug Special Selections.

Asparagus spring treat

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

That adaptable stalk known as asparagus is the favorite vegetable of many Americans because it can be served in innumerable ways during the season, which runs roughly from March through June.

The ancient Greeks used to gather wild asparagus, which flourished in southeastern Europe, but apparently they never cultivated it. This may have been because one fourth-century B.C. writer claimed that it could harm one's vision, a theory about as reliable as the ancient claim that tomatoes were poisonous.

It was a different story with the Romans, who began growing the vegetable in their gardens as far back as 200 B.C. Historians say Roman gardeners developed stalks that weighed up to three pounds and that must have been pretty tough. The Emperor Augustus was fond of asparagus, which the Romans not only cooked fresh, they also dried the shoots and later boiled them.

Asparagus is served today in many guises, including salads, soups and hot dishes galore with a wide variety of sauces. It goes well with almost any meat, fish or fowl. It also does things for dishes made with eggs and cheese.

In my opinion asparagus is equally good served hot with a Hollandaise sauce or cold with a vinaigrette dressing. It may be more costly than some vegetables, but it is worth a splurge once a week at least.

Asparagus buffs will tell you that when the whole stalks are cooked they should not lie flat in water, but should be tied top and bottom in bunches and stood up in the bottom of a double boiler. If the lower stalks are tough, break them off and discard. Asparagus is usually done in 15 minutes if you insist on laying the shoots full length in about 1½ cups of boiling water per bunch. This allows five minutes cooking time with the lid off and 10 more covered. If you cook the stalks upright, allow an added 5 minutes for the exposed tips to steam, since the water will not reach them. Test for tenderness before serving.

1 bunch (about 2 pounds) asparagus
¼ pound butter or margarine
¼ cup fresh orange juice
4 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Break off asparagus stalks as far down as they snap easily. Wash asparagus. Cook covered in about 1½ cups salted, boiling water till tender. Drain if necessary. Melt butter and stir in remaining ingredients. Heat to serving temperature, stirring occasionally. Serve over cooked asparagus. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 6.

Chemical solvents can harm plumbing drains

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. We have heard varying opinions on the use of chemical solvents to clear clogged plumbing drains. Can you give us some advice on this? We are having a little trouble which we suspect is due to a clogged drain. — Jim L. L.

A. To protect yourself and your plumbing equipment, be sure you know what you are doing when you use chemical solvents to clear a clogged drain. Use drain solvents with the utmost care and according to the directions on the package.

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says that unless so used, the solvents can be highly injurious, not only to the plumbing system but to yourself and others as well. If incorrectly used, solvents can cause serious damage to pipes, chomium drain outlets and fixture enamel, and bring about adverse effects to the user from skin contact and fumes. If you use a solvent, follow directions to the letter — no shortcuts. And if you use one and it doesn't accomplish the purpose, tell your plumbing contractor what you have done before letting him begin work. Most solvents will work as advertised, but just be careful.

Q. Brick walks through my yard will not retain their natural red color. White spots keep showing up. I have used the so-called tree wax sealer and other preparations, but these do not do the job. In fact, the bricks look worse.

Is there anything I can do to keep the bricks permanently looking like bricks are supposed to look, such as when they are wet? — Roger K.

A. The white spots are due to efflorescence — moisture working its way through and carrying salts with it which remain on the surface when the water evaporates. Masonry cleaning and etching preparations are available at masonry supply houses, which will remove soil and various stains, including the white spots. It will also take off the other preparations which you have used, which is necessary before you apply a new finish. If there is any excess mortar clinging to the brick surface, this can be removed with a solution of muriatic acid, one part acid to 20 parts of water. Be very careful to protect your eyes, face and hands when using the acid.

After the brick surface is thoroughly cleaned, a clear masonry sealer should be applied. If you wish to wax the walks, be certain to use a good exterior wax. There also is a sealer for masonry products which comes in colors, which may give you a richer, deeper red than the natural brick, or more like the color of red brick when it is wet. Possibly the reason you did not get good results from the preparations you previously used is that the brick surface was not first thoroughly cleaned. That is essential.

The Xi Pi Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the Garden Room of Midland Country Club for its Exemplar Day celebration.

Four new members were given the Exemplar Ritual. They are Mrs. Judy Golden, Mrs. Louise Etheredge, Mrs. Mary Ellen Reagan and Mrs. Randy Wallace.

The outgoing president, Mrs. Cecile Wiginton, presented awards to her retiring officers. The best program award went to Mrs. Lynda Lane and Mrs. Rheta Edwards.

Installed as 1976-77 officers were Mrs. Jimmie Goodenough, president; Mrs. Connie Brown, vice president; Mrs. Wiginton, recording secretary; Mrs. Betsy Farrer, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Maile Stewart, treasurer.

Secret sisters were revealed and names for new ones were drawn.

Wild West show tops Lamesa Bicentennial

LAMESA — A Wild West Show will be one of the major events in Lamesa's July 4 Bicentennial celebration, "Happy Birthday America."

The show is being put together by Ralph and Riley Miller of Justiceburg who have produced such shows around the country since the 1920's.

The show will include wild bronc riding, trick riding, Roman riding and ritualistic Indian dancing performed by a group of Sioux from South Dakota. The Fort Hood Mounted Calvary will also perform. This group has traveled throughout the United States for the last two years presenting the spirit of the Calvary of the 1880's.

At an organizational meeting for the event Friday, Terry Brown was named chairman of the Arrangements Division. Other permanent chairmen will be appointed at a later date.

The Lamesa Optimist Club has scheduled a tractor pulling contest in the Rodeo Arena, adjacent to Forrest Park, where the main celebration will be. Softball teams will be playing on the north side of the park.

Activities will be divided into two basic categories, pioneer and contemporary. Both will be designed to be broad in scope and reflect the manufactures which have helped the area to develop.

Displays including art work, old farm equipment and early day household goods are planned. Activities such as dominoe playing, horseshoe pitching, sack races and other games are also expected. All types of food and drink will be sold for the event.

Activities will revolve around the central area of the park which will be the site of continuous entertainment.

A community worship service will be held on the softball field. Grant Teaff, head football coach at Baylor University, will speak. W. A. Anderson will be guest soloist. A community sing will precede the service.

A covered dish luncheon will follow with singing, visiting and games for the children in the afternoon. The Borden County Museum will be open.

Proceeds from the Bicentennial celebration will go toward completion of a community park on property donated by Mardes Clayton, a life-long resident of the county.

Flour to fly at show Sunday

BIG SPRING — Aeroplane antics, from aerobatics to flour-bombing and paper-cutting via spinning props, and hot-air ballooning will be demonstrated Sunday at the Big Spring Jaycees' Bicentennial Airshow and Fly-in at the Howard County Airport.

Flour-bombing at 10:30 a.m. will get the airshow underway. A pilot, explained Jaycee project chairman Ken Johnson, will heave a sack of flour at a ground target while flying about 150 feet from the ground.

The show's registration will begin at 10 a.m.

Outside of flour-bombing, air events will be held from 2 to 5 p.m.

Doing aerobatics will be Lowell Haack of San Antonio.

Fred Stella of Midland will do some hot-air ballooning and crop duster Buster Weaver of Big Spring will show off his skill and dare.

Other events will include paper-cutting with aircraft propellers and a radio-controlled model airplane show by the Hi-Sky Radio-Control Club.

General admission to the event will be $1.50 for adults, $1 for children 6 to 12, and no admission will be asked of children under 6.

Fly-in visitors to the airshow will be admitted free of charge. Those fliers will be eligible for a door prize.

Sydney landmark destroyed by fire

Agence France-Presse

SYDNEY — Sydney's Strand Arcade, described by a national trust spokesman as a priceless piece of Victorian architecture, was destroyed by fire early today.

The Strand, which was built in 1891, was in the final stages of an expensive restoration plan that started nearly four years ago after it was sold for $6 million.

More than 100 firemen blocked off Pitt and George Streets in the heart of Sydney before dawn as they fought a hopeless battle against the flames.

There were more than one hundred shops in the four-story arcade with its great glass roof, delicate iron lace, cedar shop fronts and potted palm trees.

The national trust spokesman later described the fire as "a tragedy to Australian architecture and culture."

KIM DONICE WILSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill R. Wilson of 1500 Ventura St., has been named recipient of a four-year scholarship to Midland College and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. The first two years of the award, which provides up to $300 per year, is sponsored by the Midland National Bank. Miss Wilson is a senior at Midland High School.

Special gifts division sets fund luncheon

The Special Gifts Division of the Midland Salvation Army will open its part of the $350,000 Salvation Army Development Fund campaign with a luncheon at the Midland Country Club at noon Thursday.

The Special Gifts Division, composed of 50 workers, is one of two divisions organized for the campaign. They are to contact prospects for the campaign during the next four weeks.

Richard Mendenhall, assisted by Deane Stoltz, will serve as chairman of the division.

The development program is seeking to raise funds to consolidate all of the Salvation Army operation into one location in Midland, with a major building program slated adjacent to the present facilities at 300 S. Baird.

Oil firm 'pipeline' brings pleasure

By BILL KAUFMAN
Newsday

NEW YORK — On Dec. 7, 1940, Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" was performed at the old Metropolitan Opera House in New York and broadcast to listeners around the country. Since then, on the average, 20 broadcasts per season have been beamed to opera devotees in the longest corporate underwriting of the same program by the same firm over a nationwide radio network.

Texaco's underwriting of the opera broadcasts is not only a tribute to the stability possible in a marriage between wealthy industry and perennially poor culture, but also an example of how major oil companies have come to play a gargantuan role in the nation's arts. Last year a handful of major oil companies spread more than $15 million around the country for opera broadcasts, art shows, modern dance and the like. Industry has become the mid-1970s reincarnation of the Renaissance Medicis, and oil companies are the leaders in the field.

THE OPERA BROADCASTS are also significant because of Texao's approach — as a cultural patron rather than a commercial pitchman. The benefits the oil companies derive from their millions are subtle. The four-hour opera broadcasts with commentator Peter Allen, which include such features as an analysis of the production, and a listener's quiz or an interview with a performer, or both, carry no commercials — only one mention of Texao during each intermission. By accepted radio practice, Texaco could use between 21 and 28 minutes of that substantial chunk of air time to hard sell anything from gasoline to tubeless tires and antifreeze. But it doesn't.

Texaco's low profile sponsorhsip of the broadcasts borders, by most advertising industry standards, on sub-rosa. The oil firm's stated policy: "To win a high level of good will by associating the name 'Texaco' with that of the Metropolitan Opera at the highest artistic level even to the extent of avoiding all discussion of company products by direct commercials." Geraldine Souvaine, who has written and produced the broadcasts since their inception, said that during each opera season she and Texaco receive about 10,000 letters from listeners. "If I get 10 complaints a year, that's a lot," she said.

The radio "network" controlled by Texaco, which buys air time on 145 commercial and more than 100 noncommercial stations, reaches an average of 1.3 million adults on any given Saturday afternoon. Though no one at Texaco will reveal what the company pays to line up all those stations, a Met spokesman said that Texaco paid it $280,000 just for the right to broadcast 20 productions last season, and paid additional fees to singers.

THE MOST OBVIOUS example of culture nurtured by the oil industry lately is the Public Broadcasting Service, which enjoys a reputation for high-level programing, financed in large part by such giants as Mobil, Exxon and Atlantic Richfield. That has led Variety, the show business trade publication, to dub PBS the "Petroleum Broadcasting System."

Variety also referred to oil company spending on public televison as "guilt money." A 1974 Gallup Poll inquiring into public attitudes about who or what was responsible for the energy crisis showed that a plurality of those polled blamed oil interests. Most oil firms, however, maintain that they haven't been pumping more money into the arts and other philanthropies to offset the negative publicity generated by the energy crisis — pouring oil on troubled waters, as it were.

"Our direct cash contributions and programs have not changed much," said Don Jones, a spokesman for Standard Oil of California. Jones said that such funding was about the same before the oil crisis "and has averaged nearly $500,000 a year during the past five years."

Wilson Fadley, a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service, noted that corporations often set up tax-exempt foundations to contribute funds for their activities. In the complex area of corporate finance, Fadley said, a company is limited to deducting 5 per cent of net income before taxes for philanthropic purposes. For instance, if a firm has a net income of $10 million before taxes, it may deduct a maximum of $500,000, provided it has donated that much. If a firm is in the maximum 48 per cent bracket, meaning it pays 48 cents in taxes for each dollar of income, that can be a substantial benefit.

However, Jim Flug, director of the Energy Action Committee, a lobby group in Washington which has been consistently critical of the oil industry, said, "When you think of the oil trust's total profit picture, the amount they give is really quite minuscule."

Flug also noted that since oil supply problems arose, "the companies don't advertise specific products. They've got to fall back on institutional advertising and corporate image rebuilding." Virtually all of the advertising by the big oil companies now empasizes such things as what is being done for ecology and the quest for "new energy sources" like offshore drilling, as depicted in many current Texaco TV commercials. The oil companies also exploit their cultural patronage by advertising heavily in newspapers and through their own public relations efforts. (Atlantic Richfield spent about $600,000 to advertise and promote "The Adams Chronicles," above and beyond the $1.2 million it contributed to produce the PBS series.)

HERE ARE SOME examples of oil company commitments to the arts:

—Mobil's large-scale PBS offerings, such as "Decades of Decision," "upstairs, Downstairs" and "Masterpiece Theater," and its contributions to "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company"; sponsorship of projects with the Museum of Modern Art in New York, such as its "Summergarden" program of music and dance (which received $40,000 this year alone), grants to the Corcoran Gallery in Washingon and the San Francisco Museum of Art; sponsorship of music festivals at Washington's Kennedy Center, including "The 12 Days of Christmas" last December, a series of 20 holiday concerts; and most recently, purchase of four dramatic series produced by the British Broadcasting System and Time-Life Television, which it will present on PBS in the next 18 months.

—Exxon's many PBS projects, including the "Theater in America" series and "Vibrations Encore"; the underwriting of artistconductors-in-residence for major symphony orchestras in Atlanta, Washington, D.C., Milwaukee, St. Paul and San Diego (with a grant of $82,000); numerous displays at major museums like the Whitney Museum of American Art; underwriting of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra radio broadcasts ($300,000 this year), and participation in Lincoln Center's annual, free Out-of-Doors Festival ($70,000 this year).

—Shell Oil Co.'s support of symphony orchestras and regional ballet in 24 cities, such as the New Orleans Philharmonic Society ($4,500); the the New Oleans Museum of Art ($3,500); public TV in Houston; Houston's Alley Theater, and donations ($71,000 this year) for the arts in various key cities Shell has large numbers of employes.

