Arrest Walton Men.

By The Associated Press.

MADILL, Okla., Oct. 1.—Six men who said they were special officers appointed by Governor Walton were arrested here today by deputy sheriffs after they had seized Felix Simmons, secretary of the Marshall county election board in an effort to gain control of election material.

Immediately afterward, a temporary injunction was issued by Acting District Judge I. O. Lewis, preventing any interference with tomorrow's election. The restraining order was granted at the request of a number of local citizens headed by G. L. Sneed, an attorney.

The special officers were arrested after they had taken Simmons to the office of J. R. McClelland, a local attorney, telling him he was under arrest. Simmons said they demanded the keys to the vault in which the election supplies were kept and that he refused to surrender them, whereupon he was taken to the attorney's office and subsequently released.

The alleged operatives of the governor later were released from custody under orders that they appear in court tomorrow morning for a hearing. The five, besides McClelland, gave their names as Harold Dickerson, Ed Jones, F. A. Fencher, Ed Long and L. Sullivan.

Waurika Boxes Taken.

By The Associated Press.

WAURIKA, Okla., Oct. 1.—Defying election officials to hold tomorrow's special election here, seven men, headed by J. H. Q. Dillard, a Carter county oil operator, seized the ballot boxes today and declared they will not allow them to be taken to the voting precincts.

The men said they were acting under orders from Governor Walton.

Calls New Election.

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 1.—Governor J. C. Walton tonight issued a call for a special election on December 6th next, on the initiative proposal which would empower the state legislature to convene itself to consider impeachment charges against the executive.

"If the majority of the people want to amend their constitution so as to enable ku klux klan members of the legislature to impeach their governor and thereby remove all legal restraint on the lawlessness of the klan, then I submit, I don't want to be governor and will advise that we acknowledge the sovereignty of the emperor of the invisible empire," Governor Walton declared in a formal statement made public simultaneously with the call.

Fails to Halt Election.

Even Governor Walton's action tonight in calling a new election for December 6, next, failed to halt preparations for the balloting tomorrow. Declaring that he did not want to be governor if the people "want to amend their constitution to enable the ku klux klan members of the legislature to impeach me, thereby removing all legal restraint on lawlessness of the klan," the executive reiterated his charge that the election tomorrow will be illegal; but said he is willing to submit the question in a "fair and legal election."

The house was located in the afternoon and last night Constable Frank Morgan and Deputies Richardson, Bean, Johnron and Humphrey surrounded the house and came upon it from all sides. Despite this one of the members of the household escaped to the barn and broke 16 gallons of wine.

WICHITA WOMEN FILE PETITION

Seek To Force Traction Company To Aid In Cleaning Up

A petition to force the local traction to more fully co-operate with the women in the 2000 block on Ninth in keeping the street cleaner was presented by a delegation of Ninth street women to the city council last night.

The women said the failure of the traction company to keep up the civic attractiveness of the street had caused real estate values to fluctuate and had proven embarrassing for the women. The matter was referred to Health Commissioner Patton who promised the women his heartiest cooperation.

On recommendation of City Engineer Rugely the council accepted the paving work recently completed by the L. E. Whitham company on Bluff street and Collins street.

Publication of notice to determine whether there are any objections to the operating of a hamburger stand on the Henrietta road in the city limits by E. O. Moore and J. B. Baker was decided upon.

Street improvement ordinances Nos. 458, 463 and 464 were passed on their third and final readings.

The matter of putting in four fire plugs and 2704 feet of water pipe by Curlee and Johnson, local realty men, for a new addition was decided upon, the city to do the work at once as soon as funds for the project are put up by the promoters.

HUSBAND IS LEFT ALL WEBB PROPERTY

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The will of Mrs. Gertrude E. Gorman Webb, wealthy New York and Philadelphia society woman who died under alleged mysterious circumstances last Tuesday at Rye, N. Y., filed today showed that she had left all her property, both real and personal, to her husband, Charles Webb.

Rail Commission District Office Is Opened Here

Thos. L. Coplin, who has been in charge of the local office of the oil and gas division of the railway commission, was yesterday notified of his appointment as head of the district office which has been created here and consisting of 40 counties and all reports which formerly went direct to the commission office at Austin will go before Mr. Coplin here and will be a means of saving much time.

The recent visit of the Chief Deputy Walthall of the oil and gas division and of Clarence Gilmore, railway commissioner, resulted in the creation of the district office. W. J. Carden of Breckenridge and Bruce Frazier of Electra, deputy commissioners, will hereafter file their reports through the local district office

Railway Commissioner W. A. Nabors will be in Wichita Falls today and will make an inspection of the local situation.

ONLY TWO MONEY LOSSES FIRST DAY

A record unusual at fairs and expositions as large as the Texas-Oklahoma fair was made yesterday when only two lost or stolen articles were reported to the fair office. Both were purses, supposed to have been lost in the crowds.

Early in the afternoon a woman reported to the office that she had lost her purse, but later found it. Last night Mrs. C. H. Foley lost her purse, containing an amount of money, and reported it to U. E. Shepherd at the fair office. She did not know whether it was stolen or lost, but did not remember laying it down after entering the fair grounds in the afternoon.

It is unusual for a fair of this size to have such a few number of such incidents, but with a large squadron of special police always on the grounds much of the danger of thefts has been eliminated. The officers patrol the grounds all day, and expect very little trouble from crooks since the word has gone the rounds that officials are on the watch.

The attack was repulsed by the local commander, but not until reinforcements rived from Frankfort. The attacking party was led by Major Buckrucker, a retired army officer, who, together with several hundred of his followers, was arrested and locked up.

By The Associated Press.

The communique says that the commander of the Reichswehr troops, by energetic action, was speeding the mastery of the situation

The Reichswehr garrison forced its way into the town, surrounding the rebels in the arsenal and arrested several of their leaders.

The situation now is such that the reinforcements which had been called up from neighboring centers, need not be sent to the scene.

KLAN ON TRIAL BY GRAND JURY

Judge Martin Charges Jury To Determine It Good Or Bad

Declaring that the question of whether the ku klux klan was an organization that "assists the officers and courts to enforce the written law of the land" or one that "has brought about this holocaust of crime" should be the main question for the grand jury to determine even if it consumed the entire term of the court which began Monday, Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court delivered his charge to the grand jury.

Judge Martin after discussing the question of masked mobs and floggings in Wichita county the past two years, did not hesitate to call the name of the ku klux klan when he came to that part of the charge. The court said he heard the klan had 800 members in Wichita coutny. He said those who maintained the klan was responsible for floggings and masked outrages, while others declared the klan was organized to help in the running down of crimes by assisting the law enforcement officers.

"I take it that the calm and deliberate verdict of 12 disinterested men as an impartial jury upon this mooted question would be welcomed by any right-thinking man. While I am not a member of this order (ku klux klan) and really know as little about it as the average man, I foresee that if its proffers of assistance to the courts and officers is sincere, it can, with its secret connections in all parts of the country, be of great assistance to you in ridding the country of mob violence. In doing this it can, if it will, confer a distinct public service and make itself still more popular among the people of the state," Judge Martin said.

The court then took the other side of the question and instructed the grand jury what to do if the klan were guilty of the crimes with which it has been charged. "On the other hand, as if its detractors say, it has brought about this holocaust of crime; if it is harboring in its membership the mobbers, threateners, and floggers and violating the most sacred rights of the people (even the most sinful and humblest of the people) then the iron hand of the law should intervene and it should be made to feel it by the well directed prosecutions in the courts for every offense they have committed," continued the court.

Of the 15 men summoned by the grand jur, commission recently 15 were present when Judge Martin opened the 89th district court Monday morning. After having impanelled the jury and delivering the charge, the grand jury was given a recess until next Thursday morning, because of the fair.

T. B. Noble, Wichita Falls, is foreman of the new grand jury. Serving with him are the following: C. H. Van Horn, George F. Hill, F. W. Weaver, Ed Moreland, W. C. Williams, J. M. Hembr, J. S. Baldewell, W. T. Willis, C. F. McDaniel, R. F. Abernathy, and R. E. Moore.

Breaks Betrothal to Navy Man To Elope With Dairyman's Son

Mrs. George Wise, nee Miss Catherine Radcliffe.

(By Central Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—This city of stately strutting statesmen, dignified society matrons and demure little "debbies" and sub-debs, always has prided itself on doing things as they should be executed "in the better circles."

Weddings, f'instance, always have been conducted according to Hoyle—and the ideas of the caterers and the florists. Staid old fathers and proud mother have rested easy, serene in their thought that their sons and daughters would be married "in a fitting manner."

But now uneasiness haunts these homes in the night hour. For there has come an epidemic of rapid romance—dizzy love making to be more exact—which has set all washington aguessing.

Within one week six couples, in each case affecting at least one prominent family in the capital, listened to Dan Cupid, ignored mama and the caterers, and eloped.

One of the most recent of these six elopements was that of Miss Catherin Radcliffe, a daughter of a prominent Welsh family and niece of Lord Glanely of London, and George Wise.

Miss Radcliffe—now Mrs. Wise, of course—was expected to be the sweet simple bride in a brilliant wedding in the near future. According to reports, she was engaged to Lieut. Julian Brown, U. S. marine corps. Folk had discussed the expected nuptials and were waiting for the eventful day.

But Cupid and two others had different plans. Miss Radcliffe met George Wise, son of a Washington dairyman. Two days after she met him Wise asked her for her hand. She accepted him and before social Washington knew of their friendship the two slipped quietly away to Baltimore and were wed. Miss Radcliffe found time, however, to break her engagement with Brown. It is said. Brown's friends say they knew of no engagement.

Be that as it may, the Radcliffe-Wise elopement was another shock to the already dazed capital society flock. If this becomes a fad all the eligibles may find themselves severely chaperoned for some time to come.

And in the mean time, every daughter's mother of them, as well as every son's father, is wondering who'll be the next ones.

WORTHAM SHOWS ARE NOW OPEN

Wortham shows, constituting the midway features and side shows for the Texas-Oklahoma fair, arrived on the grounds early yesterday morning and were erected during the morning for their first showing in the afternoon. At one o'clock they opened, to remain open all day for seven days, showing some of the most unique features of the fair.

Two complete trains brought the many actors and attaches of the Wortham Best Shows Company, and unloading was completed in record time. The giant ferris wheel, the sky flier and other mechanical devices were erected by trained crews of workmen and at noon everything was in readiness for the opening. Wortham shows constitutes the largest number of exhibitions of its kind, and is even better than last year, when it made its initial performance here.

TOTS A FEATURE THE FIRST DAY

Juvenile Parade Wins Hearts of Visitors—Exhibits Excellent

The feature of the opening day of the fair was the children's pageant and parade at 10:30 in the morning. The race track before the judge's stand was a veritable fairyland of color with tiny tots trooping past arrayed in the cleverest of costumes. A tiny 2-year-old Charlie Chaplin attracted much favorable comment from onlookers. The gold dust twins in their yellow skirts carried a tub and their little washboards. "Yes' we have no bananas" was there pulling a little vegetable cart. Fairies in all conceivable shades and sizes rode tricycles or pushed baby buggies. Among the nations represented were China, Japan, Scotland and Ireland. The Texas cowboys with lariats, chaps and spurs rode tricycles behind "Toots" and "Buttercup" of funny paper fame.

An attractive broup of little girls in colored dresses danced around a gayly decorated maypole that was carried by an older girl. Other clever characters were little Red Riding Hood, several colonial dames, a bathing beauty, red cross nurses with bandaged patients, and a clown dressed in newspapers.

Little Miss Elizabeth Huff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Huff, won the loving cup in the first division for girls. She was dressed as an American beauty rosebud. The loving cup in the second division for girls was awarded to Evelyn Hope Trimble, Sylvia Marie Riner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Riner, and little Jack O'Neil, who entered an attractive float, a tiny automobile on which rode a little bride and groom with the placard, "Just Married." Little Miss Trimble drove the machine. The third division loving cup went to Irma Brown, who dressed in purple and white as "Prince Charming" and rode a bicycle on which was mounted an airplane body.

Carl Wealder, Jr., riding in a big pink baby carriage elaborately decorated in fringe and rosebuds, and pushed by a little fairy won the loving cup in the first class among the boy entrants.

The loving cup in the second class was won by Bobby Burns, Jr., in a clever white sail boat with full rigging. The first prize in the third division was awarded to little Jack Mauden who will also will receive a loving cup. Jack piloted a huge white airplane mounted on a bicycle. The star shaped insignia of the U. S. air service was reproduced in paper flowers on the wings of the plane.

Charlie Chaplin, Uncle Sam, and a soldier boy received honorable mention from the judges who were Mrs. J. A. Richolt, Mrs. G. C. Johnson, Judge H. F. Weldon, W. M. Moore and Dr. Wade Walker.

Bicyc'e Parade.

Over 100 cyclists on attractively wheels followed the children's parade and circled around the race track headed by Herbert Munden, trick rider as a preliminary to the bicycle races sponsored by Grover Bullington Bicycle company. Several very pretty bicycles were ridden by girls in colorful costumes to match their wheels, and the boys showed their prowess as experts in color scheme and design in the the gorgeous and somewhat doubtful color combinations they achieved. G. C. Bullington rode a miniature wheel made by Herbert Munden, the smallest bicycle in the world.

Herbert Wales won first prize among the boys, a vitalic tire from Grover Bullington company. Wiley Culberson won second prize, a five dollar football from Noble Little Hardware company.

Thirty-seven thousand people saw the opening of the second annual Texas-Oklahoma fair here yesterday, just eleven thousand better than the crowd at the first day last year, according to advices received from the fair management late last night. The enormous crowds were handled with success, every event going off on time, and exhibits and concessions playing to almost capacity.

Opening Triumph.

The formal opening was a triumph in precision of movement and feature, with the children's pageant coming up to all expectations. School children from all over northwestern Texas and Southern Oklahoma attended the children's day programs, showing co-operation in their exhibits of art and craft. It was a gala day for youth, the happy throngs of school children, with a generous mixture of boy scouts claiming the fair grounds in the morning.

The exhibits this year show a fine gathering of blue ribbon contenders, with those from the surrounding country generously interspersed with entrants from many distant places. Fair officials say that the entries this year were all in good time and number, with those expected in today promising to fill all space. The fine stock section is well taken up with bidders from many well known herds, cattle and hogs claiming most of the room in the big exhibit building. The poultry exhibit is also exceptionally good this year.

Autos.

In the automobile show, which occupied two buildings, there are seen displayed beautiful models of practically every make, the dealers outdoing themselves in showing the merits of their respective cars.

Horse racing and auto polo were the main features at the track yesterday afternoon, which events were attended by about four thousand people. Events went off in good style, some fast goers showing up in the six races. There were thrills galore in the fast game of auto polo, spills and smashes being frequent in a hard-fought contest.

Society.

