CIA Probe Revived

WASHINGTON (AP)-A Senate committee will hold a hearing "at the earliest possible date" on documents showing that secret CIA drug tests on unsuspecting citizens were more extensive than had been known earlier.

The committee is quickly reviving its investigation of the CIA drug testing following evidence of previously undisclosed information.

Mom Exuberant

SPRING GREEN, Wis. (AP)-The mother of CWO Glenn Schwanke paused a moment before her exuberance broke through when she was told her son had been released by North Korea and was able to walk.

"Oh, wonderful:" exclaimed Patricia Schwanke. "Now I'm really anxious about how he is,"

NYC Disaster Area

NEW YORK (AP)-The federal Small Business Administration has declared New York City and neighboring Westchester County disaster areas as the cost of this week's power blackout climbed toward the $1 billion mark.

The action makes shopowners and others eligible for longterm, low-interest loans of up to $500,000.

Glass Plan Suspended

OAK BROOK, III. (AP)-The McDonald's hamburger chain has suspended indefinitely its promotional drinking glass program after the federal government urged parents to closely supervise children's use of the glasses.

McDonald's President Edward H. Schmitt said Friday that all the firm's restaurants were being asked to suspend distribution of the glasses, decorated with cartoon characters made of lead-containing glazes.

QUEEN COMING HERE--Denise Fuchshuber, 1977 Queen of the American Association of Sheriff Posses and Riding Clubs, will be an honored guest at the big parade which will open the 42nd annual Scurry County Rodeo here Wednesday, announced Earl Davis, president of the Scurry County Sheriff's Posse. Miss Fuchshuber, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Fuchshuber of Grapevine and was elected queen of the association last year in Fort Worth.

North Korea Frees Co-Pilot, 3 Bodies

By M.H. AHN
Associated Press Writer

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP)-North Korea released to U.S. authorities today the surviving copilot and the bodies of three crewmen killed when their helicopter was shot down over Communist territory last Thursday.

CWO Glenn S. Schwanke, 28, of Spring Green, Wis., looked shaken and tired but walked unaided across the demarcation line at the truce village of Panmunjom after the bodies of his three comrades were received by U.S. Army Col. Terrence McClain.

The Pentagon has identified the three dead crewmen as pilot CWO Joseph A. Miles, 26, of Washington, Ind., Sgt. Robert C. Haynes, 29, of Anniston, Ala., and Sgt. Ron Wells, 22, of El Paso, Tex.

Schwanke and the coffins were taken in ambulances to the advance camp of the U.S.-led United Nations Command, just south of Panmunjom, to be flown by helicopter to a U.S. Army hospital in Seoul.

North Korean broadcasts had reported Schwanke was wounded but the only visible signs of injury were some scratches about the face and neck.

President Carter welcomed the release after being told about it at Camp David, Md. But his spokesman also said Carter "deplored the loss of life and the excessive reaction to an unarmed and inadvertent intrusion."

School Bill Handled Quickly

Texas Lawmakers Face New Agenda Monday

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas has a new system for doling out state school aid, at least for the next two years. And there will be another study to find a better way.

Lawmakers completed work Friday-five days after the special session began-on a bill increasing state spending on public schools by $954.4 million over the coming two years.

It provides more state aid for most districts, raises teacher salaries, reduces the amount of local tax money that must be raised for the Foundation School Program and increases "equalization" aid for poor districts.

Pupils will cheer, and mothers will grit their teeth, because the bill reduces the school year from 180 to 175 days.

About the only legislative complaints came from liberals who said there was too little equalization and too much new money for districts that don't need it.

School finance was Gov. Dolph Briscoe's only reason for calling the special session, but as soon as it was out of the way he laid on a new agenda.

Included among the subjects legislators will attack this week are tighter regulation for nursing homes and authorization for the state to build and operate a deepwater port

Ezzell Bill 1st On Added List

AUSTIN--Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder found little time to relax following passage of the school finance bill Friday in the special legislative session.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe promptly opened up the special session for some other topics and Ezzell's nursing home bill is first on the list. The Snyder legislator said Saturday that he was remaining in Austin over the weekend to prepare for a committee hearing Monday morning on his bill.

As for the school finance bill, Ezzell said the measure adopted and sent to the governor require the Snyder Independent School District to raise some $88,000 more funds, while Ira Independent School District's local share will be increased by $15,000 and Hermleigh Independent School District's local share will go up by $3,500.

Ezzell was especially pleased that his nursing home bill headed the list of additional legislation the governor okayed for consideration during the special session.

The Snyder lawmaker said his bill is designed to strengthen licensing requirements for nursing homes, and delegate more of the responsbility to the

The U.S. Customs Service wonders if someone had plans to revive vaudeville in this county. Customs officers in Houston seized 22,176 straw hats, Valued at $66,528. Now, vaudeville and straw hats are not illegal in this country, but it was discovered that these had not been manifested and had been unladen without a permit from customs.

Joe Pickle, secretary of the Colorado River Municipal Water District and former editor of the Big Spring Daily Herald, says he almost made a crime story for the SDN recently. He had come to Snyder with R.L. Schooling of CRMWD's admininstrative staff, who was coming over to visit Mrs. Schooling, a patient in Cogdell Memorial Hospital. While here, Pickle came on into town in Schooling's car to confer with Rex Fields, a member of the CRMWD board, on a water district business matter. And, while in town, he visited here at the newspaper office for a few minutes.

His troubles began when he left the SDN, he said. He couldn't get Schooling's car to start. Finally, it dawned on him that he was trying to use the wrong key. But his troubles were merely beginning. He stopped at Hinshaw's to pick up a plant to take to Mrs. Schooling's hospital room. There was no trouble getting the car started that time because he left the keys in it.

A little later, he and Schooling left the hospital and Pickle handed Schooling the car keys as they headed for the parking lot.

"Those are not my keys," said Schooling.

"They are bound to be. I just drove your car with them," said Pickle, as he opened the car door.

"This isn't my car," said Schooling.

Sure enough it wasn't.

"We had better call the police," said Pickle.

"I don't think we'll have to," said Schooling as he spied flashing red lights approaching.

The story quickly came together then. There was another customer at Hinshaw's anxiously waiting for word about her "stolen" car. Fortunately, she thought it might been an innocent mistake, since there was an unclaimed car on the lot at Hinshaw's.

"You were almost sniffing fingerprint powder," the policeman told Pickle.

"I watched your paper for several days to see if I made it," said Pickle as he related the story.

Now he has. ---WACIL McNAIR.

Two Exchange Students To Attend Snyder High

Plans were readied Saturday for the arrival of two foreign students in Snyder.

Liri Lestari, an 18-year-old Indonesian student, will arrive in Snyder next Friday, July 22, announced Sam Kitching, president of the local chapter of the American Field Service at a meeting of the AFS Saturday morning.

Miss Lestari will be a student at Snyder High School during the 1977-78 school year. While in Snyder, she will be residing with the Marshall Parham family.

A reception greeting Miss Lestari is tentatively scheduled to be held next Saturday at 10 a.m. at City Hall.

The second foreign student will be a Canadian, Marie Lise Chantal Baril.

CHANTAL BARIL

While it is not known exactly when Miss Baril will arrive in Snyder, Kitching said she will probably come in August.

Miss Baril, 17, will be staying with the Bill Ziske family during her residence in Snyder. She will come from St.-Pierre-Les-Becquets in Quebec, Canada.

City Contract Work To Begin

Work is scheduled to begin Monday on a city contract to provide water and sewer facilities for two new developments and several smaller projects.

Developers of two new residential areas are installing the utilities on their respective projects and several individual extensions will be included in the contract, said City Engineer Jim Dower.

The water and sewer extensions are going into Parkway No. 4 addition, being developed by Rodney Smith, and Cedar Creek Addition, being developed by Murry Bowden.

Parkway No. 4 is located south of Bassridge and will extend El Paso Avenue to the south. Cedar Creek Addition includes property between the Windridge Apartments and the Western Texas College Campus just south of Cogdell Center. Plats for these additions were approved earlier and developers are financing the extension of water and sewer service as provided by city policy.

Dower said there is a possibility that one other development project will be ready to include on the current contract. The contract for the work was awarded by the City Council to Key Enterprises of Odessa at the council's regular meeting on July 5. Projects can be added to the contract which work is in progress.

New Agenda

if oil companies fail to do so.

The school finance bill contains $142 million in new money to help poor districts equalize their "enrichment" spending with rich districts over the next two years. They now get $100 million.

But it allocates $341 million to reduce local fund assignments LFA for the Foundation School Fund. In some districts this could mean lower school taxes. Others will spend the extra state money on schools.

Another major feature creates a School Texas Assessment Practices Board to make sure that similar property is appraised in the same way, statewide, for school taxes.

Each school board will choose between market value of taxable property and the lower "agricultural values" in calculating its LFA.

If it chooses market value, that number will be multiplied by .0018. "Ag values," however, would be multiplied by .0021.

Teachers at the top of the seniority scale received sizeable raises, but most will get only modest increases.

State-supported minimum pay for beginners will jump from $8,000 to $8,460 this fall, while those with three years of experience would increase from $8,950 to $9,400. A teacher who has been at the top of the scale for two years would get a raise from $11,780 to $13,254.

School finance has probably been state government's most studied issue. There was a study last year. There will be one in 1977-78.

The bill creates a nine-member Legislative Commission on School Finance to "explore and develop a revised method" of paying for schools. It will have a $200,000 budget.

It is charged with considering other forms of wealth besides land as well as "a taxpayer's ability to pay" in coming up with a new formula.

Of immediate interest to most districts and their taxpayers are LFA reductions and increased state aid.

Here are changes in selected districts:

Ghost Legend Is Real Issue

KOUNTZE (AP)—Cutting trees along the Big thicket's Ghost Road will either scare off the headless ghost of Hardin County or just make room for more ghosts, depending on which side you're talking to.

Legend says that a railway brakeman once was decapitated by a train in the Southeast Texas area and can be seen to this day carrying a light on dark nights, trying to find his head.

Most folks believe the light they see in the night sky on one end of Ghost Road is swamp gas or the reflection of car headlights, but it's an interesting legend that gives publicity and historic value to the area.

That's the real issue in the tree cutting controversy along Ghost Road, although the principals in the dispute like to make tongue-in-cheek statements about the headless ghost's preferences in the matter.

"Ghosts are a bunch of baloney," says Hardin County Commissioner Thomas Sidney Hooks. "But I did say the tree cutting will make more room for more ghosts. However, the real issue is road maintainance. The road is so narrow and the trees are so close to the road that the cabs of the road maintainer scrape the trees and the pine straw that always falls on the road is hard to maintain."

