RADIO THIEF GETS 150 SETS

Gentleman Burglar Shoots 3 Policemen; 150 Wait For Him

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP) Armed with the first description they have had of the "gentleman radio burglar," one hundred and fifty police tonight swarmed the Woodhaven section of Queens awaiting the reappearance of the man, who during the last seven weeks has shot three policemen and stolen 150 radio sets.

The description was furnished by Patrolman Donnelly, one of the robbers' latest victims who turned his flashlight on the man last night just before the burglar shot him.

Last night, he slipped out of a net of five policemen by pretending to Patrolman Donnelly that he was a resident until he was near enough to shoot the patrolman. He then fooled Patrolman Kenny by pretending to be a fellow officer. He shot Kenny, injuring him so badly that he may die. Donnelly will recover.

Attorney-General's Campaign One of Hate, He Says

DALLAS, March 25.—(AP)—Former Governor James E. Ferguson, who is in Dallas on a political mission, declared today that he expects to make at least 100 speeches on behalf of the gubernatorial candidacy of Miriam A. Ferguson, his wife. The opening speech will be delivered in about 30 days, he intimated, although no definite date has been set for it.

The former governor held a series of conferences here today, on his wife's candidacy.

"The issues of the campaign, as we see them," Mr. Ferguson said, "as they relate to the Moody candidacy, are youthful ambition versus ability and experience in the governor's office; not Ferguson and anti-Ferguson as Mr. Moody said in his announcement. On one side will be a clear statement of the truth; on the other side a mission of hate. That is the real mission of the Moody campaign. If any man doubts it, let him read the list of names of those attending the Moody meeting recently in Dallas. A great majority of those who attended the meeting are mad because they didn't get the jobs they wanted."

Questioned with regard to the talk of a special session of the legislature Mr. Ferguson said he did not know whether it would be called, nor did he care very much about it, he added. A statement will be issued by him within a few days, he said, in which the whole matter of road contracts in Texas will be discussed.

"For the first time in Texas politics," he said, "a candidate for governor, Moody, jumped on a private citizen, myself, in his announcement for office. I feel that the people are due the facts and I will give them in my forthcoming statement."

World's Greatest Detective Story Lies at Bottom Of Each Well, Geologists Say

Origin of Spouting Gold Intrigues Best Minds Of World, While Sleuths Search For Golden Secrets

DALLAS, March 25.—(AP)—The world's greatest detective story is still unsolved, members of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists admitted at their eleventh annual convention opening here today. The mystery of the origin of oil is as deep as ever and at the bottom of every oil well, which may be spouting out untold wealth, lies the baffling puzzle of how the oil was formed and where it came from.

This mystery has intrigued the best minds of the world and today some of the best scientific sleuths are working on it, because back of its solution may lie still a more golden secret—the secret of synthetic oil, of oil made by man rather than by nature.

Agree on One Point.

The first scientific session of the convention today was devoted to papers on this subject. The speakers agreed on only one point, that oil is of organic origin, that is, that it was formed by the dead bodies of formerly living creatures or plants, but beyond this the agreement ends, the scientists stated.

"We are hunters in pursuit of game whose habits we understand imperfectly," said W. E. Wrather, consulting geologist of Dallas, in outlining the theme of the meeting. "We have perhaps discovered the favorite type of hiding place of our quarry but the familiar haunts are rapidly being hunted out and if we are to succeed in the future it is of vital importance that we acquire a more intimate acquaintance with the object of our efforts. Hence a discussion of the origin of oil will remain a timely subject for sometime to come.

Uncertainty.

"We are unable to state with certainty the types of organic life, whether plant of animal, which contributed the hydrocarbons from which any particular type of oil was evolved. We are in doubt whether it originated in its liquid form or passed through its primary stages as solid."

All of the equipment of science has been marshalled to fferret out a solution of this problem. The microscope has been borrowed from medicine and chemistry, electricity has been commandeered, precious metals have been used and the palentologist, the man who studies the life of geological ages, had even brought to bear on the mystery the germ life of dead ages. Dr. David White, formerly of the U. S. Geological Survey now head of the National Research council told of work with the mirco-furnace by which bits of matters are studied under the microscope while undergoing intense heat. It is hoped by this study to ascertain at what temperature rocks, such as oil-shale, will change their forms to discover whether heat acting on rocks under pressure has formed the oil.

TEXAS RIVERS AT FLOOD STAGE

Sabine Goes Out of Banks And Trinity Slowly Rising

HOUSTON, March 25.—(AP)—The Sabine river, which has been steadily rising for three days, went out of its banks at Logansport today, L. H Dalngerfield, weather forecaster here said. Flood stage is 25 feet. Latest measurements were 28.5 feet. No damage has been reported, due to warnings having been out in time for the people to be prepared.

The Trinity is expected to reach flood stage of 25 feet at Liberty within the next 48 to 56 hours, he said, with the river steadily rising from Longlake to Liberty.

A slight to moderate rise is indicated in the Brazos river from Waco to Valley Junction, in the Neches at ockland, and in the Sabine as far down as Bon Wier.

Brookhart Facing Senate Seat Loss

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—Read out of the republican party councils last year by his senatorial colleagues, Smith W. Brookheart, republican insurgent from Iowa is faced now with a last ditch battle to save himself from being put out of the senate.

His cause received a blow today when the senate elections committee voted 10 to one to unseat him in favor of his democratic opponent, Daniel F. Steck, who contested his election. This action of the committee followed a unanimous report of a sub-committee which held that Steck received a plurality of the votes and should be seated.

NOMINATION UP

Woodstock's Name Will Be Acted On By Senate Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP) The more than year-old controversy between President Coolidge and the senate as to whether Thomas F. Woodlock of New York is to have a permanent place on the interstate commerce commission will be settled tomorrow. The senate will meet at noon behind closed doors for a second time this session under an agreement to vote at 5 p. m. Opponents of Mr. Woodlock concede that, despite the adverse report from the interstate commerce committee his nomination will be confirmed.

Mr. Woodlock's name was first presented to the senate at the last regular session. Opposition of democrats seeking representation for the south prevented action.

BANDITS ESCAPE.

WELLINGTON, Kan., March 25.—(AP)—Two bandits early today blasted a hole in the vault of the Mayfield State bank at Mayfield, eight miles west of here, and escaped with about $100 in nickels and pennies amid an exchange of shots with town's men. Mrs. Dora Oglesby, telephone operator, heard noises in the bank about 5 o'clock and summoned several men who armed themselves and ambushed near the building. When the bandits found they were surrounded they exchanged shots with the hurriedly formed posse, ran to a motor car at the outskirts of the town and escaped.

OBSTRUCTIONS TO PLANS ARE SURMOUNTED

Hal Moseley Informs Judge Sartain of Texas Cooperation

BE CLEARED MONDAY

Objection By Attorney General Overcome in Revision Of Scheme

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, March 25.—The last remaining obstacles to construction of the free bridge across Red river at Burkburnett, will be cleared away by action of the Texas highway commission Monday, it was announced here Thursday by Hal Mosley, chairman of the commission.

This action will be based on new proposals submitted to the board Thursday morning by County Judge B. D. Sartin and Attorney A. H. Britain of Wichita Falls, he said. No details of what the plan is to overcome the difficulties recently encountered were made public, but Mr. Mosley gave assurance all obstructions to the work will be put out of the way.

Officials working on the bridge matter have remained silent regarding the changes they have made in the plans for acquiring control of the existing toll bridge of the Burkburnett Bridge company and going ahead with construction work. It is known, however, that revisions were made calculated to overcome objections raised by the attorney general's department to the contract between the county and the toll bridge company.

Judge Sartin and Judge Britain left Wichita Falls Wednesday for Austin for the purpose of submitting these new propositions before the highway commission, and their work now is apparently crowned with success.

This final step, what ever it may be, will be the culmination of a long and stubborn fight on the part of Wichita county, Wichita Falls, Burkburnett and some Oklahoma aides. The matter of a free bridge across Red river near Burkburnett has been the subject of discussion and work for several years, but definite action has encountered numerous obstacles.

Fight Is Lengthened.

Injunction proceedings filed by owners of toll bridges over the river have served to hold up state aid on the financial end; contracts have been held invalid and there have been numerous other unforeseen difficulties. These, it now seems, have been overcome.

The continued battle for the bridge has been led by County Judge B. D. Sartin, who has been joined by the full commissioners court of the county and who has also received the consistent support of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce. Officials of that organization have contributed largely of their time and funds in the bridge fight, while Judge Britain as chief legal advisor on the matter, has rendered a vast amount of service. The Burkburnett chamber of commerce also has taken an active part in the matter.

HOLD MEXICANS IN NEGRO DEATH

Four Matamoros Policeman Charged With Slaying U. S. Citizen

BROWNSVILLE, March 25.—(AP)—Four Matamoras policemen are reported to have been incarcerated following the death of a powerful negro, Preston McNealy, as the result of blows inflicted with the barrel end of pistols in the hands of gendarmes Monday, March 15.

The blows are alleged to have been inflicted when the negro was captured after his third escape from the Matamoras City jail. Two of the officers were held for the infliction of wounds and the other two for allowing McNealy's escape from the jail.

McNealy is reported to have escaped on two previous occasions and to have been returned each time. His great strength made him feared by the police. He is said to have climbed the walls and escaped as far as the Old Matamoras cemetery before being captured by policemen. The wounds are reported to have been inflicted when the negro offered resistence after first signifying his intention of yielding peacefully. The prisoners' home was given as Merryville.

Colorado Coeds Admit They Like Petting Parties

Read Elinor Glyn With Avarice, Swear Some; Like Love

DENVER, March 25.—(AP)—Coincident with a protest meeting of 300 students of the University of Denver today over the dismissal of two faculty members as the result of what students declare was a survey of moral conditions which showed "petting parties" flourishing near the campus, the university paper summarizes the answer to a questionnaire from 200 women students stating that the co-eds "swear occasionally, have been kissed, do not believe in platonic love and read Elinor Glyn with avarice."

Only nine of the co-eds questioned admitted they still remain unkissed and only two did not know how to dance, the paper said.

The survey which students declare resulted in the dismissal of Dr. Grove S. Dow, sociology instructor and Dr. Carrol Hildebrand, professor of philosophy was made by a sciology class recently and concluded that a number of road houses were encouraging drinking by the students "and petting parties," that dance halls led to morally degrading parties and that books with a sex appeal were by far the most popular at the public library.

French War Terms To Be Made Hard

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP) France will never be given terms as liberal as those accorded to Italy in funding her war debt to the United States, Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, told the senate today in opening debate on the Italian settlement plan.

His statement was interpolated in the midst of the reading of a prepared address urging senate ratification of the settlement and when he had concluded Senator Johnson, republican, California, arose to attack the agreement as unfair to American tax payers.

In making his reference to the French debt, Senator Smoot said he had heard a number of senators say that whatever settlement was made with Italy would be made with France. This, he said, was far from the mark.

$30,000 FUNDS TIED UP WHILE APPEAL PENDS

Special Judge Thornton Holds Assessment Not Granted By Charter

IS A NOVEL CASE

None Others Like It To Be Found in Texas Civil Statutes

The city's sewer tax ordinance levying an annual assessment of from $6 to $100 for maintenance of the sewer system was declared illegal and without proper authority from the city charter by Special Judge Earnest Thornton, acting in the suit of T. B. Landers vs. the City of Wichita Falls late Thursday. Judge Thornton held that the ordinance was void and restrained the city from further enforcement. Notice of appeal was filed immediately but counsel for the city, and it was indicated that the appelate body would be asked to move the case to the head of its docket, so as to clear as soon as possible litigation growing out of Thursday's decision.

$30,000 in Jeopardy.

The ruling of Judge Thornton voiding the ordinance and restraining the city from collection of the sewer maintenance fee at once throws some $30,000 annual tax collections into jeopardy. Of approximately $30,000 due under the ordinance this last year, something more than $29,000 has been collected to date. The amount, it is understood, will be held in escrow by the city pending outcome of its appeal. Total collections of the city by reason of the ordinance during the five years in which it has been in force will approximate $150,000, it is stated.

The suit of T. B. Landers, asking an injunction restraining enforcement of the ordinance by the city was filed more than a month ago following disconnection of the sewer at his residence on Truehart avenue for nonpayment of the maintenance tax, which in his case amounted to $6 a year for five years, or $30.

District judges here disqualified themselves from trial of the suit on grounds they were tax payers and therefore had no right to pass on the case. Earnest Thornton of Archer city was named special judge for the occasion.

Testimony Allowed.

In hearing the case Thursday testimony was allowed from W. E. McBroom, city clerk; Julian Montgomery, former city engineer; F. M. Rugeley, city engineer; T. B. Landers, plaintiff, and others. Testimony however was purely to establish the facts of the case, the brunt of the hearing falling on argument of counsel for and against the ordinance. It was the contention of W. E. George, city attorney, and Edgar Mann, former city attorney, that there was no other provision for such maintenance as was necessary for the city's sewer system than that provided by the ordinance. Harvey Harris and Thelbert Martin, acting for the plaintiff, contended that the city was without authority from its charter for the passage of an ordinance levying such a tax.

This latter view was upheld at the conclusion of argument when Judge Thornton stated simply that there was no authority for the ordinance and that it was necessary for him to hold it void.

The case is believed by local attorneys to be novel in every way, no precedent having been found in a search of the records of either Texas or other states for a decision.

MABEL NORMAND IS EXONERATED

Movie Actress Absolved From Blame in Director's Death

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP)—The William Desmond Taylor murder case is gathering an ever-increasing mass of rumors, reports and new mysteries as the investigation moves across the country.

Los Angeles officials, here on their way home from an eastern tour of inquiry, have spent most of their time denying the mounting flood of rumors, confining their official utterances to unadorned statements that "satisfactory progress" was being made in unraveling the mystery.

But while Asa Keyes, the district attorney of Los Angeles county, and Harold Davis, his assistant, were discounting stories of stolen documents, secret conferences with Chicago officials and the shadowing of Chicagoans, a definite statement of new progress came from Los Angeles.

Valuable new information was supplied there by two men who heretofore had not been mentioned in connection with the slaying. Buron Fitts, chief deputy district attorney, who made the announcement, declined to divulge the names of the men, but described one as a prominent real estate operator and the other as a well known film actor. Their questioning resulted fro minformation gathered in the east by Mr. Keyes.

Keyes also directed Fitts to issue the statement that Mabel Normand, who previously had been questioned, had "long since been completely exonerated of any connection with the matter," and that queries he planned to ask her upon his return to Los Angeles were "only of minor importance and of a general nature."

SENATE PROBE COST IS AIRED

Congress Wants to Know How Much Spent in Trial Of Wheeler

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP) The department of justice was asked today to render an accounting to the senate on the amount of money spent in the prosecution of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana.

By a vote of 61 to 13 the senate adopted today a resolution by Senator Wheeler's calleague, Senator Walsh, amended by Senator King, democrat, Utah, so as to include a request for the number of persons engaged in the prosecution and the preceding investigation and the salary paid to each.

The resolution is broad enough to cover both the prosecution in Montana where Senator Wheeler was acquitted by a jury and in the District of Columbia where an indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the government was quashed.

In the Montana case, Senator Wheeler, who prosecuted the senate investigation of the administration of the department of justice under Harry M. Daugherty was charged with accepting a fee to represent Montana oil interests before the interior department.

Fort Worth Man Given 40 Lashes By Masked Band

FORT WORTH, March 25.—(AP) D. H. Haley, 19, was kidnaped from his home here early tonight by five men in an automobile, taken to the edge of town and given forty lashes with a strap. He told police he recognized none of the men.

Four of the men, the youth said, gave him ten lashes each. After whipping him they set him on the ground and told him to keep his back to the automobile until it was gone, he reported. He then walked home, arriving there after an absence of two hours. He was badly lacerated.

Haley was married secretly last summer to a young girl, but the couple did not live together, his relatives stated tonight. Last week the girl died in giving birth to a child. Haley's mother told the police. Haley did not know his wife was to become a mother until shortly before she became ill, after which he was at her bedside frequently and attended her funeral when she died, police were told.

Farm Relief Bill To Floor of House As Bebate Warms

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP) Farm relief discussion overflowed today from the house agriculture committee to the floor of the house where Representative Greenwood, democrat, Indiana, asserted that "this administration is not going to give us any farm relief."

"These reformers from the corn belt," he said, "might as well be honest, face the facts and realize that the tariff must be lowered before they can compete with industry."

With completion of his testimony the delegation representing middle-western and national farm organizations announced that it would put on only two or three more witnesses. Chairman Haugen indicated, however, that a number of witnesses would be heard in opposition to the measure. He also reminded the committee that there were more than a dozen other relief bills pending all widely divergent, on which hearings had been asked.

Fugitive Sought In Robbery Back In Wichita Falls

Boone Brown, arrested in Panhandle City recently in connection with the robbery of the Evans home at 1610 Tenth street, last December, was returned to Wichita Falls Thursday by Deputy Sheriff Ballard. Birginia Harlin, also wanted and charged in connection with the burglary, and arrested the first of the week in Olney, is also in the county jail now. The third member of the band responsible, it is believed for the affair, is on trial at Graham for car theft, and will probably be returned here in a week or so.