Society appeared in numbers at the formal opening of the season last evening when Ruth of the house of Barnard was crowned queen of the T.-O. kingdom in a most elaborate affair. Visiting princesses and duchesses were in attendance from many cities of Oklahoma and Texas.

A spectacular fire works display last evening closed the main features on the opening day.

On the war path nearly every inch of space was taken by the ballyhoos and whatnots of fun and adventure of all known kinds and descriptions. Squeelers mixed their tones with sirens and the shouts of the barkers, while toys and cats reigned at all sides. The country boy and the country girl were both there. Red soda again had its day.

The traffic was handled without mishap, and the crowds afoot well taken care of by the new trolley extension to the grounds. Officials expect record breaking marks be reached in all lines, it is announced, and prospects here for a banner crowd.

Fireworks.

Whizzers, sparklers, giant candles, rockets, unique sparklers, formations of fire scenes, a French "75," a naval battle, the "American Beauty," and Old Glory united in one continuous roar, flash, and beautiful flame at the impressive fire-works display at the fair last evening. A complete pyrotechnics scene, it was easily one of the best ever seen by an appreciative Texas-Oklahoma crowd.

Firing commenced with the navy moving into action, and soon each battleship was raking everything within range with all guns, fore aft and amidships. Broadside after broadside was poured out, and the whole scene was brilliantly lighted by scores of rockets The thunder of the "75," fired by the gun crew from Fort Sill, 1st field artillery, was added to the general roar. No fleet could last under such a halocaust, and each side retired.

The action was taken up by a dozen rockets over to the left, followed swiftly into the night air by others ready to take their places, which lighted up every nook the race track and grandstand had.

Blue ones, red ones, green, pink, parti-colored, stars, streamers; all. Clever racks of fire-works were set off reverations, amidst general uproar. couple of figures daing a trapeze performance in the center. The big gun came in again with another round of reverations, amidst eneral uproar.

The climax came with the American Beauty and Old Glory shedding a soft light over all. The band played the national anthem, and the "Last Rose of Summer," and the sky rockets high up in the heavens released tiny parachutes which carried red, white and blue away across the sky, into the night.

GRASS FIRE CAUSED BY FIREWORKS AT FAIR

A small prairie fire, caused by sky rockets and explosives from the fire works exhibition, "The Scrapping of the Navy," gave the special firemen of the Texas-Oklahoma station a run at 10 o'clock last night. The flames made little headway, and were extinguished easily before damage was done.

In the fireworks exhibition before the grand stand, some hundreds of pounds of explosives were used in a clever effect, and some of the flares and rockets set fire to the dead grass. Arrangements had been made, however for just such an incident, and it was the work of only a minute to extinguish the flames.

Texas Oil Man Is Arrested In Alleged Fraud

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—Wyatt L. Nix, promoter, was arrested by federal officers today on a warrant charging misuse of the mails in connection with exploitation of 80 acres of alleged proven oil territory in Stephens county, Texas.

The warrant was issued on a complaint sworn to by a postoffice inspector. Nix's bond was fixed at $10,000, which he provided.

According to federal officials, Nix, at different times has maintained offices in Fort Worth, Breckenridge and Eliasville, Texas, later coming to Los Angeles, where he was said to have been promoting what was known as the Ellisville Pool Syndicate No. 1 and No. 2, operating on the Stephens county land.

The officials said Nix came to Los Angeles in June, 1921, and appeared before the state corporation commissioner, who gave him a permit to sell 200 units for casing and 200 for drilling. He was said to have declared at that time he sold 350 units at $100 each in Texas.

Officers declared that during his operations here Nix had disposed of 1,295 units of $100 each, a total of $125,000 on his alleged exploitation of the Stephens county land, which they asserted, was worthless except for one well producing 50 barrels of oil a day.

Other alleged irregularities also were charged against him, the officials stated.

The federal grand jury resumed investigations of oil promotions in the southern California fields today.

Doctors J. C. A. Guest, A. W. West, and Harry P. Ledford assisted by two nurses, Misses Mary Quinn and Rosa Harkins are making the examinations.

The children are registered by giving the name, sex, feeding prior to the date registered, sleep, illness prior to registration and physical inspection. They are weighed and measured, and judged on nineteen points. The points may be given under three general divisions, mental development, measurement and general physical development of defects.

Those children who have measured high in the scale will be called back Saturday for a final test when a silver loving cup will be given to the best boy and girl baby.

Many are taking advantage of the clinic; approximately 60 babies were registered yesterday, the first day of the clinic, according to those in charge.

In the same building with the clinic, the Better Babies' Building, there is a day nursery where the children may be left while the parents attend the exhibits.

MAMAS CAN LEAVE BABIES AT FAIR

Mothers who wish to attend the fair may leave their little children in the day nursery in the better babies building on the grounds of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition. Trained nurses are there to look after the little ones while their mothers are away.

Free milk fro mthe Producer's Milk company and electrified (purified) water will be ready for the babies and will be given them at the proper hours. Toys for amusing the youngsters are in the nursery.

The day nursery will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening, instead of the hours of between 1 and 6 o'clock.

Yesterday, the opening day of the fair; 35 children ranging from ages from one month to two years were taken care of in the day nursery. The mothers may rest assured that their children will be properly cared for, said Mrs. Brown, director of the day nursery.

SPECIAL STATION FOR SPEEDERS

Big town methods of conducting police courts and stations are being inaugurated because of the fair.

The second police station aside from the one at the city hall was put in operation in the 2700 Grant street block Monday.

"For Speeders only," is the motto of the new station.

While Motor Cop Joe Blocker is out running down a speeder who is in too big a hurry to get to the fair grounds, Motor Cop Griffin will stay at the new police station and act as desk sergeant, chief of police, patrolman, welfare secretary and the like.

The new station will save the officers lots of time by not having to bring traffic violators back to the city hall to book them.

Big Crowds Are Reported By The Wortham Shows

Visitors to the fair yesterday had a close range view of how a big tent city installs itself in its temporary home. From early morning until afternoon the army of show folk with Clarence A. Wortham's World's Best Shows worked like Trojans getting the amusement city open for the crowds.

The shows were delayed shortly after leaving Enid, Oklahoma, and did not arrive here as early as expected. However, with the optimism of their cult, they took the delay good naturedly. They optimistically declared "it might have been worse."

If anything, the throngs at the fair spurred them on to greater efforts to get the tent city in order. When Watkins' silo auto-drome turned open their mufflers and Tantlinger's cowboys turned loose their six shooters at the far end of the midway the joy zone was on in full swing.

Between these extremes came long lines of attractions of the kind that made Coney Island famous. There is amusement of all sorts, kinds and descriptions to be found on the midway. Its scope ranges from the wonderful painting "Stella" to the foolish house filled with "crazy horse" mirrors, built to promote laughs.

Myer Myers mig side show, where Violet and Daisy Hilton, the famous grown together girls from San Antonio are, was the center attraction. Nearly everyone, it seems, went in to see the young women. They are beautiful girls, and one would not know they are united by a bond just above their waists unless one saw them walk.

The Karn family of fat folk played to capacity all the time. As the wonderful example of "mother's fine cooking" Edward Karn, one of the six hundred pound, each, twins sat out in front of the show and told what was to be seen on the inside. The Karns are real comedians.

The diving girls show is the biggest ever on the road. The crowd was jealous of the divers yesterday because the latter had a chance to plunge in the biggest portable tank in the world and enjoy a real swim. The divers are wonders in the line, and their offering was most pleasing.

The monkey circus, with forty simian actors, caught the little folk. The monks went through with their own performance because they change it every time they step out to do their little bit.

At the far end of the midway the cowboys cowboyed and Lula Bell Parr, champion broncho rider, rode and war hooped. At the near end of the midway Hazel Watkins and Alice Lowell, speed maniacs, tried to outdo each other racing around in the fifty foot circle. All along the line there was ample doing to make the joy seekers at the Texas-Oklahoma fair believe Coney Island, itself, had dropped in for a visit. The shows are closely censored and are the high standard the great fairs and expositions of the north demand of show folk. These are the shows that for several years have played the "Big 4" circuit of fairs, which are the biggest fairs in America.

LAKE KEMP WATER COST CITY $8,512.67

The total expenditures of the city for inaugurating the new water system of bringing water from the Lake Kemp dam to Lake Wichita to be used for Wichita Falls consumption amounts to $13,827.49 it was revealed in a report of Frank Lawton, city water works superintendent, which was presented to the city council last night by Burton Stayton, public utilities commissioner.

Of the more than $13,000 expended in the project the city will be able to salvage equipment purchased in the deal for $5,314.82. This leaves the total cash amount that the project will cost the city if the materials now on hand are properly salvaged, $8,512.67.

Superintendent Lawton in his report to the city council itemized every expenditure the project incurred. This included transporting of a 10,000,000 gallon pump from the city plant to the diversion dam. Another such pump was bought and shipped from Akron, Ohio. A six-mile power line was also laid. To do the blasting work 50 kegs of dynamite were used.

The report shows that Lake Wichita has been filled with five inches of water since the connection has been made. Already this has been sufficient to avert any possibility of a water famine. The two large pumps will be used for the next sixty days when it is expected the water will then flow by gravitation into the local lake.

The project was begun about the middle of last July when a water famine threatened. Superintendent Lawton said in order to complete the project the workmen stayed on the job through rain and mud and forces were kept busy at night.

LIBRARY DISPLAY DRAWS ATTENTION

Advertising the county library, the exhibit of the Kemp library of Wichita Falls is attracting much attention at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition. Posters, books, and magazines make the booth look the part of a real library.

A sand pile cleverly advertises the books which may be circulated from the library. In the center is the Kemp library where the books are kept ready for the reading public. A book truck stands near to take the books into the rural districts so that the country people may have opportunity of reading them. The chicken yard with its poultry means that books on various phases of poultry raising may be obtained.

A model dairy on the farm, the farm yard, the silos bring out the fact that books pertaining to those subjects are in the library, and books especially devoted to feeds and feeding. Books on landscape gardening and practical irrigation are on the list. The sand pile boasts a tiny orchard and irrigation ditches on a small scale.

Books on geology, the community center, games and first aid, in fact books on almost any subject are in the library.

Interesting posters on books and care of books were in the exhibit. A table was given over to books that children will enjoy reading. Books of fiction and travels for the grown-ups were on exhibit.

Women will find a number of club programs for the past two years and they may get some suggestions for other programs that they may wish to give.

SUPREME COURT HAS BIG DOCKET

580 Cases Await Disposition —368 Are from Last June

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The United States Supreme Court began its term today with a crowded docket, as usual.

A total of 580 cases are awaiting disposition. Of these 368 were brought over from the last term which ended in June. During the recess slight in excess of 200 cases were docketed, most of them requests for permission to bring up for review cases disposed of in lower courts which could not be brought up as a matter of right under writs of error.

Following long established precedent, the court will deliver no opinions at tomorrow's session, but after receiving such motions as may be offered, including those for admission to practice, will adjourn and proceed to the White House for a formal visit of respect to the president.

It will be the first time the court in a body has met President Coolidge. There is much ceremony in the visit. The president receives the court in the historic East Room. There it lines up in a horseshoe, with the Chief Justice at on end, and the Justices following in the order of seniority. Beginning at the end where the Chief Justice is standing President Coolidge will pass along the line, giving each member a handshake and expressing his pleasure upon the Justice's return from their vacation strengthened in health.

No cases of great outstanding importance are upon the court's docket for decision. There are a number, however, of general interest, in which the country is awaiting the final word.

When the court adjourned last June it carried over under advisement, fully submitted and ready for decision, 20 cases in which the court's decision may be expected any time after it reaches its first opinion day, October 8. Four of these present attacks upon the constitutionality of the alien land laws of California and Washington four question the taxability of so-called "Massachusetts trusts" under federal statutes, and the others include controversies arising out of the use of the water of Bitter Creek, Wyoming, for irrigation purposes; what counties may do with money paid them by the federal government under forest reserve laws, brought by King county, Washington, against the Seattle school district, No. 1; North Dakato's claim against Minnesota for damages growing out of flood conditions along the Bois de Sioux river; the constitutionality of North Dakota's grain grading act; two cases involving the fight of Texas to prevent the abandonment and dismantling of the Eastern Texas railroad; the liability of stockholders of a national bank for its obligations after it had been sold to another national bank and three cases affectings gas rates in San Francisco, brought by the Pacific Gas & Electric company.

The court must also act upon several motions for rehearings brought over from the last term.

West Virginia wants to reopen the cases brought against it by Ohio and Pennsylvania in which the court held that West Virginia could not impose restrictions upon the quantity of natural gas which could be pumped into other states from wells located within its borders. West Virginia in asking the court to reconsider the decisions, asserting that if it is permitted to stand unmodified its effect would be to prevent it from taking steps to keep for the use of its industries and homes any natural gas produced there.

The government wants the court to review its construction of North Carolina statutes in a case brought against the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, in which the court sustained the contention that a state could authorize its banks to impose a collection charge in the cashing of checks drawn upon them. It would also have the "Nicky" Arnstein case reopened, contending that the decision rendered in it by the court last term would have the effect of enabling bankrupts to conceal their assets.

The Georgia Railroad and Power company and the Atlanta Gas Light company contend that the court should review its decision of last term, sustaining gas rates fixed by the railroad commission of Georgia, insisting that it was not consistent with other recent decisions of the court as to what construction and operating items must be considered in rate making.

The court during the first few weeks of its session is expected to announce which of the large number of cases accumulating during its recess, asking an appeal, it will consider. It will unquestionably drop from its docket many of these cases, which exceed 150 in number, many of them presenting questions which the court, in its discretion granted by congress, will not regard as worthy of its consideration.

Most of the cases upon the original docket are retained there to give the court jurisdiction to enforce its orders, the issues in controversy having been settled long ago by its decisions. These include a number relating to water pollution in New York harbor, and to air and soil pollution in Georgia, the latter having been caused by a copper refinery in Tennessee.

Among the original cases waiting a hearing by the court are those brought by Massachusetts against New York, claiming a part of the city of Rochester; by New York against the Federal Power Commission, contesting the constitutionality of federal control over non-navigable waters within the state; by Wisconsin against Illinois and the Sanitary District of Chicago, which has been joined by a case on the appellate docket of the Sanitary District against the United States, in both of which it is sought to reduce the quantity of water which may be diverted from Lake Michigan for use by the drainage canal; and two cases brought by the United States against Minnesota seeking the return of certain Indian lands which had been awarded to the state under the federal swamp act.

As has been the experience of the court for several years, its docket for the next term is littered with personal injury, prohibition, patent and interstate commerce cases not of general interest. Only one anti-trust case is on the docket, showing the constant change in the character of the litigation reaching the court. It was brought by the National Association of Window Glass Manufacturers and the National Window Glass Workers and others, to have set aside the findings of the lower federal courts that the wage and working contract between them is a restraint of interstate commerce.

