Hoobler Indicted For Murder In Slaying Of Pendergraft

COTTON COUNTY FARM WORKER TO FACE TRIAL

Grand Jury Probing Slaying Of Wealthy Rancher Returns Bill

LIQUOR INDICTMENTS

Special Inquiry Results In Finding of 12 True Counts

D. J. Hoobler, farm hand, was indicted for murder in a bill returned Friday afternoon by the 78th district grand jury especially convened to investigate the shooting of Arthur Pendergraft, wealthy Oklahoma farmer, near here on Jan. 27. Eleven other true bills, all for felonies, were returned by the grand jury.

The indictments included bills against John Reynolds and Lloyd Hooks, arrested less than 24 hours before when the city police seized a car containing 196 pints of bottled in bond whisky and 20 gallons of alcohol Thursday evening. The two made bond immediately after the indictments were filed.

Liquor Indictments

Six indictments charging forgery against two negroes, two other whisky indictments, and one burglary bill were the others returned to Judge W. W. Cook. The grand jury was discharged, after their report was made at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. No written return was made.

Hoobler has been in the Wichita county jail since Feb. 8, when he led officers to a spot near Lake Wichita, where the body of Mr. Pendergraft, Hoobler's employer for 11 years, was found. On that same day he made his first oral statement to C. O. Hooper, sheriff of Cotton county, Oklahoma, stating that he had shot Mr. Pendergraft in self defense as the two were fighting on the Henrietta road at sundown on Sunday, Jan. 27. The statement was a part of the evidence presented to the grand jury Friday.

Complete Statement

The arrest of Hoobler followed a wide-spread investigation begun when Mr. Pendergraft, who had presumably started on a trip to East Texas, failed to return to his home in Cotton county or to communicate with his family. Hoobler, foreman of the Pendergraft farm, had accompanied his employer to Wichita Falls and planned to go on south and east with him, but had returned alone to the farm on Jan. 28, explaining that Mr. Pendergraft had gone on another business trip with a third man.

The discovery of the loss of 11 head of cattle from the Pendergraft farm two days later led to arrest of Hoobler on charges of theft. He later made a complete statement to Sheriff Hooper and to George Anderson, assistant district attorney.

Sheriff Hooper, C. S. McCaistion, county attorney of Cotton county, and Mrs. Arthur Pendergraft were among the witnesses questioned by the grand jury Friday, in addition to the officer who went with Hoobler when he disclosed the hiding place of Mr. Pendergraft's body.

Hoobler will be given a speedy trial, the case probably to be set for the first week in March, members of the district attorney's office said after the grand jury report Friday.

Solution of Kidnaping Nears When Woman Held Changes Her Story

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22 (UP)—Disappearance in the shelter cited by Mrs. Charles Sharpe here of a private investigator for Dorris Virginia Murphy, 5-year-old girl who had been missing for nearly a week, caused Captain of Detectives Matheson to predict tonight he soon would learn the real identity of the kidnapers.

Through the cooperation of the United Press and Bert Brechtop News, Charles Sharp and his wife voluntarily returned the child unharmed to its parents, who spent a fruitful week while a state-wide search was being made for the kidnapers.

Identifies Watchman

Mrs. Sharp had told Captain Matheson that the little girl was given to her by a man in Vallejo last Friday night, a few hours after Doris disappeared from a playground here. She identified John K. Williams, watchman of the U. S. mint here, as the man who had taken the girl to Vallejo.

"Mrs. Sharp now admits she did not go to Vallejo last Friday to get the baby," Captain Matheson said, "but received Doris from a tall man dressed in dark clothes at the Ferry building in San Francisco.

"This leads us to believe we will find many other discrepancies in her story and we may soon determine definitely the identity of the kidnaper and motives of the crime."

Questioning Continues

Matheson continued the questioning of the Sharps tonight to learn the identity of a "tormentor" who wrote crude notes causing Doris' mother to collapse and also how it was possible the little girl had freedom in the center of San Francisco without being noticed.

Doris was safe in bed at the Murphy home tonight. The mother who had scarcely slept since her baby disappeared last Friday, was overcome with joy once she clasped her arms about Doris today.

"My baby," she cried, when Doris was brought to her and asked if this was her child. "My God, of course she's mine. Look at the underwear where I cut the sleeves out and put those tucks in. Look at the little chip back there in a tooth. She's mine—she's mine!"

Many facts remained unexplained after the return of Doris to her mother, chief of them the identity of a "tormentor" who wrote crude notes which caused the mother to collapse hysterically and the surprising manner in which Doris had freedom in the center of the city without being noticed.

However, the mother had difficulty in recognizing her child at first, for the girl's long, light brown eyelashes had been singed.

Sunshine Short Lived For Father of Two

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (AP)—Give a moment to the story of a taxi driver who disarmed a holdup man, picked up the thug's gun and later learned that the letter of the law can spell j-a-i-l even for an honest citizen.

Go back about three weeks and see Oliver Deardorff of Brooklyn jubilant over the taxi-piloting job he'd just landed after three months of searching for work. Mrs. Deardorff and their two pointsters are jubilant, also, for it's no fun trying to live for New York, with all the money going out and none coming in.

Well, the taxi business was going pretty well. It was good last night and early this morning, too, after the season's heaviest fall of snow. But then Oliver Deardorff got his bad break.

Ruth Elder and Art Goebel Escape Unhurt as Plane Crashes Into Crowd

GLENDALE, Cal. Feb. 22. (UP)—Ruth Elder and Art Goebel, famous ocean fliers, and several other notables escaped serious injury late today when they were knocked to the ground by an airplane while posing for pictures at the dedication of the $3,000,000 grand central air port here.

Priscilla Dean, screen star; Mayor George Cryer of Los Angeles; W. B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford air project; his daughter, Olive Peggy Hamilton, fashion editor of a Los Angeles newspaper, and Miss Virginia Sullivan, also were struck down by the tail of the plane.

Of the eight, three were hurt slightly. Miss Mayo suffered a sprained ankle and Miss Sullivan and Miss Hamilton were cut and bruised.

The craft was piloted by D. W. Tomlinson, formerly of the navy's "three sea Hawks" of the air.

Unaware that the group was standing at the side of the big Ford cabin plane, near the rear, Tomlinson started to take off. As he swerved slightly the tail of the plane swung around and struck the picture makers. Twenty thousand persons saw the eight knocked down.

Telephone Call to Capone In Florida Also Aired; Six Arrested

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (US)—Gangster guns tonight claimed another life while the authorities were leading every effort to solve the slaying of the seven Moran-O'Banion gangsters last week.

A bandit, who escaped, shot and killed Patrolman Arthur Vollmer, of the town hall station, in a running gun-battle following a hold-up of a dental office.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22. (AP)—Police lists today announced that the identity of the owner of the car believed to have been used by the gang assassins had been established and that a squad of detectives had been dispatched to arrest him.

Almost simultaneously the North Avenue hospital notified the police that a man, apparently an Italian, applied for treatment for burns there shortly after the automobile was found in a blazing garage last night. The man left before being treated. Authorities had a good description of him. It is the police theory that he was one of those engaged in destroying the automobile and was accidentally burned when the garage caught fire.

The police also announced they had been trying to trace a telephone call reported to have been made to "Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago gang leader, at Miami, Fla., a few minutes after the shootings.

SIX ARRESTED IN MASSACRE

CHICAGO, Feb. 22. (UP)—Eight days after the mass murders of seven members of the "Bugs" Moran gang in a north side garage, when solution of the massacre appeared hopeless, several new clues were turned up today to spur investigators to renewed activity.

Six men were arrested following the discovery in a private garage of a dismantled automobile, which police believe may have been the "death car" in which the murderers escaped last week. Parts of the car had been segregated under the heat of an acetylene torch. Smouldering sections of the car indicated the dismantlers had left in a hurry.

In Capone-Territory

The garage was located in the center of "Scarface Al" Capone's beer territory. Authorities considered the possibility that enemies of Capone might have used an old gangland trick of "planting" murder evidence to throw investigators off the track.

The car was of the same make as those used by detective bureau squads. Witnesses who had seen the Moran murderers escape in the car last week said two of their number wore police uniforms and drove a car resembling a squad car.

A gong, which was seen on the side of the "death car" was found in the private garage today. Police, who were attracted to the garage by smoke from the burning machine, said the gang was not identical but similar to those used by the detective bureau.

A woman's slipper was found in the wreckage of the car. It bore a Hammond, Ind., trademark. A box of matches in the garage bore the name of a Whiting, Ind., store.

Police arrested five men near the Circus cafe, a block and a half from the garage today.

A sixth man arrested today gave the name of Napoelian. He refused to give his first name.

CATO SELLS IS SEEN AS NEXT INDIAN HEAD

Texas Hoover Democrat May Get Post He Filled Under Wilson

CREAGER TO ASSIST

Texas Republican Hopes To Secure Big Plum For Demo Bolters

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—While the recent senatorial investigation of the bureau of Indian affairs in the department of interior does not bid fair to result in any constructive legislation at this session of congress, there are indications that it may have political consequences of direct interest to Texas.

It is known that friends of Cato Sells, who was commissioner of Indian affairs during President Wilson's administration and one of the leading Hoover democrats of his state during the last campaign, are urging his appointment to his old place, succeeding Commissioner Charles H. Burke, as solution for President-elect Hoover to clear up the bureau and allay criticism directed at it.

Creager Expected

Col. R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman for Texas, will be here next week and is expected to confer with the president-elect, being prepared to discuss patronage for the Lone Star state now in the republican column, will be entitled. It is known that Colonel Creager has been considering ways since the election the division of rewards which the Hoover-democrats of his state will expect.

The commission of Indian affairs is a plum of no mean proportions. It developed during the hearings by the senate committee that this official has supervision over the administration of Indian estates having an aggregate value of $1,600,000,000. The appointments of guardians and attorneys for incompetent but very wealthy Indians as well as the other details of the office calls for selection of a man of known ability.

Sells Knows Work

It is urged that the appointment of Sells not only would be a substantial recognition of the Hoover-democrats in Texas but it would place at the head of the bureau a man thoroughly familiar with the work and who conducted it for eight years without scandal or serious criticism. It is declared to be unlikely that with the pressure from other southern states Colonel Creager will succeed in landing more than one such appointment for the Hoover-democrats of Texas but there are reasons to believe the selection of Cato Sells could be arranged.

TWICE TOLD

Watchman Elaborates On His Fear of Woman Secretary

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 22 (AP)—Twice told tales characterized today's session of the impeachment trial of Gov. Henry S. Johnston, with witnesses passing before the senate court to repeat testimony they had given to the house investigating committee.

Nearly all testimony dealt with activities of the governor's subordinates, in an apparent effort to build up the house prosecutors' contention that Johnson is incompetent.

When C. A. Wallace, former night policeman at the capitol, repeated his testimony that he had seen Mrs. O. O. Hammonds until recently Johnston's confidential secretary, enter the governor's office late at night through a second story window, he was asked by Senator Loofbourrow why he did not arrest her for burglary.

"I did not know I had a right to do so," replied Wallace. "I am a poor man and wanted to keep my position."

Wallace said he was afraid if he remonstrated with Mrs. Hammonds or arrested her, he would lose his job.

EXECUTIONER KILLS HIMSELF

Tri-State Electrocutor Dies By Own Hand

AUBURN, N. Y., Feb. 22 (UP)—John W. Hulbert, the executioner who put 140 persons to death in three states, committed suicide today about two years after he resigned from his gruesome position because he was "tired of killing people."

Hulbert was executioner for New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts for 17 years up until 1926. This afternoon his body was found lying in the basement of his home with two bullet holes in vital spots. A .32 caliber pistol lay nearby.

Dr. William E. Walsh, the coroner's physician, held an autopsy tonight and announced that Hulbert —known around Sing Sing as "the man who walked alone"—had killed himself.

His body was discovered by a son, Clarence, lying near a furnace in the darkened basement of the quiet Hulbert home here. Officials immediately took charge of the investigation and said no details would be given out until the preliminary investigation had been completed. He had been in poor physical condition since he resigned as executioner two years ago and is said to have worried considerably, especially since his wife died.

Hulbert was chief executioner for the three states from 1914 until he resigned on Jan. 16, 1926. He gave no explanation of his resignation but once later told a friend he had "grown tired of killing people" and that his nerves were no longer good.

'Mme. Zanza' Slips Into Washington To Help Blanton Harass Policeman

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (US)—Spirited into the city under the most dramatic and mysterious settings, "Mme. Zanza" was in Washington today, her exact whereabouts known only to the secret service agents who have thrown a formidable guard about her.