Alaska a Country Of Wonders, Mrs. O'Neal Tells Forum Meeting

Giving a realistic description of the geographic location, the resources and the habits of the people, Mrs. Ben G. O'Neal entertained the literary department of the Forum at the meeting Thursday afternoon with a talk on her trip four years ago to Alaska.

"Alaska is today America's great frontier, and since the world war which cut off travel to Europe for several years, it has strained the resources of this primitive country to take care of the tourists who visit it," the speaker said.

"To the people of the northwest, Alaska is about what Colorado is to Texas," and great numbers from this section tour the great silent north country with it's huge mountains and the greatest glaciers in the world."

Mrs. O'Neal described Alaska as being marvelously beautiful, especially the northern lights, the aurora borealis, which is said to appear there more commonly in the month of December. Food she said was extremely high, the people not recognizing coins less than a quarter. Vegetables are scarce and high also poultry and eggs, on account of the long cold winters and the long days of darkness.

Speaks on Salmon.

The salmon industry also that of fox raising is growing and the former, Mrs. O'Neal says, has reached large proportions. The product being shipped to all corners of the world.

The speaker gave an entertaining portrayal of the people she and Mr. O'Neal met on their trip, telling of a wedding the tourists witnessed where the ceremony was read in a log Catholic church by the priest, and the wedding march played on the organ by an Episcopal rector from Milwaukee, one of the tourists.

The gold rush in the year of 1897 was also touched on and the natives still display evidence of it in the necklaces and bracelets worn by the wives and daughters, made of gold nuggets, Mrs. O'Neal said.

Uses Map.

A map was pinned on a screen and the speaker ponited out several interesting routes to this north country that are popular with tourists. Kodak pictures were also passed among the audience taken of places and feature of interest, visited by the party, and these added to the entertaining and instructive talk.

Following Mrs. O'Neal's talk, she led a discussion on Alaska, and those in the audience who have visited there were asked to add anything of interest to what had been told.

Mrs. J. H. Massie, Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. T. W. Roberts all of whom had made the trip last summer, gave short talks, bringing out many interesting features.

These were made by Mesdames W. A. McCarty, R. A. Walker and O. W. Wilson. Mrs. O. T. Alles and Mrs. Wayne Somerville gave a clever pantomime on "Wash Day" with hand-painted handkerchiefs hanging on the line which were presented as favors.

An interesting program was opened by Mrs. J. H. Allison, chairman of the program committee when she talked on "The Worth of Our Program." In her address she stressed the need of substantiality. ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

March 26, 1925.

Frank Collier found guilty of manslaughter and assessed penalty of three years in penitentiary.

DEATH OF A NOTABLE TEXAN

A NOTABLE woman was called away in the county of Kaufman a few days since. She had a long line of ancestors. She inherited large wealth. She was carefully reared and educated. She was a leader of the sisterhood in their battles for the ballot. Mrs. Joseph D. Mahoney of Dallas had a list of acquaintances almost nation-wide. Her ancestors came to America in colonial days. Her people fought for the independent Texas, and the woman in the days of her grandmother, moulded the bullets for the riflemen of General Sam Houston. Her father, the late Major B. M. Borren, was a distinguished officer in the Confederate army in his youth.

Mrs. Mahoney was a native of Texas. Her father for many years was a leading citizen of Dallas. She made a tour of the world before she became the wife of Joseph D. Mahoney, then and now a member of the Chicago bar, and a noted democratic politician. A son was born of the union, Joseph D. Jr., and then the parents separated but were never divorced. Mrs. Mahoney was prominent in the social life of Texas. She was prominent in all welfare movements. She was prominent in democratic politics.

In the city of San Francisco in 1920 she was named as a member of the committee to notify James M. Cox of his nomination, the first woman ever named on a notification committee by a political convention. Her husband sat in the convention as a delegate from the state of Illinois. Three years later she was named as national committeewoman by the state executive committee of the party. She sent a check of a thousand dollars to the national committee to aid in defraying the expenses of James M. Cox in the disasterous campaign of 1920.

Long before women had the ballot Monia Boren Mahoney was one of the leaders of the movement in Texas. She was one of the large contributors to the campaign fund of the cause. She backed her political views and candidates with an open purse. She belonged to all the patriotic organizations. From the colonial dances of America to the Daughters of the Texas Republic, she was as courageous as an armored crusader of the days of Peter the hermit, as positive in her views or convictions as William Jennings Bryan, and waved aside hypocritical conventionalities with a toss of her head or a toss of her hand.

She inherited a large fortune and she did not dissipate it. She was ambitious but ever generous to the needy or the cause which she espoused. This daughter of women who moulded bullets for the riflemen of Sam Houston was a unique character in many ways. Her life was not all of wine of roses or the flowery bed of ease. She had her tragedies as well as her triumphs.

Her husband and son are the survivors. There is a fortune awaiting either the son or his sire. Those pioneers who put over the ballot for women measure in Texas and the nation had a powerful champion in this Texas woman who has gone to her reward.

RICH YEAR FOR CORPORATION

CORPORATE earnings during the year 1925 exceeded those of any other recent year, the federal reserve board said in calling attention to the almost record volume of security issues in the United States. Relatively large and steady incomes for the year were also received by indiviuduals and factory workers, and while the individual income of farmers was reported as somewhat smaller than in 1924, it was in larger volume. As a result, there was a large growth in the volume of funds available for investment. When will the farmer get his. Go ask the politician of America. They say he is the main stay of the nation. Then why not some of the velvet of the nation?

MONEY IN TOBACCO

THERE must be money in tobacco. The annual report of the American Tobacco company for the year ended December 31, shows net earnings of $22,288,566. The most profitable in the history of the country. In bleeding Kansas the lawmakers prohibited the selling of cigarettes, but the storekeepers charge a buyer 25 cents for a small box of matches and make him a present of a package of cigarettes. Political morality is thus given a neat covering of sunflower hypocrisy.

HE CHANGED DISTRICTS

THERE are men who are tireless in the persuit of public office. Former State Senator Edward Westbrook is one of the tireless. He has been a citizen of Hunt county for years. He served a term of four years in the state senate. He is a printer and editor, that is, he was a printer and editor before he became a politician.

He made the race for congress against Representative Sam Rayburn. He had the backing of farm labor and the invisible voting brothers of his district. It was a merry old contest, but the Bonham statesman put him away. Now Edward is on the road again, this time for a seat in the upper house. He has changed districts. He has moved away from Hunt county to Grayson county. Grayson and Cooke form a district.

Former State Senator S. B. Cowell, who is widely known in Austin and elsewhere is a candidate for the democratic nomination. Printer Westbrook is going to do his level best to take the nomination away from Cowell. Westbrook is one of the long distant talkers of America. When the craze of the initiative and referendum was uppermost, Westbrook was a state senator. He could talk for hours and days and weeks on the beauties of their populist baby. Indeed, he is on record as having made a speech for four hours and 45 minutes explaining to his fellow senators the principle of the thing.

Cyclone Davis has nothing on Printer Westbrook when it comes to long talk either within or without legislative halls. There is a rare flock of political birds alighting in the tree tops of Texas. They are waiting for the corn to grow in the fields and which will ripe for the harvest late in the month of July on primary election day.

All the wise men of politics imagined that the initiative and referendum baby had been buried. It may be possible that the man who has changed senatorial districts may drag the little corpse out of an unknown grave.

WHOSO WOULD BE A MAN—

NO ONE above the intelligence of a prize-fighter or movie actor really believes the American political machinery is perfect, and that it represents man's achievement in the art of government; yet among certain elements it is disloyal and even unsafe to publicly suggest that a better scheme of rule could and should be installed in Washington.

Any man with any such idea is a radical and a dangerous fellow, even though he merely wants to do by means of the ballot what a little band of patriots did by force of arms in 1775-1781.

Conformity is a favorite subject in the pulpits and in schoolrooms; yet man owes all of his progress to nonconformists.

"Whoso would be a man must be a nonconformist," Emerson declares.

"No law should be sacred to a man but that of his own nature.'

Thoreau erects a guide-post with his, "Let every man mind his own business and endeavor to be what he was made."

That is not easy. Is your mind your own? Then you are different from most men.

Thinking for yourself, acting as you think best, is like swimming against a furious current. It is always easier to go down than up stream, and most men are content to drift along with what is known as public opinion, with no more individuality of mind than a sheep, an animal that must have a leader.

"What I must do, is all that concerns me, not what people think."

This rule of Emerson's, equally arduous in actual and intellectual life, may serve for the whole distinction between greatness and meanness.

It is the harder because you will always have about you persons who think they know what is your duty better than you know it.

"It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own;; but," Emerson opines, "the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude."

There is no one thing that all men love.

As Montaigne observed in one of his essays, "There never was in the world two opinions alike, no more than two hairs, or two grains; the universal quality is diversity."

Yet men do not act according to their own distinctly individual bent, but in accordance with the force of that most powerful of winds, public opinion.

High Spots in the Life of Little Stanley, the Great Explorer

(Copyright, 1926, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WHO'S WHO

GENERAL SIR GEORGE MILNE.

England is waiting with interest to see what brand of tactics General Sir George Milne, new chief of the grand general staff of Great Britain, will employ in his relations with the French. One of his chief duties is to maintain friendly relations with the heads of the armies of France, Belgium and Italy.

GEORGE MILNE

It is expected that his feelings for the French will not be as cordial as that entertained for them by the Earl of Craven, whom he succeeds. While stationed at Salonica, General Milne was transferred because of his inability to cooperate with the French general in command there.

Sir George is not as diplomatic as his predecessor and a serious Scotsman, yet he is very popular with the soldiers.

He is 60 and has been in the army since he was 19.

In the Boer war he served under Kitchener and also in Egypt. When the European war broke out he was a lieutenant-colonel. Before the armistice he had been promoted through the various ranks to that of general, commanding first a division, and later the Eixteenth army corps.

Again during the allied occupation of Constantinople the general differed with Field Marshal Franchet d'Esperey of France, and when relations became too strained both were recalled.

The general has been decorated many times, possessing 19 medals from the government of England, Roumania, Serbia, France, Italy, Greece, United States and China.

DINNER STORIES

The groom had a local reputation for being very close, not to say stingy, and the bride was anything but good-looking.

The ceremony had just been completed and after laying aside his prayer book, the officiating minister looked expectantly at the new husband.

"How much is it?" whispered the groom dolefully.

"Oh, just whatever you think it is worth," was the reply.

The groom took one hurried glance at the bride and offered the minister a fifty-cent piece.

Calmly the reverend gentleman slipped a hand in his pocket and produced twenty cents, which he handed to the startled benedict.

"Here is your change," he said.

Bill Smith, a country storekeeper, went to the city to buy goods. They were sent immediately, and reached home before he did. When the boxes were delivered Mrs. Smith, who was running the store, uttered a scream, seized a hatchet and began frantically to open the largest one.

"What's the matter, Sarah?" said one of the bystanders, who had watched her in amazement.

Pale and faint, Mrs. Smith pointed to an inscription on the box. It read: "Bill inside."

POEMS THAT LIVE

DATUR HORA QUIETI

The sun upon the lake is low,
The wild birds hush their song,
The hills have evening's deepest glow,
Yet Leonard tarries long.
Now all whom varied toil and care
From home and love divide,
In the calm sunset may repair
Each to the loved one's side.

The noble dame on turret high,
Who waits her gallant knight,
Looks to the western beam to spy
The flash of armour bright.
The village maid, with hand on brow,
The level ray to shade,
Upon the footpath watches now
For Colin's darkening plaid.

Now to their mates the wild swans row,
By day they swam apart,
And to the thicket wanders slow
The hind behind the hart.
The woodlark at his partner's side
Twitters his closing song—
All meet whom day and care divide,
But Leonard tarries long!
—Sir Walter Scott

POLICE WONDER

Burglar Passes Up Liquor to Take Few Dollars in Change.

DALLAS, March 25.—(AP)—Police were furnished some food for thought today by a burglary case in which a drug store vault contained liquor was opened but the liquor left untouched.

The store proprietors were not even sure that any narcotics were taken while other merchandise was undisturbed. Small change taken from the cash register is all that was missing.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Another thing men like in women is femininity, and the woman who affects the mannish in dress or manners or conversation does it at her peril. Indeed, so great is man's admiration for womanliness that he will forgive her all other defects if she only possesses that one quality.

This is the reason why the silly little ingenue can marry six times to her strong-minded sister's once, and why we see women who are dull and stupid and unattractive still adored by their husbands. A man may love a woman in spite of her being witty and intelligent and able to take care of herself, but he never loves her because of these virtues.

Women are never more largely and gorgeously mistaken than when they think to make a winning with men by trying to make imitation men of themselves. The fallacy that men pine for women to be little brothers to them has gained ground of late and found many adherents among women who affect masculine sports, discuss risque subjects and endeavor to wipe out the sex line. Never was greater folly. It is woman's unlikeness to man, the difference of her point of view, that makes all of her charms and lends piquancy to her society. If a man wanted the ideas of another man on a subject, he would seek one who had been born to the masculine estate, not one who had merely understudied the role.

Men like what we call the old-fashioned virtues in women. It is the fashion now for women to be blase and cynical, but there is no man so hardened himself that he does not shudder away from a hard woman. He may never put his foot inside of a church, but he wants a woman to be pious. He may disbelieve in everything in heaven or earth, but he wants a woman to have a childlike faith in everything good and holy. And no matter how much he laughs at her for her credulity, he loves her the better for it. He may judge the world mercilessly, but he wants a woman to be full of tender and unreasoning pity and sympathy.

No man ever loved a woman who did not cry, or who was not tender to little children or who would not give to a beggar and investigate his needs afterward. The girl who thinks it smart to sneer at domesticity and who declares that she will never debase her talents by learning to cook or sew; who hates children and mocks at religion, no matter how brilliant or beautiful she is, does not attract men.

Men like cheerfulness in a woman, but they hate forced gayety. Probably there is no other woman in the world that makes men so tired as the perpetual giggler and gusher—the woman whose conversation is a series of exclamations, who chatters like a magpie and who laughs at everything that is said, whether it is funny or not. These women labor under the hallucination that the way to be vivacious is never to be still.

Now, in this country, where society is carried on after office hours, men seek the companionship of women for rest and relaxation. They want quiet. They want to be soothed and sympathized with and not to be irritated by the antics of a perpetual-motion machine combined with the noise of a phonograph that never runs down.

The woman who wants to attract men must know how to listen as well as talk. She must suggest an atmosphere of quiet peace, not a vaudeville show where there is something always doing. She must be deeply, softly comprehensive. It is on the bosom of the ocean that one dreams of resting, not on the babbling brook.

It is the sense of restfulness, of quiet peace they give, that forms the attraction of the large, placid, bovine women, who are often as stupid as they look but who are apt to get the pick of the matrimonial market.

Men like naturalness in women. Affectation and artificiality are the bete noir of the masculine sex.

It is undeniable that women roll their eyes at men, and men succumb; that men are taken in by the simple little flapper who is younger and more innocent and ignorant in her ways than any girl-child ever was by nature; and that not every woman's hair and complexion are hers except by right of purchase. But these women who pretend to be what they are not, and get away with it, are artists.

Their imitations are so good that it is indistinguishable from the real thing.

What disgusts men is the elephantine lady who affects to be kittenish; the stringy spinster who lisps baby talk; the big, strong, capable-looking woman who thinks it cute to shriek every time they see a mouse; and the vast sisterhood of near intellectuals who go into hysterics of delight over Browning and Wagner, when their real taste is Harold Bell Wright and jazz.

Men like honesty in women. They like the girl who fairly admits that she works because she needs the money and who is interested in her job.

They admire and respect the girl who makes her own clothes and trims her own hats, and they adore the girl who knows how to cook and helps her mother with the younger sisters and brothers.

Conversely, they have no time for the girl who poses as a blase society girl who has wearied of the gay life and taken a job behind the counter just for amusement, don't you know. Many a poor girl has lost a good husband by pretending that the little frock that she sat up nights making was a Paris importation, or by languidly remarking that the hat that she got in a bargain sale and furnished up a bit is a cheap little thing that cost only $6, or by turning up her nose at the kitchen and saying that really she couldn't boil an egg to save her life.

Men like women who are appreciative. They don't want a woman to get out a brass band and beat on the cymbals every time they show her any little attention, but they do want to feel that they are not wasting their sweetness on the desert air and spending their money on a grafter who takes everything they can do for her as no more than her due.

They like a woman who brightens up at their coming and shows that she is glad to see them who listens with an expression of absorbed attention on her face to their conversation, who laughs in the right place at their jokes and who, when they take her out, gives a lifelike representation of a young woman having a grand and glorious time.

Men like a woman who is a good sport, who plays the game squarely, who knows how to do things, and be always in the picture—who can play a good game of golf or bridge who can swim and hike, who is intelligent enough to be an interesting companion and who can take the sweet with the bitter; who can make a joke out of getting wet or missing a train or any other of the misadventures of daily life.

