CROOKED WORK ALLEGED IN FEDERAL GROUP OF PROBERS

NO SOURCE OF MONEY IS YET FOUND AS POLICE CONTINUE SEARCH

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—That the $15,000 to $50,000 and possibly a much larger sum, was paid to members of the federal jury that recently acquitted former Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman and seven other officers on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice...

These held are: Leo Tashjian, deputy United States marshal; Joseph Plunkett, son of a former police captain; and L. C. Moran, an attorney. They were taken into custody after Thomas Smith, deputy United States marshal, in charge of the venire from which the federal jury was drawn, told Thompson that Tashjian sought to induce him to see that Plunkett's name was drawn for jury service.

He Quotes Information

He said that a card bearing Plunkett's name was handed to him by Tashjian and that on the back was a notation indicating that it would be worth "fifteen grand" which he took to mean $15,000 to place Plunkett on the jury. Smith, however, said he made no attempt to have the name drawn for jury service, but instead turned over his information to Mr. Thompson.

Clarence L. Converse, a special federal intelligence agent, said that Tashjian had "made a clean breast of it" while Moran, he said, had admitted he accepted to have Plunkett's name placed on the jury but said that only $500 and not $15,000 had been offered other federal officials.

CRITICAL BARRAGE SCORES NAVY BILL

HIRAM JOHNSON IN BATTLE TO HALT PLANS OF COMMITTEE TO SUPPORT NAVY

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Drawing a barrage of criticism of the American navy from both sides of the capitol, the naval appropriation bill was reported today to the house. The verbal shells were merely range finders for concerted attacks to be delivered when the measure, carrying $214,727,888 for activities during the next fiscal year, comes the blockade of navy men in both houses.

Plans Made Public

That certain members of the committee were preparing to ask congress to authorize gun elevation was disclosed by Chairman Butler, who declared he would vote for the proposal although two years ago, he led the fight to defeat the same proposition when it drew the opposition of President Coolidge.

In the Senate during the day criticism of the navy was voiced from the floor by Senator Johnson, republican California, who demanded that it be raised from its "woeful status" to a parity with any other nation.

Declaring that "we were out-gunned by the great conference" and "that everybody believed our navy would be equal to Great Britain's and greater than that of Japan," Senator Johnson asserted that American navy in competition with the other two powers, is "underbuilt, inefficient, inadequate for its purpose, and unable to hamper the national pride and empire of the national safety."

The Woman's Day

By Allene Summer

HER SHELL-LIKE EARS

Ear tint, waxed and scented, to give a shell-like appearance to the mair and mair's aural appendages, is now on the market. And one wonders what will come next. A wily commercial world, knowing that woman will pay and pay-and pay for beauty, or what she thinks is beauty, has produced just about everything.

Eye-brow pencils and crayons to make interesting, blue-black shadows over and under and around the orb; mascara for the eyelashes, skin foods, skin tonics, vanishing creams, cleansing creams, orange and lemon lotions, liquid powder, soaps and powders to match a thousand flesh tints, lipstick that paint real cupid bows, perfumed with myriad flower scents.

But, somehow to me this ear tint is sort of a last straw in the bale of folly! No logical reason for this old-fashioned reaction, of course, but I continue to insist it's silly!

"OH, DEAR, A FRECKLE!"

Being on this beauty subject, I just read the philosophical outburst of a beauty editor who had discovered a magnifying mirror for the dressing-table. It looks like any mirror, comes in amber or cream or pink or blue or jade pearl with powder box to match, but when you use it—oh, dear! You see all the little lines that are coming, all the freckles, all the moles, all the everything that should be on the skin you love to touch.

The beauty editor is all excited about this discovery. To me it savors of having one of the carnival "Funny Face" mirrors on your dressing table. After all, the world doesn't view one's skin through a magnifying mirror; why should the individual? It symbolizes modern woman's exaggeration of her own importance.

WE'RE LOPSIDED

Some deliver after truth has discovered that the average woman's face is lop-sided, the right side of the face is more developed than the left because the right eye is used more, which is why we see upon our streets no symmetrical oval faces like the Madonnas painted by Michelangelo and Raphael.

Headache Caused By Nerve Tension

A headache is Nature's warning of high nerve tension (strain) which results, sooner or later, in high blood pressure and ultimate injury to your health.