Last week, opponents of Hooks' proposal to cut trees 10 feet on either side of the road got a temporary restraining order to delay the cutting.

District Court Judge O'Neal Bacon signed the order and set a hearing for next Friday.

The Hardin County commissioners voted 3-2 to award a contract for cutting the trees and Hooks said the county already has received the $6,000 offered for the trees by a Hardin County lumber company.

A suit by three Hardin County residents was filed Friday in conjunction with the request for a permanent injunction stopping the cutting.

According to the anti-cutting bloc, the tree sale is an example of short-sightedness, poor business judgement and lack of sensitivity to nature.

"People like it like it is—in its original state," said James Rosier, one of the plaintiffs in the suit. "Everyone has their fun talking about the ghost but the fact is that most people don't want to cut the trees."

The proportion of self-employed workers is only half of what it was in 1948.

$2.50 or $3.50, depending on seating. Advance tickets may be purchased at the ticket office in the Scurry County Coliseum. Tickets may also be purchased nightly at the door during the rodeo performances.

Mrs. Wanda Eicke, in charge of ticket sales for the Scurry County Rodeo, reported that approximately $3,000 worth of advance tickets have been sold.

Advance general admission tickets for the AJRA are $1 and $2, respectively, for children and adults. If purchased at the door during the rodeo performances, the tickets will cost an additional 50 cents. Box seats for the AJRA will be $3.50

Advance tickets for the AJRA may be purchased from queen contestants and the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

County Court Plea Heard

One guilty plea was entered in county court Friday to a charge of fleeing to evade a peace officer.

The plea was entered by David Craig McFaul. McFaul was assessed a $100 fine.

The offense is reported to have occurred March 30. He was arrested by officers of the city police department.

State Health Dept., rather than the Welfare Dept.

"It is not going to solve all of the problems, but it will give the Health Department some tools to work with in correcting unacceptable situations," said Ezzell.

The bill provides for economic sanctions against those who fail to comply with regulations, and it also provides for criminal action in cases of abuse of nursing home patients.

58 Illegal Aliens Arrested

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. (AP)-An organized operation smuggling workers into the United States from Mexico may be responsible for the illegal aliens arrested this week in Somerset County, Md., according to federal investigators.

Immigration officials arrested 58 migrant workers, but at least 10 other illegal aliens reportedly escaped.

Officials say some of the workers came directly to Maryland from Mexico, but most had traveled north with the migrant stream that moves up the East Coast from Florida.

Immigration officials say there may be as many as 200 illegal aliens now harvesting crops on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

"We're just touching the tip of the iceberg," says G. Thomas Graber, criminal investigator with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Graber said most of the aliens arrested came from the town of Guanajuato, Mexico, and crossed the border between Laredo and Eagle Pass, Tex., before going to Immokalee, Fla., to begin their journey north.

Migrants are now picking tomatoes on the Eastern Shore. They will move to Southern Pennsylvania and Western Maryland to pick apples in a few weeks.

House Seeker Retains Spot

Rules Panel Gives Expectant Mom Break

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Cheryl Kossi, standing in line night and day for a chance to buy a house in a planned development, almost lost her place when she rushed to the hospital to have a baby. But the rules committee gave her a break, so her husband Mark is occupying the No. 85 spot.

There are 111 people waiting for 81 houses planned but not yet built in the West Covina development of Shadow Oaks, situated in the hot, often-smoggy San Gabriel Valley 20 miles east of here. Planners say up to 50 more houses may be built to satisfy the demand.

The house seekers have been waiting as long as 10 days, living in tents and mobile home, in what is becoming an increasingly familiar scene touched off by Southern California's booming demand for homes.

The prospective buyers set up a rules committee to govern their wait. Members of the committee call out the names every two hours and make checks at night to be sure each person is still there. Nearly 50 families have been scratched for missing roll calls.

The rules committee made an exception Friday for Mrs. Kossi after Shadow Oaks construction supervisor Mike Powell explained what had happened.

"One of the women won't be able to make roll call," he hold the committee. "She's down in her trailer about to deliver. Her husband is coming to take her to a hospital."

It was a false alarm, however, but Mrs. Kossi remained in the hospital and Mark took his wife's place in the line.

Although the houses won't be ready until December, people already feel like a neighborhood. They know their neighbors, their dogs, their cats and their foibles.

The No. 1 position in line belongs to Al and Patti Davis, a Fullerton couple who arrived at the model home site 10 days ago.

"We've met every one of our neighbors," said Patti, adding that some of those in line changed house selections after learning who was going to buy the house next door.

"After you live with someone-camp out with them-you learn all their bad habits," she said.

Under the rules, those present today were entitled to pay $500 to reserve one of the one-story, three-bedroom homes, which are priced from $55,000 to $64,000. In another six weeks the families will pay another $500, sign a sales contract and arrange the down payments and financing.

California has been experiencing a booming demand for new homes. Eighteen months ago, 8,000 persons took part in a lottery for only 241 homes in a new development south of Los Angeles.

Mini-Series Set On SLA

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Can the man who brought us John Boy, Grandma and all the rest of "The Waltons" give us the Symbionese Liberation Army?

Lee Rich, the 52-year-old president of Lorimar Productions, says yes.

Lorimar, he notes, has done a lot more than its family shows like "The Waltons" and its new venture, "8 is Enough." The company has dipped into the underworld before with a look at the Charles Manson murders. "Helter Skelter," a four hour TV movie focused on the Manson trial, touching only lightly on the grisly murders themselves.

"We're going to do 'Voices' exactly like we did 'Helter Skelter,'" says Rich.

He's referring to "The Voices of Guns," a book about the SLA for which Lorimar has had the rights for two years.

"What we want to do is examine those people, find out where they came from, who they were and why they got turned off and why they became members of the SLA.

"Now, the one thing that we don't want to do is the Patty Hearst story-everybody already knows about that. The second thing that we don't want to do is anything about the violence of the SLA, the shootout, anything of that kind."

Although Rich knows the route the television drama will take, the script for the CBS mini-series, possibly to be televised early next year, is still in the writing stage.

Rich says violence must of course be noted. SLA leader William Harris, for example, was first exposed to violence as a Marine.

"We will show how the Marine Corps affected his life, affected his thoughts, affected what he believed in."

Also in the script state is another TV mini-series, "Hitler."

"We're doing Hitler in an entirely different sort of way," says Rich. "We're doing his early life up until the time he becomes chancellor. We're not doing the war, because everybody knows about the war.

"We're going to show who he was, how he became what he was, what circumstances put him where he was. Simultaneously we're going to show how a German family is affected by Adolf Hitler and his rise."

All three networks, under pressure from such groups as the Parent-Teacher Association and the American Medical Association, have announced no new police shows for next season. But Rich says that dramas about Hitler or terrorist groups are not a convenient way to circumvent bans on gratuitous violence.

"Helter Skelter' was in the works years before all this talk about violence," Rich says. "We could have gotten away with a lot more than we put in."

"And we were doing a nonviolent police show 'The Blue Knight' when everyone else was doing police shows with violence," says Rich.

Rich emphasizes that the SLA and Hitler entries are only two of about 20 possible programs or series in parallel development. A profile of Studs Lonigan, a youth from the James Farrell Depression-era trilogy of novels and "a lot of things like the Waltons or in that same general area."

After a look at Lorimar, it's obvious that many of its projects, no matter the subject, come from one source-books.

"The Voices of Guns" is based on the recent book by journalists Paul Avery and Vin McLellan. "Hitler" is based on the John Toland book. The stories behind "The Blue Knight," and even the "Waltons" and "8 Is Enough" were first told in books.

Many production companies keep an eye on the current literary crop for story ideas, but few develop as many as Lorimar.

Al Burton, vice president of Norman Lear's Tandem Productions, says his company, which makes comedies such as "All in the Family" and "One Day at a Time," has nothing against literary property as a story source. "We just haven't run up against one yet.

"The advantages would seem to be that you get to read it before you commission it for a series," says Burton, "and you get to see if it sells first."

Diane Sokolow, is based in New York where she grabs galleys of upcoming books for Rich to read.

"I'm a voracious reader," says Rich, who holes up in a room at his Beverly Hills home each weekend to pore over galleys.

He says his wife, actress Pippa Scott, understands and takes their two children, aged 11 and 6, for outings while he reads.

"I read Saturday and I read Sunday. That's the reason I don't have any sunburn," says the pale, graying production company executive.

INSECT SITUATION

Insect activity in field crops was very light during the past week. The hot, dry weather was welcomed by many producers. Cotton has continued to make excellent growth and held insect activity low.

Some of the early feed grains are heading and prospects for good production are very favorable. Acreage of sorghum this year is down considerably from average due to the increase in cotton acres.

WATERING HOUSE PLANTS

Many home gardeners may be wondering why their favorite house plants die when they have been getting plenty of water. The problem may be that the plants are being drowned.

Watering indoor plants is really a matter of restraint. Most people feel their plants should be watered the minute the topsoil even looks dry. A few simple steps will keep your plants from wilting away.

The first item to keep in mind is that although the soil on top may be dry, the bottom layer where the roots are may be sufficiently moist. It is easier to tell the water level of a potted plant that has a good drainage system.

Soil in clay pots tends to dry out faster, while soils in larger containers have a longer period of "drying out."

The first signs of over watering are the color change in the upper leaves of the plant from rich green to a pale green of yellow tinge. This is due to damage to the plant roots.

To prevent overwatering, here are a few more guidelines for those difficult plants.

Often a container that has a capacity for a quart of soil requires only one-half pint of water for adequate moisture. This also depends on the soil mixture.

When saucers are used under pots to catch drainage water, such excess water should be discarded to prevent lower soil from becoming water-logged.

LAWN DISEASES

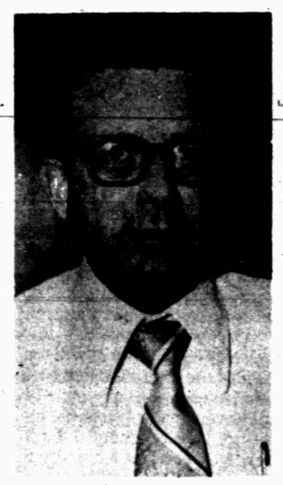
About this time of the year we can expect several of the lawn diseases. A good healthy turf is the homeowner's best defense against diseases. Proper watering, fertilizationm and mowing are most important in disease prevention.

Additional fertilizer may be needed now if you have not added any the past two months. Use rates that will supply 1 pound actual nitrogen per 1000 square feet.

Diseases to watch for from now until September include brown patch, fading out and various leaf and stem spots or rots. The first symptom of disease is yellowing or turning brown in small areas. These usually get larger and if not controlled can result in severe damage to the turf.

