Eradication referendums passed

The referendum to establish the Central Rolling Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Zone was passed earlier this week by more than 82 percent of the growers that voted.

Chairman of the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation Woody Anderson said that of the 5,711 growers eligible to vote 2,733 cast their ballots.

"We're extremely pleased with not only the vote, but the number of producers who returned their ballots," he said.

Counties included in the referendum are Mitchell, Baylor, Callahan, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Knox, Nolan, Palo Pinto, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall, Throckmorton and Young counties. Also parts of Archer, Borden and Taylor counties.

Counties in the zone represent 492,139 acres of cotton.

Growers voted on two parts of the referendum. Proposition One was to establish an eradication zone which would pool grower and federal resources to eradicate the boll weevil from cotton fields in the zone.

More than 84 percent of voters casting ballots and representing 281,748 acres of cotton approved the proposition.

The second part of the referendum was a grower assessment of $5 per acre of cotton planted in 1995–96, and $10 in later years until the costs of the eradication program are paid.

More than 82 percent of the voters casting their ballots and representing 275,804 acres of cotton voted in favor of proposition two.

"We appreciate all the effort and hard work of the Mitchell County Steering Committee and its chairman, Ray Ritchey, and all the cotton growers who saw a real need for this program," Anderson said.

He added that he felt the referendum passed easily and the benefits would be seen in the very near future.

Recycling facility proposal studied

A proposal to build Texas' first experimental prison labor-supported Manufacturing and Recycling Facility (MRF) in Colorado City is still being studied.

The state's feasibility study has been completed and currently a business plan is being worked out.

City Manager Steve Shutt said he expects the plan to be completed in anywhere between six months and a year.

The first of its kind if built, the MRF would use prison labor to recycle materials, provide the end product for state use and then sell the remaining product to companies that would manufacture everything from trash bags, paint and traffic cones to pens and clothing, to compost.

"I was really surprised with some of the clothing that can be manufactured from recycled products," Shutt said. "The garments are pretty stylish. They have a type of plastic that is woven into the cotton that makes it more durable and long-lasting."

Funding for the facility is being looked into, but Shutt said that monies in terms of state grants and private sector assistance are both possibilities.

If the plan is accepted, Colorado City would become a recycling center for the region.

He added that if the recycling facility is built, residents will be asked to take part in a curb-side recycling program.

"We would need to provide source material to the center," he said.

Shutt added that source material would also come from a 36 county region.

AN EXAMPLE OF A MUCH NEEDED DRAINAGE SYSTEM can be seen at the corner of Hickory and 13th Streets. After Friday's minimal rainfall this intersection turned into a small stream.

Improvement funding is sought by city

Colorado City will be actively pursuing Intermodel Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (IS-TEA) funding to help in two long-term projects for the city.

The two projects on City Manager Steve Shutt's list include improving the landscape and economic value of the downtown area and controlling the rain water that flood streets and homes from I–20 to 13th Street.

According to Shutt, IS-TEA funds will come from two sources. The first source comes from the Abilene Highway District, which is allotted approximately $23 million for approved projects.

Colorado City is included in this district and is eligible to compete for its share of this funding, he said.

The second source of funding

Sunday is last chance to see The Christmas Carol

The final performance of The Christmas Carol, by Julian Lee, will be Sunday, December 11, 2:30 p.m. at the Opera House. The play is based on Charles Dickens' classic tale, A Christmas Carol.

The cast of 24 is led by Opera House veteran Tandy Curlee, who plays Ebenezer Scrooge. He is visited by the ghost of his former business partner, Jacob Marley. The ghost is played by Tacy Ellis.

Marley warns Scrooge that he must change his ways or he will be doomed to wander for all eternity because of his greed.

Scrooge is shown his past with the help of the Ghost of Christmas Past, played by Kelly Younger. As Scrooge goes back in time, he sees himself as a little boy again. Jon Mark Howeth plays the youthful Scrooge. His sister Fan is played by Danielle Jones.

Before he leaves the past, Scrooge visits his former employer, Mr. Fezziwig, played by Bo McCoury. It's Christmas and he is celebrating with his employees and friends.

Scrooge again sees himself, this time as a young man, played by Fred Morris. Other guests at the Fezziwig party are played by Ashton Anderson, Will Crockett, Eric Hammond, Jon Mark Howeth, Amanda Renee Reyes, Sara Beth Selvera and Rebecca Sweet.

