SACROC speculation points to Pennzoil

Chevron's future in the operation of Scurry County's vast SACROC unit may become more clear later this week, according to Terry Hurst, SACROC superintendent.

An article in the financial section of the Dallas Morning News on Thursday has fueled speculation that Pennzoil will end up with Chevron's 20.84 percent interest in the SACROC unit.

Hurst confirmed Friday that rumors were rampant, but that a check with Chevron officials in Midland could not confirm the report.

"There may be some type of announcement, maybe next week," Hurst said Friday afternoon. "I'll be surprised if there isn't."

The article said that Pennzoil faces a tax liability in excess of $760 million. One way to reduce the tax liability would be to reinvest funds received from the 1988 $3 billion out-of-court settlement with Texaco over Texaco's acquisition of Getty Petroleum.

After the settlement, Pennzoil invested $2.2 billion, a 9.4 percent stake, in Chevron stock. While tax courts have not ruled if Pennzoil met re-investment requirements to reduce taxes, one possible option would be for Chevron to assign certain assets in exchange for Pennzoil's stock in Chevron.

The sale of SACROC is part of Chevron's restructing plan to unload marginal producing properties commonly called Class B properties.

Chevron, reportedly, has already sold 800 of 1,800 domestic fields in the past two years for $628 million. Last year, Pennzoil had $5.2 billion in assests and $2.7 billion in sales.

Chevron announced on Aug. 29, 1991 that it had made a corporate decision to sell its interest. If sold, Chevron would resign as unit operator.

When the announcement to sell was made, SACROC had 95 employees and 55 contract employees in Scurry County. Since that time, early retirement and separation packages, along with trans-

Dermatologist joins specialty clinic here

William H. Radentz, M.D., the latest physician to join the Medical Specialty Clinic at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, will begin seeing patients on Monday.

Radentz, who also has a practice in Lubbock at 3516 22nd Place, specializes in diseases of the skin and surgical dermatology. For the past two years, he has served as a faculty dermatologist at Texas Tech University Medical School. Prior to that, he spent eight years as a physician in the U.S. Army, serving in San Antonio, Germany and Washington State.

Radentz graduated from Trinity University in San Antonio and finished medical school at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

He completed his residency at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio. He is board certified in dermatology.

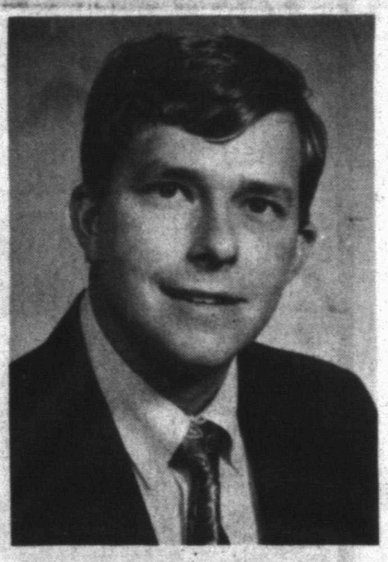

His wife, Leslie, is presently a third-year medical student at Texas Tech University and planning a career as a pediatric neurologist. They have two children, Beau, 7, and Krystal, 5.

Radentz is also a faculty adviser for the Christian Medical Society and has participated in three medical trips to Mexico this year.

The CMS also provides volunteer medical care to the poor on the east side of Lubbock.

Radentz and his family attend Trinity Church in Lubbock. His other interests include restoring antique cars. He presently owns a 1936 Chevy, 1949 Nash, 1950 Buick, a 1951 Packard and a 1958 Bently.

Radentz said, "It is my calling in medicine to provide the best possible dermatologist medical care in a caring and compassionate manner."

Airport fuel rates, petition head court agenda Monday

A petition opposing the closing of a road in the Alamo Heights subdivision and a request to raise the fuel rate at Scurry County Airport will be considered by the commissioner's court as it convenes at 10 a.m. Monday

Commissioners voted at an Aug. 17 meeting to close a section of road on land owned by J.E. Compton near Hillside Memorial Gardens.

The original petition to close the road was presented in July. However, commissioners took no action on the matter until August, giving citizens time to register complaints about the closing.

Precinct 4 Commissioner Jerry Gannaway told the court at the time of the vote that he had received eight calls concerning the road closing, with only two people speaking against it.

County 911 Coordinator Julie Strunk told commissioners that the closing of the road would have no effect on service under the county's new 911 system. This was the only concern expressed when the petition to close the road was presented.

Commissioners are to take action on a recommendation from the Scurry County Airport board to increase rates for fuel at the local airport.

The court will hear from coliseum advisory board member Shawn Ragland concerning progress on finding a replacement for Coliseum Director Bernadette Stephens, who retired earlier this month when her husband was hired by a Houston-based firm.

The court will also consider an application for permission to apportion funds from the county's available school funds to various schools of the county.

Approval of bills and minutes from previous meetings are the only other items of business on the court's agenda.

Lifestyle program planned for Oct. 8

Lifestyle, a homemaker's school, will be presented to Snyder consumers Thursday, Oct. 8, at Worsham Auditorium.

Local sponsors, in cooperation with the Snyder Daily News, will provide an evening of entertainment, learning and door prizes.

The event begins at 7 p.m.

Lucinda Kahney, Homemakers Schools home economist, will present new recipe ideas which are in tune with today's lifestyle. The recipes are included in the Lifestyle cookbook which is free to all who attend.

Easy to prepare recipes for the microwave and conventional oven, plus everyday and company fare will be a part of the 2½ -hour production.

Lucky winners will take home one of the dozen or so dishes prepared.

Popular from coast to coast, Homemakers Schools have been produced for more than 40 years.

Tickets are available at Snyder Daily News for $2 per person, or may be purchased at the door.

Former aide blasts Perot

DALLAS (AP) — Ross Perot's former campaign manager, in a stinging criticism of his ex-boss, predicts the billionaire will run for president — but only to satisfy his powerful ego.

Ed Rollins, in his sharpest criticism of the Dallas businessman since the two parted ways, also predicted Friday that Perot will continue to make appearances on television network talk shows only until the questions get too tough.

Rollins, who was Ronald Reagan's campaign manager in 1984, joined Hamilton Jordan, who managed Jimmy Carter's 1976 race, to take charge of the Perot effort.

But the relationship between

In 1976, 64 cents out of every dollar of local effective buying income remained in Scurry County. Today, that amount has dropped to 42 cents.

The leakage of retail dollars to other places has resulted in numerous businesses closing its doors. The answer to a viable retail climate is a matter of consumer choice and loyalty.

Back in 1986, the city council in Popular Bluff, Mo., passed a resolution that, whenever possible, the city would buy only American-made products.

The "Buy American" resolution came about after the citizens of Popular Bluff learned a painful economic lesson. Earlier in 1986, the Florsheim shoe factory, employing some 600 people shut its doors. A major department store, also a big employer, then closed its door in the city of 16,000.

Said the mayor, "It became very clear to us that if Americans had been buying American shoes instead of foreign shoes, Florsheim would still be employing people today. It really hit very directly home.

"I think there's a good bit of good old-fashioned patriotism to this, but it's based on economic concern that is very practical. We are responsible to help ourselves."

We called the newspaper editor in Popular Bluff and learned that the concern over the local economy caught on. It now has two new major employers and attracts more out-of-town shoppers than it loses.

Even though Popular Bluff focused on the "Buy American" theme, the basic concept is loyalty.

When consumers consider that there is more than price in the balance, thinking consumers will choose to help their community survive, and everyone is a winner in the long haul.

Boy granted 'divorce' from parents

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who went to court to "divorce" his biological parents has a new family and a new name, and some legal experts say his victory means hope for similarly abused or neglected children.

Gregory Kingsley, who said his biological parents mistreated and abandoned him, sought to be freed from them so he could be adopted by George and Lizabeth Russ, the foster parents with whom he had lived for nearly a year.

Circuit Judge Thomas S. Kirk granted Gregory's wish Friday after a two-day hearing. "Gregory, you're the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russ at this moment," Kirk said.

Mrs. Russ cried and hugged her new son.

"It was really exciting. I didn't expect it would happen that fast," she said.

Howard Davidson, director of the American Bar Association's Center on Children and the Law, said the ruling carried two messages.

"One, children are not property to be abused, neglected or abandoned without consequence," he said. "And two ... states and counties with the responsibility for providing services for children in foster care must do a better job."

The case was unusual because it was pursued by an under-age boy, and the ruling gave a minor increased rights to file lawsuits. Lawyers say custody cases like Gregory's aren't uncommon, but most are initiated by a foster parent or by the state.

But because the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services joined Gregory's petition, that eliminated "the precedent-setting feature of the case," said Martin Guggenheim, professor of law at New York University, who specializes in children's rights.

Kirk said in his ruling: "I believe by clear and convincing evidence, almost beyond a reasonable doubt in this case, that this child has been abandoned ... and neglected by Rachel Kingsley and it is certainly in his best interests that her parental rights be terminated immediately."

Gregory's lawyer, Jerri Blair, gave Gregory a T-shirt that read "Shawn No. 9." Gregory said he hates his name and has been known as "Shawn" since early last year.

Rachel Kingsley, Gregory's biological mother, said her son always will be welcome to return to her home. She heard the decision in her lawyer's office.

"He will always be my son," Rachel Kingsley said. "I just want Gregory to know that I love him very much."

Gregory's father, Ralph Kingsley, had not contested the lawsuit. He said he felt the boy would be better off with the Russes.

Kirk, who heard the case without a jury, criticized the state welfare agency, saying he had referred the case to them in mid-1991 "and they didn't do anything." He also criticized Mrs. Kingsley harshly, saying, "She has lied consistently here."

Gregory's father took him from Mrs. Kingsley at age 4, and she didn't see him for almost five years. Gregory claims his father was an alcoholic who abused him. The boy rejoined his mother in 1989, when he was 8; she placed him in foster care again about two years ago.

The Russes and others testified about the unstable home life of Mrs. Kingsley, her two younger sons and her fiance, Steve Hack, in St. Louis.

Harry Morall II, a lawyer for Mrs. Kingsley, said his client "should have been judged by her lifestyle now, not in the past."

Earlier Friday, Gregory took the witness stand and nervously recalled bouncing from his mother's home to foster homes until he finally "thought she forgot about me."

As his mother wept in the courtroom, Gregory recounted a joyless childhood filled with uncertainty and abandonment. He said his mother was often out late drinking and kept marijuana "in a brown box on a table in the living room."

Asked why he wanted to live permanently with his foster family, Gregory said: "I'm doing it for me, so I can be happy."

Smith enlists

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Leslie J. Smith, son of Charles S. and Joy P. Smith of Snyder, recently reported for active duty with the U.S. Army.

He is currently taking basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. and will take his advanced individual training at Fort Gordon, Ga. He has chosen the position of multichannel communications systems operator as his military occupational specialty, and has volunteered to serve a four-year tour of duty.

Apache boy's hair raises flap

DALLAS (AP) — A school district's order that an Indian student lop off his braided hair has cut into his religious freedom, the boy's parents say.

Itsa-Lichii Gomez, a 5-year-old Apache, was told Friday not to return to McWhorter Elementary School until he had gotten a haircut.

Gregory Gomez, the boy's father, contends the braids are part of Indian religious and cultural beliefs.

"My mother on her death bed asked me not to cut my hair because it was the most visible, tangible representation of our history, our culture, our way of life, our religion," he told WFAA-TV. "It's very hard for us to separate one from another."

The Mesquite Independent School District says there are no exceptions under its 25-year-old dress code. It prohibits hair longer than collar-length.

"We think it helps children fit into society better," said Dixie Parris of the east Dallas suburb's district.

Collider battle is not over

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of the super collider are breathing easier now that the controversial atom smasher has successfully completed its topsy-turvy ride through Congress for the year.

But they realize that although this year's battle was won, the war is not over.

"I don't think there's any doubt about the fact there will be another battle next year," Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said Friday.

But Gramm said the debate reaches beyond the future of the $8.25 billion collider under construction south of Dallas. "The battle is whether we want to invest in programs that have a return in the next election or programs that have a return in the next generation."

The federal dollars spent on science and research have shrunk from 5 percent of the non-defense budget 25 years ago to less than 2 percent today, Gramm said.

Congressional action on the collider was sealed for the year when the Senate voted late Thursday night to approve a $22 billion energy and water development appropriations package that includes the atom smasher money.

The action, which mirrors what the House did a week ago, now sends the appropriations package to President Bush's desk.

Although the legislation contains a nuclear test ban measure Bush finds unpalatable, a senior Republican source said the White House would not fight the testing restrictions because that could jeopardize the collider's future — and Bush's re-election prospects in Texas.

Congress has earmarked $517 million for the collider for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Although that's $133 million short of what Bush requested, it's $483 million more than the House originally wanted to spend on the project.

Collider backers had a tough lobbying fight on their hands after the House stunned supporters and voted in June to strip the project of all funding, leaving only $34 million to shut down operations.

A flurry of lobbying efforts from the White House, congressional and industry supporters ensued. The battle was essentially won when House and Senate conferees agreed last week to the $517 million.

Gov. Ann Richards meets with state prison director

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards said Friday she's urged the executive director of the state criminal justice agency to be open with prison board members and careful with taxpayers' money.

She met with James Lynaugh, executive director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, just days after prison board chairman Selden Hale's Tuesday resignation.

Hale's move came after it was discovered that he had fellow board member Joshua Allen of Beaumont investigated by the criminal justice agency's internal affairs unit 14 months ago.

The governor's office looked into the matter after Allen recently found out about the investigation, according to Richards' spokesman Bill Cryer. Cryer has said the conflict-of-interest allegations that prompted the investigation of Allen proved to be groundless.

Richards said the manner of that investigation was part of her discussion with Lynaugh.

"I said that the simple courtesy is that when you are dealing with someone who has an accusation levied against them, you confront them with it," she said. "... I do not condone nor will I tolerate an atmosphere in which I think things are done in secret and people do not have the opportunity to respond to an accusation made."

Lynaugh was asked by reporters before going into the meeting whether he should have told the governor about the Allen investigation. Lynaugh said that was the board chairman's duty.

Richards also said she wanted to make sure that Lynaugh understood her views on the prison system and his work with the board.

"I told Jim that I wanted to make sure that his relationship with the board of the prison system was a very open one, that everyone on that board have access to him, opportunity for contributions to the direction of the system," she said.

Richards also said she wants the prison population dealt with in the most efficient and cost-effective manner, and that she doesn't think enough attention has been paid to community corrections.

"I don't think that the mindset has been in the direction of trying to save the taxpayers money at the same time you're keeping the public safe," she said.

Lynaugh, who characterized his discussion with the governor as "very positive," said officials would look at such items as using abandoned military bases for correctional facilities.

Asked about Attorney General Dan Morales wanting Hale's replacement to have a prosecutorial background, Richards said that her last appointee to the board, Carol Vance of Houston, was a prosecutor.

She said she doesn't think the question is whether someone leans toward prosecution or defense, but that "you're looking for good management. This is big business."

Richards has the responsibility of appointing Hale's successor and designating a chairman.

Family planning bill is 33rd veto

CHICAGO (AP) — President Bush on Friday vetoed a bill that would have permitted family-planning clinics receiving federal funds to refer women to abortion clinics. He said the legislation "would transform this program into a vehicle for the promotion of abortion."

The veto, issued while Bush was campaigning in Chicago, was the 33rd of his presidency. None of the vetoes have been overridden.

"If the scope ... were limited to family planning, I would approve it," the president said in a message to the Senate. He said, the bill is unacceptable because it would override regulations designed to maintain the program's function as a pre-pregnancy planning program.

Your Birthday

You might be fortunate enough to make a long-term connection in the year ahead that could be rather profitable for you. The deal may be set up by a close friend or relative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Objectives that are important to you might not be to those with whom you'll be involved. That's why, if you want something done today, it's best to operate on your own. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Libra's Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although you may appear to be on the quiet side today, in reality you'll be hard at work checking and balancing critical issues with which you have to deal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not a good day to try to promote your commercial interests in a social setting. People will be more interested in having fun than listening to your deals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It might be difficult for you to escape the scrutiny of others today regarding your public image. Keep in mind your performance is being graded by rather severe critics.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might be tempted to do something today that didn't work out well the last time you tried it. Trade on your experience instead of ignoring it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll derive your greatest gratification today from things you share with others. Conversely, if you play a loner's role, this could end up being just another day.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions might be too restrictive for your liking today; the needs of those you'll be involved with will have to be computed into your plans.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's best not to attempt projects today where you lack the necessary time and materials to complete the task. What you start might not get finished.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Activities that have elements of friendly competition are likely to be very appealing to you today. This is well and good, provided you don't let betting enter the picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to resolve a domestic problem today, you must take a firm position. If you're indecisive, the situation could worsen instead of improve.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Fair-mindedness and an unbiased outlook is all the equipment you'll require to win others over to your point of view today. Forcefulness could have the opposite effect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a good day to balance your budget — if you're so inclined. You should be able to clearly perceive the differences between essential and non-essential spending.