But when all is said, the qualities that men like best in women are tenderness, sympathy, affection, amiability, and goodness, and a man never admires a woman so much as when she is just—a woman.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

What's a Town.

What's a town? Not granite,
Pavements smooth and wide,
Bridges that may span it,
Park, or waterside,
It is not the buildings,
Build however high,
Nor the gorgeous glidings
Up against the sky,
Not the holy steeple,
Looking gently down—
What's a town? It's people
People—that's a town!

What's a town? It's human,
It can laugh and sing,
It's a man, a woman,
It's a living thing,
It is children playing
In the gardens bright,
It is lovers straying
In the quiet night,
Young folks who are witty,
Old folks with their jokes—
Hamlet, village, city,
What's a town? It's folks!

What's a town? It's neighbors
With a common cause,
Helping at their labors,
Honoring their laws,
Working all together
For the good of all,
In the summer weather,
When the shadows fall,
What's a town? My brother,

That's the truest test—
Working for each other,
That will bring the rest.

That will bring the granite,
Pavements smooth and wide,
Bridges that may span it,
Park, and wateside,
That will bring the buildings,
Build however high,
And the gorgeous glidings
Up against the sky,
That will bring the steeple
Looking gently down—
What's a town? It's peopole,
They must make the town!

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. What shape is the earth?
2. How many square miles are there on the earth?
3. What proportion of the earth's surface is water?
4. In what direction is the earth rotating?
5. What are the three simultaneous motions of the earth?
6. Does the compass always point north?

(Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.)

JUGGLING THE CONTINENTS

In order to explain the close relationship between the plants and animals of various islands and continents, scientific theories have been put forward that at some time in the past land-bridges connected regions now widely separated by water. Thus a land bridge has been proposed between Europe and Iceland, between Iceland and Greenland, between Greenland and North America. Men have even made imaginary maps of Atlantis the supposed island in mid-Atlantic, of a bridge across the Pacific, and of bridges between the Antartic and South America, Australia, and Africa. Perhaps some of these bridges did once exist. But a scientist endowed with a sense of humor made a map of the world on which he sketched every land bridge that had been proposed, and it was found that the entire ocean was covered over by land!

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Moths are nocturnal insects; butterflies are active during the day.
2. Clothes moths do not eat cotton, linen, or any vegetable fibre.
3. The antennae of the insect serve his sense of touch and apparently also are used in communication and courtship.
4. Caterpillars are insects, not worms.
5. Insects are useful in agriculture because some of them fertilize flowers causing fruits to set seed.
6. The Spanish fly, Cantharides, is sometimes used in powdered form in medicine as a counter-irritant.

MARY RETURNS AFTER CAREER

Arkansas Girl, Success As Prima Donna, Goes Back Home

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 25.—(AP)—Mary Lewis, prima donna, came home today.

Seven years ago, Mary Lewis, stage struck girl, left on two hours' notice to join a road show. Few knew of her going. Few followed her career.

Today her return was all but that of a conquering hero. State and city officials and citizens vied to do her honor.

Tomorrow she was to sing for the "home folks," sing the songs of the famous singers, with a few of the simple "homey" melodies. About her will be the people who knew her in her girlhood days as a choir singer—in a little city church; people who knew her as a high school girl and those who knew her as a sweet girl graduate of the same high school in whose auditorium she will make her appearance as an arrived grand opera star.

Miss Lewis was accompanied to Little Rock from Hot Springs where she sang last night, by Mrs. Will Henninger, who for more than four years taught Mary the rudiments of the singer's art.

A visit to the state capital for greetings by Governor Tom J. Terral and Mayor C. E. Moyer, who presented her with the keys to the city featured the day's program.

Many stories have been told of how Mary Lewis ran away from the home of a Methodist minister in Dallas because she was spanked, but "Ma" Henninger, as she is known by her pupil, today repudiated the statement.

"Mary Lewis did not run away from the minister's home because she was spanked," said Mrs. Henninger. "I know, because it was only after I listened to the girl sing she left in order that she might gain a musical education."

CRASH IS FATAL

One Woman Killed, Seven Hurt In Crossing Accident.

TULSA, March 25.—(AP)—One woman was killed and five women and two men were injured when a speeding automobile crashed into a group of pedestrians at a downtown intersection this afternoon.

Police were seeking the woman driver of the car who abandoned it and fled after stopping in the middle of the street. Two women were dragged for nearly 50 feet before the car stopped.

When a traffic officer reached the scene he found only a frightened four-year-old boy in the car. Bystanders who saw the accident said two women had been in the car with the child.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 25.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser today denied Leonard Kip Rhinelander a new trial in his annulment action against his negro wife, Alice Jones Rhinelander, which was tried before Justice Morschauser in Westchester county supreme court at White Plains last November. It is understood Rhinelander will appeal to the appellate division in Brooklyn from Justice Morschauser's ruling.

State Prosecutes Man for Doubting Existence of God

Civil liberties protective organizations are preparing to make another Scopes case of the prosecution of Anthony Bimba, Brockton, Mass., on the charge of blasphemy, under a 229-year-old colonial "blue law." He is alleged to have questioned the existence of the God of the Bible in a speech.

Texas Boy, Giant, Forced to Sleep On Floor of Dining Car

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP)—Eight and a half feet of humanity under a wide spreading Texas sombrero unloaded from a Rock Island limited today and stretched his huge frame as he grinned at the big crowd below.

He eyed ruefully the car where he had spent the night.

"Got plenty of eats," volunteered Jack Earl, 20-year-old El Paso giant, "but that's no place to sleep." Regular berths proving too small, perplexed porters finally cleared a space in the diner for him last night.

When he was 12 years old he was six and a half feet tall, Earl said, although his parents are of normal stature. He eats anything and everything where and when he can get it.

Earl drives his own automobile and has no trouble folding himself into a taxi.

A gigantic green ring flashed from the modern Gulliver's finger.

"The largest Texas turquoise ever cut for a ring," he asserted.

Earl is on his way to New York to take up circus life.

TEXARKANA, Ark., March 25. (AP)—Harvey B. Pratt, oil promoter, pleaded guilty in United States district court here today to using the mails to defraud and was fined $250.

Pratt was permitted to plead guilty and his punishment made light because it was brought out at a brief hearing that Pratt was not the originator of the scheme. It was charged that William Hubbard who has never been arrested, although under indictment was the chief offender.

The sentencing of W. Homer Taylor, charged in seven counts with mail frauds, was passed until May 12, pending efforts to raise $4,360 to reimburse stockholders in Taylor's promotion.

Pests Eat Celery Faster When It Is Put in Ice Boxes.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 25.—(AP)—Worms like their celery iced, the state department of agriculture has discovered. Experiments recently conducted with celery worms show, officials said today, that the pests do not desert a bunch of celery when it is kept in a refrigerator for 24 hours. On the contrary their appetite improves and they show in every way that they enjoy the bracing air of the ice box.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES DOWN

Unloading of Various Issues Sends Prices Tobogganing Again

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP) Another selling movement swept over today's stock market, carrying 104 individual issues to new low records for the year, but an irregular recovery was under way as the market closed. Final quotations disclosed a large number of net gains ranging from one to three points. Trading was not so heavy as yesterday, the day's sales aggregating 2,301,200 shares.

Banks called about $10,000,000 additional in loans today, bringing the week's total to around $70,000,000 with the result that call money opened at 5 per cent, the highest renewal rate since the sharp break earlier in the month, but it did not go above that figure as it did yesterday.

The recent heavy withdrawal of funds from the call money market was ascribed by some bankers to the preparation of interior banks for the usual heavy April demands of farmers who need money for spring planting purposes. Reports also were current today that many brokers had been called on to "sweeten their loans" by replacing speculative issues with more high grade investment issues as loan collateral.

Woman, Smithy For 13 Years, Requests U. S. Citizenship

KANSAS CITY, March 25.—(AP) Thirteen years as a village smithy in England was one of the reasons given by Mrs. Clara Nowden for admission into the naturalization class of the night school here. Mrs. Nowden said she was proud of her weight of 285 pounds, and gave her age as 48 years and her height as 6 feet, 1 1-4 inches.

"For thirteen years I was as good a blacksmith as any man I ever saw," Mrs. Nowden said. "Every morning I used to put 20 steel tires on wagon wheels. I was a painter, too. I could paint wagons and wagon wheels with the best of them."

Mrs. Nowden came to the United States from Hull, England, 14 years ago, two years after the death of her first husband. Asked why she and her present husband had enrolled in the night school she said they had just realized that they were without a country.

Los Angeles Not Due For Drilling Campaign

NORTH PART OF STATE MAY SEE BIG PLAY

Agreement Should Hold Up Work At Dominguez And Inglewood

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 25.—No intensive drilling campaign is now contemplated for any of the big fields of Los Angeles Basin, or in Ventura Avenue during the next few months. Neither is there any prospect of a break in the agreement existing with respect to exploration of the deeper sands in the Dominkues or Inglewood fields.

Increased stimulus to wildcatting, and new drilling activities in certain areas in northern fields is anticipated as a direct outcome of the increase in the price of crude announced last week by the Standard Oil company of California.

Marketing companies appear to have gained more than the operating companies as a result of the new schedule of prices posted last week by the Sandard of California. The two-cent increase in the price of gasoline was a genuine increase. It puts the price of gas above the old price in existence prior to the big price-cutting war inaugurated more than a year ago, and gives the refiners a chance to do a little better than break even.

The Hollister Free Lance says that the Hamiltonian Oil company's test in Panoche Valley, San Bernito county, is down 631 feet and in a stratum of oil bearing shale, leading those familiar with the region to believe that substantial quantities will be encountered within another 125 feet.

New Field At Huron?

Success on the part of the Associated in its gelogical explorations around Huron may lead to the opening of an entirely new field or an extension of the Coaling East Side many miles.

The Associated Oil company has started drilling a test on 20-19-17 which was last week reported down some 700 feet. The well is being drilled by the geological department for exploratory purposes, a system now coming into vogue with the big companies. Should production be found the well will be, of course, turned over to the production department, but exploration in the hope of finding the structure which is believed to exist somewhere north of Huron is the primary object of the work.

Southern California production of crude dropped another 2,300 barrels daily during the past week with a total estimated output from the seven big fields of Los Angeles Basin of 332,300 barrels as against 334,600 barrels for the previous week.

A decline of three thousand barrels, to which Long Beach and Inglewood each contributed a thousand, was partly offset by an 800-barrel increase at Rosecrans due to the completion of another big well on the Barnsdall-O'Dea property. This was the only field registering an increase.

Superior, Torrance.

The Superior Oil company is drilling its last location in the Torrence field. Torrance No. 29 is the latest on the Superior string. This company was one of the most successful operators in the southeast portion of Torrance, and its Torrance and Joughin properties proved among the most prolific producers in the field. Considering the conditions with which operators have to cope at Torrance the production is holding very steady for this field.

E. J. Miley has completed two of his wells in the Los Cerritos area with an estimated yield of better than 400 barrels. Both wells were completed at practically the same depth, 4,443 feet. One is doing about 200 daily, the other a little better than this amount.

The Miocene is down more than 5100 feet—5,123 the latter part of the last calendar week—in its deep test in 32-12-23, just west of the Torjan and east of and separated from the Obispo by the Atlas property of the Associated. The Miocene has not found the Obispo sand although it is more than 1,000 feet deeper than the latter's big well. However, the Miocene location is such that much deeper drilling was anticipated.

Modest Gray Haired Teacher Of Yesterday, Hero Today In Oil Field Town Tornado

Venerable Man Saves Lives of Boys And Girls as Swirling Cyclone Rocks School Building

ORANGE, March 25.—A modest gray haired school teacher of yesterday is the hero of this section today.

Superintendent P. N. Powell of the little oil field school had just lined up his 300 charges this morning when he heard the ominous roar and saw the approaching funnel-shaped cloud which meant to him a tornado. The children were ready to march into the building. Quickly the order went forth that all were to march to the auditorium instead of to their separate rooms.

Patting, whimpering, trembling boys and girls on their heads, chuckling to them and smiling into their frightened faces as they huddled together in the auditorium, the 50-year-old school man went calmly about his duty while the tornado roared nearer the building. Above the howling storm and crashing thunder came the sound of timbers splintering and glass shattering as the school house was struck and rocked to its foundation. Yet not a child among the 300 cried out. For all of this tenderness in soothing the school children Superintendent Powell was firm in warning the boys and girls that under no circumstances were they to leave the building nor scream.

Entire credit for avoiding a panic that might have resulted in the death of numbers of the school students was given Superintendent Powell. Unable to make himself heard above the noise of the tornado, he went from child to child, speaking to each one, dispelling their fears and watching for the slightest outbreak of emotion.

A man of ruddy complexion, clear blue eye, his left arm off and his hair iron gray, Superintendent Powell is described as possessing a striking personality. He is president of the Orange County Teachers' association and his ability as a school man and executive has gained for him a wide reputation. His former home is in San Augustine, Texas.

One life was lost, eight were injured and property damage estimated at $500,000 was caused by the tornado.

Without warning the storm bore down on the oil field section at 8:30 this morning, making a clear-cut swath directly through the center, taking everything in its path as clean as if a huge scythe had been swung through it.

Glenn Keown, 24, a driller's helper, the man who was killed, was struck by a falling derrick, fracturing the back part of his skull. He died a few minutes later in a hospital here.

Though the tornado passed over in a few seconds it was filled with the spectacular. As the forest of derricks swept down, flowing oil wells began to spout their oil into the air, the high winds following the tornado coating the field with crude oil.

The principal work of the day has been to close down these wells—10 to 12 in all—which are running wild, and save the huge loss of oil. Three of the wells are under control.

Battle Flames 100 Miles at Sea—Win

KEY WEST, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—After a 100-mile battle with a blaze which overpowered six firemen and necessitated pouring more than 2,000,000 gallon of water into its hold, fire aboard the freight steamer El Occident was brought under control here early today.

Fire broke out aboard the freighter en route from New York to Galveston, when she was 100 miles off Key West yesterday. Captain W. C. Campbell seeing the blaze could not be controlled, put full steam ahead to this port. The crew fought the fire and were aided by city firemen when they arrived here. Six figemen were overcome by the dense smoke before the fire was brought under control.

KATY MERGER NEAR FRUITION

Officers Resign to Permit Elect New Chiefs In Consolidation

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP) Henry Ruhlender, chairman of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad since its reorganization, will submit his resignation at the annual meeting on April 9, it was learned today. It is understood that a representative of the L. F. Loree interests who have obtained a controlling voice in the road will be elected to succeed him.

Several other changes in the "Katy" directorate will be made at the annual meeting to strengthen Mr. Loree's control, preparatory to a merger of the road with the Kansas City Southern and St. Louis-Southwestern. Definite plans for the creation of this new southwestern system are expected to be laid before the interstate commerce commission at an early date.

Mr. Ruhlender's retirement will place a new set of officers at the head of the "Katy" while the consolidation plans are pending. It was recently announced that C. E. Schaff would withdraw from the presidency on May 1, and would be succeeded by C. N. Whitehead, now executive vice-president.

So far, Mr. Loree has declined to indicate who will be president of the proposed new system, but in some quarters it has been reported that F. W. Green, operating vice-president of the St. Louis-Southwestern, might be named for the post.

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for a year when he asks her to break their engagement. He tells her frankly that he has fallen in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY.

Broken-hearted, Sylvia gives him up, much to the satisfaction of AUNT AGONY, the shrewd spinster who brought her up. She encourages Sylvia to marry PETER WILK, a sober-minded bachelor who's in love with her.

As the time draws near for the wedding of Fay and Ranny, Fay tells Sylvia that they have decided not to marry, because they're too much alike —flighty and inconstant. But Sylvia discovers that Fay has never really broken off her love affair with EDDIE CARTER, to whom she had been engaged at one time.

On a moonlit May night, Peter gives a picnic supper in honor of Sylvia's birthday. The guests play hide-and-seek like children, in the dark woods and Sylvia finds herself paired off with Ranny, who makes love to her and tells her that, after all, she's the only girl in the world for him. And Sylvia, afraid that if she doesn't marry Ranny now, she may lose him again, suggests that they run away and get married then and there. So they do.

Ranny shows how bored he is with married life almost before the first week of the honeymoon is over, and they come back to town where he can go out with his card playing friends. They rent a little flat that Sylvia calls The Nest. She would have liked a tiny cottage with a garden, but Ranny insists that four rooms are enough for any young married couple. And he spends very little time in The Nest, cheerfully admitting to Sylvia that while he loves her, he doesn't like married life. He loses heavily at poker and borrows Sylvia's money to pay his debts. She begins to doubt even that he loves her during the first three months of their life together, for he seems to have fallen once more under Fay's gay lure. The morning after Sylvia tells Ranny that they're going to have a child in a few months, she goes out to his car, on her way to Aunt Agony's, and finds a woman's handkerchief in it, and a carved shell hairpin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Sylvia Had Seen That Pin Before."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Sylvia had seen that pin before, but where? Whose was it?

Suddenly she remembered exactly where she had seen it. It was one that Fay Shirley wore in the evening when she pinned a red gold braid of hair around her bobbed head.