Among the cases pending in the court in which its decision is especially awaited are those brought by the First National Bank of St. Louis to have determined whether national banks can establish branches; by the government against the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange in the fight to control the price of sugar; a number of rate cases, particularly those against the Public Service Railway company affecting street car fare in New Jersey; the search and seizure rights of the federal and state authorities in prohibition cases; the right of creditors to liquidate claims against alien enemies out of property held by the Alien Property Custodian; a number of controversies arising out of conditions during the war, especially those relating to the contractual obligations of those furnishing supplies to the government, including whether states may regulate the size of loaves of bread.

Whether persons charged with a federal crime can be tried on information filed by the prosecuting attorney or must be indicted is a question raised in another case and there are the usual large number of cases seeking interpretation of the income and other federal and state tax laws. Other questions up for consideration include whether a newspaper editor can purge himself of contempt by appearing before a grand jury other than the one whose proceedings he published, as presented in a case brought by Hector H. Elwell, a Chicago editor; whether the federal government has jurisdiction over the distribution of moving picture films after they have reached the hands of the agent who has charge of them within a state, raised by Charles G. Binderup of Omaha, Neb., who claimed that he was forced out of the moving picture business because he was unable to obtain films from the representatives in Nebraka of certain producing companies; a case from California raising the question whether states in the enforcement of prohibition can restrict druggists to furnishing upon physician certificates one-half the quantity authorized under federal law; whether telegraph companies can limit to a nominal sum their liability for failure to deliver messages; whether railroad and express companies can place a like limitation for the loss or damage to packages entrusted to them for delivery; whether railroads can compel the interstate commerce commission to furnish information upon which it made tentative valuation of their property, as brought by the St. Louis Southwestern railway; whether railroads can be compelled by the federal government to disclose earnings in excess of six per cent the federal statutes providing for the distribution of any such surplus; whether the government can charge one per cent per month upon deferred tax payments, or is restricted to the legal interest rate; the right of national and other banks to offset against money deposited with them loans made by them to the depositor; the right of retail merchants to buy directly from the manufacturer or wholesaler; in a case from Iowa and Nebraska brought against Raymond Bros.-Clark company, a jobbing concern, charged with threatening to cease dealing with wholesalers and manufacturers who filled retail dealers' orders in their territory without paying them a commission; another aspect of the old interstate commerce controversy as to whether a higher charge can be made for a short than for a long haul when the shorter is included within the longer, presented in a case against the Portland (Ore.) Seed Co.; whether states can impose a tax upon gasoline used by automobiles, raised by the Pierce Oil corporation in a case against officials of Arkansas; and whether the United Leather Workers International Union and others used methods in picketing the establishment of the Herkert & Meisel Trunk Co. at St. Louis which should be enjoined.

On Tuesday, October 2, the court will proceed with the hearing of arguments in cases, the call starting at No. 1 on the docket, and proceeding during the week, probably as far as No. 20. Included in these cases are the suits brought by the American Railway Express company against Kentucky to test whether it must pay penalties assessed against express companies before those companies were absorbed by it; and the questions whether the St. Cloud (Minn.) Public Service company can increase its gas rates; whether the New Jersey street railways should be compelled to reduce fares and whether the New York state income tax upon foreign corporations is constitutional.

members of the lower house to convene at their own call would be voted upon in the December election.

In his proclamation tonight, Governor Walton declared the supreme issue in Oklahoma is whether the "invisible empire, commonly known as the ku klux klan, or the sovereign power of the state of Oklahoma shall survive." A fair vote of the people on the initiative proposal will determine the issue, and "I, as chief executive, recognizing the sovereign people as the master, am willing to try the issue in the court of the people at a fair and legal election to be held at the earliest date."

Not Signed.

At a late hour tonight the proclamation had not been filed with the secretary of state. Copies which the executive gave to the press were not signed.

The following statement signed by W. D. McBee and other members of the house of representatives which have opposed the executive, was issued following the announcement for the call for the December 6 election:

"The governor is mistaken about whose election this is. He called it on August 15th and after the call the election belongs to the people. The people will speak tomorrow and the bombastic threats of Walton will avail him nothing. The election on all six questions will go forward and the votes will be counted.

"Don't be misled by threats or eleventh hour propaganda. Vote and ask all voters to do likewise."

"Why put the state to the expense of another election?"

Mayor Cargill announced that he had commissioned "practically every business man in the city" as special policemen to prevent intereference with the election. Fifteen hundred "business vigilance men," he said, have been deputized. These include men representative of every business, industry and profession in the county, he said.

"We are ready to go," said the mayor.

For the first time in more than two weeks residents of Oklahoma City tonight did not need a military pass to be on the streets after midnight. Governor Walton explained that relaxation of military orders was only temporary and that the rule would be enforced again after the election.

Rumors that persisted to the effect that lifting of state-wide martial law was in prospect, were again denied by the executive. To the contrary, he repeated, that he was considering putting more counties under "absolute martial law."

Preparations Continue

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct 1.—Preparations for the opening of the polls in virtually all parts of Oklahoma moved apace tonight as the hour for an election unprecedented in the history of the nation drew near.

Court action, sustained by force of arms borne by citizens who volunteered for service under regular county authorities, in several instance carried forward the preparations for registering the will of the people as to whether the state legislature shall be empowered to meet to consider the official acts of Governor J. C. Walton without the sanction of the executive.

Barred by the governor through proclamation and hampered by his eleventh hour maneuvering of state and county election board, the election tonight nevertheless was virtually a certainty throughout the state in general.

Taking up the challenge of the governor that he would place 22,000 special police at the polls tomorrow to prevent their opening, opponents of the executive staged a hasty campaign to over-ride his prerogative to stay the election, and with the authority of an official opinion from Attorney General George F. Short, holding the governor without power to change to date of the election they obtained from the state at large today an expression of sentiment on the part of citizens and officials that constituted a strong denial of the executive's course.

From one county after another came the report that the authorities ordered by the governor to prevent the election, had announced they would ignore his instructions.

Sheriffs throughout most of the state augumented their forces by deputising hundreds of citizens who offered their services, and tonight ballot boxes from one end of the state to the other were being guarded by men who had taken up arms by the authority upon which the governor had announced he would rely to block the election.

At only one place in the state today was there actual appearance of any of the special police whom the governor has promised to have on duty tomorrow. That was at Tulsa, where 12 of the governor's men, who sought to prevent the sending of ballot boxes and election supplies from the court house to the various election precincts, were driven from the building by a force of 200 heavily armed special deputies under Sheriff R. D. Sanford. When the hour came for the removal of the boxes and supplies from the store room, Sheriff Sanford ordered the governor's representatives to leave. They departed quietly.

Delivering his master stroke, the governor at noon reconstituted the state election board, and with two members friendly to his program, constituting a majority, orders were sent out to all county boards to halt the election.

But the election machinery, caught in full movement by the executive's sudden thrust, could not be stopped and the scope of the re-organization was extended late in the day to include the county boards as well as the state.

Then the courts entered the fight and in at least two counties, the executive's plan was nullified by injunctions restraining the new board boards members from interfering with the work of the old board. This was in Oklahoma City and Ardmore.

Herbert Walss, Lee Downs, J. H. Hale, E. C. De Montell of this city, and E. W. Carr, C. D. Chewning and W. A. Pole of Denison.

The Wichita Falls County Breeders association, William L. Smith, president; and T. M. Dubarry, secretary; is in charge of the rabbit show which is displaying fine strains in American blues, New Zealand reds, Rufus Red Belgians, steel gray giants, and black Dutch.

Charles J. Adams of Denison, will judge the stock.

Poultry.

The poultry show under the direction of L. R. Norton, superintendent, and Ira D. Brown secretary, has drawn larger crowds on the opening day than the show at the state fair at Oklahoma City drew any one day during the entire fair, according to a representative of the O. K. Poultry Journal who visited the exhibits.

The show, which will be judged by Walter Burton, is the largest cooped this side of Dallas, with over 2,000 entries of every known variety of chicken, of which the largest classes are Rhode Island Reds, Barred Rocks, White and Brown Leghorns, Rhode Island Whites and White Wyandottes.

Pigeons.

A great variety of pigeons is on display, as are peacocks, wild turkeys, domestic turkeys, all kinds of parrots, wild ducks, domestic ducks and geese.

The four leading feed companies have large and attractive booths advertising their respective feeds. Maricle Coal and Feed Co. showing the Purina products; Morgan Feed Co. showing Ful-o'-pep; Mix Feed Co. showing the Superior brand, and Mytinger Feed and Grain Co., advertising Myra-co products.

Hogs.

The hog exhibit of the livestock show is probably the largest and finest display in north Texas and Southern Oklahoma. Over 120 head have been entered. Of this number, approximately 100 head are Poland China and Durocs while the remainder are Hampshires and O. I. C. whites. Judging on the hogs, as well as the other livestock, will begin Tuesday.

Cattle.

Many prize winners make up the cattle exhibit of the livestock show.

One hundred and forty Herefords, over 100 head of Jerseys, 16 head of Aberdeen Angus, and a few head of Shorthorns and Galloways have been entered by exhibitors of note.

The herd of Herefords possibly caused the most attention of the cattle of the entire group. Breeders from all over this part of Texas are entered, as well as many from Oklahoma. Mrs. J. G. Scott of Windthorst, Texas, is the only woman cattle exhibitor of the show. She has painted a picture of one of her prize winners, "Lady Beautiful," which is on exhibit in the fine arts building.

Sixteen head of Aberdeen Angus cattle from Shamrock, Texas, are also entered. This particular herd is a prize winner from three fairs, at Childress, Memphis and Amarillo.

Only four herds of Jerseys are on exhibit at the livestock show. Jesse Mac Sewell of Abilene, Texas, a prominent cattle man who has 70 head of prize winning Jerseys stated Monday that the livestock show is very good considering the fact that the fair is only in its second year. Mr. Mac Sewell's herd has taken 11 first, four second and four third places at Abilene shows.

Competing against his cattle, are the herds of J. R. Beauchamp of Abilene, E. A. Corbett of Fort Worth, and the Mistletoe Creamery of Fort Worth, that, although small, are said to have received as many first place ribbons.

LIVES FEARED LOST IN POWDER RIVER

By The Associated Press.

BROADUS, Mont., Oct. 1.—Loss of life, it is feared, may have resulted from a flood that followed high water in the Powder river, which rose 12 feet and inundated half of Broadus. The water had fallen five feet at noon today. Warning of the flood was not taken to all ranchers of this vicinity, it was believed.

Bodies of horses and cattle, hay stacks and houses were carried down the river, which was a mile to five miles wide in places. Many residents spent the night in the school house.

BOYS SCOUTS GET FIELD DAY PRIZES

Ending a 10-day series of field events, troop No. 1 of the boy scouts of Wichita Falls made a score of 72 points out of a possible 100 at the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition yesterday. Troop No. 8 made a score of 30, while troop No. 5 failed to participate. Troop No. 8 had several candidates in the recent juvenile election, and these members were not able to take part in these events.

Wade Bartlett and Edzer Ellis each tied nine required knots in the tenderfoot test in 35 seconds. In the semaphore signalling 34 letters were sent in 35 seconds. Lester Nichols sending and Gregory Dodson receiving.

In wall scaling, eight boys of troop No. 1 scaled a 10 foot wall and returned to the starting point in 27 seconds. Troop No. 1 also had eight men who ran one half mile in four minutes.

After events, each one of the troops did several stunts. The boy scouts acted as ushers at the fair Monday, and they will continue to work there during the week. Each scout is excused one day from school by Superintendent Cantwell. The boys will also usher at night.

Plans for cottage prayer meetings to be held preceding the revival at the First Baptist church beginning October 18 were made at the all-day meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary Monday. Dr. O. L. The meeting was opend with a prayer service in which Mrs. E. W. Carter led the devotionals taking for her subject "Prayer" from the books of James, Matthew and Hebrews. She also talked on "Soul Winning" and in the afternoon led an interesting missionary study on "hospitals". Mrs. R. C. Smith led the devotionals in the afternoon and took for her subject "The Divine Healer" and Mrs. Elder, wife of the former pastor, gave a beautiful prayer. Mrs. R. W. Robertson gave a prayer and Mrs. Knox Finney talked on "Hospitals in China". Mrs. Anderson talked on "Hospital Work in Africa" and Mrs. McIver talked on the work in Mexico and Brazil.

Splendid reports were heard from the various circles and luncheon was served at the noon hour by members of circle seven.

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a middle aged woman and married. I have been married almost four years and I have one little boy past two years whom I love very dearly. He is a bright little fellow. Before he was born my husband seemed to want to go places and spend his money on shows and worldly things when we needed it at home. He never seems to think about my welfare or the lonely hours that I have to spend all alone.

Before we were married he told me he did not care about worldly things such as shows and good times and that he was a Christian man and would inaure me a good Christian home. I always believed strictly in doing the right thing and also in doing unto others as I would have them do unto me. My father and mother are both dead raised me that way and I am too much of a lady to go back on my raising.

I have always treated my husband as kindly as I could and have always tried to make home pleasant. I do other work besides my own just to help out and stay at home rather than spend money to ride on cars. I go to church. My husband doesn't seem to take notice that we are so needy. I try to save and get by a little mite in order to get what we really need. But he doesn't seem to care. When I speak to him about it in a kind manner he gets angry and tells me it is none of my business. I am supposed to keep silent and do get so blue and disheartened.

I am a stranger here, knowing only a few people and he was raised here and knows everybody. I am 500 miles away from my folks and friends. Our dear little boy going on three years is so dear to me. My husband seems to think a lot of him and me too in a way. Yet we are expecting another little one soon and my husband don't seem to realize that he ought to save his money. He spends foolishly.

Now I would like your advice. I wish to do right. I know I do not deserve the cruel, unhappy discomfort I get. My life is no pleasure to me. If later on I can do something for myself and babies I surely would be pleased.

I always try to treat my husband right in every repect whether he does me or not, thinking he will reform his ways and be kinder and more thoughtful of me. BLUE FRIEND.

You and your husband simply do not seem to be compatible. His love for you made him feel ready to give up amusements before marriage, but afterward when he became used to having you with him every day, he turned back to the pleasures which doubtless interested him before he knew you. I do not believe that either the husband or the wife should dominate where there is lack of compatibly. It is neither fair for your husband to spend all of his time away from you amusing himself, nor for you to try to make him give up all the things which give him so much pleasure. My advice is to try to share more with him.

Perhaps if you look back over your married life you will realize that after the baby came you became less a companion to your husband because you were so busy and absorbed in the child. Try not to put aside your husband because of the children. He will love them of course, but he wants your companionship too.

