Texas Answer Announced To Cotton World

Bill Needs Only Signature Of Governor Sterling And This Is Regarded As Almost Sure By State Officials

Attacks Promised

Constitutionality Of Measure Likely Will Be Attacked In Courts; Various Opposition Movements Reported

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Sept. 21.—The Texas legislature enacted a cotton acreage reduction bill late today designed to effect a 50 per cent curtailment in the state's cotton plantings in 1932 and 1933.

The bill needed only the signature of Governor Ross S. Sterling to become a law and that was regarded as assured.

Each farmer would be prohibited from planting to cotton next year more than 30 per cent of the land he cultivated in all crops this year. The same percentage basis would apply in 1933 with the additional provision that no 1932 cotton land could be planted to cotton in 1933. After 1933 there would be no percentage limit but no land could be planted to cotton in successive years.

Is Texas Answer

Such was the answer of Texas, the largest cotton producng state in the nation, to the demand from the south for cotton acreage restriction by law. Many southern farmers and legislators were disappointed because Texas dd not pass a bill prohibiting the growing of cotton next year. Louisiana and South Carolina had passed bills asking for a cotton holiday for one year.

Passage of the bill required virtually two weeks. Governor Sterling called the lawmakers into session Sept. 8 to attempt to relieve the plight of the cotton farmer.

Prospect For Fair Is Said To Be Bright

President Grant Declares In Interview That Exhibits Of This Year Will Be Better Than Any In History

"We are going to have the biggest and best lot of exhibits we have ever had at a fair here," Homer D. Grant, president of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair, said yesterday in a discussion of the 18th annual exposition which opens next Monday.

"There is no question about the number or quality of the exhibits," he continued. "I have never seen such crops in this territory as we have had this year.

Best Displays

"From all the reports I have received from the Sopth Plains, farmers will have their very best displays. From that standpoint, in my mind there is no doubt as to the success of the fair."

Directors of the association last week decided to make a reduction in the price of season tickets, the president said. "Jack Parsons made the suggestion that the tickets be $1.98 instead of $2.50" President Grant added.

During the 17 years the fair has been a going concern, it has paid for its expansion out of the receipts at the gate, Mr. Grant pointed out.

Heavy Investment

"Aside from the original investment of $10,000 in the fair grounds and buildings, all that we now have there has been put there out of the fair itself," he stated. "The fair grounds and buildings are worth, conservatively, $50,000 to $60,000.

"The loyal people of the South Plains who have paid admissions from year to year and who have attended in lean years and good, deserve the credit for the accomp-

Veteran Hanson Relieves Dick In Fifth But It Was All Up As Husky Barons Had Packed Away Enough Margin

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Sept. 21.—The Birmingham Barons of the Southern Association came back tonight after dropping three straight games and defeated Houston, the Texas League champions, in the Dixie series, 3 to 1.

It was the fifth game and the Barons cut the Buffs lead to one game.

McCabe Is Loser

Dick McCabe loaned to Houston by Fort Worth, was charged with the loss. The Barons jarred one run from him in the first inning and pounded him for two more in the fourth. The veteran Hanson relieved him in the fifth, but it was too late.

Both teams left late tonight for Birmingham to resume play there Wednesday.

If Birmingham wins, they must come here to play the seventh game.

Get More Hits

The Texans got one more hit—seven—than the Barons, but could not follow through. Banecroft scored for Birmingham in the first inning after Catcher Spring had dropped his slow popup, permitting him to reach second. He came in on Abernathy's long fly to centerfield.

An Editorial Urging Lubbock People To Keep Calm And "Keep Their Feet On The Ground" Despite Wild Rumor

"NOW is the time for all good men and true to come to the aid of their community." That is paraphrasing a very old axiom, but it is absolutely true under present conditions.

The opposite, "every man for himself and may the Devil take the hindmost," can destroy years of effort, make valueless investments, decrease property values, increase unemployment and promote chaos both from the individual and the community standpoint.

This editorial is in reference to the business and banking situation. Every bank in Lubbock is in good condition. Even under the present depressed conditions every bank in Lubbock is sound and will be doing business when the present business depression is over—provided, our people keep their heads, maintain that Lubbock spirit that has builded Lubbock, do not become panicky, do not adopt a policy of "every man for himself and the Devil take the hindmost."

One town in West Texas in recent months has witnessed the failure of its last bank because the town has been divided against itself.

Now citizens of this same town, are starting and spreading wild stories about the business and banking conditions in Lubbock.

As stated above, every bank and practically every business concern in Lubbock is in sound condition. But stories have been started in this other town during the past week that our banks have had runs on them and that our merchants are all broke. Such stories are not true. But it has been told, and sad but true, believed in a few instances.

Other stories have been told that certain Lubbock banks have consolidated. Another untruth. And on and on these stories are being told. All untrue. It makes no difference whether these stories are started through ignorance or maliciousness, they are not true and can hurt if believed.

The constant repetition of such stories can do harm locally, if we of Lubbock do not show the stuff we re made of and pay them no attention. They are untrue. They will hurt Lubbock, yes, and every individual citizen in Lubbock, if we give them ear and allow ourselves to be led astray by them.

Our business concerns and banks are sound. Banks could pay off hundreds of thousands of dollars to depositors if need be, and still be solvent and stay open for business.

But our banks can serve Lubbock and this section many many times better with the cooperation and help of the citizenship and their depositors.

A bank has a community service to render. It is more than a mere vault. A vault couldn't lend money to finance business and agriculture and industry and commerce. A vault couldn't provide a medium of exchange, it couldn't perform any of the services of a bank.

Banks furnish all the services of a vault, and in addition furnish the services of checking accounts, media of exchange, the financing of business, agriculture, industry and commerce and many other services which are absolutely essential and necessary in the present business way of doing things.

For every bank that has failed there are a hundred, yes a thousand strong, safe, conservative, honestly managed banks, like our banks in Lubbock, that haven't failed, and that won't fail— unless our people lose all sense of reason.

Lubbock people must not be stampeded by false stories. Lubbock people must keep their heads. Lubbock people must realize that by standing together they have accumulated what they now have, have given their property its present value. In our opinion they will continue that policy.

To the individual we would say—Stand pat! Be calm. Don't listen to or believe wild stories repeated as a result of ignorance or maliciousness. Have faith! The present cotton crop will bring ten million dollars into circulation on the South Plains. Better times, better business are just ahead.

"Cities do not happen—Cooperation builds them." Cooperation has built Lubbock. Cooperation will maintain Lubbock We must cooperate.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 21. (AP)—Orders were issued tonight by Adjutant General W. H. Bailey for the mobilization of between 1,500 and 2,000 troops who will be sent to Cedar county where farmers today again resisted veterinarians' attempts to test cattle.

The adjutant general's action came after a sheriff's force of 65 men was prevented by a band of more than 200 aroused farmers from testing cattle at the farm of Jacob Lenker, near Tipton.

The farmers threw mud in the deputies' automobiles and smashed the windows of two motor cars before the sheriff's forces returned to Tipton without attempting to round up cattle for testing.

Bargain Days Are Planned By Local Merchants On Two Days During Fair

Governor Asks State Slashes

Subject Of Reducing Salaries Of State Employes Receiving $134 Per Month Submitted By Chief Executive

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Sept. 21. — Governor Ross S. Sterling today submitted to the legislature the subject of reducing salaries of all state employees receiving more than $134 a month.

The subject was submitted when the legislature had almost finished its cotton relief work and appearances were that the session would be adjourned by the middle of the week. With all appropriation bills resubmitted, however, it looked as though the lawmakers would be here a week or two longer.

Sees Tax Increase

Governor Sterling said he felt that if governmental expenses were not reduced, the state property tax would have to be increased to its constitutional maximum of 77 cents. The rate last year was 69 cents and the governor has been trying to find some way to avoid an increase.

The bills introduced pursuant of the governor's message would effect a ten per cent reduction in all salaries over $134 a month, The

Hoover Speaks Before Legion At Convention

Chief Executive Applauded By Legionnaires In Calling On Them To Oppose For Present All Expenditures

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, Sept. 21. — President Hoover told the American Legion today it must oppose for the present all increased governmental expenditures, including those arising from veterans' legislation.