The next time you have a headache, neuralgic pain, lacerate pain or other nerve pain try the improved method of relief—two teaspoonfuls of Capudine in a little water. Being liquid Capudine acts almost instantaneously in one-fifth the time required by tablets and powders. Capudine soothes the excited nerves without deadening them. Yet it is more effective in the relief of headache, neuralgic, lacerate pain, rheumatic and periodical pain. Capudine does not depress the heart and will not upset the stomach.

If the use of Capudine does not give you permanent freedom from headaches, you may be sure they are caused by some organic condition which should receive the attention of your oculist, dentist or family physician.

Physicians and druggists recommend Capudine as the safe, quick and dependable agent for relieving nervous pains and high nerve tension. Every home should be supplied with Capudine. Get a bottle today at your druggist's and if you do not like it far better than anything you have ever tried, the manufacturers will cheerfully refund the price upon request. Family size, 60c; individual, 30c; at all drug stores. (adv.)

Young Taylor County Farmer Learns Poultry Industry Means Money; Opens Yard to Flock and Shows Big Profit

Fifteen months ago, H. G. Stewart, a hard-working young farmer of the Cevalo community in the south central part of Taylor county had about the same conception of the poultry business as has been held by the majority of West Texas farmers until recently—that conception did not give poultry raising a place as a business worthy of any marked interest or attention from the farmer.

It was all right for the farmer's wife and children to have a little bunch of chickens, as long as eggs were provided for the table and once in awhile there was a hen to hatch and fatten chicken in season, but as far as there being any money to be made by "raising" with chickens, the average farmer of West Texas could not see it—of course every once in awhile, a bucket of eggs or a few chickens could be taken to town and sold to the produce man and a few dollars would be added to the family exchequer, but not many farmers could see enough revenue in the fowls to cause them to spend much time thinking of culling, breeding for egg production or feeding balanced rations.

Started back to Stewart. Fifteen months ago there was a flock of about fifty chickens on the Stewart farm. There were various kinds of fowls in the lot, cross breeds, varied colors, indifferent layers, prodigious consumers of food, but very ordinary producers of revenue—the Stewart chickens was no different from the ordinary farm chickens and the owner thought he was doing just about as well as anybody else with the chickens on his farm.

Some time during the fall of 1925 the Taylor county agricultural agent was helping Stewart do some terracing on his farm. While the agent was about as well as anybody else with the chickens on his farm.

Stewart showed great interest in such a project after he learned of the vast difference in pure-bred and scrub poultry and shortly afterwards he procured a large number of baby chicks from some of the foremost Rhode Island-Rock fanciers in the country. A modern poultry house was built and equipped and a number of breeding pens were provided so the best fowls could be selected from the flock. The chickens were given all necessary attention and care. Stewart subscribed for several outstanding poultry journals and secured literature from the United States Department of Agriculture. He availed himself of the service of the county agent and generally showed that he was sold on the poultry business and intended to work at the job like he would anything else he considered worthwhile.

He watches breeding. Stewart paid special attention to producing a highly bred strain of chickens and as a result of his efforts recently won a number of first prizes with his birds at the South Taylor County Poultry Show, held at Tuscumbia and the West Texas Poultry Show in Abilene.

A cockerel from the Stewart flock was recently sold for $35.00 and he has numbers of pullets which could be disposed of for five dollars each, if the owner would part with them, but he has no pullets for sale, he says as he expects to retain all of the fowls and will continue to select the best birds and use them as breeding stock.

Stewart has made an investment of around five hundred dollars in the poultry business, includes the amount spent for baby chicks, poultry house and other equipment. If he were to sell the birds now on his yard, he would realize an amount equal to his entire outlay of money plus good pay for the time given to the project.

During the coming season Stewart will realize considerable revenue from his undertaking, as he plans to sell baby chicks to the farmers in his territory and has already been given many orders for chicks to be delivered later.

This man is one farmer who took time by the forelock and began to diversify before necessity forced a change from a farming program with cotton as the major interest.

It is just another example of where the lowly hen has put a farmer in a position so the low price of cotton causes no mental disturbances.

TRENT GROWS AS CRUDE OIL FLOWS

MORE SCHOOL FACILITIES MUST BE HAD, CITIZENS OF TOWN FIND

(Special to The Avalanche)

ABILENE, Tex., Jan. 3.—Discovery of oil at Noodle Dome, three miles northeast of Trent, a little city in the northwest part of Taylor county, has not only brought prosperity and many new citizens to the town, but it has brought trouble for the civic leaders in the community.