"Mme. Zanza" is the fortune teller whose testimony in the trial of Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, starting tomorrow, is expected to prove a sensation, if not to actually rip the Washington police force wide open.

"Mme. Zanza"—in private life Mrs. Helen E. Bialock—has accused Captain Burlingame of extortion, intimidation and of forcing unwelcome attentions upon her.

The charges were made through Representative Tom Blanton of Texas, fiery critic of the Washington police department in general and Captain Burlingame in particular. Love letters, some signed "heartsore daddy," and alleged by Blanton to have emanated from the amorous pen of the captain, have been placed in the evidence by the Texas representative.

During all the sensation caused by these charges, Mrs. Bialock was nowhere to be found. According to Blanton, she feared to return to Washington lest she be persecuted by the police.

ALTERATION OF VOTE LAID TO ACCUSED MAN

Assistant County Clerk Of Bexar Says McCloskey Ordered Change

FOUR SHEETS FIXED

Dave Dewhurst Admits He Tells Story Because Of Immunity

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—Dave Dewhurst, assistant county clerk of Bexar county, testified in the trial of Augustus McCloskey, congressman-elect, that with the assistance and connivance of the defendant he altered the returns from precincts 12, 16, 20 and 37 of San Antonio sufficiently to give McCloskey a victory over Harry M. Wurzbach, Texas' only Republican congressman.

Dewhurst testified that Charles Ramirez, formerly McCloskey's secretary, was with him when he made the alterations and that McCloskey himself had obtained the election returns which were changed.

McCloskey Yielded

McCloskey, then county judge in Bexar county, declined to interest himself in the idea when he first proposed "doing something," Dewhurst testified.

He informed the judge that there were rumors that Wursbach had been "counted in" in about a dozen San Antonio boxes, said Dewhurst.

Later Judge McCloskey decided to obtain the necessary records from election officials and did get those from precincts 16, 20 and 37, the witness testified.

Defendant Smokes Calmly

During the testimony Judge McCloskey puffed at one of his hand-rolled brown paper cigarette and when that was short, shifted to a tooth pick.

The crowded court room sat forward in intense silence as Dewhurst raced through his dramatic story, halting between questions and answers to puff at a cigarette.

Dewhurst testified that it was found McCloskey needed 165 to 170 votes to win, and that McCloskey said: "If we can't get them all, don't bother to get any."

Pages Substituted

The tally sheets from precinct 20 were altered by substituting pages from other tally books, the witness said, and the sheets removed were burned in the court house furnace.

Dewhurst admitted under cross-examination that he had been promised immunity by the Bexar county district attorney.

The Bexar county district attorney, Lamar Scelligon, is aiding in the McCloskey prosecution.

Far along in his cross-examination Dewhurst asserted that it was Ramirez who actually had changed the returns, and that he merely took the returns into a side room for the work.

Admits Perjury

On direct testimony, Dewhurst said: "We took them into the commissioners' court, into my office and just fixed them up."

Dewhurst admitted that he had perjured himself in testifying before a court of inquiry in Baxter county "to protect my friends and myself as long as I could." He decided, he said, to accept an offer of immunity and tell the truth when he came to believe he was "going to be made the goat."

BALLOT FIXER RECITES THEFT

Alterations Made on Knowledge of McCloskey

Ramirez, indicted but no on trial with Judge McCloskey, was present.

"No, Dave, if he has the most votes he wins," Dewhurst quoted McCloskey as having said when asked whether he wished to contest on the grounds of fraud in behalf of Wurzbach.

"I said 'well, it's too bad to let them get away with a thing like that.'" Dewhurst said he countered.

Two Others Present

He named at least two other men who were present, implicating one by quoting him as saying: "That ought to be easy" when the Dewhurst theft plan was explained.

It was far down in his cross-examination that Dewhurst became specific as to who and how the alteration of the four precinct records had been made.

Upon direct evidence, he said:

"We took those two we had there, 13 and 20, I and him (Ramirez), and took them into the commissioners' court, and the judges' return and county clerk return, took them into the judge's office, that is into my office, and we just fixed them up."

"How?" he was asked.

"Well, No. 13, added 50 by additional tally marks; 20 added 30 to McCloskey and took 20 away from Wurzbach."

Pages Substituted

Then came the explanation of the substitution of tally pages properly altered with the burning of the removed pages in the courthouse furnace.

Previously, Alfonso Newton, Jr., Bexar county sheriff, testified as to how he obtained at Judge McCloskey's instance and gave to him the records of the presiding judge of the twenty-fourth precinct, and Ralph Moglia, presiding officer of precinct 16, recited that he declined McCloskey's request to be permitted to have the records of that polling place for purposes of inspection.

Anton Woeckler, presiding judge in precinct 37, testified that his records had been correct and properly disposed of. The vote in that box was not counted, however, because no tally sheet accompanied it to the canvassing place, according to other testimony. A tally book showing 180 tallies and a total of 190 for Wurzbach and 324 tallies and a total of 314 for McCloskey was introduced. Woeckler admitted the figures did not jibe, but said that at the time of the election he thought they had been totaled correctly.

Joe Morales, presiding officer of precinct 18, explained that his personal record was stolen from his motor car while he delivered other copies according to law.

The defense pointed to numerous alterations against McCloskey in the county clerk's record book as directed by the canvassing board after the prosecution had made much of alterations in McCloskey's favor.

At adjournment Dewhurst still was under cross-examination.

Mysteries and Powers of Liquid Air Shown to Scouts at Plant Here

Members of Boy Scout Troop 10 of the First Presbyterian church, under the leadership of W. B. Ward, Friday evening were guests of the Wichita Falls Oxygen company, 110 Indiana, in a detailed demonstration of the separation, compression, and uses of the gas.

The boys, closely circled around Bill Hord, 15-year-old son of J. R. Hord, president and general manager of the company, watched liquid oxygen, at a temperature of 352 degrees below zero, steam from a pipe into a bucket. They saw an egg, broken into the bucket by the youthful demonstrator, freeze as hard as ice in a few seconds. An ordinary piece of rubber, dipped into the liquid, became at once more brittle than ice and its fragments were scattered about the floor of the plant.

A handkerchief, subjected to the chill of the liquid, was frozen so that it could be pulled into bits.

The work of the oxygen acetylene torch, both in welding and in cutting, was carefully demonstrated, the scouts watching a piece of pipe cut into designs and then welded back together again.

Young Hord, explaining the progress that the separation of oxygen has made within the last few years, told his audience that 15 years ago 25 cylinders of the gas were used in the whole southwest each month, and that at the present time more than 2,000 were manufactured daily.

The boys were welcomed to the factory Friday night by J. H. Allison, a leader in Boy Scout work, who introduced the principal speaker, and the officers of the organization.

Last Rites Said Here For Rev. W. L. Nelms

Funeral services for Rev. William Lewis Nelms, 70, who was found dead Wednesday morning in his room in the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. S. McKenney, 1312 Tenth street, were conducted from the First Methodist church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. Edward R. Barcus, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, and Rev. W. J. Johnson, presiding elder of this district. Burial was in Riverside cemetery.

Physicians who examined the body after it had been found by members of the McKenney family, with whom Rev. Nelms had made his home for the past 10 years, declared that the death had been due to heart failure.

Rev. Nelms had spent more than 50 years of his life in service of the Methodist church, holding pastorates chiefly in the Central Texas conference and many prominent church positions during his life in the ministry.

The active pallbearers who were all pastors of Wichita Falls churches were as follows: Dr. Nat F. Grafton, Dr. O. L. Powers, Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, Dr. Gaines B. Hall, Rev. Patrick D. Moreland, Rev. Ben Bell, Rev. W. H. Townsend and Rev. J. E. Wade.

Honorary pallbearers were all of the stewards of the First Methodist church.

NERVOUS AND BLUE, SO WEAK, RUN-DOWN

Lady Tells About Taking Cardui "With Splendid Results." Says That She Felt and Looked Much Better.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"Awhile back, I found myself in such a weak, run-down condition that I became uneasy," writes Mrs. Horace Howell, of 63 Clinton street, this city.

"I did not rest well. I felt too wornout to do my work, and, at times, I would get very nervous and blue.

"I didn't enjoy visiting—felt just like I wanted to be left to myself. I was grouchy and cross. My skin was sallow and my appetite was very poor.

"A friend told me that Cardui had helped her, and so I took a bottle, and found that it was helping me. I kept it up until I had taken five bottles, with splendid results.

"I felt like new. My skin cleared up. I looked so much better. I can certainly recommend Cardui.

"I have also used the Cardoseptic tablets, which I have found to be very restful and soothing."

For over 50 years, women who had suffered, or who had gotten into a weak, run-down condition, have been enthusiastic in their praise of Cardui. Thousands of them began taking Cardui because of the confidence they had in the advice of friends who had told them of their own experiences.

Sold by druggists everywhere.

TRAIN KILLS WOMAN IN CAR

Five Injured in Crash At Midland

MIDLAND, Texas, Feb. 22 (AP)—Mrs. Jack Perry of Midland was killed, her son, Thomas, injured probably fatally and four others received undetermined hurts when an automobile driven by Mrs. Perry was struck by a freight train near here late today.

Witnesses said the car was overturned in the air and was hurled 50 yards down the track by the impact. It was demolished.

Other occupants of the automobile were Mrs. Perry's three sons, Thomas, Hugh and Carl, and Mrs. D. L. Flood and her son, Carl Flood. Thomas Perry was expected to die. Hugh Perry lost an eye.

The six persons were crowded into a small coupe. Witnesses said Mrs. Perry apparently saw the approaching train and stepped up at the last moment in an attempt to beat it across.

Weather Prevents Usual Arbor Day Observance

The wisdom and patriotic sentiment which named Feb. 22 as Arbor day in Texas were rudely ignored by the weather man this year to the extent that no efforts were made locally to observe the occasion with the planting of new trees, so far as could be learned.

The annual tree-planting day had its origin in 1872, when J. S. Morton of Nebraska, later commissioner of agriculture, succeeded in crystallizing the growing sentiment for tree conservation, and secured the appointment of a special day for the planting of trees in his almost treeless state. Kansas, Tennessee and Minnesota followed with similar action during the following three years. By 1890 more than 30 states in the union had named arbor days, dates being selected according to various climates. The movement is practically national now.

Bronx looking for fares when a man hailed him. Deardorff stopped and the man poked a revolver into his face.

"Oh no you don't," said Deardorff, striking the thug's wrist a blow that sent the weapon to the pavement. The bandit fled and the chauffeur picked up the gun. He looked around for a policeman but none was in sight, so he put the revolver on the seat and stepped on the gas.

Officer Wary

A few hours later he spied Patrolman George Zeigers to whom he told his story. The tale didn't sound just right to the officers apparently, for he arrested Deardorff and took him to the station on a charge of possession of firearms without a permit.

In court this morning Deardorff again told his story. This time to Magistrate Rayfield.

"You admit having the gun in your possession?" quered the magistrate.

"Sure, your honor," said Deardorff. "I had it, but I was trying to get rid of it by giving it to the policeman."

"Well," asserted Mr. Rayfield, "you never should have been arrested. But you were, and you are charged with illegal possession of a firearm. Under the law I cannot dispose of the case. I must hold you for the court of special sessions and I shall fix your bail at $500."

"I don't think I can get bail, your honor," faltered the crestfallen chauffeur. "I can't afford a bond fee. I don't know how my family will get along unless I get out and hustle. I was justly trying to do the right thing."

"I realize that," replied Magistrate Rayfield. "But by the terms of the law I have no other course than to hold you."

In the tiny flat he calls a home a baby lay in a crib beside a wood stove and the other child played in the backyard while Mrs. Deardorff searched for someone who would bail out her husband.

In one London church women and girls are now permitted to remove their hats during service if they wish to do so.

"Short Cuts in Arithmetic" was the subject of an address by A. K. Presson, registrar of the junior college, at the weekly meeting of the Euclidian club held Thursday night. Mr. Presson is recognized among students as a proficient mathematician and also for his humor, which was expressed in some points of his speech.

Many interesting steps concerning figures were brought out in the address and he stated that in solving any set of figures dealing with addition, multiplication, subtraction or division, that there is some short cut that can be made. His talk was interspersed with much humor. For example, he asked, "If nine cats killed nine rats in nine minutes, how long would it take one cat to kill one rat?" To the consternation of many students, the answer was not one minute.

Mr. Presson was voted honorary member of the club by a unanimous vote.

CANNON ROAR IN CHINA AGAIN

Nationalists Hold Upper Hand in Outbreaks

CHEFOO, China, Feb. 22. (AP)—The Shantung peninsula has been the scene of heavy fighting for the past two days between loyal nationalist troops and a large force of former northern soldiers under command of Marshal Chang Tsung-Chang, one-time military governor of Shantung.