—Atlantic Richfield Co.'s $1.2 million contribution for the "Adams Chronicles;" support (in an undisclosed amount) toward establishment of a new fine arts center in downtown Los Angeles, including the Arco Center for Visual Arts at corporate headquarters in that city.

—Gulf Oil's underwriting of "The National Geographic Series" on PBS, which cost about $1 million; support of regional dance and theater groups to the extent of about $500,000.

—Phillips Petroleum's support of 21 arts agencies around the nation, including a major exhibition at the Denver Art Museum, the Wolf Trap concerts near Washingtn and the Museum of African Arts in Washington, the Opera of Puerto Rico and the Bartlesville (Okla.) Ballet.

Geico fortune heir files for Chapter XI bankruptcy

By WILLIAM H. JONES
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Leo Goodwin, Jr., son of the founder of Government Employees Insurance Co., has filed one of the largest personal bankruptcy cases on record in the wake of the large automobile insurance firm's recent financial woes.

According to papers dated May 13 at Federal Bankruptcy Court in Hyattsville, Md., Goodwin has assets of $26.55 million and he owes $29.99 million to 40 banks, savings and loan associations, insurance companies and individuals from coast to coast.

Godwin, who has homes in Potomac, Mich., and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., filed a petition under Chapter XI of the bankruptcy act, seeking court protection for his remaining assets as well as personal property while he attempts to reorganize his debts.

The Chapter XI proceeding is designed to give creditors equal protection in seeking to get payment on their claims and to give Goodwin an opportunity to consolidate various legal actions in one proceeding.

Goodwin's case was assigned to the federal referee in bankruptcy, Judge Glenn J. Goldburn, who will announce the time for an initial meeting of creditors in court.

Son of Geico founder Leo Goodwin Sr., who died in 1971, the 61-year old Goodwin lists himself as a private investment banker. He became one of the country's most wealthy men on the basis of his ownership of Geico stock, much of which was pledged as collateral for business loans from such banks as Riggs National and National Bank of Washington; Citibank, Bankers Trust Co., and Marine Midland of New York, and many other financial institutions.

With the dramatic collapse of Geico stock in recent months, after the local firm posted a record $16 million loss for 1975 and decided on a broad retrenchment in its business, Goodwin's portfolio of Geico stock plummeted in market value.

As of Feb. 11, Goodwin owned 877,937 shares of Geico common stock — or about 5 per cent of the company's stock outstanding. Trading in the early 1970s at more than $60 a share, Geico shares owned by Goodwin were worth more than $50 million. Now trading in a range of slightly more than $4 a share, Goodwin's holdings are worth less than $4 million.

Reportedly, more than 500,000 shares of Geico owned by Goodwin were pledged as collateral for loans in recent years to various business ventures, incuding real estate, a hotel, marina, lumber firm and boat company, mainly in the Ft. Lauderdale area.

Informed sources said Goodwin submitted his resignation last week from the Geico board of directors, where he served as a member of the executive committee. Geico officials refused to discuss the status of Goodwin, a director since 1948.

Goodwin also has served as a director of Geico affiliates in life insurance, consumer finance and high-risk auto insurance and he has owned a substantial bloc of shares in each of these firms as well.

Despite Geico's precarious state, D.C. Insurance Superintendent Maximilian Wallach said that the company still has time in which to find the infusion of money with no immediate threat to the big insurer's solvency.

Among the creditors listed by Goodwin in his bankruptcy petition is the Internal Revenue Service. Although no exact debts are listed for each creditor, government sources said several federal tax actions have been filed against Goodwin and related estates.

A trial is set for the week on June 7 in Miami on an IRS claim that Goodwin and a former wife, Frances B. Goodwin, owe back taxes of $554,831 for 1966; $139,517 for 1967 and $57,364 for 1968, plus interest. Moreover, sources said a separate government action filed recently seeks nearly $1.5 million of additional alleged back taxes over a three-year period.

The Goodwin petition lists $20.94 million of personal property (including his Geico shares), $5.42 million of real property and $185,919 in cash among his assets. Of the $29.29 million in debts, Goodwin listed $17.37 million due 20 holders, which he said would be extinguished if securities held were liquidated at the market value before May. The remaining debts of nearly $12 million are due 25 holders.

Pan American Bank of Broward County, Florida, already has moved after winning a court judgment in Ft. Lauderdale, because Goodwin is four months overdue on a promissory note, a lawyer for the bank said. However, the bank claim, for about $150,000, has been blocked by the bankruptcy action.

Goodwin's petition said he owns 25 per cent or more of the stock in nine firms, including Combined Properties Corp. of Washington (recently renamed Comprop Inc.). He is chairman of the formerly public company, which bought up its shares and went private late in 1975.

Comprop and its successor developed Washington area shopping centers, many of which include Dart Drug branches. Dart Drug president Herbert Haft also is president of Comprop. The Goodwin petition revealed that a Richmond stockholder of the former Combined Properties has lodged a class action, claiming that public stockholders of the old company are due money. Haft said Comprop believes the suit is without merit.

The most recent large personal bankruptcy case was that of DuPont Co. heir Lammot du Pont Copeland Jr., of Wilmington, Del., whose initial court petition in 1970 listed assets of $25.7 million and debts of $59.1 million.

In addition to companies already named, Goodwin's petition listed the following as creditors owed money of unstated amounts:

American Bank, Hallandale, Fla.; American National Bank & Trust, Ft. Lauderdale; Bank of Virginia, Richmond; Barnett Bank, Ft. Lauderdale; Citizens Federal Savings & Loan, Miami; City National Bank & Trust, Columbus, Ohio; Dixie Lumber & Supply Inc.; the estate of Leo Goodwin Sr.; and the estate of Henry Milander, Hialeah, Fa.

Also, Executive Bank of Florida; First Federal of Broward, Coral Springs, Fla., First National Bank of Chicago; First National Bank of Hialeah; First National Bank of Hollywood, Fla.; First National Bank of Miami; Florida Coast Bank of Pompano Beach, Fla.; Florida National Properties, Coral Springs; First National Bank of San Antonio; Paul Herta, N. Miami; and Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Also, B.D. McMichael and Marjorie B. McMichael, Pompano Beach; Robert D. Meyer, Ft. Lauderdale; Midland Mutual Life Insurnace Co.; National Life Insurance Co., Montpelier, Vt.; Royal Bank of Canada; William C. and Betty L. Runnstrom, Ft. Lauderdale; William Skillings, Ft. Lauderdale; Southport American National Bank, Ft. Lauderdale; Valley National Bank, Monterey, Calif.; Mershon, Sawyer, Johnson, Dunwoody & Cole, Miami; and Madsen, Sapp and Barnes, Ft. Lauderdale.

Sinatra letter sold at auction

CHICAGO (AP) — A copyrighted letter in which Frank Sinatra called Chicago Daily News columnist Mike Royko a "pimp" has been sold to a Rockford, Ill., museum owner.

Mrs. Vie Carlson purchased the letter for $400, and proceeds from the sale of the letter will go the Salvation Army, Royko said Tuesday in his column.

Sinatra wrote the letter during a recent stay in Chicago after Royko had criticized the singer for using Chicago police officers as bodyguards during his visit.

Sales tax for school use urged

CANYON, Tex. (AP) — A legislative committee looking into the problems of public school financing has been told that sales taxes on non-essential items—not the property tax—should be used to pay for education.

The House Committee on Alternatives to Public School Financing held a public hearing at West Texas State University Monday.

Clarence Mason, a Muleshoe farmer, said taxes should first be levied on non essential items and activites rather than food and clothing.

Mason suggested taxes on non-commercial vehicles, travel trailers, recreational equipment such as tape decks, boats, hunting and skiing equipment, alcohol, tobacco or "anything you don't have to have."

Mrs. Carol Pack, wife of a Hutchinson County farmer, suggested taxing agricultural land on its productive value rather than market value.

She also suggested taxing motor vehicles or natural gas.

"The prices paid for land right now in our area are not realistic. It would wipe us out in agriculture to try to pay for land at that price while making a living in farming," she said.

James Fortenberry, a Parmer County resident, presented the committee with a resolution calling for financing school education through the retail sales tax. The resolution, presented on behalf of several Parmer County educators, said the sales tax would have the advantage of taxing all residents, not just property owners.

The tax, the resolution said, should then be returned to individual school districts on the basis of average daily attendance, the number of teachers and administrators assigned to those districts and other criteria used for measuring educational needs.

Historical Yates oil pool unitized

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The railroad commission unitized the prolific Yates Oil Field of Pecos County on Tuesday, an act that is expected to boost total production by 200 million barrels of crude.

Coupled with the unitization order

was authorization for injection of liquids to increase pressure and productivity and a doubling of the field's allowable to 100,000 barrels a day.

Marathon Oil Co. applied for the unitization, with voluntary agreement from 99.996 per cent of the working interest and 89.5 per cent of the royalty interest.

Unitization means all the oil in a field is withdrawn by a single producer, with the resulting income divided pro rata among the interests. It enables the use of pressure maintenance techniques that cause oil to move underground across lease lines.

Commission examiners found that anticipated additional production from the 26,400-acre field would more than offset the cost of the fluid injection operation.

The field was discovered in 1926. It has 588 oil wells, producing from depths ranging from 1,000 to 1,500 feet. More than 600 million barrels have been produced since discovery, and its production total is expected to hit 1.4 billion barrels with the additional production from injection.

Yates well opens pool

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., Midland, completed a Yates gas discovery in North Pecos, 15 miles west and slightly north of Girvin.

No. 1 Jacoby-State finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 1.1 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, through perforations at 665-900 feet. Completion was natural.

Drilled to 3,725 feet, it has 5½-inch casing set at total depth, and is plugged back to 2,700 feet.

Operating yards open

HOUSTON — WellTech, Inc., announced the establishment of its 10th and 11th operating yards which are located at Pearsall and Refugio.

Personnel and equipment are under the management of Joe Seay who has joined WellTech as district manager for the Pearsall operation, and Clyde Henning, Refugio district manager.

Offshore oil production

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State and federal leases off the Texas coast have produced a total of 15,166,733 barrels of crude oil and 1,236,325,005 thousand cubic feet (mcf) of natural gas this year, the Texas Railroad Commission said Tuesday.

March crude oil production offshore was 89,379 barrels, compared to 40,444 barrels for the same month in 1975.

Gas well production amounted to 17,134,448 mcf this March compared to 18,442,839 a year earlier.

Five Permian Basin areas gain locations for wildcat projects

No. 1-A Donna Alexander is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 56, block 35, T-6-N, CCSD&RGNG survey, eight miles north of Lamesa.

It is scheduled to 9,300 feet, and is ¾ mile south and slightly east of an 8,800-foot failure.

No. 1 Marian Perry Trust is 1,320 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 69, block 35, T-6-N, Georgetown RR survey, one mile west of Lamesa.

It is slated to 9,500 feet, and is ¾ mile west of a 12,227-foot failure.

No. 1 C. C. Rodgers is 660 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of labor 22, league 275, Glasscock CSL survey, 12 miles southwest of Lamesa.

It is slated to 9,750 feet, and is 1¼ mile west of a 12,110-foot failure.

FISHER TRY

Arledge Engineering, Inc. of Dallas has scheduled No. 1 E. J. Edwards, a 5,900-foot venture in Fisher, two miles east of Rotan.

Drillsite is 2,173 feet from north and 973 feet from east lines of section 115, block 2, H&TC survey, two miles south of the Ella (Ellenburger) field.

McCULLOCH WILDCATS

Bill Roddie of Lohn staked site for an 1,800-foot wildcat in McCulloch, five miles east of Lohn. It is No. 1-A B. H. Roddie.

Location is 1,470 feet from south and 180 feet from west lines of F. W. Roccius survey 633 (shows John Heinsohn survey 633 on some maps.) It is one location southeast of the Strawn opener in the Hall multipay gas field.

Explorado Oil Co. of Stamford has scheduled No. 1 Henry Land as a 1,200-foot try in McCulloch, two miles northeast of Lohn and in the vicinity of the depleted Big Chief (Pennsylvanian) oil field and depleted Lohn gas field.

Drillsite is 250 feet from north and 500 feet from west lines of J. W. Barnett survey 1056. Ground elevation is 1,574 feet.

RUNNELS EXPLORATION

Campana Petroleum Co. of Midland has scheduled No. 1 Pendergrass as a 4,400-foot prospector in Runnels, five miles northwest of Winters.

Location is 786 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of H. E. Baggs survey 94 (section 94, block 64, H&TC on some maps.) It is ⅜ mile northwest of the C.C.C. (Capps lime) gas field.

John W. Barbee of Abilene has scheduled No. 1-B Cora Byers, a 3,950-foot venture, 800 feet east of the depleted opener of the Ami (Jennings sand) field.

Location is 1,600 feet from north and 1,832 feet from east lines of Austin & Williams survey 262, 10 miles northeast of Ballinger, in Runnels.

The Ami opener, Miami Operating Co. No. 2-A Lindemann, finaled in 1954, through perforations at 3,666-3,669 feet.

SUTTON WORKOVER

William Pearlman of Houston will clean out to around 2,600 feet as a wildcat at the No. 1 George Brockman, former producer assigned to the Rocksprings (Cisco) gas field.

Originally drilled by Republic Natural Gas Co., it was plugged in 1952 at 5,301 feet in barren Ellenburger.

It was completed from Cisco gas in 1964 by Tucker Drilling Co., Inc. of San Angelo.

San Andres testers set in New Mexico

Three San Andres wildcats have been staked in Southeast New Mexico and field tests are planned in Chaves and Eddy counties.

Harvey E. Yates Co., Inc., Roswell, will drill No. 1 Marie Trust, a 3,650-foot San Andres test in Chaves, 10 miles southeast of Boaz.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 35-7s-30e, four miles northwest of the Siete (San Andres) field.

Fred Pool Drilling Co., San Angelo, staked site for No. 1 Plains-State, a location south offset to the three-well Chisum, East (San Andres) field of Chaves.

Location is 1,650 feet from north and east lines of section 16-11s-28e, 18 miles northeast of Dexter. Planned cable tool depth is 2,250 feet.

Dalport Oil Corp., Dallas, No. 4 Jones-Federal will be drilled as a location east offset to the four-well oil area of the Lucky Lake, South (Queen) field of Chaves.

The test is scheduled for a bottom depth of 1,900 fect, and spots 990 feet from south and 1,477 feet from west lines of section 22-15s-29e, 19 miles southeast of Hagerman. It also is ⅜ mile southeast of the lone gas well in the field.

