Earthquake Toll Mounts

Although they claimed that their English was "very bad" one thing that the seven Chileans of the Rotary Club's Group Study Exchange brought with them here and were able to communicate flawlessly was a keen sense of humor.

The seven Chileans were guests at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church. And, ironically, their luncheon appearance here was at a meeting of the Lions Club. The local Rotarians hold their regular meeting each Thursday and the Lions seized upon the opportunity to be hosts for a joint luncheon meeting, with the seven Chileans as guests and participants on an informal program.

Gustavo Alberto Vega, an attorney who lives in Concerpcion, and one of the more talkative members of the party, observed that the group had been in America for nine days, and this was the first time they had been "Thrown to the Lions."

In response to questions, the Chileans expressed doubts that their country ever would be taken over by communism, although it has moved steadily toward a more socialized economy in recent years. A strong, democratic political establishment has endured since 1833, except for a four-year period, and nearly everyone votes, the Chileans said. In fact, Chile is one of the countries which fines eligible voters who fail to cast ballots in elections.

All foreigners are welcome in Chile, said Vega, who pointed out that the country really is an island geographically, with the Andes mountains on the east, a tenacious desert on the north, the South Pole on the south and the Pacific Ocean on the west.

"We are glad to see anybody from any country," Vega declared.

Chileans still have few automobiles compared to Americans, but distribution of television sets is booming, the Chileans said. Even some of the lower income families, who "may not have other commodities," manage to purchase televisions, they said.

Vega said that about 11 per cent of Chile's tax revenue goes for military purposes, and 32 per cent goes for education.

Two football recruiters, one representing a school in the Big Eight Conference and the other from a Southwest Conference School, literally bumped heads here Monday night. The word had gone out that Joe Hale, star lineman on the 1970 SHS football team, was all set to "sign" with Oklahoma. But, by the time "signing" was legal Tuesday morning, Texas Tech was back in the picture and at this writing (Tuesday afternoon) it was not clear exactly where young Hale would pursue his college education.—WACIL McNAIR

MISSION SUCCESSFUL

Moon Tourists Home Safe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Apollo 14's moon heroes, healthy and snug in a quarantine trailer, steamed aboard this carrier toward Samoa today after safely completing man's third lunar landing mission.

From Samoa they'll be flown to the Manned Spacecraft Center near Houston, arriving early Friday. They'll get a glimpse of their families, then continue their isolation against possible moon germs until Feb. 26.

Alan B. Shepard Jr., Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa parachuted to a precision landing in the South Pacific Tuesday, climaxing a lunar voyage which scientists say will greatly enrich man's knowledge of the moon and space agency officials hail as perfect.

The spacemen hit the gentle tropic waters less than four miles from this helicopter carrier and quickly were hoisted aboard by helicopter. They were just seven-tenths of a mile from the landing target.

Hundreds of white-clad sailors cheered and snapped pictures, "Welcome Apollo 14" banners unfurled and a band played "Stars and Stripes Forever" as the three smiling spacemen walked smartly from the copter to the quarantine trailer.

On the remote possibility that they returned harmful germs from the moon, Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa wore protective masks that prevented their exhaling into the surrounding atmosphere.

Dr. William Carpentier, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration flight surgeon who is in the quarantine van with them, reported that a preliminary medical examination showed them all to be in good health.

Also in the trailer is R. H. Culbertson, a NASA engineer who maintains the van systems and helps with cooking and other chores.

After retrieving the astronauts, the New Orleans set sail for Samoa, 880 miles to the north. When the ship is in helicopter range, about noon EST Thursday, the spacemen will be flown to Pago Pago, where they'll transfer into a quarantine van aboard an Air Force transport plane.

The aircraft will ferry them to Houston's Ellington Air Force Base, arriving at 1:30 a.m. Friday. They will go to the Lunar Receiving Laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center to complete the 21-day quarantine period that began the day Shepard and Mitchell left the moon.

The lunar rocks they gathered in the ancient Fra Mauro highlands will go into another section of the laboratory, where scientists eagerly wait to start examination that will take months or years.

Scientists believe the moon walkers may have gathered primordial rocks dating back 4.6 billion years to the creation of the moon.

Scientists hope study of these rocks will unlock many secrets of the birth pangs of the moon, the earth and solar system. All were believed created at the same time in the convulsive coming together of space dust and rocks in a mamoth gas cloud.

Rocks collected in 1969 by the Apollo 11 and 12 crews came from relatively flat and young mare areas and range in age from 3.2 million to 3.7 million years.

Eclipse Causes Stir

NEW YORK (AP) — "There it is:" exploded the shouts from 25 fledgling astronomers as they watched the start of a total lunar eclipse early today.

Tripping over their tripods in a flurry of scientific excitement, the people ran to their telescopes and mounted cameras on the 86th floor observatory of the Empire State Building.

"It looks like a budding yeast cell," Mary Frances Damico, 12, said solemnly as the earth's dark shadow slowly obscured the left side of the moon.

Bundled warmly in a 21 degree chill, the members of the Amateur Observers Society peered through equipment ranging from a $10 camera to a $1,165 six-inch telescope.

The latter item was owned by Barry Dichter, 16, a high school pupil who said he saved his allowance to make the purchase.

Exclamations turned to moans when a passing cloud blocked view of the youngsters but, as the National Weather Service had predicted, the cloud cover was scattered over New York and the moon soon reappeared.

The eclipse was visible, weather permitting, all through the United States and Canada beginning at 12:52 a.m. EST. Totality lasted from 2:03 a.m. until 3:26 a.m. with the moon clearing the earth's shadow completely by 4:37 a.m.

Panel Approves Bush Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Foreign Relations Committee has approved and sent to the full Senate the nomination of George Bush to be U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

The former Texas congressman's nomination is expected to receive prompt approval and he plans to assume his duties at U.N. Headquarters March 1.

Senate Panel OK's Fund Bill

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee quickly approved today a House-passed $34.9 million emergency appropriation bill that everyone hopes will ward off welfare check cuts.

"We've trimmed everything else out of this bill," said Sen. A. M. Aikin of Paris, committee chairman. "We need to get this bill passed as quick as possible to help this critical situation."

State welfare officials have said welfare checks will be cut if the emergency money is not received by March 1 to take care of an unexpected increase in the number of welfare recipients, particularly in aid to families of dependent children.

The $34.9 million emergency appropriations bill includes $3 million earmarked for families with dependant children, $31 million for medical aid to those on welfare rolls, and $625,000 for welfare administrative costs.

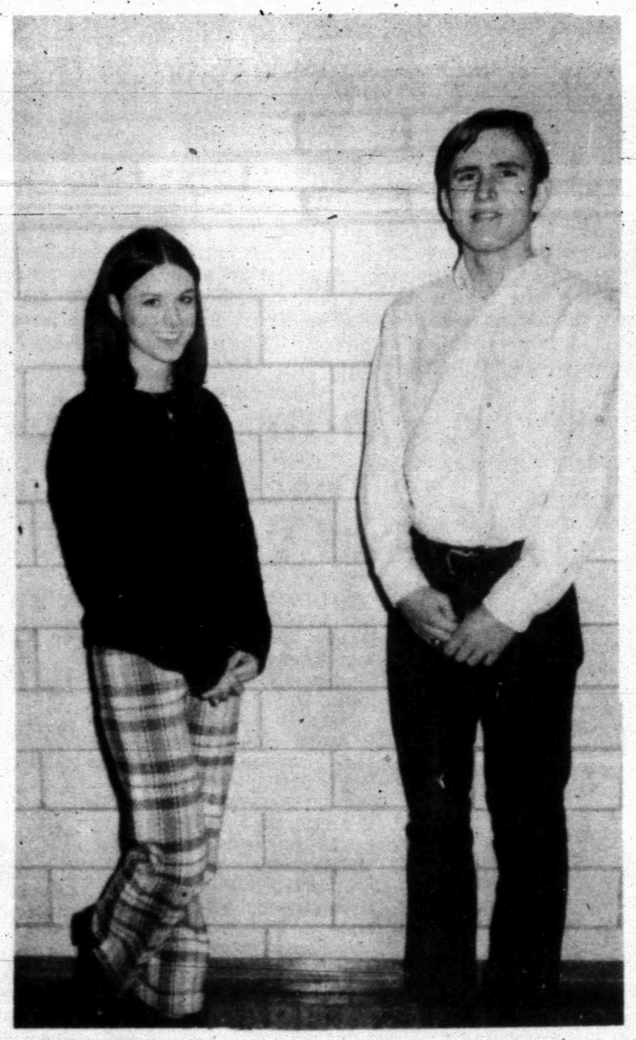

At the regular Senate session, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes planned to lay out the committee-approved Senate bill that would raise the $34.9 million by shuffling priorities in the omnibus tax clearance fund.