Thus far the nationalists, although greatly outnumbered, have been victorious because of superior arms and better organization, but they are seeking reinforcements which at present are not in sight.

News Delayed

The fighting between the armies began at daylight on Feb. 21, but because of the breakdown of communications and the difficulty of traveling, news has been coming to Chefoo only with the greatest difficulty.

Although both the foreign and Chinese communities are uneasy, outward calm prevails. The foreigners as a precautionary measure, however, are developing plans for concentration and evacuation in the event of disorders should the city be captured and looted. There are three Japanese destroyers and one British gunboat off Chefoo, while the American cruiser Trenton is expected Sunday night.

Guns Rouse City

This morning Chefoo was awakened by the sound of field guns and trench mortars which proved to be about 20 miles west of the city. The firing ceased at noon and advices were received that the revolting soldiers had been defeated and were being pushed back towards the west. The dispatches said the nationalists numbered 7,000 and the revolters 26,000. The casualties were reported as 200 dead among the northerners and 100 among the nationalists. About 300 prisoners were captured as well as thousands of rifles and 15 machine guns.

There are numerous former soldiers of the northern Shantung army in the province and these have been flocking from all directions to join the Chang Tsung-Chang, their old commander. The revolters apparently were much lacking in ammunition and organization while the nationalists were commanded by Liu Chen-Nien, who is in charge of the Chefoo district and kept up the morale of his troops.

Woman's Story of Night Revelry In 1914 Renews Hunt for Missing Man

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 22. (INS)—A woman's conscience and her insatiable curiosity today caused police to launch a statewide search for five men in an attempt to solve the 15-year-old mystery concerning the disappearance of Francis Lewis Clark, multimillionaire sportsman of Spokane, Wash.

Marie Allen Kelly, 38, known in police circles as "Clarice, the blonde," caused the hunt to be taken up when she telephoned detectives and said she wanted to tell her part in the Clark mystery.

Clark disappeared at Santa Barbara on the night of Jan. 17, 1914, and was believed to have been thrown into the bay after being robbed of a large sum of money by thugs.

Mrs. Kelly said she was staying at a downtown hotel in January of 1914, when a bellboy asked her if she wanted a date with a rich old man. According to her story to the police, Clark was the man who wanted a date with her. She said she accepted and Clark took her to several cafes and theaters and that there was considerable drinking.

"The boys were hanging around the hotel and immediately got their eyes on my 'find,'" she asserted.

"We drove to Santa Barbara in a taxicab," Mrs. Kelly continued. "He sent me to a hotel to register and said he would be back later. That was about 10:30 at night. I never saw him again," she said.

About three months later she went to San Francisco, Mrs. Kelly asserted, and while sitting in a hotel lobby, was approached by one of "the boys," who handed her $800. When she asked what the money was for she was told: "It's your cut out of the Clark job."

New Variety of Cotton Which Makes Double Yield Introduced in Texas

CENTER, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—Three thousand acres of land in Shelby county is to be planted this year in a new variety of cotton which is expected to revolutionize the industry in this section.

The experiment is being tried as a result of earlier experiments in this county on a smaller scale with Brazil cotton.

This cotton was developed in South America by the La Polodino Railway company with the help of an agent of A. & M. college, Prof. Thomas R. Day of Texas sent there for the purposes of making experiments. When he returned to the United States in 1926 after 20 years in South America he brought a small amount of seed from the newly developed cotton, which was planted on the farm of Clifton Largent. The first year, less than an acre being planted, it produced twice as much cotton as the surrounding cotton on the same plot of land, and when it was marketed, the product brought four cents per pound more than the old varieties. Last year Largent planted his entire crop in the Brazil cotton, and had the largest crop ever produced by him.

The only difficulty so far with the new cotton, is that it is a little harder to pick than the other varieties, as it clings to the burr more tenaciously.

After this year, seed from 2,000 acres in Shelby county is expected to be available for other farmers in the state.

RURAL SCHOOL FUND OKEHED

House Approves Emergency Appropriation

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—The house today approved action of a joint conference committee from the two legislative branches fixing the emergency appropriation for state-operated colleges and rural schools at $1,447,617.

John Wallace of Teague, chairman of the house appropriations committee, said the item was $199,705 less than a senate emergency bill originally called for.

Upon recommendation of S. M. M. Marrs, state superintendent of public education, the education appropriation was pruned from $400,000 to $25,000 less. Of this amount $175,000 was for 1928 and $200,000 for 1929 schools.

The free conference committee agreed on an item of $300,000 to supplement the rural school aid fund to carry out provisions of a law enacted by the 40th legislature, providing a six month term in all sections of the state.

SHAW POKES FUN AT MEDICS

And One of Them Gets Real Sore About It

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, Feb. 22. (US)—"I have no interest in seeing anything such as ignorant farceur might write," declared one of the king's leading physicians tonight when Universal Service offered to show him an advance copy of tomorrow's "Time and Tide," Lady Rhondda's weekly, containing George Bernard Shaw's article on "The King and the Doctors." In this latest expression by the famous dramatist, the whole medical profession — the king's physicians especially—are pilloried.

Everybody has known that Shaw would break loose thus, and the competition for his tirade has been sharp. Lady Rhondda won.

Mythical Setting

The Irish iconoclast puts his 3000-word attack in the form of a parable concerning the mythical land, "the country of half-mad, which was cut off from the rest of Europe in prehistoric times to prevent the inhabitants from injuring any but themselves." In this mythical land, according to Shaw's thesis, it was the law that doctors must be sent for whenever anybody was ill.

The author of "St. Joan" continues his line of satirical reasoning by declaring:

"The doctors' duty to themselves, to their wives and to their children was to keep their patients ill as long as possible, to persuade them that they were dangerously ill, and even to deprive them of as many limbs and organs as possible without killing the goose that laid the golden eggs."

King Falls Ill

The king of this "half-mad" land fell ill, and had 12 doctors to attend him. Whereupon the people becoming alarmed commented:

"A Single doctor is generally sufficient to kill anyone, so how can the king survive with 12."

Then, according to Shaw's fantasy, the heir-apparent returned from Africa and interviewed the chief royal physician who explained:

"Everything possible is being done. If your highness hasn't confidence in our knowledge and devotion—"

"Stop that," broke in the prince, "your devotion is all right, but your knowledge is bunk."

The parable then is continued wherein it is stated that the prince suggests the calling in of a homeopathic doctor, but the chief royal physician objects to that score, saying:

"Unfortunately there is only one in London whose reputation for success would satisfy public opinion, and he has never been admitted to our sacred communion. If I discussed this case with him, I would be excommunicated."

Dorothy Dix Detects Change In Attitude of Wives Toward Rivals

Gallant Conduct of a Desolate Wife —Why Chivalry Should Endure Beyond Happiness. Folly of a Drunkard's Child Marrying a Drunkard.

Dear Miss Dix—What do you think of a young woman who is pretty, an excellent cook, good housekeeper, clever seamstress, good saleslady, in fact, a success at anything she undertakes, packing her grip and walking out of her home because her husband tells her he is in love with her best friend? Then letting him get a divorce on desertion just to keep the other woman's name clear? She says she still loves him better than life, that his happiness means more to her than anything in the world, and that if he can be happy with some one else she will not stand in his way. There were no children.

I think women with no more sense than she has should be put under lock and key. What about it? Is she doing the right thing, or a fool thing? Do you think the others will find happiness?

ANXIOUS PUZZLED CHUM.

Answer—I think your friend is a perfect lady and a dead-game sport. Also I think that in all the annals of chivalry no knight has ever done a more gallant deed than she has in not only sacrificing her own happiness to her husband, but in saving the reputation of the woman who betrayed her friendship. It is an example of true love and unselfishness such as we are seldom privileged to witness.

Of late I have been very much interested in observing the changing attitude of wives toward the women who have supplanted them in their husband's affections. Formerly the aggrieved wife was like a tigress, thirsting for the blood of her rival. If she was of a passionate, violent, uncontrolled nature, she frequently slew the other woman and washed out her wrong in blood. If she belonged to the grade of society that has more inhibitions, she satisfied her lust for revenge by tearing the woman's character to tatters.

In either case she looked upon her rival as the villain and laid all of the blame of the affair on her. Even in her own thoughts she considered her husband a noble, loving, faithful gentleman, who, somehow, became the victim of an adventuress against whose wiles and sorceries he was powerless to defend himself.

Nowadays, however, an amazingly large number of wives look at the situation from an absolutely sane and dispassionate standpoint. They realize that their husbands are just as guilty as their mistresses, and that no married man's affections can be purloined or stolen without his being guilty of at least contributory negligence. His heart is perfectly safe as long as he leaves it under lock and key at home.

Also, many wives realize that there are cases when neither their husbands nor the other woman are responsible for falling in love with each other. It just happens that two whom nature intended for each other meet after the man has blundered into a marriage with the wrong woman.

When such catastrophe occurs it brings about a tragedy in which there are three desperately unhappily people, and it is to the honor of the modern woman that very often the wife renounces her own rights in order that the other two may be happy, on the principle of the greatest good to the greatest number.

In this I think she is wise, because her house of happiness has already tumbled about her ears. It is wrecked past all rebuilding. Her cause is lost, and it is better for her to accept defeat than to go on waging a futile and hopeless battle against fate.

If a man is just a philanderer who likes to flirt with every pretty woman who comes along, he will tire of it after a while and come back at last to home and mother. A man may zigzag off the straight and narrow path and even be unfaithful to his wife, yet she can win him back if she has patience and fortitude and tact.

When a man is really in love with another woman, however, and begs his wife to divorce him so that he may marry her, everything is over, and she gains nothing by holding him after his affection for her is gone. To try to revive his love is as futile a task as it would be to attempt to blow the breath of life into a corpse.

So the wife does well who lets her husband go when he wants to go, if there are no children to consider. She has lost him, anyway, and she saves her self-respect. More than that, she stands a better chance of salvaging her own happiness, because she wins for herself the peace that comes of accepting a thing as final and making the best of it. She is no longer torn with hopes, and fears, and anxieties, and jealousies, and she can shut the door on that part of her life and make a fresh start. Life always has plenty in store for such brave souls.

So I do not think your friend is crazy and should be put under lock and key. I think she is very chivalrous, and that she is entitled to the glory of a hero.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man 44 years of age. Several years ago I fell very much in love with a woman who had had an unsavory past. I forgave her and became engaged to her and did everything possible to make her happy. Now, because of a foolish fuss, she has broken the engagement off. It is in my power to ruin her future. Would you leave that to the Almighty, or would you take a course to protect some other man?

—DAN.

Answer—I would certainly leave that to Him who has decreed that the woman who sins has to pay, and pay, and pay as long as she lives.

You needn't be afraid of her not getting all the punishment that is coming to her, and then some. Nor need you feel that you are called upon to protect your fellow men from women of her ilk. They don't run from danger. They run toward it.

Why, because you are angry with her, should you want to ruin the life of this poor creature? Why should you want to push back into the pit one who is trying to struggle out of it. Will it make you happier to know that you have done her a deadly injury? Will it add to your peace of mind to know that she is cowering in shame somewhere, or that you have sent her back to the streets?

I think not. I think all of your life you will be glad if you lock this woman's secret in your breast, and if you give her a hand up instead of a kick downward.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl 17, very much in love with a man six years my senior, but my father and brothers refuse to let me marry him because he drinks too much. Why should they object to that when they get drunk themselves whenever they have any money? Please advise me, for I intend to follow your advice.

—H. A. W.

Answer—If you take my advice you will certainly refuse to marry a drunkard. I am surprised that any girl who has a drunken father and brothers should even contemplate doing such a foolish thing, because she has a warning right before her eyes of what drink does to a man.

See what beasts drink make of them. Observe how disgusting they are in liquor. Listen to the foul abuse they give you and your mother when they come home staggering drunk. See how worthless and no-account it makes them, and think of your poverty at home. All the result of drink. Then reflect that if you marry this drunken sweetheart of yours you will have just such a miserable, poverty-stricken life as your mother has had.—DOROTHY DIX.

Sugar's five uses in the diet . . .

Authority explains this delicious food

WE RECENTLY asked the food scientist at one of the great universities to describe the rightful place of sugar in the diet.

"Sugar has five distinctive uses," he said. "1. A conserver of foods. 2. A flavoring substance. 3. A satiation factor. 4. A staple fuel. 5. An emergency fuel."

The scientist showed that sugar is used as a conserver of many foods, especially fruits.

Discussing sugar as a flavorer, the scientist said: "One of the most praiseworthy developments of the modern diet lies in the expansion of the use of fresh fruits . . . contingent on the free availability of sugar."