LEA WILDCAT

Frank A. Schultz of Dallas filed application to drill No. 1-A Schultz-State, a 5,200-foot San Andres venture in Lea, eight miles south of Lovington.

Drillsite, 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 29-17s-36e, is ¾ mile east of the Double A, South (Abo) field and one location north of a 5,200-foot failure.

ROOSEVELT TRY

Read & Stevens, Inc., Roswell, No. 1 Davis is to be drilled as a 4,800-foot San Andres test in Roosevelt County, six miles northwest of Milnesand.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 25-7s-34e, two miles north of the Milnesamd (San Andres) field.

EDDY STEPOUT

David Fasken, Midland, No. 1 Howell-State Communitized is slated as a location south and east stepout to Morrow production in the Cemetary gas field of Eddy.

It has a projected depth of 9,900 feet, and spots 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 32-20s-25e, 10 miles southwest of Lake Wood.

Glasscock test slated

Amoco Production Co. has scheduled a southwest offset to the four-well Blalock Lake, South (Wolfcamp) oil field of Glasscock County, 14 miles northwest of Garden City.

Purchase announced

Southeast Roofing Products Co., a recently organized subsidiary of Elcor Chemical Corp. with headquarters in Midland, has signed a definitive agreement with The Logan-Long Co., Inc., to acquire the asphalt roofing products business and assets at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Logan-Long is a subsidiary of Bird & Son, Inc. The agreement is subject only to normal closing conditions and timely receipt of approval by the Federal Trade Commission, Roy E. Campbell, Elcor president, said.

Campbell also announced that Elcor has entered into a loan agreement with Republic National Bank of Dallas providing for a $10 million unsecured credit line.

Proceeds of the loan may be used for acquisitions, for retirement debt and for general corporate purposes, Campbell said.

Dividend set

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Occidental Petroleum Corp.'s board of directors has declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents per common share, payable July 15 to shareholders of record June 10.

Discovery potentials

H. B. Rhoads of Midland has completed No. 1 Viola as a Canyon lime oil discovery in Tom Green County, 10 miles south of San Angelo.

It pumped eight barrels of 39.2-gravity oil and 13 barrels of water on 24-hour potential test, with gas-oil ratio measuring 25-1.

Completion was effected through perforations at 4,596-4,620 feet, after treating the pay with 6,000 gallons of acid.

Drilled to 5,041 feet, operator set 4½-inch casing at 4,728 feet, and plugged back to 4,653 feet. Top of the Canyon lime was picked at 4,596 feet, under kelly bushing elevation of 2,032 feet.

Witnesses testify

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Some 35 witnesses testified at a federal hearing Tuesday on the proposed Louisiana offshore oil port — most of them in favor of the project.

Proponents saw longterm economic advantages to the state and nation over what they considered possible minimum environmental damage.

But one of the most vocal critics, Louisiana Ecology Center Vice President John R. Hammond, accused federal representatives of an "unjustifiable rush to judgment" to push the license through.

Testimony taken by the Coast Guard, the Army Corps of Engineers, and the Transportation Department's Office of Deepwater Ports will be submitted to Transportation Secretary William Coleman for a decision on the license.

A group of oil companies known as Louisiana Offshore Oil Port (LOOP) plans to build the offshore terminal from which oil would be pumped ashore by an underwater pipeline and stored in underground salt dome cavities.

Estimates are that 1.4 million barrels of oil would be pumped daily through the LOOP facility.

Gov. Edwin Edwards told the hearing that the project was "environmentally acceptable and economically feasible."

But Hammond asked the Coast Guard to allow 30 more days for comments on the preliminary draft of an environmental impact statement, then allow additional comment on the final draft of that statement.

Hammond charged that oil companies intend "to transform the Baton Rouge-New Orleans corridor into the the petrochemical sewer of the nation."

He said they want to expand the Gulf Coast into "the soft underbelly of the South" because environmental objectives have made it impossible to plan such projects on the East Coast.

By WILLIAM H. JONES
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Leo Goodwin, Jr., son of the founder of Government Employees Insurance Co., has filed one of the largest personal bankruptcy cases on record in the wake of the large automobile insurance firm's recent financial woes.

According to papers dated May 13 at Federal Bankruptcy Court in Hyattsville, Md., Goodwin has assets of $26.55 million and he owes $29.99 million to 40 banks, savings and loan associations, insurance companies and individuals from coast to coast.

Godwin, who has homes in Potomac, Mich., and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., filed a petition under Chapter XI of the bankruptcy act, seeking court protection for his remaining assets as well as personal property while he attempts to reorganize his debts.

The Chapter XI proceeding is designed to give creditors equal protection in seeking to get payment on their claims and to give Goodwin an opportunity to consolidate various legal actions in one proceeding.

Goodwin's case was assigned to the federal referee in bankruptcy, Judge Glenn J. Goldburn, who will announce the time for an initial meeting of creditors in court.

Son of Geico founder Leo Goodwin Sr., who died in 1971, the 61-year old Goodwin lists himself as a private investment banker. He became one of the country's most wealthy men on the basis of his ownership of Geico stock, much of which was pledged as collateral for business loans from such banks as Riggs National and National Bank of Washington; Citibank, Bankers Trust Co., and Marine Midland of New York, and many other financial institutions.

With the dramatic collapse of Geico stock in recent months, after the local firm posted a record $16 million loss for 1975 and decided on a broad retrenchment in its business, Goodwin's portfolio of Geico stock plummeted in market value.

As of Feb. 11, Goodwin owned 877,937 shares of Geico common stock — or about 5 per cent of the company's stock outstanding. Trading in the early 1970s at more than $60 a share, Geico shares owned by Goodwin were worth more than $50 million. Now trading in a range of slightly more than $4 a share, Goodwin's holdings are worth less than $4 million.

Reportedly more than 500,000 shares of Geico owned by Goodwin were pledged as collateral for loans in recent years to various business ventures, including real estate, a hotel, marina, lumber firm and boat company mainly in the Ft. Lauderdale area.

Informed sources said Goodwin submitted his resignation last week from the Geico board of directors, where he served as a member of the executive committee. Geico officials refused to discuss the status of Goodwin, a director since 1948.

Goodwin also has served as a director of Geico affiliates in life insurance, consumer finance and high-risk auto insurance and he has owned a substantial bloc of shares in each of these firms as well.

Despite Geico's precarious state, D.C. Insurance Superintendent Maximilian Wallach said that the company still has time in which to find the infusion of money with no immediate threat to the big insurer's solvency.

Among the creditors listed by Goodwin in his bankruptcy petition is the Internal Revenue Service. Although no exact debts are listed for each creditor, government sources said several federal tax actions have been filed against Goodwin and related estates.

A trial is set for the week on June 7 in Miami on an IRS claim that Goodwin and a former wife, Frances B. Goodwin, owe back taxes of $554,831 for 1966; $139,517 for 1967 and $57,364 for 1968, plus interest. Moreover, sources said a separate government action filed recently seeks nearly $1.5 million of additional alleged back taxes over a three-year period.

The Goodwin petition lists $20.94 million of personal property (including his Geico shares), $5.42 million of real property and $185,919 in cash among his assets. Of the $29.29 million in debts, Goodwin listed $17.37 million due 20 holders, which he said would be extinguished if securities held were liquidated at the market value before May. The remaining debts of nearly $12 million are due 25 holders.

Pan American Bank of Broward County, Florida, already has moved after winning a court judgment in Ft. Lauderdale, because Goodwin is four months overdue on a promissory note, a lawyer for the bank said. However, the bank claim, for about $150,000, has been blocked by the bankruptcy action.

Goodwin's petition said he owns 25 per cent or more of the stock in nine firms, including Combined Properties Corp. of Washington (recently renamed Comprop Inc.). He is chairman of the formerly public company, which bought up its shares and went private late in 1975.

Comprop and its successor developed Washington area shopping centers, many of which include Dart Drug branches. Dart Drug president Herbert Haft also is president of Comprop. The Goodwin petition revealed that a Richmond stockholder of the former Combined Properties has lodged a class action, claiming that public stockholders of the old company are due money. Haft said Comprop believes the suit is without merit.

The most recent large personal bankruptcy case was that of DuPont Co. heir Lammot du Pont Copeland Jr., of Wilmington, Del., whose initial court petition in 1970 listed assets of $25.7 million and debts of $59.1 million.

In addition to companies already named, Goodwin's petition listed the following as creditors owed money of unstated amounts:

American Bank, Hallandale, Fla.; American National Bank & Trust, Ft. Lauderdale; Bank of Virginia, Richmond; Barnett Bank, Ft. Lauderdale; Citizens Federal Savings & Loan, Miami; City National Bank & Trust, Columbus, Ohio; Dixie Lumber & Supply Inc.; the estate of Leo Goodwin Sr.; and the estate of Henry Milander, Hialeah, Fla.

Also, Executive Bank of Florida; First Federal of Broward, Coral Springs, Fla., First National Bank of Chicago; First National Bank of Hialeah; First National Bank of Hollywood, Fla.; First National Bank of Miami; Florida Coast Bank of Pompano Beach, Fla.; Florida National Properties, Coral Springs; First National Bank of San Antonio; Paul Herta, N. Miami; and Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Also, B.D. McMichael and Marjorie B. McMichael, Pompano Beach; Robert D. Meyer, Ft. Lauderdale; Midland Mutual Life Insurnace Co.; National Life Insurance Co., Montpelier, Vt.; Royal Bank of Canada; William C. and Betty L. Runnstrom, Ft. Lauderdale; William Skillings, Ft. Lauderdale; Southport American National Bank, Ft. Lauderdale; Valley National Bank, Monterey, Calif.; Mershon, Sawyer, Johnson, Dunwoody & Cole, Miami; and Madsen, Sapp and Barnes, Ft. Lauderdale.

Sinatra letter sold at auction

CHICAGO (AP) — A copyrighted letter in which Frank Sinatra called Chicago Daily News columnist Mike Royko a "pimp" has been sold to a Rockford, Ill., museum owner.

Mrs. Vie Carlson purchased the letter for $400, and proceeds from the sale of the letter will go the Salvation Army, Royko said Tuesday in his column.

Sinatra wrote the letter during a recent stay in Chicago after Royko had criticized the singer for using Chicago police officers as bodyguards during his visit.

Sales tax for school use urged

CANYON, Tex. (AP) — A legislative committee looking into the problems of public school financing has been told that sales taxes on non-essential items—not the property tax—should be used to pay for education.

The House Committee on Alternatives to Public School Financing held a public hearing at West Texas State University Monday.

Clarence Mason, a Muleshoe farmer, said taxes should first be levied on non essential items and activites rather than food and clothing.

Mason suggested taxes on non-commercial vehicles, travel trailers, recreational equipment such as tape decks, boats, hunting and skiing equipment, alcohol, tobacco or "anything you don't have to have."

Mrs. Carol Pack, wife of a Hutchinson County farmer, suggested taxing agricultural land on its productive value rather than market value.

She also suggested taxing motor vehicles or natural gas.

"The prices paid for land right now in our area are not realistic. It would wipe us out in agriculture to try to pay for land at that price while making a living in farming," she said.

James Fortenberry, a Parmer County resident, presented the committee with a resolution calling for financing school education through the retail sales tax. The resolution, presented on behalf of several Parmer County educators, said the sales tax would have the advantage of taxing all residents, not just property owners.

The tax, the resolution said, should then be returned to individual school districts on the basis of average daily attendance, the number of teachers and administrators assigned to those districts and other criteria used for measuring educational needs.

THIS DRAWING SHOWS how the proposed Palo Verde Nuclear Power Project, 45 miles west of Phoenix, Ariz., will look when finished. The Arizona Public Service Co. is acting as project manager for the plant, the first to be constructed in Arizona. Unit one of the plant is scheduled for production in 1982.

Historical Yates oil pool unitized

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The railroad commission unitized the prolific Yates Oil Field of Pecos County on Tuesday, an act that is expected to boost total production by 200 million barrels of crude.

Coupled with the unitization order

OIL & GAS

was authorization for injection of liquids to increase pressure and productivity and a doubling of the field's allowable to 100,000 barrels a day.

Marathon Oil Co. applied for the unitization, with voluntary agreement from 99.996 per cent of the working interest and 89.5 per cent of the royalty interest.

Unitization means all the oil in a field is withdrawn by a single producer, with the resulting income divided pro rata among the interests. It enables the use of pressure maintenance techniques that cause oil to move underground across lease lines.

Commission examiners found that anticipated additional production from the 26,400-acre field would more than offset the cost of the fluid injection operation.

The field was discovered in 1926. It has 588 oil wells, producing from depths ranging from 1,000 to 1,500 feet. More than 600 million barrels have been produced since discovery, and its production total is expected to hit 1.4 billion barrels with the additional production from injection.

Yates well opens pool

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., Midland, completed a Yates gas discovery in North Pecos, 15 miles west and slightly north of Girvin.

No. 1 Jacoby-State finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 1.1 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, through perforations at 665-900 feet. Completion was natural.

Drilled to 3,725 feet, it has 5½-inch casing set at total depth, and is plugged back to 2,700 feet.

Operating yards open

HOUSTON — WellTech, Inc., announced the establishment of its 10th and 11th operating yards which are located at Pearsall and Refugio.

Personnel and equipment are under the management of Joe Seay who has joined WellTech as district manager for the Pearsall operation, and Clyde Henning, Refugio district manager.

Offshore oil production

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State and federal leases off the Texas coast have produced a total of 15,166,733 barrels of crude oil and 1,236,325,005 thousand cubic feet (mcf) of natural gas this year, the Texas Railroad Commission said Tuesday.

March crude oil production offshore was 89,379 barrels, compared to 40,444 barrels for the same month in 1975.

Gas well production amounted to 17,134,448 mcf this March compared to 18,442,839 a year earlier.

Five Permian Basin areas gain locations for wildcat projects

No. 1-A Donna Alexander is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 56, block 35, T-6-N, CCSD&RGNG survey, eight miles north of Lamesa.

It is scheduled to 9,300 feet, and is ¾ mile south and slightly east of an 8,800-foot failure.

No. 1 Marian Perry Trust is 1,320 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 69, block 35, T-6-N, Georgetown RR survey, one mile west of Lamesa.

It is slated to 9,500 feet, and is ¾ mile west of a 12,227-foot failure.

No. 1 C. C. Rodgers is 660 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of labor 22, league 275, Glasscock CSL survey, 12 miles southwest of Lamesa.

It is slated to 9,750 feet, and is 1¼ mile west of a 12,110-foot failure.

FISHER TRY

Arledge Engineering, Inc. of Dallas has scheduled No. 1 E. J. Edwards, a 5,900-foot venture in Fisher, two miles east of Rotan.