There are several fungicides available for turf grass diseases if needed.

Daily News Gets New Advertising Director



BASSET KELLER

DAN ELLINGTON

Bassett Keller, general manager and advertising director of the Snyder Daily News for the past 5½ years, has resigned to become publisher of the Cleveland Journal.

Keller will assume his new duties in southeast Texas on Wednesday.

Dan Ellington, a Snyder native, will assume duties here Monday as advertising director of the Snyder Daily News, according to publisher Roy McQueen.

Keller came to Snyder from Huntsville where he had served as publisher of the Huntsville Item for five years. Prior to that he was a staff member of the Abilene Reporter-News for 18 years.

While in Snyder, Keller has been active in civic affairs. He is immediate past-president of the Gold Coats, a past president of the United Way, past president of the Snyder Rotary Club and a past vice president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Keller also was an active member of the administrative board of the First United Methodist Church. His wife, Mary, has been administrative assistant at the church.

"Bassett has been a good citizen. His contributions to both the newspaper and the community will be missed, and we wish him well in his new endeavor," McQueen said.

Ellington, 25, is a 1970 graduate of Snyder High School. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. B.C. Ellington, still reside in Snyder. Ellington returns to Snyder from San Marcos Telephone Co. He also was an instructor for one year at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos.

Ellington graduated from the UTPB and he worked in the news and information office and was involved in student recruiting. He also worked for the Lubbock Avalanche Journal as regional editor.

Drug for skin cancer

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We read in one of your columns about a medicine that would cure skin cancers. I meant to save the column but it got misplaced. My husband has some places on his neck and face and would like to have the name of the medicine.

DEAR READER — There is no medicine for skin cancers that you can use yourself. Any suspicious spots should be examined by a doctor.

You may be thinking of my reference to salves containing 5-fluorouracil (5-FU). These can be used to treat actinic keratosis, the sun spots that can become skin cancer. This is a prescription item too. Some areas of the skin may already be undergoing changes before they can be detected by the human eye. This medicine will also attack these.

To help you clarify the problems of skin cancer and the pre-cancerous lesions I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will also give you some tips on the role of the sun in causing skin cancers and measures a person like your husband should take to avoid skin cancers.

Your husband could benefit from protecting himself from the sun all year around with sun screens. Such measures also help prevent aging of the skin.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on hysterectomies. I had surgery eight weeks ago and I know nothing about what to expect. I would like to know what changes this makes in your body. I still have my tubes and ovaries. I'm 25 years old.

DEAR READER — There is a lot of general confusion about this because the public does not separate the difference between having your uterus removed and also having the ovaries removed.

The uterus simply responds to the cyclical stimulation of the ovaries. It is not a source of female hormones at all. The only change you will or should note is the absence of menstruation — but you will still have a cycle — and the inability to get pregnant. I don't know why you had a hysterectomy at such a young age and the cause for this might be important.

When the ovaries are left intact and are not damaged by the surgery they should continue normal functioning. It is sometimes difficult to do a hysterectomy without damaging the blood supply to the ovaries which can cause them to degenerate. But if they are undamaged you will still ovulate. The free ova will be absorbed from your body cavity and can never be fertilized. Your hormonal changes in relation to your cycle will continue. That means the mood changes, fluid retention or whatever happens to be your nature will still be there until the ovaries undergo involution as they do in other women when the menopause occurs. If your ovaries are normal you will not need hormone replacement or anything like that.

Particularly in young women, if the ovaries are also removed for any reason it is often necessary to provide female hormone substitution or replacement.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.)

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have diabetes mellitus and I have lost my job because of a gradual deterioration physically. Every time I tried to put in a good day's work I had a reaction from either low blood sugar or insulin I had taken. The amount of insulin was decided that morning on the basis of a Clinitest tablet and urine sample.

Because of the loss of weight and a general weakened condition I have increased my diet and insulin intake which seems to work if I have complete freedom to adjust physical activity according to each day's needs.

I have no other choice but to accept the fact that this is not going to change, which is difficult. The fact that I have always expected to work for a living has served as a mental block to reality. I am only 48 years old. The financial situation will not let me forget that either.

Why isn't diabetes mellitus given a different distinction from more manageable diabetes and why aren't people more informed?

I would also like to know more about a possible improvement in blood sugar monitoring. I think it is referred to as continuous monitoring.

DEAR READER — Diabetes mellitus is diabetes mellitus whether it is mild or severe. Diabetes mellitus may occur early in life in some people and much later in others as the natural course of disease in different people. That is one reason why it is hard to determine the hereditary pattern of diabetes.

I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter, numbers 3-10, (Diabetes: The Sweet Sickness) and 3-11 (Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management.) It will help you with some of your questions. Others who want these two issues can send 50 cents for each with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The natural production of insulin by a normal person is such that more insulin is released when the blood sugar gets too high and less when it falls. There is no way you can really duplicate this with insulin medications. That is why the diet and also the physical activity has to be regulated. When physical activity is expected to increase it is usually necessary to decrease the insulin.

I would suggest that you avoid any of the foods that release glucose rapidly, specifically all concentrated sweets. You should try to increase the uncooked vegetables in your diet. There is evidence that uncooked foods are better for diabetics since they decrease the insulin needs and smooth out the peaks and valleys of blood sugar. Be sure to have plenty of bulk in your meals.

There are studies in progress on using continuously monitored or sensed blood sugar levels and releasing insulin in relation to the level at that moment. This should be an important advance when it is available. By providing more constant control of the blood glucose levels it may prevent diabetic neuropathy and eye changes.

Also there is hope that transplanted islets of Langerhans where insulin is produced will soon be possible. When that technique — now used experimentally in dogs — is perfected for human use it would provide a means of curing diabetes entirely.

Dr. Lamb will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

Slower Growth Seen Last Half

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economy continues growing at a healthy rate, but economist say growth for the second half of 1977 may slow somewhat.

The government on Friday completed the economic picture for the first half of the year, reporting that industrial production rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent in June. It was the sixth straight monthly advance.

The slower growth predication stems from a belief that the economy will be unable to keep up with the pace of the first six months of the year.

Led by rising output of auto products and business equipment, the June increase was considered especially strong by some government experts. They noted output gained a full 1 per cent in May and seven-tenths of 1 per cent in April.

A total output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities rose at a 12.5 per cent annual rate during the last three-month period, compared with a 5.3 per cent increase in the first three months, the Federal Reserve Board said.

The steady advance in industrial production has been good news for the economy, resulting in a steady increase in jobs and helping to lower the unemployment rate to 7.1 per cent.

The Federal Reserve Board said output of household goods and nondurable consumer goods, which include food and clothing, rose slightly in June. Durable goods materials advanced substantialy, while nondurable goods materials were unchanged for the month.

The board said auto production increased 5.5 per cent in June to an annual production rate of 9.7 million units. Production of business equipment also advanced strongly, rising 1.5 per cent during the month and an 18 per cent annual rate for the second quarter.

The board's industrial production index in June was 138.6 of the 1967 average of 100. It was 132.1 in January.

The Commerce Department report said inventories increased by $3.3 billion in May, equaling the March increase as the largest this year and the biggest monthly gain in inventories since a $3.4 billion increase last June.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Faith can move mountains for you today. Believe in yourself and think 'win.' You should walk off with the trophy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions having an effect upon your status and earnings are more favorable than usual today. Be ready to move if opportunity knocks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will make a lasting impression today. Not through daring deeds, but through little acts of thoughtfulness, kindness and charity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Because you are willing to serve unselfishly today, those you help will be equally eager to reciprocate. The books will be balanced.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One-to-one relationships should be both pleasant and lucky. Some of the good fortune of those you associate with will rub off on you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Creatively today, you're capable of producing something of beauty, and it will have permanent value as well. Break out the paints and canvas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Schedule several activities for yourself today. The greater the action, the better you perform. Move around both mentally and physically.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Possibilities for gain are extremely promising for you today. Especially if you're involved with people of a kindly nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24.-Nov. 22) Even though your potential for acquisition remains good today, you must guard against squandering gains on unneeded things.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A learned person will give you excellent advice today. Unfortunately, you may dilute it with your own ingredients and lose much of the potential value.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're working for someone today, ask a fair wage. Don't inflate the price if the person appears to be a soft touch.

Biggest Rock Is In Australia

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Australia's Ayers Rock, at 2 miles long, 1½ miles wide, and 1,100 feet high, is the biggest in the world, reports the Rand McNally "Traveler's Almanac."

The rock was once known only to aborigines, who left galleries of cave paintings at its base. The gigantic stone is now a popular destination for tourists in the Outback.

Panel Says San Antonio Indifferent

SAN ANTONIO (AP)— The No. 2 man in the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare says San Antonio health care practitioners are "indifferent" toward the plight of migrant workers.

"I think there are three levels of medical care - good, bad and indifferent. Frankly, after what I've seen today, I'll say it's indifferent. in San Antonio," Hale Champion, the under secretary of HEW, said.

"It wasn't very good," Champion replied when asked to explain indifferent."

Champion and 20 other members of the Advisory Committee on National Health Insurance toured two San Antonio health clinics and met to hear about the problems of the migrant workers and the rural poor.

The committee was organized by President Carter to recommend a national health insurance program.

Champion said the committee chose San Antonio because a large number of migrants live in the city when they are not following the crops.

The committee, Champion said, is gathering information from across the United States.

Facing Power Hitters From NL...

AL Has Tough Job

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-The American League All-Star pitching staff, submarined by injuries and injured pride, faces the difficult task of trying to silence some of the biggest bats in baseball in Tuesday night's 48th midseason classic at Yankee Stadium.

The National League, winner of the last five All-Star Games and 13 of the past 14 confrontations, would have thrown a scare into even Carl Hubbell, who performed the admirable feat 43 years ago of striking out consecutively the fearsome heart of the AL batting order-Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin.

There is plenty of power in this year's NL starting lineup. George Foster of Cincinnati has 29 homers, Steve Garvey of Los Angeles 22, Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia 21 and catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati 20. In reserve, the NL can call on big hitters like Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia 26 homers and Dave Winfield of San Diego 21.

The only NL starter not in double figures for home run production is Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion, who will combine with teammate Joe Morgan for a slick double play combination. At the infield corners will be the Los Angeles duo of first baseman Garvey and third baseman Ron Cey.

The NL outfield has Foster, Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and Luzinski.

Two of the AL's best pitchers-Frank Tanana of California and Mark Fidrych of Detroit, last year's losing pitcher-were named to the All-Star staff but had to decline because of injuries. Hard-throwing Nolan Ryan of California was picked as a replacement, but refused the spot because he wasn't selected originally.

"I heard there was a possibility I might start," the major leagues' strikeout leader said Friday.