Technically the bill, called the "Barnes Plan" by some, would divert $34.9 million that normally would go to the teachers retirement fund between April 1 and Aug. 31. The $34.9 million would be repaid as soon as the legislature gets around to passing an over-all tax bill to cover the state spending the next two years.

The only loss to the retirement fund would be the interest lost on the borrowed money. A similar plan was used in 1961.

In Tuesday's action, the Senate sent to the House, on a 21-8 vote, a proposed constitutional amendment requiring the legislature to meet every year, instead of a regular session on odd-numbered years.

If finally approved by the House and voters the plan would have a 60-day legislative session on even-numbered years devoted mostly to the state budget and then a 120-day session on odd-numbered years for all types of legislation.

TOP DEFENDANTS NEVER TESTIFIED

SEC Cases Rested

By CLAYTON HICKERSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)—The government and the defense rested today after less than an hour of proceedings in the Securities and Exchange Commission civil suit seeking to prevent a crowd of defendants from engaging in stock fraud and manipulation.

U.S. Dist. Judge Sarah T. Hughes then recessed court until afternoon when arguments are expected.

The hearing ended with some of the top defendants never testifying.

Just before the recess, statements were made by lawyer Robert Cady for defendant David Hoover and Robert M. Jones, lawyer for John Osorio to explain why their clients were not present.

Both lawyers said they had been given to understand that the SEC did not intend to introduce live testimony and would only produce affidavits.

Osorio's lawyer said that "since the absence or presence of my client has become an issue in the news," he wanted to explain that he had asked the U.S. marshal if Osorio had been subpoenaed and was informed that he had not.

Osorio then went to attend to his business in New York or somewhere in the East and Jones had not been in touch with him since, said the lawyer.

Before the session began today, Jones said, "I don't know where he (Osorio) is. If I knew, I would try and get him here."

Deputy U.S. Marshal Henry White said Tuesday he did have a subpoena for Osorio, one of the major figures in the suit. He has been unable to serve the papers on Osorio either in Austin, Osorio's home, or in New York City.

In the last moments of the session, Charles P. Storey, lawyer for former Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr, one of the defendants, offered new affidavits. It was not disclosed at once what they contained.

Bob Fultz, lawyer for H. E. McCain, a defendant, also presented an affidavit and the court recessed for five minutes so that SEC lawyer Robert F. Watson could study it.

On his return, Watson said that he had been unable "to produce at this time Mr. Osorio."

South Chilled

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arctic cold stung wide areas of the South today and sent a wave of topcoat temperatures deep into Florida.

Thermometer levels fell to zero as far south as Tennessee well before daybreak. Readings in the middle and lower teens ranged from Mississippi through the Carolinas.

Frost whitened northern and central sections of Florida. Winter vacationers faced early-morning temperatures in the low 40s and upper 30s in the Miami area.

The chill extended up the Eastern Seaboard to New England and west through the entire Mississippi Valley.

A warming trend fanned out of the Southwest, through the Rockies and onto the Plains. The temperature hit 54 Tuesday in Denver and remained above freezing far into the night.

Light snow sifted into the northern tier of states from the upper Mississippi Valley to New England. Rain in the Pacific Northwest was the only other moisture around the country.

Cracked Dam Is Watched

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities kept a wary eye on a cracked reservoir dam and probed wreckage of a ruined hospital for bodies today in the wake of an earthquake that dealt death and destruction to Southern California.

Forty-four deaths were reported, nine of them heart attack victims. More than 1,000 persons were reported injured.

Officials said 15 persons were missing, some buried in the rubble of two collapsed buildings at a Veterans Administration hospital in the hard-hit west end of the populous San Fernando Valley.

Twenty-five bodies had been found in the hospital wreckage — two of them just before dawn today — and 55 rescued.

So heavy and so interlocked were huge chunks of concrete from the virtually leveled three-story structures that rescuers said it might be another day or more before all victims could be reached.

Although cries of "Help me! Help me!" could be heard Tuesday night, authorities said there was little likelihood of more survivors being found. The bodies of five persons were extricated in the night and early morning hours.

The shock at 6:01 a.m. Tuesday was centered 26 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, crumpled much of the concrete facing on the 150-foot-high dam of Van Norman Lakes, the city's largest reservoir, and cracked its main structure of earth fill.

As water experts began draining it, police ordered an evacuation Tuesday night of some 80,000 persons in a 20-square-mile area of the San Fernando Valley which would be in the path of flood waters should the dam break. Officials said that barring a strong new aftershock, it should hold.

The initial shock and lesser aftershocks caused damage likely to be reckoned ultimately in the hundreds of millions. Hundreds of commercial buildings and factories were damaged, along with uncounted homes, highways, bridges and public buildings. Los Angeles County estimated loss to its buildings alone of $125 million, with 427 damaged structurally and 42 evacuated.

Gov. Ronald Reagan surveyed the damage and said, "It's shocking. When you look at this you feel pretty helpless."

Robert E. Noel, a custodian at the threatened reservoir dam, was at his home near the base of the structure when the quake hit.

"It was thunpin' and jumpin' and knocked everything out of our kitchen," he said. "It didn't matter where I put my feet, the floor wasn't there."

A big cleanup already was under way. In downtown Los Angeles and in communities in the San Fernando Valley, whose western edge is but 10 miles from the quake's center, the glass and bricks and crumbled mortar that littered streets and yards were being scooped up and carted away.

Several major freeways remained closed because of crumpled paving or fallen overpasses.

Scientists attributed the temblor to a little-known fault that rates as a pipsqueak. It is the Soledad Canyon fault in the rugged San Gabriel Mountains. A scientist who visited the scene found signs of vertical slippage —one side of the earth fracture higher than the other—but said he could easily step across the crack in the earth.

Aiken Proposes Asia Conference

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON AP — Sen. George D. Aiken called today on the nations of Southeast Asia to convene their own international conference, in Asia, to bring peace to the Indochinese nations of Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam.

He suggested that Russia take part in the conference.

Aiken, of Vermont, the senior Republican in both the Senate and its Foreign Relations Committee, said: "Formal peace among the parties in Indochina will only come as a result of agreement among themselves.

"It cannot be imposed by others," he told the Senate.

Noting various past U.S. and British peace initiatives, Aiken said "the day has passed when the major problems of Asia can be settled in some European city."

Aiken said the conference he seeks should include Japan, Communist China and Russia, adding "I cannot believe that Russia has of late had a vested interest in keeping up the conflict in Indochina."

Shortly before Aiken took the Senate floor to deliver his new appeal, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., charged that "the invasion of Laos makes clear that President Nixon has transformed a one-front war into a three-front war.

"He inherited a war in Vietnam, now he pursues that same war in all of Indochina," the South Dakota Democrat told a news conference called to announce introduction in the House of his proposal to withdraw all U.S. forces from Indochina by Dec. 31. The proposal is already pending in the Senate.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., announced reintroduction of his proposal to provide specific procedures under which an American president can commit U.S. troops abroad in the absence of a declaration of war.

It would provide that the troops be withdrawn if Congress failed to approve the action within a given period of time.

Aiken is a longtime critic of U.S. intervention in Vietnam who proposed in 1966 that the United States declare it had won and then withdraw.

He said today that peace cannot come to Indochina solely through the efforts of the U.S. President and Congress—"even if there existed among us a real consensus about what ought to be done, which is manifestly not so now."

He said that public opinion has curtailed presidential power to control foreign policy but that Congress has failed to come up with constructive alternatives.

"Either there is a new plausible reason for our actions in Southeast Asia or events will inexorably diminish our involvement financially as well as militarily," he said.