Drillsite is 2,173 feet from north and 973 feet from east lines of section 115, block 2, H&TC survey, two miles south of the Ella (Ellenburger) field.

McCULLOCH WILDCATS

Bill Roddie of Lohn staked site for an 1,800-foot wildcat in McCulloch, five miles east of Lohn. It is No. 1-A B. H. Roddie.

Location is 1,470 feet from south and 180 feet from west lines of F. W. Roccius survey 633 (shows John Heinsohn survey 633 on some maps.) It is one location southeast of the Strawn opener in the Hall multipay gas field.

Explorado Oil Co. of Stamford has scheduled No. 1 Henry Land as a 1,200-foot try in McCulloch, two miles northeast of Lohn and in the vicinity of the depleted Big Chief (Pennsylvanian) oil field and depleted Lohn gas field.

Drillsite is 250 feet from north and 500 feet from west lines of J. W. Barnett survey 1056. Ground elevation is 1,574 feet.

RUNNELS EXPLORATION

Campana Petroleum Co. of Midland has scheduled No. 1 Pendergrass as a 4,400-foot prospector in Runnels, five miles northwest of Winters.

Location is 786 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of H. E. Baggs survey 94 (section 94, block 64, H&TC on some maps.) It is ⅜ mile northwest of the C.C.C. (Capps lime) gas field.

John W. Barbee of Abilene has scheduled No. 1-B Cora Byers, a 3,950-foot venture, 800 feet east of the depleted opener of the Ami (Jennings sand) field.

Location is 1,600 feet from north and 1,832 feet from east lines of Austin & Williams survey 262, 10 miles northeast of Ballinger, in Runnels.

SUTTON WORKOVER

William Pearlman of Houston will clean out to around 2,600 feet as a wildcat at the No. 1 George Brockman, former producer assigned to the Rocksprings (Cisco) gas field.

Originally drilled by Republic Natural Gas Co., it was plugged in 1952 at 5,301 feet in barren Ellenburger.

It was completed from Cisco gas in 1964 by Tucker Drilling Co., Inc. of San Angelo.

San Andres testers set in New Mexico

Three San Andres wildcats have been staked in Southeast New Mexico and field tests are planned in Chaves and Eddy counties.

Harvey E. Yates Co., Inc., Roswell, will drill No. 1 Marie Trust, a 3,650-foot San Andres test in Chaves, 10 miles southeast of Boaz.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 35-7s-30e, four miles northwest of the Siete (San Andres) field.

Fred Pool Drilling Co., San Angelo, staked site for No. 1 Plains-State, a location south offset to the three-well Chisum, East (San Andres) field of Chaves.

Location is 1,650 feet from north and east lines of section 16-11s-28e, 18 miles northeast of Dexter. Planned cable tool depth is 2,250 feet.

Dalport Oil Corp., Dallas, No. 4 Jones-Federal will be drilled as a location east offset to the four-well oil area of the Lucky Lake, South (Queen) field of Chaves.

The test is scheduled for a bottom depth of 1,900 feet, and spots 990 feet from south and 1,477 feet from west lines of section 22-15s-29e, 19 miles southeast of Hagerman. It also is ⅜ mile southeast of the lone gas well in the field.

LEA WILDCAT

Frank A. Schultz of Dallas filed application to drill No. 1-A Schultz-State, a 5,200-foot San Andres venture in Lea, eight miles south of Lovington.

Drillsite, 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 29-17s-36e, is ¾ mile east of the Double A, South (Abo) field and one location north of a 5,200-foot failure.

ROOSEVELT TRY

Read & Stevens, Inc., Roswell, No. 1 Davis is to be drilled as a 4,800-foot San Andres test in Roosevelt County, six miles northwest of Milnesand.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 25-7s-34e, two miles north of the Milnesamd (San Andres) field.

EDDY STEPOUT

David Fasken, Midland, No. 1 Howell-State Communitized is slated as a location south and east stepout to Morrow production in the Cemetary gas field of Eddy.

It has a projected depth of 9,900 feet, and spots 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 32-20s-25e, 10 miles southwest of Lake Wood.

Glasscock test slated

Amoco Production Co. has scheduled a southwest offset to the four-well Blalock Lake, South (Wolfcamp) oil field of Glasscock County, 14 miles northwest of Garden City.

Purchase announced

Southeast Roofing Products Co., a recently organized subsidiary of Elcor Chemical Corp. with headquarters in Midland, has signed a definitive agreement with The Logan-Long Co., Inc., to acquire the asphalt roofing products business and assets at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Logan-Long is a subsidiary of Bird & Son, Inc. The agreement is subject only to normal closing conditions and timely receipt of approval by the Federal Trade Commission, Roy E. Campbell, Elcor president, said.

Campbell also announced that Elcor has entered into a loan agreement with Republic National Bank of Dallas providing for a $10 million unsecured credit line.

Proceeds of the loan may be used for acquisitions, for retirement debt and for general corporate purposes, Campbell said.

Dividend set

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Occidental Petroleum Corp.'s board of directors has declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents per common share, payable July 15 to shareholders of record June 10.

Discovery potentials

H. B. Rhoads of Midland has completed No. 1 Viola as a Canyon lime oil discovery in Tom Green County, 10 miles south of San Angelo.

It pumped eight barrels of 39.2-gravity oil and 13 barrels of water on 24-hour potential test, with gas-oil ratio measuring 25-1.

Completion was effected through perforations at 4,596-4,620 feet, after treating the pay with 6,000 gallons of acid.

Drilled to 5,041 feet, operator set 4½-inch casing at 4,728 feet, and plugged back to 4,653 feet. Top of the Canyon lime was picked at 4,596 feet, under kelly bushing elevation of 2,032 feet.

Witnesses testify

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Some 35 witnesses testified at a federal hearing Tuesday on the proposed Louisiana offshore oil port — most of them in favor of the project.

Proponents saw longterm economic advantages to the state and nation over what they considered possible minimum environmental damage.

Testimony taken by the Coast Guard, the Army Corps of Eng neers, and the Transportation Department's Office of Deepwater Ports will be submitted to Transportation Secretary William Coleman for a decision on the license.

A group of oil companies known as Louisiana Offshore Oil Port (LOOP) plans to build the offshore terminal from which oil would be pumped ashore by an underwater pipeline and stored in underground salt dome cavities.

Estimates are that 1.4 million barrels of oil would be pumped daily through the LOOP facility.

Gov. Edwin Edwards told the hearing that the project was "environmentally acceptable and economically feasible."

But Hammond asked the Coast Guard to allow 30 more days for comments on the preliminary draft of an environmental impact statement, then allow additional comment on the final draft of that statement.

Hammond charged that oil companies intend "to transform the Baton Rouge-New Orleans corridor into the the petrochemical sewer of the nation."

He said they want to expand the Gulf Coast into "the soft underbelly of the South" because environmental objectives have made it impossible to plan such projects on the East Coast.

Rhodesian freight poses mystery

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer

VICTORIA FALLS, Rhodesia (AP) — Two or three times a day, vacationers lounging under the trees in this resort town see a strange sight on the railroad bridge over the Zambezi River.

As troops on both the Rhodesian and Zambian banks of the river look on, freight cars are pushed from one side to a white line in the center of the bridge. There a locomotive from the opposite side hooks on and hauls them off. By mutual agreement the locomotives never cross the white line, which marks the border between Rhodesia and Zambia, nations hostile to each other.

Officially, the border between white-governed Rhodesia and the black independent state of Zambia has been sealed for three years — initially, by Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia to protest black nationalist guerrilla incursions, and later by President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia to shear all ties with this breakaway British colony.

But freight cars crammed with a wide range of cargo continue to cross the bridge, 200 feet above the Zambezi River, and every few months both Zambian and Rhodesian transport officials meet to ensure that the traffic continues to flow freely.

"We call them the ghost trains of the Zambezi," a railman in this far northwestern town said. "That's because they're not supposed to exist."

However, examinations of the freight manifests on cars at the rail siding here indicate that all the cargo is hauled between the former Belgian colony of Zaire — Zambia's northern neighbor and South Africa which is south of Rhodesia.

Fuel and machinery for the multibillion-dollar mining industry in the Zairian province of Shaba — formerly Katanga — is freighted through Zambia along with foodstuffs.

According to the Rhodesian transport minister, Roger Hawkins, all of Zaire's copper output is channeled out on returning freight cars for shipment from South African ports. Zaire's dependence on a transport artery controlled by the white minority government of Rhodesia is a source of embarrassment to Zaire's government.

But Rhodesian officials in Selisbury point out that since the Angolan civil war, when Zaire supported the Western-aligned factions that were defeated by the Soviet-backed Popular Liberation Movement — MPLA — the Benguela Railroad to the Atlantic Ocean has been unable to cope with traffic traditionally fed out from the Shaba mines.

The Zambian government has repeatedly denied that cargo from South Africa is unloaded in Zambia en route to Zaire.

But former railmen from Zambia now working on the Rhodesian system have claimed that coal from the Rhodesian mine of Wankie is dumped in copper-mining towns before reaching Shaba.

South African goods are ferried regularly, however, across the Zambezi River 50 miles north of here from the independent, African state of Botswana to Zambia, having first been railed or road-freighted to Victoria Falls for forwarding.

Panama Canal Zonians fear good days soon over

By DAVID LAMB
The Los Angeles Times

BALBOA, Panama Canal Zone — Ove Hultin sat at the Elks Club bar one recent Saturday afternoon, nursing a glass of Scotch and case of the blues. The good days were slipping away. He knew that just as surely as he knew each subtle current on the Panama Canal.

"Ships have been my whole life for 33 years, the canal for 10," said Hultin, a $40,000 a year canal pilot. "I'd hate to see it all end. But I've got friends, a lot of them, who are getting ready to leave...People are just fed up, demoralized.

"Everyone here lives for putting the ships through. There is pride, tremendous satisfaction, in that. So now our own government's trying to give the canal away, saying it's not important any more. Well, bull. All they're managing to do is to make us second-class citizens."

Hultin, 50, turned to the U.S. canal policeman on his left for confirmation. Martin Olsen, 47, who was born and raised here, nodded. "Third-class citizens," he mumbled.

Indeed in Elks Lodge 1414, or anywhere else in this U.S. enclave straddling the Panama Canal, it is difficult to find a contented soul these days. There is uncertainty and bitterness and, to a lesser degree, fear. Even the word used to describe the Americans here — Zonians, which once was spoken with pride — has become a derogatory term in the view of Americans here.

Over the years, ever since the canal opened in 1914, the zone's quasi-colonial, although hardly luxurious, life-style has offered many pleasantries for the Americans. They in turn developed an aversion to change and a patriotism toward the canal. It was like a company town, a middle-class suburb that stretched across the waist of Panama and remained entirely in the U.S. jurisdiction.

They bought American foods in the company store (eggs 75 cents a dozen, sugar $1.19 for a 5-pound bag), had their own postage stamps and license plates, answered to a state-like government which operated its own police force, jail and courts. Their children went to U.S. schools, joined the ROTC at Balboa High School and played Little League baseball. This was, they thought, as much American soil as was Florida or Alabama.

But that life may soon be crumbling for the 4,000 civilian employes of Panama Canal Co. who live here — about 700 of whom are second or third generation Zonians (additionally about 10,000 U.S. servicemen, 23,000 U.S. civilian and military dependents and 4,000 Panamanians live in the Zone.)

Negotiations are under way aimed at gradually turning the canal over to Panama. The financially pressed canal company has eliminated 800 positions and wants a wage freeze of up to six years on some others. And there lingers the uneasiness that it would not take much more than a small incident to trigger violence far worse than the 1964 riots in which 24 persons, including four Americans, died.

"Please understand," said Dr. Richard Cheville, 44, "I'm not saying we are living in fear. But if you do live here, it's a little hard not to think about Omar (Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera, Panama's military dictator) and his kids coming in with firebombs. Most of the people killed in '64 died within 100 yards of this house.

"The idea of a leftist government doesn't bug me if it does good things for the Panamanian people and, although I suspect I'm in the minority on this, I think Panama should have a new treaty. To simply close off negotiations, to stop talking, like Ronald Reagan suggests, would be tragic and bloody. It would be Neanderthal. Even Teddy Roosevelt wouldn't have done that."

Chevelle's voice is among the more moderate ones here in the zone. Most of the Zonians are Democrats, or, more likely, apolitical. They applaud Reagan for raising the canal issue — they, too, are adamant against transferring the canal and their community to Panama, but their applause falls short of an endorsement, largely because many feel Reagan's policy here would lead to bloodshed. "I support Reagan to a point on the canal," said one Zonian in a typical comment, "then I think he gets a little confused."

Zonians also cringe at the image they feel the American press has painted of them: Rednecked, neo-colonialists, luxuriating in a country club atmosphere. Journalists, they complain, contrast their tidy community, now ablaze with hibiscus and lilacs, with the squalid slums on the zone's doorstep. But no one, they say, ever mentions that a few blocks away are elegant Panamanian mansions and neighborhoods of $100,000 condominiums — a world apart from their own substandard, often termite-ridden, rented homes.

"Newsmen who come down always seem to use the words 'manicured lawns' to describe our life," said Pat Fulton, the wife of an $18,000-a-year policeman. "Well, I assume people in New Jersey mow their lawns, too."

Independence born in Virginia

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

American nationhood was conceived in the spring of 1776 in Virginia, near the spot where American democracy had first been practiced almost four centuries earlier.

It began on a warm day in May of 1607 when the first settlers at Jamestown opened their sealed instructions and learned the names of the London Company's resident council in Virginia.

But the company had neglected to designate a chief executive. So, in the first democratic election on American soil, Capt. Edward Maria Wingfield was chosen president of the colony.

In 1619, a year before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, the first elected representative assembly in the future United States met in Jamestown.

It was not real democracy. The colonists were still subject to the parent company and later to the crown as a royal colony. But it was a beginning. And having once tasted of self-government, Virginians were not going to let it go.

By the 18th century, Gov. Alexander Spottswood was complaining that Virginians would submit to "no jurisdiction, civil or ecclesiastical, but what is established by law of their own making."

"Damn Virginia," said the Earl of Dunmore upon learning he had been posted there as governor. By the spring of 1776 Dunmore was a refugee on a British ship off the Virginia coast.

And it was another warm day in May when the House of Burgesses, oldest legislature in America and last instrument of royal government in Virginia, quietly expired.

"We met in Assembly yesterday," wrote Edmund Pendleton, "and determined not to adjourn, but let that body die — and went into Convention."

The Convention was Virginia's homegrown replacement for royal government. Already four had been held in defiance of governors who had dissolved the Burgesses to squelch their dissent.