Standing before a packed hall at the opening session of the national Legion convention in Olympia arena, the president was greeted by roars of applause that did not subside for three minutes.

Without mentioning the bonus by name, Mr. Hoover drew applause from the Legionnaires when he called on them emphatically for "determined opposition" to additional demands on the nation "until we have won this war against world depression."

All Are Included

"I am not speaking alone," he said, "of veterans' legislation which has been urged for action at this convention, but I am speaking equally of demands for every other project proposed in the country which would require increased federal expenditures."

As Mr. Hoover walked from the platform after finishing his 15-minute address, a chant arose above the applause from a nearby group: "We want beer. We want beer."

The president smiled as he glanced toward the jovial crowd. The chanters wore the regulation Legion overseas caps.

Two Germans And Portuguese Are Picked Up On Wreckage Of Ill-Fated Plane; Report Made By Wireless

Bound For Russia

Were Forced Down On Atlantic By Storms After Completing About 2,600 Miles Of Their 3,700 Mile Flight

(By The Associated Press)

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 21. — Picked up after floating 148 hours on the wave-buffeted wreckage of their Lisbon to New York plane, three foreign fliers were safe today aboard the small Norwegian motorship Belmoira.

The rescue of the daring pair of German airmen and a Portuguese sportsman who had been given up for dead was reported to the outside world by wireless just one week after they were due in New York.

A Terse Message

First came a terse message from the Belmoira saying the wreckage of a plane had been sighted about eight miles off Cape Pine, a treacherous section of the Newfoundland coast.

Later advices told of the finding of Willy Rody and Christian Johanssen, the German fliers, and their Portuguese companion, Fernando Coasta Viega.

Still later Johanssen messaged the Junkers airplane works in Dessau, Germany, of the abandonment of their plane and subsequent rescue.

Gives Few Details

Hours after reporting the rescue, the Belmoira gave a few scant details.

The fliers all were in good health, the motorship wirelessed, but Costa Viega was suffering from an injured leg.

The airmen were picked up not fifty miles from the position in which they were sighted a week ago by the steamer Pennland, about 30 miles off Cape Race, Newfoundland.

From this meager information, it was believed here the trio had struck aviation's "blind spot," where the metallic deposits of Bell Island are believed to influence the instruments of trans-Atlantic airmen. This, it was said, probably caused them to fly in circles until their fuel

Banker And Woman Bystander Killed As New York Broker's Ship Crashes

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. — Buckling in mid-air, the speed plane of James Goodwin Hall plunged to earth between two houses today, setting fire to both and killing Peter J. Brady, banker and labor leader, and a woman bystander.

Hall, who had been using the plane to further a campaign against prohibition, escaped death in a half-opened parachute. Brady, head of Mayor Walker's aviation committee, was trapped in the hurtling mass of molten metal and flaming fabric.

Sixty-year-old Mrs. Mary Trittre, who was sitting in a garden, was burned to death by a shower of ignited gasoline.

Hall, a New York broker, was piloting the ship. Suddenly, something went wrong with the plane. It caught fire and plunged.

Seven Pigs To Be Killed On Dawson Farm; W. W. Evans Is To Conduct Demonstrations Near Lamesa

(By Staff Correspondent)

LAMESA, Sept. 21.—Seven pigs, belonging to S. S. and Edwin Forrest, four-H club boys of Dawson county, will be butchered on Thursday, October 1, at the Forrest farm, near here, the first step in a hog killing and meat curing demonstration staged by W. W. Evans, county agent.

The following day the animals will be dressed in a demonstration at the Texon Theatre and the hams and bacon cured for sale.

"C. A. Sheffield, manager of the Hotel Lubbock, has ordered ten of the hams," Mr. Evans announced "We are selling the hams at 25 cents a pound. They will be home sugar cured hams, of the finest quality."

The Forest brothers raised 17 pigs that average from 180 to 200 pounds each. They were raised on wheat pasture in the spring and sudan in the summer, with milk and some grain.

After the animals are killed they will be taken to a cold storage place in an ice cream plant next the theatre where they are to be chilled "to the bone," Mr. Evans said. By Friday noon or before the meat is expected to be in shape for use.

"We do not recommend that freshly killed meats be used in warm weather like this," Mr. Evans said. "It is not possible except when the meat is chilled to the bone and then, after the dressing takes place, is put back into proper temperatures for the proper curing.

"At the present price of pork it seems that conditions warrant the killing and curing of hogs. We have demands from Lubbock, Dallas and Fort Worth for country cured hams and bacon."

One of the principal matters of work for 4-H club members and home demonstration workers as well as farmers, will be the killing, curing and canning of hogs and calves.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expertly adjusted device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically everlasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptu .s which heretofore were considered uncontrollable.

Stomach troubles, backache and constipation, nearly always a consequence of rupture, promptly disappear.

Tennesseean Is Opposed To Plan

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 21. (AP)—Dr. W. J. Fitts, Tenessee commissioner of agriculture is of the opinion that Texas' plan to control cotton acreage by legislation "is not feasible or practicable at all."

"It would have to be a voluntary proposition," said Dr. Fitts, in commenting on the Texas legislatures effort to bring about a 30 per cent reduction in next year's cotton acreage as a means of helping the planter.

The commissioner believes, however, that if the price of cotton continues low there will be a "natural reduction" in acreage. But as for any legislative attempt to control the cotton acreage, "I can't say that it is feasible or practicable at all" said Dr. Fitts. He believes that increased consumption of cotton can be brought about through education and this will have a tendency to bolster the price.

A DECEPTION

That The Public Is Openly Warned Against

When You Go to Buy GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN for Pain . . . Watch Out That This Deception is Not Attempted Against You

THIS warning is printed to put the public on guard against a deception which may be practised against those who seek genuine Bayer Aspirin for pain, headaches or colds.

We take this means of warning you, so you may be able to protect yourself and family against results of such deception.

BEWARE!

Other preparations, we are informed, have been offered at times to those who ask for Bayer Aspirin; and even represented in some cases as being "the same as Bayer Aspirin."

Watch Out! Remember that years ago doctors warned the public against "headache remedies," some of which are heart depressants and unsafe for many people to take.

Then remember how Genuine Bayer Aspirin came. And was acclaimed the world over by leading men of science as SAFE relief for pain, and was prescribed without hesitation by eminent physicians. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

What folly, then, in the light of these things, to dose yourself with drugs of which you know nothing. Don't gamble—KNOW.

The genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets are made by a special process, under careful supervision of scientists, in the Bayer Laboratories, with over 25 years of highly specialized experience.

So when you want SAFE relief for pain, cold or headache, ask for BAYER ASPIRIN. You have a perfect right to ask for what you want. And an equal right to get what you ask for.

Look for the name BAYER on the package. And the word Genuine in red. Insist on Genuine Bayer Aspirin and refuse to accept a substitute.

DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

"That bully old slogan hits me just right—

. . . no bamboozlin' about that!"

SURE! When a word fits, you know it! "Satisfy" just fits CHESTERFIELD. A smoker picks up a package, and he likes its neat appearance—no heavy inks or odors from ink. That satisfies him.

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

He lights up. At the very first puff he likes the flavor and the rich aroma. He decides that it tastes better—neither raw nor over-sweet; just pleasing and satisfying.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied!

Satisfy—they've got to satisfy! The right tobaccos, the CHESTERFIELD kind, cured and aged, blended and cross-blended, to a taste that's right. Everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is the best that money can buy and that science knows about. CHESTERFIELDS do a complete job of it. They Satisfy!

Last season the Buffs were able to turn back the invasion of the Bullfighters to the tune of 6 to 0 but the Matadors are conceded to have a much better team this fall, while the Buff mentors are con- fronted with the freshman rule for the first time and have a much smaller squad from which to select their team.

25 Men Eligible

There are only about 25 eligible men for the Varsity team and some of these have had little or no ex- perience. "It is rather a difficult assignment," said Coach "Sad" Sam Burton when questioned as to the team.

"We have a small squad of men but I have never seen a finer spirit in my life. Every man is coming his very best and whether or not we lick the Matadors, I feel certain of one thing, our boys will be fighting all the time and we should have a great game," con- tinued the sad one.