Discussing sugar as a satiation factor, he said: "Topping off the meal with a sweet dessert gives a sense of satiation . . . an important item in the diet."

The scientist pointed out that "Sugar as a staple fuel ranks with starch . . . sugar is more rapidly digested than starch; otherwise they are entirely comparable fuels."

He then defined the use of sugar as an emergency fuel. "The process of resorption is so rapid," he said, "that sugar appears in the muscles (the fire-box of the body) within a few minutes after ingestion."

So it is that sugar is one of the most useful and least expensive of foods. As a flavorer alone, it deserves a place in every diet for making other healthful foods delicious.

Eat all kinds of healthful fresh and canned fruits and vegetables, sweetening for pleasure, remembering the satiation value of ice creams, cookies and cakes for dessert. The best cooks are generous with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

WTCC CONTESTS ARE PLANNED

Prize to Be Offered In Terracing Annually

By B. M. WHITEKER
West Texas Chamber of Commerce Agricultural Manager

STAMFORD, Texas, Feb. 23.—In order that conservation of moisture for its immediate profitable effect on the annual crop production, as well as for the benefit to be obtained in conserving the future fertility of the soil by preventing annual erosion from floods and heavy rainfall on the farms of West Texas, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce through its agricultural department has arranged to put on a terracing contest at the annual conventions in the future, and in order to get this much needed work increased four fold, we will give prizes to the one or group of high school boys, club boys, as well as vocational classes in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce territory, who compete.

Rules and regulations to conduct these contests are now being worked out for the annual convention at El Paso and $300 in cash prizes have been subscribed and probably more than $500 in prizes will be offered by different institutions for this year's contest.

First One Planned

The first demonstration will be held midway between Stamford and Haskell, one mile southeast of McConnell on Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2. Mr. C. H. Colvin, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, who has had considerable experience in terracing, will be in charge and conduct this demonstration in Haskell county. At this demonstration two or three different kinds of modern terracing machines will be on exhibition. This farm will be terraced and will be used as an outstanding example of what such work will mean by terracing and contouring over the old method now used. The International Harvester company through their local dealers will furnish tractor power, and the R. B. George Machinery company of Dallas, the Brown Tool company of Breckenridge and Penick-Hughes company of Stamford will furnish terracing machines for demonstrations.

If those interested in terracing and its value would visit the Spur experimental station at Spur, Texas, and let R. E. Dickson show them the actual records made by this work for the last few years on moisture and soil conservation there will be no doubt but what they will be convinced of the importance of this work. Mr. Dickson's outstanding work at Spur has not only created nation-wide but world-wide publicity.

Program for Future

In order that we may be able to check the rapid erosion and loss of much needed rainfall to continue full development to growing crops, the following program for the future is hereby outlined:

A terracing demonstration will be held at different places over West Texas where levels will be run and terraces built to demonstrate to the public the value as well as the ease in which terraces can be constructed. In order that every farmer can have the opportunity to see and get this work and that every community may be accessible to such services, the agricultural department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will try to get commissioners courts to buy farm levels and terracing machines for their respective precincts and the implements are to be accessible at all times to the use of any farmer who wishes to use them.

Pasture Terracing

The necessity of carrying this work on the year around is recognized and to afford the boys on the farms a chance during the summer vacation time to do constructive terracing, pasture terracing will be used to show the material increase in grazing during the summer by such work.

At all of these demonstrations all county agents, vocational teachers, farmers and all commissioners courts are especially invited to attend and take part, as well as all others interested.

WISHES HE COULD TELL EVERYBODY IN TEXAS ABOUT IT

"For three years I was a constant sufferer from liver disorders, acid stomach, and other troubles. Sargon is the only medicine I ever found that overcame my troubles, and I wish it was so that everybody in Texas knew about this wonderful medicine.

T. M. CAMPBELL

"No matter how careful I was about my eating, I suffered after every meal with gas pains and indigestion. I had no relish for even the most tempting dishes. My liver was inactive and I had to take strong laxatives continually. I felt tired and run-down, and became so nervous I would roll and toss about for hours every night before I could get to sleep.

"Sargon went right to my troubles after everything else had failed. It put my stomach in perfect condition and I get real pleasure out of my meals now for I eat everything I want and I have such a fine appetite I relish every bite. I even eat between meals and at night, and never have a moment's trouble from indigestion. My nerves are strong as steel again and I sleep like a top from the time I hit the pillow until time to get up in the morning. I have gained weight and I feel fine all the time.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills completely overcame my constipation. I never have to take laxatives now for my liver is in perfect condition.

"I have already told many of my friends what a wonderful medicine Sargon is. It deserves full credit for it does just what they say it will do."

The above statement was made recently by T. M. Campbell, electrical engineer in charge of all electrical work at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio.

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co. Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; and in Electra from Lough's Drug store.—Adv.

COOLIDGE GETS THRIFT LESSON

Store Owner Does Tour On $10 per Capita

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (INS)—There came to Washington today a Pennsylvanian who showed even President Coolidge some new tricks about this economy business.

Ernest H. Wycoff, Stroudsburg, Pa., department store owner, who annually closes his store on Washington's birthday and takes his store force and neighbors on outings, came to the capital today at the head of a veritable army of some 700 Stroudsburgians for a one-day tour and pilgrimage to the shrine of George Washington at Mt. Vernon.

The trick of it is that Mr. Wycoff does it at a cost of not to exceed $10 each. The round-fare from Stroudsburg to Washington alone is $18.50, and in addition to the railroad fare the shrewd merchant managed to throw in a box lunch a sight-seeing trip about the city in a fleet of motor-buses and a dinner at a hotel—all for $10.

The delegation came to Washington on a special train, accompanied by the Wycoff boy's band of some 40 pieces, all equipped and outfitted by the Stroudsburg merchant.

The pilgrims debarked at Union station into buses and went off for a tour of the city—probably the most economical tour Washington ever witnessed.

What a funny way to escape a COLD

Prevent a cold by rinsing the hands with Listerine before each meal? Sounds strange doesn't it? Not when you know the facts, however.

During the day your hands accumulate germs. Ordinary washing with soap and water doesn't destroy them. So, carried to the mouth on food, they develop, attacking the mucous membrane. A cold or sore throat or both frequently follows.

Full strength Listerine, is powerful against germs—kills most varieties in 15 seconds. Therefore its use on the hands before each meal is simply another wise precaution against colds and sore throat. Mothers handling children's food should particularly bear this in mind. Write for our great free book, "Personal Hygiene." Address Dept. S. 85, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

And for SORE THROAT

Listerine holds its reputation on its ability to quickly check sore throat which is often accompanied by fever. At the first symptom of trouble gargle with it full strength. Repeat the treatment frequently.

Rockefeller Called Man Without Country in Tinkham's Tirade

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (INS)—A slashing attack on John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Ivy Lee, his press agent, as "international propagandists," was made in the house today by Representative George Holden Tinkham, republican of Massachusetts. He declared both were "openly propagandising against the United States," and should be summoned before a congressional body to explain expenditures that the international bankers are making "to influence American foreign policy."

"The international bankers, Standard Oil interests, John D. Rockefeller and their interests," said Tinkham, "now conducting open propaganda against the interest of the United States, have no country, no flag and no allegiance except the power of money and what money will compel and buy."

Tinkham referred to the recent designation of J. P. Morgan as an American delegate to the reparations conference; to the mission of Elihu Root abroad, and to the retention of Charles E. Hughes by the Rockefeller interests, as moves in the plan of involving America abroad.

PEBBLES ON THE BEACH

"THE POOREST machinery creaks loudest."

And the dung-hill roosters regularly out-crow the gamecocks.

Old Henri Fabre, the nonogenarian school-teacher, in whose backyard glowed the lamp that lastingly illuminates the insect world, epitomized his life experience in two sentence:

"To know what not to know is the height of wisdom."

"All human knowledge is as a single grain among the sands of the sea-shore."

Mr. Edison, also sticking to his lasts at eighty-two, pricks our sophomoric complacency with the announcement that "We don't yet know one-thousand of one per cent about anything."

Cambridge university publishes a volume entirely devoted to earthworms. From it we find that men, consecrated exclusively to that one specialty, after 85 years, are only sure of half the ascertainable facts on such a seemingly simple subject.

The ancient Greeks considered themselves the most civilized folk on earth.

The middle-ages couldn't understand how Albertus Magnus could acquire his apparent omniscience without assistance from "the dark powers" and sought to burn him for a wizard.

Yet, today's high school boys regularly pass examinations in which Pericles and Albertus would totally flunk.

OVER-ASSURANCE destroyed dominant people of yesterday; they were too easily satisfied.

All that the Twentieth Century is accomplishing was easily possible a thousand years earlier.

The raw materials for electricity, radio, the telephone, automobile, motion photography and all present marvels of science, existed in the same places and the same quantities, then. There are no new elements.

Nature fully stocked the universe before history began to keep a diary.

We're just taking a preliminary survey of assets that won't be fully inventored or exploited when Gabriel sounds taps.

Youngsters, who complain that all the grand prizes in the grab-bag of opportunity have already been seized, are herewith reminded that the same sentiment was as generally prevalent in 1927—but the patent office reports 116,000 new inventions for last year, and looks for more the next.

Mr. Edison anticipates no letdown in the rate of progress—the older he grows, the more he discovers to do—and hope for.

That's why America heard no self-laudations on the radioed celebration of his birthday.

He's thinking of the remaining sands, not the few grains of achievement one career has collected.

The orchestras that played his pet songs on Feb. 10 overlooked one favorite: "I'm not the only pebble on the beach."

Today in Texas History

FEBRUARY 23

1836—Santa Anna planted a red flag on Mission San Fernando and demanded the surrender of the Alamo.

1847—Battle of Buena Vista in the Mexican war brought on by the annexation of Texas. General Zachary Taylor defeated Santa Anna with a force three times as large as the American force.

1859—Judge Townes had sunk an artesian well 500 deep on his plantation on Walbarger creek.

1861—People of Texas voted for secession.

It is predicted science eventually will be able to control the weather. If science is wise, it won't try anything like that.

Chicago: Unruly Giant

YOU may say what you please, but you cannot deny that this modern life of ours has plenty of color and excitement.

The latest exhibit of Chicago's turbulent subterranean life is about the most startling of all. Seven men, lined up against a wall in the middle of the second city on the continent, and butchered by machine gun fire! It is incredible—the sort of thing that one might imagine but that could never really happen.

Yet happen it did— in Chicago, in the year 1929. It is part of the mosaic of modern American civilization, just as the Ford factories and the New York skyscrapers and Babe Ruth and Lindbergh and the magnificent Lincoln memorial at Washington and all the bravery and nobility and sacrifice of unnumbered common lives are parts of it. It deserves the same consideration that they deserve.

There is no use for any of us to hold up our hands in horror about it all. Shocking and dreadful it surely was; yet when was there a giant that did not misuse his strength and commit excesses? Chicago is a giant, the nation of which it is a part is a giant; and side by side with progress and achievement there are, and will continue to be, fearful displays of ignorance, rage, and untamed strength.

We make a mistake, too often, in assuming that our life is as cut and dried and routine as the novelists and essayists say it is. On the surface we have a great deal of order and are well regimented. We all put on straw hats on the same day in the summer and take them off on the same day in the fall. We all indulge in the same movies, play the same baseball and golf, read the same magazines, swallow the same slogans, wear and eat and use the same nationally-advertised products; but order and monotony are not and never have been real parts of the current scene.

Underlying all surface appearances in America there is a tremendous power, vital and all-compelling. It strings huge steel mills and blast furnaces from Gary to Chicago and the length of the Mahoning valley, thrusts great buildings up to the clouds on Manhattan, bores for miles beneath the Rockies in the west, hems in Detroit with incredible factories, turns Birmingham into a great manufacturing center, flings bridges across the Mississippi and fills the air with speeding planes; but it also has its darker side. It is the cause of Chicago's gang wars, and the similar disturbances from which none of our cities is wholly free.

This power is still untamed. It is a great mistake to think that we have left our frontier behind us. Deadwood and Dodge City and Tonopah may be quiet and peaceful these days, but the roistering, lawless, hard-hitting pioneer strain is as strong now as ever.

The nation is super-charged with energy. Slowly we are learning how to shackle this energy and put it to work. But it will be a long time before we entirely succeed. We are still young and turbulent.

End of An Investigation

AFTER a preliminary flurry of headlines, and many hours of dragging and useless testimony, the investigation of the state highway department comes to a sudden end with the joint legislative committee's expression of "the fullest confidence and faith" in the department.