So then, it was Fay who had been in this car with Ranny, and not more than two nights ago, either, for that was the last time he had driven it.

He had told Sylvia that night that he wanted to run over to his father's house to see him about some business matter, and wouldn't be gone more than an hour.

She remembered now, as she looked back at it, that he had been gone for two or three hours. She had sat up waiting for him and had read every story in "Good Housekeeping" while she waited.

And he had been with Fay Shirley all that time here in the car! He must have been with her, for the hairpin and the perfumed handkerchief were silent proof of it.

Sylvia looked down at them thoughtfully, wondering what to do with them.

Should she face Ranny with them, or should she take them to Fay and ask her what she had to say for herself?

A dozen questions went dancing through her brain on that blue September morning as she started the car and drove slowly toward Aunt Agony's house.

Was Ranny in love with Fay, after all? Was it possible for a man to be in love with two women at the same time?

Or was his feeling for Fay nothing but liking—the liking that one happy-go-lucky person naturally has for another of the same kind?

"I know—I know he cares for just me!" Sylvia told herself, suddenly remembering how Ranny had taken her in his arms last night when she told him about the baby. "He may enjoy batting around with Fay, but it's me he loves!"

Sylvia felt almost as shy and shaky as if she were going to the home of a stranger when she went up the stone steps of Aunt Agony's house that morning and rang the bell.

It was three months since Aunt Agony had walked out of The Nest, and Sylvia wasn't at all sure that her aunt was ready to be friends with her and Ranny again. She had said she was "through with both of them!"

As Sylvia stood there, waiting, she saw the Nottingham lace curtains of the front parlor window shake a little, as if stirred by a breeze, and she knew that Aunt Agony was behind them, "taking a look" to see who was there.

That bay window was her conning tower. She had never been known to open the front door to a caller until she had first peaked out through the curtains to see who that caller was, and to make up her mind whether she wanted to talk to 'callers or not!

Sylvia was wondering whether she would let her in, when the door suddenly flew open and Aunt Agony stood there, stiff and straight as any well trained soldier.

"Well!" she sniffed, "so you've come at last!"

"You knew I would, sooner or later, didn't you?" the girl asked, stepping into the hall.

As the door closed behind her, the delightful, familiar smell of the old house swept into her nostrils like perfume. It was like no other odor in the world—a mixed scent of the dried rose leaves in the jar on the table, and of spice, and of furniture polish.

It brought back to Sylvia a flood of memories—memories of rainy Saturdays during her childhood, when Aunt Agony had made cooky boys for her—cooky boys with raisins for eyes and cocoanut for hair—memories of June afternoons when they picked roses from the bush behind the old house and dried them for the jar on the hall table—and of house cleaning periods when they had scoured and polished the place from cellar to garret. What a good time they had had together, and what a mother Aunt Agony had been to her all her life!

Suddenly Sylvia was in the thin old arms, with her head down on her aunt's flat chest, and they were crying together—in the silly sentimental way that women do cry sometimes.

"Aunt Agony, I've been so lonely, and I'll never forgive myself for staying away from you so long!" Sylvia sobbed.

Her aunt pushed her away from her, blew her nose violently and brushed away her tears with the back of her thin hand. "'No use crying over spilt milk'!" she quoted dryly, and was herself again.

"Come in and have a cup of tea," she said, and led the way to the dining room. "I was just making a pot for myself. I find that a cup of it, good and hot, in the middle of the morning, sustains me." She pulled out a chair for Sylvia and took one across from her.

"You certainly do look peaked!" she went on, rattling the tea ball in the pot. "I suppose you're worrying about that wretched husband of yours. What's he been doing now?"

Sylvia smiled. "Not a thing in the world," she answered loyally, "everything's fine with us—with me and Ranny."

A queer little smile twisted Aunt Agony's pale lips for just a second and Sylvia saw that she threw a look in the direction of the Shirley's big house across the street.

"The last time I saw you you were half sick because Ranny was still fooling around your fine friend over the way!" she snapped, jerking her head toward the drawn blinds of the room where Fay slept.

Sylvia laughed a little. "Oh, I shouldn't have said anything to you about that," she said, with studied carelessness. "Fay and Ranny play around with each other a little bit, but it doesn't mean anything—married people have little friendships like theirs, nowadays, and don't think any thing about it—"

"Humph!" Aunt Agony broke in with a snort, "and what about you? Would you have a friendship with some other man?"

"No, of course not—"

"Of course not!" snapped Aunt Agony. "Then why is it all right for Ranny to be such good friends with some other woman? Just you try stepping around with some of Ranny's men friends and it'll be a white horse of another color!"

"But I don't want to! I don't want any man but Ranny!" cried Sylvia, as she lifted her cup of tea. "I'm old-fashioned."

"Yes, and so's marriage old-fashioned!" Aunt Agony broke in again. "It's got to be just what it was a thousand years ago or it won't last! And just you young folks, in this day and age, try out your new fangled ideas of trotting around as if you weren't married and you'll wind up in the divorce court!"

She drank her tea as if it had been bitter poison and gave the house across the street a most unfriendly look from her sharp eyes.

"I could tell you things, Sylvia, if I was of a mind to, about Ranny and that one over there!" she said, nodding again toward the windows of Fay's bedroom.

Sylvia only smiled. "I know they see a lot of each other," she said quietly, "but there's nothing between them—and whatever there might have been between them would be over now, anyway."

The sweetest look that Aunt Agony had ever seen in her eyes came into them as she added: "I told Ranny last night that we're going to have a baby in the spring, you see."

There was a dead silence in the sunny little room for a minute or two. Then Aunt Agony said, "Well!" in a very small voice—and then "Well!" once more.

As she said afterward to Peter Wilk's sister, Sarah, "I was never more surprised in all my life!"

She sat looking at Sylvia for a moment more. Then she got up, marched around the little round table and put her hand on one of her shoulders.

"My dear, if you really love Ranny, you're very sensible to have this child —just as you are doing," she said in a queer tight voice, "for if there's anything that will tie a man down to his home it's a baby of his own! I've never known it to fail!"

Sylvia looked up at her. "If I really love Ranny?" she repeated softly, "if I really love him! Why, Aunt Agony, I love one hair of his head better than I love anything else on this earth. He's the whole world to me—and heaven, besides."

Years afterward Aunt Agony remembered the thing she said a half hour later when they sat up in the garret going through a trunk of little time yellowed baby clothes:

"No matter what Ranny does—or where he goes—I always will care for him, just the way I do now. I can't help it. He may fall in love with a dozen women in the next dozen years, but he's the only man for me, just the same."

"Humph!" remarked Aunt Agony. And in the curl of her lip was expressed scorn, not only for Ranny, but for all the rest of his sex!

Sylvia put the bundle of baby clothes into the back of Ranny's car. Then she crossed Bleak street and rang the doorbell of the Shirley's big brown house.

Mrs. Shirley came to the door.

"Why, it's little Sylvia!" she said, and kissed her. "Fay's still in bed. She was up late last night and she's just having her breakfast; go right up."

Sylvia ran up the broad stairs and tapped on the closed door of Fay's bedroom. Without waiting for an answer she went in.

Fay was propped up in bed against a mountain of little pillows. A lace cap was pulled sidewise on her head and her red hair escaped from it in artificial curls.

Her green eyes looked bare and staring without the make up that she used, when in the public eye, and her lips were smeared with the indelible rouge that she used in the evening.

For one instant Sylvia wished wickedly that Ranny could see her as she looked now, without her war paint.

"Hello, Early Bird! What brings you out at the crack of dawn?" Fay asked, setting down her cup of coffee.

"These!" Sylvia answered, and tossed the handkerchief and the shell hairpin down upon the embroidered coverlet of the bed. "I found them in Ranny's car this morning and I thought you might need them!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The new bond between Sylvia and Ranny seems to have put Fay Shirley out of his thoughts. But Ranny is still in Fay's mind, and she comes to The Nest in order to see him.

Read in tomorrow's installment how she leaves hurriedly after Sylvia has disclosed her great secret.

STRAND FILM ONE OF BEST

"Hell's Highroads" One Of Season's Finest Pictures

In "Hells' Highroad," showing at the Strand theatre, we have a case of perfect co-ordination on the part of director, star and supporting cast, under Cecil B. DeMille's supervision, and the result, to put it conservatively, is one of the finest productions that has appeared in this city during the current season.

The production, which is heralded as the first DeMille presentation to be made under his new independent contract is directed by Rupert Julian with Leatrice Joy in the starring role.

The story is of a girl with the idea that money—lots of money—is absolutely essential to the success of marriage. Through her influence, a powerful financier is induced to back her lover and make him a rich man. This is easy, they are married and all is lovely. But love flies out the window of this young bride's boudoir, in search of more gold. Where love flew, and how it came back, makes up the body and principal high-lights of this very interesting screen narrative.

The sets are remarkable for their correctness of detail. The range of the story varies from the lowly city tenement district to a gorgeous Coney Island hall on a country estate, and, although even DeMille is human, to us they seemed flawless.

As for Miss Joy; if it is possible for her to advance another rung on the ladder of screen fame, she has done so in this picture. Long ago, it was said that she had reached the peak of a cinema actress' prestige, but still somehow she keeps adding new rungs of her own accord, to climb on.

Confer on Bridge

County Judge B. D. Sartin and A. H. Britain, local attorney, were in Austin Thursday in conference with members of the state highway commission regarding the proposed free bridge across Red river near Burkburnett. The two men left Wichita Falls Wednesday night to appear before the highway authorities.

What proposal the Wichitans made to the highway board this time are not known, although it is understood they have presented matters designed to clear away opposition to the bridge as raised by the attorney general's department. Sanction of the contract between Wichita county and owners of the Burkburnett toll bridge, which the county proposes to acquire, has been denied by the attorney general because of certain phases of the offer.

New Pass Edict Not So Bad, Avers Griff

AUSTIN, March 25.—(AP)—Recent legislation designed to discourage the indiscriminate use of the forward pass will decrease but slightly, if any at all the popularity of the overhead game, John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Western conference today told the Associated Press.

Major Griffith is here to serve Friday as referee and starter for the Texas University relay games.

"A team that is fighting from behind is not gong to be deterred from flying passes, because of the fact that it will draw five yards penalties should it fail to complete the passes," he said. "However, the legislation likely will cause coaches, who have depended in the main on forward passes, to devote more attention to a running attack."

HOUSE IS GIVEN ENGLISH CASE

Five Impeachment Charges Filed By Judicial Committee

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP) Five articles of impeachment against Federal Judge George W. English, of Illinois, for "high misdemeanors in office," were laid before the house today by its judiciary committee, and will be taken up next Tuesday.

After redrafting its report several times in a futile effort to submit its recommendations the committee asked and obtained the consent of the house that three members be granted until tomorrow afternoon to file a minority report opposing impeachment.

The indictment presented by the majority charged unwarranted disbarment of attorneys, threats and censure of state officials, threatening a jury in court, tyrannous attacks on the liberty of the press, profanity and other misbehavior, appointment of C. B. Thomas as "sole referee in bankruptcy," changes in court rules, connivance as a "bankruptcy ring," misuse of bankruptcy funds, favoritism and partiality, unlawful appointment of receivers and confessed neglect of duties.

If a majority of the house upholds the committee in these changes, the senate will sit as a court to decide whether Judge English shall be removed from office. A two-thirds decision will be required in the senate for conviction.

Miss Leona Lauter Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"I had been troubled with pimples for two years on my face, neck, back and chest. They were large and red and many of them festered. They came in blotches and during the hot weather itched badly. The irritation caused me to scratch and I could not sleep at night. The pimples caused disfigurement and embarrassment, and my clothing aggravated the breaking out on my body.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two months was completely healed, after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Ointment." (Signed) Miss Leona Lauter, 130 Grotta Ave., Houston, Texas, Sept. 28, 1925.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, with touches of Cuticura Ointment now and then, keeps the skin fresh, smooth and clear. Cuticura Talcum also is ideal for the skin.

A Double Treatment for Colds

IT is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist the direct, double action of Vicks VapoRub. When it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts in two ways at once:

(1) Direct to the inflamed air passages with its medicated vapors, released by the body heat; and

(2) Direct through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the tightness, soreness and pain.

Head or chest colds may easily sap your vitality and undermine your health. Don't neglect them.

BIZZELL SAYS NATION DEPENDS ON EDUCATION

Oklahoma University Head Dedicates New S. M. U. Auditorium

DALLAS, March 25.—(AP)—Education has become the predominant force of our national life, declared Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the University of Oklahoma, in an address here today in connection with the dedication of the McFarlin memorial at Southern Methodist University.

"Our national solidarity finds its best expression in the belief that education is essential to national integrity and that it is the sustaining force of our social institutions," Dr. Bizzell said.

Religion, democracy, science and education were classified as the essentials on which rest the integrity of the nation. All are interdependent, he said, and there should be no elements of conflict.

Nothing To Fear.

"The Christian religion has nothing to fear from the valid conclusions of science," the educator asserted. "The man who would be truly religious needs to know what science has taught about microbial diseases and sanitary science. The good Samaritan on the road-to Jerico is vastly different from the good Samaritan on Broadway. There are those today who are clamoring for a new religion. But a new religion can not be had merely for the asking. Christianity is ample for the needs of any civilization, but it must adjust the practices of its unfalling and unchanging doctrines to a changing world order."

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. McFarlin of San Antonio, donors of the auditorium were among the 2,000 spectators, including parents, students and faculty members.

Large Stage.

Dr. Bizzell, delivering the convocation address, was one of the eight leading of universities of the Southwest and official delegates here for the ceremonies. Among the latter were representatives from the University of North Carolina, Illinois University, Loyola University, Tulane University, University of Califonia, Johns Hopkins University, Chicago University, Millsap College, Yale University and Washington University. Mr. and Mrs. McFarlin would not accept seats of honor on the auditorium stage, but remained with friends and relatives in the audience.

The auditorium cost $700,000 and has a stage larger than that of the Metropolitan Opera house of New York City.

Yankee Flappers Declared Ugly In Country of Tibet

LONDON, March 25.—(AP)—Flappers of France, Great Britain and America would win no prizes in Tibetan beauty contests. So says Mrs. Louis M. King in her book "We Tibetans." She is Tibetan born. Her maiden name was Rin-Chen LhaMo.

"Westerners are not good looking, according to our standards," says the Tibetan woman. "Your noses are too big, and often stick out like kettle spouts; your ears too large, like the pig's ears; your eyes blue, like children's marbles; your eye sockets are too deep and eyebrows too prominent, too simian."

Then, she adds, the Tibetan women do not smoke. Neither do they use powder or rouge. But in some districts of Tibet the women cover their faces with black pigment to protect the skin from the wind and sun.

Nuns are the only old maids in Tibet. All other women marry. In fact, some of them have several husbands and they fear no competition from the women of the west, with all their aids to beauty.

Seek Pretty Blonde In Chicago Robbery

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP)—Two men and a pretty blonde actress were sought by authorities today to provide the sequel to a romance revolving around the Chicago wheat pit.

A warrant charging embezzlement has been issued for Joseph Morrison, 32, paying teller for the Bankers' State bank, Chicago, whose accounts were found to be about $20,000 short. The other man, a broker's clerk, has disappeared with his accounts, around $80,000 short.

Until about a week ago all three lived at the same address, officers learned, and Morrison and the girl left at the same time. Investigators are wondering if the two men stole to out-do each other in retaining the girl's affection or to provide funds for tri-partnership market operations.

Fire Threatens Supply of Crude

SEATTLE, March 25.—(AP)—Fire destroyed a huge abandoned warehouse here last night and threatened the million dollar plant of the Olympic Calpet Refining company where more than 250,000 barrels of crude oil and gasoline were stored. Not more than 50 feet separated the flaming warehouse and the refinery.

Virtually every piece of fire apparatus in the city was called into use to keep the flames, which were fanned by a strong wind toward the oil plant, from igniting it.

The warehouse extended for 1000 feet along the Northern Pacific railroad tracks and covered approximately 50,000 square feet. It was almost a total loss.

The total is equivalent to one car for every 5.8 persons and an increase of 13.4 per cent.

Total revenue from registration fees and permits was placed at $260,619,921.

CAPITAL WILL BE 'BONE DRY'

Pro Agents to Clean Up Halls, Reputed to Be Reeking of Liquor

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP) Prohibition enforcement officers said today they intended to clean the halls of congress of liquor if there is any to be found there.

While G. T. Murphy, chief of the District of Columbia prohibition agents, said he had been unable so far to connect the alleged visit of George L. Cassiday to the house office building Saturday with a case of intoxicants with any member of congress or their staffs, he intended to explore the capitol situation thoroughly and if the slightest odor of booze was discerned to go the limit.

The announcement not only follows upon the arrest of Cassiday, but charges and counter charges of recent weeks during prohibition debates in the capitol of bootleggers finding the offices of the house and senate a most fruitful place for business.

Senator Cole Blease, democrat, South Carolina, among others, has charged that bootleggers make daily rounds of congressional offices seeking customers.

Cassiday was arraigned before a United States commissioner today, but the crowd who had gathered in the expectation of hearing sensational tales of liquor dealings with legislators was turned away disappointed, for at his request he was granted a continuance until April 7.