May Change Lineup

The lineup for the Tech game will be some different than that used in the starting lineup against the Panhandle Aggies although it can't be much different. In Red McInnis, Capt. "Daddy" Powell, Bob Clark, Al Dunlap, "Cow" Williams, and Jack Spence Coaches Burton and Crump have some good ball carriers, and all are fair blockers.

Brotherton is a good blocker but his fumbling in practice has made the coaches fearful of him as a carrier of the pigskin. Clyde Keith, Guy Richards and Leonard Britt are other backs that will doubtless see service. Britt is a husky junior of 165 lbs. and he has the best kicking toe seen in these parts in many a day, but this is his first year at football and he has con- siderable to learn.

Keith, a cousin of the famous "Red" Head, is light, but fast and shifty and will be used in many games when a man of his type is needed. Richards, who was ill for several days just before the foot- ball training, has not shown the fire he is capable of showing. He will come into condition slowly, but should be all right in another week or so.

The line composed of Bill Mc- Lendon, Farris Bass, and D. J. Phil- lips as centers; Leo Cooper, Ronald Woolever, Lloyd Devin, Tim Dougherty, and "Sunshine" Harris as guards; "Big George" Manning, "Gallop" Ballengee, "Tricky" Layne, and Arthur Jennings as tackles; Otis Burk, Joe "College" Forten- berry, L. A. Stowe, and David Lee, as ends, are all expected to be ready for the Tech game.

Dick Donaghue, former Notre Dame star, will assist Frank Thom- as as football coach at the Univer- sity of Alabama.

TOO MUCH TALK

COLUMBUS, O. — Mark S. Gor- don, taxi driver, picked up a fare, drove him around for a while, and then found he could not pay. He took the man to jail, made his com- plaint, and then proceeded to tell everyone within a block of the sta- tion. Finally he told Patrolman W. A. Johnson. Johnson, inquisitive, asked Gordon if he had a cab driv- er's license. Gordon didn't. Johnson searched the cab, found what he be- lieved to be whiskey in it, and filed charges against Gordon.

More Than Score Seeded Net- men Win Early Sets In Pa- cific Coast Play; Vines De- feats Californian In First

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21. (AP) — The more than a score of titled net nomads campaigning for the fifth annual Pacific Southwest tennis championship coasted through the first round matches of the tourna- ment today.

The leader of the racket wielders, youthful Ellsworth Vines, of Pasa- dena, Cal., national men's singles champion, made quick work of his opening opponent in the first round of the men's singles. Jack Beckman, of Los Angeles, winning in two love sets.

George Lott, of Philadelphia, seeded No. 2, likewise had little dif- ficulty in eliminating Hyde Braley, 6-2, 6-2, while Johnny Van Ryn, of Los Angeles, third on the list of seeded players, ran into the stern- est opponent of any of the stars, Dick Hinckley of Pasadena, but won, 6-0, 8-6.

The national boys double cham- pion, Gene Mako, of Glendale, Cal., although erratic, gave Sidney Wood, New York, seeded No. 4, an interest- ing match, which the Wimbledon singles champion won, 6-4, 7-5.

It was the same story in the first round play of the men's doubles. Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., the national champ- ionship team seeded No. 1, wiped out Charles Otis and Dick Belote, of Pasadena, 6-4, 6-2. Gregory Man- gin, Newark, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., second on the list, eliminated Clay Mahoney and Orville Scholtz, Los Angeles, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Gabby Street says his boys are going to win the championship no matter what kind of a team Con- nie puts on the field. In other words, it Macks no difference.

Giants Jump On Five Pitchers For 17 To 7 Victory In Last Chicago Appearance; Phils Beat Pirates

ST. Once Over And Then A Message

"Yes, I was winning easily when the blighter fouled me and of course I couldn't go on after that," probably is the gist of Phalling Phil Scott's conversation as he ap- plies his lather brush to the face and perhaps the nose and mouth of a customer in Scott's London barber and beauty emporium. Be- ing a barber, naturally Phil is qualified to ramble on and on in the aimless fashion of the tonsorial artist. At that, perhaps his line is more entertaining than the base- ball, horse racing and football chat- ter that pervades United States shaving parlors.

Three Tie With Glenna For Medalist Honors In Opening Women's Big Play

BUFFALO COUNTY, CLUB, WILLIAMSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 21. (AP)—Four players, including Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, the titlist, scored 82s today to tie for medal honors in the qualifying round of the 35th United States Women's golf championship.

Mrs. Vare's three challengers in the duel for the medal were Maur- een Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J. Ca- nadian champion; Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, Mo., western cham- pion, and Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit, Mich.

The foursome was not required to play off for first place. H. H. Ramsay, president of the United States Golf association, and Mrs. Helen Payson Corson, of Philadel- phia, chairman of the tournament committee, decided to give each of the players a silver bowl symbolic of the medal.

Mrs. Leon Solomon of Fort Worth, Texas, qualified with an 86 and will meet Mrs. Leo Federman of New York tomorrow.

Lee Hanley, backfield star of the Northwestern eleven last year, has been signed as assistant coach at the University of South Carolina.

Intersectional Stamp On High School Frolic

Woodrow Wilson Wildcats Here Saturday To Battle Wester- ners At Tech Field; Coach Pleased With Results

As if their 26 to 0 victory over Clovis High school's Wildcats last Friday meant that they must work all the harder in order to win other games that appear on the schedule, Lubbock's high school Westerners were back on their Fair Park prac- tice field yesterday afternoon in another general workout described by the lads tramping back to the dressing room as "plenty tough."

This week finds the Westerners hopping into a game of intersection- al importance with the Woodrow Wilson Wildcats from Dallas com- ing to Lubbock for a Saturday af- ternoon contest. Neither team nor coach knows the "inside" of the other's plan of attack and defense, and so far as Coach Chapman is concerned it is only another chance of discovering what medicine the Westerners need to take in order to be fortified against the inevitable clash with the District 1 contenders for the state title. Woodrow Wilson is in District 6 of the Class A de- partment.

Coach Chapman appeared well pleased with the showing of his youngsters against Clovis last week, stating that Clovis had a pretty fair team and capable of putting up a stiff front, but he would not com- mit himself as to the possible out- come of this week's game nor of the permanent strength of the Weste- ners, choosing to let time tell the tale.

Work on the Fair Park field this week will be of a general nature, with more time being given to a quick shift of the defense in order to meet surprise attacks. New plays, of course, will be introduced and worked on and time will be devoted to blocking and tackling in accord- ance with all-around practice.

Keep On Prospecting!

TTLE pieces of yellow ore found in a ditch started the California gold rush. Glittering s of dirt found on a river bank in Alaska gave to the stampede for gold in Yukon. All the oil booms in Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Texas California came from spurts of black liquid from in the ground. Strike oil or kick up a nugget ld and in unbelieveable time the news will have eled to the far corners of the globe to make its e a focus for hordes of fortune hunters.

ut why go to such rare things as gold rushes and ooms for illustrations of man's treasure-hunting nct when every day there are communities dem- rating it anew, though in a less picturesque and ler way?

hese are the cities and towns affording advan- which advertise themselves. Good wages and loyment are the "ore" and industrial and business rtunities are the "oil" that bring to these com- lities new citizens, new industries, new business greater prosperity.

very community has its "vein of gold" or its gusher," but many, like Russia and Mexico, have d to develop their rich resources. While they slumbered, albeit fretfully, others have been specting" and broadcasting to the world the sures they have found.

ommunity prospecting always produces "paying ." There is not a community, not excluding the ntiest metropolis, that could not discover new es and wells of community development merely little digging and drilling.

And Lubbock has not yet reached the point where an stop prospecting.

GOOD TASTE

At a convention of merchants it was the con- sus of opinion that the taste of the American ple has improved greatly in recent years and is growing more discriminating. Several speakers the convention gave most of the credit to news- pers, magazines, the radio, movies, schools and seums and their educational influence upon the neral public.

Better taste among buyers imposes on manufac- rers and merchants and their agents the solemn ty of keeping pace both with their products and eir own powers of discrimination between what is good and what is in bad taste. It behooves the aller to educate his sales force, his advertising partment and himself.