Trent is facing an oversupply of school students—that is, there are more students in the district than can be given instruction by the teaching force under contract and it has been necessary for two additional teachers to be employed. The scholastic population of Trent has been increased about seventy during the past three months and more new ones will enroll in the public school classes during January.

Moore Room Needed

School authorities of that community are faced with the necessity of providing more room for the work of the institution and it is expected that an addition will be built to the present school plant soon.

This is the first time in over ten years that it has been necessary for the citizens of Trent to give any consideration to the enlargement of the school facilities of the town. The situation is being taken care of in regular West Texas style.

Oil activity in the territory surrounding Trent has been the cause of that town more than doubling. Its population since September and more and greater development is expected to be made by the town during the next few months as the oil exploration increases.

PLAINVIEW DOES GRAIN BUSINESS

5,987 CARS INSPECTED BY U. S. MEN DURING 1926, HALE COUNTY CAPITOL SAYS

(Special to The Avalanche)

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 3.—Five thousand and nine hundred and fifty-seven cars of grain received federal inspection at the offices of the Plainview Grain exchange during 1926 according to J. B. Wallace, Chief Inspector. This is the largest number of cars ever inspected during a single year at Plainview, the record until this year being 4,316 cars for 1924. Mr. Wallace stated that 4000 cars of grain would have been inspected in Plainview this year had it not been for the recent ten days of bad weather. About seventy-five per cent of the cars inspected this year were wheat, however, a great number of cars of grain left Plainview that were not billed for inspection, according to Mr. Wallace.

July was the record month of 1926 when a total of 3,059 cars were inspected, all of which were wheat. July 2nd was the record day with 230 inspections.

The Plainview grain exchange serves a territory within a fifty miles radius of Plainview however, Hale, Floyd, and Swisher counties furnish the greatest number of cars for inspection.

Plainview Rainfall in Past Year Heavy

(Special to The Avalanche)

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 3.—The rainfall at Plainview during 1926 was the heaviest in the history of this city, 31.78 inches being recorded by W. J. Klinger, local weather agent. This is 37 inches more than the rainfall of 1915 which held the record until now.

During the year there were 251 clear days, 51 cloudy days and 68 partly cloudy days. The snowfall for the year amounted to 27 inches. The maximum temperature was 100 degrees on July 9th and the minimum was 2 degrees on January 29th. Prospects for the largest wheat crop in the history of Hale county are exceptionally bright since a large amount of moisture has been received all through the fall up to the present time.

DO YOUR PART TO MAKE 1927 A SAFETY YEAR

Promotion of safety measures for the reduction of fatalities and accidents on the streets and highways is the outstanding task ahead of the nation in 1927.

While the A. A. A. plea to make 1927 a safety year was primarily addressed to the motorists, Mr. Henry took occasion to point out that in order to create a record for safety, the question must be made a national issue to a greater extent than ever before.

The Spread of Christianity Has Brought Material Success

Editor's Note:—This is the last of a series of six articles on religion in which the author, a Greek mythologist, Zoroastrianism, Buddhism, Mohammedanism and Christianity have been reviewed.

By J. W. T. MASON
Author of "Creative Freedom"
(Written for NEA Service.)

Christianity has undergone a more striking evolution in the course of its history than any other world religion.

He taught the three great principles which modern life increasingly accepts: a guide to material as well as spiritual success; individual responsibility; co-operation and service.

But after Christ's death, his followers were dissatisfied with the beautiful simplicity of these doctrines, and tried to improve on them. So arose constant disputes concerning orthodox and heresy in the church.

The Arian Heresy
The first great heresy centered about Arius, a presbyter in Alexandria, in the fourth century. Arius thought Christianity was moving away from monotheism and toward worship of two deities, God and Christ.

Athanasius led the orthodox party which believed the Arian heresy, itself, destroyed monotheistic Christianity. The Athanasians asserted God and Christ were co-equal self-created parts of similar substance, but of the same substance. Arius was banished and the Nicene and later the Athanasian creeds were promulgated to tell the faithful what they should believe on this doctrinal point.

In the fifth century, the Nestorian heresy arose, due to an attempt by Patriarch Nestorius of Constantinople, to emphasize the difference between the divine and human in the nature of Christ.