Irish Take Legal Moves

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The government took legal moves against the underground Irish Republican Army today, banning uniforms of illegal organizations and making it an offense to withhold information about persons killed in riots.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark's riot-weary government also was studying a ban on funeral processions calculated to stir the political passions of feuding Protestants and Roman Catholics.

The moves announced by Chichester-Clark forbids the wearing of illegal uniforms in public. Mourners at the funerals of two IRA men Tuesday paraded in traditional IRA uniforms and berets.

Protestants, enraged by the sight, fought with Catholics near the coffins.

The regulation against withholding information of riot victims is aimed at republican sympathizers who smuggle bodies of civilians away for private burial after battles with security forces.

The government moved under the Special Powers Act, bitterly opposed by Northern Ireland's Catholic minority. The act includes powers to intern without trial during emergencies.

Fighting broke out during the day Tuesday as the coffins of two fallen Roman Catholics were drawn through Protestant districts, the Irish Republic tricolor covering them and Irish Republican Army members in black berets in escort.

Angry Protestants snatched the flag from one coffin and hurled bricks and bottles at the other one. A policeman was clubbed to the ground before other security forces could intervene.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark announced that his government is considering emergency regulations to insure that corteges "cannot with impunity be given the features of provocative political displays."

Although the IRA is banned in both Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic to the south, its members operate more or less openly in Catholic districts in the North, waging their war to expel the British and unite Protestant Northern Ireland with the Catholic South.

Political and religious leaders throughout the province condemned guerrillas whose land mine killed five civilians on a mountain road Tuesday.

Jack Lynch, prime minister of the republic, also assailed "the evil perpetrators of this malicious and cowardly deed."

In a statement from his Dublin office, Lynch said Ireland would be reunited only by peaceful means and condemned "any group who advocate or use force, whether it be for the reunification of our country or to maintain the status quo."

Police in Belfast said they suspect saboteurs were responsible for a big fire in a timber yard Tuesday. The flames shot more than 100 feet into the air, threatening the harbor district, and more than 70 firemen were called out.

More S-Viets Invade Laos

SAIGON (AP) — Two thousand more South Vietnamese troops crossed into Laos today, and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky threatened a drive into North Vietnam.

U.S. and South Vietnamese helicopters lifted the fresh Saigon troops across the border, raising the number in southern Laos to more than 10,000, field reports said.

Vietnam Press, the government's news agency, quoted Ky as saying that if necessary South Vietnamese forces may cross the 17th parallel into North Vietnam to flush out supply bases in the area.

The agency said Ky made the threat in accepting a gift from Vietnamese pilots who took part in the first bombing of North Vietnam in 1965. Ky is also commander of the South Vietnamese air force and a native of North Vietnam.

Informed sources said several battalions of the South Vietnamese force that pushed into Laos Monday had advanced along east-west Route 9 to areas north and south of Sepone, a main North Vietnamese transshipment point and base area on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

The town 25 miles from the Vietnamese border has been reported virtually deserted, and there were no immediate reports of any fighting there. Nor was there any word of what the South Vietnamese found in the way of enemy supplies. The aim of the operation is to choke off the North Vietnamese troops and supplies moving down the network of jungle trails to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The Saigon government reported two fights today across the border along Route 9. A spokesman said 33 North Vietnamese and six South Vietnamese were killed and 17 South Vietnamese were wounded.

The spokesman said the fighting occurred inside Laos southwest and west of Lang Vei but gave no distances.

Vietnamese casualties since the operation began Monday now total 55 North Vietnamese and 18 Saigon troops killed and 56 South Vietnamese wounded, headquarters said.

The U.S. Command made a belated announcement that a second UH1 helicopter was shot down Monday in southern Laos while supporting the initial drive across the border. A spokesman said two wounded American crewmen were rescued and two are missing.

Four Americans were killed in the crash announced earlier.

Meanwhile, the South Vietnamese command shifted forces to the northeast corner of South Vietnam to guard against any enemy push across that part of the demilitarized zone in retaliation for the South Vietnamese drive into Laos.

The Saigon government said 4,500 to 5,000 of its troops had been moved into the region around Dong Ha, on the coastal strip along the eastern flank of the DMZ.

Gamblers Calm

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Casino hotels along the Las Vegas Strip swayed. Chandeliers moved like pendulums. A few lamps crashed to the floor.

But nobody in this gambling spa got very excited when an earthquake struck Tuesday. Many said they thought it was just another nuclear blast at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada Test Site.

Newcomers Head Cast

ASSISI, Italy (AP) — Film director Franco Zeffirelli has started shooting "Brother Sun, Sister Moon," a study of the early life of St. Francis of Assisi.

Heading the cast when filming began Monday were two British screen newcomers, Graham Faulkner, 24, as St. Francis, and Judi Bowker, 16, as St. Clare. Songs for the movie were composed by Scottish folk singer Donovan.

Susan Confesses Killing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Susan Atkins, in a dramatic witness stand confession, has declared it was she who stabbed actress Sharon Tate and used the victim's blood to scrawl the word "pig" on a door during a nightmarish mass slaughter.

"I killed her, I stabbed her and she fell." Miss Atkins said. "And I stabbed her again. I don't know how many times I stabbed her and I don't know why I stabbed her."

Dark-haired Miss Atkins, 22, her voice husky and sometimes tearful, told jurors Tuesday that members of Charles Manson's hippie-style clan—two of them "stoned" on drugs—stabbed and shot the pregnant Miss Tate and four visitors.

She also said she was the killer of a Malibu musician the previous month.

"I didn't even know these people," she sighed incredulously as she vividly recounted the killings at the Tate mansion.

"She kept pleading with me, 'Please don't kill me.' And I said, 'Shut up. I don't want to hear it.'

"I threw her down on the couch. She said, 'All I want to do is have my baby.'

"Tex came in and looked down at her and said, 'Kill her,' and I killed her."

Charles "Tex" Watson, a member of Manson's clan, was described by another witness at the murder trial as Manson's chief lieutenant in two murder missions—to Miss Tate's hilltop mansion the night of Aug. 9, 1969 and to the home of market owner Leno LaBianca and his wife the next night.

Watson is to stand trial separately.

Miss Atkins, the first defendant to take the stand in the nearly eight-month trial, told her story at the penalty phase in which the jury must decide on life imprisonment or death for the convicted clan leader and three women codefendants, of whom she is one.

She told the jury:

—She was under the influence of LSD and Watson was on the drug STP at the time of the slayings.

—The state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, was the true planner of the killings, choosing the Tate home because she had tried to buy drugs there once and was "burned" by people who took her money.

—Miss Atkins—not convicted Robert Beausoleil, 22—killed musician Gary Hinman a few weeks before the Tate slayings. She said "I did it for love" because Hinman had threatened Manson.

—Defendant Leslie Van Houten, 21, went along on the Hinman killing and later went on the LaBianca mission.

Mayor Charges Blackmail

HEREFORD, Tex. (AP) — Mayor James H. Sears has complained to Gov. Preston Smith and cities that are members the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission that the commission is "on an obvious course to blackmail those cities and counties which will not join."

Neither Hereford nor Deaf Smith County belong to the commission that covers 25 counties and their officials have indicated they have no plan to do so.

Mayor James H. Sears said in a letter to Smith that the executive director of the planning commission made it clear in an area meeting last week that it not only would not help, but would turn its back on cities and counties not belonging to the organization.

"We are sure that this was not your original intention when these bodies were formed nor does it seen to us to be in any way justified," wrote Sears.

At the area's meeting of the commission, Executive Director Ernest Clark of Amarillo said that unless cities and counties join the regional commission—by paying annual dues of 4 cents per capita—they soon will find it hard to win approval for any projects for which state or federal approval or funding is needed.

Winter Elegance With Shortcut Desserts

Dazzle your family (and company, too, of course) with sumptuous, nutritious desserts which can be made in a jiffy. What's the secret? Start with bakery products from your grocer's shelves and add a quick touch of imagination for your own "creation" with that homemade look.

The American Bakers Association suggests two desserts using store-bought products which are taste-tested family pleasers — "Meringue-Nut Pumpkin Pie" and "Cherry-Almond Crumble."