Frocks For Little Lady Are Refreshingly Simple - Dainty

The day of the overdressed child is passed let us hope. Simple, straight lines follow the fashions of the gowns of their elders. Children are so ornamental in themselves that the only function of clothes is to protect them from the weather and to set off their natural loveliness.

The frock on the left is a pattern that could be made up in any number of materials suitable for school or dress-up wear. Here it is made up in slate blue eponge. Straight panels back and front are used with the fullness inserted at the side while a low waistline is indicated by a strap across the side fullness. Crocheted buttons and narrow black satin ribbons trim the frock as shown. For school wear it could be trimmed with any pretty buttons and the ribbon might be omitted entirely.

A little party frock of flesh colored organdy is seen on the right. Round neck, short puffed sleeves, both trimmed with narrow ruffles of the material are shown. Two deeper ruffles on the skirt and a fairly wide sash finish a very dainty dress that little sister could wear on countless occasions.

Even more simple in line is the frock in the center. The material makes a more elaborate, dress-up dress of it. It is a soft flesh colored georgette over nile green taffeta. Simply gathered to fall from the low round neck to the hem, with tiny sleeves, it is a frock that would delight the heart of any little girl and make mother thrill with joy at the appearance of small daughter among the bevy of little belles at the party or entertainment.

It is an excellent thing to make every effort to do right, but perhaps your ideas of right and wrong are more strict than your husband's. He may feel that you are not quite human in your well-regulated life. A little amusement does not hurt any one, and therefore my advice is to try to bring about a better understanding with your husband. Love him more and be tolerant of his desires. I think that you will find when he sees you are interested in him, he will be responsive and give you more money than you have been getting from him recently.

Poached Eggs.—Eggs may be poached in milk or water. In either case have the liquid boiling gently, salt it well as the salt keeps the egg from separating too much. If water is used a tablespoonful of vinegar may be substituted for the salt. Break the eggs on to a plate and slip them from into the liquid. Either cover and simmer until they are the desired consistency or spoon the liquid over them. Take them out, drain and serve on toast.

Sunshine Pudding—One and three-quarter cupfuls sugar, one cupful milk, three tablespoons corn starch, four tablespoonfuls lemon juice, three egg-yolks, two tablespoonfuls butter, one-quarter teaspoonful salt, two bananas or peaches, one-half cupful water, three egg-whites, one teaspoonful vanilla. Combine three-fourths cupful of sugar and three-fourths cupful of milk and heat in the top of a double boiler. Mix the corn starch with the remaining milk and the salt and add gradually to the hot mixture, stirring constantly. Cook 25 minutes, then add to the egg-yolks slightly beaten with one-fourth cupful of sugar and the lemon juice. Cook five minutes longer. Just before removing, add the butter and pour into a buttered baking dish. Let stand 15 minutes, then arrange a layer of sliced bananas over the surface and top with the following filling. Boil three-fourths cupful of sugar with the water until it forms a soft ball when tried in cold water. Pour on the stiffly beaten egg-whites to which the baking powder has been added while beating. Beat until thick, add the vanilla and yellow vegetable coloring, and pile on top of the pudding. Brown at 300 degrees Fahrenheit for 15 minutes.

SUGGESTIONS

Wall Paper for Boxes—Various things may be done with thread boxes, and other boxes of various sizes in which other articles of merchandise come. First, if you have a book of wall paper samples—which may be readily obtained when the "line" is out of date—select a dainty pattern. On the plain side of the paper mark the size of your box, allowing for sides and ends to lap over the edge the fraction of an inch, cut out and cover the box neatly, the top in the same way. Care should be taken to not get any glue or paste on the inside of the box, which may have a lining of white satin paper, if desired. By observing how any fancy box is covered and experimenting a little, you will soon be able to get just the right "knack," and to inclose a gift in such a box, daintily tied, adds much to its charm.

Parsley for Emergencies—Keep a growing pot of parsley in your kitchen window for use in emergencies. The moist air from boiling pots and pans is just the thing for it to thrive in.

Today's Poem

IN THE AMPHITHEATRE OF LIFE
SMOTHER LOVE.

I was dominating, independent
Self sufficient and efficient.
I engineered my life by sheer force of Determination into channels of success.
I was proud of my virtues
But my greatest pride was the
Inordinate one I took in my children.
This pride xpressed itself in a
Desperate attempt to intrigue and
Manoeuvre them into the lives
That I wanted them to live.
And I succeeded, at least in this
That I thoroughly dominated and
Forced them into the things
That I wanted for them,
All of them—with one exception—
My incorrigible Jane.
She was the only thwarting fly
In the oil of my plans.
Over and over when I sought her
To acquiesce, she just reiterated
The same frantic cry—
"I want to stand on my own two feet"
And in the end she did turn out
To be the only one who bloomed.
While the rest of my children
I rendered dependent and helpless
Without a spark of self confidence.
But I never knew until it was Too late and they lay gasping
In stifling failure—
Their bloom all blighted—
That the tinsel crown I wore
And the glittering credit I received
For a glorious "Mother" love, had Been to them only this—a "Smother" love.

Ear-Rings and the Savage in Women

"The savage instinct still lurks in women," men say, if you don't believe it, just look at the ear-rings they are wearing."

This statement arrested my attention—ear-rings and savages. I had really never connected the two things.

Most women love ear-rings (I do) and besides the desire for adornment—there must be some subtle, lurking surpressed desire that makes them irresistable to women.

"When a married woman wears them, it shows that the spark within is still alive—that she isn't through desiring attention from the opposite sex," was one man's opinion.

"When a young girl ornaments herself with ear-rings it shows she is desiring knowledge beyond her years. That she would pretend to the world she is familiar with the things of life," was another's conviction.

The savage instinct comes in, I suppose, with our love for the bright colors and beads and jewels that compose them.

Still men, evidently find that savage in women, just a bit attractive. Have you ever seen his eyes brighten as a gayly-bedecked woman enters the room—jewelled head-dress, necklace and ear-rings complete? Yes, and possibly a trifle too demure beside that flaming beauty. Cultivate that savage instinct. Ear-rings will keep!

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y. — "I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives." — Mrs. ENGLEMANN, 2032 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

You should give it a fair trial now.

ADVANCING years should not mean the approach of a period of dependency—of crutches and canes—of worry, care and fatigue!

Don't dread the days ahead! Be prepared to grapple with the henchmen of Old Age—with rheumatism—with undermined health—with feebleness. The system that is free from impurities—through which rich red blood tingles need not worry about advancing years. Enlist the aid of S. S. S.—the builder of red blood cells—to fight off the infirmities of Old Age.

With the aid of S. S. S. when you reach this stage of life the nerve power that has been built up by ever increasing blood cells—the vim and vigor of youth that you possess will capably enable you to enjoy the advantages of passing years, while others less fortunate are feeble and dependent.

S. S. S. for nearly a century has been serving as a valuable and time honored assistant in the fight for hale and hearty Old Age. It is made only of pure vegetable ingredients and is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is the more economical.

S.S.S. Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again

Lizzie, Age 19, Still Rumbles

Score another one for "Lizzie". Age means nothing in her busy life. You can't wear her out. If you belive you can, just step around to the Security Sales Motor Company and take a look at "Lizzie" age 19, and see how spry she looks in her coat of green paint.

The little boat, probably one of the oldest boats in existance, is in fine condition, and was made in the year of 1904, just one year after Henry Ford began making the flivver. It boasts of no light and wind shield and is a 402 motor number, model "N". The fly wheel is in front of the timer in the rear, this car has no spark plugs and the motor block is cast in pairs. The wheels are somewhat smaller than later models, wearing a 28x3 tire, the crank is in the middle of the radiator. It has one seat and the body runs out to a point in the back.

The car is the property of the Campbell Motor company of Temple, Okla., and will be seen in the automobile parade at the Texas-Oklahoma fair Sunday. Its value to dealers of "tin lizzies" is estimated at $10,000.

FAIR CROWDS PASS ALL EXPECTATIONS

If the size of the crowd that greeted officials yesterday morning at the opening of the second annual Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition is any indication of the success of the seven days of exhibition, there is little doubt that the fair will surpars all expectations. The crowd began to gather early, and throughout the day increased in size until long before noon the grounds were crowded completely.

When the gates were thrown open at 8 o'clock a line of automobiles more than a mile long awaited the first chance to enter, and from that time on a steady stream crowded to get through the gate, while the pedestrians entrance was the scene that resembled a small riot, as laughing visitors hurried through.

The greater part of the booths were open and ready for the first visitors, and during the morning all the finishing touches were put on and the fair was going at full blast, with a crowd that threaten d to put last year's attendance record out of existence. The number of visitors visiting the exhibits during the first few hours went into the thousands, probably to five numbers, and more than 5,000 spectators were in the grand stand to view the baby buggy and velocipede parade and the bicycle races and Boy Scouts athletic demonstration.

'POLICE CHIEF" SPORTED BIG .45

Shades of the Wild West!

The new regime certainly has taken over the government with the Texas-Oklahoma Fair under the control of its juvenile officers, and if anyone doubts it he can ask Freeman Seale chief of police for the day.

And the chief will tell whoever asks that Mayor Staton and certain other high school students are directing things. If you need fur her proof he will back up his statements with his official powers and equipment.

For the one-day chief sports the largest, longest and ugliest looking six gun that has been seen here since the time of the wild west and train robbers. A big four-five, stuck in a western holster and upheld by a wide belt bristling with cartridges, is his proof of authority and a big badge is his license.

Characteristic of new police chiefs, he comes out with this statement, "I am going to clean up Wichita Falls if it takes all day, and there is going to be no crime during my administration!"

Police Commissioner Jack Martin backs his chief. "The c . is behind the chief," he says, "and although our force is too small at present, I will soon have a larger one, and we are going to keep Wichita Falls the best city in the south, and make the Texas-Oklahoma fair the biggest of its kind anywhere."

"BLIND AS A BAT"

That's the impression so many people give you who still go day after day as if "under a cloud," because they feel that there is no hope for them to get rid of the disfiguring blemishes on their skin.

If they would just notice or ask their dealer, they would find that thousands of people who once were in the same shape they are in, are now free from those distressing pimples, blotches, bumps, tetter, rash, eczema, ringworm, "breaking out," etc., and the secret of it is that they have learned that the one sure way to do it is by using the wonderful Black and White Ointment.

Black and White Ointment is economically priced in liberal size packages. The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have it.—Adv.

VIEWPOINT OF A FORMER TEXAN.

Five thousand American bankers gathered in Atlantic City last week and discussed socialism, communism, syndicalism and government ownership or management of business. All these isms were roundly denounced and Charles E. Mitchall, president of the National City Bank of New York was given an ovation when he declared "We want the oppressive hand of the government taken off business and freedom given to individual enterprise."

According to the correspondents there seemed to be a general note of optimism running through the speeches of the bankers. Melvin A. Traylor, a former Texan, but now president of a big Chicago bank, said that after an earnest endeavor to determine why there was so much agitation, unrest, turmoil and bickering in the country he concluded that the greater part of the trouble is mental, and although he declared that the bankers of America were at present confronted with the tremendous task of correcting the false impression that economic disaster lurks just ahead, the former Texan advocated a country-wide mental vacation in an effort to "quit seeing things which are not there."

There is a statewide mental vacation going on in Oklahoma. There is another in Minnesota. There is another in Iowa. Would Banker Melvin A. Traylor recommend a general application of his cure for the nationwide malady? He has made a careful diagnosis and his verdict is not far from the truth. There are men in every community, in every state and throughout the nation who are "seeing things that are not there."

TWO WISE MEN

Governor Gifford Pinchot and Secretary Andrew W. Mellon of Pennsylvania, held a five hours conference in the city of New York and all the republican politicians of New York and New Jersey were thrown into hysterics. Then the announcement was made by the governor that it was merely a social chat.

Tell it to the marines. Governor Pinchot's first line trenches were captured by his enemies on primary election day. Secretary Mellon is the wisest, the ablest and most powerful of all Pennsylvanians who are engaged in the game of politics.

There is a presidential election coming next year and the financiers of America are hoping for the continuation of an administration that is looked upon by the business interests as safe and sane. All business men are concerned and why shouldn't the head of the treasury department whisper a word of advice in the ear of the most powerful of the progressive leaders?

Governor Pinchot never runs amuck. He believes in the sanctity of law and its enforcement and the constitution as it stands. An eastern progressive would be regarded today as a mild reactinoary in many of the western states as well as in the Rocky Mountain states.

Official Washington says that if Coolidge makes good in the coming eight months, he will be named as the republican standard bearer of the republican party. If he fails to make good then a progressive republican of the Pinchot type may be named as the presidential nominee of the republican party. And dollar wheat has caused it all.

WHAT HAPPENED IN SPAIN

In less than three weeks the new military dictatorship in Spain has become a tremendous success, according to European rulers and has six outstanding achievements to its credit already.

These are the achievements: reduced cost of living, ousted 7,000 grafting politicians, dismissed thousands of superfluous government employers, stop banditry by court martialing and executing bandits on the spot, abolished syndicalism and terrorism and established public confidence in government.

It is claimed by these European observers and admitted by the independent editors of Spain that all the governments of Spain for 50 years have not accomplished as much for the Spanish people as the Spanish military dictator and his directorate of his nine generals has accomplished in a few days.

Italy has a military dictator. He has achieved tremendous results. Spain has a military dictatorship. Germany is certain to follow the example set by Italy and Spain. What has become of popular government in Italy? Or was an autocratic government necessary to save the people from the runious rule of the commune?

There are a number of little republics in Central Europe that are going the same way or else to pieces. Thy are used to the strong hand over there and the strong hand is what thy are getting in Italy and Spain.

COMPARISONS THAT ARE STAGGERING

Japan's financial loss in the recent earthquake disaster averages about $13 per capita of it population. This will place its total per capita indebtedness at about $38 as compared with a per capita indebtedness for the United States of $211 and Great Britain of $733.

John Bull is not dismayed. He has a staggering debt, he is feeding two million workers who are unemployed, he has made a new deal with France, he is maintaining an open road between London and Bombay by way of the Mediterranean and the Suez canal, he isn't hysterical or fanatical and he hopes to pull out all right.

John is one of the grim figures of history. He is the world's permanent institution. He may stagger or blunder along but he always gets there and makes a safe landing.

In an interview Henry Ford declared that if he were president he would use both the army and the navy to enforce the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law. It is evident from this that the billionaire flivver manufacturer is a mild pro and doesn't care who knows it.

Chicago speed maniacs are given jail sentences and are compelled to hammer large rocks into little ones by the prison authorities. All speed maniacs should be given the same dose by authorities everywhere. Of course there are no speed maniacs in Texas.

If Worst Comes to Wurst, Figuratively Speaking

A Romance of the Redwoods

Installment II.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

GRIMSTEAD, the "Buccaneer" of this swashbucking story, is stranded among the California redwoods in his "private craft," a high-powered car, when its gasoline tank is broken.