This always has been a difficult problem with theologians, who have not encouraged detailed discussion of the mystery.

Nestorius was accused of exaggerating the distinction between Christ's two natures, which was held by the orthodox to be mystically united. The patriarch was banished to Egypt where Nestorianism spread to the Far East and eventually exerted much influence on Chinese thought.

Such controversies as these raged within the early church during the centuries when Christians believed the Day of Judgment was about to descend on the earth and all must be prepared to be catechized at the heavenly gate.

Belief, too, in miracles existed, and God was conceived as directing man's every activity. The doctrine of divine interference in human affairs, so destructive of individual creative action, predominated to the end of the crusades.

into Utilitarian Fields
Under this impetus, Christianity moved forward toward a justification for practical, utilitarian work as the duty of mankind. To save souls for the Day of Judgment was the predominant desire of the early Christians.

Now, however, a missionary who reports only the salvation of souls is not regarded highly. Missionaries must open schools, teach modern methods of progress and show how man can help himself and gain material comforts.

The great materialistic nations of the world are Christian nations for material success when it develops individuality and is co-operative and stimulates service, allies itself naturally with an spiritual teachings of Christ.

Senator Edwards broadened his remarks to include a warning that a "complete breakdown of the American system of government" is threatened, if the dry law remains as it is and every day that the Volstead act with all the attendant evils, was a nullification of American liberty and freedom.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, also assailed the prohibition law "as immoral and indecent," and Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, said he concurred in the New Yorker's views.

Senator Mayfield, democrat, Texas, followed up Senator Caraway by denouncing that Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, had been quoted as saying "much is heard from Democratic quarters about so-called negro wards in Philadelphia, but in Texas, there are twelve counties where the polls were not even opened."

MAYFIELD EXPLAINS PROPOSITION

"That statement," said Senator Mayfield, "leaves the impression that the failure to open polls in twelve counties in Texas was due to the fact that there was a large negro population in those counties. I venture to say that in the twelve counties not three per cent of the qualified voters were negro voters."

RICKARD COMPLETES HIS PLANS FOR CONFERENCE WITH GENE TUNNEY PROMISES NEWSPAPERMEN STORY

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Tex Rickard today completed preparations for heading an expedition westward to St. Louis for the purpose of signing Gene Tunney for the defense of the heavyweight championship of the world in New York next September.

It will start late tomorrow and will be one of the most elaborate excursions of the sort in pugilistic history. The promoter will be accompanied by a large retinue of associates and newspapermen, indicating his confidence that the trip will accomplish its purpose, and, as he put it, "give the boys something to write home about."

Understanding Hinted

In some quarters it is believed that Rickard already has come to a definite understanding with Tunney and that the conference in St. Louis, slated for Thursday, merely will provide the setting for a definite announcement. The promoter declined to commit himself.

The team of former Tiger stars was drawn from the following list: Owen Weaver, Marion Benton, Homer Johnson, C. C. Hoffman, Jr., Charles Splawn, Tess Bruner, Roy Brown, Bill Denver, Quincey Owee, Harry Green, Bill Sledge and James Burton.

Admission fees collected at the game will be used to buy sweaters for the 1926 team.

on this today. He also denied a report that Jack Dempsey would be a party to the conference but it is understood the former champion is included in Rickard's plans for this year.

It is Rickard's scheme to match Dempsey with the winner of the current elimination tournament, the victor of the semi-final to meet Tunney.

In the face of Rickard's flourishing move, his rival New York promoter, Humbert-Fugazy, said today he was preserving an attitude of "careful waiting."

WINTER TERM ENROLLMENT GOOD

With more students enrolled yesterday than in any day of registration of the Tech, the prospects for another banner enrollment are good. The new system of enrolling the students in alphabetical order worked fine and a greater number were able to complete their registration yesterday. Only the old students registered and although no official figure could be obtained last night, a great part of those here last term enrolled again. Only the new students will enroll today and a substantial increase is anticipated by the officials.

"Everything looks promising," President Paul W. Horn stated yesterday afternoon after the building had been respectfully deserted by the old students. Authorities believe that the enrollment for the year will climb to over 1,500 students.

TECH RECEIVES VISITORS FROM AUSTIN

Emmett L. Whitaker, of Lamesa, recently elected representative from this district and William Thornton, Austin correspondent of a state paper, are visiting in this section and paid the Tech a visit yesterday. Whitaker, in his campaign in the summer, pledged his untiring support for the Tech and is here making himself acquainted with the school, in order to learn the needs of the institution. He has shown a great interest in the Tech and is planning to do great work for it. Thornton is gathering material for publicity purposes.