Those who produce or purvey the clothing, house- ld furnishings, books, music and art objects to e public should come up to the popular standard, d if they can keep several jumps ahead of it both ey and the buying public will gain by it.

But there are representatives of all groups which r some influence on the public taste who do little nothing to cultivate taste; some are themselves plorable examples of lack of it. Nevertheless they ert an influence, undoing much of the good work complished by those who improve the public taste improving their own. They account for some of e remarkably ugly but very fashionable things hich still find buyers.

Much of the bad taste shown comes from believ- g it good taste to have immutable tastes or of hav- g too implicit faith in the tastes of others.

CONSTRUCTIVE

That community is indeed poor about which no od can be said, but poorer still is the citizen so linded by petty prejudices and self-interest that his riticisms of the home-town are many and never terspersed with approbation.

Just as every human being has faults, every com- unity, which is but a collection of human beings, as defects. But, considering the number of human allings, is it not surprising that the average city and own has so few shortcomings and can please so any?

In spite of these civic deficiencies there is not a ommunity, which, if it should count noses, would ind its knockers exceeding in numbers its boosters. Would one say those who are blind to their town's isadvantages are more nearsighted than those who annot see its advantages?

There would be less knocking if the knockers realized that a community is just what its citizens make it and that it is a confession of personal weak- ness to diagnose the home-town as incurably sick and decrepit. By their fault-finding they admit they have failed to do their part in making their town fit their ideal of what a community should be.

That citizen best serves his community who is un- stinting with his praise where praise is due and who is fearless in his condemnation of those things to be condemned. Constructive effort can be the fruit of destructive criticism.

The government has 100 buffalo to give away this fall. I wonder if the butcher in our neighborhood reads the papers.

An optimist in these times is one who hopes to marry for money.

Practical Health Problems

SPREAD OF TYPHUS FEVER

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

THE condition called typhus fever was formerly considered to be a disease largely associated with the tropics, war conditions and prison life. Investigations made by Howard Taylor Rickets, supplemented largely by those of other Americans, revealed the fact that typhus fever is transmitted by the body louse, which explained to a considerable extent its special character. Recent investigations made by Texas physicians indicate that this condition may be transmitted not only by the body louse but also by the rat flea.

In 1930, two Texas physicians trapped a number of wild rats in and around feed stores in a small town in Texas in which a number of cases of typhus have occurred in recent years. A number of the fleas were secured from these rats and investigated in the laboratories of the Bailey University College of Medicine. Some of the fleas were ground up into a solution and injected into guinea pigs which promptly developed symptoms. It was found that the virus from the rat flea could be transmitted to animals. Immunity tests between the strain of the virus obtained from the rat fleas and a strain obtained from a proved case of typhus fever indicated definitely the relationship between the rat flea virus and the typhus fever virus.

The rat has already been convicted of being a vector and carrier of plague. There seems to be no doubt that the rat may also be associated with the spread of other diseases. Rats and mice breed rapidly. Permitted to breed without control, they soon overrun premises and would quite certainly overrun the world. They should be stamped out because their pest or usefulness has not yet been demonstrated and no civilized man they are a menace.

Hilles A Likely Choice

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Charles D. Hilles of New York looks more every day like succeeding Senator Simeon D. Fess as chairman of the Republican national committee by the opening of the 1932 campaign at the latest.

Charles Hilles

Talk of him perhaps was started by loyal Hooverites as a means of counteracting suggestions of ex-President Coolidge as next year's G. O. P. standard bearer.

The New Yorker, it will be recalled, was one of the most vehement of the "draft Coolidge" men at Kansas City.

He was violently opposed to Mr. Hoover, anyway.

His acceptance of the post of manager for the Californian (if it is offered to him and he does accept it) would be a plain intimation that, after all, the present administration has been entirely satisfactory to him.

IN THE meantime, should it become evident that Mr. Hilles intends to take over the Republican chairmanship at the proper psychological moment, gossip of the Northamptonian's possible selection to run again will be hushed immediately—since hitherto he has been foremost among the Coolidge-ites.

Mr. Coolidge being as canny an individual as he is, and a Republican victory in 1932 a trifle less certain than usual, politicians all along have spoken of his availability as more than doubtful.

Nevertheless, there have been indications that mention of him as a factor in the presidential situation has worried the White House somewhat. It is understandable that this uneasiness would be allayed by the acquisition, as Hooverian manager, of the hitherto most steadfast of Coolidge boosters.

MR. HILLES himself has not seemed averse of late to encouraging his name's use in connection with G. O. P. pre-campaign activities.

He has called often at the executive mansion recently, and at Republican headquarters in the Barr building has been almost as frequent a visitor as Chairman Fess. His advice obviously weighs heavily with the committee's workers and they quote freely from his utterances.

Whatever plans may be in contemplation, his relations with the organization now unquestionably are extremely friendly.

OF RAYMOND BENJAMIN, who came to Washington from California about a year ago, supposedly to train for the chairmanship, singularly little has been heard for a long while.

He still maintains his law offices, midway between the White House and the Barr building, but appears to have no voice in committee affairs, and, if the president receives him, he does so so unostentatiously that not a word of news of it leaks out.

Mr. Benjamin denied, on his arrival here, that he was in the capital upon anyone's business but his own, and subsequent developments certainly have seemed to bear out this statement, though, of course, it may be that his hints relative to Pacific coast politics are more potent than shows on the surface.

REFERENCES to William M. Butler of Massachusetts as a candidate for the place at the Republican committee's head never have been taken seriously by folk at all familiar with his management of President Coolidge's 1924 election.

While it is true that Mr. Coolidge won it, it was the consensus that his chairman's methods would have beaten him if anything could have done so.

Ex-Senator Lawrence C. Phipps of Colorado, also proposed by ultra-conservative Republicans, is similarly regarded by politicians generally—except that he never has had a chance to exhibit his maladroitness in an actual campaign, as Butler has.

SENATOR FESS, to do him justice, has not done badly in the chairmanship.

The point oftenest made by advocates of a change is that a more vigorous solicitor of funds is needed, for the strenuous contest which they foresee ahead of the G. O. P. following the coming national conventions.

Party leaders likewise attribute to the Ohio lawmaker a small-town-ness of outlook and a fussiness which they are afraid will handicap him in dealing with situations of formidable proportions. He is known (behind his back) at committee headquarters as "Daddy" Fess—and it about describes him.

Finally, he is dryer than the bosses like—regardless of Mr. Hoover's views or the sort of platform he may run on.

ROBERT H. LUCAS, the committee's executive director, undoubtedly would get the chairmanship had it not been for the unfortunate "Grocer" Norris incident in the last Nebraska senatorial campaign.

Plenty of politicians consider that this was only a pecadillo on "Bob's" part—even if that.

But they do concur, to the last man, in the judgment:

"He had no right to be caught in it."

What Other People Think

I venture the opinion that when we look back to the present time a few years hence, we will see that the great industrial and business machinery of the nation has merely paused to make necessary readjustments, gets its balance, and then proceed with a healthy balanced prosperity based on sound economic and common sense.—J. S. Crutchfield, president of American Fruit Growers, Inc.

Mankind makes its most egregious errors in times of prosperity.—Ambassador Dawes.

John "Bud" Clancy, Whitesox first baseman, went through a complete game without handling a fielding chance in a contest played at St. Louis on April 27th, 1930. It was the first time such a feat had been performed in the history of the American League. Only one other first baseman to have a chanceless day is to be found on the baseball records, this being A. BEGIN HERE TODAY

NORMA KENT, pretty 20-year-old secretary in a law office, meets MARK TRAVERS, attractive and wealthy, when together they rescue a frightened puppy from the midst of downtown traffic. Norma refuses to tell the young man her name or where he can see her again. Later she joins BOB FARRELL, young lawyer, for a dinner engagement. Farrell asks her to marry him and Norma for the third time says "no."

The scene of the story is Marlboro, middle-western metropolis. Norma takes the puppy to the shabby apartment she shares with CHRISTINE SAUNDERS. Norma fears Chris is falling in love with her married employer; BRADLEY HART, proprietor of an advertising agency. Next day Norma inserts an advertisement about the puppy in the lost and found column of the Marlboro Press. The first person to answer the advertisement is Mark Travers, who explains he has made every effort to learn Norma's idenwith her to a gay party concluding she declines his invitation. Travers departs. Later he telephones NATALIE PRICE, debutante and goes with her a gay party concluding with a round of the night clubs.

