Confession Secured In Latest Wichita Robbery

THREE DIAMOND RINGS FOUND IN ELECTRA STORE

Clyde Stroud Charged in Kaufman & Levin Robbery

THEFTS CLEARED UP?

Tuesday Afternoon Climax Ends Week's Work by Officers

Solution of the series of six safe-breaking episodes in Wichita Falls in the last 10 days is believed certain with the recovery by Sheriff Pat Murphy at Electra Tuesday afternoon of three diamond rings valued at $500 and $130 cash taken last Thursday night from the Kaufman & Levin clothing store and a signed confession by Clyde Stroud said to admit the robbery. Stroud was brought back from Dallas by the sheriff's department here.

Has Criminal Record.

The recovery of the diamonds and money and the confession of Stroud is the culmination of a week's continuous effort of every member of the sheriff's and ranger forces working on the case from a small clue which led to the capture of Stroud. The sheriff's department is confident that the arrest of Stroud is the solution of the safe-breaking situation here and that the clearing up of the Kaufman & Levin robbery will unravel the other cases.

In the running down of Stroud, who has one of the hardest and most notorious criminal records in Texas, the sheriff's department and rangers have probably gotten on a trail of a band of safe-crackers that has operated promiscuously in many of the largest cities in Texas the last few months.

Letter in Hotel Is Clue.

A letter left in a local hotel was the only clue which officers had following the clothing store robbery. The five preceding robberies had left no trace of anything that might leave a possible solution except finger prints. Making finger prints of all the marks left at the different scenes of safe breakings, the sheriff's department got these assembled and sent them to the police departments of the larger cities of Texas.

Following the Thursday night robbery Murphy received a wire Sunday from the Dallas police department. This stated a man had been picked up whose finger prints corresponded with the ones sent there by the local sheriff's department. Sheriff Murphy went to Dallas at once and found the man arrested there. The sheriff on seeing Stroud, recognized him as a man who had been around Wichita Falls several days and had been suspected.

Leads Sheriff to Electra.

He brought Stroud back to Wichita Falls and on the return trip got a verbal confession from him of the Kaufman and Levin robbery. Tuesday after talking to Stroud several hours obtained a written confession. Following signing of the confession, Sheriff Murphy asked Stroud to show him where the diamonds were that he had stolen. Stroud showed his good faith regarding his confession by going with the sheriff to Electra.

On arrival at Electra Tuesday afternoon tStroud led the sheriff to a merchant. He told Murphy he had sold the three diamond rings to the merchant for $100. Murphy said the merchant was nonplussed for a few minutes and his wife burst into tears when Stroud appeared on the scene. When Stroud insisted he had sold the rings to the merchant the latter finally produced them. They proved to be the ones Stroud had confessed to selling from Kaufman & Levin's safe Thursday night.

Turns Over $130 In Cash.

Stroud was brought back and returned to jail and the jwels returned to Kaufman. Stroud also turned over to the sheriff $130 cash which he said was part of $278 taken from the clothing store Thursday night. Stroud said he entered the store and committed the robbery between 8 and 9 o'clock Thursday night.

When Stroud learned the diamonds he confessed to stealing were valued at $2,500 he was greatly surprised. "Just think that I sold those for $100. If I had known they were worth $2,500 I would have gone so far you would never have had a chance to get me, sheriff," Stroud told Murphy. With the diamonds recovered and Stroud's confession in writing, Sheriff Mrurphy and Deputy A. J. Davis finished a job on which they have given their entire time since last Thursday. Murphy and Davis stayed up all night Friday and Saturday working on the case in connection with every member of the sheriff's and ranger forces. It has developed since the confession of Stroud that rangers and deputy sheriffs guarded every bank in the city Friday and

Refiners Endorse Talk But Refuse To Cut Production

"I Can't Say," Says Ford On Presidency

Henry Ford, in an interview, appearing in Collier's this week declares he is not a candidate for the presidency today but that he can't say what he will do tomorrow.

"Now, if I wanted to play politics, I would say exactly what I am going to say," the manufacturer was quoted as saying, "but I am not playing politics. I am not a candidate for anything. I can't imagine myself today accepting any nomination. Of course I can't say and no intelligent man can say what I will do tomorrow. There might be a war or some crisis of the sort in which legalism and which constitutionalism and all that would not figure, and the nation wanted some person who could do things and do them quick. What I would do then, I can't say, but there isn't any such situation now. I have no political mind and I don't see any sense in my attempting political leadership."

MARLAND WANTS CURTAILMENT IN GASOLINE TOTAL

100 Refineries Talk Over August Shutdown Agreement

CLAIMS OVERSUPPLY

Talk Given Approval But Remedies Not So Popular

Associated Press Dispatch

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 31.—The Western Petroleum Refiner's association at a meeting here today refused to take any action on the proposed curtailment of gasoline production. A resolution was adopted in which they endorsed statements made in a speech by E. W. Marland, president of the Marland Refining company, but declined to approve a remedy for existing conditions.

Must Overcome Big Supply.

The resolution follows:

"Resolved that the Western Petroleum Refiner's association does hereby endorse and approve Mr. Marland's statements as to past and existing conditions in the Mid-continent fiel dand the causes therof, with express reservation, however, that no action is hereby taken by the association as to any remedy proposed by Mr. Marland in his statement."

Producers and refiners in the Mid-continent oil field must overcome the effects of over-production either through the "ruthless and inexorable law of supply and demand working alone through its price factor" or by an intelligent curtailment of the output," Marland declared.

100 Refiners Present.

More than 100 refiners from the Mid-continent field were here to discuss a shutdown of operations during August as agreed upon in Chicago last week by some 25 of the largest refineries of the district. George N. Moore of Chicago, president of the Western Refiners association was chairman of the meeting.

Moore emphasized that the refiners in Chicago took "no official or concerted action" to curtail the production but that as individuals they took cognizance of the present conditions of the industry and decided to govern themselves accordingly.

"What the oil industry needs is government aid, not government prosecution," said E. R. Perry of Tulsa, Oklahoma, general manager of the Cosden Oil company, one of the largest companies which has decided to limit its operations temporarily.

10 to 20 Per Cent Over.

In his statement, Marland said 10 to 20 per cent more oil is now being produced than the world's markets need. He said that this was the result of frantic search for oil about three years ago and the consequent finding of new pools. Three very prolific pools were found in California, he said, which have an aggregate production of from 60 to 70 per cent of the entire mid-continen output. With lower production costs and lower transportation rates by water, Marland continued the California producers have taken much of the Atlantic seaboard and export market away from the mid-continent refiners.

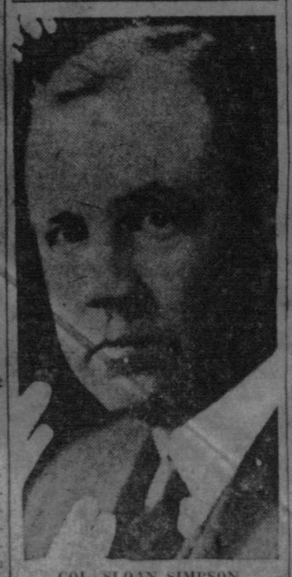

"Obviously," he said, "the consumer must eventually pay the ultimate cost of producing, together with a reasonable profit to the industry, if it is to continue to function.

Keep Oil in Ground.

"If the price factor alone is permitted to control the operations of the industry the price fluctuations will be so extreme as to result in the constant abandoning and scrapping both of producing wells and refining plants in period of over production, such as the present.

"It is manifestly to the great benefit of the consuming public that such curtailment of the output of the wells be exercised as will serve to keep the oil in the ground where it will remain until needed, without storage costs, evaporation and avoidable waste."

HARDING SPEECH GIVEN OUT BY HIS SECRETARY

Illness Prevents Making of San Francisco Address

OPPOSES BOLSHEVISTS

Replies to Criticism on World Court Address at St. Louis

Associated Press Dispatch

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 31.—Secretary George B. Christian made public tonight the address President Harding was to have delivered in San Francisco this evening at the civic auditorium on the accomplishments of the administration in the international field.

"Carefully Prepared."