The AL only has two starting pitchers on its staff. Baltimore's Jim Palmer is 11-8 with a 3.12 earned run average and Vida Blue of Oakland is 7-11 with a 3.98 ERA. The four relievers are Sparky Lyle of New York, Dave LaRoche of California, Jim Kern of Cleveland and Bill Campbell of Boston.

The AL starting team has Rod Carew of Minnesota at first base, the Yankees' Willie Randolph at second, George Brett of Kansas City at third, shortstop Rick Burleson of Boston, catcher Carlton Fisk of Boston, and outfielders Carl Yatrzemski of Boston, Richie Zisk of Chicago and Reggie Jackson of New York.

They will be hitting against a NL pitching staff of Tom Seaver, Cincinnati; Rick Reuschel and Bruce Sutter, Chicago; Don Sutton, Los Angeles; Steve Carlton, Philadelphia; Gary Lavelle, San Francisco; John Candelaria, Pittsburgh, and Joaquin Andujar, Houston.

Actors Out Of Athletes; Few Make It, Most Don't

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)-The scene is a corridor outside a Los Angeles courtroom. A professional killer is on trial. During a recess he and his accuser, Det. Woodrow Edison York, exchange insults.

"You ain't even got the guts to shoot me in the back," snaps the police officer.

"That's an idea," the killer sneers.

The murderer is played by Dean Stockwell, a veteran film star. Det. York is played by Orenthal James Simpson, better known as O.J., open-field runner in pro football stadiums and certain airports.

O.J. Simpson, star of the Buffalo Bills, TV commercials and sportcasts, is taking the biggest plunge of his five-year acting career. His performances so far have neither repelled nor enthralled critics or audiences. He has played secondary roles in TV's "Medical Center," in the features "The Klansman," "Killer Force," "The Towering Inferno," "Cassandra Crossing" and the unreleased "Capricorn One," plus a brief bit in "Roots."

The detective-killer exchange is a scene from "D.H.Q." Detective Headquarters, a two-hour Columbia Pictures Television movie to be shown on CBS next season.

O.J.Simpson is the latest in a long line of star athletes who have been attracted to the movie world. It started back in the silent-film era with Jack Dempsey "Manhattan Madness," Babe Ruth "Goin' Home" and Gene Tunney "The Fighting Marine."

In 1933 heavyweight champion Max Baer and Myrna Loy co-starred in MGM's "The Prizefighter and the Lady." The role of Tarzan proved a natural attraction for athletes, including swimmers Johnny Weissmuller and Buster Crabbe, decathlon stars Herman Brix, Bruce Bennett and Glenn Morris, UCLA basketball player Denny Miller, pro footballers Mike Henry and Ron Ely.

The decathlon has also produced such acting hopefuls as Bob Mathias, Rafer Johnson and Bruce Jenner. The football world has given Hollywood performers from Johnny Mack Brown to Jim Brown, plus Alex Karras, Don Meredith, Joe Namath. From boxing: Buddy Baer, Maxie Rosenbloom, Rocky Graziano, Lou Nova, Ken Norton.

Two female athletes became box-office stars: figure skater Sonja Henie and swimmer Esther Williams.

For every athlete who achieves movie stardom, dozens fail. Muhammed Ali, currently starring as Muhammad Ali in Columbia Pictures' "The Greatest," suggests the reason:

"Most athletes who turn actor are displeased with their athletic careers and use their fame to seek another career. That is why most of them don't make it; they go after acting for the wrong reasons."

"Me, I'm the most famous man in the world, and I can make five or six million dollars in one night. So fame and money isn't my motivation. I made 'The Greatest' because it gave me a chance to reach people in a different way. I'll make more movies, but only if they are clean and have something to say for humanity."

O.J. Simpson admits another motivation: Ego satisfaction.

SPORTS FANS
I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW...
Brought to you by Danny Lunsford

Here's a tough golf question...As you probably know, in the old days, a player's wooden and iron golf clubs had names in addition to numbers...When the old-timers played, they often called the clubs by their names...Now, see if you can supply the names for these clubs: No. 2-wood; 3-wood; 4-wood; 5-iron; and 9-iron...The 2-wood is the brassie; the 3-wood is the spoon; the 4-wood is the cleek; the 5-iron is the mashie; and the 9-iron is the niblick...That should bring back memories for some of you older golfers.

Ever wonder where the word "golf" came from?...Although golf was developed in Scotland, it was the Dutch who gave the sport its name...The word "golf" is a Dutch word meaning a club with which to hit a ball.

Here's an oddity..Babe Ruth played one season of minor league baseball before he was brought up to the majors, and in that one season, he hit only ONE home run!...It's true that Ruth was a pitcher as well as an outfielder in those days...But even so, isn't this odd--here is the man who became the greatest home run hitter of his time, and yet he was able to belt only one homer his entire first year of professional baseball!

Exchanges Are Divided On Blackout Situation

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-The question was unique and it came with as little warning as the blackout which struck the financial heart of the nation this past week.

Should regional stock exchanges try to conduct business while the giant New York and American stock exchanges and major New York brokerage houses were closed?

The Securities and Exchange Commission, after puzzling over the situation created by the massive power failure in New York Thursday, agreed to allow regional trading in stocks, but not options, as long as brokers brought "the unusual nature of the market" to the attention of customers.

The five regional exchanges themselves were divided on the question. The midwest, Pacific Coast and Cincinnati exchanges in Boston and Philadelphia decided not to open.

"We just felt it was in the best interests of the entire financial community if none of the exchanges were open," said Elkins Wetherill, president of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange.

To Wetherill, the problems went beyond the closing of the two large stock exchanges, with which the Philadelphia exchange competes.

The Philadelphia exchange closed, he said, "because the majority of the financial community was shut down." The closings meant there were no easy sources of national stock trading information.

James E. Dowd, president of the Boston Stock Exchange, also cited problems of operating without such necessities as the transactions tape, which records consolidated trading on all exchanges.

Dowd also said many brokerage houses had instructed their members to refrain from dealings until the problems in New York could be worked out, meaning trading would be lighter than normal.

But his counterpart on the Pacific Stock Exchange said he reached the opposite conclusion.

"There was no reason in the world why we should not observe normal trading," said G. Robert Ackerman, president of the Pacific Stock Exchange, which has trading floors in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Ackerman suggested establishment of a backup system for recording national trading information, "so when New York has a problem it doesn't close down the securities business in this country."

Instead of the tape, the exchange used a patchwork of various nationwide business communications systems.

The exchange handled 569,000 transactions, about half the normal volume, and Ackerman said, "We would have done many times the business we did" had a record of national trading been operating.

In other business developments this past week:

-Key members of Congress and union leaders threw their weight behind a proposal to raise the minimum wage from $2.30 to $2.65 an hour Jan. 1.

The move was a compromise between the Carter Administration, which had advocated a $2.50 minimum, and a rate closer to $3.

Under the proposal, the minimum wage would be subject to cost-of-living increases for the next two years. It was estimated that those could boost it as high as $3.15 by 1980.

-The Carter Administration announced its support for legislation requiring states to enact "no-fault" insurance.

Under no-fault insurance, an injury victim's insurance company pays bills for all but the most serious injuries, regardless of who was at fault in the accident. Sixteen states already have such insurance.

-President Carter made an attempt to help his top budget advisor out of some financial hot water. He asked congressmen to free Bert Lance from a promise to sell his stocks in the National Bank of Georgia by Dec. 31 and give him an indefinite period to accomplish the sale.

Lance, who was president of the bank before going to Washington, reportedly borrowed $2.7 million to help purchase 190,867 shares. But current market prices for the stock indicate he would have to take an estimated $1.5 million loss if he sold it now.

-United Merchants Manufacturers Inc., parent company of the recently closed Robert Hall clothing store chain, filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act. It was the largest such action since W.T. Grant Co. filed for bankruptcy in October, 1975.

UM&M, a large textile company, closed its 366 Robert Hall stores on June 29, citing huge losses by the chain.

-A House committee defeated a proposal to deregulate natural gas but passed on most of President Carter's non-tax energy programs.

The vote against deregulation followed fierce lobbying by both sides. Gas producers felt the end of federal regulations would allow them to strike the best deal possible, while the Administration wanted a slight rise in price but continued regulation.

Wool, Lamb Promotion Funds Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Agriculture Department has approved an 18 per cent boost for promotion of wool and lamb this year.

John C. Pierce, director of the livestock division for USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said Wednesday that the lamb and wool budget for the 1977-78 year which began July 1 will be about $2.25 billion. That is up from $1.9 billion authorized last year.

The funds are handled by the American Sheep Producers Council, Inc., Denver, which carries out lamb and wool marketing programs.

Authorized by the National Wool Act of 1954, the money is raised through deductions from federal payments to wool producers.

In addition, a similar budget for promotion of mohair was set at $300,000 this year, the same as in 1976-77. About $220,000 of that will come from reserve funds because there have been no mohair payments in recent years.

The payments are made when market prices of wool and mohair are below an "incentive" price. If market prices are above that level, no payments are made.

Officials said the remaining $80,000 for mohair will be made up by the Texas Mohair Producers Board.

Registration Plan Given Up

WASHINGTON (AP)- President Carter, facing strong resistance in Congress, is giving up on a plan that would have required states to allow voter registration on election day.

Instead, an administration officials says the White House and Democratic leaders in Congress will try to win passage of a compromise giving the states the option of setting up sameday registration programs, but not requiring it.

Some states already have that option, and two states, Minnesota and Wisconsin, have same-day registration. North Dakota voters are not required to register.

The registration plan, a key part of Carter's election reform package, was opposed by Republicans and some big-city political organizations, including Democratic party officials in Chicago.

Congressional leaders told the administration this week it would not be possible during the current Congress to win approval for the plan, which would have taken effect with the 1980 election.

The decision to withdraw the original plan was made after Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., the bill's floor leader and chairman of the House Administration Committee, met with Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Hamilton Jordon, Carter's top aide, and said the measure would prompt a tough, bipartisan floor fight in the House and a possible filibuster in the Senate.

Chicago Mayor Is Wed Friday

CHICAGO (AP)-Michael Bilandic became the first Chicago mayor since 1908 to be married in office when he and socialite Heather Morgan, 20 years his junior, took their vows Friday.

John Cardinal Cody, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Chicago, officiated at the ceremony at Holy Name Cathedral.

Police estimated that 3,000 persons gathered outside the church in very hot, sunny weather to watch guests arrive, many of them in rented black limousines.

Soybean Price Drop Expected

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- With a 17 per cent bulge in planted acreage this spring, government experts say soybean farmers can look forward to lower prices next fall when they harvest their crop, even if the weather is not as good as it could be.