Next evening a small boy comes to see Norma, claims the puppy and takes it home. Chris goes to aid MINNIE BAKER, an improverished friend whose 2-year-old son has been badly burned. Norma receives telephone calls from Travers and ignores them. She will not admit to herself the interest she feels in this persistent young man.

Norma goes for a drive with Bob Farrell. He kisses her against her will, starts the car and begins driving furiously. Norma cries, "Where are you going?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

Farrell did not turn to look at the girl. His hat brim was snapped down squarely and in the darkness she could not see his face. The coupe's speed increased and something in the road sent them jolting from their seats before he answered.

"I'm taking you home!" he said firmly. Norma had never heard him use that tone. Bob Farrell had kissed her before but never as tonight. "Wait a minute—" he went on immediately. "Before you start telling me what you think of me there's a little piece of news you might be interested to hear. Didn't mean to spring it so soon but I might as well. I'm pulling out of Marlboro."

Norma forgot that she was indignant. She could not conceal her amazement.

"You don't mean you're going away!"

"That's exactly what I do mean!"

"But, Bob—! Where are you going? What's happened?"

"Nothing's happened. I'm going away, that's all."

She did not know what to say. After a few moments she said, "You haven't told me where you're going yet."

"No."

"Bob Farrell what in the world's the matter with you tonight? First you act like a crazy man. Then you you say you're going away and get mysterious about it. Why don't you tell me where you're going and for how long?"

"I'll tell you." Bob promised. They had been driving along a sequestered road, a short-cut back toward a highway leading into the center of the city. "I'll tell you before I leave," he repeated, "but it's going to be for quite a while. You see I'm not coming back."

"Do you mean you're giving up your job? Oh Bob, you're not—you're not leaving because—"

"Well, no. I'm not fired if that's what you mean," he interrupted, correctly, interpreting the girl's thought. It isn't anything like that. I just think it will be a good thing to get out of Marlboro, that's all. Tired of the place!"

"But you've been doing so well, Bob!"

"Can't see it that way."

There was little more conversation between them until they halted before the red brick apartment. As Farrell brought the coupe to a stop the girl sought his eyes.

"Bob," she said quietly, "do you really mean that you're—going away?"

Solemnly he nodded.

"I'm sorry, Bob."

"You mean you don't want me to leave?"

Lubbock Man Turns To Bible In Search Of Good Advice

MODERN ESAU

As a man having been born and raised on the farm and whose work has been, and still is, with the farmers and laboring class of people, I desire to speak a word in behalf of that group. As a teacher and a preacher, I have had the occasion to talk with them and discuss the problems which confront the great masses of the people at this time.

Let's turn back and read a few chapters in the good Book, that book which has been and still is the foundation and the hope of our forefathers since we have had a republic, a government where the people govern. We have a heritage, birthright, which any intelligent and grateful people would be proud of, and certainly, the American people are an intelligent and grateful people, but all of us are prone to forget.

Esau, I think was an intelligent man and I think grateful but when his crop failed and the prices were not sufficient to satisfy his needs under the conditions that developed through extravagant living and thoughtless spending and pleasure seeking, he was ready to do the thing that was destined to bring grief to him in later years. He went out into his field in the heat of the summer when his crop should have exhibited a bountiful harvest, but when he got his morning paper, turned to the market page and saw that he would have nothing in the way of money to pay his debts and to buy pleasures, he became so faint that he did not know what to do. Having forgotten Him who had been so merciful and so tender and so kind to have given him so wonderful a crop and opportunities surpassing all our imaginations, Esau would not turn to Him for strength and help. So he turned to his brother to whom he proposed to mortgage all he had, even his birthday for a mess of pottage just to overcome his faintness temporarily. He knew he would never be able to lift the mortgage so he must be contented to serve his brother the rest of his life.

Now it would not have been so bad if his servitude had ended with him, but instead he involved his posterity for all time to come. Esau's posterity is still suffering for the sins of their father.

We want to speak a word in behalf of the modern Esau. As Esau of the Bible was representative of a class, the farming class of people, will you please note a few things. Whether you agree with me altogether or in part, let's reason together. The farmer has had and still has the most wonderful heritage in the way of opportunities of any people of the earth. The trouble is that we seem not to have realized them. We have forgotten Him who is the maker and the designer of all things and from whom all good things come. Seemingly, we have forgotten Him. We have sought wealth, luxuries, pleasures and ease instead of seeking those things that are higher, more noble and long lasting, that perish not. Because of the nobleness, kindness and willingness of our government to help, we have forgotten that we are the government in the final analysis. We seem to want to turn to the government for relief in the crisis into which we, ourselves, have fallen. We have really plunged ourselves into the crisis in which we find ourselves today. Now we turn to the government for relief which is, in the final analysis, relying upon our own strength to get out of the present predicament.

We appealed to the government for Federal Loan last spring, many needed this loan to make a crop and many thought they needed it. In either case, they got the loan in most cases and, in many instances, farmers see now how they could have gotten by without the loan better than they can pay the loan now and get by.

Again, modern Esau sees a bountiful harvest, the very thing he has been wanting but it is almost worthless and instead of looking to Him, who is the maker and designer of all things and who has given us such a wonderful heritage, opportunities for a way out of this crisis, we are looking to our own strength, the government, to take us out of it.

Listen, gentlemen! Our government can't take us out of this crisis. We will have to take ourselves out of it. Here the remedy, you have it from the pulpit and from the press. The remedy is suggestive in the foregoing. That we turn to our maker, who is Jehovah, trust in Him instead of trusting in ourselves. Let's seek to produce our living at home, on the farm, whence the living of all people comes. Then we will have no need to appeal to our government, or our legislatures to pass laws to make us slaves, peons and serfs by controlling our every act. The statute books are cumbered now with needless laws. Why cumber them further with a needless law to keep the farmer from planting a crop or as much of that crop as he thinks he needs to take care of his obligations. We are selling our birthright for a mess of pottage or for even less. Let's envoke that wisdom that comes from Jehovah only before we act. The most of us seem to have forgotten that the Almighty still lives and reigns. Some seem to think the Almighty has brought these conditions upon us for our wrong living to punish us but they are mistaken. Jehovah has not brought this crisis upon us. We have brought it upon ourselves in having our own way. Now if we will turn and seek His way, He will show us the way out of it.

School Patrols Are To Be Talked At Meeting Today

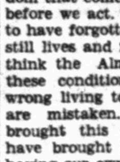

Principals of Lubbock's grade and junior high schools will meet at 4:15 p. m. today with Jack Douglas, representative of the South Plains Automobile club, for the purpose of organizing school boy traffic patrols.

Under a tentative plan, patrols of five members will be organized for each school in the city, with the exception of the senior high school. The purpose of the patrols will be to guide school children through the streets adjacent to the school and aid in preventing accidents. The boys selected for the groups will wear uniforms and badges.

Capitol's Steps Wear Out

Worn out by the tread of sightseers, politicians and other visitors during the past 60 years, the stone steps on the west front of the national capitol at Washington, D. C., are being replaced, and here you see a crew of men at work. Brick work supporting steps against the capitol terraces is also being rebuilt.

such good friends. I'll miss you dreadfully."

The young man darted a swift, appraising glance at her. Whatever he may have had in mind to say was checked. There was a pause. Then he answered carelessly. "Well, the deal isn't quite worked out yet. I'll give you a ring one of these days before I clear out. We'll—we'll sort of celebrate the occasion."

Norma felt that he was keeping something from her. She was dissatisfied with the way the evening had turned out and very soon told him good night.

"Maybe he isn't going away at all," she said to herself a little later after she had turned the lock for the night, undressed and stood before the mirror brushing out her hair—the nightly 50 strokes on either side. "Maybe he's just trying to get me to beg him to stay!"

When she let herself out of the apartment next morning, there was nothing whatever to indicate that the hours before her were to constitute a red-letter day.

The street car which transported her to Broad and Hanover streets was as crowded as usual. The hours of dictation and transcribing Mr. Cunningham's letters were exactly as tedious. Even the interruptions were customary routine.