Secretary Christian's statement announcing the president's decision from his sick bed to release the address, is as follows:

"The San Francisco speech was to deal with foreign relations, and was a carefully considered and carefully prepared document. But for his illness, the president would have delivered the speech according to schedule; but this being prevented he now feels that it should go to the public through the medium of the press and for the information and consideration of the people. Therefore, he has directed that the speech be released."

"With becoming dignity we have maintained our rights; we have yielded willingly to the rights of others, and we dwell in cherished and unthreatened peace," the president declared in his address after enumerating the achievements of the last two and a half years.

Opposes Soviet Recognition.

Two pending international questions were discussed by the chief executive. With respect to one—the recognition of Russia—he declared: "International good faith forbids any sort of sanction of the bolshevist policy." The other question concerned relations with Mexico and in discussing it, Harding said he earnestly hoped the American commission now in Mexico City would achieve "definite and favorable results."

"Nations ought no more need resort to force in the settlement of their disputes or difference than do men in this enlightened day," he asserted. Out of this conviction, out of my belief in a penitent world craving for the agencies of peace, out of the inevitable presidential contact with the World war havoc and devastation and the measureless sorrow which attended and has followed, I would be insensible to duty and violate all the sentiments of my heart and all my convictions if I failed to urge American support of the permanent court of international justice."

Answers His Critics.

Evidently having in mind published statements by members of the senate and others criticizing his St. Louis address in which he proposed a reconstruction of the creative machinery of the court, the president said:

"My own sincerity of purpose has been questioned because I do not insist that we shall accept the exist-

President On Road To Recovery Says Personal Physician

Associated Press Dispatch

PRESIDENTIAL HEADQUARTERS, PALACE HOTEL, San Francisco, July 31.—President Harding has passed the crisis and is on the road to recovery according to a statement made late today to the Associated Press by Dr. Charles E. Sawyer, president's personal physician.

Dr. Sawyer said: "Since we have our toxin well under control, I feel safe in saying that we have passed the peak load of trouble. I don't want to be too emphatic about it, because we always face complications. But I feel that the crisis is over and that the president is well on the road to recovery."

Dr. Sawyer said it was impossible to say at present how long it would be before the president would be well and strong enough to return to Washington. "I can't say now when it will be possible to feed him solid food," he said, "but I do feel that he is now entirely out of danger. I don't know it, but I feel it. Barring complications, President Harding has reached the peak of the crisis." Dr. Sawyer said that Mrs. Harding was well, despite the strain.

Dr. Sawyer, in an informal statement issued later at 9:10 p. m., said his patient "was doing well," and had just had the best and most natural sleep since his illness.

Sawyer Again Cheerful.

Sawyer's statement was given newspaper men who met him in the corridor as he started out for a walk, his first moment of recreation since Sunday when the president was brought to San Francisco, now admittedly a very ill man.

"I am taking my first vacation," said the general as he and Mrs. Sawyer, both smiling, started for the elevator. The general's demeanor was a marked contrast to the serious expression he wore when he met newspaper men 12 hours before, prior to the day's first consultation of physicians.

Improvement had been shown in the president's pulse, temperature and respiration and also in his eliminative faculties. The latter, the general said, was a highly favorable symptom.

Pulse Lowest Yet.

The president's temperature at 9 o'clock was 99 3-5 degrees; pulse 118, the lowest it has been since he was taken ill; respiration 36, a decrease of four from the last previous report.

It was made known that the official tour of President and Mrs. Harding ended when they arrived here Sunday morning. Others of the presidential party than those traveling in an office at capacity are expected within a day or so to leave here for their homes, marking the breaking up of the group which left Washington with the chief executive on June 20.

From that time the party will consist of only the president, Mrs. Harding, newspaper men, secret service operatives and perhaps a few others including Attorney General Harry Daugherty.

Had Busy Day Planned.

Had the president maintained his health and continued on the itinerary arranged for him today would have been one of the busiest of the trip. He would have arrived in San Francisco this morning, proceeded in a parade and reviewed the merchant marine in the harbor here. Tonight he would have delivered an address in the auditorium on the foreign relations of the nation. He had prepared the address before he was taken ill and it was decided to release it as had been originally intended.

Sand Crabs Take First From Spuds, 7 to 5

TENTH ROUND RALLY GIVES SAND CRABS TWO MARKERS TO BEAT SALM'S MOUND ACES

Meine's Wildness Causes His Departure For Third Time In His Last Three Times Out; Graham, Munson and Ostergard Wield Big Sticks; Last Game Today.

By BILLIE SMITH

For the third time in his last three starts "Heine" Meine has been knocked from the box in the early innings by a visiting team. Twice Meine's wildness and his ineffectiveness has cost the Spudders a ball game, although Rip Wheeler gets credit for the loss yesterday after the affair had gone ten innings by the score of 7 to 5.

Wheeler went into the game with a one run lead, but could not stop Munson, Ostergard, Graham and company from hitting, so it was his fate to get credited for a loss that in different circumstances would probably have been a win for the Tennessee Ripper.

Blame It On Graham

But if anybody is to be blamed for the Spudder loss it must be to players of the opposing side. Joe Munson, Red Ostergard and Lefty Graham were the guilty ones. Each of these three Sand Crabs hit the ball and hit it hard, while Graham relieved Connally after the Spudders had tied the score and proceeded to hold them to one run for the remainder of the battle.

After the sixth inning the two clubs battled at a standstill till the tenth round. During this time Wheeler and Graham were engaged in a merry hurling duel, but in the eleventh Wheeler weakened and was touched for four hits, netting two runs. All four hits came in succession and after two were out.

The Spudders made an abbreviated attempt to tie the count in their half of the tenth, but their attempt fell just two runs short of doing the required damage. After two men had gone out on easy flies, one of these a pinch hitter, Locker and Tanner stepped forth with clean singles. Cotter ended the misery by flying out to left field.

Three Crabs Hit Hard

Regardless of what the Spudders did and didn't it was the heavy clubs wielded by Graham, Munson and Ostergard in the tenth and previous innings that caused the Salmites to be relegated one point nearer the San Antonio Bears in the standing.

Munson collected four hits and scored three times, while Ostergard made three hits, one a double and two singles.

Graham's damage was a home run over the left field wall in the fifth inning with nobody on base, a walk that was turned into a run and a single in the tenth was also converted into a run.

Both teams made enough hits and scores to win most any ball game. The Spudders actually outhit the Crabs by the margin of one hit, but they were scattered so badly that only in the fifth did they mean anything.

In every inning except the fifth and seventh the Spudders made base blows but as fortune would have it they usually came after two men were out. That was the case in the second, third, sixth and tenth innings.

For two innings Meine looked as though he had rid himself of his wildness and all other things that go to make a losing pitcher. In the first two innings the Crabs appeared to be absolutely harmless.

In the third they hopped on Meine for one run and chased him from the game in the fifth with a barrage of bingles.

After one man had been retired in the third Munson singled and went to second on Meine's wild heave, past Jonnard. Distel walked, and Ostergard grounded out sharply to Cotter, advancing Munson to third. Munson scored on Brown's single to left. Wendell opened the fourth with a double against the left field fence that needed only a little more height to have made it a homer. Kearns grounded out to Tanner, Cotter making a good leaping catch of Tanner's throw. Witry walked, but Rose hit into a double killing, Berger to Locker to Cotter.

CELLAR LIGHT

HOWARD EHMKE.

The Boston Red Sox, in last place, have managed to win slightly more than a third of their games. Howard Ehmke, ex-Detroiter, pitching for this tail-end Hub team, has won practically two-thirds of his games for them. What would he do with a winning team behind him?

Take It Or Leave It

Spudders and Sand Crabs in last game of series today. This game will close the home stand.

* * *

After today's game the Spudders have an off day before leaving for Shreveport to take on the Gassers for four games.

The Spudder Road Schedule:
Aug. 3-4-5-6 at Shereveport.
Aug. 7-8-9-10 at Dallas.
Aug. 11-12 at Fort Worth.

* * *

Since Independence Day the Spudders have won only one series and that from the San Antonio Bears. They have been hanging on at third place only because the other leading clubs have been having hard times also. San Antonio and Galveston are the only clubs that have been winnig with any sort of regularity. Both of these clubs did well during their long stay at home, but haven't fared so well on the road.