Your Birthday

Sept. 28, 1992

You might make an important career change in the year ahead that could open up doors of opportunity, especially if you're dissatisfied with your present circumstances and are looking around.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unless you and your mate are in accord today on the way funds should be spent, neither should make an independent transaction. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year. Send for Libra's Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might get involved in something today that you feel another is not managing properly. However, before you jump in and take over, be certain you're up to the task.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Some of your hunches could be more accurate than usual today, but you're not likely to bat 1.000 in all areas. It's critical that you be able to know the difference.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) To be on the safe side today, conduct commercial negotiations with a friend the same as you would with a casual business associate. This could save you problems down the line.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're pretty good today at sizing up situations for what they are, yet you might act against your better judgment and create problems which should never occur.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Part of your charm is your curiosity, which friends usually find unoffensive. Today, however, you won't score points prying into their affairs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's a possibility you might evaluate issues from an emotional perspective rather than a logical one today. This could create complications when dealing with friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your ideas will make sense to you today, but they might not be as equally understandable to companions and associates. Pressing for approval could stiffen these individuals' resistance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a good chance you'll get what you want in fulfilling your ambitious expectations today. But there's also a possibility your cohorts won't be pleased with the end results.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're likely to be enterprising today, a commendable asset. However, if you depend too much on chance, things could take an about-face.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If things in the workaday world do not conform to your expectations today, don't take your frustrations out on innocent bystanders. Instead, develop plans to resolve any problems tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to succeed today, optimism is important. But you must also allow for the less attractive practical contingencies. Don't ignore reality.

First U.S. spacecraft to Mars in 17 years launched Friday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The first American spacecraft sent to Mars in 17 years blasted off Friday on its 450 million-mile journey to the Red Planet.

"You have to admit that this is a very heart-rising experience," NASA program manager William Piotrowski said after watching the launch. "Finally, we're on our way to Mars."

The Mars Observer's odyssey began at 1:05 p.m. when a Titan 3 rocket rose from its pad at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station and cut through a hazy sky.

Shortly after being hoisted into low Earth orbit by the Titan, the Mars Observer was propelled toward its destination by a Transfer Orbit Stage making its flight debut. An anxious hour passed before NASA learned the upper stage had fired and the spacecraft was on its way to Mars.

For an undetermined reason, data confirming ignition was not sent and NASA had to rely on the Mars Observer transmitter to learn all was well.

When the good news came from a NASA tracking station in Australia, engineers at the mission control center cheered, jabbed their fists into the air and hugged each other.

"The spacecraft has phoned home," said a jubilant Bevan French, NASA's program scientist. "We're starting the exciting part now."

The $511 million spacecraft is expected to reach Mars in August 1993. Four months later, after it is maneuvered into a near-polar orbit 235 miles above the Martian surface, the spacecraft will start mapping the planet and recording weather conditions.

Seven scientific instruments on the 21/2-ton spacecraft will take measurements for 687 days, or one full Martian year. Among the questions hopefully answered will be whether life ever existed on the dry, rocky world and whether Mars has a magnetic field.

The Mars Observer also will scout for possible landing sites for robots and humans.

The $980 million mission is expected to last more than three years.

There were a few snags with the spacecraft as it sped toward Mars.

Ground controllers received no indication that the dish-shaped antenna had extended and latched into position, said program manager David Evans of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif. In addition, a sun sensor failed to operate properly and the spacecraft consequently switched to a backup sensor.

"I'm not really concerned," Evans said.

It is NASA's ninth attempted mission to Mars. The first was Mariner 3 in 1964. The most recent was Viking 2 in 1975.

Two Viking spacecraft landed on the planet in 1976, a year after being launched, sending back pictures of the surface, using robot arms to collect soil and monitoring the weather.

Technology has space application

HOUSTON (AP) — Leaders of Oceaneering International Inc. believe the diving and robotic technology they have developed for working underwater on offshore platforms also can be useful on another frontier: space.

There are close parallels between working in the depths of the ocean and outer space, said Art Stephenson, vice president and general manager of the Oceaneering Space Systems Division.

"NASA has done an excellent job of recognizing the value of this experience and applying it to the space station," Stephenson said. "We anticipate contracts on the space station that will move us into flight hardware."

Both space and deep water are hostile environments that require special equipment designed to withstand great differences in pressure. But Oceaneering has solved some of the same basic problems in its diving that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration confronts in space.

Commonwealth Army chief: Russian missiles aimed at U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia is still aiming its nuclear missiles at the United States and is awaiting a U.S. response to President Boris Yeltsin's initiative to point the weapons elsewhere, the commonwealth's military chief said Friday.

Russia also should resume nuclear tests if Western countries don't stop conducting them, Marshal Yevgeny Shaposhnikov said in a speech to students of the Moscow State Institute for Foreign Relations. Shaposhnikov heads the unified army headquarters of the Commonwealth of Independent States, which is made up of most of the former Soviet republics.

Yeltsin said last January in a speech to the United Nations, weeks after the collapse of the Soviet Union, that Soviet missiles were no longer targeting the United States.

Asked about that statement, Shaposhnikov said:

"There is a certain period of time between a political statement and its practical implementation, depending on the statement's importance.

"We are awaiting a similar (step) from the Americans. If there will be a similar and reciprocal step, this question will be abolished by itself.

However, he added, "quite a number of missiles have been taken off combat duty in the framework of the START agreement."

Yeltsin's statement created a controversy in Russia at the time, and subsequent reports suggested his speech was written by Foreign Ministry officials who did not consult with the country's military leaders.

Shaposhnikov demanded similar reciprocity over Russia's declared moratorium on nuclear testing, which is to last until the end of the year. So far, only France has joined in.

"If our partners in the West don't stop these nuclear explosions, I think we would have to part with the moratorium and resume nuclear testing, maybe in a less intensive manner," Shaposhnikov said. "Otherwise, from the technological point of view, we could be left behind in this process."

He also complained that Ukraine, Russia's closest rival in wealth and power among the former Soviet republics, had balked at returning its part of the long-range nuclear arsenal to Russia.

Funding approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees Friday approved an appropriations bill that includes $2.3 million to hire about 100 new Immigration and Naturalization Service inspectors.

Of the projected hires, 27 would be assigned to Texas border crossings, with 11 in El Paso, nine in Laredo, four in Hidalgo and three in Brownsville. Other states receiving inspectors would be California with 35, Michigan with 12, Washington state with 10, Arizona with 8, New York with 3 and Maine with one.

Financial Focus

Diversification among different kinds of investments is a rule with which most investors are familiar. Diversification, however, goes beyond just spreading your money among stocks, bonds and cash or cash equivalents. It also calls for dividing your assets within specific groups of securities.

Figures collected by a major money manager have found that even bonds can offer undue risks when not adequately diversified. For example, in 1987 the threat of inflation forced a decline in the market value of U.S. government bonds. Likewise, foreign government bonds fell in 1984 when the dollar unexpectdly strengthened. In 1990, the "junk-bond" scandals adversely affected high-yield corporates. In fact, each of these bond types has yielded less than money-market accounts and has even lost money at some time in the past 10 years. Yet, during this period, there was no year in which more than one of these major bond groups posted a loss. When one was down, the other two were up.

According to Mutual Fund News Service, over the past five years, a portfolio with equal amounts of money invested in each of these categories "would have been 13 percent less volatile than if everything had been invested in U.S. government bonds."

Although an equal three-way division of assets would diversify and spread risk, the ideal situation would be to have the flexibility to vary the mix according to economic conditions.

For example, foreign markets are often of interest to bond buyers. The U.S. dollar can have profound effects on foreign bond prices. Additionally, if central banks overseas attempt to revive stalled economic activity by cutting interest rates, that could trigger a rise in bond prices. Many investors like to have the flexibility to take advantage of these opportunities and adjust the balance of their bond portfolios among foreign government bonds, U.S. government bonds and high-yield corporate bonds accordingly.

Bonds and other fixed-income investments have traditionally answered the income needs of investors. Today, however, with an ever-changing economy, the need to diversify applies even to different types of bonds.

Journey to Eternity (22)

OBEDIENCE
By Homer Anderson

If there is one lesson we have learned from our Bible studies thus far, it is that we must obey God to be pleasing to Him. Throughout the centuries, disobedience has separated men from God and has been severely punished (Isaiah 59: 1-2; 2 Thessalonians 1:8). "He became the Author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey Him" (Hebrews 5:9).

The intelligent response is, "How do I obey the Gospel?" God has not left us in darkness where the salvation of our souls is concerned. It is obvious, from our previous studies, that we must first believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God (Matthew 16:16; John 3:16). But faith alone is not enough. If it were, then the devils who believe and tremble would be saved, but faith without works is dead (James 2:19-20). We must confess Jesus before men (Matthew 10:32-33; Romans 10:9-10), and repent of our sins (Luke 13:3). We are baptized into Christ's death and His blood cleanses us from our sins (Romans 6:3-5; Acts 22:16; 2:38; Galations 3:26-27; Ephesians 1:7).

Band wins awards

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — The Nashville Bluegrass Band won awards for entertainer of the year, best song and top vocal group at the International Bluegrass Music Awards. A member of the band, Stuart Duncan, was voted the top fiddler.

"Blue Train," from the band's album "Home of the Blues," won best song in balloting by a panel of professional bluegrass musicians.

The award for best album went to "Carrying the Tradition" by the Lonesome River Band. The band California won as the year's top instrumental group.

Leaving the driving to the robot can be very uncertain

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — Computerized vehicles are great, just so long as you remember to set the steering mechanism.

The folks at the National Institute of Standards and Technology were demonstrating a fully computerized Humvee on Friday, having installed four TV cameras, a computerized tracking system and a fully automated steering mechanism inside the all-terrain vehicle made famous in the Persian Gulf War. Confidently, they invited a reporter along for the first ride.

Only thing is, the engineer cooling his heels in the driver's seat — he had nothing to do, after all, since the vehicle is supposed to drive itself — forgot to activate the steering mechanism.

The Humvee started down the road, quickly accelerating to 30 mph. Then, at a bend in the highway, the vehicle kept going straight, heading for a grass embankment.

Dying in the line of duty is something every reporter keeps in the back of his mind, but most envision glamorous, selfless tragedies like being bumped off by an organized crime figure whose wrongdoing he has exposed. Few expect to meet their demise while preparing a feature on a slow news day.

But all such life-and-death concerns were for naught.

"Better activate the steering," the engineer said. He did, and moments later, the Humvee was again gliding smoothly down the road, its television cameras feeding pictures of the double-yellow dividing line and other reference points to a computer guiding the vehicle's course.

"What we're doing is literally converting swords into ploughshares," said Richard Bishop, research director for the Federal Highway Administration's advanced vehicle research group. "This is technology transfer in the best sense."

To those who scoff at the idea of a computerized vehicle, project engineer Karl Murphy makes a point:

"Most people, when you ask them, 'Do you want a computerized car,' they say, 'No, I don't trust it.' Then you ask, 'What about anti-lock brakes?' They say, 'Sure — it's safer.' But that's a computer too."

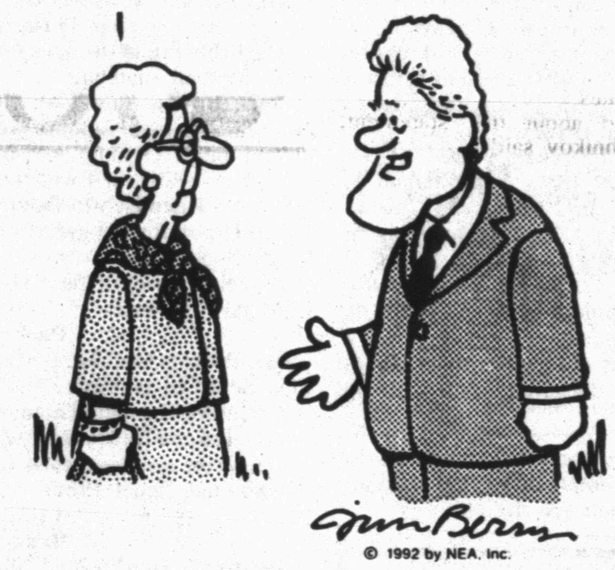

And that's the thought behind the project, which is mixing the army's technology, and the FHA's vision for error-proof driving in the 21st Century. The research work is being done, with contributions from both, by the Commerce Department's National Institute of Standards and Technology.

The vehicle Murphy was demonstrating has a price tag of $100,000 and a top speed of 45 mph. It has an on-board computer system, but still must receive guidance on turns from a bank of computers evaluating its video images in a nearby office building.

"This is a first step," said James Albus, chief of the NIST's robot systems division. "Essentially, you can think of this as an advanced cruise control system."

"We would be trying to eliminate human error," Bishop said.

LINDSEY NORTHCOTT JAY NETTLES

Two at Ira make math wall of fame

Two students have been inducted into Ira High School's mathematics "Wall of Fame." Lindsey Northcott is enrolled in honors calculus and Jay Nettles is taking Algebra II. David Brown is their instructor.

Northcott developed the power rule for finding the derivative of a function.

Working independently, Nettles discovered a method to find the multiplicative inverse of a given matrix using systems of equations and his knowledge of matrices.

14 soldiers discharged after video camera investigation

KILLEEN, Texas (AP) — Fourteen Fort Hood soldiers have been discharged after a weeklong videotape surveillance showed men involved in homosexual acts in a public restroom on post, a base spokesman said.

Maj. Ken Roberts said Friday that the investigation was launched after officials received numerous complaints about activity in the restroom.

The soldiers involved included officers and non-commissioned officers, he said.

Of the discharges, nine were separated under "other than honorable conditions," a designation that usually prevents soldiers from qualifying for veterans' benefits, Roberts said. Three of the soldiers received general discharges and may receive benefits.

Two other men received honorable discharges after a nonjudicial hearing because of "mitigating circumstances" and evidence that was revealed in the hearing, Roberts said. He did not elaborate.

The Milwaukee-based Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Veterans of America cried foul.

"I cannot believe that the Army has nothing better to do with its time and resources than to set up a sting operation in a latrine," said Miriam Ben-Shalom, president and founder of the 31-chapter group.

"I certainly can't endorse such public sex but because we are desperately close to eliminating this ban (against homosexuals in the military), I think they are trying to ferret out as many gay men ... as they possibly can now," she told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The surveillance was not meant to be a "witch hunt," Roberts said.

"Do we have better things to do? Our investigators are charged with investigating charges of criminal activity taking place. We're talking about in a public place," he said.

"We're not talking about a witch hunt or investigators going door-to-door checking to see if illegal activity is going on."

He said the surveillance took place for about a week during peak periods around midday and early evening when most of the complaints came, Roberts said.

Griffith gets 90-day term

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The son of actor Andy Griffith was sentenced to 90 days in jail after pleading no contest to charges he beat his wife and allegedly caused her to have a miscarriage.

Sam Griffith, 34, also was given three years probation, fined $500 and ordered to complete an alcohol-abuse treatment program, his attorney, James Blatt, said Thursday.

Griffith already served the 90 days while awaiting trial, Blatt said.

Griffith, a real estate developer, said he was happy with the deal.

Renee Denise Griffith, 28, told police she was struck and kicked by her husband during an argument in January, when she was two months pregnant.

WTC golfers head for Ruidoso, N.M.

The Westerners are headed for the cool pines of Ruidoso, N.M. this week.

Western Texas College's golf team will compete in the 54-hole Midland-Odessa Invitational at Ruidoso's Links Golf Course Monday and Tuesday.

Teams entered in the tournament are to arrive Sunday for practice. Two rounds will be played Monday, followed by a final 18 holes on Tuesday.

Coach Milton Ham's WTC squad is coming off a second-place finish at the season-opening Texas A&M Invitational at College Station last week.

The Westerners shot a team total 909 that trailed only event winner Navarro JC at the end.

The Snyder school's squad shot a third round 295, including an even par 72 by Sweetwater freshman Chris Rogers, and a 2-under 70 from Daryl Weldon of San Angelo, to climb from fifth to second on the final 18. Only Navarro's 293 on the same round, was a better 18-hole team score at the tournament.

Weldon wound up with a three-round 227, just five strokes behind medalist Shawn Fitzhugh of Brookhaven College. Rogers carded a 228.

The Westerners' next outing will be the Oct. 4-6 Odessa College Invitational at Mission Dorado in Odessa.

His 27th in the majors...

Ryan to stay another season

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Nolan Ryan, who has stymied hitters in four decades while compiling seven no-hitters, 319 victories and more than three dozen major league records, said Friday he is returning for a record 27th season.

"I am looking forward to pitching in 1993," the 45-year-old Ryan said. "I still feel I can help our ballclub win. This was a disappointing season on both a personal and team basis, and I anticipate better results in both cases next season."

Ryan is tied at 26 seasons with James McGuire, who pitched from 1884-1912, and Tommy John, who pitched from 1963-89.