Electrocute Pair Of Georgia Slayers

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Madch 25—(AP)—Ped L. Coggshall, Clayton, Ill., died in the electric chair here today for the murder a year ago of Prof. W. C. Wright, superintendent of schools of Putnam county. The execution took place at 12:29 o'clock, eastern time.

Floyd McClelland, Brockton, N. Y., who confessed to participation in the same crime a few hours before his time to pay the extreme penalty, was put to death at 12:49 p. m., eastern time.

Sam Scarborough, Tamp, Fla., third member of the group which took Professor Wright's life, turned state's evidence following his capture and said Coggshall and McClelland struck the blows that killed Wright. Scarborough said robbery was the motive. He was given a life sentence.

Hard Rain Falls Over West Texas

ABILENE, March 25.—(AP)—Rain, ranging from one-fourth to one and one-half inches, fell throughout this section of West Texas last night, according to meager reports reaching here today. Telephone and telegraph lines were out to San Angelo and points west of here.

The precipitation here was 1.07 inches, the highest recorded in several months. To the south Ballinger received .87 inches, Winters one inch and Ovalo one inch. Reports from the north indicated a fall of .85 inches at Anson. North of that place the fall became lighter, very little rain being reported from Seymour.

Heavy rain began falling at Big Spring, Colorado, Sweetwater and other points at 7 o'clock Wednesday night, but no reports are available since that time.

INFORMER KILLED.

Alleged 'Stool Pigeon' Is Found Shot to Death in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP)—Robert Lafferty, 24, suspected of having revealed to police the hiding place of William J. White and Thomas Shupe, identified as members of a robber band, was shot to death while he lay asleep early today.

The murder was committed by two men who gained admittance to a basement apartment by posing as policemen. A dozen bullets were fired into Lafferty's body.

Police are convinced that the slaying removed an important witness against White and Shupe, who are under arrest. White has been identified as the slayer of a suburban motorcycle policeman and both have been named as members of bands which staged robberies netting more than $171,000.

PETER MINUIT BUYS THE ISLAND OF MANHATTAN FOR A BOX OF TRINKETS—1622

THE value of any commodity rests in the mind of the buyer. To the untutored savage, the value of the site of New York City in 1622 was encompassed by a few strings of beads and other gaudy trifles.

Title to the ground valued today at four billion dollars was transferred after a few moments of oral persuasion and the showing of a few pounds of tawdry trinkets.

Barter and exchange in the days of Peter Minuit and the Dutch colonists existed in its most primitive form. Days of hardships were endured before seller and buyer could meet each other face to face.

Traversing miles of forests the tradesman sought his prospect in person, and depended on personal contact to arouse interest in his wares.

In the century that followed came the itinerant house-to-house peddler with his pack train of merchandise and his fund of current gossip.

Today this commercial contact with families is maintained by daily newspapers. Before thousands of families, simultaneously, the merchants of this country make their offers by picture and printed word.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—(AP)—The cotton market was fairly active today, the final phase o fthe liquidation of the March position causing the activity during the morning and reports of continued bad weather in the belt being the main stimulant during the afternoon. March, which traded as high as 18.32 near the start or 27 points above May, broke badly on the issue of notices for about 2,500 bales for delivery on contracts. The near months dropped to 17.75 or 57 points down from the early high to a discount of 17 points under May. There was a later rally to 17.92 but the month went out at noon at 17.82, or 10 points under May. The other active months which advanced 19 to 21 points at the start lost about half the gain when March slumped but during the afternoon all advanced sharply on bad weather, May duplicating the early high and months making new highs 21 to 29 points above yesterday's close. The close was practically at the top showing net gains for the day of 20 to 29 points.

At the start months later than March showed initial gains of 11 to 13 points and they continued to advance until May traded a 18.05, July a 17.04 and October a 16.94, or 19 o 21 points above the previous close. The slump in March and a government report showing a light weevil emergence to March 14 caused prices to ease off later in the morning, May dropping to 17.92, July to 17.54 and October to 16.82 or 10 to 13 points down from the early highs.

The advance of the afternoon carried May back to 18.05 but other months made new highs with July at 17.72, October at 17.04 and December at 17.09, or 21 to 29 points above the previous close. The close was at the top. Exports for the day totaled 29,038 bales.

NEW YORK FUTURES.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Moderate resistance from an opening advance in the cotton market were recovered today, prices selling up rather sharply in late tradaing on reports of unfavorable weather in the belt and covering by early sellers. July which had eased off from 18.25 to 18.15, advanced to 18.32 and closed at 18.30. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 20 to 29 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of five to 11 points on relatively steady Liverpool cables and prospects of cold rains in the south. Active months sold about 18 to 18 points net higher in early trading on covering, local and New Orleans buying but demand tapered off and prices reacted during mid-day with some selling on first impression of the report on boll weevil emergence. Reconsideration of this report however, led to covering by the mid-day sellers, and the market was more active in late trading. May contracts, which had sold off from 18.75 to 18.65, advanced to 18.80 and October advanced from 17.44, the low point, to 17.70, net gains of about 22 to 32 points on active positions. Last prices were a few points off from the best under realizing.

The bearish first impression of the boll weevil report appeared to result from a misintrepration of the figures which some thought represented revival of weevils per ton of moss, instead of the percentage of emergence to March 16. Later it was argued that futures reports might show a great emergence than suggested by these early investigations.

Houses with Wall Street connections were good buyers of new crop months in late trading, probably on the less favorable weather news.

Port receipts of cotton today 30,283, U. S. port stocks 1,206,133. Exports today 27,363, making 6,446,657 sof far this season.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Further liquidation developed in today's stock market, sending the average of 20 leading industrial issues down to a new low level for the year. Net declines in scores of active issues ran from one to nearly 10 points, but the decline was not as general as yesterday. Sporadic rallies took place throughout the session, and while they were not very impressive, more than a score of issues showed net gains of one to nearly three points on the day.

Total sales were 2,301,200 shares, as against 2,705,600 yesterday.

Banks were reported to have called about $10,000,000 additional in loans largely on account of out of town banks. One reason assigned for the recent withdrawal of funds from the call money market by interior banks was to prepare for the usual heavy demand for funds by farmers for spring planting purposes.

Heavy liquidation of Baldwin, which broke 7⅝ points to 97¼, the lowest price in four years, and a renewal of selling pressure against Hudson which duplicated yesterday's low of 80, was rumored to represent distress selling for the account of a prominent operator who had been active on the long side in those issues during the recent bull market but these reports lacked confirmation. Baldwin later rallied to 99½ and Hudson to 81¾.

Weakness also was apparent in such issues as Allied Chemical, Columbia Gas, Foundation company, Gulf States Steel, International Combustion Engineering, Kelsey Wheel, National Dairy Products, Union Bag and Paper, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and United Fruit, all of which sold four to 11 points lower, although some of them made partial recovery towards the close. Kresge department stores preferred, ordinarily inactive broke 14½ points to a new low record at 75¾ on a few sales. Several of the motors and high priced specialties, which were weak earlier in the week, rallied briskly when a renewal of bear selling failed to break them through their previous low levels. American Can (old stock) bounded up over 11 points to 264 and then eased to 261½, and the new stock closed 1⅝ higher at 43⅞. Mack Trucks showed a net gain of 3¾ at 110¾ after selling as high as 111¾. General Motors closed ⅝ higher at 118¾, although it had sold a point above that figure. Studebaker which had been offering stubborn resistance to selling pressure finally cracked under the strain, sliding down over three points to 51⅝ and then rallying a point.

Other industrials which showed good recuperative power were the commercial solvents issues, R. H. Macey, Philadelphia company, Savage Arms and United Drug, all up two points or more.

Rails received better support than the industrials, the average of 20 leading issues in that group showing a small gain on the day, Chesapeake and Ohio, Reading, St. Louis Southwestern and Southern railway being among the issues to show net advances of a point or more.

Call money opened at 5 per cent, the highest renewal ratte since March 9, holding steady at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet, with the principal rates holding firm.

Demand sterling ruled around 4.85⅝ and French francs fluctuated within a narrow area around 3.50 cents. Norwegian kroner were up 20 points to 21.52 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Although shaken as a result of violent fluctuations in the New York stock quotations, wheat prices today scored a strong finish with a wave of new buying at the last. Notable falling off in wheat shipments from Argentina, and brisker export demand for wheat from North America as well as further wind and dust storms in the west and southwest likely to injure the domestic winter crop were all outstanding, bullish factors. Wheat closed 1¾ to 1⅝ c net higher, May (new) $1.56 to $1.56½, and July $1.32 to $1.32½; corn ⅛ to ⅛ up, oats at ⅛ to ⅛c gain, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Corn and oats were swayed by the action of wheat. Demand for future delivery of corn was rather slack, but absorption of spot offerings was of enough volume to advance the cash trading basis 1@2c as compared with May. Some export sales both of corn and oats were noted.

Better cash trade in lard helped to make the provision market firm.

Brother of Victim Of Mexican Bandit Tries to Get Body

EL PASO, March 25.—(AP)—The initial move in the attempt of Ray Hall to secure the body of his brother, Joe Hall, who was stoned to death near Ixtlan, Mexico, Monday, was made today when Hall telegraphed the American consul at Mazatlaan asking him to obtain permission from the governor of Nayarit, for disinterment of the body and its removal through Nogales, Ariz., to Albuquerque. The law against taking bodies out of Mexico for a given period is to prevent spread of contagious diseases, but since Hall was murdered, American Consul John Dye at Juares believes an exception will be made.

Belief that the stoning to death of his brother grew out of his ownership of a gold mine near there, was expressed by Ray Hall today, who said that he had given out the story of the brother being struck on the head by a stone while passing through a tunnel because he did not want his mother to find out how the son was killed.

ing of the society. There are approximately 100 Wichitans and their wives here, with possibly the largest out-of-town delegation from Tulsa with 275 members present. Delegates include geologists from the four corners of the earth, there being a large number of Europeans and others from the out-of-the-way oil fields of the world here for the three day meeting.

The convention, the eleventh in the history of the association, was officially opened at 10:30 this morning at the Baker hotel, with a short address by Mayor pro tem of Dallas, John C. Harris and a presentation by him of the key to the city to E. L. De Golier of New York, president of the association. Mr. Harris stated that the city would accord every favor to the visitors and remarked that there would be no arrest of visiting delegates for minor offenses. In commenting on the work of the geologist in the industrial life of the nation, Mr. Harris stated that to him, "the work of the geologist is probably as great potential value as that of any one other group of professional men in America today."

The principle address of today's meeting came from Judge John M. Spellman, president of the society for the development of natural resources. In his address Judge Spellman stated that the eyes of the oil world were upon Texas and that the state was without doubt destined to become the greatest petroliferous area within the bounds of the United States. Its large untested area, all looked upon favorably by geological science, is potentially one vast oil field, he declared.

Technical talks made during the day's session included a discussion of oil shales by David White, a discussion of the origin of oil by Alex Mecy, F. M. Vantule, Earl A. Trager, and C. C. Gester; salt domes by W. Van Der Gracht; water problems by N. T. Lindtrop and R. H. Fash, stratigraphy of New Mexico by B. Coleman Renick.

A list of nominations for officers for the association for the coming year was presented by the committee on nominations at an early hour today. Included are John H. Sherman, Houston and Allen W. McCoy, Denver, for president; J. W. Beede, San Angelo, and Charles R. McCulloch of Los Angeles, vice president; Fritz Aurin, Ponca City, and Dr. C. E. Decker, Norman, secretary and treasurer, and John L. Rich, Ottawa, Kan., editor of the association's publication.

Considerable interest is being manifested over the association's annual golf tournament to be held here Friday. More than 75 members have already signed to play. Prominent among the bidders for the day's trophy is I. R. Sheldon, chief geologist of the Texhoma Oil and Refining company, of Wichita Falls, who on paper the night before the big event looks as good as any of them.

The convention will last through the annual banquet Saturday night.

Continue Search For Bandit Band Leader on Border

SAN ANTONIO, March 25.—(AP)—The hunt for the 17-year-old leader of San Antonio's boy bandit gang, who sawed his way out of the New Braunfels jail, Thursday shifted to the border, with sheriffs of half a dozen counties and border officials on the alert for his capture.

Comal county officials have asked sheriffs at aLredo, Brownsville, El Paso and other ponts on the border to watch for a car containing three persons, since they believe that there was an automobile with a confederate waiting for the youth when he sawed the bars and leaped 15 feet to liberty and that the 12-year-old boy who they discovered bought the saws has fled with him. Description of the youths has been broadcast over the state

Jealousy Prompts German Suitor To Slay Sweetheart

BERLIN, March 25.—(AP)—A three-year romance of two young Americans ended in tragedy on Berlin's "white way" early today, when John B. Goodrich, a medical student from Monroe, N. H., shot and killed Miss Alice Fitzner, a dancer from Cleveland, described as unusually beautiful, and then killed himself. He was 23, she 21.

The shooting occurred while the couple were riding in a taxicab making its way among the after-theatre crowds. Jealousy of an impoverished Russian nobleman named Wassiljew, who was dancing in the same theatre with Miss Fitzner, is believed to have been the cause for Goodrich's action. He died almost immediately, with a bullet in his brain, but Miss Fitzner lived a few hours in a hospital.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE NEW LUCY

No more are there untrodden ways
Like Mr. Wordsworth knew,
Where lovely little Lucy Grays
Just grew and grew and grew.
The automobile whizzes by
The loneliest moor and fen—
And Lucy has a chance to try
A joy ride now and then.

And when the sun sets o'er the lea
Beyond the village green,
Her sweetie takes her out to see
Doug Fairbanks on the screen.
And then the couple, like as not,
Step through a little jazz;
Swete Lucy does not miss a lot,
And what swell times she has!

No post pities Lucy now,
Her frocks are in the mode—
She doesn't have to drive the cow
Along the country road;
She's traded calico for silk,
And, being up-to-date,
She only knows the taste of milk
In frosted chocolate.

No violet by a mossy stone
Is little Lucy Gray,
A very different girl she's grown
By living in today.
She's lost her modest ways, but yet
When all is said and done,
She has not any cause to fret;
She has a lot more fun.

Spudders, In Fine Condish (?) Tackle Kansas City At 3 Bells

WHEELER AND MARTIN INHERIT MOUND CHORES

Fitzgerald May Be Ready To Perform in Old Garden Berth

Brainard bludgeoners after a week of off-again-on-again training weather, which has worked considerably more for the worse than the better, tackle Spence Abbott's larruping Kansas City Blues this afternoon at Spudder park in the first of a three-game exhibition series at 3 o'clock.

The Wichita Falls team, hampered by attacks of the flu from all quarters and an epidemic of sore arms, started the week with a couple of fairly rousing work sessions albeit the field was heavily mudded by rains, but since then has been hitting and missing because of cold weather.

Chill, damp breezes have not been conducive in the least toward toughening up the throwing whips, hence several members of the Varsity outfit are still addicted to uncorking occasional jungle heaves on flings launched at first base.

Fine Condish, Oh Yes!

Barring the fact nearly half the squad is just recuperating from the flu, others have swollen hands from catching line drives in cold weather, some have tight arms, and the gang on the whole hasn't had the chance to look at anything like an abundance of curve ball pitching this spring the domestics are in wonderful condish, rearing to step and, of course, should kick the tar out of the American association outfit even if Cowtown Jake Atz' Panthers did find the sledding a bit too rough down in Fort Worth recently????

If Howard Fitzgerald, afflicted with a light touch of the flu Wednesday but up and about Thursday, is not ready to go this afternoon the Spudder batting order will be the same as during the St. Paul series.

How they stack up:

BLUES—	SPUDDERS—
Murray, ss	Distel, ss
R. Smith, 2b	Metzler, cf
Philbin, 3b	Turgeon, 3b
Moore, lf	Washburn, 1b
Branom, 1b	Bodie, rf
Grigsby, rf	Brainard, 2b
Pick, cf	Lamb, lf
Snyder, c	Lapan, c
	Martin, p

If Fitz is able to play, he'll probably start in center field, said Manager Brainard and either Metzler or Bodie will lay out. However, all of 'em are to be given a shot. DeFate will step in at third some time during the game.

Ping Not At First.

No. Bodie won't play first base any—unless Brainard changes his mind today.

Paddy Martin, the southpaw, and Rip Wheeler, the starboarder are to divide chunking chores.

Cold weather caused curtailment of practice yesterday, the boys indulging only in a series of romps around the pasture and a bunch of pepper games.

Three recruits were cut adrift during the afternoon. Frank Kerns and Pitcher Bill Hill will go to the McAlester club of the Western association. Tommy Millsap, left-hander, was released outright.

Ponderous Array Of Track Stars In Institute Carnival

HOUSTON, March 25.—(AP)—One of the greatest arrays of track stars ever assembled in the south west will be presented here Saturday in the second annual Rice Institute Athletic carnival. This was assured when Dr. Gaylord Johnson, manager of the relays, announced that 32 universities of high standing had entered men.

Last year in the first relay carnival, the main bulk of the visiting athletes was composed of high school and academy stars. This season, according to Dr.. Johnson's figures of a total of 500 individual entries, 310 are university men. Only 18 high school, academy and junior colleges have signed up.