* * *

Unless the Spudders are strengthened greatly in the pitching department it will be a miracle if they finish on top or any place near the top. During the home stay they have had the hitting but not the pitching, and on their last road trip they didn't have either.

* * *

At the present it looks as if the Panthers are the best bet to finish in the lead. They have strengthened their infield by the addition of Goldie Rapp, and Kraft and Hoffman are now playing the sort of baseball that they were once noted for. There never was anything radically wrong with the Panther pitchers.

* * *

Bosses Salm and Harvey of the Spudders are now trying to pull a deal whereby another pitcher of proven merit will be added to the Spudder pitching staff. One more good pitcher and a little change in luck will put the Spudders back into the running for title.

* * *

Al White is working out daily with the club in effort to get back into shape once again. Al's injured ankle has given him a world of trouble, and at the present it is keeping him from showing anything like his former speed around the second sack.

* * *

The Sand Crabs are now playing under a handicap, similar to the one that the locals have been playing under for quite awhile. Tex Westerzil, their regular third baseman, and Ed Barney, a new outfielder just procured from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League have been sent back home on acounct of illness and injuries. They are now playing a youngster named Rose at third and using a catcher at second, while Ostergard, the regular second baseman is being used in the outfield.

* * *

Reports had been circulated that the San Antonio Bears had traded Shortstop Gross for Dennis Burns, a pitcher, of the Gassers, and that Burns was to report immediately. Yet Burns pitched against the Bears at Shreveport yesterday. He was given a good drubbing by Ike Boone and mates. Boone didn't do anything but get two homers in four times at bat.

Firpo's Manager Denies Any Break

Associated Press Dispatch

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 31.—Jimmy DeForrest, trainer of Luis Angel Firpo, today emphatically denied a report that he and Firpo had broken.

"There is absolutely no truth in the report of a break," DeForrest said. "Firpo will meet Jack Dempsey at the Polo Grounds, Sept. 14. There will be no postponement."

MORE ABOUT CONFESSION

Saturday night to prevent any possible robberies.

Waco Gives His Record.

The criminal record of Stroud is one that reads like fiction and mysteries are connected with it that would tax the resourcefulness of Sherlock Holmes himself.

In a review of Stroud's criminal record obtained by The Record-News Tusday night from Lee Jenkins, chief of detective of the Waco police department, it was learned that the sheriff's department here had landed a criminal who is no amateur. "Clyde Stroud is the best all-around safe blower in Texas and we have had him in jail here on charges of murder, criminal assault and five burglaries filed at one time and sent him to the penitentiary once for 25 years but his aunt at Houston finally got him out of it," the Waco chief said.

The Waco detective also said that Stroud had been a thorn in the side of Waco peace officers for years." We sent him to the reformatory when he was a boy and he has been giving us trouble ever since. He has broken out of the city jail here as many as three times in one week and about 30 days ago he broke out of the county jail. The sheriff's department here now has a reward offered for his capture."

"Just Name Anything."

When asked to give specific instances of some of Stroud's activities at Waco the Waco officer said: "Just name anything and you'll get what we have had him arrested for. We had him for yegging and safe blowing, mostly though. He can get out of any jail in Texas for he has gotten away from us dozens of times," the officer said.

This seems to verify the statement made by Stroud Tuesday to Sheriff Pat Murphy that "I gave them hell down at Waco, sheriff, and I don't mean maybe."

Murphy said Stroud told him in his verbal confession that he was tired of the life he was living and that he wanted ot confess and start a new life.

One Charge Filed.

Charges have not been filed on Stroud for any of the safe blowing cases except the Kaufman and Levin instance. The Morgan feed store safe was broken into twice and about $50 taken. Other business houses entered were the Long-Bell Lumber company offices, Magnolia Petroleum office and Lamar street grocery. To what extent, if any, Stroud's confession covered the robberies besides the Kaufman & Levin store entry was not divulged by officers. It was only stated by them that Stroud's arrest had cleared the matter of safe-breaking here and no further depredations were expected.

The big thing is the firm establishment of the court and our cordial adherence thereto. All else is mere detail."

7-YEAR-OLD GIRL MAKING SUCCESS IN PICTURES

Mary Philbin, a 17-year-old Chicago girl is making a striking success in the films. She has long dark curls, big dark eyes and a sweet little mouth. Her recent successes are "Merry-Go-Round," and "Peuod and Sam," which crowned her fame. She has just been signed to play opposite William Collier, Jr., in First National's new picture, "Against the Grain."

Dancing was Mary's first love, and at the impressive age of 13 she was considered an accomplished teacher, and quite a little artist. In those days she was noted as a promising "amachure" in her church and school circles.

AL ST. JOHN'S TARGET SHOOTING FEATURES FILM

For the first time since entering pictures, Al St. John, comedian with Fox company, is given an opportunity to display his expert marksmanship ability with the rifle in one of his fun films. The production, "Full Speed Ahead," will feature some fancy target shooting with the popular funster on the business end of a trap gun.

Despite the fact that Al lays no claim to being a former display rack in a sporting goods store, the comedian is a mean gunman with a revolver, shotgun or rifle he is equally familiar. This fact is fully demonstrated in his forthcoming Fox comedy which was written and directed by St. John.

HARD LUCK, ALLAN

Allan Dwan receives much mail from people all over the country about the pictures he makes, but he is more disturbed by the different ways his first name is spelled than by the criticism of his pictures. He sees his name as Alan, Allen, Alen and Alin, all of which are wrong. It is Allan.

WIG-WAG SYSTEM USED BY DIRECTOR CRUZE

A wig-wag system from one studio to another.

That was the way James Cruze, producing "Ruggles of Red Gap" for Paramount, got around the lighting problem.

The set, a great lawn party on the Argyle lot across from the Lasky studio, was lighted by thousands of lanterns, spots and Kleigs. But with six companies working at once across the street the strain on the generators was too much. In the midst of every scene, the light flickered out.

Cruze jumped into the breach with his usual presence of mind by demanding of the electrician: "Were any of you in the U. S. Signal corps during the war?"

Two men jumped forward.

"You," said Cruze, addressing one of them, "get up on the roof of the Lasky studio and wig-wag whenever the one or more of the directors over there isn't using the light. And you," he said, turning to the other, "climb up on top of this set and call down the signals."

The plan worked to perfection!

VERSATILITY SHOWN IN THESE JACQUETTES

The short jacket or jacquette is appearing in infinite variety. In some cases it is being supplanted by the short cape, which is sponsored by Paris, but at the present writing the jacket is fashion's favorite. Here are three different developments of the idea, all attractive.

The costume on the left is a stunning one of white roshanara crepe. It consists of a sleeveless dress with the bodice elaborately embroidered in an Egyptian design. The skirt is caught up in an effective drape at one side. The jacket is loose and irregular in shape. It has bell sleeves with cuffs trimmed with the embroidery. The collar has a narrow strip edged with the embroidery and otherwise ornamented extending down each side which adds to the dressiness of the model.

On the right is a very simple sports costume consisting of knitted jacket and skirt. Tan wool and brown fiber silk are used. The jacket is one of the sleeveless models, is somewhat longer than knitted goods.

The central figure shows the dress and jacket again in another development. The dress is a simple one of tan canton crepe, knife pleated. The jacket is of bokhara, simple blouse style ending at the hips where it is fastened with a buckle and drape. The bell sleeves are again featured and they and the jacket itself are trimmed with the tan canton crepe to match the dress.

Today's Poem

TIDES.

Life has its tides as the ocean has tides,
That heed not tempest, or calm or gale—
And wisdom and patience and faith besides,
You must have when you set sail.

For you may rock on a sea of glass,
And blending watch night and noon and dawn,
Till you drift where a tide 'neath the surface pass,
That will carry you safely on.

Then again you may flee from the driving blast,
In a smother of flying foam,
Till you feel the tide draw you safely past,
And bear you gently home.

ZONAGALE

In Collaboration With Russell Gore Writes On

MARRIED HAPPINESS AND UNHAPPINESS.