BURTON GRIMSTEAD, his "spoiled" daughter, is with him against her will, especially so as she perceives her father's object in insisting on her going on the trip is to throw her into the company of

SIMMINS, chauffeur and house man, of gay spirits, repressed because of his ultra English-butler dignity. He is sent after help and returns with a young man in a small car.

"This gentleman picked me up, sir," said he glibly, "and I conceived as how it would be more expeditious, sir, to come back with him."

"More expeditious! He's going in the other direction!" said Grimstead.

CHAPTER III.

A Prophecy.

Simmins' agile mind saw the point, and he realized that if this young man were supposed to have offered his services in going for help, there would have been no earthly object in returning to the fire. He would simply have turned around and headed for Tecolote and its garage.

"Yes, sir; certainly, sir," he answered Mr. Grimstead's remark. "But, sir, although our tank is ruined, sir, it occurred to me that by filling the vacuum tank by hand every few miles we would be able to work our car to Tecolote, sir, in not over two hours. We would have to borrow from this gentleman only about two and a half gallons of gasoline. I hope I have done right, sir," ended Simmins virtuously.

He managed by his manner to convey the impression that all those details had been considered and discussed with his new companion. As a matter of fact Simmons was spinning it out as he went along.

"Quite right, Simmins," Grimstead said.

But Miss Burton stirred.

"I suppose this gentleman has that much gasoline to spare," she threw in apparently idly.

That was the weak point, Simmins did not know.

"It's too bad, but I have no gas," the stranger announced calmly.

"Well, distillate, alcohol, kerosene, whatever it is," said Grimstead a little impatiently. "My car will run on them, at a pinch."

"Not a single drop," repeated the man; "I run on—well, electricity."

"Electricity!" cried Grimstead and Gardiner in unison. "Where do you—"

But the technical discussion was side-tracked. The Irish terrier, who had been sitting atop the park, riveted his gaze on Punketty-Snivvies and went into action, seized that personage in his mouth and deposited his burden in his master's hand.

"Come here, you old idiot," ordered his master. "This is a dog. I know it doesn't look it; but smell of it. You see," he explained, looking up, "I am naturally of a lazy curious disposition, so I have trained Rapscallion to bring me in anything strange he runs across in the woods as long as it isn't skunks. But he ought to know a dog when he smells it!"

Punketty-Snivvies yelped.

"Oh, shut up!" the young man addressed him, and cuffed the atom smartly.

Never before had Punketty-Snivvies felt the hand of authority. But now Punketty-Snivvies did shut up.

"If you have quite finished punishing my dog, will you kindly return me my property?" Burton asked coldly, after a moment.

"Why, certainly," acquiesced the young man. "Do you really care for it?"

And then a queer thing happened. Burton opened her mouth, intending to squelch this upstart, but as she looked up straight into his laughing eyes something ingenuously expectant in the depths of them caused her to say:

"No, I despise it!"

"I thought you would," responded the young man in sympathetic tones. "Well, great is the power of fashion! Here, Simmins," he ordered, "take this nuisance away somewhere. You ought to get a real dog. Here, Rapscallion; you've got to apologise to the lady. First show her your paws are clean."

Rapscallion extended his right paw, keeping the other still rigidly elevated. Nobody could have resisted him. Burton did not.

"You darling!" she cried, dropping on her knees before him.

At this moment, Grimstead's booming tones broke in.

"Young man," said he, "it's an imposition, I know; but you see how we are situated. Could you [illegible] back to Tecolote and get us help?"

"Surely; I'll do anything I can," agreed the young man heartily. "My name is Davenport."

"Grimstead is mine. That's fine! Get them to send out a touring car tonight; and then tomorrow we can make arrangements for repairs."

But Davenport shook his head doubtfully.

"Not tonight," he decided. "Tomorrow."

Grimstead flushed.

"It would be rather a hardship on my daughter—" he began stiffly.

Davenport laughed aloud.

"It's going to rain; and it's going to rain hard! I probably wouldn't make Tecolote, and you'd all be very wet and uncomfortable.

"Rain!" cried Gardiner contemptuously.

"The wind's due north, and has been all day," Grimstead pointed out. "and, besides, it's the dry season."

"Look at the stars! It's a heavenly night," contributed Burton.

"Apparently that is so," smiled Davenport. "Nevertheless we are in for a storm, and a very heavy one. I think it would be better for me to wait here until morning and help make you comfortable. I have a camp outfit; and plenty of supplies."

"I suppose," said Gardiner sarcastically, "that you can tell us just when it's going to start to rain and how many inches we will have."

"I might," replied Davenport unexpectedly. "Wait a minute."

He stood upright and stared off into space for perhaps half a minute; then slowly his eyes reconcentrated.

"It will begin to rain about 1 or 1:30," he stated quietly, "and will continue for 8 hours and 20 minutes—or five minutes either way. I could not tell you exactly how many inches will fall, but it will be a very heavy and continuous downpour with high wind—a tempest. On a guess for that sort of a storm, lasting that long, five inches."

"Five inches! A cloudburst!" Gardiner snorted.

"Yes, that is a bad storm," agreed Davenport seriously. "Another thing: that tree just beyond your car, the one near the edge of the road, will be blown down, so we'd better move the car, and be careful where we pitch camp."

Gardiner muttered contemptuously to himself.

"How do you claim to know these things so accurately?" demanded Burton bluntly.

"Suppose we wait until morning and see if I do know them," smiled Davenport.

"Yes, that's a good idea," approved Grimstead drily. "And if we really are to stay here all night, suppose we see what we can do toward making ourselves comfortable."

CHAPTER IV.

"Put Up or Shut Up!"

Davenport unleashed the camping outfit from his car and they made their way to the lower end of the meadow, where Simmins built a fire.

The shelters up, Davenport started Simmins to digging semi-circular ditches around their up-grade sides. This was, he explained, to carry aside the flood waters; at which Gardiner, unable to contain himself further, uttered an exclamation of impatience.

"I beg your pardon?" said Davenport.

"I said nothing," Gardiner told him, "but I'd as soon say now that it would be well to drop this childish foolishness and get down to business. It's getting late."

"By childish foolishness you refer—?

"All this heavy digging and elaborate buffoonery. There's about as much chance of rain as there is of snow. You must take us for easterners or fools. We know something of the California climate!"

Davenport sauntered carelessly over to where Gardiner stood. Gardiner drew himself up. When within hand distance Davenport came to a halt. The men stared each other in the eye.

"You are not overly polite," remarked Davenport, "and I don't believe I like you anyway. But I'll just lay you a little bet that it does rain and that the redwood yonder falls."

Gardiner's dark face flushed at the other's tone. He made his decision to teach this upstart a lesson.

"I'll take you," he said suddenly, "on condition that I name the bet."

"All right."

"Very well, then. Ten thousand dollars!"

Burton uttered a little cry of reproach. Grimstead, who had been listening amusedly, interposed.

"This is beyond a joke, beyond all reason, Gardiner," he objected. "Have some sense of proportion—"

So Goes It

By H. H.

A Wichita Falls man who has been considering the purchase of an automobile has finally selected the type of car he wants. He made the discovery while watching one of the auto polo cars in action, said: "That's the kind of a car I want," he said, "when they turn over they just keep right on goin."

Time flies in Germany. You can be rich in the morning and broke at night. Germany, you know, is the place where the expression "Easy mark" originated.

Lizzie Frizzle, who recently returned from Colorado Springs, says she went down town one morning and found the streets covered with snails. "Didn't the people step on them?" we asked. "No," replied Lizzie, "they couldn't catch up wth them."

But that isn't as bad as the story they used to tell on Topeka, Kans. The report was that a man dropped dead on the postoffice steps and he wasn't found for three days.

Speaking of clothing prices S. K. Leaky of Ellsworth, Kans., wants $150,000 for a coat of tar and feathers that someone gave him.

China has a population of 436,000,000, which doesn't mean much more than the fact that a man is worth 436,000,000 marks.

Lloyd George isn't taking any chances on his contemplated American tour. He has announced that it will not be a lecture tour.

It's about gotten so that when a man buys a bottle of ginger ale he is under suspicion.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

I believe it makes children selfish to feel that mother is always at their beck and call; that her time is theirs, while father's time is his, it is the case in so many homes. I have therefore trained my children to observe as sacred mother's daily "hour off." I take one hour every afternoon from my many household duties off for myself, to read books that rest my mind or challenge ideas, or read books on "the business of the mother," just as any man reads his business journals. The children understand that I am to be disturbed only for something extremely important, and they actually take pride in "standing guard" when I am in my room. It increases their respect for me as an individual, and keeps me from falling into a rut on my "job."

WHAT TODAY MEANS

LIBRA

To-day shows one sign which portends good fortune, yet other signs bring restlessness od indecision.

A child born today will have a cheerful, hail-fellow personality and later will be successful in business.

If today is your birthday you should have no difficulty in mastering your fate, whatever it may be, for nature has given you a resolute will and a power of resourcefulness which will always provide you with the solution of any problem that may confront you.

You are proud, imperious and aloof, and the high esteem in which you hold yourself is the trial which will win you the respect if not the love of your fellow beings. And yet you have, when you choose to show it, an entirely lovable nature and abundant sympathy, qualified only by the wisdom with which you apply it.

You are appreciative of all that is fine and beautiful in thoughts as well as in form, and it is quite probable that you often considered art or music as a career and it is equally improbable that you will never give your time wholly to art.

The needs of your ambitious are of a more materialistic cast than would be satisfied with distant fame. You must have the realization of your power here and now, and for that reason you will probably seek a more tangible reward for your labors.

You are inventive as well as analytical and a born originator of efficient machines and methods. Your first reaction to any unusual situation is an intense desire to see the works and then improve them where necessary.

Your powers of reasoning and expression should give you a position of executive importance. You are naturally fitted for the law, as you have clear judgment and sufficient coldness of temperament to regard the whole subject in the light of the community rather than the individual.

In disposition you are intuitive and almost psychically sensitive as to the opinions and natures of others. But at the same time their opinions of yourself are of little moment except in so far as they enable you to use other people more tactfully to your own advantage.

Successful people born on this date are:

Edward L. Codin, journalist.
Theodore Tilten, author.
J. Appleton Morgan, lawyer and author.

Oil Tax to Courts.

BRECKENRIDGE.—Tax assessments against oil leases which have been involved in litigation in state courts for several years, will be made this year, according to County Tax Assessor's office. Assessments will be made as result of recent decision of the supreme court. It is estimated the county will receive $50,000 from the assessments.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

INSPIRATION

I've seen the shelf where Mr. Keats
Wrote poems—in a chemist's store;
I've been where Avon's wavelet beats
Upon old Stratford's placid shore;
I've sought Kent's atmosphere to get;
I've labored like a very Turk
To imitate the Bard—and yet
Somehow it doesn't seem to work!

These birds imbibed, I used to think,
The stuff that made them both so great;
They got it with their daily drink,
Or in the British food they ate;
But I have tried the self-same fare;
I've sat where Keats was wont to sit
And warmed Bill Shakespeare's easy chair—
And still my style don't change a bit.

I've seen the rugged elms and yews
Which Gray's great elegy inspired;
They filled me with cerulean blues,
But failed to yield the punch required.
I've stood where Byron wrote his lays,
When Grecian mountain tops loomed dim.
Beneath the moon's pale silver rays—
Yet somehow, I can't write like him!

I've changed my mind about these chaps
Whose days in foreign parts were spent;
I've come to think of late, perhaps,
It wasn't their environment.
The gift that made their meaning clear,
And winged their rhyme and swung their rythm,
I find they didn't pick up here—
More probably they brought it with 'em.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

HUMANS WILL AGAIN REACH METHUSELAH'S AGE, ASSERTS DR. MAYO.

Back to the days of Methuelah, a vision of a new era when the world would be free of disease and when centenarians would be counted as mere children, was painted by Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., professor of surgery at the Mayo foundation in a recent address.

DR. C. H. MAYO

"In the last 35 years the development of the medical profession and the change in the treatment of disease have been nothing short of wonderful," he said. "But it is as nothing compared to the progress that will be made in the years to come.

"The average life of the human being has already been prolonged as a result of the advances made in medicine and surgery. This does not mean altogether that old people have attained a greater age—though remedies have been found for many alleged incurable diseases—but that age has been added on at the other end of life in decreased infant and child mortality.

Annual Inspection Urged.

"But science is now attacking the problem of longer life and some interesting things have already been discovered. For instance it can almost be said with certainty that the average man can live five years longer than he does now. If he would present himself at every birthday for a thorough medical and dental inspection after he reaches the age of 40, he could maintain a state of health that would defy the incursions of disease bacteria.

"Statistics indicate that 17 per cent of boys who die under the age of 25 show hardening of the blood vessels. The condition is brought on during infancy of adolescence and could be eliminated by proper attention. Disease is an accident, a mistake the fault of somebody. This fault can be corrected if it is caught in time.

"Dilations of the heart, distortion of different organs, cancers, tumors and can soon be nipepd in the bud. It is only when they are advance that they are difficult of curing.

Startling Results With Insects.

"A method has been discovered of prolonging insects 900 per cent. If the same system could be applied to mankind. Methuselah would be a infant in comparsion to the man of today. There is no doubt that in centuries to come, under proper sanitary conditions, with greater knowledge of the processes of the human body, the limits of life will be greatly extended.

"The human body wears out but it would last much longer if the human structures could be replaced and replenished. We are just beginning to understand the science of diatetics, and when this will be perfected it will be possible, for instance, to restore the overstrained fibres of the heart which under present conditions mean death.

"There is too great a tendency to think that people past the age of 60 merely vegetate, waiting for death. Some way will be found to keep them vigorous."

Buy It In Wichita Falls

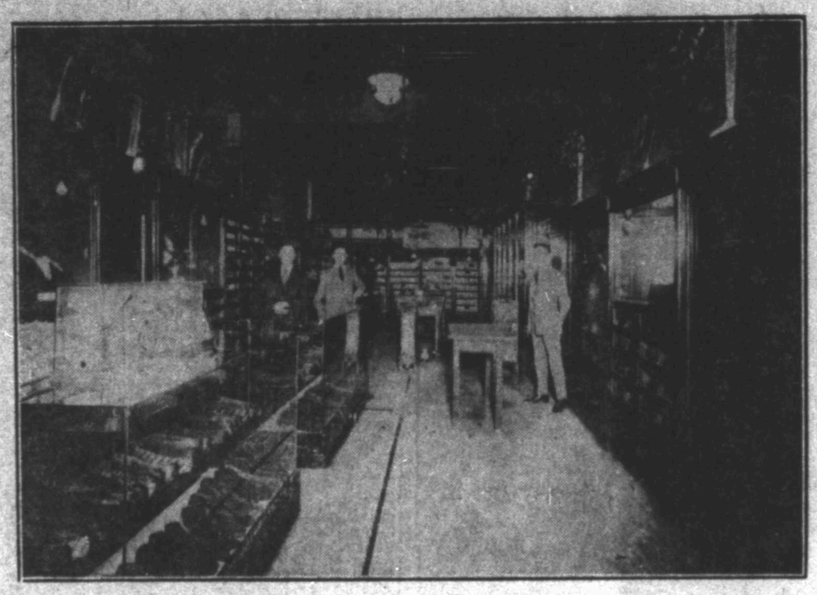

More and more every day the people of Wichita Falls are living up to the trade at home idea. They are now beginning to realize more than ever that Wichita Falls has about everything to offer in the mercantile line that the even larger cities have, and that money spent in Wichita Falls is money kept at home for home enterprises and the upbuilding of the town.