The figures are taken to indicate a growing interest in the relay carnival by universities the country over, and insuring more or less the success of the undertaking in following years.

Charlie Hoff, who had been expected, will not enter the meet, Director Johnson said last night. Even if he should receive his entry in time to get into the meet, he could not accept him, as he would not have room for him, he said.

The starting time has already been announced as 1:15 p. m., and an event or two would have to be left out in order to accommodate the famed pole vaulter.

Coach E. W. Hjertberg left Houston today with 11 Rice Institute track athletes for Austin, where the team will compete in the Texas relays.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 25.—(AP)—Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, R. I., national woman's golf champion, set a new Pinehurst record for a qualifying woman's score today when she turned in a 38-39—77 score in the medal round of the North and South women's championship.

BAYLOR BEARS WIN.

WACO, March 25.—(AP)—Miserable support accorded Kingsley, Dallas University pitcher, cost the Hilltoppers the second game of the series against the Baylor Bears on the Carroll field diamond this afternoon. The score was 5 to 2, and the victory gave the Bears a clean sweep of the two gamem series. While Kingsley demonstrated that he is not pitcher that Watts, his teammate is, he deserved a better fate. Four errors of the glaring variety helped the Bears score their runs.

Majors Feel First Baseman Dearth

Good first basemen are becoming as extinct as the dodo, says President Barnard of Cleveland Indians, explaining his club's reluctance to dispose of the veteran George Burns and the Cincinnati club's haste to grab Wally Pipp from the Yankees. At least three other clubs have grave problems at the initial sack.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

CUBS WORK IN COLD.

WACO, March 25.—(AP)—The cold weather kept the Waco Cubs indoors today.

The Saint players were allowed to use their own judgment, if they desired a workout, they were allowed to take it, but if they preferred to stay indoors, they had the choice of doing so. As a result a few of the veterans and all of the rookies went through a snappy workout at Katy Park today.

The St. Paul team will be here one more week, leaving April 2, for home. A number of exhibition games, however, will be staged en route.

HOUSTON GO RAINED OUT.

HOUSTON, March 25.—(AP)—The scheduled game between the Omaha Burchrods and the Houston Buffaloes was rained out today. Weather permitting the series will start Friday.

Harold Hald and Jake Jacobus, veterans, have not yet taken a turn in the box, but before the series is concluded, each will have tried out his arm in battle.

With Del Gainer in camp, the entire personnel is accounted for. Infield strength has been promised by the officials, and a left hander of ability may be added. When these recruits have been mustered, Manager Joe Mathes' entry will be ready for the Texas league gong.

FEW CARDS LEFT IN SAN ANTONIO.

SAN ANTONIO, March 25.—(AP) With the departure of the St. Louis Cardinals for Austin today and the last of the Minneapolis Millers going to Houston, the second Cardinal squad is the only remaining contingent of the outside forces to continue training here. The second squad will remain here another week for daily workouts.

They are booked for four exhibition games with the San Antonio Bears here during that time, the first to be played Saturday.

After that the Bears will play exhibition games with Texas association clubs and local semi-pro organizations until the opening of the Texas league season, April 14.

In the 10 exhibition games played here, nine with the Cardinals and one with the Millers, the Bears have shown steady improvement so that now they have the appearance of a fairly good Texas league team. With an entirely new lot of players, including some raw recruits to choose from, Manager Mitze has made a creditable showing in the team he has so far rounded out.

CATS 11 GAMES IN 10 DAYS.

FORT WORTH, March 25.—(AP) Three of the remaining eleven games on the Panthers' training schedule will be played with the St. Louis Cards, who arrive in Fort Worth tomorrow morning for a two day's stay. After games here Saturday and Sunday, the Cardinals return on April 2, for the third game.

The Cats have 10 days in which to play the 11 games before the Texas league season starts April 14.

Rogers Hornsby, who was once a big footed boy on the Fort Worth sand lots, a great hitter but a clumsy fielder, is expected to use the following line-up tomorrow: Blades, lf; Douthit, cf; Hornsby, 2b; Bottomley, 1b; Hafey, rf; Bell, 3b; O'Farrell or Warwick, c; Thevenow, ss.

Choice of the pitcher is problematical.

Fort Worth has played only four of the seven games scheduled, cold or wet weather having prevented playing of the rest. The second game of the two-game series with Kansas City was called off today because of the norther.

CONLEY GIVES HERD REST.

DALLAS, March 25.—(AP)—Snipe Conley let most of his herd rest today for the White Sox bill which starts tomorrow. Only the batterymen worked out today. The Steer park was in perfect condition late today. Conley declared that it is the aim of the Steers to make a better showing against the pale hose than did Fort Worth, trimmed by the Chicagoans in two contests.

Dickie Shuman, who was so effective against the Kansas City Blues, will start on the mound for Dallas, with Victor, Darrough and Andrews in reserve. Bud Hungling will receive. It is probable that Paddy Bauman will head the battling list, but if his thumb is not healed, James will lead off.

EXHIBITION GAMES

AUSTIN, March 25—(AP)—Although outhit, the St. Louis Cardinals today defeated the Texas University Longhorns, 14 to 8, before a large crowd. Wildcats of Neale Baker, big eight hander, who in the second walked men in succession, contributed largely to the Longhorn defeat.

A large number of Manager Rogers Hornsby's kinfolks who live in this county were in the stands, but the "Rajah" collected only a single in six times at the plate. Bottomley with a homer and two singles led the Card attack, while Baumgartner, with three singles, was the leading hitter for the losers.

HOP-GROWERS COMBINE

With the BROWN in the SOUTH

BY NORMAN E. BROWN
Sports Editor of Central Press

Joe Shaute, young pitching star of the Cleveland Indians, had a poor year last season due to the fact that he couldn't seem to get anything on his curve ball.

No one was more disappointed over his failure to shine during the 1925 baseball season than Mrs. Joe Shaute, whose earnest desire to see her husband star far exceed her knowledge of baseball. And thereby hangs a tale.

It seems that the subject came up one day last winter while the Shautes and their neighbors, in their northern home, were enduring a veritable blizzard. The snow was a foot or so deep.

Now a pitcher needs three or four weeks under the warm rays of a southern sun to get his arm in shape to throw a curve. But that didn't worry Mrs. Shaute.

"Do you think you'll have a good year next season?" she asked.

"If I've got my curve I will," answered Joe.

"When will you know?" asked Mrs. Shaute.

"When I get down south," answered Joe.

"Why wait until then. We'll just go out now and you can try to throw one," suggested Mrs. Shaute with the enthusiasm of youth.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Well, Joe recovered from that one about the time that Manager Speaker gave him his first chance to "show his stuff" at the Indian's camp. It was during an exhibition game. Joe unlimbered and found his old curve ball breaking beautifully. He returned to the hotel jubilant. Mrs. Shaute had seen the game and was waiting for him.

"The old curve's there," remarked Joe.

"I didn't see you throw any, dear," said Mrs. Shaute.

"Well, what do you think a curve looks like?" asked the mystified Joe.

"Well, it's something like this," she replied and made the motion of a playful fish cavorting in a babbling brook.

"Oh,, boy, I wish I had that kind of a curve," remarked Joe. And then he explained to the Mrs. how a pitcher was well satisfied if the ball made just one of those clever darts of the finny tribe—and made it just when the batter swung.

But Mrs. Shaute doesn't mind the joke as long as it ends with her hubby grinning and the much discussed curve still there.

702 ATHLETES LINED UP FOR TEXAS RELAYS

Teams From Schools Over Nation Compete In Carnival

AUSTIN, March 25.—(AP)—Entrants in the Texas university relay games to be held here Friday numbered 702, as the lists closed today, L. Theo Bellmont, athletic director, announced.

Many of the contestants worked out on the Memorial Stadium track. Among this group were the members of the formidable Georgetown university team.

Color will be lent the relay carnival by the participation of Adrian Paulen of Holland, and 12 athletes from the National University of Mexico. Paulen will compete in two special events—running the quarter mile against Dick McNatt, captain of the 1924 Texas university track team, now a Beaumont newspaper reporter and the 220 yard dash against Cheaney, former Howard Payne university football and track star.

The National University of Mexico will enter teams in the half mile and medley relay races of the university division, while Herminio Alumada will compete in the 100 yard dash, and Armando Diaz in the 120 yard high hurdles.

By means of a radio amplifier, the words of the announcers will be broadcast to every section of the big stadium. The device is being used for the first time here, Director Bellmont said.

Indications are that the mile relay of the university class will be the most closely contested relay event. Fourteen fleet quartets are entered for laurels. They are: Georgetown, Illinois, Notre Dame, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Northwestern, Drake, Texas A. and M., Southern Methodist university, Iowa State college, Texas, Iowa university, and Oklahoma A. and M.

Iowa on Hand.

Iowa university's great combination, unbeaten this winter, rules a slight favorite to win in the mile. The team will be selected from Beatty, Roberts, Phelps, Cupel and Folwell. The Iowans won the mile championship at the Western Conference indoor meet.

With exception of Nebraska, Ohio State, Baylor, Rice and the National University of Mexico, every university that will compete has entered a team in the mile relay. Other relays of the university division are: the two mile, half mile, quarter mile, and mile and seven-eighths medley.

In the college division, competition will be staged in the mile and seven-eighths medley, mile and half mile relays. Schools entering teams in one or all of these events are: Ohio Wesleyan, Burleson college, Haskell Institute, Augusta college, Sioux Falls, S. D., West Texas State Teachers college, Southwest Texas State Teachers college, Howard Payne, Southwestern university, Drury college and Texas Tech.

Schools that will participate in the one mile relay for junior colleges and academies are: Burleson college, Wesleyan, Schreiner Institute, Allen Academy, San Marcos Baptist Academy, and San Antonio Academy.

Eight Special Events.

Three relays are open to high school speedsters: the half mile, one mile and medley mile. In the medley mile, the first team member runs 440 yards, the second and third 220 yards, and the fourth a half mile.

High school teams entered are: Sunset high, Dallas; Main Avenue, San Antonio; Central, Fort Worth; Cameron, Lampasas; Flatonia, Oak Cliff, Dallas; Smithville, Rockdale, Austin, Bartlett, Forest, Dallas; Cleburne, Bryan, Dalls; Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Somerville, and Pernell, Okla.

Athletes of university or college rank are eligible to compete in eight special events: 100 yard dash; 120 yard high hurdles, shot putt, discus throw, high jump, running broad jump, pole vault, and javelin throw. Many of the outstanding college track and field stars of the country are entered in the relay specialties.

High school and academy stars will compete among themselves in the 100 yard dash, the 120 yard high hurdles, shot putt and high jump.

VEIN AWAITS BLAST

Rich Gold Lode Needed But One Shot To Expose It.

SAN BERNADINO, Cal., March 25.—(AP)—For 28 years a rich strike of gold lay waiting in the Kramer hills for one last shot of powder to expose it. The romantic story of the discovery was told here today by Ed Herkelrath, who located the new strike of the Mojave desert.

In 1898 the late Austin Burcham, owner of the Yellow Aster mine, sank a shaft 40 feet in the Kramer hills and abandoned the property when word came of new riches in the Yellow Aster. Herkelrath said he found holes drilled for Burcham's last shot of powder while exploring the abandoned shaft. The powder had never been placed in the holes.

FIND NO POISON.

Viscera of Edinburg Youths Fail to Disclose Murder Clue.

AUSTIN, March 25.—(AP)—No known poisonous substance was found in the viscera of either Jacob Ertle or his brother, Andrew Ertle, twins, who died suddenly March 12, at Edinburg, Hidalgo county, Dr. E. H. Golaz, chemist and director of the food and drug division of the state health department reported today.

Chemical analysis failed to show suspected poison either in the three specimens of food, submitted by Dr. J. R. Malone, director of the Hidalgo county health unit, or in the stomachs, Dr. Golaz said. Dr. Golaz said the analysis did not determine the cause of the brothers' deaths.

NEVER AGAIN, THEY SAY

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—Two newspaper reporters who obligingly stood beside two holdup suspects at police headquarters here while the victim sought to identify his assailants declare they won't do it again. The victim "positively" identified one of the writers as one of the men who robbed him and the police had to extricate the reporter by explaining that the two were placed beside the suspects just to give the latter an even break.

Jawn McGraw One Of Those "Touts?"

TAMPA, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—John J. McGraw, master mind of the New York Giants and Florida real estate man, was unknowingly cast in a far different role by a messenger boy at Tampa downs yesterday.

Program in hand, Mr. McGraw was saying words to the effect "now I know this horse, you can't tell me he won't win."

The messenger boy, unaware of the speaker's identity, rushed to the manager of the telegraph office, brought the manager back and pointed at the Giants' leader.

"Is he one of those touts?" the boy asked.

It was explained that a special police force is maintained at the track to keep "touts" away. A "tout" is the synonym given the race track hanger on who usually wants to sell so-called inside information on the horses.

VETERANS BEAR BRUNT IN MAJOR DRIVE THIS YEAR

More Than 100 Seasoned Stars of Decade At It Again

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—The drives of 16 teams for baseball supremacy in the major leagues this year will summon an array of more than 100 veteran players, seasoned stars of a decade's diamond campaigning, to bear the brunt of the conflict.

Despite the popular conception of America's national pastime as ever beckoning to the athlete of the early 20's, rosters of the clubs indicate a growing tendency of managers to pin their faith largely on men between the ages of 30 and 40. This year the veterans will respond in increasing numbers to the call of base hit warfare with no less than 23 players of 35 or more years among outstanding dependables.

Tentative player lists for the season reveal that the youthful division claims 106 prospective starters, many of whom are likely to fall by the wayside in the march from southern training camps. No less than 124 men who have seen 30 summers come and go, however, are prepared to enter the arena, including most of the game's greatest players.

Burk, Hawks, Olney, Grandfield In Iowa Park Track Meet Today

Iowa Park, Burkburnett, Olney and Grandfield will hold a track meet in Iowa Park this afternoon begining promptly at 3 p. m. The Burkburnett team has been going strong of late and expects to cop many of the honors in the county tourney this year. Little is known of the strength of the three other clubs in the meet, but Burkburnett has one that will be hard to beat out.

Captain Harrold Hickam will enter the mile run, mile relay and the high jump for Burkburnett and will be greatly counted upon to lead the team to victory.

Johnnie McDonald is bidding fair to carry off several of the field events in the meet and has been showing up good with the javelin, shot put, discus and broad jump.

Douglas Tiffin will enter the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the broad jump. Leroy Eddie will be with Tiffin in all but the jump, and will run the low hurdles. H. D. Hund will enter the 440 yard run, mile run and mile relay.

Mitchell Wolfe has been sick but will try to enter the 440 yard run, high jump and relay. Floyd Patterson, who showed up nicely in the dual meet with Clara last Friday will enter this week in the javelin, pole vault, discus, broad and high jump.

Floyd Philipy will be counted on to help carry the honors in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, low and high hurdles. Wilburn Griffin will enter the high jump and mile relay.

Pat "Bananas" Hood, is back from last year and again is hogging the field. Hood will enter the 440 and 880 runs, the mile run and relay, 220 low hurdles and high jump.

Sam Moore will be out for pole vaulting alone.

Lee Horton will be out for the high jump alone. L. D. Stacy will enter both low and high hurdles. Milday Hall will enter the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Burkburnett's track prospects this year are certainly good and they are expected to go far in the Interscholastic League this year.

Mat Fans Thrilled, But Not by Rasler

DALLAS, March 25.—(AP)—Twenty sport fans attending a city hall wrestling bout last night got the thrill of their lives, but not from the wrestling.

No money is spared in the making of Camels. The tobacco is cured carefully and aged long. The exclusive Camel blend of fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos is the work of experts. The paper in which Camels are rolled is specially made in France to obtain the best. Nothing is too good or too expensive that will make Camels a better smoke. Young Stribling Pounds Way To Victory Over Jim Slattery

GEORGIA KID THRILLS CROWD IN FAST FIGHT

Judge Decision Awarded To Light-heavyweight After Slashing Battle

NEW YORK, March 25. (AP) — Young Stribling, light-heavyweight pride of Georgia, squared accounts with his youthful Buffalo rival, Jimmy Slattery, tonight. Before a capacity crowd of 18,000 in Madison Square Garden the speedy Georgian punched his way to decisive victory over Slattery, gaining the judges' decision in a ten-round match punctuated with thrills.

Stribling not only evened the score with Slattery, who gained a six-round decision over the Georgian two years ago, but did it in convincing fashion. Slattery was outpunched and outgeneralled except for occasional flashes and was on the verge of a knockout in the seventh round under a barrage of terrific right hooks to the jaw. A majority of ringside critics gave six of the ten rounds to Stribling and three to Slattery, with one even.

Slattery fought on the defensive almost from start to finish but even his shiftinness failed to keep him out of the way of Stribling's rushes and driving attack to the head and body. The Buffalo boy held his rival even for the first half of the battle with neither able to do much telling damage, but the Georgian's advantageas in weight, reach and hitting power told heavily throughout the closing half of the battle, with neither able to do much telling damage, but the Georgian's advantages in weight, reach and hitting power told heavily throughout the closing half of the battle, except for a courageous stand by Slattery in the ninth round.