Both men were guests last night at a dinner given by the Home Economics faculty in the Home Economics building. College authorities and authorities and a few citizens were present. Today at noon the men will be guests of the Board of City Development in a luncheon at the Lubbock Hotel and tonight they will again be entertained with a dinner in the college cafeteria.

INGERTON TAKES CHARGE OF PHYSICAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT

Capt. Rhodes Ingerton, new head of the physical training department, is the only new member of the Tech faculty and is taking charge of this department with the winter term enrollment. Ingerton, an Amarillo boy, was a captain in the army and has a thorough knowledge of military tactics. He was a member of the famous Centre college football team and has had three years of coaching experience under Uncle Charlie Moran, national figure in the football world.

Ingerton will have charge of both the military and physical training departments and will be ably assisted by Lt. Hugh Kiffin, former head of the department.

LA VENTANA TO HOLD FINAL SALES

Officials of the La Ventana staff announced yesterday that the final La Ventana sales special offer campaign would be held in the next ten days. Unless students purchase books in the next ten days, an extra charge of fifty cents will be placed on them in later campaigns. A table will be maintained in the hall on the second floor and all students are asked to buy their books as soon as possible.

The staff also announced that only a short time was left in which to order photos for the women's section of the annual. Eight girls will be selected by Artist Lore of the Southwestern engraving company and each boy is allowed to submit as many photos as he desires.

Work on the book is progressing nicely and the staff are planning to have it ready by the last two weeks of school. All clubs who have not paid their membership fees for the year are asked to turn them in to the business manager at once.

President Paul W. Horn will leave Wednesday for Ft. Worth where he will attend a meeting of the state educational board of which he is a member. From there he will go to Austin to attend to business matters, returning to Lubbock the latter part of the week.

Both the Donk Hall for women and Cheri Casa dormitory have changed ownership since the Christmas holidays. J. T. Farmer has purchased Donk Hall and will have charge of the hall with Miss Ivo Wilson as matron. D. F. Eboest of Seminole has assumed management of Cheri Casa and will have charge throughout the remainder of the school year.

With the new court nearing completion, the applicants for the 1927 Matador quintet are awaiting, anxiously, the call for basket ball workouts. A few minor jobs have to be completed on the new court and playing will begin. It will likely be the latter part of the week before practice can be taken up in earnest. Over 50 men are expected to report for the initial call by Coach Grady Higginbotham.

With the Engineers gloating over their victory in football, members of the school library, arts and architecture schools are laying plans for a comeback on the basket ball court. There is a wealth of material for teams in the three schools and the intramural contests will likely be filled with close games. Daily practices is expected to be launched soon after the varsity squad gets under way.

Jarets Leave on Jaunt to Markets

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Jarett, of Amarillo, who with Harry Meyers are owners of the ladies ready-to-wear stores both in Lubbock and the North Plains city, have left their home for New York where they will spend six weeks buying goods for their stores in both cities. Mr. Meyers, manager of the Lubbock store, said yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarett are widely known and will probably pay a visit to Lubbock shortly after their return from their east. Mr. Meyers said.

BOND VOTE TO BE FEATURE, REPORT

CITIZENS OF HALE, FLOYD AND MOTLEY COUNTIES WILL GO TO POLLS FOR GOOD ROADS

Citizens of Hale, Floyd and Motley counties are planning to start negotiations for another bond election in the near future to carry on improvement work on the Lee highway according to Henry C. Porter, of the engineering firm of Naylor, Witt, Rollins and Gilchrist, of Dallas, who arrived here Monday after spending the day in Plainview and other towns in the territory involved in the proposition.

Elections held in the three counties last Friday, seeking to vote bonds varying from $200,000 to $1,000,000 were defeated by small margins in each county. Opposition favoring the bonds were registered in each county but proponents for the issues fell short of the two-thirds majority required.

Citizens of the counties are very much interested in the contemplated bond issue program. Mr. Porter said and believes that at the next election the movement will score a big victory. It is understood that present plans are to call another election early in the spring.

Three of the nine counties involved in the concerted program will vote on bond issues during this month.