Soybean prices at Chicago rose from about $6 a bushel last fall to more than $10 in April because of a crunch on dwindling soybean stockpiles.

Since then, however, prices have tumbled to around $6.50 in the face of the new crop and competing supplies in Brazil.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that if weather conditions are good through August, the soybean crop could total 1.6 billion to 1.7 billion bushels, making it a record harvest.

"Even with somewhat less than favorable growing conditions, with the larger acreage, the crop could total 1.5 to 1.6 billion bushels, compared with 1.3 billion in 1976," the department's outlook board said.

Thus, with a relatively large crop in prospect, the farm price of soybeans for the 1977-78 marketing year, an average for the entire season, is expected to be in the range of $5 to $6 a bushel at the farm, officials said.

The farm price of soybeans for the current 1976-77 season is expected to be $7.32 a bushel this season, compared with $4.92 in 1975-76.

Domestic use of soybeans this season is estimated at about 810 million bushels, down from 865 million in 1975-76. But exports are running at record levels and are expected to total 570 million bushels for the year which will end Aug. 31, up 3 per cent from last season.

"So far, exports to Western Europe have been off, but these have been more than offset by a larger movement to the USSR and Japan," the report said. "Foreign demand for soybeans is expected to continue strong and prospects for lower prices will likely result in a larger volume of exports in 1977-78."

Exports of soybean meal this year are down about 7 per cent to 4.8 million tons, but oil shipments also are up sharply to an estimated 1.7 billion pounds, a 74 per cent gain from 1975-76.

John Wayne Inks Contract With ABC

LOS ANGELES (AP)- John Wayne, the 69-year-old star of movies dating back to 1929, has signed an exclusive two-year contract with the ABC television network, ABC said Friday.

ABC declined to say how much Wayne will earn under the contract, which the network says starts with the 1977-78 television season.

The network said Wayne, whose most recent picture was "The Shootist," will "appear as himself in six major two-hour specials, each program unique in concept and each specifically tailored to his talents." It didn't elaborate.

Wayne also will guest star in one variety special a year.

The veteran actor won an Oscar award in 1969 for his portrayal of Rooster Cogburn in "True Grit."

The fandango, a Spanish dance of the 18th century, probably came to Europe from the West Indies.

CHECKING THE RACKS--Delbert Hirst is shown checking the pottery that has been set out to dry. From first shaping the clay objects to producing stoneware, six weeks may be required for the process. (SDN Staff Photo)

Snyder Couple Revives Long-Neglected Arts

By JOHN LONG

The fabled mills of the gods take on an almost mundane quality when compared to the products that can be fashioned by human hands on looms and kilns.

Among the practitioners leading a revival in the long neglected arts of spinning, weaving, and stoneware manufacture are a Snyder couple.

Delbert and Jo Anne Hirst, home-based artisans in their spare time, said they prefer laboriously handmade items to the products mass produced by machines.

"Something handmade has the touch of the artist in it," said Mrs. Hirst. "Each potter or weaver has his own touch and produces his own shapes and designs," she said, speaking from an artist's perspective.

Admitting they cannot match the production and speed records set by machines, Hirst emphasized they are not trying to compete with the mechanical marvels of the twentieth century.

For the Hirsts, making goods by hand is a hobby. In a moment of levity, Hirst said he and his wife are "crafty" persons.

Their hobbies began in 1971, with the opening of Western Texas College. While Hirst was taking mid-management classes at WTC, his wife was studying weaving at the college.

During the ensuing semesters, the couple began the study of pottery and stoneware making in classes offered by WTC.

They learned the rudiments of the crafts in their college classes. The rest they learned by independent study and by painstaking trial and error methods.

In their hobbies, the Hirsts show a flair for the practical. Their home is both adorned and cluttered by racks of clay plates and mugs that have been set out to dry. On her loom, Mrs. Hirst makes blankets and clothes.

Weaving by hand, Mrs. Hirst has been able to weave 30 threads to the square inch, an achievement some machines might find difficult to duplicate. She said she is going to begin work soon on another clothing project requiring 60 threads to the square inch.

Stoneware making is an activity involving both the Hirsts. Most of the clays they use are obtained form out of town dealers. Shaping the clay, however, is only the beginning of a long project.

Two kilns, one electrically powered in their home and a propane operated kiln in their backyard, are used to forge fragile clay bodies into durable stoneware.

FORGOTTEN ART—Jo Anne Hirst is shown working at a spinning wheel, an art that has been neglected and almost forgotten in modern times. In addition to spinning, she also weaves cloth on her loom. (SDN Staff Photo)

Two firings in the kilns are required. In the first firing, the clay objects are allowed to bask in a 2,050-degree heat for seven to eight hours. The product resulting from the first firing is a porous bisqueware.

In the second firing, the clay bodies are seared in a fiery temperature between 2,300 and 2,400 degrees for 10 to 12 hours in their backyard kiln. The resulting product is long-lasting stoneware that can be handed down from generation to generation within the family.

Coloring agents used to stain the stoneware are derived from melted metals. The stoneware can also be glazed with a glass-like substance.

From first shaping the clay objects to pulling the finished product out of a cooled kiln after the second firing, the Hirsts estimate they may spend as long as six weeks in the process.

Indelibly stamped on the underside, the stoneware objects carry the Hirst mark on them in exhibits throughout the state.

Each piece of stoneware made by the Hirsts is unique. The stoneware pieces cannot be exactly duplicated. The size, shape, and weight of a piece of stoneware can be approximated, but no two pieces will ever be identical.

The Hirsts like it that way. Unlike machines that stamp out identical objects along an assembly line, the Hirsts fashion each object they make by hand.

"Machines are made for mass production," Hirst said. "But machines," he added, "cannot make things better than man can."

Station Burns Up

HOUSTON (AP)-You might say the volunteer firemen at the North Hampton station, which is outside Houston in the north part of Harris County, almost literally were burned up.

Fire broke out in the station about midnight. Before being put out two hours later the flames destroyed a fire truck and took the roof off the building.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Perhaps heavy cigarette smokers should not be allowed to donate blood, suggests Dr. R.W. Eliot V.A. Hospital at Gainesville, Fla. Their blood is about one-third less efficient in ability to carry oxygen. This would also explain why a heavy smoker becomes 'winded' more quickly when doing strenuous work or exercise.

Eggplants Produced By 80-Year-Old Gardener

Mrs. L.T. (Willie) Allen, 2607 Avenue Y, who will be 80 years old next month, takes pride in her bumper crop of eggplants.

Although she has grown eggplants for years, it was brought to her attention that many West Texans had never eaten them, or seen them grow.

The eggplant is an annual of the nightshade family called also "aubergine" and "Guinea squash." It requires high temperature and limestone soil. Seeds are usually planted indoors and then set out when the weather gets warm.

The plants grow to about two feet in height. They have woody stems and large prickly leaves and usually solitary orchid flowers one or two inches across. The large, glossy, dark purple fruits are about 12 inches long and six to eight inches in diameter. The fruits are edible from the time they are one-third grown.

Better yields will be attained if they are gathered before they reach maximum size. On an equal weight basis, the eggplant's nutritional value (protein, calories and minerals) is similar to that of the tomato, except it is lower in vitamin A. Many people consider eggplant delicious when stewed, stuffed, or sliced and dipped in batter and then fried.

ADMIRING EGGPLANTS--Mrs. L. T. (Willie) Allen admires the eggplants in her garden. She has a bumper crop this year of the fruit which many West Texans have never eaten, or seen growing.

The eggplant is a native of India and has been cultivated for about 4,000 years. It also is an important crop in China and Japan. It is a staple vegetable in the Mediterranean and Balkan areas. Eggplant is grown in many parts of the United States and is commercially important in New Jersey, Florida and Louisiana.

Tel-Law Project Tested

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)-Legal advice for the price of a telephone call?

That's right. Callers can now get general legal information without the usual lawyer fees- in the pilot project initiated by the state and Tacoma and Pierce County bar associations.

By calling Tel-Law and asking for information on a particular subject, such as the rights and duties of landlords, callers can listen to a brief tape explaining the laws and what to watch for.

About 40 tapes are available. They're listed on brochures, available at some local bank branches or by writing the bar association.

Callers whose questions are unanswered by the tape may ask for referral to a local attorney who will consult with them for up to a half-hour for $10. The money will help pay overhead costs of the operation.

MR. AND MRS. MICKEY WAYNE BURNETT

Couple United In Rites

In a candle light ceremony, Miss Susan Jeannene Light and Mickey Wayne Burnett were united in marriage Saturday, July 2, at the First Christian Church, Snyder. Rev. T.L. Lilliard of Sweetwater performed the 8 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Light. The groom is the son of Mr. Bobby Burnett, Snyder and Mrs. Pat McLean of San Angelo.

Musical selections "Lady" and "More" were sung by Mr. Dennis Land of Andrews, cousin of the bride. He was accompanied on the organ by his wife, Cindy.

The wedding vows were exchanged before an arch trimmed in boxwood garlands, fresh sweetheart ivy, white doves, and yellow and white satin bows. On each side of the arch stood two seven-branch brass candlelabras entwined with sweetheart ivy accented with yellow and white daisies, gladioli, carnations, leather leaves and yellow and white checked satin bows. On either side of the setting the choir rails held sweetheart ivy and yellow candles in circles of which wedding bells. The bridal aisle was adorned with yellow and white checked satin bows entwined with sweetheart ivy. The stained glass windows of the church were lit by yellow votive candles atop tall wooden candle holders trimmed with sweetheart ivy and yellow and white checked satin bows.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride chose a formal-length gown of white organza fashioned with a deep V-neckline edged with a soft ruffle. The empire bodice was accented with a double band of wide Chantilly lace with full-length bishop sleeves with deep cuffs of Chantilly lace. The softly gathered skirt extended into a chapel length train and a double ruffle of organza and Chantilly lace formed the hem line of the skirt and train. A narrow bank of venise lace encompassed the empire waist line and bridal pearls traced the lace design of the dress and the veil. Her headpiece was a Juliet cap of matching lace holding a lace-edged chapel-length veil of illusion.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white dasies, baby's breath and yellow carnations surrounded with lace ruffling with white streamers accented with love knots and wedding rings.

Keeping with tradition, the bride wore for something old, a ring belonging to her mother and worm by her sister at her wedding; something new was a white lace covered bride's Bible given to the bride by the groom's mother; something borrowed was her wedding gown belonging to her sister, Mrs. Joan Wilson; something blue was her garter and she wore pennies minted in the dates of their birth in her shoes.