The "Meringue-Nut Pumpkin Pie" is a standard pumpkin pie covered with a meringue to which brown sugar and pecans have been added for a unique flavor. Meringues are simple to make and can dress up any kind of dessert. This pie is best when prepared shortly before serving time, however, since the meringue is delicate.

Follow these tips for successful meringues: Use clean, grease-free utensils; have egg whites at room temperature; use just the amount of sugar specified in the recipe to prevent "weeping"; add sugar a little at a time to dissolve it easier; spread meringue from the edges of the pie to the center in order to seal edges; and, after baking, cool the pie in a draft-free, warm place to avoid shrinking.

The "Cherry-Almond Crumble" calls for pound cake from the supermarket bakery shelf as the key ingredient. In this recipe, the pound cake is crumbled into small pieces and layered in a baking dish with canned cherry pie filling. This easy dessert can be made ahead of time. It is delicious served warm either as it is or with ice cream or whipped cream.

MERINGUE-NUT PUMPKIN PIE

3 egg whites, at room temperature
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1-3 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 store-bought 8- or 9-inch pumpkin pie
3 tablespoons finely chopped pecans

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy. Add vanilla; then add the sugar, a little at a time, beating well after each addition. Whip until meringue is glossy and forms stiff peaks. Place mounds of meringue completely over top of pie making sure it touches the inner edge of the crust all around. Sprinkle pecans evenly over meringue. Bake at 425 degrees for about 5 to 8 minutes, or until meringue is a golden color. Serve when pie has cooled.

CHERRY-ALMOND CRUMBLE

1 (12 oz.) loaf pound cake
2 cans (1 lb. 6 oz. each) cherry pie filling
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 package (4 oz.) silvered almonds
2 tablespoons light brown sugar
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

Crumble pound cake into bite-size pieces. Combine cherry pie filling and almond extract. Place half of the cherry mixture in a 9-inch square pan or a 2½-quart casserole. Cover with half of the pound cake crumbs and half of the almonds. Repeat with a second layer. Sprinkle brown sugar evenly on top and dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes, or until cake is browned on top. Serve warm as it is, or with whipped topping or ice cream. Makes 8 servings.

Bread Boosters

Instant Bread Sticks

Keep extra frankfurter buns in your freezer to make quickie bread sticks which can dress up any meal. Just split frankfurter buns into fourths, lengthwise. Brush with melted butter or margarine and sprinkle poppy seeds or sesame seeds over top. Place on a coookie sheet and toast in 350 degrees oven for about 10 minutes or until the bread sticks are browned on top.

Sweet Bread Pudding

1 package (3 oz.) egg custard mix
2 cups milk
1 package (10 oz.) store-bought honey pecan buns or other sweet rolls
¼ cup raisins

Combine custard mix and milk in a saucepan and cook according to package directions. Cut top layer (about ½ inch thick) from tops of buns; reserve. Cut remaining buns into cubes or small pieces. Add these and raisins to custard mixture. Pour into 1½ quart casserole. Arrange reserved buns on top. Chill in refrigerator about 1 to 2 hours or until custard is set. Serve as it is or with cream. Makes 6 servings.

Quick Cheese Puffs

Separate store-bought cloverleaf rolls into sections. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese. Toast under the broiler to brown. Makes quick hors d'oeuvers and also a crunchy accompaniment with a fruit cup.

Dip well-drained canned pineapple slices in fritter batter and deep-fat fry until brown; serve with ham to company.

Mrs. McWhirter Speaks At 20th Century Club

The 20th Century Club met Tuesday Feb. 2 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Mrs. Charles Tyer presided in the absence of the president. The district meeting in Colorado City March 23-24 was discussed and plans made to attend. Mrs. J. Nelson Dunn will be presented as a Pioneer Club Woman.

To open the program Mrs. Mabel Huckabee led in the reading of the club collect. Mrs. Dunn was leader for the program "Knowledge Makes For Better Citizenship." She said in part, "informed citizens are better citizens. Apoletic citizens or the silent majority are not contributing to our country as they should.

To better understand our world was the part of the program presented by Mrs. Earl McWhirter. A native of Germany, Mrs. McWhirter told of conditions there under the rule of Adolf Hitler. She said she referred to Hitler as her grandfather because her parents had to have his permission to marry. No one could marry without official concent.

Mrs. McWhirter showed pictures from two scrap books about Hitler. The books were printed without pictures and the pictures, many of them unnoticable to the public, were collected with great difficulty. The books were the property of Father Boyer of St. John's Episcopal Church. They depicted Hitler's start in politics and his rise to power. The older people as well as the youth pledged themselves to Hitler personally. Not to their country or to their flag. His magnetism was so great he had everyone hypnotized before they realized what kind of person he really was. Then it was too late.

This points up the danger of electing officials without knowing something of their background and beliefs. This very interesting and informative program should make us more aware of all that is involved in good citizenship.

Mrs. Lester Moore was hostess for the meeting.

Following the business meeting, Betty Palmer gave a presentation entitled "Let's Talk on the Radio and Over Television."

It was announced that members would meet Thursday, to decorate for the Valentine Dance.

Refreshments were served by Trina Taylor and Peggy Koonsman.

Registration Set For Gore Workshop

Registration begins for the Ken Gore, of Glaucester, Mass., outdoor painting workshop, to be held in Snyder May 3-7.

Mr. Gore's studio is the outdoors, whether it be the stormy coast, autumn, stormy woods of New England, or the arid southwest or Mexican desert. Wherever it is, he completes a painting on location.

The confirmed on-the-spot painter goes directly to nature for his subjects. He paints in oils using the palette knife, acheiving vivid colors and vibrant contrasts. Nature tells this artist what to paint.

Mr. Gore says "I will strive to teach variety in painting, in shapes, textures, design, color and composition. A painting should be exciting, variety is what gives it excitement."

Registration for the workshop is Feb. 11-25. Mr. Gore will conduct 3 classes per day. A student may take one or all three classes. Classes will be limited. Persons interested are urged to register immediately to insure a place.

STRANGE!

BUT AT A PRICE

Burns Is Expected To Cooperate With Nixon

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Throughout history, mankind has seen the failure of one offensive maneuver after another—in politics, war, sports, economics—because somebody was taken for granted or something was assumed to be so.

To the point: Will the Nixon administration win the cooperation of the Federal Reserve and its chairman, Arthur Burns, in shooting for goals which some authorities fear could contribute to more instability?

The Fed regulates the money supply, which is the essential ingredient in Nixon's economic plan. In the past year, it permitted a growth in money of 5.5 per cent, a figure it thought to be large enough for recovery but small enough to avoid setting off a more dangerous inflation.

Most authorities feel that a higher rate will be needed in 1971. Will it be forthcoming, especially in view of the Fed's well known independence, its obligation to think economics rather than politics, and its fear of inflation?

Public statements so far indicate that cooperation will be forthcoming, but at a price.

Following release of the President's budget message, Burns indicated that he felt the money would be available, and he specifically praised the President's "vigorous anti-inflationary policy" in opposing a big steel price increase.

But this is the same man who has used several forums recently to plug for other aggressive measures in order to keep wages and prices in a noninflationary area.

Specifically, he has listed for consideration a raft of possibilities that could very well be implemented in coming months. The list is long and detailed and obviously carefully arrived at. It includes:

Liberalization of import quotas on oil and other commodities, more vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws, and expansion of Federal training programs to increase the supply of skilled workers.

Also, "The creation of a nationwide scale of local productivity councils to seek ways of increasing efficiency, a more aggressive pace in establishing computerized job banks, or the liberalization of depreciation allowances to stimulate plant modernization..."

Or, he continued in a speech last December at Pepperdine College, Los Angeles, "suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act to help restore order in the construction trades, or modification of the minimum wage laws in the interest of improving job opportunities for teen-agers, or the establishment of national building codes to break down barriers to the adoption of modern production techniques in the construction industry."

And finally, "We might bring under an incomes policy also, the establishment of a high-level Price and Wage Review Board which, while lacking enforcement power, would have broad authority to investigate, advise, and recommend on price and wage changes."

Monetary and fiscal policies, he said so directly that there is no mistaking his mind, "cannot by themselves now be counted on to restore full employment without at the same time releasing a new problem, "namely, persistent inflation in the face of substantial unemployment..." Therefore, new measures are demanded.