Christmas Day was a happy one for little Jimmy Marby of Brookton, who was four years ago thought to be a hopeless cripple, but who has been cured by a famous "bloodless surgeon."

Representative Emmett Whitaker Honor Guest as Tech Home Economics Students Prepare Luncheon; Luncheon Tomorrow

The students of the school of Home Economics prepared and served dinner to a few members of the faculty of the Tech Technological college and representative citizens of Lubbock when Emmett L. Whitaker, representative to the state legislature from this district and William M. Thornton, manager of the Austin Bureau of the Dallas News, were entertained with an informal dinner.

Thornton is visiting Lubbock to renew acquaintances here and to gather news regarding railroad, industrial and agricultural development in Lubbock and the South Plains.

Whitaker is here visiting city and county officials and other citizens in an effort to get better acquainted with the needs of this district before journeying to Austin to attend the meeting of the legislature.

Luncheon Tomorrow

Both Thornton and Whitaker will be guests of the directors of the Board of City Development here today when they meet for their regular weekly luncheon at Hotel Lubbock. Tonight directors of the Board of City Development and faculty members of the Tech Technological college will entertain the two distinguished visitors with an informal dinner at the Tech cafeteria.

The visitors will be shown through the Tech Technological college and other places of interest here today. Whitaker is making a trip over the

J. F. Fitch, regional scout executive of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, will be in Lubbock, Thursday, and preside over a meeting of the South Plains council to discuss scout business and lay plans for the program of 1927. H. B. Palmer, scout executive announced yesterday. Palmer stated that representative from every South Plains town would be invited to attend the meeting and a good attendance is expected.

The meeting Thursday will be a preliminary meeting for the big Area Council meeting which will be held in the chamber of commerce office, January 11, Palmer said yesterday. Fitch will be at this meeting also and discuss in more detail the council operations and plans for the coming year. No financial contribution will be made, the scout planning to raise funds in a more systematic manner. DAILY MARKET

NEW ORLEANS COTTON NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3.—The cotton market had a quiet opening after the holidays although the price trend was moderately downward due to the good weather in the belt. At the start Liverpool cables were lower than due and first trades showed losses of 3 to 5 points except January which opened one point up. The market continued to ease off a moderate selling until late in the morning, prices showed losses on all active positions of 15 points. At this decline the selling appeared to have been absorbed and prices rallied moderately, recouping about five to seven points from the lows. The market eased off again in the final trading on weakness in the current month and on the weak stock market, dropping to levels 17 to 18 points below the previous close. The close showed a net loss for the day of 16 to 17 points.

First prices were easier and at the end of the first half hour January traded at 12.00, March, 12.15, and May at 12.82, or 9 to 10 points under Friday's close. Prices continued to ease off during the morning until near noon, January had traded to 12.54, March 12.59 and May 12.77, or 15 points on all positions below the previous close. The market although quiet rallied some during the early afternoon on a little trade support and March traded up to 12.65 and May to 12.77.

The market turned easier again in the late trading, owing to some weakness in the January position which dropped to 12.50, or 10 points under the previous close. Other months made new lows at 12.55 for March and 12.75 for May, or 17 to 18 points down. The close was steady, a shade above the lowest. Exports for the day totalled $2,316, and since Friday 190,871 bales.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK CHICAGO, Jan. 3. (AP)—Cattle 21,600; hogs 19 to 15 cents higher; sheep 12 to 25 cents lower; vealers 11.50 to 12.00; pigs 11.50 to 11.75; estimated hold-over 7,000. Sheep 27,000; fat lambs steady; top 12.75; bulk 12.00 to 12.25; sheep unchanged; ewes 5.00 to 6.50; feeding lambs steady to strong; bulk 11.90 to 11.75.

COFFEE FUTURES NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (AP)—Coffee futures opened today at an advance of 3 to 21 points and sold about 10 to 21 points net higher in early trading on reported reports of an improving spot demand, which evidently inspired covering and trade buying. The advance was checked by realizing at 14.35 for May, however, and there were reactions later to 14.41 for that position, which may have been provoked by the slightly easier ruling of Rio exchange. The close showed net advances of 2 to 12 points. Estimated sales 49,000 bags. Closing quotations: January 14.85; March 15.25; May 14.42; July 15.25; September 15.25; December 12.05. Spot coffee firm. Rio 7s 15 3-8 to 15 3-2; Santos 4s 19 1-4 to 20.