Miss Mary Pruitt, Snyder, served as maid of honor and the bridesmaid was Miss Anita Butler, Big Spring. They wore long dresses of yellow and white checked gingham. Their gowns were fashioned with a deep flounce at the hem line and was attached to an empire bodice with sweetheart necklines and sashed in the back. The butterfly sleeves were enhanced with floral lace. They wore white picture hats encircled with fabric matching their gowns and accented with fresh daisies. The attendents carried long stem yellow carnations with white satin ribbon entwined with love knots and wedding rings. Miss Robin Butler served as flower girl. She wore a gown identical to the feminine attendents. She carried a white wicker basket filled with yellow daisy petals. Shayd Butler, nephew of the groom was ring bearer. He carried a white satin and lace heart-shaped pillow holding the wedding rings. He wore a black tuxedo with a yellow ruffled shirt.

Mr. Tim Burnett served his brother as best man. The groomsman was Randy Ille, brother-in-law of the groom. Ushers were Gary Allen and Roger Hawkins. The male attendents wore black tuxedos and yellow ruffled shirts. The bridegroom was attired in a yellow tuxedo with a yellow ruffled shirt.

The mother of the bride was attired in a formal length gown with white lace accents. She wore a white orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a formal length gown of mint green with lace accents at the bodice. She also wore a white orchid corsage.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Church. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cut-work tablecloth over a yellow underlay. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with clusters of yellow rose buds, white daisies, yellow scollops and was topped with white lace bells trimmed with yellow silk rose buds. A flowing water fountain surrounded by sweetheart ivy, Roman arch columns and topped with ivy and a bride and groom graced the bride's table. Yellow cream punch was served from a crystal punch bowl.

The groom's table held the traditional chocolate cake. Centering the table was a crystal candlebrum holding yellow swirled tapers. Silver appointments and a silver coffee service completed the setting. Serving at the bride's table were Misses Cindy and Debbie Butler. At the groom's table were Mrs. Vicki Ille, sister of the groom, and Miss Leanne Pruitt. Also assisting were Mmes. Jerry Kesner, Roy Harlan, Charles Crumley, Gilbert Land, Beau Light, Donald Goolsby, Nena Camp, and Jim Butler.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Kenny Wilson, sister of the bride. She was seated at a table covered with a yellow and white checked gingham cloth with two wide ruffles edged in lace with lace overlay. The table featured white daisies floating in a large crystal goblet and a white milk glass footed bowl filled with wedding scrolls bearing the couples names and wedding date. Miss Robin Butler passed out rice bags to guests. For the wedding trip the bride wore a yellow jumpsuit, after which the couple will reside in San Angelo.

The bride attended Lamesa and Snyder schools. The groom attended Snyder Schools and is employed with Pfhlger Construction.

Out-of-town guests were registered from North Bend, Oregon; Lamesa; Andrews; Lewisville; Lubbock; Big Spring; Abilene; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Houston; Monahans; San Angelo; and Mineral Wells.

Mr. Bobby Burnett and Mrs. Pat McLean honored their son Mickey and his bride-elect, Miss Susan Light with a rehearsal dinner, July 1, at the Smorgasbord Party Room.

Postal Service Is Productive

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)-"Since the U.S. Postal Service became fully operational in 1972, the American postal worker has become the most productive in the world," says Fred T. Allen, chairman of Pitney Bowes, a manufacturer of mail handling systems and equipment.

The average U.S. Postal Service employe, in fact, handles more than 127,000 pieces of mail a year. That's 11 per cent more than the Canadian postal worker-his nearest competitor. Compared to postal workers in such countries as Great Britain and West Germany, the U.S. postal worker is as much as two-and-a-half times more productive, Allen notes.

Riley, Whittenburg Wed

Miss Karen Lynn Riley became the bride of Mr. Stephen Lynn Whittenburg May 18, in a candlelight service in the First Christian Church. The bride is the daughter of Kenneth L. Riley, 712 West Michigan, Midland, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Whittenburg. Otto Schaufele, minister of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a fitted, slightly flared gown with an empire waistline encircled with a white satin band, jewel neckline and yoke edged with lace ruffles. The complete dress was overlayed in white lace. Two wide ruffles trimmed the bottom of the dress, dividing in the center of the dress, and long full sleeves gathered into lace cuffs. A silver candlelabrum, a silver nut dish and a silver compot holding a bridesmaid bouquet completed the setting. Pair Recites Vows Here

In a candlelight service at First Baptist Church on July 2nd Waynann Monroney and Lt. Scott Anthony Curton were united in marriage. Dr. A.B. Lightfoot, former pastor of the church now of Carrolton, Texas performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wayne Monroney and Col. and Mrs. Warren Donald Curton of Crossville, Tenn.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace with scoop neckline bordered with a ruffle of matching lace and with a fitted bodice and straight sleeves. The full, three-tiered, scalloped skirt, also bordered with a wide row of lace, fell into a chapel-length train. Her fingertip veil of illusion, edged with lace, fell from a wide satin head band encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of feathered soft pink carnations, glamellia buds and baby's breath centered with a single glamellia.

For something old, the bride wore her maternal grandmother's engagement ring; something borrowed was an embroidered white lawn handkerchief belonging to her mother; and something blue was a garter made for her by Mrs. Peggy English.

Wendy Monroney, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of soft pink polyester knit. Its bodice and flowing straight skirt were accented by a diamond-shaped panel of darker pink and white at the waist and she wore a chiffon cape matching her gown. She carried a nosegay of feathered gigi pink and soft pink carnations and baby's breath with pink satin streamers. In her hair she wore feathered pink carnations on a small satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Luann Curton, sister of the groom, and Sue Jane Sullivan. Their dresses and flowers were identical to those of the maid of honor.

Col. Curton served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were Captain Eric Curton of San Antonio, brother of the groom, and Mr. Geral De Haan of Arlington. Ushers were Steve Cowley of Forsan, cousin of the bride, and Geral De Haan.

Brenda Cowley of Forsan, cousin of the bride, registered guests in the foyer of the church. She wore a dress of soft pink ployester knit with matching long-sleeved jacket.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pink and blue floral organza with full skirt and long cuffed sleeves. The groom's mother chose a dress of soft aqua blue chiffon with flowing straight skirt, matching belt, and long, full, cuffed sleeves. Each wore a soft pink glamellia corsage.

Preceding the ceremony Mr. Ty Lockridge of Waco read verses 10 through 13 of the 2nd chapter of The Song of Solomon, "How Do I Love Thee?" by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and the 13 chapter of 1st Corinthians.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. R. Virgil Mott at the organ and Wendy Monroney at the piano. Soloist was Terry Jones, who sang "Follow Me," "Through the Years," "Sunrise, Sunset" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The couple and their parents lighted a memory candle before the repeating of their vows. The ceremony was performed before an arch entwined with greenery and pink gladiolas and flanked on each side by rainbow candelabra containing long white tapers.

A reception followed in the Young Adult Building. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and featured a three-tiered wedding cake in pink and white. An arrangement of soft pink carnations and pink and white gladiolas formed the centerpiece. Mrs. Eric Curton of San Antonio, Mrs. Geral De Haan of Arlington, and Miss Brenda Cowley of Forsan served punch from a crystal bowl. Appointments were in crystal and silver.

The groom's table was covered with a brown paisley cloth overlaid with ecru lace. A double ring chocolate cake and coffee from a silver service were served by Kelly Gressett and Jennifer Floyd. A framed Air Force emblem done in needlepoint by the bride highlighted the table.

Sara Sullivan at the piano provided background music. Angela Floyd handed out pink rice bags. Members of the houseparty were Mmes. James Vincent, Bob Hammack, Donald P. Gressett, James Jones, Charles Jones, Edd Raborn, Renal Rosson and Miss Frances Billingsley.

For going away the bride wore a matching skirt and loop-buttoned vest of wheat-colored nubby polyester with a muted plaid blouse and scarf. Her corsage was a pink glamellia. The couple left immediately for Sacramento, Calif., where the groom is in navigator training with the U.S. Air Force at Mather AFB.

At Baylor she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, the a cappella choir, Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English society, Phi Delta Pi, national honorary French society, the Student Education Association, Baylor Sideline Spirit Club, and for three years a little sister for Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

The groom is a 1972 graduate of Richfield High School in Waco and a 1976 graduate of Baylor with a degree in business administration. He was president of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity and received an ROTC scholarship three years.

A rehearsal dinner at The Shack was hosted by the parents of the groom at noon on July 2nd.

Out of town guests were from Tennessee, Villa Grove, Illinois, Waco, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Arlington, Breckenridge, Anson, Electra, Robert Lee, and Forsan.

In keeping with tradition the bride wore for something old a solid gold bracelet which her great grandfather had given to his bride for their wedding and worn by the bride's grandmother and mother on their wedding days. Something new was a pair of ruby and diamond earrings, a graduation gift from the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E.V. Peek. Something borrowed was the bride's dress from her sister-in-law, Mrs. J.C. Davis. Something blue was silk and lace garter made and given to the bride by Ms. Peggy English. The bride wore pennies minted in the year of the bride's and groom's births.

The bride's mother chose a rose and candlelight chiffon dress and wore a corsage of pink carnations for her daughter's wedding. The groom's mother wore a green dress with a pleated skirt and waist length sleeveless jacket. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

The bride presented her mother with a yellow silk rose bud as she went down the aisle and the groom's mother with a silk rose bud as she and the groom left the altar.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the First Baptist Church following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a floor-length table cloth over yellow and held a four-tiered wedding cake trimmed in yellow roses topped with a traditional bride and groom. The table held a centerpiece of yellow and white daisies arranged in a crystal banana bowl belonging to the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. E.V. Peek of Arlington. Opening lead — Q♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Edgar Kaplan and Norman Kay have long been one of the best pairs. Their style is marked by good steady common sense tactics that frequently become really brilliant.

Edgar's queen of hearts opening was normal. South played low from dummy whereupon Norman overtook his partner's queen with the king in order to shift to the seven of clubs. He led his highest club so that Edgar would not play him for a club honor.

South rose with the ace, led his last heart to dummy's ace, ruffed a heart and led a diamond. Edgar was ready with the second key defensive play. He played his jack of diamonds. Dummy's king won the trick and Norman played his 10 spot to tell Edgar where the nine was.

Now declarer's goose was cooked. He tried his best by playing ace and another spade. But Edgar took his king, led a low diamond to Norman's nine and was sure to make his queen of clubs for the set.

Note that if Norman had not put his king of hearts on Edgar's queen or if Edgar had risen with the ace on the first diamond lead, Edgar would have been end-played and the hand would have been made.

The bidding has been opened to his right with one spade. He has doubled for takeout, but his partner has left the double in.

This is easy. He should open his seven of spades in an effort to get as many trumps as possible out of play.

nader's over-kill

You would think that experiences of the Nixon Administration served to caution public figures to beware of over-kill. But the lessons apparently have been ignored by Ralph Nader. Or perhaps he thinks he is immune.