Ludlam and Riggs, Clothiers, located at 723 Eighth street, while comparatively newcomers in Wichita Falls, are well known in their line in this section of the country, having previously operated stores in Quanah, Texas, and Frederick, Oklahoma.

Mr. J. S. Riggs is in direct charge of the clothing and men's furnishing store here which the two men own. His partner, Mr. A. C. Ludlam, is a traveling representative for the Edwin Clapp Shoe Company, having served in that capacity for the past 14 years.

Mr. Riggs started in the mercantile business in 1910 in Quanah, Texas, operating a store there for Baker, Hanna and Company. He later removed to Frederick, Okla., where he and Mr. Ludlam purchased the haberdashery stock and business of Alex Henderson.

The Frederick store was operated by them until January, 1922, when they sold the stock back to its former owner. They came to Wichita Falls, attracted by the progressiveness of this city, and engaged in business here, after buying the stock of the Richardson Shoe Store and the Richardson haberdashery, consolidating the two establishments under the name of Ludlam & Riggs.

The years of experience of both men is largely responsible for the progress of the store. They not only understand buying and know clothing and men's furnishings, aside from following the policy of giving the best in service to their customers.

Some of the popular lines of merchandise carried by the firm are Stein-Bloch, Fit-Form Clothes; Manhattan and Broadway Shirts, Interwoven and Hole-proof Socks and Edwin Clapp and Florsheim Shoes.

Mr. Ludlam and Mr. Riggs are both strong advocates of the policy of trading at home. They say that with such up-to-date mercantile establishments as Wichita Falls has, there is no reason whatever for any one residing in Wichita Falls buying anything outside of this city.

Panthers Are Snowed Under In Fifth Game

"DIXIE" WALKER HOLDS CATS TO SHUT OUT; HENRY STEALS HOME; SEVEN CATS FANNED

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 1.—New Orleans snowed under the Fort Worth Panthers in the fifth game of the Dixie series today. "Dixie" Walker, the Pelicans' speed ball expert, shutting out the visitors, 11 to 0, holding them to four hits, one a scratch single, and striking out seven men.

The game was called at the end of the first half of the seventh inning on account of darkness.

New Orleans has now won two games to the Panthers three and the teams will go to Fort Worth for the sixth game Thursday. Should it be necessary to play a seventh game a coin will be tossed to determine where the contest will be staked.

The fifth was the Pelicans' big inning, with seven runs scored, one of them a clean steal of home by Henry Schick, the first man up, doubled to left, Tucker hit to Tavener, who threw high to third in an effort to catch Schick. Both runners were safe, Foss fanned. Schick, on an attempted squeeze play, was caught at the plate. Knaupp doubled to right, Tucker scoring. Henry walked and Dowie doubled to left, scoring Knaupp, Henry going to third. With two men down, Henry took a long lead when Walker went to bat, and beat a pitched ball to the plate. "Dixie" walked and Wachtel, who had relieved Johns in the fourth, then was taken out and Ross went in to pitch. Ross walked Boggart, the first man to face him. Ewoldt then doubled to left, scoring Dowie and Walker. Schick followed with a long single to center, scoring Boggart and Ewoldt. It was Schick's second hit in the inning. The inning ended when Schick attempted to steal and was caught off first.

The three runs scored by the Pelicans in the fourth inning were made on two hits. Johns forcing one run across the plate. Foss, the first man up, went out, Johns to Kraft. Knaupp walked. Henry singled to left, and Dowie, the next man up, was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. Walker fanned but Bogart, following, was walked, forcing in Knaupp. Ewoldt singled to right, scoring Henry and Dowie. It was too much for Johns and he was sent to the showers. Wachtel had one strike on Schick, the first batter to face him, when the inning ended with Bogart's out on an attempt to steal home.

The first run was scored in the first inning on a pass, a sacrifice and a single.

Will McGraw Hypnotize Them Again?

This is all there are. There are no more. In other words this is Miller Huggins' entire pitching staff, from "Hitless" Sam Jones to Gus Roettger and Roger Pipgras, the newest rookies. If John McGraw can tie them hand, foot and brain again as he did last year and in 1921, the Yankees will get trimmed for the third straight time. And if this happens Huggins probably will be willing to trade the whole line of them for what they'll bring in the exchange column—an old phonograph, second-hand incubator or anything else at all useful. But Huggins hopes that he can break the spell this year and beat the Giants.

Once More "Battle of Brothers" Will Be Waged In World's Series

Among other things the Yankees and Giants are doing while hogging the world's series year after year is making commonplace the once rare "Battle of Brothers" in the fall classic. Until Emil Meusel of the Giants and Brother Bob of the Yankees started grabbing two shares of pennant and world's series dough for the Meusel family, battles of two boys from the same parental knee were rare in the big melee. This is the third setto the Meusel boys have had in the blue ribbon event.

GEORGES REPEATS BECKETT VICTORY

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. .—George Carpentier knocked out Joe Beckett in the first round of their bout here tonight.

Beckett was counted out 20 seconds after the round began. Carpentier thus duplicated his victory over the British heavyweight titleholder here in December, 1919.

STRIVE TO SAVE METHODIST SHRINE

A sub-committee of the Primitive Methodist church met in London the other day and discussed the threatened enclosure of Mow Cop hill, on the border of Cheshire and Staffordshire, on which primitive Methodism was founded in 1807.

The sentiments of Primitive Methodists in England, says the London Times have been stirred by the threatened enclosure. George Armitage, general secretary of the church, said it would be an excellent thing if the church purchased the summit of Mow Cop, and preserve it, for the benefit of the public. Legal advice was decided upon at the meeting of the committee toward this end.

The actual spot where the original "camp meetings" of the Primitive Methodists were held, Mr. Armitage pointed out, was a meadow a few hundred yards from the summit of Mow Cop. Some years ago the church people attempted, without success, to buy the meadow. The portion of the hill in dispute was purchased for quarrying purposes by Joseph Lovatt. Not long ago several inhabitants of the Mow Cop territory went to the quarry and destroyed the loose stone walls and wire fencing, contending the land was public property.

Immediately afterwards these inhabitants stood guard and prevented truck drivers carrying away stones. The demonstrators erected a stone barricade, but were frustrated in their attempts to hold the quarry when a truck driver broke through the wall and thus permitted work to proceed.

50 DELEGATES AT DENISON MEET

About 50 delegates are attending the three-day convention of the International Bible Students' association in Denison. The meeting will come to a close Sunday night with a message by G. M. Rea of Fort Worth, one of the chief speakers for the convention.

Mr. Rea spoke Friday morning and Saturday afternoon. Saturday morning 37 delegates, coming from various points in Oklahoma and Texas, had registered. Sunday will see this number increased. A number of local followers of the movement are attending.

The main address for Sunday is to be made by H. H. Dingus of New York City. He will speak at the Arcade theatre at 3 o'clock.

WANT PEACE IN WARRING G.O.P.

President Coolidge Still Pursuing Conciliatory Program

WASHINGTON, October 1.—President Coolidge is still pursuing the conciliation program, in the effort to unite the warring elements of the republican party. But results so far indicate he will be far from successful.

Conciliation is a word with a pleasing sound. It always seems feasible to the conciliator, but not necessarily so with the one who is to be conciliated. Compromise involves a mutual yielding for the purpose of reaching an agreement. But conciliation means winning the other fellow over to one's own viewpoint, mollifying him, pacifying him, or getting him back into line. And it is hard to do this with persons who differ honestly from the one who is trying to do the conciliating.

There are several groups of republicans on whose amalgamation President Coolidge has concentrated his political efforts, with so far every indication of failure. Among the elements Mr. Coolidge has apparently tried the hardest to conciliate are the "irreconcilables," utterly and unalterably opposed to not only the league of nations but to any sort of international alliance, upon the part of the United States; the "farm bloc;" the progressives; the southern republicans and the warring elements in the republican party in several states.

Under the administration of President Harding many southern republicans felt that they were not getting the sort of recognition to which they were entitled, not so much because of lack of desire on the part of the president, as because a republican senate would not co-operate and actually rejected several important nominations. The most promient case was the nomination of James F. McNary, of New Mexico, formerly of Texas, to be comptroller of the currency, which the president reluctantly withdrew on Mr. McNary's request, when it was seen opposition had arisen to the appointment on the part of northern republican senators in the finance committee.

Another striking example was the refusal of the senate to confirm the appointment of Joseph W. Tolbert to be United States marshal in North Carolina, on alleged grounds of misconduct in another place, and only less notable was the rejection of Walter Cohen, a negro, to be colector of the port of New Orleans. The net result was a feeling of aloofness to the republican cause among southern republicans generally, although President Harding, continued personally popular with them.

Evidently hoping to conciliate the southern republicans, on whom so much always depends in the quadrennial selection of candidates for the northern republicans to support, President Coolidge, in the appointment of Bascom Slemp, of Virginia, to be his secretary, served notice on the republican party that he proposed to recognize southern republicans in a substantial way. The answer of the republican national committee, within a very few days, was the cutting out of representation from southern states in the next national convention, and a more than corresponding increase in the representation from northern states.

The republican committee, in making public this attack on the south, stated that it had been adopted by the committee back in June, 1921. But it had been held back, probably with a view to rescinding the order, till the Slemp appointment brought forth the announcement that the representation of the south had been cut. And it would appear from this that the efforts to conciliate the south had brought forth a reaction worse in its effect than the original situation had been.

In his effort to conciliate the "progressives," the president permitted Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, to undertake a settlement of the anthracite coal strike. Pinchot persuaded the coal operators to yield to the demands of the miners organizations, which means the highest retail price for anthracite coal during the coming winter the country has ever known. And his reply to the president's efforts at conciliation is his own candidacy for the presidency.

Basing his candidacy upon his "settlement" of the coal strike, Pinchot is seeking the support of the "progressives," and the point has been reached where the two republican senators from Pennsylvania have felt compelled to withhold their support from him, lest he precipitate another Roosevelt-Taft split upon the republican party.

Not only has Pinchot undertaken to prevent conciliation of the progressives, but the attitude of Hiram Johnson, of California, had become so aggressive that Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, a former champion of Johnson for the presidency, felt compelled a few days ago to admonish him that a Johnson candidacy for the presidency in opposition to Coolidge, on whom the party hoped it might be able to unite, would be ill-advised, selfish and in opposition to the best interests of the party.

When President Coolidge put his foot down on the plan which had been formulated under the Harding administration, to get John T. Adams out of the chairmanship of the republican national committee, because of his bitter opposition to the United States becoming a party to the world court, as proposed by Mr. Harding, it was regarded as another step in his conciliation program. If it was so intended, it seems to have failed as disastrously as other attempts to bring discordant elements back into party unison.

Even before the republican national committee issued its notice of the cut in southern representation in the next national convention, it issued a statement from Chairman Adams, assuring the public generally that "the people of the United States are not going to join the league of nations, directly or indirectly, or any other organization which would get us into the political entanglements of Europe."

While an attempt was made in some quarters to regard this as a mere assurance to the people that whatever President Coolidge had in mind regarding membership in the world court would not involve the United States in the political entanglements of Europe, outstanding events have made it apparent that it was an attempt to head off the president and prevent him from pursuing his own course in recommending world court membership. And this was the result of the president's efforts to conciliate by maintaining John T. Adams in his place as chairman of the republican national committee.

But most vitriolic of all the attacks following the president's efforts to bring wanderers from the conservative rank back into the fold is that made in the National Republican, an official adjunct to the republican national committee, edited and published by George T. Lockwood, secretary of the republican national committee. This publication is sponsored by the republican national committee and its utterances must be considered as expressive of the views of the committee.

The president had been working on some of the so-called "progressives," in an effort to line them in party regularity—a part of his conciliation program. Senator Capper, of Kansas, had been called in as a representative of the progressives and the farm bloc, to discuss the agricultural conditions, while Congressman Florian Lampert, of Wisconsin, had also been called to discuss patronage in Wisconsin. The president and Senator Capper were getting along wonderfully well, and the congressman had been given to understand that the selection of postmasters in their districts would be left to republican congressmen in Wisconsin, the same as in other states. This meant that the LaFollette element in the badger state would be recognized as within the republican party, which had not been done previously. It also meant that the way was being paved for a friendly understanding between the president and both the LaFollette element and the farm bloc.

And then come the National Republican in a bitter editorial evidently intended to head off any attempts to get the progressives back into the republican party. Under the heading "Socialism, open and camouflaged," the National Republican said:

"Socialism as an acknowledged dogma and organized party force has declined in this country. But if frank, honest, straightforward socialism has declined in this country, the camouflaged kind is flourishing as never before, and in a far more dangerous and sinister form than as an organized political force flying its own flag.

"Socialism, confessing its own unpopularity by declining longer to operate under its own name and style, is working in the two old party organizations and in one or two new ones under such high-sounding names as 'farmer-labor party,' and 'conference for progressive political action.' Men who are socialists at heart have seized control of the Washington headquarters of most of the important national labor and farm organizations, and are trying to gain control of both the old parties and to dictate the program of government.

"These camouflaged socialists preach the same gospel of class consciousness and class hatred as the old-time socialists. Unlike Eugene Debs and others frankly avowing their fealty to socialism, they pretend to be 'liberals' rather than 'radicals,' 'progressives' rather than socialists. But a socialist by any other name would smell just as sweet."

Senators Capper, of Kansas; Norris of Nebraska; Borah of Idaho; LaFollette, of Wisconsin; Brookheart of Iowa; Owen of Oklahoma; Sheppard of Texas; and Ashurst, of Arizona, are among those who have met in "conference for progressive political action." "They are the men of whom the republican national committee, through its organ, the National Republican, said: "A socialist by any other name would smell as sweet." They are branded as socialists at a time when President Coolidge is using his best efforts to induce the progressive republicans of this list and others of similar views to join forces with the administration in urging legislation along progressive lines.

The republican national committee dares not attack the president, but it does the next thing to it when it attacks as socialists those who confer with the president regarding action which may be of benefit to agriculture and labor, and thereby to the entire nation.