Under the contract agreed to between Ryan and the Texas Rangers on July 18, 1991, the team has a $3.6 million option for 1993, of which $900,000 would be deferred with interest. The team has until eight days following the season to exercise the option, and must pay a $200,000 buyout if it doesn't.

Ryan is 5-9 this season with a 3.83 ERA and 152 strikeouts in 150 1-3 innings.

Baseball's all-time strike out king, who had hinted Tuesday he might return, said he made his decision after talking with relatives and Rangers pitching coach Tom House "in the last 24 hours."

"I think this year it was a lot tougher to come to this decision than in other years," Ryan said.

He added that he was disappointed with his performance this season.

"From a personal standpoint, I never got in the groove that I wanted to," he said. "I certainly don't cherish the thought of going out of my career with this kind of record."

Ryan said the Rangers young talent was a "major factor" in his decision.

"I really feel that the ballclub is in position to be very competitive next year," Ryan said. "I can be a contender and we are in position to do that.

"Certainly we have some work to do. But I think it's an exciting time coming for the Texas Rangers and I want to be involved in that."

Ryan said he felt capable of pitching at least 200 innings next season.

"I think for me to help this club, I have to start 30 games and pitch those kinds of innings," Ryan said.

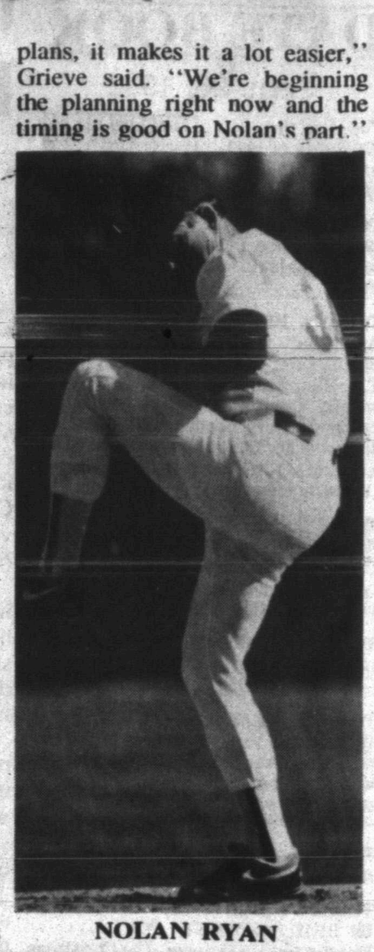

Ryan will pitch again Sunday against Seattle. He went six scoreless innings Tuesday against Minnesota, giving up just four hits in a game the Rangers lost 1-0 in 13 innings.

It was typical of the poor luck that has plagued Ryan throughout the season. In addition to several nagging injuries that have taken him out of the rotation several times, the Rangers' bullpen has blown six saves behind him.

Ryan started the season by going 13 starts without a victory, the longest of his career. During that streak, he was taken out of games by foul weather eight times. His bullpen blew leads four times.

Rangers general manager Tom Grieve said Ryan's decision would help him start planning for next season.

"Anytime you have definite plans, it makes it a lot easier," Grieve said. "We're beginning the planning right now and the timing is good on Nolan's part."

Battle of the sexes...

Connors thumps Navratilova

LAS VEGAS (AP) — OK, so it wasn't Billie Jean King-Bobby Riggs; don't ask Jimmy Connors and Martina Navratoliva to apologize.

Nearly two decades after King beat Riggs on a much ballyhooed battle of the sexes, Connors turned the tables Friday night with a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Navratilova.

This time, however, it wasn't about superiority of sexes. This time, it was about entertainment and money.

"It was a fun night and we had a fun time doing it," Navratilova said. "We also made a lot of money out of it."

Connors made the most, taking a $500,000 winners check for a short night's work before a sold-out crowd of 13,832 at an outdoor court at Caesars Palace.

He did so after digging a hole with a 3-1 first-set deficit in a match where he faced the disadvantage of unorthodox rules that gave him only one serve and Navratilova half the double's alley.

"Tennis purity is gone, it's time to open up and reach some new boundaries," Connors said of the first big-money mixed-gender match since Riggs met King 19 years ago. "If this was one way to attract that kind of attention, it's super."

Both went out on the court already enriched by the match, thanks to appearance fees that reportedly reached $500,000 apiece.

The money may not have given Navratilova the jitters, but the pressure of five months of waiting for the match apparently did. If so, though, it didn't show right away as she broke Connors' serve in the first game and raced to a 3-1 lead.

Connors came back, however to win the next three games and took the first set when Navratilova double faulted on a serve.

"I was more nervous today than in any match I have ever been in because of the buildup," said Navratilova, winner of 160 women's single titles. "The occasion was bigger in my mind than it actually was."

Bagwell RBI tops Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jeff Bagwell singled in two runs in the ninth inning as the Houston Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 on Friday night.

Mark Portugal (6-3) pitched a perfect eighth for the victory and Doug Jones got the last three outs for his 32nd save.

The Dodgers took a 3-2 lead into the ninth behind starter Kevin Gross.

After Craig Biggio beat out an infield single leading off the ninth, John Candelaria (2-5) replaced Gross and gave up a single to Steve Finley to put runners at the corners.

M's need 16 to trim Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Omar Vizquel's two-out single scored Harold Reynolds from second base in the 16th inning Friday night, lifting the Seattle Mariners to a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Dan Smith (1-1) walked Reynolds with one out. Reynolds advanced to second on Shane Turner's sacrifice bunt, and Vizquel followed with the RBI single.

Dennis Powell (4-2) pitched 3 1-3 innings for the victory. Brian Fisher, the 11th pitcher used by Seattle, got the last three outs for his first save since 1989.

Both teams combined to use 54 players, setting a major-league record. The previous record was set by the Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros in an 18-inning game on Sept. 2, 1986.

The 11 pitchers used by the Mariners tied a major-league record set in 1986 by the Chicago Cubs in a 17-inning game against Pittsburgh. It broke the American League record set most recently by Baltimore in 1958 against the Yankees.

Texas stranded a runner at third base in the ninth, 10th, 12th and 13th.

9-10 YEAR-OLDS

Colts 30, Cardinals 0

The Colts scored 30 points in the first half on their way to a recent pee wee football victory.

Chad Lancaster scored on runs of 30 and 35 yards, Ryan Braziel added a 15-yard TD scramble and Derrick Crayton returned an interception 35 yards for a score as the Colts jumped out to a 30-0 halftime lead.

The Cardinals' Richard Wilkins and Ryan Grady led the defensive charge that shut down the Colts in the second half.

Cowboys 20, Broncos 0

The Cowboys shut out the Broncos Sept. 15 on the strength of a Justin Parker 30-yard touchdown run, a 25-yard Russell Wall jaunt and a 15-yard pass interception return for six by Ed James.

Top Bronco defenders were Caleb Calloway and Richard Cerda.

Packers 0, Broncos 0

The Packers and Broncos fought to a scoreless tie in a Sept. 17 Boys' Club football matchup.

Jerek Brown, Jamie Martinez, Justin Rosson and Duane Allred paced the Packers' defense while the top stoppers for the Broncos included Jason Dennis, Adam Lucero, Sam Aviles and Isa Burks.

Cowboys 6, Cardinals 0

A Trey Roemisch-to-Donnie Sims pass set up a 2-yard plunge by David Digby for the game's only score as the Cowboys nudged the Cards Sept. 17.

Daniel Highfield, Chase McJimsey and Jeremy Nelson anchored the Cardinals' defense.

Packers 12, Colts 0

The Packers' defense posted its second shut out, blanking the Colts in a Sept. 18 contest.

Offensive linemen Thomas Rinehart, Thomas West, Adam Beck, Eric Delon and Buddy Whittenburg were cited for outstanding efforts.

Defensive standouts from the Colts included Zach Bilano, R.J. Hernandez and Jamal Pruitt.

11-12 YEAR-OLDS

Bengals 14, Lions 6

Brad Roemisch hit Jim Collins with a 35-yard scoring toss and Jason Presley hit paydirt on a 42-yard run as the Bengals stopped the Lions in a Sept. 14 meeting.

Bandy Rollins scored for the Lions and teammates Cory Mandrell and Kris Humble were named defensive standouts.

Tigers 14, Bengals 6

Jacob Hodges scooted to a 50-yard touchdown on the game's first play, leading the Tigers to an 11-12 Year-Old win on Sept. 15.

A Brad Roemisch pass to Andy Smith covered 15 yards and cut the margin to 8-6 before Tiger running back Sam Bedell broke loose and scored on a 65-yard rush in the fourth quarter.

Aaron Stansell and Ian Hobbs led the Tiger defense. Ryan Martin and Dane Crunk were Bengal defensive standouts.

Tigers 6, Lions 0

Jacob Hodges scored in the second quarter, John Martinez intercepted a Lions' pass to kill a drive, and Nathan Sorrell's punting kept the Lions in a hole in this Sept. 18 battle.

The Lions' defensive effort was paced by Jason Smith, Jeffrey Fuentez and Blake Bell.

Goal line stand gives SHS win...

Tigers turn back Big Spring, 14-6

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

A fourth-quarter goal line defensive stand by the overachieving Snyder Tigers gave SHS a 14-6 non-district football win over Big Spring Friday night. Post-game comments by Snyder coaches centered on the word "heart".

"They played their hearts out", head coach David Baugh said of his Tigers defense.

"The kids played great," said SHS defensive coordinator Jack Dorsett. "They played with a lot of heart."

Snyder defense, made up largely of two-way players, had to dig deep for a final big play Friday on fourth down and goal from less than a yard away and under a minute remaining.

Holding a 14-6 edge, the Tigers stopped Big Spring running back Tim Pearson about the width of the referee's shoe from the goal line.

"That was a great defensive stand," Baugh said. "Our goal line defense did a great job.

"Coach Dorsett called the play. He knew what they were going to run and he called the defense to stop it.

"That was a great call down there."

Dorsett said, "If they throw it, they score because we brought the house. We brought both safeties and both corners.

"We were either going to get them, or they were going to score. "Then they'd have had to line up and go for two just to tie us, so we felt pretty good about our chances at that point".

The Tiger defense didn't just make a goal line stand, they also limited the vaunted Steers' passing attack to just two completions in 12 attempts for only nine yards.

In addition, Snyder claimed five interceptions.

The Steers were limited to just 49 first-half yards, only one coming in the air.

Big Spring quarterback Wes Hughes mounted a fourth-quarter rally, rushing for 31 yards in a 14-play drive and finally scoring from 13 yards out with 6:37 to go to get the Steers on the scoreboard.

The extra-point attempt was snuffed by Ben Wilson, Snyder's offensive leader on the night.

Wilson gained 146 yards on 15 carries against the Steers Friday, including a 49-yard burst in the third period that set up Matt Cave's 1-yard quarterback sneak for the Tigers' second score.

Snyder's first TD came with 1:21 left in the first half and started when Michael Fields snagged his first of two interceptions.

The Tigers used 12 plays and ran over six minutes off the clock before fullback Wayland Harrison blasted over for the last three yards.

"We wanted to throw a little more," Baugh said. "We had several passes called, but we checked off into something else. It seemed like they always had coverage for our pass plays.

"They were bringing lots of heat and it didn't seem like we were holding them out that well."

"It was the type of game where we had to shorten the game if we were going to win. We had to control the football.

"It was a great win for our team," he added. "It was one of the better wins we've had because of the conditions. With all our injuries, we've just been grabbing this kid and that kid and seeing if he can play and do the job."

"Since I had coached here before," said Dorsett, a six-year veteran of the Big Spring sidelines, "it was a big win for me. It was nice for me to beat them."

"A lot of these kids are JV kids from last year, and they're just learning to play the game.

Dorsett feels the game could be a building block for a successful season.

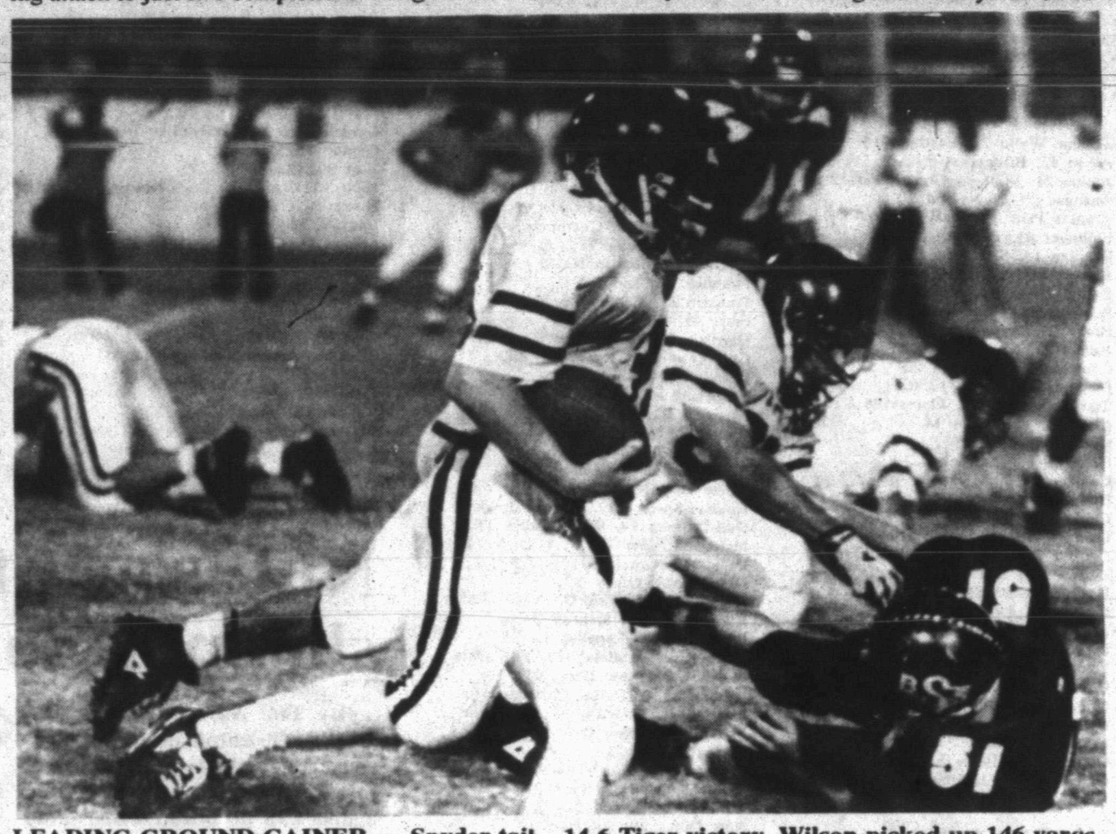

"I think it could have a snowball effect," he said. "Like I said, the kids are learning how to play. When you win and learn to play, it just gets easier."

Senior linebacker Charles Richardson also had two interceptions Friday and senior cornerback Barretta Collins grabbed an errant aerial.

Collins' return to the Big Spring one was called back on a controversial clipping call against Snyder. The ensuing possession ended up in a punt back to the Steers.

All 178 yards of Snyder's total offense came on the ground. Quarterback Matt Cave, hurried all night by Big Spring defenders, was 0 for 3 on the night, with two sacks.

Snyder moves to 3-1 on the season and Big Spring slips to 2-2.

Bulldogs' offense explodes in win over KHS

KLONDIKE — Ira's spread offense exploded for 10 touchdowns Friday in the Bulldogs' 74-30 non-district six-man grid win over Klondike.

Ira's Cole Sterling scored four touchdowns against the Cougars, including a 30-yard scoring strike from Mike Hughes, and runs of three, four and one yards.

Ira held a 37-12 halftime advantage and moved in front 59-24 by the end of three periods.

Hughes tossed five TD passes Friday. He found Sterling for one, hit Bryan Luna with an 8-yarder, connected with Toby Haynes to cover the last nine yards of a fourth-quarter drive, then back to Haynes for a 30-yarder, and threw for 20 yards and a touchdown to Jim Gorman.

Hughes also streaked 72 yards for a second-quarter score. Luna added a six-yard blast for a touchdown in the third.

In all, Ira accounted for almost 600 yards in total offense in moving to 2-2 on the season.

The Bulldogs' next opponent will be Meadow in Friday's homecoming game. The Bronchos lost to Whitharral, 37-0, while the 'Dogs were hammering Klondike.

Velasco carries Cards to 6-man grid victory

AFTON — Chris Velasco scored four touchdowns Friday night to lead the Hermleigh Cardinals to a 32-12 non-district six-man football win over Patton Springs.

Velasco gave the Cards a 6-0 lead late in the opening quarter with an 18-yard run for a score. The margin went to 12-zip when the HHS running back bolted in from six yards away.

Velasco added a four-yard dash and a game-sealing 55-yard TD run.

Hermleigh's Daniel Hermosillo also scored Friday night, lighting up the scoreboard from 16 yards out.

The Cardinals kept Patton Springs off the scoreboard until the fourth period when Teddy White hit paydirt on runs of one and seven yards.