Lovers know the impulse to set the divinity within beyond the reach of change. Marriage is but one of the means by which human hearts attempt, like Faust, to bid the shining moment stay. And some succeed.

Jack London wrote to his wife, Charmain: "The years pass. You and I pass. But yet our love abides." Again, one month before his death, this: "Sometimes I want to get on top of Sonoma Mountain and shout out to the world about you and me."

Elizabeth Barrett Browning put beyond the reach of charge the feeling she had for Rober Browning. In the sonnets she lifted the moments from a world bounded by time into a timeless eternity.

The dark woman of the Shakespeare sonnets is dust. Her mournful lover is part of the earth which claims her. Yet one may idly turn these pages now and feel the changeless throb of the world heart—the heart which has its systole and its diastole movements in spring and autumn—still beating through immortal lines.

The myth of Pygmalion has a reverse side. Pygmalion was the sculptor who kissed into life the beauty he had created. Some enamoured men take living women and make them into sculpture. The one whose lips are never touched becomes the marble of the art exhibition, the heroine of the novel the mysterious presence which lifts poetic lines beyond mere rhyme and rhymthm.

"Set me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm," an ancient lover cried. And sometimes women do that best in parting and in separation. For human beings are weak.

Some can not survive the realization of the brightest of life's dreams. Would Dante's love for Beatrice have been embodies in the "Vita Nuova" and the "Divina Commedia" if she had shared his dream? And yet we have Jack London, one month before the end, saving a mountain top from which to shout the story of wedded happiness.

So many contemporary novels treat of mismating that some of those who read much humorously apologise for being happily married. A delightful little comedy is built around the idea of a contented couple vainly seeking an author to put them into a book.

One calm woman who reads the ultra-modern fiction but does not let this, (or anything else), destroy her sense of proportion, sat in an automobile near a bathing beach the other day when another car drew beside hers. In the latter were two men, two women obviously married couples. And the four made a pretty comedy of parting for the separate dressing rooms. Not all play, either, eyes which clung said.

"I often wish novelists could see people like that," she said. "There are so many of them that one wonders how they manage to keep out of the way of literary observers."

A Love Letter.

My Dearest:

"If I had known the path to you I would have flown on wings, 'tis true! I would have sung along the way, nor been so weary every day.

"You know how true the words to that song fit into life—weary, weary with everything until I met you! Now all sense of fatigue has left me, and on lifted wings I fly to you.

Why did I not know that you were somewhere waiting for me? That your dear shoulder was my resting place—how easy the way would have been if I had known that you were waiting at the end of the road.

What bliss—what joy it is to find one's own true love! We are all weary until we find that shoulder, and that resting place.

Then how we sink into the joy and contentment of knowing our own and being at the end of our search for love!

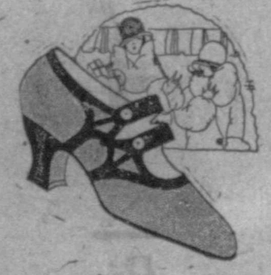

"At last, dear heart," we say, as we place our hand trustfully in his—"your way is my way—together—we two."

RUSSIAN WHEAT

Russia is about to harvest the greatest wheat crop since the coming of the world war and it is estimated that the Russians will have from two million five hundred thousand to three million tons of wheat for export. There is a vast surplus above the needs of Russia and this surplus will be thrown on foreign markets.

Soviet Russia has come to stay. The system of government over there may be detestable in the opinion of the peoples of other nations but there is no sign of a revolution, the peasants are loyal, there is one the finest standing armies maintained in Russian history and Lenine and Trotsky refused to be dislodged or driven from power.

There is a reason for it. Before the coming of the world war, in the days of the Romanoffs, the peasants were slaves. They performed all the labor and they did all the fighting for the czar and the nobility. They were driven like sheep, they were scourged like dogs, they were thrown the crusts from the tables of the powerful, they were landless and they were illiterate and the beast of the field had more to be greatful for than the breadwinners and defenders of a mighty empire.

Now the peasants own the land. Long ago the vast estates were divided. Long ago the crown lands were given to those who tilled them. Long the peasant was told that he was a man and not a human drudge, ever fearful of the crack of the whip of his master. This is why Soviet Russia has survived. This is why Soviet Russia is able to defy the greatest powers on earth. This is why an international decree of outlawry directed against Russia has been as futile as the decree of the ancient king commanding the ocean tide to cease its ebb and its flow.

For the first time since Russia emerged from the darkness of barbarism the peasant is a land owner and he is grateful to those who broke his chains of slavery and taught him that the man who tills the soil is entitled to reap the harvest which his hands have won. Some day Soviet Russia may guarantee the payment of the vast sums loaned by France and England to the Romanoffs despots. After this shall have been done the International bankers of the world, the bond holders of the world and the governments of England and France will agree to the uplifting of the boycott on Russia and the slav will be extended the right hand of fellowship.

Soviet Russia repudiated its foreign debts. These debts were contracted by the Romanoffs. Ever since Soviet Russia has been paying the price. Repudiation of foreign loans is a crime against the established order of things. Russia became a repudiator on a huge scale. This led to the world blockade, the world decree of outlawry, the non-recognition of Soviet Russia and its communistic leaders who were wise enough to partition the lands of Romanoffs and to confer upon every peasant a holding sufficient to provide for his family and to have a surplus to sell in his home or the foreign market.

Three centuries before the coming of the Nazarene the land issue was uppermost in Rome. It has been an issue uppermost in many countries for two thousand years. It is an issue uppermost to Mexico today and when the peon becomes a land owner he soon will become a valuable and a producing citizen. It will be an issue uppermost some day in Texas where fifty-four per cent of those who till the soil are tenants and it will be an issue in many other American states.

But back to Russia, she will have millions of tons of wheat for export this year. Russia is coming back for the reason that the peasant is pulling her back. He is a dumb worker. He tills the soil, he grows crops, he adds to the wealth of his country, he exiles famine, he banishes the spectre of disaster, he is the salt of the earth in Russia and in every other country.

TEUTON AND SLAV.

America fed millions of starving Russians two years ago. America fed millions of starving Russians last year. America fed many millions of starving Russians in the early months of the year of 1923. Now the Russian famine has been broken. Now the crops are being harvested. Now the peasants of Russia have produced sufficient grain to supply the people of Russia and the large surplus for exportation.

Russia is ready to barter; Germany is ready to barter. Russia is going to trade wheat to the Germans for farm machinery and all the tools needed in agricultural and industrial enterprise.

Russia and Germany have much in common. They are the under dogs of christendom. This is the reason why they have established trade relations. Germany needs grain. Russia needs the implements for the farm and the shop and the mine. Now the trade is on and the days of bartering is on, too.

This is a wonderful old world. Russia saved Italy and France in the early days of the world war from the red sword of a mad kaiser. Russia gave more men and made more sacrifices to the allied cause than any other nation that participated in the wild carnival of slaughter. Then forgot all about the blood sacrifice and the gold sacrifice of the slav.

Now the new Germany and the new Russia are economic allies and it is an alliance that has sent secret terror to the hearts of many of the foremost statesmen of Europe.

In all the ages workers have been winners, world winners and the Teutons and the Slavs are prodigious workers. They dig their way out.

"DEVIL ERA"

Edward de Lavera in a message to the American association for the recognition of the Irish republic asks for $100,000 to be used in the coming election in the Irish Free State.

De Lavera and his mad followers cost the people of the Irish Free State in destruction of property two hundred millions. They murdered Michael Collins, the most magnificent figure on the stage of action in Ireland since the days of Robert Emmet and they acted more like frenzied barbarians of the sixteenth century than sons of freedom fighting for liberty of a country.

They murdered their own kind; they pillaged their own kind; they applied the tourch to historic buildings and they gave to the flames the art treasures and ancient manuscripts of Ireland they call their own.

This is what the mad ambition of de Lavera has accomplished for the Irish people. He sent Michael Collins to his grave. He sent hundreds of others who were loyal to Collins and country to bloody graves and if justice had been done this half Irish and half-Spanish adventurer, born under the folds of Old Glory, would have faced a firing squad in the long ago.