Representative Elwin Gerron of Waxahachie, sponsor of the investigation, made the recommendation, and on first appearances, it would seem he deserves credit for the strength to admit his error. On second thought, however, it seems more reasonable that Mr. Gerron merely hastened the demise of his own pet inquiry rather than to wait its natural death. What Mr. Gerron seems to have suddenly discovered has been patent to a good part of the state for some time; so evident, in fact, that Mr. Gerron is almost in the undignified position of scrambling to get on the right side of the fence.

An occasional legislative investigation or two usually acts as a good tonic in the conduct of the state's business, and there have been times when such inquiries were sorely needed. In the present instance, however, it seems the committee at Austin has accomplished little more than the harassing of a group of capable business men in charge of the state's highway affairs and administering their duties to the best of their abilities. Minor mistakes have been developed, perhaps, or small errors in judgment revealed, but on the whole the committee's efforts seem to have been purely negative: Nothing worth serious criticism has been developed, nor has the committee given any complete picture of the accomplishments of the administration.

If Representative Gerron of Waxahachie has been sincere in his protestations made during the inquiry, that he has had no personal knowledge of misdemeanors, but has been acting on outside advice, this newspaper believes he might next turn his energies to finding out why his informers wanted the highway department investigated.

Brisbane

ARTHUR BRISBANE, as wise as Solomon and as voluminous as Shakespeare and Milton and Mark Twain combined, speaking of the passing of the Jersey Lily writes as follows, "Her reputation was due largely to her marvelous complexion, pink and white, natural color." Perhaps so, but the Prince of Wales who later became the King of England had something to do with the reputation given to the world "appertaining" to the Jersey Lily by the chroniclers of news and the historians or biographers of the personages of the period. A very colorful life or rather career had the Jersey Lily. It wasn't all paint or natural color.

ANOTHER BILL FOR THE FARMERS

The United States department of agriculture estimated that soil erosion was costing the landowners of the United States more than $100,000,000 each year. A soil specialist of one of the larger colleges in Indiana says that if that state were taken as an average, erosion would cost the farmers of each county $22,645 annually. Many farms are being lost by erosion which takes the soil from the hills and fields into the ditches and streams and then into the rivers. More terracing is expected to be done in Denton county during 1929 than there was in 1928, which year saw the greatest amount of terracing to that time.

GREATEST ASSET OF ANY INSTITUTION

The striking co-eds at San Marcos won. That is, they won as such efforts usually win. They won the right to sign on the dotted line pledging support of the school and its administration. Schools, like all institutions that succeed, must have regulations, and those regulations must be respected. Of course a rule now and then appears unnecessary, but usually there are reasons, valid reasons, for the rule or it would never have been promulgated. Loyalty is the greatest asset to any institution and every component part of any successful undertaking is found loyal. Disintegration is the end of these institutions which lack loyalty.

Speaking of "Blindfold Tests"—!

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Shades of the great—and the near great! Comes a tale from the Metropolitan opera house. During a recent performance of an operatic work by a famed Italian composer, and popular about a decade ago, a tremendous ovation was accorded to a prima donna who, for obvious reasons, must remain anonymous. The lady was making her farewell appearance for this season, a factor reckoned with, regarding the huge audience present upon this occasion. In the golden horseshoe, the array of bejewelled women, gorgeously attired, was a sight to behold. One box, particularly, attracted no little attention, an elegant-appearing group of persons—debutantes, and young men surrounding a white-haired dowager, magnificently gowned. Glittering black sequins entirely covered her gown, while its low-cut bodice exposed a wonderfully fine back-beautiful arms and neck completing the lovely picture.

Stately nods to neighboring box-holders, and occasional visitors to the curtained loge wherein sat the socially mighty one, gave reasons to believe, that its hostess was a prominent one of Manhattan. Now the second act of the opera came to a close, with the celebrated diva-star of the cast, ending a famous aria, one of the high-lights of its musical score. An unusually high note, clear as a bell, and held triumphantly, brought her rendition to a grand finale. While the audience sat spell-bound-breathless with wonderment at so glorious an achievement, a moment of tense silence preceded a deafening roar of applause, cheers and bravos. Here the above described dowager, staring through a diamond-studded lorgnette at the singer, preparing to acknowledge the huge demonstration about to be accorded her, remarked:

"What a long nose she has."

"Aren't men fools?" came in a petulant voice, from a bench just in back of the one, whereon I sat, in a coach, lumbering up Fifth avenue. I suppose there are enough males that might so be designated, and while wondering what had occasioned this particular outburst, from a middle-aged woman, whom I could glint from the corner of my right eye, I heard all about it.

"That husband of mine does get the craziest notions into his head" went on the "near-to-fifty" one. "He's been talking new car, until I'm sick of listening to him. So finally I said—well for goodness sake, why don't you get one. Finally last week some friend of his, talked him into a touring model. Whatever he wants with that—heavens only knows. A sedan—like our other one, is the right thing for us—he hates motors for traveling. Well this morning he telephones to me to get some clothes and be ready to leave about Saturday for a trip south—motoring most of the way. Here this is Wednesday—I have a bridge on for tomorrow and a club meeting for Friday afternoon. That night my sister wants us to join her party to see "Street Scene" at the Playhouse. Now tell me—when can I buy clothes, pack and—Oh, these men!" A more contained voice replied—and oh, so feelingly:

"May—how can you complain about that kind of a husband? I hate to use an old hackneyed phrase—look at me, but I must. Look at me—any time, when you feel like revolting against a good husband, remember me."

"Mine—I haven't seen him opposite me at table since last Sunday at breakfast. During these four days, I have had three fleeting comments from him and one hasty telephone call. And this morning I heard from my father that his royal highness may leave for Europe about the middle of next week—alone!"

With an appointment to keep in the lobby of the Hotel McAlpin, I took up my position, seated in a chair near the desk, set aside for the registering of guests of the well known hostelry. Pretty soon I noticed a young couple enter and approach the clerk's sanctum, a bit hesitantly. Finally the girl became seated, placing a small case next to her, while the young man, set two larger traveling bags along next to the smaller one. Removing his gloves, he bent over the young lady in a whispered consultation, and then proceeded alone, to register. After a few questions, the signing of names took place, after which a bell-hop was about to be called, when just then two sporty young chaps came up to the newcomer and with a hearty—"Well, I'll be blowed Jim Blanks—how the—of all the good luck. Just the fellow we were talking about, not a half hour ago." Mr. Blank's attitude was painful to perceive. While he was very polite—yes, cordial in his greetings of the other two men, it was plain to see that he would have given worlds to have missed meeting the two sporty ones. Not at all abashed at a certain tenseness about to become apparent in this chance situation, the one hilarious fellow proceeded—"And who do you think we're waiting for?—Dick Doe—you remember Dick—quarterback during our senior year? "Yes—Mr. Banks remembered, but—"Boy—what luck—just a quartet for old time's sake" went on the second sport. No idea of taking "no" for an answer—no—sir—e—e. Nothing less than dinner at the Parody club and the best musical comedy in town—just for tonight."

My eye traveled over to the little brown study sitting alone awaiting the coming of her new husband—honeymooners, I had decided long ago. Only the back of her pretty head was visible. Angry? No—giggling to break her heart. Jim—Poor Jim—trying to get rid of two college chums, out on a lark. How was he taking it? She turned her head—and looking straight at the discomfited one, coughed slightly. Her uncomfortable husband might just as well have been deaf. He played his role wonderfully well. No amount of persuasion would budge him. "Sorry," said he, "can't make it—an important engagement and after that—the train for home. Dad expects me early tomorrow morning. "Cheerful liar, thought I—hoping meanwhile that for once, my prompt friend would be delayed, keeping our appointment. The two gay ones would telegraph—come—send a night-letter and explain. Heavens above—only not that—and in despair, the young fibber warned his friends of "Dad's weak heart—could not stand excitement of an early morning message by wire." Well, finally, the poor newly-wed, desperately promised to telephone to the Parody—the two would reserve a place for him—give the operator their table number. "Now come" was the final shot fired, as the two gay fellows left.

Whatever the young wife's mate told her, regarding the shifting of a duo of totally unwelcome old chums, the young couple approached the elevator laughing gayly, and the better half saying: "Jim—mark what I tell you. They'll come back and get wise to you're just having been married."

Some couples jest seem to have the knack o' gittin' along together. Fer intance, take Mr. an' Mrs. Legborn Tharp, who've been married nearly two years, an' they're as unlike as two Democrats. "I want to hear our new preacher Sunday—unless it's a nice day," said Mrs. Art Smiley this mornin'.

FAST AIMED AT DEVILS ENDS

Abstainer's Appetite Wins At Saturday Dinner

WAPAKONETA, Ohio, Feb. 22 (AP)—The fast which Fred Conrad, 27, New Hampshire man, undertook to convert his father and "drive the devils from the village," was broken last Saturday, it was revealed today—the 40th day of the fast and the day it was supposed to end.

John Peeple, his father-in-law, said today that Conrad, his wife and the Rev. Ray Dotson, the man at whose revival Conrad was converted, were dinner guests at his home last Saturday and that the faster ate at that time.

Peeple declined to elaborate on his statement that the young man had eaten, and both Conrad and Rev. Dotson refused to discuss the fast.

Conrad's father, George Conrad, New Hampshire grocer, was still unconverted today.

Monty Banks, the well-known movie comedian, told me he is just simply crazy about Irish stories, though he knows only one.

"And if you don't like a story about 'Pat and Mike'," he went on, "I'll call these two Dennis and Dinty.

"Well, Dennis and Dinty were strolling down Fifth avenue, New York. They approached one of the largest and most exclusive jewelry shops on the avenue. In the display windows was a huge exhibition of diamonds.

"So Dennis and Dinty stopped to admire the glittering array.

"'Sure,' said Dennis, 'how would ye loike to have yer pick, Dinty?'

"'Faith,' said Dinty, 'and I'd rather have me shovel!'"

YOUNG CHEMIST GIVEN CHANCE

Scholarships Offered to Promising Students

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 22.—One of the richest prizes ever offered to American undergraduates was laid before young students of chemistry throughout the country today by President Frank J. Goodnow of the Johns Hopkins university.

He announced the acceptance of gifts providing for an experiment in education designed to train young chemists of exceptional talents.

The program, including establishment of a new chair of chemical education and a number of state fellowships amounting to $1,000 a year for the students chosen to take the special course, will be put into operation next fall on an experimental basis.

Each student who is awarded one of the fellowships will be given a five-year course of training, covering not only all of the requirements for a doctor's degree but the equivalent of one extra year of work devoted to certain studies in education to equip him as a teacher.

The new chair of chemical education has been provided for by Francis P. Garvan, president of the Chemical Foundation of New York. Dr. Neil E. Gordon, a Johns Hopkins graduate, former head of the chemistry department of the University of Maryland, and editor of the Journal of Chemical Education, has been appointed to fill this chair.

Through a fund provided by A. R. L. Dohme of Sharpe and Dohme, Baltimore, the special students will be given an opportunity to come in personal contact with the leaders in chemistry in America and abroad who will be brought here to lecture.

Sea and Car Sickness

There is no doubt that the mental attitude plays an important part in the production of seasickness. Passengers on a boat will sometimes become seasick even before the boat has sailed, or they may become sick by observing the symptoms in others. After getting seasick or car-sick once, almost anything which will remind one of the circumstances will produce the symptoms again if one is of a sensitive nature. For instance, the smell of grease near a train may produce seasickness or looking at the swaying motion of a boat. Even motion pictures showing waves and ships have produced seasickness in susceptible people. Usually, however, there is some physical cause in addition to the psychic impulses. Some of the physical factors are: An overloaded stomach, congestion of the liver, tumors, pregnancy, visual defects or a disturbance of the balancing fluid in the inner ear. Usually, some one or more of these physical factors are present in addition to holding the thought of expecting seasickness.

Most passenger boats have the American plan of serving food, and passengers take advantage of this situation by eating all they can as often as possible, and they may have overeaten even before going on a trip. By being comparatively inactive on board the boat or train, they do not digest and assimilate as large a quantity of food as normally. It is a good plan to start these trips with an empty stomach and to eat sparingly until one has become accustomed to the motion of traveling.

If the visual defect is responsible for your seasickness, you can be easily cured by having properly fitted glasses. A pregnant woman becomes easily nauseated from the pressure upon the sensitive nerve-plexuses.

Many persons find that the steady, swaying movement of the body, such as in the rolling chair or in a swing will bring about the same feeling as that produced by the rolling motion of a boat. This is sometimes a mental suggestion through the association of ideas and can be overcome to a large extent by positive autosuggestion. The secret is to think about other things and devsion concentration upon something to be desired rather than upon the swaying motion.