Scrooge is next visited by the Ghost of Christmas Present, played by Brian Taggart. The ghost takes him to the home of his employee, Bob Cratchit, played by Bob McNeal.

Here, Scrooge sees Tiny Tim, played by Todd Moody, and the rest of the Cratchit family, Renea Lewis, Ashley Turner, Chris Myers and Candi Garrett. Mrs. Cratchit is played by Tacy Ellis.

Finally, Scrooge is shown the future by the Ghost of Christmas Yet-to-Come, played by Stephen Hill. He sees his servant Mrs. Dilber, played by Brenda Crosley, attempting to sell his clothes to Old Joe, played by Will Crockett. She has stolen the clothes because Scrooge has died.

Scrooge then awakens and rejoices because he has not slept through Christmas Day. He summons the help of a boy, played by Ashton Anderson, in buying a turkey for the Cratchit family.

Scrooge celebrates Christmas with his nephew Fred, played by Stephen Hill, and his wife, played by Julie Ellis, and their friends,

Book-signing set

The first edition of his book, Texas Ranger in the Oil Patch, has been limited to 500 copies and will be available at the library for $13.50 each. His book is currently available at Woods Boots.

The book is a humorous look into the real life adventure of a real life Texas Ranger.

According to the editor's note, "Captain John M. Wood is a natural-born storyteller. These stories are told in his own words. So just rein up under the shade of a mesquite, throw your leg over the saddle horn, pull out your baloney sandwich and set a spell with him while he tells you how it really was, back in the Oil Patch of West Texas."

Wood was born in Colorado City, what he refers to as "the heart of the West Texas oil patch."

As a Texas Ranger he was based out of Midland and covered a ten-county area that includes Mitchell County.

In his 18 years as a Ranger he investigated cases ranging from cattle rustling to homicide, ut it was oilfield thefts that took up most of his time.

During his tenure as a Ranger he set a record for the number of oil cases successfully closed and the dollar value of oilfield equipment recovered.

He retired a Captain, Special Texas Ranger in 1978 after 41 years as a lawman.

Wood and his wife currently live in San Antonio.

McCollum participates in TMCN program

Colorado City is a member of the new Texas Midwest Community Network (TMCN), an organization committed to creating ways for community representatives to work together for the good of the region.

Jay McCollum of Colorado City partieipated in planning program strategies for 1995 during the TMCN Council meeting held at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene earlier this month. The meeting included delegates from 29 towns.

Eight committees moved into action to plan ways for towns in the Texas Midwest to join forces and strengthen the region.

1. Legislative concerns will be addressed through a Texas Midwest Day held in Austin, where representatives from the region can collectively visit legislators about regional needs. Visits will also be scheduled at state agencies.

2. Network luncheons are planned for January and April where mayors, city administrators, county judges and commissioners, as well as chamber executives and officers and economic development representatives will be invited to visit about challenges and concerns in their respective communities. Success stories will also be shared.

3. Motivation for volunteers is a major concern of TMCN since many towns depend completely on volunteers for special events and community services. Ways to assist and reward volunteers are being developed.

4. Workshops on a number of topics will be offered in the region to assist community leaders with information and "how to" methods. The first workshop, planned for February, will focus on the sales tax for economic development. More workshops will be planned for assisting non-profit organizations, NAFTA and how it affects this region, and developing community volunteers and leaders.

5. Marketing the region is essential for economic growth and job creation. Plans were made to develop a regional identity and encourage the use of "the Texas Midwest" phrase. A regional map with information about each member town will be published and a regional calendar of events will be distributed to newspapers and chamber offices throughout the region.

6. Peer review teams will be organized and offer a free evaluation service to member towns for festivals, beautification programs and economic development projects.

7. Communications is the key to success for any organization or effort. Quarterly newsletters will be distributed to community representatives with updates about regional activites, success stories, legislative matters and economic development projects. A central office will provide sources of information for community representatives.

8. Membership provides the base of concerned citizens, businesses and towns to make a regional effort effective. Numbers is the name of the game to be heard in Austin and to accomplish the many programs that will benefit the region.

comes from federal IS-TEA monies that are available to local jurisdictions in a statewide competition. These funds are broken down into an 80/20 match, with the city providing 20 percent of the funding.