Hermleigh, now 2-2, will host Grady, a 51-6 winner over Midland Trinity, Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Cox scores four TDs as Coyotes slam Loop

LOOP — Borden County was expected to walk past Loop in Week 4 of the six-man football non-district season, but it was even easier than expected.

Cody Cox scored four times, Kirk Jones made a pair of TDs, and Clint Wills added a touchdown in the Coyote's 49-0 shellacking of the Longhorns Friday night.

Wills started the ball rolling with a 46-yard scoring run, part of a 22-point first-quarter burst that also included an 11-yard rushing TD by Jones and a 29-yard Clay Miller-to-Jones pass for six points.

The rest of the game belonged to Cox as the junior quarterback scored twice in the second quarter, on runs of one and six yards, and again in the third on a 30-yard jaunt.

Cox's fouth-quarter 2-yard drive for a score ended the contest on the 45-point rule.

Friday's win moves Borden County to 3-1 on the year.

The Coyotes will tangle with Klondike, a 74-30 loser against Ira on Friday, in an Oct. 2 battle in Gail.

Dallas looking ahead to Philadelphia game

IRVING, Texas (AP) — What a difference three years has made for the Dallas Cowboys. And Coach Jimmy Johnson.

"The fans gave us what we deserved" in 1989, when the team won one game, Johnson said. Now the so-far undefeated Cowboys are basking in rediscovered affection by fans who fill Texas Stadium.

After victories over all but one of their NFC rivals, the Cowboys, 3-0, have this week off to get ready for the Eagles, the last — and so far best — one.

"I'm glad to have the extra time to get ready for Philadelphia," he said. "We'll have to play better than we have to beat them."

Johnson said the game almost has a mini-Super Bowl flavor.

"With each team having a week off there will be a lot of buildup," Johnson said. "For a regular season game, you can't get much bigger. It's on Monday Night Football, it's a division foe, and we both are unbeaten. It's a big, big game."

The Cowboys have won eight consecutive regular season games and are 13-3 over the last 16 games under Johnson.

Victories over the defending world champion Washington Redskins, the New York Giants, and the Phoenix Cardinals preceeded their off-week.

"We're a better team today than we had a year ago," Johnson said. "This is an important game with Philadelphia. It will tell us where we are."

Johnson said he already knows what the Cowboys need to do to have a chance to win the game.

"We've got to avoid the negative plays, the feeding frenzy their defense gets into," Johnson said. "Their defense is one of the best of all-time in the NFL."

Johnson said he is proud of the steady improvement of the Cowboys.

"We were a bad football team and we deserved it" in 1989, Johnson said.

"However, I didn't bring that bad football team with me. Since then the fans have been real good to us. I think the sellout crowds are an indicator."

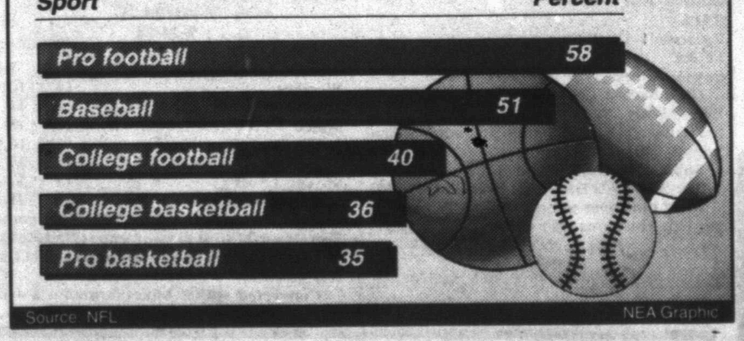

Someone pointed out that Johnson was only seven games from being .500 in the NFL.

"Yeah, but I'm only two wins away from being even in the division," Johnson said.

NFL's new free agents shopping for new deals

by The Associated Press

With the elimination of Plan B free agency, the four NFL players just declared unrestricted free agents can go ahead with "Plan A."

Keith Jackson, arguably the NFL's best tight end, is the most notable of the four players who on Thursday were given five days to sign with any team in the league by U.S. District Judge David Doty. The others are wide receiver Webster Slaughter, defensive end Garin Veris and running back D.J. Dozier.

In his ruling, Doty said the players were still suffering the effects of the Plan B system outlawed by a jury on Sept. 10. Protected under Plan B but not under contract when it was annulled, the players will learn Tuesday if Doty intends to extend their freedom until all the appeals in the antitrust trial are exhausted.

"Keith will be in uniform playing football for someone in the NFL a week from this Sunday, or Monday," Jackson's agent, Gary Wichard, said.

"I don't plan on having Keith tied up in court beginning next Tuesday. We have this window of opportunity now and we'll pursue it, because Keith's return to the football field is long overdue."

Jackson's old team, the Philadelphia Eagles, has a bye this week and plays NFC East rival the Dallas Cowboys on Oct. 5.

Wichard said he was "just talking to some teams" but declined to say how many or which ones. "I really don't want to get into it. They've requested confidentiality."

Dallas is thought to be interested in the tight end and that by itself may be enough to get the Washington Redskins to call. Add the Eagles, and that's three of five NFC East teams in the running, accompanied in all likelihood by several other teams that consider themselves a superstar shy of Super Bowl contention.

Jackson, 27, has averaged more than 60 catches in four seasons. According to Wichard, he has "a nice little wish list of teams" and the deal will hinge on "the money, the length, the structure and the playing situation."

Wichard reportedly is seeking a guaranteed three-year contract with a minimum $1.5 million first-year salary, plus a signing bonus.

The Detroit Lions were unaffected by losing Dozier's rights.

Women, men engage in joint basic training for Marines

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — For the first time since women officers joined the Marine Corps, they're slogging through mud, practicing hand-to-hand combat and staging a mock beach assault along with men.

Although women are still barred from the front lines, 19 of them joined 230 men Friday to begin the Marines' first comprehensive, mixed-sex basic training.

In the 1970s, the Marines and the other military services tried mixed-sex companies, but didn't give women the full range of battle training. The mixed-sex units were disbanded because of morale and logistical problems and women's training has remained segregated ever since.

This time, women and men will get the same lessons.

"It's just natural, the way it should be," Lt. Kristin McKinley, 23, said as she stood ankle-deep in mud on the rifle range.

Although women are barred from combat assignments, the training will prepare them for anything, said Col. Robert Fawcett, who heads the training school at Quantico, 45 miles south of Washington.

"They need to be able to handle themselves in a fluid battlefield," Fawcett said.

On Friday, women and men stood shoulder to shoulder on the firing range in a cold rain, lobbing grenades and throwing themselves into the mud to fire M-16 rifles at distant targets. In heavy battle gear, helmets and gas masks, the women were indistinguishable from the men.

The women will be taught to crawl through woods alongside men in simulated battles with live ammunition. And they will hammer each other with wooden sticks that simulate bayonets. Later, men and women together will perform a simulated beach assault.

Births

Trey and Kara Wilson of Snyder announce the birth of their son, James Phagan Wilson IV, at 4:47 p.m. on Sept. 23 at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. He weighed seven pounds and 13 ounces.

Paternal grandparents are Jimmy and Donna Wilson of Snyder. Great-grandparents are Tommy and Sue Lock and Cillie Wilson, and great-great-grandmother is Eris Guynes, all of Snyder.

Maternal grandparents are Tommy and Randa Sterling and great-grandparents are Gus and Jean Sterling, all of Ira.

Perot

Perot and Rollins was testy and Rollins left the campaign in July, one day before Perot abandoned his undeclared presidential bid.

"There's no question he'll get back in," Rollins told a panel discussion at the national Radio-Television News Directors convention in San Antonio.

"He won't have any professional operation, which is probably what he likes," said Rollins. "He'll buy a couple of half-hour shows and he'll basically go on and bore the American audience to death talking about his book that he didn't write and his budget that he didn't write."

But Rollins called his former boss a "potentially destructive force, not only to those supporters who are still out there, but to himself."

In Dallas, Perot spokeswoman Sharon Holman rejected Rollins' assessment.

SACROC

fers to Class A properties owned by Chevron, has resulted in a decrease in local employees and an increase in contract labor.

Current production is below 20,000 barrels per day. Production in the unit peaked in 1974 at 211,000 barrels of oil per day.

Also for sale is Oryx's interest in SACROC as well as the two gas plants. Oryx is the largest owner of SACROC with a 27.1 percent increase.

The unit was formed in March. 1953. At that time, the north third was operated by Standard of Texas (now Chevron). The middle third was operated by Mobil and the southern third was operated by Sun (now Oryx).

Since 1952, the Kelly-Snyder field has been the largest oil fild in the U.S., including Alaska.

Activists, Johnson say Bush slow in responding to AIDS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson resigned from the National Commission on AIDS, and Elizabeth Taylor and other AIDS activists joined him in scolding the Bush administration for its response to the epidemic.

Johnson sent a sharply worded letter to the White House on Friday announcing he was quitting the commission to which President Bush appointed him last year.

"I cannot in good conscience continue to serve on a commission whose important work is so utterly ignored by your administration," Johnson wrote. "I am sorry to have to write this letter, but I am afraid that there is little that will be accomplished in the next four months."

Johnson, 33, retired from pro basketball last November when he announced he had tested positive for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Bush quickly appointed Johnson to the commission, but the former Los Angeles Lakers star soon began to criticize the lack of attention he said the Bush administration had paid to its work.

He threatened in July to resign from the commission, saying it hadn't been given enough money.

White House deputy press secretary Judy Smith said Friday the administration has proposed $4.9 billion in AIDS spending in 1993.

"Combating this disease is an administration priority," Smith said. "It has increased funding since 1988 by 170 percent and in 1992 spent $4.3 billion for research, more than for any other disease except cancer."

Louis Sullivan, secretary of Health and Human Services, said in a statement distributed by the White House that Johnson's "absence from the commission's work represents a missed opportunity for himself and for the millions of Americans, especially young people, who know and look up to him."

Obituaries

Garth Carter

1921-1992

CENTER CITY — Services were held Sept. 20 at 2:30 p.m. at the Center City Baptist Church for Garth B. Carter, 71, of Goldthwaite. Burial was in the Center City Cemetery in Mills County. The Rev. Ray Ricker and D.R. Philly officiated.

Mr. Carter died Sept. 18 at the Brownwood Regional Hospital in Brownwood.

He was the father of Mike Carter of Snyder.

Born on June 20, 1921, at Center City, he was married to Violet Weathers on Jan. 26, 1946, at Goldthwaite. He had been a resident of Goldthwaite since moving from Bastrop in 1991. He was a gas plant operator in Snyder from 1951 to 1975. Mr. Carter served in World War II in the 36th Division. He was a Baptist.

Other survivors include his wife of Goldthwaite; another son, Greg Carter of Kona, Hawaii; one daughter, Sharon Carter of Eureka Springs, Ark.; three brothers, Tip Carter of Minonk, Ill., and Goldthwaite, Alfred Carter of Kountze, Tex., and Pottie Carter of Goldthwaite; four sisters, Barbara Roderick of Somerville, Mass., Mary Jo Hamilton of San Bernardino, Calif., Leona Mae Walton of Los Alamos, N.M., and Lottie Davis of Goldthwaite; and four grandchildren.

Jasper Mallicote

1917-1992

BIG SPRING — Services are set for 2 p.m. Monday at Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel for Jasper Newton Mallicote III, 75, who died Friday in a Big Spring hospital. Burial will follow in the Trinity Memorial Park.

He was the father of Patsy Pettitt of Snyder.

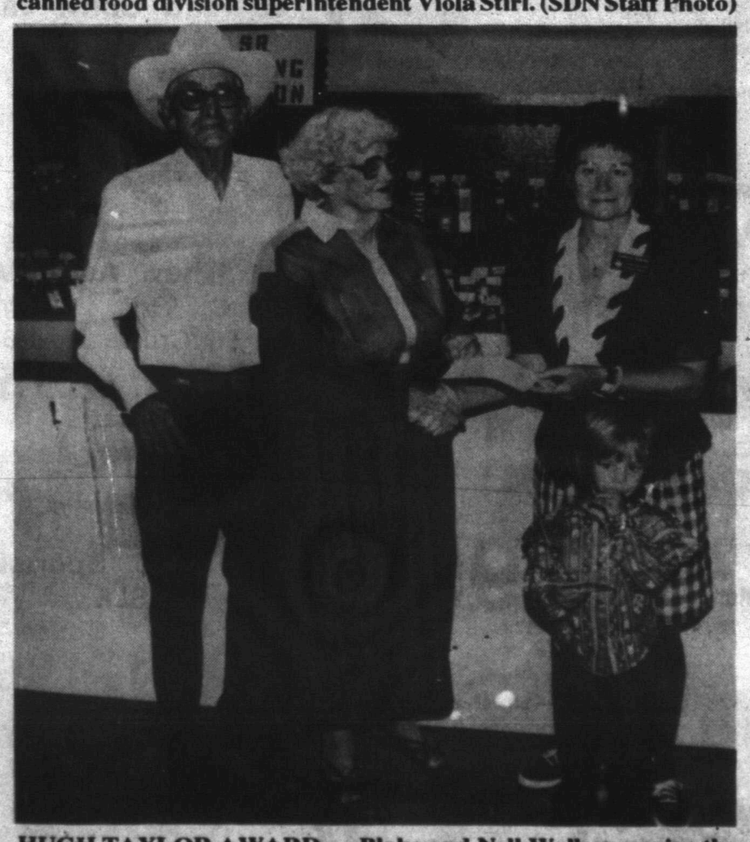

Born in Alvarado, he graduated from Texas Wesleyan College and served in the U.S. Army during World War II. He entered the real estate business and was a member of the Texas Association of Realtors, Rotary International, Masonic Lodge, Royal Arch Masons and the Moslah Shrine Temple.

He graduated from Landig College of Mortuary in Fort Worth. In 1977, he moved to Big Spring and worked for Nalley-Pickle until his retirement in 1985.

Other survivors include his wife, Ailene of Big Spring; a son, Eddie Gotcher of Lubbock; seven grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

CANNED FOODS AWARD — Donna Wilson, left, is presented with a pressure cooker as the winner of the canned foods division of the recent Scurry County Fair and White Buffalo Days celebration. Winners are based on points accumulated by the number of entries and awards earned for those entries. Also pictured is canned food division superintendent Viola Stirl. (SDN Staff Photo)

HUGH TAYLOR AWARD — Blake and Nell Walker receive the Hugh Taylor Award from County Extension Agent Kathryn Roberts during Scurry County Fair/White Buffalo Days. The award is given for the most points accumulated in agriculture, textiles, culinary, canned goods, art, handicrafts and the flower show. Pictured with Roberts is her grandaughter, Shannon Mangis. # Mishaps cause minor injuries

Two people were treated at Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room following separate traffic accidents Friday.

Both suffered minor injuries and were released following treatment.

Twenty-three-year-old Deana Browne of Rt. 2 Snyder was taken to the emergency room by private vehicle following a two-vehicle mishap at the traffic circle at 11:03 a.m. Friday. She was released after being treated for a fractured wrist.

Browne was the driver of a 1983 Honda which was in collision with a 1989 Nissan pickup driven by Daniel Preston of McCamey.

At 6:34 p.m., police worked a hit-and-run at 23rd Street and Avenue E which sent 50-year-old Ann McFall to the emergency room by Snyder EMS. McFall, of 302 23rd St., was the driver of a 1981 Ford which was in collision with a vehicle that left the scene.

McFall was treated for neck and back pain, and released.

Police worked one other accident Saturday. At 2:31 p.m., officers investigated a mishap at 25th Street and College Avenue. Involved were a 1990 Cadillac driven by Joyce Alice Martens of Eding, N.M. and a 1984 Chevrolet driven by Brian Smith of Hamlin.

Officers note burglary case

Snyder police worked a burglary early Saturday morning and made three unrelated arrests.

At 6:25 a.m. Saturday, Albert Zamora notified police that the front glass had been broken at Al's Fina. Among the items taken in the burglary were wheels and a tire.

Officers closed a case at 12:45 a.m. Saturday with the identification of a 21-year-old suspect. On Sept. 14, Tonya Fausett of 2206 29th St. reported that someone had broken into her residence and stolen a photograph. Other items in the home were disrupted. Police have identified a suspect in the case and forwarded the information to the district attorney's office. No arrest was made.

Officers did arrest three individuals in unrelated cases Saturday and Friday.

Police arrested a 20-year-old man for public intoxication at 1:35 a.m. Saturday in the 1500 block of 27th Street.

At 9:27 p.m. Friday, officers arrested an 18-year-old man at the police department on an outstanding DPS warrant for no seatbelt from Amarillo.

Police also arrested a 19-year-old man at 10:13 a.m. Friday for public intoxication in the 2800 block of College Avenue.

Japan making good on Earth Summit vow

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Japan, the world's leading importer of rainforest lumber, has signaled resolve to fight Latin American deforestation by funding a huge tree-planting project in Mexico to combat smog and ecological damage.

Only two years ago during global Earth Day celebrations, the Japan Tropical Forest Action Network held a "rock for the rain forest" concert to publicize Japan's position as the top importer from the rain forest.