WALL STREET REPORT NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (AP)—Commercial bills in the United States in 1926 are figured at 21.725 by R. G. Duhr and Company, two percent more than in 1925. Index of 1926, 1108.227, was 8 percent lower.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
To the home of PROF and MOLLE ELWELL in Camdenville, Ind., one night in October, 1925, is brought a woman who had fainted on a train. Late that night the woman bears twin girls and then dies without revealing her name.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been adopted and named MARGARET and ELIZABETH. They are called RUSTY and BETTY.

JIM ELWELL, the son, enlists in the World War. He then discovers that one of the twins lives here.

He is shell-shocked at the Battle of Sedan and, through a mixup, is registered as JOHN POWELL. He is removed to an American hospital and reported dead.

It is discovered that the father of the twins is dead and that they are nieces and heirs of JOHN CLAYTON, wealthy resident of Indianapolis. Shortly after this the Elwells get word that Jim is alive. They start for New York.

Meanwhile the steps leading to Jim Elwell's identification are accounted for. He is like a living dead man, but he is recognized by one MIKE HENNEGAN, ex-soldier, and NELLIE DOWNING. He claims she will go to Washington to learn more about him.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVI
"Now listen, Mike," said Nellie Downing before she left to prepare for her journey to Washington. "You didn't earn any medals in France; at least, you didn't get any. But behave yourself and keep out of scrap games and perhaps you'll get a medal yet; you can't tell. Take good care of your friend, Jim, and I'll decorate you myself when I get back."

"And I'll be right here to get it, Captain!" This new responsibility imposed on him seemed to have made him proud of himself. "You can pin a rose on Jim, too, for me 'n Jim are just like that," and he held up a hand to show his crossed fingers. "So hurry back 'n bring Jim's family with you, kid pals and all."

With which words, Mike Hennegan, laying aside, guiding Nelly to his charge, took Jim Elwell out for a walk.

Armed with the patient's name and the names of his father and mother and with the information that he had come from Indiana, Nellie Downing landed in Washington and proceeded to the war department, housed in the old State, War and Navy building in Pennsylvania avenue close to the White House.

She did not see the president. She had no need to see the president. For sometimes red tape can be cut and action can be had without action.

At first the search took them off on a false track. There were several James Elwells from Indiana, but the records of these men all were clear.

There was another Elwell—a James T. Elwell of Camdenville, Ind., who had been reported dead at the Battle of Sedan. Killed in a shell explosion, together with four others of a machine gun unit of six.

His father's name was listed as Edwin, his mother's Mollie.

"We've found him!" exclaimed Nellie Downing.

"But," the postoffice officer who was assisting her, "this man is dead. There's no doubt about that, is there?"

"Very much of a doubt, I remember now this James Elwell, who then was listed as John Powell of Newark, New Jersey, was brought into the hospital at Metz where I worked with the corps that he was the survivor of a machine gun unit of six that had been blown to pieces at the Battle of Sedan."

"Who seems to have happened in a mixup in the identification of John Powell and James Elwell, John Powell is the one who was killed at Sedan."

John Powell's mother and sweetheart visited the patient at the hospital in Long Island and failed to recognize him as their son. That proved he wasn't John Elwell. It also left John Powell unaccounted for. Now that the man up in Long Island is identified as James Elwell, you are safe in guessing what became of the other man.

The officer nodded slowly. "Such mistakes can be made, of course, although they don't happen often. It seems strange, too, that the identification tags were missing from the two men. Otherwise there wouldn't have been such a mixup."

She was satisfied, Nellie Downing told him that the puzzle had been solved. Would the war department notify James Elwell's parents of the mistake?

The department would, the officer assured him. "And if there's still a mistake the parents would see it, of course."

"But it would have to go through the orthodox channels, he told her, whereupon Nellie Downing frowned and pleaded impudently that he take it upon himself to see the thing through.

"Every minute you wait is torture to his people out in Indiana."

"But not half so torturing, he hastened to tell her, with a wry smile, as the realization of the fact that Jim was now little more than a living dead man."

"From what you tell me, Miss Downing, it is one of the worst cases of shell-shock I have ever heard of. One of the most pitiful, at least. Why, the man is worse than an imbecile. It would be far less cruel to his parents and to himself, if he were dead."

Whereupon Nellie Downing cried. She had been under a severe strain and she was very tired. She broke down.