And then at 11:45, her usual lunch hour, Norma Kent put on her little black hat at the becoming, titled angle, dusted her nose and chin with a small powder puff and rode down to the first floor in the elevator.

She went out on the street, turned the corner at the right on her way to the sandwich counter where almost daily she lunched.

With faint annoyance she became aware that a figure was keeping step beside her. Norma walked more rapidly. The figure quickened to the same degree. Suddenly the girl stopped and looked up. She opened her mouth but the words did not come. Flaming red circles apepared in each of Norma's cheeks.

So it was Mark Travers who spoke first. He touched his hat. "How do you do, Miss Kent," he said. "Beautiful day, isn't it? I was wondering how long it would be before you decided to send me about my business. You're not going to do it, though. Lunching alone is so tiresome. You're lunching with me today. Where are we going?"

The dark eyes laughed at her. The tone of voice was amused. For the life of her Norma could not muster an indignant reply. It was all she could do to quell the surge of eagerness in her tone. Mustn't let him know how she felt about seeing him again!

"Sorry I can't accept the invitation," she told him demurely. Why those prim words when her own eyes were dancing?

"Did I invite you anywhere? Wasn't aware of it. Oh, no—you're mistaken. I'm lunching with you."

"But—but Mr. Travers—!"

"Name is Mark, Miss Kent. Didn't I tell you? Sorry about the oversight. Well, shouldn't we be going? Really I'm hungry.——"

"Mr. Travers, you can't—" the girl began and once more he interrupted.

"Can't eat? Oh, how you wrong me! I assure you that you're mistaken. By means of a simple demonstration I will for all time convince you the impression is erroneous. I can—and do—eat thrice daily. I eat such things as ham and eggs but never pumpernickel. I'm particular about that! Were you thinking of making your luncheon on pumpernickel? If so we must change that!"

He was ridiculous—too, too completely ridiculous to keep anyone with the slightest sense of humor from laughing. And Norma had a sense of humor. She laughed and her defenses were gone instantly.

"I'm lunching at the Samover," he told him. "If you don't mind going there you can come along. They only serve salads and sandwiches."

"How about mustard?"

"Of course—if you ask for it."

"Then away to the Samover!"

Young Mr. Travers tucked the girl's arm under his. He kept her amused all the way to the eating place. There they found chairs at a counter painted bright blue. They ordered coffee and toasted sandwiches and fresh fruit. Travers was entertaining. Norma had never met anyone with whom it was so easy to feel at home.

"Just a minute!" she interrupted his discourse. "Would you mind telling me who in the world you are? Aside from rescuing stray puppies and trailling defenseless working girls what do you do?"

She had expected an answer as ridiculous as the youth's earlier remarks. Instead he said seriously, "Oh, I've got a job in a real estate office down the street."

"Really? What do you do?"

"Errands mostly. And trying to make columns of figures come out right. But let's not talk about me. Let's talk about you."

It was as though horizons had cleared miraculously. "Why," the girl laughed, "do you know what I thought? I thought you were a sort of rich society play boy! Honestly I did."

"No!" Hearty bass laughter joined her treble. "You—you really thought that about me?"

The girl noded. "Maybe it was because of your car," she went on. "It's such a beauty. How—I mean if you're only a real estate clerk, how—"

"Oh, the car!" Travers shrugged. "That's—that's my uncle's. You see my uncle's an automobile salesman and he uses that car for demonstrations. Sometimes he lets me take it out for an evening. Say—if I could get it tonight would you go for a drive? I'm not sure he'll let me have it—"

With swiftly beating heart Norma agreed. Travers was to telephone her at home as soon as he found out if it would be all right with his uncle about taking the car. He seemed rather certain that it would be but promised to telephone around six o'clock.

Suddenly Norma looked at the clock and saw that it was after 12:30. She must be back at her desk at 12:45. They arose and Travers was unable to persuade her to let him pay her check. They walked down the street together and he left her at the entrance of the gray stone building in which the firm of Brooks, Welliver and Brooks had their offices.

The roadster belonging to Mark Travers' "uncle" made its appearance before the red brick apartment house that night. It was there the following evening as well. During the next six days Norma met Travers for luncheon five times. She danced with him, dined with him, sat beside him through moving picture performances at which she neither listened to the actor's lines nor observed their actions. She accompanied him on drives of breath-taking happiness through the September night. She seemed to blossom with a radiance that made her lovelier than ever before.

Bob Farrell telephoned twice but Norma was not at home and did not receive his messages. Chris Saunders, satisfied that affairs were going smoothly now for Minnie Baker and her baby, packed their belongings and returned to the third floor apartment.

Norma scarcely spoke to Chris. The younger girl was preoccupied, seldom at home.

And then one evening Chris Saunders, letting herself into the apartment at a little after 11 o'clock paused stock-still on the threshold. Across the room in a miserable little huddle on the davenport lay Chris' roommate

"Why, Norma! What's happened?"

A blond head, wildly disarrayed, raised. Blue eyes that were red-rimmed and swollen gazed at Chris. Norma said in a frightened, shocking voice. "It's—it's about Mark!"

Sentences Are Assessed Here

Four Defendants Given Total Of Ten Years In Trials In 99th Court; Other Cases Carded This Week

Prison sentences aggregating 10 years were meted out to four defendants in 99th district court Monday before Judge Clark M. Mullican.

Three of the defendants plead guilty to the charges against them and were sentenced by Judge Mullican without a jury verdict.

Joe Anderson, a negro, was given three years for the theft of an automobile. Murray Sadler, also a negro, charged by three indictments with the forging and passing of checks, drawn on Mrs. J. H. Nislar, was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary by Judge Mullican. Herman Holt, alias Snyder, pleaded guilty to chicken theft and received one-year sentence.

Both Anderson and Sadler escaped from jail here in July, but were recaptured and returned for trial.

Willie Lewis, negro, was convicted by a jury of stealing four silk dresses valued at about $58 from Montgomery Ward store here and was sentenced to serve two years in prison.

H. D. Crump, alias Leon Snyder, indicted jointly with Herman Holt for chicken theft, was transferred to juvenile court when it was found that he was under 17 years of age. Judge E. L. Pitts remanded the boy to jail and deferred sentence when the prisoner pleaded guilty, pending the arrival of the youth's parents.

The four men convicted in district court were taken to Plainview last night to await the arrival of the penitentiary agent. Members of the sheriff's department who transferred the men brought Gus Anderson, negro, back to Lubbock for trial on a murder charge. The trial probably will be called Wednesday, officers said.

Typhoid Fever Victim Dies At Home On Monday Morning

Dovie Leona Mullins, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Mullins, 1807 Avenue F, died at .10 a. m. Monday at the family residence of typhoid fever after five weeks' illness. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. today at the Nazarene church with Rev. W. M. Hocker officiating. Burial will be in a Lubbock cemetery under the direction of Sanders Funeral home.

The girl is survived by her parents, two sisters, Lucille and Pairlene Mullins, and four brothers, Ross, B. J., Sherman and Elva Mullins, all of Lubbock.

Former Hotel Operator In Illinois Given Sentence

HOUSTON, Sept. 21. (AP)—C. C. McMullin, 38, former hotel operator in Illinois, today was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary o na charge of robbery by firearms.

McMullin was indicted jointly with E. V. Harrison, 33, and a third man, not arrested, for the $1,700 robbery of the Cocoa Cola Bottling plant here August 24.

Bargain Days

possible in making the fair a success.

"We are assured of a bigger and better fair from every standpoint except attendance," he said. "Anything we may do to boost attendance will be worthwhile. The bargain day plan will be mutually beneficial to all concerned: the fair, the merchants and the buyers."

Davis said an effort was being made to stage the fair as economically as possible, but that no attempt had been made to cheapen the exposition in any way in order to accomplish that end. One of the fair's weakest points, that of carnival attractions, has been remedied this year, he said.

"People expect to see carnivals when they attend fairs," he said. "Heretofore we have had only small affairs of about 15 cars. This year, with Dodson's World Fair shows, we have a carnival of about 40 cars for the midway."