But on Friday, Japan signed an agreement here extending $84 million in credits to Mexico to plant 100 million trees in the central countryside, and in the volcano-rimmed valley trapping Mexico City's smoggy sprawl of 81 million.

It all stemmed from a Rio Earth Summit pledge by Japan to help reverse the deforestation that has wiped out as much as 70 percent of many Mexican forest tracts and huge reserves elsewhere in Latin America.

"The stage is set: we WILL plant 100 million trees across our republic within the next two years. We are embarking on an undertaking without precedent," said President Carlos Salinas de Gortari in a statement.

Friday's signing was billed as a novel experiment by an industrialized nation helping a developing nation to give back the trees responsible for cleansing the air of pollutants and giving back oxygen.

And the credit-signing ceremony was given top billing at the National Palace, with Japanese Finance Minister Tsutomu Hata in attendance — even if Salinas could not attend because of a domestic trip elsewhere.

Mexico's hardwood and tropical forests in no way rival the scope of Brazil's Amazon. But the post-Earth Summit initiative is seen as a potentially fruitful harbinger of better cooperation between nations on ecological problems of a global scale.

This assistance is "a sign of Japan's commitment" to helping nations like ours in "avoiding conflicts between economic development and environmental protection," said Mexican Finance Minister Pedro Aspe.

The international community signaled its support for the Japanese government credits by helping to expedite the financing through assistnace of the World Bank and Inter American Development Bank.

The dwindling of forests by urban sprawl, ranching and lumbering has caused severe erosion, threatened thousands of endangered plant and animal species and helped make Mexico City's smog perhaps the world's worst.

Environmentalists even fear lumbering will soon obliterate the nesting grounds of Monarch butterflies that fly by the millions each winter from Canada to the forests of Michoacan, 150 miles west of Mexico City.

Meanwhile, ranching and lumbering in the Yucatan rain forests of Chiapas are imperiling the homes of thousands of endangered species including jaguars, tapirs, ocelots, maeaws and spider monkeys.

"We estimate that the rain forest has shrunk by 70 percent in the last 30 years, mostly due to logging and clearing for farming," environmentalist and Mexican author Homero Aridjis said recently.

The tree planting is to take place in the state of Michoacan, the state of Mexico surrounding the capital and in and around the capital's federal district proper.

The favorable financing by Japan's government is expected to lead to planting of more than 135,000 trees on the outskirts of Mexico City in the next seven months alone — including eucalyptus, pine and ash.

It is yet another step in Salinas' ambitious bid not only to lift his nation into the ranks of the developed world economically, but also raise its environmental standards like other richer nations.

On Aug. 21, Salinas signed a decree prohibiting logging in one tropical reserve, the vast Lacandon tract bordering Guatemala, which is vanishing faster than the Amazon — at a rate of 3.5 percent a year.

And in March 1991, he closed a Mexico City oil refinery that was the country's sixth largest, declaring the 435-acre site would be made a park in a city with far too few.

"We will plant trees where today there are refinery pipes," he declared at the time. The refinery, which had been fined for excessive pollution, was long ago built outside the city but overtaken by residential neighborhoods.

Indeed, deforestation is seen as laying at the root of much of the pollution crisis, and all agree something must be done: only last March, smog levels rose to record levels four times the accepted in Los Angeles, forcing schools and factories to temporarily close and many autos out of circulation.

Cyrus is sued

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Del Reeves is suing Billy Ray Cyrus, claiming he helped Cyrus get a recording contract with Mercury-PolyGram Records and is entitled to 8 percent of his record sales and 15 percent of his gross earnings.

Cyrus' manager, Jack McFadden, denied the claims.

Give up wine if headaches persist

DEAR DR. GOTT: I like to have a cocktail or two in the afternoon, yet when I do I get a pounding headache and I feel as if my heart is coming out of my chest. Why does this happen to me?

DEAR READER: In some people, small amounts of alcohol cause profound dilation of blood vessels that can lead to flushing, headache and lightheadedness. Such an exaggerated reaction, which is unusual, may be caused by an allergy either to the alcohol itself or to some trace element in the beverage. For example, allergies and headaches are much more common consequences of drinking red wine than spirits.

You might try changing the constituents of your cocktail or simply heed what your body is telling you and stop drinking.

Incidentally, the vascular headache of a hangover is due, at least in part, to the dilating effects of alcohol. Thus, anyone who drinks enough will experience this consequence. You're just unlucky that it occurs earlier than usual.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Headaches." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 4 ¼-year-old son has had recurring fevers — 105 degrees — normally associated with vomiting. He's had a bone marrow biopsy, HIV, TB, Lyme tests, a CT of the head and abdomen — all with negative results. The fevers occur as often as every five days or may extend to 13 days. My pediatrician and our local university hospital are stumped. Any ideas?

DEAR READER: As a doctor practicing general medicine, I wouldn't presume to second-guess specialists who are familiar with your son's case. Also, I'm not a pediatrician. However, I will make some general comments about this medical problem, called Fever of Unknown Origin, which can be an exceedingly difficult diagnostic challenge.

Obviously, anyone with an infection may have a fever. Thus, doctors usually search high and low for infection in a patient with FUO. Also, hidden malignancies can cause FUO, but this possibility is very unlikely in a 4-year-old.

Munchausen's syndrome, a psychiatric disorder, consists of willful fabrication of illness which the patient uses to gain repeated medical attention. In "Munchausen by proxy," parents use their children, whom they manipulate with induced ailments, for the same purpose. I do not wish to imply that you are abusing your child in this manner; rather, I mention the syndrome for completeness.

I believe you can solve the problem of your son's FUO in an inconvenient but direct way: When his cycle of fever begins, have him admitted to a teaching hospital where he will be closely monitored and tested at the time of his fever. In this way, the doctors may be able to determine the cause of his episodes, which may not be evident in between his cycle of fevers.

Medical technology seems to put into motion events with which our primitively simple moral/ethical/legal principles cannot cope. Thus, the final word has been offered in the courts. Unfortunately, judges have no God-given gift of clairvoyance; they make mistakes just like the rest of us. However, despite the faults in the system, it's the only system we've got.

Take, for instance, Johnson v. Calvert, in which a California court of appeals ruled last year that a child's genetic mother, not the gestational mother, is the legal parent.

Because of a hysterectomy, Mrs. Calvert was unable to bear a child, so she and her husband contracted with Ms. Johnson (a young, single nurse) to carry the Calvert embryo (and subsequently turn the baby over to them) for $10,000.

As you can imagine, the medical aspects were amazing. The doctors harvested an ovum from Mrs. Calvert. The egg was then fertilized outside the body by Mr. Calvert's sperm. Following this, the fertilized ovum was placed in Ms. Johnson's uterus to grow. And grow it did. Near the end of the pregnancy, however, Ms. Johnson had misgivings and asked the court for a declaration that she be named the legal mother, entitled to visitation rights.

After arguments were presented, the judge ruled that Mrs. Calvert was the true mother; Ms. Johnson's role was considered analogous to that of a foster parent. A three-parent arrangement was not considered to be in the child's best interests.

On appeal, the second court affirmed the trial court's ruling, pointing out that contracts for personal services are rarely enforceable (for example, a baseball player cannot be forced to pitch) and that making the birth-mother give up her parental rights (before the child was born) opened a legal Pandora's box, relating to questions of adoption and body-selling. Rather, the appeals court directed its attention to determining which of the women was the child's "natural" mother. Genetic testing was the main evidence that swayed the justices. This testing unequivocally showed that the child bore no genetic relationship to Ms. Johnson.

There you have it. A woman without a uterus can nonetheless have a child.

Of course, the court's decision raises several interesting questions, because the legal system focused on the child's "natural" mother, not its "legal" mother. The case was further complicated: The opinions were based on California statutes that had been passed before the advent of IN VITRO fertilization. Traditional laws may not be germane to unconventional situations.

While it's true the Calvert child could not have been born without Ms. Johnson, who, then, is the true "legal" mother? This is an arbitrary decision. In fact, the two women probably have more in common than any male judge is capable of understanding or would care to acknowledge.

To confound matters further, what about infertile wives (with uteruses) who rely on ova donated by other women (fertilized IN VITRO by their husbands) to enable them to give birth to children? If other court opinions follow Johnson v. Calvert, the ova-donors would become the "natural" (therefore the "legal") mothers, thereby turning the whole specialty of infertility on its head.

Finally, if Ms. Johnson had been married, the infant would have been considered, under California law, to be a product of that union, exclusive of the Calverts.

If you think about the ramifications of this entire issue, you can go crazy. I often think that modern technology — even with all its wonders and blessings — forces decisions upon us that no adult should have to make. We seem to be entering a world that will severely tax our best thinkers and philosophers, not to mention our judges.

But enough of this. Let's talk about a non-controversial topic, such as fetal tissue transplants.

Anthony Alvarez

Marcelino Aguirre

Jared Hester

Two Snyder youths spent two weeks this summer competing in the International Soccer Cup Tournament in Portsmouth, England, and another took part in a two week soccer training program.

Marcelino Aguirre and Anthony Alvarez both played for the Flames in their respective age divisions. Marcelino's was the under-16 group and Anthony's was the under-19 team.

Jared Hester participated in training camps for under-12 players at Uppingham and Portsmouth. He was accompanied by his father, Richard Hester.

They were in England from July 21 to Aug. 4.

All three boys were selected in the fall of 1991, following local tryouts arranged by Bobby Moffett Enterprises in Dallas. They each paid their own way.

Although neither Flames' team won, both Marcelino and Anthony said they received valuable experience playing the more aggressive soccer that England favors, which they compared to American football. Soccer is a part of the British school system.

This experience did not come without a price. Marcelino received a cut on the head during one game and Jared was cut on the arm during one of his training sessions.

Marcelino and Anthony played their matches in a variety of locations, including stadiums and complexes. They always played at least half of every game. Marcelino also described a "free-for-all" which the under-16 team was drawn into when the losing team picked a fight in retaliation for its loss.

Marcelino and Anthony's teams also featured players from other states, including Wyoming, New Mexico, Louisiana, North Carolina and Massachussetts. Texas players came from towns such as Levelland.

They all played very physical soccer matches against several international teams, including Sweden, Norway, Canada, Brazil, Ireland, Switzerland and Denmark. Also playing in the tournament was a team from Saudi Arabia, but they did not compete against them.

Both boys said they always watched the other teams play and cheered the U.S. players to win. They said the players who adapted and whose teams played well together were the ones who won. Some of the teams were comprised of girls, but soccer was just as rough for them as their male counterparts.

Besides competing in soccer matches, Marcelino and Anthony also traded items with other team members from other countries. Marcelino ended up with a jersey from Liverpool.

They also enjoyed sightseeing — the weather was cool with no rain or humidity — but they said the food "took some getting used to." It wasn't seasoned and drinks were served without ice. Players were not allowed to consume soft drinks after 8 p.m. and caffeine consumption was not allowed at all.

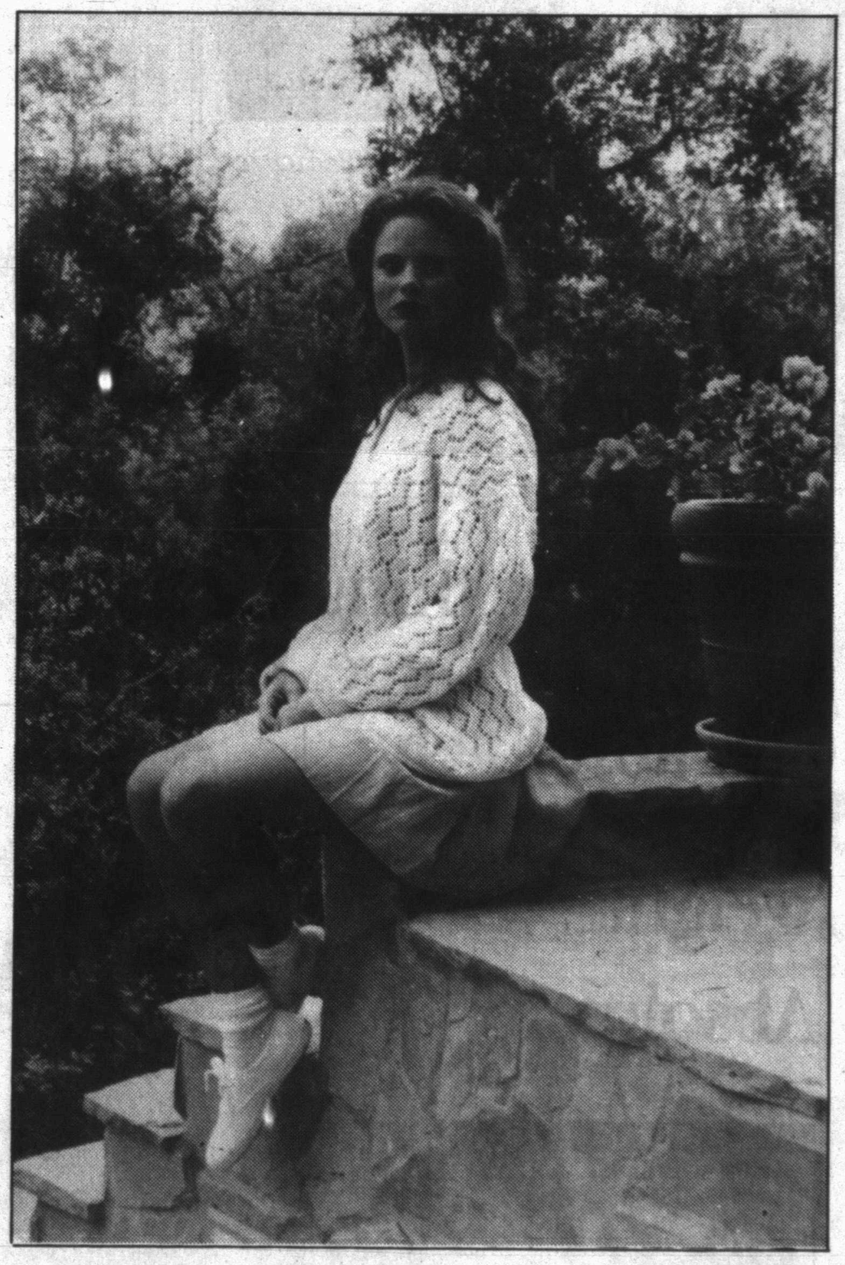

Prices were a little steep, they

Double ring ceremony weds Floyd, Reynolds

Holly Jo Floyd of Snyder became the bride of Thomas Howard Reynolds of San Angelo in a double ring ceremony on July 10 at 7 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Floyd are the bride's parents and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds are parents of the bridegroom. All are of Snyder. Mr. Reynolds officiated the double ring ceremony.

Organist was Marie Clark of Snyder who presented traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory floor length dress with a handwoven Indian silk fitted, dropped-waist bodice and sleeves. The bodice was overlayed with hand-beaded French re-embroidered ivory lace. The skirt, layers of gathered tulle, featured a detachable tulle train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a crown of silk and pearls. She carried a bouquet of long stemmed pink roses tied together with ivory tulle.

Maid of honor was her sister, Heather Floyd. She was attired in an ivory taffeta dress with a fitted drop-waist bodice, meeting a full tea length skirt. Her full sleeves attached a bodice topped with a neckline adorned with self fabric roses, appearing again at the back waist.

She carried a bouquet of long stemmed pink roses tied with matching tulle.

Junior bridesmaid was Allison Canon of Snyder, the bride's cousin. Her dress featured an ivory taffeta bodice, full tulle sleeves and a tea length skirt. She carried a matching bouquet and wore a halo of pink roses in her hair.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS HOWARD REYNOLDS

Flower girl Katie Morrell wore a dress fashioned like the junior bridesmaid's. She also wore a matching halo in her hair.

Will Schroeder of San Angelo was ring bearer. Paul Schroeder of San Angelo was best man. Male attendants wore black Christian Dior tuxedos and ivory shirts.

Amy Richardson of Snyder registered guests.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Wesley Hall of the First United Methodist Church. An antique lace tablecloth covered the bride's table centered with the bride's bouquet. The four tiered heart-shaped wedding cake was iced in ivory and decorated with pink roses and pearls. Also on the table were butter mints, nuts, chocolate-dipped strawberries.

Serving were Michelle Derouen and Tiffany Greene, both of Snyder.

The groom's table was covered with an antique, ivory lace cloth and held a German chocolate cake and a silver coffee service.

Serving was Robin Cave of Snyder.

Following the couple's honeymoom to San Antonio, they are at home in San Angelo where the bride is attending Angelo State University and the groom is employed by Lynn Alexander's AutoPlex.

Reynolds is a Snyder High School graduate and attended Western Texas College. Mrs. Reynolds is a 1992 SHS graduate.

Penwomen note works submitted to publications

The Scurry County Penwomen met Sept. 16 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Foy Westmoreland. Members gave reports on poems and other writings submitted to contests in various publications.