Elections for the Fifth Virginia Convention had been held in April, with Dunmore's burning of Norfolk fresh in the minds of the voters. The timid patriot was lucky to retain his seat.

"Our freeholders are all mad," said Josiah Parker, "determined to have a new house altogether ... strange times indeed."

The people of this county almost unanimously cry aloud for Independence," wrote William Aylett from King William County.

As the counties elected their delegates, many bound them to serve the rising will of the people. Charles Pattesson and John Cabell of Buckingham County were instructed "to cause a total and final separation from Great Britian to take place as soon as possible."

From Augusta County came the demand for "making the Confederacy of the United Colonies the most perfect, independent and lasting, and of framing an equal, free and liberal government that may bear the test of all future ages."

"Your constituents," Cumberland County told John May and William Fleming, "instruct you positively to declare for Independency; that you solemnly abjure any Allegeance to his Britannick Majest, and bid him a good night forever."

Cumberland County also asked "that you promote in our convention an instruction to our Delegates, now sitting in Continental Congress, to do the same."

The convention met on May 6, 1776, the day the old House expired. The first order of business was to elect Pendleton, esteemed attorney and leader of Virginia conservatives, as its president in a contest with the radical leader Patrick Henry. If this thing had to be done, Virginia wanted it in steady hands.

"We are now met ...at a time truly critical," said Pendleton in acceptance, "when subjects of the most important and interesting nature require our serious attention ... Permit me to recommend calmness, unanimity and diligence, as the most likely means of bringing them to a happy and prosperous issue."

But Henry became the reluctant one as Virginia moved toward its great decision. He counseled caution, advised waiting until America had assurance of foreign allies, and said that by no means should Virginia go it alone.

Pendleton, moving slowly, became the leader for independence. In his own hand was written the compromise resolution which emerged on May 15, 1776, 200 years ago this week.

"Resolved unanimously," it began proudly, "that the delegates appointed to represent this colony in General Congress be instructed to propose to that respectable body to declare the United Colonies free and independent states, absolved from all allegiance to, or dependence upon, the crown or parliament of Great Britain ..."

North Carolina already had instructed her delegates to support any independence movement which might develop, but Virginia was the first to order her delegates to start one.

The Virginians also sent their support for "whatever measures may be thought proper and necessary by the Congress for forming foreign alliances, and a confederation of the colonies ... provided that the power of forming government for, and the regulations of the internal concerns of each colony, be left to the respective colonial legislatures."

The Convention further resolved that "a committee be appointed to prepare a Declaration of Rights, and such a plan of government as will be most likely to maintain peace and order in this colony, and secure substantial and equal liberty to the people."

There, reflecting the hopes and fears of the people of Virginia, was the blueprint for a nation, and Congress followed it in creating the United States of America.

First, independence, not for 13 colonies, but for a country. And the country should be a federal union, states acting in unison but preserving control over local affairs.

There should be a written constituion and provisions to secure the indivdual rights of the people.

Virginia followed through on her resolutions and before the month was out had drafted a constitution and elected Patrick Henry as her first governor of a free state.

She also adopted the Virginia Declaration of Rights, the model for the U.S. Bill of Right.

India, neighbor at odds

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India has patched up ties with old rivals China and Pakistan, but relations with Bangladesh, the nation it helped create, remain a frustration for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government.

In the past month, India and Bangladesh have had bitter exchanges over three border shooting incidents, and a growing feud over Ganges River water rights has all but ended Indian hopes of an early renewal of friendship with its overpopulated and undernourished neighbor to the east.

The souring of the India-Bangladesh friendship is particularly troublesome to New Delhi because it represents the only blemish on Mrs. Gandhi's effort to mend India's subcontinent fences before the nonaligned summit conference in Sri Lanka — formerly Ceylon — in August.

Some Western diplomats express a belief that Mrs. Gandhi sought the recent accords with China and Pakistan as part of a bid she will make in Sri Lanka to achieve a leadership position in the nonaligned world comparable to that held by her father, the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Such a bid would not be enhanced by a further deterioration of relations between India and the young nation the Indian army helped create with its intervention in the 1971 Pakistan civil war. Bangladesh once was East Pakistan.

The current rift, though dealing with long-standing geographical and political disputes, was brought on by last August's overthrow and assassination of the Bangladesh president, Sheik Mujibur Rahman, and several associates considered pro-Indian, diplomats say.

Mujib, as the sheik was affectionately known, was committed to secularism and friendly relations with India, and his assassination touched off fears in India of anti-Hindu violence in Bangladesh and a potential refugee problem like the one that prompted Indian intervention in 1971.

"The assassinatin really hit the Indians, and it hit Mrs. Gandhi personally," one Western diplomat said. "The Bangladesh war cost the Indians a lot and they had an interest in Mujib."

India expressed its shock and dismay at the assassination, but in the three months of upheaval that followed India persistently maintained it would not interfere in Bangladesh's internal affairs.

Christie promises better coverage

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Insurance Board plans to see that mobile home owners along the Gulf Coast can buy windstorm insurance through the Texas hurricane pool, chairman Joe Christie said Tuesday.

Christie said the board would act immediately to draft a proposed amendment to the pool's plan of operation that would include mobile homes.

"The biggest single factor is to make these mobile homes immovable, and we are looking very closely at the mobile home tie-down requirements adopted by the Texas Department of Labor and Standards," Christie said.

He said that while he did not know what kind of rates the pool would propose for mobile homes, he expected them to be a "better bargain compared to those that are available in the open market."

3 escapees still free

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — A search for three of nine prisoners who escaped from the Lamar County jail here Tuesday spread into surrounding counties of Northeast Texas and Southeast Oklahoma today.

Real estate agent testifies in lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — A plaintiff in a civil lawsuit against Texas Supreme Court nominee Donald B. Yarbrough says he and another man gave Yarbrough funds to purchase stock in one bank and that Yarbrough used the money to purchase control of a different bank.

Douglas W. Ford, a Houston real estate man, testified he gave Yarbrough $10,000 in gold coins as collateral for a loan to purchase shares in the Fairfield State Bank in September 1974, while fellow plaintiff, Rex L. Cooper, wrote Yarbrough a $100,000 check for shares of stock.

The two men contend in their lawsuit that Yarbrough used their money to purchase control of a different bank, the Commercial Bank of Victoria, without their knowledge until the purchase was finalized.

Ford testified that Yarbrough told him and Cooper, also a Houston businessman, they could apply their down payments for the Fairfield bank toward the purchase of shares in the Victoria bank at $100 per shares.

The two men contend in their lawsuit that Yarbrough bought 21,485 shares at $50 a share "for his own benefit" then asked Cord and Cooper for more money.

Cooper signed a promissory note for $300,000 and Ford one for $25,000, Ford testified. He said neither he nor Cooper ever got actual stock certificates in the bank or were granted any voting rights as stock holders, although Yarbrough gave them trust receipts.

Ford testified that Cooper eventually got his $300,000 note from Yarbrough but never recovered his initial $100,000 cash investment. Yarbrough eventually executed an "early foreclosure on Ford's $25,000 note and never returned $17,500 of Ford's money, Ford testified.

Yarbrough, a Houston attorney, won the May 1 Democratic primary against a veteran appeals judge and currently is unopposed in the November general election. He has no judicial experience.

He is a defendant in at least 15 civil lawsuits, many of them alleging failure to pay promissory notes on time and contending Yarbrough participated in fradulent acts in connection with banking activities.

Downtown Lions Club installs new officers

Marion B. Snider of Dallas, noted musician and a past district governor of Lions International, furnished the entertainment, was the principal speaker and installed officers of the Midland Downtown Lions Club for 1976-77 at its annual officer installation banquet held Tuesday night at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Snider also is the official convention pianist of Lions International and holds the highest award presented by the international association, "The Anbassador of Good Will."

In a brief, inspirational address, Snider cited the opportunities for service and the resulting benefits to mankind, which come through active involvement in Lionism.

Mrs. Horace Robb is the retiring president.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Concorde may be twice as fast as conventional jet planes, but the sleek new supersonic craft apparently is also more than 1½ times louder on takeoffs.

Two British-French Concordes made a thunderous roar as they lifted off from Dulles International Airport on Tuesday on their first scheduled departures from the United States to Europe.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said a portable noise meter showed Air France's Concorde was 160 per cent louder than the next noisiest jet, a Boeing 707, that departed from the same runway.

The federal officials failed to get an immediate reading on British Airway's Concorde, which left 50 minutes later but used a different runway. The British pilot, Norman Todd, radioed that he chose an adjacent runway that was "preferable for community noise reasons."

Noise has been the major objection raised by Concorde's critics. The FAA will be monitoring noise levels for all Concorde flights during the 16-month trial period that Transportation Secretary William F. Coleman has ruled they can land here.

Noise is less of a problem on landings, and the two Concordes were not noticeably louder than other jets when they landed at Dulles Monday while several thousand spectators cheered.

OC board delays action on budget

Dr. Philip Speegle, president, said the reason for the delay was action taken Monday by Odessa school trustees raising the property assessment ratio from 55 to 75 per cent. The college shares a tax office with the school sysem, and its assesement rate will rise automatically to the 75 per cent level.

Speegle said taxes will not go up to finance the new budget. The rate will be lowered so that revenue remains the same after the increase in the assessnent ratio.

Trustees are expected to meet in a special session to review the proposed budget within the next few days.

Plane crash suit dismissed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The State Supreme Court ruled today that Bill Rogers of Odessa was flying when he shouldn't have been and that resulted in the crash that killed him and two passengers.

Rogers was killed Dec. 9, 1972, when his single-engine Piper aircraft crashed near Quemado on a flight from Odessa to Eagle Pass. His two companions, Burlon E. Glover and Ray Eugene Rives, were also killed.

Norma Jean Glover brought suit against Rogers' estate and subsequently the National Insurance Underwriters for damages and was upheld by a trial court, but the El Paso Court of Civil Appeals reversed the decision.

The appelate court ruled that Rogers was not licensed to fly in bad weather and took off from Odessa knowing that flying conditions along the Rio Grande border were bad and that instrument flying techniques would be needed.

High court abates appeal

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals today abated the appeal of Alford Gray, who was convicted in Midland County of possession of heroin and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

The order for a new appeal was granted because of the manner in which the trial court handled the appointment of an attorney to represent Gray.

The appellate court stated that the trial court should again appoint counsel for Gray so that an appeal, if desired, pay be perfected.

Ector board grants raise

ODESSA — Ector County school employees will receive an eight per cent pay increase approved Monday night by school trustees. The increase was about half of the 15 to 17 per cent raise requested by the Odessa Classroom Teachers Association.

Under the new pay scale, salaries for teachers with a bachelor's degree will range from $9,000 yearly on a 10-month contract for teachers with no experience to $13,860 for teachers with 16 or more years experience.

Teachers with a master's degree and no experience will receive $9,600 annually. The maximum salary for a teacher with a master's degree is $15,740 with 18 or more years experience.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals, addressed to the Mayor and City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, for the adjustments and for the furnishing and installation of water and sanitary sewer lines with all necessary appurtenances will be received at the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas until 2:30 p.m. on the 28th day of May, 1976, and publicly opened and read aloud at 3:00 p.m. on the same day.

Any bid received after closing time as stated will be returned unopened.

Bid envelopes shall be plainly marked, "Proposal for Projects W-183 and S-121."

Complete copies of plans, specifications and contract documents may be examined and or obtained at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall, Midland, Texas.

A bid or proposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, thereby gauranteeing the good faith of the bidder and that the bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is hereby expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws its bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid or, if successful in securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance bond and payment bond. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas and acceptable to the City of Midland.

The City of Midland, Texas, reserves the right to accept or reject any or all proposals or bids, to waive technicalities, to make any investigation deemed necessary concerning the bidder's ability to perform the work covered by the plans and specifications, to award this bid by items, and to accept what in the opinion of the Mayor and City Council is the most advantageous bid.

Droege's hit in 11th gives Cubs 5-4 victory

SHREVEPORT, La.— Outfielder Bill Droege, who wrecked the Sports with a grand slam Monday, did it again Tuesday, delivering an 11th inning single that gave the Midland Cubs a 5-4 Texas League victory over Shreveport.

Earlier in the game, Droege, who went 4-for-6, hit a home run.

Jay Temple, who has been as much of a pain in the neck to Shreveport as Droege, got the win in relief of Wayne Doland, coming on in the ninth inning. Temple, now 3-0, had saves in Midland's other two victories here.

The Cubs and Sports were scheduled to conclude their series tonight with lefty Steve Hamrick, 5-3, going for Midland against Silvio Martinez, 3-1, but it was raining this morning and the forecast was for a 50 per cent chance of rain tonight.

Midland scored twice in the fourth as Tyrone and Droege singled and Bill Huisman's hit up the middle loaded the bases. Ed Putman then grounded into a first to home to first double play, but after Mike Gordon walked, shortstop Bob Hrapmann singled for two runs. Hrapmann has only two hits in the series, but they have been good for four rbi.

Midland added another in the fifth on Droege's fourth homer, a two out shot to left. Shreveport, held hitless for four innings, got to Doland for three runs, all after two were out.

Rafael Cariel singled, moved to second on a passed ball and then Steve Blomberg, who has struck out seven of nine times in the series, singled up the middle for a run.

BLOMBERG MOVED to third on Paul Djakonow's double while Ron Hargis' infield single brought the run home and Djakonow scored when Mike Umfleet's throw to first was wild.

Midland made it 4-3 in the sixth as Ed Putman singled, Gordon walked and Hrapmann's sacrifice moved the runners into scoring position. Jose Ortiz then singled to score Putman.

Shreveport tied it in the eighth and forced the game into extra innings when Luke Wrenn hit his third homer of the season with one out.

Manager Denny Sommers lifted Doland with one out in the ninth to bring in his sinker ball stopper Temple and the Rice University graduate got the job done once again.

The winning run came off Randy Hopkins, 2-2, who was unable to get anyone out in Midland's 10-run inning Tuesday. This time, however, an error did him in.

Westphal carries NBA key

BOSTON (AP) — Plunging into the Valley of the Suns has helped Paul Westphal reach his peak in professional basketball.

But one of the few downfalls he has encountered during his first season with the Phoenix Suns was last Sunday's opening game of the National Basketball Association's nationally televised best-of-seven championship series against the Boston Celtics. In that game, a 98-87 loss to his former teammates, Westphal, the Suns' leading scorer, hit only four of 17 field goal attempts and scored eight points.

"THEY'LL BE looking to go to Westy," said Heinsohn. "He's a big part of their offense. He could break out. He's a good shooter, and he could come back and hit 10 of 17."