UNCOMMON SENSE

UNCOMMON SENSE
By John Blake

CAPITALIZE YOUR CURIOSITY

Idle curiosity is as futile as is anything else that is idle.

The women who watches a neighbor move in for the purpose of asking questions later on about where she got her furniture and whether her silver is sterling or plated has not the kind that can be improved.

Neither is the man who is always wondering how much salary his acquaintances receive, and where they go at night, and whether they are fond of their wives or not.

Your curiosity exists always.

One of the greatest of American magazines was founded on it.

Its editor, an exceptionally brilliant young man asked himself countless questions, and got other people to answer them in the magazine.

The answers told the readers many things that they had always wanted to grow-useful things, particularly relating to how men have succeeded in business.

Curiosity when capitalized is one of the most valuable of human assets.

But it must be employed intelligently, as must every other mental quality if it is to prov valuable.

The college student who uses his curosity to get information comes out of college with the best training that the place can give.

The boy in a office who is curious about the business will find out about it in time, and by and by he will either own the business or be getting a very excellent salary for managing it.

Put a man with the right kind of curosity into a library and he will come out with an education.

Put a man who has been trained to science in a laboratory, and if he has the right kind of curosity he will be very likely to make some discovery that will benefit mankind.

A Canadian physician was curious to know how diabetes, which is one of man's most dreadful enemies, could be cured.

He answered his own questions in a long series of experiments.

Today the answer is known to everybody, and thousands of lives will be saved in consequence.

Inasmuch as we are born curious, and could not eradicate even if we would, we might as well make the most of it.

Making the most of it means getting all the education we are capable of holding, and doing far greater work than if we had consistntly maintained that nothing but our own little private affairs concerned us in the least.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

LEO

The planetary vibrations are of an excellent and helpful nature today. It is a most favorable time to approoch your employer for financial advancement. Any favors asked, within reason, will be granted. Advances made to the opposite sex will be reciprocated double fold.

A child born today is likely to be headstrong and should be subject to intelligent, discipline.

If today is your birthday you should study well the character which is written in your stars, for your success in life will be won only after your own victory over certain traits in your personality which will either make or mar your life.

Yours is a close-minded and cautious nature, governed by a sense of discrimination and choice which will make you either a critic or an analyst in some walk of life.

Off hand could say that with your suspicion of the motives of humanity in general, this quality would rather lead you into a life of moral censorship. You have a number of narrow-minded ideas.

It must also be admitted that you have a fire of passion which, if permitted to flame to its fullest heat, might give your character an entirely different cast. It is probably your fear of this eventeality which has made you over-cautious, for all minds know themselves sub-consciously. To protect you from your own impetuousness, your brain has built up in your conscious mind the thought structure that you are a cold and impersonal being.

Unless you cultivate an open and spontaneous attitude in life, your disposition will be intolerant and even cruel when you are in the throes of one of your periods of moral imagination.

You are energetic and conscientious in your work, what ever it is, particularly if you are a housekeeper. You also have the ability to plan in high degrees and if it should ever become necessary for you to earn your own bread and butter, you will have no difficulty in doing it.

Your personality is of one force rather than attraction, which is equally undesireable in a man as a woman in the social world, but a great and priceless asset in business.

Successful people born on your birthday are

ROBERT T. LINCOLN, statesman and son of Abraham Lincoln.

GILBERT C. WALKER, a Governor of Virginia.

WALTER L. PALMER, artist.

POEMS THAT LIVE

. . . . THE INNER VISION. . . . .

Most sweet it is with uplifted eyes
To pace the ground, if path there be or none,
While a fair region round the traveller lies
Which he forbears again to look upon;

Pleased rather with some soft ideal scene
The work of fancy, or some happy tone
Of meditation, slipping in between
The beauty coming and the beauty gone.

If thought and love desert us, from that day
Let us break off all commerce with the muse;
With thought and love companions of our way—

Whate'er the sense take or may refuse—
The mind's internal heaven shall shed her dews
Of inspiration on the humble lay.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON
Consulting Engineer
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana

INTO WHAT SIZED FARMS SHOULD THE SURPLUS LANDS ON THE IRRIGATION PROJECT BE DIVIDED?

Mangel and Feed Beets.

In a previous article we found the staple crops that are sure to grow here are cotton, wheat, oats, barley, hay, mangels and feed beets.

We have discussed all of these staples and their influence on the farm unit with the exception of mangels and feed beets.

In England and the continent, feed beets are grown much more extensively than in the United States. They form a good succulent ration for milch cows during the winter months and are eaten with relish by all farm animals.

The reason that beets are not grown more for feeding purposes in the United States is that corn and alfalfa produce more actual feed per acre. More steers can be fattened cheaper from an acre of corn or alfalfa than from an acre of mangels.

Feed beets produce very heavily, 30 to 40 tons per acre is not uncommon, but the feeding value is low.

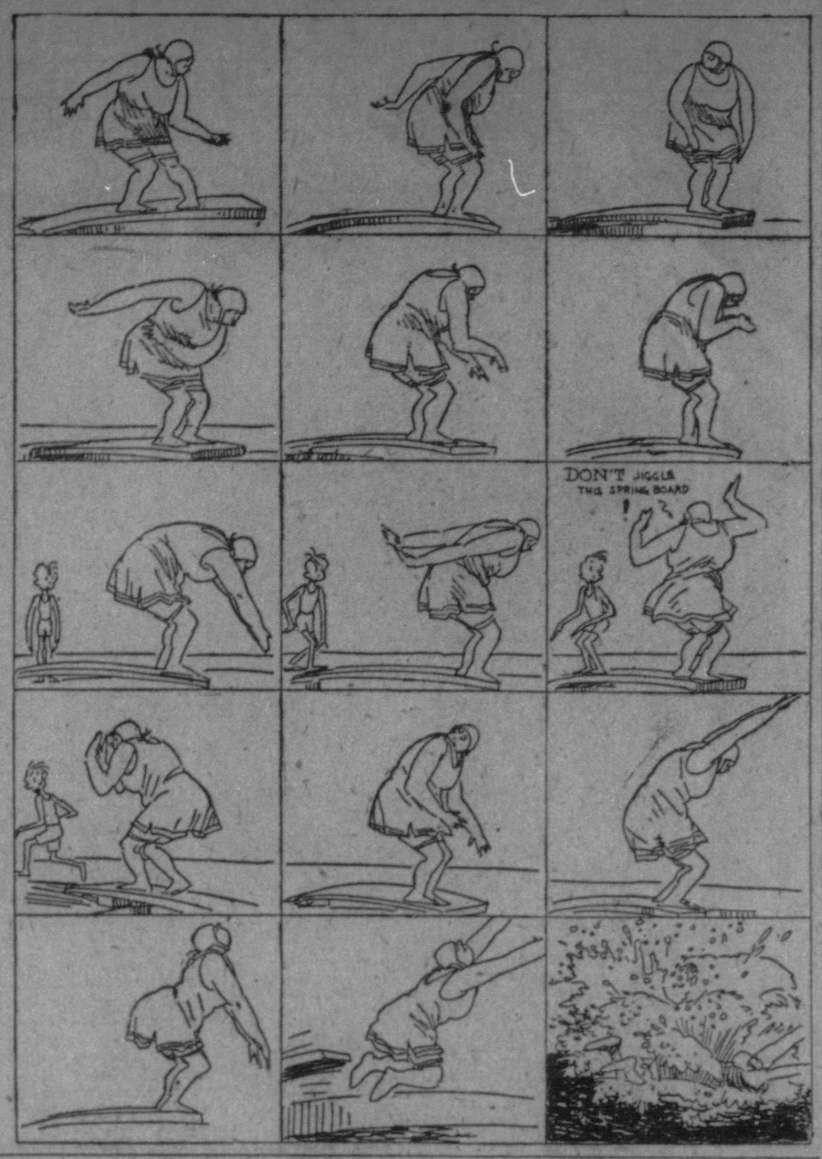

Compared with Johnson grass hay it would take about 300 pounds of beets to equal 100 pounds of hay, or about 800 pounds of beets to equal 100 pounds of shelled corn. Alfalfa or sweet clover hay is about 10 times richer than beets, or it would take about 1,000 pounds of beets to equal 100 pounds of either of these hays.