"Oh, I'm sorry," the man told her and assisted her to a chair. "Perhaps, after all, it is something that can be done for him. If I ever hear of anyone who can help him I'll remember it for you."

Twenty-four hours later Nellie Downing was back at the hospital on Long Island. Her determined efforts had obtained immediate action. The Elwells in Camdenville had been notified. Word had gone to Mrs. John W. Powell in Newark that apparently reliable information had been received to indicate that her son was dead.

That is how it came about that Prof and Mollie Elwell were notified that Jim was still living and how they found themselves rushing to catch the twentieth century train to Chicago to New York on the night of April 15, 1919.

Many persons, doubtless, would say that the meeting of Nellie Downing and Mike Hennegan in City Hall Park was something far stronger than coincidence—possibly just a far-fetched plot to hook up the ends of a plot. Some might say it was the waving wand of undirected chance that brought about the meeting, or the twining finger of circumstance that pointed that way.

Whatever it was, the fact remains, it happened. It may well have been that the war department would have straightened out the tangle itself, upon learning that a man listed as John Powell was not Powell after all, but an Unknown Soldier.

It would have been a long task, and a disheartening one, but worse tangled than to hook up the ends of a plot, he would have had to find that it was the sure-working hand of destiny that brought it about.

Prof Elwell stopped, dropped the two suitcases he was carrying and gazed at Mollie with a look of helplessness. "They were two girls who were lost in the wilderness of Grand Central Station, New York city."

A wolf in sheep's clothing rushed up to them. He was a "runner" for a cheap hotel where they stung them quick and stung them hard.

"Hotel, sir," he queried hurriedly, his weather eye open for any station detective who might have noticed him take the trail of his prospective prey. "Modern in every way, air-reduced rates for tourists, close to the station."

Prof and Mollie followed, for they had no other recourse. It seemed to them it was too late, they had agreed to go all the way out to Long Island that night. They were tired and excited. A good night's sleep and they would be calm and fresh for Jim in the morning.

And so they followed their self-appointed guide, followed him for a respectable distance. It seemed, not so much a runner, but a terrible man that looked out on the tracks of the elevated—and, spent a nerve-racking and sleepless night.

Prof Elwell seldom had felt the call to swear in terms of graphic Billingsgate English. But there is a limit to any man's powers of restraint. To pay six dollars for the privilege of listening to a ten-hour racket of rushing elevated trains, to be treated, in addition, like a couple of suspicious characters and to be planted in this dingy room might cause a saint to forget himself and swear.

That night Prof Elwell swore—not loud, but deep, and with splendid fluency. Mollie didn't censure him. There are times when the best of folks would like to curse a little and Mollie's grandfather had been something of an artist with the Billingsgate himself.

But all things earthly come to an end, even a night in a "badger" hotel. Six o'clock in the morning found Prof and Mollie dressed and waiting to go out in a taxicab crossing a bridge on their way to see Jim. They first had called up the hospital and apprised Nellie Downing of their coming.

Third avenue was just a hideous experience already forgotten. Their hearts and minds were attuned to a melody that had nothing in part with the night before and carried no discordant note of premonition. It was a sun of a golden day that was shining for them—or so they thought.

And, while their hearts were beating to a little song of anticipation, that of a nurse in the hospital they were rapidly approaching was crying a protest against the cruel duty to which she was assigned.

"Mrs. Elwell," she said, addressing herself to Mollie, "before you see your son there is something I want to have to tell you."

She paused. Mollie looked at her quickly. Prof choked.

"Don't tell me," Mollie began, "that it was a mistake. Don't tell me—"

Nurse Downing interrupted. "No, he is alive, but before you see him let me explain his case. You must be prepared."

"Please tell me at once," Mollie Elwell insisted.

Nellie Downing's eyes flashed, but she plunged ahead. "James Elwell," she said, "has been shell-shocked. He has no memory—"

A sharp intake of breath from Mollie. Prof caught her hand in his own.

"He has no mind," went on Nellie Downing. "He can walk, but he doesn't think. He has learned to feed himself and a few simple tasks like putting on part of his clothing. He does not talk. He does not remember anything or anyone."

She stopped and looked expectantly at Jim's mother. Prof stood ready.

But if they had expected her to faint or to cry out at the blow, they were wrong.

Mollie Elwell said, simply, "Take me to my boy."

Overdoing? Hurry, Worry and Overwork Being Heavy Strain

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!