All in all, it would seem that the president is on the wrong track in trying to conciliate. The "progressives" do not seem to want to be conciliated, and the "Old Guard" does not propose to permit them to be, even if they were willing.

It looks as though Mr. Coolidge would have to join one side or the other and lead a fight for party supremacy. As a conciliator, he is something of a failure.

Maurice Archdeacon.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—If Maurice Archdeacon, the speed merchant outfielder purchased from Rochester by the Chicago White Sox, makes good, Kid Gleason surely will have the laugh on several other big league managers who turned down the Rochester flash.

Pittsburgh could have had him, but Barney Dreyfus declined with thanks. Detroit arranged a deal for him and even went so far as to send Outfielder Rothergill to Rochester in part payment, but later recalled the fat boy and called off the dicker for Archdeacon.

The Rochester management then invited Cleveland to buy the highly touted outfielder, but Barnard and Speaker turned down the chance, it being their belief that Summa, who had been a teammate of Archdeacon in 1921, was the superior player.

Plan Mica Survey.

By The Associated Press.

VLADIVOSTOK, Siberia. — The Daltorg (the department of trade in the Far East) has decided to open up the mica mines of Kamchatka, having learned from its agents abroad that there is demand for mica in America and that prices are high. A meeting of mine owners was called and the Daltorg agreed to finance an expedition for the survey of the deposits. Large deposits exist in the peninsula where the natives use Mica for window panes, and while some mines have been registered they have not been worked owing to the low prices prevailing.

MARKET ERRATIC AND IRREGULAR

Was Result of Struggle For Control By Opposing Forces

Market Features.

Total stock sales 602,000 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 88.08, net gain .19.

High this year 105.38; low 86.92.

Twenty railroads averaged 81.56, net gain .53.

High this year 1923, 90.51; low 79.53.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. Erratic price fluctuations took place today in the stock market in reflection for the struggle for control between opposing speculative forces. Leading industrial issues showed little change on the day, but several of the rails showed moderate gains on buying predicated on the excellent August earnings statement.

Among the stocks which established new lows for the year were Studebaker at 93 3-4, Kelly-Springfield at 23 1-4, Chandler motor at 45, Hupp Motors at 16 3-4, Butte and Superior at 127 1-8, American Zinc preferred at 26, Republic Steel preferred at 84 3-4, National Enameling at 48 1-4. Studebaker rallied to 94 3-4, off 1 1-4 on the day, but most of the others closed around thier lowest.

Week-end reports of political disturbances in Germany and Premier Poincare's speech setting forth that France was disposed to wait until Germany had translated her decision toabandon passive resistance in the Ruhr from words to deeds, had a depressing influence on the foreign exchanges. Demand sterling dropped more than a cent to $4.53 3-4, French francs broke 15 points to below 6.00 cents, Belgian francs dropping 10 points to below 5.10 cents, while German marks established a new low for all time at 29 cents a hundred million, and then rallied to 38 cents.

Considerable heaviness developed in the can shares, American slumping to 88 3-4 and Continental to 47 5-8, but both rallied sharply later, American closing at 89 7-8, off on the day and Continental closing at 48 5-8, off 7-8.

Squeesing of an extended short interest was the explanation generally heard for the sharp run up in Davison Chemical which closed 3 5-8 points higher at 46 after having fluctuated between 42 7-8 and 47 1-4. Continued liquidation of the motor shares was associated with rumors of more price cutting and competitive new cars.

COTTON MARKET REMAINS QUIET

Traders Were Evidently Holding Back For Tuesday's Report

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The cotton market was quiet today, with traders evidently waiting for tomorrow's government report. After selling at 28.17, December rallied to 28.39, or 9 points net higher. December closed at 28.37 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 3 to 11 points.

The market opened steady at decline of 3 to 14 points owing to reports of good weather in the south and the rather unsettling influence of the news regarding disturbances in Germany. Selling on the latter feature was checked by the steadiness of Liverpool.

The best prices of the day were touched in the late trading, October sold up to 28.48, the early low level, to 28.75 and January from 27.65 to 27.90, with the active months generally showing net advances of 9 to 15 points. Last prices were a little off from the best under realizing. Additional private crop reports were issued, with condition figures ranging from 48.5 up to 52.3 and indicated yield figures from 10,761,000 up to 11,240,000 bales but they had no apparent effect on sentiment, a canvass of New York cotton exchange members indicated an average expectation that tomorrow's government report would show a condition of 49.4. Port receipts today 111,281. U. S. port stock 532,020 exports 80,504, making 833,115 so far this season.

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 1.—Favorable weather reports from nearly all sections of the belt were the main selling influence in the cotton market today. Balancing it were bullish expectations regarding tomorrow's crop from the government and the large export movement. The close was five points up to 7 points down, net for the day, the closing range for December being 27.77 to 27.80.

In the early session the market was at its lowest, 15 to 20 points under the close of last week. December traded off to 27.59. Recoveries set in almost immediately, the list at its highest standing 7 points up to one point down, compared with the final prices of last week.

Houston cleared 64,281 bales for foreign export and total clearances from all ports for foreign ports were 89,764 bales. No cotton officially cleared Galveston but private messages stated that shipments out of that port amounted to 176,328 bales, of which 142,328 were for foreign countries.

MONEY At Work

Brief but important lessons in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments.

Banks in the larger cities usually have a charge for cashing out-of-town checks. How is this figured.

A bank pays out its own money to cash an out-of-town check. Instead of being able to collect from the other bank in a few hours, it may be from two to 10 days before it gets any money, depending upon the destination of the check.

On millions of dollars this loss in interest would be a large item. So the banks usually charge interest at the rate of around 4 1-2 per cent, which amounts to approximately to 12 1-2 to 15 cents per day on a thousand dollars.

Cities are classified by the number of days necessary to collect their checks. At 12 1-2 cents a day on a thousand dollars, it is easy to calculate the charge with the cities all classified, so the bank can tell you quickly what it will be.

Fort Worth Livestock.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 1.—Canner cows were selling Monday on a good, steady basis and on beef steers the market supported a steady trend, but fat cows were slow to 10@15c lower and the calf session was very dull at a decline of around 25@50 cents. Receipts were estimated at 5,000 head of cattle and 3,000 calves. Early sales of beef steers were taken at a range of 5.25@5.75.

Some good strong weight canners went at 1.85@1.90; Cutters went at a general range of 2.00@2.85; fat cows of medium to good quality sold at 3.00@4.00 and the better grades ranged around 4.25@4.50.

Desirable heifers and yearlings were scarce, but a few cars were good enough to go at a range of 7.00@ 7.50. Fair to medium heifers sold around 4.50@5.50.

Bulls were well in line with last week's advance. Carlots sold up to 3.60. Odd bulls of good quality and weight brought 3.75.

Buyers took a few cars of calves at a range of 5.25@5.75.

Several cars of steers, suitable for shipping back to the country, were on offer, but the trade was slow.

A few deals were made at a range of 5.00@5.50.

Although 1,000 hogs were available, the showing in car lots were too small to give the market a real test. The market, was called steady, however, good wagon hogs selling to packers at 8.00; which was last week's closing carload top. Bulk sales ranged around 7.50@7.75.

Pigs were steady. Stockers sold around 6.00@6.50.

Of the 4,500 head marked up in the sheep house, close to 3,800 were feeder lambs on through billing. The supply consisted of a few deckers of weather selling 7.25 and a deck or two of feeder lambs. On sheep the market was active and steady. Lambs made slow progress

GRAIN SHOWING NEW STRENGTH

Corn Soars to New High Prices Followed By Wheat and Oats

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. — With corn soaring to new high prices records for the season, wheat and oats today developed fresh strength. Reports that frost in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa had done corn direct ramage equal to 70,000,000 bushels, exclusive of reduction in quality, was the chief bullish influence affecting grain. Wheat closed firm, 3-4 to 1 3-8@1 1-2 cents net higher, December 1.06 5-8 to 1.06 5-8@.3-4 and May 1.10 to 1.10 3-4 to 1.10 7-8. Corn finished 1 1-4 to 2 5-8 cents up. Oats 7-8 to 1 1-4 cents gain and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 12 cents advance.

Shippers of corn bid prices of cash corn up in competition with industries. Number 2 yellow sold as high as 94 1-4 cents a bushel, the topmost quotations in 1923. Oats, like corn, reached a new high price record for the season.

Provisions were firmer with hogs and grains.

CITRUS INCREASE IS NOW PROBABLE

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 1.—Prospects are favorable for an increase of 100 per cent in production and shipment of citrus fruits out of the Rio Grande valley section this season, according to J. M. De Curto, chief plant pathologist of the state department of agriculture. De Curto has recently made an inspection of conditions in the valley section.

Bearing citrus trees this year greatly outnumber the figures for last season, De Curto said today. This increase is attributed to the large number of groves that are just coming into the bearing age. Conditions are highly favorable for a large crop ofcitrus fruits, the department head said.

Reports to the department are that last year the valley shipped less than 150 carloads of citrus fruits. This season, it is estimated that between 250 and 275 carloads will be moved. Grape fruit composed by far the larger part of the shipments last season, the toetal movement of this fruit reaching a total of 33,158 boxes. Oranges, lemons, and limes are the other citrus fruits raised in commercial quanities.

TEXAS AFTER RIGHTFUL SHARE

Members of Congress to Take Lead in Fight For Rreclamation

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Texas and other southern states have become weary of the manner in which the federal reclamation policy has been operated and are determined to lead an aggressive movement in the next congress to enlarge that policy into a national scope so that the south may share in reclamation the same as the west, it became known here today.

Texas will send a delegation to the Forestry, Reclamation and Immigration conference to be held at New Orleans, November 19 to 22, where the plan to be pursued in the next congress will be fully outlined.

Texas members of congress are expected to take the lead in the fight to give the south all the benefits the west now enjoys. Congressmen Garner, Mansfield, Rudspeth, Conally, Briggs and Jones are depended upon to champion the south's cause.

Clement S. Ucker, Baltimore, who is to provide at the New Orleans session today made public a letter, written to the house committee on appropriations predicting a determined stand by southern interests and members of congress against any further reclamation work by the government unless the federal policy is expanded so as to include reclamation and land settlement in the south.

In his letter to the appropriation committee Mr. Ucker scores the "tendency toward paternalism" manifested in the west and the "apparent riot of expenditure on the newer western reclamation projects" when, he declares, the survey made by the reclamation service in 1919 shows there are "far more attractive opportunities in other parts of the United States, particularly in the south." He also criticizes the laxity displayed by the government in collecting amounts due the public treasury from western land owners under the projects who have received the benefits, and the alleged inefficient use of federal funds in the west. Mr. Ucker's letter in part follows:

"The assumption by congress of the details of making annual, specific appropriation for reclamation has greatly strengthened the tendency to paternalism and interference in minor detail. The point now has been reached where the cost per acre of work, specifically authorized by congress, for providing water to private lands, is excessive. Many of the landowners, when the works are built, claim they cannot pay the cost even under the extraordinary easy terms of twenty annual installments without interest. Some of these men are now demanding forty years without payment of interest.

"In the present crisis there is greater need than ever before of the deliberate judgment of fully informed men, particularly in the matter of collections of amounts due the government, in extension of time of payment, and the effect of these in stimulating speculation, such as is leading to a steady increase in tenantry and to soil deterioration, with consequent reduced crop condition. It now appears, however, that 'the pilot has been dropped' and orders given for 'full steam ahead.' Apparently, we are plunging into schemes which have little justification in the prospective results of providing opportunities for homes for citizens.

"In sharp contrast with this apparent riot of expenditure on these newer western reclamation projects are the far more attractive opportunities in other parts of the United States, particularly in the south. Many of these have been examined by the reclamation service and these results have been printed in the volume entitled 'Development of United Lands' (66th Congress, 1st Session, H. R. Doc. 262), to which I personally contributed considerable time and energy.

"Remembering that the ultimate object of the reclamation law is to increase the stability of the government and of its institutions by the creation of cheap and accessible opportunities for small self-supporting farm homes, it is seen that such opportunities so far as the west is concerned, have gone. There are no more cheap irrigation enterprises, but in other parts of the United States are millions of acres, as stated by President Harding in his first address to congress, where homes can be made available and at a far less cost.

"Do not misunderstand me. I am not arguing against a continuation of reclamation and homemaking, but rather to the contrary. It cannot and should not be continued in the expensive way in which it is now proposed the work should be done and on projects not fully endorsed by men like Arthur P. Davis. It can be made a far greater success and can fulfill the objects urged by Roosevelt, by Harding and others if Congress will consider the matter broadly and weigh carefully the relative cost and value. To do this, congress must have the most complete information possible and the facts presented by impartial men who are not committed to building up any one section of this country."

In conclusion Mr. Ucker writes:

"Because of the growing apprehension on the part of citizens and taxpayers throughout the country that the real object of reclamation is being overlooked and that federal funds are being used less efficiently than should be, to produce the desired results, a number of us are calling a conference to be held in New Orleans, November 19 to 22 to consider some of these factors and to urge upon the new congress the adoption of a broaden national program of reclamation; one which will more nearly meet the present needs of the country. To this conference are being invited governors of various states, members of congress, delegates from boards of trade and other organizations for the purpose of full discussion of these important problems."

SATURDAY WAS SIMMONS DAY

ABILENE, Texas—Saturday was Simmons college day at the West Texas fair and college pep and college colors were much in evidence. A parade was staged by the student body through the business district of the city in the morning, a feature of the parade being the procession of three decorated floats each carrying prize-winning purebred Hereford which had been given to the college following their week of exhibit at the fair.

These fine Herefords were donated by the following firms: R. V. Colbert and Son of Stamford, B. N. Aycock and Son of Midland, and J. M. Gist and Sons of Midland. The animals were auctioned off in front of the grandstand at the fair park immediately preceding the game, in which the Simmons Cowboys met the Baylor Bears in the gridiron clash.

The parade staged by the students was participated in by practically the entire group marching in the order of the classes. B. Locke Davis of Beaumont, president of the Students association was marshal of the day. Other features of the parade were: The Cowboy band in full regalia; sponsors of the parade typifying the spirit of the school, a cowboy and a cowgirl on horseback. Thereon Funk of Bridgeport, Texas, and Miss Merle Wooten of Abilene. The faculty had a decorated car. The "Baylor Bear" was carried on a stretcher through the streets.

CALL IS ISSUED TO LANDOWNERS

Colonization Committee Asks for Meeting At Iowa Park, Oct. 9.

The colonization committee of the chamber of commerce has issued the following statement to the landowners of the Wichita irrigation district.

Your interest as a land owner in the Wichita irrigation project will make it advisable for you to be present at the land-owners meeting to be held at Iowa Park at 2 p. m., Tuesday, October 9, to organize the Wichita valley land-owners association.

The Wichita Falls chamber of commerce through the committee undersigned, has outlined in a general way the plan through which the valley can be developed, new citizens secured and the land sold. The Iowa Park chamber of commerce is co-operating with us in this endeavor.