These measures, he suggested, "can, of course, be determined best by the President and the Congress." But to some extent, it appears, some preselection has already been made by Arthur Burns, who is in a position to dictate.

It is significant that he capitalized "Price and Wage Review Board," prematurely raising its status from that of a mere suggestion. In naming it, he could in effect be ordering it.

And it is equally worthy of note that while the administration at first received the concept cooly, the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Paul McCracken, told a congressional committee on Feb. 7:

"I would certainly not exclude" the possibility of the administration embracing the idea of a wage-price review board.

Junior Editors Quiz on UMBRELLAS

QUESTION: When did the umbrella first come into use, and where?

ANSWER: Umbrellas were originally designed for protection from sun, not rain. The Latin word umbra meant shade, and from this came umbrella — a little shade. The countries bordering the Mediterranean Sea were hot and dry, with a fierce sun, and shade was a great luxury. From very early times, such as the Egyptian and Babylonian, pharaohs and other important people had slaves hold sunshades over them, and these became the first umbrellas. Greece and Rome continued this practice. But as the Roman Empire began to spread North into wetter regions, Romans discovered the umbrella was even better protection against rain. By the 1700s, umbrellas were used throughout Europe for this purpose. By the early 1800s, too, the parasol had come into fashion; this was a true sunshade. The name derived from the Italian parasole, combining the words parare, to ward off, with sole, or sun. Wherever milady went, she carried her parasol to guard her precious lily-white complexion from the sun. We still think of parasols as light sunshades used by women and of umbrellas as larger, used to ward off the rain.

Waitresses Lingo Not Appetizing

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — Shakespeare's rose by any other name might smell as sweet, but some of the names that British waitresses have for the day's delicacies can put a visiting chap off his feed for weeks.

The menu of any semiposh place may glitter with Continental elegance—words like "entremets" and "farinaceous" and "legumes varies" — but such pretentions vanish once the little lady with the pad and pencil puts in an appearance.

"Are you taking the set, Luv?" she briskly inquires, pencil poised truculently over the bill of fare.

The set is the day's set menu, the table d'hote from which there is no textual deviation without paying the price.

"Luv" is a unisex form of address, more informal than sir or madame and a trifle less intimate than "ducks."

Adventures in living language really begin when the customer strikes out for himself into the columns of a la carte, or what the waitress dismisses as "not on the set."

Steaks, for instance, are usually available in two cuts: "rump" or "fillet," the later is invariably pronounced to rhyme with "swill it." They come under the generic heading of grills, as in the accusatory question, "are you having a grill?"

Even so, they sound more appetizing than "bangers and mash," which are sausages and mashed potatoes, or "boiled gammon," which is neither fish nor fowl but ordinary, everyday ham; or steak and kidney pie.

Those not having a grill might be inclined toward "a fry," sometimes called "a fry up": fried bacon, ham or sausage—oops bangers—served with eggs any style, and, in the Midlands, with "drippings," fat left in the refrigerator from yesterday's roast and spread on bread.

"Now what about a veg, Luv?"

Procrastinate too long between the braised celery and the sauteed cabbage, and she's apt to suggest "some luv'erly swedes and sprouts," which are turnips and brussels sprouts, a culinary curiosity that is flogged off in the swankiest London clubs as "good, honest British food."

At the end of every meal comes the question that haunts the calorie counters.

"Are you having a pud?" The word rhymes with "hood," rather than "mud," and designates any dessert from a "stodge," a pudding made with suet, to "stamed sultana," a sort of sponge cake, and "trifle," a combination of cake, pudding, custard and fruit drowned in cream.

Speed Blamed In Derailment

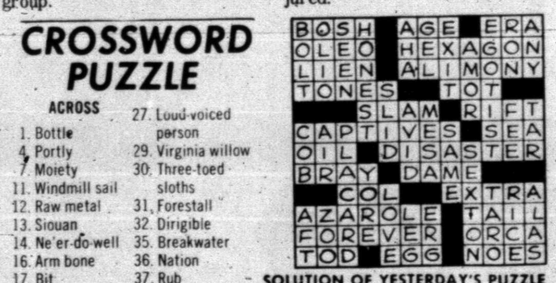

KAUFBEUREN, Germany (AP) — A state prosecutor today blamed excessive speed on a curve for the derailment of the Munich-Zurich express, which caused one of the worst train wrecks in West German history.

Shortly after the three cars of the express spilled over on an adjacent track Tuesday night 48 miles southwest of Munich, a four-car local smashed into the wreckage. Chief Prosecutor Felix Mottl said the express had been making 78 miles an hour on the curve, 30 m.p.h. more than the speed limit.

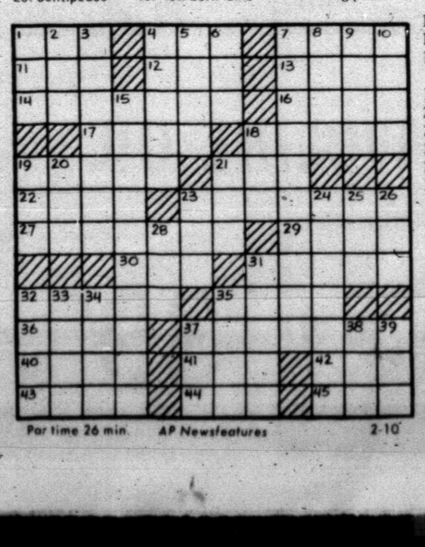

The state police said 30 people were killed and 34 injured, 26 of them seriously. They said an earlier announcement of 36 dead was due to incorrect hospital reports.

The casualties included one American killed and one injured.

Tech Recruiters Sign Top Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas Tech coach Jim Carlen looked over his long list of signed Texas schoolboy football prospects Tuesday and said "I think we're going to have a fine recruiting year."

Carlen added "This is a good start... We haven't concentrated on any one position. We're after athletes. Our recruiting is geared more to athletic ability than position. Every kid we've signed is definitely a football player."

Three of the top 16 players in the state went to the Red Raiders Tuesday on the first day Southwest Conference schools could sign prospects.

"Blue-chippers" Gary Monroe, a defensive lineman from Amarillo Palo Duro; linebacker Tom Dyer of Dallas Highland Park; and Jim Frasure, an offensive center from Houston Westchester, signed with Carlen.

Joey Aboussie, the excellent running back from Wichita Falls, Fred Currin, an end from Wichita Falls, and Dedrick Terveen, a linebacker, from Donna, are three prime players who remained unsigned after the first day. Aboussie, whose brother attended Oklahoma, is being heavily wooed by the Sooners.

Texas and Arkansas, as is their usual practice, also did well in the recruiting wars.

The Longhorns signed blue-chip tackle Mike Crowell, a 6-foot-2, 220-pounder from Plano while Arkansas nailed blue-chip tackle Jon Rhiddlehoover of Abilene Cooper. Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles also signed Joplin, Mo., All-State tackle Lee King and teammate quarterback Tom Warren.

Southern Methodist also bagged a blue-chip tackle in Henry Sheppard of Cuero.

Texas Christian grabbed off heavily sought running back Mike Luttrell of Fort Worth Western Hills.

Southern Coach Resigns Post

HOUSTON (AP) — Al Benefield, Texas Southern University head football coach who lifted the Tigers from a 4-3-2 record in 1969 to a 6-3 showing in one season, has asked to be relieved of his job.

Benefield, who never returned from Jacksonville, Fla., after the Christmas holidays, listed personal reasons not related to his coaching or teaching duties from his decision to quit, a TSU spokesman said.

"He did an effective job as head coach and we'll" miss him, especially the athletes who served under him," said athletic director David D. Rains, who had recommended Benefield for the coaching position.

Marseilles Home Base For Heroin

By BERNARD GAVZER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

MARSEILLES (AP) — The front line of America's battle against drug addiction is 3,746 miles removed from the streets where peddlers sell heroin.

It is in Marseilles, the legendary thieve's paradise, that the world's most facile and expert heroin processors have established themselves.

In their clandestine laboratories, morphine from the Turkish opium poppy is made into heroin, a white powder fetching 40 times its weight in gold and containing a key to promised ecstacy for which hundreds of thousands of Americans have lusted and lost.

Within the last 18 months, American law enforcement has concentrated on a new strategy: attack heroin addiction by wiping out its manufacture.