"There are ten categories of eligibility of which Colorado City fits into four to six of these," Shutt said.

He added that if the city is awarded the federal funding the monies would be used for the restoration of Business Loop I–20 through the downtown area, including the upgrading of intersections, the addition of peninsulas and landscaping, a possible trade market area and restoration of historical buildings including the Baker Hotel.

"The trade market would be something similar to a Railhead Trades Day that would maybe happen once a month," he said. "It would be a tremendous augmentation to the antique mall business downtown and could be a catalyst for the restoration of the downtown area, creating private economic benefits in the areas of jobs and sales tax revenue."

Shutt added that the city could also possibly utilize other Housing and Urban Development funding.

Although he admits that the possibility of restoring the Baker Hotel is a long-shot, he said he believes it's an attainable goal.

"It's not entirely out of the realm of possibility that we may see the reopening of the Baker Hotel," he said.

District funding will be used for the city's second long-term project, which would alleviate if not terminate the flooding problem that occurs when it rains and correcting severe intersection problems.

"We have two or three intersections that criss-cross Hickory Street at severe angles," Shutt said. "There's no curb or guttering and when it rains the drainage finds its way south, draining off to the west, causing heavy water buildup beginning at 17th Street."

He added that the water buildup becomes very severe at 12th and 13th Streets because it merges with water from the northwest part of town.

"The streets actually become curbs of water," he said. "Some homes and garages fill with rainwater and sand."

He added that this is a problem that has been around for decades.

"The community has just gotten so used to it that it's just a way of life," he said. "These are problems that need to be addressed."

One of the solutions to the problem, Shutt said, would be an efficient underground storm drainage system.

"This problem affects one-fourth of the city and we're not going to be able to deal with the issues of adequate streets and alleys until we get the drainage problem solved," he said.

A proposal will be sent to the Abilene Highway District this week. The city expects to submit an application for federal IS-TEA funding by the June deadline.

Richmond returns to United States from tour

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class James C. Richmond, a 1988 graduate of Colorado High School, recently returned from a six-month deployment to the western Pacific and Indian Oceans while serving aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Shiloh.

Richmond and USS Shiloh departed San Diego in mid-April and sailed to the Persian Gulf, where the crew conducted maritime interception operations—boarding and searching ships headed to and from Iraq in violation of international sanctions.

Richmond is one of 388 crew members aboard the guided missile cruiser, which carries Tomahawk cruise missiles and served as part of the USS Carl Vinson carrier battle group. USS Shiloh also joined British forces in several exercises designed to help the crew members work better together.

Richmond also visited Hawaii, Bali, Indonesia, Bahrain, Thailand and the United Arab Emirates during the deployment, which was the first for the two-year-old ship.

Richmond's involvement in the deployment underscores how the Navy-Marine Corps team still serves as the best option when a formidable force package is needed to remain on station for months at a time.

Whether delivering humanitarian assistance, cargo or troops from the sea, these highly trained naval forces provide a unique crisis-response option, which can be withdrawn quickly when no longer needed.

Local country star stages comeback

Fred Crawford

Colorado City resident Fred Crawford is staging a comeback to country music with his new release The Fred Crawford Collection, Life of an Old D.J.

Born in Louisiana in 1928, Crawford started singing and guitar pickin' at school functions when he was 8 years old and at age 11 he won a talent contest at a radio station in Shreveport, La., singing "You Are My Sunshine."

When he was 25, Crawford began his recording career in Houston with the help of another struggling singer, George Jones.

When his third song, "Never Gonna Get Married Again," was released it became a best seller, helping him to book appearances on then famous shows, The Louisiana Hayride and Barnyard Frolics in Little Rock, Ark.

Crawford and his wife have been Colorado City residents for the past 13 years and in 1989 he retired from radio at KVMC.

Of his latest release Crawford said, "This is the best recording I think I've ever put out."

His latest single is entitled "Street Walking Lady," and in spite of the title, the song gives recognition to women postal carriers.

The new album, recorded at Don Caldwell Studios in Lubbock, contains 10 songs, including an instrumental called "Cornfed Fred's Cornbread."

It's a local sound that gets back to the roots of country music and in some ways is reminiscent of C&W legends like George Jones, Hank Williams, Sr. and Conway Twitty.