In short talks, merchants attending the conference promised the fair association their fullest support in making a success of the exposition. One merchant said he planned to offer fair week bargains throughout the week; others said they planned to give single admission tickets with every purchase of more than $10; still others promised to push the sale of season tickets to the fair.

Homer D. Grant, president of the fair association, thanked the merchants for their cooperation this season in formulating plans for the exposition. E. L. Robertson, president of the Retail Merchants association, who presided, assured the officials of the fair that the merchants would do their part.

Many firms not represented at the meeting Monday night will join in on the bargain day project, it was said. Those signing the agreement were: John Halsey Drug company, Ross Edwards, Montgomery-Ward, Levine's, Anderson Brothers, J. C. Penney, Plains Furniture company, Hemphill - Wells, Sherrod Brothers, City Drug company, Jackman's, Cinderella Shop, Wylie-Jarrett Drug company.

Season tickets to the fair were placed on sale Monday at 23 downtown business houses. The price of the adult ticket for the entire week is $1.98; child's, $1, and individual automobile parking spaces for the week, $1.

Tickets may be purchased at the following stores:

Bowen's, Wylie-Jarrett Drug company, Mark Halsey Drug company, John Halsey Drug company, Hotel Drug, City Drug store, Lubbock Drug company, Hodges Brothers, Postoffice Drug store, Nislar Hardware company, Hilton Pharmacy, Crown Drug store, Moore Brothers, Cammack Drug company, Hemphill-Wells, Minter-Gamel, Ross Edwards, J. C. Penney, Burns and Standefer Drug company, Meeks Grocery company.

In addition to the places named above, tickets are being sold at three produce houses to persons taking advantage of special purchase price. One cent per pound above the market price is being paid for produce, to persons who purchase season tickets to the exposition, by the following firms: Swift and Company, Lubbock Poultry and Egg company and Titman Egg corporation.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21. (AP) — The cotton market was an extremely nervous and erratic affair today with rather active trading, the main factor being the action of the British government in suspending the gold standard and the advance in the Bank of England rate to 6 per cent.

This naturally had the effect of sharply advancing prices in Liverpool owing to the inflation of commodities while on the other hand, the market here was influenced to lower prices because of fear of diminished buying by British spinners owing to the roll in the value of Sterling exchange.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. (AP)—Confusion of sentiment resulting from suspension of the gold standard in England was reflected in nervous and irregular fluctuations in cotton here today.

A sharp advance in the Liverpool market was attributed to a readjustment of a parity resulting from the depreciation in exchange, but there was considerable buying here against selling in the English market to undo old straddles and, after opening lower, prices rallied on covering. December contracts sold up from 6.18@6.49 but later eased off again under continued southern selling and closed at 6.33. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 4 to 9 points.

Wall Street Refuses To Be Panicky Over Suspension Of Gold Standard

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. (AP) — Wall street refused to become panicky today over Britain's temporary suspension of the gold standard.

Since the New York exchange and the Paris bourse were virtually the only important world markets doing business as usual, it was inevitable that a rush to liquidate should appear at the opening here However, the market had been skillfully bolstered against demoralization and after less than an hour of selling prices rallied vigorously.

Two decisions by financial leaders contributed to what some brokers called the market's amazing ability to rally against severe odds. First was the fact the market opened at all when so many others had elected to remain closed. Second was the discouragement given short sellers by the exchange's notice that such transactions, at so critical a time, would be viewed as a violation of the rules.

Fair Prospect

lishments.

"Everywhere we have been praised for deciding to hold the fair as usual this year. Some larger towns than Lubbock have decided to do without their regional fairs. We felt that it was up to us to provide the people of the South Plains with a better entertainment than ever.

"Now, it is up to the South Plains to attend the fair and by attending show that they stand behind this great exposition to industry and agriculture.

"We have not tried to lay a heavy burden upon any one. The expenses have been kept to a minimum. There has not been for several years a heavy advertising charge for the catalog. Our merchants here have been loyal in their support of the fair and we appreciate it.

"I would like to take this means of inviting every man, woman and child on the South Plains to attend the fair this year. It is your fair and the directors want you to have your share in this enterprise."

Every officer, director and superintendent is giving all the time he or she can this week to making last minute preparations for the fair. The grounds and buildings are being put in readiness for use the latter part of the week when the first exhibits are expected to arrive.

Owing to the large amount of judging work to be done, especially in the women's department, this phase of the work is expected to start on Friday morning, Miss Ruth Stockton, county demonstration agent and superintendent of the girls' clubs section, says.

Baughman, on guard in the dining room, and then dashed for the main gate of the reformatory, forcing Jones and Baughman to accompany them.

Jim Wilson, guard at the entrance, armed with a pistol, was taken by surprise, disarmed, and forced to accompany the escaping prisoners.

Jumping into the two automobiles, some of the prisoners escaped to the west while the others fled southward.

Mrs. G. A. Waters, warden of the reformatory, said none of the other 780 prisoners made any attempt to escape, although there were 150 in the rotunda of the main building as the band of the ten forced the opening of the main prison gate. The break took place about 8:15 o'clock, soon after the evening meal.

Two hours after the prisoners had sped away, Baughman and Wilson telephoned to Mrs. Waters that they had been released seven miles west of Granite. They were not harmed.

Woman And Child Slightly Injured

A woman and a child were slightly hurt at Slaton Sunday night when a Nazarene tent tabernacle was struck by a violent windstorm at about 8:30 o'clock while services were in progress. Coming from the southwest, the storm did some damage to buildings there. Trees were uprooted and telephone and power lines blown over. The storm lasted about 30 minutes.

Part of the ward school roof was carried down the street about two blocks, a piece striking and damaging the Baptist parsonage. A new automobile was damaged in the display room of Briggs Robertson Chevrolet company when a plate glass window was broken by the gale. Oklahoma Sections Receive Good Rains

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 21. (AP) —The patter of rain over some Oklahoma sections today brought partial relief from the most severe September heat in 41 years and cheered wheat farmers struggling with sunbaked soil.

Apparently traveling south and east after soaking the northwest Oklahoma grain belt, the rain and the clouds that preceded it kept the mercury from its usual daily 100 degree marker.

Alva, in the wheat belt, had nearly two and a half inches of rain and good showers were felt as far east as Enid and Newkirk by midday.

DAMAGE CAUSED

FAIRFIELD, Ia., Sept. 21. (AP)—A barn was demolished, small farm buildings twisted from their foundations, and telephone and electric light wires and trees blow down, by a tornado which struck the southern part of Jefferson county late today.

Chicago's $70,000 Home For Stray Dogs And Cats Is Formally Opened

CHICAGO, Sept. 21. (AP)—Chicago's new $70,000 home for homeless dogs and cats, equipped with private compartments and baths for stray canines was formally opened yesterday with ceremonies participated in by civic and society leaders.

The main building has two stories, connected by ramps. On the first floor are cages for dogs and stalls for horses, while on the second are individual pens for dogs. There are two gleaming white bathtubs and bars of fragrant soap on the first floor, with accommodations for 350 dogs in the entire structure, which is of buff brick.

The dogs, however won't be allowed to move into their new quarters until later in the week.

Speakers at the dedication recalled a promise by Mayor Anton J. Cermak that no dogs would disappear from the pound under mysterious circumstances, as they have in the past, and that proper records would be kept.

The city's dog tax fund furnished the money.

Cotton Bill

who is receiving about six cents a pound for his product.

To Be Attacked

Consttutionality of the measure likely will be attacked in the courts. Those opposed to the bill said it was unconstitutional because it deprived a man of property without due process of law. Some legislators were against it as a matter of principle, claiming it was an unwarranted interference with individual liberties.

Those defending its constitutionality urged it was a measure to conserve the soil, explaining that the Texas constitution gave the legislature the right to enact laws conserving natural resources. They appointed because Texas did not requiring crop rotation.

Adopt Compromise

The compromise bill, drafted by a free conference committee, was adopted, 19 to 10 by the senate and 80 to 32 by the house.

Supporters of the proposal admitted that its effect on price would be determined largely by whether other southern states enacted laws reducing or prohibiting cotton plantings. They would not predict an immediate substantial increase in price.

The chief enforcement weapon would be the injunction. The district and county attorneys and attorney general would be permitted to enjoin a man from planting more than his allotment of cotton. There would also be a penalty of from $25 to $100 an acre.