Heinsohn's decision to put Jo Jo White on Westphal was credited with adversely affecting the play of the Suns' backcourtman. During the regular season, Westphal had been guarded by Charlie Scott, the player he had been traded for a year ago.

Heinsohn explained that he made the change because he wanted Scott guarding the Phoenix player bringing the ball upcourt, in this case, rookie Ricky Sobers. That job had been Westphal's earlier in the season, but when Dick Van Arsdale suffered a broken bone in his left arm, Sobers took his place in the lineup and has been there ever since.

BATTLE SCENE

Bat days bad for hangovers

BY TED BATTLES

Sports in spurts and quick now, can you name the player who replaced Lou Gehrig at first base for the New York Yankees? Give away hint... he played third base for the 1937 Newark Bears, who won the International League pennant by 25 1-2 games.

After pitching before an overflow Arlington Stadium crowd of 40,000 last week, Nelson Briles was asked if the bat day crowd noise bothered him. "Not if you don't have a hangover."

Marv Fleming, a 12-year National Football League who earned $500,000 in salaries and another $130,000 in five Super Bowls, lives in an $800 a month apartment and estimates he's worth "half a million", but he still draws an unemployment check as an out of work actor. "Why not? A lot of my friends are into it. Other actors do it and a lot of pro football players do it, too."

AMARILLO WRITER Putt Powell points out that when Michigan-Ohio State played before 105,543 fans last season, the game drew more than TCU attracted for its five home games last year.

That's one reason Penn state Coach Joe Paterno would like to switch the Lions' 1977 game with the Horned Frogs to the Nittany hills in Pennsylvania. Coach Jim Shofner would like to keep the game for Fort Worth, but whether he can afford to or not may depend on how the Frogs fare this fall....

Apparently when the Texas League East Division clubs play one another the National League farmhands are doing so without the Designated Hitter. In fact, when Arkansas, a St. Louis farm club, played El Paso recently, the Travelers let the pitchers bat.

"From a manager's standpoint, your head is more in the game without the DH," says Arkansas manager Jack Krol. "With the DH you don't have to think as much about the little things in the game, particularly how you will use your relief pitchers to fit pinch hitting situations. I'll be sacrificing something at the plate every time my pitcher comes up with a runner on base, but we're letting our pitchers bat for themselves because the parent club feels that the pitchers will need to hit sooner or later."....

DON HASKINS grabbed 6-8, 230-pound Skippy Black from McClennan Community College in Waco for the UTEP basketball team and also landed Jim Bowden, 6-3 guard from El Paso's Eastwood's state AAAA champions....

St. Louis Cardinals outfielder Willie Crawford has handed out cards to teammates, "In case of riot, the holder of this card has been made an honorary Negro."....Penn State football Coach Joe Paterno is glad he doesn't have to coach basketball. "Basketball is insane. A game can get away from you so quickly. If John Wooden had been a football coach, he would have won 150 games in a row."....

Former Midland Cubs business manager Bill Johnson is general manager for Corpus Christi in the new six-team Class A Gulf Coast League, a league composed of free agent players. It was the brainstorm of former Texas League president Bobby Bragan, who also pioneered the Designated Hitter rule now used by practically every minor league....

ALONZO CAMPBELL, 6-10 Amarillo College postman, was pursued by UCLA and Ohio State, but signed with Oregon State. He's the Badger nabbed this spring. Darrell Hollimon is bound for Memphis State and Mark Creighton for California at Berkeley....

On receiving his trophy as NBA Rookie of the Year, Phoenix center Alvan Adams "Coach John McLeod, my teammates and most of all, David Thompson for signing with the ABA."....

Jets shove Aeros to perilous edge

WINNIPEG (AP) — Center Ulf Nilsson has played some super hockey games for the Winnipeg Jets but perhaps none as impressive or as important as Tuesday night.

The Swedish-born Nilsson scored three goals, one in each period, to spark Winnipeg to a key 6-3 triumph over the Houston Aeros and a commanding 3-0 lead in the World Hockey Association championship.

Teammates kidded Nilsson in the dressing room, saying he played so well to impress Hans Lindberg, coach of Sweden's national team who was on hand for the game.

"Yes, Hans was here today," Nilsson said. "We had dinner together and talked about the tournament. But he's an old friend of mine, we played together for a long time and he knows how I play."

Nilsson is one of seven Swedish players on the Jets expected to play for Sweden in next fall's Canada Cup international tournament.

"It was a super performance," Winnipeg Coach Bobby Kromm said of his forward. "You couldn't ask a player to do anything more than he did tonight.

"He played super hockey, offense and defense, killed penalties, scored goals and hit people. What else is there to do?"

Nilsson victimized Gordie Howe on his first two goals and scored the vital third-period goal to give Winnipeg a four-goal lead that enabled them to coast home.

Anders Hedberg, Veli Ketola and Peter Sullivan scored the other Winnipeg goals with Don Larway getting two and Mark Howe one for Houston. Winnipeg held period leads of 4-1 and 5-2 and outshot Houston 25-18 before a capacity crowd of 10,384.

Nilsson not only scored, but he also played one of his strongest defensive games as a Jet and handed out some crushing body checks not expected of him. And on more than one occasion he glared steadily into the eyes of Aeros' players, prepared to drop the gloves if necessary.

"That's not usually my game but it's all part of the game, the hard checks," the soft-spoken playmaker said of a tremendous body check he levelled on Houston captain Ted Taylor with in the first period.

NCAA wonders if 'normal progress' hurts athlete

By PAUL ATTNER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The National Collegiate Athletic Association was asked by a member school a few years ago to investigate the academic record of a football player at an Ivy League college. The questioning school suspected the player was not making normal progress toward a degree.

The player, a senior and team captain, had completed the equivalent of only 1 1-2 years of academic work. He was 80 units short of graduation. The NCAA asked for an explanation.

"We were told by the school that, in their opinion, he was making normal progress toward a degree," said William Hunt, an executive assistant in the NCAA's enforcement office. "They said they didn't put any time limit on such things, that he was trying. It was unbelievable."

The Ivy League school was not violating NCAA rules governing academics. NCAA legislation stipulates only that a student-athlete must make "normal progress" toward a degree, and leaves the definition of "normal progress" up to the individual school.

THE 115-PAGE NCAA rules manual, which devotes dozens of sections to recruiting, has only a handful of regulations pertaining to an athlete's academic life after he enters college.

"What people don't realize," said Hunt, "is that member schools have voted to keep the NCAA out of this area. Institutional autonomy is king."

As a result, coaches and academic experts interviewed by The Washington Post agreed it is easy to keep a student academically eligible until his athletic eligibility has expired.

Those interviewed also agreed that many of the nation's top college athletes probably are being, as Notre Dame basketball coach Digger Phelps put it, "exploited in just that manner," despite a trend toward better academic guidance for college athletes.

"What is interesting about all this," said one NCAA staff member, "is that the big-name academic schools like the Ivy League and Big 10 are the ones responsible for giving these schools so much leeway. They've pushed for academic autonomy and voted out more restrictive rules."

A recent study by the American College Testing Program concluded that college lettermen were graduating at the same or slightly higher rate than nonathletes. The ACT study covered all college sports.

But a study of the National Football League players' register revealed different statistics. Fewer than half the players listed held degrees. Of the 135 former Big Eight players listed in the NFL, 30 had degrees. Eighteen of 41 Southern California players had degrees, 10 of 28 Ohio State players had degrees and two of 13 University of Texas players had degrees.

PENN STATE football coach Joe Paterno, a long-time critic of the type of education most athletes get, said things are a lot better than they were 10 years ago.

"For a while it was horrible," said Paterno. "We had schools with 11 per cent graduation rate for athletes. Now I really believe that a lot of coaches are deeply interested in getting their kids a good education. That was the case before."

The answers to how the Ivy League football player was able to continue playing despite his slow progress toward a degree, or to how the late Chris Patton was able to re-enroll and play basketball at Maryland after flunking out the previous semester, became clear only after a review of the relationship between NCAA rules and the organization's member schools.

The NCAA is divided into three divisions. Under rules governing divisions II and III, comprising all but the major athletic powers, athletes are to be admitted under the same requirements as nonathletes. Rules governing Division I stipulate that an incoming freshman athlete must have earned a 2.0 grade point average in high school in order to play, practice and receive financial aid.

BEYOND THAT, NCAA rules for all three divisions say that to remain eligible, an athlete must make normal progress toward a degree, as defined by each school in its catalog. There are no NCAA rules on the number of credits per semester an athlete must carry or the grade point average he must maintain.

"What this amounts to," said Hunt, "is the member schools have decided the athlete and the nonathlete at each school should have the same academic guidelines. If those guidelines are good you've got a good rule. If the guidelines are bad, you've got a bad rule. But the jock and the regular student are not separated."

Until 1973, the NCAA used the "1.6 rule," under which an incoming freshman athlete had to have a minimum predicted college grade point average of 1.6. The GPA was determined by his college board scores, high school class ranking and high school grade point average. Other rules required college athletes to complete a certain number of credits toward graduation every year.

But member schools voted out the 1.6 rule at the annual convention in 1973 for two reasons. It infringed on institutional autonomy and it was felt that the inclusion of college board scores discriminated against minority athletes.

THE NEW 2.0 rule, which was substituted, hasn't worked out as well as college athletic officials had hoped.

"Someone needs to really do a good study of the affect the 2.0 has had on the black athlete," said Notre Dame's Phelps. "I personally think it is depriving these kids of the kind of high school education they were getting under the 1.6.

"Under the 1.6, you just had to have at least some college prep courses to get ready for the college boards. Now it's important to make sure you maintain a 2.0. So you have kids taking gut courses and ignoring the ones that will help them later in college. We've weakened the academic backgrounds of these kids.

"The marginal student we could have helped before the 2.0 went into effect is being hurt now. High schools are saying hey, this kid needs a 2.0 so here, he's got a 2.0."

King figures chances slim

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Grant King figures his chances of winning Sunday's Indianapolis 500 are 11-1, but his odds are also three times greater of blowing an engine or crashing.

King, whose three-car team is the largest in the race, said: "Having three cars in the field is a lot harder on me, but it's also very rewarding."

Even if all three of his machines—two 1976 Dragons and a 1974 Kingfish—fail to complete even one lap, the Clermont, Ind., car builder and mechanic figures the least he can collect in prize money is $45,000, since even last place in the 33-car field pays a minimum of $14,000.

"MY CHANCES of winning are something like 11-1, but we also have three times the chance of crashing a car or three times the chance of blowing engines.

"It's three times the problems or more. I've spent the last couple of days just working on fueling systems—new hoses, couplings, valves, nozzles, everything.

"Each one of the cars has a lot of stuff that needs to be gone through—engines, radios and so forth.

As for pit crewmen, "I have to have 33 people just to service the three race cars, you know, three scorers, three signalmen on the wall, three holding the fuel vent valve....it just goes on an on."

Still, King feels rewarded for all the years he came here with two cars and only got one in the show.

"I've suffered quite a few setbacks here, and I've missed the race enough to know how it feels," he said. "I feel like we've really accomplished something."

HE ADDED wryly, "The cash don't hurt either."

There was a time when it looked like none of King's cars would make the race this year.

Bob Harkey put the Kingfish in on the third day of qualifying at 181.141 m.p.h. and Sheldon Kinser got the other Dragon in later the same day at 181.114 m.p.h., which turned out being the slowest speed in the field.

Chaparrals advance in tennis

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz.—Midland College got off to a fast start here Tuesday in the Men's National Junior College Tennis Tournament as all members of the Chaparrals remained alive in both singles and doubles play.

After the first day action, Midland is in a four-way tie for first place with eight points. The total counts singles play only since first round action in the doubles is not completed.

Two rounds of singles action was completed Tuesday with Denis McKeown, Steve Hall, Derek Edmonds and Scott Mueller all advancing for Midland College. All won their matches in straight sets.

Only one round was played in the doubles with Mueller and Hall teaming for a victory. McKeown and Edmonds drew a bye.

McKeown is the No. 7 seed in the singles while Edmomds is seeded 24th. Hall and Mueller are not seeded.

The tournament drew a large field with 256 players in the singles draw and 128 doubles teams.

Two rounds of singles and doubles are scheduled for today.

Big payoffs prompt NCAA examination

By JOE STEIN
Copley News Service

The NCAA Basketball Tournament Committee, normally a rubber-stamp panel, may have a major move in store when it meets in June. The six-member group is under pressure to alter the method of aligning teams for the tournament which decides the NCAA champion.

This could mean the loss of automatic tournament berths for conferences as the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Big Sky, Southern and Ohio Valley.

A push also is on to seed teams. That action would avoid what happened this year when there were too many good teams lumped into the Mideast Regional.

INDIANA, WHICH made it all the way, had to play both Marquette and Alabama. Dangerous North Carolina also was in the regional.

On the other hand, Rutgers made it to the final four, thanks to an easy path strewn with the likes of Hofstra, Connecticut and VMI.

Wayne Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten, was quoted as saying, "I wouldn't be surprised if it (seeding) did pass."

Added Temple athletic director Ernie Casale, "I think you might see more shifting of at-large teams. We have had a policy that we keep the best at-large team in its own region but that might not hold up anymore."

One of the reasons the NCAA basketball tournament is coming under unprecedented scrutiny is that the rewards for playing in it have ballooned over the years.

For example, UCLA's booty for beating Ohio State in the Rose Bowl was in the vicinity of $165,000.

Each of the four teams advancing to the NCAA basketball finals earned approximately $140,000. And there were some hefty payments to the schools that competed in the tourney but didn't make it all the way to Philadelphia's Spectrum.

Crane rips Fabens, 9-6

CRANE—The Crane Golden Cranes scored five runs in the sixth inning to take a come-from-behind 9-6 bi-district baseball victory over Fabens here Tuesday.

Fabens took a 6-4 lead in the third inning with a six run barrage off of starter Mike Roseberry.

The Cranes roared back, however, in the sixth as Dale Mitchell and Wendell Black had a double and triple respectively to pull the game out for reliefer Mark Hatfield.

The series will resume Thursday at 1 p.m. in Fabens. The third game, if needed, will follow.

Lee hurdler signed by OC

ODESSA—Odessa College track coach James Segrist announced today that Midland Lee track star Otis Butler has signed a scholarship agreement with the Wranglers.

Butler is the District 5-4A 440 yard dash champion. He was second in the regionals this year and placed fifth in the state. His best time in his career at Lee was a 48.6 seconds in the 440.

Butler won the regional title in the 440 in his junior year.