It is a wise plan to cleanse the system thoroughly before starting on a journey if you are afraid of sea or car sickness. This can be done by eating sparingly for a few days upon a careful diet and also using enemas. Seasickness is always enervating to the system and should be avoided if possible. In some cases severe collapse is noticed and may result in an obstinate constipation and sytemic acidosis.

While some people suffer from seasickness during an entire voyage, it is probable that death has never resulted from this cause alone even though the symptoms are most distressing and unpleasant.

In seasickness there is usually a general discomfort and perhaps a headache, a large production of saliva, and nausea soon followed by retching and vomiting. Some relief is usually experienced after the stomach has been emptied of its contents and the bowels have moved. This indicates the proper course of treatment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Spinal Meningitis

Question—E. W. asks: "Will you please give a thorough description, cause, symptoms, etc., of spinal meningitis? What ages are most liable to have it, and is there a cure?"

Answer—I have written several special articles on this subject, and will be glad to send them to you if you will only send your address the next time you write. It is impossible to give a satisfactory answer to your question in this column, as space does not permit.

Rye Bread

Question—Mrs. B. W. asks: "Is rye bread starchy, and would it be harmful for one to eat who is on a diet for inward goitre which causes rapid heart beat and whose blood pressure is at times above normal?"

Answer—It is very difficult to obtain bread made from rye flour, as most of this bread contains only from 10 to 15 per cent of rye flour mixed with wheat flour. In any case all bread is starchy, and I do not recommend either bread or anything made of cereals during the time one is trying to recover from any kind of thyroid derangement or when one's blood pressure is too high.

Ache in Back of Neck

Question—Mrs. M. T. C. writes: "For about a year I have suffered with an ache in the back of my neck. It does not ache constantly, but at different times during the day. Can you tell me what is the cause of it?"

Answer—Such an ache in the back of the neck with a woman always indicates some pelvic derangement, or misplacement of the abdominal organs. The ache in the neck is a definite reflex from these organs, which are located at exactly the other end of the spine.

OLNEY PLAYS HOLLIDAY TONIGHT FOR DISTRICT CAGE TITLE

CUBS DEFEAT HAWKS, 26-20

Holliday Victor Over Bowie By 26 to 20 Score

Olney and Holliday will meet tonight on the junior college court here for the district No. 4 basket ball championship. Those teams advanced to the finals by taking their semi-final games last night, with more than 500 fans in attendance.

Olney defeated Iowa Park, 21 to 11, and Holliday disposed of Bowie, 26 to 20, in the semi-finals. Both games were spectacular, keenly contested and excellently played.

The Olney-Iowa Park contest was a defensive battle. Both teams showed superb defenses, and it early was resolved into a duel along such tactics. Both teams scored only a point each in the first quarter and the score at the half was 2 to 1 for Iowa Park.

Cubs Flash in Final

They opened up in the third quarter and the Hawks led at the expiration of that period, 8 to 7. But the Cubs started a flashing offensive in the last quarter while their brilliant five-man defense continued to be nearly impossible to penetrate.

The deefnsive play of Olney was one of the greatest exhibitions of such basket ball ever seen here.

Iowa Park was limited to two field goals, both by Cheeves. That Hawk forward also counted four free throws to be leading scorer of the game with eight points. He was removed late in the fourth quarter for four personal fouls.

There was nothing to choose in the play of Olney — no individual star. The Cubs, every one of Coach Acker's men, were working magic on the court and even the desperate and excellent play of the Hawks was unavailing against such a game.

Little Holliday Wins

Holliday came through gallantly. The Holliday team, probably the smallest in the tournament in size, showed splendid floor work and defensive play. Butts and Holloway ringed a flock of field goals and their teammates fed them the ball splendidly. Butts shot six field goals and Holloway negotiated five. McNatt and Copeland were outstanding Bowie players.

The championship final will start at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Four teams survived play yesterday in the district No. 4 basket ball tournament at Junior college court. The winners of preliminary rounds who thus advanced to the semi-finals, were Olney, Holliday, Bowie, and Iowa Park.

Olney defeated Wichita Falls, which had drawn a bye in the first round, 17 to 12, in the second round. Holliday disposed of Vernon, 22 to 20, in the second round, after the Lions had defeated Petrolia, 26 to 12, in the first round. Holliday had a bye in the first round.

Bowie defeated Throckmorton, 28 to 26, in the second round after each had byes in the first. Seymour forfeited to Iowa Park in the first round and the Hawks came through in the second round by beating Jacksboro, 24 to 16.

Defensive Battle

The Olney-Wichita Falls game was a spectacular defensive battle. The Coyotes were unable to penetrate the Cub defense and only three field goals, all scored by Beaty, were registered by the Pack. Perkins and Wix were high scorers for Olney, and the play of the three Gilmores on the defense was brilliant.

Holliday came from behind in the last minute to beat Vernon in a thrilling encounter. The diminutive Holliday lads flashed a dazzling passing attack that enabled them to defeat their larger adversaries. The goal shooting of Butts, who scored 15 points, was a feature.

Murphy counted 13 points to lead Bowie to a 28 to 26 win over Throckmorton in another contest that was anybody's until the last whistle.

Large Crowds Attend

Competition in other games also was keen and fast. The tournament was attended by large crowds of scholastics and fans from the schools and cities of the competing teams.

SANTONE BEAR OUTLOOK DARK

Fans and Moguls Pessimistic Over Prospects

By FRED NOSEBACH
Sport Editor, San Antonio Express
(Written for The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 20.—If there's any enthusiasm over the outlook for the San Antonio Bears in the Texas league race this year it is among the club owners, only and they are not shouting from the housetops. There's none among the fans.

"Who have we got on the team that we can look to for results?" asked one fan, adding: "We've got one fairly good pitcher, and that's Andy Messenger."

The lineup was discussed in detail. Here it is:

Catchers: Bill Warwick, Frank Meyers and Pete Arzatti.

Pitchers: Andy Messenger, Norman Glaser, Gene Walker, Rudy Kneisch, Bert Hinkle, Herbert Agricola, Leisaner Poth, Olin Perry, "Hobo" Carson.

First base: Ray Grimes and Lee Stebbins.

Second base: Tommy Connolly.

Sherstop: Floyd Flippen.

Third base: Joe Tate and Harvey Ballew.

Outfield: Chief Lyman Nason, Hank Emmett Mulvey, Frank Wetzel and Harry Taylor.

The main attack centered on the pitchers. It was claimed that with the exception of Messenger there is not one proven hurler in the lot. The rest of the team was accepted as fairly good.

Grimes Can Hit

"Grimes will be all right if his legs carry him through," said one fan, who agreed that the big first baseman proved to be one of the most timely hitters in the league last year.

"Connally was good in his day, but he's about through," said another, who agreed that if Tommy plays the game he did with Shreveport a couple of years ago, he will prove a tower of strength.

"Flippen will never fill Flaskamper's shoes," was the verdict for shortstop, although all agreed that Flippen is a clever ball player but week at the bat.

"Dallas wouldn't have let Tate go if the Steers hadn't got a better man in Bill Huber," was the consensus on third base, although he saw great promise in Young Ballew, Southwestern university Pirate star, both as a fielder and hitter.

Outfield Improved

The outfield was regarded as an improvement in hitting over last year with the addition of Frank Wetzel, obtained from the Western league in a trade for Leo Najo, although Najo was rated one of the finest fielders in the country and lightning fast on the bases.

Behind the bat Warwick could not be beaten when he was with the Bears in 1925, but the question was raised as to his present standard since Mike Kelley of the Minneapolis Millers let him go.

Myers was rated a good average minor league catcher while Arzatti was rated as a class D catcher.

Among the pitchers Agricola, Poth, Perry and Carson are young stars, Agricola being on trial with the Bears for the third time while Poth, Perry and Carson came from the West Texas league, Carson having formerly pitched for the Texas Christian university team.

Stebbins also came from the West Texas league, where he batted .391 last season.

Manager Is Their Hope

Then came the crux of the situation—the big hope on which Bear chances are pinned—the management of the club.

This department is in the hands of William S. Alexander and Robert Patrick Newnam, both former players in the Texas league. Both have played on two San Antonio pennant winners—in 1903 and 1908—and Newnam has won a number of pennants for Houston as Buff pilot.

Both have been aggressive ball players and with this spirit to guide them the Bruins cannot be counted out of the Texas league race even before the start of the season. And the skeptics were fair enough to admit this.

It is on the managerial ability of the firm of Newnam and Alexander that the club owners largely bank on making a dent in the Texas league race this year, and they are shouting this from the housetops.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (UP)—The first squad of New York Yankees, headed by Lou Gehrig, will leave Saturday afternoon for the world champions' training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla. The first workout will be held Monday afternoon.

In addition to Gehrig, the squad will include Leo Durocher, Fred Heimach, Benny Bengough, Roy Sherrid, rookie pitcher, and Mark Roth, traveling secretary. The party will be joined at North Philadelphia by George Burns, veteran first baseman acquired from the Cleveland Indians last season.

Wolf is a former football and baseball star of T. C. U.

Alexander Signs Up With St. Louis Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 22. (US)—Alex signed today.

This news spread joy among Cardinal fans because it was rumored that his majesty, Grover Cleveland Alexander, was a hold-out.

Alexander reported he felt in the best of condition and ready for his 19th season in the majors. He will leave for Avon Park, Fla., with the rest of the team Monday.

Cats Get 2 Buffs For Vet Wachtel

Carl Littlejohn and Whitworth Go to Panthers

HOUSTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—The trading of Carl Littlejohn and Dick Whitworth to Fort Worth for Paul Wachtel, veteran spitballer, was announced today by President Fred Ankenman of the Houston Texas league Buffs. No money was involved.

President Ankenman also announced the conditional purchase from Waco of Jake Freeze, former Baylor university right hand ace. The purchase price was not announced. If Frazee does not come through, he will be returned to the Cubs 30 days after the opening of the season.

PAOLINO GETS 10-ROUND NOD

Christner's Rally in Tenth Has Basque Groggy

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Feb. 22 (UP)—A desperate last-round rally failed to bring victory to Meyers (K. O.) Christner, 34-year-old Akron, Ohio, heavyweight, over Paolino Uzcudun, of Spain, here tonight, but it brought him the cheers of 20,000 persons who packed Madison Square garden to see the two big fellows maul and wrestle through 10 rounds.

Paolino received the decision, but he left the ring groggy and weakened from Christner's sensational last-minute bid for victory.

Staging a comeback in the final round after allowing Paolino to carry most of the early rounds, Christner landed his dynamite right again and again to the Basque's granite jaw and once it seemed that the Spaniard might go down.

Paolino forced the fighting through the early rounds and wore Christner down with his terrific body blows. The Arkon heavyweight failed to fight anywhere near the exhibition he gave against Jack Sharkey here last month, and during most of the fight looked the part of a crude second-rate heavyweight.

Christner failed to use his right repeatedly during the most of the fight, even when the Basque left himself wide open for a right to the jaw.

Razorbacks Invited To Play Army Next Autumn

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 22. (UP)—Arkansas university has received an invitation to appear on the army 1930 football schedule, it was announced here today.

The offer likely will be declined, it was said tonight, on account of the shake-up in the Razorback coaching staff. The Porkers lose their football coach, Francis A. Schmidt, who has resigned to accept a similar post at Texas Christian university at Fort Worth.

Arkansas Beats Aggies And Is Assured a Tie

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 22. (AP)—The Arkansas university Razorbacks assured themselves at least a tie for the Southwest conference basket ball title by defeating the Texas Aggies, 40 to 23, in the first game of their closing two-game series here tonight. A victory tomorrow night would give the Porkers undisputed claim to the flag.

DAILY DOPE

MY PUBLIC certainly came to my rescue yesterday. I had to cover the district basket ball tournament and had no time to write this column. But in the mail was a flock of letters, in which the writers heaped fuel on the fire of the hot stove league, with their various all-star selections.

J. A. Byron Jr. and S. D. Holliday of the Fort Worth and Denver offices at Fort Worth went back into ancient history of balldom to select their all-star, all-time nine. Past and present luminaries of the diamond are picked on their team.

Pitchers—Dazzy Vance and Eddie Plank.
Catcher—Buck Ewing.
First Base—Ed Delehanty.
Second Base—Nap Lajoie.
Third Base—Jimmy Collins.
Shortstop—Hans Wagner.
Outfield—Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Babe Ruth.
Coach—Tiny Goodbread.

Ewing was a catcher 'way back when, and oldtimers claim he was the greatest receiver of them all. He was smart, a great receiver, could hit and run bases. Delehanty was the last of that famous family of ball players. He played for the Detroit Tigers when the Jungaleers were winning pennants for Hugh Jennings. Plank, Lajoie, Collins and Wagner ended their diamond careers several years ago. The others named on that team are playing today or have only recently quit their big league scenes of endeavor.