Feed beets are an annual crop. Beet seed is planted in the spring and the beets are harvested in the fall. Any year a farmer desires to have a crop of feed beets he can have them the same year.

On account of the nature and growth of feed beets we do not feel that they are of sufficient importance to be given more than passing attention in determining the size of the irrigated farm unit.

Tomorrow we will take up the much debated question of corn growing under irrigation.

WHY THEY PARTED

By EDMUND B. d'AUVERGNE

"You are in love with another man?"

"Yes, I am."

"Well, why doesn't he look after you, instead of letting you go to the devil like this?"

"He can't help it. . . . He doesn't know. . . . He is married," she said dully, wishing to end the interrogation.

Captain Walcourt kicked at the turf savagely, then with an exclamation of anger seized her arm and began to hurry her at breakneck speed along the path. Emerging into the Kew road, they found a taxi. Walcourt forced her into it and whispered an address to the driver.

He flung himself down beside her and put his arm round her waist.

"I don't know who the deuce you are, I'll chance it . . . will you marry me?"

"Of COURSE I won't," was the calm answer. "I just told you that I loved another man."

"Well, you are not going to him tonight, any way," he announced firmly. "I would as soon have thrown you into the river just now. I'm going to keep you out of harm's way for the present."

The girl started and scanned his resolute, sulky face. "What do you mean by that?" she cried, a note of alarm in her voice.

"What I say—that I am not going to let you go to the devil. Or if you are determined on doing so"—he clutched tightly at her arm—"it shall be with me and no other man. See?" He grinned at her.

Olive, shivering in her evening frock, sought to bury herself in the corner of the cab.

They were climbing a hill now, with big mansions on one side, shops on the other. . . . The scene became familiar. The cab sped along the garden-bordered road which the 'bus had followed in the reverse direction when she had returned to her old boarding house after tracking Clement.

At the Royal Oak corner the driver seemed uncertain of his direction, and looked back over his shoulder interrogatively at Walcourt. The Captain leaned out of the window and shouted, "I said Gloucester Gate, not Gloucester gardens!"

Before he could withdraw his head Olive had slipped out of the opposite door, and was scudding along the pavement up Porchester road.

She heard Walcourt's muffled shout, heard the vehicle wheeling round.

A policeman loomed up. He glanced from the bare-shouldered girl to the man in evening dress, evidently keeping pace with her in the taxi.

"Anything wrong, Miss!" he asked.

"I want to be alone—that's all," replied Olive. "I am going home."

Walcourt did not wait for the policeman's admonition; but withdrew.

Olive rushed on, turned the dark corner into Delafield terrace and rang furiously at the door of Clemen's lodgings.

The identity of the late visitor was revealed to the slatternly landlady by the flight of the candle. "Miss Eliot! Come in."

Olive, trembling with cold and fear, stepped inside the dingy passage.

"Is Mr. Cassilis in?" she inquired.

"No, Miss"—this with an oily smile—"but I expects 'im back tomorrow morning. Will you wait?"

* * * * *

On the stroke of noon Clement Cassilis opened the door of his bed-sitting room, to be confronted to his astonishment, by Olive Eliot, dressed as if for a ball.

The next minute she was clinging to him, wildly pouring out explanations, mingled with expressions of relief and delight.

Clement told her a joyous story—his invention was successful and a firm which took it over had given him a valuable appointment in Mexico.

"I owe it all to you, dear," he concluded.

She nestled closer to him, forgetful of all save his good fortune. Then she raised her face and looked into his eyes.

"Oh, Clement," she asked, "have I done wrong in coming here? Someone else has seen me here, too—Fredericks of all persons."

"Fredericks!" The man repeated the name dumbfounded. "What did he want? What was he doing here?"

"I don't know—I can't make it out. Soon after I finished dressing this morning someone tapped at the door, when I opened it there stood Fredericks, grinning at me. He pretended to beg my pardon, said he had wanted to see you, but presumed that you had just gone out—"

Clement made no explanation. "It's a plot," he shouted. "That infernal woman downstairs has been got at by Fredericks or Sadie. They have got hold of my address—and have been watching for such a situation as this. She probably wired Fredericks this morning that you were here. But Master Freddie came a little too early." The barrister smiled. "I've plenty of evidence that I was in Cornish express all last night, while you were here. Well," he said, "the first thing is to get you out of the place."

She slid off his knee. "What are you going to do with me?" she asked.

Clement looked at her. He thought of his boy, recalled standards which he had all his life upheld, the ideals of his boyhood. . . . and he saw her, dark-eyed, tearful, offering to him all her young beauty, wanting nothing in the whole world but him.

To her he owed his crowning success. Fredericks would see to it that his name and hers should be associated inextricably. For here there was not future but his love.

He held out his arms. "What does it matter? I love you and you love me. You shall come with me to Mexico."

* * * * *

"There is not manner of doubt about it," asserted Fredericks, "I saw her in his room myself this morning."

Sadie, her elbows on the table, rested her face on her upraised hands and he was astonished to see that tears were rolling down her cheeks.

"I should have thought you had more spirit," he repeated savagely. "That man lives on you, preaches at you, and then turns you down for another girl—"

Sadie rose, and clenching her hands, faced him. "Shut up, will you!" she furiously commanded. "What the deuce has it got to do with you?"

"A good deal," he answered calmly. "You see, I happen to be in love with you myself, and I want you to get free from that rotter. Now's your chance. to get free from that rotter. Now's your chance."

"I daresay I seem ungrateful," she said, "but I know this—Clement is the sort of man I want my boy to be. But whether Clement goes away with her or not, it will never bring me any nearer to you. You might as well know that at once."

"You have bilked me—you that I picked out of the gutter!" Fredericks shouted at her. He moved towards the door. "This ends things between us, Miss Milroy. You can take six months' salary, in lieu of notice." And he banged the door behind him.

Less than half an hour later Sadie was at Clement's lodging house. Olive Eliot, ghastly white, still in her evening frock, admitted her.

Sadie glanced round the room, satisfied herself that her husband wasn't there, and shut the door behind her.

She looked fixedly at the small, quaking figure in the low, fringed frock. "So you and Clement have decided that you are in love with each other?"

Olive stiffened into some appearance of dignity. "I don't perceive the object of your question, or your visit, Mrs. Cassilis. Of course you are Clement's wife in the eyes of the law, but with my own eyes I have seen another man kiss you, and you have told me almost in so many words that you don't love or prize him. I've since learned that you ordered him out of your flat because he punished a man for insulting you."

Sadie winced. The girl went on defiantly. "I, as it happens, DO love and value him. For his sake, I'm ready, as most people will think, to 'disgrace' myself, to 'ruin' myself, if needs be. No doubt you think me a fool. I think YOU a fool for throwing away the great gift of his love!"

Olive stamped her foot. "Do you think I don't know what this step is costing him, you stupid woman!" she burst out passionately. Do you think I don't understand that—and his scruples—his shrinking from scandal—far better than YOU ever could? It's because you never could appreciate the fine side of him that you lost your hold on him, in spite of your beauty."

Sadie advanced, her eyes glittering. "Shall I tell you WHY you appeal to him, Olive Eliot? Do you care to know?"

The girl shrank back, her frightened eyes fixed on the older woman's.

TO A BEETLE

(Telephone linemen say that beetles destroy thousands of dollars worth of leaden cables every year)

I've often wondered, little bug,
What time I've sprayed my tender plants
Why you've remained so calm and smug
And viewed me with a smocking glance.
"Are beetles fatalists?" thought I
As on the leaves unmoved you sat,
"Who simply do not fear to die—
And die by poisoning, at that?"

Unmoved and tranquail and serene,
You've watched my swiftly flying spray
Spread films of deadly Paris green
Upon your luncheon for the day.
While still the fumes were in the air
Along the stems I've seen you crawl
And chew a mouthful here and there
And never seem annoyed at all!

Awhile this problem had me beat,
For only recently I've known
That little beetles love to eat
The cables of the telephone.
When these are dug up from the ground
Invariably they're badly chewed,
For lead the beetle tribe has found
A wholesome and nutritious food.