Arizona inches closer to College World Series

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The University of Arizona baseball team was a step closer today to the College World Series after sewing up second place in the Western Athletic Conference.

And the Wildcats owe their success to freshman Dave Crutcher, who hurled a four-hitter Tuesday to shutout Brigham Young 4-0. It gave the Wildcats two victories in a best-of-three runnerup playoff series.

From here it's on to Edinburg, Tex., for the NCAA Midwest Regional beginning Friday. In the first game Missouri of the Big 8 Conference will play Texas A&M of the Southwest Conference with Arizona colliding with Pan American in the second game.

Crutcher held BYU to four singles while striking out five and walking two to bring his record to 6-1.

"I think we've got a better shot than some of those other teams because we've been in tough competition the last two weeks and they've been sitting around," observed center fielder Don Zimmerman. Zimmerman's single in the 11th inning of Monday's game drove in the winning run for Arizona.

Even Mets' Tom Terrific can't cool off Phillies

By The Associated Press

One of the hottest teams in baseball, the Phillies have beaten Seaver two times in the last week, including Tuesday night's 8-4 decision over the New York Mets.

The Phillies' victory was their 24th in 30 games and boosted their lead to 5½ games in the National League East over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Seaver, a three-time Cy Young winner, continued to be treated with little respect by Tommy Hutton. He had three hits Tuesday night to boost his lifetime mark against Seaver to .424. Hutton has 14 career hits in 33 appearances and 11 RBI against the right-hander.

"He sees me very well," Seaver admitted. "Even pitches that other hitters swing at, he takes because he knows it's a ball. Against me he's got an eye like Babe Ruth."

Hutton shared the offensive load with Jay Johnstone, who slammed four hits, including a home run, drove in two runs and scored three. The Phillies rallied from a 3-0 first-inning deficit to help unbeaten Jim Lonborg earn his seventh victory. The Phillies raked Seaver for seven runs on 14 hits before he left for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Lonborg left after seven innings for a pinch hitter after giving up eight hits, one of them Dave Kingman's major league-leading 16th home run. Although the Phillies had 10 hits and four runs through the first four innings, the Mets' bullpen never stirred and the Phillies ripped Seaver for three runs on three more hits in the fifth.

Asked if he thought about relieving Seaver early, New York Manager Joe Frazier replied, "Would you suggest putting one of those other guys in? He's the ace of the staff. I talked with him in between innings. He said, 'Heck, I'll stay in.' What can you tell him? Bear down? He knows what's wrong more than I do."

Padres 5, Dodgers 2

Doug Rader drove in four runs with a double and a three run homer to spark San Diego left-hander Randy Jones past Los Angeles for his ninth victory. The decision was the fourth straight this season by the Padres over the National League West-leading Dodgers. Jones, the winningest pitcher in baseball, is now 9-2 with a 2.24 ERA.

Expos 6, Pirates 3

Larry Parrish hit a two-run double in a four-run 11th inning to give Montreal its victory over Pittsburgh. With the game tied 2-2 through 10 innings, the Expos scored all their go-ahead runs off Pirate relief pitcher Bob Moose, unscored upon in all 13 of his prior relief appearances this season.

Cardinals 5, Cubs 2

Willie Crawford drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double and set up another run with a single to power St. Louis past Chicago.

Giants 7, Astros 6

Willie Montanez's fourth hit of the game, a two-run homer in the eighth inning, lifted San Francisco over Houston. Bobby Murcer cracked his third career grand slam in a five-run, fifth inning rally that erased a 3-0 Houston lead and put the Giants ahead 5-3.

Rain stops San Angelo

DUNCANVILLE — The San Angelo vs. Duncanville AAAA regional baseball playoff game, rained out Tuesday, has been rescheduled for 2 p.m. today.

Rico posts top mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Hot-hitting Rico Carty of the Cleveland Indians remains the American League's leading designated hitter, according to figures released Tuesday.

Carty was batting .373 through Monday's games, and held a wide lead over Hal McRae of Kansas City at .292, and Detroit's Willie Horton, who is batting .291.

HOUSTON (AP) — Marty Froelick, one of the state's top schoolboy distance runners, has signed a national track letter of intent with Rice University.

Griffin suffers injury to neck

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Two-time Heismann Trophy winner Archie Griffin, who recently signed with the Cincinnati Bengals, was treated for a minor neck injury Tuesday following an auto accident, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Griffin suffered a "slight neck sprain" in an accident on Ohio 20 here and was released after treatment.

Champion advances

FORT SMITH (AP) — Defending champion Beth Barry of Mobile, Ala., defeated Ann Bott of Fort Smith 5 and 4 in 61st Women's Southern Golf Championship.

The medalist, Lee Burke, 19, of Shreveport, La., defeated Peggy Brass of Orlando, Fla., 1-up in 21 holes.

MC golf gals head for Temple

Midland College's girls golf team is expected to make a strong bid for the National Junior College Athletic Association title at Temple today and Thursday.

The tournament was cancelled last week, but the national office of the NCJAA decided on second thought that the championship should be held as planned.

Temple Junior College is the host for the 36 holes of medal play with the total score of the four lowest players counting toward the team title.

MC Coach J.D. Monasco indicated that his squad of Linda Ballard, Nina Colter, March Davis and Ann Wheeler will be a top contender. Miss Wheeler, a sophomore, last year finished fifth in the women's state four year college tourney and qualified for the four year national championship event.

Travers outduels Doc Ellis

By The Associated Press

"I'm paid to win, not just to pitch well," the New York Yankees right-hander said. "Tonight, the other guy was better."

The "other guy" was Milwaukee left-hander Bill Travers. He limited the Yanks to four hits, struck out seven and walked two as the Brewers nipped New York 1-0.

"From what I've seen of the left-handers in this league, there's (California's Frank) Tanana and Travers and pick anyone you want for the third spot," said Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas after Travers hurled his first major league shutout.

"It was my best-pitched game ever," Travers said. "It's taken me six years to get everything together."

In other American League games Tuesday night, Boston blanked Detroit 2-0, Cleveland nipped Baltimore 3-1, Oakland stopped Minnesota 6-1 and the Chicago White Sox downed California 7-1.

"I felt good warming up in the bullpen, and usually that scares me. But once I got through the first three innings I knew I had it together," Travers said. "I went to the water cooler in the seventh inning and I said to (shortstop) Robin Yount, 'It's all over; they're not gonna beat me.'"

The game's only run came in the fourth when Darrell Porter led off with a double, took third on Bob Hansen's grounder and scored on George Scott's sacrifice fly.

Red Sox 2, Tigers 0

Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer and Luis Tiant's second shutout of the season gave the surging Boston Red Sox their win over Detroit and their 11th victory in their last 14 games. Yastrzemski's roundtripper in the fourth scored Carlton Fisk, who had opened the inning with a walk.

Salute to graduates

The happiest young men and young women in Midland today ... why, of course, they are the almost 1,100 graduating seniors of the Tall City's two high schools — Midland and Robert E. Lee.

They certainly have every right to be happy, as well as of being exceptionally proud of themselves, their respective high schools and their community.

They have completed a most important phase of their formal education and now are ready to step out into a new world, so to speak, in which they will continue their educational process, formally or otherwise.

Midland graduates are exceptionally well prepared through training and guidance to take this step, having completed their studies in one of the finest and most thorough public school systems anywhere.

The graduates, who will receive their diplomas in separate ceremonies scheduled Thursday night, were offered some sound advice for the future Sunday night in baccalaureate services held in their respective school auditoriums.

The Rev. Ronald Marlow of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, spoke on the subject "Graduation and the Real Challenge of Life" at Midland High.

"Power of Purpose" was the topic of the address given by the Rev. Kenneth James of Crestview Baptist Church at Lee High.

The young men and the young women involved would do well to heed the words of wisdom, as well as those they will hear at commencement exercises. The decisions they make now can be significant ones in their lives from here on out.

These same things hold true for the graduating seniors at Greenwood High School in northeast Midland County. They, too, will receive their diplomas Thursday night in the Greenwood High Gymnasium.

Just as the graduates are proud of their schools and their community, so are the residents of Midland and Midland County proud of the graduating seniors of the three high schools. They are expecting great things of this particular group of young people.

Congratulations and all best wishes always are directed to the fine young men and young women as they step forward to receive their high school diplomas Thursday night. It will be an occasion to remember and appreciate always.

Britain faces reality

In a step toward whipping inflation, the government and the trade unions in Great Britain have agreed to limit pay increases to 4 pounds or about $7.32 a week.

Acceptance by union leaders of ceilings even more rigid than the 6-pound lids imposed last year is an acknowledgment of economic reality. The alternative was to price their members out of jobs and further aggravate the country's crippled economy.

But the new government headed by Prime Minister James Callaghan also made some tax concessions to the workers, complicating a budget deficit already at $22 billion and compounding the burden of public debt.

And government leaders are being warned to cut spending if past sacrifices and those asked of Britons in the future are not to be in vain.

The deal on pay increases is a first step only on the long road back to economic health, but it is an encouraging step.

INSIDE REPORT:

Russian roulette and civil defense

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — With "detente" now stricken from the administration's lexicon and Congress unwilling to challenge President Ford's record-high defense program, this country's increasing danger on the civil defense front is under belated attack from an unlikely combination of hawks and doves.

What is astonishing is that defense of the homeland against possible nuclear attack — "thinking the unthinkable," in the words of former Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger — has been a virtual no-no topic of serious political debate for 15 years.

But this stark warning from a dovish House Armed Services Committee panel signals belated change:

"The panel received truly alarming estimates about the comparative casualties in the event of nuclear attack if the Soviets had evacuated their people during the crisis period and we were unable to do so: the Soviets would lose about 10½ million people; the United States would lose about 90 million people."

The chairman of that three-man panel is Democratic Rep. Robert L. Leggett of California, a moderate dove. Also on the panel is moderate

Evans Novak

Republican Donald Mitchell of New York and one of the most dovish freshman Democrats in the House, Rep. Robert Carr of Michigan. Their unanimous recommendation: that the miserly $71 million civil defense program be increased to $110 million at once.

Even such an increase would not come close to the long-time Soviet spending level on civil defense, which the panel estimated at $1 billion a year. Before he was fired as Defense Secretary, Schlesinger was deeply worried over the low level of civil defense preparedness in this country, for a fundamental and frightening reason: Soviet ability to "survive" — and U.S. ability not to survive — a nuclear exchange with an enemy.

Soviet survival is based on rapid evacuation of the cities, on vast subterranean fallout shelters in the evacuated areas and on war plants capable of continuing operations after a nuclear exchange by virtue of "hardened" sites or geographic dispersal in remote areas.

Lacking even skeleton programs for these "war-survival" measures (often called passive defense), the U.S. could find itself prohibitively outpsyched if deadlock between Moscow and Washington became the prelude to a possible nuclear exchange. Rather than risk such an exchange from a position of proven inferiority in terms of the ability to withstand it, the U.S. might be forced to yield.

Indeed, ability to absorb a nuclear attack and continue as a nation is regarded by some experts as only marginally less important than possession of rough "equivalence" in nuclear striking force. That is why a Soviet diplomatic agent — openly and above board — attended all 11 sessions of the Leggett panel. What the U.S. does in civil defense is of paramount importance to Moscow.

The heart of the panel's report warned that "the size and the reach of the Soviet effort, coupled with its aggressive buildup of arms, raise profound questions about the appropriate defensive counter-actions to be taken by the United States."

That conclusion fits a totally separate warning by former Ambassador to the Soviet Union Foy D. Kohler, now a professor at the school for advanced international study at Miami University. A hard-line hawk, Kohler, who ran the U.S. embassy in Moscow from 1962 to 1966, states in the foreword to a just-published book ("War Survival in Soviet Strategy," by Dr. Leon Goure, published by Miami University):

"The Soviet Union has stepped up in very substantial ways its war-survival program since the advent of the detente relationship with the U.S. in May 1972, and is today steadily increasing its attention and resource allocations to the program."

To Kohler, the essential and dangerous difference between American and Soviet response to the terrifying possibility of nuclear war is that Americans really believe no exchange will ever occur, because neither nation will risk its own destruction, but the Soviets "have never accepted the 'overkill' concept or the concept of 'mutual assured destruction'. The Soviet emphasis has rather been on survivability and indeed on the possibility of victory in a nuclear war."

With knowledgeable hawks like Schlesinger and Kohler and dovish Democrats like Carr and Leggett in basic agreement, perhaps the time has come when this country will stop playing the most dangerous kind of Russian roulette with a totally unpredictable future.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — We have watched President Ford closely since he picked the government reins off the floor nearly 22 months ago. We have often disagreed with his policies, occasionally, we have criticized his performance. But we have detected one characteristic that has gone largely unnoticed.

Gerald Ford has political courage.

This side of the President has been revealed behind closed White House doors. Ford made the decision, for example, to send Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to Africa on the eve of some crucial Southern primaries.

The President saw advance drafts of the statements Kissinger intended to make in Africa, supporting the rights of the black majority. Political advisers warned that the timing couldn't be worse, that the Kissinger tour would antagonize many Southern voters.

The President said the situation in Africa was too critical to wait and personally gave Kissinger the go-ahead. Subsequently, Ford lost to Ronald Reagan in the Texas, Georgia and Alabama primaries.

Yet the confidential minutes of a White House meeting on May 12 show the President had not relented. The takeover of Angola by Soviet-supported Cuban troops and guerrillas, he said, had made the situation "potentially very dangerous" for African moderates.

"Without some strong position by us," he declared, "Africa would become ripe for the picking." There had been "some criticism of the timing" of the Kissinger visit, he said, "but I can't hold foreign policy in abeyance for political reasons."

Ford has also dismayed his political advisers by calling for an increase in social security taxes and a five per cent ceiling on pay raises and pensions. Past presidents managed to postpone such unpopular moves until after the election. But Ford told aides it was more important to bring the budget under control.

Even more astounding, he ordered the shutdown of four Air Force bases in states where he was courting votes — Craig in Alabama, Richards-Gebaur in Kansas, Webb in Texas and even Kincheloe in his home state of Michigan.

When Republican leaders pleaded with him to spare their pet projects, according to the confidential minutes of a May 5 meeting, the President replied bluntly: "There are definite limitations on what we can spend."

He demanded fiscal reforms before he would agree to bail New York City out of its financial crisis, despite a warning that the stringent measures would cost him votes.

He replied that the city would never have wound up on the financial rocks if past mayors had been willing to face the facts. "We cannot go on spending," he said, "without worrying about where the money is coming from."

Probably no presidential action was more unpopular than his attempt to make gas and oil more expensive. Although we criticized him for penalizing the poor, he felt this was the best way to hold down oil consumption and, thereby, to reduce U.S. dependence on Arab oil fields.