In event a farmer chooses to let his land lie idle next year instead of putting it in crops other than cotton, the bill specifies that no person shall be denied the right to plant as great an acreage to cotton in 1933 as he could plant in 1932.

County and district attorneys will be directed to bring injunction suits upon the sworn complaint of any citizen that the law is being violated or upon the request of the county judge or the state commissioner of agriculture. In event they fail to enforce the law, "it shall be the duty of the attorney general," to institute injunction proceedings.

The law will instruct all inspectors of the state department of agriculture to report violations.

When a person renders his property for taxes he will have to swear to the total land in cultivation and the amount in cotton.

This year about 51 per cent of the Texas cultivated area was in cotton. A reduction to not more than 30 per cent will cut the cotton acreage in half, it was explained, because some land is unsuitable for cotton and in other sections farmers will not change from rice truck or other crops.

Governor Sterling was expected to sign the bill tomorrow.

Cotton Classers Bill Defeated

AUSTIN, Sept. 21. (AP)—A bill to appropriate $50,000 to hire federally licensed cotton classers under supervision of the state department of agriculture was defeated in the house today when it failed of engrossment, 57 to 46.

The bill, sponsored by Representative R. M. Hubbard of New Boston and the special cotton subcommittee of the house, was aimed at encouraging the farmer to raise longer staple cotton to recapture the world markets. A large portion of the cotton now raised in Texas is of untenderable grades.

Two Missouri Fliers Killed As Plane Crashes On Farm

Hoover Speaks

shed to an end," Mr. Hoover declared "the American people are digging themselves out with industry and courage."

"We have the self-containment, the resources, the manhood and the intelligence, and by united action we will lead the world in recovery," he said.

Pointing out that the treasury faced a "large deficit," Mr. Hoover warned that taxing the rich would not be the sole solution.

"We must face the absolute fact," he said, "that the rich can be taxed to the point of diminishing returns and still the deficit in our ordinary and necessary expenditures would not be covered even upon a basis of utmost economy."

Calls For Aid

"Make no mistake," he added, "in these circumstances it is those who work in the field, at the bench and desk who would be forced to carry an added burden for every added cent to our expenditures."

The chief executive called on the Legion to enlist in the fight for economic recovery, the first stone in the foundation of which he described as the stability of the United States government.

"We can carry out present expenditures without jeopardy to national stability," he said. "We can carry no more without grave risks."

"The first stone in the foundation of stability and recovery," he said, "both at home and in the world, is the stability of the government of the United States. It is my purpose to maintain that stability, and I invite you to enlist in that fight. The country's need of this service is second only to war."

Points Out Path

In concluding, the president said: "You would not have the President of the United States plead with any citizen or any group of citizens for any course of action. I make no plea to you, but you would have your president point out the path of service in this nation. That I am doing now."

Mr. Hoover said in addition to the large deficit the government was faced with an extra and necessary burden of assisting agriculture, the unemployed through public works construction, and disabled veterans.

He added that in carrying out his "drastic, economy program these aids would not be sacrificed."

He accepted with thanks the Legion's offer of help in relieving unemployment this winter and drew great applause when he referred to the fine spirit in which the offer was made.

The chief executive's appearance before the convention was entirely without ceremony, but was the signal for loud applause. Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander, stepped to the speakers' stand immediately after the president had come on the platform and said, "I introduce to you the President of the United States."

State Seeks Death Pentlay As Quinn Trial Is Called

NEWKIRK, Okla., Sept. 21. (AP)—A chronicle of murder's march along a cross state highway last Christmas was ready tonight for unfolding at the trial of Earl Quinn, ex-convict, accused of the slaying of two pretty Oklahoma sisters.

Fliers Safe

was exhausted.

Near Same Spot

It was almost in this exact spot that Kingsford Smith, flying the Atlantic in June last year, lost his bearings and consumed much of his fuel in a long ellipse before coming down safely at Harbor Grace.

One reason for this view was the fact Rody and Johannsen, in their brief messages to relatives in Germany, reported they had kept the wrecked plane afloat approximately 148 hours. This was between ten and fifteen hours less than the total time that had elapsed from the time the plane was sighted by the Pennland and the time the fliers were picked up by the Belmoira.

Their plane, "the Esa," was believed to have had about 12 hours fuel left when sighted by the Pennland. Airports here kept their floodlights burning throughout last Monday night on the basis of that calculation.

Although the Belmoira gave no message to the effect, it was believed here it would take the fliers to St. John's.

The trio set out Sunday, September 14, from Juncal Do Sol, about 30 miles from Lisbon, Portugal, with New York as their destination. They were sighted twice, once at the Azores and later last Monday afternoon by the steamer Pennland 88 miles off Cape Race, Newfoundland.

They had completed about 2,600 miles of their 3,700-mile trans-Atlantic journey. But the plane had no radio and as they approached the Atlantic seaboard overcast skies and electrical storms confronted them.

When the time limit of 48 hours set by their gasoline supply expired early Tuesday without further word, they were believed to have been lost at sea or made an intermediate landing.

The Belmoira was bound from Albany, N. Y., for Russia with a cargo of locomotives. Its agents in New York said the fliers undoubtedly would be transferred to some passing vessel because the ship intends to proceed directly to Leningrad and comfortable quarters for the airmen were unavailable.

Salary Cuts

cuts would apply to all district and appellant court judges, teachers in all state colleges and employees of all eleemosynary institutions and state departments.

Two thirds of the members of the house asked the governor to submit the subject, forecasting that the house would approve the salary slashes by the majority needed to place them in immediate effect. In the senate, however, the vote today was only 15 to 13 in favor of asking Governor Sterling to submit the subject.

Some of the lawmakers planned an effort to make the reduction graduated rather than on a flat ten per cent basis. Their view is that the higher salaried employees should be cut more than the others.

Supporters of the ten per cent reduction movement claimed it would reduce expenses approximately $2,500,000 during the biennium.

That should go far toward keeping the state from having a deficit at the close of the biennium, they said.

China's Flood Horror Is Spread Before Lindberghs

NANKING, Sept. 21. (AP)—China's flood horror was spread today before the eyes of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh as they flew their monoplane over northern Kiangsu province on the first of a series of survey flights they volunteered to make to aid the flood relief commission.

Broken cities, obliterated farms and ruined villages appeared beneath their plane in such numbers that Colonel Lindbergh afterward commented it was "hard to say" where the disaster had struck its fiercest blow.

Negro Prisoner Is Already Facing Penitentiary Term

FORT WORTH, Sept. 21. (AP) — Richard Brown, 19, one of two negroes held in the Tarrant county jail for the murder of Ted Nodurft, 30, in Wichita Falls last week, is under a two year suspended sentence for chicken theft at Gainesville, officers here learned tonight.

Bolls picked by Mr. Fields from widely separated sections of his acreage of certified seed, show the staple will average an inch in length.

Spur Section Once Covered By Huge Forest Of Mammoth-Sized Trees, If Section Of Trunk Is Any Criterion

(By Staff Correspondent)

SPUR, Sept. 21. — Thousands of years ago this section was a huge forest, with trees that would make the famed redwoods of California like saplings, if a section of the trunk of a tree found by a couple of boys at the state experiment farm here, is to be taken as a criterion. The trunk is part of a lot of petrified wood dug up by the boys.

This section was dug up on one of the ranches near here, R. E. Dickson, superintendent, reports. It is about three feet across and five feet long and fro mthe curvature the monster must have been twice the size of the redwoods. "I can't estimate how big that tree was," Mr. Dickson said in pointing to a huge pile of petrified wood. "I would not care to make any prediction."

Mr. Dickson has a cactus bed and so wanted some petrified wood for border. He got the boys to go into the hills and dig up the wood, which is near the surface. When the boys got a load they would come back to the station. Half a dozen loads were brought in from the J. I. Spur and several other nearby ranches.

"There are three distinct types of wood," Mr. Dickson said. "We have red petrified wood, a gray and a sort of tan. I don't know what kind of trees these were as I am not familiar enough with that branch of science.

"On one of the sections we found some molten lava. There must have been a volcano in these parts some place. There is just a lot of this petrified wood around here. We only touched a small part of it."