No more with sprays I'll seek to foil
A bug that arsenic won't make ill;
If you can eat a cable coil
You must be doggone hard to kill!
But you had best tune up your wing
And be prepared for sudden flight,
For I am coming 'round next spring
To blow you up with dynamite!

NEW TEST ON STALEY FARM

Murchison and Pigg to Spud in by Middle of Next Week

Associated Press Dispatch

VERNON, July 31.—A. H. Murchison and E. H. Pigg, well known Vernon oil operators, have erected a derrick on the Staley farm, seven miles east of Vernon on Pease river, and are now installing a rig to drill a deep test for oil. They expect to spud in by the middle of next week.

A sensation was created about five years ago by a well on the Staley farm which encountered five sands. The well, however, is said to have been lost and no other tests were put down.

Murchinson said this morning he and Pigg are going to give that immediate location a thorough test for both deep and shallow sands. The location has long been considered by Vernon oil men as one of the best in Wilbarger county.

GRAHAM FRANCHISE STILL UNDECIDED

GRAHAM, Texas, July 31.—The city council held an open session last night to consider granting a new franchise to the local light company, but beyond discussing the matter pro and con nothing definite was done. A petition, said to bear the names of 334 men of the town, was presented asking that no franchise be granted until the rate of 20 cents is lowered. Beyond the rate, the new franchise is probably more favorable to the city than the old one, which has eight more years to run.

NIGHT IN THE OPEN.

I love to lie beneath the bending sky,
A breathing part of night, my hand caressing.
In idle love the warm, quick earth—
then I feel on my brow the dews of heaven's blessing
And know all things to be one flesh with me.
Night spreads its tender touch of perfumed air.
Deep through each sense, 'til earth, sky, wind and sea
Are music made to oleave an echo there,
And silence sounds its throbbing note of rest
About my velvet couch—no treasured wrong,
No harbored grievance hidden in my breast
Can lift its voice against that solemn song;
One, with every breath that makes or mars
I mount the golden stairway of the stars.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, July 31.—Fresh weakness developed in today's stock market as a result of the overnight turn for the worse in President Harding's condition. Speculators for the decline again offered large blocks of stocks, which were increased by the offerings of frightened investors. Losses of one to four points took place in most of the speculative favorites, the average of industrial stocks establishing a new low record for the year.

Selling pressure was most effective against the oil, sugar, steel, equipment and automotive stocks although a large number of rails and other industrials registered substantial recessions on the day.

Liquidation of the oil shares, which has been in progress for sometime because of the unfavorable conditions in the industry, assumed larger proportions in a few shares today on reports that recently-formed pools were breaking up after an unsuccessful campaign to boost prices. Cosden broke more than 3 points to 30 1-4, a new low, and then rallied to 31. Losses of two points or more also were established by Pan-American, Houston and Marland.

FORT WORTH LIBESTOCK.
Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, July 31.—Cattle buyers were slow to take hold Tuesday and the market dragged. Market receipts were liberal for a Tuesday run, around 3,200 head of cattle being on offer. The calf supply was small, not more than about 800 head being booked. Steers were very slow with lower bids. Cows and mixed stock sold generally steady on the opening rounds. Calves were called steady.

Extremely slow trading featured the hog market, although receipts were held down to 500 head. Prices were about in line with Monday's low. One consignment sold at $7.75, a packer buying at that value, and the big end of run cleared at $7.50@7.75. Pigs sold barely steady, stockers going at $5.00@5.50.

No changes were noted in the performance of the sheep market. Receipts amounted to 150 head.

MARKET AWAITS COTTON REPORT

Prices Lack Particular Trend in Either Direction

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, July 31.—As is the case on the day before a government report, the cotton market was rather a narrow affair without particular trend either way. It opened steady with September 25 points lower and other months six to 15 points higher and closed seven to 19 points net lower with the tone barely steady. Its great strength developed in the forenoon when October contracts sold at 21.49 and December at 21.35, representing a net advance of 24 points on a covering movement due to adverse weather conditions which included complaints of excess rain fall east of the Mississippi and continued drouth southwest. The fact that the upturn failed to attract any important outside support discouraged holders and under subsequent scattered realizing part of the improvement was lost. Near the close, the market dropped off to a round lowest levels of the day. It was generally believed that the government's report would be pretty close to the average of all private condition figures, which was 70.

Exports today 10,000, making 4,823,000 so far this season. Port receipts 15,000; United States port stock 210,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Cottonseed oil declined nine to 16 points early under old crop liquidation and federal advices in the south, but covering operations in October had a steadying effect at the last. Closing bids were 19 points lower to nine net higher. Sales, 13,200 barrels Prime crude nominal. Prime summer yellow spot 9.50, 10.10; September 9.33; December 8.20; March 8.25.

WHEAT AVERAGE GOES HIGHER

Light Receipts. Expected With No Incentive to Sell

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, July 31.—Wheat averaged higher in price today, largely as a result of absence of any heavy selling either of a hedging character, or in the nature of speculation. With no special incentive to market wheat quickly, it was expected that receipts hereafter would be rather light. The close was unsettled, ranging from 3-8c net decline to 1-2c advance, with September 96 5-8c to 96 3-4c and December $1.00@1.00 1-8.

Corn was 3-8c off to a gain of 2 cents, oats varying from 1-8c to 1-4c low to 1 1-4c up and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

Corn at the close reached a goal which had long been predicted by bulls, 90c a bushel for July delivery, the highest point on the crop. Available stocks of corn are about 20,000,000 bushels less than last year, and oats stocks 34,000,000 bushels less.

Provisions were dull, but were steadied by firmness of hog values.

NEW SUGAR DECLINE.
Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, July 31.—There was a further decline of 1-16 in the price of raw sugar with Cuba now quoted at 4 5-8c, cost and freight, equal to 6.40 centrifugal. Business, however, was light, with sales of only 1,500 bags of Cubas reported to an operator.

The raw sugar futures market was weak under heavy general selling prompted by the weakness in the spot market. Final prices were at about th lowst and from 11 to 32 points below the previous close. Closing, September, 4.37; December, 4.02; March, 3.32; May, 3.38.

The market for refined sugar was easier, owing to the decline in raw sugar with prices unchanged to 10 points lower and all refiners now listing at 8.25 for fine granulated.

The market showed further weakness late in the day when 12,000 bags of Cubas were sold to refiner at 4 1-2, cost and freight, equal to 6.28 for centrifugal.

WILSON UNTIES CUPID'S KNOTS

Three Divorces Granted in 30th District Court

Judge H. R. Wilson, of the Thirtieth district court was a busy official yesterday. He is the only one of the three district judges not on vacation and all district court matters are before him.

Tuesday, Judge Wilson granted three divorces and heard another.

Maiden Name Postponed.

A divorce was granted to Bessie Cooper against H. E. Cooper, local barber, plaintiff saying on the stand, Cooper had gotten a divorce from another wife a few months ago and that she did not know Cooper had ever been married when she married him. This made the second wife to be divorced from Cooper in the last six months, it was brought out in the hearing. The plaintiff was allowed to take back her maiden name.

A divorce was also granted to Gertrude Wofford from Ben Wofford. The third divorce granted was to Bernlece Lewis from Charles Lewis.

The case of Roy Stone, charged with theft, was dismissed on the defendant's own recognizance at the suggestion of District Attorney Bernard Sartin.

Judge Wilson's court will be in session until Next September. Cases this week will be rounded up and disposed of and a short respite taken until August 15, Judge Wilson said.

NEGRESS "BORROWS" NEIGHBOR'S FINERY AND LANDS IN COURT

The eternal feminine with a longing always for more clothes led one negress to go to the home of another negress in Wichita Fall and "borrow" the best dress the luckless woman had Tuesday morning.

Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law in questioning the negress who forcibly got the loan of her neighbor's toggery wanted to know if there was anybody at home when the dress was "borrowed."

It developed there was not and the negress was fined with the warning to never borrow another dress no matter how strong the temptation might be.