Garnet Quiett gave the invocation.

Sherry Bryant, vice president, led the business session. Members paid dues and received new program books.

Betty Boyd reported that she had submitted two poems to Archives of the Arts in Mississippi, one to the World of Poetry, and two to the Poetry Society of Texas.

Bertha Warren said that she had sent two poems to a pen pal who is in the Humane Society in Erie, Iowa. The society printed the poems in its paper. A song by Warren, "Contest," is being recorded by a group in Seagraves.

Schooler Samukawa showed her sculpture of shark fins she used in Lake Sweetwater as the subject for a painting. A picture and article of her work was published in the Abilene Reporter News.

Quiett submitted an article and a devotional to Mature Living and a poem to the October contest of the Poetry Society of Texas. She also entered 14 poems.

Bryant entered 44 poems in annual contests of the Poetry Society of Texas.

During the reading session, members reciting their own work were Betty Boyd, "A Love Turned to Hurt," "Giving" and "Actor." Warren read her song, "Contest," and poems, "Jungle Made of Stones," and "Solemn Man," and Samukawa read her poem, "Bells."

Other readings were "Grandmother," and a devotional, "Joyous Homecoming," by Quiett, and a poem, "Shadows," by Bryant.

"Doctor Howard's Crazy Son," an article about Robert E. Howard was written and read by Mary Westmoreland.

Robert E. Howard wrote, "Canon and Canon, the Barbarian." Westmoreland showed an article from the Abilene Reporter News about the house Howard lived in when he was writing. It is being made into a museum. The news article included Howard's writing success while living in Cross Plains.

The hostess door prize was won by Quiett and Bryant gave the word of encouragement on "Live Today."

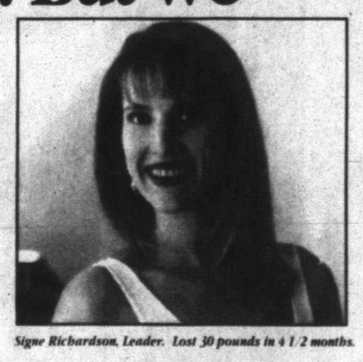

Refreshments followed adjournment of the meeting.

The group's next meeting will be Oct. 21 in the home of Mrs. Quiett.

Birthday celebrated

The Orms family reunion was scheduled the first week of September to honor its oldest member, Mrs. Essie Orms, who resides at the Snyder Nursing Center.

Mrs. Orms, born on Sept. 3, 1892, in Paris, Tex., attended the two-day activities held in the Union Community Center and the Great Western Motel, where 34 rooms were reserved for her family.

One hundred-sixteen registered at a party for Mrs. Orms in the community center. A singing was held where the group sang her favorite hymns. On Sunday morning, a worship service was led by her grandson, the Rev. Michael Orms of Houston, who plans to be a doctor/missionary in the foreign field following his education.

Mrs. Orms has five children, Lewis of Longview; Rea Jordan of Snyder; Clyde of Miami; Johnny of Snyder; and Mary Nell Bishop of Gonzales, La.; 24 grandchildren; 47 great-grandchildren; and 16 great-great-grandchildren. She has two deceased sons.

Mrs. Orms is a member of the Jasper Eastern Star and Snyder's Faith Baptist Church.

Plans were made for another reunion here the second weekend of July, 1993.

Today's hand might look familiar. The North-South cards are identical to those in yesterday's column — except for one small but important change: South has the club three instead of the ♦9.

Against three no-trump, West opens the attack in declarer's weakest suit, spades. How does the lack of the club 10 affect declarer's best line of play?

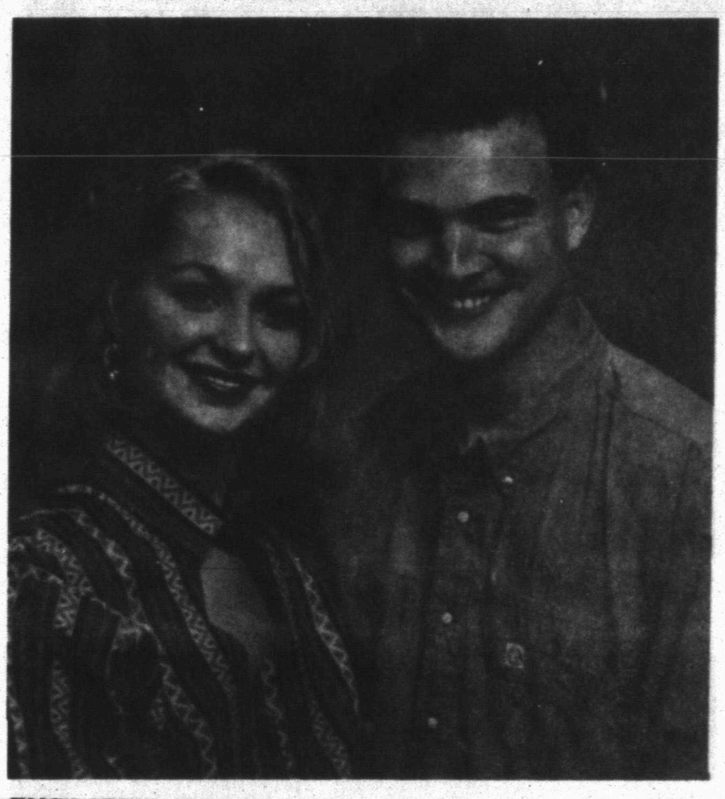

After holding up the spade ace until the third round, declarer cashed the club ace, as recommended yesterday. When the queen dropped, he smiled. He continued with the club king. When East discarded a heart, South's smile evaporated. He couldn't win nine tricks without establishing the clubs, and he couldn't establish the clubs without letting West win a trick in the suit. But when South did that, West cashed two spade tricks to defeat the game.

Why was it right to cash the club ace yesterday but not today? Because if the club queen dropped singleton yesterday, declarer, holding the club 10, could run the whole suit. Today, though, South should take a small precaution. He should play a heart to dummy's ace at trick four. Then he leads a low club, planning to put up the ace. But when East plays the queen, South ducks. East, not West, is on lead, the club suit is established and the contract is safe.

If East plays a low club, not the queen, declarer wins with the ace and cashes the king. If the queen appears now, South wins an overtrick. If it doesn't, though, South plays a third club, hoping East has to ruff in the trick.

both said. For instance, a hamburger at McDonald's cost $5.

They enjoyed sightseeing and outings, including a trip to the ocean where they took a nocturnal swim.

Sleep wasn't always plentiful as the boys did not want to miss any opportunity to experience the sights and sounds of England. Marcelino stayed up all night on the last night in England before they all headed home.

Marcelino and Anthony said professional bums were common sights in the streets. They are registered and all carry their cards. In exchange for money, they would play a guitar or offer some other entertainment.

The boys watched cricket on British television and learned the meaning of several English words. For instance, a pitch is a field, soccer is football, boots are shoes, and french fries are chips. Since the Olympics were conducted during their visit, Jared and his dad watched the rowing events on British TV.

Marcelino and Anthony liked the experience, but each agreed that they don't want to return to England for another soccer tournament, but just visiting would be okay.

Jared and his dad stayed in an exclusive boys school in Uppingham, along with other youngsters participating in the developmental tour. Every player on his team — also called the Flames — was from Texas.

Everyone ate together in the dining room. Traditional English meals included beans for breakfast, not much beef, but lots of potatoes and dairy products.

Jared practiced with his team each morning and afternoon, with breaks for lunch and at 4 p.m. for sandwiches and tea. He played a practice game early in the evening and the rest of the time was spent sightseeing.

Typical sights included Sherwood Forest, where they saw the big oak tree where Robin Hood hid from the Sheriff of Nottingham, Belvoir (pronounced Beaver) Castle, and Belton House, where Edward, the former Prince of Wales and one-time future king of England lived. Decades ago, he gave up all claim to the throne to marry the American divorcee, Wallace Simpson.

They also spent a day in London riding the tube or underground subway, saw Princes Charles and Princess Diana being flown by helicopter to the royal yacht, and encountered a Michael Jackson look-a-like at a hotel.

Richard described Uppingham as a "traditional city" while Portsmouth was "more modern" and featured such sites as a Burger King and higher prices in general.

He described the English people as "friendly" and said they seemed to "enjoy having us there."

"I think they learned as much from us as we did from them," he added.

By contrast, Marcelino said he had not found the English people to be very friendly.

Richard also said the British people all seem to want Levi 501 pants and that it isn't unusual for a pair to cost around a $100, in part, because they are so scarce.

Besides getting used to differences between the two English languages, Richard said they also had to watch out for cars which travel on the "wrong side of the road" according to U.S. practice. He said the streets are plainly labeled, telling pedistrians to look to the right before stepping out into a street.

English customs and practices also differed. Tatoos and pierced ears were very popular. Mothers in Uppingham left their babies in buggies on the sidewalk while they shopped. Hooks were also available for people to put their dogs' leashes on.

Richard said he would like to visit England again some day, but Jared said one trip was enough for him. Two weeks was too long for him to be away from home and he experienced "homesickness," he said. However, next summer he wouldn't mind going somewhere else to play soccer.

Prior to leaving for England, both Marcelino and Anthony attended a four-day training session from July 18-21 in Dallas. Jared did not have to attend a training session.

Jared and his dad joined the other boys in Dallas and they all flew in the same airplane to Gatewick, England before joining their fellow teammates. The journey back to the U.S. was delayed because of a reported bomb threat.

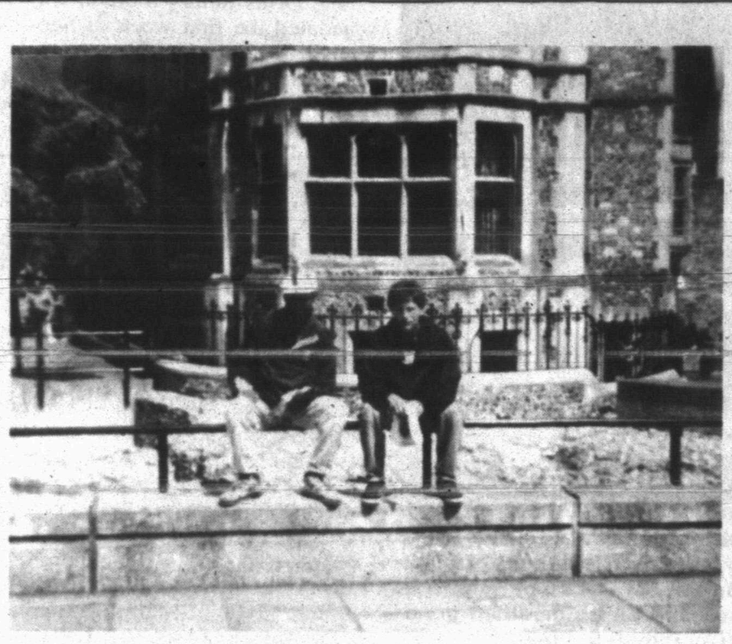

Anthony, a senior at Snyder High School, is now concentrating on basketball. He is the son of Anastacio and Alice Alvarez.

Marcelino, a junior at SHS, is helping to coach a soccer team and playing basketball. He is the son of Albino and Eva Aguirre.

Jared's mother is Debra Hester. Jared is a fifth grader at Northeast Elementary.

Trinity wants equal time to answer TV show

DALLAS (AP) — The president of a non-profit foundation says he may seek legal action if his organization isn't granted equal time to respond to allegations in a show produced by television evangelist Robert Tilton.

Stephen Gardner, an attorney representing the Trinity Foundation and its president Ole Anthony, transmitted a letter late Wednesday to 140 television stations and networks that have been airing Tilton's one-hour show, "Prime Time Lies — Anatomy of an Expose."

Statements made in the show about the Trinity Foundation and Anthony, the letter contends, are libelous and slanderous.

Anthony contends Tilton's ministry has tried to discredit him "in the eyes of the public, and most importantly in the eyes of the legal authorities who are investigating Robert Tilton" ever since he helped ABC-TV's "Prime-Time Live" with an unflattering segment on the televangelist's Farmers Branch ministry.

"Basically we tried to ignore these charges. If you haven't seen Prime Time Lies, I hope you don't. It's a terrible, terrible program and everything in it is a lie," said Anthony.

Dan Moroso, executive producer of television ministry for Tilton, said Anthony's response was expected.

"The man lives in a state of denial. Everything that he says publicly or does publicly to harm the church, he then denies," he said.

"The merit of the investigative report that we did rests on the truth. And that truth is well-documented."

Media outlets have until Wednesday to respond in writing to the request for equal time, and more stations possibly will receive the letter, the foundation said. The foundation believes the show has been airing since August.

If the request is ignored, a lawsuit is possible, Anthony said.

"You don't solve (libel) matters through equal time," Tilton's Tulsa, Okla.-based attorney said. "You solve those matters in a court of law.

"If he has a problem with the show, he should file a lawsuit."

The organization, in a statement read during a Thursday news conference by Harry Guetzlaff, a member of the foundation's board of directors, contends Tilton's show has reported:

—Anthony has lied to the public about his background to bolster his credibility;

—Anthony took LSD and advocated use of drugs;

—Anthony advocated pornography and had sex with members of the Trinity Foundation;

—the Trinity Foundation is a cult.

The foundation, in the statement and in a multi-page document released to the media, disputes each claim and called the allegation that Anthony had sex with foundation members "the most sensational charge."

That charge was made by a woman who was a member of Trinity's Bible study 15 years ago who, according to a signed affidavit, became sexually involved with a member of a family that took her into their home as part of the Dallas Project, which finds shelter for the homeless.

"When confronted ... she chose to leave the group. ... She has become another hurting woman taken advantage of by Tilton and his ever-present 'advisor' J.C. Joyce in their attempts to keep their multi-million dollar business afloat," Guetzlaff read from the statement.

The "PrimeTime Live" segment, broadcast in November, alleged that Tilton used a sophisticated telemarketing and direct-mail scheme to raise millions of dollars. Tilton's ministry has been the target of highly publicized allegations that the preacher has used contributions to finance a plush lifestyle for himself.

But the minister maintains he has done nothing wrong. The battle has spilled into state court. In March, Tilton blocked Texas Attorney General Dan Morales' office from investigating his ministry for alleged violations of state consumer laws.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1992 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Recently my grandparents celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. After the reception was over, we were left with a collection of beautiful helium balloons. After some of the guests took home what they wanted, there were still plenty to spare. Since no one wanted to puncture those beautiful colored balloons, we called the nearest hospital and asked if we could donate the balloons to the children's ward, or to patients who had no visitors and could use a little cheering up.

We were told to bring them over, and were thanked for thinking about them. So, Abby, if you put this in your column, maybe the next time people have some leftover balloons or decorations, they will consider taking them to some hospital where they can be enjoyed and appreciated.

ANGEL DUDLOCK,
ROCKVILLE, IND.

DEAR ANGEL: You were aptly named. Thanks for a great idea.

P.S. Readers, never deliver anything to a hospital, nursing home or any other institution without first calling to find out if it is wanted — and when it would be convenient to deliver it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Last year, you ran a column asking readers to send cards, letters and cheery gifts to Marines in Okinawa, Japan. I am hoping that you can do the same again this year. The response we received was absolutely wonderful! It was so enormous that we were able to split the mail among six separate USOs in Okinawa.

We have a new address for Okinawa:

ATTN: Operation Dear Abby
c/o Camp Foster USO
PSC 557
Box 743
FPO AP 96379-0743

We thank you and your readers. Without the great support they showed, our military members would have had a very depressing Thanksgiving, Hanukkah and Christmas.

LORRI FORRESTER

P.S. There are women Marines as well as men in the service of their country.

DEAR READERS: I will soon be publishing the annual Operation Dear Abby addresses for those who want to send holiday cards and letters to our service-people around the globe. Watch for them.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because I would be embarrassed to ask anyone else, and I feel that you would know what is right and correct.

I lost my husband 13 months ago, and I am still wearing my wedding rings. My daughter says I should wear them on my right hand now. I was married for 52 years, seven months and three days. I never paid much attention to what other widows did about their rings. Please advise me, Abby. I don't want to look stupid.

MARY SMITH
(NOT MY REAL NAME)

DEAR "MARY SMITH": There is no rule of etiquette about the length of time a widow should wear her wedding rings. Each woman may do whatever is comfortable for her.

Some widows remove their rings when they are interested in dating again — others never remove them.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO G.K. IN HOLDENVILLE, OKLA.: Wisdom does not automatically come with old age. Nothing does — except wrinkles. It's true, some wines improve with age, but only if the grapes were good in the first place.

DEAR READERS: October has traditionally been Down Syndrome Awareness Month, and has been so declared by the U.S. Congress.

Because I have so often heard from parents or grandparents of babies born with various disabilities, I offer the following, which has become a favorite:

WELCOME TO HOLLAND
by Emily Pearl Kingsley

"I am often asked to describe the experience of raising a child with a disability — to try to help people who have not shared that unique experience to understand it, to imagine how it would feel. It's like this ...