Nader, the consumer advocate who undoubtedly has cost his constituency more than anyone—maybe even Congress—is going for the big one. He has taken it upon himself to organize a campaign to bring lobbying pressure on 78 legislators in an effort to get stalled legislation moving to create a federal consumer "protection" agency.

This agency would advocate consumer viewpoints before other federal agencies and appeal their decisions in court when they think the agencies ignored the law. In other words, we would have one federal agency policing other federal agencies and passing judgment on them and even taking them to court if they saw fit. You can imagine the harmony this would create in Washington. And you can imagine who would pay for it.

And just think of the effect this could have on business, with the proposed agency interceding in all federal agency affairs affecting consumers, even though the other agencies themselves, under law, must act in the public interest.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States says the proposed Agency for Consumer Advocacy would cost $60 million to operate the first three years, with the figure bound to escalate due to inflation and inbred growth. Moreover, it said the agency basically would include a force of 300 lawyers armed with the federal power to intervene in agency proceedings and appeal adverse decisions to the courts.

The USCC cites five basic objections to the proposal, as follows:

-"The proposed new agency would be given rare and sweeping legal authority-the 'absolute' right-to intercede in proceedings of other federal regulatory agencies and civil enforcement actions. Thus, a defendant, such as a company, would face two prosecutors - the agency itself and the new consumer advocate.

-"The agency would have unrestricted rights to then sue in court in order to challenge an action by another agency, leading to even greater business uncertainty about government decisions.

"The agency would have an 'open-ended right' to seek all kinds of written information from business if related to consumer interests.

-"The agency in all likelihood would make public trade secrets and similar company data.

-"The agency would be free of any court review of its own activities."

It appears that a bitter fight is in the making in Congress. The consumer can hope that the 78 Congressmen will stand their ground and that the proposal will die a natural death. The consumer already has more advocates than he is able to support.

new federal leak

Congress has passed and President Carter signed a bill appropriating $4.7 million to repair the leaky roof of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington.

Of course $4.7 million isn't much money by Washington standards, but still there is a useful lesson in the Kennedy Center's drip drip drip.

The building is only five years old and took a whopping $73 million to build. You would think for that money the bureaucracy could get a tight structure or would sue the daylights out of the contractor. Apparently it can do neither.

Now getting a proper roof on a costly cultural palace and, to take another example, delivering a parcel post package without smashing it should be fairly simple feats.

Yet the bureaucrats who are incapable of performing them ask the country to trust them to handle really complicated matters, such as fine-tuning the economy and running the energy business. Hmm.

ignorance intolerable

What did you think about that Chicago school superintendent who flunked more than half of the eighth graders in one school--refused to let them graduate this year--because they can't yet read at sixth grade levels?

Then on the heels of that came this: Parents in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., suing the school board to prevent the graduation of their daughter.

The George Garretts are trying to prevent their daughter from graduating because they say she, 19, can barely read and write.

In our determination to educate everybody have we considered the possibility that education has to be force fed?

This Chicago area school superintendent, Albert Briggs, does not sound like a hard-nose. He sounds like an educator who is conscientiously concerned for the long-term best interests of the students in his charge.

It was more than a year ago that he served notice on the schools in his district that eighth graders would have to improve reading skills or he'd not let them go on to high school.

He'd found in one of his high schools only 16 percent of the freshman class was able to read at sixth grade level; some could hardly read at all.

So he announced then that eighth graders who were obviously not ready for high school would thereafter be kept behind another year.

His remonstrance helped. That same school where only 18 percent could read at a 6.5 level a year ago--this next fall 95 percent will be reading 6.5 or better. So his year-ago warning did help.

But this one all-black school did not improve reading skills adequately, so he decreed that some seven hundred of this year's eighth graders would be kept behind.

If this example serves its purpose, it will result in improved reading and writing in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades, even at the expense of some less essential studies.

Supt. Briggs says, "I did not just spring that as a surprise. I have been talking to the parents of these children all year."
children all year.

Another inner-city school superintendent, Alice Blair of Southside District 13, has also set a minimum reading score for admission to high school. Even though she set a lower minimum standard, 15 percent of the thousand eighth graders in her district failed to qualify.

She says, "a student who can't read at least sixth-grade level just wouldn't be able to make it in high school. It would be a disservice to put him in a situation where he would be bound to fail."

Briggs, meanwhile, says that he will raise his standard for eighth grade graduation even higher for the class of '78.

Briggs is black. The students involved are black.

There can be no accusation of "discrimination," but rather of a determination by a school administration to support what teachers have been trying to explain for the past twenty years:

In the name of tolerance we've been tolerating and perpetuating ignorance. That is self-defeating.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The way to tell the difference between a weed and a plant is to pull both of them. If it comes up again, then it's a weed."

We were visiting in the coffee shop the other day with a fellow who inquired why the news media put such heavy emphasis on bad news rather than good news.

Not all news is grave, but it seems that readership surveys traditionally have indicated interest in news of a conflict or violent nature far surpasses what might be considered as good news.

Nevertheless, the conversation did send us digging into our files to find the following article which takes a different perspective at the current world situation and carries a fresh new approach with it.

The Positive Side

Many times as we pick up the daily papers or listen to the news on radio or TV, the world around us appears extremely bleak. Let's stop for a minute, however and look at the other side, the positive side.

"The vast majority of our people--regardless of race, creed, color or economic status--are respectable, reasonable, responsible citizens.

"Last year, for example:

"More than 196 million of our citizens were not arrested.

"More than 89 million married persons did not file for divorce.

"More than 115 million individuals maintained a formal affiliation with some religious group.

"More than 75 million citizens and corporations paid more than $160 billion in income taxes.

"More than 49 million students did not riot or rebel against authority.

"More than 4 million teachers, preachers and professors did not strike or participate in riotous demonstrations."

The author further stated, "Don't let anyone sell you the idea that ours is a sick society. It's far from perfect, but it's also far and away the most enlightened, most unselfish and most compassionate in the history of the world."

We can't argue with that.

American artist and ornithologist John James Audubon was born in Haiti and grew up in France. He came to America in 1803 to manage his father's lead mines in southeastern Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON (NEA)- The Treasury Department which has been having its troubles revamping the nation's coins and currency, has a new problem on its hands: the deuce is a dud.

The $2 bill that began rolling off the government's printing presses in April 1976 just isn't "selling." Although more than 500 million of the bills have been issued to date, only about 45 per cent of them have actually gone into circulation.

Unless usage improves substantially over the next few years, Treasury will probably yank the $2 bill off the market. From the government's viewpoint, currency is like any other produce: if it doesn't "sell," it isn't worth printing.

The problem with the $2 bill, according to government officials, is not ordinary consumer resistance but the reluctance of retail merchants to utilize and circulate the new denomination.

Supermarkets, convenience stores and other retail outlets have been slow to stock up on $2 bills. This means relatively few are given out as change to customers and consequently, the bill has not obtained widespread circulation.

Officials say the merchants offer all sorts of excuses for not using the $2 bill. Some claim they have no space in the cash register for a new denomination, although manufacturers of the machines insist there is an extra compartment which could be used for the $2 bill. Other merchants fret about the possibility of employee carelessness in handling the bill, fearing it will be mixed up with $1 bills.

"It's just a matter of habit, a reluctance to change procedures," said James A. Conlon, director of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. "We have every evidence that the average citizen is receptive, and we're working now to bring the retail community around."

At one point, the Treasury Department planned $300,000 public relations campaign to promote use of the $2 bill. But the idea was dropped when several top officials decided the taxpayers might look askance at an expenditure of more than a quarter-million dollars to promote a bill worth only $2.

One helpful businessman sent the department a sample T-shirt emblazoned with a facsimile of the beleaguered bill and a slogan, "Use the Deuce!" He offered to start producing the shirt in large quantities as a patriotic gesture, but the Secret Service-which doesn't think much of any reproduction of official currency-confiscated the sample and vetoed further production.

The only place in the country where the $2 bill has gained widespread acceptance is Portland, Ore., where executives of the Safeway supermarket chain and the Plaid Pantries convenience stores made a concerted effort to circulate the bill.

As a result of their campaign, use of the bill jumped 2,000 per cent in just over a month. "The Portland experience proves it can be done." Conlon said.

There is a considerable potential savings to be gained if the government can persuade people to use the $2 bill, since the printing of $1 bills now accounts for 60 per cent of the annual workload of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

The Bureau currently prints about 1.8 billion $1 bills each year, at a cost of $15.25 per thousand. Because the $1 bill is so heavily used, it has an average life span of only 18 to 20 months.

But if the Treasury Department can ever achieve its original goal of replacing half the $1 bills in circulation with the new $2 bill, the government can save some $5 to $6 million annually.

"It's going to take considerably longer than the five years we had expected, but the thing makes so much sense pragmatically that we just have to believe the deuce will win out," said Conlon.

Jennifer Ashley: Paris Smash

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — You might not know the name Jennifer Ashley, but in Paris they shower her with champagne and show her to the front of the line.

She's just back from Paris, and the Cannes Film festival, and she was a smash in both places. Pretty heady stuff for a little girl from Philadelphia who grew up with movie stars in her eyes.

The thing about Jennifer Ashley the French go for is her movie. Over here it's called "The Pom Pom Girls," but the French call it "Lache-Moi Les Baskets," which you must admit has more style. (When you find out that "Lache-Moi Les Baskets" means, roughly, "Give Up Your Sneakers," however, it loses a lot of that style.)

"The Pom Pom Girls" did pretty well here, too, but over there it's a smash. Here it made money, that's about all. It sounds like a porno thing, but it isn't — it's one of those "American Grafitti" types.

She's also big in another minor epic, a Mexican-made shark-drama called "Tintorera" which was also shown at Cannes. And now she's coming out in something called "Towing," which she says deals with "a renegade towing company in Chicago," which sounds important as all get out.

Anyhow, these small pictures are making Jennifer Ashley a force to be reckoned with. She says that making low budget films is a good way to get experience, to get a name, to attract a following. And to avoid television — she's only been forced to do two minor TV things, and she hopes that's it. She wants to be a movie star.

It's always been that way. As a kid in Philadelphia, she had these big dreams, these fantasies of being a large movie star. First problem, however, was opposition at home.

"My father and my mother didn't think that was a very sensible goal," she says.

Her father was a manufacturer of girls' coats. Her mother had been an English war bride. Both of them were of the conventional opinion that their daughter should aspire to something more practical than becoming a movie star.

Jennifer Ashley

"They thought I should teach kindergarten and then marry a millionaire," Jennifer says.