ROUND ONE: Slattery jarred Stribling with overhand right as they came together. Stribling caught Slattery on ropes and battered him with left as he held with right. Slattery came back to jab rival away. They pummeled each other at close range. Stribling took Slattery's right to head and came back smiling at the bell.

ROUND TWO: Stribling landed with both hands to the body. He was cautioned by referee for rough tactics in the clinches. Slattery stood the Georgian off with a fast jab and pounded Stribling's head during a clinch. Stribling rushed Slattery to the ropes but failed to connect. Slattery outboxed the Georgian and the crowd yelled. They both fell to the floor while clinched just before the gong sounded.

ROUND THREE: Stribling snapped Slattery's head back with a left, but took a flurry of jabs in return. Stribling smashed his left to Slattery's jaw twice at close quarters. They sparred a lot at long range. Stribling worked one left to head bu took smacking right to the jaw in return. They were sparring at the bell.

ROUND FOUR: They exchanged light blows to the jaw in a mild flurry. Stribling leaped in and connected twice to the head with his left. The crowd yelled for action as they continued to spar. Slattery landed right uppercut but was sent back with a sharp left to the ribs. They were dancing when the gong sounded.

ROUND FIVE: Stribling fought out of clinch but found the dancing Slattery a elusive target but they clinched repeatedly with honors even in in-fighting. Stribling missed a wild swing and took a snappy jab to the jaw. Slattery's left jab stopped the Georgian's occasional rushes. They were locked together at the ropes at the bell.

ROUND SIX: Slattery used his left jab effectively but took pounding about the ribs in an exchange along the ropes. Stribling chased his rival to a corner but failed to connect solidly. The Georgian's overhand right caught Slattery twice on the head. Slattery was on the defensive as the round ended.

ROUND SEVEN: Stribling punished Slattery about the head and body as he drove him to the ropes. Stribling rocked Slattery with a terrific right to the jaw. Slattery was groggy and backed to the ropes. Slattery danced and covered up, but he took another hard right to the head. Blood was flowing from Slattery's mouth and he appeared in bad shape as the bell stopped Stribling's attack.

ROUND EIGHT: Stribling sent Slattery's head back with a short left. Another left jarred the Buffalo boy but he countered lightly with his right. Stribling lay back, waiting for an opening, while Slattery danced and jabbed. They traded wallops on the head in a corner. They were sparring when the round ended.

ROUND NINE: Stribling pummeled Slattery as they came together on the ropes. The Georgian stuck in his left jab repeatedly without a return. Slattery seemed intent on making a defensive fight of it and duck his head through the ropes to avoid punishment on one occasion. Slattery landed flush on Stribling's jaw with a right hook. Another choppy right and two left jabs jarred Stribling as the bell rang.

ROUND TEN: Slattery got in two left jabs but was pounded about the head and body at close ranges. Stribling landed three sharp jabs to the jaw without a return. They exchanged rights to the jaw. Slattery blocked the Georgian's rushes. Slattery was sent back on his heels with a sharp right hook. They were battling with both hands as the bell rang.

Gotham Fight Was Safe, Because 'One Eye' Is in Texas

BEAUMONT, March 25.—(AP)—Tex Rickard's Stribling-Slattery fight in New York tonight was safe. O. E. Connelly, otherwise "One Eye" blew into Beaumont late this afternoon, far from Rickard's new Madison Square Garden which the champion gate crasher admits is going to be tough. Connelly is headed for San Antonio for a look at Hornsby's Cardinals, his choice in the National league race this year. He has been spending the winter in Florida, having hustled over there for the Stribling-Tunney bust recently.

Top 'O Morn Stuff

By "Blondy" Cross

Motto: "RAZZ THE RAZZERS"

THOSE BLUES.

The Kansas City version of that ancient but still popular hymn (in some sectors), "Those Take Me Home Again Blues," undergoes Spudder orchestration in the merry music of base knocks at the Gardner pavilion today. Brainard swings his bat on in matinee performance at 3 o'clock.

• • •

We understand the society for prevention of cruelty to animals called on Cop Commish Queisser and Big Chief Hodgins yester morn in effort to halt last night's wrestling melee.

• • •

But no fooling, a number of persons telephoned police headquarters and urged that a wet blanket be thrown over the match. Can you feature that? Those people, you know, are not forced to attend the show if they don't appreciate it.

• • •

? ? ? ?

There is no law against wrestling bouts, and there is in Texas against—

Oh well, what's the use?

• • •

Aw Right, Aw Right, Aw Right

Well, well, well, another missive from a customer. Pop McGowan over at Devol seems all stirred up over the Bodie-Washburn first base situation of which we commented on quite lengthily in Tuesday morning's Record News.

McGowan writes:

"Dear Blondy:

"I always doubted the ability of guess hitters and since your recent brain-storm, rise to remark that you he better follow the example of the garrulous Ping Bodie and let no good ones pass.

• • •

Jake 'nd Think I Was Framing Him

"If Jake Atz reads your enlightening column no doubt there will be a lively scramble for a utility berth on the Cat team between Foss and Windle as the foxy Atz will put Poss Moore on short to get the benefit of his sparkling fielding and base running as well as his powerful hitting.

• • •

HURRAY!

"But, seriously, we can't see any logic in putting the tried and trusted Mule Washburn on the shelf to make way for a rookie no matter what his potential worth may be.

"In these hectic days no chance of a slip-up should be allowed. Those Cats MUST be beaten, and the Spudders look like the only club in the circuit capable of turning the trick!

• • •

ATTA BOY!

"I was once a fan of the Oklahoma City Indians and more than once the mighty Washburn, then a second baseman on the Tulsa Oilers machine, made me quake and quiver as he strode to the platter. I would like to see him give some of those cowtown boys delirium tremens as well as put the skids under some of Jakie's prize hurlers.

• • •

? ? ? ?

"As far as I know, Metzler is a nice lad, good to his folks and never forgets to wash his ears. But he failed to be a menace to the peace and quiet of Western association hurlers last year and I don't believe he has shown enough to be given a place on the Spudder machine when it means the gate for the slugging Washburn.

"A Spudder fan,

"POP McGOWAN"

• • •

STRIKE ONE!

Maybe as how we are about to be called out on strikes, Pop. But we've still got another cut at the ball coming. And, as said, if we're retired as a guess hitter we'll start swinging at 'em again, just keep on cutting away until they ask us who we're waving at. But just a subtle (?) hint to-wit, we remarked in that story about Ping, Mule and Alex that we may have obtained our info from Spud headquarters, maybe from Manager Brainard or that it might just be a sudden hallucination all of our own concoction and followed with, "Take it or leave it." Do you get the point? Wouldn't think of giving anybody a bum steer. Naw sir!

• • •

Your arguments for keeping Washburn at first base and Ping in the outfield, cutting Metzler adrift are fairly good, fairly logical and based on fairly substantial foundations. But Fred Brainard is the man who will decide that. Neither you nor I have any choice in the matter other than that of freely expressing our opinions which in some instances may mean very little.

• • •

Personally, the writer hopes Mule comes around in great form and sticks on the job making the Spudders a very valuable man. As our old friend Doc Landon puts it, "You can't have a championship ball club unless you have a sure-fire first baseman." Incidentally, first base always has been the Spudders' sore spot. It was either a combination of a good hitter and poor fielder on the initial cushion or just the converse, a wonderful fielder and latent willow wielder.

• • •

Ping, in truth, is not a first sacker, but—

He CAN get in front of 'em and he CAN massage that old pelota!

He's not physically built for the job, but what are you going to do about it?

And Pingus has that old battle spirit!

• • •

Don't want to see Mule move on; don't want to see Metzler depart. May the good Lord perform a little miracle for us and keep 'em both.

But he won't!

• • •

Didn't Menace Hurlers! Ye Gawds!

The Devol Spudder fan is all off in regards to Metzler's hitting in the Western association last year. Pitchers felt like ducking and hoofing it for the club house every time he came to the pan. Alex poled the pill at a .353 gait. Was in 98 games. Did you get that? He slammed the agate for a .353 average. In 40 Texas league games last summer, Metzler amassed a .316 batting figure. (Be sure and tag that correctly, Mr. Printer). He hit .316 in 40 Texas loop contests. And this year it looks like he's going to make the sky his limit. Yessir, appears like it's Alec's year to come through in great style.

• • •

What're you going to do, I ask you, in a case like that? Oh, well, lots of time yet. Season opens April 14 and then Texas league clubs have 39 days longer in which to conform to the 16-man player limit.

• • •

Heh, heh, heh, those Cats are finding it quite difficult to win many of these exhibition tiffs. All of which doesn't mean anything as far as the Texas League is concerned. But anyhow, it's sweet music to be listening to, those alibi wails emanating from Fort Worth as how "them bebbies" lost another. Just like to see 'em get licked whether it counts or not.

• • •

SPRING ALIBI PRACTICE

Get a kick out of reading after the Cowtown scribes who opine as how the pitchers the Cats faced this day and that day they lost are first class heavers and you can't expect our Panthers to win against 'em, and then maybe peruse on down the column a bit and see in black face type where "Cats lack punch to count." Pleasant literature.

• • •

Seems a terribly lengthy span of time until April 18 and 19 when the clouting Spudders take their first whacks at the Cowtowners down in the stockyards regions. Boy! But when those days do come, we'll be there! Man! Man! Shame the gang doesn't get first cut at those Cats instead of having to wait four days after the drive is on!

• • •

Why doesn't Ad Santel, the light heavyweight mat champ, draw bigger crowds when he wrestles here? There is no smarter nor cleaner wrestler in the game today, and there are NOT more than two, three or maybe four men in the world who can beat him, and no light heavies whatsoever!

• • •

Santel is very popular with this city's fandom. Everybody wants to see him win and seems to be his friend. There you have it, as Dutch Mantell puts it, it's not your friends who pay so heavily at the box office. They don't settle up with the grocer. It's they boys who want to see you get beat. That's how Mantell fills the hall. Your proud wrestling fan chirps that he wants to see nothing but clean, sportsmanlike performances. Then passes up a Santel match to see Mantell climb into the ring and rough some brother wrestler at a furious gait.

Mantell's enemies, the lads who want to see him licked to a frazzle do more to keep Dutch's purse silver-lined than all the friends the Columbus wildman ever developed. And he has many.

Ernie Nevers Plays New Role This Year—Will He Fizzle Like Thorpe?

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Central Press Sports Editor.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla.—George Sisler, laboring to tune his Browns into pennant winning shape here and confident that his year is at hand, has two interesting young men with his club who did not receive an introduction last spring for the simple reason they weren't with the club.

One is Oscar Melillo, the second baseman who set a world's fielding record in the American Association last year.

And the other is Ernie Nevers, who was to the Pacific coast in football what Red Grange was to the territory east of the Mississippi. This Leland Stanford star is conceded to be the greatest fullback the west has ever produced—if not the best the country has developed.

Between gridiron seasons at school Nevers played baseball and proved himself a good college player as a pitcher and a hitter.

Have Proper Foundation.

Nevers' baseball showing was not, however, what prompted the big league teams to angle for his services (the Browns had to pay him cold cash to sign a contract). It was the chance that, being an all around athlete, he might develop into a big league ball player.

Perfect co-ordination of brain and muscles form the basis for the star athlete, whether he is a football, baseball or track star. It is in the hope that they can combine this perfect co-ordination with the technical part of baseball and become stars that big league teams try out some of these sensational college boys.

Thorpe Was Failure.

John McGraw signed Jim Thorpe for that reason. Here was a man who had the perfect physique, absolute control of himself physically, keen perception (judging by his daring, elusive running on the football field) and the apparent natural ability to "pick up" any sport. He had played some baseball in college.

But he was a total failure as a big league ball player because, though he labored hours a day at the batting cage, he could not learn to locate curve balls when they came over the plate.

Whether or not Nevers will find himself faced with such an unsurmountable obstacle remains to be seen.

Looks Like Natural Hitter.

He looks to me like a natural hitter—against spring pitching. How he will fare as the hurlers hook the ball more and more remains to be seen. He handles himself well in the outfield and would therefore find an opening in the lineup were he to develop into a good hitter.

Women Jockeys Ride for Charity On Florida Track

Four Furlong Sprint Won By Miss Virginia Bufford On Billy

TAMPA, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—Society women turned jockeys for a day today and held a horse race for charity.

Miss Virginia Bufford, riding Billy, won the four furlong sprint in one minute. Miss Adelbert Oberman was second and Miss Pauline Jones on Starlight third.

Miss Bufford handled her mount well and saved ground on the stretch turn. Miss Oberman, on Hal, took the lead on the first turn and held on gamely while Miss Jones brought Starlight up with a rush but was too far back to take the lead.

Others in the race finished in the order named:

Mrs. R. A. Green, King, fourth; Miss Helen Mackey, Kitty, fifth; Miss Jean Hall, Delle, sixth; Miss Ione Davis, Proctor, seventh.

All the riders were of Tampa except ten-year-old Miss Jean Hall, of Miami. Miss Hall handled her mount well but the best she could get in the form charts was "also ran."

The race was handled in the regular manner. It was the fourth event on a card of eight races. Mutuel tickets were sold, ten per cent of the proceeds going to the children's home here.

SKULL PRACTICE

Kentucky racing commission rules off four jockeys and three owners for pulling horses, but that doesn't put anything back in the pockets of the goofs who bet money on the horses. Perhaps, however, the incident will stir up a little skull practice.

DUTCH TAGS IT ON ERNIE WITH FRENCH SOCKO

Mantell Wins Hard Match By Heavy Kick To Equator

BY BLONDY CROSS.

Al (Dutch) Mantell, the riotous welterweight "brute-man" from Columbus, temporarily settled his score with Ernie Maddock, sturdy Cleveland junior middle, last night in the feature match of the Wichita Falls wrestling association card at the 812 1-2 Scott gym.

The primeval Dutchman, although wrestling under "restrictions," in that the strangle hold, eye gouge and all blows with the closed fist were barred, managed to disable Maddock sufficiently to win his battle in one fall.

Striving desperately time and again on apparent verge of defeat before the onslaughts of the young Clevelander who carried the fight to him the greater part of the way, if you subtract a rather latent five-minute opening of the encounter on the part of Maddock, the Dutchman in furious rally found his breach and tabulated with a well-planted hoof in Ernie's equatorial regions.

44 Minutes, 40 Seconds.

The sock would have been a complete knock-out if they had been fighting under old French prise ring rules when a kick to the midriff and ten seconds on the floor accorded victory to the kicker.

But this, gentlemen, was a wrassling match. Mantell booted the wind out of Maddock like a Varsity fullback punts the stuffing out of the pigskin when it's third down, ten to go, and his eleven's backed up on its own 20-yard line. The punt sent Ernie up and then down in a perfect spiral kick, only the ball in this instance when it landed was in uninflated condition. Mantell pounced on his stricken foe like the same fullback diving after a fumble. Tagged on an arm bar and body scissors. The game was over. Fall came in 44 minutes and 40 seconds.

Following the allotted five-minute intermission, Maddock returned in sad plight, but still game and willing to finish 'er out. Matchmaker Alec Ross put it up to the ringsiders, declaring: "Ernie insists on coming back for the second fall although he is in no condition to do so. It will only be a matter of half a minute or so before Mantell can win the fall if he does go on."

Fandom almost on the whole turned thumbs down, although there were a few blood-thirsty bozos who heartlessly yelped for more gore. The match was called immediately and decision awarded to Mantell.

No Flagrant Fouls

No, Alice, "that cruel Dutchman" did not foul Ernie. They wrestled under the New York biff commish rules. The commish, as you know, although governing both boxing and wrestling, knows very little about either sport.

Under these edicts only one finger is allowed in the cheek. Can't tear the mouth quite as effectively as could be accomplished if two or three digits were allowed. 'Sall right to sock with the heel of the hand, and kick with one or both feet—the latter if you can get the two of 'em off the floor at the same time.

Maddock put Mantell in a bad way on numerous occasions with heavy headlocks, got a trio of leg splits, and caused trouble with several bar arm locks.

Referee Oscar Dodson, a wonderful showman, time and again forcefully separated the contestants when they were under the ropes, the Dutchman being the malefactor on all occasions.

Dutch came near to winning early with a nasty head scissors that apparently had Ernie about out, but in a desperate and equally herculean effort, Maddock struggled to his feet and broke the hold by the simple process of flopping backward and pitching Columbus on his cauliflower.

Yeah, and about that time they started this heaving 'em through the ropes stuff. If you counted victory points on who chunked the other into the spectator's laps the most then Dutch earned the verdict. He caters more to that style of grappling and, naturally, is more experienced at the maneuver than Maddock.

Ernie Tits For Tat

But Ernie kept coming on up and after 'em. Got a mean standing leg split at one juncture and it began to look like curtains for the voluble Scotch-Irishman. But after enduring quite a lengthy bit of torture Mantell managed to rock loose, flipping Ernie back as the latter lost his hold, and then pivoted (Dutch did) and grabbed the referee by a pedal extremity, upsetting him also.