"When you're going to have a baby, it's like planning a fabulous vacation trip — to Italy. You buy a bunch of guidebooks and make your wonderful plans. The Coliseum. The Michaelangelo David. The gondolas in Venice. You may learn some handy phrases in Italian. It's all very exciting.

"After months of eager anticipation, the day finally arrives. You pack your bags and off you go. Several hours later, the plane lands. The stewardness comes in and says, 'Welcome to Holland.'

"'Holland?!' you say, 'What do you mean, Holland? I signed up for Italy! I'm supposed to be in Italy. All my life I've dreamed of going to Italy.'

"But there's been a change in the flight plan. They've landed in Holland and there you must stay.

"The important thing is that they haven't taken you to a horrible, disgusting, filthy place, full of pestilence, famine and disease. It's just a different place.

"So you must go out and buy new guidebooks. And you must learn a whole new language. And you will meet a whole new group of people you would never have met.

"It's just a different place. It's slower-paced than Italy, less flashy than Italy. But after you've been there for a while and you catch your breath, you look around, and you begin to notice that Holland has windmills, Holland has tulips, Holland even has Rembrandts.

"But everyone you know is busy coming and going from Italy, and they're all bragging about what a wonderful time they had there. And for the rest of your life, you will say, 'Yes, that's where I was supposed to go. That's what I had planned.'

"And the pain of that will never, ever, ever go away, because the loss of that dream is a very significant loss.

"But if you spend your life mourning the fact that you didn't get to Italy, you may never be free to enjoy the very special, the very lovely things about Holland."

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

I don't know if it's legal or not, but I swear it is the most ridiculous thing I've ever seen.

Well, wait a minute. Let me back up.

I went over to Uncle Elber's the other day. You all know Uncle Elber.

Anyway, I was about a half-mile from Elber's place when this huge ball of weeds comes rolling down Simpson's Bluff. It bounced across the road right in front of the pickup, causing me to go for the brakes.

I swear as it passed by, I heard a long, low moaning sound.

But by the time I slid to a stop on that old dirt road, whatever I'd seen was headed down the draw, out of sight and earshot.

After I caught my breath, I drove on to Elber's, anxious to tell him what I'd seen.

"Crazy Joe Hettermeyer," he said.

"What?"

"Yep, it's Crazy Joe. That's his tumbleweed outfit."

"His tumbleweed outfit?"

"Yep. He come up with this idea to de-skies hisself like a tumbleweed so's he can sneak up real close and grab that Big Blue Jumper been hangin' 'round Slappy Bottoms place," explained Elber.

---

You've probably heard about the Big Blue, yourself. Everybody's been talking about it. Probably the biggest tumbleweed around this area in 15 years, they say.

People have bets as to whether anyone can catch a Jumper that big. It would take some doing. Blue Jumpers are the meanest and most physical of all tumbleweeds.

If that weren't enough, the fall tumbleweed season opens Oct 1. You know what that means. That's right, it's smack in the middle of the mating season.

---

Although Joe's been spotted on numerous occasions, he's always rolling, full tilt. Most of those who've seen him say they've all heard similar sounds, a kind of moaning. Maybelle Bottoms swears the sound she heard was higher pitched and had a definite whoooaaaaaheeellllpppp.

"Well he ain't never gonna' a catch a Big Blue Jumper like that, I can tell ya' for sure," said Smitty Thompson.

And he's right. Some folks are worried that Crazy Joe's yelling will scare off the game and ruin the season.

It's a known fact that tumbleweeds spook at noise. It takes a special talent to call up a tumbleweed, but I've seen Elber do it a hundred times.

The secret is to make the tumbleweed believe it's headed toward a barbed wire fence. There's nothing a tumbleweed likes better. Which naturally explains why you see so many congregated around them.

Elber will talk about it, if you prod him enough.

"Now first, you got to spend time listenin' to the sound the win' makes when it sails across the bob'war," Elber says. "It's got a squeakier sound than the win' movin' past a high line.

"It's the creaks the posts make, the rustle of the paper beatn' against the wire and that strange kinda' tha-whitty whitty whitty sound a sissortail makes when he takes off that really perks a tumbleweed's ears up," Elber said.

"The main thing is to study the land. If you make sounds like a cedar post when there ain't none around, the tumbleweed'll be wise to ya'. One trick is to make sounds like an old pickup truck movin' down a dirt road. Them tumbleweeds figure if there's a road nearby, well, there's sure to be a fence runnin' next to it. But don't make no train sounds. Tumbleweeds are deathly afraid of trains. Fires, 'ya know."

Good luck if you're out tumbleweed hunting next month. Remember to stay within the bag limits. And watch out for Crazy Joe.

25 YEARS AGO

A formal dedication was set for the opening of the new Scurry County Coliseum and auditorium. Lt. Gov. Preston Smith was to be guest speaker.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Er, hello there. You don't know me. My name is Fibber McGee, and I'm Top Dog at the Rafter M Farm. Don't ask me how I came to git my words in this here spot; you wouldn't believe me if I told you.

I'm writing this as a formal protest, a call for help, if you will. My owners, Kent and Deanie Mills, and their pups, Dustin and Jessica, don't pay me no mind. Jist goes to show how much they ignore a critter when he goes to gittin' old. Like I'm an old piece of lawn furniture or somethin'. Oh, they pet me from time to time. Feed me my Alpo, IF they don't fergit. But I'm not fooled.

It all started when they had to go and git that little...that ornery little...I'm sorry, folks. I jist cain't talk about him without callin' him what he really is. Now, it's gonna be offensive to some of you, and I apologize for that, this bein' a family paper and all, but I cain't help it. Fart. There. I said it. That's what he is, and that's what he'll always be.

They named him Bart, you see, after this TV character, Bart Simpson; on account of how he tore down the front screen door first night they had him. And I jist cain't call him by his name, I'm sorry, I jist cain't. Blame it on old age, if you wanna. I'm fifteen in people years now; you figger it out in dog years. Anyways, He'll always be Fart to me.

He's SUPPOSED to be half German Shepherd and half Border Collie. Ain't that a joke. Like I'm half Pekinese and half Great Dane. He's jist a worthless little mutt, is what he is. Looks like a little brown hound dog, with white on his face like a Collie. And one of his eyes, you can see the whites all around it. Weird. Kind of a "Spanky and Our Gang" look. He was about six weeks old when they got him. First thang they did was install him on the front porch. MY front porch. I ask you.

A dog sleeps on the front porch of his owner's house for fifteen long years, protectin' 'em from intruders, and what kinda re-ward do they git? A little fart name of Bart.

I tried to maintain my territory. I got my dignity, ya know but the little devil just drove me nuts. Jumpin' and bouncin' all around, sayin' stuff like, "Hi! Wanna play with me? My name's Bart! I'm six weeks old! I love to play! I love to nip and bite! Wanna play with me? I'm Bart, and I'm six weeks old! Gotta love me! Gotta love me!"

I tried to escape. Dug up my usual hole in a cool place right by the back door, same as always in hot weather. But no. Bart the Fart jist had to cuddle up next to me like I's his mama. No thank you, I told him. Git lost. I growled my most menacing growl, snapped at him — everythang a dog with brains knows to respect.

Like I say — a dog with brains. But not this'un. Nope. Jist hung around me like a dadblamed mosquito, buzzin' around my head 'til I wanted to howl at the moon.

Finally, I jist plumb give up. You oughta see the owners, makin' over him and tryin' to teach him to fetch. Ha! I'll buy tickets to that one.

At first, I pouted for a long time. Laid around like I's gonna die. Wouldn't eat. Wouldn't let 'em pet me. Slunk off, you know, real sad-like. I thought it'd work. I jist knew they'd wise up and git rid of him. They kinda figgered somethin' was up though.

Started lovin' on me and fussin' at him to leave me alone. Shoot, they jist won me over after a spell. What can an old dog do?

Most times now, I hide out in the horse barn. Fart cain't find me there. But now and then, well, I kinda let the little buggar hang out with me. Somebody's gotta teach him the ropes, ya know. Like, waitin' at the top of the hill for the owners when their rig comes up the road. Stayin' out of the way of the county maintainers. When to bark and when not. The other night, long past when the moon come up, he 'bout went nuts when the old sheep, Bobbie Jo, snuck into the front yard and was eatin' the roses. Rousted the whole family. Nipped at her butt 'til she left the yard.

Guess you could say he's got some potential. But that's ALL I'm gonna say.

OUR LANGUAGE

By Jeffrey McQuain

Q. I keep seeing the spelling "ninty" for 90. Is that spelling now considered acceptable?

A. No, the spelling "ninty" is a mistake. Unlike FORTY, which drops a vowel from FOUR before adding the suffix -TY, the spelling NINETY keeps both of the vowels in NINE. Although the E in both NINE and NINETY is silent, that E is needed to indicate that the I should be pronounced as a long vowel (the sound of EYE). You'll be sure to net a spelling prize if you're careful about keeping NET in NINETY.

To the Editor:

Over a six-year period, I worked for Charles Anderson. One of my children attended the junior high while he was principal there. Although we had numerous disagreements, I never doubted that his primary goal was, and still is, the best interests of the children and the school district he serves. He has as much integrity as anyone I've ever known.

As the wife of a school administrator, I feel the controversy surrounding the shortfall at the junior high during the time Mr. Patterson was principal casts a cloud of suspicion over any school employee who has access to money. I also believe that the audit raises many questions which still remain unanswered. In order to be able to put this to rest once and for all, a full investigation by an outside entity must be conducted.

I urge anyone who has any questions about the audit to pick up a copy at the Administration Building, study it carefully, and then determine for yourself if you are satisfied or if you think an investigation is warranted.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor,

A few weeks ago, a wonderful school closed down — Rainbow School Day Care. Our son, Austin, had been going there since he was four months old. We could not have asked for a better day care. The staff was caring and loving, especially Darla Brooks, who took Austin and cared for him as if he were her own. The other ladies were also more than workers, they were our friends and loved our children very much.

Our son was coming home all the time with a new Bible story and Bible song he had been taught by these caring ladies. The same ladies cared for Austin. If he was not feeling good, they would hold and rock him until we arrived. They would even fix him special food whenever he would not eat the lunch they prepared or the lunch he brought from home.

Rainbow School was special to Austin. His friends were there, the boys and girls he had been with since he was four months old.

We will always have special memories of Rainbow School and we wish other children and families could have these memories. But the Trinity United Methodist Church board shut down Rainbow School with only a one-day notice for parents.

We feel the board was wrong in the way it handled the whole situation. The board made some unreasonable demands, causing the ladies to quit a job they loved very much.

So many families depended on Rainbow School that the board should have let the parents voice an opinion in person if a closing was being considered. In essence, it is the parents who should be concerned with the childcare since it is our children whom the workers are caring for. The parents should be allowed to speak to the board concerning closing.

If the school was conforming to state requirements, then the school should be adequate for the board members. But Rainbow School was more than adequate, it taught Christian beliefs, which is important to us. It taught discipline; we wanted to know when our son acted wrong so we could help Rainbow School in that area and we wanted our son to know when he did wrong so he could learn right from wrong. And we wanted him to learn love — as he was taught by all the workers.

Maybe the Rainbow School board members should have gone to some of the activities the children went to, so they could learn of God's love and forgiveness as the children did.

The closing of Rainbow School changed the lives of many children and families and workers, who are now without a job.

Rainbow School will be missed by all who were involved and all who loved the school.

Thank you,
David and Sammie Lyle

Dear Editor:

The autograph reception for Jane Gilmore Rushing held on Sept. 19 in the Dermott School was a most enjoyable occasion. We thank everyone who came to visit with Mrs. Rushing and to purchase copies of her new book, "Starting from Pyron," and reprints of her first novel, "Walnut Grove."

Mrs. Rushing enjoyed visiting with many friends and former students during the day, and was honored that they are interested in her work.

We sold all our supply of "Starting from Pyron" and "Walnut Grove." The Scurry County Museum gift shop will be stocking the books. There are copies of those books as well as Mrs. Rushing's other five novels in the Scurry County Library.

We thank the Snyder Daily News, Snyder Cablevision and KSNY for helping us let everyone know about the autograph party. About 125 visitors signed the guest book in the Dermott School and an equal number visited the Cornelius-Dodson House. A Christmas open house is being planned for both buildings in December and we invite everyone to make plans to attend.

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, I would like to express my sincere appreciation to the countless number of people who helped put together the Scurry County Fair and White Buffalo Days Celebration.

It takes months of planning and many, many hours to prepare an event like this and I wish I could name each and every one of them. I would personally like to thank all the guys who participated in the "Ms. White Buffalo" contest. They were all terrific (and gorgeous). And thanks, too, to everyone who helped me put this event together.

I would like to commend Christie Devers on organizing the chili cookoff and the design and selling of our Dan Seals T-shirts.

And to the chamber, Scurry County Fair Board and Scurry County Coliseum staff and every volunteer who helped bring Dan Seals to Snyder. Hats off to our volunteers.

And an extremely big thanks to Scurry County and the surrounding area for making this three-day event and Dan Seals Concert such a big success.

Tips From Expert Hair Design by Gina Pierce

HAIR PROBLEMS AND THE RIGHT CONDITIONER

It doesn't matter what type of hair you have, what matters is that you have it conditioned regularly to keep it healthy, shiny and manageable. With so many different products on the market today, it can be tough to figure out what is best for your hair. We can solve this problem for you with one appointment! If your hair is dry or damaged from the wind, sun or perms, we may suggest a pre-shampoo conditioner. This is usually hot oil or a heavy cream treatment that is worked into the hair and scalp and left on for 20 minutes to 1 hour, then shampooed out. This treatment fills in cracks and smooths split ends. Instant conditioners are put on towel dried, shampooed hair and left on for about 1 minute and then rinsed out. This type leaves your hair looking full and thicker. Creme rinses soften the hair and are excellent for wiry, coarse hair that does not require extra body. Call Expert Hair Design for an appointment today, 573-0312. If you read our column, we appreciate your comments. Expert Hair Design, 401 37th St.

Bush may have black list for media

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — President Bush is keeping an unofficial blacklist of top network reporters to whom he refuses to talk amid his heated re-election bid, according to a "60 Minutes" reporter.

Lesley Stahl told television and radio executives Thursday that representatives from the three major networks are on the list.

"I am told that it includes Dan Rather, Peter Jennings, Tim Russert, Bryant Gumbel and George Will, two evening news shows, two of the Sunday morning shows and one of the weekly morning shows," Stahl told the 47th annual Radio-Television News Directors Association international convention.

"It's as if he doesn't want to be questioned at all," she said.

But Judy Smith, deputy White House press secretary, denied that Bush is avoiding any reporters.

"There's not a list of reporters that the president will not accept questions from," said Ms. Smith. "The president talks to all reporters. He's had over 200 press conferences."

Rather is the top anchor for CBS News and Jennings holds the same position for ABC News. Russert is NBC bureau chief in Washington, Gumbel is the co-host of NBC's "Today" show, and Will is a syndicated columnist and panelist on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley."

CBS' "60 Minutes" is one of television's most popular news programs. Ms. Stahl did not reveal her source for the list, but it included no reporters from Cable News Network.

Will, a conservative columnist, once referred to Bush as a "lapdog" and even called for Bush to drop out of the race prior to the Republican National Convention so the GOP could nominate someone else.

During Bush's last presidential campaign, a live interview with Rather escalated into heated verbal sparring between the two when the anchorman continued to raise questions concerning the Iran-Contra scandal.

"You don't expect that kind of thing (avoiding reporters) in the heat of a campaign," Ms. Stahl said Thursday. "I think these guys (politicians) have a responsibility to face the public through the press and answer questions."

Women get less SS benefits than men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security and private pension plans penalize women for living longer than men, earning less money and taking time off from work to care for their families, a congressional report says.

The report, released Thursday by a House Aging subcommittee, said that on average, women receive 70 percent of the Social Security benefits of men. And the survivor of a two-earner couple — usually the widow — almost always gets a lower Social Security benefit than a one-earner couple with the same total earnings.

In addition, the report said, widows under age 60 are more likely to begin collecting spousal benefits early, because of outdated job skills and age discrimination. This decreases their lifetime benefits by as much as 30 percent, it said.

"Women disproportionally fall into virtually every pitfall that can reduce one's ability to secure an adequate retirement income," said Rep. Sherwood Boehlert of New York, senior Republican on the retirement income and employment subcommittee.

"It isn't because the law is discriminatory or women are blindly walking into these retirement traps, but rather that family decisions and work participation by women often result in reduced Social Security benefits and significantly lower private pension coverage," Boehlert said.

The report found that while the poverty rate for older men will probably decline over the next three decades, almost half of the elderly women living alone by 2020 will have incomes that are less than $9,500 in today's dollars — putting them in the study's "poor" or "near-poor" categories.

For a single person 65 and over, the 1990 poverty threshold was $6,268 per year. This was lower than the level used for the rest of the population "based on the faulty premise that persons aged 65 and over need less nutrition and eat less than the general population," the report said.