Instead, she went to college and fell in love one day with a man she met in the park while she was busily cutting a class. He was cutting a class, too. That gave them a common ground for the beginning of a relationship.

The man— his name is Michael Gitter — turned out to be a medical student. They got married and when he graduated, he got a spot as an intern in San Francisco. The two of them came West together.

One day, Jennifer was walking down a San Francisco street when a man approached her with that old you-ought-to-be-in-pictures line.

"I'd had lots of that," she says, "but this was different. This time it wasn't pornographic pictures, so I was interested."

So she began working, in filmed commercials, then in her horde of low budget features. Eventually, she and her husband moved to Los Angeles. He opened a clinic, but lately he's gotten interested in writing screenplays for his wife.

"He told me the other day," she says, "that I shouldn't go out on any more interviews or readings for parts. He said that from now on he'll write all my parts."

thoughts

"Behold, I am coming soon, bringing my recompense, to repay every one for what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end." — Revelation 22:12, 13.

No man who continues to add something to the material, intellectual and moral well-being of the place in which he lives, is left long without proper reward. — Booker T. Washington, American educator.

Some years ago, an old, elegant hotel in San Diego, Calif., decided they needed additional elevators. They hired a group of architects and engineers to figure out the best location, both in terms of appearance and cost.

The planners were trying to decide where the best place would be to cut through the ceiling. Some people say it was a bellhop, others say it was a janitor who thought "What a mess it's going to be around this place with all that old plaster dust."

The more he thought about it, the braver he got, until finally this unimportant person went up to the group of men and said, "Why don't you build the elevator outside the tower?" And for some reason, these professionals listened and the idea clicked in their imagination. "Why not?" they said. "It's never been done before, but let's try and see how we could do it!"

And so for the first time, a glass-enclosed elevator was built outside the structure. A creative breakthrough resulted because someone who didn't know any better, sparked an imaginative idea in the minds of people who could see the possibilities.

Once, when my children were still quite small, I sat them down in front of the radio and turned it on. First I turned the dial to some loud raucous music. After a moment of this noise, I twisted the knob to a point between stations where there was nothing but static. Then I found some ranting announcer and we listened to his rapid-fire delivery of some commercial message. With another twist of the dial, beautiful, soft music came drifting through the speaker.

With the sounds of an orchestra playing softly I went on to explain to my children the purpose of my little demonstration. "You have a little dial in your mind," I said, "and just like the radio dial, you can turn it anytime you want. You do not have to listen to negative ideas. Just twist the knob and tune in happy positive thoughts."

And being a preacher, I just couldn't resist adding a verse from the Bible to support my little sermon: "He who rules his spirit is better than he who takes a city" (Proverbs 16:32). Get the happiness habit by tuning in your thinking dial to positive inspiring thoughts.

The shimmy in the front end seemed to be getting worse as I drove down the freeway. Even adjusting my speed wouldn't make it stop. I did some mental checking and figured it couldn't have been more than four months ago that I had bought new tires for the front and had the wheels aligned. When I parked the car at the church, I was surprised to find that one of the front tires was almost completely worn out on one side. I needed another front-end alignment quickly!

Sometimes our lives need to be realigned. We get bumped here or hit a curb there and soon our perspective is knocked out of line. I've found that when this happens to me, love puts alignment power back into my life and my faith.

When love is at the core of your faith, you are constantly checking out your alignment to make sure you're not off on some tangent. A dynamic faith is focused on service and not on selfish gain. How's your alignment today?

I was in a tiny radio studio, preparing to tape a show for a syndicated network. The "On the Air" light flashed on and my host opened the broadcast.

After finishing his introduction, he turned to me and asked his first question. But before I could answer, he said, "I'm sorry, the engineer is telling me that something didn't go right. We'll have to start over."

"We'll be ready to go again in five minutes," the engineer behind the glass window told us. While waiting, we chatted together. "This is a chance to start over," my host declared. "It isn't very often in life that you have a chance to begin again." Just then we received the countdown, and our interview started over. This time we finished successfully.

"It isn't very often in life that you have a chance to begin again." I thought about those words as I drove home. And the more I thought about them, the more I was convinced that every day is really a chance to start all over again. Where you have fallen, you can begin again. The breaking dawn marks the beginning of a new chance.

Teen Babysitter Disturbs Mother

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of two boys, ages 6 and 7. A very sweet 14-year-old neighbor girl babysits for us. She's always been very reliable, and the boys adore her.

Several nights ago the 6-year-old told me that the sitter said they could stay up an hour past their bedtime if they took off their clothes and ran through the house naked. He said they refused and went to bed. The 7-year-old confirmed the story and added a few more disturbing details.

I know that kids sometimes make up things, but after I explained the seriousness of their accusations, they assured me they were telling the truth.

It's hard to believe this girl would do something like this. but what do I do now? Should I talk to her mother? She's a nice woman and would probably be shocked and hurt, but she'd want to know if this were true.

Or should I talk to the girl? I can't have her babysit again thinking something might happen to my sons. I don't want to hurt anyone unnecessarily, but children must be protected.

PERPLEXED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Talk to the girl, not in a judgmental or accusatory way, but as a concerned mother who doesn't want her sons involved in further nudey games. You could also use this incident to impart some badly needed elementary sex education to a young girl who is naturally curious.

DEAR ABBY: What in your opinion is the most important ingredient in a successful party?

THE HOSTESS WITH THE MOSTEST

DEAR MOSTEST: People! It's not what you put on the TABLE, it's what you put on the CHAIRS that makes a good party.

DEAR ABBY: I've been living with Larry for 14 months. We get along perfectly except when I bring up the subject of marriage. He says, "Maybe someday, but now now!"

When we decided to live together it was supposed to be a "trial" to see if we got along well enough to get married. I think we've passed the test, but apparently Larry still isn't sure. He doesn't even want to get officially engaged.

I am 19 and he is 25. I was married for two years, and I'm sure we could make a marriage work.

Should I drop the subject, or should Larry give me a date?

WANTS MARRIAGE

DEAR WANTS: If Larry doesn't give you a date, drop the subject AND also Larry.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SOCIAL FLOP" IN LITTLE ROCK: Here's a helpful tip for the shy woman. One very wise man said: "A beautiful woman is the one I notice. A charming woman is the one who notices ME."

Weighty Crimes Probed

HILLSDALE, Mich. (AP)-Police here were investigating two weighty crimes Thursday: the theft of 700 used railroad ties and the mysterious moving of a cement loading dock.

The 122,000 pounds of ties worth an estimated $7,000 disappeared in a 48-hour period from a storage area in nearby Hanover Township, police said.

A Greenville, S.C., trucking company, reported the disappearance of the ties. The firm estimated it would have taken three semi-truck loads to carry away the loot.

Police said they had no idea what use the thieves would have for the ties.

In the second big crime report, officials of the DCA Food Industries wholesale distribution center said their 30-foot-wide cement loading dock had been moved five inches off its foundation by some unknown source.

They estimated it would cost $7,000 to get the dock back into its normal position.

Don Meredith Back To ABC

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Don Meredith, the ex-Dallas Cowboys quarterback, will leave his post as an NBC sports commentator and return to ABC TV in the fall to again provide color commentary on ABC's Monday Night football.

Meredith, who played for Dallas for nine seasons, joined NBC in 1974 as a sports commentator and actor after four years at ABC.

An ABC spokesman said Thursday that Meredith signed a "multi-year" contract with the network but declined to say how much the joke-cracking 39-year-old Texan will earn.

The network said the contract primarily calls for Meredith to rejoin Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford as a commentator, but also allows him to appear in TV series, TV movies and various specials.

Alex Karras, the ex-Detroit Lions linebacker who worked with Gifford and Cosell on the football telecast the last two seasons, won't be on the program next fall, the spokesman said.

He said Karras' contract was not renewed and that Karras had decided to concentrate on his acting career.

Much Ink Used

NEW YORK (AP)-More than a billion pounds of ink roughly the same mass as the combined weight of the total population of New York City's seven million people-are used every year in the United States and Canada, according to the Inmont Corp., a supplier of printing inks.

Queen Insisted On Good Beer

WASHINGTON (AP)-England's first Queen Elizabeth insisted on good beer when she traveled, according to the United States Brewers Association. She sent couriers ahead to test the beverage in the next town, and if it was not satisfactory, she had her own favorite brew brought from London in time for her visit, says Philip C. Katz, the association's director of research.

Her rival, Mary, Queen of Scots, drank beer even while she was a prisoner in Tuthury Castle.

King Arthur served his Knights of the Roundtable a beer called "bragget," highly seasoned with spices. King Henry VIII offered guests a breakfast consisting of roast beef, bread and ale, the association reports.

Rudyard Kipling was born in Bombay, India, on Dec. 30, 1865.

Freedom in Christ is a priceless gift of God. Jesus said, "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36).

Yet, many believers in Christ yield this freedom to the restrictions of denominational alliances and human traditions. They cannot understand that the church established by Jesus Christ, and described in the New Testament, was neither Protestant, Roman Catholic, nor Jewish—in the sense that men today tend to classify one another into religious categories.

The first century church of Christ, however, could be considered Jewish in the sense that its first members were Jews; it could be considered protestant in the sense that its leaders and members would boldly protest any new doctrines or innovations; and it was catholic (universal) inasmuch as it was established for all peoples of the earth.

Members of the church in that age were called Christians. There were thousands of them, and they belonged to no denomination. They were all members only of that broad universal church for which Jesus died (Acts 20:28). They were not sectarian in any sense. They had become members of Christ's spiritual body through obedience to the gospel (Hebrews 5:8, 9).

In the unity of a faith universal, they were recognized universally as simply Christians.

If this view of Christianity, so plainly set forth in the New Testament, had been maintained through the centuries, we would not have the divided warring factions that spend their energies fighting each other rather than fighting Satan. Sadly, thousands of believers in Christ are shackled by religious creeds.

The New Testament view of Christianity is not a narrow-minded one. Under this view alone can men hold that every person who has been born again is a brother or sister in Christ. Any denominational view, regardless of how tolerant, is bound to be more restricting and narrow than the undenominational Christianity of the first century.

According to this view, men are free under God to believe and obey the commands of God without human restrictions. Every man is responsible to God alone for searching the Scriptures for himself and rendering loving obedience to the Father's will. When people follow this pattern, obey Christ's will, and associate themselves together for the purpose of worship and service — maintaining allegiance to Christ rather than men or creeds of men — this is truly the Lord's church.

To be a simple New Testament Christian, without denominational restrictions, is a glorious privilege. One enjoys the liberty that Christ allows, and is free from the dictates of men and the ecclesiastic authority of religious overlords. This, indeed, is the freedom that is in Christ.

"If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36).