Maddock almost had Mantell down at the 25-minute period with a gladsome headlock, we say gladsome because 98 per cent of leather lunged fandom cheered lustily. But Dutch squeezed around and worked to the ropes, an oasis both men were forced to seek in the desert of torture holds times innumerable.

Mantell came back with a damaging Japanese toe hold. We, personally would call it a cross-bent ankle scissors, that almost put Maddock out of commission. Ernie, enduring apparent untold torture, finally twisted around and got out under the ropes.

The Clevelander followed a few seconds later with a leg split that through the natural course of events worked itself into a step-over toe hold, then a double step-over. But did that tough Dutchman go down on that? Naw sir! Wiggled around, endured copious pain, but finally worked his way off the mat.

Dutch retaliated a moment later by getting advantage of the leverage and hoisting Ernie overboard into the soft laps of two rather rotund ringsiders. No damage registered.

Ernie came back very aggressively and doled Mantell some of his own rough stuff. Maddock is a much better boxer than the Dutchman. Yeah, but doesn't know how to use the Savat, one-time Frenchie kayo wallop delivered with the shoe.

Maddock had all the better of the late mauling with exception of two occasions when Mantell hoisted him on high by the shanks and beat a bruising tattoo on the ring floor with Ernie's blond dome.

Maddock dealt Duth A-1 much misery in the fag-end sessions, but that perfectly aimed TNT kick to the solar plex spoiled the effect. The conquered challenged the conqueror to a return go under Police Gazette rules, winner-take-all. The Savat would be barred in that instance.

Oscar Dodson, Iowa light heavy and Jack Vincent of Lawton divided falls in a 45-minute preliminary mill. This was a hilarious affair itself. Dodson took first honors, if such it could be called, in 17 minutes and 20 seconds with a head scissors and arm bar. Vincent won the second fall with a toe hold in 26 minutes and 35 seconds.

Elephants Brassiere of West Conference Takes to Disorderly Flight Before Longhorns in Eighth Inning With Score, 32-5

By JINX TUCKER.
Waco News-Tribune Sports Editor.

This is a several days old item with a new slant. It's about a Big 10 baseball team coming down to Texas to tangle bats with the Longhorns (and bats is the proper word) at Austin Tuesday. It's a story about a game that was called in the first half of the eighth inning when the Minnesota University Gophers got so downright discouraged about ever being able to retire the Texans that their coaches feared they'd miss a train which was to carry them away from the Colorado hills at 9:45 that night.

Like a Cat's Ankle.

As much baseball as we've seen, and as much fun as we've had watching freak games and writing about freak games, we couldn't help writing about this one, because it was the "downrightest, doggonedest" affair we ever did see, bar nothing.

The Western conference, perhaps better known as the Big 10, as all close followers of intercollegiate sport realize, is the elephant's brassiere in all college athletics. Del Pratt, genial manager of the Waco baseball team of the Texas league, and who during the winter is closely connected with University of Michigan athletics at Ann Arbor, will tell you so with good natured emphasis. The real facts of the situation, however, are that the prestige of Big 10 baseball is built largely on the reputation of the football teams produced by the Western conference, which certainly rank with the best in the country; the basketball teams and the track teams are also great as the football teams and the casual observer merely figures that the baseball teams also rank in the same manner.

The Western conference leaders in baseball, among which the Minnesota Gophers are numbered, also believe that their grade of baseball compares favorably with any of the college brand in these United States. At least the Gophers did believe that until Tuesday. Perhaps they know better now. Anyway, they should know that baseball as played in the Southwestern conference, and at the University of Texas, in particular, ranks second to none in the broad expanse which extends from the Pacific slope to the rugged Atlantic shore.

Down They Come.

So Minnesota came to Austin Tuesday. They came to defeat a team which had "bucked out" on them the year previous, and in 1924. They came to show the capital city fans that this little upstart college team in Texas wasn't "so many" in the baseball world even if it did win the championship in its section every year. They had lost to the Texas Aggies, 5 to 1 at College Station, but that meant absolutely nothing. They were going to beat Texas. They had been instructed to do so by their coach, who had ordered them to uphold the vaunted athletic prestige of the Big 10.

And they played baseball as it probably is played in the Big 10. And Texas played baseball as taught and as ordered by Uncle Billy Disch, master intercollegiate baseball coach of the country. The score was 32 to 5. Minnesota was fortunate to get the five. Minnesota was fortunate to hold Texas down to the 32.

Lots of Pep, Dash.

Minnesota went into the game with a snap and a dash characteristic of the athletes from the middle west. There was verve in every step, and there was a gaping opening for a hard-hit ball to go winging through, or a slow hit ball to go bounding through at each position. There was rubber in every Gopher glove, and today in dismay they are still rubbing bruised shins, which failed to respond with the eye, which at least failed to jump in time. Every Texas bat was choked with hits and the Gopher pitchers managed somehow to get most of these hits out. The score was 32 to 5, and no less than eight Texas players perished in attempts to steal, as they, in silent sympathy, aided and abetted the enemy in putting them out. The score was 32 to 5. The scorer says the hits were 37, but he doesn't know. He was fortunate to keep up with the runs, and in one inning, it is our honest opinion that he was so busily engaged in making changes in the lineup and marking up runs, that he overlooked one home run. The score, in our opinion was 34, and in everybody's opinion it could have been more had not the very careful Minnesota coach become afraid that his team would miss the 9:45 train. It might have been more but for the sympathetic heart of Uncle Billy Disch, who gave ear to the entreaty and then asked Umpire Blue Meyers to call the game. The sun was still shining, and another inning or two might have been played, but it was only a matter of several hours before the departure of the train, and Texas had made 10 runs in the seventh. The astute Minnesota coach, with no more pitchers at his command, did not want to begin the eighth. So the game will go down into Texas athletic history as a 32 to 5 combat, called in order to allow the Gophers to catch a train.

Didn't Last Long.

Minnesota outplayed Texas for the first half of the first inning. Minnesota scored two runs before Texas could get "in town." Minnesota disposed of Clyde Pratt, first Longhorn batter, and at the end of the first two batters inning was leading 2-1. Then up stepped Williamson to slap out a homer over the left field wall, followed by a screaming triple to right by Ollie, and as the inning closed the score was tied. The Minnesota team didn't score in the second, and when Texas came to the bat they drove the Gophers in a hole so deep, it took them the better part of an hour to get out. Seventeen Texas players went to the bat in this inning, and 12 of them scored. Ten scored before the Gophers got a man out. That they were ever able to get the Longhorns out in this inning they have the fear of the Texas team to thank. The Longhorns feared that the game would go into the twilight of the evening before the fifth round.

So for the third, fourth and fifth innings, the Steers hurried things along, making only two, three or four runs per inning, and usually running until they were put out, if not at first, well at second, if not at second, then at third. And then if necessary, why they would steal home, sometimes with success, and other times with failure. The Gophers were at their best in putting the Texans out when they took the so-called unnecessary chances, but the chances were necessary, for on these chances hinged the possibility of concluding the game before dark.

Out Went the Pitchers.

After the fifth inning, which meant come what may it was a ball game, the Longhorns decided they were not in such a big hurry after all. They began cracking down once more, and the Gophers' second and third pitchers became a bit too warm. They needed the invigorating shower and they got it. The fourth hurler, or perhaps it was the fifth, was the toughest of all. A World war veteran so they say. He was in the box in the seventh inning, and nothing fazed him. Standing out on the hillock he weathered the storm of hits in a manner as calm as a seasoned sailor. As Howard Williamson cracked out his second homer, a most disheartening wallop which carried 50 feet over the left field wall, and which sent scampering home, the fifth, sixth and seventh runs of the inning, the Gopher pitcher merely looked on sullenly. It was plain to perceive that the slaughter was nothing for him to be perturbed over.

The Texans could do naught but admire his nerve, his nonchalant attitude in the face of such a debacle, and when a bounder went crashing off his shins to add the tenth run of the inning, the Longhorns moved almost to tears by their admiration of the pitcher's courage, relented. They began to try to steal bases as they did when they were trying to hurry the game along and the last Gopher pitcher finished the inning, holding the Steers down to 10 runs and just about as many hits for the round.

And they do tell us that Clark, the Minnesota pitcher, for that was his name, the very personification of courage, grit and fortitude, had not only agreed, but had asked to go back to the box for another bombardment, but now came the Minnesota coach's messenger with the glad tidings that Uncle Billy Disch, in one of his kind moments, had agreed to a truce for the day.

So the boys from Minnesota, up in the Western conference, where they do everything in athletics better, were able to catch the 9:45 train, bound somewhere away from the banks of the Colorado. They caught the train, but that's about the only thing they caught on Tuesday, March 23, 1926, a never-to-be-forgotten occasion.

They came, they saw, and the score was 32 to 5!

FEW ROOKIES MAKE RIPPLE THIS SUMMER

Not Many New Flingers To Start Season Under Big Top

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Despite noteworthy performances by aspiring young pitchers, reports from baseball training camps indicate that few new flinging arms will figure in the 1926 major pennant hunts.

Correspondents at the skirmish fronts assert that this has been an unusual year for early form by veteran twirlers, with the Braves and Giants of the National league leading both circuits in spring pitching effectiveness as a result the minor leagues, which have already taken back a generous portion of their candidates, will gather in most of the others before the season gets under way.

The Exceptions.

Few exceptions stand out as almost certain to make the grade. In the American league, Myles Thomas, former Toronto hurler, seems to have clinched a place on the Yankee staff, while Alphonse Thomas of Baltimore, is expected to be retained by the White Sox.

Several youngsters are making a gallant fight to stick with the Senators and Braves. Manager Bucky Harris has indicated that he will likely take two of a quartet that has been hurling impressively for Washington. Willard Morrell, Harry Kelly, Clarence Thomas and Jim Lyle. Werts and Hearn may gain berths on the Boston National staff.

Ed Braechet, 19-year-old sensation in the camp of the Phillies, virtually has earned his major league spurs, Manager Arthur Fletcher indicates. In the camp of the Cardinals, Hallahan of Syracuse has impressed Manager Hornsby while McNamara has convinced John McGraw of the Giants that he is unquestionably a hurler of big league timber.

Regs Carry Burden.

Pitching regulars on nearly all the clubs have furnished the spring season's surprise. Carl Mays, submarine hurler of the Reds, a disappointment last year has been one of the most effective pitchers in the Cincinnati camp, while indications are that Adolfo Luque, Cuban star, has entirely recovered from an operation for appendicitis.

Detroit has already disposed of its Holy Cross prospect, Ownie Carroll and will depend on its veteran stars. Connie Mack has high hopes for his high priced Baltimore purchase, Lefty Groves, although the International speed ball king still apparently is lacking in control.

Mexico Runs Down American's Slayer In City of Ixtlan

MEXICO CITY, March 25.—(AP) Four Mexicans have been placed in jail at Ixtlan under charges in connection with the recent murder of Rex McIlpone, an American near Ixtlan, William P. Blocker, American consul at Mazatlan, reported to the American embassy today. Another held charged with the murder of Joe Hall, an American employed by the Mexican, Remigio Ruelas, already was Mexican National railways, last Monday near Ixtlan.

Consul Blocker made a personal investigation at Ixtlan and Tepic regarding the two murders. Afterward he telegraphed the embassy that the Mexican federal and state authorities were doing their utmost to capture all those involved in the murders of Hall and McIlpone and the wounding of E. H. Heidenkamp, another American who was with McIlpone.

Sewer Line From State Hospital To City Assured, Parnell Reports

SENATOR BACK FROM AUSTIN

Has Approval of Governor And Attorney General For Warrants

Construction of a sewage disposal line from the Wichita Falls State hospital grounds to connection with the city's lines, a project involving an expenditure of some $25,000 has been assured, it was announced here Thursday by Senator J. D. Parnell who has just returned from Austin. Senator Parnell has been working on the matter for some time and has finally overcome all obstacles in the way of the improvement.

Goes Into Creek.

At present the asylum sewage is disposed by being emptied into Holiday creek. Considerable complaint has been made because of the unsanitary conditions this creates and the new line has been deemed an absolute necessity.

When built it will probably skirt through the municipal golf club grounds to a connection with the Holiday street mains. Senator Parnell said yesterday he had obtained approval of both Governor Ferguson and Attorney General Dan Moody for issuing deficiency warrants to finance the construction.

May Get Gas.

The possibility of securing gas lines for the hospital grounds is believed to be enhanced through action now being taken by the Municipal Gas company in making a survey of the buildings and grounds. Assurance has been given him, Senator Parnell states, that if revenues will justify the expenditure of an extension to the lake, this will be made also. Inasmuch as such a line could not only serve the hospital but the municipal golf club grounds and all the territory being opened up in that vicinity, this step is regarded as not all unlikely.

More Ticket Bombs

The 142nd Infantry Officers club of Wichita Falls, organized for the purpose of aiding the local national guard post, has gone on record as having each officer purchase ten tickets to the "Military Frolic,' in addition to the 100 that are to be sold by each company.

The Officers club is underwriting the guard's part of the expenses. Since the officers have taken this responsibility, much assistance is being given from the outside.

Lieutenant Davasher again flew over the schools Thursday and bombed children with passes for the matinee performance. Dodgers were also dropped from the plane, giving the place and the date of the show. The lieutenant flies for Denver, Colo., Friday but will be back to give to the school children more complementary tickets on Monday.

Teachers of the schools will also be given passes in order that a watchful eye might be kept on the youthful audience, while children of school age accompanied by adults may also be passed.

Allison Speaks

"Rotary and Personality" was the subject on which J. H. Allison spoke before the Rotary club Thursday noon at the Kemp hotel when he showed how Rotary helps to build personalities, through its membership of one man from each classification, and how it fits into the scheme of developing personality. Rotary is instrumental in developing physical fitness, mental alertness, he said.

Horrace Robbins announced that Harry Fish, Rotary International director of Pennsylvania, and Tom Davis of Butte, Mont., candidate for the presidency of national Rotary, would speak at the district convention to be held in Amarillo, April 23-24.

A short talk were made by Walter D. Cline. Marvin McFall introduced the visitors. Al Ellis introduced the speaker of the day.

Miss Dorothy Reed announced the play, "The Whole Town's Talking," which is to be given at the Junior college Tuesday and Wednesday nights by the Junior college Spanish club.

A singsong was led by Mayor R. E. Shepherd accompanied at the piano by J. S. Pitman. He sang a solo with Mrs. Shepherd at the piano.

Pastor Accepts

Rev. Dan E. Grieder of Terrell has accepted the call of the First Presbyterian church of this city, to supply as pastor of the church during the months of May, June and July, in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Nat F. Grafton, who is ill at his home in this city.

Rev. Grieder has been pastor of the Presbyterian church of Terrell for the past five years, but resigned the first of 1926, the resignation to take effect the middle of April. He will be in Wichita Falls during the latter part of next month, it was said yesterday. A session of the church was held Tuesday night and called Rev. Grieder to supply, but the acceptance was not made until Thursday.

MORE WATER USED

Water users of the city set a big record Tuesday when more than four million gallons were consumed during the day, according to the report of Dr. A. H. Dougles, manager of the city water department. Seven million gallons is the record set for water used during the summer months.

The high record was set, too, immediately following the two and one-half inch rain. Reason for usage of the water is because of a large amount of building going on in the city and the planting of shrubs and grass.

Overcoats and Heavy Clothes Come Out Again as Biting Norther Hits Wichita Falls Early Thursday a. m.

Clear With Predictions Of Frost Given For This Vicinity Friday; Little Rain Falls During the Day

A slight rainfall followed by a norther that increased to a hard wind with a maximum velocity of 20 miles per hour, and a drop in temperature sent Wichitans Thursday hunting for overcoats and winter wraps that had been put away during the warm spring days just passed. Predictions for frost Thursday night were sent out by weather bureaus. The "wet" norther that reached Wichita Falls Wednesday night brought a precipitation of .02 inch.

At Breckenridge a hard rain fell with one and one-half inches, and a quarter of an inch fell in the neighborhood of Graham, according to the reports from the Wichita Falls and Southern railway. Slight rainfall accompanied by a drop in temperature was reported by the M. K. and T. railway, although through a part of the day Thursday the skies were clear.

The Fort Worth and Denver railway reports said the weather in the Panhandle was similar to that in Wichita Falls. A noticeable drop in the temperature was evidenced, and a frost was predicted for Thursday night.

Almost two and one-half inches of rain has fallen in the city since Saturday night. With the cooler weather, and the barometric pressure almost normal it is believed the skies will clear up again. A northeast breeze was still blowing at 5 o'clock Thursday.

His own house, the plaintiff alleges, as a result of the defendant's action, has been unrentable since.

Report Disappointing.

"While the report of Examiner Boles regarding the extension of the Denver road onto the South Plains was a disappointment, yet the people believe that the extension will be constructed. Much is expected of Wichita Falls in the fight and all feel confident the citizenship of this city will not disappoint them.

"The Upham Gas company shipped 66 carloads of 12-inch gas pipe into Childress Wednesday and a total of 150 carloads will be received by Sunday. This line goes to the Wheeler county field.