◇ ◇ ◇

J. WARD and L. Grisham of the Panhandle Refining company at Electra, take pen in hand to send in their all-star nine of present day players. It's a corker, too.

Pitchers—Dazzy Vance, Waite Hoyt and Jess Petty.
Catchers—Leo Hartnett, Earl Smith and Mickey Cochrane.
First Base—Lou Gehrig.
Second Base—Rogers Hornsby.
Third Base—Fred Lindstrom.
Shortstop—Hugh Critz and Frank Frisch.
Outfield—Goose Goslin, Al Simmons and Paul Waner.
Utility—Jimmy Foxx.
Manager—Tris Speaker.

That's about the best playing today. Messrs. Grisham and Ward are to especially be commended for picking Speaker as a manager. Perhaps he isn't a greater leader than Mack, McGraw and Huggins. But old Spoke got results at Cleveland. It is a mystery why he isn't leading a big league club now.

◇ ◇ ◇

RILEY RAWLS, also of the Panhandle refinery, located here, is a great booster for the old Chicago White Sox. That is, the White Sox team of the 1910 scandal. Some of them were black sox. Anyhow, they WERE great ball players, and Mr Rawls names a White Sox for every place on his all-time team.

Pitchers—Eddie Cicotte, Lefty Williams and Red Faber.
Catcher—Ray Schalk.
First Base—Chick Gandil.
Second Base—Eddie Collins.
Third Base—Buck Weaver.
Shortstop—Swede Risberg.
Outfield—Joe Jackson, Happy Felsch and John Collins.

Of that illustrious team, Cicotte, Weaver, Risberg, Jackson and Felsch were implicated in the "throwing" of the 1919 series to the Cincinnati Reds. Despite that chicanery, critics agree that club was one of the greatest ever assembled.

Walker Defeats Texas Battler

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22. (UP) A consistent onslaught of rights and lefts for 10 consecutive rounds gave Mickey Walker, middle weight champion of the world, the decision over Jack Willis of Texas here today.

Willis made a gallant showing in staving off a knockout punch but was far behind on points at the end of the tenth round.

Arkansas Five May Play Valley Champ

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 22. (UP)—Arkansas, three times southwest conference basket ball champions, is unable to schedule a post season series with Oklahoma university, Francis Schmidt, razorback pilot said.

In all probability, the razorbacks migh arrange three-game series with Washington university bears, he said. This Missouri valley five has swept everything before them this season, twice downing the Oklahomans.

If this game is booked, one game likely will be played here, one in St. Louis and one in a neutral city.

Notre Dame officials have refused to let the Irish five come South to Little Rock to meet Arkansas in a titular series.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (AP)—Paavo Nurmi decided today to undertake a four-mile race, the longest he ever has run in this country, at the New York country American legion games here Wednesday night.

Yanks Ready For Big Flop

So Say Critics — But They May Be Mistaken

By ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (AP)—Apparently there is no way for Messrs. Rupert, Barrow and Huggins to keep it a secret.

The Yankees are tottering, limping and with a lot of sore arms, even before the training season has begun for the 1929 American league pennant race. Altogether the champions are in a bad plight, minus a regular third baseman and with Babe Ruth unable to get past the second round in a golf tournament, there seems little or no hope for them—that is, if the pessimistic trend of expert opinion is to be taken seriously.

The Spring Fashion

It is the spring fashion to view the Yankee prospects with a sad eye on the basis that the sort of thing the club has been perpetrating for the last few years cannot last, the boys are pessimistic about 1929.

They consider the New Yorkers were lucky to stagger in ahead of the Athletics last year. Perhaps they were, but the Cardinals will tell most anyone a different story.

They point out mournfully that Ruth's legs are weakening, that Dugan's place will be hard to fill at third and that the arms of Koenig, Lazzeri, Pennock and Moore are "problems." Perhaps they are but Dr. Huggins has solved such problems before and very likely will do so again.

Can They Beat Them

However much enthusiasm may be aroused over the prospective chances of the Athletics, the improved Detroit Tigers or the Browns, the fact seems clear that the Yankees, crippled, will be a tough club to beat hale and hearty, the task looms next to impossible. The big bats of Ruth and Gehrig and the pitching skill of Hoyt and Pipgras are a few of the vital factors that show no signs of being impaired whatever.

The firm of Rupper and Huggins is especially anxious to make it four straight pennants—and seven out of nine. Both would be records.

Tipton won its right to enter the semi-final contests by a sensational 28 to 15 victory over Loveland High school. The game was closely contested throughout but the fast offense and impregnable defense of the Tipton team carried it safely to victory.

Grandfield Junior high school boys defeated Manitou, 31 to 11, in the junior high division.

Consolidated defeated Tipton girls, 27 to 11, while Loveland outclassed Davidson by a 40 to 11 score.

Heart Trouble Possible Cause of Youth's Death

LAREDO, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—The theory that Harry Williams, 24, Laredo newspaper reporter whose body was found in the Rio Grande 30 days after he had disappeared, might have died of heart failure was advanced here today by Dr. W. E. Lowry, Jr., one of the examining physicians at the autopsy. "We cannot say what caused Williams' death," Dr. Lowry said, "but I am going into deeper investigation on this assumption. It will be several days before I have completed this work."

Seminole Loses in Output; Three New Wells

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 22.—The production of the Greater Seminole field of Seminole and Pottawatomie counties, was 403,393 barrels from 1,792 wells Wednesday, showing a loss of 1,450 barrels and a gain of three wells over the preceding day.

The output of the Missison field is steadily increasing, having a gange of 35,046 barrels from 68 wells. Most of the wells in the area will be put on air.

March Cotton Bills Pruned

Contracts Evened Up For Tuesday Notices

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (AP)—The feature in the cotton market here during the past week has been the evening-up of March contracts in preparation for the notices which may be issued next Tuesday.

This operation has consisted largely of transferring interest from March to later months and has very little effect on the general level of prices or on the differences between months. At last accounts there were about 73,700 bales of certificated cotton in the local stock, and it is expected by local traders that the amount will be increased somewhat within the next few days. It is impossible to say, of course, whether notices will be issued against the entire stock, but it is generally thought that the greater part of it will be tendered.

The interest in March contracts must have been substantially reduced during the past few days, but some uncertainty as to the number of notices and their possible effects on the market, as well as the proximity of the holiday, may have tended to slow down general business during the week. Disappointment over the failure of report bullish old crop statistics to have a more stimulating effect on demand, has been reflected by some further scattering liquidation, but it has been absorbed on comparatively light reactions by trade buying or covering. This has left a generally steady undertone although neither trade nor speculative buyers have shown a disposition to follow up the advances.

Further complaints of delays in farm work have been made the trade as a result of wet or cold weather during the week, but the general impression is that these conditions have improved the condition of the soil and that it is too early for delays in preparations to count for much in the ultimate crop.

Talk of a slight increase in acreage has continued with private reports suggesting gains ranging from 1 to 3 per cent in the central and western belts. The most favorable features in the preliminary coming crop outlook, however, are considered modified by the probability of a decrease in the use of fertilizers in the eastern belt and the boll weevil situation.

Temperatures during the past day or two are thought to have been low enough to kill some of the weevil in hibernation in certain sections of the belt, but has not entirely relieved the apprehension of a fairly heavy emergence.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK REVIEW

FORT WORTH, Feb. 22. (AP)—An unusually light supply of livestock yarded in all divisions of the trade here today. More than 300 head of hogs were on direct billing to local packers and quality was generally lacking in the rail division of the hog market.

All classes of cattle sold about steady. Except for steers, trade was limited mostly to packing lots.

About half a dozen loads of slaughter steers arrived. During the morning session, loads of common light weight steers sold at $8.45@9.30, with two loads of good to choice fed steers receiving a bid of $10.85. Values about steady.

No trading in bulls except a few odd head that arrived as part of mixed loads and they sold at unchanged values.

Slaughter yearlings steady with one load at $10.90, while part loads sold at $10.00 and $10.50. The common kind sold around $7.50.

No loads of cows changed hands and all changed hands on the scales about in line with yesterday's trading. Canner cutters sold at $5.00 to $6.00, while a few cows sold up to $8.00.

Except for two loads of fair kind of calves that sold at $10.25 and $10.50, fairly limited supplies. Full calves sold mostly around $7.00. Values steady to strong.

No stocker cattle of any consequence included in the day's receipts.

Closing unsteady, hogs here today consigned a quarter higher with no good hogs in the rail division. Some medium grades sold at $10.00 and $10.10 in the rail section, while the truck top was $10.10. The bulk of the 175 to 250 pound butchers sold at $9.50 to $10.00. A few packing sows sold around $8.75 and light weight butchers at $8.00 to $8.50.

Sheep steady with two decks of fall shorn feeder lambs at $12.00.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 22. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Hog prices advanced to new high levels for the season. Trade was active around the 11-market circuit at 15 to 40c higher figures with all interests buying. The day's extreme top of $10.90 was realized in Chicago. Total offerings were around 72,000, a shortage of 52,500 from last Friday and 20,500 less than a year ago.

The sheep supply approximated 49,800 against 87,490 a week ago and 36,488 the corresponding day last year. Fat lambs were unevenly strong to 35c higher with a top of $17.50 at Chicago. Aged stock registered no material change. Probably 36 per cent of the total expected movement of lambs from the western Nebraska and Colorado feed block had moved to Feb. 16, 1929, compared with 30.4 per cent to the same date last year.

Cattle receipts at most markets were light to moderate with trade the usual Friday clean-up at unchanged prices. Chicago with a run of 3,500 reported a dull outlet for most killing classes at 25c to 25c lower prices. Packers in Chicago for the past two days have been very bearish on light yearlings and butcher heifers. Trade interests expect fairly liberal supplies of cattle the fore part of next week. The contributing factors being the sharp price advance this week, and the desire of the feeders to clear their feed-lots before March 1, the date on which some middle belts fix their tax assessment. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 10,500 about the same as a week ago but 2,000 more than a year ago.

The developed photographs will be placed in a parachute message tube with a flashlight attached and sent to the ground. Air corps men in various cities will take charge of distribution.

$3,000 Claim Based On Pain, Suffering

Asking $3,000 as compensation for "pain and suffering" alleged to have followed an automobile accident here in January, 1929, O. B. Leath Friday filed suit for $3,384 damages from Ira Miks of the Central Seed and Feed store.

The plaintiff claims that his car was struck by a truck driving out of a driveway on the grounds of the defendant. His car was damaged and he suffered other financial losses in the sum of $384, the petition says.

The force of the collision hurled Mr. Leath against the steering wheel of his car and caused injuries from which he asks $3,000 damages in the suit filed Friday.

The proposed date for the election is March 19.

Bullet Fired by Army Deserter Kills Woman

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—Belief that a bullet fired by an alleged army deserter while city and military police were attempting to arrest him yesterday killed Mrs. J. H. Horyza, 29, was expressed by military authorities at Fort Sam Houston today. It was at first reported the fatal shot was fired by a military policeman, whose gun was discharged when he struck at the alleged deserter. According to military authorities, the policeman's bullet struck a wall.

BIG SPRING, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP) Motion for a new trial was overruled and notice of an appeal was filed here today in the case of A. A. Bergdorf, convicted last week of murdering Charley Wallace at a filling station near here in October. The two moves came immediately after Judge Fritz R. Smith had pronounced formal sentence of electrocution against Bergdorf in keeping with the jury's finding.

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, Feb. 22. (INS)—The Lone Star gas plant, a mile and a half east of Gordon, was burned today, being ignited from one of the absorption burners. The fire spread quickly, entirely destroying the whole plant, valued at $250,000. No one was reported hurt.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 22. (UP)—Jack, a spotter dog, had soulful eyes and a superior court jury decided he could not be as ferocious as charged by Joseph Brumell. It ruled against Brumell's $5,000 damage suit against George Michaels, owner of the dog.

SOIL IS SAVED BY TERRACING

W. T. C. C. Survey Shows Work in This Direction

STAMFORD, Texas, Feb. 22.—That the soil which is stirred with the plow today may not even be there to be plowed 20 years from today is a fact which is engaging the attention of a great many farmers in West Texas. Terracing to prevent the erosion of the soil is found to be second only in importance to terracing for the prevention of loss of soil fertility by rainfall, in a recent survey made by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Because many tons of soil run off in the form of muddy water following every shower the necessity for terracing to conserve moisture and save added fertility and the laboriously fought-for humus has been realized to such an extent that terracing schools are a regular part of a county agents work in most places. Since it would be impossible for him to terrace all of the land, he saves time by demonstrating to a group of farmers how the work is done.