However, we wish to be understood in the beginning that this great project should be controlled and developed by the land-owners themselves through their association, with our help and co-operation available.

Without some organization or system, it will be slow and difficult to develop the fertile valley for which we have constructed the wonderful water system now nearing completion.

Please be on hand at the meeting at Iowa Park, hear our committee's report and let us hear your views, with the purpose of organizing and starting work as soon as possible. Let us lose no more valuable time in this important development.

Sincerely,

WICHITA FALLS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COLONIZATION COMMTTEE.

A. H. Britain, Chairman.

W. ANDERSON TO GET AGED TAXES

Will Probably Be Appointed To Gather Tolls Since 1885

W. R. Anderson, attorney and for years deputy tax collector and assessor here, will probably be appointed by the county commissioners' court to collect the delinquent taxes due the county since 1885, which have been recently compiled by Guy Raley, county tax collector, Anderson submitting a proposition to the court Monday which will be finally passed upon next Monday.

The compilation of the county tax collector revealed something near $2,000,000 due the county in delinquent taxes since 1885. This huge amount will necessitate the employing of one skilled man to garner it in and the expert will have to employ assistants as deputies. Anderson proposes to take his fee from taxes, penalties and interests which he proposes to collect.

Anderson will make a list of all property owners who still refuse to pay their delinquent taxes and such a list will be placed in the hands of the county attorney monthly. The county attorney will then file suit for collection on each of the delinquent units.

The power for the county commissioners' court to appoint an extraordinary deputy to assist in tax collection was given by the 38th legislature.

AUTO POLO IS FAIR THRILLER

Visitors at the fair yesterday afternoon who wanted thrills certainly got them in the auto polo games played in front of the grand stand following the horse races, before a crowd of several thousand spectators.

Using specially built cars, each with a driver and a mallet man, the players played the game in approved fashion, the drivers piloting their cars over the field with almost as much speed and suddenness as in the original game, while the mallet men climbed over the bodies of their tin charges in mad efforts to hit the white painted ball.

The price of the game for the players was a bunch of bruises and three new wheels for the Fords. Four cars were used in the game, and before play was stopped all four had been disabled, one being repaired and put on the track again after smashing a wheel.

Protected by steel bars the players drove their cars across the field at break neck speed, smashing together innumerable times, and overturning every few minutes. The ball would be loose, there would be a dash, a smash, a whirl of dust, and the cars would roll down the track. Picking themselves up the players rolled their steeds back on their wheels, and away again.

It was a speedy game, filled with thrills, and kept the spectators in the stands still with suspense one minute and on their feet shouting the next. Games will be played following the horse races every afternoon, on the track in front of the grandstand.

JUST ORDINARY SIGHT AT FAIR

A well dressed capable looking woman was working her way through the crowd of people near the grandstand, and was pulling on two taut woven leashes. She seemed to be having some difficulty in coaxing her charges along. With an impatient frown she tugged at the leashes and two five-year-old boys scuffed along in the dust, a huge pop corn ball in one hand, and squawker balloon and a trailing whip in the other.

GIANT AIRSHIP ON TO ST. LOUIS

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The first cross country run of a naval ship was in progress tonight.

Having defeated the adverse gale, which attempted throughout the day to hold her to the Atlantic seaboard, the ZR-1, American designed descendant of the original Zeppelin, was winning her way westward with St. Louis as her destination.

Radio dispatches from the big airship to the bureau of naval aeronautics, which was in constant touch throughout the flight, tonight told of the improved weather conditions encountered from the time the ship reached the vicinity of Pittsburgh.

The tour of the ZR-1 was designed to test the ability of her type to meet the varied atmosphere conditions known to exist between the seaboard and the great mountain ranges. Aviation officials were confident that the final report on the tour would show that the dirigibles of this type are admirably adapted for long distance commercial activity.

The ZR-1 is covered with paint in which silver is the metallic base and she reflects vividly the rays of the full moon.

It was originally planned for the ZR-1 to arrive at St. Louis about 7 a. m. tomorrow and remain in that city three hours, before returning to Lake Hurst, N. J.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The ZR-1 passed over Carrol, Illinois, at 1 a. m. central time, according to a radio message received from the dirigible by the naval radio station here.

BARNES' CIRCUS IS ON THE WAY

Will Arrive Here, Animals And All, October 13th

"The show that's different" is the way the Al G. Barnes 4-ring wild animal circus which comes to Wichita Falls Saturday, October 13 is billed. Those who recall attending the Barnes performances in the past will agree that it live up to its claims, in that every act presented at that time had an animal background. There were few of the old-time circus features in the program, and the thrills provided by the animal acts in the big steel arenas are still remembered.

This year the Barnes policy is still the same—"every act an animal act"—being the slogan. Twelve hundred animals are carried, and it is the owner's proud boast that all of them do something besides eat and look wise. Three special trains transport the circus and in the organization of 1080 people are found six bands, 65 clowns and scores of unusual curiosities. The horse tents house 550 high-grade animals including the Barnes collection of prize-winning high school horses.

"Alice in Jungletown", described as a fanciful fantasy introducing four prima donnas, a singing and dancing chorus of California beauties, hundreds of people and almost countless animals, is the opening feature.

The outstanding feature of the Barnes menagerie is "Tusko", the mastodon, billed as "the largest creature that walks the earth". "Tusko," according to the press agent, stands a foot taller than did the famous "Jumbo," weighs ten tons, and owing to his massive size cannot parade.

Twin baby elephants, trained rabbits, reindeer, ostriches, kangaroos, eagles and llamas will appeal especially to children, while thrills are provided by scores of fierce jungle-bred lions, tigers and leopards presented in big steel arenas.

HAS ANY ONE SEEN THIS LITTLE BOY?

Squads of special fair police searched in vain for little Francis Fitzgerald who was lost at the Texas-Oklahoma fair last night when he became separated from his sisters in the crowds. Search throughout the grounds failed to net results, and at a late hour last night he had not been found.

Francis is the 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fitzgerald, Route 5, box 153, living some distance south of Wichita Falls. He went to the opening of the fair yesterday afternoon in company with his two older sisters, age 12 and 14, and for some time the three spent their time at various booths. It was about 9 o'clock when the trio became separated and the older children reported at once to R. E. Shepherd at the fair offices. A thorough search failed to locate the boy.

The lost child is described as being unusually small for his age, and when he disappeared he was wearing a tan shirt, brown cap, and black trousers. He wore brown shoes and short sox, and according to his sisters he is a red headed, freckled faced youngster, with a grin that would identify him.

It is the opinion of the officers that the child upon losing his sisters, attempted to find them, wandering from the fair grounds. It is probable that he became tired and dropped off to sleep in a place where he could not be found.

AL SWEET'S BAND FAIR ATTRACTION

Al Sweet's singing and military band is in Wichita Falls for the week giving concerts at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition, and began its series of playing yesterday afternoon in front of the grandstand.

Al Sweet's band formerly traveled as the "White Hussars in Russia where performances were given to enthusiastic audiences. The band has grown in members since that time, but still continues pleasing entertaining.

There are seventeen members in the singing and military band at the fair, including Cecil K. Stage, baritone soloist, Jackson Bean, yodler, and a male chorus.

The concert opened yesterday with the "Old Iron Band March" by Fred Joel. The other numbers were chiefly popular music, including "Barney Google," selections from "Shuffle Along," Swinging Down the Lane" and others.

The concert yesterday afternoon is the first one that has been given by Al Sweet's band in Texas this season, the entertainers having come here from an engagement in Oklahoma City.

SNAKE DANCED BY FAIR TICKET MEN

Boys will be boys.

Also football is football.

But the officials of the Texas-Oklahome fair want to know when is football not football, for a combination of some 20 boys of high school age and football tactics not used on the gridiron almost wrought havoc with certain exhibitors at the fair grounds yesterday morning.

The mild riot was started when the boys, numbering more than 20, started a snake dance through the crowd in approved high school fashion, hands on shoulders and pushing. Not content with seeing things from the outside, they determined to enter the side shows, and were successful for a time, marching past door keepers who were helpless in the face of the numbers, chanting songs of the gridiron and other places.

It lasted until they were intercepted by a squadron of special police who impressed upon them that it is customary to pay entrance fees for all side shows. No arrests were made, and after a lecture the revelers continued on their way, but in a different manner.

VETERAN HORSE SHOE HURLERS FEATURE

The horse shoe pitching contest will be held in front of the grandstand at 230 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The shoes to be used will be those of regulation size. The standard rules of horse shoe pitching will be adhered to throughout the contest, according to those in charge.

The contest will bring together many of the good horse shoe pitchers of former days. Many of the old settlers will attend the event as horse shoe pitching was a favorite sport 20 and 30 years ago.

The most interesting feature of the contest will be a matched game between P. P. Langford of this city and J. G. Hardin of Burkburnett. Both men have been former champions of the northern part of the state. This event will be seen by many of the old settlers, who know the two participants.

Other matches are scheduled for and between teams representing towns and cities in North Texas and Southwestern Oklahoma, according to the program committee.

RACING STARTERS ARE ON THE JOB

Arthur McKnight, Kansas City, official starter of the races at the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition, and Joseph Sikes, Kansas City, Joe Davis, Lincoln, Nebr., assistant starters arrived early Monday morning from Omaha, Nebr., to take charge of the starting of the races to be held here during the fair.

McKnight is considered one of the best starters in the profession and turfmen praise him everywhere. He has acted as official starter in many of the leading running racing meets throughout the United States and Canada.

When asked about the race meet here McKnight stated that the local fair was attracting turfmen from all points west of the Mississippi river to the Rocky mountains and that the exposition was fast taking leading rank with other fairs and expositions that have been held annually for many years.

SHIELDS DENIES LETTERS CHARGE

Says He Stuck to Wilson In All Except League Question

By International News Service.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Senator John K. Shields, of Tennessee, replied in a lengthy formal statement today to letters he said were written to J. D. Fultz and others, in connection with his record in the senate, by former President Woodrow Wilson.

Shields declared he had supported all democratic principles and all of the former executive's efforts in the senate excepting the league of nations, and in this was guided only by his own judgment, as he believed it was to the best interest of the people he served.

"I challenge all men to point out a single instance in which I failed to follow the democratic platform and the fundamental principles of the democratic party," Shields said.

In a letter to Fultz in August, Mr. Wilson had accused Senator Shields of deserting him during the league of nations fight in the senate.

"I supported all the great war measures which Mr. Wilson asked for the successful prosecution of the war," Senator Shields declared. "Mr. Wilson prepared and had Senator Overman (North Carolina) introduce a bill giving absolute power over the administrative departments, never before exercised by any president for war purposes. While many senators opposed this bill, I supported it.

"When the bill was passed, Senator Overman said:

"'I selected Senator John K. Shields of Tennessee, as the strongest member of the judiciary committee, to study the bill from a constitutional standpoint.'

"We all have the profoundest sympathy for Mr. Wilson in his great and protracted affliction; we cannot cherish resentment for anything he may now say. He is immune from critisim. In my comments upon these letters, I will confine myself to plain statements of undisputed facts."

Vern Tantlinger, Now at the Fair Has a History Rivalling Fiction

Edith Tantlinger, champion wing shot says that baseball ruined a good lawyer when Vern Tantlinger, her husband, got the baseball bug in his system. Fred Beckman, one of the owners of the Wortham shows at the fair, says the wild west show world gained a good baseball player when Tantlinger learned to ride and shoot from the saddle.

The said Tantlinger is an interesting character. He was the wild west arena at the fair. In 1885 Iowa was a state where Indians were plentiful. It really was a state where wild west customs were not history. Tantlinger was born in the shadow of the university of Iowa. He went to the school as a classmate of Frank O. Lowden, who was prominently mentioned in the race for nomination for president in the last republican national convention.

Tantlinger studied law—sometimes—but baseball all the time. Finally baseball triumphed. Tantlinger was engaged as the first paid baseball player in the state of Colorado. He joined the Pueblo giants as regular first baseman and substitute pitcher. Every time he touched a ball he forgot something about Chitty's Blackstone.

Then the bicycl bug hit him. He bought a wheel. In those days a six-shooter was one of the necessary ornaments of the Colorado resident around Pueblo. Tantlinger took his shooting iron out, and riding the bike, he learned to twirl a rope. Jesse James had a horse, but Tantlinger had none.

Buffalo Bill came along and gave Tantlinger a horse and a job. He became a wild west showman and fancy roper. When the old scouts eye began to fail him he made Tantlinger his understudy. Each year he put more on Tantlinger's shoulders. Tantlinger and his wife were with Buffalo Bill the last year he was before the American people. From Buffalo Bill he learned the wild west show game. Then he became equestrian director of 101 Ranch Wild West. It required a war to get him out of the job.

The show was in England when the Kaiser bid defiance to the world. The British government commandeered all the livestock with the show. Then they turned back Winnipeg, the unridable horse, and six trained Texas mules, which belonged to Tantlinger. He returned with his nucleus to this country. Around it he built the wild west arena he now presents with the Wortham shows.

His wife, who is also a wild wester, is his fancy wing shot now. She was born in Pipestone, Minn., about the time Two Sticks and Medicine Bottle were helping make General Miles famous. Tantlinger has with him Lulu Bell Parr champion Broncho rider, upon who President Roosevelt once pinned the medal of honor for doing anything that came her way.

Another interesting character in the Tantlinger camp is "Cy" Collins. "Cy" is a familiar figure in the show world. He still wears the long hair and the balance of the old time cowman's outfit. He was born in a prairie schooner sixty three years ago, which was before the Lone Star state had chartered into a county his birth place. Should you meet any of these characters no introduction is necessary. They bear the unmistakable marks of the real people from the old wild west, which exists today only in a few personages who knew Texas trails when the rangers carried law to the frontier via the muzzle of six shooters.

SHOE SHOP HAS AUTO DELIVERY

The only shoe repairing shop with an automobile quick delivery is the latest achievement of John Groves, owner of the Star Shoe Shop.

Mr. Groves has recently added this service to his business for the convenience of his patrons.

"Give the people the best service that can be had and they are always your friends," said Mr. Groves. "We have made our shop distinctive by the use of black and white color effect on the building and by the use of the same colors in all our advertising and now with the auto delivery, there will be no one who doesn't know that the Star Shoe Shop is in business."

in a new blue airtight bucket as easy to open as winding the clock!

THE new Snowdrift bucket is blue and silver white.

Since we're making an entirely new kind of bucket, it was easy to change the color and label on it, if we wanted to. So we tried to improve the looks of it. The idea was that blue and silver white would be more appropriate for such fresh white good to eat fat, than the old blue and gold can. You may or may not agree with us about the improvement in the looks of the bucket, but there can't be two ways of thinking about the improvement in the bucket itself. It's great.