What, specifically, is the United States doing to crush this vital processing Stage? How, indeed, does it all work?

"Our goal is to stop the processing of morphine base into heroin," says John T. Cusack, who operates out of Paris as the head of a 20-agent team of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs—BNDD. His men are in London, Paris, Marseilles, Barcelona, Rome, Milan, Frankfurt, Istanbul, Beirut, Ankara, Kabul.

"We are interested in getting Turkey and other opium poppy cultivators to stop growing the poppy. We are interested in breaking the flasks and the tubes and paraphernalia of laboratories and putting them out of business. We are interested in putting the cuffs on traffickers, locking them up and throwing away the key."

Twenty men are expected to do this?

"Well, we could use more," Cusack says, with the tired tone of a man who has said it 10,000 times and no one has listened anyway. "But that's what it is right now. France is a key to the thing. It isn't the whole key, but as of today, without the French labs no junkie in the United States could count on getting any quality heroin."

By almost every estimate and source, it is generally agreed that 80 per cent of the heroin used in the United States is from the opium poppy grown in Turkey. Electronic and chemical testing of heroin seized in the states has been matched quite often to precise soil and plant conditions of specific opium-growing provinces in Turkey.

Between the lot, they produce and introduce into America anywhere from 3,500 to 5,000 kilos of heroin a year. A kilo is a bit over two pounds.

While Turkey is the heartland of poppy agriculture, Marseilles is the principal packager.

Marseilles. Home of three of BNDD's agents.

In practice, the BNDD agents gather information. Says one: "It's as simple as that. To get information, we have to sleep with crooks. We have to think like them, eat like them. We live with street people, with whores and hustlers and easybuck artists and sharpies and guys who'd slit your throat on the street."

From a vantage point looking down upon the Old Port of Marseilles, an agent pointed beyond the seawall protecting this third largest port in Europe from the windswept Mediterranean and with a sweep of his arm indicated the endless file of freighters and passengers ships coming from and going to the world's ports.

"This is where our job starts," he says. "Actually, you can figure it's bound to be our baby from the minute some guy turns the opium into a morphine base. You could have 12 million tons of morphine base and whistle Dixie as far as making a cent out of the good ole U.S. of A. You've got to make it look pretty and pearly white. And that means bringing it here. And that means smugglers."

When it comes to figuring out where to hide morphine base, some of these smugglers show pure genius. The all-out champs —at least in the eyes of their foes—are the Turks.

"They can actually build the stuff into a bulkhead or a bottom and you absolutely could never find it without cutting the entire ship apart. They've cut open bulkheads, loaded 100 or more kilos into an opening, welded it shut and repainted it so you'd never know it was there," says Cusack. "That's one of the reasons we've never made a score on a ship itself, only coming off.

Humans, of course, are very attractive conveyances because they have the capacity to see potential danger and maybe unload the cargo or talk their way through tough situations. Corsets, belts and suspenders of all sorts have been used to carry cargos of 10 or so kilos through Customs at airports and harbors and train stations.

Heroin has been packaged into canned goods, hidden in religious and art objects, sealed in pharmaceutical shipments, disguised as lollipops and lugged around in false bottoms of thousands of suitcases and trunks.

Whatever the barriers, however determined and dedicated the surveillance, the fact is that there are 1,001 ways to get morphine base to the key processing center. Marseilles in this sense is not the geographical entity shown on the map, but the entire Mediterranean coastline from Nice to the port and beyond.

"When we can find a clandestine lab," says the agent, "we can practically taste it. You gotta appreciate that putting a lab out of business is better than busting 20 traffickers. That's big. I mean you can taste it."

Agents were in on the seizure of two such labs. On a trip to visit one, which had been set up in a villa in Plan de Cuques, about 16 miles from Marseilles, one told of the months that went into trailing the chemist.

"We had good information on him, and we knew at least one car that he used," he says. "With the French, we began to make surveillances. We'd lose him in French traffic day after day."

Finally, they found the lab in a very smart-looking, modern home on the edge of Mimet. Both agents were with the French police on the raid. Inside were three men at work turning morphine base into heroin. The production capability was 15 kilos a week. That 15 kilos turned into heroin represented $52,500 to $75,000, Marseilles price.

The economic life of a kilo of heroin shows why it is such an alluring product for ambitious and greedy entrepaeneurs. As morphine base in Istanbul, the kilo fetches $200 to $300. There mere safe transport from Turkey to France boosts its value to $800 to $1,100. Churned through a clandestine lab in the Marseilles region it emerges as heroin and has a price tag of $3,500 to $5,000.

Once it reaches the United States, it brings $9,000 to $12,000, wholesale. The ranges in price relate to quality, the amount involved in the deal, prior relationships, future business.

Solid information can produce sensational results. The capture of an ambassador, who used his diplomatic privilege to get through Customs without a search, produced a heroin shortage that is described as a "panic" on the streets of New York. When a large seizure is made, the street junkies know that things will be tight, prices may rise, quality may become very questionable. But the body that needs the dope, and needs it several times a day, day after day, doesn't respond to explanation and isn't soothed by a mind that tells it the panic will end. That body needs it no matter what the price, and it hurts. It hurts bad.

There is a general opinion that at any particular moment there is as much heroin in New York as there is in the Marseilles region. To meet U.S. needs, heroin makers must process 70 to 80 kilos a week. So when a clandestine lab, such as one at 22 Chemin Morgiou in Marseilles, is put out of business, it has impact on the total production.

"This place was a big operation," explains an agent. "It was producing 25 kilos a week. To make sure what was going on, we tried all sorts of things. We checked on the big sales and deliveries of acetic anhydride, which has to be used to make morphine into heroin. Then they have to use a lot of heat, so we'd check the gas and electric meters or try to get a line on fuel bills. We found where they had a jumper around the meter so that it didn't register what was used."

This particular villa, when it was discovered to be a lab, produced irony because it is on the main road to Beaumettes Prison and police and detectives by the scores would pass it very day.

The raid at a mountainside villa near Mimet produced a sensation of its own because one of the thee men seized there was a Corsican who had a little red stripe in the lapel of his suit —the sign of the Legion of Honor.

The Corsican monopoly on the processing business grew out of quick and unerring understanding of the money potential behind drug trafficking after World War II.

At the war's end, chemists and scientists who survived German concentration camps and slave labor camps were floating about Europe seeking work. Some of these emigres, possessing outstanding skills, were brought into heroin processing. The Corsicans were apt and attentive students. They did not become chemists in the sense that the emigres were chemists. They were heroin makers. And as the emigres vanished—some by attrition, some pushed out of the way—the Corsicans took hold.

While in years past the French tended to become defensive about the attention Americans were giving to clandestine labs, there has been an observable change over the past months.

IRS Career Opportunities

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: Please discuss a career with the Internal Revenue Service. – B M , Memphis what job would you like to see explored in this column?

The Internal Revenue Service offers a variety of positions, both at the professional and clerical levels. IRS now employs about 60,000, of whom about 4,500 work in Washington; the others are employed in hundreds of offices throughout the country.

IRS is looking for new employees, but recruitment needs generally are greatest in large urban, industrialized areas. New employees are assigned where needed, although as much consideration as possible is given to the employee's choice of locality. All jobs are civil service, with employment based solely on qualifications. (The only position women can't obtain is that of special agent, which requires the bearing of firearms.)

ALMOST every major college field of study has some application to the work of the IRS. The majority of positions can best be filled by students who have completed majors in accounting, business administration, finance, economics, criminology, police administration and law. However, hundreds of jobs are filled each year by young college men and women who major in political science, public administration, education, liberal arts, and other fields. With the exception of positions requiring a law degree, all jobs may be filled by persons who don't have a college degree, but who do have the appropriate equivalent experience.

FRINGE BENEFITS are good, and include a liberal vacation allowance: during your first 3 years, you get 2 1/2 weeks; after 3 years, 4 weeks; after 15 years, 5 weeks.

HERE'S A SAMPLE of professional level jobs – but salary figures are somewhat higher today. This is because, at this writing, the precise application of the Jan. 1971 Federal salary hike – about 6 percent – had not been determined for all IRS employees. (There are several special salary scales, higher than the regular civil service scale, determined by unmet recruitment needs.)