In 1990, 15.4 percent of women 65 and older lived in poverty, compared with 7.6 percent of men in the same age group.

Currently, almost three-quarters of elderly people living below poverty level are women, the study found. Almost four times as many widows live in poverty as do married women of the same age. And more than half the widows who are poor were not poor before their husbands died.

In the baby boom generation, seven out of 10 women are expected to outlive their husbands, many for 15 to 20 years, according to the study.

"What kind of message does our retirement system send (to women) — marry rich and stay married for as long as possible," Boehlert said.

Senior Center activities listed

Senior citizens who have birthdays in September are invited to celebrate the occasion at a birthday party starting at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Senior Center. McDonald's provides refreshments for the party.

Monday's Game Day in the center will feature dominoes, with play starting at 9:30 a.m. Other games can also be arranged.

On Tuesday and Thursday mornings, the senior citizens swimnastics group will meet at the Western Texas College swimming pool. Those participating are reminded that they are not to enter the pool before the assigned starting time and are to be ready to leave the pool when the session ends.

The Kitchen Band will be rehearsing in the center at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday. The Sunshine Choir will rehearse at 10 a.m. Friday.

The beginning clogging class for senior citizens will meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the dining room. The daily exercise class meets at 11 a.m. and an aerobics class for women meets at 3 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Senior citizens will be voting for a new representative to the center's advisory council Oct. 13-15. This person will represent the center and will be replacing the late Buster Starnes. Mr. Starnes and outgoing members of the council will be recognized for their service at the council's October meeting.

Information about all Senior Center activities can be obtained by calling the office at 573-4035 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

2 attend John Deere meeting

James O. Jones, general manager, and Kevin Jones, service manager, with Key Brothers Implement Co., Inc. recently attended a product introduction and training meeting on the new John Deere 6000 and 7000 series tractors in Waterloo, Iowa.

The two-day meeting included classes on the toally new 66-to-145 hp tractors and field demonstrations. "Stick time" was provided so each participant could operate the tractors and experience firsthand many of the new features discussed in the class.

Training sessions also covered some new seeding and tillage equipment, and a new self-propelled sprayer.

Approximately 4,500 dealers and dealer sales personnel participated in the two-day training sessions in Waterloo.

Volunteers finish double wedding ring quilt

Hermleigh Methodists gear up for annual Fall Festival

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Handmade quilts have been a special feature of Hermleigh United Methodist Church's annual Fall Festival since its inception in 1985. A special double wedding ring quilt has been completed in time for this year's festival which begins at 8 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 3, at Hermleigh Community Center.

Several church members quilt and/or create other craft or handmade items for the annual fundraiser, but Ilene Haynes, Marie Thomas and Mary Eischeid do the bulk of the work for the full-size quilts.

Ilene and Mary have been quilting since they were young girls, but Marie started about a 1/2 ago when church members talked her into it. She said, "they wouldn't take no for an answer," and she has been quilting ever since.

This year's special quilt with the double wedding ring design dates back to the 1920s. When Billy Haynes, Ilene's son and a member of the church, discovered the time-worn piece he brought it to the church quilters and asked them if they could quilt it in time for the festival.

Even though they just had a small piece to begin with, they said they "dropped everything" in August and with "prayers and lots of hours of work" finished it just in time.

The church quilters have a motto. They never let anything go to waste. Every scrap of material they acquire is used in some way either for quilts or other items. For instance, a Santa Claus doll has already been constructed from scrap quilting material.

Patterns for quilts usually come from a variety of books and magazines which they keep in their workroom at the church.

Church workers also make baby quilts, lap quilts, smaller throw quilts, quilt jackets, coats and stuffed animals from scraps which are collected throughout the year.

Ilene said her son, who likes to collect antiques, is very good at finding old quilts.

Throughout the years, Marie said a close bond has developed among the quilters who usually work on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

They also make quilts for the public and donate the proceeds to the church.

"We really enjoy being together because it is a lot more fun," she said.

Ilene said quilting seems to be "coming back into style" and she could not be happier. She grew up during the era when quilts were needed for warmth.

Mary was reared at Dunn. She and her husband, Ike, have two grown children and a grandson.

Marie moved to Hermleigh from Snyder 14 years ago. She and her husband, Jim, live on a farm. They have one son, Jimmy, who farms in Hermleigh.

Ilene moved to Hermleigh from Coleman County where she was born. Her husband died in 1980. She has three other grown children besides Billy and 11 grandchildren. For each, she made a quilt as a special high school graduation gift.

Festival activities will conclude at 3 p.m. on Oct. 3.

Arts and crafts including quilts, wreaths, old-fashioned Santa Clauses, other Christmas items, quilt jackets, woodwork and other items will be for sale. Also planned is a big flea market under a tent featuring everything from antiques to new and used items.

A Farmer's Market will contain canned goods from the garden and produce. Also, a variety of home baked foods such as cakes, pies and other baked goods will also be for sale.

Throughout the day, drawings will be held for door prizes such as gift certificates and donations from local merchants including tools, coffee maker, glass ware, art work and needle point.

A barbecue lunch will be served beginning at 11 a.m. and will consist of brisket and sausage with all the trimmings. The Richburg Band will be playing during lunch and throughout the afternoon. During the noon meal, antiques and other collectibles will be auctioned off.

A Chinese auction — a new event — will be held throughout the day for donated artwork.

A special drawing will be held at 3 p.m. Prizes include a VCR, framed Norman Rockwell print and handmade quilt, featuring an antique double wedding ring pattern.

Everyone is invited to attend the festival. All proceeds will benefit the church.

American military said over cautious

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The U.S. military airlift of food to starving people in Somalia, begun a month ago with great fanfare, is proving disappointing to some international aid officials.

They have accused the Americans of being overcautious about flying to unstable areas, unnecessarily slowing the delivery of vital food, medicine and other supplies.

Some members of Congress also have called for a more active U.S. military role in Somalia, where more than 100,000 people already have died from war and starvation.

Two million more are critically at risk, and aid officials say up to 500,000 people could die by Christmas unless food and medical aid gets to them first.

Many private aid workers are angry and frustrated with the pace of the relief effort, which has been bedeviled by marauding local gunmen and transportation delays. Exhausted by the sight of children, mothers and the elderly dying every day, they have lashed out in many directions, including at each other — and recently at the U.S. airlift.

Such criticism, however, draws a sharp response from Washington.

"This airlift has saved lives and has moved a lot of food that would otherwise have not been moved," James Kunder, the head of the U.S. Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance, said Thursday in Washington.

"It's difficult enough to work in these utterly chaotic conditions. For people who are supposed to be relief professionals to take potshots doesn't save any Somali lives and just makes this operation all the more difficult."

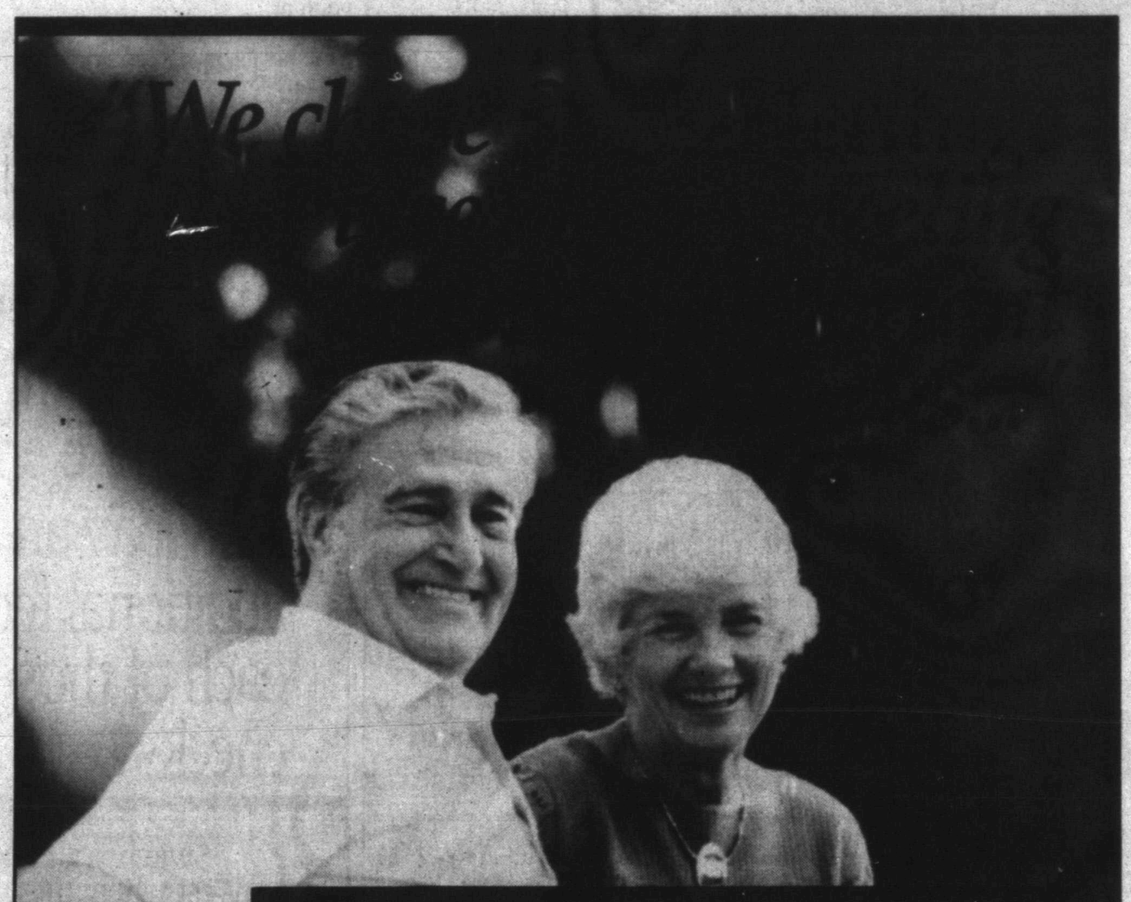

The real villains in Somalia, he said, are "the thugs on the ground" who threaten relief shipments.

U.S. aircraft are an important part of the relief effort. But criticism of the airlift grew after the Americans temporarily suspended flights to the western town of Belet Huen on Friday when one of their C-130 Hercules cargo planes was struck by a stray bullet.

"The least little thing and they stop," said Bob Koepp, whose Lutheran World Federation has been flying food to both Somalia and the besieged southern Sudan city of Juba in chartered C-130s.

"When they got shot at, I think that scared them half to death," said Koepp, a veteran aid worker whose planes have landed at Juba under threat of shellfire by surrounding rebels.

Leaders meet to discuss plight of black kids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violent life and early death are harsh realities for many black children and a number of government and community leaders want public policy changes to break the cycle.

"We are observing a total generation self-destruct. We are fooling ourselves if we think we know why," said John Lucas, a former National Basketball Association star whose career was cut short by a cocaine habit. Now rehabilitated, he runs a drug treatment program in Houston.

"Having gone from fame to shame and back again, I ask myself, 'What did I have that worked that maybe Friday's youth is lacking?'" Lucas said. "There is no real solution to the problem."

State officials, members of Congress and community leaders scheduled two forums in Washington Friday to discuss new ways to improve the quality of life for young blacks, particularly urban youth caught in a trap of poverty, illness, drug abuse and murder.

In a hearing before the House Select Committee on Narcotics, Jesse Jackson suggested that black Americans put more emphasis on parenting skills and solidifying the family unit. "Mass media has more impact on the minds of our children than home, church and family combined," Jackson said. "It sends devastating signals."

Also testifying was actor Robert Guillaume, who agreed with Jackson's assessment.

"We are going to have to take more seriously the role of parent," Guillaume said. "We are going to have to discipline with love. Our children, I believe, suffer from a profound lack of self-esteem and it has been proven that when you care nothing for yourself, you care even less for someone else."

Rep. Mike Espy, D-Miss., co-chairman of the National Consortium for African-American Children, convened a hearing on the high rate of infant mortality. Espy linked the death rate to a lack of input from people affected by it.

"Our goal is not to lay blame, but to create opportunity for African-American leadership to participate more actively," said Espy. The consortium is an umbrella group of 20 organizations meeting to discuss the infant mortality rate among blacks.

Gov. Lawton Chiles of Florida, the other co-chairman, said part of the problem was a lack of black input into public policy decisions.

"The plight of African-American children is worsened each time policies are made that do not adequately address their unique needs," he said.

According to a June study by the National Center for Health Statistics, black babies are almost twice as likely as whites to die in their first year of life, even among college-educated parents. That's 10 of every 1,000 black infants, compared with five of every 1,000 white infants.

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., the chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics, said he wants to address black youths' disproportionate involvement with violent crime.

The FBI reported last month that 1,429 of every 100,000 black youths were arrested for violent crime in 1991, a rate five times that for white youths.

Quitting was Guerrero's only choice

AUSTIN (AP) — Choking back tears, Lena Guerrero made the only move she had left to try to salvage her rapidly sinking campaign.

She quit the Railroad Commission.

She apologized to the governor who gave her the job.

She apologized to voters she hopes give her the job again.

She said she wants to make a fresh start.

"I come before you to offer my apologies," she said Thursday. "I have misled you and I am sorry."

With her family rallied at her side and hundreds of supporters gathered before her, Ms. Guerrero finally acknowledged that she wasn't truthful in claiming for 12 years to be a University of Texas graduate.

"I have been in a hurry all my life. In my haste, I was reckless," she said. "I know that I have no one else to blame. I am angry at myself. I am embarrassed. And I am terribly sorry."

It was quite a performance from a candidate for statewide office just six weeks before an election.

But whether the dramatic mea culpa can reignite the once-shooting Democratic star and carry her to victory on Nov. 3 remains to be seen.

While she is off the Railroad Commission, she remains on the ballot and vows to campaign as hard as she can for the post she just left.

It's a confusing state of affairs.

On the negative side, Ms. Guerrero now goes before voters acknowledging that she did something so bad, it forced her resignation from the panel that regulates the oil and gas industry.

But despite that, she now will tell the voters, she wants the job a second time.

"I think the issue is still going to be there. She's still got to cope with it," said George Christian, a Democratic political analyst.

On the positive side, the resignation takes ammunition away from her opponent.

Republican candidate Barry Williamson has been demanding her resignation since Sept. 11, when Ms. Guerrero first said she was stunned to learn she never received a diploma. Today, the resignation issue is gone.

"It takes the incumbency issue out of the race," Christian said. "It might take the heat off a little."

The resignation also helps deflect any heat that Gov. Ann Richards may have started to feel.

FCC to investigate television station

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A published report says a federal agency will investigate whether a San Antonio television station violated rules on political candidates after a congressional hopeful and his wife admitted using station equipment in a campaign.

Henry Bonilla used KENS-TV camera equipment to produce a campaign ad and that his wife used station computers to keep track of campaign contributions, The San Antonio Light reported in Friday's editions.

The GOP candidate is on leave from his job as a KENS producer; his wife Deborah Knapp Bonilla is one of the station's news anchors.

Bonilla is challenging Democratic incumbent Rep. Albert Bustamante in the 23rd Congressional District. Bustamante said he was considering suing the station, which has the highest rated newscast in the San Antonio market.

"The station has plotted against me; it has targeted my character and reputation," said Bustamante.

Station news director Bob Rogers contends that KENS has been fair in its coverage of the race.

The newspaper also said work done on the campaign by a station photographer and the computer use have not been listed as "in-kind" contributions on federal election reports. Campaign officials said they would be listed on future reports.

Bonilla's campaign manager Frank Guerra, who is also a KENS reporter on leave to work on the campaign, told the Light the station would be reimbursed $500 for use of its camera equipment.

Holiday overseas mail deadlines announced

International and military mailing deadlines to ensure delivery of airmail packages and greetings by Christmas have been announced by the Snyder Post Office. The chart below shows mailing deadlines by destination and service option.

Parcels destined for military personnel and families can be sent by air most economically by Parcel Airlift Mail (PAL) and Space Available Mail (SAM).

Packages weighing up to 30 pounds and measuring 60 inches in combined length and girth may be sent to military addresses by PAL. These packages are airlifted domestically to a U.S. gateway facility, then sent by air on a space available basis to an APO (Army or Air Force Post Office) or an FPO (Fleet Post Office) for delivery to the addressee. The mailer pays only the regular airmail postage of 30 cents for parcels weighing up to 2 pounds, 60 cents for 2-3-pound parcels, 90 cents for 3-to-4 pounds, and $1.20 for those weighing 4-to-30 pounds.

SAM may be used for mailing parcels of up to 15 pounds and 60 inches in combined length and girth to military addresses at regular parcel post rates. SAM mail is transported domestically to gateway facilities by surface vehicle, then flow to its destination abroad on a space available basis.

Deadlines by destination and service option are shown in the chart below.

Mailers in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Hawaii, Alaska, and the Trust Territories should ensure that Christmas mail en route to other countries is available in the continental United States by the dates below for dispatch to destination addresses.