$50,000 NEW LOANS ON BUILDINGS MADE BY WICHITA GROUP

Fifty thousand dollars in new loans was made by the Wichita Falls Building and Loan association directors in meeting yesterday afternoon. These new loans were on 23 homes and make a total of $350,000 now loaned out. Construction just now has fallen off with the dullness of the summer, but is expected to pick up with the coming of fall.

June County Court Case to Be Cleared Friday

Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law announced Tuesday that all criminal and civil cases set for the June term of court would be disposed of next Friday.

Judge Rogers stated all attorneys having June cases on the docket had only until Friday to try same as he desired to clear the docket of such cases.

Old Home Town Stuff

THINGS YOU SAY, DO AND SEE AND SOME YOU DON'T

The safe-cracking epidemic has evidently worn itself out and the arrests of suspects by police, sheriff and complete departments has probably resulted in the capture of the culprits.

CONTRIBUTED, THANX.

Dear Town Stuff: See in the afternoon newspaper a headline to the effect that "Prohibition Helps Steel Industry." Yes, it has also helped the tin cup and lead pencil industries. Bootleggers in Oklahoma now give to each purchaser of four quarts of moonshine liquor a tin cup and two dozen lead pencils. This because if purchaser goes blind he can open up a business for himself on any street corner.

See in Central Texas daily where President Harding is making fight for his life against an attack of "broncho" pneumonia.

"The judge will eat for the rest of the week if he doesn't get another case," Justice Gibbs said Tuesday as he checked up on fines received from seven crap shooters, two drunks and six traffic violators.

Production on the Kemp hotel corner increased 10,000 barrels yesterday, while the Staley corner couldn't hold its own and slumped 3,500 barrels.

The business of double parking in the downtown area should be over with the passing of the new traffic ordinance yesterday. Town Stuff and other Ford drivers will have the pleasure now of driving down Indiana without having to keep in the middle of the street car tracks to keep from hitting cars parked lengthwise to the streets.

IT'S THE HUMIDITY.

The warm weather has inspired the muse of our limericking reporteress to dash off the following lines:

There was a young lady named Page
Exceedingly thin for her age
With a white dress on top
She drank red soda pop
And looked like a temperature gauge.

Nibble, nibble, little chigger
Good for you that you're no bigger
For if I had found you when you bit me
I'd be darn sure that you quit me.

Three divorce cases before Judge Wilson Tuesday and another filed in district clerk's office. Another record Wichita Falls commercial organizations will be trying to suppress next, like the recent heat records.

W. M. Moore, his wife and two daughters, Jeanette and Catherine, left Tuesday for a six weeks' vacation in California.

W. C. Layfield, his wife and little son, returned Tuesday from San Antonio, where he was called to the bedside of his father, who has been very ill for several weeks.

Mrs. G. W. Curd is visiting her parents in Ennis.

Leslie B. Ruffhines left Tuesday on a business trip to Chicago and other eastern cities.

F. B. Curd, prominent insurance man, is in Grand, Texas. Friends say he is "supposed" to be attending to business.

Miss Emma Elizabeth Miller left Tuesday afternoon for Colorado Springs to visit with her sister, Miss Virginia Miller.

KING JAZZ RULES WICHITANS!

Art In Music Fails During Summer

What kind of records are listed on Dad Wichita's music bills for the summer months? Galli-Curci, in the "Mad Scene" from Lucia, Caruso in "Rigoletto," Paderewski, Rachmaninoff, Kreisler, or Zimbalist?

Oh, dear no! Here's that bunch of records Cynth's stopped in to order that afternoon after Helen's bridge party—"Faded Old Love Letters," "Carolina in the Morning," "Runnin' Wild," and "Teddy Bear Blues." Nine year old Marjorie revels in "Kitten on the Keys" and "Snakes Hips" while Bud warbles a vociferous accompaniment to "Yes, We have no Bananas," and "Barney Google."

Undoubtedly, Wichita's young people rule the phonograph during the hot weather, and their tastes run to toe-tickling melodies, croony, dreamy saxophones, dolorous little wailing blues; snappy fox trots, with syncopated breaks and rollicking jazz songs. "Whispering Hope," whispers on, drowned out by Paul Whiteman and "Truly," Gluck and Farrar are buried in dust on the bottom shelf along with "William Tell" and "To A Wild Rose."

Lovers of "good music swelter in the heat and listen good-naturedly to this light stuff. They play bridge on the porch in the evening; to its strains, they dance to it, they hear it on somebodys portable on moonlight swims and picnics. But they will assert their preference when cooler days come, according to local dealers in phonograph records.

Fall days bring the busy round of activities, business club work, music lessons, school with its music memory contests, and these tend to swell the sale of "heavy stuff" to a marked degree. Visiting artists through the winter months stimulate interest.

But this is the "Good old summer time" and Bud and Sis Wichita step around to those catchy little melodies and forget they ever owed a cent!

SHAKE, RATTLE ROLL NO MORE

Shake, rattle and roll was the trinity of activities that seven pastimers were coaxing from a pair of speckled cubes in a local hotel shortly after Tuesday noon when Ranger Sergeant McCormick and Deputy Sheriff's Belcher and Hawkins walked in and "faded" the whole crowd.

The three "laws" were looking for a crowd of poker players they had been tipped were in the hotel and, in passing one of the rooms on the way to the card game, heard strange noises. "Come on, Little Joe," and other parlances of the dice throwing cult gave the game away and the seven players away and the game was raided.

The seven was taken before Justice Gibbs, plead guilty, paid their fines and went their respective ways.

Carrigan Named City Recorder To Succeed George

At a meeting of the city council Tuesday morning Joe B. Carrigan, son of Judge W. H. Carrigan, was appointed city recorder to succeed W. E. George.

Young Carrigan was until recently connected with the Carrigan, Montgomery, Britain, Morgan and King, but recently opened an office of his own in connection with Allen D. Montgomery. The new firm is located in the Staley building.

MAN WANTED HERE CAUGHT AT BRADY

Deputy Sheriff Jack Miller left Tuesday afternoon for Brady to bring L. A. Bundick back to Wichita Falls. Bundick is wanted by the sheriff's department here in connection with the hold-up of C. E. LeForse, near Burkburnett on July 24.

LeForse claimed that he was held up and robbed of $155 on a road near Burkburnett. E. L. Frichel was arrested at the time of the alleged hold-up but officers were unable to locate Bundick until notices were received from Brady.

TRUCK TAKES WICHITAN'S LIFE

Loses His Hold on Side and Wheels Pass Over Body

At a late hour last night funeral services for Morgan Holder, 19, who was instantly killed Tuesday morning when he fell from a truck and the rear wheels passed over his head, had not been made.

The fatal accident occurred at 10:30 o'clock 10 miles out on the Seymour road. Holder was standing on the side of the truck which was loaded with pipe and when the pipe became shifted he leaned over to place it back in place. In doing so his hold on the side of the truck slipped and he fell to the ground under the truck. The front wheels passed over his chest and the hind ones over his head, causing death instantly. More than 13,000 pounds passed over his body. Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs was called and returned the verdict of death by accident."

Young Holder was well known in Wichita Falls having been here for several months in connection with the Holder Brothers' trucking business. He was a member of the local national guard.

He is urvived by his mother, Mrs. Wilma Holder, 2015 Taylor street, five brothers, E. A., C. O., D. L., N. M., and G. A. Holder of this city and one sister, Mrs. J. B. Hart, of Dalhart.

APPEAL FILED BY MRS. ROY TAYLOR

Appeal of Mrs. Roy Taylor of Wichita Falls, from 15-month sentence for possession of intoxicating liquor, was filed in the court of criminal appeals yesterday at Austin, according to advices received here.

COURT WANTED TO CLEAN LINEN

Because a landlady had put nice, clean, fresh linen in the bedroom of a roomer when he engaged an apartment from her and because the lessee in leaving left the aforesaid nice, clean etc. linen in a deplorably soiled state, the woman thought the district attorney should do something about it.

When the irate landlady called the district attorney's office and loudly insisted that the apartment lessee have the linen placed in the nice, fresh, clean condition as before, it was hard for an assistant to convince the woman the case was not serious enough to warrant filing in idstrict court.

The woman was sorrowful and told the assistant the law gave no recourse in matters of importance.