"This may not be good politics," he told his advisers, "but it is good for the country."

Ford also sought to curb electronic surveillance by the FBI and CIA in a move that brought praise from Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., but criticism from some conservative Republicans.

Confidential minutes quote the President as responding: "It was a tough decision, without total unanimity, but I felt we had to move in the national interest."

Another time, his irrepressible former campaign manager, Howard "Bo" Callaway, suggested to White House aide Richard Cheney that the politically embarrassing trial of ex-Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., be held up until after the election.

Cheney had been around President Ford long enough to respond immediately: "We don't do that sort of thing in this Administration."

•

CUBANS IN AFRICA: The announcement from Angola that the new government will maintain a preferential relationship with Cuba means that the Kremlin will be calling the shots from behind the scenes.

Secret intelligence reports state flatly that the Soviets are subsidizing and directing the Cuban operations in Africa.

Cuban merchant ships, meanwhile, are "prominent" in the Angolan ports of Luanda and Lobito. Intelligence reports suggest they are moving military equipment from Luanda to Lobito as the Marxist MPLA faction continues to solidify its rule in southern Angola.

Apparently, Cuban troops are still conducting combat operations against the remaining, retreating UNITA guerrillas. The ruling MPLA forces, according to our intelligence sources, cannot yet direct successful military operations on their own.

The tiny Angolan air force is also manned by Cubans, the intelligence reports suggest. There have been a number of reports, too, that more Cuban technicians are arriving in Angola, perhaps accompanied by their families.

The best estimate is that more than 12,000 Cuban troops and 1,000 Cuban technicians are now stationed in Angola.

A CHANGING WORLD:

Every American should see the Berlin Wall (of shame)

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Editor, Copley News Service

WEST BERLIN — In 1962 I said it, again in 1963 and now again. Whenever friends have expressed some doubts concerning differences between the American system and the Communist system, I have said, "OK, but go to Berlin. See the Berlin Wall. Visit West Berlin, then visit East Berlin. If you don't see the difference then, you'll never see one."

Those friends who haven't made this trip might say today that the brutality of what the West Berliners call Die Schandmauer (the Wall of Shame) has eased. The wall is now much neater. It is painted a nice shiny white. The barbed wire is gone. The crude cement blocks are replaced by something in concrete that is much more attractive.

However, there is less need for barbed wire. The wall is more sophisticated. Rotating cylinders replace wire. A would-be escapee from Communist East Berlin, trying to scale the barrier, now would grasp the top cylinder and find it impossible to get the grip needed to hoist himself to the top.

He would do this if he negotiated other new barriers much more difficult — the electrified fence inside the East Berlin side of the wall. Or, if he found his way through the mine fields in a no-man's-land between the fence and the concrete barrier. Or, if he escaped the scrutiny of sentries on 24-hour duty, located in elevated lookouts every 350 yards along the no-man's-land aided by floodlights at night.

One of my friends on this current trip said he didn't think the wall was so bad — "You said there would be barbed wire and there isn't. I think it looks fairly nice." How naive can this well-intended person be? The "modernization" of Die Schandmauer actually makes it more terrifying than ever. It makes it permanent and seals the doom of those among 1.1 million East Berliners who still held hope for flight to the freedom of the western side of the city. They are lifetime captives of communism.

What my friend on this trip needs to remember, as do those back home who don't see any major differences between our political systems, is that the Berlin Wall is the only barrier ever built to keep people in rather than keep unwelcome people out. It is a lasting monument to the failure of the Soviet system.

For those who have been here before, let them not be misled by the recent agreement that permits occasional West Berlin visits to the eastern side. Very few East Berliners get passes to visit the western side — only Communist Party functionaries and other "safe" persons, plus women over 62 and men over 67; the Reds would like to get rid of the aged who are drawing pensions.

These friends of mine also should take a stroll along Bernauerstrasse. The Church of Reconciliation has not been freed. It faces West Berlin but the wall still cuts it off from West Berliners at the sidewalk entrance. And, to make sure nobody forgets the terrible tragedy inflicted on freedom by the Reds on Aug. 13, 1961, West Berliners still take fresh flowers to the wooden crosses on the Bernauerstrasse sidewalks where three women jumped off a seven-story building roof in an effort to escape communism.

Also, flowers are delivered still to the cross that honors Peter Fechter, the teen-ager shot by East German guards on Aug. 17, 1962, as he sought to flee to the West. Shooting this boy was bad enough but the Reds then left him to die along the wall, ignoring his cries of pain until death mercifully ended them.

No, the wall is the same, even stronger and uglier. As this is written, the East Germans, under Soviet order, are building a newer "nicer" wall in the area of Potsdammerplatz. As workers dismantle the old and erect the new, dozens of guards with rifles and submachine guns watch over them lest one flees to the West.

East Berlin, like the wall, is more sophisticated today — but the grimness remains. Going through the border is a chilling experience, even for an American, whom the East Berlin regime says it welcomes.

The passport and other checks are five in number, and it is worse coming back. Red guards lift seats out of your car in their search for an escapee. They search under the hood and in the trunk. They even have a portable mirror, pushed under the car by a long handle, looking for an escapee who may have suspended himself underneath.

Escape these days is very tough. However, one East Berlin youth fashioned himself a rough imitation of a U.S. Army uniform and walked through all the Red checks unmolested. His "uniform" was so "incorrect" and roughly made that the U.S. GIs at Checkpoint Charlie roared with laughter as he successfully hoodwinked the Red guards. Others have escaped by using stolen Soviet uniforms; the East Germans do not dare challenge a "Russian." But, over the wall flights or those through the tunnels used in 1961-62 are no more.

The consensus on both sides is that the Berlin Wall is a permanent fixture and almost escape-proof. Again, my friends with the doubts about the span between communism and freedom should bear in mind that this wall is designed to imprison a populace, not protect it from invaders. And, they should come and see it. It has a way of reducing complaints about American bureaucracy and personal discomforts back home.

Mark Russell says

Haiti's Castle in the Clouds attracting tourists

By EARLEEN and NICK TATRO

CAP HAITIEN, Haiti (AP) — The massive Citadel has waited nearly two centuries for the invasion.

No shots were ever fired in anger from the mountaintop fortress perched in the clouds 6,000 feet above the turquoise waters of the Caribbean. But more than 20,000 men died carrying the stones to build it and the cannons to defend it.

Henry Christophe, the black general who fought for Haiti's freedom from France and then declared himself king, built the Citadel to stave off an attack by Napoleon's navy.

That assault never came, but today there is an invasion of a different sort — tourists.

Since Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier died in 1971 and his motorcycle-riding son, Jean-Claude, became president-for-life, Haiti has tried to shed its bogey-man image. The dreaded Ton-Ton Macoutes, or secret police, keep a low profile, and "voodoo" most often appears as a floor show for the tourists.

In March alone, more than 700 tourists made the hot, dusty trek up the mountain to the Citadel by horse, car and on foot. During the final years of Papa Doc's feared regime, few tourists came to Haiti much less Cap Haitien.

Neatly dressed Haitian boys in shorts and plastic sandals greet you outside the stone walls and then disappear, popping up from time to time with local legends and fractured history until you're hooked on their tour.

A 12-year-old named Elie quietly appears at your side to tell the story of King Henry Christophe and his fort. Elie's English, heavily accented with Creole, does not come easily, but the magic of the building helps and the stories tell themselves.

He leads you to the powder magazine and then to a sarcophagus.

"Christophe, he always tell his generals not to light cigarettes in the powder magazine. One day this general, Christophe's son-in-law, forget and light his cigarette in the powder magazine. The magazine explode, and there is his tomb."

Snuff was more common than cigarettes in Christophe's time, but there was an explosion in the powder magazine in 1818. It was touched off by lightning, not by a cigarette, and Christophe's brother-in-law, not his son-in-law, was among the 160 men killed.

Elie continues his tour, pointing out the wall cracked by the "erse-squash" (earthquake), the foundry where the cannon balls were made, the cannons cast in Barcelona with gargoyles on the breeches, the brick kilns, the bakery ovens and the hospital.

"Christophe, he only have 50 shar-jays." Whatever a shar-jay is — perhaps derived from the French charge d'affaires — it apparently means soldier in this context. And while Christophe certainly had more than 50 of them, the story holds up.

"The man from France, he must not know there are only 50 shar-jays, or he will send his army to fight them," Elie recounts.

"But Christophe have three uniforms for each shar-jay. So the man from France come to the Citadel and see the 50 shar-jays in their uniforms and walk by them. The shar-jays jump down and put on the other uniforms and run around the corner before he get there, and he see them.

"The shar-jays jump down and run around the corner again and put on the other uniforms and he see them, and he tell Christophe: 'You have so many shar-jays that we can never fight you.' This man go back to France and he never fight Christophe."

After Christophe's death in 1820, the Citadel was abandoned. Haiti, one of the world's poorest nations, has begun to push for the tourist dollar in the last few years but has little money to spend, although plans have been drawn up for the Citadel's restoration.

The fort's only modern structure is a monument to Christophe, who was elected president of northern Haiti in 1807. Four years later, dreaming of equality with the crowned heads of Europe, he proclaimed himself king.

More than 200,000 men were conscripted to build his palace, Sans-Souci, and his citadel, La Ferriere. It was a harsh age. The brutality which prevailed during the slave days continued. One out of every 10 men died from exhaustion or mistreatment building the Citadel.

By 1820, when Christophe was 53 and partially paralyzed, his troops rebelled and the leaders of southern Haiti sought to reunite Christophe's kingdom with their republic.

With shouts of "A bas le tyran! A bas Christophe!" — "Down with the tyrant! Down with Christophe!" — resounding outside the walls of Sans-Souci, King Henry I of Haiti shot himself through the heart with a silver bullet.

Sans-Souci's wooden floors, the fountains, gilt and tapestries are long gone; only the stone walls and stairs remain. The tropical gardens where Queen Marie-Louise and her ladies strolled have disappeared, replaced by dry brown grass.

At Sans-Souci begins the winding ascent up the mountain by horseback (2 hours) or by car (45 minutes) to the parking lot. From there, it is another hour on foot or by horseback to the peak.

If you set out on foot, men with horses follow you, waiting for you to weaken and rent a horse. Their offer is less than inviting, for in a country where people seldom have enough to eat, animals are worse off. Many of these stunted horses have bleeding saddle sores.

Small boys in ragged pants run along beside the tourists, hawking flutes or offering to show the way to the top — as if there were anywhere to go but up.

A band of 5-and 6-year-olds forms a circle and march around wheezing and trilling on reed flutes and bamboo trumpets. The cacophony fades into silence for a fee.

The children live in thatched houses nestled under the palm trees along the rocky path. The lushness of the vegetation is rare in Haiti, where most of the land has been denuded in the search for wood which is turned into charcoal for cooking and carvings for tourists.

Most visitors are from cruise ships which dock in the bay 6,000 feet below; others fly to Cap Haitien from Port-au-Prince, capital of the nation of five million persons.

About half the tourists who signed the register at the Citadel were from the United States and the French-speaking areas of Canada. Others were from Germany, Yugoslavia, Britain, Chile and Japan.

The flight from Port-au-Prince only takes about 45 minutes. Getting on a plane can be a hassle: despite reservations, seats are sometimes awarded on a first-come, first-served basis. As a rule, flights go every day except Sunday.

Haiti Air Inter has several planes of varying sizes, the smallest being a Beechcraft which carries seven passengers: five in regular seats, a sixth on a jump seat in the baggage compartment in the tail, and the seventh in the co-pilot's seat.

You can also sign up for seats on the Haitian Air Force's DC3.

Italians brace for June voting

VATICAN CITY (AP) — With two million Romans voting locally at the same time the nation elects a new national parliament next month, the Roman Catholic Church is expected to intensify its recent anti-Communist campaign, faced with the likelihood that the city of Popes will go Red.

The Italian capital — the See of the Pope as the Bishop of Rome — stands alone among major mainland cities with the Communists locked out of power. Local elections last June swept the Communists to a share of power in such urban centers as Naples, Florence, Turin, Milan and Florence.

But the Partito Comunista Italiano (PCI), striving for a role in the national government, as well, already ranks as the biggest political force in the city of Rome, having obtained 34 per cent of the votes in a polling last year in local elections to the 28 per cent of the Church-backed party, the Christian Democrats.

"A Communist city hall or a Communist mayor in Rome would be an acute embarrassment for the Church and the Pope personally," a Vatican watcher noted. "It could impair the pontiff's credibility if his own diocesy ignores his desires."

The battle line of the Church-Communist clash, sharpest since Pope Piux XII excommunicated Communist voters en masse in 1949, has already been drawn. The Church is on the offensive while the Communist party has maintained its conciliatory attitude in its strategy of wooing the ballots of the faithful.

While the Communist party often proclaims its adherence to the "freedom of religion" — and some party leaders send their wives to church and children to religious schools — Romans have been advised by their church that they can either be Christians or Marxists, not both.

In a recent statement, the Italian bishops also warned that Marxism "inevitably leads to some form of slavery" expressing the "incompatibility" of communism with Christianity.

Ugo Cardinal Poletti, the Pope's vicar who administers the diocese on the pontiff's behalf, said the issue boils down to whether "the city of God will be in godless hands."

But the influence of the Church in political matters appears to be on the wane, partly because of Italy's rapid industrialization favoring secular ideas and lifestyles and partly because of what is considered the misrule of the Church-backed party in leading Italy from the ruins of the last World War to its economic recovery and now back to economic bust.

The diminishing command of the church became apparent two years ago when Italians rebuffed their bishops, the Vatican and the Pope in rejecting referendum to abolish divorce. While the nationwide margin to keep divorce was 60-40, in Rome more than 65 per cent of the Pope's flock flouted their bishop.

"Whether the Church can sway Rome and Italy is doubtful," a Vatican observer said. "But it can't give up without a fight. There is feeling that this may be the last chance."

After the 1949 mass excommunication of Communists by Pope Piux XII, the Vatican's relations with the Communists became less rigid, guided by Pope John XXIII and the Second Ecumenical Council, although the excommunication has yet to be lifted formally.

The pendulum swung back in recent years as the Italian Communist party, although overtly not anti-Vatican, emerged as a viable alternative to the rule of the Church-supported politicians.

Despite its anti-Communist stand in Italy, the Vatican still pursues its diplomatic detente with Communist nations in Eastern Europe, hoping to achieve some degree of freedom for "The Silent Church."

As to the Rome elections themselves:

Said local Communist chief Luigi Petroselli: "Finally, Rome will get the chance to have a 'good government.'