REVENUE AGENT. This is a professional accounting position where you work with businessmen, accountants, attorneys and taxpayers in all walks of life to determine correct Federal Tax liabilities. You normally reach the journeyman level, GS-11 within 2 1/2 years. About 56 percent of revenue agents earn $11,900-$16,500/year; over 33 percent earn $16,700-30,000. Requires 4 years of college, including 24 hours in accounting and related subjects.

REVENUE OFFICER. This is the "collector's" job where you deal principally with people outside the office to satisfy delinquent tax obligations. You may take enforcement action when necessary. You usually advance to GS-9 ($9,800-12,800) within 2 years; about 40 percent of revenue officers are GS-9's. Another 50 percent have advanced to jobs starting at $11,900 to $15,600. Revenue officer supervisory and managerial jobs pay $14,100-25,500, and a few top positions go up to $30,000. Requires college degree – a variety of acceptable majors.

ESTATE TAX ATTORNEY. You examine Federal estate and gift tax returns, determining value, ownership of interests and taxability. You work with trust officers, bank officials, attorneys, executors and court officials; review data and legal documents, prepare detailed reports, make important decisions based on tax rulings, laws, regulations and court decisions. Requires a law degree and admission to the bar. You will normally be at GS-11 ($11,900-15,400) by the end of the first year. Higher promotions are made as vacancies occur.

WHERE TO WRITE. For more information on above or other IRS jobs – tax auditor, internal auditor, alcohol and tobacco tax inspector, special agent, clerical jobs – write for free booklets to: National Recruitment Coordinator, Internal Revenue Service, Room 1508, 1111 Constitution Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20224.

US Faces Energy Crisis

AUSTIN (AP) — There is an impending energy crisis facing the Unitd States, a top oil company executive told the Senate and House committees on oil and gas Tuesday.

Dr. Charles F. Jones, vice chairman of the board of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., told the joint session of the committees that on a short term basis, this involves shortages of available supplies of coal, natural gas and nuclear power.

On a long term basis, Jones said, a national energy demand will double in 15 years. This dictates that every means must be explored to develop domestic energy sources.

"Although the demand for Texas oil and natural gas will remain high, the state may not retain its No. 1 petroleum ranking unless steps are taken to create a more favorable economic climate for discovery of new reserves," he said.

The attention should be focused on three major areas to stop the declining discovery rates of oil and gas in the state, he said.

These are:

—Increased exploration for additional crude oil reserves.

—Increased recovery of existing oil reserves.

—Improvement of the natural gas outlook by additions of new reserves and having the Federal Power Commission allow gas to function in its true competitive market by lifting present day price restrictions.

A full-grown white tiger can measure 8½ feet from nose to tail and can weigh 400 to 500 pounds.

Panel Says Anti-Riot Law Legal

DALLAS (AP) — A three-judge federal panel has ruled that the Texas anti-riot law is constitutional even though it might slightly limit the rights of speech and assembly.

The panel ruled on the statute Tuesday and dismissed the complaint by James Rudolph Murley, who was arrested last May following a civil disturbance at Lee Park in Dallas.

Murley had challenged the 17-month-old law that makes it a felony to interefere with a policeman, fireman, doctor, nurse or ambulance attendant during a riot or civil disturbance.

Murley, charged with interferring with a policeman, said the law was unconstitutional because of vagueness and overbredth.

"It is clear to this court that the Texas Legislature did not intend for constitutionally-protected speech or assembly to be an offense under this statute," the panel said.

"The legislature went to great pains to define the terms used in its statute, and statutes in similar language have been upheld as not violative of protected First Amendment activities."

U.S. Circuit Judge Joe Ingraham of Houston and U.S. Dist. Judge Joe E. Estes of Dallas wrote the main opinion. U.S. Dist. Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas wrote a concurring opinion.

"The Texas statute does further a substantial state interest and does so in a manner that limits speech and assembly only to the extent necessary in furtherance of the governmental interest in preserving the peace and protecting individual freedom," the panel said.

Tire Bill Approved

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would require car tires to have at least 1-16th of an inch of tread to pass the annual vehicle inspection has been approved by the Senate jurisprudence committee.

The committee gave unanimous approval to the bill Tuesday and sent it to the Senate floor for debate.

Also included in the bill, sponsored by Sen. O. H. "Ike" Harris of Dallas, are inspections of directional signals and windshields and reinspections of vehicles or trailers after they have been damaged.

Joe White, Department of Public Safety technician, showed a film in which a car with good tires took 160 feet to stop on wet pavement at 40 miles an hour, whereas a car with slick tires took 225 feet.

"Tires have been a leading factor in vehicle defects for a number of years," White said.

Sen. William Moore of Bryan said the way to reduce automobile insurance rates was through the Harris bill.

The committee also approved a bill by Sen. Murray Watson of Waco that would allow a man accused of a felony to waive the right to a grand jury indictment in non-capital cases.

Watson said accused persons sometimes are unable to make bond and have to stay in jail up to six months waiting for the next grand jury to convene.

A subcommittee approved and sent to the full committee a bill by Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas that would make common law marriages between underage persons voidable.

McKool said an attorney general's opinion on the family code passed by the 1969 Legislature held that boys between 16 and 19 and girls between 14 and 18 could file with county clerks a declaration of marriage without their parents' consent.

Grocers Donate Food To Needy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Many grocers closed after Tuesday's earthquake left aisles cluttered with toppled cans and boxes. Some of them donated goods to needy families at evacuation centers.

Don W. Campbell, supervisor of a dairy drive-in, told a customer:

"We don't have a drop of milk left; we gave it all away. All except the ice cream. People don't want ice cream when something like this happens."

Senate War Critics Seek Withdrawal Declaration

WASHINGTON (AP) — War critics on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, contending the Nixon administration is vague about long-range plans in Vietnam, are seeking a declaration that all American forces will be withdrawn at some date in the future.

Backing for such a statement of intent appears gaining at the expense of a proposal by Sens. George McGovern, D-S. D., and Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., to end U.S. involvement by Dec. 31.

However, Secretary of State William P. Rogers, after telling the committee Tuesday the current South Vietnamese invasion of Laos will help speed U.S. withdrawal, said such a declaration is unnecessary.

"The President has already said it," Rogers told newsmen.

"Our policy contemplates a withdrawal of all our forces from South Vietnam," Rogers said.

Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, authors of congressional bans on U.S. ground-combat troops in Laos, Cambodia and Thailand, proposed that Congress and President Nixon join in a declaration for total withdrawal to ease mistrust over administration policies.

Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Church said Rogers became vague when pressed on whether the United States places troop withdrawals ahead of maintaining the South Vietnamese government.

"The answer always is that he thinks we can have both," Church said.

Although Javits and Church supported the McGovern-Hatfield amendment a year ago, both indicated reservations this time. "There aren't the votes in Congress to legislate a (termination) date," Church said.

The switch in goals from specific limits on U.S. operations in Indochina to a broader statement of purpose coincided with the generally muted reaction to the Laotian operation.

Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, senior Republican on Foreign Relations, who had been critical of the blackout surrounding the operation's early stages, said after Rogers' appearance: "I am inclined to believe it will work."

But Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., committee chairman, said he still has "grave questions about it."

Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, in their Capitol Hill appearances Tuesday, emphasized Nixon administration optimism the operations in Laos and Cambodia will assure U.S. troop withdrawals will continue after the May 1 target of 284,000 is reached.

Laird, who made separate appearances before the Senate and House Armed Services committees, said the U.S.-backed attacks are running on schedule and will enable the administration to meet or beat the plan to withdraw 50,000 more American troops by May 1.

"The fact is," Rogers told reporters "we will have Americans by and large out of combat roles by the middle of this year."

Troop Strength Under Estimated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of U.S. ground-combat troops renaining in South Vietnam after May 1 is likely to total more than 100,000 men, rather than the 40,000 to 45,000 predicted by the White House.

The difference lies in the way the term "ground-combat troops," or infantrymen, is used.

The White House appears to distinguish between such troops when they are assigned a formal ground-combat responsibility and when, in a security role, they are safeguarding American air, artillery and logistics elements supporting the South Vietnamese army.