You can find the new release at the Music Center, Colorado City or write to the Fred Crawford Collection, Box 273, Colorado City.

The cost is $8.75 plus .75 for postage and handling.

CHS students instruct youngsters

Colorado High School's home economics and FHA classes recently instructed Hutchinson Elementary students about nutrition and fitness through a series of four stations.

In the first station, students heard about the importance of nutritious snacks and were given samples to eat. They were shown 129 lbs. of sugar, the amount the average American eats per year.

Station two included games, skits and a presentation on the food pyramid and healthy lifestyles. Students were given food pyramid stickers.

In station three, each student participated in 20 minutes of aerobic exercise.

Station four concerned healthy lifestyles and how smoking and alcohol affect the heart and lungs.

There was a smoking machine at this station to show what happens to smokers' lungs and a body was outlined on the floor in a demonstration of how smoke affects the entire body and its oxygen intake.

Emphasis was placed on the fact that fitness and nutrition are a way of life and that getting and staying healthy can be accomplished with just a little effort.

Congressman Charles Stenholm is now accepting applications from college students and educators interested in participating in the 1995 Washington, D.C. Internship Program, as well as applications for page positions in the House of Representatives.

Completed applications must be submitted in person or postmarked by January 17, 1995 to be considered for either position.

Pages perform a variety of duties, including delivering packages to offices within the Capitol complex and answering telephones in the Members' Cloakrooms. The pages answer directly to the Director of Page Services and they are paid a monthly salary, which covers basic living expenses.

Pages are housed in supervised dormitories and study junior level curriculum at the U.S. Capitol Page School.

Page positions are open to students in the 17th Congressional District who will be juniors in September 1995. Pages must have a "B" average in four major courses, excluding electives.

Four interns are selected to work in the Congressman's office for one-month intervals in June or July.

Interns are involved in the daily operation of the Congressman's office and will help research constituent inquiries.

College students from the 17th Congressional District or those attending college inside the district, teachers and administrators are eligible for the internship program. The interns are paid a one-month stipend to cover basic living expenses.

Page and intern applications and information can be obtained by contacting Elaine Talley in the Abilene district office at (915) 673-7221.

Applications are due by January 17, 1995. They will be forwarded to a selection committee who will notify finalists by February 22, 1995.

Interviews for all positions will be held in Abilene on March 18, 1995 and selections will be made at this time.

Holiday fire safety tips offered

As cooler weather and holiday festivities approach, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry reminds Texans to review and practice fire safety measures around the house.

"With all the holiday activities, it's easy to get distracted and that's when accidents occur," Perry said.

"But if we just take a few minutes to remind ourselves about the safe way to do things, we can all have a happy holiday season," he added.

Fire safety becomes important as people use fireplaces, put up Christmas trees and decorate with candles.

Before building a fire, make sure your chimney is clean and in good repair. Check the roof and gutters to be sure they are clear of debris such as leaves or other items that might catch fire.

Christmas trees are a frequent source of fire problems. Perry said buying a TEXAS GROWN tree can lessen that risk.

"Many Texas Christmas tree farms allow people to come and cut their own tree. This makes for a great family outing and assures you a fresh Tree," he said.

Once you find your tree, it should be watered daily to prevent drying out. Use caution with lights and don't leave them on unattended. Check lights each year for fraying or other wear. Never use candles on a tree.

Other fire safety rules include:

• Check your smoke detector weekly to make sure it's working. Change the battery twice a year.

• Clean or change your furnace filter each month. This lessens electric or gas consumption and decreases chance of fire.

• Use caution with space heaters and be sure to use them in ventilated areas to prevent carbon monoxide buildup.

• Defective appliances and overloaded circuits are major causes of home fires. Check power cords frequently and replace them if they are damaged.

• Keep matches and lighters away from small children. Children should never be left alone near an open fire, fireplace or heater.

• Plan an escape route in case of fire and practice with your family. Have a designated spot to meet outside the house.

• Install a fire extinguisher in the kitchen and know how to use it before an emergency arises.

• Watch clothing when cooking to prevent sleeves from coming in contact with a burner.

"This is a great time to review safety habits with your children," Perry said.

"Talk to them about proper use of fire and matches. Review the family plan for getting out of the house in case of fire. Practice safe habits yourself, like wearing protective eye wear when cutting firewood. Your children will learn by watching you."