Spur Projects Noted

A work that has been denoted a classic in agricultural experimept has been done at Spur at the experimental station where some of the most outstanding and significant experiments in the whole nation have been carried on. Such intricate and delicate projects as the measuring and weighing of the amount of soil washed off a certain piece of land with an ascertained slope under definite conditions of rainfall have been made, and accounts published for the benefit of farmers who own farms with similar soils R. E. Dickson is at present the manager of the experimental station which was established by Doctor Youngblood several years ago.

Electra is taking the lead in this work in Wichita county, according to G. C. McGown, county agent. The farm of Mike Hartsmangruber, and one of the farms of W. B. Marchant which have recently been terraced are the models which the other farmers are copying. These two farms consist of 200 acres which have been terraced with many more to be terraced before planting time if possible. Two small farms in the irrigated section will be terraced and the rows run with the terraces in the near future. A. K. Short, of the Federal Land bank and M. R. Bentley of the extension service will hold a terracing school in the Electra trade territory on Feb. 25.

Tarrant County Work

Within the last 12 years approximately 10,000 acres have been terraced in Tarrant county and 40,000 acres benefited by conserving soil moisture and preventing erosion. By designating one to three farmers as leaders in each community demonstrations are given to farmers owning their own terracing levels. By this plan 5,000 acres will be benefited this year. M. M. Miller, of Route 2, Arlington, has assisted M. C. Counts, county agricultural agent in carrying out this farm engineering program.

The Federal Farm Loan bank of Houston has done much to bring about the extensive practice of terracing in the county since it requires all farmers carrying loans who have land needing terracing to have it done.

Around San Angelo 60 per cent of the land lies in the Lipan flat which is a level tract of land of several thousand acres. Eighty per cent of the terracing done on this land in Tom Green county is contouring since there is no need to terrace for the conservation of the soil, only for the conservation of moisture. D. W. Brown, county agent, states that the farms in his territory produce about one-third more where all the rows are on a level line than where they are not. About 70 per cent of the farms of the county have had level lines run on them.

Ten farmers, representing five communities in Howard county with a total acreage of approximately 2,000 acres have asked County Agent J. V. Bush at Big Spring for jobs of terracing to be done this spring and next fall. He estimates that 12 farmers will terrace their 2,500 acres this year. This is another country where demonstrations will be given on certain farms for the benefit of all.

Commissioners Aid

In Eastland county, according to J. C. Patterson, county agent, more terracing was done in January of this year than was done in the whole of last year, the cause being, perhaps, that members of the commissioner's court are using their road graders for the work and are charging only actual operating expenses for the machinery. Terraces built 15 years ago are still standing a monument to Ed. T. Cox, first Eastland county agent. Four teachers of vocational agriculture have been active in the work and two individuals, Ben Reed of the First National Bank of Gorman, and W. P. Roach, farm leader of Rising Star have helped terrace as many as 15 farms in one community while the graders were in that section. The cost has been on an average of .50 to 75 cents per acre.

EGG MARKETS UPSET BUYERS

Hen Fruit Production Does Form Reversal

The egg market for the months of January and February practically reversed all local experience, according to local produce dealers, with the former month showing a surplus of fresh eggs, while February has been marked by the shortage usually expected in January.

Large quantities of eggs produced in this territory were shipped to other sections of the country in January. During the last few days produce dealers and grocers in this and other nearby cities have experienced considerable difficulty in procuring sufficient eggs to satisfy the demands for local consumption. Advances of from $2 to $3 per case have been marked up during the last week.

The sudden shortage has been attributed largely to the unusually cold weather prevailing with considerable regularity during most of the current month. On Friday more eggs were being brought in than had been offered in any one day for two weeks, it was reported.

Ethyl Gasoline Found Less Apt To Create Monoxide Gas, Bureau Finds

Special to The Record News

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The use of gasoline containing ethyl fluid as an automobile engine fuel does not affect materially the percentage of carbon monoxide contained in the exhaust gases, says the department of commerce, following a series of tests conducted at the Pittsburgh experiment station of the United States bureau of mines.

Public interest in atmospheric pollution by automobile exhaust gas and in the ventilation of vehicular tunnels makes it desirable to ascertain whether the use of modern automobile fuels is tending to change the amount and composition of the products of combustion. The United States Bureau of Mines, in co-operation with the Ethyl Gasoline corporation, has completed a series of tests to determine whether any significant difference exists in the carbon monoxide content of the exhaust gas produced by an internal-combustion engine when its fuel is changed from straight gasoline to the same gasoline containing ethyl fluid whose active ingredient is tetraethyl lead.

Two Motor Types

In the tests data were sought relative to the composition and amount of the gas produced by ordinary comparatively low-compression motors as well as by higher compression motors in which distinct detonation occurred with straight gasoline, but which operated without detonation when using the same gasoline containing tetraethyl lead.

The gasoline used for these tests was all taken from the same refinery run to insure similar composition and characteristics. One portion was used as received from the refinery; to a second portion, ethyl fluid in the proportion of 2¼ c. c. of tetraethyl lead per gallon was added (this represented the anti-knock value of standard ethyl gasoline as marketed); to a third portion was added ethyl fluid in the proportion of 3 c. c. of tetraethyl lead per gallon.

Tests were made with the engine operating at full load and at three-quarter load with various carburetor adjustments.

When the engine was operated at a fixed adjustment no significant change was found in the carbon monoxide content, nor in the content of any other constituent of the exhaust gas, upon changing the fuel supply of the engine from straight gasoline to gasoline containing tetraethyl lead (ethyl gasoline). This was true of both the tests in which a detonation was evident and those in which no detonation was audible. Also, no significant difference in the amount of carbon monoxide per horsepower was noted.

However, if the spark was retarded to alleviate detonation during operation on straight gasoline the amount of carbon monoxide per horsepower was approximately 6 to 7 per cent less for ethyl gasoline than for straight gasoline.

As to the effect of ethyl gasoline on health and safety the amounts of carbon monoxide produced by the engine, under any comparable operating condition, were the same for ethyl gasoline and straight gasoline.

Further details are given in serial 2908, "Carbon Monoxide from Automobiles Using Ethyl Gasoline," by W. P. Yant and L. B. Berger, copies of which may be obtained from the United States bureau of mines, department of commerce, Washington, D. C.

Mission Wells To Drill at Will

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 22.—There will be no agreement on halting new drilling in the Mission pool of the Greater Seminole field.

This is what Mission pool operators say after conferences that have been under way since the Oklahoma corporation commission ruled that the Mission pool should be opened up, and it was opened up.

As a result there may be started at will, or whenever they feel like it, some 75 wells, on the two to a 40-acre rule. The first wells on the same basis were started last November, and are now coming in.

The Sunday shutdown program is gaining converts day by day. The Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company of Bartlesville has announced that beginning Feb. 24, it will shut down all of its producing wells in the Seminole field, and possibly in other areas later.

This program was recommended by Thomas B. Slick, noted wildcatter, and inaugurated by Barnsdall Oil company and Prairie Oil and Gas company. Tidal Oil company and the Slick interests have also adopted the plan.

Many operators favor the idea, but do not like the 100 per cent shutdown idea, and may make some revisions so as to keep gasoline plants and wells making a lot of water "active."

Gulf and 'Mag' May Stage Race

Special to The Record News

MIDLAND, Texas, Feb. 22.—Crews laying pipe lines for Gulf and Magnolia will race one another in constructing new lines from their Midland tank farms to the Winkler county fields. Gulf has the start, having already done some trench digging and stringing, but Magnolia's crews are organized and ready to start work as soon as the daily expected pipe arrives. Both oil companies are laying 10-inch lines from their Midland farms to Winkler.

CORROSIVE OIL TO BE STUDIED

Borger Field Crude Trouble To Be Examined

Special to The Record News

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—A field laboratory designed for conducting tests of steel and aluminum tanks used in the storage of crude petroleum containing corrosive compounds is being established near Borger, Texas, by the department of commerce, in cooperation with the Gulf Oil company, Pittsburgh, Pa., the Parkersburg Rig and Reel company, Parkersburg, W. Va., and the Aluminum company of America, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The department of commerce will be actively represented in the investigation by members of the technical staff of the petroleum experiment station of the United States Bureau of Mines, Bartlesville, Okla. The tests will extend over a pedod of 12 months. The rapid corrosion of tankage, pipes and equipment by oil of this nature constitutes one of the serious problems of the oil industry.

The problem of preventing corrosion of oil tanks and other storage equipment is not new in the petroleum industry, but with increased production of high sulphur crudes in the Texas Panhandle and West Texas areas the problem has assumed extremely serious proportions. It has been estimated that in certain fields of Texas one tank out of every five has to be replaced every year because of the high sulphur content of the crude. One suggested method for combatting tank corrosion is the use of materials which have a high resistance to the corrosive action of hydrogen sulphide and high sulphur crudes. Aluminum is one of these materials.

At a recent conference between representatives of the bureau of mines and the cooperating companies a plan of investigation was outlined to determine the relative resistance and adaptability of tanks made of steel and aluminum. A lease in the Texas Panhandle has been chosen as the site for making these tests. The rate of tankage corrosion is more pronounced in the Texas Panhandle than in the West Texas fields, although the percentage of hydrogen sulphide in the gas produced with the crude is appreciably less. Comparative data show that the hydrogen sulphide content of the gas coming from the "Big Lime" formation in the Texas-Panhandle averages 0.50 to 6.65 per cent by volume, whereas the hydrogen sulphide content of the gas in the Big Lake, McCamey and Crane-Upton fields is 10, 6 and 8 to 12 per cent by volume, respectively.

Five new tanks will be used in the test battery; one 500-barrel aluminum treating tank, two 250-barrel aluminum storage tanks, and two 250-barrel steel tanks. It is proposed to subject the four 250-barrel tanks to the same storage conditions. The treating tank will be heated and treating compounds used and the fluid agitated in this tank in accordance with present lease practice. All test tanks will be under close observation for indications of corrosive action. Several recording devices will be used in connection with the work.

Ludwig Schmidt, petroleum engineer, petroleum experiment station, Bartlesville, Okla., is in direct charge of the tests for the bureau of mines, and J. M. Devine furloughed from the bureau for one year, will represent the cooperative companies. The results of these tests will be published later by the bureau of mines.

Plea for Higher Tariff on Crude Heard in Senate

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (INS)—Demands for a higher tariff on oil sounded throughout the senate of the democratic Texas legislature today.

Immediately after the morning call, Senator Greer of Athens moved to suspend the order of business and consider the senate concurrent resolution which would memorialize congress to place a $1-a-barrel import tax on crude oil.

On vote the Greer motion failed to poll the necessary two-thirds majority with only 15 yea's and 12 no's to displace the order of business.

Senator Cousins of Beaumont spoke in opposition to the bill on the grounds that the warding off of imported crude would be a severe hindrance in time of a national calamity and declared that only one state in the union, Texas, produces more oil than used. Cousins' lengthy talks against the consideration of the measure loomed as a filibuster after it was apparent that supporters of his prison measures were two or three short of the usual number.

With a vote of 15 to 8, the senate, on a motion of Senator Love, brought out on a favorable minority report Love's senate bill repealing the search and seizure law.

Another motion by Love to bring out on a minority report and have printed, the repeal of the evidence clause of the search and seizure law, provided lengthy discussion.

McCarty Helps Well By Slight Drilling

FORT STOCKTON, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—The McCarty Oil corporation's No. 1 Gray, which came in as a small producer on Feb. 15, was deepened two feet to 1167 yesterday and made an initial flow of 20 barrels in 30 minutes, or an estimated 960 barrels daily.

The well was shut down until storage can be provided. It is near the west line of section 591, G. C. & S. F. railway survey.

Oil from the wildcatter, 60 miles from the nearest large pool, tests 68 gravity.

Superior Head Announces Details of Trade

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—The sale of 480 oil producing acres in Howard county, West Texas, to the Marland Production company by the Superior Oil corporation was confirmed here today by E. C. Edwards, manager of the Superior Oil Producing company, the Texas subsidiary of the Superior Oil corporation. The purchase price was not announced, but it was said several million dollars in cash would be paid.

The tract is in the northwest half of section 136 and the northwest quarter of section 137, block 29, Waco and Northwestern Railway company survey.

The Superior company through the deal, according to Edwards, also will receive from the Marland company a one-sixteenth overriding royalty in producing acreage in the Allen field of Pontotoc and Seminole counties, Oklahoma, heretofore owned by the Louisiana Oil and Refining company, but acquired by the Marland company through the purchase of all the Louisiana company's properties.

The state headquarters for the Superior company will be established in San Angelo, Edwards said.