The distinction was made Tuesday by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler when he confirmed President Nixon has been projecting the 40,000 to 45,000 ground-combat figure by May 1 in briefings connected with new allied attacks on enemy bases in Laos.

Ziegler said the figure does not include infantry security forces protecting American bases.

With little apparent success, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has been trying since last spring to prepare the nation for the continued presence of a substantial number of U.S. ground-combat troops in Vietnam after the fighting is handed over to the South Vietnamese, probably by midsummer.

Laird had said the second phase of the administration's Vietnamization program—in which the American military will play only a supporting role for the South Vietnamese—"does anticipate that combat forces will remain in Vietnan."

As Laird explained:

"They will be assigned a security mission in order to protect the safety and security of the American forces that are remaining in a support role.

"I would assume that the security forces would constitute from 45 to 50 per cent of the forces left in Phase II ...."

Assuming the combat mission is transferred fully to the South Vietnamese by July 1, U.S. forces are expected to be reduced to 260,000 or fewer, including as many as 130,000 combat soldiers in a security role.

Shifting the combat role to the South Vietnamese would mean remaining U.S. units would no longer be assigned tactical areas of responsibility but would protect artillery fire-support bases, military airfields used by American planes and supply depots.

FTC Accuses Two Mail Order Firms Of Deceit

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission today accused two of the nation's largest mail order firms, Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., and Spiegel, Inc., of deceiving customers on credit terms.

In a proposed complaint, the FTC said the two Chicago-based firms had failed to make disclosures required by the federal Truth-in-Lending Act and had misled customers in advertisements of credit conditions.

Montgomery Ward, which operates stores and a mail order business, was sixth among retailing companies in the nation with 1969 sales of $2.7 billion. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of Marcor, Inc., of Chicago, also named in the proposed complaint.

Spiegel, which operates only on a mail order basis, had sales of $320 million in 1968.

The FTC's proposed complaint contends Montgomery Ward catalogues failed to disclose how the balance is computed for figuring finance charges, failed to tell customers who take out special mortgages to finance home improvements that they have three days to cancel the transaction, and failed to disclose credit terms on required minimum payments for catalogue items.

The complaint alleges also Montgomery Ward's advertised claim that no monthly payments would be required on an item until a certain date misled customers into believing finance charges would not be imposed until the first installment came due. Actually, the FTC said, finance charges are imposed monthly after the first 30 days.

The complaint against Spiegel charges the firm sold credit life insurance to new customers without obtaining the required permission of the customer, failed to disclose on statements the date by which payment must be made to avoid finance charges and misled credit customers as to the method of computing finance charges.

Although Spiegel advertises offers of free trials of merchandise and of 25 per cent discounts to the general public, persons ordering merchandise under such offers must satisfy the firm's credit requirement before merchandise is sent to them, the complaint said.

Under FTC procedures, both firms may negotiate a voluntary settlement. Should the firms contest the allegations, a hearing examiner would weigh the evidence and recommend a formal decision by the commission.

Commission orders can be contested in federal appeals courts.

Rainmaking Efforts Resumed

ASPERMONT, Tex. (AP) — Homer Berry has his rainmaking equipment going again, and ranchers and farmers in drought-threatened Stonewall County hope he brings them some rain.

Berry, from Little Rock, Ark., signed a contract with a group of about 40 ranchers and farmers to bring five inches of rain within 30 days for a fee of $10,000.

He shut down his machinery Monday because of cold weather.

Then the Texas Water Development Board said that under a little known Texas law passed two years ago, Berry must have a weather modification permit.

The group that hired Berry, fearful it would take three weeks for his application to be processed, got the Water Development Board to send meteorologist John P. Cobb of Austin here Tuesday to explain the law, help Berry with the application and take it back to Austin.

Carr invited Berry to the board's meeting in Austin February 24 to explain his procedures and answer any questions from the board.

Berry resumed his rainmaking effort even though Carr did not give hin permission to do so.

Man stricken; people pass by

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: A very dear man I knew had a stroke in the lobby of his place of business. He lay on the floor in that lobby for about an hour and a half. It was nearly rush hour. I suppose people thought he was drunk so they passed him by. He died the following day.

That fine man had a young people's group in church. I am one of the young people.

The message I want to convey through your widely-read column, Abby, is this: Please, if you see someone in need, drunk, sick, no matter what, tell a guard at the door or a policeman. Don't ignore him. Do what you can to help him. You may save his life.

"Mr. L." had a stroke and a cerebral hemorrhage. He may have died even if he had been taken to a hospital immediately. But at least he wouldn't have died all alone on the cold floor of a lobby. J. C., STATEN ISLAND, N.Y.

DEAR J. C.: If your letter changes the thinking of only one person who would deny help to a stranger because he doesn't want to "get involved," it's well worth the space in any newspaper. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman with a good husband, three nice sons and a full busy life. But "Wrong Way Corrigan" has nothing on me. I do a lot of traveling, to and from dog shows, and I always allow myself at least one hour in which to get lost. I don't mean a chance wrong turn, I mean really lost!

Even if I have been there before, I always get hopelessly turned around and have to stop and ask directions. Sometimes I have to stop and ask directions two and three times. I am a careful driver and I am considered fairly intelligent, but I have absolutely no sense of direction.

My husband says I get lost because I have no self-confidence and I set out "expecting" to get lost. Can that be? Are there others like me? Have you any suggestions?

"LOST" IN VA.

DEAR LOST: Don't be ashamed. Some of our brainest people get lost a lot. Recommended solution: Don't start out unless you have written instructions on how to get where you're going. If you should get lost, stop at once and ask for help. [And be sure to listen carefully so that you understand the directions.] Also always take a telephone number of the place you're headed for in case you want to call them and ask how to get there. If that fails, carry a compass, a Bible and a survival kit.

DEAR ABBY: I am tired of hearing about what big slobs women are. My friends and neighbors probably consider me a slob because of the way my house looks most of the time, but let me tell you my side of it.

The minute my husband gets in the house he takes off his coat and shirt and drapes them across the back of the chair. Then he takes off his tie and hangs it on the doorknob. He goes to the fridge, gets a couple of cans of beer and a snack, takes them into the living room and settles down to read the paper and watch TV. But first he takes off his shoes and socks. Pretty soon I have crumbs all over the floor and beer cans standing around and half-eaten food left here and there.

After he washes up to go out, there's toothpaste spattered on the mirror, wash rags in the sink, wet towels on the floor, shaving cream on the bathroom wall, deodorant and after shave, razor and hairbrush standing on the sink or tank top.

And I hate to tell you what kind of disaster area is left behind when my man finally gets around to changing a washer on a leaky faucet. SLOB'S WIFE: MILWAUKEE

Employes Fired Over Claims

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas employes have a legal right to workmen's compensation for on-the-job injuries, but some companies will fire you if you apply for it, a House committee was told Tuesday.

"I guess I have been shocked ever since I have been on the board, watching this practice," said Tony Korioth, a member of the State Industrial Accident Board.

The board deals with contested Workmen's Compensation claims.

Korioth spoke in favor of a bill by Rep. R. C. Nichols, a husky Houston steelworker, that would prohibit employers from firing workers who file claims for industrial injuries.

The bill and another Nichols measure allowing injured workers to choose their own doctors were sent routinely to a subcommittee for more study.

Korioth said "some companies ... have a written policy that they will fire any employe who retains an attorney."

"Most employers don't do this, but some, unfortunately, do," he added.

Nichols' bill also would prohibit the firing of an employe for testifying in a Workmen's Compensation case.

"It is almost impossible to get a witness to testify who is still working for the employer in question, because he is afraid of losing his job," said Mack Kidd, an Austin lawyer.

Gain Is Predicted

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — This nation's recovery from a mild recession will gain momentum through the year, a business expert predicts.

Dr. Martin Gainsbrugh, senior vice president and chief economist of the National Industrial Board, said Tuesday that economists view this year better than 1970 for business.

"Where they differ is over the extent of the 1971 recovery and the threat of renewed inflation that may arise from reliance upon the full employment deficit to help speed the return to full employment," he said.

Gainsbrugh told an executive development course in the Texas A&M University's College of Business this country is emerging from the longest recession business has undergone since the depression of the 1930s.

"Fortunately, this recession, although of extended duration, was largely confined to defense and defense-related industries," he said.
